Carter accused of making 'wicked' statements

Soviet invaders crushing resistance

By the Associated Press
Soviet invaders were reported to have crushed resistance and occupied Afghanistan's southern provincial capital of Kandahar and the eastern city of Jalalabad today as America and its allies prepared to seek U.N. Security Council condemnation of the Russian sweep into the Central Asian nation.

President Carter also was reported ready to ask the Senate to delay indefinitely its consideration of the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency Tass accused Carter of making "bellicose and wicked" statements and of distorting the "essence and meaning" of the Soviet military intervention.

Sporadic gunfire was heard in Kabul Tuesday, but the city was reported quiet Wednesday and today. Associated Press correspondent Steven Hurst, reporting from Kabul today, said the Afghan capital was quiet overnight and that the only signs of the Soviet presence he saw in the city were a few helicopters flying overhead and three Russian tanks grinding through the streets before dawn.

Travelers from Kandahar, 270 miles southwest of the Afghan capital of Kabul and 50 miles from the border with Pakistan's Baluchistan province, told the Pakistani newspaper Jasadat the Soviets occupied Kandahar City Wednesday after two days of clashes with Afghan government forces opposed to the Russians.

They said the Soviets poured into Kandahar City Monday after landing in Soviet military aircraft. They said for the next two days the Russians battled rebellious Afghan government troops, and that when they routed them pro-Soviet Afghan forces hung garlands of flowers around the invaders' necks.

The newspaper also said the Soviets took control of Jalalabad City Sunday. However, diplomats in Kabul said Soviet troops were airlifted Monday to Jalalabad, in eastern Afghanistan about 50 miles from the border and Pakistan's Kyber Pass, to fight Moslem rebels who have been battling the communist Afghan government since the first of three pro-Soviet coups 20 months ago.

The diplomats also said the Soviets used sophisticated attack helicopters and tanks against the Moslem insurgents in rugged Bamian province about 100 miles northwest of the Afghan capital Wednesday, and that casualties were heavy on both sides.

The diplomats said other Soviet troops were flown into Herat, in western Afghanistan about 60 miles from the Iranian border, the day the Russians launched the Dec. 27 coup that put their latest proxy, Babrak Karmal, in power, and toppled President Hafizullah Amin, who was summarily executed.

Afghan guerrilla leaders quoted by Tehran Radio said the Moslem insurgents were in control of Herat province, and that they attacked the prison in Herat City and freed the inmates Wednesday.

Karmal said in a speech on Afghan television that Amin was a U.S. puppet and CIA agent.

He said "we may have to seek help from other valiant nations like Vietnam, Angola, Ethiopia, the Palestinians and Cuba also."

Sources in Washington said the United States and its allies will ask for a U.N. Security Council meeting shortly to demand the Soviet Union withdraw its 30,000 to 40,000 troops.

Sources at the United Nations said Britain, Pakistan and others will join with the United States in asking the Security Council to debate the Soviet Union's intervention, possibly over the weekend.

Among the steps understood to be under consideration were lifting the U.S. arms embargo against Pakistan, endorsing a boycott of the 1980 summer Olympic Games in Moscow, imposing curbs on wheat sales to the Soviet Union and finding ways to provide Western arms to Afghan insurgents.

President asks for treaty delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has asked Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd to delay Senate floor consideration of the SALT II treaty because of the Soviet military moves into Afghanistan, press secretary Jody Powell announced today.

"While the president continues to believe that ratification is in the national security interests of the United States, he has concluded that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in defiance of the U.N. Charter has made consideration of the SALT II treaty inappropriate at this time," Powell told reporters.

He said the delay in consideration of the strategic arms-limitation treaty would continue while Carter and Congress assess Soviet intentions and devote their attention to legislative and other measures to respond to the Soviet actions. He did not elaborate.

In a letter to Byrd, D-W.Va., Carter said he was not withdrawing the treaty from Senate consideration but asking only for a delay in consideration.

The president wrote Byrd that the treaty "should be taken up by the Senate as soon as these more urgent issues have been addressed."

In an action announced Wednesday, Carter recalled U.S. Ambassador Thomas Watson from Moscow to take part in the administration's high-level policy review.

Officials said earlier that Carter also would seek condemnation of the Soviet Union by the United Nations Security Council as part of the series of moves to counter the Soviet action in Afghanistan.

Consulate shootout in Istanbul

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A shootout between Turkish security guards and a group of youths trying to storm the Soviet Consulate in protest of the Afghan invasion left one high school student killed and two other persons slightly wounded today, police sources said.

A police source said "a group of 30 to 40" youths marched to the heavily guarded Soviet Consulate in downtown Istanbul.

The group, shouting slogans against Russian military intervention in Afghanistan, opened pistol fire towards the display windows and the gate, protected by a steel fence, eye-witnesses told police.

At one stage, the attackers tried to enter the compound but were driven back by warning shots from Turkish security guards and soldiers posted at the gate.

When the group ignored warnings, security forces responded with firearms, resulting in the death of Mustafa Kiy, a high school student in a low-income suburb, according to police sources.

First time in history

Price of gold rockets above $600 an ounce

LONDON (AP) — Pandemonium struck the world's gold markets today as buyers frightened by the deepening international political crisis drove the price of the precious metal above $600 an ounce for the first time in history. The dollar fell sharply.

The price of gold rocketed to $649.73 in Hong Kong, then slid back to $613.26. The closing rate was $72.01 above Wednesday's closing price of $541.25, while the high for the day represented a gain of $108.48.

When the London market opened, bullion traded at a record bid-asked price spread of $615 to $630. At mid-afternoon, London's major bullion dealers "fixed" the price at a record $634 an ounce, up $74.50 from Wednesday's afternoon fixing and up $66.50 from the Wednesday's closing rate of $567.50.

In early New York trading, Republic National Bank quoted gold at $630 an ounce bid, $635 asked and said the market was "very busy."

In Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion mart, trading resumed after a five-day holiday period, and gold opened at a spread of $615-$625. The late median price of $635 was $118 higher than the last Zurich selling price of $517 an ounce on Dec. 28.

Gold analysts, asked to explain the rush for gold, noted that investors who can afford to invest or speculate in bullion want to put more of their assets into the precious metal as a safe haven in times of political uncertainty.

December crime incidence less

Crimes of all types except theft dropped in the city during December. Burglaries during the month dropped from 41 to 34, where compared with the previous month. Assaults dropped from 22 to 17 during the same period.

Both robberies and auto thefts were down by one, with no rapes recorded during December, and one murder during both months.

Only the number of thefts rose during the month. In December, thieves hit 67 times, compared to 62 times during November.

The average case load for detectives rose from 30.5 to 33.8 during the month, but the clearance rate for those cases dropped from 68 percent in November to 60 percent in December.

Bert Parks calls dumping 'shabby trick'

'There he goes' after 25 years

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Perennial Miss America Pageant host Bert Parks says pageant officials pulled a "shabby trick" by firing him after 25 years of singing "There She Is" to tearful beauty queens.

"You've got to be kidding me. I'm absolutely shocked. I know nothing about this at all," Parks said when told of his dismissal late Wednesday night.

"I think it's their loss. I never thought they'd pull a trick like this," Parks said. "This is a little shabby, isn't it?"

Albert A. Marks Jr., the pageant's chief executive officer, said Wednesday that Parks "has not been invited back to be the emcee next year."

Marks said he told Parks in a letter two weeks ago that he would not be rehired to his traditional one-year contract. Marks would not give a reason for Parks' dismissal.

Parks, 65, reached at home in Greenwich, Conn., said he had not received the letter.

"I am really, honestly, so stunned. I really wish Al Marks had called me personally. I'm very sad. But if it's true, it's true. That's the way life is. I've loved every moment that I've done it."

Parks has been the pageant's television master of ceremonies since 1955, the second year of its nationwide telecast.

Marks said Parks earned $18,500 for his services last year, which included rehearsals and three nights as host of preliminary competition in addition to the two-hour television show.

A pageant source who asked not to be identified said Parks was fired because he was getting too old and "too powerful" for the non-profit pageant organization, led by dozens of Atlantic City area businessmen and civic leaders.

The source said the pageant's television sponsors — Kellogg's, Gillette and Campbell's Soup — supported the dismissal.

"Look, the guy's 65 years old," the source said. "A younger face is needed for that slot."

Marks would not say who would be host of the pageant's 27th national telecast on Sept. 6. The New York Daily News reported that pageant officials were considering singers John Davidson and Mac Davis, talk show host Merv Griffin and actor Gavin MacLeod.

Dorothy Benham of Pittsburgh, Miss America 1977 and co-host of the 1979 pageant, said she had been invited to return as co-host this September.

"It'll be different without him," she said when told of Park's firing. "... He's a great man. He's done a lot for the show. ... The Miss America pageant is a tradition. It's part of America. He is known as a part of that tradition."

Parks, an Atlanta native called "Bertie" by many in Atlantic City, is a former Broadway actor. He was the nation's top game show host in the 1950s when he was chosen for the pageant. Parks was host of such '50s TV shows as "Name That Tune" and "Break the Bank." His last network series was in 1963 when he hosted "Yours for a Song."

Parks took over the job from Bob Russell, a television producer who emceed the first televised pageant.

Bludgeoning charged

HEREFORD, Texas (AP) — A balding 5-foot-8, 200-pound man, released from prison only last month, has been charged in the murder of a Hereford widow who was strangled with an electrical cord and beaten in the head with a hammer in her home early New Year's Day.

Police issued a warrant for the arrest of John Millard Moon, 38, who was freed from Huntsville in early December after serving a term for burglary and theft over $200.

Grandchildren of Lillie Mae Walker, 50, went to neighbors about 2 a.m. Tuesday and said they heard quarreling, then went into a room of their northeast Hereford home to find Mrs. Walker's body, an electrical cord twisted around her neck.

Moon had been living in the home with Mrs. Walker and her grandchildren the past several weeks, according to Detective Sgt. Vernon Hope.

"He is believed to have fled the house in the victim's 1974 Plymouth station wagon, and he is also believed to be armed with a knife," the officer said. Police recovered a hammer they said was used to hit Mrs. Walker in the head.

An autopsy showed she died of strangulation.

"He was sentenced to seven years for burglary and theft over $200, from Lampasas County," Hope said. "We found some papers indicating he had been released from Huntsville on Dec. 4."

District Attorney Roland Saul filed the charges.

Fem escapes indicted

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Three women escapees from a Texas prison, being held in Pueblo, Colo., pending a removal hearing, have been indicted by a federal grand jury here.

