At least 36 persons killed in prison riot

Murder, torture stories unfolding

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Fires still burned in the New Mexico State Prison today as 1,100 prisoners huddled in tents outside the compound and stories unfolded of hellish murder, torture and mutilations in a riot that left at least 35 persons dead and 15 others missing.

State police Sgt. George Ulibarri said three more bodies were brought in today, bringing the total number of dead to 35.

Gov. Bruce King told a news conference that at least seven died of drug overdoses, others died of smoke inhalation and some were murdered.

The governor said a total of 50 prisoners were unaccounted for, including the dead.

Officials said they expected to find more bodies when they were able to get inside the prison gymnasium which was still burning.

"It's one hell of a bloody mess in there," said Corrections Commission Chairman Bud Richards. "There are a hell of a lot of bodies in there."

"National Guardsmen are throwing up all over."

State Police Capt. Frank Young said authorities were waiting until the fires are extinguished to "do a real thorough search."

"I would say we are anticipating as many as 41 total," said Ulibarri of the New Mexico State Police.

State police said the riot apparently was not racially motivated, but racial tensions broke out afterwards — with some white inmates threatening to kill blacks — and prisoners were segregated in their makeshift camp.

Many of those targeted for violence apparently were informers, whose identity became known when confidential records in the administration building were seized, authorities said. The victims were attacked with cleavers and burned.

"There was blood all over, against the wall, smeared around," said Lt. Richard Montoya, who headed the Special Weapons And Tactics team that led the move to regain control of the prison.

A torch of some kind apparently had been applied to the face of one victim, he said, and another's eyes had been gouged out.

"From what we understand there was no racial tension involved," said state police Maj. Charlie Anaya. "It was getting all the snitchers."

Late Sunday, 32 prisoner deaths had been confirmed, said Anaya.

One guard and nine inmates were listed in critical condition from the violence that ended Sunday in surrender, with no shots fired by police or the 100 guardsmen. Seven guards and 55 inmates were admitted to hospitals, and 14 inmates were treated for drug overdoses from medical supplies passed around freely on the takeover's first day.

Officials feared the death toll would soar when the contents of the prison's charred gymnasium were known. Thick smoke still poured from the gymnasium ruins late Sunday, more than 12 hours after the blaze began. Damage to the facility was estimated at $10 million or more.

One television station, KOAT in Albuquerque, reported 49 had died in the rampage, which if confirmed would make it the worst riot in the nation's history. Rep. Manny Aragon, who met with the inmates during the siege, said that based on what prisoners told him, the toll could be 75 or more.

"The violence was incredible," said Adolph Saenz, newly appointed secretary of the state's Criminal Justice Department, after he had toured the prison 10 miles southwest of Santa Fe late Sunday.

Many of those who died in the brutal episode remained unidentified late Sunday, their features either burnt beyond recognition or horribly mutilated by other inmates, officials said.

Guard Fred Herrera told The Associated Press, "Some of those guys faces are totally gone" from butchery by other prisoners. State Sen. Ben Altamirano said he saw the body of a black inmate who had been decapitated and his head stuffed between his legs. Guards said another inmate's arm was cut off before he was tossed from an upper window inside the prison complex.

Saenz said after his first inspection of the burnt and broken institution that at least 80 percent of the structure was destroyed.

State Rep. Fred Mondragon estimated it would cost $40 million to $50 million to replace the 23-year-old prison — a bill that may cost taxpayers the rebates proposed as tax relief by Gov. Bruce King — while state Finance Secretary David King said he believed it would cost $7 million just to make the usable portions habitable again.

The prison was built in 1957 for a capacity of about 850. Saenz said moving those who remained of the 1,136 in the prison when the riot began would be "enormous, logistically."

King said Arizona had offered a newly built minimum-security prison for housing some of the prisoners, and that other nearby states had been asked to help.

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm said his state was "taking the request very seriously. We want to help them." Colorado, under federal court order to give its maximum-security prisoners more space, "certainly couldn't make much of a dent" in the solution, Lamm added.

In Texas, Jim Ford, press aide to Gov. William Clements, said his state wanted to help but Texas prisons are "pretty overcrowded."

The siege ended quietly about 2 p.m. Sunday after state officials promised inmates that they would not use violence in re-taking the institution. With or without violence, King said, "We told them we were coming in." No shots were fired throughout the ordeal.

"We knew they didn't have any guns, but they had clubs, fires, machetes and knives. We thought some would try and use them," Montoya said. "We caught them by surprise. They didn't even put up a fight."

Only three guards remained in the prison when the rebellion ended. Two were found safe in a gas chamber which is no longer used, the other was found unharmed hiding in a vault.

The prisoners presented a list of 11 demands, asking better food, improved facilities and an end to overcrowding — demands often voiced in the past. King said the only one that was impossible to meet was amnesty for the prisoners.

An inmate lawsuit charging overcrowded conditions at the prison violated the rights of prisoners is to go to trial in federal court this year.

The weekend's violence was the second major incident at the prison in three months. On Dec. 9, 1979, 11 maximum security prisoners escaped; one is still at large.

Commissioners are faced with deadline on system

Howard County Commissioners reconvened this morning to discuss a proposed intercom system for the Howard County jail.

County Judge Bill Tune said April 30 was the deadline the state jail standard commission gave Howard County to establish "voice communication" between the jail and the sheriff's office.

April 30 is also the deadline for installing a weapon storage and a stretcher.

"Revenues are not coming in as brisk as they were a year ago," said Tune. "We're not in a financial situation yet, but we are in a position where we could have some financial problems."

No decision had been reached by press time but commissioners were meeting with Sheriff A.N. Standard. Two bids are being considered.

A $25 a month across the board raise for county employees passed last Monday was qualified. The raise will not include part time employees, elected officials of the county auditor. Mrs. Olson is not elected but appointed by District Judge Jim Gregg. Her salary is legally tied to the county tax assessor collector's salary.

The meeting today is an extension of last Monday's special meeting.

Iowan admits setting fire

Authorities arrested two men near the Holiday Inn on suspicion of setting fire to a cotton module in Stanton.

Tony Overner, Iowa, has been charged with a felony criminal mischief. He signed a confession that exonerated the other man who was arrested.

According to Martin County Deputy Charles Sebastian, seven vehicles traveling together were stopped on IS 20 by Big Spring police, Howard County Sheriff's Office and highway patrol authorities.

The two were arrested and taken into custody by Martin County authorities. Overner was charged this morning with the felony. The crime is punishable by two to ten years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

The fire that started at 5:30 p.m. Sunday did around $600 in damage to the cotton module. The module was located in Stanton on the south side of IS 20.

The seven vehicles involved contained magazine salesmen traveling across the state.

West Texas oil workers strike

By the Associated Press

A large number of the 800 oil field workers at Amoco Production Co. plants in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico walked off their jobs this morning, joining a month-old nationwide strike against more than 100 oil companies.

Supervisors at the five district offices said early Monday they did not have a definite count of striking employees, but said pickets were up at all plants except in the Odessa area.

Just over half of the represented employees are members of the Oil, Chemical Workers Union Local 4-16, the supervisors said.

The local cancelled a strike about two weeks ago, but said then it would give Amoco 72-hours notice if a walkout was planned. Friday, the union announced it would join the strike Monday.

More than 60,000 refinery workers across the country went out after Jan.

8 in support of demands for higher wages and improved health benefits. More than 500 employees in other states were scheduled to return to work Monday after their employers reached weekend settlements with the OCAW.

"I believe all our represented employees are out, but I don't have a count," said Bob Wilburn, district superintendent at the Amoco plant in Levelland. "I don't know how many of my non-union members will show up."

Wilburn said there are about 100 employees — less than half members of the union — at five sites in his district. He said pickets were up at two of sites.

Pickets were reported up at some of the 23 sites in Levelland, Andrews, Brownfield and Hobbs, N.M. But only one of more than 200 employees at Amoco's seven Odessa-area sites was unaccounted for, said superintendent Jim York.

During corruption investigation

Congressman rebuffed FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — One U.S. senator angrily rebuffed undercover FBI agents willing to pay bribes as part of a political corruption investigation that has implicated eight other members of Congress, a source close to the case said.

This source said the senator, Larry Pressler, R-S.D., was the only member of Congress caught up in the probe who refused to go along with the dishonest dealings discussed by undercover investigators.

Two sources said Pressler was not a subject of the FBI investigation and thus was not among the 20 public officials and 10 businessmen and lawyers visited by the FBI Saturday and Sunday. The FBI completed notifying the 30 subjects of the investigation of their rights on Sunday, one source said.

For 14 months, FBI men had posed as representatives of a wealthy Arab sheik seeking investments, a casino gambling license in Atlantic City, N.J., and legislation to allow him to stay in this country if he were forced from his homeland.

During this time, they paid almost $500,000 in cash to public officials for favors or the promise of them, a source familiar with the investigation said. But this source added that fewer than 10 of the 20 public officials took money. "Some arranged meetings or did other favors," this source said.

A source close to the investigation said Pressler stormed out of his meeting with the undercover men when it was suggested money was available to win the sheik permanent residence here. "That man didn't violate any law," this source said.

"He told them, 'I don't want anything to do with it. I don't want to touch it,'" the source reported. "He saw very clearly what it was. What he did makes the other cases stronger, because the others could have walked out too."

In addition to state and local officials in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, one source said those who became subjects of the probe were: U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., D-N.J., and U.S. Reps. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson, Jr., D-N.J.; Michael O. Myers, D-Pa.; Raymond F. Lederer, D-Pa.; John W. Jenrette, D-S.C.; John P. Murtha, D-Pa., and Richard Kelly, R-Fla.

"My feelings are, having read the newspapers, that I would be very wise to engage counsel, which I've done," Williams said Sunday.

By Sunday, most of the eight members of Congress had issued denials of any wrongdoing.

No charges have been filed, nor arrests made. Sources said federal officials were planning to present their evidence to one or more grand juries, perhaps as early as this week.

Meanwhile, House Ethics Committee Chairman Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., said his panel would expand an investigation already underway to include the FBI allegations.

