'Deep respect' for religion

Kremlin facing long war

Soviet forces were reported facing a long war in Afghanistan's snowy mountains as the Kremlin accused President Carter of "wicked" outcries and the U.N. Security Council prepared to open debate on the Soviet military intervention in its Central Asian neighbor.

In the Afghan capital of Kabul today, Prime Minister Babrak Karmal was quoted as promising a "new democratic constitution" soon and as proclaiming his government's 'deep respect" for religion.

The comments, reported by the official Soviet news agency Tass, were seen as an attempt by Karmal to reach out to Moslem Afghan insurgents who have been fighting three Marxist-leaning Afghanistan governments for the past 20 months and Soviet troops for the past week.

Karmal, installed as prime minister a week ago Thursday when an estimated 35,000 to 45,000 Soviet troops poured into Afghanistan, 'emphasized the importance of creating the country's broad national front with the participation of all political, public and religious organizations," Tass said.

In an earlier dispatch from Kabul, Tass quoted Afghanistan's foreign minister as rejecting U.N. consideration of the Soviet military action. Shah Mahammad Dost, the foreign minister, repeated previous claims that the Soviet troops were in Afghanistan in compliance with treaties between the two countries and the U.N. charter, Tass said.

In neighboring Pakistan, Gen. Mohammed Ziaul Haq, the president, said he was "confident" Soviet troops in Afghanistan would not cross into his

But the Pakistani president also was quoted as saying, "The presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan is a grave violation of the principles of peaceful coexistence. The situation will not only complicate Afghanistan's problems, but will also create a painful situation to world peace. We

In Cairo today, President Anwar Sadat offered the United States use of Egyptian facilities to help it defend the Persian Gulf, but he specified he did not mean military bases. Sadat urged other Moslem leaders to speak out against the Soviets for their action in Afghanistan, where, he said, "our brothers have been crushed by the Soviet tanks."

Diplomats in Kabul, Afghanistan's capital, said a "people's war" or general uprising was developing in the country's northern and eastern mountains, where the Soviet troops were said to be bogged down by heavy snows, the United News of India

The Indian news agency also said "trouble was brewing" in the Afghan provinces of Kandahar in the southwest, Badakshan in the northeast, and Pakita and Nangarhar, to the south and east of Kabul, and that Moscow sent a team of generals to the battlefields to assess the fighting.

It said the diplomats reported the Moslem guerrillas whose 20-monthold rebellion against communist control prompted the Soviet intervention were regrouping. More fighting was expected even though the Russians 'had achieved some successes in certain areas" by surprising the poorly organized guerrillas, the diplomats said.

One of those reported successes was the capture Wednesday of Kandahar, the capital of Kandahar province, and Jalalabad, 50 miles east of Kabul near the Pakistani border.

The diplomats reportedly said the Russians were trying to shore up their footbolds and were stockpiling "huge-quantities" of arms and ammunition at a large air base in western Afghanistan near the Iranian border.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda conceded in a dispatch from Kabul Thursday it would be "wrong to think that foreign interence has ceased and that down their arms." The Soviet president; and Lila Estes, secretary.

government newspaper Izvestia reported "provocative activities" being carried out in Afghanistan.

At U.N. headquarters the United States and 42 other nations asked for a Security Council debate on the Soviet action in Afghanistan. The debate was expected to begin late today or some time Saturday, continue to the middle or end of next week and end with the Soviet veto of a resolution demanding withdrawal of the Soviet troops from

The Carter administration also got Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd to postpone debate on the SALT II pact with the Soviets, and many senators said there was no chance of getting the treaty ratified in 1980.

Sources in Washington said the U.S. government was also considering trying to organize an international boycott of the Moscow Olympics this summer and a slowdown in shipments of grain and technology to the Soviet Union. Meanwhile, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced that the Russians had bought 3.8 million more metric tons of corn and wheat from the United States, raising their total purchases for the 1979-80 fiscal year to more than 21.4 million metric

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said President Carter was making "bellicose and wicked" statements that distorted the "essence and meaning" of the Soviet action.

