QUEEN OF THE MOUNTAIN — The conqueror of this hill of beans is also conquering a handicap through the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center's infant stimulation program. Ginger Hare is afflicted with a congenital heart defect. At an early age, 2, she's already learning to deal with her handicap by working on developing hand function and fine motor skills. The earlier that therapy begins, the easier it is to overcome or compensate for developmental delays, according to the project director. See related story, pictures on pages 6-A, 7-A.

Babies primary aim of rehab program

By EILEEN MCGUIRE

Learning to sit, stand, walk, talk, feed and dress himself are milestones that parents anxiously wait for. Some must wait longer than others — their kids just don't seem to be able to or have an interest in mastering these first fundamental skills of living.

The parents of these children may wonder if something is wrong. Fear that there is may prevent them from finding out even though the problem may not be as severe as they imagine.

Parents may overlook a developmental lag because there is no apparent reason for it. But according to Carla Warrington at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, a developmental delay does not necessarily indicate mental retardation or other serious conditions. But, the delay is still a handicap and one that the child has to either overcome or learn to compensate for.

Last summer the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center began reaching out for the youngest victims of developmental disorders through its "Big Help for Little Folk" infant stimulation program. The program is designed to help pre-schoolers and their parents deal with handicaps before they become permanently disabling handicaps. The handicap may be temporary or it may be one that can be minimized.

So far, only half of the number of children who the program was set up for have been reached. There's room for 10 more, but before the Rehab Center can help them, it has to find them.

"I know they're out there," said Mrs. Warrington, director of the program. "There's so many things that can be done. The earlier we can get to them, the easier it is for them to learn to compensate for disabilities."

"And there's self-esteem involved for the child and the parents. It's devastating to parents to have to wait three or four years before they feel that something is being done for the child."

"The primary aim of this program is the babies. And we help them through the parents, the key people in their lives."

There are many reasons for developmental disorders and delays in small children. It can be physical, Mrs. Warrington said, or it can be emotional.

According to Mrs. Warrington, the 10 children currently in the program do not share the same handicap. Some are victims of cerebral palsy, heart defects and other health problems. Some suffer from "failure to thrive" syndrome. Some of the children suffer from retardation to a degree, but none are retarded per se. All are delayed in their development.

Ten top band-marchers saluted

John Phillips Sousa Award captured by Scott Shortes

By DON WOODS

The coveted John Phillips Sousa Award went to Scott Shortes at the annual Big Spring Steers Marching Band banquet Tuesday night. The award goes to the band member with the most outstanding achievement.

Shortes was selected by band members from a group of three students, including Sherri Rogers and Toni Myrick.

The banquet was held at the First Methodist Church Garrett Hall beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The prestigious Band Director's Award went to Robert Hughes for his extra effort and accomplishments above the call of duty. Brint Ryan received the Spirit Award.

The students voted on the ten best marchers in the band. They chose Scott Shortes, Kathie Timmins, Ralf Mendez, Sandy Kuykendal, Kama Minchew, Ernest Jara, Robert Hughes, Victor Mellinger, Mike Donald, and Sherri Rogers.

Several semi-serious awards were handed out in recollection of strange things that happened during the year. Two couples received the Fur Piece award, a pair of handcuffs. They were the couples considered most loving. The Band Air Award went to those who had received the most injuries. One student received an Out to Lunch Award and another received a Tank Award. The joke awards are handed out each year and passed out to the succeeding class.

The five Big Spring Twirlers received their awards earned at the Southwest Auxiliary Championships for most outstanding twirling. They are Sherri Blalack, Patte Griffin, Kim Deal, Debbie Butler and Angela Schmidt, head twirler. The awards were presented by Sonya Worthan.

High School Band Director Steve Waggoner said the year had not been what they hoped. The band, he said, had not been "clicking" on contest day this year. He said the band seeks to entertain as its primary purpose and that the contest judges may not have been of the same opinion.

Steak and baked potatoes were served by the Goliad and Runnels band students catered by K-Bob's. Big Spring Morning Optimists sponsored the banquet.

New Zealand DC-10 crashes; all 257 die

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — An Air New Zealand DC-10 carrying 257 persons on a sightseeing flight to Antarctica crashed into a volcano on the edge of the icy continent today, authorities reported. All aboard, including 12 Americans, were believed killed in one of history's worst air disasters.

U.S. Navy search planes spotted the wreckage on the slopes of smoldering Mount Erebus, near the U.S. research station at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica, some 2,000 miles south of New Zealand.

"It looks as though it burned. No survivors have been sighted. They are expecting a complete fatality," said Petty Officer Mike Hatcher of the U.S. Navy Support Group Headquarters in Christchurch, New Zealand.

The airline said the 237 passengers aboard the DC-10 included 46 foreigners — 12 Americans, 24 Japanese, 7 Australians, 2 Britons and a Canadian. The rest were New Zealanders. They paid $359 for what was supposed to be an 11-hour flight from Auckland to the coast of Antarctica and back.

Few airline disasters have surpassed the death toll in today's Antarctica crash. The on-the-ground collision of Pan Am and KLM jumbo jets at Tenerife airport in the Canary Islands in March 1977 took 581 lives, and the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC-10 near Paris in 1974 killed 346 persons.

The crews of Navy helicopters sent from McMurdo reported they were unable to land at the crash site because of violent updrafts of wind around the 12,400-foot volcano, the New Zealand Search and Rescue Center said.

The plane crashed about 2,500 feet up the slopes of the active volcano, which is in the center of Ross Island, where the McMurdo base also is situated. The island is just off the Antarctica coast, and the volcano is within sight of the McMurdo base.

"The wreckage was on the back side of the mountain," Hatcher said. "It was spread over an area of about 200 yards."

The Air New Zealand sightseeing planes regularly fly close to the volcano on their non-stop round trips to Antarctica from Auckland.

The cause of the crash could not be determined immediately. The DC-10 has been plagued by structural problems, including one that caused the crash of an American Airlines flight in Chicago last May that took 273 lives.

Air New Zealand said it understood the jetliner had completed its sightseeing run and was on its way back north to New Zealand when radio contact with the plane was lost at 2 p.m. (8 p.m. EST Tuesday). It was then still over Antarctica, about 30 or 40 miles from McMurdo.

The loss of radio contact was blamed on sunspot activity and did not cause immediate concern. But at 8 p.m. the airline announced the plane was an hour overdue for a refueling stop at Christchurch, on New Zealand's South Island.

The airline announced at 10 p.m. (4 a.m. EST) that the plane was lost. It said its fuel would have been used up half an hour before.

The U.S. Antarctic base at McMurdo Sound took charge of the search for the missing plane, and sent up five aircraft: two C-130 Hercules, a C-141 Starlifter and two helicopters. An Orion from the New Zealand Air Force was searching the ocean south of New Zealand.

The Starlifter was retracing the airliner's route back to New Zealand. It had been scheduled to fly Sen.

WHERE WRECKAGE SIGHTED — Map shows location of Mount Erebus in the Antarctic, where the wreckage of an Air New Zealand DC-10 with 257 persons aboard was sighted Wednesday.

Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia over the South Pole today on a flight commemorating the first flight over the pole on Nov. 28, 1929, by his uncle, the late Adm. Richard E. Byrd. But it could not be learned immediately whether that flight had been made or whether the senator was aboard the Starlifter for the search.

Air New Zealand said it had never before lost a passenger.

The airline operates the Antarctic sightseeing flights during the Southern Hemisphere's summer, and this was the fourth this season. An official said the flights had operated for three summers with no mishaps.

Among the crew was a well known New Zealand mountaineer, Peter Mulgrew, who gave the passengers a commentary on the Antarctic sights.

Debate delayed

Security Council waiting for Iran's foreign minister

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council delayed the start of its debate on the U.S.-Iranian crisis until Saturday night, waiting for the arrival of Iran's acting foreign minister from Tehran.

The 15-nation council launched its public consideration of the crisis with a 16-minute session Tuesday afternoon at which it heard brief speeches by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Council President Sergio Palacios de Vizzio of Bolivia. Then it adjourned until 9 p.m. EST Saturday.

Waldheim called on the United States and Iran "to avoid any action which could inflame" the situation further. Palacios de Vizzio urged Iran to release the 49 Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, renewing an appeal he made on behalf of the council on Nov. 9.

Iran's U.N. Mission said Acting Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr would be in New York for the start of the debate Saturday night. But Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of Iran's revolutionary regime, rejected in advance any council resolution "dictated" by the United States.

Khomeini in a statement broadcast Tuesday also appeared to reject the only proposal for council action that has surfaced so far, a package deal in which the Iranians would free the American hostages and end the occupation of the U.S. Embassy in exchange for creation by the council of an international commission to investigate his charges that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was responsible for the death of "nearly 100,000 martyrs" and with his family and other associates plundered the Iranian treasury.

The ayatollah lumped together the charges against the shah and his charge that the American hostages were spies, saying any "investigation into the case of the deposed shah and the spies must be carried out only in Iran." He added that the hostages must be put on trial within the "spy den," his term for the embassy.

Iran had sought to delay the council meeting until next week while the United States demanded an earlier public session to call again for the release of the hostages. The United States also wanted to speak at the meeting, but after the council president made his new appeal U.S. Ambassador Donald F. McHenry told a news conference: "We came out just where we wanted to."

State Department officials in Washington said the U.S. government was willing to wait through the end of this week for U.N. action and the time had not come for a showdown. But President Carter scheduled a news conference tonight and told a group of Democrats at a meeting in Washington Tuesday: "I will protect the honor of our country and will not under any circumstances yield to blackmail."

Iran's chief U.N. representative, Jamal Shemirani, told the council debate on the crisis would not be "opportune and productive" until after the Shiite Moslem days of mourning Thursday and Friday for the founder of the sect, the Prophet Mohammed's grandson Hussein, who was assassinated in the seventh century.

Most Iranian Moslems are Shiites.

and the holy days, known as Tasua and Ashura, are the occasion for fervent religious demonstrations in Iran. Last year hundreds of thousands marched through Tehran and other cities each day to protest the shah's rule.

As the holy days approached, rumors swept Tehran that the United States was planning an attack to free the hostages and that American agents would incite the demonstrating crowds to break in to the embassy so that a rescue could be attempted during the confusion.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Proving your 65

Q. I know someone who says he is 65 but has had trouble applying for Social Security benefits because he has no birth certificate. What do you suggest?

A. Why not try the Bureau of Census? The agency should have his age documented to the first ten-year census after his birth. That would be acceptable to the Social Security Administration and other agencies and organizations offering benefits to those 65 years of age and older. He can send $7.50 to the Personal Census Service Branch, Bureau of Census, Pittsburgh, Kan., 66762, and $7.50. The branch, in turn, will search two censuses for him and will return a transcript of its findings.

Calendar: Trustees meeting

TODAY
The Spring City Dance Club will hold its annual birthday celebration, 7:30 p.m., at the Eagles Lodge, 703 W. 3rd. Alvin Whitaker's Band will provide the music, and refreshments will be served.

THURSDAY
YMCA conclave, Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, all day.
Big Spring Independent School District Night at Howard College. First Home conference game for Howard College Hawks and Hawk Queens versus Frank Phillips College. Girls' game, 6 p.m., boys' game follows. Free tickets available at the schools Wednesday to all school district students, kindergarten through 12th grade, and school district employees. Howard College students get in free with i.d.
Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees will meet in a special meeting at 5:15 p.m. in the board room of the high school.

Tops on TV: 'Young Maverick'

CBS offers two tempting features on the small screen tonight. At 7 o'clock, tune in on the premiere of a new series, "Young Maverick." Ben Maverick is a young cousin to Bret and Bart, and he takes over where the other two left off in their classic series from the early '60s. James Garner (Bret) helps the opening episode along. Following this at 9 o'clock, C&W star Kenny Rogers takes a nostalgic look at the American Cowboy. Through music and vignettes, Rogers creates a portrait of the Western man's life with help from guests Mac Davis and the Charlie Daniels Band.

House speaker gigs Clements, nixes special session

By EILEEN MCGUIRE

Ten months ago Bill Clements stood in front of the State Capitol, recited the 108-word oath making him governor and then giggled in unrestrained glee. He hasn't had much to giggle about since that time.

Legislators generally ignored his leadership efforts and shredded his major legislative proposals last spring.

They gave him only a hint of the $1 billion in tax relief he promised the voters in 1978. And they rejected his proposal to let voters adopt and reject laws by initiative and referendum.

Legislators also refused to allow police to use electronic eavesdropping devices in the fight against illicit drugs. The governor called that rejection the biggest disappointment in his first six months and blames "a gaggle of criminal lawyers who have prevented us from doing what's right."

Governor Clements has indicated that he will call a special session of the legislature to rehash his rejected proposals for initiative referendum, authorizing electronic surveillance to break narcotics crimes, and tax relief.

Clements has said that he doesn't blame his most obvious handicap — being a Republican governor dealing with a Democrat-dominated legislature — for his problems.

House Speaker Bill Clayton, the speaker at a fund raising reception and dinner held at Howard College Monday night to honor Rep. Mike Ezzell, expressed his views on the governor's intent to call a special session.

Both Clayton and Ezzell, Democrats, are opposed to the governor's proposals. At a press conference preceding the Monday night reception and dinner, Clayton said that he did not see a special session at the first of the year.

"To me, a special session deals with emergencies and as of today, I don't know of anything that is a dire emergency that would call for a special session."

The governor has indicated that he'd call a session but he's backed off of the first part of the year and says now he's narrowed it down to two dates, either March or September.

"The three things that he's said he would call a session for is initiative referendum, wiretap for narcotics cases and tax reform or relief. Nobody knows exactly what he's talking about there because he hasn't exposed his program yet, particularly on what he means on tax reform."

On initiative referendum, Clayton said, "I think it's an issue that needs to be well thought out. Proposition 13 in California is what I think gave everybody a hope for initiative referendum form of government but they forgot to look back and see what those first 12 initiatives or propositions were — some of them weren't so hot."

"Representative form of government as our constitution has set out and our forefathers sought to implement in that document has worked well for us and it gives everybody a voice in government by electing those who would be their voice in the seat of government."

"I like the idea of the people having a chance to express themselves in certain ways but if you take a pure initiative referendum where it can go right on the ballot, you don't have a place where there can be a forum for open discussion to see how a proposition impacts on some of the segment of society or a chance for a mending process. If there happens to be some wording that is detrimental, there's no way to correct it."

"I would not favor a pure initiative referendum. I would not be opposed to an indirect initiative referendum whereby the people submitted issues and those issues had to be considered by the Legislature."

Restricted use of wiretapping, to be used in cracking drug trafficking, supported by the designated director of the Department of Public Safety, according to Clayton, induces mixed emotions.

Clayton said he has mixed emotions about authorizing the restricted use of wire tapping for the purpose of cracking trafficking cases. Electronic surveillance is favored by the designated director of the Department of Public Safety, James Adams, who takes office in January.

"I think law enforcement personnel need every tool that they can use to stop trafficking of drugs," said Clayton. "Texas has more mileage of common border with Mexico than any other state. Because of that, we're kind of a direct route for drug trafficking through the state for all of the other states."

"We need some way to get a handle on this. The only fear that I have is in the wrong hands it could be an invasion of privacy. I can build a safeguard that will assure that wire tap will not be used for any other purpose other than in narcotics cases and not for invasion of privacy, then certainly I would be for it."

Clayton commented on a controversy between Gov. Clements and Attorney General Mark White over the involvement of Clements in what White refers to as Gov. Clements' company SEDCO and the world's worst oil spill. Clements claims it is a political ploy on White's part.

Clayton said that only a lawsuit would disclose all facts in the case. "On the other hand, I think that this was a business endeavor. It was with the Pemex Oil Company, a Mexican oil monopoly."

"If you see Mexico, I wonder if you're not asking for some trouble in regard to personal feelings between Texas and Mexico. And if you won, who's going to make them pay?"

"Now if you're talking about a lawsuit in regards to SEDCO, the company that leased the rig from Pemex, and their involvement in the management of the rig, then that might be a different situation."

Clayton said he did not think anyone had enough facts to determine how much the SEDCO people had been involved in the management of the rig.

Clayton, a farmer-businessman from Springlake was elected to Speaker of the House in 1975 and re-elected in 1977 and 1979. He has announced that he will run for a fourth term. He indicated that it would be his last term.