Patricia Ann Watson, 32, Sylvia Jean Brown, 37, and Mary Lou Santellana, 30, had previously been named in a federal complaint, which authorities said was superseded by the indictment.

The defendants also were named in counts alleging kidnapping and interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle.

The women are accused of kidnapping Regina M. Raymond and her 3-year-old son, Cameron, in Oklahoma City on Dec. 23. Ms. Raymond and her son were released unharmed in Wichita, Kan., the same day.

Watson, Brown and Santellana were arrested in Pueblo, Colo., on Dec. 24, after police rammed the allegedly stolen vehicle in which they were traveling.

The women also face escape charges in Texas, robbery charges in Colorado and possible robbery charges in Enid.

Exorcism ordeal

NEW YORK (AP) — A 1½-year-old boy remained in critical condition today, his survival chances dim, from an ordeal in which his mother allegedly tried to burn the devil out of him by putting him in a hot oven.

Leon Justin was burned everywhere except on his face and left hand when, according to police, his mother scalded him with water and roasted him in the kitchen oven of their Harlem apartment Tuesday night.

The mother, Patricia Abraham, 25, was arraigned on an assault charge Wednesday night in Criminal Court, where Judge Martin Erdman ordered that she be given a psychiatric examination and returned for a hearing Jan. 30.

Miss Abraham was found naked when a building security patrol summoned the fire department after smelling smoke and hearing chanting from the five-room apartment. She told authorities that she was trying to save the boy because he was in a fever and possessed of the devil, according to the district attorney's office.

The burned child was rushed first to St. Luke's Hospital, then transferred to the intensive care unit in the burn center of New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, which reported on his condition. A spokesman said survival was rare in cases of children so young with burns so extensive.

School officials mull sale of 'junk foods'

By EILEEN MCGUIRE
Big Spring Public Schools may have some adjustments to make in regards to candy and other "junk" snack foods this month.

U.S. Agriculture Department officials failed to live up to their resolution to restrict sales by Jan. 1 of some candy, frozen ice desserts, gum and sodas that compete with peas and mashed potatoes in school lunches.

But they put American school children on notice to make New Year's resolutions to cut out "junk foods" until after lunch because the long-delayed federal rule is expected to come out in a few weeks.

Harold Bentley, assistant superintendent of the Big Spring Public School System, said today that he has received no information as of yet about limiting snack foods in schools until after lunch. He said that candy is sold from school snack bars only during lunch in local schools.

He stated that he will have to see the new regulations before making any necessary modifications of the sale of snack foods.

Jodie Levin-Epstein, an aide to Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, said some schools already have begun to restrict sales of "junk foods" before the final federal regulation comes out "very soon."

She said, "It's clear that the message is out."

Officials hope school officials will make sure fruits, vegetables, fruit juices and nuts are sold in vending machines and snack lines. They also encourage them to make local restrictions on candy and sodas tougher than the federal rule.

The agriculture department is acting to carry out a 1977 law in which congress authorized regulation of the sale of foods that compete with school lunch programs and do not contribute to good nutrition.

Congress said children would be less likely to eat nutritious foods if their stomachs were filled with sodas and candy.

The pending regulation would apply in 98 percent of the nation's schools, which receive federal funds and commodities for school lunch or breakfast programs.

Teachers in Cleveland vote on pay raises pact

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland teachers were voting today on a tentative contract agreement that could end an 11-week strike, but the cost of the pay raises could result in extensive cutbacks in Ohio's largest school system, officials say.

The tentative agreement was reached early Wednesday in the third day of court-ordered negotiations that included federal mediators. The walkout began Oct. 18.

Teachers union president Eugene Kolach said the union's 24-member executive committee unanimously recommended acceptance of the offer.

Under terms of the settlement, teachers would report to the schools Friday, and the system's 92,000 pupils would report on Monday.

The salary offer calls for a 10 percent raise effective immediately and 14 percent in raises during the next school year, according to the 5,200-member union.

The raises next school year include a 4 percent in September, another 5 percent in January 1981 and another 5 percent in April.

In all, school board sources say the package may cost as much as $33.5 million to implement. By the end of the contract, beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree would make about $12,400 compared with $9,887 now.

Was it accident or deliberate attack? Poster Child shooting probed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The 1980 national Easter Seal Poster Child, who suffered a superficial head wound in an unsolved New Year's Eve shooting, has been moved out of intensive care after her condition improved Wednesday.

Meanwhile, puzzled police said Wednesday that they have not determined whether the shooting of 8-year-old Jeanette Alvarado and her 31-year-old aunt was an accident or a deliberate attack.

The child, a paraplegic because of a congenital spinal cord disorder, was wounded about 12:15 a.m. Tuesday as she watched New Year's Eve fireworks with friends and relatives outside her grandmother's house.

Alice Alvarado suffered a neck wound in the shooting, but was released Wednesday from Bexar County Hospital. Police said Wednesday they had not determined how many shots were fired or whether the same shot caused both wounds.

"We really don't have any idea why the child was shot. It's hard to tell if it was deliberate or accidental," said police inspector Marion Talbert.

Police Lt. Walter Hall added, "Anything at this point would just be speculation. We have some leads, but we're not in a position to say what happened. We don't know at this time if it was deliberate."

Hall refused to speculate if Mrs. Alvarado or another member of the group might have been the intended target. Police Lt. Robert Katz had earlier speculated that the shot might have been randomly fired by a New Year's Eve reveler.

Officers clamped a tight lid on the investigation later Wednesday.

Jeanette was moved Wednesday afternoon out of the Bexar County Hospital intensive care unit as her condition improved from fair to satisfactory, officials said.

"It was really close. Thank goodness it wasn't any closer," hospital spokesman Jeff Duffield said of the wound.

Catarina Alvarado, the child's grandmother, said Jeanette was conscious and talking to visitors.

"She seems to be doing okay," said Mrs. Alvarado. "Her mother asked her if she wanted her to bring some homework from school and Jeanette said she did."

Randy Aaron, executive director of the Bexar County Easter Seal Society, said the gunshot wound will apparently not affect Jeanette's status as the national poster child.

Helen Alvarado, the child's mother, told the San Antonio News that numerous fireworks were exploding at the time of the shooting. She said she turned and saw Jeanette holding her hands to her bloody face.

"Alice said she had been shot. We didn't know where the bullet came from," she said.

Keith Roberts, public relations director for Easter Seals, said the shooting "obviously shocked everybody."

"She's really a personality kid," Roberts said. "Everybody loves her."

Jeanette was selected as the Easter Seal Foundation national poster child for the 1980 fund-raising campaign during a convention in Philadelphia last November.

Aaron said the child underwent therapy at the local center for four years until she entered public elementary school. He said Jeanette, now a second grader, has progressed to where she can move around with the aid of a rolling walker and wheelchair and tend to other tasks.

"We see her for therapy only occasionally now. She does most of her exercises at home," he said.

Alarming number of bridges are unsafe

The Highway Users Federation says you have reason to wonder about the safety of highway bridges. Somewhere in the United States, a bridge falls down about every other day.

It's true the average bridge is designed for a life of 40 years, but three quarters of the half million or so bridges in this country are more than 45 years old.

YOU WOULD THINK that bridges used in the federal-aid highway system would be checked regularly and condemned when unsafe but that is not necessarily true. According to the federation, nearly 18 per cent are deficient.

More than half of all the unsafe federal-aid bridges — 22,271 or 52 per cent — are in the ten states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, Tennessee and Texas.

Nationally, one unsafe bridge was reported for every 20 miles of federal-aid highway. The ratio of bad bridges to miles of highway was reported most severe in Louisiana, with one unsafe bridge for every five miles of federal-aid highway. The problem is also serious in such states as Vermont, Mississippi, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, New Hampshire and Tennessee.

Why aren't the bridges on the principal arteries replaced if they are known to be unsafe? For one thing, the cost would be prohibitive. It's estimated that the bill for replacing and repairing all the unreliable bridges located last year would run to $16.3 billion — just for those spans on the federal-aid highway system.

West Texas, because of its even terrain, is less likely to have bridges than culverts, which are built more durable and last a great deal longer. A bridge as defined by the Highway Users Federation is equal to or greater than 20 feet in length.

As a whole, the state of Texas has at least 2,147 bridges considered deficient or obsolete.

Are we prepared?

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

Recently a series about child abuse appeared in the Big Spring Herald. The first part of the series was the story of a local woman who was physically, sexually and emotionally tormented from an early age at the hands of her mother, step-father, grandfather and their friends. You read about it, hear about it, watch television programs about it, but like so many unpleasant things in the news, you forget about it. With so many cases of child abuse being discovered, you know it has to be happening around you, but it's still a shock to read about one specific case — proof that it is happening here.

A LOT OF REASONS have been cited as causes for child abuse, such as an abused child growing up to abuse his or her own children or severe financial problems within the family. Another reason, I feel, is that so many of us just aren't prepared to be parents.

One of the best things to happen for kids, I think, is the social pressure that's been taken off of couples to have kids.

I grew up during the transition. When I was a young girl, I was expected to take the traditional route of getting a high school education, getting married and having children. Things changed fast and by the time I had finished high school, there were choices instead of expectations.

And suddenly there were "Dear Abby" columns filled with letters from folks who wanted to be grandparents but whose married children refused to cooperate. Still, not too many couples would boldly state that they didn't want children — they gave other excuses.

Now to have kids or not to have kids is a decision that we leave to each individual couple. Most of the couples I know who say they may never have children, have all the criteria to make excellent parents except for the most important ingredient — the desire to raise children.

Now that young couples have a choice about whether or not to become parents, how about more information on which to base their decision.

Most high schools now include some information on parenting in their home economics classes, but the information is liable to be limited to how to bathe, dress and feed an infant. Knowing the pressures and pitfalls of being a parent — how traumatic it can really be at times, is as important in getting ready for a baby as selecting the layette.

Just to make sure that the knowledge reaches everyone, it had better be taught in the early years of high school since more and more teenagers are having babies at earlier ages than ever before and they are keeping their babies.

I SUSPECT THAT these young mothers are less equipped at ages 15 and 16 to be mothers than I was at 19. And at 19, I wasn't ready.

My skills were limited to a high school home ec class in which I learned to make brownies from scratch and sew something that resembled a dress. Not having babysat more than once in my entire career as a teenager, my in-depth training of actual baby care consisted of 10 years of playing with dolls.