Watkins heads tax board

Officials were elected for the newly formed Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board at the board's first meeting Wednesday. The board was mandated by the 1979 state legislature and created by an election within the boards of seven Howard County taxing entities. The officers are Roy Watkins, counter-revolutionaries have put chairman; Don McKinney, viceLocal businessmen Billy T. Smith and Jack Watkins are also on the board. The board voted to apply to the Internal Revenue Service for a social security I.D. number because of their federal employee status. The board members also approved requests to four Howard County banks for bids on depository rates. The banks are Coahoma State Bank, First National Bank, State National Bank and Security State Bank. A contract was approved for sub-mission to the nine Howard County taxing entities for the board's appraisal work. The nine entities will break their contracts with the existing

Howard County Tax Appraisal Board. The two boards will operate concurrently for a short period of time until contracts with the taxing entities are returned.

Meeting times were set for the second Wednesday of the month at 1 p.m. in the Howard County Courtroom with possible special meetings in case of special needs. All meetings will be open to the public with properly posted agendas

The board's function will be to appraise the value of all Howard County property. The tax rate will be set by the elected officials on the boards of the nine taxing bodies in the Spring Area Chamber of Commerce membership banquet officially got under way this week. The meal will be served in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Ambassadors, better known to many as the Chamber Redcoats, are handling the ticket sales. Everyone is reminded to obtain their tickets as soon as possible since last year's banquet was a sellout. Early purchase of tickets is advisable. Tickets are $10 each and may be purchased from any one of the Ambassadors or simply by calling or going by the Chamber Office, 215 West Third Street, program. The banquet committee selected the theme, 'Launching the 80s.' They are coordinating this theme with the decorations chairman, Mrs. Edna Womack and her committee, made up of members of the Garden Club

Mr. Ray Lawlis is in charge of the food preparation in conjunction with the Howard College Food Service. R.H. Weaver, local attorney and former Chamber president, has been chosen as the banquet emcee. G. Robert Gadberry, a Kansas humorist, has been chosen as the banquet keynoter. Indications are that he will be every bit as humorous and entertaining as la t year's speaker, Joe Griffith of Dallas.

$275,000 settlement

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Three lawsuits against Central of Georgia Railroad, charging that negligence caused the deaths of two children in a 1977 wreck, have been settled out of court for $375,000, according to a Columbus attorney.

William B. Hardegree, an attorney representing the railroad, confirmed that a settlement had been made, but declined to comment on the amount of money involved.

Mrs. Ashley filed suit in March, 1979, as a result of her own injuries and the deaths of her son, Brik Andre Barker, and her daughter, Brandi Ann Barker. They sought $2.85 million in damages.

A cross-complaint also was entered for William Glenn Ashley, stepfather of the children, after the railroad filed suit against him, charging that his negligence caused the accident. Ashley was the driver of a van which was struck by a train at the Garrett Road crossing in Muscogee County July 10, 1977. The lawsuits claimed the railroad failed to provide adequate signs, warning lights or cross arms at the crossing where the accident occurred and that the train was going too fast.

Moore also said the train's engine was travelling backwards at the time of the collision so that only two of its five warning horns were pointed in the direction it was moving

It's time for us to stop vandalism

Perhaps there is a streak of van-dalism in all of us, else why would thousands at athletic contests and other public functions, on occasion, riot and wantonly destroy public and private property?

Periodically, people behave worse than animals. A few years ago, baseball fans in New York practically dismantled Yankee Stadium over a victory or a loss - whatever the inspiration.

More recently in Reno, Nevada, revelers streamed out of downtown casinos to celebrate New York's Eve. then ran amok for three hours. The zanies stoned police officers, smashed store windows and looted a number of bus nesses. Police used tear gas to disperse the crowd and hauled away 100 to be incarcerated until they could Vandalism has become a national disgrace, no matter how psychologists try to rationalize about it. Of all crimes, it perhaps makes the least sense because no one benefits from it.

Those who take it upon themselves to explain the behavior patterns of such witless, misguided individuals will tell you vandalism is far more apt to occur in prosperous than in recessionary times. The have-nots, it is explained, resent people of substance. In showing their resentment, sadly they often take it out on the innocents, those individuals who can ill afford the loss

Vandalism in Big Spring is getting out of hand. Whether the mischief is being committed by adults or juveniles doesn't matter. It must be

It's getting to be almost an everynight occurance when some business reports its show windows have been shattered by rocks or gun fire, when automobile tires in entire neighborhoods are slashed with reckless

The mental midgets may get their jollies by committing such acts but the community as a whole suffers a black eye when they go unpunished.

