By judge in lake case Early decision promised

Whether the Colorado River Municipal Water District has a valid permit to impound a lake on the Colorado River near Stacy is now in the hands of 53rd District Judge Herman Jones in Austin.

Oral arguments by attorneys closed at 3:20 p.m. Friday, and Judge Jones wryly observed that "I'll try not to keep you waiting as long as in your previous hearing." Action on CRMWD's application shattered all records for a water permit — 51 days of testimony. Actually, it has been on file since October 1977.

Whatever the judge's decision, it likely will be appealed. LCRA attorney Fred Werkenin hinted as much when he referred to the "Long and bitter struggle between upstream and downstream, and which may continue long into the future."

LCRA challenged the permit on the grounds that not enough appropriated water is available, that the permit is not in the public interest, that its language is too vague, that invoking the Wagstaff Act (which gives municipalities priority over superior rights in times of emergency) was improper, and that it was legally wrong for Dorsey B. Hardeman, one of the TWC members, to sit in the hearing because he once had represented San Angelo on another Stacy proposal by the U.S. Corps of Engineers. Lakeside-Garwood Irrigation and Lake Travis Improvement Association joined in the protest of the permit.

CRMWD attorneys and officials feel that the crux is whether there is unappropriated water sufficient for the estimated 113,000 acre foot yield of Stacy. "The prime issue is whether there is unappropriated water," said O.H. Ivie, CRMWD general manager. "In our view, and the TWC concurred, there is sufficient water, and that the permit language protects the downstream rights."

Frank Booth, attorney for CRMWD, felt the case was one of substantial evidence, which he said showed West Texas will desperately need the water of Stacy within another decade. He cited testimony of Robert S. Gooch, CRMWD's expert hydrologist, that even with Stacy in place and all the rights and needs of the lower basin projected for the next 50 years, there still will be 267,000 acre feet of water available for downstream uses. To the claim that Stacy would dry up LCRA's Highland Lakes, he reminded that Gooch found that if LCRA releases water for hydroelectric power generation only when there is a beneficial use for the water downstream (as LCRA testified is its new policy), Stacy would not reduce the Highland Lake levels more than one foot.

LCRA attorney Lawrence Smith argued that the legal definition for unappropriated water is that water remaining when the total face value of all water rights are added and the sum is subtracted from the estimated yield of the river. Under this theory, he said, only 3,000 acre feet of water are available for Stacy, not 113,000 acre feet as the CRMWD claims. Therefore Stacy would create a downstream water shortage, he said, and this would amount to "exporting West Texas' water problems to the lower basin."

This simplistic approach not only is unrealistic and wasteful, contended Booth, but it has been discredited by the courts. Of the river's estimated 3.5 million acre feet annual yield of water, some 2.2 million acre feet now flow past the Columbus gauge near the lower end of the river. "All the district is asking for is 4.5 percent of that amount now flowing into the Gulf. To accept LCRA's simplistic mathematical

Law Enforcement career 'I chose,' says Burson

John Burson, who had announced earlier he would be a candidate for the office of Howard County Sheriff, subject to action in the May 3 Democratic Primary election, has released a statement on behalf of his candidacy.

It says: "Law enforcement is a profession and law enforcement officers are professionals. Not everybody makes a good law enforcement officer. I think that it takes a special gift, a calling if you will, much the same as a calling from God to a preacher or a lawyer, teacher or doctor. I believe law enforcement is my calling in life."

"I moved to Big Spring in 1972 because of the opportunities available in law enforcement. Since that time I have been accepted by and become a part of this community. In 1975, I married the former Charlotte Mann from the Vincent community. We have three children, two of which attend school in the Forsan Independent School District."

"Some of the things that help qualify me for the position of Sheriff of Howard County include my nearly eight years of experience in law enforcement, including three years experience in criminal investigation and narcotics investigation. I have completed all the courses in law enforcement at Howard College, where in 1974 I was selected the outstanding sophomore student in law enforcement."

"I have attended seminars in Austin, put on by the Texas Department of Public Safety, dealing with anti-terrorism, criminal investigation, and composite drawings of suspects. I attended a narcotics seminar in Odessa, taught by the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) and I am presently a member of The Texas Narcotic Officers' Association (TNOA).

"I was a director of the Big Spring Police Association for four years, two of which I served as president. I was also president of the local chapter of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers for a year. In 1975, I was selected by Police Chief Stanley Bogard as the Outstanding Officer of the Year, an honor of which I am very proud."

"My family and I are members of the Hillcrest Baptist Church, where I presently serve as president of the Men's Brotherhood. Big Spring and Howard County is my home. Our family lives on Pats Road in the Tubbs Addition. The progress of this community is important to me as it is to all members of our community. Because of the many wonderful friends I have here, and because of an awareness that this community needs progressive law enforcement, I am offering myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Howard County."

Burson has named Raford Dunagan as his campaign treasurer.

Eggleston campaigning for office of sheriff

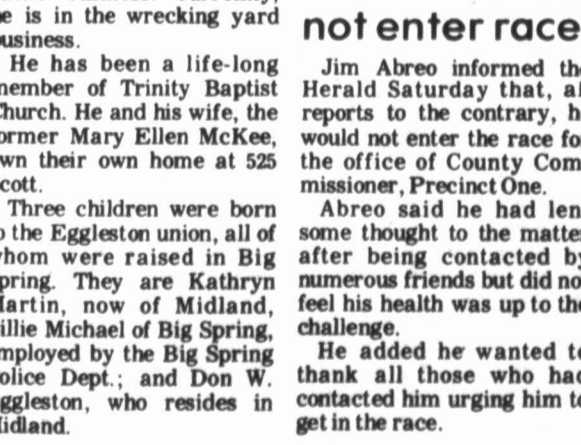

B.J. (Bill) Eggleston, who was born and reared in Howard County, has announced he will be a candidate for the office of Howard County Sheriff, subject to action in the May 3 Democratic Primary election.

In revealing his plans, Eggleston issued this statement: "If elected, I will maintain a department to serve the people of Howard County as they are entitled to be served. I will strive to perform the duties of sheriff so as to have complete harmony and cooperation between the law enforcement agencies of the city, county and state in order that we all may have a better place to live and work."

Eggleston served overseas during WW II as a platoon leader with the First U.S. Infantry Division.

After the war, he served with the 2nd Armored Division in the Judge Advocate Office G-2 Section. He also served 11 years as a administrative assistant to the commander of the National Guard. He attended Howard College for 2½ years where he majored in Business Administration. He also attended Texas Tech for one year.

Since 1954, he has been self

Marsalis enters race for justice of peace

W.R. (Bill) Marsalis, 3604 Boulder, is running for the office of justice of the peace precinct 1 place because he says he feels he could be of service to the community. "I feel like it should be a full time job. I feel like the office hours should be 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. There should be someone there to maintain the office and take care of people's needs. As many people as I've talked to, they seem to have this same feeling," said Marsalis.

"If the people want me and put me in there, that's what I want to do. I've never sought a political office but of the many thousands I contacted I feel like I do know their feelings of what they expect of a justice of the peace," said Marsalis.

Marsalis has lived here since 1967 and worked for Montgomery Ward's since then. Before that he was in Louisiana and Mississippi for 11 years traveling for Reynolds' Tobacco Company.

His wife's name is Naomi and their daughters are grown and live here in Big Spring.

Marsalis is affiliated with the Church of God.

Building of power unit delayed

Changes in ownership shares of three electricity generating units and a delay in connection of a fourth unit were announced Friday by Texas Electric.

The planned ownership changes, which are subject to approval by the regulatory authorities, involve:

—Transfer at cost to Texas Electric and Texas Power and Light of an additional 2 1/2 percent each of the two Comanche Peak nuclear plant units from Dallas Power & Light.

—Transfer at cost to TESCO and TP&L of an additional 2 1/2 percent each of the fourth generating unit at the Marvin Lake lignite coal plant from DP&L. The construction delay involves the Forest Grove lignite generation plant being built near Athens. Because negotiations for a possible short-term sale of the plant to Houston Lighting & Power have been unsuccessful, the decision has been made to delay the unit's completion date from 1984 to 1987.

After Comanche Peak and Martin Lake Unit 4 go into operation, TESCO President Bill Marquardt said, the company's additional shares of the units will help in the future to alleviate increases in fuel costs to TESCO's customers which will come about when one of the company's major contracts for low-cost natural gas expires at the end of this year. The company's other low-cost gas contract will expire at the end of 1981.

Through the transfer, TESCO will gain an additional 76,250 kilowatts of generating capacity fueled by lignite and uranium.

"When our low-cost gas contracts expire, we will have to buy the new natural gas and oil we need at the prevailing open market prices. Even today, the price of natural gas is five to 10 times as much as we've paid under the long-term contracts that are expiring," Marquardt said.

"Lignite and nuclear fuels are more abundant and are less expensive than natural gas and oil. Also, the Comanche Peak plant and Martin Lake Unit 4 already are well along in the construction process at prices lower than tomorrow's inflated prices will be," he said.

The first unit of Comanche Peak is scheduled to go into operation in 1981 and the second in 1983. Martin Lake Unit 4, under construction near Henderson, is scheduled for completion in 1985.

About 2 percent of construction work has been done at the site of the Forest Grove plant. The decision to delay construction was based on the company's ongoing studies of customer needs for electricity, Marquardt said. Current projections, he said, show the company will not need its 450,000-kilowatt share of the unit to serve customers in 1984.

Professed 'witch' acquitted in killing

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — Self-professed witch Dean Stone is financially drained, a free man for the first time in 27 months and wondering who committed the crime for which he was tried.

A state court jury deliberated two hours and 20 minutes Friday before acquitting Stone of the shotgun slaying of 15-year-old Roxanne Casas on Halloween 1977.

Raul Casas, the girl's father, was shaken and angry with the jury's verdict.

"I can understand how Casas would feel about me," Stone, told the Amarillo Globe-News. "For Casas' sake I really would like to know who did it. I think there should have been better investigative work."

His eyes grew watery as he

Texas Republicans are hoping about 1 million voters, including a good many conservative Democrats, will show up for the May 3 GOP primary election because of their presidential preference poll. Petitions are now being circulated for GOP presidential hopefuls John Connally, Ronald Reagan, George Bush, Howard Baker and Benjamin Fernandez. Republican party leaders also promise they will have GOP candidates for the railroad commission and for one supreme court seat. Republican Will Garwood is expected to seek re-election to the court.

The vote on GOP presidential candidates will determine the allocation of Texas' 80 delegates to the national Republican convention. There may be a presidential preference poll on the Democratic ballot on May 3, but the results will not directly determine national convention delegates, which will be selected at the state convention.

Editor named at Midland

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — James E. Servatius, executive managing editor of the Midland Reporter-Telegram for the past year and a half, has been named editor of the newspaper, publisher William C. Thomas announced Saturday.
Servatius, 46, succeeds William H. Collyns, editor for more than 30 years, who retired Jan. 15.
As executive managing editor, Servatius has had responsibility for directing all news operations of the paper. As editor, he will retain those duties and will assume responsibility for the newspaper's editorial pages.
Before coming to Midland in August, 1978, Servatius served for more than 18 years as a news executive of the Plainview Daily Herald. Both newspapers are owned by the Hearst Corp.
In another personnel change, the newspaper announced press superintendent William H. Johnson has been named production superintendent, to be in charge of all production aspects of the newspaper. Johnson is a 31-year veteran of the Midland daily.

Fina's 1979 net income amounts to $7.77 share

DALLAS — American Petrofina, Inc., has announced that net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1979, was $83,187,000, or $7.77 per share, representing a return of 20.8 percent on average shareholders' investment of some $400 million. Return on the average capital employed during the year was 13.9 percent. For the fourth quarter, net income was $17,707,000, or $1.65 per share.
In the calendar year 1979, net income of the Company was $32,351,000, or $3.08 per share, and in the last quarter of that year, $20,391,000, or $1.91 per share. Gross revenue in 1979 rose to $1,622,575,000 from $1,173,799,000 in the preceding year. As a percent of such revenues, profits amounted to 5.1 percent in 1979 as compared to 2.8 percent in 1978.
Noting that, measured by profitability, the year 1979 was the second best in the Company's history, R.I. Galland, chairman, stated that the average profit per gallon of petroleum and petroleum products amounted to some two cents per gallon. Refining and marketing activities, which had been unprofitable in four successive quarters until the last quarter of 1978, provided the principal improvement in the 1979 results.
In the exploration and production segment, higher profits reflected the gradual phasing out of government price controls. The quantity of crude oil and natural gas produced was substantially unchanged.
In the petrochemicals and plastics division operated by the Company's wholly owned subsidiary, Cosden Oil & Chemical Company, a continued strong demand for aromatics, styrene, and polystyrene, particularly in the export market, lifted operating income before taxes by 105 percent.
The reduction in fourth quarter earnings as compared with those reported during the fourth quarter of 1978 was attributable entirely to higher income taxes.

COASTER MAN — Bob Cartmell is probably the world's No. 1 roller coaster buff. The Albany State professor not only likes to ride coasters, but likes to let other people know where the best coasters are. He puts out a list of the Ten Best Roller Coasters every year. So far Cartmell has ridden 249 coasters.

