CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF SHAH'S DEPARTURE — A woman carries an effigy of the former Shah of Iran during a demonstration near the United States' embassy in Tehran, Iran. The rally was held to celebrate the first anniversary of the former shah's departure from Iran on January 16, 1979.

Economy grows by 2.3 percent without recession

WASHINGTON (AP)—The recession that was predicted for 1979 never materialized as the economy grew by 2.3 percent during the year, the Commerce Department reported today.

The economy grew at an annual rate of 1.4 percent in the fourth quarter last year.

While a recession was avoided, the increase in the nation's gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced—was lower in the last three months of 1979 than had been expected. This indicates a recession may actually be coming in 1980.

Another strong performance by consumers, who increased their purchases in the fourth quarter, kept the economy on the plus side in the October-December period.

"Obviously, consumers are carrying a big part of it here," said one analyst.

However, to maintain purchasing power in the face of rising inflation, Americans saved only 3.3 percent of their income in the fourth quarter at an annual rate. It was the lowest savings rate for any three-month period since the Korean War in 1950.

A recession is said to occur when there is negative GNP growth for two consecutive quarters. The average 2.3 percent growth for the year compared with 4.4 percent growth in 1978 and 5.3 percent in 1977.

The only negative quarter in 1979 was the second, when the GNP declined at an annual rate of 2.3 percent. The GNP grew at annual rate of 1.1 percent in the first quarter and 3.1 percent in the third.

The Commerce Department also reported that inflation, as measured by its broadly based implicit price deflator, was at an annual rate of 8.7 percent in the fourth quarter and was 8.8 percent for the entire year, that compares with inflation of 7.3 percent in 1978.

The GNP price deflator, which measures inflation throughout the economy, is said to provide the best measurement of underlying inflation in the economy.

The consumer price index, by contrast, has been showing an inflation rate of 13 percent at the consumer level.

The total GNP for 1979 was $2,368.5 billion, or nearly $2.5 trillion. After adjusting for the effect of inflation, the GNP was $1,431.1 billion. The percentage figures on changes in the GNP are based on the inflation-adjusted total.

The Commerce Department said consumers increased their purchases of goods and services by 1 percent in the fourth quarter to an annual rate of $935.2 billion. Consumer spending rose 1.6 percent for the year.

Investment spending decreased in the fourth quarter, falling nearly 2 percent to $203 billion at an annual rate, which was a major negative influence on the GNP.

After a drop in GNP in the second quarter, even Treasury Secretary G. William Miller got on the bandwagon by proclaiming that the nation was in a recession.

But then consumers took over. Even though inflation and taxes were reducing the buying power of their income, they managed to maintain their purchasing power by saving less.

"Growth in the second half of 1979 came largely from the consumer sector," said Courtenay Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist, in a statement Jan. 8.

"Since real disposable personal income has not been rising, this growth could be sustained only through a reduction in personal savings. The savings rate reached an extraordinarily low level by the fourth quarter," she added.

The 1979 savings rate of 4.5 percent compared with 4.9 percent in 1978 and was the lowest since 1949, when it was 3.6 percent.

The savings rate fell to 3.3 percent in November, the lowest since the Commerce Department began keeping monthly records in 1959. It may have declined even further in December, the figures released Thursday indicated.

The department's 1979 income report said total personal income increased 12 percent last year and was at an annual rate in December of $2,022.5 billion, or slightly more than $2 trillion.

While the 12 percent increase nearly matched the expected rate of inflation for the year, it was partially eroded by a 15.8 percent increase in taxes.

After-tax disposable income, on a per capita basis, was at an annual rate of $7,653 in December, up 8.7 percent from a year earlier, which trailed the rate of inflation.

In a separate report Thursday, the Commerce Department said new housing starts declined 14 percent last year to 1,742,500, compared with 2,020,300 in 1978.

The drop was largely the result of the government's action to push up interest rates as part of its effort to control inflation, and it had been expected. But there was a slight increase in housing starts in December. They rose 0.3 percent to an annual rate of 1,527,000.

Orlando Chavez arrested today on suspicion of slaying Monje

By JAMES WERRELL

Orlando Chavez, 25, 202 N. Nolan, was arrested 10:20 a.m. today on suspicion of murdering Gerardo H. Monje, Wednesday night.

Monje was pronounced dead, 11:15 p.m. Wednesday, by doctors at Cowper Hospital, where he had been taken by his cousin, Mike Herrera, 309 N.E. 6th. The only sign of injury to the victim was a large, red welt across the lower half of his chest.

Following an autopsy, 3 p.m. Thursday, investigators learned that the blow to Monje's chest had caused both of his lungs to collapse, killing him.

Investigators also learned that Monje had been assaulted inside Navarrette's Place, 506 N.W. 4th, shortly before his death. Lt. Claude Morris and Detective George Quintero and Ted Lancaster interviewed patrons of the bar throughout Thursday night and this morning.

Witnesses told investigators that Monje had been struck with a pool cue.

A warrant was issued for Chavez this morning, and the suspect was arrested at the Police Department. Bond was set at $30,000 by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin.

Clements warming up for fight with Attorney General White

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Gov. Bill Clements says he may go to court to challenge Attorney General Mark White's "ill-considered" legal opinion upholding "hidden" appropriations by the Legislature.

"We may have to go clear on to the (Texas) Supreme Court to test this opinion," Clements told a news conference Thursday.

White ruled Tuesday, for the second time, that Clements did not have authority to veto a special provision in the 1979 appropriations bill to construct a new $40 million headquarters building for the Department of Human Resources from federal funds.

"This was hidden in this rider (special provision) to keep me from vetoing it," Clements said.

He said White's opinion would "sanction a subterfuge by the Legislature to thwart gubernatorial veto power over appropriations... The opinion circumvents the checks and balances system."

He stressed he was not asking for more power or authority for the governor than the constitution already provides.

He said the suit probably would be filed by a private citizen against the state to uphold the governor's veto power, and White would have to defend the Legislature's action. "I won't have any trouble getting someone to file the suit," he said.

White filed the first opinion given to Clements Aug. 31, 1979, "concerning his authority to veto certain provisions of the General Appropriations Act was fully explained to him at that time. That opinion was based upon well-established case law which has been upheld as recently as 1975 by the Supreme Court of Texas.

BILL CLEMENTS

"The governor should recognize that the opinion concerning the construction of a building by the Department of Human Resources does not address matters of policy but answers questions of law based upon a specific fact situation."

Clements also said he talked Thursday with State Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein and was convinced that progress was being made in cleaning up nuclear waste storage sites on Pelican Island near Galveston.

He said Todd Shipyards, operators of the dump, had agreed to take no more cooling water from California nuclear reactors and to reduce the quantity on hand now. "We realize that if we had a hurricane the strength of Carla that it would be a hazard," he said.

Bernstein inspected the waste storage site last week at Clements' request. He reported that Todd Shipyards was not technically in violation of its permit from the state.

On other subjects, the governor said:

—He would ask the 1981 Legislature for a full review of state laws concerning the manufacture of alcohol in Texas. "Our laws need to be clarified," he said. "I am completely sold on gasoline."

—He feels the federal government must suggest a "specific program" of assistance for farmers hurt by the Russian wheat embargo. "But I am in favor of the cutoff," he said. "It lets the Russians know we are sick and tired of their behavior."

—One basic reason he will not call a special session until August or September is to get a better look at the state's fiscal situation. "I have an opinion that if things go along reasonably normal the state may have a surplus of $700 million or $800 million," he said. "Comptroller Bob Bullock has an opinion that right now there will only be a surplus of maybe $300 million... the cost of a special session would be of minor importance if we can disperse $700 million or $800 million in tax relief."

—He will have a gasoline conservation program ready to announce in two or three weeks.

Views aired in national television interview

Shah blames oil companies for downfall

NEW YORK (AP)—The deposed Shah of Iran says he has not renounced his claim to Iran's Peacock Throne and that the greed of U.S. oil companies brought about his downfall one year ago.

"Abdicating in the vocabulary of a king does not exist unless it's very, very special circumstances," Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi said Thursday in a televised interview with British journalist David Frost.

"Does a king have to agree... to abdicate?" Frost asked.