Such miscreants are difficult to catch because invariably they operate under the cover of night, but the community can ill afford not to lend maximum attention toward correcting the problem.

Once the mischief makers are brought to heel, procedures must be taken to see that their sins do not go unpunished. If the laws governing such acts are too lenient, then they need to be rewritten.

If you reason you have been lucky because your neighbor has been hurt financially by the damage caused by a vandal while you have gotten off scotfree, think again. Increased insurance rates to cover such damages and added police protection to increase surveillance hits us all where it hurts the most — in the pocketbook.

On more than one occasion, investors have passed up the chance to locate new businesses here because of the high incidence of vandalism. The weird game, invariably done for kicks, is one in which everybody has a \mathbf{W} ill dentists learn?

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON - More than two years after the Soviet campaign to make a satellite out of Afghanistan became clear even to detentists in the State Department, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance at long last has agreed tentatively — to shore up U.S. ties to other key states lying next on Moscow's bloody path.

Objective No. 1: Terminate the self-defeating ban on economic and military aid invoked against Pakistan as punishment for that traditional American ally's refusal to foreswear nuclear weapons.

Objective No. 2: Feed light weapons to the tough, resilient Afghan Moslem guerrillas in their continuing struggle against dominion from Moscow. getting the weapons in through the porous Afghan-Pakistani border

BUT THE DEBATE churns between Vance's fearful detentists at State and less dovish officials in the Defense Department, CIA and National Security Council staff. As late as Dec. 20, when the handwriting of Moscow's imminent military takeover of Kabul was writ large on the wall, high officials at State were telling White House national security operatives: "Don't worry, it's not all that important.'

In the real world, there would be only one outcome of the debate over such a switch of policy: Switch immediately. That means finding a way to equip the Pakistani air force with something better than the venerable F-86, the 1947 plane that still is its backbone; release the $4 million in economic aid frozen last April in a dispute over nuclear weapons; reestablish Pakistan, now all but naked to Soviet bullying, as a strong ally; remove the tether from the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA)

But Jimmy Carter's foreign policy has been strangely immune to dictates of the real world. In his Oct. 16 annual report to a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the state of U.S.-Soviet relations, Marshall Shulman, Vance's Soviet adviser, said that "the single most significant development in U.S.-Soviet relations during the past year" was the new Limitation Arms Agreement (SALT II).

As for ever-widening Soviet control over the government of Afghanistan, Shulman said the Soviet Union 'evidently feels committed to defending what it terms the Afghan revolution ... We are consulting widely with other countries in the region and have found they share our concern about this situation.

Some officials dispute Shulman's priorities. They think that the "most significant" development of 1979 was not SALT II but the Soviet worldwide offensive far beyond its own communist empire of Eastern Europe. The outright Soviet invasion of Afghanistan followed Shulman's testimony by two months, but authoritative sources in the Carter administration insist that previous Soviet moves there anticipated it. "When you find an armed, masked man with a large bag and a glass cutter at your back door at midnight you should make the obvious assumption," one such official told us.

REFUSAL TO MAKE obvious assumptions has marked many steps along the State Department's path in the Afghan tragedy since shortly before Moscow arranged the Marxist takeover in Kabul in April 1978. As we reported a few months later, one of the shrewdest foreign diplomats here warned the administration that its apparent acceptance of Moscow's seizure of the government "can have serious consequences" for Pakistan

What you had was a condition called normal pressure hydrocephalus Hydrocephalus is sometimes called water on the brain." A more accurate term would be water IN the

The brain is not a solid organ. It has several hollow interconnecting chambers (called ventricles) that are filled with a watery fluid (cerebrospinal fluid). As it is produced some of it is drained out of the chambers through small openings and absorbed into the blood stream. If the fluid is prevented from being drained properly there is a build up and the chambers expand.

In adults with normal pressure hydrocephalus the chambers enlarge but the pressure remains normal.

The shunt is a tiny plastic tube that is inserted into one of the chambers and connected to a vein so that normal drainage can be established.