Man with more than his share of ups and downs

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Whenever I feel im-
 Cartmell has been riding roller coasters for as long as he can remember. He said, "I have to remember I am a grown man and, after all, they are only roller coasters."
 By profession, Cartmell is an artist, with an artist's eye for curve and line, for symmetry and logic. It shows in his manner of judging roller coasters.
 "The most thrilling rides are not necessarily the highest, fastest or longest," he said. "A drop of 150 feet, for instance, can't be as steep a plunge as a lesser drop, the angle has to be too tame for a real body-wringer."
 "It is the quality of the ride that matters, the way the hills and curves and speed are combined from start to finish."
 He should know. He has ridden 249 different coasters, some no longer standing. (His wife, Ann, by the way, has dared to ride only one. She waits for Bob at the merry-go-round.)
 Cartmell's first ride, as a boy, was in Santa Monica, Calif., on a body-wringer called the Whirlwind Dipper. His two older brothers, he said, dragged him aboard to scare him to death and nearly did.
 "I was determined to lick that fear. Every time the family moved — I was an Army brat, we moved often — I sought new coasters to ride. Somewhere along the line, I discovered it was fun."
 "In 1969, for some reason, I made a list of the coasters I had ridden. I forget how many, but it was an astounding number."
 "That got me interested in an academic way. I did some research. I found precious little material, which piqued my interest all the more. And that," he sighed again, "is how the whole thing began."
 Cartmell's research now numbers about 12,000 items. He has written a number of magazine articles. A book is in the works. His correspondence is voluminous. ACEs, in fact, was formed by fellow buffs who discovered Cartmell's mailing list.
 Cartmell's academic interest happened to coincide with a coaster craze in America: some 20 new ones in the last five years. The new breed of coasters are really terrifying contraptions with corkscrew loops and loops within loops. Cartmell sniffs at most of them.
 "Those elaborate tubular steel things are too smooth, too slick for my taste," he said. "It is the difference between a sleek new jet and an old barnstorming plane."
 "Give me a good, reliable wooden coaster with a shake and a rattle and a road, you can't top it — and I can't wait until spring."

More than $18 billion in 1981 Americans face 'hidden' tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's budget for fiscal 1981 contains a hidden federal income tax increase of more than $18 billion on Americans with growing incomes.
 This tax hike, which might be called the "inflation tax," will hit all Americans whose income goes up; the more their income goes up, the harder it will hit them.
 Thanks to the structure of the federal income tax code, Carter will be able to count on more tax revenue from individual Americans without proposing an income tax increase to Congress. At the same time, he can increase spending and decrease the deficit.
 The government windfall is a major factor in a series of seemingly contradictory elements in Carter's budget proposal:
 — He proposes no tax cut or increase.
 — He predicts that the federal deficit will drop from $40 billion this year to $16 billion in 1981.
 — Yet, he expands defense spending and keeps most domestic programs even or virtually even with inflation.
 — And he is able to preserve the $2.3 billion state share of general revenue sharing, which he had promised to end, add a $1 billion special aid program for state and local government and expand spending on youth unemployment and housing subsidies.

 Those last four decisions help win him friends with the liberal labor, black and urban groups which remain crucial to winning the Democratic party's presidential nomination. They were considered the mostly likely Democrats to desert Carter this year for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his chief rival for the party 1980 nomination.
 In deferring a tax cut despite predictions of a sagging economy, Carter has departed from past custom. Since 1948, Congress has increased taxes significantly six times, but it has made 11 major cuts — with the majority of the reductions coming in election years.
 Still, thanks to growth in the economy and factors like the inflation tax, federal revenues have grown without stop in that period.
 Carter proposes to spend $616 billion in 1981 and take in $600 billion. That's a $76 billion increase in revenues. Since 45 cents out of every dollar of federal income comes from individual income taxes, they will rise $34.2 billion from 1980 to 1981.

Of that $34.2 billion increase in tax payments by individual Americans, congressional tax experts estimate that more than half, $18.72 billion, will result from the "inflation tax."
 This is based on their estimate that each percentage point of inflation, which Carter predicts will perk along at 10.4 percent in 1980, brings the federal government an additional $1.8 billion in individual income tax revenue.
 Everyone knows by now that you lose buying power if your income and tax payments remain the same over two years while inflation continues.

But what if your income keeps up with inflation? Do you stay even?
 No. Your federal income tax burden increases, even if your income does not rise enough to kick you into a higher tax bracket.
 This is the heart of the inflation tax and here is how it works according to congressional tax experts:
 A typical family of four with $10,000 in basic income now falls in the 16 percent tax bracket and pays $374 in federal income taxes. If that family's income rises the next year by the predicted inflation rate of 10.4 percent, it will go to $11,040. Their tax will go up to $540, but they will remain in the 16 percent tax bracket.

 Nevertheless, their tax burden has been driven up by inflation. Although they are in the 16 percent tax bracket both years, they have not actually paid the government 16 percent of what they made in those years, because of the way the bracket system works.
 The brackets can be seen most clearly on Tax Rate Schedules X, Y, and Z at the back of your federal income tax form. You pay a different tax rate on each segment of your income.
 You pay nothing on the first portion of your income. For the next several thousand dollars, you pay a relatively low rate. Then, the next several thousand dollars are taxed at a higher rate. Each bracket covers several thousand dollars in income, and each has its own tax rate. The rates get higher as the total income goes up.
 Thus, in the second year, this typical family had more income in their highest tax bracket. In other words, they paid a 16 percent tax rate on a larger part of their total income.
 Between the two years, their taxes went up $166. If their increased income had been evenly distributed among the various tax rates they pay, their tax would have gone up only $150. But because a 16 percent tax rate was applied to all their gain in income, they paid an extra $16 which is an "inflation tax" caused by the bracket system.
 For a family of four with basic income of $30,000, their federal income tax is now $3,917 and they are in the 28 percent bracket. If their income keeps up with a 10.4 percent inflation rate, it will rise to $33,120. Their tax will go to $4,602, advancing them to the 32 percent bracket.
 The additional tax is $685, but $193 of that is the "inflation tax," because the bracket system taxed all their increased income at the highest or an even higher tax rate than they paid the year before.

Air search ends for plane possibly ditched near Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — The Coast Guard called off an air search for a single-engine plane that may have ditched into the Caribbean north of Cuba after being chased by a Cuban MIG fighter.
 A Coast Guard plane searched the waters north of Cuba Friday but found no trace of the Cessna 177 RG that authorities think went down in 6- to 8-foot seas with one person aboard.
 "We won't be resuming an air search because we don't know the definite position," said Lt. Cmdr. Jerry Bowderson of the Miami Coast Guard station. "We couldn't pin down any definite place to search."
 Bowderson said ships had been alerted to be on the lookout for the Cessna. He also said officials plan to check Florida airfields in case the plane didn't go down and made it back safely.
 Aviation authorities said the plane had filed no flight plan but was destined for Grand Cayman Island, south of Cuba.
 They believe it originated in Sebring, Fla., where pilot Tim Hinds, 41, lived.
 Hinds was in radio contact with a U.S. Air Force aircraft that gave him advice on ditching safely.
 "He said a MIG had come out and intercepted him," Bowderson said. "He said he was climbing into bad weather because a MIG was chasing him and that he was lost and disoriented."
 The pilot descended and spotted a freighter before radio contact was lost, he said.
 "The plane entered Cuban air space and it's possible it may have been forced down," said another Coast Guard spokesman, who asked not to be identified.
 "We haven't figured out exactly what transpired," Carlisle Cook of the Miami Air Traffic Control Center said the plane did not have permission to be in Cuban air space and apparently drifted off course.

On the light side Climb every icicle

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — When Glen Frese runs out of summer mountains to climb, he scales the icicle in his backyard.
 "I had such a fun and enjoyable summer rock climbing that I didn't want to sit home all winter," the 31-year-old Frese said in a recent interview. "There is not much climbing to do at this time of the year" because his favorite areas are somewhat inaccessible.
 So Frese built a 30-foot icicle in his backyard. First, he erected three power-line poles around a water pipe, which sprays water up through them. Wenatchee's sub-freezing temperatures do the rest, layering the towering tripod with ice.
 Frese dresses warmly, grabs an ice ax, slaps on a helmet and heads up through the slippery bumps and crannies. In about 15 minutes, he has reached the top.
 He estimates he will get another month of good climbing before his giant icicle melts.

News director John Prescott says a helicopter would be a big help covering the area, "but we just don't have the money." So producer Joe Martin hatched the "tractor-kam" advertising idea as a tongue-in-cheek response to all the high-flying promotion for news on the state's eastern border.
 Prescott and his news crew picked up a camera and set out to find a proper vehicle for their ad campaign. "We're located in a field," Prescott said, "so we were pretty sure if we hiked around long enough, we'd find just the right tractor."
 Find one they did, an old Meridian tractor tangled with fence wire and put out to pasture long ago. The crew posed for a photo that has appeared around the area this week.

 The "tractor-kam" is the Hastings-based television news operation's answer to the helicopter race for happenings in Nebraska's metropolitan area.

County due remittance

Howard County will receive $4,244.34 as a remittance on state mixed drink tax. Submitted by the county in the fourth quarter of 1979.
 Texas counties receive a 15 percent remittance on mixed drink taxes they collect.
 State Comptroller Bob Bullock Wednesday said Texas collected $77.9 million in gross receipts taxes on mixed drinks during the last year.
 Mitchell County will receive $269.58 remittance from $1,797.22 in mixed drink tax money submitted.
 Bullock said the mixed drink taxes for the year's last quarter reached $20.3 million and that his office was mailing checks totaling $5.8 million to 358 cities and 204 counties as their share of the 10 percent gross receipts tax.
 Mixed drink taxes for the first three quarters totaled $18 million, $19.8 million and $19.8 million, respectively.
 Texas cities and counties receive a 15 percent rebate of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks.
 Some $14.4 million in taxes collected during the fourth quarter last year will go into the state's general revenue fund.
 The mixed drink tax is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and the city-county share is rebated on a quarterly basis by the Comptroller's office.
 The year-end total of mixed drink taxes means that more than $779 million was spent during 1979 to purchase mixed drinks in Texas.

Law suit is filed locally

A local man filed a $2,500,000 law suit against Wheelabrator-Frye, Inc. He is holding the firm responsible for machinery that mangled his left arm.

Alvin L. Best claims that on March 1, 1978 he was near a machine used by Cabot Corporation known as a bag filter or dust collector. Best was employed by Cabot at the time.

Best got his arm caught in the drive shaft of the machine where the shaft is connected to the universal joint. The machinery pulled his arm into and around the drive shaft of the machine.

Doctors amputated the arm at the shoulder.

The bag filter machine is used as an air pollution control device. The 12-foot by 15-foot machine draws hydrocarbons and gas through filters that filter carbon black into rotary blocks in the bottom of the machine's six compartments.

The rotary locks are cylindrical drums that collect the carbon black and transfers it to a conveyor belt. The machinery that drives the rotary locks is run by a drive shaft that caught Best's arm.

Best said Cabot bought the machinery in 1950 or 1951. Best charged that the Wheelabrator Company should have installed a shield at the point where the drive shaft is exposed and other safety devices.

'Swap answers our prayers'

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — No money will change hands but the congregations of two Protestant churches have agreed to swap church buildings in what one of the clergymen calls "an answer to our prayers."

The Rev. Richard C. Malmquist, pastor of the First Baptist Church, decided to sell the large stone church building which the congregation has occupied since 1910.

He went to a local real estate agent, Robert Tighe, and discovered the Assembly of God was in the market to buy a church. Tighe suggested the two pastors make a deal.

"We were really hard-pressed...and this swap answers our prayers," said Malmquist.

Wallenda, 30, is a grand-nephew of famed high-wire artist Karl Wallenda, who fell to his death two years ago in Puerto Rico.

Ocean desk seven keep track of Campeche Bay oil spill

WASHINGTON — In the State Department it is called "ocean desk": seven men who daily deal with Mexico about the Campeche Bay oil spill that threatens to gush onto Texas beaches again this spring.

Richard T. Scully, who heads the ocean desk, says the highest priority is to establish a contingency plan with Mexico about cleaning up future oil spills similar to terms already reached with Canada.

He denies the reason no agreement has been reached so far is "strained" relations with "Texas" neighbor.

But, as one aide to a congressman said, relations with Mexico are so bad right now and negotiations about energy matters so sensitive that "Texas may have to bite the bullet with the oil spill."

The most recent result of energy negotiations was an agreement in December for the U.S. to buy natural gas from Mexico.

The Ixtoc I well ran out of control June 3, 1979. Since that time more than 100 million gallons of oil has spurted into the Gulf of Mexico.

About 140 miles of Texas coastline were coated with a messy ooze until Gulf currents turned the oil away last fall.

But the currents are expected to change again this January and may bring the ooze back by March.

The offices of Sens. John Tower, R-Tex., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and Texas congressmen Joe Wyatt, Jr., D-Bloomington, and E. De La Garza, D-Mission, regularly talk to state department officials about progress about the well break.

Several aides, who asked not to be identified, said the State Department simply has not "put the screws" to Mexico about stopping the spill.

The ocean desk is functioning primarily as an information-gathering operation, not a negotiating team, they said.

One of the key facts the desk is trying to nail down is just how much oil is still spewing. Scully says Mexican officials estimate 2,000 barrels a day.

But testimony before a congressional committee last December set the figure as high as 50,000 barrels a day.

And Coast Guard official Rich Griggs, who was sent from Washington to oversee emergency operations last June, said a 10,000-barrel-a-day figure is likely.

U.S. Coast Guard and other U.S. technical crews sent to the sight of the deep-sea disaster abandoned the scene at Mexico's request last September.

Shortly after that Mexican officials tried unsuccessfully to cap the spill by inserting a so-called steel sombrero.

Why hasn't the U.S. returned to the site after the attempt to stop the spillage failed?

Mexico hasn't asked us to be there," said Scully. "We have made numerous offers of assistance but the Mexicans feel that it is their problem. I'm sure we'd feel the same way if it happened in our waters. That we didn't want outside help."

Some congressional aides question whether Mexico has the technological know-how to take care of the spill.

Griggs said the well gusher is large and lashed by strong sea waves, factors that cause "extraordinary" engineering difficulties.

"If the currents bring the oil back on the Texas beaches next spring it is going to be a mess," Griggs said. "There is no question that the simplest way to deal with the oil spill is to control it at its source."

For the time being the Coast Guard sends planes to take pictures to monitor the situation. And buoys have been set out to keep track of Gulf currents.

"We're more prepared than last year," he said. "When the current changes we'll still have several weeks to get the equipment ready before the oil arrives at the beaches. That's all I can say."

Senator Bentsen, who has been very critical of Mexico recently, worked last year to qualify Texas for low-interest disaster loans after the oil spill hurt the beach tourist trade.

As of this week, $3.3 million in loans had been doled out by the Small Business Administration to 115 victims of the oil spill.