"Yes... Unless he is decapitated," replied the 60-year-old shah, who is under a death sentence from a revolutionary court in Iran.

The hour-long interview on the ABC news magazine "20-20" was the shah's most extensive public statement since he left Iran for exile one year ago Wednesday.

He charged his regime had been sacrificed by profit-hungry American oil companies and rejected as "preposterous" claims by the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini that he was responsible for the massacre of tens of thousands of Iranians during his reign.

He labeled the United Nations, which has been proposed as a forum for airing grievances against his monarchy, "impotent" except in its dealings with "defenseless individuals."

ABC paid Frost an undisclosed sum for the interview, part of a 10-hour conversation Frost had with the shah last week at the shah's refuge on an island off Panama. ABC said the shah was not paid.

Frost said the shah conceded "errors of his own making" encouraged his overthrow, but that the conversation with the ailing monarch had a "continuing theme of either betrayal or...conspiracy."

Two years before the revolution, the shah said, "we heard from two different sources connected with the oil companies that the regime within Iran will change..."

"...If just in imagination, we believed that there was a plan that there must be less oil offered to the world market in order to make the price of oil go up, one country should have been the one chosen for this sacrifice."

Iran was producing 5.6 million barrels per day, the shah said, but in the final year before his ouster, the consortium of oil companies that bought Iranian oil did not seriously "talk about placing an order to buy our oil, so it seems that chosen country to drop its production of oil would have been mine."

The shah did not name the two companies, but said they were both American. Iran's oil consortium included Gulf Oil, Mobil, Exxon, Standard Oil of California and Texaco.

"I'm flabbergasted," said Nancy Arvay, spokeswoman for Social. "Certainly there was no conspiracy."

"The only thing I can say is we were lifting quite a bit of oil from Iran, buying it, that is," she said. "At the end of 1978, the shah was still in power and many companies were doing so and Iran was considered quite an important source of oil...I can't see where anyone wasn't buying oil. People had long-term contracts."

There was no immediate comment from the other companies.

The shah, accused by the Khomeini regime of torturing and murdering thousands and fleeing with billions of dollars, was not pinned down on his total worth and said those who claimed he killed 100,000 "don't know how to count."

The shah, whose visit to the United States for gallbladder surgery and cancer treatment triggered the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4, said "we do not elaborate" on how long doctors say he has to live.

He also said:

—"It's not true" that he contributed money to the campaigns of former Presidents Ford and Nixon and gave expensive gifts to prominent American and European political figures.

A. School officials are sympathetic but actually there is not much they can do other than appeal to the children's sense of fair play, once they are off of school premises. The parents have a responsibility here, that of teaching their children to respect other people's rights.

Marine hostage complains of widespread illness

BALCH SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — The parents of American hostage John D. McKee Jr. have received a letter in which the Marine sergeant complains of widespread illness and says living conditions for the captives are worse than "a dog pound."

Another letter from McKee was delivered to a Connecticut couple who were among a large group in that state that sent thousands of cards and letters to the hostages before Christmas. The hand-written letter on torn paper went to the Agnew family of Manchester, Conn.

"I was just shocked. I couldn't believe it," Lena Agnew said of the letter she and her husband Charles received Thursday from McKee. "We are all fine except for the great loss of weight and some times we feel like we're going insane but we have (the) Lord looking after us," the letter said.

U.S. scrambles for influence

WASHINGTON AP) — The United States, stripped of the comfortable notion that it could depend on a local "policeman" to guard its considerable interests in the Persian Gulf, is scrambling to maintain American influence in the oil-rich region.

Faced with the revolutionary loss of Iran and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the Carter administration is attempting to establish a new alignment of pro-Western governments, focusing on strengthened ties with Egypt and Pakistan, an old relationship with Saudi Arabia and new bonds with China.

President Carter is redrafting U.S. military strategy, with the emphasis on establishing new bases in the region, expanding existing facilities and setting up a large, mobile combat force that could be rapidly deployed to the area.

The diplomatic and military realignments began after the Iranian revolution eliminated the government upon which the United States relied for military might in the Persian Gulf.

While the Iranian lesson was sinking in, the Soviet Union sent thousands of troops into Afghanistan, taking advantage of the U.S. distraction with Iran.

With the incursion, the Russians proved a sobering point: Strategically, the United States is largely incapable of countering Soviet power in the Gulf despite a decade of lining up friends and plying them with billions of dollars worth of American jets, missiles, tanks and other arms.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the U.S. national security adviser, acknowledges "the fragility of the region."

That is why, he told the Associated Press, President Carter is reinforcing "our political relationships and military presences, thereby enhancing the security of friendly states."

Said Brzezinski: "All concerned should know one central fact: This region is of vital importance to the United States and American power is available to protect it."

Thus, the Soviet intervention is seen in Washington as a watershed event in the geopolitics of the Gulf and one immutable fact dominates U.S. foreign policy in the area: So long as Americans maintain their love affair with the automobile, the United States must try to shape events there.

The Soviet move in Afghanistan complicates the U.S. task, transforming an already tense region into the center ring for East-West confrontation and providing a potential for open conflict.

The Soviet power play, reviving a historic southward push toward the Iranian oil fields and Arabian sea ports, raises new U.S. concerns about Western oil supplies.

Through the Strait of Hormuz, gateway to the gulf, passes 60 percent of the Western world's foreign oil purchases. Guarding this vital lifeline: tiny Oman's 17-ship navy.

Forced to redefine its role, the United States finds itself with a limited number of dependable allies. Israel and Egypt are the most prominent and, according to experts, have the best armies in the Middle East.

But there is no Gulf "policeman" to guard U.S. interests, as Iran was supposed to do with $21 billion in American weaponry. Saudi Arabia is neither capable nor interested in assuming that mission.

Although defiantly anti-American, the Iranian regime is not pro-Soviet. Some administration officials hope the intervention of neighboring Afghanistan will shock the ruling Moslem clergy in Iran into a renewed, if modest, friendship with the United States.

The pessimistic view of the region is that the Soviet influence is gaining, with the intervention of Afghanistan only the latest in a series of provocative moves.

Working along the periphery, the Russians have acquired strong political and military positions in Ethiopia, on the Horn of Africa, in Aden and South Yemen, and now are fighting to impose a puppet regime in Afghanistan.

They also have access to key ports in Syria and Iraq, although neither country has moved fully into the Soviet orbit.

The United States, meanwhile, has lost influence over the last several years in Iran, Ethiopia, and to some extent, Saudi Arabia and Jordan. It has gained ground in Somalia, while Egypt and Israel are staunch allies.

Trying to block the Soviet advance, President Carter is planning to ask Congress to allow a resumption in arms aid to Pakistan despite a disturbing nuclear policy.

Brzezinski, the presidential adviser who coined the phrase "arc of instability" in late 1978 to describe the region, compares the plight of the countries along the Indian Ocean to Western Europe in the 1950s and Asia in the 1960s and 1970s.

Russians could make circus of Olympics

A prominent portion of Americans have always had a strange sense of values. Some of us place more importance on making the opening kickoff of a football game than we do in participating in the rehearsals for a daughter's wedding.

We're sometimes prone to pay our bookie before we are our landlord. We spend more on tobacco than we do our children's education.

It's amazing how many people worked themselves into a lather when it was suggested in Washington that the United States and other nations boycott the 1980 Olympic Games as a way of protesting Russia's invasion of Afghanistan.

Keep politics out of the Games, critics of Jimmy Carter say, and let the young athletes run and play. Sad to say, politics have always played a role in the games. Witness the banning of South African athletes from the Montreal Games in 1976, the irrational behavior of the PLO zealots in Munich earlier in the decade and the plans to force the Taiwanese to compete in Moscow under a flag other than that of the Republic of China.

Adolph Hitler didn't put in an appearance in the Berlin Games in the 1930s because he wanted to see Jesse Owens beaten but because it made for good public relations.

In none of these instances has warlike behavior by the country in question been an over-riding issue. The invasion of Afghanistan, however, puts our participation in this year's Olympic Games in a different light. In recent years, it has become increasingly apparent that the men who manipulate the strings in the Soviet Union are determined to attain certain strategic ends, whatever the cost. With their blitz of the Afghans, they have demonstrated that they will not hesitate to enforce their will by violent means, if necessary.