Symptoms of normal pressure hydrocephalus include difficulties in walking, loss of coordination and bladder control and memory impairment. Your sharp-eyed neurosurgeon is to be congratulated. "Miracles" of this kind are being performed almost daily in modern medicine. Incidentally, older persons are more prone to the kind of hydro-

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What do you think the Bible means when it talks about "praying in the spirit?" I am confused about this. Mrs. S.K.

DEAR MRS. S.K.: This expression is found in Ephesians 6:18. "And pray in the Spirit on all occasions with all kinds of prayers and requests. With this in mind, be alert and always keep on praying for all the saints.

Although the writer of these verses (the Apostle Paul) does not tell us exactly what he means by this term, it is clear that he is teaching that prayer 'in the Spirit' means that our minds are very much active as we pray. We are to have specific requests for which we are praying when we pray in the Spirit, and you will notice how many times he uses the word "all" in this one verse: "on all occasions;" kinds of prayers and requests;"

'praying for all the saints.' We therefore are to concentrate when we pray, not letting our minds wander but focusing on those things for which we are praying. The main point of what the Bible is teaching here, of course, is that we are to commit every detail of our lives to Him, and are to pray for others as well. Are you trusting God to this degree? Elsewhere the Bible says, "Pray without ceasing" (1 Thessalo nians 5:17).

But there is more to this expression of "praying in the Spirit," I believe Our lives are to be committed to God's will above all else, and when we are seeking His will the Holy Spirit will actually be guiding us as we pray. In Romans 8:26 we read, "The Spirit helps us in our weakness. We do not know what we ought to pray, but the Spirit himself interceded for us with groans that words cannot express.' This verse promises that even when we may not know how to put our prayers into words, the Spirit still elps us. It also suggests that the Spirit helps us in all our prayers, so that we have wisdom concerning those things for which we should pray. Prayer is a wonderful resource for every Christian. Study what the Bible promises us (and also commands us) concerning prayer — and then learn to pray "on all occasions with all kinds of prayers and requests.'

A plane trip to San Diego to get acquainted with a new grandson, William Derryl Hart, born Nov. 29, was a fabulous way to spend Christmas.

The plane trip in a Continental jet was a breeze compared to other trips in cars or pick-up. Leaving Midland-Odessa airport where I boarded through a passenger loading chute at it a.m. Dec. 24, and arriving in San Diego at 12:22 p.m. beat long hot days on the road by a hundred miles.

ARRIVING IN BALMY weather to see tuna boats in the harbor and sail and motor boats in the inlets with hundreds of ducks, sea gulls, and other water fewl floating in the coves, was I ke being in another world. Poinsettia trees and bushes, bougainvillea vines, roses and African daisies in bloom seemed unreal. Palm and banana trees as well as avocado, lemon and orange trees abound.

The grandson, of course, was the s ar of the show all the way. Looking like both his dad, who is my son, and his mom, he was well on his way to being spoiled when I got there. You can rest assured he's there now.

A four-week-old golden retriever puppy also came in for his share of grandma's spoiling. He wouldn't go with his master or mistress in the car while I was there which heretofore he loved to do.

A highlight of the trip was going to the San Diego Wild Animal Park in San Pascual. This 1,800 acre reserve was established by the San Diego Zoological Society in 1972. More than 170 species of wildlife from Africa and As a roam over and hills, separated from incompatible species by conealed moats and fences. The park provides a haven for several endangered species, including three creatures believed to be extinct in their native habitats. There are 81 species of hoof stock with 3500 total animals. Only 600 acres of the preserve are developed now. The park has a success record of 75 percent reproduction rate among the animals. The park has a paved trail for hiking through the various areas of the wildlife reserve as well as a five mile monorail tour.

Animal and bird training are attractions, beginning with an elephant show leaturing both African and Asian elephants and, an exotic bird

A FEW COMMON misconceptions that the bird show exploded was that the owl is not a wise bird and that he can't turn his head completely around. His head turns only threefourths of the way around. The most intelligent bird in the United States is the raven. The park is rehabilitating a golden eagle to release it back into the wild which was caught and caged for a time by a private person.

Some of the unusual animais are the wildebeast gnu who runs 60 miles an hour, the impaia, the Arabian orex, the armoured rhinoceros and the Maiayan sandbar deer who is a good swimmer

In addition to the animais and birds, all plants are labeled with their common and botanical names

The trip back by jet took back the two hours gained on the way out Leaving Lindbergh Airport at 3 p.m. Jan. 1, I arrived at Midland-Odessa Airport at 8 p.m. I've had lots of good Christmases with my family over the years, but this one was extra special.