The sources said FBI director William Webster and top Justice Department lawyers closely policed the probe to ensure the FBI was never the first to suggest bribes to public figures.

Meanwhile, House Ethics Committee Chairman Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., said his panel would expand an investigation already underway to include the FBI allegations.

"We've already had a continuing investigation of one or more of those people going on for months," he said, declining to give details.

Bennett said his committee would meet this afternoon to take up the issue.

Bennett's Senate counterpart, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said today his ethics panel also will conduct "a thorough investigation of all allegations" against any senators involved in the case.

Sofa ad is eye pleaser

Selling a queen-sized sofa sleeper may not be as easy as falling off the proverbial log but a Herald advertiser found it was a lot easier by broadcasting news about it in a Herald want ad.

She authorized the Herald want ad department to run it three days. During that time, she had lots of calls from interested parties and sold it to the third person who dialed her number.

JACK BAILEY DIES — Jack Bailey, long-time host of the series "Queen for a Day" on television and radio, died of complications of pneumonia Friday at a Santa Monica, Calif., hospital, it was reported late Saturday. Bailey, 72, had been in ill health for six months and been hospitalized for one month, his wife, Jean, said. Bailey crowned more than 5,000 women in 20 years, beginning in 1945 on radio and later on television.

Reagan petition filed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan qualified Monday for a place on the Texas Republican presidential primary ballot. Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., state GOP chairman, presented a petition containing more than 12,000 names in order to fill the state law requirement of a petition with at least 5,000 signatures. Former Texas Gov. John Connally and George Bush, former ambassador to the United Nations, previously qualified for the straw poll that will determine how GOP delegations to the national convention are selected. "The signatures come from every congressional district in the state and most of the major cities," Angelo said. "This demonstrates the widespread support Governor Reagan enjoys in this state... In Texas we have a strong organization which I will proudly match against any other candidate's organization." Angelo said Reagan would make several Texas stops during the campaign, with the first one coming March 13 with a speech before the East Texas Chamber of Commerce in Longview.

Wreck kills five

BAY CITY, Texas (AP) — Five members of a South Texas family were killed Sunday when their car swerved across a highway, through a ditch and flipped over into a rain-swollen creek, police said. Department of Public Safety troopers said the bodies were found about 12 miles east of here shortly before 3 p.m. Sunday, about 12 hours after the accident. Matagorda County Sheriff's deputy Milton Jarrell said the 1962 sedan was eastbound on Texas 35 near Van Vleck when it veered across the westbound lane, through a ditch and into Linville Creek near the Matagorda-Braxton county line. Jarrell said the victims apparently drowned when their car turned upside down in the water. "We've had a good bit of rain," he said. "That creek usually runs a good bit of water." They were identified as Linda Parker McCrae, 30, Samuel Jefferson McCrae, 35, their children, Kevin, 3, and Jeff, 4, all of 29-year Mrs. McCrae's sister, Trisha Lynn Parker, 29, of Columbus, also was killed, troopers said.

Trustees meet at 5:15 today

Big Spring Independent School Board members are meeting today to interview athletic director applicants at 5:15 p.m. The meeting in the board room of the high school will be closed to the public. The employment of the athletic director was made necessary by school board action splitting the athletic director job into two parts.

3 candidates must file again

LAMESA — Because their January filing is void according to a new state law, three candidates for places on the Lamesa ISD school board must refile. The three are Roy Byrd, Jim Norris and Frankie McKinney. The new law states that applications filed more than 30 days in advance of the deadline are null and void.

'Only the beginning'

$400 million in aid offered to Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Zbigniew Brzezinski says the $400 million in U.S. aid offered to Pakistan is "only the beginning," but he did not indicate how much more the Pakistanis might get because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. "Pakistan faces a serious threat" from the presence of an estimated 100,000 Soviet troops in neighboring Afghanistan, President Carter's national security adviser told reporters Sunday, after completing two days of talks with Pakistan's President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq. Brzezinski reaffirmed America's commitment "to safeguarding Pakistan in terms of the 1959 (mutual security) agreement against the dangers posed from the north," and said the U.S. pledge of $400 million in economic and military aid over two years was "only the beginning of the United States response to the threat." "We hope that other countries also will indicate what they wish to contribute," he said. Brzezinski travels today to Saudi Arabia to seek its support for a Pakistani aid alliance. In a weekend statement, Saudi Crown Prince Fahd urged the Moslem world to unite to give moral and financial aid to the anti-communist Moslem rebellion in Afghanistan. Brzezinski, who is traveling with Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, left a Pentagon team in Pakistan to assess the nation's military requirements. Zia had earlier shrugged off the U.S. aid offer as "peanuts," and there was no indication whether he and Brzezinski had reached agreement on the size of an aid package. A joint statement said they had a "full exchange of views." Zia is angling for a massive shot of U.S. aid to rebuild his armed forces, which have lost three wars to India since they got independence from Britain in 1947. Brzezinski was asked at a news conference today how America would respond if Pakistan was threatened "from quarters not controlled by the Soviet Union," an apparent reference to India. "We expect that Pakistan's security will not be threatened but will be heightened by the efforts that Pakistan itself together with its friends and also with us is undertaking to enhance the security of the region," he replied. "We will be cooperating in a variety of ways with different countries in this region. Precisely what form it will take, at this stage, it would be premature to say." Brzezinski visited a Pakistani camp for Afghan refugees about 100 miles south of the Afghan-Pakistan border. "You will prevail... because you cause is right. God is on your side," Brzezinski told the cheering refugees who responded with chants of "Allah-o-akbar" — God is great. Pointing north to the snow-clad mountain border, Brzezinski said, "The land over there is yours and you will go back there one day. Remember you are not alone."

Commissioner Poerner asks six-year term

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Railroad Commissioner John Poerner asked for a full six-year term today saying his chief aim was to "make it possible to move people faster and cheaper, by using less energy, wherever it is practical and possible." Poerner, 47, a former Texas House member, was appointed to the commission in January 1978 and has been chairman since 1979. Poerner also stressed to a news conference that he expected to bear down on what he considers the "conflict-of-interest issue" in his Democratic primary race with Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, son of a wealthy East Texas family. "It is amazing to me that an individual with all the built-in and inescapable conflicts that Buddy Temple clearly has would choose the railroad commission for his first statewide race," Poerner said. "There is really only one major issue between Mr. Temple and me — I have no conflicts-of-interest, personal, family or corporate. On the other hand, his conflicts are so numerous that it would be virtually impossible for him to remove them." Poerner said the use of regulated motor carriers, trains, and production of oil and gas on millions of acres of timber land are just a few of the interests of the vast Temple-Eastex Corp. that come under the Railroad Commission. Poerner listed other goals if he is elected to a full term on the powerful three-member commission that regulates the oil and gas industry as well as railroad and motor transportation. He said he would work for: — A "bullet train" service between Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio as one means of promoting more passenger service. — "I want to help reverse the federal concept of throwing roadblocks against our own oil production, and this effort must be continued at all times." — An improved highway system to serve the smaller communities throughout the state "so that all our citizens have adequate public transportation."

Farm '70s best and worst times

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking back at crop prices in the 1970s, the decade was some of the best and worst of times for producers.

The Agriculture Department's monthly price report issued last week provides plenty of raw material for anyone interested in hashing over what happened the last 10 years or so.

Mainly, however, the report regularly shows what happened to commodity prices at the farm from one month to another, including comparisons with a year earlier.

But once a year it also includes prices going back for some time, sort of a track record that can illustrate trends in prices for key commodities.

Taking four as examples, the report showed that in 1979 farmers saw wheat prices nationally average $3.51 a bushel; corn, $2.36 a bushel; soybeans, $6.86 a bushel; and cotton, 58 cents a pound.

That does not mean all producers got those prices last year for what they sold. Prices vary regionally and seasonally. It simply illustrates, for comparison purposes, how price averages in one calendar year stack up against other years.

On that basis, here is how some of those looked:

Wheat — farm prices in the 10-year period, 1970-79, averaged $2.74 a bushel, with the lowest prices coming in the earliest years prior to the huge world demand for

Smith moves to Alabama

ABILENE — J.T. Smith, farm editor for the Abilene Reporter News, has resigned that position to join the staff of the Progressive Farmer Magazine in Birmingham, Ala.

As assistant editor, Smith, 29, will be primarily engaged in writing a MidMonth Soybean Edition and Mid-Month Cotton Edition for Progressive Farmer in coordination with senior editor Jack R. Bickers.

The Progressive Farmer's MidMonth Cotton and Mid-Month Soybean Editions are both new services to the nation's cotton and soybean farmers. Each edition was published for the first time in January, 1980.

Number of dairy farms decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of dairy farms declined about 6 percent last year, according to the Agriculture Department.

In 1979, officials said, farms having "milk cow operations" totaled 351,970 units, compared to 375,110 in 1978.

An "operation" is any place having one or more head of cows on hand at any time during the year, the report explained.

Looking at the report from another perspective, today's Farm Paper Letter — published weekly by the department — noted that the five states with the most dairy operations "now have 37.5 percent of the total, compared to only 36 percent a year ago."

The leaders, it said, are: Wisconsin, 45,000 milk cow operations; Minnesota, 28,000; Pennsylvania, 22,000; New York, 19,500; and Iowa, 15,000.

Cotton prices show gains

B.B. Manly, Area Director of the USDA Marketing Services Office, reported that about 30,000 cotton samples were classed in Abilene during the week ending last Friday. This brought the season total to 778,000 samples classed. An additional 180,000 samples were classed at Monday this season, bringing the combined total to 958,000. Only 400,000 samples had been classed at the two offices by this time last season.

Manly announced that the last two weeks of February have been designated as an open house at the Abilene Classing Office for area ginners and cotton producers. Visitors are welcome at any time, but there will still be some classing being done during this time.

Khomeini vows 'unconditional' support to Afghanistan rebels

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today strongly condemned the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and pledged "unconditional" support for the Moslem rebels in Iran's eastern neighbor.

In his first comment on the Soviet move into Afghanistan in late December, Khomeini said it is the duty of Moslems everywhere to oppose aggression around the world.