The nations of the world allowed the Nazis to reap propaganda hay with the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin, but they didn't profit by the experience. The window that was opened to the Olympic Games that memorable year inspired only reams of fluffy prose and countless yards of newsreels, all portraying robust German athletes and beaming German spectators — the very picture of a vibrant, vital society.

Should we not wonder, as the tanks and the personnel carriers continue to roll off the transports and onto the streets of Kabul, whether we are not running a risk of letting the Soviets stage a similar media circus this summer?

Willing to serve

Around the rim

James Werrell

Producer: Say, who's that kid, third from the left in the chorus line?

Producer's Assistant: Lylah has bronchitis again, so we got the girl from wardrobe to fill in. Name's Ronda, or something like that.

Producer: Come here kid. What's your name?

Girl: Rhoda. Rhoda Dendron from Pleasantville, Pennsylvania. Producer: Well, kid, you've got spunk and moxie, and you may be just what we're looking for. How would you like to star in my next musical?

RHODA THEN KNOCKS 'em dead in her first picture; finds out the producer is a cad; moves back to Pleasantville to marry the general practitioner she has always loved anyway. The End.

It is 2 o'clock in the morning, and you are wondering why you stayed up to watch this ridiculous flick. If you had just settled for the "I Love Lucy" rerun on the other channel, you could have been in bed an hour earlier.

You throw away the empty beer cans. Brush your teeth. Hop into the sack.

But just before you drop off to sleep, you think to yourself, Boy, if I had a chance to be a star, I sure wouldn't move back to Pleasantville!

Surely, similar thoughts must cross the minds of the clerks, lawyers, mechanics, students...newspaper reporters, as they pass through the portals of Building 64 at the Big Spring Industrial Park. Most, if pressed, would admit that they would chuck it all for a shot at Hollywood.

As of Wednesday, over 600 local citizens had walked into Building 64, stood before a Polaroid Camera for a quick snapshot in hopes of being tapped as an extra for the movie "Hangar 18-UFO Affair." I was one of them.

I began formulating my excuse for applying as soon as I sat down to unveil my stats. By the time I had placed a question mark next to the last query on the sheet, "glove size," my alibi was rock-solid.

First of all, I had not succumbed to the great American fantasy of becoming the next Clark Gable. Who needs Rolls Royces, kidney-shaped pools and the adoration of millions anyway?

I WAS JUST A REPORTER, taking this advantage to get the inside scoop on the world of tinsel and broken dreams. I would be nothing more than a cool-headed observer.

But then again, maybe a little fantasy might not hurt. It might even help me to get more involved in what I would be writing about.

Imagine, for example, that I am at a cocktail party five years from now. Someone flips on the TV, and my face appears, life-size, on the screen, registering emotions in a manner that would make Olivier green.

"Say, that guy looks a lot like you!" a fellow partyer would remark.

"Yeah," I would reply, "I was in films once, but I decided to get out while I was still young. Fame has a way of burning you up fast."

My chances may not be so good, but I should fare better than the lady in line ahead of me who felt obliged to tell the auditioners, "I should probably warn you. I'm not very photogenic."

You never know, though, she was attractive, and she seemed to have a lot of spunk and moxie.

Folks at Western

William F. Buckley, Jr.

How does it go with the airlines these days? Well, that depends to a considerable extent on how far you can manage to stay away from Western Airlines, or in any case, from whoever it is that manages their operations out of Salt Lake City.

ARE YOU READY? The 737 was chock-full. A chock-full airplane, in these days of straitened configurations owing to high-cost fuel and deregulations, is defined as an aircraft into which you could not insinuate a healthy sardine. We are headed for Los Angeles and, at 5:35 p.m., are already 35 minutes late. The strangest announcement I have heard in a lifetime's flying thereupon ensued from a palpably agitated lady. She cleared her throat. "Ladies and gentlemen, this aircraft is overloaded. Now, we need 33 volunteers to leave this flight. We will give you a nice dinner. And we hope to get you on the next flight leaving at 7:10 — but we can't guarantee it. And by the way, all the luggage that has been put on board has been removed, in order to lighten the cargo. It will be placed on a future flight."

One passenger left his seat and addressed the lady. "Look: you simply haven't offered enough inducements to get 33 volunteers. Why don't you offer them a free flight to Los Angeles if they volunteer?" She replied that she did not have the authority to engage in mass bribery. To the suggestion that she address the request to her supervisor, she reacted with dumb amazement. Perhaps Western Airlines cannot afford supervisors. A half hour had gone by.

AT WHICH POINT a young woman — obviously the kind born to organize — went forward, and there was a summit conference. Within 10 minutes she had ushered out what turned out to be her ski group, 30 or so passengers, but the rest of us were not made privy to the inducement, the ski guide having whispered to her group that it was secret. There was some rumor to the effect that a special bus would take them from Ontario to Los Angeles, which is the kind of inducement young skiers, bless them, will settle for.

Five minutes later we were airborne, and only then did we discover the reason for the muddle. What happened, the captain told the remaining passengers in jovial accents, is that the folks who fueled up the airplane, by mistake put in too much gas. You can't land a plane that's too heavy. "That's why we had to lighten it."

But the good news was that our luggage was back in the hold, so we could expect it on landing in — ho ho, Los Angeles. The Ontario bit, it turned out, was what B.F. Skinner would call a "negative reinforcement."

On arriving in Los Angeles, one passenger waiting along with several dozen others, saw the baggage-spigot begin to dribble, and then stop. A dozen people were left without their baggage. Curiously, the last 30 or 40 articles that had come down the baggage pipeline were skis. So that the folks at Western, to reduce the weight, or save space, had removed bags with things like tooth-brushes, underwear, shirts, and medicine kits — in order to give priority to the skis.

Now this might be understandable if one were flying from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City to ski, but since there hasn't been any snow in Los Angeles since the retreat of the last Ice Age, about a million years ago, the logic behind that feat of ratiocination by the folks of Western Airlines was unclear to the dismayed passengers. One of them approached an official in the baggage department who said he would intervene to make things right.

Mammography not always conclusive

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a pea-sized lump on my right breast. I was referred to a surgeon, who wanted to do a biopsy. He said it was nothing to worry about, but that a biopsy was usual procedure.

I preferred a mammogram X-ray. The idea of cutting disturbed me. I got an appointment with another doctor. I told him I wanted a mammogram, and had one. It came back normal. I asked him about the value of the test and he said it would only detect high grade cancer. Now I am totally confused.

Won't you please advise me? Was the test a waste of money, and do I still need a biopsy? — B.W.

I used your entire letter because your question is one that is raised by many other female readers.

Mammography, a special kind of breast X-ray, is only one of several ways to detect breast cancer.

You have a noticeable lump. The doctor doesn't need X-rays to tell him that. A mammogram can tell whether there are other breast masses that cannot be felt or seen. The mammogram also may show certain changes in the breast that can indicate a malignancy. So the mammogram can be a valuable tool.

Generally, however, breast lumps are biopsied for absolute proof of malignancy. This may not be necessary in each and every case. If the mammogram is normal and if all other signs point to a benign growth, a biopsy may not have to be done immediately. The lump can be watched.

You have to remember, though, that there are almost no 100 percent accurate tests in medicine. Decisions must be made after weighing all the evidence available. Is there cancer in your family, for example?

The doctor needs only a tiny sliver of tissue for study, so the prospect of the cutting should not cause cosmetic concern.

Should you or should you not have this done? I haven't answered that for you, I know. It would be irresponsible of me to try. If not having it done will cause you continuing anxiety about the lump, then having it done would be a small price to pay.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 69 years old and have a geographical tongue. Please help. — L.E.

Geographic tongue is a harmless condition. The lining of the tongue is studded with bright red patches. These are areas where the lining has been shed. The lining grows back. The cause of the condition is not known. The name "geographic tongue" stems, of course, from the map-like appearance of the tongue.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am concerned about a seven-year-old boy who doesn't eat any vegetables or fruits. He won't try any new foods. What would you suggest doing for him? He loves candy and would never stop eating it if he had a choice. — G.H.

Saying that a seven-year-old boy likes candy is like saying a monkey likes peanuts. They all do.