Unfortunately, the baby couldn't eat brownies and I was reluctant to put him in a dress. I quickly learned that there was a big difference between him and a doll. He had moving parts and, unlike a doll, I couldn't just put him away when I got tired of being a mommy.

But when I was growing up and while I was pregnant, not one person let on that there would be moments — many — when I really would wish that kids came from cabbage plants instead of homes.

Teach the next generation of parents how to bathe and dress their offspring and tell them of the rewards of being a parent, but also give them some insight into what lies ahead of them.

Babies are delightful cuddly creatures. They are also often wet, hungry, sick and they cry in a very loud monotone. They are often irritable for days and around the age of two, they can be irritable for an entire year.

At the age of four, given the opportunity, they become artists of the world, painting growup things, like cars and your house, as well as their own things, like shoes and shirts.

At age five, they begin to test authority. At six, they start talking back. At seven, they ask you to explain your actions.

Since we've all been kids, we all know what kids are like. But you haven't seen it from the parent's point of view until you are one.

The kids who have parents who knew what they were doing from day one are the lucky ones. Some of us parents weren't really ready for the role we took on until the second or third time around.

Having a baby can be done with very little forethought. Raising a baby to be a well-adjusted adult with a positive outlook and attitude about himself is the tough part. So many of those little kids aren't going to make it for the simple reason that so many parents just don't know what they're doing.

Arafat's role

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — One of the murkier mysteries of the Tehran situation is the involvement of the Palestine Liberation Organization and its crafty leader Yasser Arafat in the embassy takeover and the negotiations for the hostages' release.

The pistol-packing Arafat's role is so enigmatic, in fact, that our own intelligence agencies disagree sharply in their assessments of his actions. Some of my sources believe Arafat honestly tried to mediate the crisis, as he claimed; others are convinced the PLO leader's ballyhooed mediation effort was a sham.

THE ONE THING both schools of thought agree on is that Arafat saw the hostage situation as a golden opportunity to gain favorable publicity for the PLO in the United States. Whether his mediation attempt was sincere, or whether it was simply a cover for a more sinister mission — assuring the Iranians of Soviet support in the event of U.S. military action — the PLO would still look like a friend in need to the United States.

There is an even more Byzantine possibility, my sources tell me: Arafat may have had a hand in the planning and execution of the embassy takeover from the start. Intelligence experts note that in the past — for example, the seizure of the Egyptian Embassy in Turkey last July — the PLO assumed a spurious mediator role in a situation it had itself instigated.

In support of this theory, it should be pointed out that some of the so-called students had almost certainly been trained by the PLO, and even may have been accompanied in the embassy takeover by young Palestinian guerrillas with PLO connections.

It is also known that after the shah's overthrow, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini asked the PLO for help in training a security force because he doubted the reliability of the Iranian army.

The PLO sent Abu Sharad who is now the equivalent of the head of the secret service in the Iranian revolutionary regime, and Hasin Hassam, who is now Khomeini's minister of defense. Intelligence analysts who lean to the view that Khomeini personally engineered the embassy seizure feel that he would have used his PLO-trained security force for the job.

The PLO connection with the Iranian revolutionaries goes back a number of years. The Palestinian guerrillas provided training, arms and money to the anti-shah rebels. And the PLO made no secret of its delight at Khomeini's victory.

The PLO's public posture in the crisis might best be called contradictory. While Arafat's representatives were supposedly trying to negotiate the hostages' release, the PLO's man on the scene in Tehran, Hani Al-Hasan, was stating flatly that "We are not mediators."

He also issued a ringing message of support for the Iranians against the United States. "The PLO puts all its forces, armed and unarmed, at the disposal of Khomeini, to fight against any American intervention, inside and outside Iran," he declared.

There was also a report, which I have confirmed independently, that Palestinian guerrillas were the ones who mined the Tehran embassy after the United States hinted it might use force to free the hostages. Those Palestinians may not have been acting for Arafat, however.

Among intelligence sources who believe Arafat's mediation attempt was sincere, there is a report that PLO officials are still secretly negotiating in Tehran for the release of the hostages.

These sources say the negotiations have been kept quiet to prevent a public outcry from radical Palestinians to protect the PLO mediators from possible violence.

CAPITOL HILL KLAN: A staff member of one of the most important congressional committees has become the target of ugly racial harassment, possibly from a bigot lurking on the same committee staff.

The victim is Darlene Jefferson, a black woman who works for the Joint Committee on Taxation. For the past several months, she has received anonymous hate mail on committee stationery and obscene, racist telephone calls.

"The committee does not need niggers," a male caller told Ms. Jefferson in one phone call, adding some unprintable obscenities.

One of the notes read, in part, "Ms. Jefferson... One nigger is going, when are you leaving? We do not need black folks on the staff, especially above the CLERK capacity. Make it easy for us, leave..."

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., has written private letters to Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the committee chairman, and Sen. Russell Long, D-La., the vice chairman, suggesting that the committee investigation of the incidents is not as rigorous as it might be.

Thumb-sucking season

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The holiday season is not the easiest time for a Washington opinion-maker. If the truth be known, those of us who stay in town can easily be recognized because we're the ones sitting around in restaurants and bars sucking our thumbs.

Whereas during the height of the political season we refuse to speak to anyone but the highest Administration officials, we are condemned until Congress comes back, to quote "sources close to the Kennedy campaign" (a Dartmouth student volunteer home on vacation), "a spokesperson for Jody Powell" (one of the White House telephone operators), "an informed diplomatic contact" (a taxi driver with a foreign accent) and "a senior adviser to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance" (the head waiter of the Executive dining room).

THUMB-SUCKING IS the hardest type of writing because it requires even more imagination than the most respected Washington opinion-maker is usually expected to exercise.

The first thing we have to do is go through all the old press releases that we discarded with contempt when they were dropped in front of our doors. This flotsam, which we wisely saved, suddenly has more value than gold.

FOR EXAMPLE, MY secretary Jeannie, who gets very nervous when I start sucking my thumb, was wise enough to save a press release from the Department of Agriculture, informing the media that a U.S. District Court in Oregon ordered egg producer David Van Eyk, of Myrtle Point, Ore., to pay the American Egg Board $744 for failing to file reports on how many eggs he handled. He also was fined for not submitting the required assessment of 5 cents for each 30 dozen eggs he marketed, thus violating the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act, which is administered by an 18-member American Egg Board, appointed by the secretary of agriculture and monitored by the Department's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Now when I first stepped on this press release two months ago, as I was leaving for the day, I didn't realize the significance of it.

It was only between Christmas and New Year that it dawned on me that white-collar crime in the egg industry is rampant and could be one of the biggest problems the country will face in the Eighties.

While Mr. Van Eyk was caught and punished, the question that arises is how many egg handlers in this country are getting away with murder? By failing to send in the 5 cents for each 30 dozens eggs they have sold, the cost to the American Egg Board could be in the millions — perhaps billions — and since the money collected is used for research to develop new markets for eggs, the consumers are the big losers in what law enforcement officials now describe as one of the largest American shell games in the nation today.

To this observer, the problem seems to be that the lack of strong enforcement of the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act has encouraged egg handlers to ignore the law. It is another dramatic example of the malaise in this country. The white criminal butter and egg man will continue to lie about how many eggs have passed through his hands, because he knows that even if he is caught, the fine will be minimal, as opposed to the magnitude of the wind-fall profits that can be made.

Unless these unscrupulous dealers are stopped in their tracks by a beefed-up Egg Enforcement Agency, none of us will be safe on the streets or in our homes.

The time has come to get tough with every egg handler in the country. If the American Egg Board can't do it, they should all resign and turn the job over to people who can.

Some tips for young weightlifter

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son is 15 and has taken up weightlifting. He is concerned about increasing his chest and arms only. My question is how much weight to lift without harm. He appears to be straining so hard that his face reddens and his arms tremble when lifting. I feel he is handling more weight than he is physically capable of doing and that he can hurt himself.

Is there any danger to this extreme straining? This form of exercise seems to be very popular today, and these young people need some information on proper weights, etc. — Mrs. E.B.

He should not concentrate on exercise for his chest and arm muscles only. He should exercise all muscle groups — abdomen, legs and back. Any professional weightlifter can vouch for this truth.

A rule of thumb in lifting is to use the amount of weight that can be lifted eight times without exhaustion. When he graduates to lifting that twelve times, he may increase the amount of weight and go back to the eight repetitions, and so on.

Yes, it is very easy to overexert muscles and cause serious strains with injudicious weightlifting. He can find a book on the subject at the library.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband and I were vacationing in North Carolina and read your column daily in a local paper there. We thought you might help us with a medical term that we don't understand.

Our 34-year-old son suffered two strokes and was told that vasculitis was the cause. Neither he nor we understand the term. Please define it for us in detail. — Mrs. W.C.

All medical words ending in "itis" mean inflammation of some kind. In your case it is of blood vessels (vasculitis). Vasculitis covers a wide assortment of problems.

Inflammation causes the interior of a vessel to narrow. Eventually, blood cannot get through to organs. The result is death of tissue. In a stroke, the brain's blood vessels are involved. The effect is the same as when a clot develops.

It's unfortunate that your son had to have a stroke to find out what was wrong. Vasculitis can be insidious in this respect. Physical therapy is helpful these days for stroke victims, and in one so young the future might be brighter. Much can be done today to control certain forms of vasculitis. For more reading, see "Stroke Recovery: Hope and Help." Send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My daughter, who will be 15 in November, has been having a brownish discharge from her left breast. This has upset her. She has been having periods for a year now, and all seems to be normal there. Could you please comment so I can assure her all is well? She doesn't want to see a doctor as she is embarrassed of her body and is only comfortable with me so far. — M.A.J.

The discharge may be from a harmless growth in one of the ducts of her breasts. However, the point is to insist on a proper examination for your daughter, both for her present problem and to overcome her fear of examination.

Perhaps she would feel more comfortable with a female doctor. No doctor will object to your being present during her examination. For reasons no one has satisfactorily explained for me, many young girls have this feeling of embarrassment about their bodies. The sooner dispelled the better.

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor: The closing of some 13 steel plants in seven states by U.S. Steel should be a strong signal to everyone interested in the survival of the industrial giants of America.

"People first, profits later" was the chant of the steel workers picketing U.S. Steel Corp. The 13,000 jobs involved would not be in jeopardy if the profit motive had occupied their minds during the years the Japanese began to speed up production.