"We strongly condemn the military invasion of Afghanistan," the 79-year-old religious leader said in a message delivered by his son to tens of thousands of Iranians gathered to celebrate the birthday of the Prophet Mohammed.

"We are Moslems and for Moslems there is no East or West, it is our duty to condemn any aggression, that is an Islamic ritual," the ailing head of Iran's revolutionary government said.

Khomeini remained in a Tehran hospital where he is recovering from a mild heart attack while a huge throng met at Tehran's main cemetery to listen to his message as well as a speech from President-elect Abolhasan Bani Sadr.

Bani Sadr, who already has pledged Iranian aid to the Afghan Moslems, delivered a similar message pledging support for "our Moslem brothers in Afghanistan, Palestine and the Philippines." Bani Sadr is to be sworn in before Khomeini today.

Meanwhile, the Iranian government agreed to an international commission to consider its charges against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and said it "will be effective in solving the hostage crisis."

"The international investigation commission will consider the shah's crimes, his violation of human rights and the return of his health to Iran," Khomeini's Revolutionary Council announced over the weekend.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Nassirosadat Salami said the commission "will be effective in solving the hostage crisis."

However, Bani Sadr in an interview with ABC-TV indicated that the U.S. government must help Iran get the shah back for trial before the hostages will be freed.

"If the U.S. government gets away from its past policy of intervention in internal affairs," he said, "and if it accepts the right of the Iranian government to follow the criminals to your country and to follow the people who have plundered our wealth and to accept in practical terms to help us in that matter, that would be grounds for deliberations on the hostages."

Salami said the members of the investigation commission will be chosen by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim. He said it will include foreign and Iranian representatives, and Waldheim will decide whether Americans are included.

Salami did not say when the commission would come to Iran or when the hearings would begin.

Waldheim proposed an investigating commission during a visit to Iran early in January, and since then has proposed the hostages be turned over to the Red Cross or some other neutral third party in Iran while the commission conducts its work.

The militants holding the approximately 50 Americans since Nov. 4 had no comment on the council's decision, but they announced Saturday that they had invited a special American delegation to Tehran this week to hear Iran's grievances against the shah and the U.S. government.

The American delegation is a "socio-political" group of about 50 members on a "strictly private" visit with no connection to the Iranian investigation, said Mansour Farhan, Iran's U.N. Ambassador.

The embassy captors had called for a massive rally in front of the Embassy today. But on Sunday they announced they were canceling the demonstration "to avoid a clash" with a rally planned by Bani Sadr at Tehran's main cemetery. Tehran Radio reported.

There was speculation that the militants called off the demonstration because they feared they would get an embarrassingly small turnout.

'Burn an Arsonist' campaign nabs suspect

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Investigators reportedly were helped in their search for an arsonist by a long distance phone call he apparently made to his mother from one of the businesses that burned.

The Austin American-

Statesman said it had learned that the phone call — or calls — along with a tip from an unidentified informant led to the arrest and indictment of Marty Hagood, 18, of Corpus Christi.

The unidentified tipster will receive $500, the first reward from the "Burn an Arsonist" campaign, which was started in October by the Independent Insurance Agents of Austin.

Hagood has been accused of setting fires that caused nearly $100,000 damage to five businesses on Barton Springs Road, Dec. 16-30.

Investigators discovered Hagood was in the Nueces County Jail when they called police there to check on a call made to Hagood's parents in Corpus Christi from the phone in the Hip Pocket Sandwich Shoppe, which was destroyed by fire Christmas Eve.

Hagood later was transferred to jail here, where he remains in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Coronary bypass surgery economically worthwhile

CHICAGO (AP) — Coronary bypass surgery, used to overcome the heart disease of about 80,000 Americans each year, enables 80 to 90 percent of those treated to resume productive lives and is a sound investment — even at nearly $15,000 per operation, a new study says.

In the study on bypass patients, published in the Feb. 8 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, a researcher says the operation is economically worthwhile especially for younger heart patients, since most can resume their careers after surgery.

The operation has been recommended by many physicians to relieve angina pectoris — the sharp chest pains caused by chronic heart disease — which occurs primarily in middle-aged patients. The pains occur during times of exertion when, because of narrowed arteries due to heart disease, insufficient blood reaches the heart.

The surgery involves bypassing a narrowed artery to the heart with a vein taken from elsewhere in the patient's body, usually the leg.

"There were questions whether the operation was cost effective," said Alfred J. Anderson, researcher in biostatistics at the Medical College of Wisconsin, in a telephone interview. "In our study, we're seeing most patients are returning to work," making the surgery, which costs $12,000 to $15,000, worth the cost.

Weather Warming trend should continue

Widespread fog settled on parts of East and South Texas and along the coast early today.

The National Weather Service issued a travelers advisory for the Coastal Bend area, where visibilities were reported near zero.

Fair skies spanned the rest of the state. Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 30s and 40s, ranging from 28 at Marfa to 48 at Laredo.

Forecasters said a warming trend should continue today, sending the mercury into the 60s and 70s in most sections. Another cold front is expected to blow into the state Tuesday.

FORECAST

WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy north. Fair south today becoming partly cloudy most sections tonight and Tuesday. Warm today turning colder north tonight and over remaining area Tuesday.

Hights today near 60 north to mid 70s Big Bend. Lows tonight lower 30s north to near 40 south. Hights Tuesday mid 40s north to mid 60s south, and near 70 southwest.

Take precaution during a blizzard

To the people in the northern tier of states, we are regarded as residents of the Sun Belt. It can get very cold here but the frigid temperatures don't hang around very long.

Because the weather changes often, we don't run the risk of dying of exposure to the weather too often. It can happen, however, especially in the country immediately to the north of us. According to the Health Insurance Institute, what you do — or don't do — when trapped in a car by a blizzard could help or hinder rescue.

Here are a few precautions recommended by experts:

—STAY IN THE CAR. Don't try to walk in a blizzard. It's easy to become disoriented in blowing, drifting snow. Being lost in open country can be very dangerous. At least the car offers shelter.

—AVOID OVER-EXERTION and exposure. Attempting to push your car, shovel drifts and do other difficult tasks during strong winds, blinding snow and bitter cold may cause a heart attack — even if you're in good physical condition.

—KEEPING A DOWN-WIND window open slightly for fresh air. Freezing rain or wet snow can completely seal windows and doors.

—BEWARE OF CARBON MONOXIDE. Run the engine and heater very little, and always with a window open for ventilation. (Make certain the snow is not blocking the exhaust pipe).

—EXERCISE. Clap your hands and move your arms and legs vigorously from time to time. Don't overdo it, however. Exercise warms the body but it also increases the loss of body heat.

—TAKE TURNS keeping watch. If more than one person is in the car, don't sleep at the same time. If alone, stay awake as long as possible.

—DON'T PANIC. Stay with the car. Somebody out there likely is aware that you haven't arrived safely somewhere and is rallying help. If you're on a fairly well-traveled traffic artery, chances are someone will be checking as to your whereabouts — even if it is someone to whom you owe money.

Southern Bush

Evans, Novak

NEW ORLEANS — Contradictions that give Republican presidential fortunes in the southland their exotic quality were on lurid display when applause roared out for John B. Connally's luncheon speech here Saturday during the party's southern regional conference, far out-thundering Ronald Reagan's reception the previous day.

Listening to the roar of the crowd (only partially due to table-packing by Connally agents), one Republican leader murmured: "Magnificent, really magnificent, but Big John can't take it out of the room with him."

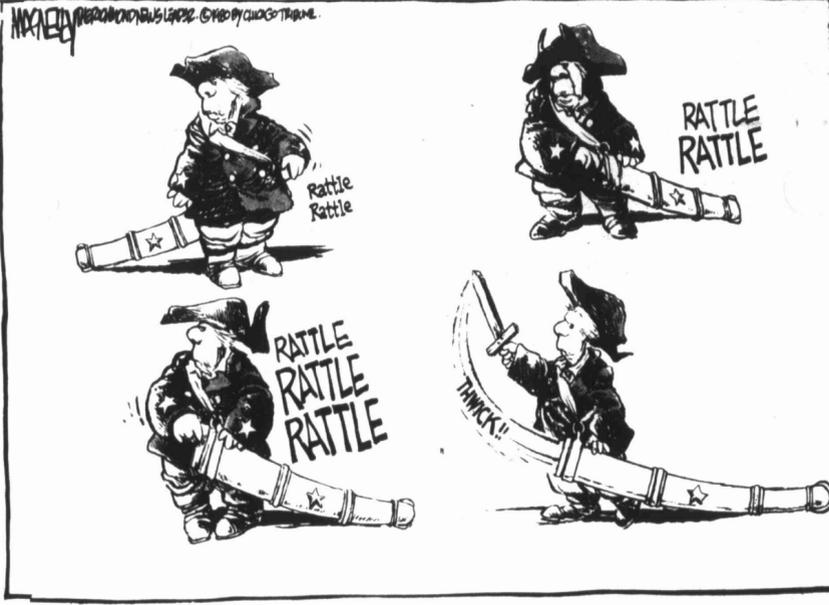

Only the most ardent Connally supporter would dispute that truisms about Connally's failing campaign, even here in his own backyard where the tough-guy Texan has pinned his hopes. With Reagan's southern base displaying cracks from the Jan. 21 Iowa tremor induced by George Bush, Connally must show that he, not nice-guy George, will inherit any Reaganites who decide Reagan cannot make it after all. Just how large an order that is proving to be for the dynamic Texan is now becoming clear in South Carolina, a "must" state for Connally and the state that dramatizes the fascinating contradictions of the Republican presidential race.