I'd suggest this boy have the choice of eating or not eating fruits and vegetables taken away from him. This can be done without threatening punishment. These foods can be and should be made attractive. The good example of other family members helps.

My brother used to gag at the sight of peas, that's the truth — just the sight made him gag. My parents encouraged him — firmly — to stifle his reaction. Now he is a pea freak.

Dear Dr. Donohue: At times a circle of light can be seen in the daylight and I have had this at night with the eyes closed. The circle has a sawtooth or serrated effect on both sides. There are many colors that flicker. Please comment. — M.H.

I am not sure of the significance of your symptoms. Glaucoma is a consideration, or perhaps a retinal disturbance. In any event, a visit to the eye doctor is in order.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would an ovarian cyst ever cause a woman pain? — M.M.

One might. Some cysts may be attached by a stem and this may become twisted and cause sharp pain. It can be removed.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for his booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: One of the most selfish people I have ever met claims he is a Christian. If that is what a Christian is like, I don't want to be one. Can you blame me? — K.E.

DEAR K.E.: I am sure people who are true Christians will read your words, and your words will remind them (as they do me) that people often judge Christ by what they see of Him in our lives. If Christ makes no difference in our lives, it is no wonder that people (like yourself) wonder if He is actually worth following.

But there are two things I want to say. First, there are many, many Christians who are not like your acquaintance. There are many Christians who have learned what it means to walk with God every day, and show by their lives and their love for others that Jesus Christ is very real to them. You should not judge the whole truth of the Gospel just by what you see in one person. I think you know yourself that this person's life is far from what a Christian's life is supposed to be. There may be bad doctors or lawyers in the world, but that does not mean all are bad. In the same way, there are certainly people who profess to be Christians but do not live up to what Christ calls them to be. But that does not mean Christianity is false.

Also, I urge you to look to Christ. We Christians are not perfect and we often fail to live up to what God wants us to be. Even Paul, the great apostle, could say, "Not that I have already obtained all this, or have already been made perfect" (Philippians 3:21). Only Christ was perfect. But because He was perfect, He (and He alone) was able to take our sins upon Himself. Look to Christ, and ask yourself: "Who is He, and what should be my response to Him?" Read through the Gospels carefully, and I believe you will want to follow Him as your personal Savior and Lord.

Gifts to few

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — During his glory days, the shah of Iran showered official Washington with gifts and goodies with lavish abandon. He was Santa Claus incarnate to the high and mighty.

His incomparable generosity constituted a massive assault on the U.S. laws against gift taking. Under the latest statute, a federal official cannot accept gifts of over $100 in value.

BUT THE SHAH was no such cheap-skate. He never gave handouts worth less than $100. His most modest giveaway was a magnificent book of color photographs entitled "The Splendors of Persian Carpets." This has been appraised at about $150.

The shah, however, was just as likely to offer actual Persian carpets rather than mere pictures of them, to people of prominence. Records left behind at the Iranian Embassy indicate these gift rugs were worth up to $20,000.

He distributed watches, jewelry and paintings that would cost thousands at Bloomingdale's. His most abundant offering was choice Iranian caviar, which he had flown to Washington for regular distribution. The retail value runs around $700 per kilo, and he never gave less than one kilo.

At his last Christmas in office, for example, the shah sent three kilos to President Carter, two kilos to Vice President Walter Mondale, two kilos to ex-President Richard Nixon, two kilos to ex-President Gerald Ford and one kilo apiece to a host of other Washington bigwigs.

CABLES TO THE EMBASSY indicate that the gifts were distributed "on the command of His Imperial Majesty," Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi, who usually specified precisely who was to get which gift down to the last kilo of caviar. His man in Washington, Ardeshir Zabeti, maintained a gift list of 4,000 names, including White House officials, Cabinet officers and one-third of the members of Congress.

In an earlier column, I reported that Zabeti spent the shah's money for the lavish entertainment of high Washington officials. He provided special guests with the attentions of young women companions. The women's services were priced well above the $100 gift limit.

The shah also invited a glittering array of American officials and celebrities to Iran for all-expense-paid excursions. Jacqueline Onassis went on a shopping spree in Tehran, charging tens of thousands of dollars worth of purchases to her hotel bill, which one of the shah's aides obligingly paid.

The list of Washington worthies who sipped the shah's champagne, nibbled his caviar and accepted his expensive baubles is far too long for publication in this space. Not a one has been investigated, let alone prosecuted.

Apparently the Justice Department feels the eminent takers of the shah's gifts were above being influenced by such trivial offerings as diamond bracelets, Persian rugs and tins of caviar.

This attitude is known in the back rooms as the John Connally theory. Some Justice officials believe Connally was acquitted because the jury refused to believe a man of such wealth and stature would sell out for $10,000 from the milk producers. How less likely, the officials argue, would a jury be to convict a president, senator or Cabinet member for accepting a $700 tin of caviar?

Yet the shah wanted military aid, political support and other favors from the U.S. government. Many of the people on his gift list were all too willing to give him anything he wanted.

While Nixon was in the White House, his family received many valuable gifts from the shah. Some of them were turned over to the State Department as the law requires. But the records at the Iranian Embassy indicate that the Nixons accepted gifts, including a rare artifact of antiquity, that my staff couldn't find on the official State Department gift list.

His Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger, was a regular consumer of the shah's caviar, and at least one small Persian rug wound up in his home. Nixon and Kissinger, in turn, gave the shah a blank check to purchase any military supplies he wanted from the United States.

Another caviar eater, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., was quoted in a cable to the shah as praising him to the rafters at an embassy soiree. Stated the Nov. 5, 1978, cable: "Ribicoff said — loudly so that Mr. (Robert) Strauss the presidential adviser could hear it — that he admired the shah... Mrs. Ribicoff also admired Her Imperial Majesty and said she would call the Shahbanou between 11 and 12 Washington time tomorrow."

CIA Director Stansfield Turner was quoted in a cable as telling the Iranian ambassador: "Please give my regards to the shah and tell him we are ready to do anything he wants. We are on your side."

And the late Nelson Rockefeller wrote a letter to the shah telling of his respect for the "courageous, wise and statesman-like decision which you have taken" to form a coalition government. The letter was signed "With high esteem."

The Justice Department probably is right: no one would believe that a Ribicoff or a Rockefeller would sell out for a few tins of caviar. But these gifts from the shah violated the law. If minor government functionaries should be stopped from taking gifts of over $100 in value, then the law should be enforced against the high muckmucks.

Footnote: A State Department protocol official responsible for handling gifts to the White House confirmed that the Christmas caviar had been received. A spokesman in Mondale's office said that all gifts of foodstuffs to the vice president are turned over to the Secret Service for disposal. In this case, the Secret Service destroyed it. Sen. Ribicoff did not respond by the time we went to press.

Wants musical career

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I read in your column about a guy who is really into music and would like to make it his life's career. Until now, I never realized there were other teens who felt as seriously about music as I do. Someday, I, too, would like to study and play music professionally. My parents think I should forget it. Nothing I do or say seems to make them understand how important music is to me. Music makes me feel good and I want to share that feeling with others. When I'm depressed music picks me up. It would be a great honor someday to make someone feel better because of my music. For now, I intend to get my education because I know "making it" in music won't be easy. My question is this: Do you think I should pursue a music career or should I listen to my parents? — Alicia, Zanesville, Ohio

Alicia: I think your parents are telling you to forget it because they know that becoming a professional musician is very difficult and they don't want you hurt and disillusioned. But I think they are underestimating you. I believe you will be a musician.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 and my boyfriend (???) is 15. We see each other a lot because his sister is my best friend and I'm always over at their house.

Well, in front of his family, he acts like he hates me and at school he doesn't even talk to me. But when we are alone it's an entirely different situation. He tells me I'm his girl.

I really care for him but I don't know what to do. — Kelle, San Pedro, Calif.

Kelle: One thing is very obvious. He likes you and is too shy and immature to do much about it. Have a chat with your boyfriend (???) and tell him if he doesn't act nice when you are with other people, that he won't have the opportunity to see you alone.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, Tween 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Coahoma 1941 Study Club met for the regular monthly meeting with Mrs. P.A. Wynn and Mrs. Grady Tindol as co-hostesses. Mrs. L.N. Davis, president, presided. Mrs. Richard Souter was welcomed as a new member of the club. Mrs. Rodney Tiller, program leader, introduced Mark Tiller, recent graduate of University of Texas, who spent two summers in Russia.