Dead-end talks

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The Iranian crisis has settled into a remorseless routine, with almost daily, dreary telephone discussions between the U.S. embassy in Tehran and the State Department in Washington.

At one end of the line are Iranian militants, hardened, disciplined, intransigent. At the other end are American bureaucrats, detached, methodical pettifoggin Both groups are anonymbus cone dedicated to the disturs of Islam, the other to the directives of a bureaucracy. If the militants seem implacable, the bureaucrats can be equally hard to budge. They adhere to the letter of their instructions, undeterred by the pressure of events, protected by a web of bureaucratic

THE DIMENSIONS of the crisis have been determined largely by the anonymous Iranians and faceless Americans at the opposite ends of the telephone. The former have swayed Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini by their fanaticism; the latter have manipulated President Carter with their finesse

At this writing, the telephone conversations between these two intransigent groups have produced no results. Absolutely none. The militants occupying the embassy simply won't deal with the bureaucrats ensconced in the State Department.

The last people who are likely to influence the militants, therefore, are the bureaucrats who deal with them. Yet the State Department has tied up all the telephone lines into the Tehran embassy and has tried to sew up all channels of communication with the

There was an outcry from Foggy Bottom, for example, against Rep. George Hansen, R-Ida., for making unauthorized contacts with the Iranians. The State Department was willing to use Palestinian chief Yassir Arafat but not a U.S. congressman to approach the Iranians; the determining factor, apparently, was whether the initiative came from the right authority. Yet Hansen had more success than all the authorized emissaries. I have had my own encounters with the obstinacy on both sides. There was an occasion, for example, that the captors offered to speak to me about the hostages. They asked me to telephone them at the American embassy in Tehran. Given the habit of the militants to bypass official channels, the call could have been important. Perhaps they would pass on some useful information. Perhaps not. But the State Department bureaucracy, in the person of Dr. Merton Bland, blocked

It would simply be impossible, he said. But the militants wanted me to call, I said. It made no difference Did he have a reason? He was acting on instructions. Who issued the in-structions? Higher authority. What higher authority? He refused to say. Was the identity of the superiors who issued the instructions a national secret? He refused to comment.
With some inside help, I managed to place an unauthorized call to the Tehran embassy anyway. I found the captors equally unyielding. They wouldn't release the hostages, they said, until the shah is returned. But the shah was in Panama, I said. It didn't matter; they wanted the shah back. What would be the consequences if he didn't return? "I think that he will come back," said one of

I ASKED TO SPEAK with the hostages. "No," said the disembodied voice, "you cannot speak with them." I argued. "You cannot speak with the hostages," he repeated. "It's not

Finally, I asked this faraway the State Department man. Whom did he answer to? Who issued the orders? Was it Ayatollah Khomeini?

"Ayatollah Khomeini gives orders to all people of Iran," he said, "not especially to us. He gives orders to all people of Iran, to all people of the world, to the poor people of the world, not only to us

"You will do then what the ayatollah requests?" I asked.
"Yeah," he said. That was the biggest revelation of the conversation. DOORS OF DEATH: Post Office officials spend more than $600 million annually patching up injured postal workers. But despite the huge hospitalization bills, post office brass are paying only lip service to federal health and safety standards.

their first fatality: a 25-year-old postal employee named Michael McDermott, whose body was found mangled by a conveyor belt. He died because of careless mechanical malfunctions, according to congressional investigators. An automatic switch, which could have turned off the deadly conveyor belt, had been removed. One employee was demoted for staging a work stoppage to protest the health hazards, but the flap, un-fortunately, failed to save the young postal worker's life.

Saad's court-appointed attorney, Steve Robison, told the judge Thursday that Michael is legally still alive, but Gibson said the hospital's tests are conclusive that "the brain of this child is no longer functioning. Dr. Richard Gilmartin, a Wesley neurologist and head of the hospital's "brain death" team, testified his team performed all but three of the hospital tests for

DEAR ABBY: Danny and I have been married for 13 years, and ever since last summer I've had something on my mind that bothers me.