WEEKS AGO CONNALLY nailed down the backing of Sen. Strom Thurmond, the party's southern eminence, and former Republican Gov. James B. Edwards for the March 8 South Carolina primary. He then abandoned federal matching funds to give him unlimited spending latitude in a state that never before has had the luxury of a Republican presidential primary election. It seemed just possible that he might catch up to Reagan's strong grass roots support in South Carolina. But if so, the prospect dimmed on Monday when Harry Dent, Thurmond's long-time political adviser, led a Republican platoon from one end of the state to the other trumpeting for George Bush. Not only is Dent one of the most formidable southern Republican power brokers (who with Thurmond saved the south for Richard Nixon in 1968). He also is advertising his new allegiance to Bush with a seductive line: "I tried to be for John Connally," says Dent, "but by now everybody knows that he just can't win." Dent thinks Bush will steal votes from Connally and assure an anemic tally for Sen. Howard Baker in the South Carolina election.

Contradictions abound in the alliances that have formed in support of Reagan, Connally and Bush, a fact that tends to obliterate minor ideological distinctions. On Reagan's one-day campaign swing through South Carolina on his way here last weekend, for example, Reagan operatives truthfully bragged that many of Reagan's presidential campaign aides cut their political teeth for Thurmond or Edwards but, like Harry Dent, declined to follow them to the Connally standard.

LIKEWISE, FRESHMAN Rep. Carroll Campbell is Reagan's statewide campaign chairman while Richard Greer, who ran Campbell's 1978 congressional campaign, has signed up with Bush — and Dent — as political director of the Bush campaign. This crazy-quilt pattern that cuts across old loyalties to fashion new alliances shows the fluid nature of 1980 Republican presidential politics, southern-style. It hints that if the vulnerability Reagan showed in Iowa continues, nothing will prevent Reaganites from moving into the camp of a perceived winner: George Bush.

What is questionable is whether Reagan remains vulnerable for the Feb. 26 New Hampshire primary or recovers his old appeal.

Light exposure, tars help psoriasis

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What about psoriasis? The doctor acts like I'm going to have to fight it my whole life. Fifty years is a long time. What about diet control? — Mrs. D.G.

Allow me to use your shortened letter to answer many others on this subject.

Psoriasis is a mystery disease. If there is anything good to be said for it, it is that it does not affect physical health, except that in rare instances it is associated with a form of arthritis.

Psoriasis is a scaling of the skin due to excessive formation of outer skin cells. We don't know why this happens, although it may tend to run in families. Nor is the long-range outlook in psoriasis predictable. Some people with it may have periods when it subsides, even disappears entirely. For some, it subsides with summer sun exposure. However, for most persons it is an unfortunate lifetime control struggle.

Many treatments have been tried over the many years that doctors have struggled with the problem. Treatment today depends on the area involved. Distilled coal tar, salicylic acid and sulfur preparations are used for scalp scaling. For some, steroid creams applied to the skin are helpful. Some dermatologists favor the Goeckerman technique — application of the tar ointments followed by ultraviolet light.

A newer light treatment popular with some doctors is photochemotherapy. A drug called 8-methoxypsoralen is taken followed by long-wave ultraviolet light exposure.

To your specific question, I cannot find any reference citing diet as a help in control of psoriasis. As you read this many, many experiments are being conducted utilizing other forms of treatment. Hopefully, someday soon a real cure will replace the often disappointing forms of control available today.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor told me two years ago I had Raynaud's disease. Would you explain it for me? I only know that it affects circulation. I take Nicobid and aspirin daily for it. — Mrs. D.W.

There are two distinct problems with the same signs. This confuses everyone. There is "Raynaud's disease" and "Raynaud's phenomenon."

Raynaud's disease is an illness in which the fingers become white, blue and then red upon exposure to cold.

The cause is not known. The same thing occurs in Raynaud's phenomenon, but with this we have a pretty good handle on what is wrong. It is associated with an underlying illness, such as chronic artery disease or any of the so-called collagen diseases (rheumatoid arthritis, scleroderma, lupus). Thus, the treatment is to control the underlying disease.

Raynaud's disease (the one without a known cause) usually affects women, begins early in life and usually is limited to fingers of both hands. The change in skin color is caused by an intense narrowing of the blood vessels. The medicine you are taking — Nicobid (niacin) and aspirin are to help dilate the vessels. Cigarette smoking can contribute to vessel narrowing.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What exactly does an ECG tell about your heart? Will it detect all heart problems? — E.S.

The electrocardiogram can tell a lot about the heart beat and the blood supply to the heart. No test is 100 percent perfect, so many ECG readouts tell little — are negative. That doesn't mean there is no problem. The ECG will not detect all heart problems. For example, a high percentage of people with angina will have normal resting ECGs.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you please explain an illness called Dupuytren's? I know it has an effect on the tendons and muscles of the hands. What is the cause? Will surgery help the fingers to function again? — Mrs. L.B.C.

Dupuytren's contracture results from a shrinking of the sheaths over the tendons leading to the fingers in the palm area. The ring finger is drawn down to the palm. The cause is not known. It is more common in males.

If exercise to strengthen the ring finger is not effective, surgery must be resorted to. The results are usually good.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: This is probably the longest name you've had tossed at you in years — "spondylolisthesis." That's what I have, and my doctor almost had a seizure pronouncing it for me. I can't even try. What does it mean? — J.H.

Fortunately, the explanation is easier than the pronunciation. Spondylolisthesis (SPON-dih-LO-liss-THEE-sis) is the slipping forward of one of the sections (vertebra) of the spinal column, pulling it out of line with the ones above and below it.

This is a fairly common cause of low back pain. The usual cause is a slight malformation at birth. Exercises help correct any resulting sway to the lower back, and sometimes surgery is necessary to fuse the slipped spine section to the neighboring ones.

Headaches — you can beat them! Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My boyfriend and I have always enjoyed going to nightclubs, but recently I became a Christian and wonder whether or not I ought to keep doing this. Does the Bible say anything about this? — S.V.

DEAR S.V.: Now that you are a Christian, your goal in life should be to live for Christ and honor Him in all you do. You want to do His will and grow closer to Him every day. Make this your commitment and your goal in life.

I believe the answer to your question is found in several passages of the Bible. For example, in 1 Corinthians 10:31-32 we read, "So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God. Do not cause anyone to stumble." Is this activity you mention really honoring to God? Does it bring glory to Him? And does it help you in your witness for Christ? Might others be harmed by seeing you indulge in this? To go another step farther, the Bible also frequently urges Christians to live holy lives and turn their backs on indulgences which do not honor God.

"Let us put aside the deeds of darkness and put on the armor of light. Let us behave decently, as in the daytime, not in orgies and drunkenness, not in sexual immorality and debauchery, not in dissension and jealousy. Rather, clothe yourselves with the Lord Jesus Christ, and do not think about how to gratify the desires of the sinful nature" (Romans 12:12-14).

I want to point out one other thing. Not only does God want you to turn your back on some of the things you did before you came to Christ, He also wants you to use your life for things which will help you grow as a Christian. Spend time in the Word of God and in prayer. Spend time with other Christians. I think you will find a joy and happiness in Christian fellowship which will be far deeper than anything you ever found in your old way of living.

Willing to help

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

Approximately six weeks ago a story was published in this paper recounting the horror stories of a woman in Big Spring who had been abused as a child.

Since then, I have gotten several questions, one of which was the reaction of the woman herself and why she decided to talk.

THE INTERVIEWS ranged over a six-week period. She was willing to talk if it helped one parent come to grips or save one child. Over the six weeks, she never second-guessed her decision to talk, though she kept wondering if it would help. She also wanted to make sure no one would be able to recognize her since she had lost a few friends over this. One question she kept asking me was, would I hate her now that I knew about her past, a thought which in my mind was just ridiculous.

There were several times during the interviews she would have to stop and take a deep breath and continue, and times she just had to stop since it was so painful to her.

After the last interview, knowing it was time to write the story, I had quite a bit of trouble getting to sleep. She told me she had the same trouble.

She was prepared for the story to run that Sunday morning, but when she saw it published, it was quite upsetting to her. She told me she felt naked.

Since the story has run, we have constantly kept each other abreast over the reactions. One of the first, to our delight, was a parent had decided to go for counseling. We had accomplished our purpose.

A few other nice things have happened since she decided to talk, including the article being used as a teaching aide in one of the local Sunday schools. Parents Anonymous out of Dallas requested a copy of the story, to be used at local meetings. The woman is convinced those interviews helped other people.

She told me she is learning to come to grips with her past and since the article has run, she has been able to face her past more squarely. She is also beginning to see the irony of it all. A few weeks ago, she was with some close friends and among other subjects, the child abuse story came up. One person in the group said, "I'm glad I don't know her. There must be something wrong with someone like that." And she was standing right there.

The editor received a letter soon after the article was published. It didn't run in the Letters to the Editor column since it wasn't signed, but I would like to share it. The woman requested, and received, a copy of the letter.

It said: "I'm writing because you may get some criticism about the story in Dec. 16 paper about child abuse, and I want to say 'thank you' from another victim."

"I admire the woman who was willing to talk to Andrea Cohen about this. She probably knows already from her doctor that guilt of the victim is common. My parents told me they got along fine until I came along, and I carried the guilt even after I learned that wasn't true. As for why the children don't tell, if both parents know and they don't protect you from one another, why should the child believe another adult would protect them? Also my father had told us that if we tried to get away the police would bring us back and he could do whatever he wanted with us. If we had told and the person had asked my parents, they would have denied it, and we would have been in more trouble than originally. In spite of all this, the child has love-hate feelings toward the parents and lots of guilt. I'm thankful for a medical doctor and a preacher who helped me try to understand and deal with this guilt after I was married, and also for a patient and loving husband."

"THE PROBLEM WITH self-worth must come from the fact that you feel as a child that you are very bad to have deserved this. "I hope your articles help a child. Perhaps they'll also help former victims. "I know you don't print unsigned letters, but I didn't write this for the readers, but for you and your reporter. Please tell your source that I hope she finds freedom from guilt, feelings of worth, and a love that accepts her as she is. Thanks again."

There is one more thing. Now that the woman knows the six weeks of talking has helped I want to say that what she did took incredible guts. I also don't think I was ever as proud of anyone as I am of her for doing it. I know it was one of the hardest things she ever did.

Smearing critics

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The FBI has had an ugly habit of smearing its critics with unfounded sex rumors. In its campaign of harassment, the bureau has spread unsubstantiated rumors about the supposed sexual peccadilloes of a powerful congressman, a dedicated congressional staff aide, a respected newspaper publisher and a persistent union official.