It's rumored that Clayton may run for governor. He did not chose to disclose his plans at the press conference, saying that he is concentrating all efforts at this time on re-election as Speaker.

"Before the close of that (the next) session, I will make public my plans as to whether I will retire and go back to the farm or seek a statewide office. I'm inclined to believe I'd seek a statewide office."

He declined to specify which office. "There might be several that will be open at that time and I'm going to hold all options open," he said.

Clements has been criticized in the past for not knowing enough about state government to be an effective leader. Clayton made some observations on Clements' standing with the Legislature.

He said that he felt the last session of the Legislature had given full reigns to Governor Clements.

"It was a honeymoon type session. Nobody wanted to push and shove but just let the cards fall where they will. I think the next session of the Legislature going to be more difficult both for the governor and the Legislature because I think the 'wait and see' period is pretty well over."

"We're going to have some pretty determined people in the Legislature who are going to make some pretty harsh statements and probably take some pretty harsh actions. The governor, likewise, is going to retaliate in certain instances. This is just natural political happenings."

"It's difficult to learn all of state government in a year and a half," he said of Clements, "but he's come a long way. He has a good business head, he's worked very diligently."

"I think people have to realize that Texas has the weakest executive branch of all of the 50 states. Regardless of what the governor does, Texas is going to have its stability in the legislative branch of government because our constitution gives to the Legislature more authority than the other two branches."

"I think this is well and good because you have continuity of stability."

He said that a state with a dominant executive branch experiences a more drastic change at each election as the leadership switches from one political party and philosophy to another. Texas, he said, does not experience such a drastic change.

Looking ahead to the next session of the Legislature, Clayton said "I think it's going to be a rather interesting thing. It'll be a session after we've had the decennial census taken. It'll be a session that will be noted for reapportionment."

Redrawing the districts will be a difficult task, Clayton said.

"It's going to be a core that's certainly going to have an impact on areas of the state where there's been a terrific growth because they will receive more representation. Other areas that have not had the growth that some of the urban areas like Harris County and the Dallas-Fort Worth area has had will not increase representation."

The task, he said, would be to redraw the districts and still leave a balance across the state. He said that the census bureau has informed the Legislature that the information would not be available until the first of April.

"This means we have to complete the program of redistricting around the middle of May."

If attempts to get a redistricting plan drawn fail, he said, then the redistricting board has an attempt at it. "I'm hopeful that we will be able to redraw the lines and do them in such a fashion that they will meet court approval and justice department approval."

This is the first time in Texas that a redistricting plan has to have the approval of the justice department, he noted, "because we are now under the Voting Rights Act."

Currently, Clayton is concerned with an acute shortage of nurses in Texas, a problem that Rep. Ezzell is heavily involved in. He said that he and Ezzell would be meeting this week to name some advisory committee members to assist the Ezzell-chaired Health Resources Committee in looking at the problem and advise the House on what needs to be done to take care of the problem.

The hospital district in Lubbock, Clayton noted, has this week announced it will increase the salaries of nurses there effective Dec. 30 "simply to keep some of the other hospitals from getting them."

"It seems like they have quite a little play going there. One hospital will up the salaries and get the nurses then here comes another one and ups the salaries and gets the nurses. It doesn't create any more nurses; it just creates a hardship for the hospitals. Something has to be done."

"I think Mike's committee can come up with some good recommendations of what needs to be done in Texas to assure ourselves of an adequate supply of nurses."

Digest

Black judge appointed

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — State Rep. Cain Kennedy has become the first black appointed to a circuit judgeship in Alabama in this century.

On Tuesday, Gov. Fob James named Kennedy, of Mobile, to succeed Domestic Relations Judge Michael Zoghby effective Dec. 1. Zoghby will replace Circuit Judge William Bolling, who is retiring.

Earlier this year, James appointed Nathaniel Davis Owens as a district judge in Anniston, marking the first time a black has held a district court judgeship in Alabama. To fill Kennedy's seat in the Legislature, the governor must call a special election. No date was immediately set.

Execution stay denied

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court has denied a stay of execution for convicted murderer James Dupree Henry, rejecting defense arguments that the death penalty was improperly imposed.

Henry's lawyer, Craig Barnard, argued Tuesday that murder convictions and death sentences are handed out more frequently in Orange County than elsewhere in the state. "No preliminary factual basis for the contention was presented to the trial judge in this case," the court wrote in a two-page denial.

Henry is scheduled to die next Thursday in the electric chair for the March 23, 1974, strangulation of an 81-year-old Orlando man.

Carter, Reagan on top

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrat Jimmy Carter and Republican Ronald Reagan came out on top in a presidential straw vote at the state Farm Bureau convention.

Reagan took 40 percent of the votes against other GOP candidates on Tuesday's ballot and Carter got 39.9 percent of the Democratic votes.

Ballots were cast by 482 members of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation at the group's 61st annual meeting. Seventy percent of those voting identified themselves as Republicans, 20 percent as Democrats and 10 percent as independents.

Computer error to blame

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Petroleum Institute says a computer error caused it to underestimate supplies of heating oil, gasoline and other petroleum products by several million barrels last week.

The institute — an industry organization representing oil companies in Washington — said Tuesday that data processing errors "tended to underestimate petroleum product stocks."

The errors were the fourth of their size announced by the institute in four months. An institute official said he could not recall when the organization had previously had such frequent large revisions.

City council will study plan to tax personal vehicles in city

The Big Spring City Council will study a plan to tax personal vehicles in the city which was presented during Tuesday's regular meeting.

Fred Maddox, who had initially suggested the idea several months ago, proposed that the city charge $12 a year per vehicle in the city. Of this, $1 would go to Howard County for processing services, and $2 to the local police and fire departments.

"The rest would go into the city's general fund to be used as the council sees fit," suggested Maddox.

He stated that State Bill 1060 gives the city the right to enact such a tax, and that it would be a good alternative to personal property taxes. The resolution would have to be acted upon before Jan. 1 in order to tax vehicles on the 1980 tax rolls, he added.

Council members also gave permission to advertise for cars and pickups to be used by city employees. Members will review both cars with V-8 and V-6 engines and two different sizes of pickups.

All in all, six pickups and seven patrol cars will be purchased.

In other business, the council:

- Passed the second and final reading of an ordinance allowing beekeeping inside the city limits.
- Passed the second and final reading of an ordinance prescribing rates for the Amphitheater, Comanche

- Trail Municipal Golf Course and Figure Seven Tennis Center.
- Passed the second and final reading of a resolution authorizing Mayor Wade Choate to make application to the Federal Aviation Administration for permission to convey property to Howard College for the institute for the deaf.
- Unanimously carried a motion to convey real property at Industrial Park and Intermim use of Withycombe Hall to Howard College for the purpose of the institute for the deaf.
- Passed on first reading a resolution authorizing the mayor to execute an agreement transferring the gas distribution system at the former Webb Air Force Base to Pioneer Natural Gas Company.
- Accepted City Manager Don Davis' suggestion that the council offer recommendations to fill two vacancies on the Board of Adjustment at the next city council meeting.
- Accepted Davis' recommendation to continue the city's casualty and property insurance program.
- Voted to remove the "no left turn" sign at FM 700 and the south exit of Malone-

Hogan Hospital due to the absence of heavy traffic from Industrial Park.

Approved for filing Big Spring Traffic Commission minutes for Oct. 26 meeting, but to refer back to the commission a request for traffic control at schools during school hours.

Approved minutes for the Structural Standards Board meeting of Oct. 2.

Approved minutes for special City Council meeting of Nov. 15, and emergency called joint meeting of the City Council and Airport and Industrial Park Steering Committee Nov. 15.

Police beat Bust tipsters arrested

Two local men were arrested Tuesday night for interfering with a bust by members of the Major Crime Task Force.

According to police reports, task force members with warrants in hand had planned to bust a local marijuana salesman. Their plan was foiled, however, by two men who had monitored the task force plans over police band radios.

At approximately 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, when officers began to move in on the home where a large amount of marijuana was thought to be located, the two men sat in their cars and listened to the whole plan on several sophisticated radio scanners. Once alerted, they drove to their friend's home and warned the suspect of the imminent bust.

Both faces misdemeanor charges of hindering an arrest.

Tire slashers were busy Tuesday. Three tires on a car belonging to Beatrice Gillis, 1905 Wasson, three tires on a vehicle belonging to Vivian Loar, 800 Marcy, and a tire on a vehicle belonging to James Janeway, 2610 Rebecca, were punctured between 6 p.m. and midnight Tuesday.

All vehicles had been parked at the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital. Total damage was estimated at $365.

Another tire on a car belonging to Jan Whitehead, 613 Holbert, was slashed Monday afternoon while it was parked at the office of the Big Spring Herald. Damage was estimated at $100.

Officials at the Rip Griffin Truck Stop, IS 20 and Highway 87, believe that it was a former employee who stole a pneumatic wrench and several socket wrenches from the garage there Tuesday. Loss was estimated at over $300.

Officials at the Jack Lewis Cadillac Dealership, 403 Scurry, know the person who

Grand jury in session

The Howard County Grand Jury is in session for the second day. District Attorney Rick Hamby said he expects deliberation to be completed by Thursday morning at the latest.

The jurors are considering whether to return indictments on 27 defendants in cases ranging from manslaughter to DWI-second.

Arts, crafts sale Saturday

Volunteer Services Council for Big Spring State Hospital will hold its Third Annual Arts & Crafts Sale Saturday from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. in the Highland Shopping Center Mall.

Handmade gift items, Christmas decorations and baked goods will be available. All items are made and donated by volunteers serving Big Spring State Hospital patients. These volunteers are from Midland, Big Spring, Lamesa, Stanton, Ackerly and Colorado City. All proceeds will go to the patients' Christmas fund.

Also available during the sale will be the cookbook recently printed by the Council entitled "Best of the West — Cookery by the 'Best of the West'...volunteers for Big Spring State Hospital." The book sells for $3.50 and is a compilation of new and old recipes from volunteers.

The booth will be manned by volunteers from the various communities and Volunteer Services staff members.

Texas court dodges IUOE-Cosden hassle

Harte Hank Austin Bureau AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court Tuesday refused to get involved in a dispute between the International Union of Operating Engineers and the Cosden Oil and Chemical Company plant at Big Spring.

Without issuing an opinion, the court agreed with lower court rulings against Cosden's request for a summary judgment against the union.

The union, local 826, filed a grievance against Cosden over the dismissal of an employee, Marshall Day, questioning whether the dismissal was proper under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement.

Both sides agreed to arbitration, but Cosden refused to accept an arbitrator from the first panel offered by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The union sued and Cosden moved for a summary judgment by the trial judge in its favor. The company said the judge could not rule on the arbitration dispute without assuming the role of an arbitrator himself.

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

True, all hearing problems are not alike... and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But audiologists report that many can. So, send for this free model now, and wear it in the privacy of your own home. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 00000, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

Mexico-bound railroad cars are stranded due to freight embargo

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Some 4,500 railroad cars loaded with grain and goods for Mexico are stranded in South Texas because Mexico's national railroad, overworked by the nation's oil boom, cannot accept them fast enough, says an American railroad official.

The situation has forced the Missouri Pacific Railroad to impose a freight embargo until the railroad traffic jam eases.

Frank Howell, Missouri Pacific sales manager here, said Tuesday that the crunch has occurred because Mexico's limited transportation facilities have been outstripped by its rapidly growing economy.

Missouri Pacific issued its embargo Nov. 15 for the Brownsville and Laredo ports of entry into Mexico, Howell declined to speculate how long it might take the government-owned Mexican railroad to ease the situation.

"The national railroad can only take so many cars per day. There were simply more going down there than they could handle," said Howell. "Until that clears up, we'll accept no more cars bound for Mexico."

Missouri Pacific is the only railroad to levy such an embargo, but said cars are also piling up on other lines, said Howell.

"The economy of Mexico has picked up with its oil boom and it has outstripped the ability of the national railroad's transportation facilities to handle freight," explained Howell. "There was no problem before the oil boom."

Many of the stranded cars are owned by other railroads, but are being used by Missouri Pacific. Because of that, Howell said the crunch hurts his company financially.

"It's been very expensive for us," he said. "We have to pay per diem for those cars we are using from other railroads. With this situation, the per diem is exceeding the revenue. That's something we must absorb ourselves. It's right out of our pockets."

The pileup is especially heavy in the Laredo area, Howell said. The cars are being kept on track sidings.

Mortgage rates mean worst is yet to come

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although housing costs rose last month at the steepest rate since 1947, many economists are saying record-high mortgage rates mean the worst is yet to come.

"If housing increases were high in October, the November increase will be whopping," said Commerce Department economist Theodore Torda.

And Robert Russell, director of President Carter's anti-inflation council, said mortgage rates will affect inflation with a "vengeance."

The Labor Department reported Tuesday that consumer prices rose 1 percent overall last month, fueled primarily by a 1.5 percent boost in housing costs.

By contrast, food prices were up a relatively modest 0.7 percent, fuel oil prices up 1.3 percent — compared to an average increase of 5 percent a month over the prior nine months — and gasoline increased 1.8 percent, the smallest rise since last December.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the average price across the country for gasoline topped $1 a gallon for the first time in October. The $1.006 a gallon October figure compared to 99.8 cents in September.

Mortgage interest rates have risen from 11 percent to 14 percent in many parts of the country.

Secret Service capture knife-wielding woman

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman carrying a knife was seized by Secret Service agents today after she rushed into the reception room of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's Senate office. She was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

One of the agents who seized her was nicked in the wrist by the woman. At the time of the incident, which occurred at about 9:40 a.m., Kennedy was in his office, which is separated from the reception room by an outer office.

Kennedy, who recently announced his candidacy for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, said he was unaware of the incident until he was told about it later by one of his assistants.

understand is being handled by the Secret Service," Kennedy said.

The woman, tentatively identified by the Secret Service as Susan Osgood, was turned over to Capitol police and led down the hall by Capitol policemen with her hands behind her back. Kenneth W. Lynch, a Secret Service public affairs officer, said the service did not know the woman's age or address.

Inspector Gilbert H. Abernathy of the Capitol Police said the woman was arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and removed for questioning by the Secret Service in downtown Washington.

Carter's new pledge to fight inflation

The nation will likely end the year with a 13.1 percent inflation rate, the worst since price controls were removed after World War II. President Carter has again vowed to fight inflation. This time, the president assures us, he will even follow economic policies that are unpopular if they are necessary. Let's hope he means it, but there is nothing in his past performance to indicate he will be able to stand firm when the new tight money policies of the Federal Reserve Board begin to take effect. The president has not been entirely responsible for fiscal and monetary policies that have resulted in inflation twice the rate that he inherited from Gerald Ford. Congress and the Fed have done their part. The recent moves of the Fed to tighten money is in effect a give-up on the Carter inflation fighting program. Until recently, his administration had elected to allow the growth of money to far exceed real growth of the economy. Now we can expect the recession to come on with a rush, and higher unemployment rates will almost certainly accompany the slowdown. Question: Will the president be able to resist pressure during an election year to cut taxes, spend more federal money on programs to temporary spur employment and other measures to stimulate the economy in the interest of controlling inflation? He has not been able to resist the temptation in the past. Indeed, his performance in the early months of his presidency on these very issues are largely responsible for the inflationary disaster he now faces. Instead of setting conservative goals for federal spending and monetary growth that would in the long run slow inflation, he has done the opposite. Now the Fed is being forced to administer the "old-time religion" in the form of astronomical interest rates and a drastically-tightened monetary policy to stave off economic disaster. Carter and Congress have lost their opportunity to bring about fiscal and monetary responsibility. The next chance will come with the forthcoming economic cycle. Maybe the president has learned a lesson, but don't bet on it.

Cemetery secrets

Around the rim
Don Woods

Human bones, a casket handle and a metal strong box lend strong evidence that the ground across the street from the Derrington's Auto Parts, just north of the tracks, harbors the last resting place of some of Big Spring's earliest residents.

In fact, the only thing I found that seemed to corroborate the idea is the belief of Zudora Peterson. She remembered hearing that the cemetery that flooded was located "west and north of the east viaduct."

This would be the place. The area is also low lying, probably more likely to flood than any place around.

Polly Settles, her cousin and Mr. Settles also heard the story of the bodies coming to the surface in a flood.