Danny and I went back to his hometown to attend his 10th high school reunion. (It was the first he ever attended.) Basically we have a good marriage. Danny is a steady worker, doesn't drink, smoke or chase. We have three nice children, and he's an honest-to-goodness family man but sometimes very inconsiderate.

Well. Danny and I walked into the reunion party together, and that was about all I saw of him for five hours! He ignored me the whole time while he was off laughing and talking with old classmates. I just sat there, all choked up, feel-

Abby, I am not a dog, so there's no reason for him to be ashamed of me, but he didn't introduce me to a soul! On the way home I told him how hurt I was, and he didn't even apologize for ignoring me. He said, "You should have introduced yourself around and made you own good time!'

Was I wrong, or was he? NO DOG IN DETROIT

DEAR NO DOG: HE was. And I hope your letter reminds others who attend class reunions to be especially considerate and attentive to a spouse who knows no one and feels left out and lost amid the merrymaking and excite-

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you said: "Snakes make wonderful pets for retired people and apartment dwellers. They're odorless, clean, quiet and don't need to be groomed or walked. And another plus-you won't have to worry about anybody stealing them.

Well. Abby, that's where you are wrong. My house was burglarized last month, and what do think was stolen? My stereo and my 8 foot boa constitutor that the had since he was little.

Besides the Mayo Clinic,

three other prestigious cancer research centers already have agreed to take part in the clinical trial. They are the University of California at Los Angeles. the University of Arizona in Tucson and the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York.

Laetrile, generically as amygdalin, is found in apricot pits, bitter almonds and other fruits and foods. It contains cyanide and the FDA has said it can be poisonous if the cyanide is released in the body in a certain way.

But Laetrile backers and some independent medical experts agree it is not usually toxic in its customary dose.

The FDA bans interstate shipments of Laetrile, but at least 20 states have legalized its use. Cancer patients can import the substance under an affidavit system created by a federal judge in Oklahoma. The FDA is fighting the affidavit system

Political activity quickens

The country's two largest Christian denominations, the Roman Catholic Church and the Southern Baptist Convention, are trying to generate greater political involvement by members on the eve of the 1980 campaigns.

The churches are focusing attention on issues and related ethical teaching, but avoiding any references to specific candidates, parties or platforms.

chusetts legislature, without hearings, hurriedly passed and Governor Edward J. King signed into law a bill to set up government sponsored prayer in public schools. The law specifies that at the beginning of each school day in all grades teachers will be required to 'announce that a period of prayer may be offered by a student volunteer." The law also provides that students not wishing to participate may be excused.

Church-state experts do not believe that the law can survive a court test and several organizations are exploring the possiblity of litigation. The Supreme Court's school prayer rulings of 1962 and 1963 ruled out government sponsored or mandated prayer in public schools, even when dissenting students may be excused, but left unaffected individual private prayer.

In Mississippi, meanwhile, two children and their mother filed a class action suit in U.S. District Court on October 30 challenging the

A Farthing's Worth

THE SHOE'S ON THE OTHER FOOT

A man had been arrested and heavily fined three or four times for drunken driving. Arrested again, he was sentenced to prison. He felt he was treated unjustly. He felt it was an American's right to drink and drive if he wanted to. The next Christmas Eve his own child was killed when the car in which she was riding was struck by a drinking driver. As he picked up the crumpled body of his child, he saw the driver slumped over the steering wheel in a drunken stupor. He had to be restrained. He wanted to kill the man. Then, for the first time in his life, he realized his foolishness.

French are embarrassed

Keeping brine out of the Rhine

By MARCUS ELIASON

PARIS (AP) - The Rhine

is turning to brine. The mighty river that has stymied armies, inspired poets and survived the filthy assault of the Industrial Revolution is now the object of a diplomatic brouhaha over salt dumping.

Holland claims its sector of the 820-mile Rhine is growing saltier, primarily because the Potash Mines of Alsace, located upriver in France, each year dump about 6 million tons of waste salt into the waterway.

That figure represents almost half the river's salt

This month, when France balked at taking expected action on the salt pollution, the Dutch were so incensed they called their ambassador home from Paris.

The recall - unprecedented among the nine nations of the European Common Market - underlined Holland's concern that the salt could poison its hard-won farmland and its drinking water.