My office has obtained dramatic new evidence in the celebrated Karen Silkwood case, which inspired "The China Syndrome" movie. Silkwood was the 28-year-old lab technician who was killed in a mysterious car crash in 1974, while she was on her way to give a reporter documentary evidence of lax safety regulations at the Kerr-McGee plutonium plant in Oklahoma.

THERE WAS considerable evidence that her car was run off the road and the incriminating evidence stolen. But the FBI declared there was no foul play involved. Last May, a federal jury awarded her estate $10.5 million in damages after finding that she had been subjected to excessive radiation at the plant.

Sources have revealed to my associate Gary Cohn an insidious pattern of FBI harassment directed against those who have been critical of the agency's role in the Silkwood case.

— Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., conducted an investigation into the case in 1976 — a probe that was extremely embarrassing to the FBI. During the hearings, a news story appeared about a prostitute with Mafia connections who supposedly kept a list of her clients stashed in a shoe box. The Detroit story claimed Dingell's name was on her list. Dingell denied the unsubstantiated accusation. Competent sources told us that the FBI leaked the spurious charge.

— Peter Stockton conducted the Silkwood investigation for Dingell's Small Business subcommittee. In the course of their digging, Dingell and Stockton learned that Jacques (cq) Srouji, a copy editor at the Nashville Tennessean, had gained access to FBI documents in the case that had been denied to the subcommittee. They further discovered that Srouji was an FBI informant, and had been used by the bureau in a case involving a Soviet diplomat.

Disclosure of this brought criticism of the FBI from the Justice Department, Congress and the press. The bureau evidently put Stockton on its enemies list, and in 1977 found a way to strike back at him.

COMPELLED to release certain internal documents for use in the Silkwood lawsuit, the FBI, as required by the Privacy Act, diligently deleted the names of third parties not involved in the suit — all except Stockton's.

In the transcript of an FBI interview with Kerr-McGee's security chief James Reading, reference was made to his contacts with Stockton, who was working for National Public Radio at the time, and another reporter. The second reporter's name was deleted. Stockton's was not.

After noting Stockton's two attempts to interview Reading, the transcript stated, "Again he declined to talk with the reporters, but he did learn from certain of his sources that they didn't accomplish too much because Stockton spent most of his time visiting local prostitutes and not working."

— John Seigenthaler, publisher of the Tennessean, responded to the disclosure that Srouji was an FBI informant by firing her on May 5, 1976. The next day, the FBI in Memphis wired headquarters about "allegations of Seigenthaler having illicit relations with young girls." A few days later, the Memphis bureau, finding no truth to the allegations, notified Washington that they were, after all, "unfounded rumors."

This didn't stop a high FBI official from telling two New York Times reporters later that "Seigenthaler ... is not entirely pure."

— Steven Wodka, an official of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, kept prodding federal agencies to investigate Silkwood's charges of poor safety procedures at the nuclear plant. Information later turned up in FBI files falsely charging that Wodka had sexual relations with Silkwood.

— Other derogatory information about Silkwood's alleged sex life is also scattered through the FBI files.

Footnote: A FBI spokesman declined comment. Meanwhile, Stockton's attorney, Ted Jacobs and the Fund for Constitutional Government, plan to file suit against FBI officials and Kerr-McGee executives for conspiracy to deprive Stockton of his constitutional rights.

DIGGING IN: The Soviets' move to make the ruble the official currency of Afghanistan is further proof — if any were needed — that the Russians plan to stay there a long, long time.

ENERGY EAR: DOE officials who deal with Congress have been instructed to submit weekly "intelligence" reports on Capitol Hill doings, including "information in the nature of 'tidbits' for gossip."

DOUBLE BILLING: U.S. taxpayers were charged $20 billion last year for stationing troops and equipment in Germany and Great Britain. On top of that, the two allies had the nerve to submit a $6 million property tax bill for our GIs' housing facilities — which the Pentagon paid.

Mob attacks, burns embassy

PARIS (AP) — The French embassy in the Libyan capital of Tripoli was attacked and burned by a mob of demonstrators today, the Foreign Ministry announced. All embassy personnel escaped unharm- ed, a ministry spokesman said.

It was the second attack on a Western embassy in Tripoli in about two months. On Dec. 2, about 2,000 Libyans chanting support for Iran stormed and ransacked the American Embassy.

French officials said a "vigorous protest" was being made to Libya.

Sources here said Ambassador Claude Malo was the last person to leave the embassy building and reached his residence safely. Communications with the embassy were cut, they said.

A spokesman for President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said such actions called for energetic condemnation and a very vigorous protest.

Neither the president's office nor the Foreign Ministry had details of the attack immediately. But observers here believed it was likely related to French logistic aid to Tunisia last week to help the army put down an attack on the town of Gafsa by guerrillas allegedly trained in Libya.

In the attack Jan. 26, 30 dissident Tunisians infiltrated across the nearby frontier and, joining supporters in the mining town, attacked police and army barracks in Gafsa and took hostages.

The attackers were dis- lodged from the town after some 12 hours, but sporadic fighting continued for days in the nearby hills as troops routed out the last rebels.

Tunisian Premier Hedi Nouria expelled the Libyan ambassador and recalled the Tunisian envoy from Tripoli. He said last Wednesday that the attackers had planned to proclaim a "revolutionary government" in Gafsa and call in the Libyan Army to "safeguard the revolution."

French sent military transport planes to carry troops to Gafsa and sent a naval squadron to patrol the Tunisian coast.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba thanked France in a television interview Sunday night for its aid.

He called the Gafsa operation a Libyan attempt to destabilize Tunisia.

During the attack Dec. 2 on the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli, demonstrators burned the U.S. flag and effigies of President Carter and the deposed Shah of Iran.

None of the staff was hurt, but there was extensive fire damage to the first and second floors of the building.

The Libyan government apologized for the attack on the American Embassy and agreed to pay estimated damages of $150,000. The United States, however, closed the embassy until Libya admits responsibility for the attack.

Five slain, three wounded Shooting spree worst in El Paso history

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — One bar customer grabbed the gunman, another hit him with a pool cue and a third stepped into the path of a bullet to spare a woman's life, police said. But five people died before the shooting, the worst in El Paso history, was over.

Three other persons were wounded in the gunfire, which broke out early Sunday in the crowded Starburst Lounge.

Police Lt. Ed Agan said the suspect, identified as Barry Chvarak, 21, of El Paso, was subdued and held for police by two bar patrons. He was jailed under $1 million bond, $200,000 on each of five counts of murder, set by Peace Justice Fred Chavez.

One of those killed was identified as Randy Wayne Steele, 20, of El Paso.

"There are three heroes in this," Agan said. "Steele, I understand, when the shooting started pushed a young woman out of the way and stepped in front of her and took a bullet that I guess would have gotten her."

"Another man, a patron named John M. Harris, he jumped the suspect after the shooting had started ... and was able to take the rifle away after another patron Roger Dean Miller, came to his aid. He (Miller) clobbered this guy with a pool cue."

Agan said there appeared to be no motive for the shooting.

"The guy was with his brother ... there was no fight," he said. "He was upset, for what reason I don't know. He went outside to his vehicle, got a .22-caliber rifle, walked back into the bar and cut loose. I don't even believe he even knew the people he was shooting at."

Two 19-year-old men were treated for minor gunshot wounds, and a 20-year-old woman was hospitalized in stable condition with two gunshot wounds in her chest.

Agan identified the other victims as Kathleen Lynn Austin, 32, Marianne Laweka, 53, and Jana L. Carpenter, 29, all of El Paso, and Fredrick Bergford, 28, a soldier at Fort Bliss.

Blank faces told story?

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Katharine Graham, chairman of the Washington Post Co., says widespread news coverage of the American hostages in Iran has helped the hostages' cause.

"The militants miscalculated in an astonishing way. Every interview was a loss to them," Mrs. Graham said at a Friday luncheon of the Detroit Aircraft Club.

"Pictures of the hostages' blank faces told the real story" and resulted in the militants losing potential supporters around the world, Mrs. Graham said.

Jerry Rudinger is added to Herald's sales force

Jerry Rudinger, 30, of Uvalde has joined the Big Spring Herald advertising sales force.

Rudinger was born and reared in Uvalde. He graduated in 1969 from Uvalde High School and started later that year at Southwest Texas Junior College in Uvalde. He attended Texas A&I University from 1970-71 before serving in the U.S. Navy for four years.

After being discharged in 1976, Rudinger attended Angelo State University and graduated from there in May 1979, with a Bachelor of Arts in Art. While at Angelo State, he served the University Program Council.

Rudinger has worked in advertising with Hemphill Wells in San Angelo and Anthony's in Odessa. He will work as an advertising salesman at the Herald.

Competitive auto rates system drawing fire

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The president of the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas told legislators today Texas consumers are better off with the state's present system of auto rates than they would be under a "competitive rating" system.

Thomas J. Baker said in a letter to all 181 lawmakers his association expects insurance companies to make a big push in the 1981 legislative session for open rate competition.

Under present law, the State Insurance Board annually sets uniform rates for all auto insurance companies except the unregulated county mutuals.

A company, however, may charge a lower or higher rate than the standard rate if it gets the board's permission to do so.

Baker said 104 companies — less than a third of the total — already charge 5 to 25 percent less than the uniform rates. He furnished a list of the companies and the amount of their "deviations."

"The clear message of competition provided by this list of rate deviations should be sufficient proof that Texas auto insurance consumers are benefiting from rate competition," Baker said.

He also cited a recent U.S. General Accounting Office report on insurance regulation. The report said only Texas and Massachusetts independently perform actuarial analysis of rates requested by insurers.

Baker quoted the report as saying that insurance department staff recommendations in Texas and Massachusetts "more accurately reflected actual loss experience than the rates recommended by insurance companies."

"In other words, Texas insurance buyers have been paying rates which are lower than rates the companies wanted to charge.

Wallace doing 'very well'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Gov. George C. Wallace is expected to be discharged from a Montgomery hospital "no later than today," an aide says.