Tiller told of his impressions of Russia and its people. He spent most of his time with the real people of Russia. He gave the historical background of Russia and its possessions and compared the size of the Soviet Union to parts of the world.

He stated that they are becoming westernized also, and that the average person in Russia is not so different from Americans except they have different values because of their background. He showed items he had

Weekly dance tonight

Big Spring Senior Citizens of the Congregate Meals Program will hold their third weekly dance tonight at 7 p.m. in the former Officer's Club building No. 487 at Big Spring Industrial Park.

A live band of five instruments, a guitar, a bass, steel guitar, violin, piano and saxophone, will provide the country-western music, headed by John Gilmore.

W.H. Booher, chairman of the dance committee, said that 85 people showed up at the first dance, Jan. 4, with about 30 from out-of-town, mostly Midland and Odessa people. The second dance had over 100 present.

Admission charge is $1 per person and dancing continues until 11 p.m. Free punch and coffee are provided with cookies.

Participants may bring guests who may be younger as long as they are accompanied by a person over 60. Plenty of lighted parking space is available behind the building.

Mrs. Killough gives program

The 1970 Hyperion Club met Jan. 11 in the home of Thelma Carlile.

The program was presented by Sandra Killough who gave a talk pertaining to German settlements in Texas, past and present. She related some of the hardships they experienced in the early days and told of present day customs and festivals.

Jan Wallace, president, conducted the business meeting. Adah Yerden of Anderson, Ind., and mother of Mrs. Carlile, was introduced as a guest.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess, Barbara Donelson.

Certificates received

The Gay Hill 4-H Club met Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the school. The meeting was called to order by Joie Brummett, president.

The roll was answered by favorite seasons. The motto was led by Tessa Underwood, the pledge by Trevor Moore and the prayer by Scott Underwood. An interesting program was given by Trevor Moore. He shared his rock collection.

A thank you note was received from Mountain View Lodge to the club for making and giving them Christmas candy wreaths. Linda Fuchs reminded members that the livestock show will be Jan. 25 and 26 and that the county food show will be held Jan. 19. She gave certificates to Dawn Underwood, Tessa Underwood and Joie Brummett for completing their food projects and for entering the food show.

Refreshments were served by the Underwoods.

Dear Abby

Fears the Grind Of a Rumor Mill

DEAR ABBY: My fiance (27) and I (25) disagree on something and have decided to abide by your decision.

I am a junior high school teacher in a community of less than 1,000 people, and I live in another small town near where I teach. The students in both towns communicate with each other.

My boyfriend lives about 75 miles from where I live. On weekends he would like to sleep at my apartment. We would sleep in separate rooms, and everything would be strictly on the up and up because I am saving myself for marriage. I should mention that he has trouble staying awake when he drives home, and has often had to stop to sleep.

I say I cannot let him stay at my apartment because someone would see his car and say something to my students, and they would not understand. He says it shouldn't matter since we sleep in separate rooms.

I trust him, but I don't want to listen to any off-color remarks. We plan on getting married next summer.

SCHOOL TEACHER'S REPUTATION

DEAR REPUTATION: Feeling as you do about your reputation, you're wise to "avoid the appearance of evil" by sending your fiance home on weekends.

DEAR ABBY: How do you get rid of a guy you don't care for?

CINDY

DEAR CINDY: Introduce him to a girl you don't care for.

DEAR ABBY: I am being married soon in my home town. I'm planning a rather intimate wedding with only relatives and a few close friends. My problem is my father. He wants me to invite his girlfriend, Sandy. She's my age, and the cause of my parents' divorce. I don't particularly care for Sandy and I know that my Mom would be terribly upset if she came. All the relatives know about the situation and they would feel uncomfortable, too.

I have already told my father that I didn't think it would be appropriate for him to bring Sandy and he told me if she wasn't welcome, he wouldn't come either.

I want my father at my wedding, but if he brings Sandy it will spoil the day for me.

What should I do?

COLOR ME BLUE

DEAR BLUE: Let your father know that you want him at your wedding, but you don't want Sandy. If he refuses to come without her, tell him you'll miss him.

Teens: Are there some questions you just can't ask anyone about sex, drugs, your own feelings? Get Abby's new booklet, WHAT TEENAGERS OUGHT TO KNOW. Send $2 to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Pope, Khomeini vied for most attention

NEW YORK (AP) — As has been the case for the past two years, religious affairs capped the news in 1979 — the robust Pope John Paul II, cutting a new figure in Roman Catholicism by putting the papacy on tour, and Ayatollah Khomeini, generating a theocratic blitz in Iran.

followed by attempts to impose "inerrancy" views in its institutions.

Among other top religion stories of the year, cited in the current ecumenical weekly, Christian Century, were the following:

—Religious relief organizations concentrated huge shipments of food, medical supplies and other aid to refugees of embattled, devastated Cambodia, and to "boat people" from Vietnam herded into camps.

United Methodist NEWSservice polled the seven annual conference treasurers by telephone to reveal a total of $207,000 expected, or more than 10 percent of the denomination's total is anticipated before the close of books for 1979.

He reported about 6,500 tons of medical supplies and food already have arrived and been distributed in Cambodia. Another 1,220 tons of rice, sugar, cornmeal and fish were scheduled to arrive in Phnom Penh and Kampong Som by the end of December. They were being provided through Church World Service.

In answer to conflicting media reports about distribution and use of food and supplies being shipped to Cambodia, a mailgram was sent to all United Methodist bishops in December by Rev. J. Harry Haines, leader of the denomination's Committee on Relief. "We have been assured by our support staff that food stuffs are

Two million more face death unless food and medical supplies are provided in the next six months.

'Casters will hear Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter addresses the 37th annual convention of National Religious Broadcasters on Monday. The organization includes more than 900 groups which operate predominantly religious broadcasting stations or produce religious programs for radio and television.

Citing the several disaster calls to which the Texas Annual Conference had already responded this year, Bishop Finis A. Crutchfield, Houston, said, "And now there comes a call from Cambodia."

Graham offers Carter a plan

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham has suggested to President Carter that a group of Islamic scholars be called together, possibly in Saudi Arabia, to analyze and seek solutions to the Iranian crisis.

"Millions will die unless folks here do their part. I know the calls are constant, but the hurt of the world is constant," said Bishop Crutchfield. "Despite all the problems that Americans have abroad and the many injustices against Americans that are being perpetrated, we still, as Christian people in this American nation, must remain open to the hurt of the world and responsive to its need. God has called us to do that."

SPEAKER AT KNOTT — Loy Mitchell (above), associated with the Eisenhower Street Church of Christ, will be in the Knott Church of Christ at Knott Feb. 4-5-6. Topics for the speech will be 'Open Your Hands,' 'Home Crisis' and 'Are We Playing at Our Religion?' The public is invited to attend.

'Self Image' is stressed at retreat

"I am Important — I am a Child of God" was the theme for a retreat held last Friday at Immaculate Heart of Mary School for students in Kindergarten thru the Third Grade. The retreat, which was part of the Religious Education at the school, was to impress upon the child "the presence of the Lord in him/her making them a child of God and an important individual person."

Members of the Religious Education Staff and Primary Grade Teachers who planned and coordinated the retreat felt that a "positive self image" is an important factor not only in education but in life also.

The retreat culminated with a Prayer Service of scripture reading and singing by the children followed by refreshments served by mothers of the Parents' Club.

telling as demanded by the board of deacons.

The pastor, the Rev. Sidney Scott, said such practices are contrary to biblical teachings.

Mrs. Rubenstein, a palm reader for 10 years, called the ouster "an abomination" and "an inquisition." Ms. Robin, who uses crystal balls in psychic readings, says she "wouldn't do it unless I really felt it was God's choice for me" and she does nothing the Bible forbids.

A Farthing's Worth
A mother was talking to a salesman in a toy store. "This looks very complicated for a child," she said. The salesman replied, "It's an educational toy, designed to adjust a child to living in today's world. Any way he gets it together is wrong."