MRS. PETERSON said her grandmother, on her mother's side, had a child buried in the old cemetery. She said the casket floated to the surface after a flood and was reburied in the new Mount Olive Cemetery. She said her grandparents came here in 1905 and the baby died a month later. The child had not been buried long when the cemetery flooded, placing the date of the flood around 1905.

The bones that raised the question are missing; Derrington doesn't know what happened to them or the casket handle. He sold the metal strongbox to a German for $25.

THE LAND for the new Mount Olive Cemetery was donated by George Bauer in July 1890. He owned much of the land in block 32 where Mount Olive is located.

Somewhere there is another cemetery that city and county archives don't record. Evidently when it flooded, the county began using the Bauer land for a cemetery. Proof though that the cemetery by the tracks and the flooded cemetery are the same one is buried with the people buried there.

Back in the 1930's, Derrington said he allowed the city to bulldoze the dirt from his lot across the street from his store. Derrington wanted the surface level with the street and the city needed the dirt.

Subsequently, the city's equipment disturbed a human grave and brought several bones to the surface.

DERRINGTON also said some boys digging in the neighborhood around the store were horrified when they unearthed the old metal handle of an early coffin.

In addition, he said the city turned up an old strongbox with a hole blown in the side. It was the type that had once been used to haul silver coins.

Do these artifacts represent proof that Big Spring once had a cemetery that existed too early to be found in county and city records? Birth and death records in the county clerk's office say that Mount Olive was once named new Mount Olive Cemetery, indicating that there was also an old Mount Olive Cemetery.

OLD TIMERS say they remember their older relatives speaking of a flood in the early part of the century that floated the caskets out of graves in a cemetery somewhere in the Big Spring area. Evidence, though, that this cemetery is the same one that existed near the railroad tracks is almost non-existent.

Wanted: New Strategy

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — When presidential anger over outrageous anti-American diatribes pouring from clandestine transmitters in Baku to Iran boiled over, Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, traveled three blocks up 16th street for a no-nonsense luncheon with Anatoly Dobrynin at the Soviet Embassy.

That Brzezinski's unannounced Nov. 12 complaint to the Russian envoy was clearly needed is beyond debate. It was essential to warn Moscow about its "Voice of Iran" campaign to incite Iranian radicals against the U.S. — with its contemptuous reference to "the conspiratorial Brzezinski."

But Brzezinski's complaint is stamped with the same brand that has distinguished so many of Carter's actions in the Iranian crisis. That is the brand of that has distinguished so many of Carter's actions in the Iranian crisis. That is the brand of reaction and response, as contrasted to what so clearly seems needed: a new Carter strategy to deal with a new kind of crisis unprecedented in world history — the virtual hijacking of the American Embassy in Tehran.

INDEED, THE transition of Carter from the hand-wringing phase that marked the first few days of the crisis (during which he made the spurned offering of Ramsey Clark to the radicals running Iran), to the decisive action on Iranian oil, Iranian students and Iranian assets was not the result of any careful new strategy. It was born instead directly out of the torrent of political complaints that poured into Carter's White House demanding that the flag be shown.

"Once he felt that heat," a White House insider told us, "he knew he had to get tougher, if not really tough."

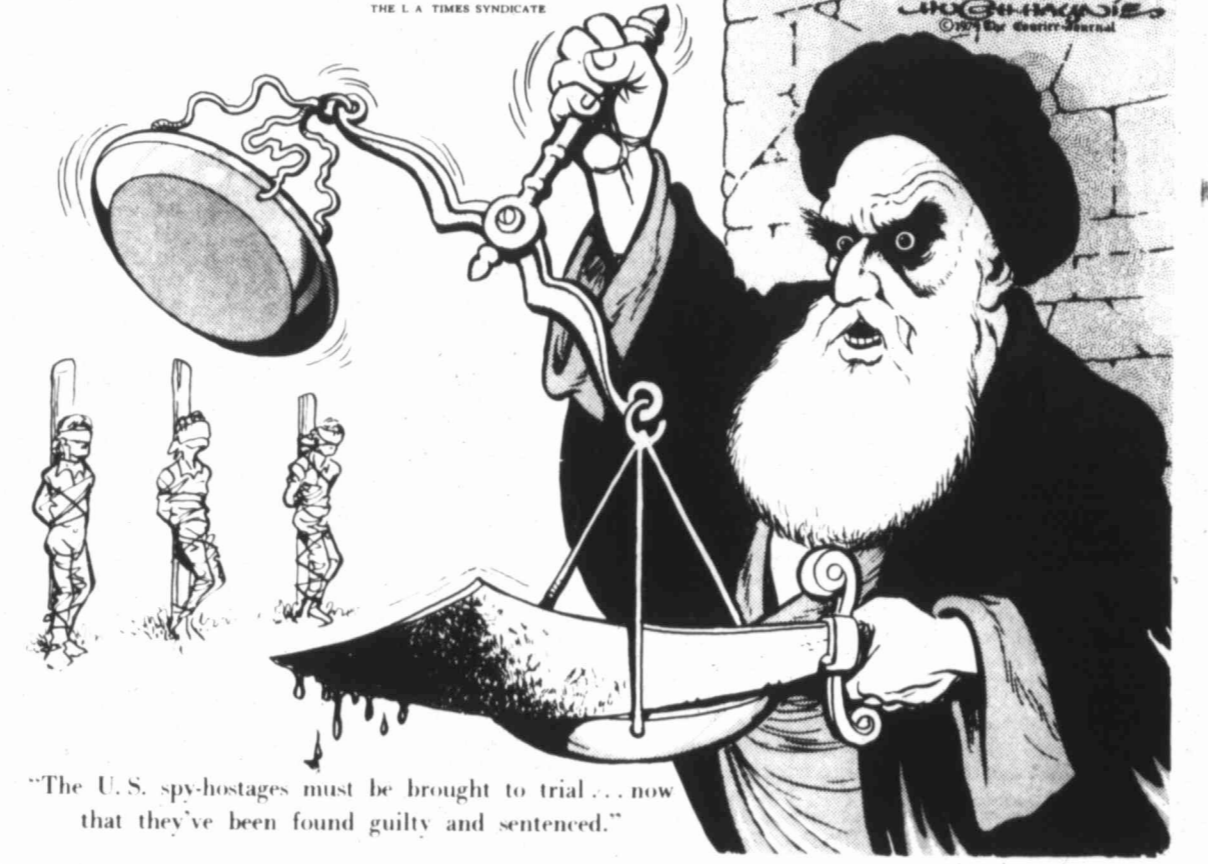

The "tougher" Carter amazed officials both in and outside the White House. For example, when the question first arose of action against the Iranian students — a natural result of the anti-American demonstrations in the streets of American cities — Carter quickly overruled cautious legal advisers.

The president was told that precious legal precedents were involved in dealing too quickly or harshly with the Iranian students. He brushed that aside, insisting that Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti root out all students who had violated the terms of the entry visas and start deportation proceedings against them.

Likewise, when Carter raised the question of ending U.S. purchases of Iranian oil, some State Department officials sought delay, asking serious questions not about legality but about the impact on other oil producers. Brushing aside all such caution, Carter told one aide: "I want it done."

Such gestures as these were praised by politicians of both parties. They marked a clear departure from the hand-wringing phase. What the politicians do not know, however, is that Carter is still reacting and responding, escalating his reactions somewhat each day as the hijackers continue to hold their hostages and the tension rises. But if the president has decided to adopt a true strategy, as opposed to the tactics of minor daily escalation, it is the best-kept secret in Washington.

For example, a strong proposal privately submitted to the administration two weeks ago by Sen. Richard Stone of Florida, the chairman of the Mideast subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, seems to have disappeared without notice in the suggestion box at the State Department. Stone's proposal: Move the U.S. immediately into a new, closer pattern of cooperation with Arab states around Iran's borders — including militant Iraq.

Artery-muscle ache problems linked

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I read about polymyalgia rheumatica recently. Among the signs mentioned is swelling of the temporal artery. This hit home. For many years my left temporal artery has gotten swollen for four to five days at a time. It is ugly and painful. I have osteoarthritis, which I manage without drugs.

It is a cosmetic problem and I wonder if this swelling represents some hidden health problem. Can you comment? — M.S.

Polymyalgia rheumatica and temporal arteritis (not arthritis) often appear together. They may be two separate parts of one general illness.

Polymyalgia rheumatica causes aching in muscles of the neck, shoulders, hips, or thighs. It does not affect joints themselves.

Temporal arteritis is inflammation of the temporal artery, the blood vessel located in front of the ear and running upward to the scalp. The artery becomes tender and thickens, and the scalp may be quite tender as well. Vision disturbance may occur.

Both conditions respond well to small doses of cortisone-like drugs.

What you see may or may not be a swollen temporal artery. There are veins located near such arteries, including the artery to which you refer (temporal). If a vein becomes enlarged, it may be mistaken for the temporal artery. Temporal arteritis is diagnosed by biopsy of that vessel. Your physician can easily determine if you really do have the problem. If you do, you need prompt treatment for it. Certainly, these symptoms should be investigated.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How does a doctor diagnose whooping cough? — N.O.

First, of course, it is important to know if the child has been vaccinated. If so, whooping cough is very unlikely. Sometimes the swallowing and aspiration (into the airways) of a small foreign object will mimic whooping cough. Whooping cough is confirmed by detecting the organism that causes it (pertussis). Sometimes, however, this is hard to do.

Dear Dr. Donohue: This is the second time I have written to you. I am 72 years old. My urine and prostate are 100 percent OK, but there is a clear white discharge all the time from my penis. My doctor cannot explain it. Can you? If you don't know, please say so in the paper. There must be an answer. Is it cancer? — F.S.

I didn't respond the first time for a pretty good reason. I didn't have an answer. But persistence in the face of ignorance deserves some sort of try.

See if I have it correct: Your urine shows no signs of infection; the prostate gland is not enlarged; yet you have a continuing clear discharge. Let me start by saying this surely does not sound like cancer. Secondly, if all infectious diseases have been ruled out, then, according to my urology consultant, the discharge probably represents natural secretions from the prostate gland, a common condition in elderly men. There is nothing to be done for it.

I'd welcome any other doctor's thoughts on this. The reader has written twice. As he says "there must be an answer," so I'd better find it for him if he isn't satisfied with my consultant's.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you please say something about smoking during pregnancy. My daughter insists on continuing, and maybe if you scared her she would stop. — Mrs. P.W.

I'm not in the business of scaring anyone. If well-known facts make a person think twice about things like smoking during pregnancy, great.

It is a fact that the smoking may lower oxygen levels in the body and hence the amount available for the fetus. One recent study in England revealed that the smoking mother-to-be can help, even if she quits for the few days before actual delivery. It makes a difference (about 8 percent more oxygen).

So, yes, your daughter should quit. That would not seem to be a great inconvenience, and her motivation should be high.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: The Bible.

The most loved, the most read, the most talked about of all books in the whole world. And, yet, the most misunderstood.

There are hundreds of religions that use The Bible as their guide and each one claims they understand The Bible and are right.

Our U.S. government is based on The Bible, and on our coins are the words "In God We Trust". And, as long as we were the greatest nation on earth, all nations loved and feared us. But since we have turned to our own understanding we are despised of many nations.

But to get back to The Bible, there is one subject that most preachers and teachers are very strong on and that is the tithes in the church. But, there are very few members that give the tenth and the churches are in financial trouble. And, that because we do not understand the tithe, we are asked to read our Bible and we read in Lev. 27:30, Num. 18:26 and Deut. chapters 12 and 14 that the tenth part of the produce of the land is to be taken to the store house not the temple. Deut. 14:22, 26: If it is too far to take the tithe to the storehouse then sell the tithe and go to the place and buy what ever we desire. And, from this we find no other instructions, so we are left confused.

Our teachers must have information we are not finding. So come on preachers and teachers, give. Truman Wood 703 E. 14th

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: For several years I have wanted to make a commitment to Christ, but for some reason I simply can't seem to do it. What do you think is my problem? — R.V.

DEAR R.V.: I don't know exactly what your problem may be, but I do know two things. The first is that Satan will do everything he can to persuade you to delay your decision for Christ. The second is that there is no reason for your delay, since God stands ready to welcome you and make you His child.

Having said that, let me point out several possible reasons for your delay. One may be some particular sins in your life — sins which you perhaps enjoy, and now that you will have to get rid of when you come to Christ. If this is the case it must be faced squarely and honestly. When you come to Christ you must come in faith and repentance — and that means leaving behind as best you know how every sin which you know to be in your life. Furthermore, to come to Christ means to accept Him as your Master and Lord. It may be that your deepest sin — and that which is keeping you from your commitment — is your unwillingness to let Christ rule your life. You may want to hold on to it, and run it the way you want to. But that, of course, is not only not right — it is foolish. Christ loves you and knows what is best for you. For that reason He can be trusted to rule your life.

Another reason may be that you are not really convinced of your need of Christ and His salvation. But the Bible tells us that we are sinners, separated from God and under His condemnation. Your life right now does not have the meaning and purpose which Christ alone can bring. You do not know the joy of His presence every day, and you cannot claim His promises of guidance and wisdom. Furthermore, you face the terrible prospect of going out into a Christless eternity, lost forever and with no second chance.

Whatever the reason, don't delay in giving your heart to Christ. The Bible says, "Now is the time of God's favor, now is the day of salvation" (2 Corinthians 6:2).

'Big Help for Little Folk'

"BIG HELP for Little Folk" is a Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center program aimed at helping the youngest of the handicapped to overcome or learn to compensate for their disabilities. Lucas Roble, 19-month-old cerebral palsy victim, is one of 10 children currently participating.

'More can be done' for handicapped locally

The program involves some therapy between the children and therapists at the Rehab Center, but the major therapy takes place in the home between the child and the family. Workers in the program work with the parents to help them help their children.

Since the program began last summer, it has been steadily developing into a program designed to meet the needs of those it serves.

The Easter Seals Society Board of Directors met and passed a resolution Nov. 14 to support a parent group auxiliary, Mrs. Warrington stated. Any parent in the area with a child who has any kind of disability is invited to participate. The first meeting, she said, will be after the first of the year.

"We are hoping that it will be an advocate group," she said.

Mrs. Warrington explained that by law, handicapped children and adults are entitled to certain rights. Schools, for example, are required to offer services to disabled children. Through the Easter Seals parent group, Mrs. Warrington hopes that parents of disabled children in this area will become aware of what their children are entitled to.

"This will teach the parents rights and expectations for their kids. It'll teach them what they have a right to ask for and demand from schools and their community. This group can also inform the community about the needs of these kids."

Mrs. Warrington stated that there are individuals and groups who want to do things for the community's handicapped children, but that they are themselves handicapped by a lack of knowledge of the needs of the children.

"There are many things being done for the handicapped in this area," she said. "More can be done. A parents group will let them know how to better serve the needs of these kids. Most people who know of a need, respond to it."

In response to the Rehab Center's need for equipment to help establish the infant stimulation program, for example, the 1970 Hyperion Club has pledged over $400 for a special tricycle and a play tower for handicapped children. The tricycle has been ordered.

Contributions have also come in the form of time and work. One man, for example, has volunteered to restore playground area in the back of the center to good condition so that the children can use it. And he is trying to get someone to donate a swingset.

The center expressed a need for toys for the infant stimulation program. In response to that need, Big Spring American Legion Auxiliary No. 506 donated $50 worth of toys. Some area 4-H members, ac-ording to Mrs. Warrington, have decided that instead of exchanging Christmas gifts with each other this year, they will give things to the center.

A man skilled in carpentry, Lewis Collins, has this week completed and presented to the center a storage facility with closets and cubicles to house the belongings of a dozen children. The project was accomplished with over $100 of materials donated by Harris Lumber and Hardware.

The Baptist Young Women of the First Baptist Church have presented the center with 17 handmade, child-designed pillows for the small children to use when they rest. For stimulating play, Jack Barber of Barber Glass and Mirror has donated a 5-foot by 3-foot mirror.

Among the needs that the center still has are a baby bed and a good "lending library." The lending library, Mrs. Warrington explained, will consist of toys and books that the center can lend out to the families of the children in the program.