One Japanese steel worker produces 479 tons annually and markets it $45 a ton cheaper than U.S. plants. One U.S. steel worker produces 239 tons annually. Possibly new, more efficient methods would have prevented the closing of the 13 plants by U.S. Steel.

Too often the American workman is too slack in his efforts to up company production. The constant demand of labor leaders to get more and more benefits have clipped the profits to the extent that funds for plant improvement have gone to appease labor.

If the corporations of America are to survive and offer job security to their employees, then someone other than the boards of directors must take interest in the annual report.

Some of America's most efficient corporations have been attacked by the present administration for making "obscene profits." The companies so highly criticized by politicians have doubled their assets since WW II. The great bulk of their profits has been plowed back into company expansion — thus providing more jobs and profits.

Our government seems more interested in the future of industries which are floundering near economic disaster. Some companies have been victimized by excessive demands by labor unions.

Would it not be more in keeping with the traditional free enterprise system for government to give industrial giants an occasional "pat on the back"? The future of this nation possibly involves greater mutual respect between government, industry and labor.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: A friend of mine at school committed suicide a few months ago. Why would anyone do something like that? He always seemed like a happy person, although he had gotten involved in drugs. — L.M.

DEAR L.M.: Teenage suicide is increasing at an alarming rate. Suicide is always tragic, but it is particularly heartbreaking when it involves a young person who could have otherwise had a rich and fulfilling life.

The fact that your friend had gotten involved in drugs suggests that he had been troubled for some time. Large numbers of young people turn to drugs (and also alcohol) as a means of escape, trying to bury the problems they feel. Such things not only do not solve the problems, they bring others as well. It would be difficult to say what your friend's real feelings were.

Often a person in his position feels rejected and alone, or has no sense of purpose and meaning in life. Sometimes a person may be overwhelmed by fears of the future and feel totally unable to cope with it.

Your question suggests that this event has shocked you and many of your classmates. Although it is a heartbreaking happening, it should make you think about your own life and the lives of other young people you know. Perhaps you do not feel particularly discouraged or inadequate, but have you ever thought about why God has placed you on this earth? You are not here by chance — God put you here. Your friend apparently never knew the joy and purpose that Christ can bring into our lives. Do you? God does not want you to drift through life with no clear direction, simply living for the moment and selfishly trying to get all you can out of life. He wants you to know what it means to be His child, and wants you to come to Christ by faith and let Him be Lord of your life.

You have much of your life ahead of you, and I pray that you will place yourself — your future, your abilities, your career, everything — in the hands of Christ. "Remember your Creator in the days of your youth, before the days of trouble come" (Ecclesiastes 12:1).

LOVE ME, LOVE MY RAT — Kathy Dillon takes her pet rat with her wherever she goes in Houston. She got the rat, named Columbus, several months ago from a fellow animal health technician student. She was told recently that she'd never get a boyfriend if she had a rat constantly riding on her shoulder. "I guess it's gotten down to the point of 'love me, love my rat,'" she said.

Rat leading dog's life in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Perched on his master's shoulder, Columbus is a white rat leading a dog's life and couldn't be happier. "He's a great pet and he's wonderful with kids," says Kelly Dillon, who wants to be an animal health technician and admits a long-standing grudge against rats in general. "We had a behavioral training project (in school) and most of the class used rats except me," she says. "I used a dog. I just couldn't understand why anyone would want to work with a rat." But when classmates decided to release Columbus in an apartment complex after the project was over, the soft spot in her heart for animals overruled her own distaste for Columbus and his brethren. "Columbus knows me and he knows his name," Ms. Dillon says, even though Columbus is probably a mental midget when compared with the neighborhood pooch. "Yesterday he was on my sister's shoulder and I came in and he ran straight to me. Of course, I feed him, so he also identifies me through that." However, Columbus is no ordinary rat and bloodlines count — even in varmits. Columbus, says Ms. Dillon, is a Long Evans Hooded Rat, bred especially for laboratory work. "It does make a difference," she says. "Lab rats are bred to be better-natured, intelligent and to stand pressure. They are also much cleaner. He washes himself like a cat after I pick him up." Although she is amused by the adverse reaction many people have to her unusual pet, she says much of people's aversion to rats can be blamed on bad press. "As a breed, they've gotten a lot of bad publicity from television and the movie 'Willard.' Also, I guess women traditionally have always disliked rodents." "Mostly, they look at him (Columbus) and say 'Yuck.' One woman I know ran clear across the room when she first saw him," she says. "It's the tail that gets them. It is pretty ugly and gets worse as rats grow older." "But," she says, "I do think people should realize that there are 'rats' and there are 'rats.'" When she finishes her two-year course at Houston Community College, Ms. Dillon says she would like to take her love for animals on the road and join a circus, but says she would only do it for a year "because I know it would be rough."

It may be lonely, too. A close friend's father recently told her it might be difficult to find a steady boyfriend if she insisted on keeping Columbus perched on her shoulder. "I told him I just didn't care," she says. "I guess it's gotten down to a case of 'love me, love my rat.'" Yearbooks are ready at HC The 1978-79 Hawk Review yearbooks are in and may be picked up in the Business Office of the Administration Building of Howard College, according to Howard College officials. All 1978-79 full-time students may pick up their yearbooks free of charge, but a $5 charge will be made for students who were full-time for only one semester.

DIES — Lt. Col. John A. "Shorty" Powers, the "voice of the astronauts" in the 1960s, was found dead Tuesday at his home in Phoenix, Ariz. Cause of death was undetermined, but police said they didn't suspect foul play.

Galveston city dads nix nuclear dump site idea

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — City Council members voted Wednesday to reject any effort by the Department of Energy to make the city a site for the dumping of high-level radioactive wastes. The move came after council member Jane Coggeshall said DOE is considering Galveston, along with several other cities, as a possible site for nuclear waste disposal. "I would like to see the council oppose it (the site) so we can get Galveston eliminated now," she said. Then we won't have to go through it later." Public hearings on the plan have been scheduled for later in the year. A temporary low-level disposal site, operated by Todd Shipyards Corp., is already in operation at nearby Pelican Island. Health officials say the site poses no hazard as long as excessive quantities of radioactive material do not accumulate. Mayor Gus Manuel said the lack of regulations concerning transportation of nuclear waste bothered him. "The scariest thing," he said, "is that the state health department has no way of knowing who the common carriers are or how much of this stuff is coming in." "There is no requirement that they (the carriers) notify anyone that it is coming in," he said.

On the light side

Ticket to ride

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — If you get one traffic ticket here, you automatically get a second ticket — for a free bus ride. On Wednesday, policemen were handing out free passes to promote ridership on the shuttle bus, and to relieve traffic congestion. Police Capt. Dan Hansen said city studies show that about 25 percent of the traffic in the Seattle suburb involves cars driving from one parking lot to another. The "Bellhop" bus service runs every 10 minutes and connects shopping areas and offices.

Sit up and take notice!

AUBURN, Wash. (AP) — When Chris Luther sits up, he wants the Guinness Book of World Records to take notice. The 150-pound teacher says he broke the record for sit-ups in a two-minute period when he did 130 last month. He also set the existing record for jumping jacks — 20,088. His next attempts at the record book will be for chinups, 130, and the jump-rope, 58,869 rotations. Luther, 32, is a physical-fitness nut, and he likes to set records because "it's nice to know you are the best in the world at something." In college, he trained for track events by picking up huge logs along trails and running with them. In one community college meet, he ran the 100-yard dash, the 220, 440, 880, mile, 2-mile, and 440 hurdles. He placed in all but two events.

Out of the red, into 1980

WAYNE, W.Va. (AP) — Glen Curnutte's New Year's resolution was to stay out of the red. And because of that, the whole town of Wayne has to stop overspending its budget too. Curnutte is Wayne's town recorder. "We are going to pay our bills as we go," Curnutte said on New Year's Day. "We are not going to let them pile up as they were in the past." In July, the town had faced about $10,000 in outstanding bills, and its general fund was $1,800 in the red at the bank, officials said. But on New Year's Day, proudly displaying his organized ledger books and uncluttered filing drawers, Curnutte said, "This is the result of hours of hard work. Me and two other men, who have donated their spare time to help, have spent a lot of time in this office."

Fed loosening tight credit ?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent declines in some key interest rates should not be viewed as a sign the Federal Reserve Board is loosening its tight credit policy, says board chairman Paul A. Volcker. "Will the Fed stick with it?" Volcker asked rhetorically of the policy. "My own short and simple answer to that question is 'yes'. And I do not intend to qualify that answer."

He added in a speech Wednesday that the policy is "an absolute prerequisite to dealing with the inflation that has ravaged the dollar, undermined our economic performance and prospects and disturbed our society itself."

But even with steadfast devotion to a tight money policy, Volcker said there will be some fluctuations in interest rates. A few hours after his remarks, Bankers Trust Co. of New York, the nation's eighth-largest bank, lowered its prime interest rate from 15 1/4 percent to 15 percent. Citibank, the second-largest commercial bank in the country, and ninth-ranked First National Bank of Chicago, lowered their rates to 15 percent Dec. 14.

The prime rate — the interest banks charge their most creditworthy business customers — rose dramatically in the wake of central bank action on Oct. 6 to get tighter control of the nation's money supply. Rapid growth of money, and credit are believed to be inflationary. The prime rate hit a record 15.75 percent in mid-November. Some slowing in the economy in the final quarter of 1979 has helped push it down somewhat since then.

Volcker also told his audience at the National Press Club Wednesday that the Carter administration and Congress need to watch for "the right time" to reduce taxes. "I hope we resist temptations that could arise simply to pump fresh purchasing power into the economy at the first sign of a recession," Volcker said. The rare public appearance by Volcker, who took over last August as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, came at a time business conditions seem to be deteriorating. Many economists are predicting the nation's economy will slide into a recession early this year, with unemployment rising by some 2 million people by election day in November.

The latest evidence came Wednesday in a Commerce Department report which said construction spending fell 1.3 percent in November to an annual $235.3 billion rate.

The drop was the largest since a 4.9 percent decline in January and followed an increase of 2.5 percent in October, Commerce said.

Meanwhile, the price of gold soared to all-time highs in New York and on overseas markets Wednesday as the dollar sagged. Analysts blamed tense relations between the United States and Iran and the Soviet Union for the hot market conditions.

Judge to decide fate of five ex-officials

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A federal judge was to decide the fate today of five former Gregg County officials convicted on charges ranging from murder conspiracy to facilitating illegal gambling.