Cancer Society finds anti-cancer process

HOUSTON (AP) — A newly developed process that allows mass production of an anti-cancer agent has been called "something we've all been waiting for" by an American Cancer Society official.

"It's extremely important that we don't over-promise anything," said Dr. Fank J. Rauscher Jr., ACS senior vice president for research, "but personally, I'm as optimistic about interferon's potential for treating cancer as anything else I've seen."

Interferon is a rare body protein that provides defense against infections. Only about 1,200 persons have been treated with the anti-tumor agent thus far because of the limited supply and high cost — as much as $40,000 per patient.

Rauscher's statement came Thursday after it was announced that a team of Boston scientists had developed a method for making interferon from a bacteria. Currently, supplies are obtained from human blood samples.

"We're barely over the 50-year line in our efforts to assess (interferon's) full anti-tumor effects alone," Rauscher said, "and we need to test it in combination with other drugs."

Dr. Jordan Gutterman, who supervises interferon studies at University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, said he was "encouraged by results so far" in using interferon as an anti-cancer agent.

"We could move faster in assessing interferon's effectiveness for different types of cancers if we had cheaper and more plentiful sources of the material," Gutterman said.

The hospital is treating 65 patients for various types of cancer. Gutterman said at least half of those treated had partial or complete remission of the disease.

But he added that brief remissions cannot be compared with long-term survival, saying "considerable" clinical work remained to be done.

Rauscher said even though it is realistic to expect interferon can eventually be made "in buckets," that it would be two or three years before it could be available for widespread patient use.

Both men said the interferon used to date in cancer research has been "remarkably non-toxic," and no bad side effects had been observed.

Seven statues proven fakes

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Seven bronze statues on display as works of one of America's best-known Western artists, Frederic Remington, have been identified as fakes, officials of the New Orleans Museum of Art say.

The Wild West Exhibition opened at the museum last November and contains 85 works, including paintings and sculpture by two of the country's most famous western artists, Remington and Charles Russell.

Remington's bronze statues show such Wild West scenes as cowboys riding bucking horses.

However, museum officials discovered last month that seven of the Remington pieces, all privately owned by art collectors, were counterfeit.

The fakes were discovered by a visiting expert on Remington who was in New Orleans to lecture on art forgery.

Experts say the Remington art works are relatively easy to copy by using molds made from originals. And they say Remington works often bring as high as $100,000.

"The only way you can really tell ... is to take calipers and measure each individual section of the bronze and compare it to the measurements of the original," museum director John Bullard said Thursday.

"In making a new cast from a new mold, there is a slight reduction of maybe a few centimeters from the original," Bullard added.

Gold opens above $800 in Europe

LONDON (AP) — Gold opened in Europe above $800 an ounce for the first time in history today after spectacular new rises in New York and Hong Kong.

Trading opened in Zurich at $810 an ounce, and the price quickly moved up to $820.50, a $90 advance on Thursday's closing price.

The opening price in London was $815, and by midmorning the price had risen to $825, a record for Europe and $65 above Thursday's high.

In Hong Kong, meanwhile, the price soared to a world record of $832.97 an ounce, then settled back to close at $810.85.

Only two days ago, the price of gold hit $700 for the first time after breaking through $600 on Jan. 3. The metal has more than doubled in value since the siege of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran began on Nov. 4, when gold was worth $381 an ounce.

The Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan at the end of December added to the upward pressure.

One dealer in New York described trading there Thursday as "absolutely nuts." The price rose $100 an ounce, from $715 to $815, before closing at a record $802. Some dealers attributed the jump to rumors of a Soviet invasion of Iran.

The effect of the New York price was immediately apparent when trading opened today in Hong Kong, the Far East's chief gold market. The opening price was $798.62 an ounce, up $70.20 from Thursday's close. The price rose steadily until the last hour of trading, when profit-taking set in.

"They've gone crazy," said one Hong Kong dealer. "If this goes on, gold will reach the $1,000 mark in no time."

The Hong Kong Gold and Silver Exchange announced that beginning Monday it would close half an hour early, apparently to try to put a brake on gold speculation.

Silver prices also continued to rise, opening in London at a record $49.50 a Troy ounce, up $3.50 from the price late Thursday. The previous record was $48, set on Wednesday.

The U.S. dollar continued to hold firm, with only slight gains and losses, despite the gold boom. In past years, a rush into precious metals usually meant a lack of confidence in the dollar, the world's benchmark currency for international trade. But this time the panic is caused not by the state of the American economy but by the crises over Afghanistan and Iran and their effect on Soviet-American detente and international political stability.

Morning dollar rates in Europe were:

Frankfurt — 1.7338 marks, up from 1.7235 at the close of trading Thursday..

Zurich — 1.5936 Swiss francs, down from 1.5952.

Paris — 4.0375 French francs, down from 4.038.

Amsterdam — 1.9015 guilders, up from 1.901.

Milan — 805.05 Italian lire, up from 804.65.

In London, the pound sterling sold at $2.28, up slightly from $2.2745.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at 239.45 yen, up from 238.675.

Hawk Queens take big win over Odessa

ODESSA — Shawn Smith scored with 13 seconds remaining to boost the Howard College Hawk Queens to a most important 89-88 win over the Odessa College Wranglerettes in a Western Conference game here Thursday evening.

Smith's bucket gave the Queens an 89-88 lead, and the Howard College crew then stopped the Wranglerettes from scoring in the waning seconds.

The win gives the Hawk Queens a record of 3-1 in WJC play, and 12-5 on the year. Odessa, meanwhile, is now 4-1 in conference play and 14-3 on the year.

Sophomore Robbie Freeman was the sparkplug that propelled the Queens' win. Freeman came off the bench to collect 23 points and play an excellent floor game. Hawk Queens' Coach Don Stevens praised Freeman, stating: "Robbie just had a tremendous night. It was the best game of her college career."

Odessa College led throughout the first half, with their biggest margin being seven points. OC led at the half by 38-32.

Freeman sparked the Queens in the second half, as they overcame the Wranglerettes to take a three-point lead. But OC led 79-77 with six seconds remaining when the Howard feds gained final possession in regulation.

Freeman then came down the court and hit a jumper at the buzzer to send the game into overtime.

The Queens then had a three-point advantage in the overtime period, only to see the Odessa College team once again rally and take a one-point lead. But Smith's final bucket erased that and gave the Queens the win.

Besides Freeman's 23 points, All-Conference performer Joanne Lefridge added 22 and Smith 16. Smith and Lyons were the rebounding leaders for Howard College with nine each, while the inspired Freeman contributed eight caroms.

Carolyn Burnam paced an OC attack in which five players hit in double figures, scoring 22 points.

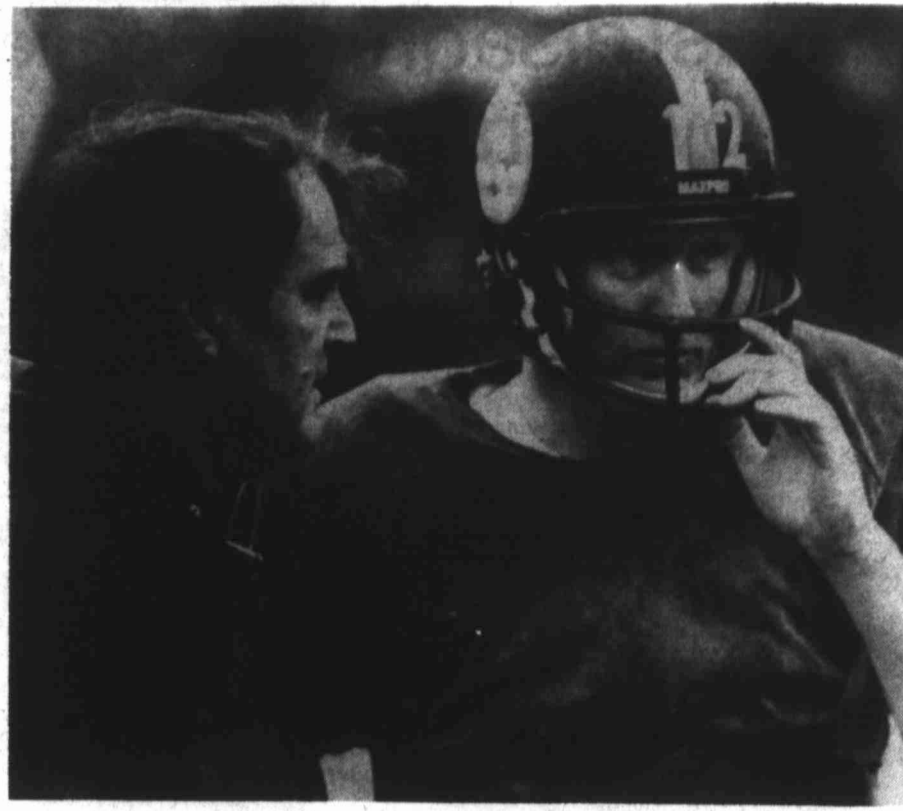

The Queens return to WJC play against Clarendon on Tuesday in Big Spring's Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