These children require a lot of stimulation, Mrs. Warrington said. In some cases, because families may not have the resources to provide the tools for stimulation, the children are deprived of an important part of their therapy. Toys and books are used for handicapped children, just as they are for any child, to create an interest in learning and to give the children more experiences.

Mrs. Warrington suggested that while parents clean out their children's toys in preparation for Christmas, they might consider giving outgrown ones to the center. Any donation is tax deductible.

The Big Spring program, based on the fairly new concept of facing up to handicaps early, has inspired similar programs in both Midland and Odessa because of its effectiveness.

"It can make such a difference in family relationships Mrs. Warrington said. "Not just between parent and child, but between the parents and between the child and sisters or brothers."

Bringing the parents of the children together can also make a difference, she said. The parents have other parents to share the burden and hope with.

Knowing why the handicap occurred in a particular child is not as important as facing it and dealing with it, she said.

"We have to determine the level of the child's functioning and try to get him from here to there," she said. "Establishing the level of functioning is more important than why."

"Developmental delays can occur without retardation. It can be because of an apparent disability, an emotional disability, cultural deprivation — the causes vary, the emphasis is on the level of functioning. There are so many reasons why the body and mind doesn't develop."

Any child who shows evidence of a developmental delay, whether there is an apparent reason for it or not, can contact the Rehab Center. Local physicians and others who deal closely with area children, Mrs. Warrington said, have been requested to refer children who may have such a delay to the center.

The program has been incorporated here to help this area's children without discrimination against the parents' ability to pay for the therapy that may mean the difference between a productive or handicapped life for their child.

A "Mother's Day Out" has also been incorporated into the program for the benefit of both the children and their mothers. According to Mrs. Warrington, it is the mother who carries most of the burden for a handicapped child. She is the one who stays at home with the child and many mothers are reluctant to leave their children with others because of their special needs.

To ease the pressure some, the Rehab Center makes some time available to the mothers by operating a play session for children in the center twice a week, 9:30-11:30 a.m. Wednesday and Friday. An additional day, Monday, may be made available after Christmas.

The "Mother's Day Out" is made available not only to children in the program, but to their brothers and sisters.

"The idea is to give the mother some time all her own," said Mrs. Warrington. "And it also gives the children an opportunity for social interaction."

There is no therapy or other structured activities during "Mother's Day Out", she said. The children are placed in a day care type setting with volunteers to oversee them and they are free to play with whomever and whatever they wish. They are free to seek out companionship with each other and learn the skills of socializing on their own.

"It's really been a thrill, seeing the interaction between these kids," Mrs. Warrington said. "They play together and they miss each other when they're gone. It's an important part of the program, as are the parents meetings."

There are currently 10 vacancies in the infant stimulation and "Mother's Day Out" programs. In addition, parents meetings will be starting up soon. "We need the names of parents who need this group," Mrs. Warrington stated.

Any child, regardless of race, creed, national origin or the ability to pay is eligible for the program. And any child who is functioning below age level in any capacity may need it.

MOTHER'S DAY OUT — Preschoolers in the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center's "Big Help for Little Folk" program had fun last week making Thanksgiving creatures from apples and marshmallows while their moms took the morning off. "Mother's Day Out" is one of several ways that the program works to aid both

Miss America to U.S. Senate?

'Queen Bess' aims for new reign

NEW YORK (AP) — When Bess Myerson was crowned Miss America of 1945, a headline described her as "A Very Serious Type." Today she is being taken very seriously indeed, as an all-but-announced candidate for the U.S. Senate.

The path from the Atlantic City runway has led her from a three-room flat in the Bronx to a luxurious East Side apartment overlooking Manhattan's Central Park, through one career in television and another as a self-styled consumer advocate.

Now she is seeking a third career in politics, eyeing the seat held by 75-year-old Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., who has not yet decided whether to seek reelection.

Should she run, her competition promises to be stiff, but she appears undaunted by the probable opponents, among them Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and her one-time boss, former Mayor John Lindsay.

"I'm quick and I'm smart and I'm able to get things done. My professional life has been one of success," she said in a recent interview.

Left unspoken was mention of her personal life, marked by three divorces — from two husbands — and a bout with ovarian cancer.

Her 5-foot-10 frame is regal looking at age 55. Columnists still refer to her as "Queen Bess." But Miss Myerson, mother of a 31-year-old daughter, Barra, strives to play down her early career.

"That's who I was, not who I am now," she said firmly.

She entered the Miss America contest, she said, as a "lark," and to try to win the $5,000 prize for a music scholarship and a piano. She still has the Steinway baby grand, although marriage and a child kept her from finishing her masters' degree studies in conducting at Columbia University.

Miss Myerson had played Grieg and Gershwin in the talent portion of the contest, and before long she wound up on the vaudeville circuit. But she abandoned that after only a few performances when audiences proved more interested in her figure than her flute playing.

She also abandoned the traditional Miss America personal appearances because, she said, corporate sponsors were uneasy with her being Jewish. Some reportedly suggested she change her name.

"I just didn't want to be demeaned," she said, although she made no public statement alleging anti-Semitism at the time. Years later, she worked as television hostess of the Miss America pageant.

Her two-page official biography mentions none of this — referring to the Miss America competition only as "a national talent contest." It also skips her eight years as the Lady in Mink for CBS's "The Big Payoff," a giveaway program on which she modeled the prize, and her nine years as a panelist on "I've Got A Secret."

In 1969, then-Mayor Lindsay plucked her out of the TV world and gave her a job as New York City's first commissioner of consumer affairs. She accepted, admitting she knew nothing about consumerism.

But she studied, and by general consensus she did a good job — pushing through a unit pricing law for groceries, cracking down on sleazy installment contracts and shortweight merchants and gaining the fledgling consumer movement the kind of attention that a less well-known commissioner might not have commanded.

After leaving the city post, she hired out as a consultant to such corporations as Bristol-Myers, Citicorp, and Warner Communications. Some say that has tarnished her consumerist image, as when a booklet she edited for Bristol-Myers denied evidence linking dyes used in the company's profitable Clairol products to cancer.

Miss Myerson is reported to earn about $300,000 a year from these and other activities, including a syndicated newspaper column.

"I'm very proud of the money I've made," she said, but she refused to reveal the sources and amount of her income, nor would she pledge to do so should she become a candidate.

"When I left the city and I was alone and very ill I made a decision to make a great deal of money, as much as I could without doing commercials," she said. Friends say she is delaying her official entry into the Senate race to avoid having to give up any of her lucrative positions.

She has been laying the groundwork for a senate race for years, declining pleas from political leaders to run in previous elections.

"It was important to me to get a broader canvas of experience for myself before becoming a candidate," she said. "I wanted to see how the business community worked from the inside...to learn more about the politics of running."

She campaigned effectively for such successful New York Democrats as Mayor Edward Koch, Sen. Daniel Moynihan and Gov. Hugh Carey. Koch, a close personal friend, and Moynihan have promised to return the favor.

"I think I have the skills and talent to be a senator," she said. "And when my points of view are declared I think the people of New York will see there's a very credible reason for me to run for the Senate and reasons why I should represent the people of New York state."

Boards hears both sides Elderly woes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Old people are worse drivers than other adults, says the State Insurance Board's chief of auto insurance.

The board held a day-long hearing Tuesday into insurance problems of the elderly. Earlier this month, it conducted a similar hearing on difficulties of the handicapped.

Several spokesmen for the elderly told the board insurance companies discriminate against old people, denying them coverage because of their age.

Ernest Cabe of the American Association of Retired Persons said most reports he had seen show old people have fewer accidents than other groups.

"When you are over 65, about all you use your car for is to go to church or to the store," he said.

Donald O'Brien, chief of the board's auto insurance division, said he checked with statisticians during the lunch hour to determine whether the elderly were, in fact, safer drivers.

Board statistics for 1975-77 show that persons 65 and over "are not better drivers. They are worse drivers... than other adult drivers." Old people, however, have better driving records than those in the under-25 category, O'Brien said.

Testimony also delved into abuses in the health insurance and industrial life insurance fields.

FBI kept raid secret to prevent Gregg deputies from interfering

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The FBI refused to inform Gregg County Sheriff Tom Welch of a raid on an alleged gambling house because the sheriff's deputies had hampered earlier investigations, one agent testified.

Tyler agent George Kienny of Tyler also admitted Tuesday during the federal racketeering trial of five Gregg County defendants that he used a sledgehammer to break down the door of the "Foster Farm," the house where prosecutors contend illegal gambling was taking place.

Welch is being tried with Gregg County Commissioner William Satterwhite, Justice of the Peace Charles Cashell, and former deputies James M. Cochran and Billy Ray Roach.

The five men were indicted Aug. 3 on charges of racketeering, conspiracy to obstruct the enforcement of state laws, facilitating an illegal gambling operation.

Welch, Satterwhite and Cochran also are accused of murder conspiracy.

U.S. District Judge William Steger agreed Tuesday to a defense motion to sever civil rights violation charge against Welch. Steger said that charge, involving the beating of a county jail prisoner, was unrelated to the other counts.

Kienny told jurors Tuesday he carried the sledgehammer in case he would be refused entry or if he decided another FBI agent working undercover inside the house were in danger.

Kienny said he knocked on the back door of the "Foster Farm" and waited as four persons opened a peephole in the door and looked at him, one at a time. Unable to talk his way in, he said he used his sledgehammer to break down the door and serve a search warrant.

Kienny said he had been suspicious of the house for about eight years.

In other testimony, an elderly man who lives near the alleged gambling house outside Longview said Welch was present while a parking lot was being constructed behind the "Foster Farm."

Wylie Page, testifying

outside the presence of the jury, said, "Three or four fellows were pulling out of the road (to the house). Mr. Welch was in the car ... two dump trucks were back there dumping some black asphalt or something."

However, Page said, he was unable to tell whether the trucks were owned by Gregg County.

ABC slips in ratings war CBS takes lead

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in more than a year, ABC has finished last in the networks' prime-time ratings race, a condition due in large measure to a couple of popular movies and CBS' "60 Minutes."

CBS, in the meantime, listed two of the three highest-rated programs in the week ending Nov. 25, and won the competition for the second consecutive week, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. NBC's advance to No. 2 broke a five-week run in last place.

The week's two highest-rated programs, movies on NBC and CBS, were on the air at the same time Sunday night.

"Smokey and the Bandit" on NBC had a rating of 31.8, a 10th of a point ahead of CBS' movie, "Oh God!" Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 31.8 percent saw at least part of the NBC movie, and nearly that percentage watched all or a portion of CBS' film.

"Smokey and the Bandit," with Burt Reynolds and Sally Fields, aired 8-10 p.m. EST, and "Oh God!" with George Burns and John Denver was broadcast 9-11 the same night.

ABC, which finished No. 3 the week ending July 9, 1978, still leads the three-way race for the season, though the margin separating the frontrunner from CBS has diminished in recent weeks.

CBS' rating for the week was 19.8, to 19.3 for NBC and 17.8 for ABC. The networks say that means in an average primetime minute during the week, 19.8 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to CBS.

Continuing series, as they have in recent weeks, were a shot in the arm for CBS — "60 Minutes" in third place, "Dukes of Hazzard" sixth, "Dallas" eighth, "M-A-S-H" 14th.

ABC's best for the week, "Three's Company," was No. 4, and NBC's top-rated regular program, "Real People," was 10th.

NBC's second place finish came despite heavy representation at the bottom of the ratings list — "Eisheid" 55th, followed by "A Man Called Sloane" and "Prime Time Sunday." A CBS special, "Raggedy Ann and Andy," was 58th, and a movie on the same network, "Letters from Frank" with Art Carney, was 59th for the week — last.

The week's 10 highest-rated programs:

Movie: "Smokey and the Bandit," with a rating of 31.8 representing 24.3 million homes, NBC; Movie: "Oh God!" 31.7 or 24.2 million, and "60 Minutes," 31.6 or 24.1 million, both CBS; "Three's Company," 26.7 or 20.4 million, and "Angie," 24.5 or 18.8 million, both ABC; "Dukes of Hazzard," 23.7 or 18.1 million, CBS; "Happy Days," 23.6 or 18 million, ABC; "Dallas" and "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving," both 23.2 or 17.7 million, both CBS; and "Real People," 23.1 or 17.6 million, NBC.

The next 10 shows: "Bob Hope on Campus," NBC, and "Taxi," ABC, tie, "Little House on the Prairie," NBC; "M-A-S-H" and Movie: "Turning Point," both CBS; "Vegas," ABC; "Archie Bunker's Place," CBS, and "Charlie's Angels," ABC, tie, and "Eight is Enough" and "Love Boat," both ABC.

More black goo to hit land today

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Just as workers finished cleaning oil from the tanker Burmah Agate off Galveston beaches, reports came that more of the black goo was expected to hit Bolivar Peninsula today.

Heavy seas washing over the burning tanker Tuesday forced the oil out of the hole in the vessel, and it was being carried north by winds and currents, said Coast Guard Lt. Don Zelazny.

He said it was expected to hit the peninsula beaches early today.

"We don't know how much will reach the beach," Zelazny said. "After we take a look at it, we'll mobilize the equipment needed to clean it up."

Zelazny said winds from the south that tended to drive the oil toward the beach were expected to shift in the opposite direction, however, when a front moved through the area during the night.

"The wind should blow any more oil leaking from the ship out to sea, and the high winds and heavy seas should break it up," he said.

The lieutenant said workers hired by the owners of the tanker, which collided with the freighter Mimosa Nov. 1, had cleaned virtually all the oil off Galveston's beaches by Tuesday.

One freighter crewman and 16 tanker crewmen are known dead, and 15 tanker crewmen are missing.

Zelazny said the ship continued to burn Tuesday, but waves 5-8 feet high forced firefighters to halt efforts to cool the unburned portion of the ship.

Pope arrives in Turkey today

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived in Turkey today to advance the cause of Christian unity, but the Moslem nation's press was hostile and security was heavy after a death threat.

"Love is greater than danger," the pontiff said. As he stepped off his special Alitalia jetliner from Rome, the pope kissed the red carpet that led from the plane's ramp to a military honor guard.

He was met at the Ankara airport by Turkish President Fahri Koruturk, Premier Suleyman Demirel, Foreign Minister Hayrettin Erkmen and other officials. The weather was chilly and the sky was overcast with dark clouds.

Before taking off from Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, the pope called his trip an "important step toward the full and perfect unity of all Christians."

He told a small crowd of Italian government officials and diplomats at the airport that he was following in the footsteps of Pope Paul VI who visited Turkey in July 1967.

"I am going to that nation to continue with renewed efforts the pledge toward unity of all Christians" proclaimed by the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council, he said.

The pope added his trip also aimed to show the "importance that the Roman Catholic Church gives to relations with the venerable Orthodox churches on the eve of the start of a theological dialogue."

The highlight of the papal visit will be the start of talks with Ecumenical Patriarch Demetrius, spiritual leader of the Eastern Orthodox Church, which split with Rome more than nine centuries ago. The Latin and Eastern rites are Christianity's two largest branches and have nearly 1 billion adherents.

The pope and Demetrius meet twice in Istanbul, seat of the Eastern patriarchate, and jointly celebrate a special religious ceremony to mark St. Andrew's feastday on Friday. Andrew is the patron saint of Istanbul's Christians.

Although the patriarchate is in Istanbul, the Christians form a minority in Turkey, which like the rest of the Islamic world is caught up in the wave of anti-Western fervor being spread by Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Most of the 200 million Orthodox live in communist Eastern Europe.

Confessed Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca, a Moslem facing the death penalty for murdering a Turkish newspaper editor, escaped from prison Sunday and wrote a letter to a paper saying he wanted to kill the pope.

An organization called the Armenian Secret Liberation Army set off bombs in Madrid, Spain, to protest the Pope's visit and warned he should cancel his trip. Hundreds of thousands of Christian Armenians were systematically exterminated by the Turks at the beginning of this century.

Most of Turkey's major dailies have taken critical shots at the pope since the visit was announced earlier this month.

President Carter to hold conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, appealing to America's sense of honor, hopes to rally public opinion and to convince Iran of American solidarity during tonight's prime-time news conference.

At the news conference, scheduled for 9 p.m. EST, Carter is expected to insist anew that the United States will not yield to "blackmail" by militants still holding 49 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Carter said Tuesday that the honor of America is at stake in the embassy seizure, and said the hostages have been threatened at pistol point and forced to make statements in which they did not believe.