"I cannot help but wonder what the reaction in Mexico

Standby measures would cut workweek, shorten driving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is readying strict standby energy conservation measures that could be invoked in cases of severe energy shortages, including a mandatory one-day reduction of the work week and restrictions on automobile driving.

Energy Department sources said Saturday the measures, which could be imposed by President Carter in case of a severe shortage in oil supplies, will be issued Monday. Some parts of the plan, however, will not be final until after public hearings.

The eight-point plan was required by the Emergency Energy Conservation Act approved by Congress last October. If the final plan is invoked, sources said, two of the eight measures would have the most noticeable impact on individuals.

A one-day mandatory reduction of the five-day work week in areas where continuation of the normal work schedule is not essential. Sources said this would affect most commerce and businesses.

A ban on the use of all vehicles in a household on from one to three days during the week, depending on the severity of the energy supply shortage. All vehicles in a household would carry a sticker showing a day of the week, and none of the vehicles could be used on that day.

Energy Department spokesman Ed Vilade said Saturday that, "I can only say we're preparing standby measures." But several department sources, who asked not to be identified by name, confirmed details in the tentative plan and said it will be published in the Federal Register this week.

Under its terms, one official said, the plan would be triggered by Carter's declaration of an energy emergency based on "a severe energy supply interruption."

States would then be given 45 days to develop conservation plans meeting consumption cuts required by the federal government.

If the targets are not met and the supply shortfall in any state is 8 percent, then the president could impose any or all of the mandatory conservation measures in that state, officials said.

Although the measures are being put in place, administration officials said they do not expect such a severe supply shortage that the plan will have to be used this year.

Other measures available to the president would be: — A ban on the use of motorized pleasure boats during certain hours of a weekend.

— Requirements that employers of large work forces take steps to reduce work-related travel including commuting to and from work.

— Imposing odd-even gasoline sales restrictions and minimum gasoline purchase requirements. Such measures were used last year to alleviate long gas lines and shortages in a number of states.

— Imposing mandatory controls on non-residential building temperatures. The current mandatory requirements expire in April, but may be extended.

Mr. Bledsoe lives at Ackerly. He has two daughters, Mrs. Ida S. Landon of Denver City and Mrs. Sara R. Gambrell of Farmers Branch.

Bledsoe is a native of Goldthwaite, Texas, and attended Breckenridge High School. He joined Texaco at Snyder in 1952 as a roustabout.

Subsequently, he served as a pumper in Snyder. He became a pumper at Vealmoor in 1958.

Wyatt has sponsored legislation to make $80 million available to compensate Texans for property damage and economic losses due to the oil spill.

Other legislation, endorsed by the Carter administration, would establish a tax to help cleanup such environmental spoils in the future. However the bill is not retroactive.

Carter discovers magic formula?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The woman who directed Gerald Ford's 1976 presidential primary race in Texas says President Carter will keep foreign crises "going as long as he can."

"Unfortunately, I think he has discovered the magic formula that might produce an election for him, and that is a foreign affairs crisis," said Beryl Milburn.

"I don't think President Carter is an honest man with the American people," she said. "I don't think he tells them the seriousness of things. I don't think he levels with them."

"A lot of people are alarmed over our foreign affairs crisis, and they tend to support a president in those times. There's a good chance they will do it again," she said.

Mrs. Milburn said the United States should blockade Cuba, boycott the Moscow Olympics and refuse to let the Russians take part in the Winter Olympics in this country.

Also, she said, the draft should be reinstated and there should be a "clean sweep of the foreign policy section of the administration — all those things to strengthen our posture."

Farm Hereford bull tops Texas sale at whopping $28,600

FORT WORTH — The second Texas Select Bull Sale proved to be a real barn burner in Fort Worth, Jan. 27. Twelve of the top herd bull prospects from some of the state's most well-known registered Hereford herds brought a total of $71,450 for an average price of $5,954. This was a $2,500 increase over the 1979 sale average. The event is sponsored by the Texas Hereford Association headquartered in Fort Worth.

Arlan Youngblood of Youngblood Ranches at Lamesa topped the sale with a bid of $28,600 for a fine young prospect from the Weldon Edwards herd at Clyde, one of the largest registered herds in the state with more than 600 mother cows. The bull was WE LI Domino 624, an October 1978 son of HH Advance A482, the $56,000 partnership bull that has gained much recognition in the past few years producing sons like Holden's $90,000 1979 sale bull that was out of a daughter of CL 1 Domino. The Fort Worth sale bull was also by a daughter of 820, the sire of HH Advance A113 sired by A482. The ownership of this bull was hotly contested with bids from four different bidders lasting through the $27,000 mark.

Mom says baby held by boss 'as security'

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A baby boy allegedly held "as security" to make sure his mother came back to her job at a Colorado ranch was being returned to his mother in Mexico Friday, the FBI said.

FBI agent James Decker said Martha Alvarez Esparza claims her employer at a ranch in Kit Carson, Colo., refused to allow her to take her 13-month-old son, Carlos Omar Alvarez, when she returned to Juarez, Mexico, for the Christmas holidays.

The woman alleged the employer forced her to leave the child at the ranch as security that she would return to work, the FBI said.

Agents said the employer, who was not identified, turned the baby over to authorities.

Decker said an agent was flying from Denver Friday to return the child to his mother in Juarez, which is just across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Mesa has requested an FBI investigation check into possible violations of slavery and kidnapping laws.

FBI said they had made no arrests. The case is being reviewed by the Justice Department.

Agents said the woman apparently was an undocumented worker.

Chapter Sweethearts are Belles

By ROBBIE CROW
Family News Editor

What do Betty Kelley, Kay Roberts, Debra Wilson, Maria Faulkner, Jan Nichols and Nancy Fulgham have in common?

Aside from the fact that they are busy being mothers and wives, these six women will each be the belle of the ball at the Beta Sigma Phi annual Valentine Dance.

The gala affair, which will feature top-notch entertainment from KBST mobile music, will get underway Feb. 9 from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

The Dora Roberts Community Center will be decorated appropriately for a Valentine Dance with the six Beta Sigma Phi Sweethearts adding that extra sparkle and radiance when they are presented before the large crowd expected to be present for the dance and sweetheart presentation.

To be recognized as a Chapter Sweetheart for Beta Sigma Phi is no less than an honor. Each sweetheart, carefully selected by the members of her respective chapter, has that special something that makes her stand out from the rest, that special sparkle, that special smile or that special glow.

The sorority sisters of Betty Kelley believe she has that special something, for they chose her as the Alpha Beta Omicron sweetheart.

Mrs. Kelley has served her chapter as vice president, secretary, recording secretary and treasurer.

"I've been a member of Alpha Beta Omicron for four years," she said. "It gives me the chance to better myself, my country and my town. Beta Sigma Phi does wonderful things for people," the 1980 sweetheart concluded.

She is the owner of Betty's Fashions and Coahoma Variety. Her husband, Tom, is an electrician for Cosden. They are the parents of four children, Bobby, 19; Bryan, 16; Brenda, 9 and Belinda, 8.

Alpha Kappa Omicron sweetheart Kay Roberts is married to pharmacist Neal Roberts who is employed at Mort Denton Pharmacy. They have four children, including Michael, 8; Kayla, 6; Ross, 4 and Jason, 3.

Mrs. Roberts has been a sorority member for two years and has served on a number of committees, including social, scrapbook and yearbook. She also served her chapter as vice president this year.

"I was asked to a sorority meeting by a close friend," Mrs. Roberts recalled. "I visited several meetings and found women with whom I had things in common."

Mrs. Roberts said that sorority gives her an outside activity to enjoy.

"One of the most important parts of being in sorority," Mrs. Roberts continued, "has been the friendship and feeling of dependability."

Wife, mother and realtor Maria Faulkner will represent the Mu Zeta as their special Valentine sweetheart at the dance Saturday night.

Mrs. Faulkner is entering her fifth year of Beta Sigma Phi, having originally pledged in Lubbock.

Beta Sigma Phi honors bestowed on this sweetheart include Pledge of the Year, Program of the Year and Girl of the Year. She has served as chapter president and is currently city council president.

Outside of her participation in sorority, Mrs. Faulkner has served many years in civic service with the Jay-Cettes. Last year she was chairman of the Miss Diamondback competition as well as the Arts and Crafts Show at the Rattlesnake Round-up.

Mrs. Faulkner will be presented at the annual dance by her husband, Mike. They are the parents of Ginger, 14 and Jeffrey, 11.

Alpha Tau Rho Sweetheart Jan Nichols is the wife of Max D. Nichols and the mother of two children, Kevin Dean, 6½ and Melissa Sheree, 1½.

She serves as the chairman of her chapter's Social Committee and is a member of the membership and service committees.

As a member of the First Baptist Church of Coahoma, she serves as the Junior High Acteen's leader. She is employed part-time at Big Spring Sewing Center.

Her hobbies include sewing, riding bicycles, bridge and tennis.

She is active as room mother of her son's class.

Representing the Beta Sigma Phi City Council as sweetheart is Debra Wilson, president of Alpha Beta Omicron.

She has been active in the past as city council vice president and treasurer. Last year she was named Beta Sigma Phi Woman of the Year.

As a member of Alpha Beta Omicron, Mrs. Wilson has held the offices of corresponding secretary, vice president and scrapbook chairman.

"I joined Beta Sigma Phi to have an outside interest," Mrs. Wilson stated. "I wanted to meet new friends and learn new things."

Mrs. Wilson is a homemaker and has two children, Michael, 10 and Scott, 7. She serves as publicity chairman for the Kentwood Parent-Teachers Association.

Selected as that special someone to represent the Exemplar Chapter Xi Pi Epsilon is Nancy Fulgham.

"I became a charter member of Alpha Beta Omicron in December of 1967," Mrs. Fulgham recalled. "I later progressed to the Exemplar Chapter Xi Pi Epsilon."

Mrs. Fulgham, wife of Roe K. Fulgham, has held every chapter office and has served as city council president twice.

She is a graduate of Big Spring High School where she has taught English for the past seven years.

She obtained her Associate of Arts Degree from Howard College. Continuing her education, Mrs. Fulgham received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Angelo State University and her Masters in education from Sul Ross.

She and her husband have three children, Anjie, a junior at Texas A&M University; Kerry, a senior at BSHS and Natalie, a BSHS sophomore.

There you have them, the 1980 Beta Sigma Phi Sweethearts.

The public is invited to attend the Valentine Dance and observe the presentation of these six special ladies.

Tickets, $10 per couple, will be available at the door or from any Beta Sigma Phi member.

MRS. DAVID WILLIAM WEISHUHN

St. Lawrence is site of ceremony

The St. Lawrence Catholic Church was the setting for the Saturday afternoon wedding uniting Belinda Marie Jost and David William Weishuhn.

The Rev. Bernard Binsversie, pastor, read the 3 p.m. rite before the guests attending and the couples parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Jost, St. Lawrence and Mr. and Mrs. Presley Weishuhn, Eola.

The altar was enhanced by candelabrum on either side containing white tapers, greenery and baskets of burgundy carnations, spider mums, chrysanthemums and baby's breath. The brass archway was decorated with greenery and ivory bows and lead to the middle aisle of the sanctuary which was accented with three branch aisle pew markers of greenery and ivory bows.

Douglas Jost, St. Lawrence, and Mark Franke, Rowens, cousins of the bride, served as altar boys.

Mrs. Jimmy Schniers, Wall, and Mrs. Eugene Hirt, baptismal sponsors of the couple, carried the offertory gifts to the altar.

Traditional wedding selections were performed by vocalist Jacque Frerich, Garden City, who was accompanied by Mrs. Billy Eggenmeyer, Midkiff, at the organ.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing a princess gown of ivory satin with alencon beaded lace appliques detailing the skirt front and flowing down the back onto the full chapel length train. The hemline was circled with scalloped lace and lace molded the English net yoked bodice and fitted long sleeves. Seed pearls enhanced the lace victoria collar. The finger-tip illusion veil, edged in alencon lace, draped from her beaded lace headpiece.

To compliment her attire, the bride carried a cascading bouquet of burgundy roses and snowflake pom-poms touched with baby's breath and enhanced by fern, candlelight satin ribbon and a gold rosary.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her cousin, Mrs. Chris Hirt. Bridesmaids included Emma Lou Halfmann, Trudy Hoelscher, and Lynette Schwartz, St. Lawrence, and Mrs. Dennis Braden, Cayanosa. The bridesmaids were attired in burgundy qiana dresses with blouson bodices and long raglan sleeves accented with matching heavy lace on rounded necklines. The tulip curved wrap skirts layered over a matching long skirt. Each one carried a cascading arrangement of burgundy carnations and snowflake pom-poms accented with baby's breath.

Donald Weishuhn of Wall served his brother as best man. Groomsman were Darryl Weishuhn, cousin of the groom, Wildred Wilde, and Charles Halfmann of Wall, and Bobby Poulsen, Lewisville, cousin of the groom.

Daryl and Doyle Schniers of Wall and Gaylon Schniers, Miles, cousins of the bride, and Glen Smetana, Eola, seated the guests.

Ring bearers were Stuart and Steven Jost, St. Lawrence, twin brothers of the bride.

A reception was held in St. Lawrence Parish Hall immediately following the ceremony, followed by a barbecue supper and dance. Special out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Elo Jost and Mrs. A. J. Schniers, Wall, grandparents of the bride; and Mrs. William C. Drool, San Angelo, grandmother of the groom.

Parents of the couple hosted the rehearsal supper Jan. 27 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hirt, aunt and uncle of the groom.

The bride is a graduate of Garden City High School. The groom is a graduate of Wall High School and is a cotton farmer in St. Lawrence.

Following a wedding trip to New Mexico, the couple will be at home in St. Lawrence.

Workshop offered at 4-H center

The Texas 4-H Center located on Lake Brownwood is offering an informative and enjoyable training on Feb. 9 and 10. This workshop entitled "Sew Great-Feel Terrific" will update you with current information about new sewing techniques.

Those attending are asked to bring their own sewing machines to participate in making samples of sewing techniques for today's fashion fabrics.