"The French break their word again," sniped Britain's Guardian Britain's Guardian newspaper. "The confrontation is one of the worst advertisements for the communists in the French Common Market that the parliament, does not want salmon and trout are

The French, clearly embarrassed, have asked for time to come up with new proposals, and Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet has said that France has in no way renounced its commitment" to help clean up the Rhine.

But the only alternative that has been made public selling the salt — ran into instant opposition from salt producers in France and other European nations, who claim the market is saturated.

In 1976, France signed a treaty with Holland and the other Rhine countries -West Germany, Switzerland and Luxembourg — under which 2.3 million tons of the potash company's salt would be pumped underground more than a mile beneath Alsace's lush countryside.

Earlier this month, the French government withheld the treaty from the 499-member parliament at the last minute, saying it did not expect a majority to favor ratification.

That action prompted the diplomatic recall by the furious Dutch.

the salt going beneath Alsace for fear it would damage the province's subterranean water supplies.

"Under the pretext of guarding our water supplies, the government practically forbids our cows to pee in the pastures," grumbled Alsace county legislator Louis Uhlrich. "So it would be absurd to pump in astronomical quantities of brine."

The promised French proposals - which officials will not spell out - may force a renegotiation of the treaty, and the Dutch are impatient. They were so eager for the salt-burial project to begin that they even advanced France $11 million to finance it.

Under the treaty, Germany and Switzerland were also to help pay for the $34 million project.

France and its sisterstates along the Rhine have been more successful in combating chemical pollution

With 20 percent of all the world's chemicals being produced in the Rhine basin, parts of the river were close to ecological death in 1972.

Clements said at his weekly news conference

Tax relief legislation passed in 1978 and 1979 consisted mainly of exemptions from school taxes, but Clayton says some school districts simply raised tax rates to keep revenues from dropping.

Clements also commented on recent congressional action eliminating stateimposed ceilings on home mortgage interest rates until March 31, with a possibility the limits will come off permanently

He said the action was an infringement on state rights but in economic terms probably was justified because the money market is nationwide and is affected by federal fiscal and monetary

Clements called high interest rates a "disgrace" and predicted they would rise past the point where Texas consumers could afford to borrow money for homes or major appliances.

But he said a free market, where interest rates would respond to competition, supply and demand was "the only way we are going to get those interest rates down.

Don't I know you commissioner?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Prison inmates shouldn't mistake newly appointed parole commissioner Donn Woolery for a soft touch because he has been behind bars himself.

Woolery, 56, was named by Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday as one of the six parole commissioners.

He apparently is the first exconvict ever named to make parole decisions in Texas but says this should make him tougher, not softer, than other people who evaluate inmates for parole.

"You know, there is an old saying, probably old and worn out, that you can't con a con. I think I will tend to be more difficult to get by, having spent time there,"

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - A man who admitted hijacking a flight from Denver to Omaha last July has been acquitted of federal charges by a judge who said he doubted the defendant's sanity at the time.

U.S. District Judge Albert Schatz on Thursday declared Ronald Allan Rimerman innocent by reason of insanity on charges of air piracy and interference with a flight crew in the incident aboard a United Airlines flight on July 20. He ordered the case referred to the Douglas County Mental Health Board for further Win or lose against the favored Los Angeles Rams in the National Football Conference's championship game, the 56-year-old retread from college ranks has made good his boasts and proved two things conclusively: 1, He can coach football, whether it be sandlot, college or pro; 2, He has few peers as a judge of football flesh.

Take the first point: When McKay left the security of the University of unbelieving impartial Southern California, where critics. he forged championship teams over a 16-year stretch, to accept a $1.5 million contract to take over a ragtag expansion pro team on the other coast in 1976, he was labeled a fool. College coaches just don't make it in the pros, hardened observers insisted, citing Dan Devine and Tommy Prothro as examples. Of course, this isn't an absolute. But percentages support the theory. Lou Holtz and Chuck Fairbanks fled back to the campus and Bud Wilkinson. one of the legends, found he couldn't stand the gaff.

"Stupid," said the experts. For two years it looked as if the second-guessers were right. While Dorsett, despite injury problems and a tendency to fumble, was making his mark with the Dallas Cowboys, Bell was joining his old boss in taking the heat at Tampa Bay, gaining only 436 yards his rookie year in 1977 and 689 last season.