Speaking to a group of Democrats working for his re-election, he said, "This is a reprehensible thing, a disgrace to every person who believes in civilization and decency."

"I will protect the honor of our country and will not under any circumstances yield to blackmail," Carter said. His remarks were recorded by radio station WGR in Manchester, N.H.

White House and State Department officials are saying meanwhile that they want to keep the 24-day-old Iranian crisis on "hold" until the U.N. Security Council meets again Saturday.

The administration fears Iranian leaders believe they can "win some battle for American public opinion and that the American people will end up supporting their demands" for a trial of the deposed shah, said a White House official who asked not to be named.

The official said Carter hoped to dispel that impression at his news conference.

The president chose his most stately setting, the East Room of the White House, and set the time to get the largest possible audience. Ordinarily, Carter holds news conferences in the afternoon in an auditorium of the Executive Office Building.

U.S. officials said Tuesday it is possible some useful discussions could take place this weekend if Iran's foreign minister, Abolhassan Bani Sadr, shows up for the U.N. debate on the embassy seige.

Even before his afternoon comments about American honor, Carter had told Democratic congressional leaders at a breakfast meeting that the release of the hostages by Iran will not "wipe the slate clean" between the two nations.

That remark sent Carter's chief spokesman, Jody Powell, scurrying to deny that the remark meant Carter intends some sort of punishing action against Iran whether or not the hostages are eventually released unharmed.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., attended the breakfast with the president and told reporters later: "He did not suggest what further action might be taken, but I think all of us feel, including the president, that he will do something else after the hostages are released.... There are a whole range of options — not necessarily involving military action."

Johnston also said, "The president made it clear, and that's one thing he emphasized, that the honor of the country comes first, before the lives of the hostages."

Weather Cold Arctic air covering Texas

A fast moving cold front moved into the Gulf of Mexico early today, bringing with it a surge of cold Arctic air covering most of Texas.

Some light snow flurries were reported during the night in northwest sections of the Texas Panhandle and most of the state had clear skies and cold temperatures.

Highs were to range from around 40 in the Panhandle to the middle 70s in far South Texas.

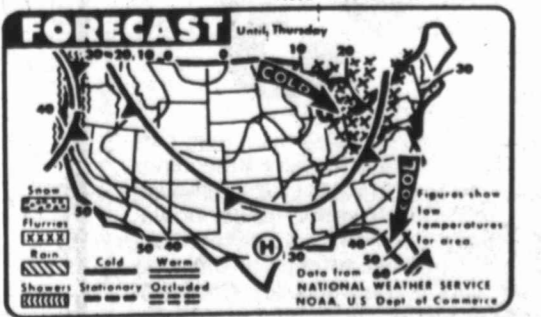

Most of the state was to have highs in the 50s.

The cold front pushed its way through the Lower Rio Grande Valley before dawn, triggering some shower activity. Some fog was reported in far South Texas. The front earlier triggered some shower activity in Southeast Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 30s and 40s. Extremes ranged from 23 at Amarillo to 68 at Brownsville.

Galveston workers boycott food

The loud, passionate street protests against Iran appear to have yielded to a stronger, more subtle vigil for the Americans held captive in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Dock workers in Galveston said Tuesday that all loading of grain on ships destined for Iran has been stopped in an apparent food boycott.

A Methodist bishop asked churches to toll their bells daily at noon to remind Americans to pray for their countrymen being held hostage.

And, in San Antonio, four Iranians with visas sought political asylum in the United States.

Methodist Bishop Finnis Crutchfield of Houston urged churches to ring their bells at noon each day, although many churches believe bells are too noisy.

"But we hear so many noises in the city, a few church bells wouldn't be so bad. The bellringing is not important — it's the praying that's important," Crutchfield said. "I personally am amazed at the lack of concern and the flippancy with respect to the Iranian crisis."

Longshoremen continued to ignore Iranian cargo at Texas ports Tuesday.

J.H. Raspberry, president of the South Atlantic and Gulf Coast district of the International Longshoremen's Association, said shipments in Galveston, Houston and Freeport were "being held hostage until our hostages are released."

A week ago, longshoremen stopped loading rice aboard the freighter Asia Serenity at Freeport. The freighter still is in port.

A.B. Cohut of Houston, representing agents for the Iranian national shipping line Arya, said very little cargo was arriving from Iran at Texas ports because of the apparent boycott.

Four students in San Antonio seeking political asylum were among 248 Iranians in the city who have been investigated by immigration officials. Thirty of that group have been asked to leave the country within 30 days.

Former immigration official Joe F. Staley said political asylum may be granted to anyone who would face persecution because of race, religion or political beliefs if the students returned to their home country.

In other developments: —Former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali told a San Antonio television station Monday that the United States should send the shah back to Iran because he is "a thief."

—A Dallas clothing store owned by an Iranian was gutted by fire Tuesday after vandals apparently spray-painted "It's all starting now, No. 1 of many."

Fire investigators said the $40,000 blaze was deliberately set.

—The Texas parents of one of the Americans being held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran expressed feelings of helplessness over the situation.

Civiletti urges Americans to cool frustration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti is urging Americans not to vent their frustration over the U.S. Embassy seizure on Iranians living in this country, and warns that the Justice Department can "do no less" than prevent and remedy illegal discrimination.

While Civiletti acknowledged Americans' "justifiable anger" over the stalemate in Tehran, he advocated restraint in a statement issued Tuesday.

Citing news reports that some Iranians have been fired from their jobs, expelled from universities and denied public accommodations, Civiletti warned, "This conduct is not proper."

Anti-discrimination laws "forbid treating people differently in such areas as employment, public education, housing, credit and public accommodations like restaurants and hotels," he said, reminding Americans that those laws protect non-citizens as well as citizens.

"It is the role of the Justice Department to go to court, when necessary, to prevent and to remedy illegal discrimination. In the current situation, we must do no less," Civiletti said.

Those wishing to express their concern about the situation in Tehran should send letters and telegrams to the Iranian mission at the United Nations, he said.

"We all must restrain our actions and behave with a considered regard for our rule of law," the attorney general said.

Meanwhile, department officials said they are investigating the alleged assault of an Iranian student, which could form the basis for criminal charges of civil rights violations.

A department source, who asked not to be named, hinted that a second investigation also was possible, involving the Greenville Technical College in Greenville, S.C. The school suspended its 104 Iranian students last week, saying they could not return until the hostages are freed.

On another front, the Carter administration itself is the subject of criticism for alleged unconstitutional actions against Iranians. The Justice Department is tracking down some 50,000 Iranian students to determine if any are violating the terms of their visas.

Civiletti drew a distinction between violation of immigration laws and what he said was illegal discrimination based on national origin.

But the American Civil Liberties Union has protested the planned deportation of Iranian students whose visas are not in order, contending that singling out Iranians violates the Constitution.

Tech topples Hawk Queens

LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech Raiderettes girls basketball team used the 32-point effort of Gwen McCray and an air tight defense to take a 77-61 victory over the Howard College Hawk Queens in a game played here Tuesday night.

The Hawk Queens were extremely cold from the field for the second straight night, connecting on only 28 percent of their shots in the game. Much of this was due to the excellent defense played by the Tech fems.

Tech jumped out to a 34-19 lead against the cold shooting Queens, but the Howard College crew rebounded in the second half to play the Red Raiderettes on even terms.

McCray was a player that Howard College Coach Don Stevens thought he had recruited as late as mid-August, only to lose her to the Tech program. Her play was a major factor in the game.

Stevens praised the play of the Tech team, stating: "We didn't play that well, especially offensively, but their great defense is part of the reason. They played a pressing man defense that forced us out of our offense, although it shouldn't have."

Stevens did laud the play of Queens Jill Floyd and Kelly Lyons, both freshmen, Lyons was the Queens leading scorer with 12 points, and also played well inside, blocking three shots. Susan Martin added 10 and Floyd nine.

The Hawk Queens return home tomorrow night at 6:00 p.m. against the Frank Phillips College girls in the conference opener. The men of the two schools will play at 8:00 p.m.

Tomorrow night is Big Spring Independent School District night at Garrett Coliseum, with all students and teachers of BSISD receiving free passes in order to promote Hawks and Hawk Queens basketball.

HAWK QUEENS SCORING — Martin 4-2-10; Floyd 3-3-9; Croetz 2-0-4; LeFrige 1-2-4; Freeman 2-0-4; Lyons 5-2-12; Young 0-0-0; Jones 3-2-8; Moon 0-0-0; Smith 4-0-8; Calhoun 1-0-2; TOTALS 25-11-61.

TEXAS TECH — Kessler 2-0-4; Vaughn 0-2-2; Lee 5-0-10; Phillips 1-0-2; Davis 1-2-4; Newman 4-0-8; Penkuntz 1-1-3; Stone 6-0-12; Webb 2-0-4; Haven 0-2-2; McCray 13-0-24; TOTALS 35-7-77. Halftime score: Tech 34, Howard College 19.

BSISD to be honored at HC-Frank Phillips game

All students, teachers and employees of the Big Spring Independent School District will be the special guests of Howard College when the Hawk Queens and Hawks begin their Western Conference schedule tomorrow night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum against Frank Phillips College. The Queens game will be at 6:00 p.m., with the Hawks slated for an 8:00 p.m. tipoff.

Forsan girls, Coahoma boys take wins

Coahoma, Forsan split games

COAHOMA — Coahoma High School and Forsan High School split when the two rivals met in a pair of basketball games Tuesday evening.

The Coahoma boys team won their season opener by taking a 75-40 win over Forsan.

The Bulldogs jumped out to an early 13-5 lead after the first stanza and were never threatened thereafter, as the Coahoma team played excellent defense.

Coahoma's Michael Meyer exploded for 31 points in the contest to nearly outscore the entire Forsan team. He was aided in point production by Philip Ritchey and Spot Paige, who chipped in with 16 and 10, respectively.

Vance Stevens was the high point scorer for the Forsan with 18 points.

Coahoma Coach Doug Harriman praised the play of his team in their opener, stating: "I was really pleased with our first effort. The entire team played excellent defense, which is the strength of our team. The starters played well, but what was really encouraging was the fact that our bench strength also looked good."

Herriman also praised the play of Gary Gee and Ron Belew for their outstanding defensive efforts.

The Forsan girls extended their record to 2-0 by taking a 58-43 win over the Coahoma girls. The loss dropped the Coahoma fems record to 1-1 for the season.

Forsan jumped out to a 16-10 lead in the opening stanza and gradually increased that margin thereafter.

Christi Adams led the Forsan girls in scoring with 16 points, while Monica Dyess chipped in with 13.

Andrea Fowler was the high point girl for the Bulldogs with 15.

Lamesa experience pays off in 54-43 win

Tors earn win over scrappy Steers

The perennially tough Lamesa Golden Tornadoes used their experience to overcome a scrappy Big Spring Steer full court press in the second half and emerge with a 54-43 win in hard fought boys basketball contest in Steer Gym Tuesday evening.

The game was called with 10 seconds remaining after the officials let the affair get out of their control.

The Steers, who use four sophomores, three juniors and two seniors, played on even terms throughout the first two stanzas against the taller and more experienced Golden Tors. Lamesa returns three starters from their team last year that tied Snyder for the District 3-AAA title, before losing by two points in the conference championship.

Lamesa jumped out to a 13-8 lead in the opening stanza, as the youthful Steers of Coach Ed Haller turned the ball over six of the first eight times that they had the ball without getting a shot off.

But Big Spring, behind the play of Robert Rubio, Jesse Doss and many others, rallied to knot the score late in the second stanza, as their hustling press created problems for the Lamesa team.

But Lamesa's Harris, the leading scorer in the game with 15 points, scored a bucket just before the halftime buzzer to give the Tors a two-point lead at 23-21.

Lamesa then took control in the opening minutes of the second half, but the Steers remained tough, trailing after three stanzas by seven.

But the scrappy Big Spring team refused to let up, moving within four points with just over two minutes to play. But the Steers, who shot less than 33 percent from the floor in the contest, missed some scoring chances from close in, and subsequently were forced to foul Lamesa in an attempt to catch up. But the experienced Golden Tors answered the challenge by converting their free throws often enough in the final two minutes to take the 11-point victory.

Mike Domino and Doss led the Steers in scoring with 11 and 10 points, respectively. Haller praised the play of his team in the defeat. "We gave a great effort tonight, but just couldn't get the shots to go down when we needed them. But I'm encouraged with the way our younger players are progressing. With a little experience, the shots they missed will start going in," Haller said, then added: "I just hope they don't get their heads down."

The Steers resume play Thursday when they travel to the rugged Kerrville Tournament. The Kerrville affair will feature some of the outstanding teams from the Houston and Austin area.

AAU expected to reinstate Dwight Stones

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union is expected to reinstate two-time Olympic high-jumper Dwight Stones' amateur status, the Santa Ana Register reported in its Wednesday editions.

Stones, who formerly held the world indoor and outdoor record in the event, was stripped of his amateur status by the AAU 18 months ago because he accepted prize money after competing in the nationally televised Superstars competition.

Choate vows for another NFL try

PUTT CHOATE, ALL-SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE LINEBACKER at SMU in 1978, and Coahoma Bulldog star in the 72-74 seasons, has experienced both enjoyable heights and depressing lows in the past year in his quest to pursue a life-long goal to play in the NFL.

After a sparkling season in 78 at SMU and a good game in the Blue-Gray contest matching the outstanding seniors in college football last December, Choate was expecting to be drafted in the NFL lottery in May.

Much to his displeasure, Choate was not drafted, with one of the basic reasons being his lack of height (6'0"). But numerous pro teams still expressed interest in the potential of the muscular 230-pound linebacker, with Choate finally choosing to sign with the Atlanta Falcons.

Choate went to the camp with high hopes of making the team, but like most rookies, was still somewhat in awe of some of the older and more established players. "We scrimmaged the Chicago Bears soon after we arrived," Choate said while here for a couple of days during the Thanksgiving holidays, "and the first person I covered on a pass route was Walter Payton. Man-to-man coming out of the backfield. That's a quick way to become aware of where you are."

Choate performed well during the Falcons training camp, and his linebacking coach boosted his spirits before the first exhibition game. "People around me were disappearing frequently (being cut)," says Choate, then continuing, "but before the first exhibition game, the linebacker coach came and told me if I continued playing so well on all the special teams, and as a linebacker, I would make the final cut."

But in the Falcons second exhibition game, Choate suffered a broken leg against St. Louis when diving into a pile for a fumble. The Atlanta club then placed him on the injured reserve list, thereby showing that they felt that he had looked very promising during camp and wanted to keep him as their property.

Choate kept in shape as much as possible while recuperating, and the injury finally healed so that he could again play during the early portions of the Atlanta schedule. But, in order to make room for Choate on the roster, another player must have been placed on the injured reserve list or put on waivers. Unfortunately for Choate, the Atlanta linebacking crew was healthy.

Still on the Atlanta payroll, Choate began participating in all of the practice sessions, and continued attending all of the Atlanta team meetings, as he had done while injured. But he still was on the injured reserve list and could not suit up for games.

At the midway point in the season, Choate was in a team meeting when his linebacking coach told him that he was to report to Leeman Bennett's office. Bennett is the head coach of the Falcons.

"I looked at him (Atlanta's linebacking coach) and said it either had to be real good news or the worst," Choate remembers.

"He told me it was the worst."
"Bennett explained to me that it was simply a matter of economics," the former Coahoma High School star said. "If another linebacker had been hurt, I would have been taken off the injured reserve list and placed on the active roster. But nobody was hurt, and they couldn't afford to pay me to keep me on the injured list. Of course, the fact that they are having a disappointing season didn't help, either."

After leg injury, former Coahoma and SMU star PUTT CHOATE must wait for another year to try NFL game.

Choate said that at first he was very disappointed and seemed embarrassed with himself. "I felt like a failure there for a time," he confided, "and was worried what people around here might think."
"But, Putt," I reassured him, "you've got no reason to be embarrassed."

"I know, I finally realized that there aren't many people that have had the chance to play in the NFL, so there was no reason to come home and be down on myself."

Later in the conversation, Choate asked me if the J.T. Smith returning punts and playing wide receiver for the Kansas City Chiefs was the same J.T. Smith (also known as John Thomas Smith) that is from Big Spring.