Former Sheriff Tom Welch, former Justice of the Peace Charles Cashell, suspended County Commissioner Bill Satterwhite and former deputies Bill Roach and Jim Cochran were to appear before U.S. District Judge William Steger in Tyler today for sentencing. They were convicted Dec. 12.

Welch, Satterwhite and Cochran were convicted of murder conspiracy, racketeering and facilitating illegal gambling. Cashell and Roach were convicted of facilitating illegal gambling.

Welch faces a possible maximum sentence of 30 years in prison and a $65,000 fine. The other four face possible maximum sentences of 25 years imprisonment and $45,000 in fines.

Welch and Cashell voluntarily resigned their post following their convictions. Satterwhite was suspended pending the outcome of a removal suit.

'Cookie Exchange' adds variety

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

For domesticated women, both working and non-working, the holiday season, especially Christmas, means hours and hours of baking.

Depending upon each woman's degree of love for the kitchen, these hours of cake baking and cookie making could be a time looked forward to. But just as often, it's a time dreaded.

Christmas cooking means variety. Who wants to fill their stomach full of just one type of cookie, only one kind of cake or the same ole type of candy?

The kids like the Christmas tree-shaped cookies glazed with red and green icing. Dad likes the traditional fruit drop cookies. Mom? Well her favorites are those mouth-watering coconut cookies.

That's variety all right, but the shopping list for three different types of cookies is something else.

How can you get variety at Christmas, time without going through the hassle of shopping for 50 different ingredients to make three different types of cookies?

A group of 13 women, by putting their ideas and baking talents together, came up with a way — The Cookie Exchange.

"We thought about doing it last Christmas," revealed Gail Earls, one of the 13 participants, "but we began discussing it and it all sounded too complicated."

The idea was brought up again this Christmas and the women decided to follow through.

Each person baked 13 dozen cookies. The type was left up to the individual. Each person then divided their cookies into groups of one dozen and brought them, with recipes included, to a Cookie Exchange party Dec. 12 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rock, 4007 Wasson Rd.

Other women participating, in addition to Joan Rock and Mrs. Earls, were Janet Rogers, Linda Fuchs, Janet George, Anna Hattenbach, Linda Ornelas, Betty Crenwelge, Jo Beth Corwin, Ruth Mitchell, May Mayhall, Pauline Cowart and Janet Rient.

Everyone who came to the cookie swapping party went home with 13 dozen cookies, each dozen a different type.

Now that's variety without a lot of hassle. And the women involved say they'll do it again next year.

"In addition to the fact everyone helped each other add variety to their Christmas cooking, the Cookie Exchange made a great party," Mrs. Rock stated.

"The husbands seemed to enjoy the get together, too," Mrs. Hattenbach added.

A couple of the husbands even had a hand in the baking. Mrs. Rock's husband baked everyone a loaf of bread, while Mrs. Corwin's husband, Tom, baked the 13 dozen cookies for his wife. Corwin was a cook in the military.

All of the women say, however, that their new

Cookie Exchange needs perfecting.

But although better organization is a must for next year's exchange, and even with all the confusion and indecision, the women say it was still worth it.

"It's really cheaper to buy a large volume of ingredients for one type of cookie, than to buy a lot of different ingredients in small amounts for several kinds," Mrs. Hattenbach reasoned.

Aside from the monetary savings, the participants' family members thought the idea was great, too.

"All my kids were really enthusiastic about all those different kinds of cookies," Mrs. Rock said.

Mrs. Earls stated she had a hard time keeping her husband from nibbling and sneaking cookies before they ever got to the party.

The Cookie Exchange instigators, who say they fumbled through their first cookie swapping experience by trial and error, have a few words of wisdom for other groups contemplating the idea.

"It would be easier if it was decided by the coordinators how many people are going to be in the group," explained Mrs. Rock. "Then you could contact that specific number of people and you wouldn't get more participants than you could handle."

The more participants, the more batches of cookies each one must make.

"I couldn't see myself making 20 dozen cookies," Mrs. Earls laughed.

"Besides, I'm not a baker. I don't even know how I got into this anyway."

Another tip conveyed by the group was to write a plan of action.

"Even though we told everyone the same thing, not everyone interpreted it in the same way," Mrs. Rock stated.

Cookies should be brought to the party, previously divided, placed on paper plates and wrapped with cellophane paper.

They advise people not to put the cookies in paper sacks. This causes crumbling.

"We decided to have the party early enough so we could give the cookies as gifts for Christmas," Mrs. Rock said.

"We also had the party near the beginning of December so it wouldn't interfere with the Christmas rush," Mrs. Earls added.

And as Mrs. Hattenbach recommended, "Cookies you don't want eaten before Christmas should be frozen.

If not, they disappear fast."

Below are several recipes swapped by members of the Cookie Exchange at their Dec. 12 party. While testing a few of the recipes, you might want to organize a Cookie Exchange of your own.

Anna Hattenbach's MEXICAN WEDDING COOKIES

2 cups flour
1/2 cups powdered sugar
2 sticks butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup nuts

Cream sugar and butter; add other ingredients. Mixture should be stiff. Roll into balls, place on ungreased cookie sheet. Make indentation with thumb on each. Bake at 350 degrees 12 minutes. When cool put icing on each.

ICING:
Powdered sugar
1/4 stick butter
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
food coloring milk

Gail Earls' CHRISTMAS NUT THINS
Makes 6 dozen

1 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped pecans
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Pecan halves or colored sugar

Combine butter and sugar, creaming until light and fluffy. Add eggs, beating well. Add flour and salt, and mix until smooth; stir in chopped pecans and vanilla, mixing well.

Drop dough by 1/2 teaspoonfuls about 2 inches apart on greased cookie sheets. Place a pecan half in center of each cookie, or sprinkle with colored sugar. Bake at 375 degrees 8 minutes or until lightly browned.

Tommy Corwin's MOLASSES COOKIES

1 cup dark brown sugar
1 cup Grandma's molasses
1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 cup butter/milk
1 teaspoon soda

Enough flour to handle good, about 6 cups

Roll out and cut. (Use spatula to handle cut cookies.) Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Put pecan half in center of each cookie top. Sprinkle top of each cookie with granulated sugar. Bake at 350 degrees until done. Do not overcook. Bake less than 10 minutes.

Janet Rogers' COCONUT MACAROONS

2-3rds cup (1/2 15-ounce can) Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk
2 (14-ounce) packages (3 cups) shredded coconut
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon almond extract

Mix together sweetened condensed milk, coconut and flavorings. Drop by table-spoonfuls, about 1-inch apart onto a well-greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 8 to 10 minutes or until delicately browned around the edges. Remove from baking sheet immediately.

Pauline Cowart's CONGO SQUARES

3 eggs, beaten

2-3rds cup Wesson oil
Brown sugar
2 1/4 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 package chocolate chips
1 cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Prepare 9x18" cookie pan and preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine sugar, oil and beaten eggs. Add flour and baking powder (sifted together), chocolate chips and nuts and vanilla. Batter will be stiff. Spoon into pan and bake only 30 minutes. Do not overbake.

Linda Fuchs' FRUITCAKE DROP COOKIES

1 pound white raisins
1 pound candied pineapple, diced
1/4 pound candied red cherries, diced
1/4 pound candied green cherries, diced
1 1/2 pound chopped pecans

Combine raisins, pineapple, cherries and pecans; sprinkle with 1/2 cup flour. Mix well. Cream butter and sugar together until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift remaining 3 cups flour with soda and nutmeg; add alternately with milk to cream mixture, beating well after each addition. Stir in vanilla extract and fruit mixture until well blended. Drop from teaspoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for about 15 minutes or until brown. Makes 6 dozen.

COOKIE GIVING — Participants of the Cookie Exchange did their baking early enough in the Christmas season to avoid the Christmas rush. Some, including Mrs. Rock, Mrs. Earls and Mrs. Hattenbach, even packed their cookies in Christmas packages and gave them as gifts.

Nature's nutrition... Naturally

Sensible diets start with the natural nutrition of dairy products. He's Transvestite, Can't Skirt Issue

DEAR ABBY: At 16 I married a 21-year-old man I thought I loved. We had a son a year later, but the marriage didn't work out, so we were divorced when the boy was 6. I'm now married to wonderful man who adopted my son.

Meanwhile, my ex dropped out of sight for three years. Yesterday, out of the blue, he called saying he had something very important to tell me, and would I meet him downtown — alone.

When I met him, I nearly fainted dead away! He was dressed like a woman. He said he was a transsexual who had been living as a woman for two years and was scheduled for a sex change operation next month! He said his name is "Anita" now, and he's in show business. Abby, I couldn't believe my eyes. He had electrolysis to remove his facial hair, took hormones to develop a female figure, and was wearing a wig, makeup, and stylish clothes. He looked like a beautiful woman! This was a great shock to me because he was all man when we were married. Our sex life was normal, and I never dreamed he had these tendencies.

My problem is how to tell our son. Or should I tell him at all? (He's 9 now.) My ex lives in another state and has promised not to come near our son without my approval. If the boy ever saw his father as "Anita" he would die, and so would I! I am so afraid someone in this little town will find out about this and blab it around. What should I do?

SMALL TOWN MESS

DEAR MESS: A 9-year-old is too young to comprehend what transsexualism is all about, so hold off telling him, but prepare to tell him one day by educating yourself now. Write to The Janus Information Facility, University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston, Texas 77550 for enlightening, up-to-date literature. They are a legitimate, non-profit facility, dependent on private donations, so send $5 to cover cost of literature and mailing.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter met a smooth talking fellow nine months ago and really fell for him. She's 22 and he's 21. He isn't working now and he's not even looking. He keeps saying that the jobs he wants don't pay enough. In the meantime he borrows from my daughter, drives her car, eats every meal at my table, and his clothes are washed in my machine! He never mentions marriage, but my daughter looks at him like he's god, and she calls this "love."

Would I be wrong to ask this guy what his intentions are?

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: You can ask him, but I think I can tell you. His intentions are to eat at your table, drive your daughter's car, get his clothes washed in your machine, and freeload off you and your daughter as long as you let him.

DEAR ABBY: I have a mother-in-law who comes to my house and starts cleaning it up, or changing things around, the minute she gets here. If my clothes are in the dryer, she takes them out and folds them. She's always poking around in my cupboards and rearranging things.

If I had a dirty or messy house, that would be a different story, but my home is spotless, and I am never behind in my laundry.