A variety of sessions will be offered which include the art of putting it all together—pattern, fabric and figure coordination, sewing to project your self image, tips on how to energize your wardrobe and more.

Weekend workshops, conferences, forums and camps bring 4-H leaders and resource instructors together for sharing knowledge, skills and recreation. Trained leaders take newly gained ideas and skills home with them to share with other 4-H youth and adults. In this way, the benefits of 4-H training are multiplied to reach every area of Texas.

More volunteers are needed to teach 4-H clothing projects. If you enjoy sewing and being around young people, why don't you volunteer to teach a small group? If you are interested in attending the workshop or helping someone learn to sew contact Linda Fuchs, assistant county extension agent, at 267-8469.

All programs sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

AARP and NRTA oppose tax on SS

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The nation's largest retiree organizations sharply criticized several recommendations of the Social Security Advisory Council today, expressing particular concern over proposals to subject one-half of an individual's benefit payment to income taxes and to raise the age for full benefit entitlement from 65 to 68.

In a statement following release of the Advisory Council's final report, the 12-million-member American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association said that to add another tax burden on older persons amid current inflation rates would make it impossible for many to make ends meet.

Security system itself. At the same time, demographic trends point to an aging population with diminished labor-force participation, creating a dangerous degree of dependency by the elderly on government programs."

By "fundamental" changes, the Association suggested replacing current work disincentives within the system — such as the earnings limitation test — with work incentives. Elimination of the earnings limit would fundamentally alter the nature of the system, making it less a form of "social insurance" and more like a true pension program through which benefits would be paid as a matter of right.

While applauding the Council's proposals to introduce some general revenue financing, provide semi-annual cost-of-living adjustments and improve benefit equities, the Associations expressed dismay that the Council recommended only "tinkering" changes rather than suggesting fundamental reform of the system.

"A combination of economic and demographic trends call out for fundamental reform," the Associations said. "High inflation rates are destroying the pensions, savings and living standards of the elderly and undermining the fiscal stability of the Social

"We firmly believe that the single greatest disincentive to an older person's work effort is the earnings test," the Associations said. "It takes away one dollar of benefits for every two dollars earned over $4,500 for beneficiaries between the ages of 65 and 72. Elimination of the test is absolutely essential to the well-being of the elderly and the nation as a whole."

Instead of maintaining this work disincentive, the Associations argued, the Council should have proposed its elimination and the addition of actuarially increased benefits for persons who delay retiring beyond age 65.

MRS. DEWAINE MULLINS

Wedding vows spoken in afternoon rite

The Hillcrest Baptist Church was the setting for the Saturday afternoon wedding of Ronda Lynn Williamson and Dewaine Mullins.

The 4 p.m. rite was performed by Rev. Phillip McClendon, pastor, before an altar enhanced by greenery with doves in the top flanked by two circular candelabras.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Williamson, 3235 Cornell. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Mullins, Muleshoe.

Susan Joslin provided traditional wedding music at the piano and accompanied Jackie Hancock, soloist.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing a full length white peu de soie satin gown fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline trimmed in silk floss beneath imported lace and seed pearls on an empire bodice. The skirt ended in a chapel-length train. The fingertip length veil of illusion was trimmed in white Denise lace attached to a lace and imported seed pearl trimmed headband. The bride carried a white satin covered Bible under her bridal bouquet of white spider mums and blue carnations sprinkled with baby's breath.

Nina Pitcock, Muleshoe, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lori Douglas, Muleshoe and Kristy Stoneking, Oklahoma City, Okla., cousin of the bride.

The best man was Ken Foster, Muleshoe. Danny Wark, Muleshoe, and Buddy Stonking, Frederick, Okla., uncles of the bride, served as groomsmen. Kevin Stoneking, Oklahoma City, cousin of the bride and Larry Feaster seated the guests.

Brandon Mullins, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. Michael and Darrel Hudson, Littlefield, nephews of the groom were the candlelighters.

A reception honoring the newlyweds was held in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth over satin underlay and centered with a basket arrangement of blue, rust and sage silk flowers. The three-tiered cake was decorated with blue roses and bows with traditional bride and groom figures on top. Stacy Davidson and Norma Cavellaro served the guests and Gwynne Bryant registered them.

The bride attends Big Spring High School. The groom is a graduate of Muleshoe High School and is employed by the Texas State Highway Department in Littlefield.

Following a wedding trip to Lubbock, the couple will make their home in Littlefield.

The end of the "Me Generation?"

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Are young people today swinging away from the "Me Generation" attitudes of the seventies? Is the new decade bringing with it a new crop of involved, patriotic teens? A recent survey in Seventeen Magazine shows that this may be the trend.

The magazine asked its readers, "Would you be willing to volunteer for nonmilitary national service?" This would mean one year of service after high school graduation to work on programs such as rehabilitation of neighborhoods, hospital clinic work, and care of the elderly. Teens involved would be given a modest living allowance and post-service scholarships.

Well over 600 readers, ranging in age from 10-25, responded to the question. Surprisingly, over three quarters of these young people said they would be willing to sign up for nonmilitary service, and a little less than a quarter said they might volunteer. Fewer than twenty respondents said they would not consider signing up.

"Young men and women may be easier to volunteer their services to the government than skeptics think," says Harris Wofford, chairman of the Committee for the Study of National Service. "There is so much that could do today to meet the needs of the nation if their talents and energy were put to work," says Mr. Wofford. "I think the young people of the eighties may take us all by surprise."

Buyers impressed with cleanliness and maintenance

Spruce up your "house for sale" — with cleanliness and maintenance as the major target zones of your effort.

Before putting your home up for sale, make a checklist. Then follow through on needed cleaning and repairs. Buyers' first impressions start outside. Paint the house, if necessary. If not, give it a good scrubdown with detergent or soap suds and the garden hose.

Be sure roof, windows, screen, steps, gutters, fences and driveway are in good repair. Keep the property tidy — trim shrubbery, cut grass, sweep leaves, edge walkways, clear and weed planting areas, and clean the porch, patio or deck. Haul away any debris.

Inside, rid the home of everything not needed. Make necessary minor or major repairs — and clean each room. Buyers are always interested in closet and storage space. Neat, uncluttered closets and rooms look bigger and airier. Also, consider packing out-of-use or seasonal items neatly in labeled cartons, and place them out of the way.

Fix cracked plaster, leaky faucets, replace broken tiles, and secure loose hinges and doorknobs.

Again, paint if needed, or wash walls, ceilings and trim. Have floors shining, and windows and light fixtures sparkling. Be sure to remove soil from around doorknobs and switchplates.

Pay special attention to cleaning the kitchen and bathroom. Also, a clean garage is a big selling point.

In general, a home always looks more inviting and well-kept when inside and out are clean and uncluttered. This is especially important when showing a house to prospective buyers.

Homemade bread is popular

How often have you heard weight- or health-conscious folks describe their diets by saying, "I didn't cheat today — I passed up the bread." In fact, they are cheating themselves of essential nutrients as well as the entire dimension of smells, flavors and textures worshipped by bread-lovers and bread-bakers for centuries.

Wheat bread is a valuable source of the B vitamins which are needed to convert the foods we eat into the form of energy which the body uses as fuel. Very active people burn more fuel and therefore demand these vitamins in larger quantities. Fiber, a natural constituent of whole grains and cereals, is thought by many to play a protective role against several of the nation's leading killer diseases. The Fleischmann's Corn Oil Margarine used in this recipe is big on flavor, but low in saturated fats and cholesterol-free, another nutritional plus. So take a hefty slice of the bread of life and stop cheating yourself of homemade goodness.

CRACKED WHEAT BREAD

Makes 2 loaves (24 slices)
 4 3/4 to 5 3/4 cups unsifted flour
 3 tablespoons sugar
 4 teaspoons salt
 2 packages active dry yeast
 1 1/2 cups water
 1/2 cup milk
 3 tablespoons Fleischmann's Margarine
 1 cup cracked wheat
 In a large bowl thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved yeast.

Combine water, milk and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. (Margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add cracked wheat and beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Cover, let rest on board for 15 minutes. Shape into 2 loaves. Place in greased 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2-inch loaf pans. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit, about 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

"Dinah" is a biography

DINAH! A BIOGRAPHY by Bruce Cassidy (Pub. date: Sept. 25, 1979, price: $10.95). From Tennessee childhood to TV stardom, here's the whole story of one of the most unanimously adored and successful women in all of show business. Joys and sorrows, scandal and acclaim, this is the inside story.

Born into the only Jewish family in Winchester, Tennessee, Frances Rose Shore grew up in the South. She faced early childhood struggles against religious prejudice, poliomyelitis, physical unattractiveness, and a father who did little to encourage her ambition to become an entertainer.

Here is the story of her big-band years on radio, her "perfect marriage" that turned out to be less than perfect, her unsuccessful movie career, her triumphant television career, and her headline making relationship with Burt Reynolds. The war years are here, as Dinah, the G.I.'s sweetheart, visited two hospitals in one day singing 157 songs for eleven straight hours.

Her famous cooking, praised by no less a critic than Craig Claiborne, her experiences with ESP, her contributions to women's professional golf and to women in general, are all included in this biography of one of the few women in the world equally at home chatting with either Spiro Agnew or Gloria Steinem.

Linda Bledsoe and Michael L. Bowersox were wed in a Saturday evening candlelight ceremony held in the First United Methodist Church parlor.

Rev. Elra Phillips conducted the ceremony before an altar enhanced by two blue and white flower arrangements in baskets flanked by two candelabrum.

Charles Parham, organist, accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Michael Ray Duke, sister of the bride, and played traditional wedding music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Bledsoe, 2708 Ann Dr. Mr. and Mrs. Jean Bowersox, Denton, are the groom's parents.

The bride chose to wear a gown of candlelight organza. French chantilly lace embroidered with seed pearls and edged with a crystal pleated organza ruffle enhanced the empire bodice which was accented by a mandarin collar edged with a matching ruffle. The skirt and chapel-length train were also encircled with matching pleated ruffles. A garden hat overlaid with organza and lace topped the bride's attire. The bridal bouquet of champagne colored baby chrysanthemums with blue rosebuds and baby's breath completed the bridal ensemble.

Linda Brito, wearing a light blue dotted swiss dress fashioned with a ruffle at the neckline and hemline and carrying a bouquet of baby blue mums, served as maid of honor. Tommy Boardman, El Reno, Okla., served as best man.

A reception in the church parlor immediately followed the rite. The two tiered wedding cake was served from a table covered with a full-length lace cloth over a white underlay. Silver and crystal appointments were used.

The bride attended Big Spring High School. The groom attended high school in El Reno, Okla., graduated from Big Spring High School and is a driller with Moran Oil Company.

After a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the couple will be at home at 1708 Runnels.

Secrets for summer job hunters

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens: It may seem early to be thinking of finding a summer job, but for those hoping to earn money in 1980 the time is now. Co-ed magazine offers six useful hints for young people seeking employment.

— Begin looking early. Many of the jobs available to teen-agers are seasonal, such as camp counselors and resort waiters and waitresses. As such, they are especially in demand, and the early bird may get the best shot at them, as well as the respect of a potential employer.

— Do your homework. Homework is not just a fact of school life. A well-prepared interviewee will have researched the company he is visiting and will formulate several thoughtful questions ahead of time.

— Check your appearance. Most employers don't expect a teen-ager to walk in with an ultra-short haircut, or in overly conservative clothing. What they do expect, however, is neatness: pressed pants and dresses, combed hair, an appearance of good grooming.

— Watch your manners. Manners mean more than knowing when to say "please" and "thank you." In a job interview situation manners mean offering a firm handshake, looking the interviewer directly in the eye, sitting and standing up straight and speaking clearly.

Don't be shy. The job interview situation is essentially a selling situation. When asked about previous experience, teen-agers too often assume the employer cares only about jobs for which he or she was paid and sell themselves short. But there are countless other areas where a teen-ager may have gleaned valuable experience, such as in work for a school paper, or on student council or baby-sitting a younger brother. Mention anything that might be pertinent.

— Be "upfront." Honesty is absolutely the best policy in the job interview situation. Saying you don't intend to go to college but will work full-time may get you the job initially, but when you leave after three months to start your freshman year, you'll leave behind the possibility of a poor recommendation that will follow you. Be honest about your previous training — or lack of it — your future plans, and whether you've ever been employed by "the competition."

Now with all this good info, teens, go get 'em. And don't forget to give me a 10 percent discount when I see you this summer (I'm only kidding — I think).

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Consumer reports and veteran TV producer enter pay-TV with Home Box Office special

SPRING WEDDING — Hoyle Nix and Mrs. Frances Cherry, Gail Rt., announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Hoyleene, to Stephen Daniel Foster, son of Mrs. Rebecca Foster, 1400 Stadium and R.A. Foster, Coahoma, March 22. The couple will be married in the First United Methodist Church with Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating.

Since 1936, Consumers Union has been providing consumers with "information and counsel on consumer goods and services" through its magazine Consumer Reports. The magazine has supplied its readers with ratings and evaluations on everything from peanut butter to color TV's. They now will be supplying television viewers the same services with their first full-length network television effort, "Consumer Reports Presents: The Food Show." The show premieres on HBO Thursday, February 7, 7:30 p.m. (EST).

"The purpose of the program is to give consumers positive, constructive advice which will aid them in food purchases," said executive producer Alvin Perlmutter in an interview during production. "We do tell consumers which products to avoid, as well as the good buys."

Perlmutter could be classified as a video auteur. As a creative administrator, he brings to Consumer Reports' first television show a body of work and experience which includes the creation of such programs as "The Great American Dream Machine," "NET Journal," "Black Journal," and "The Priceless Treasures of Dresden." In addition to his background as a producer, he served as vice president of NBC News.