"Yeah," I told him. "And look at it this way, Putt. He was with Washington for the first three regular season games last year, then they cut him. He waited around his apartment outside of D.C. for seven or eight weeks and the Kansas City Chiefs put him on their roster for the remainder of the season. And now this year he's second in the AFC in punt returns."

"Yeah," said Choate in agreement. Then, with a hint of some very serious thought, Putt continued, "But I'll keep trying next year to make it. I'm still convinced that I would have made it, had it not been for the injury. I'm still working out very hard, and if I'm not in Atlanta's camp. I've been working too hard for too long with my goals set on playing pro football to give up now."

As Billy Sims, Charles White await Monday's announcement Griffin says second Heisman is the toughest

Charles White Billy Sims Archie Griffin

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Writer

The second one is the toughest, says Archie Griffin, referring to Billy Sims' bid for a duplicate Heisman Trophy.

"You don't think about it much the first time," adds the 5-foot-9, 193-pound ball-carrier out of Ohio State, the only player ever to be twice voted the best college football player in America. "You're just out there doing the best you can for the team."

"Once you've won it, you're a target. Also, you start pressing. It's natural. You don't like the thought of somebody taking it away — not while you're still playing.

"If Sims had asked me for any advice before this season, I would have told him to try to forget about the Heisman and just concentrate on his job."

Sims, the hard-running Oklahoma halfback who captured the Heisman a year ago after leading the nation with 1,762 yards rushing, is involved in close competition with Southern California's Charles White for the 1979 honor.

Voting completed, the winner will be announced next Monday by New York's Downtown Athletic Club.

White is regarded as the favorite.

White, a 6-foot, 183-pound dervish, has run for 1,803 yards and 18 touchdowns this year compared with 1,506 yards and 22 touchdowns for the 205-pound Sims, who carried for 529 yards in his last two games. Records of the two men are quite similar, White scoring 296 points and Sims 300 for their regular season careers.

Griffin, now with the Cincinnati Bengals, won the trophy in 1974 and 1975, amassing a career total of 5,589 yards and 26 touchdowns, both Ohio State records, while performing for Woody Hayes. He had 31 consecutive games in which he ran for 100 yards or more.

He was the fifth player since the award was inaugurated in 1935 to win in his junior year. The others were: Doc Blanchard, Army, 1945; Doak Walker, Southern Methodist, 1948; Vic Janowicz, Ohio State, 1950; and Roger Staubach, Navy, 1963. None repeated.

Griffin learned to his dismay that the Heisman is not an automatic "sesame" that opens the door to superstardom in the pros. A conscientious team man who brought the same skills he had in college to the Bengals, he has not — in the vernacular — set the world ablaze.

The gauge of a good running back is a 1,000-yard-plus season, preferably nearer 1,500. Griffin, despite his collegiate heroics, has never reached that plateau, collecting 625, 549 and 484 his first three seasons.

Archie said he has watched both White and Sims on TV and, if he were a selector, would be hard-pressed to make a choice.

"Sims is bigger," he added, "a very powerful and deceptive runner. White gets the ball more. He has terrific moves."

Earl Cooper draws praise of UH Coach Yeoman

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice running back Earl Cooper, the City of Houston's "other Earl," will play his final collegiate game for the Owls Saturday against 10th ranked Houston in Rice Stadium.

After playing in a losing football program four years and sharing headlines with the Houston Oilers' Earl Campbell, recognition finally is coming for the 220-pound senior from Lexington, Texas.

Cooper was named to the second team Associated Press All-Southwest Conference team today and Tuesday accepted an invitation to play in the East-West Shrine game, Jan. 5 at Palo Alto, Calif.

Rice Coach Ray Alborn and Houston's Bill Yeoman, who will be the head coach for the West team in the Shrine game, took turns praising Cooper following Tuesday's announcement.

"I'm glad to have him on my side for a change," Yeoman said.

"Earl is a totally outstanding football player. I'm glad to have someone I can depend on for this game. He is so versatile."

Cooper, without the benefit of an outstanding supporting cast, leads Owls rushers with 487 yards on 130 carries and has caught 46 passes this season for 469 yards to lead the Southwest Conference.

Going into Saturday's season finale, Cooper needs one more touchdown to tie Dick Maegle with 22 career touchdowns.

"Earl has done an exceptional job for us," Alborn said. "I feel badly that we couldn't give him more help. But I'm sure when it comes time for the pros to start drafting, you'll be hearing a lot more about Earl."

Cooper hopes the Owls can partially make up for a disappointing season with a victory over the Cougars.

Ferguson earns respect as Bills start winning

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — "The Juice" may be gone from the huddle of the Buffalo Bills, but new electricity is being generated by a recent decision to let quarterback Joe Ferguson call the plays.

"I think everyone feels a little more a part of our offense," guard Reggie McKenzie says. "We can suggest things that will work, as in the case (Sunday) where a receiver (Jerry Butler) told him he could beat the defender long."

Butler's 51-yard catch against New England's Rick Sanford was the next-to-last play of the game and set up the field goal that sealed a 16-13 National Football League victory in overtime for the Bills.

The win was their third in a row — all since Ferguson began to mastermind the attack.

"I think we all felt that with the progress our football team was making at the point of the Jets game (first in the win streak) that the next step would be the leadership role Joe could give us on the field," quarterback coach Kay Stephenson said Tuesday.

"We knew he was more than capable. The story was that he had never called the plays even in high school, but you have to be around the guy and know his preparation and work habits to appreciate him."

The so-called "greening of the Bills" — now 7-6 and playoff-minded — has hinged on the greening of Ferguson.

"In two years, he has risen from a loser image to the undisputed team leader and its most important player, filling a void left when running back O.J. Simpson was traded to San Francisco early in 1978."

Ferguson's 235 yards passing against New England pushed his 1979 total to 2,926 and eclipsed a team record of 2,914 set by Jack Kemp in 1963. The seven-year pro has thrown for more touchdowns than Kemp in eight years and next season is expected to break most of Kemp's career records.

Ferguson said becoming a field boss has iced the cake of his best season.

"The more experience I get with it the better it feels," he said.

"I think the whole team feels a little more excited in the huddle now," he added.

"We're not standing around waiting for something to come in from the sidelines, plus you just feel like you're more into the game."

The first Bills quarterback in a decade to call the shots — officials said Kemp was the last — Ferguson said he still draws on Knox and Stephens for advice.

Sutcliffe named NL Rookie of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe, a rock-solid starter on a troubled Los Angeles Dodger pitching staff, was named today as the National League's Rookie of the Year for 1979.

Sutcliffe, who led the Dodger staff in victories with 17 after starting spring training with little hope of making the team, was an easy winner over outfielders Jeff Leonard of Houston and Scot Thompson of Chicago.

The Baseball Writers Association of America handed Sutcliffe 20 out of a possible 24 votes while Leonard received three and Thompson one.

"I still don't believe I won it," said an incredulous but euphoric Sutcliffe, who had a 17-10 record and a 3.46 earned run average in the 242 innings he pitched. "I didn't think that pitchers had as good a chance as the everyday player because they don't get the exposure. I don't know who I impressed."

The writers, though, were obviously impressed with Sutcliffe's energetic performance after inauspicious beginnings.

"It didn't even look like I would make the club," Sutcliffe said. "The Dodgers had a lot of name pitchers down in spring training. But, fortunately for me, there were a lot of sore arms. I had to beat out Pete Broberg for the eighth spot on the staff."

Sutcliffe spent some time in the bullpen at the start of the year, then got his chance to shine when Burt Hooton was felled one day by the flu. That was May 3.

"I remember I pitched a complete game against Philadelphia," Sutcliffe said. "I didn't know I was starting until about an hour or two before the game."

Ironically, the 6-foot-7 rookie had run three miles that day, not knowing he would be in the starting lineup.

"Then I won the next few games and stayed in the starting rotation the rest of the season," Sutcliffe said. "Someone asked me late in the year if I ever thought I'd have that many victories and I said, sure, but in Triple A, not the majors."

Sutcliffe closed with a rush, winning nine of his last 11 decisions to help the Dodgers finish strong in the NL West race. Six of his 10 losses, by the way, were by one run.

Sutcliffe is the eighth Dodger to win the award — a major league record — since it was started by the BBWA in 1947. The others included: Jackie Robinson the first year; Don Newcombe in 1949; Joe Black in 1952; Jim Gilliam in 1953; Frank Howard in 1960; Jim Lefebvre in 1965 and Ted Sizemore in 1969.

UT, Arkansas highlight 1979 All-SWC picks

By The Associated Press

When Lou Holtz came to Arkansas from North Carolina State, he brought along a young quarterback from Beaver Falls, Pa., who had only played one game for him.

But the Arkansas coach and Kevin Scanlon made magic during the 1979 Southwest Conference football season.

Arkansas surprised the experts by earning at least a tie for the championship. One of the big reasons: Senior quarterback Scanlon. They were the headline performers on Wednesday's Associated Press 1979 All-SWC football team as selected by the nine head coaches.

Every ballot listed Scanlon at quarterback and he was selected as the Offensive Player of the Year over Texas Tech's 1,000-yard runner James Hadnot six votes to three.

Holtz was named SWC Coach of the Year by his peers.

Mike Singletary, Baylor's magnificent junior linebacker, was the Defensive Player of the Year.

Other first team offensive performers included Texas running back A.J. "Jam" Jones; tackles Greg Kolenda of Arkansas and Melvin Jones of Houston; guards George Stewart of Arkansas and Bill Glass of Baylor; center Wes Hubert of Texas; wide receivers Robert Farrell of Arkansas and Johnny "Lam" Jones of Texas; and Texas tight end Lawrence Sampleton.

The defense included such salty linemen as Texas A&M's Jacob Green, Houston's Hosea Taylor and Leonard Mitchell, and Texas' Steve McMichael.

Singletary was joined at linebacker by Doug Shankle of Texas and David Hodge of Houston.

The defensive backfield was basic Burnt Orange with Texas' Derrick Hatchet, Johnnie Johnson and Ricky Churchman being joined by Texas Tech's Ted Watts.

Arkansas' Gary Anderson and Texas A&M's Johnny Hector, two swift freshmen running backs, shared the Newcomer of the Year award, offensively.

Defensively, it was Texas Christian frosh linebacker Darrell Patterson as Newcomer of the Year.

Arkansas punter Steve Cox and Razorback placekicker

Ish Ordonez were on the mythical all-star team.

Holtz said of Scanlon: "Basically he didn't play for me at North Carolina State except for one game. The key was getting him to do things we wanted him to do, not the things he wanted to do and I don't mean that derogatorily."

"He is a lot more talented than it appears on film. His greatest abilities show up before the ball is snapped."

As Silas disappears Hawks nip Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Veteran San Antonio guard James Silas, who had gained a son and lost his starting job Monday, had team officials and everybody else mystified Tuesday night when he inexplicably failed to appear for the Spurs game with Atlanta.

Reporters solved the mystery at halftime when they telephoned Hazel Silas' hospital room and found her husband there. Silas explained that he missed the game to be near his wife, not because he had been replaced in the starting lineup by rookie Mike Evans.

But even after San Antonio's 143-120 loss to the Hawks, Spurs Coach Doug Moe did not know the whereabouts of his guard.

"I have no idea where Si is. We haven't heard a word. I hope everything is all right with Hazel and the baby," said Moe. "It's a team matter and we will take care of it."

General Manager Bob Bass said before the game that Silas had not contacted any team officials. "He ordinarily should have called," said Bass.

On Phil Ford's jump shot Kings nip Rockets

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City continued its new unofficial team policy of falling behind and charging back in the final quarter.

Phil Ford banged home a 16-foot jump shot with just five seconds left to give the Kings a 117-115 victory over Houston Tuesday night in National Basketball Association action.

The Rockets called consecutive timeouts after Ford's shot, and with two seconds remaining, Rick Barry launched a 35-foot, 3-point attempt that bounced off the front of the rim.

"It seems like we're making a habit of coming from behind to win in the fourth quarter," Kings

Dog-Tired, Barks Back

DEAR ABBY: In response to the complaint about barking dogs, you said, "There's a law against disturbing the peace. Call the police!"

That's easy for you to say; you don't live in Lancaster, Ohio. I do, and it wouldn't work here. True, there is an ordinance, but lawyers say it cannot be enforced, so it would be useless to take the matter to court.

In Lancaster, the dog owners have all the rights; people bothered by barking dogs all night just have to put up with it.

Maybe Ralph Nader can do something about this type of noise pollution. Please ask him.

CONSTANT HEADACHE IN OHIO

DEAR HEADACHE: Ralph Nader is more concerned with four-wheeled "dogs" than four-legged ones. But if he has any suggestions, I hope he'll send them my way.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 64-year-old, fairly attractive widow. After losing my husband of 40 years, I sold my home and moved to a lovely retirement community. This place would be paradise—if it weren't for the women who live here with their husbands.

I have never seen such jealousy! They watch their men like hawks when I'm around. I used to be in business and have always felt comfortable around men, but since living here I'm afraid to be myself. I watch every word I utter, being careful not to come on too strong with the men, or be too charming or entertaining for fear some woman will think I'm trying to steal her husband. I once had a winning personality, but now I feel like a stupid, frustrated bump on a log.

When my husband was alive, I always encouraged him to dance with single women. Now when the music starts I go hide in the powder room for fear some man will ask me to dance and his wife will think I gave him the come-on.

What's a widow to do?

FRUSTRATED IN ARIZONA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Be yourself, and don't try to second-guess other women. You can't know what they're thinking. The chances are that they are just as generous as you were in bygone years, but your sudden single status has caused you to be slightly self-conscious, insecure and perhaps a touch paranoid.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 27-year-old woman who has never married. I've had lots of boyfriends, but I've never had a lasting relationship with anyone.

About four months ago I met a terrific guy. He's 36, recently divorced, and just what I've always wanted. He told me on our very first date that he is not marriage material, wants no commitments and doesn't want to get serious. He said if I wanted to see him on those terms, we could have a lot of fun together.

I'm pretty sure I'm not the only girl he's dating, but our Saturday night dates last until Monday morning.

My problem is I've fallen in love with him. I've tried to date other guys, but my mind is always on him. I can't kid myself. Abby, I want marriage.

My head tells me this guy is not marriage-minded, but my heart won't let me quit seeing him. What should I do?

HURTING IN ASHEVILLE

DEAR HURTING: If you want marriage, you're wasting a lot of time, energy and love on a man who told you up front that he's not marriage material. The word from here is, say goodbye and tell him why. And if you never hear from him again you'll be lucky.

After Five Club has bird program

The After Five Garden Club met on the evening of Nov. 20 at the home of Mrs. Henry B. Dirks Jr. with Mrs. Rudelle Rogers and Mrs. Patsy Stanley as co-hostesses.

The program was presented by Bebe McCasland who spoke on Bird Migrations and the Rehabilitation of Birds. She stressed that speed is the first priority in treating injured or ailing birds.

Treat shock by placing in a dark warm place and leave the bird alone. Stop any bleeding. Set bird bones within three days. Call for help with sick or wounded birds any of the following: Texas Parks and Wildlife, 263-7171; The Ardis McCaslands at 267-6536 or The Federally licensed Bird Sanctuary in Midland at 694-8001.

All birds except the English sparrow, the starling, and the feral pigeon are federally protected.

Lacemaking is an ancient art

VISITS HUSBAND — Margaret Trudeau leaves her house at Ottawa last Wednesday and drove to Stornorway, official residence of the Opposition Leader, apparently to visit her husband, after Pierre Trudeau resigned as Liberal Party leader.

NORTHVALE, N.J. (AP) — Her hands move quickly but the work goes ever so slowly. No matter. Finishing in a hurry is not Mrs. Gunvor Jorgensen's purpose. She explained: "It's like reading a good book. You get completely absorbed in it and are anxious to know how it comes out, but it's so enjoyable you hate for it to end. 'Besides,' she said, 'I don't do it to sell it. I do it because I love it, and to preserve an honorable art.'" Mrs. Gunvor Jorgensen is a lacemaker. Honorable, yes, and more. It is an art as ancient as a pharaoh's tomb, as precise as a spider's web, as romantic as a bridal veil, as innocent as a crib coverlet, and Mrs. Jorgensen, a gift to America from Denmark, is one of its most respected practitioners. She is also quick to point out to crossword puzzle fans that, no, she does not tat. "I do some tatting," she said.