This really took the cake: She came over and pulled the sheets right off my bed and laundered them! I was never so insulted in all my life. I change my sheets on Friday, and this was only Sunday!

I spoke to my husband about her, and he said, "Don't hassle her. She's getting old." (Abby, she's 46.) Please tell me how to handle her.

HAD IT IN ALLENTOWN

DEAR HAD IT: To handle such a strong and assertive person, you must be even stronger and more assertive. Let her know in no uncertain terms that when she is in your home, she is a guest — and she's not to do a thing. At 46, she's young enough to learn.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Arguing won't change prejudice

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm emotionally involved with the most perfect young man a girl would ever want.

We really love each other but we don't see each other very much because we are of different races and we're both afraid to tell our parents because we know there will be conflict.

Can you please help. — L.L., Youngstown, Ohio

L.L.: It's better that you tell your parents now that you are seeing a boy of a different race. If someone else tells them, it will be a much more volatile situation. The same holds true for the boy and his parents.

Racial prejudice is probably the strongest of all prejudices so your task will not be easy. Expect two family uproars, but don't get into arguments about the situation.

Ask if you can bring the boy (girl in his case) over to meet your parents. If they say no, let it go at that and try at a later time.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 years old and was convicted on a burglary charge and given eight months to one year probation.

It was my first offense and I don't plan on ever doing it again.

My problem is that kids at school are telling me that they don't want to hang around with anyone like me.

Please tell me how to act to them and what to say. — Dee Dee, Astoria, Ore.

Dee Dee: You know that you won't get involved in a burglary again but they don't. So you can't blame these kids for being super cautious. But, teens are the most honest and fair group on earth and it won't take them long to judge you for what you are. It's up to you to set your image.

If someone questions you about the trouble, just tell them you made a mistake, learned from it, and will see that it never happens again.

Of course, you are not obligated to tell them anything.

Dr. Wallace: My little brother is going through a stage when he doesn't listen

This year's resolution--

Take time out for yourself

The holiday season. Parties ... guests ... gifts. The trick is finding time to enjoy it all.

What's the secret? "Start by making a 'This Year's' resolution to find the time before you lose it. And to do that takes planning," advises Jessie Vicha, coordinator for the Kentucky Fried Chicken Time Out Institute, an organization founded to serve as an information resource center for women.

"A business like Kentucky Fried Chicken which serves more than a billion meals every year couldn't be a success without precise planning at every level," asserts Vicha. "Whether you're managing a business or a household, planning is still the key to making the best use of your time."

Take holiday gift shopping, for example. You can cut the hours spent — and the frustration level — with good advance planning. A few suggestions:

I'll just wander-through-the-stores-until-I-find-something-perfect-for-Uncle-Harry. Stop. Think about the people on your gift list — what they talk about, what they do for pleasure, how they spend their time. Look through catalogs and magazines to get your imagination rolling. And plan one or two alternatives in case you don't find exactly what you have in mind.

Let your fingers do the walking. Why trek to store after store in search of a left-handed popcorn popper when you can search by phone?

We shove off at dawn. Well, maybe not at dawn, but try to visit stores at off-hours. Take an early or late lunch hour, or shop when most families are sitting down to dinner. You won't have to fight the crowds for space at the counter or the sales clerk's attention.

Pilot to navigator. You've made your list. You have some idea of where to find everything. And you've mapped out your schedule. Now try to organize your shopping forays by location so you don't end up dashing back and forth from place to place, wasting valuable fuel and time.

Remember, too, that a gift doesn't have to be something you buy. A friend with a new baby, for example, would rather have a "certificate" good for a night of baby-sitting than another candy dish.

But the best way to make time for yourself in the midst of a hectic season is to do only what you have to do ... and let someone else take care of the rest.

Just never lose sight of that all-important "This Year's" resolution — to take time out for yourself. And enjoy!

Hangin' Out

by Nathan Poss

Let's decide our own national champion

I'll start this column out with a quote from Alabama Coach Bear Bryant, who had an interesting comment following the Crimson Tide's 24-9 win over Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl Tuesday afternoon.

BRYANT: "WE WILL CLAIM THE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP IN EITHER POLL IF WE HAVE A BOY WHO MAKES ALL-AMERICAN ON THE BRIDGEPORT, PENNSYLVANIA, PAPER ALL-AMERICAN TEAM. WE CONSIDER HIM ALL-AMERICAN IF SOMEONE VOTES US NO. 1, I WILL CONSIDER US NATIONAL CHAMPIONS."

Right on, Bear. We're people out here in West Texas, too.

I thought about conducting a poll of our readership after watching parts of the Sugar and Cotton Bowl Tuesday, and all of the Rose Bowl. My personal feelings would be to split my vote between Bama and USC, and let them play it off on the weekend between the NFC and AFC conference championships and the Super Bowl. This would be the weekend of January 12-13. But that's out of the question, at least this year.

AFTER EARLIER THINKING ABOUT CONDUCTING A POLL, I read what the Bear had to say, and decided to go ahead with a BIG SPRING HERALD COLLEGE FOOTBALL POLL, with an ensuing article next week on who the people that replied in this area felt deserved to be the national champion.

And if you haven't heard by now, Alabama was crowned the national champion by the Associated Press (Sportswriters) and the United Press International (Coaches). The Tide was the only undefeated, untied, team in the nation, and also sport the nation's longest winning streak. Still, the people on the West Coast are understandably upset that USC (11-0-1) wasn't named as the national champion.

Of course, many other football fans disagree with this, and arguments on such a mythical poll are only appropriate.

THESE ARE DEFINITELY OTHER TEAMS that do deserve mention as the top rated team in the country, however. No doubt Southern Cal, which staged that awesome final drive to defeat Ohio State, has the best argument. But one fact that surely convinced the voters of Alabama's top rating was the fact that USC only won by one point in the Rose Bowl. But it could have been more. USC had 519 yards, total offense, while Ohio State managed 399. USC also came away with a 20-yard line when they had the ball inside the 20-yard line. But that's candies and nuts, as Don Meredith would say.

NO DOUBT THAT HOUSTON AND OKLAHOMA, also will deserve serious thought. Both played a tougher schedule than did USC and Alabama this year. In the phase of common opponents, both defeated Nebraska by scores of 17-14 and both lost to Texas by eight points for their only setback. Both scored 63 points against Rice, with Houston shutting out the Owls, while the Sooners allowed 21 points.

USC AND ALABAMA have but one common opponent in LSU. Both played LSU in Tiger Stadium, one of the toughest places around to visit. The Crimson Tide kicked a field goal with eight minutes left to take a 3-0 win, while the Trojans scored in the final minute to take a 17-12 triumph. Ironically, the only other team to enter New Year's Day undefeated, Florida State, also won in Tiger Stadium, taking a 24-19 victory.

For those of you that feel that you need a little help in deciding what your choices should be, the final AP poll is listed on column six of this page.

But don't cheat too much. The reason that I decided to take this poll is that I felt it would be interesting to see how the people around here felt. Emotions will play a part, but they also had to play a part of any sports-writer or coach that was polled for the Associated Press or United Press International final ranking.

YOU CAN MAKE YOUR CHOICES ON THE ALLOTTED SPACE BELOW, or on another piece of paper, if you desire. By next Tuesday morning, if there is enough local response to name the Big Spring Herald's national football champion, the ballots will be tabulated. I figure that 40 or 50 should be enough, but I am hoping for much more response.

YOU MAY BRING YOUR BALLOT into the newspaper if you're in this vicinity, or simply mail this copy with your choices to:

In final AP poll Bama wins national title

By The Associated Press

Time marches on, but the Alabama Crimson Tide rolls along in the same place — No. 1 in The Associated Press final college football poll for the second year in a row.

Alabama won the national championship following the bowl games last year, beating Southern California in a hotly disputed vote. This year's balloting, also seriously challenged on the West Coast, finished with Alabama No. 1 and Southern Cal again in hot pursuit.

Coach Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide received 45 outright first-place votes to 29 for Southern Cal from a nationwide panel of 67 sports writers and broadcasters Wednesday. Two voters split their ballot between Alabama and Southern Cal, giving the Crimson Tide 46 first-place votes to 21 for the Trojans.

Oklahoma finished third for the second straight year, followed by Ohio State and Houston.

Alabama began New Year's Day in second place, 1½ points behind top-ranked Ohio State and 8½ points ahead of No. 3 Southern Cal. But the Crimson Tide, the only major college to finish with a perfect 12-0 record, convincingly beat a pesky Arkansas team, 21-9, in the Sugar Bowl.

Then in the Rose Bowl, Southern Cal, which had a tie with Stanford as the only blemish on its record, squeaked by Ohio State 17-16.

In total points, Alabama received 1,317 out of a possible 1,340, while Southern Cal had 1,289. In contrast to the final regular season poll, when eight voters kept Alabama out of the top three, only two board members had the Tide as low as third this time. It was Alabama's fifth national championship — all under Bryant — since The AP poll began in 1936.

The Tide received all 21 first-place ballots from voters in the South, 2½ of the 12 ballots in the West, seven of eight in the Southwest, nine of 16 in the Midwest and 6½ of 10 in the East.

The 66-year-old Bryant, college football's winningest active coach with 296 victories, said he was "highly pleased, but not surprised" at the final rankings "because I thought all along we had a good chance of finishing first. I decided not to worry about it one way or the other."

Robinson, who said after the Rose Bowl that he considered his Trojans No. 1, said Wednesday: "Certainly, as you look over this year and last, the two best teams in the country are Alabama and USC. We'd have been happy if someone voted us No. 1, but I can't be angry if someone voted Alabama No. 1."

Oklahoma, 11-1-0, moved from fifth to third after routing previously unbeaten Florida State 24-7 in the Orange Bowl Tuesday, totalling 1,163 points.

"Alabama definitely should be the national champion and Southern Cal No. 2," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer.

Ohio State, 11-1-0, finished fourth with 1,160 points, while Houston, 11-1-0, a 17-14 Cotton Bowl winner over Nebraska, jumped from eighth to fifth.

Olympic officials downplay boycott

LONDON (AP) — Olympic officials have lined up against Western politicians who are demanding a boycott of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow to protest Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

"Athletes come first, and in no way should be prevented from competing in international competition by political, racial or religious discrimination," said Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, in a statement Wednesday.

Sports officials from the United States, Belgium, Britain, Denmark, France, Italy, Norway and West Germany lined up with him in opposing the boycott call.