Wallace, who has been hospitalized since Jan. 15 for treatment of a skin ailment, is doing "very well," said Elvin Stanton. But Wallace will be confined to his Montgomery home for several days before he can return to his office.

Wallace, 60, left office when his third term as governor expired in January 1979.

Instructor for the course will be Dom Pomeroy, who has had catering experience in the Oriental food business. Cost of the course is $18.

Interested persons must pre-register in the Continuing Education Office located in the Horace Garrett Building. For further information, call the Adult and Continuing Education Department at 267-6311, ext. 70.

Irish music proves hit in Saturday program

One of Ireland's greatest exports, its music, was brought to the Municipal Auditorium here Saturday night for members of the Community Concert Association by the Jury's Irish Cabaret of Dublin.

Spiced by the Irish drollery of Chris Curran, the show both visually and lyrically was quite probably the best of the Community Concert series this season. Certainly, it met with the greatest enthusiasm.

The group offered a repertoire of music ranging from the pure Irish sound to the kind that tunesmiths of New York's Tin Pan Alley reason that it should be.

The Inis Ealga Dancers mesmerized the audience with a reel and a jig, the kind of dancing that likely inspired the American square dance.

The kind of music Albert Healy nursed from the piano made some of the viewers want to get up and dance in the aisles.

All the men in the troupe wore the map of Ireland on their faces and when Curran slipped into the role of the old Irish story teller — the Seannachaidhe — he had the audience eating out of his hand.

The Irish colleens provided pleasant visual relief on the stage and responded with well-disciplined voices that rounded out the two hours and 15 minutes of pure entertainment.

The mood of the crowd as it left the theater was light-hearted. The program, no doubt, proved to be quite a tonic, serving to counter-act some of the depressing news the community has absorbed in recent weeks. — By T.H.

Beetles with gigantic appetites munching forests

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Western foresters are waging war against a bug with a big appetite. The mountain pine beetle is winning, leaving vast forests of rust-colored dead trees. There is no solid defense against the insects, which have eaten their way along Montana's mountainous backbone — from Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming through Glacier National Park into Canada — infesting 1.4 million acres of forest. Commercial timber worth millions of dollars is dying in eight national forests in Montana and Idaho. But inside Yellowstone and Glacier, the National Park Service considers the beetles just one more protected species of wildlife. The U.S. Forest Service admits it is helpless to stem the beetle blight. Once a tree is infested, insecticides won't work — the beetles live beneath the bark. Annual sprays are saving a few trees in campgrounds. The Forest Service is responding to the beetle attack by accelerating timber harvest — to salvage timber killed by beetles — and by "beetleproofing" uninfested stands by cutting vulnerable trees in the path of the spreading blight. "The bug is doing what we do, harvesting timber," said Jack Usher, the Forest Service's timber management chief for Montana, northern Idaho, North Dakota and western South Dakota. "Either we cut the timber, or the bug is going to get it." Forest Service entomologist Mark McGregor said the beetle infestation is nothing new. "They've always been around forest stands, and are a natural part of the ecosystems."

The little insect with the long scientific name of "Dendroctonus ponderosae" is a picky eater. It prefers to dine on mature lodgepole pine, aged 70 to 90 years and measuring 7-9 inches in diameter. In a pinch, however, the beetle will turn to other species. Foresters say the epidemic can probably be traced to huge forest fires of nearly a century ago. After the fires, stands of lodgepole — now about the same age — sprouted over vast areas of western Montana, northern Idaho and in Yellowstone park. The beetle epidemic spread by 650,000 acres of lodgepole last year — a 21.5 percent increase in area — sometimes killing as many as 90 percent of the trees. Lodgepole pines on another 2.2 million acres are the right size and age to be attacked by the beetles. The tiny insects bore into the bark and lay eggs. The larvae feed on the inner bark tissue, which carries food and water from the roots to the needles. The feeding larvae girdle the trunk and the tree dies, often in two months, but the needles may not turn red-brown until the next year. Researchers say they don't know why beetles find large diameter lodgepole so tasty. Forest Service scientists think the insects may like the combination of chemicals produced by large trees. Some trees mount their own defenses, drowning the beetles in floods of sap called "pitchouts." Extreme cold is supposed to stymie beetle epidemics, but the severe winter of 1978-79 had little effect. The beetle epidemics eventually collapse.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Conquering first-date jitters

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens: Whether you're 15 or 19, a first date can seem more like an ordeal than an adventure.

One of the most prevalent first-date anxieties is the virtually universal self-consciousness people feel around someone new, says Seventeen magazine. Many teens view first dates as the only chance to win the interest and affection of their partner. This can lead to self-imposed pressure to live up to the other person's expectations. If you're trying to avoid doing or saying the wrong thing, it's hard to be spontaneous. Small talk can take on crucial importance.

Dr. Desmond Heath, a New York psychiatrist, says, "Sometimes, it's best to forget that the primary object of a date is to get to know one another. It helps if you have another goal in mind and can work together on something — teaching each other a new dance step, practicing a tennis serve, studying. Then you can get closer much more casually and easily."

Some people insist that the best way to make a first date more comfortable is to invite another couple along. A group situation can really put a person at ease and may make the conversation less strained. Double dating and going to a dance or party can be much more comfortable than being alone with your first-time date at a movie.

If something makes you uneasy about the date, why not discuss it with your partner. This way, you show that you are interested — the first step toward a successful date.

Dr. Murray Kappelman, a professor at the University of Maryland Medical School, says that first-date jitters can be avoided simply by having the right attitude — and understanding that your partner is probably just as nervous as you are.

Are you sailing, trailing or failing your child?

By LINDA FUCHS
Assistant County Extension Agent
A Child Development Seminar entitled "Are You Sailing, Trailing or Failing with Your Child," sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will be conducted in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry.

The date of the seminar will be Feb. 25. Two sessions will be offered. You may either attend from 9-11 a.m. or 7-9 p.m.

There is a need in the community for a program on meeting the needs of children and developing better family relationships.

The seminar will include guest speakers, and the audience will have an opportunity to participate in group interaction and ask questions of a panel.

Topics which will be covered at the seminar will include: How to cope with physical and social problems, how to meet nutritional needs and eat better for less by managing time, money and energy; the key to a healthy happy family — good communication; and a section on the affects of divorce on a child.

All parents, day care directors and their staff, teachers, Sunday school teachers, youth directors and everyone else who is interested in children and who works with youth are encouraged to attend.

There will be no fee for the seminar but those who are interested in attending will need to pre-register before Feb. 20 by calling the extension office and letting them know which session they plan to attend, either the morning or evening one.

All Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Pennywise advice given on refunds

Tired of draining your wallet at the checkout counter? Coupon-clipping is one way to beat the spiraling costs of food, but did you ever try refunding? An article in the Feb. 1 Family Circle says refunding can bring you cash incentives and free or discount merchandise. In exchange for various proofs of purchase — like box tops and register tapes — the manufacturers will refund part of all of your purchase price.

The Family Circle article gives lists of where to send for refund offers on items ranging from baby foods to beverages. To get the most out of offers, Family Circle suggests you keep these tips in mind:

Always follow the manufacturers' directions exactly when sending for your refund, printing your name and address clearly.

Watch for refund offers that coincide with store sales on various products; you can double your savings.

Become familiar with the products of companies that offer refunds regularly, and save their packaging.

And finally, the magazine suggests you bring all your coupons to the store with you so you can match the coupons with refund offers.

Sunday Sex Sin-Drome?

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman (22) and Mike is wonderful, healthy, robust, masculine man of 25. We've been married a little over a year, and I have a problem I can't ask anyone else about. It has to do with sex. Mike has a big appetite for sex, but I am not complaining. It's his timing that bothers me. He always wants to make love on Sunday morning before mass. Abby, I know that love within marriage is not a sin, but for some silly reason I just hate to go to mass right after having had sex. Lately I have been putting my husband off. But I feel guilty about that.

Do you think I should postpone the lovemaking until after mass? Or keep telling myself I have no reason to feel guilty about it, and just try to get over that feeling. What's wrong with me?

MAGGIE IN MANHATTAN

DEAR MAGGIE: Your problem is rooted in the notion that sex is sinful. You grow up believing it, and even though you're married and there is nothing to feel guilty about, you're still programmed to equate sex with sin. Talk to a priest, or a psychiatrist. (Try the priest first. It's cheaper.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been considering donating my organs for possible transplant at the time of my death. However, I have heard that the family of the deceased is charged for transportation to the special hospital where the organs are removed, and also for the surgery to remove the organs. Is this true?

If it is, I would rather not donate my organs since I do not wish to add to the expense of my funeral. Thank you.

CONSIDERATE

DEAR CONSIDERATE: There is no charge for transportation to hospitals for the removal of organs. Time is so important in the removal of organs that a donor almost always has to be in the hospital at the time of death. (Corneas must be removed within four hours after death; kidneys within 20 minutes!)

There is no cost to the donor or the donor's family for the removal of organs.

However, when one donates his entire body to a medical school, in some states the medical school bears the cost of transportation. In other states, the estate of the donor must pay for it. Check with your local medical school.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a reader complaining about a woman who chewed ice continuously. You commented in a funny vein.

She might just be ill-mannered; on the other hand, she could very well be suffering from an iron deficiency.

"Pagophagia" is a medical term for eating ice; it is a form of "pica," which is a craving for unusual substances. It's a well-known symptom of iron deficiency.

The woman needs to be examined and a diagnosis made. She might overcome her ice-chewing habit by taking iron supplements.

PHOENIX M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Thanks for the hard, cold facts. I learned something today.

CONFIDENTIAL TO VICTOR IN SACRAMENTO: Do not teach your mynah bird to "talk dirty," or you will be contributing to the delinquency of a mynah!

DEAR ABBY: Would you have any use for this poem written by my husband's cousin? Her name is Jean Sidebottom. She recently lost 20 pounds, and is having a tough time trying to keep it off.