"Most of the material is based on articles which have run in Consumer Reports, but television gives us the opportunity to present the information in a variety of styles. For example, 'The Truth About Yogurt' segment is a take-off on yogurt commercials. We even use two Chinese actors from a particular brand's actual commercial. Viewers will also be shown how to read a label properly with a segment called 'The Great Label Mystery.' A private eye investigates a number of products found on supermarket shelves. In effect, we're making consumerism interesting, but we aren't mixing serious information with the light material within segments." In addition to the information which has appeared in the magazine, the special will also feature two original segments. There is an investigative report entitled "Warning: Lead in Canned Foods." "It's been discovered," said Perlmutter, "that the lead used to solder seams in tin cans in certain instances can permeate the food. The result is an increase in the natural level of lead. The increased level can be unhealthy to children." The other original report, "Fruits and Vegetables: The Inside Story" will feature produce professionals offering their own criteria in selecting fresh fruits and vegetables. "Even in our lighter segments, the facts are always credible," said Perlmutter. "To inform viewers on how nutritional a baked potato can be we used the concept of an editorial reply. The reply is by a potato named Peter responding to an editorial which claimed potatoes are fattening." PETER: "Ever since I was a spud, I've been maligned and misrepresented. It's a smear campaign waged by butter and sour cream to call the potato fattening. Unadorned and baked in my stylish coat, I'm only 93 calories. Although the program has no host, there are 'Did You Know?' segments throughout bridging the other portions of the show. 'Did You Know?' is described by Perlmutter as "a laundry list of fascinating facts about food." Some examples? "Did you know that dry roasted peanuts have the same amount of calories as regular cocktail peanuts? Or did you know that the only difference between Wheaties and Total is that the latter is sprayed with a half cents worth of vitamins?" Using and showing brands and brand names such as Wheaties and Total is characteristic of the show. "Consumers Union encouraged us to name names," said Perlmutter, "and with the no-advertising policy of HBO we were able to show or name whatever we wanted. That's what makes it different. Due to sponsor pressure, I wouldn't have been able to do this show on commercial TV."

Being Present Can Be A Gift

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I will be married 40 years soon and plan to give a dinner party to celebrate this joyous occasion.

Our family and most of our friends are aware that this will be our 40th wedding anniversary, but we positively do not want any gifts!

You once stated in your column that it was improper to invite, "No gifts, please," on an invitation. Later you not only reversed yourself but offered some excellent alternatives. What were they?

KANSAS CITY INQUIRY

DEAR K.C.: I have stated many times that any mention whatsoever of gifts was improper on an invitation. This includes the forthright "No gifts, please," as well as the tasteless (in my view) suggestion that cash is preferred to any other type of gift.

Many sent sample invitations in which gifts were mentioned. Below are two that changed my mind:

"Mary and John Jones invite you to dine with us on the evening of June 1 at our home at 7:30 p.m."

"It is in celebration of our 20th wedding anniversary. Your friendship is a cherished gift. We respectfully request no other."

"The children of Alice and Donald Brown invite you to celebrate with them the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. A reception will be held May 20, 5 p.m. at Hillcrest Country Club."

"We request your help in compiling a book which recalls memories from our parents' first 50 years of marriage. On the enclosed sheet, we ask that you write one memory or event that you have shared with them, and return it to us by April 25. We believe that loving memories they have shared with you, their friends, would be the most treasured gift they could receive; therefore, we request that no other gift be sent."

DEAR ABBY: Years ago, when married people were invited to weddings, the invitations were addressed to "Mr. and Mrs."

Have times changed? Recently my physician husband received two wedding invitations addressed to him only. One was from a nurse, the other from a patient. He said both knew he was married.

He attended both weddings by himself because he is dedicated to his profession; but I feel my not being invited, and his accepting without me, was rude.

Can you update me on the present customs?

INVISIBLE PARTNER

DEAR PARTNER: Forget customs, etiquette and all the rest. Kindness and common sense outranks propriety and tradition in my book.

The invitations should have included you. But since they did not, your husband should have either requested permission to bring you — or stayed home himself.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Rangers don't want a woman

DALLAS (AP) — The director of the Texas Rangers says he does not want a woman law enforcement officer.

"I don't want a woman — sorry," Senior Capt. W.D. Wilson said at a session of the 86th annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

"Can you imagine the heat I'd get if a woman was working with West Texas sheriffs in their 60s?" Wilson asked. "And my biggest backers, as much as the men, are their wives. There are no triangles in the Rangers. Fool around and you lose your job. The wives appreciate that."

The Texas Rangers, founded in 1823, is the oldest law enforcement agency with state-wide jurisdiction in the nation. It now is part of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Cactus chapter of ABWA hears Chief of Police Bogart on crime

Cactus Chapter of American Business Womens Association met Jan. 21 for a salad supper in the Youth Hall of First Methodist Church. Margaret Wiles, president, presided over the business meeting. Evalina Sturdivant led the prayer and the pledge of Allegiance to the flag. Butch Cooley, program chairman, introduced Stanley Bogart, chief of police who spoke on crime in Big Spring.

Bogart said that a serious crime problem exists in Big Spring and throughout the state and nation. The reasons are that the courts are understaffed, the general public shows a lot of tolerance or apathy toward dishonesty and criminal acts, the narcotic problem and an increasing delinquency rate.

Lawlessness is tolerated because of apathy unless a crime or violence touches us directly. People are preoccupied with the problems of inflation, energy shortages, recession, unemployment and a breakdown in national leadership from top to bottom.

When Bogart entered the profession he was sworn in at 10 a.m., given a badge, and instructions to go buy himself a grey shirt, black trousers, black tie, Sam Brown belt, a pistol and a night stick. He was on the streets that night afoot to enforce the law. An officer now undergoes extensive testing and evaluation, is interviewed orally by a board of seasoned law enforcement officers, given a thorough physical and his background is investigated thoroughly. The Texas Commission on Law Enforcement in Austin then reviews this information before authorizing the hiring of the applicant.

"The police are doing the best job they can. We have witnessed new developments in scientific examinations of evidence with jurors more ready to accept these findings. We have benefited from a presidentially appointed crime commission study for our crime problems in the sixties with such programs as Operation I.D., Operation Lockup, Neighborhood Watch, Crime

Line, Crime Task Force, Selected Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) and several similar projects, and we have had some show of progress with citizen participation in these programs. However, I must quote several police officers. "The average citizen doesn't give a darn about crime until he or she becomes a victim," said Bogart.

Bogart challenged the individuals of the group as law abiding citizens to become concerned about the lawlessness and to keep informed about the problems, thereby becoming a part of the solution by getting involved. He challenged them to accept the responsibility to serve as jurors and to get involved if they see a crime being committed by telling the investigator what they saw and what they heard. He challenged each one to meet his obligation to his fellow man by helping him when he needs help because you might need his help next time.

Chief Bogart concluded with the statement that his profession is a tough, demanding, lonely and hardbitten life, but an exciting one that he has received many rewards for. "Everyone of us has an obligation to improve the society in which we live, and leave our community, our state and our world richer by having lived in it," Bogart concluded.

Esther Trantham, pediatric nurse at Malone-Hogan Clinic, was the vocational speaker. She will be retiring in March after nearly 30 years as a nurse. Frances Swann announced that Boss Night will be observed Feb. 19 at the Country Club. Reservations must be made by Feb. 15. The hospitality hour will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Gail Earls told of the International Modeling and Talent Convention to be at the Coliseum Feb. 22 and 23.

The Chapter voted to give second semester scholarships to Angie Fulgham, Irma Ross, Joann Permenter and Kathy Lloyd.

The Enrollment Tea will be in March with Virginia Bryant as chairperson.

The meeting closed with the 31 members attending repeating the Benediction in unison.

MARCH WEDDING — Mr. and Mrs. V.R. Hinsley, Coahoma, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Debbie, to Joe Don Zant Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dan Zant Sr., Vealmoor. The couple will be married at 6 p.m. March 8, in the First Baptist Church, Sand Springs.

Financial planning report issued by bank

SAN FRANCISCO — When a spouse dies, the surviving partner does not, contrary to popular belief, automatically assume ownership of the entire estate, Bank of America notes in its latest Consumer Information Report.

"Financial Transitions for the Widowed" is the 24th in a series of money management and personal financial planning reports issued by the bank. Copies are available without charge at all Bank of America branches.

In community property states, income earned during a marriage is owned equally by the couple. However, the deceased spouse's half may be disposed of by will.

"If there is no will or if an executor isn't named in the will, it may be necessary to file a petition with the probate court to probate the will or administer the estate," the report says.

The court will require a breakdown of an estate's assets, giving their present value, date and place acquired, value when acquired and form of ownership.

Some assets, however, are not considered part of the community property, the report states. For example, property held individually by a surviving spouse before a marriage or received as a gift of inheritance during a marriage remains separate. Additionally, the report points out, "If you and your spouse owned your home and other possessions as joint tenants, then ordinarily this property passes to you outside probate."

Access to funds in bank accounts shared with a spouse or maintained separately also is affected by inheritance tax laws and California probate guidelines.

According to reports, a surviving spouse as joint tenant or named beneficiary can transfer or withdraw only up to $30,000 from joint tenancy or informal trustee accounts. For larger amounts, a special consent to transfer form must be obtained from the county treasurer or state controller's office.

If an account is in a deceased spouse's name only and the estate is being settled through probate court, funds could be frozen. However, if the estate is small and qualifies for distribution through summary probate, funds may be released, but the same rules regarding a consent to transfer apply.

The report discusses procedures to collect insurance and other benefits, and to file tax forms. It so outlines steps to take when revising credit accounts and property records.

Title to property held jointly by a couple may be transferred into the surviving spouse's name alone, the report states.

If stocks and bonds are registered in both names, a tax clearance form from the county treasurer or state controller's office together with a certified copy of the death certificate should be presented to a bank officer or a stockbroker. The documents and securities will be forwarded to the transfer agent for the corporation requesting re-issuance.

20 applications received for Big Spring AD job

A total of 20 people applied for the job as Athletic Director in the Big Spring Public Schools. Deadlines for applications were January 31.

The role was previously combined with the job of the football coach, but the school board voted in December to separate the two.

Ron Logback, who held the AD-Football Coaching job the past two years, did re-apply for the athletic director's position.

According to School Superintendent Lynn Hise, a screening committee of three school board members and himself evaluated the prospective athletic directors and narrowed the list to three.

Two of the three will be interviewed behind closed doors on Monday. The other will be interviewed later.

Hise did indicate, however, that there is a possibility that other applicants could also be interviewed.

Hise is hoping to announce the athletic director within two weeks, stating: "We hope to make our announcement on February 14."

Bears claw Owls

HOUSTON (AP) — Sophomore forward Terry Teagle hit for 27 points to lead Baylor to a 60-57 win over the Rice Owls in Southwest Conference basketball action Saturday.

Teagle, the SWC's leading scorer, kept the Bears in the game throughout the first period by netting 16 of their 30 points, as Baylor took a 30-22 halftime lead.

Rice led early, but lost the lead six minutes into the ballgame, and did not score for the next four minutes.

In the second period, Rice switched from a zone to a man-for-man defense, but could not overcome the Bears.

Baylor's biggest lead of the game came with 6:23 remaining, when Pat Nunley hit two free throws to make the score 47-38.

Rice pulled within three points with 23 seconds left, but free throws by Bears Julio Gallardo and Chuck Stanley put the game away.

Rice scorers with 28 points led all scorers with 28 points.

The win gives Baylor a 4-4 SWC record, 9-11 overall, while Rice fell to 3-8 and 4-14.

DePaul routs NTSU

CHICAGO (AP) — Sophomore Mark Acquire scored 29 points, blocked five shots and had eight assists Saturday night in leading top-ranked and unbeaten DePaul to a 102-71 non-conference college basketball victory over North Texas State.

Macy, Kentucky victimize Vols

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kyle Macy scored 22 points as third-ranked Kentucky sent archrival Tennessee to its fifth straight Southeastern Conference defeat with a 83-75 college basketball victory Saturday night.

Edwards leading Crosby Pro-Am

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — David Edwards scrambled and struggled to a par 72 that gave him the third-round lead in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament, but comeback-minded Jack Nicklaus moved into contention with a sparkling exhibition of old-time form.

Edwards, a 24-year-old former national collegiate champion now in his second year of PGA Tour activity, sports a 54-hole total of 208, eight shots under par for one trip over each of three Monterey Peninsula courses. He seeks his first tour victory.

Nicklaus, determined to rebound from the worst season he's ever endured, subdued Pebble Beach with a no-bogey, 6-under-par 66 that put him within three strokes of the lead at 211.

UH edges by SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Larry Rogers' shot under the basket with four seconds to play gave Houston a 71-70 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

SMU scored 11 straight points to take a 15-7 lead early in the first half and led the rest of the way until Kenneth "Juice" Williams hit a 25-footer to tie the game at 68-all with 2:38 to play and Victor Ewing made a free throw to give Houston a 69-68 edge with 1:41 left.

Dave Piehler, whose double dribble minute earlier had given Houston the ball and the chance to take the lead, made a pair of free throws with 1:14 remaining to put SMU's Mustangs back on top.

But the Cougars worked for a final shot, getting the ball to Rogers underneath the goal for the winning shot. Piehler missed a 25-footer at the buzzer.

The victory evened Houston's record at 10-10 for the season and 5-5 in SWC play. SMU fell to 11-9 and 3-6.

LSU whips MSU

Rookies Magic Johnson, Larry Bird promise excitement NBA All-Star game today

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Rookies Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Larry Bird will test their passing games against the best in basketball Sunday in the 30th annual NBA All-Star Game at the Capital Centre.

Johnson, representing the Los Angeles Lakers, will start in the backcourt for the West team, which won last year's game 134-129 but trails 18-11 in the series. He's the first rookie to earn a starting spot since Elvin Hayes in 1969, and at 20 he's believed to be the youngest player ever to take part in the game.

Hogs beat UT at the gun

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — U.S. Reed swished a 20-foot jumper at the buzzer to give Arkansas a come-from-behind 60-59 victory over Texas Saturday night.

Fred Carson had hit a 12-foot jumper for Texas with nine seconds remaining to give the Longhorns a 59-58 lead when Arkansas called time out.

Reed took the inbounds pass and dribbled the length of the floor before driving between two Texas defenders to launch his shot. The ball left Reed's hands only a second before the buzzer sounded.