The taunts escalated "It was one of the smartest moves coach ever made. O.J. Simpson, another McKay disciple, was saying at the Rose Bowl earlier this week. "Ricky is much more durable than Dorsett. Here's a photograph taken from a kayak. You don't bring a ship this close to an iceberg! For underwater the tentacles of this cruel, cold monster may reach out a mile or more.

Life for some folks is a succession of narrow escapes. But these are adventures we can do without. They don't prove us bold sailors. They simply prove us poor navigators.

Frightened men sometimes turn to religion as a refuge when dangers - moral, spiritual and physical -- loom too close for comfort. God does not fail

But the every-day function of faith is to pilot men on a true course through the sea of life. The Church cannot sweep away icebergs. It warns us of their whereabouts and helps us give them a wide berth

If oil sullies Texas coast

"If the oil happens to be shrimp left," shrimper Walter Zimmerman said Thursday. "The crop will be wiped out."

The multimillion-dollar dustries are agonizing over recent predictions that oil unless Mexican crews can cap the runaway flow. Approximately 140 miles wore black ribbons of oil three months after the well blew out June 3, 1979, and started spewing 30,000 to 50,000 barrels daily into the Gulf of Mexico off the Yucatan Peninsula.

Most beaches now are free of oil although small tarballs occasionally wash up.

Officials of PEMEX, the Mexican national oil company, maintain they have cut back the well to a 2,000barrel a day leak. However, some U.S. observers claim containment efforts have failed and the well continues spouting 50,000 barrels a

is paralyzed

WASHINGTON (AP) -After months of Senate hearings and nearly a decade of negotiations, the Strategic Arms Limitation treaty is paralyzed and possibly dying, a victim of Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Many senators contend the treaty is dead for 1980 and say President Carter's action in calling for a delay in the debate over ratification was simply facing facts.

The latest delay is another example of events not directly related to the treaty's purpose overwhelming attempts to have the proposal considered solely on its merits. The treaty is specifically aimed at putting a cap on the strategic nuclear arms race.

Another recent example of outside events hurting the prospects for SALT ratification was disclosure late last year of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba.

Senate Minority Leader Church.

Sen. Gary Hart, D Colo,
didate for the Republican Afghanistan und presidential nomination. reminded reporters at a news conference Thursday that as long as three years ago he was saying the treaty

Senate Majority Leader favor of ratifying the treaty, but concluded: "It would not be conducive to the SALT process to bring up the SALT treaty at this time.

He said it would remain on the calendar ready for debate when the climate

"I think the president was just facing political reality," said Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D. "The SALT process is temporarily paralyzed if not dead. The treaty was in serious trouble before Afghanistan. Right now the chances of moving the treaty in the Senate are nil."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said a Sovietoccupied Afghanistan would be "like a dagger" pointed at the Middle Eastern oil fields which supply the United States and other industrialized nations.

'The United States should put the Soviet Union on notice that we are prepared to protect the oil resources of Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf with our own military forces, should that become necessary," said need for new limits on Soviet strategic capabilities which he said are provided by the SALT II treaty and the promise for deeper cuts in new SALT negotiations.

Byrd agreed, saving while the treaty would not fare well in the Senate in the current climate, he still Robert C. Byrd of West believes it should be ratified.

"We would not be ratifying SALT II as a favor to the Soviet Union," he said. "We would be doing so to advance our own national security interests."

Association said Thursday it could not predict how high fares might rise, but a spokesman said the nation's airlines expect to pay $9.4 billion for fuel in 1980, more than double the 1979 figure. The Civil Aeronautics Board has been granting the airlines fuel-related fare increases every two months. The latest 3.3 percent boost went into effect Tuesday and brought the total fare increase for 1979 to 26 percent.

Second opinion to cost plenty

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Department of Health. Education and Welfare will spend $250,000 publicizing a nationwide campaign to encourage people to get a second opinion before undergoing elective surgery, officials say. HEW spent $150,000 on a similar campaign launched in September

Department officials said Thursday the drive includes a toll-free telephone number people can call to get the names of physicians willing to give second opinions. The number is 800-638-6833, and in Maryland, 800-492-6603. In the first six months of the original drive, only 6,400 people called the hotline. The campaign is aimed especially at the 47 million Medicare and Medicaid