Killanin's plea, in a statement issued from IOC headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland, came less than 24 hours after NATO nations meeting in Brussels discussed a possible Olympic boycott that reportedly was suggested by a West German representative.

The Soviet intervention in Afghanistan has profoundly alarmed Western politicians.

President Carter Wednesday recalled U.S. Ambassador Thomas Watson from Moscow after declaring that the Soviet move "has made a more dramatic change in my opinion of what the Soviets' ultimate goals are than anything they've done in the previous time that I've been in office."

The Olympics and politics are no strangers. African athletes boycotted the 1976 Montreal Games after a New Zealand rugby team toured South Africa, and threatened a further boycott of this year's Games if the British Lions rugby tour to South Africa goes ahead as scheduled.

But Western sports officials stressed that Western governments have few if any legal powers to stop athletes from taking part.

A Belgian Olympic Committee member said: "We (the BOC) are a sovereign organization. We can participate in the Olympics outside of the government."

Sir Denis Follows, chairman of the British Olympic Association, said: "The only way the British government can prevent us taking part is by taking away the passports of all our competitors, and there is no way that that is going to happen." He added: "It is not for governments to meddle in matters of this kind. Sport should be above politics, otherwise the whole concept of sport just goes out the window."

MAGIC FLIP — Los Angeles rookie sensation Earl Johnson (33) passes behind his back to a teammate over the head of Indiana Pacer rookie Dudley Bradley (7) during first half action of their NBA basketball game in Indianapolis Wednesday night. Los Angeles won the game 127-120.

McGinnis thrown out in return

George McGinnis' return to the Denver Nuggets' lineup wasn't an auspicious one but the Washington Bullets' first visit to Seattle this year certainly was.

McGinnis returned from his three-game suspension by National Basketball Association Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien for crashing into referee Jess Kersey in a game at Seattle last month with a short performance. The 6-foot-8 forward was thrown out of the Nuggets' 135-116 victory over Detroit Wednesday at 3:44 of the second period by picking up two technical fouls.

He disagreed with referee Hue Hollins' call of a rebounding foul on him. At the time, McGinnis had seven points, seven rebounds, five assists and three blocked shots.

Lakers 127, Pacers 120
Abdul-Jabbar passed Elgin Baylor and now has 23,170 career points. He tallied 32 points against the Pacers for his 184th consecutive game scoring in double figures.

The Pacers got 32 points from Johnny Davis and 31

from James Edwards.

Spurs 118, Suns 109

George Gervin poured in 42 points and combined with James Silas (20) and Mike Evans (16) to score 24 of the Spurs' 32 fourth-quarter points.

Kings 128, Jazz 121, OT

Scott Wedman connected for a career-high 45 points as the Kings moved one-half game ahead of Milwaukee in the Midwest Division. He hit a three-point field goal with five seconds remaining in regulation to force the extra session, then scored nine of the first 11 Kings points in OT.

Celtics 111, Rockets 103

After Rick Barry ignited the Rockets with three three-point shots and 12 straight points, Boston's Cedric Maxwell took charge, hitting for 12 points in the last 5:22 to give him 29 altogether.

Bullets 139, SuperSonics 134, 2 OT

The Sonics got a game-high 36 points from Dennis Johnson but he couldn't help in the final 1:03 of the second OT, when the Bullets scored eight points.

Rams get just what the doctor ordered

As it turned out, injuries were just what the doctor ordered for the Los Angeles Rams and the Houston Oilers. But neither team wants to go that route again in its conference playoff games on Sunday.

Los Angeles beat the Dallas Cowboys 21-19 last Sunday, in part because of the uncertain status of several players in the Rams' secondary forced them to carry nine defensive backs on the roster. But Pat Thomas, Rod Perry and Dave Elmendorf did play and the extra backs were then deployed in a seven-man alignment that plugged up Dallas' shotgun offense.

Without the injuries, the Rams would not have had the flexibility to insert the extra back in the defensive secondary that hampered quarterback Roger Staubach and forced him into four incomplete passes in Dallas' last series.

"Football is a strange game," said Rams defensive coach Bud Carson. "I guess that was the one thing that came out of all those injuries."

"It was a unique situation because we had so many people hurt in the secondary. We kept the ones we acquired because they did a real good job on the special teams and we weren't sure about the status of Perry, Elmendorf and Thomas."

The Rams don't expect to utilize their special anti-pass formation against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the National Football Conference championship in Tampa Sunday. The Bucs, led by running back Ricky Bell, are more run-oriented and do not operate out of the shotgun.

The Rams, however, may have to do a different kind of realignment because of the questionable status of star defensive end Jack Youngblood, who suffered a hairline fracture of his left leg Sunday.

The Oilers are still badly banged. They managed to upset the San Diego Chargers 17-14 last Saturday without Earl Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher, quarterback Dan Astorini and receiver Kenny Burroughs.

Recognizing that the offense was in a lower gear, the Houston defense played inspirational football. Who knows whether the defense would have played as well if the offense wasn't wounded?

NEW PRODUCTIONS PRESIDENT — Sherry Lansing, 35, new productions president of 20th Century-Fox, vows to turn out movies with "someone to root for..." on her first day on the job in Hollywood, Calif. Wednesday. Lansing joined MGM studios in 1975 as executive story editor and later was promoted to vice president for creative affairs.

First Lady of Fox

From math teacher to movie mogul

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the movie industry, where moguls are always male, 20th Century-Fox kicked off the 1980s with a shocker — naming Sherry Lansing president of production, the first female studio chief in Hollywood history.

In her first day on the job — which reportedly pays $300,000 a year — the 35-year-old Ms. Lansing vowed to turn out movies with "someone to root for, movies that make you laugh and cry."

This philosophy shone through two of her projects at Columbia Pictures — "China Syndrome" and "Kramer vs. Kramer," recent winner of the New York Film Critics best film award.

Her appointment brought a bold "Variety" headline: "20th-Fox Gets a First Lady," but Ms. Lansing was reluctant to focus on her status as a woman.

"I am very excited by the challenges of the job, but I hope as the '80s progress, the appointment of a woman to a major post will not be so newsworthy, that it will become natural for women to have high positions in every industry," she said.

However, in a wide-ranging interview at her new office, Ms. Lansing admitted her story is unique — the tale of a bright, beautiful young woman who taught math in the ghetto, then sought a new career.

Ms. Lansing, daughter of a Chicago furniture dealer, graduated summa cum laude from Northwestern University with majors in math, English and theater. Then she headed for Los Angeles.

"I taught math in Watts for three years and I loved it. I guess part of me wanted to be a social worker," she said. "I stopped when it became repetitive. I was becoming the kind of teacher I hated. I didn't have the passion anymore."

She left teaching and fell back on her most obvious asset — her extraordinary good looks.

"I didn't know what I wanted to do and modeling gave me the maximum amount of time and a lucrative income. I was very lucky as a model. I was under contract to Max Factor and Alberto Culver."

Then came the spark, a minor role in "Rio Lobo" with John Wayne. She "became fascinated with film," taking courses and going to the movies five times a week. "It wasn't work. I loved film," she said.

She landed a job with independent producer Raymond Wagner, reading and synthesizing scripts. She was soon being asked for opinions.

"As I progressed, they let me come to story meetings, but at first I was told to be silent," she said. Eventually, she was allowed to speak and became an associate producer.

Two years later, she moved on to Talent Associates, hunting TV talent on the West Coast. "I left there because it was mainly television oriented."

"I found myself going out to the movies every night rather than sitting home watching TV. I realized I had a passion for movies," she said.

Ms. Lansing joined MGM studios in 1975 as executive story editor and later was promoted to vice president for creative affairs. Two years ago, she left MGM and joined Columbia Pictures as vice president in charge of production.

"At Columbia, my scope was broadened. There were two production vice presidents and we were responsible for cutting, editing, even distribution. And out of that came 'China Syndrome' and 'Kramer vs. Kramer,'" she said proudly.

Ms. Lansing sees a new wave of executives like her — people who love movies more than just about anything.

"Films are a vision of the few and they come out of somebody's passion," she said. "They are my passion. I'm excited about this job because I want to make good movies. It's really that simple."

Her appointment as president of Fox seemed to surprise everyone except Sherry Lansing.

A cordial, energetic woman with a firm handshake, she exudes enthusiasm and confidence that her success will continue uninterrupted. Her secret?

Ms. Lansing, who said she believes in "equality for everyone," remarked that her climb to the top of a highly competitive industry is a revolutionary concept to her mother, a housewife.

"My mother wanted me to get married and have children. I got married and divorced, and as I continued my career I knew she worried about me," she said. "It wasn't until about two years ago that I noticed my mother was proud of me and valued what I was doing."

"I called her this weekend to tell her about my new job, and she was thrilled."

Letter might trigger 'hot' oil controversy

DALLAS (AP) — What may turn out to be a major rift between major oil companies and small independents has been triggered by a letter from executives of Sun Oil Co. to its shareholders and royalty owners.

Theodore A. Burtis, president of Sun Oil, asked the shareholders to write their congressmen and urge defeat of legislation that would exempt the independents from the proposed windfall profits tax.

The letter, sent from Sun Oil's Texas headquarters in Dallas, said if small independent oil producers are exempted from the tax, the larger producers would have to take up the slack, at the expense of the shareholders and royalty owners of the larger producers.

Consequently, some irate independent oil producers have stopped their sales to Sun Oil, the nation's 10th largest oil company.

"It just doesn't make sense to sell to someone who is out to destroy you," said Lew Ward, president of the 1,300-member Oklahoma Independent Petroleum Association.

Ward, an independent oil producer from Enid, Okla., said, "It sure could be the start of a major split between the independents and the majors."

The letter went to Sun Oil's 140,000 shareholders, employees and retirees. Another letter, written Dec. 10 by W.F. Oxford of Sun's Dallas-based production subsidiary, went to the company's 60,000 royalty owners expressing similar sentiments.

The focus of the controversy is an amendment to the windfall tax bill, proposed by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, that would exempt a small oil producer's first 1,000 barrels of oil a day from the tax.

Sun buys so little of its oil from independent producers that a full-scale boycott would not cripple its operation, but company officials were trying this week to defuse the brewing controversy.

Sun spokesman Granville Dutton said, "We're not against an independent exemption. We just want to see it extended to all producers."

John Miller, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, also stepped in trying to calm the situation.

"Our industry has enough political enemies without indulging in intra-industry recriminations over political actions which were beyond our collective influence or control," he said in a Dec. 21 letter.