It was the second consecutive last-second victory for the Razorbacks, who had defeated Texas Tech earlier in the week on Mike Young's 15-footer with two seconds remaining in overtime.

GLAD TO SEE YOU — Denver Broncos head coach Red Miller, left, greets newly acquired quarterback Matt Robinson Friday night in Denver. Robinson came to Denver in a trade with the New York Jets for two college-draft choices and reserve quarterback Craig Penrose.

Bird, the 6-foot-9 forward who has been one of the keys to the resurgence of the Boston Celtics, will be among the reserves for the East squad, which will be coached by Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia. Lenny Wilkens of defending champion Seattle will guide the West.

The game will be nationally televised by CBS starting at 1 p.m. EST. A sellout crowd of 19,035 will be on hand at the Capital Centre, including NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien, who remarked about the enthusiasm show by pro basketball players toward the midwinter classic.

"The NBA All-Star Game is extremely unique," said O'Brien. "All the stars are here to play and here to win, which frankly surprised me when I first came to the league."

That attitude contrasts with other sports like baseball, which each summer experiences defections from its all-star game, and football, which had to move its Pro Bowl to Honolulu in order to get a large percentage of stars to participate.

"The guys play as hard in the All-Star Game as they would if the championship was on the line," said Hayes, the 6-foot-9 forward of the Washington Bullets who made this year's East squad as a reserve and has not missed the game since he entered the NBA 12 years ago.

"I've never seen a guy not be up for this game," added Hayes. "Everyone looks forward to the game. It's the stamp of approval for everyone. It's a real confidence builder. It shows the respect others have for your ability and indicates you're one of the best players in the league."

Johnson will be joined in the West's starting backcourt by Lloyd Free of San Diego, the league's No. 2 scorer with a 31.4 average. Completing the starting five will be center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles and forwards Marques Johnson of Milwaukee and Adrian Dantley of Utah.

The East's starting five lists forwards Julius Erving of Philadelphia and John Drew of Atlanta, center Moses Malone of Houston and guards Eddie Johnson of Atlanta and George Gervin of San Antonio.

The starters were chosen by fan balloting in league cities. A total of 2.1 million votes were cast, and the top vote-getter for the second straight season was Gervin, who is gunning for his third straight scoring title and leads the NBA with a 33.7 average.

Little led Tech slugs TCU

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — David Little fattened his scoring average at the expense of Texas Christian Saturday night, getting 19 points and leading Texas Tech to a 57-42 Southwest conference basketball win.

Godine led SFA stops Texas A&I

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Guard Karl Godine hit a layup with 26 seconds left to give Stephen F. Austin a 60-58 victory over Texas A&I here Saturday night.

The win kept the Lumberjacks on top of the Lone Star Conference standings with a 7-1 record. A&I fell to 3-5 in the league.

Stephen F. Austin is 13-7 for the year and A&I is 9-7.

The Javelinas led 58-50 with 7:32 left when the Lumberjacks scored eight straight and then went into a delayed game. They didn't shoot until Godine hit his game-winning layup.

Little has now scored 76 points in three games against TCU.

The Raiders, playing a sticky man-for-man defense, took a 25-23 halftime lead but widened the margin in the second period, and TCU never got closer than five points in the last 20 minutes of play.

Eric Summers led all Frog scorers with 14.

Tech hit 50 percent of its field goal tries, while its stout defense held the Frogs to just 40 percent.

The win keeps Tech in third place with a 6-4 SWC mark, thanks to Texas' last-second 60-59 loss at Arkansas, and gives the Raiders a 12-8 season mark. The Frogs fell to 2-7 and 7-12.

Late in the game, Little and TCU's Deckery Johnson had to be separated by referees as they came close to exchanging blows. Each player was assessed a personal foul and the game resumed without further incident.

"It was just one of those things," TCU coach Jim Killingsworth said of the shoving incident. "They both are nice kids. When you have a heated game going things like that happen sometimes. But it certainly didn't have anything to do with the outcome."

Tech coach Gerald Myers praised his team's defensive effort.

"We played better defense as a team than we have in a long time," he said. "That had been my biggest concern."

Killingsworth noted that Tech was not called for a personal foul until 5:18 had expired in the first half, and wound up with just nine fouls for the game.

Maryland stuns Duke

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Greg Manning scored a career-high 26 points while leading 12th-ranked Maryland to a 101-82 victory over the fifth-ranked Blue Devils in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday.

The Terps, now 8-1 and leading the ACC, got their fast break game rolling in the second half after taking a 36-28 lead at halftime despite having Albert King and Earnest Graham in foul trouble.

King and Graham, Maryland's leading scorers who combined for a 39-point average, totaled only six points at intermission. But King finished with 16 and Graham 12 as the Terps increased their record to 16-3.

Duke, now 17-4 overall and 5-4 in the ACC, was led by Gene Banks with 21 points,

Woman drops charges against 'Too Tall'

DALLAS (AP) — A woman's rape complaint against boxer Ed "Too Tall" Jones has been dropped and police have closed the books on the incident, but the bizarre controversy continued to rage Saturday.

Although she signed an affidavit Friday night saying she would not press for prosecution against the former Dallas Cowboys football player, the woman still says she was raped.

And attorneys for the former Dallas Cowboys football player said they came up with "conclusive proof" Saturday morning that a rape did not occur during the pre-dawn hours Thursday. However, they said they were not prepared to reveal the evidence at this time.

Jones, 28, who had spent the night with the woman's roommate, was hauled to jail Thursday morning and released four hours later on $2,500 bond pending a police investigation of the woman's complaint.

She said she awoke at 2:30 a.m. to find Jones in the act of raping her. The 6-foot-9 former defensive end denied the accusation and the next day, the woman withdrew the complaint.

"The case is closed as far as we're concerned," said police spokesman Bob Shaw. "As soon as she signed the non-prosecution affidavit, that was the end of it."

The woman, 25, said she decided to drop the case because she did not want to go "through the emotional trauma and publicity of a trial."

"I think Ed Jones is a very nice man and I don't want to do anything to hurt his career," she said. "I just want to go back to my normal way of living. I just want everything to be over."

But she also said, "I know he did rape me."

Jones' attorney Fred Time said he has uncovered "evidence that will show the whole world he didn't do any rape. We don't care what that woman says."

He said the evidence would be released "in a couple of days — the timing has to be just right. We're still wondering if the grand jury is going to hear this. When I know ... that's when we're going to do it."

Time also said the woman was not given money to withdraw her complaint. "We want to show the world there was no payoff here," he said.

Jones and his lawyers had maintained that the complaint was "frivolous" and a "fabrication" and said they suspected Jones was "set up."

The woman would not go into details of the incident leading to Jones' arrest Friday night, but police said she initially told them she awoke to find Jones on top of her in her bed.

Lake Placid residents ready for vacation

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The local high school almost always is the focal point in a community this size — and for years Lake Placid was no exception.

The school still takes up the block across from town hall on Main Street. But now it sports a new refrigerated speed skating oval and temporary grandstands in its front yard.

A new $16.5 million fieldhouse next door dwarfs the school building, where technicians and movers swarm around crates of sophisticated machinery and supplies.

The students have cleaned out their lockers for a six week vacation. Now the rest of world will "go to school" via the temporary Olympic news center. And Lake Placid's 2,700 year-round residents will turn into extras as cameras and microphones from all over the world turn the village into a backdrop for two weeks of Winter Games.

Olympic organizers still expect up to 50,000 people a day to jam into the area during the Games, which begin Feb. 12 with opening ceremonies the next day.

Many of the roughly 1,000 state and federal security officers already have shown up, sealing off the future medium security prison that will house athletes and conducting maneuvers with

NBA owners accept new franchise in Dallas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Basketball Association's Board of Governors reached agreement with the executive committee of the Players Association on a new three-year contract Saturday.

The Board also voted to accept the expansion committee's recommendation to place a franchise in Dallas, but under significantly different terms.

The new working agreement, which will be voted on by the Players Association on Monday, will extend through the 1981-82 season.

Commissioner Larry O'Brien said the new contract would resolve the dispute concerning cable television revenues; provide for increases in minimum salary, per diem expenses and playoff money; limit the extent of deferred compensations which may be

Ali to begin mission in Tanzania

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, a special envoy of President Carter, will begin his five-nation African tour with a rejection from Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, according to reports from U.S. Embassy officials Saturday.

The embassy representatives said Tanzanian officials turned down their attempts to arrange a meeting between Nyerere and Ali, who is to arrive Sunday. Instead, the highest

Olympic boycott drawing mixed reactions

While the Olympic Torch moves on a steady course to ignite the Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y., the controversy over the Summer Games in Moscow continues to flare on several fronts.

Some three dozen countries, according to the U.S. State Department, have indicated their belief that Moscow would be an inappropriate place to hold the Olympics this summer.

But State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Friday that only 17 of the countries have publicly announced their positions. And to further cloud the situation, Olympic executives from five of them voted at a meeting in Frankfurt, Germany, to support the concept of participation in the Moscow Games.

The 17 countries who have publicly announced their anti-Moscow positions, according to Carter, include: Canada, Great Britain, The Netherlands, Norway, Luxembourg, Chile, Haiti, Australia, Fiji, New Guinea, New Zealand, China, Djibouti, Zaire, Egypt,

Ali to begin mission in Tanzania

Tanzanian official Ali will see is the minister for national youth and culture, C.Y. Mgonja.

Ali will visit Tanzania, Kenya, Senegal, Liberia and Nigeria to muster support for the U.S. stand on the Moscow Olympics. Carter has called for postponing, canceling or moving the Summer Games as a protest of the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

Tanzanian officials said Nyerere would be too busy with visiting Irish President Patrick Hillery to meet Ali.

Ali's visit was arranged on short notice and comes amid the Hillery visit and while Tanzanians are engaged in several days of celebrating the anniversary of the ruling Revolutionary Party.

Of the five African countries Ali is to visit, Tanzania is the least likely to support the U.S. Olympic position.

A top Tanzanian sports official said recently that the Western countries "didn't support us in '76 when we were boycotting over racism. Why should we help them now?"

Tanzania took part in the

Ali to begin mission in Tanzania

1976 African boycott of the Montreal Olympics called because of New Zealand's sports links with South Africa, which has a policy of apartheid — racial separation.

Tanzanian officials said privately they feel it is an insult for Carter to have sent a boxer to confer with Nyerere.

Ali is to arrive Sunday from India and stay 23 hours before going to Kenya where President Daniel Arap Moi has expressed support for the U.S. Olympic position.

YOUNG IDEAS

By DICK YOUNG

"DEAR DICK," The letter starts very pleasantly, "what you failed to mention in your column is that you free-loading sportswriters will lose a mealticket if the U.S. pulls out of the Olympics. I don't blame you for blasting Jimmy Carter when the man is about to deprive you of a trip to Moscow, food, drinks, etc.," and he signs himself, "Just an average fan who reads between the lines."

At first I thought this was my buddy Jimmy Breslin dropping me a fan letter under one of his clever noms de plume, but then I saw a 15c stamp on the envelope so I knew it had to be from somebody else.

If there's anything I don't need it's a trip to Moscow. Nobody does. I have never been there, but I know several people who have, including a lady journalist, and they are unanimous. They say it is the pits. The food is lousy and buggy, not with vanden, but with electronic bugs, and I drink nothing but red wine, so they can shove their vodka.

I had planned to go to Moscow for the same reason I covered an inter-racial boxing match in South Africa. I wanted to see apartheid in action, and I want to see despotism, Communist version, in action. Without the Moscow Olympics, believe me, I can freeload much better in My America for the two or three weeks.

The next letter started off "Dear Stupid Ideas," obviously from a reader of long-standing. Luis Roberto of Corona, L.I., goes on to say, "I'm sorry to write you that way, but I'm proud of my country and when a bully like the USSR starts up, the only thing to do is stand up to him."

Hey, Luis, nobody is prouder of this country than I am, or least of what it used to be when it really stood up to the bullies, and demanded the respect of the rest of the world, and got it. You don't stand up to a bully by telling him you won't play games with him, especially when it happens to be his ball, as it is in this case. He'll find somebody else to play with. And then he'll tell everybody you were afraid to play him, and everybody will believe him, at least everybody in the USSR will believe him, because they know only what they are told by the commissars, who are very good at crapping their people.

Then there's one of the letters from the other side, from David K. Lieberman, of Jamaica, N.Y., who says Jimmy Carter's boycott of the Olympics is "a vain, political ploy," as candidate Jerry Brown described it. That it is. The trouble is, the play works. People rally behind its emotional appeal. Congressmen rally behind it because they want to be on the side of the people. Too late will they realize that boycotting the Moscow Olympics is a hollow and minuscule action when taken with the enormity of the issue. We must do more, much more, or do nothing at all.

Stephen Mokone of East Elmhurst makes the point that unlike South African apartheid, the Russian in Afghanistan does not mix sports with politics, inasmuch as no sports are involved, only politics. "What advice do you now have for President Carter," he asks.

The same as before: break diplomatic relations with the USSR. That would get their attention as nothing else short of war will. Refusing to play games with them is a joke, with the commissars doing the laughing. It is a bigger joke because Jimmy Carter, the man making all the moralistic noise, is scheduled to be up in Lake Placid on Feb. 13 to welcome the Russian skiers at the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics. Talk about inconsistency. That's closer to hypocrisy.

Along that line, David Sterling of Garden City, N.Y., writes: "The State Department could refuse to issue visas to Russian athletes who wish to participate in bobsled, figure skating, hockey, luge, skiing and speed skating."

At least that would be consistent, although I doubt it would have any more genuine effect than our not going to Moscow for the Summer Games. The comrades simply would say we didn't want to have the Russian skiers win most of the medals, which they will do. We would know that's not the real reason, but the Russians don't care what we think. That's pretty obvious every day at the United Nations building. My position on the Olympics is viewed by George Sulkan of Brooklyn to be "immoral, selfish, warped, inhuman and downright communistic-loving," and what's more he doesn't like it. Me, good old conservative Dick Young, a commie-lover. Mr. Sulkan says I should stop worrying about the Afghanistan athletes, which I will do if I can find one.