"DIETER'S PRAYER"

Give me strength, Oh Lord, I pray —
Help me make it through the day.
Deliver me from snacks and sweets,
Keep my mind off high cal treats,
Tempt me not with French cuisines,
Bid me flee soft drink machines,
Turn my eyes from ice cream bars,
Stay my hand from cookie jars,
Til I'm back in shape again
Hang in there with me, Lord, Amen."

DOLLY GAEDE, LARNED, KANSAS

HELLO, DOLLY: The prayer is tops! Tell Jean Sidebottom I'm on her side.

Are there questions you can't ask your parents? Get Abby's new booklet: WHAT TEENAGERS OUGHT TO KNOW. Drugs, sex and alcohol are plainly discussed. Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Hangin' Out

by Nathan Poss

You can't trust anyone!

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

I'M TELLING YOU, YA JUST CAN'T TRUST any of these people in the media. First, they tell you they're going to write or say one thing, and the next time you turn around, you're utterly shocked.

Over a week ago, Greg Cole of KBST called me up and challenged myself to get up a team from the Big Spring Herald and play them during the halftime of the Howard-Western Texas men's game tonight.

THE CHALLENGE CAME after a cocky lunch, and without thinking, I shot back, "Yeah, sure!"

A few minutes later, I decided I was definitely crazy. Scotch Josephson, who doubles as my conscience, asked my really self, "Hey, Nathan, that's real stupid. If people aren't going to come out and see the nation's best junior college team, they're surely not going to come out and see a halftime game between KBST and The Herald."

All I could think was, "Hey, Scotch, it's too late. My big mouth just opened up too wide again."

The next day, I went down to KBST and made a few cuts with Scott Williams to help play up the halftime hilarity. I thought at the time that my lines and the mention of the game would only be used two or three times a day, but by mid-afternoon Monday I was wrong.

KBST was doing more than I had expected, or even wanted.

YOU SEE, THEY MAKE IT SOUND like it's really going to be some serious action. A couple of teams of pure thoroughbreds.

But that's wrong.

Then I heard that KBST was practicing for this halftime exhibition. It made me wonder whether I should really get my team and my act together.

I had all kinds of ideas. I mean, it didn't help when the first few people I asked around here didn't respond. But as it turned out, I can only hope everything's going to be okay.

Not think, just hope. We could have as many as 10 or 12 people show up, and many are players, or we might have to blow off the entire thing when only three arrive.

THE TWO SERIOUS GAMES should still be more than enough to satisfy the fans. WTC-Howard should be excellent basketball.

ALL I CAN SAY about the halftime game is this. Earlier this year, the University of New Mexico basketball program came under scrutiny of the NCAA, the FBI, and who knows what else. Everything from fixing transcripts to payoffs, to gambling and drugs had been mentioned about UNM.

BUT I CAN UNDERSTAND their problem more easily now. These athletes today, it's amazing what you have to do to get them to agree to terms to play on a basketball team. And just a 12-minute shoot-out.

Big battles shaping!

Howard college and Western Texas College meet tonight in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum for two basketball contests that promise to be exciting throughout.

In the opening game at 6 p.m., the Howard College Hawk Queens meet the WTC women in the battle for first place in the Western Conference. Currently, both teams are tied for first with identical conference marks of 5-7.

It will be the last meeting of the regular season for the two female teams, as WTC won over the Hawk Queens in their previous two games. The Queens lost to WTC in a conference game in Snyder in December, and dropped a one-point decision just over a week ago to WTC in the Statistically, the teams are even, as both average around 77 points in conference play, and have allowed just 66.

Both of the female teams also have been ranked in the nation's top 20 at one time this year in the NJCAA poll.

The 8 p.m. affair between the men of the two schools doesn't present the challenge of the conference leadership to both schools, but it will provide Coach Harold Wilder's Hawks a chance to knock the nation's top ranked juco team, WTC, off for the first time this season.

WTC, led by the most impressive Paul Presse, boasts a 22-0 record and has a bench that would make many senior college coaches envious.

The Westerners have a one-game conference lead over Midland College, winning all 10 of their conference decisions.

The Hawks, meanwhile, would take a giant step toward a berth in the Region V Tourney with a win tonight. They have a 5-5 conference record, tying them for fourth with Frank Phillips.

WTC won the first meeting between the pair, 121-98, although the HC's Mike Wallace tallied a season-high 47 points. Wallace is ranked fifth nationally in scoring.

At the halftime of the men's game, a crew of disc jockeys and others from KBST will face a team from the Big Spring Herald.

B-ball in Big D?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will pro basketball return to Dallas next fall following a seven-year hiatus?

The Dallas group seeking a National Basketball Association expansion franchise has been given 30 days to decide whether it's willing to meet new terms set forth by the league's Board of Governors Saturday at its annual midwinter meeting in conjunction with the NBA All-Star Game.

Foremost among the changes is the requirement that the 24 partners in the group headed by Norm Sonju come up with half the $12 million entry fee as a down payment, instead of just $3.5 million. The Governors also made the remainder of the payment schedule more

U.S. boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — Public support for a U.S. withdrawal from the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow has jumped dramatically in the past two weeks, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

Seventy-three percent of those who know of the Afghanistan situation said the U.S. team should not go to the Games if they are held in Moscow because of the Soviet intervention in stringent and decided to let each existing team protect eight players from the expansion draft, instead of seven.

If these terms are acceptable, the Dallas group will get the NBA's 23rd franchise and pro basketball will return to a city it left in 1973, when the Dallas Chaparrals of the old American Basketball Association moved to San Antonio.

In another major development, the NBA Governors voted to accept a new three-year working agreement with the Players Association, which had been competing this season without a contract. The pact, approved by the Association's executive committee, was scheduled to be voted on today by the 22 player representatives.

"I think this contract is a major step forward," said Paul Silas, president of the Players Association. "We are delighted that we have come to this conclusion."

Under the agreement, the players would receive an increase in the minimum salary from the present level of $30,000 to an unannounced figure, as well as raises in per diem expenses and playoff money. And in 1981-82, the final year of the contract, the league agreed to raise the roster limit from 11 players to 12.

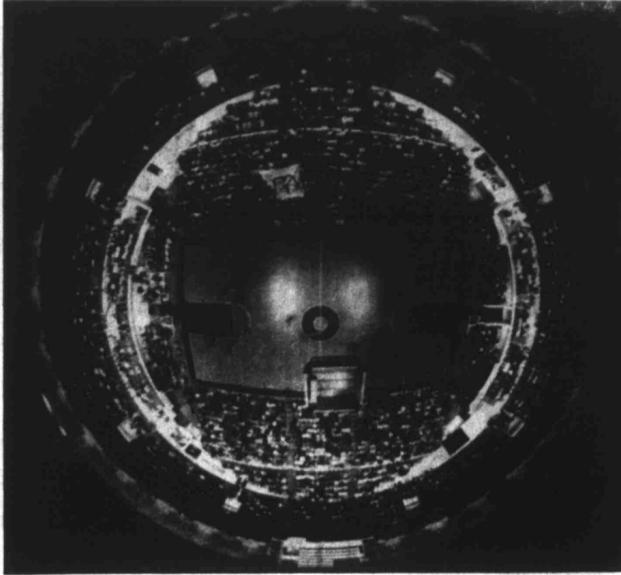

In return, the players agreed to drop their demands for a share of the growing revenue from cable television, which had been a major point with the owners.

The league also won a uniform player contract to replace the present, highly individualized pacts; a limit on deferred payment clauses of two years beyond the life of the contract, and the elimination of no-trade clauses from contracts.

In another labor development, Richie Phillips, legal counsel for the National Association of Basketball Referees, called on the league to return to three-man officiating teams for this spring's playoffs. He also said a return to the three-referee system, which was tested last year but dropped by the Board in a cost-cutting move, would be a major point in negotiations for a new contract to replace the one which expires this summer.

"We will not sign a contract for the 1980-81 season without the three-referee system being brought back," he declared. "It could become a strike issue."

Finally, the Board voted to formalize its agreement with the minor league Continental Basketball Association, giving the CBA stipends and using it as a developmental ground for players and officials.

Envoy Ali draws flak

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Muhammad Ali on Monday carried President Carter's campaign for an Olympic boycott to Kenya, where he faced a probable enthusiastic public welcome but also some comments that he is unsuited to the job of special presidential envoy.

African tour "is certainly a mistake."

Ali arrives early Monday afternoon before going on to Nigeria, Liberia and Senegal. A U.S. embassy spokesman said Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi has been asked to meet with Ali but that nothing during Ali's two-day stay was firmly scheduled so far.

him and Tanzanian officials said privately they considered it an insult to send a boxer to confer with their president.

In Nairobi, Kenya's Amateur Boxing Association hastily arranged a boxing meet in Ali's honor Monday night between teams from Kenya Breweries and the national police service. Association Secretary Harrison Kilzong said the former heavyweight champion may fight in an exhibition bout during the meet.

Ali will be preaching to the converted in Kenya since Moi has already announced that Kenya will boycott the Summer Olympics unless the Games are moved from Moscow. Moi said Saturday that no non-aligned nation should attend the Moscow Olympics while Soviet troops are in Afghanistan.

SWC race still close!

Shelby Metcalf isn't getting much help from anybody else in widening the gap between his Texas Aggies and second-place Arkansas in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

The Razorbacks beat Texas 60-59 on U.S. Reed's 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer Saturday night, after having edged Texas Tech earlier in the week on Mike Young's 15-footer with 2 seconds left in overtime.

As if Arkansas didn't have enough advantage, playing in the hills, Reed, a 6-2 junior, felt he got help from above on his game-winner against Texas.

The Razorbacks beat Texas 60-59 on U.S. Reed's 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer Saturday night, after having edged Texas Tech earlier in the week on Mike Young's 15-footer with 2 seconds left in overtime.

Tonight, the Aggies have to play Texas Tech in Lubbock, one of the two big obstacles they have left on the road in conference play, the other being a date in Fayetteville a week from tomorrow.

Reed admitted afterward, "I couldn't believe it. I just felt like falling on the ground and lying there for a while."

The Texas A&M-Texas Tech game will be televised. In other league action tonight, Arkansas hosts TCU, Baylor is at SMU, and Houston is at Texas A&M.