"I do some embroidery. I do crocheted lace and knitted lace. I do all the different types of lace. But what I do best, and enjoy most, is bobbin lace." Tatting, she explained, with admirable patience, is done with a single thread and a shuttle. Bobbin lace is done with dozens of threads, hundreds, and is done with — bobbins: thin spindles about four inches long with thread wound around the top and a bulb at the bottom as a grip. Some bobbins are simple, functional tools; others are finely carved in wood, or ivory. "The custom in Denmark," she said, "was for the young men to carve the bobbins for their sweethearts. The fancier the bobbin, the more welcome the gift." She disappeared upstairs and returned with a lacing pillow, a lacemaker's workbench. It is a round pillow with a hole in the center where the work-in-progress is held on a rotating drum. Bobbins, several dozen of them, dangled like jewels from an unfinished strip of lace on white linen thread as fine as baby hair. "These are from Denmark," she said. "They're quite old." Mrs. Jorgensen grew up in Tonder, Denmark, a town historically known for lacemaking and which, in fact, gave its name to a particularly intricate style of lace, Tonder lace. She learned lacemaking at her mother's knee when she was a girl of eight, and learned as well the lore of the craft. "The women of Tonder worked in cellars where the dampness kept the thread pliable. Merchants supplied the thread in exchange for the lace. They got rich. Not the women; the merchants. The women died young." After World War II, when she was in her twenties, she came to America and married a Danish sea captain, Ernst Jorgensen, who has since died. Making lace occupied her during his long absences.

Holleys announce birth of first son

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Holley, Mesquite, formerly of Big Spring, announce the birth of a son, Billy Dan, Nov. 12 at 8:17 a.m. at the Garland Memorial Hospital, weighing 8 pounds 13 ounces. The infant was welcomed home by his sister, Stacy.

Brighten Christmas presents decoratively

As the days dwindle to Christmas eve, giftwrapping perks up the holiday season. Now it's time for the final touch. Here are tips on how to brighten packages in ways that are simple and fun. Select giftwrap paper most appropriate for the gift that is given, either in color, pattern or design. Top off a package with a series of loops. This can be done with any kind of ribbon. The loops can be stapled together and sealed to the top of the package with paper cement. A bow is always a decorative touch, either one that is tied on the spot, or one that is pre-tied as a "stick-on" with adhesive backing. Curling ribbon creates a cluster of "curls" to garnish a package. The ribbon can be cut to any length. When pulled along the blade of a pair of scissors, ruler or like metal object, the ribbon will curl in spirals. Christmas cards saved from previous years can add an illustrative touch to gift-giving. Designs and artwork trimmed from the original cards are pasted to the giftwrap with paper cement. These are among the personal touches that add decorative notes to holiday giftwrapping.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Teens give advice on 'Judas' girlfriend

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Kathy of Galesburg, Ill., has both boyfriend and girlfriend problems and asks for advice from me and the guest teen writers. John Hyster, 16, who lives in the great Pacific Northwest, Vancouver, Wash., and Mary White, 15, from deep in the heart of Dixie, Hupstville, Ala., will do the honors. Welcome.

do it. After you make up with your girlfriend, work on your old boyfriend. Convert him into your friend, not necessarily your boyfriend. Enjoy people, enjoy life and your "light" will be contagious to all who come in contact with you. — Mary, Huntsville, Ala.

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me in care of this newspaper stating your sex and age.

Dr. Wallace: Last year I was selected to be a patrol monitor. My mother didn't like the idea but she finally agreed. I became patrol captain (youngest ever at my school) but mother was still mad because being a monitor meant that I had to get up earlier than usual because patrol was in the morning.

Yesterday, the teacher who selects patrol monitors asked me to be a monitor again, and told me that I would be captain because I was the best ever and he needed me. I went home and told mother and she really got mad. I got straight "A's" in school. Help. I'm 11 years old. — Sandra, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Sandra: Have the teacher call your mother and tell her the school needs you and that you are a superior patrol monitor. Instead of getting mad, mother should be very proud of you. I sure am.

Many times parents are not aware of their child's excellent deeds until someone (usually an adult) points it out to them.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Wallace: About four months ago, my best friend (a girl) told my boyfriend a very malicious lie. He believed her and he hasn't spoken to me since. I constantly think that I will make up with her but every time I think what she did, I end up hating her more than ever. Do you think I should make up with this girl? Please answer and have your guest writers give it a go. — Kathy, Galesburg, Ill.

Katny, I think your "boyfriend" was the real villain. He should have talked the matter over with you and found out the truth. Instead, he acted like a fool.

Yes, make up with this girl. Maybe your friendship can help her overcome her lying.

I know it's difficult to forgive but the feeling after you do is wonderful. Hi Kathy: Your boyfriend must not have trusted you very much if he believed another girl and shined you on ever since.

I see no reason to make up with the girl. She is the one who should be making up to you. Besides, you couldn't regain her friendship because she never was your friend. Friends don't intentionally hurt friends.

There are too many neat people around to be bothered with a "Judas" — John, Vancouver, Wash.

Hello Kathy: I'm a Christian and believe that forgiveness is divine. The world is filled with fighting and hate so whenever a person has a chance to show love and charity, she should

Names in the news

JANE BYRNE

PETE HAMILL

Mayor Byrne recuperating

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Jane Byrne is recuperating from minor facial surgery at home and is expected back in her City Hall offices later this week, her press spokesman says.

Mrs. Byrne had "very minor cosmetic surgery" to clear up scar tissue from surgery to remove facial cysts several years ago, assistant press secretary Bob Saigh said Tuesday.

The cosmetic surgery was performed last Wednesday by Dr. Peter McKinney at Northwestern Memorial Hospital. The mayor remained at the hospital overnight for observation, a hospital spokesman said.

Mrs. Byrne currently is working on her mayoral duties from her Near North Side apartment and is feeling fine, Saigh said. She is expected to return to her office later this week.

Hamill's column stopped

NEW YORK (AP) — Writer Pete Hamill says the New York Daily News has decided to drop his thrice-weekly column because its sentiments were too far to the left and were "unbalancing" the paper.

"I was kind of stunned by the whole thing," Hamill said Tuesday.

In a statement to the staff posted Tuesday afternoon, editor and executive vice president Michael J. O'Neill called Hamill "a marvelously gifted writer and a great guy who produced many memorable columns for the paper. We hope that he will continue to contribute occasional columns or articles in the future."

ARNOLD MILLER

PEGGY CASS

Miller suffers second attack

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Former United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller has suffered his second heart attack in two weeks, just before he was to be released from the hospital.

"It appears to be a small heart attack. He's resting and seems to be stabilizing," John Brown, a spokesman for Charleston Area Medical Center, said Tuesday. Brown said further tests were planned.

Miller, 56, was hospitalized two weeks ago after suffering a heart attack. He also suffered a heart attack last year, at the end of a 111-day nationwide strike by the union.

Miller, elected president of the union in 1972, also suffers from black lung, a respiratory disease of coal miners, and arthritis. He has been hospitalized twice before in recent months.

Miller resigned his post as union president a few days after his latest admission to the hospital, becoming president emeritus. Vice president Sam Church moved up to president.

Peggy Cass to marry

NEW YORK (AP) — Peggy Cass has confirmed weeks of rumors that she will marry accountant Martin Feeney, with whom she has been living for two years.

"I wanted it to be in December," she said Tuesday, announcing the January wedding. "But my first marriage was in December. I'm very superstitious."

Miss Cass was divorced from her first husband, Carl Fisher, in the late 60s. He has since died.

Miss Cass, probably best known for her years as a panelist on the television game show "To Tell The Truth," was last seen on Broadway in a brief run of "Once a Catholic."

Charged with commandeering of jetliner

Teen-age hijacker sent for psychiatric testing

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Federal authorities say a teenager charged with hijacking a jetliner and holding its passengers and crew hostage here for almost four hours has been sent to Missouri for psychiatric evaluation.

U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions ordered Gerald James "Skipper" Hill Jr. transferred Tuesday to the Medical Center for Federal Prisoners at Springfield, Mo.

Hill, 18, was arrested Saturday after American Airlines flight 395, from San Antonio to Los Angeles, was commandeered during a scheduled stop at El Paso. FBI agents say they overpowered the hijacker and released the 19 male passengers and seven crew members who were held hostage for almost four hours.

FBI agents said Hill told the pilot he wanted to go to Iran.

A federal complaint charged Hill with interfering with the flight crew by assaulting, intimidating and threatening them with a large hunting knife.

The complaint also said

Hill threatened to blow up the plane with dynamite. No dynamite was found. There were no injuries.

Hill had been scheduled for a preliminary hearing Thursday.

Court-appointed defense attorney John Langford said Tuesday up to 90 days is allowed for the psychiatric tests. Langford said he had asked for a continuance of the hearing. Langford said Hill lived in Austin, Texas, and San Antonio, Texas, "for a short period" after he was released from the Army in October. A spokesman at Fort Benning, Ga., said Hill could not adjust to the military.

Hill was described by a friend as "a patriotic kind of guy" upset over the hostage situation in Iran.

Carter signs bill giving fuel cost aid to poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter Tuesday signed legislation providing $1.35 billion to help several million poor Americans pay their fuel bills this winter.

The program offers widely differing benefits from state to state. More than half the money will be distributed by state governors under plans yet to be approved.

"We will expedite the distribution of these funds," Carter said as he signed the measure at the White House. Some checks will go out in early January, officials said.

Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso, whom Carter invited to speak at the ceremony, praised the new program by saying it "turns a season of concern into a winter of new hope."

The new program, called the "Low Income Energy Assistance Program," will generally give more money to states that have colder winters.

The highest benefits, $250 per person, would go to recipients of Supplemental Security Income payments — the aged, blind and disabled — in New Hampshire, Iowa, Wyoming, Utah, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Minnesota, Idaho, Connecticut and Alaska. The lowest payment, $34 per person, goes to SSI recipients in Hawaii.

When Carter announced details of his plan in September, he told a convention of retired people: "This financial help will be for everyone in our country who is most needy. I know you'll appreciate that."

Among the states receiving above-average aid will be frigid New Hampshire, where the president faces the first primary of the election year.

Carter's original proposal would have paid an average of $100 per person or $200 per family to an estimated 7 million people with income at or slightly above the poverty line. For a family of four, the ceiling for aid would have been $9,000 a year.

But Congress gave governors wide discretion in how the money is to be doled out, making it difficult to predict who will be eligible or how much an "average" recipient will receive. Combined with $250 million approved earlier, the measure provides a package of $1.6 billion to be distributed this winter by federal and state governments.

About $400 million is earmarked for most recipients of federal Supplemental Security Income, which goes to aged, blind and disabled people.

The federal government plans to mail checks directly to SSI recipients in early January. The checks will vary widely by region from $34 to $250 per person. There are 3.9 million SSI recipients, but those whose public housing rent is paid by Medicaid will not be eligible for the aid on the assumption that their fuel costs are covered already.

States will get a total of about $800 million to set up their own programs. Governors will have wide discretion in how they use the money. But if they fail to set up a program, the federal government will mail checks directly to welfare recipients.

Governors may choose to make a uniform payment to welfare or food stamp recipients, to use their allotment for emergency cases only, or to devise plans that give poor people a line of credit with their fuel supplier.

It could be two months or more before state programs get money into the hands of those who are eligible. States have up to 30 days to submit their plan for approval; the federal government may take 15 days to consider it; and 10 more days are allowed for final revisions.

After that, state governments will need more time to print and mail checks.

Senate lining up votes to stiffen oil industry tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate liberals and moderates are lining up votes for what could be their last effort to stiffen an oil industry "windfall-profits" tax now substantially weaker than that proposed by President Carter.

Some of those same senators, however, voted Tuesday for an amendment that the White House claims helps cripple the "windfall" tax to the point that it has become a "raw deal" for consumers.

The Senate was nearing a vote, possibly today, on a proposal by Sens. John Chafee, R-R.I., and Bill Bradley, D-N.J., to add $14 billion to the tax on the oil industry by raising the tax rate on oil discovered between 1973 and 1978.

The Senate Finance Committee recommended that 60 percent of future price increases on such "new" oil, which now sells for a controlled price of around $13 per barrel, be taxed away. Chafee and Bradley want to raise the rate to 75 percent, noting that as price controls are removed, that oil will sell for more than $30 a barrel.

The Chafee-Bradley proposal is generally considered to have a better chance of passage than any other amendment to strengthen the tax. But the only previous effort to stiffen the tax — an amendment to double it — failed on a 50-32 vote. In the vote Tuesday, some of the most liberal senators supported an amendment by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to cut the 11-year impact of the tax by $10 billion by exempting the first 1,000 barrels of crude oil pumped each day by an independent operator. The amendment was approved by a 53-41 margin. Bradley and Chafee voted against it.

Since an independent is defined generally as any operator other than the giant oil companies, the Bentsen amendment allowed senators to cast a vote for solving the nation's energy problems without appearing to be siding with "big oil." Bentsen said the tax break is needed to provide independents, who drill 90 percent of the nation's exploratory oil and gas wells, the money for increased exploration.

Judge stays execution of Texas inmate

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Condemned killer Alton Byrd once again will miss his date with the executioner.

U.S. District Judge Robert Parker granted a stay of execution Tuesday pending a hearing that could come as early as next week. The judge said he could not set a specific date because of a heavy court docket.

Byrd would have become the first condemned prisoner to die by lethal injection if he had been forced to keep his date with death Friday.

The stay marked the second time Byrd had been reprieved from a scheduled rendezvous with the executioner. Last year, Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell granted a stay. However, the high court later rejected Byrd's request for a new trial.

Court-appointed defense attorney John Mitchell of San Augustine said Byrd's state court remedies were exhausted when the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals rejected a request for a stay of execution Monday.

In the federal appeal, Mitchell contends Byrd's constitutional rights were violated during the punishment phase of his trial when testimony was admitted from a state-hired psychiatrist who said Byrd would pose a continuing threat to society.

Byrd, 26, was convicted of killing his sister-in-law, Linda Carol Rice, in 1976. Prosecutors said he went to her house, got into an argument, abducted and raped her, and took her into a forest where he shot her in the head with her own .22-caliber pistol June 6. Byrd led police to her body about three weeks later.

Texas has not executed anyone since 1964, when the electric chair was used for the last time.

There are about 125 persons on Death Row, including one woman. The number fluctuates day to day because of the appeals process.

Under the new method, the prisoner will be wheeled on a stretcher into the death house where electrocutions were carried out. An anonymous executioner, selected by the prison system director, will start a flow of enough sodium thiopental to cause death.

The executioner stands behind a wall and cannot be seen by the prisoner or the witnesses.

Cancer patients brave cold to stop strikers

LONDON (AP) — With three hours to go before Charing Cross Hospital would have run out of heating oil because of a strike, cancer patients threw blankets over their bathrobes and took to the streets.

Their mission was to convince 55 striking maintenance men to allow oil trucks through the picket lines. Without the fuel, Britain's foremost cancer clinic would have to close its doors.

"We told them we were cancer patients and were ashamed of what they were doing," Kathy Barker, a 37-year-old mother of two, told The Associated Press. "But they just turned their backs on us."

Mrs. Barker has cancer of the uterus. One picket confessed he felt sorry for the patients, but Carol Bostwick, 42, who had surgery only a week ago, cried to him: "Obviously you're not sorry enough because our lives are still at stake."

Mrs. Bostwick had to have a nurse help her to stand, and another patient coughed up blood as he braved the cold with 200 white-coated doctors and nurses and pleaded with the pickets to end their five-week hospital blockade.

Besides oil, supplies of oxygen, food and even light bulbs were running out.

Close look at family in trouble

First it was the new house. "Everything seemed to be going up and we got caught into that."

A sister in college lost a scholarship. "So we picked up those expenses."

A death left another family member in trouble. "And we ended up helping him."

All in all, recalls Susan, "We just stretched our income too far."

Susan and her husband Jeffrey don't want their real names used, but they are real people. They live in a relatively small Midwestern town and have two children. Both of them work in white collar jobs.

Together, they earn more than $45,000 a year. Together, they owe almost $45,000 in installment debt.