I suppose what I'm really trying to say, amidst a mountain of pro-and-con mail and all sorts of divergent newspaper opinions, is that Jimmy Carter should, just this once, stop passing the buck. Don't ask the U.S. Olympic Committee to do his dirty work. Don't make an athletic crisis out of the Afghanistan situation. Don't threaten the Russians with the possibility that you're not going to invite them to play croquet on the White House lawn unless they show better manners. Tell them as of now we will have no relations with them whatsoever, commercial, political, or diplomatic. Then they'll stop laughing.

I've seen prize fighters like Jimmy Carter. For the first 2 1/2 minutes of a 3-minute round, they do nothing. Then, they try to steal the round in the last 30 seconds — and some judges fall for it. Just as John R. Dozier, Jr., of Maspeth, N.Y., believes "the boobs of this country will re-elect him as sure as God made little apples, and the great Daily News will be one of the first papers to come out in his support."

Maybe so, but at least the great Daily News doesn't stop me from saying this.

Eagles stop Steers

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Abilene Eagles held off a second half Big Spring Steer rally Saturday night to take a 73-61 win in a District 5-AAAA game played in Steer Gym.

The Eagles, who suffered a one-point loss to first half co-champion Odessa Permian on Friday night, came out pressing, and their strategy reaped early dividends that would be too much for the Steers to overcome.

Abilene took a 19-11 lead after one stanza, and increased it 32-14 early in the second stanza, and the contest appeared over for all practical purposes. The Steers rallied throughout the remainder of the period, but big David Russell's shot at the halftime buzzer gave the War Birds a comfortable 42-28 lead.

But Big Spring's James Doss sparked a third quarter rally that kept the Bovines within striking distance entering the final stanza. Doss scored 11 of his game high 21 points in the third period.

Big Spring quickly scored four unanswered points to begin the final stanza to pull within 10, but could come no closer than eight points in the final minutes. Robert Rubio scored all seven of his points in this stanza, as the Eagles could not breathe easily until less than a minute remained.

Besides Doss, Fletcher Johnson was the only other Steer in double figures with 12 points.

David Chalk was the high point scorer for Abilene with 15, with Russell adding 14. Russell was the main difference in the contest, as he controlled the backboards throughout.

The loss gives Big Spring a second half record of 0-2, and a season mark of 5-19. Abilene is 1-1 and 14-13.

In a Friday night contest, the Midland Bulldogs simply outclassed the Steers, taking an 82-39 win.

The Bulldogs jumped out to a 27-13 halftime lead, thanks mainly to 12 points from Perry Bolger and the rebounding of 6'9" Herbert Johnson.

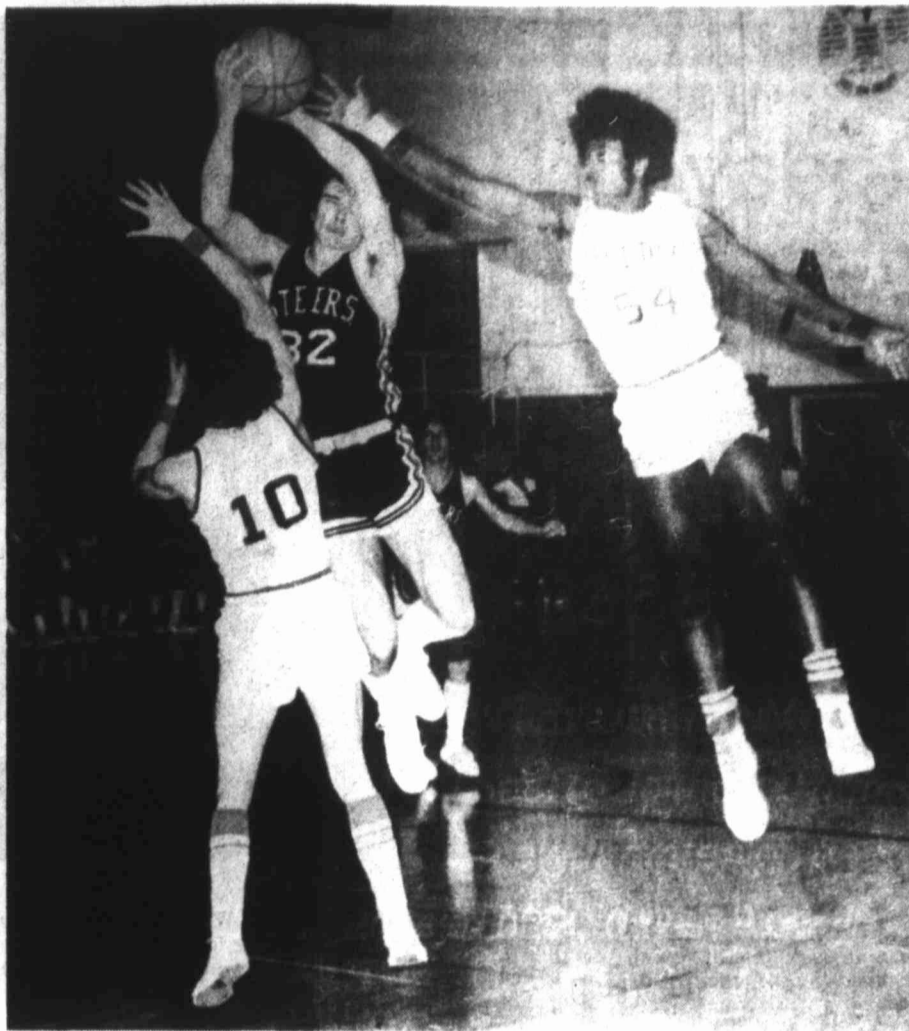

The taller Midland crew used a full-court press throughout the contest, and it worked to near perfection on many occasions.

Johnson led all scorers in the contest with 18 points, while Bolger ended up with 16.

Big Spring was led in the scoring column in the Midland loss by James Doss and Blake Rosson, who had eight each.

The win boosts the Bulldogs second half record to 1-1. Midland tied with Odessa Permian for the first half title. The Purple Pack is now 25-5 on the year.

The win gives Midland a second half record of 2-2, while the Big Spring girls are now 0-4 in second half play.

Pam Burns was nearly the entire show for the Steerettes, scoring 18 points.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Director Steve Berizzi of the Texas Swimming Center says he has been instructed to proceed with plans for the 1980 Olympic Swimming and Diving Trials here.

However, he adds, it "makes me almost physically ill" to think of having to refund ticket

NHL players seek agreement with owners

DETROIT (AP) — National Hockey League players and team owners will try once again to reach some agreement on the issue of free agency in meetings prior to the 32nd All-Star Game Tuesday night.

The league's Board of Governors and the NHL Players Association will meet individually Monday, then hold a face-to-face negotiation session Tuesday on the controversial topic.

That will be virtually all the business transacted at these sessions with other matters, including a return to imbalanced scheduling and the institution of overtime to decide tie games, to be discussed in meetings at New York in March.

"The players are seeking some modification in the present system of equalization," said NHL President John Ziegler, speaking of the format that gives cash, players, draft choices — or a combination — to teams losing free agents who sign with other clubs.

"It has been suggested the players would like to see compensation in the form of the cash and/or draft choices instead of players," Ziegler executive director of their association.

Progress on the matter does not seem likely at this juncture, as the players are expected to devote much of their meeting Monday to the status of Alan Eagleson, the cash and draft choices of Alan Eagleson, the status of players," Ziegler executive director of their association.

Sports section reader feedback

Dear Sports Editor,

In a recent school board meeting, the job of Athletic Director and Head Football Coach was split into two jobs. What was the reasoning behind the split? A quote in the Big Spring Herald from the President of the school board said it was to relieve some of the burden so that the minor sports would not suffer, and it would give the football coach more time to coach football. In my opinion I have found that none of the so called minor sports have suffered either financially or from lack of participation. It was also stated that other schools in the district have an Athletic Director and head football coach as two separate people. This is fine, but the other schools in the district have two high schools, and as many as 5 or 6 junior high schools. Big Spring has one of each.

Just recently the Midland schools hired two head coaches and an Athletic Director. Each head coach will receive $30,000 a year and the Athletic Director $35,000. Big Spring pays their Athletic Director-Football Coach now $25,000 a year, of which $3,500 is paid to the man for carrying out the Athletic Director's duties. It seems very unlikely that the school district is going to find a person to carry out the duties and maintain the title of Athletic Director for $5,500 a year. So if Big Spring is to keep up with the other schools in the district, then the position of Athletic Director will carry a salary of $25,000 a year and the head coach will carry a salary of $22-25,000 a year.

It will be very hard to improve on the job that Coach Logback has done in the dual role. It seems to be the consensus of the majority of the players I have talked to that this is a slap in the face to the job he has done. Granted we did not win in football, but the respect and care shown to each player by Logback is something some players on a winning team would like to have. Being a coach's son as I am, I have found that it takes at least 3-5 years for a coach to get his program off the ground. Here at Big Spring, it might not ever happen, because no coach has been able to get his program started for one reason or another.

They say that coaches keep their jobs by winning. Winning what? The only measuring stick that you find is the final score on the scoreboard. Does this mean the coach is a failure because he does not win enough games to suit the public?

The public puts pressure on the school board and the board takes it out on the coach. It seems that if we could keep a coach for at least four years, we might start a transition to be more competitive in all sports. So guys it looks as if you will have another new head coach next year, a new personality, a new program, new offense, new defense. What are we? Right back where we were 2 years ago.

Thanks a lot,
Larry Bloskas

Holmes vs. Zanon, Gomez vs. Valdez

Title bouts set today

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Two world championship fights are on the card at Caesars Palace on Sunday, yet the best fight might well be between Thomas Hearns and Jim Richards.

The headlined bouts have WBC heavyweight champion Larry Holmes going against Italy's Lorenzo Zanon and super bantamweight king Wilfredo Gomez meeting the No. 2 contender Ruben Valdez.

Holmes hails from Easton, Pa., Gomez from Puerto Rico and Valdez from Colombia.

Ken Norton knew when to retire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ken Norton knew when it was time to quit the ring. The veteran of 11 years of professional fighting, once the World Boxing Association's heavyweight champion, also was wise enough to invest a large chunk of the money he made from the sport.

So when he took off his gloves for good after Earnie Shavers knocked him out in the first round last March, Norton was able to make a smooth transition to the world of business and investments.

"I could have hung around and gotten hurt, but that wouldn't have been right for me or for the image of boxing. I made the right choice at the right time," said the 34-year-old Norton, an ex-Marine who broke Muhammad Ali's jaw in one non-title bout but lost twice in rematches.

"The only time I get the itch," he added, "is when I see a fight like the one in South Africa (the John Tate-Gerrie Coetzee World Boxing Association heavyweight bout). Any retired fighter who watched that had to wonder if he'd gotten out too soon."

Such an occasional thought of a comeback aside, Norton is doing just fine in retirement.

Of the $10 million or so he earned in the ring, he said, he followed a philosophy of "investing 50 percent, banking 25 and blowing the remainder."

Jack Cohen, a friend of Norton's late manager Bob Biron and a man who is associated with Norton in many of his investments, said the former boxer is definitely a millionaire.

He said Norton should have no financial problems "as long as he conducts himself wisely over the next few years."

"The credit," Cohen said "is Norton's. He has an instinctive and remarkable touch for making the right decision, for putting his trust in the right people. He was always being hit on for this loan or that loan, this deal or that deal. But he's never been a schemer, a guy you can take advantage of."

Norton has another philosophy that says man does not live on financial investments alone. Among his many interests is acting.

While still fighting he made screen appearances in "Drum" and "Mandingo." At 6-foot-3 and 220 pounds, he possesses the striking features of a Hollywood leading man and he is taking acting and voice lessons.

Should his acting and singing endeavors fail, he figures he should emerge better equipped to speak publicly and to enhance his own image and that of blacks and former athletes.

"I've always believed that anything the mind conceives, the body can achieve," he said.

Hearns fights out of Detroit as an undefeated welterweight aiming at the crown of either Sugar Ray Leonard or Pipino Cuevas.

Both Holmes and Gomez are considered outstanding favorites for their Sunday bouts, which will be nationally televised by ABC in a card that starts at Caesars Palace Sports Pavilion at 12:15 p.m. PST.

Hearns might have some trouble but already looks forward to fighting Leonard, Cuevas or Roberto Duran, the former lightweight king who has now moved into the 147-pound class.

"Basically, I would like to fight anybody at the top," said Hearns, who is disappointed that his fight probably will not be nationally televised. With a 24-0 record, including 22 knockouts, he feels he's been cheated by television.

"I'm getting bad breaks and no good breaks as far as television goes," said the 6-foot-1 skinny fighter who hits like a heavyweight. He said he would rather meet Leonard or Cuevas than Duran because the latter, one of history's best lightweights, still hasn't won the welterweight title.

Only if both of the two title fights end in early rounds will Hearns be seen over television, and this bugs him.

"I wish people could see me the same way they see Leonard," he said.

"I figure I've got a good chance against either of the guys," referring to the WBC and WBA champions. "I wish I could get a fight with either one of them this year."

Veteran Kranepool still hopes to play

NEW YORK (AP) — He rode baseball's most bizarre roller-coaster from the depths to the peaks and back to the depths again and now he is hanging in the wind — hurt, disillusioned, unsure of his future.

"I'd like to keep playing — I'm younger than a lot of guys who are still going strong," said big Ed Kranepool, the last of the original Amazin' Mets. "I could do a creditable front office job — that's what I've always aspired to. But all I can do now is wait."

It was diamond castoffs such as Kranepool that Lou Brock had in mind recently when, discussing the insensitivity of baseball, he said: "When you leave a big company, you get a ring or a watch. When baseball is through with you, you get a telephone call."

Kranepool wasn't even accorded that courtesy when the crumbling Mets decided they had no further use for the 35-year-old outfielder-first baseman who had been with the team from its inception in 1962 and set many of the club's all-time records.

"I got a terse notice in the mail that I no longer figured in their plans," he said. "It was a carbon copy at that. The original went to my agent, Dick Moss."