Independent oilmen say the majors don't care as much about the windfall profits tax because they make money from overseas operations and from refining and marketing as well as from production. The tax is only on domestic production.

They also argue that freeing independents from the tax would encourage oil exploration, pointing out that independents drill almost 90 percent of the exploratory wells drilled onshore in the United States. At the same time, the independents produce smaller quantities so the exemption would free only 15 percent of domestic production from the tax.

Clayton resents Congress lifting state mortgage lids

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton says he resents Congress lifting state ceilings on mortgage loan interest rates — even though he opposes such limits in principle.

A new federal law repeals state usury limits on mortgage loans through March 31, and subsequent congressional action could extend that deadline.

Legislatures have authority to reinstate usury limits, but Gov. Bill Clements is not expected to call a special session on the subject.

In 1979, the Legislature raised the usury ceiling from 10 to 12 percent with Clayton's support.

"Frankly, I think a no-thing would work. Competitiveness and supply and demand will control the situation. ... I agree with what they (Congress) did but not the principle in which they did it," Clayton said at a news conference Wednesday.

Life term is handed man

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Douglas Wright of Honolulu has been sentenced to life in prison without parole on his conviction of murdering a former topless waitress and her husband's parents.

The 36-year-old Wright had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, but a Solano County Superior Court jury found him sane in connection with the first-degree murder of 24-year-old Pat Gifford and the second-degree murder of her in-laws.

Wright had also been charged in an assault on the woman's husband, Terry Gifford, but the jury found him innocent by reason of insanity. Gifford was hit in the head with a hammer and was shot in the arm.

Property tax relief claimed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 1978 Tax Relief Amendment as implemented by the Legislature saved Texans $114.3 million in 1979 school taxes, says the State Property Tax Board.

Kenneth Graeber, the agency's executive director, certified the saving to the state education commissioner.

Under a 1979 law, the state will reimburse school districts for part of their revenue losses. The Property Tax Board certifies the revenue loss, and the education commissioner calculates the amount a district will receive. No district will receive less than 45 percent of its revenue loss.

Graeber said mandatory homestead exemptions cut property tax collections by $107.6 million. Another $6.7 million was saved in school districts that moved voluntarily to assessment of rural land on its productivity.

School districts are required to tax rural land according to productivity, not market value, starting in the 1980 tax year. But some districts chose to grant the tax break early.

Awards Banquet slated Friday

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City Playhouse will hold its annual Awards Banquet in the C.C. Thompson Room at 7 p.m., Friday.

Awards for the 1979 character portrayals and productions will be presented during the banquet.

These awards include Best Actor, Best Actress, Best Supporting Actor, Best Supporting Actress, Best Performance in a Minor Role, Best Production and President's Award.

The winners are being selected by a panel consisting of 26 Playhouse members.

This will be a covered dish banquet. Anyone interested in Playhouse productions is eligible to bring a dish and attend the ceremonies.

White file suit to determine if Congress can override usury provisions in state constitutions, Clayton said, "I really would."

On another subject, Clayton said his staff was trying to learn if pilots were benefiting from a law that took effect Tuesday, repealing the five cents a gallon state tax on aviation fuel.

Calls to several jobbers indicated "some did reduce the price while others had no comment," he said.

He said he was getting letters from taxpayers who complain they have not benefited from the Tax Relief Amendment of 1978 and its enabling legislation passed in 1979.

"I looked at several (school districts). There didn't seem to be that much change. ... Apparently rates have been raised to bring in about the same amount of tax," Clayton said.

The State Property Tax Board, however, issued a statement Wednesday saying taxpayers saved $114.3 million on their 1979 school tax bills because of the tax relief legislation.

The speaker said the next Legislature will face mounting demands from school districts, hospital districts and counties for authority to levy sales taxes.

But he said he doubted the tax — 5 percent in most places — would stretch that far.

Cities would like to increase their sales taxes, now a penny on the dollar, he said.

"It is going to be difficult to increase the sales tax this next time," Clayton said.

'If it sounds country, that's what it is!!!!'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal programs refer to rural problems, Congress passes rural legislation every session and the Agriculture Department has an assistant secretary in charge of rural development.

The term rural in parts of Texas may mean wide-open stretches where the population is so scattered ranchers think they're becoming citified when a new neighbor sets up housekeeping 10 miles away.

Perhaps some New Yorkers view a rural outing as a Sunday visit to Central Park or Westchester County.

Or a Los Angeleno dreams fondly of a rural excursion in the San Fernando Valley.

Now enters an organization called "Rural America" to help put the record straight about what is rural and what is not.

A nonprofit group that for years has advocated improved federal aid to small towns and the countryside, Rural America says its research director, George Rucker, has been "driven to the wall by endless phone calls from people who want to know what is rural."

But right off the bat, Rural America says "there is probably no perfect definition" nor any single meaning that is agreed upon by everybody.

Rucker takes a look at a number of definitions currently in use, and they all involve a certain amount of governmentese and demographic doublepeak.

Here are some of his observations:

— "One of the broadest definitions of rural would be to include everything which is outside of what the Census Bureau calls 'urbanized areas.'"

An urbanized area, says the Census Bureau, includes at least one city of 50,000 persons or more, and has a "surrounding closely settled area that meets certain criteria of population density or land use."

In 1975, there were more than 275 urbanized areas in the United States and they accounted for about 62 percent of the U.S. population.

"This broadest of rural definitions would, then, cover 38 percent of the people, or 81.4 million."

— A more restrictive definition used by the Census Bureau means "farms, open country and places of less than 2,500 people located outside of urbanized areas." Based on 1975 figures, that would refer to about 30 percent of the population, some 64.7 million persons.

"The problem with this approach is that it excludes many small towns of 5,000 and 10,000 that have little in common with the larger urban concentrations, and it too fails to make any distinction between those areas that are really suburbs to the big cities and those that are not."

— A definition that falls "somewhere between" the two previous ones is used by the Farmers Home Administration, an agency of the Agriculture Department.

Judging set for Saturday

COLORADO CITY — Judging for the 43rd annual Mitchell County Livestock Show will begin 9 a.m. Saturday.

The event is sponsored by the 4-H and FFA Livestock Show Association. "All animals entered must have been cared for under the supervision of Mitchell County Extension Agent Bob Benson or a vocational agriculture teacher."

The judging will begin with the Lambs Division Saturday morning. Swine and Steer Divisions' judging will follow with 30-minute breaks between divisions.

Entries in the three divisions include about 60 sheep, 125 hogs and 35 steers.

"By and large, the service area for FmHA housing credit extends to towns of less than 10,000 in metropolitan areas and towns of less than 20,000 in metropolitan areas."

"In 1975, that definition of rural extended to an estimated 71.7 million people, or 34 percent of the total."

At this point, we have two new terms — non-metropolitan and metropolitan — which Rucker explains further.

Nonmetropolitan, he said, is "increasingly used as a synonym" for rural.

"The term refers to all areas outside of designated Standard Metropolitan Statistical areas. These SMSAs are related to the urbanized area concept but extend beyond it to include 'contiguous counties ... if, according to certain criteria, they are socially and economically integrated' with the urbanized area," Rucker explained.

In 1975, there were 272 SMSAs that included 155 million persons, leaving 58 million or 27 percent in "nonmetro" areas.

Perhaps the Rural America report summed it up more simply in a quote attributed to songwriter Kris Kristofferson: "If it sounds country, that's what it is."

Busing plan will chase Austinites to suburbs?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An attorney who says he represents some 5,000 Austinites predicts the busing plan approved by a federal judge will chase whites from the local school district to the suburbs.

"If there is anything that is reasonably foreseeable... it is the virtual certainty that these plans will convert the AISD into a predominantly black and Mexican-American school district in a relatively short time," said William Bednar Jr.

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts has approved the agreed busing plan hammered out by AISD officials and minorities after a 10-year court battle. Roberts approved the plan Wednesday after hearing from the parties in the lawsuit and local residents who oppose busing.

The case was filed by the U.S. Department of Justice, which was joined by the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund and the NAACP.

The plan includes two schemes for doing away with one-race schools. Plaintiffs said they would be satisfied with either plan.

Both plans include reassignment of some 15,000 students — 13,500 of whom would be bused. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered immediate implementation of a plan, but the plaintiffs agreed to postpone its start until the fall semester.

Superintendent Jack Davidson said it would be "physically impossible" to begin busing now.

Bednar, former lawyer for the Texas Education Agency, presented a petition signed by 5,477 persons, most of whom live in affluent, predominantly white Northwest Hills.

"The people who submitted these statements are not racists," he said. "If there is to be busing, let it be for shorter times and distances, even at the expense of involving more students."

Mrs. Don Gentry, mother of three AISD students, vowed to take her children out of school if they face busing.

"My husband won't allow that. I guess I'll have to go down and see what I have to do to teach them myself," she said.

Heating oil prices skyrocket

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. announced rapidly rising crude oil costs had pushed its wholesale home heating oil prices up 6 cents a gallon, as Mexico declared it was raising the price of its crude 30 percent.

Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, raised its price to an average of 73 cents a gallon effective Jan. 1 and announced the move Wednesday.

The increase was the first since last fall, when Texaco's average wholesale price in its 43-state marketing area was 67 cents a gallon. Texaco spokeswoman Marilyn Povotador said the wholesale price increase probably would be passed on to consumers.

Vincent Sgro, editor of the industry newspaper Oil Buyers Guide, said retailers typically mark up wholesale home heating oil prices by 14 to 15 cents a gallon. But with this increase, Texaco is "just catching up to everyone else" in the industry, he said.

"Several of the leading oil-exporting countries have raised crude oil prices retroactive to Nov. 1," Texaco said, adding, "other increases have been made by various OPEC members either before, during or after" the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' recent meeting in Caracas, Venezuela.

The increases boosted the average price of a 42-gallon barrel of OPEC oil from $22 to $26 and have resulted in recent gasoline price increases by several companies of 1 cent to 6 cents a gallon.

On the spot market, home heating oil sold Wednesday for 80 cents a gallon, down from 85 cents last week and around $1 last fall when worries over Iranian oil supplies sent buyers scurrying for supplies.

Mexico, meanwhile, announced Wednesday night that it was raising the base price for its crude oil price to $32 a barrel, up from $24.60, and said it might raise it again because of the "uncertain situation in the world petroleum market."

Mexico is not a member of OPEC, but traditionally keeps its prices close to those of OPEC members.

Mexico exports about 440,000 barrels of oil a day to the United States, which imports about 8 million barrels daily from all sources.