HOWARD COLLEGE HAWK QUEENS — Martin 10-2; Floyd 3-0-4; Freeman 10-2-2; Lefridge 10-2-2; Lyons 5-0-10; Young 1-0-2; Jones 1-6-8; Smith 7-2-16; TOTALS 28-13-89.

ODESSA COLLEGE WRANGLERETTES — Smith 5-2-12; Burnam 7-8-22; Skinner 7-1-15; Wells 7-1-15; Simmons 3-19; Chamberd 1-3-5; TOTALS 35-18-88.

Halftime Score: Odessa 38, Howard 32.

Regulation Score: Odessa 79, Howard 79.

Budde wins Lombardi Award

HOUSTON (AP) — Southern California romped to a Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State behind the running of Heisman Trophy winner Charles White and now it can be told — a Lombardi Award winner led him.

Trojan offensive guard Brad Budde, who threw key blocks for White last season, earned his own personal reward Thursday night as the winner of the 10th annual Vince Lombardi Award as the nation's outstanding collegiate lineman of 1979.

And in a classic case of role reversal, Budde gave all the praise to his running back. Running backs normally laud their offensive linemen for giving them running room.

"It may have looked like a good block cleared the way for Charles but that wasn't the case," the 6-5, 53-pound senior said. "A lot of times it was all Charles White. I wouldn't be here tonight if it weren't for Charles White."

Budde, the first four-year starter in the history of Southern Cal, was the last to arrive for Thursday night's $125 per plate ceremony in honor of the former Green Bay and Washington coach who died of cancer in 1970.

SECTION B BIG SPRING, TEXAS, JANUARY 18, 1980 SECTION B

Tonight at 8:00 p.m. Steers host Cooper

The Big Spring Steers and the Abilene Cooper Cougars meet tonight in Steer Gym in a 5-AAAA battle at 8:00 p.m.

The young Steer team has yet to win a district encounter in four outings, and has a season record of 6-14. And while the Steers have to be somewhat disappointed, the Abilene Cooper team also has to be somewhat frustrated. The Cougars, picked to finish second in the pre-season 5-AAAA poll of coaches and sportswriters, have lost their last two district contests to fall to a 2-2 record in district.

Cooper is led by 6'9" Woody Martin, a scoring machine who was the District 5-AAAA Sophomore of the Year two seasons ago. Martin played at Abilene Christian High School last season before transferring back to the south Abilene school for his final schoolboy campaign.

Other Cougars to watch are Kyle Stuard and Kenny Henry.

Big Spring will probably start a lineup consisting of James Doss, Robert Rubio, Cesar Espinosa, Dickie Wrightsil and Fletcher Johnson.

Forsan girls battle Whiteface for 5-A first half title

FORSAN — The Forsan Buffaloes and Whiteface battle here tonight, with the girls' battle deciding the first half champion in District 5-A.

The Forsan girls enter the game with a district record of 5-1 and a season mark of 16-4, while the Whiteface girls are a perfect 6-0 in district play and 15-4 on the year.

A Forsan win would give the Buffalo Queens a share of the first half title with Whiteface, but a Whiteface win would give the visitors the outright title for this half.

Forsan's only blemish in 5-A play was an overtime loss to Ropes. Whiteface, meanwhile, defeated Ropes by two points.

The girls game is set for a 6:00 p.m. tipoff, while the boys will battle at 7:30 p.m.

Bulldog boys can clinch first half title Coahoma hosts Colorado City

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Bulldogs boys basketball team can clinch a tie for the first half title in District 6-AA here tonight with a win over rival Colorado City.

The Bulldogs are 5-0 in district play with two games left in this half, while the Wolves come to town with a district mark of 3-2.

The varsity girls for both schools will have a game at 6:00 p.m., with the boys game starting at 7:30 p.m.

Odessa College outscores Hawks

ODESSA — The Odessa College Wranglers scored the first 18 points of the game to give themselves an early advantage and cruise on to a 119-99 win here Thursday night over Howard College in a Western Conference game.

The Odessa College team made their opening surge in the first three minutes to stun the Howard College team. The Hawks couldn't hit anything in this span, and also allowed the OC team some easy buckets.

Following the opening catastrophe, the Hawks actually outplayed their opponents, as Hawk Coach Harold Wilder explained, "I know it's hard to believe, but after the first three or four minutes, we actually outplayed them. It was just too much to overcome."

OC had five players in double figures, with the trio of John Savoie, Dennis Johnson and James Ivy combining for 70 points. Savoie and Johnson had 25 each, with Ivy contributing 20.

Howard College's Mike Wallace, the nation's fifth leading scorer entering the game, scorched the nets for 34 points to continue his race to win the WJC scoring title. Ron Akins added 16 for Howard College.

The OC team had a 66-44 halftime advantage, and held off a Howard College rally in the final half.

The win gives Odessa College a WJC record of 5-1 and a season mark of 13-4. Howard, meanwhile, slipped to 1-4 in conference play and is now 9-8 on the year.

The Hawks visit the Lubbock Christian JVs tomorrow night, then return home for a conference encounter on Monday night against Clarendon.

HOWARD COLLEGE — Wallace 14-4-34; Akins 5-6-16; Rawls 3-2-8; Faulon 1-1-3; Gaston 1-0-2; Word 3-0-6; Robinson 1-1-3; Hall 3-5-11; Green 3-0-4; Jones 5-0-10; TOTALS 29-21-99.

ODESSA COLLEGE — Savoie 11-3-25; Ethio 5-1-11; Ivy 9-2-20; Kitchens 4-5-17; Johnson 11-33-25; McCullough 1-0-2; Anders 0-1-1; Maddox 2-4-8; Volkner 1-0-2; M. Smith 0-3-3; Spurling 2-1-5; TOTALS 48-23-119.

Halftime Score: Odessa 66, Howard 44.

Spurs trade Billy Paultz

HOUSTON (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have traded 6-11 center Billy Paultz to the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association for 6-9 forward John Shumate.

Paultz, interviewed in Cleveland where he was on a road trip with the Spurs prior to the trade, said the trade was a "surprise" although "things were coming to a head in San Antonio."

Unbehagen joins A&M frid staff

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — Athletic Director Marvin Tate announced Monday that Head Football Coach Tom Wilson has hired Ted Unbehagen of Rice as an assistant coach on his staff at Texas A&M University.

Unbehagen, 37, was assistant head coach, offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at Rice this past season.

Wilson said: "I'm real excited about Unbehagen joining our staff. I know him as a man of experience and as a caliber coach. The two primary things you look for in an assistant is his football knowledge and his relationship to players, and he ranks very high on both counts."

Wilson said that Unbehagen was added to the staff because Chuck Moser will be retiring next summer and offensive line coach Dan LaGrasta will take over Moser's duties as recruiting coordinator. Moser and LaGrasta will continue their present duties through the current recruiting season.

Unbehagen, who coached with Wilson at Texas Tech for four years, said: "I'm looking forward to working with Coach Wilson again. This is a great opportunity for me. I know what kind of man and coach he is and I think Texas A&M will become a perennial football power under his leadership. I just want to be a part of it."

Noll, Malavasi disagree on Super Bowl strategy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you've gotten as far as the Super Bowl, common sense dictates that you've got what it takes to win it, too.