Kranepool placed himself on the free agent market but neither he nor Moss has pushed for employment with another club. They chose to wait out the impending sale of the New York National League club, purchased a week ago by book publisher Nelson Doubleday and friends for $21.1 million.

"I had a good life with the Mets," the 6-foot-3, 215-pound New York native said, managing to blot out the miserable of the last couple of years. "I love the organization. I love New York. Sure, I would like to remain in some capacity, but it would depend on who is making the evaluation."

Embittered as he is after being treated like a frayed dish cloth, Kranepool refuses to make charges and name names.

His loyalty to a tradition, however tarnished, runs so deep that it drowns out all the justified venom that swells in his soul. He did his bit when the Mets were the buffoons of baseball. He refused to join the internal bickering when the club's morale disintegrated and the Mets fell back into the catacombs.

As late as the spring of 1978, when the Mets had shuffled away Tom Seaver's lightning fast ball and Dave Kingman's home run bat and when discontent seethed in the locker room, only Kranepool's voice was raised in defense of the club.

"What kind of gripe do these guys have?" he said of the complainers. "We have a lot of young talent. We're a building club. We'll win again just as we did in 1969. Wait and see."

Kranepool maintains a stiff upper lip. He lives in suburban Hicksville, N.Y., and commutes daily to an interim job with a Long Island collection agency. He has other irons in the fire but he is not ready to abandon baseball.

"I should be good for at least two more years of playing," he said. "Then move into the front office. I have the qualifications."

McGinnis traded back to Pacers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — George McGinnis' long and controversial odyssey through professional basketball has come full circle, back to his hometown and the team he left for greater glory five years ago.

McGinnis, 29, returned to the Indiana Pacers on Friday in a trade with the Denver Nuggets. He is expected to play on Tuesday against the Philadelphia 76ers, the team with which he signed in 1975.

"I'm feeling great," said the 6-foot-8 forward Friday night as he prepared to leave Denver. "I'm glad to get out of here and be coming home. Without question, that's the best place for me."

"My problem has been that I haven't had a 100 percent effort behind me in the organization," he said of his 4½-year career in the National Basketball Association. "It's never been the case since I left Indiana before, especially not here (in Denver)."

The Pacers reacquired McGinnis in exchange for reserve forward Alex English and a first-round pick in the 1980 NBA draft. The draft pick is the one Indiana acquired from Boston in an earlier trade for Earl Tatum, making it one of the later picks on the first round.

McGinnis starred for Indiana in the old American Basketball Association, averaging 24.8 points per game for four seasons. He moved to Philadelphia of the NBA in 1975 and spent three years with the 76ers before being traded to Denver in exchange for Bobby Jones and Ralph Simpson in 1978. He averaged 22.6 points per game last year, but this season slumped to a 15.6 average.

"Everything has been predicated on my scoring 30 points and getting 30 rebounds," McGinnis said. "Well, I just can't do that every night. The one thing I've learned since I left Indiana was that there are other parts of the game that are just as important."

"Once I get there, once I get involved, once those guys get an opportunity to play with me, I'll show them I'm out to help them win ball games. All I'm asking is that people give me time. I'll play, I'll prove my point."

Tulsa seeks new coach to replace Jim King

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — University of Tulsa officials are expected to name a search committee next week to find a replacement for basketball coach Jim King, who resigned Friday.

King resigned, effective immediately, citing what spokesmen called a disappointing season and family concerns.

Athletic Director Emery Turner appointed Bill Franey, assistant coach for the Hurricane, as King's replacement beginning with tonight's home contest against Bradley.

King, Tulsa coach since 1975, resigned during a late Friday afternoon meeting with school President J. Paschal Twyman.

The Hurricane lost its third straight game Thursday night to Creighton in Omaha, Neb. The loss dropped Tulsa's record to 6-12.

Stanton boys win to keep second half record clean

STANTON — The Stanton boys won their third straight District 5-A second half basketball decision by topping Whiteface, 51-47, here Friday night. The loss was the visitors' first in second half competition.

The Buffaloes were to play a makeup game in Ropes Saturday night.

Lewis Henry tossed in 16 points and Derrick Looney 15 for Stanton while R. Richardson led Whiteface with 20.

Overall, Stanton boasts a 16-8 record.

Whiteface won the girls' game, 31-27. Stanton is winless in three second half games. Whiteface, the first half champion, is 4-0 in the second half.

Marcie Young tallied 17 points for Stanton while

Women's bowling state tourney begins March 28

AUSTIN — The second largest, second richest Texas Women's Bowling Association Championship Tournament, with the largest number of traveling teams ever, will open at Corpus Christi on March 28 with an estimated prize fund of $135,799, according to tournament director Lil Poole, Hurst, who is also secretary of the 146,087 Texas women bowlers.

"It was necessary to add one additional weekend to our original schedule to accommodate all those women wishing to participate in the 1980 event, so we'll be rolling right through the 4th of July weekend," she added.

"The Corpus Christi Women's Bowling Association generated 196 five-women teams, and in addition to those, there will be 6367 sets of doubles, 12,734 singles and 12,208 optional all events entries," Poole concluded.

Opening night for the 1980 event will be March 28 with a squad of the state's senior-age citizens (65 years or older) teams, thereafter bowling will be continuous each weekend, except April 26-27, when local and state association officials attend the Women's International Bowling Congress annual convention in Seattle.

Calaveras largemouth almost breaks state record

AUSTIN — The second-largest largemouth bass ever caught in Texas was taken by an Austin angler from Calaveras Lake early Jan. 16.

The brute weighed an even 13 pounds on certified scales — only eight ounces shy of the 37-year-old state record.

John Godfrey said he hooked the fish at 12:45 a.m. on a four-inch black plastic worm with a chartreuse tail. "I thought it probably weighed about 10 pounds, so I kept on fishing for awhile," Godfrey said. "I was surprised at how close to the state record it was when I put it on the scales."

The fish was 27 inches long and 22 inches in girth. A scale count confirmed the fish as a Florida largemouth stocked by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, probably in 1974.

Department biologists estimated that if caught approximately a month later the female fish would have exceeded the 13 pound, eight ounce state record because of the additional weight of eggs.

Godfrey's catch comes on the heels of a flurry of 12-pound-plus largemouths caught in East Texas. Biologists predict the new state record bass will come either from a private lake, Lake Monticello near Mount Pleasant, or Calaveras, which is located just southeast of San Antonio.

Godfrey, who was fishing alone, said the big bass jumped four times before he was able to land it with his graphite rod and 14-pound-test line. He said he also has caught several largemouths over eight pounds from Calaveras, with most hooked between 11 p.m. and daybreak.

Vietnam war drama opens locally

"Apocalypse Now" is intended as a film opera," states Francis Coppola. "Although it is set during the Vietnam War, it could have taken place at any time in any jungle where the civilized encountered the primitive. I have attempted to make a theatrical-film-myth dealing with the theme of moral ambiguity. The film was made in a faraway location with hundreds of film artists who were all close collaborators. Indeed, much of the journey of making the film was the mirror image of the story we were making — no one was left unchanged."

Indeed, no one was left unchanged, from the moment that Coppola decided to film "Apocalypse Now," which was based on a script by John Milius that Coppola had owned since 1970. Freely making use of material and characters from Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness," Coppola used other important source material such as T.S. Eliot's "The Hollow Men" and "The Wasteland" and "From Ritual to Romance" and Sir James Fraser's "The Golden Bough." The narrative was written by Michael Herr, author of the book "Dispatches," an important journal about the Vietnam War.

Starring Marlon Brando, Robert Duvall and Martin Sheen, with Frederic Forrest, Albert Hall, Sam Bottoms, Larry Fishburne and Dennis Hopper, "Apocalypse Now" was produced and directed by Coppola. The film was written by Jon Milius and Francis Coppola and co-produced by Red Roos, Gray Frederickson and Tom Sternberg. Narration is by Michael Herr; Vittoria Storaro is the director of photography. Dean Ravoularis is the production manager, Richard Marks is the editor, sound design is by Walter Murch and music is by Carmine Coppola. "Apocalypse Now" is an Omni Zoetrope Production released by United Artists, a Transamerica Company. The picture opened Friday at the Cinema Theatre in the College Park Shopping Center.

While assembling the multi-national cast including thousands of extras, some of them Vietnamese refugees, Coppola also was intimately involved with his technical staff in scouting locations among the far-flung, sometimes impenetrable jungle islands of the Philippines during the last months of 1975. Using helicopters and light planes, they searched those exotic islands for terrain that looked like those that the U.S. forces had fought through along the Mekong Delta, in mountainous Cam Ranh, on Annam beaches and in the green hell of the Cambodian jungles.

Having almost daily fashioned the finished script from raw material, Coppola, who reached his 40th birthday while overseeing post-production work and editing hundreds of thousands of feet of exposed film is forthright about this, his admittedly most ambitious undertaking.

"It was a tough project, taking on a tough subject," he declared. "Vietnam is a microcosm of war in modern times and the themes that were evident — the use of men, the use of dope, the technology of napalm, the struggle, the politics of the struggle — all come together to put an audience through an experience — frightening but violent only in proportion with the idea being put across — that will hopefully change them in some small way."

APOCALYPSE NOW OPENS — As attack helicopters buzz overhead and the sounds of smoke and battle rage around them, U.S. troops participate in a Holy Communion service. "Apocalypse Now" opened Friday at the Cinema Theatre in the College Park Shopping Center through United Artists release.

The gripping action, adventure, special effects, and most importantly, the surrealistic traumatic effect it had on the men followed by the experience of Vietnam are combined in

"Apocalypse Now" in a sensitive and artistic synthesis of Coppola's view of "what the truth was."

Take advantage of library magazines

BY CATHY McCracken
Children's Librarian
Howard County Library

How many advertisements for magazine subscriptions do you receive in your mailbox and throw away each year? How many students selling subscriptions door to door go away empty handed after they've been turned down? There may be a number of magazines you would enjoy taking, but for various reasons are unable to receive at your home. Instead of moaning over the magazines you don't have, read the ones that you do have then come to the Howard County Library and look through our magazine section for those you have missed.

We have an excellent magazine section in our library complete with easy chairs for you to relax in while you enjoy reading about famous people, looking at the latest fashions, or chuckling over cartoons. Magazines must remain in the library, so they do not check out, but for 10 cents a copy on our Xerox machine you may take home any article you wish.

With the beginning of a new year, we are adding more and more magazines to our collection, so you can be kept up to date on things that are happening. Especially exciting to us is the formation of a special magazine section for children and teenagers only. This section will offer magazines geared to stimulate interest in these age groups.

Boys will especially be interested in the magazine "Famous Monsters." Each month, "Famous Monsters" offers the best look at monsters of film-land. The pictures offer the scary and bizarre stories your son will love. Many of the articles contain the stories behind the making of horror films, and will often tell how the monsters were made to look so horrible. From graveyards to "The Black Hole," no boy will turn up his nose if you suggest reading this one.

For that special daughter, give her pictures of her favorite actor or singer, stories about their lives, and chances to learn all she can about her current heart throb. "Tiger Beat" is the perfect magazine for girls who have daydreams about popular teen idols of the 80's. One of the most popular teen magazines around, you'll find your daughter begging you to bring her to the library. For slightly older boys and girls, "Hit Parade" will certainly prove to be a satisfying magazine. "Hit Parade" offers everything from lyrics to popular songs to behind the scenes interviews with rock stars. Your parents might thumb through this one so you'll stop kissing them when they say "Kiss" or diving for the bomb shelter when they talk about the "B-52's."

One of the zaniest magazines that has been around almost since the beginning of time is "Mad." This one offers fun for any age. While its satire is often blunt, "Mad" at its best can be and is uproariously funny.

We haven't forgotten the mom or dad who bring the young people to the library. There have been quite a few additions (seventeen) to the adult magazine section. One of the additions needs no introductions. "People" has become one of the most widely read magazines in the country. It offers brief stories about interesting people whether they are famous or not. "People" is published weekly, so you will be well informed and up to date on what is happening in the world.

If any of you haven't been able to watch your favorite soap opera lately, don't despair. Another new addition to our magazine collection is "Soap Opera Digest." It keeps you up to date on what's happening on all of the daytime shows plus articles on the performers' private lives. Save some of that "egg money" next time you want to buy a magazine. Instead, the whole family will find the ones they are wanting to read in the growing magazine section at the Howard County Library.

Ray Price has brought sophistication to music

Ray Price has all the credits: awards, citations, charts, personal appearances, television shows, record sales.

Price also has brought sophistication to country music, has been an innovator, has broadened the base and concepts beyond the realm of imagination of most, and has developed a dignity and finesse which many would not have thought possible.

Ray Price would never accept the thesis that country music was restricted, was secondary to any art form.

He may perform in a tuxedo, but always with his boots on. Those are country roots boots. Texas type.

If any man in this business has expanded country music, given it new depth and perception, it has been Ray Price. Twenty-one years ago when he began recording for Columbia he believed he could do it. Now others have seen that he can. A philosophic man, he has always believed he could do what he set out to do.

Bucking the keenest competition anywhere, Ray Price year after year (eight of them in all) was named the number one country singer in America by Billboard. Tackling even more incredible odds, he has won a Grammy from the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. And the Country Music Association, who he has served well in many capacities, has given him accolades and honors on network television.

He has taken his show to concert stages with symphonies, to the main ballrooms of plush hotels of the Las Vegas strip and overseas to the innsanctums of great music.

One enters Dawson race

LAMESA - One person entered a Dawson County political race this week and another withdrew.
 Loretta Moore, deputy county treasurer of Dawson County, said she would campaign for the office of County Treasurer.

The 40-year-old Dawson County native is married to Carroll Moore, who is area supervisor for a pipeline firm.
 Malvern Summers said he had decided not to offer for the county tax assessor-collector's office, citing health reasons.
 Incumbent tax assessor-collector Leland Miller had earlier announced he would not be a candidate for reelection.
 Monday is the filing deadline for all candidates for all county offices. The Democratic Primary election will take place May 3.