The Aggies led the pack with a 9-0 mark, followed by Arkansas at 8-1, Tech at 6-4 and Texas at 5-5.

Rice went to a fullcourt press late in the game, but Teagle didn't seem to notice. "I didn't feel no press," said the league's top scorer, who was averaging 21.3 points a game going into the contest. "When we move the ball around, we don't have any trouble with the press."

Gervin takes it easy at All-Star Game

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — George Gervin had a good time, on and off the court.

When the 6-foot-7 guard of the San Antonio Spurs came to Washington for the 30th annual National Basketball Association All-Star Game, he compared it with being on vacation.

And, he didn't change his mind after scoring 34 points to lead the East to a 144-136 overtime victory over the West Sunday, a performance which earned him Most Valuable Player honors.

"It was a very competitive game and there was a lot of pride out there," Gervin said. "But I still had a good time."

The two squads put on an entertaining show for the sellout crowd of 19,035 in Capital Centre and a national television audience, with the usual All-Star Game moves, passes and dunks.

and a general lack of defense.

"I was my kind of game," said Gervin, who is going for his third consecutive NBA scoring title as the chief gunner of the Spurs. "What did we score—144 points? It sounds like the Spurs... no defense, all offense."

"This game just goes to prove a point about giving 100 percent," said East

Coach Billy Cunningham, who noted that both teams bounced back from big deficits.

The West moved in front 39-28 at the start of the second period after Dennis Johnson of the Seattle SuperSonics scored eight points during a 14-0 streak.

But the East forged a 64-64 tie at halftime on the strength of a 15-6 spurt. Dan Roundfield of the Atlanta Hawks scored five points during the outburst, with Gervin and Elvin Hayes of the Washington Bullets adding four apiece.

The East, allowed much more freedom on offense by Cunningham after intermission, outscored the West 44-27 in the third quarter and Gervin poured in 11 points during a 27-7 streak which made it 96-79.

"Too Tall" wants total retraction

DALLAS (AP) — It's not enough that a 25-year-old nurse has dropped rape charges against boxer Ed "Too Tall" Jones — she also must stop saying the rape took place, says an attorney for the former defensive end for the Dallas Cowboys.

"The only way we would not do anything is if she comes out and says she was not raped. At this point, we will leave it up to her."

Jones was arrested early Thursday after the woman told police he raped her in her apartment several hours earlier.

Police investigators and county prosecutors had expressed reservations about the complaint.

A source at Parkland Memorial Hospital said tests taken there indicated there was no evidence of rape. The woman also told police she had cleansed herself twice with a vinegar and water solution before calling of officers.

In the original complaint, she said she woke to find Jones on top of her in bed. The woman said she and her roommate had met Jones and a Dallas physician at a northside disco earlier in the evening.

signed a document saying she did not wish to press the charges.

"It did happen," the woman said this weekend. "But I just want to forget the whole thing."

LAST WEEK'S RESULTS	MONDAY — Arkansas 71, Texas Tech 69 (OT);

Coach Billy Cunningham, who noted that both teams bounced back from big deficits.

The West moved in front 39-28 at the start of the second period after Dennis Johnson of the Seattle SuperSonics scored eight points during a 14-0 streak.

But the East forged a 64-64 tie at halftime on the strength of a 15-6 spurt. Dan Roundfield of the Atlanta Hawks scored five points during the outburst, with Gervin and Elvin Hayes of the Washington Bullets adding four apiece.

The East, allowed much more freedom on offense by Cunningham after intermission, outscored the West 44-27 in the third quarter and Gervin poured in 11 points during a 27-7 streak which made it 96-79.

"It did happen," the woman said this weekend. "But I just want to forget the whole thing."

Police investigators and county prosecutors had expressed reservations about the complaint.

A source at Parkland Memorial Hospital said tests taken there indicated there was no evidence of rape. The woman also told police she had cleansed herself twice with a vinegar and water solution before calling of officers.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"Wow! Look at the thermometer! This is a perfect morning to have some hot chili for breakfast!"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"If only they'd invent a SILENT electronic game!"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, FEB. 5, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Consider your position with other persons and think out ways by which you can get along better with them. If you have anything of a cultural or an artistic nature to do, this is the time to do so since practically everyone is endowed with sense of neat touch, fine finish.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Have more harmonious relations with partners and become more successful mutually. Plan time for handling civic duties.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Try to please co-workers more and know what they expect from you. Be less firm with a loved one and get along better.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get into recreations that elevate your spirits. Try to please a close tie more. Contact a friend you haven't seen in a long time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Spend more time on needed changes about the home. Invite important guests to your home. Much good can come of this.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You are able to get those points across to others which have been impossible to do before this. Improve partnerships appreciably.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Study property and financial affairs well and know how best to improve them. Plan to add to savings account for possible emergencies later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Improve your appearance and accomplish more in the right circles. Do whatever will improve personal relationships. Settle an argument.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You like to investigate and this is a fine day for that. Come up with the right answers to problems. Show more devotion to loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Go after personal aims after you have studied them from every angle. Advancement is pretty much up to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Situations arise that will test your ability. Come through with flying colors. Take the time to get involved in community affairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Get into activities that help you to advance in right channels. Make right contacts who can also give you the data you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be sure to handle responsibilities in a sensible and clever fashion. Also, be willing to run small errands for a loved one.

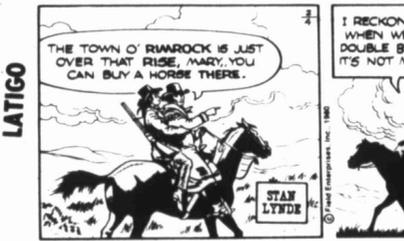

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be good at any profession that requires precision, neatness and fine finish. Slant education along such avenues of expression. There is an unusual charm in this nature that lends itself to peacemaking, and your progeny could be a boon to humanity in general.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Conflict of interest---II
One Texas legislator and his legislation

(This is the second story of a three-part series examining how some legislators' bills might affect their personal financial interests.)
 By MICHAEL STEPHENS
 Marie-Hanks Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — A funeral home owner is elected to the legislature and gets a bill passed that benefits the funeral industry.
 During the same legislative session, a nursing home owner introduces a bill to require state payment of all drugs costs for Medicaid patients in nursing homes.
 A legislator files his required financial disclosure report but fails to mention that his wholly owned investment corporation owns a nursing home.

Next Friday in auditorium
BSSH will conduct alcoholism seminar

The Big Spring State Hospital will conduct its forty-third alcoholism seminar next Friday in the auditorium at the Big Spring State Hospital.
 These seminars are made possible through the Big Spring State Hospital and are being held in conjunction with Howard College.
 Jacquie Small, M.S.W., psychotherapist, private practice, author, trainer and formerly Director of Training, Texas Commission on Alcoholism, Austin, will be the consultant for this day-long seminar.
 This seminar will be of interest to those working in the field of alcoholism and to those of the general public, who are interested in learning more about this problem.
 Registration will begin at 8 a.m., and the general session will begin at 9 a.m. A registration fee of $1 will be charged with an additional charge of $1 for those wishing to receive Continuing Education Units from Howard College. (The persons wishing to receive credit for attendance will be expected to remain the entire day.)

Theme for the day will be: "Beyond Abstinence: Technique of Self Transformation for Alcoholism Clients."

Rep. Bobby Webber of Fort Worth is all of the above.
 Webber's case is a prime example of the grey area in which legislators sometimes mix their private interests with the public interest. It also illustrates unclear reporting requirements of the state financial disclosure law.

"I don't see a conflict in this respect," Webber said. "I think if the bill is going to affect more than that one person, I don't see a conflict."
 The funeral home bill that Webber got passed last spring amended the law that classifies creditors' claims against the estate of a deceased person.

Funeral homes and medical expenses from final illness were first on the list with a maximum payment of $1,000. Webber got that raised to $5,000.

House Speaker Bill Clayton, when asked if he would introduce such a bill if he were a funeral home owner, said, "I don't know whether I'd consider it a conflict of interest or not if there was a crying need for something like this across the state. I wouldn't do it myself, personally."

Webber also owns the Eastwood Village Nursing and Retirement Center in Fort Worth, although he did not list it on his public financial disclosure form.

Webber's 1979 nursing home license application shows that 89 out of 90 patients in his facility are Medicaid recipients.

Last year Webber's nursing home received more than $650,000 in Medicaid payments administered by the Texas Department of Human Resources.
 State records show that Webber's father, J.W. Webber, owns a nursing home in Fort Worth which had all 131 patients on Medicaid and collected more than $820,000 in these funds

Among other things, Medicaid pays for a patient's first three prescriptions each month. Department rules require that either the patient or relatives pay for additional prescriptions. Nursing homes bear the cost if neither a patient nor relative can.

Webber introduced a bill to require the state to pay all prescription costs for nursing home Medicaid patients.
 "If that bill had passed there would have been some problems," Bob Harris, Medicaid standards director for the state, said. The bill specifically named patients in nursing home, Harris said, but federal rules prohibit benefits to only one class of Medicaid recipients.

Records at the Human Resources and Health departments show that Webber listed himself as sole proprietor of Eastwood Village Nursing and Retirement Center.

Neither department has any record of Midas Investment Corp. ever owning the facility. But Webber lists Midas and not the nursing home on his public financial disclosure form.

 Webber formed Midas in June 1971 and bought the nursing home, through the corporation, a month later. He said he understood that as long as he owned 100 percent of Midas, the license could go to him personally.

E.W. Freeman, Health Department license officer, said if the corporation owns the nursing home, it should be listed with his agency.
 Webber said he didn't list his nursing home on his public financial disclosure because it is owned by Midas

Investment Corp.
 But Chip Holt, head of the Secretary of State's Campaign and Ethics Division, said if a nursing home is owned by a corporation that an official wholly owns, then the nursing home should show up on the statement.
 Speaker Clayton said reporting assets the way Webber does shouldn't be allowed.
 He said he didn't know whether the case involved a technical violation but if there is a loophole that allows this, the law should be changed.