At least that's Chuck Noll's philosophy. "You win with what's gotten you here," Pittsburgh's coach has said in the past — namely when the Steelers were winning their three Super Bowl titles.

But Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi thinks it's always a good idea to have a few new things up your sleeve.

In Malavasi's case, he may well be right, considering he's sending his underdog Rams against Noll's Steelers.

"Personally, we try to rely on things we've been doing since training camp," Noll said Thursday. "I think the most important part of our preparation is training camp. Everything we'll do on Sunday we've done in training camp and have refined and improved during the season."

"To put in something cold can make things very confusing, make it difficult to execute your offense."

Malavasi isn't exactly planning on scrapping the offense that put the Rams in their first Super Bowl, but he does say he's got a few surprises in store for the Steelers.

"You want to have a few new things for a game like this," Malavasi said. "We're going to experiment a little bit during the game. If something works for us, we'll stay with it. If it doesn't work, we won't use it again."

"Every ball game we put some new things in...If we think we can gain by trying something new, we're going to do it."

Like what, he was asked. "Well, we've got the single wing," he began, tongue in cheek. "We've got the Wishbone; we'll use Nolan Cromwell in that..."

It was clear he wasn't about to divulge his game plan. In fact, when someone asked — not entirely seriously — how he planned to beat the Steelers, he replied: "That's privileged information," and he wasn't smiling when he said it.

Putting in new plays at this stage of the season, Steelers' wide receiver Lynn Swann said, "is away from the norm. Every team that's won the Super Bowl has done so by doing the things it did so successfully during the regular season because it had the confidence that those things would work when the championship was on the line.

"Putting in new plays now, to try and win this ballgame, might hurt the players' confidence in what they're doing," Swann added.

He said the Steelers have "prepared for everything we've seen so far" on films of the Rams' games. That would seem to give Los Angeles hope that something totally new — such as a new kind of offensive formation or the seven defense backs they used to upset the Dallas Cowboys — might catch the Pittsburgh defense off guard.

Jack Lambert, the Steelers' fearsome middle linebacker, just shrugged when he was asked about the Rams' potential surprises. "Doesn't matter what they do," he said. "I think we've got the defense to handle it."

"Each week we try to put in something as a different look for the defense, something that they haven't worked on," said Vince Ferragamo, the Rams' fledgling quarterback. "So we're going to put something in, to put a few new plays in."

Ferragamo would like to have the time to survey the field and pick out his pass targets the way he did against Tampa Bay in the National Conference championship game, when he had as much as 10 or 11 seconds on several occasions.

"My linemen have been telling me all week they're going to give me the time and I've got great confidence in those people. They're some of the best people in pro football," Ferragamo said.

"I'm excited. I'm sure I'll be a little nervous going into the game, but that's natural. I've been nervous going into the last four or five games."

And when he was reminded of the comment by Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw, that Ferragamo would be rattled when he became aware of the enormity of the game, the Rams' quarterback replied:

"I'm well aware of that. I was well aware of the fact that we had to beat Dallas to get into the Super Bowl. That was also a big game, one of the bigger games of my career. But I think the biggest game of all was my first start in the NFL."

Chili Dog Defense might stop Tyler

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If the Pittsburgh Steelers want to throttle the Los Angeles Rams' ground attack in Sunday's Super Bowl, here's a tip offered free of charge and no strings attached.

Have somebody set up a chili parlor across the street from the Rose Bowl.

There's no better way — and that includes the combination of Mean Joe Greene, Jack Lambert and L.C. Greenwood — of checking the Rams' ace running back, Wendell Tyler.

The slick homegrown tailback not only has quick feet and phantom moves but also is equipped with an insatiable appetite for bizarre dishes.

He's a sucker for chili dogs. Also he licks his chops with anticipation when he thinks of sugar sandwiches and air pudding.

That's why his teammates call him "Chili Dog" Tyler. It's also the reason, if he's not careful, the best yards-per-carry man in the whole National Football League might eat himself into another profession — a hot dog vendor, for example.

On Sept. 30, the Rams played the St. Louis Cardinals at the Coliseum. Tyler decided he was going to spend the day on the bench — as he had most of the year — so, before the game, he slipped over to a short order parlor across the street and quickly devoured two chili dogs.

The game was only minutes old when the Rams suddenly found themselves short of tailbacks.

"Tyler, into the game," barked the coach.

On the first play, our hero took a good shot in the midsection and went down groaning. He was escorted to the bench where he promptly yielded up everything in his stomach.

He was virtually hors de combat the rest of the day. The next week, in New Orleans, Tyler repeated the act with the same agonizing consequences.

"It wasn't that I didn't learn," Tyler sheepishly related this week. "The second time I ate only one. I didn't think one would matter."

Tyler admitted, under gentle probing, that he had unusual gastronomic tastes.

"Did you ever eat sugar sandwiches?" he said. "I love 'em."

A second year man out of UCLA, Tyler had an inauspicious start with the Rams, sidelined with a knee injury after two weeks of the 1978 season and getting only spasmodic play behind Lawrence McCutcheon at the start of this year.

When McCutcheon was hurt, Tyler became the Rams' chief running threat. He finished the season with 1,109 yards and a 5.1 yards per carry average. The average was better than that of Houston's Earl Campbell, the league's MVP.

Tyler predicted that the Most Valuable Player of Sunday's Super Bowl would run for 152 yards and two touchdowns.

"Who is that likely to be?" someone asked.

"Me," Tyler replied. It was a stupid question.

Rogers named ASU coach

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Darryl Rogers, former Michigan State football coach, makes his first public appearance today as the new Arizona State University coach.

Rogers was scheduled to appear at a news conference in Sun Devil Stadium, where his new team will conduct its football wars next year.

ASU officials met with Rogers for several hours Thursday, and then emerged to say he was the choice to lead the troubled football program.

Joe Kearney, Michigan State's athletic director who was named ASU athletic director on Tuesday, announced Rogers' appointment, ending days of speculation over who would succeed former Coach Frank Kush.

During Rogers' four-years at Michigan State, the Spartans compiled a 24-18-2 record.

Children believe in prayer. They believe their prayers are heard in exactly the words they use. They say simply what is in their hearts, trusting Mom's promise that they can talk to God and be heard.

But sometimes the adult heart is skeptical. We wonder if prayer really does any good — whether it is heard. It is then we need the simple trust of a child. We must remember that, through the ages, men have found answers through the Church. There God speaks with perfect wisdom to the hearts of His children. Attend church this Sunday.

Juror's absence puts kink in 'witch's' trial

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — The absence of a juror has caused an unexpected delay in the Loy Dean Stone murder trial.
 After nine days and 64 interviews, attorneys finally had selected a panel of 32 — plus an additional prospective juror as insurance against unforeseen crisis.
 But Thursday afternoon court employees notifying potential jurors to appear today discovered one of them was in Oklahoma and would not return until tonight.
 State District Judge John T. Boyd, who had planned to add another "emergency" juror or two and then begin opening arguments today, was forced to postpone the start of testimony until Monday.
 He said attorneys still would pick some additional panelists today.
 Stone and his wife Louise, both high priests in a witches church, are charged in the shooting death of a 15-year-old Dimmitt girl on Halloween 1977.
 Roxanne Casas was in a pickup that was hit by two shotgun blasts after it pulled into the Stone's driveway near the Panhandle town of Dimmitt.
 Miss Casas was killed and two of the other four teenagers in the truck were injured.
 The Stones, both 49, said they never heard the shots and have pleaded innocent to the charge. Boyd granted a motion to separate Mrs. Stone's trial last week.
 The slaying raised a furor in the town's Hispanic community that forced the trial to be moved to Plainview, 45 miles away.
 If convicted, Stone could serve five to 99 years, or life, in prison.
 Although Boyd had told the potential jurors to be available, he did not tell them to remain in town.
 "I'm going to give him the benefit of the doubt," the judge said of the missing juror. "I don't think he's trying to run off and hide."
 "For the juror to be excused both state and defense attorneys would have to agree to dismiss him," said Boyd. He said lawyers have not consented to dismiss the juror.
 To make matters worse, he said, a member of another juror's family is seriously ill and the juror may be dismissed.