"We weren't actually being dunned, but we were getting all these letters in the mail all the time," Susan said. She read a newspaper article about nonprofit credit counseling centers and decided to ask for help. "It was almost exactly a year ago, just before Christmas," she said.

Today, Susan and Jeffrey are on the road to recovery. It will take them more than three years. Each month, they set aside $800 and give it to a counselor who divides it among the couple's creditors. "Over a dozen of them," said Susan.

How do two people with an income that is more than twice the national median get into that kind of trouble? Did Susan and Jeffrey just throw the money away?

Credit experts say Susan and Jeffrey are not unusual. The more money you have, they say, the more temptations there are to spend.

Robert Gibson, director of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit said that in a strange sense the poor are less likely to run into credit problems.

"Many of the poor have been denied access to the credit markets," Gibson said. "In terms of credit cards and bank loans and things of that nature, the middle and upper-middle income people have had greater access to the market and have used it to a greater extent and, therefore, potentially, face more problems."

Susan and Jeffrey are victims of success. They both come from large families. They are members of a minority group that traditionally has strong family ties. "We were the first ones in the family to more or less make it," Susan said. "It seemed like every time somebody else would have a problem, we were the ones they'd come to."

Jeffrey agreed: "It wouldn't have made any difference if we made $45,000 or $145,000 a year ... You can't take on the world."

The couple's troubles began when they were building a new house — a house that they should have been able to afford. "Nothing that was bid came out the way it was supposed to," said Susan. "It was only supposed to cost $70,000. It ended up costing us $80,000."

Then came the lost scholarship. Another sister got into trouble with drugs and Susan and Jeffrey took on new loans to help pay the cost. Susan's mother died and her father couldn't support the six children left at home. "I don't want it to sound like I'm using other people as excuses," Susan said, but "we ended up supporting two or three families."

Creditors included "retailers and banks, the finance companies, the whole bit," said Jeffrey.

"You'd run and do this, that and the other. We didn't stop to think about which way we should go."

Susan and Jeffrey never got turned down for credit. "People will assume that because you're doing what you're doing, you've got a good job, you should be able to handle it," said Susan.

The new budget leaves the family with "enough to get by," she said. They have managed to keep up the payments on the mortgage, but there are no curtains on the living room windows. New furniture will have to wait.

She and her husband have changed their spending habits. "I find myself doing more predicting on what's coming up ... I'll go back over my checks and see what we spent last year and at what time of year and can anticipate what to expect and what we can do and what we can't ..."

Susan and Jeffrey have learned to say no. To family members. To salesmen. To friends who urge them to spend for things they can't afford. "If I had one recommendation," said Susan, "I would say to people: 'Do not react under pressure.'"

MANSON SENDS MESSAGE TO PAROLE BOARD — California Medical Facility at Vacaville information officer Gary Straughn showed reporters two one hundred dollar bills in play money and a Monopoly card reading "Chance-Advance to Go-Collect $200" given to the prison's watch sergeant by inmate Charles Manson Tuesday. Straughn said Manson told them he was not attending his parole hearing and to give them to members of the Community Release Board who were there to discuss his near future.

Burglars grab seven guns

Seven guns were taken in a burglary over the weekend from the residence of James M. Thomas, Garden City Route Box 128-B. The burglars pruned open a window on the south side of the house.

Stereo equipment and a portable television were removed from their locations but abandoned inside the house.

Two sets of footprints were found and tracks left by a vehicle on standard size radial tires.

The thefts occurred Saturday between 7 a.m. and 4:15 p.m.

Look at military women?

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Women of the military, Playboy Magazine wants you.

Newspaper ads here and in other Navy cities, worded like wartime recruiting posters, are asking women in uniform for a brief biography and a picture.

And Playboy Enterprises in Chicago says the response is good.

"We're having so many girls call from your area ... we're sending a photographer down later in the week," a secretary at the Playboy Mansion said Tuesday.

At the recruiting stage for Playboy's pictorial on military women, nude poses aren't required. A bathing suit will suffice, the magazine spokesman said.

Cmdr. Bill Dingler, a Defense spokesman in Washington, said his office was checking to see if any military regulations prohibit a display of flesh from beneath government-issue uniforms.

They're staying after all

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — The going-away party is all set, but the guests of honor say they're not leaving, so they're not coming.

The First Annual Going-Away Party for AMAX Inc. will go on anyway Friday at the El Dorado Cafe, Mayor W. Mitchell said.

"... we plan for them to go away," he explained.

For five years, AMAX has been trying to mine what it believes is the world's fourth-largest molybdenum deposit, in Mt. Emmons, the western backdrop for this Rocky Mountain ski resort. Molybdenum is used mainly for hardening steel.

Last year, the Crested Butte Town Council voted unanimously to ask the company to leave.

But AMAX has given no indication that it is abandoning its plans.

"Several more of these parties may be needed," said Chuck Malick, president of a local group called High Country Citizens Alliance.

Resident hammer out plan

NEW TRIER, Minn. (AP) — When inflation threatened the town hall construction project, residents of New Trier decided to take matters — and hammers, nails and lumber — into their own hands.

Town fathers decided last spring they couldn't spend another shivering winter in their drafty, century-old town hall, so they called for construction bids.

After all, said Mayor Robert Reinardy, the garage-sized building "was more like an outhouse than anything else."

City officials figured a new hall would cost between $10,000 and $12,000. But the bids were more than $20,000.

So town residents turned them down, and started construction themselves.

The new wood-frame building, about the size of a two-stall garage, will be finished soon, Reinardy says, at a cost of around $8,000.

Meanwhile, he is conducting city government from his living room.

Poor harvest, oil output forces Soviets to reduce

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Parliament met yesterday to approve reduced economic targets for the year after President Leonid Brezhnev stated that this year's grain harvest — the first since 1975 — is 48 million tons short of the target and oil output is off 10 million tons. Because of the low harvest, Western economists expect the Soviet government may all 25 million tons of corn and wheat the U.S. Department of Agriculture will allow to be sold to the Soviet Union in the 1979-80 fiscal year. The scaled-down economic plan, which is expected to be routinely approved by the 1,500 members of the Parliament, or Supreme Soviet, for industrial output to rise by 4.5 percent in 1980 over this year's level. The growth target for this year had been 5.7 percent over 1978. But Soviet economists have noted the growth actually achieved at about 4 percent. Nikolai Baibakov, chief of the state economic planning organization, presented to parliament members a series of production targets for 1980, many of them lower than those envisaged in late 1978 when the Soviet Union announced its 1976-80 economic plan. Baibakov said oil production is targeted at 606 million tons for next year, against an original target of 620-640 million tons for 1980. Steel production is planned for 150 million tons, compared to 160-170 million tons originally planned. Baibakov said production in 1979 fell short of targets in steel, coal, oil, mineral fertilizers, synthetic chemicals, paper, non-ferrous metals and some consumer goods and food products. Brezhnev confirmed earlier predictions of a poor harvest in a speech Tuesday to a closed session of the Communist Party's 250-member central committee. The 72-year-old president blamed "bottlenecks and shortcomings" for the economic troubles. But Western analysts blamed the grain shortfall on a record cold winter in 1978-79, particularly in Western Siberia, Kazakhstan and northeast of the Ural Mountains; wet weather during the harvest and shortages of storage and drying facilities. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Brezhnev told the committee 1979 was "perhaps the most difficult year" of the 1976-80 five-year planning period. "The assignments for 1980 are lower in a number of aspects than those for the five-year plan," said Brezhnev, indicating that the Parliament, or Supreme Soviet, would adopt scaled-down economic goals for 1980. He stressed some good news, including construction of more than 1 billion square feet of new housing in the past four years and an increase of more than 13 per cent in per capita income in the same period. But bad news predominated. Brezhnev said the 1979 grain harvest totaled 178 million metric tons, 48 million below the target of 226 million. Oil output reached 585 million tons; the goal was 595 million. Last year's harvest was a record 237.2 million tons, while oil output was 572 million tons. Electric power production was 1,245 billion kilowatt hours, 20 million kilowatt hours short of the target. Production of natural gas did better; at 400 billion cubic meters, it was 4 billion cubic meters short. Brezhnev called for more "initiative at the grass-roots level." But he continued to maintain the basic principle that "a socialist economy is inconceivable without strengthening the principle of centralism." The nation's top economic official, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, has been out of public sight since Oct. 17 and reportedly is ill. His chief deputy, Nikolai A. Tikhonov, a 74-year-old economic planner, was elevated Tuesday to full membership in the Communist Party's ruling Politburo, presumably to help improve economic management.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOV. 29, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite some surface annoyances, there are many opportunities to get involved in projects with quick returns. Use your finest mental qualities to take advantage of this day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Any personal wishes can be put in motion early and they are soon attained. Don't neglect important business matters. See good friends.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Give an adviser the right facts and figures so you get the best advice for solving a problem. Stop worrying. Talk over new ideas with friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Making business and personal calls brings good results today and tonight. Get into amusements you like. Take no risks with reputation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Think over tasks ahead of you and plan how best to handle them. Improving credit matters is also wise. Keep in good physical condition.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into new outlets that can bring you greater abundance in the near future. Discuss them seriously with partners. Keep money in a safe place.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get the details of a new project so that you know what you are doing. Gain the cooperation of loved ones. Take good care of your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact those you want to be associated with in the future and state aims clearly. You can handle civic work successfully. Make sure diet is good.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Change your attitude and tackle the pile of work in front of you. Discuss your ideas with an associate first and you get cooperation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan the recreations you most like early and then enjoy them later with friends. Show more affection and be happier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You know what should be done at home and can get kin to go along with your ideas easily. Be careful of diet and feel better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Know your own ability and get others to help where needed. Handling communications and travel matters wisely is important.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to have a greater abundance and follow through with your ideas in a positive manner. Listen to what a clever adviser says.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to put plans to work quickly and not meet with many stumbling blocks because of the careful planning done first. Teach to finish whatever has been started for best results.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Iranian situation to dominate future U.S. political campaigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the lives of the 49 Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are in jeopardy, the Iranian crisis will dominate U.S. politics despite the reluctance of politicians to press it as an issue in the presidential campaign.

Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "All avenues will then be open." But with the Americans still captive, most politicians have united behind the president's efforts to reach a peaceful resolution of the crisis.

"I think it is important, or imperative, that Americans speak with one voice and that we support the administration," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said in a broadcast interview Sunday.

Kennedy has maintained that position since the crisis began four weeks ago, three days before the Massachusetts senator formally opened his campaign to wrest the Democratic presidential nomination from President Carter. Former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, is the only major candidate outspokenly critical of Carter's efforts to gain the release of the hostages.

"I don't know that I would do anything differently from what the president has done, but I just don't know what he has done," said Connally in a broadcast interview.

Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, a Republican presidential hopeful, praised Carter's handling of the situation, then said the president "has to assume total responsibility for this happening in the first place."

Reading between the lines of the statements coming from Capitol Hill and the campaign trail, it becomes clear that the president will face questioning about the decision to allow deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to enter the United States for medical treatment.

Carter also is likely to face plenty of second-guessing on whatever action he takes after the hostage impasse is ended.

No matter what the outcome of the embassy takeover, no matter what action Carter takes, a lot of people will be dissatisfied.

At the moment, Carter is benefiting from the tradition of the American people to rally around the president in times of crisis. That support may not last long.

St. Lawrence diapause control plan completed

The St. Lawrence boll weevil diapause control program has just completed its 11th successful season, according to David Foster, County Extension Entomologist of Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Upton and Reagan Counties.

The program is a joint project of the St. Lawrence Cotton Producers Association, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Department of Agriculture and the Texas Pest Management Association.

The primary objective of a fall diapause program is to reduce the number of boll weevils entering overwintering cover thus delaying economic damage the following spring. The success of the St. Lawrence program is apparent.

In 1979 based on 51 traps only 9 overwintering boll weevils were trapped, compared with 11 in 1978 and 10 in 1977. In the late 60's the boll weevil was a serious pest of early season (squaring) cotton. As stated above the diapause programs have removed the boll weevil as a threat to early season cotton and caused the weevil to become a non-economic late season pest. In 1979, the first boll weevil found in cotton was on August 10th, this compares to July 10th in 1978 and July 24th in 1977.

A major benefit from the diapause program the last few years is that no insecticides are being used the following season for boll weevil control, thus allowing beneficial insects to keep other cotton insect pests in check.

The boll weevil control program is never ending. The program starts with overwintered boll weevil trash survey conducted during the winter and early spring. Boll weevil traps are then placed across the area serving the St. Lawrence Association in May and checked through November. At the same time Pest Management Survey Scouts are hired by St. Lawrence

Demonstrators blockade base

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — A group of demonstrators broke into Selfridge Air National Guard base on Tuesday, blockaded the base commander's office and demanded that the U.S. "keep its bloody hands off Iran."

Selfridge spokesman Donald O'Dell said FBI agents took four of the protesters in custody shortly after noon. They were among a group of 25 or 30 who picketed outside the main base entrance.

Robert Marinaro, an FBI spokesman in Detroit, said the protesters belonged to a group known as Vietnam Veterans Against War. O'Dell confirmed reports that the demonstrators burned an American flag just outside base grounds.

The area to be treated must meet certain criteria. The basis for determining what acres will be treated include the results from overwintering trash survey, results from boll weevil trap catches, field surveys and historical information — previous years criteria in relation this year's. These type of criteria effectively reduce both cost and insecticide use for both the producer and Texas Department of Agriculture.

In 1979 the control program was the smallest in recent years. A total of 12,861 acres were treated; 6,367 acres were treated on the first application and 6,494 acres were treated the second application. The acreage treated included the area northwest and east of Garden City, most acreage on the eastern side of St. Lawrence in Glasscock County, fields east of Highway 33 and the Stiles Community in Reagan County and the Benedum area in Upton County.

CBS comeback a longshot

'The Young Maverick'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Something called "The Young Maverick" makes a quick appearance on CBS' schedule tonight, hoping to work the memory of the class "Maverick" series for some easy ratings points.

A clumsy con, this, unworthy of the name Maverick (which, you'll remember, is synonymous with guile and wit and cleverness in the old West). Bret Maverick would have sooner drawn to an inside straight than to bet on this longshot.

This scam has a built-in foil. The idea is to lure viewers with the name "Maverick" and then hope that they don't compare what they're seeing with the lustre memories that urged them to watch. This can't work, of course, especially since the CBS promos scream out, "Maverick's Back."

Viewers looking for "Maverick" will be disappointed. Depressed, even. But probably not surprised.

The original 1957-1962 "Maverick," which starred James Garner, Jack Kelly and (occasionally) Roger Moore, featured bright charmers named Maverick who were everything that other Western heroes weren't: They were witty, disinclined to violence and rather cowardly, and they didn't much care for riding horseback.

The "Young Maverick" at hand, Ben Maverick (Charles Frank), also displays those characteristics, which is easy enough because such things can be written into the script.

Ben Maverick is the son of Beauregard (Moore's old part) and cousin to Brothers

Bret and Bart (Garner and Kelly). He has inherited, CBS' promotions tell us, the Maverick "good looks and charm, great skill with cards and a healthy respect for cowardice."

Unfortunately, he has not inherited Roy Huggins, who made the original "Maverick" with a special touch, or the exquisite charm of James Garner's Bret — things that can't be written into the script.

Tonight's premiere episode, written by David Feickinpah (son of director Sam Peckinpah), is about Ben's efforts to pay back a gambling debt (and thereby remain physically intact) by out-coming a couple of cons, an old Maverick theme.

There isn't much hope for the chance that after awhile, "Young Maverick" will quit trying to imitate the original and will develop its own style. It's been reported that CBS will make its decision on the show based on the performance of tonight's episode, which suggests a cloudy future for young Ben Maverick.

By the way, Cousin Bret does make an appearance of sorts in tonight's debut.

October Carrier of the Month: Mark Corwin

Mark Corwin earned the honor of October Carrier of the Month after managing route 147 for only two months. Carriers are chosen on the basis of sales, service, collections and record keeping.

Gilbert, Mark's District Manager says Mark is an exceptional carrier. His collection books are always in order and complete by the 10th of the month. He maintains porch delivery of his 105 papers and has a trained sub to deliver for him when he is sick or out of town.

We're sure we are joined by all the customers on Route 147 when we say "Congratulations, Mark Corwin" on being selected Carrier of the Month of October.
