Iranian president denounces militants

By The Associated Press
Iranian President Abolhassan Bani Sadr today angrily denounced the Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran as "dictators who have created a government within a government."
Bani Sadr's attack, his strongest yet on the embassy militants, came after they broadcast allegations that the minister of Information and National Guidance, Nasser Minachi, had "close links with the CIA." Minachi was arrested by revolutionary guards without government authorization at about midnight Tuesday.
The minister had denied the allegations before being seized at his home.

The new tension between Bani Sadr and the militants arose as Iranian officials gave conflicting signals on whether the establishment of a U.N. investigation of the ex-shah's regime would lead to the release of the approximately 50 embassy hostages.

It was announced Tuesday night that Bani Sadr had been chosen chairman of Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council, strengthening his position and raising hopes among those who expect him to try to get the American hostages released.

The new president, stung by the arbitrary arrest of Minachi, told the Tehran daily newspaper Kayhan that although the militants may not realize it they are paving the way for lawlessness in the country.

"How could you expect a government employee to go to work feeling secure," he said. "When there is no legal or judicial security in the country, that will undoubtedly lead to disorder."

Bani Sadr also attacked the state-owned television network for acting without prior government approval in giving the embassy militants air time Tuesday night to broadcast their allegations.

The militants found documents in the embassy files "proving the existence of close links between Nasser Minachi... and both the U.S. Embassy and the CIA," Tehran Radio reported in a broadcast monitored in Kuwait.

Until today, Bani Sadr's criticism of the militants had been confined to statements to the effect that the new government alone must make decisions for the country.

Council spokesman Hassan Habibi announced Bani Sadr's selection Tuesday night and said it was subject to approval by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

But this seemed merely a formality since Iran's 79-year-old revolutionary leader endorsed Bani Sadr when he swore him in as president Monday in the hospital where the ayatollah is recuperating from a heart attack.

Habibi said parliamentary elections would begin March 7. Bani Sadr is expected to name his cabinet after the elections.

Bani Sadr's foes in the council lost their first round against him when they failed in an attempt to delay his swearing in as president until after the elections. They lost again with his selection as council chairman.

Bani Sadr's emergence as head of Iran's top policy-making body marked a complete reversal in his fortunes since November, when he was ousted as foreign minister for adopting too moderate a stance toward the hostage crisis.

U.S. officials are now more optimistic than ever that Bani Sadr will be able to bring about the release of the captives, and there is speculation former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young may be tapped as a go-between.

Iran's economic counselor in Washington, Kamran Movasaghi, speculated Tuesday the hostages might be released March 21, the start of the Iranian new year. He said the coming formation of a government by Bani Sadr and the Revolutionary Council's agreement to an international commission to investigate the regime's charges against the shah were "plus points as far as the situation goes."

The approximately 50 hostages began their 95th day of captivity. They were seized Nov. 4 by militant students who took over the U.S. Embassy and demanded that the U.S. government return Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran for trial.

A group of 49 Americans sympathetic to the embassy militants' cause was to arrive in Tehran today at their invitation, but it was not known if Bani Sadr would meet with them.

The militants invited the Americans to Tehran to use them as a publicity pipeline to the U.S. public, replacing the TV coverage they have been denied since the expulsion of all American reporters from Iran.

Clears way for construction of dam

CRMWD wins permit suit

Judge Herman Jones of the 53rd District Court, Austin, ruled favorably for the Colorado River Municipal Water District this morning in denying an appeal initiated by the Lower Colorado River Water Authority and others to negate the permit granted to the CRMWD by the Texas Water Commission to impound water at Stacy.

O. H. Ivie, general manager of CRMWD, expressed jubilation over the ruling. He said the parties contesting the right of the water district to build a dam at Stacy could take either of two routes: They could cease all action against the CRMWD, he all action against the CRMWD, district to begin construction of the dam, or they could appeal the case to the Texas Court of Civil Appeals.

Ivie has been supremely confident that all obstacles concerning the dam's construction would be removed. He was somewhat surprised, he added, that Judge Jones announced his decision so quickly after hearing the appeal last week. Ivie said he had been prepared to wait as long as 30 days for the ruling.

In ruling for the water district,

Judge Jones issued the following statement:

"While I have considerable question concerning the determination of the agency in this case, I am not able to say they are without substantial evidence to support them or that they are contrary to law."

The plaintiffs in the case were challenging a decision made by the Texas Water Commission which granted the Colorado River Municipal Water District the right to build a third dam on the Colorado River below Ballinger.

Guard safety won out

Killing of inmates known

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Authorities knew inmates were being killed and mutilated soon after a 36-hour state prison uprising began, but put off storming the facility to protect guards being held hostage, officials say.

The death toll in the weekend rebellion at the New Mexico State Penitentiary has been revised several times. Gov. Bruce King's office said Tuesday that at least 36 inmates died — some of drug overdoses and a few from fire, but most at the hands of other prisoners.

Warden Jerry Griffin said 33 bodies had been found, but a King aide said that count did not include three bodies found in a burned prison gymnasium that some convicts said was used as a torture chamber.

Authorities said about 50 inmates were unaccounted for, but said that did not mean they should be presumed dead or missing. A number still refused to identify themselves Tuesday.

Col. Bill Fields, commander of the National Guard troops called to the scene early Saturday, said there was "some talk" of storming the penitentiary when officials learned inmates were being killed.

"But our primary concern was that they had the hostages and we wanted to do everything we could to get them out alive," he said.

The siege ended Sunday afternoon when a Special Weapons and Tactics team and about 60 National Guardsmen seized the ravaged prison without firing a shot.

Fields said he was aware some inmates had been tortured as early as 7:30 a.m. Saturday when a wounded prisoner was released.

Criminal prosecution possible

Congress won't get FBI records

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department today refused to turn over to congressional ethics committees evidence that the FBI has amassed on eight members of Congress allegedly implicated in the bureau's political corruption inquiry.

Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann conveyed the refusal to the House ethics committee by reading a letter from Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti.

The letter said sharing of evidence with the ethics committees could endanger criminal prosecution of guilty persons and result in the leaking of other information that might be harmful to innocent parties.

"If this committee were to begin a full investigation before we have had a fair opportunity even to complete our criminal investigations, a number of guilty individuals could go unprosecuted or unpunished and innocent ones may be more severely prejudiced," the letter said.

Citing difficulties presented by "simultaneous investigations," Civiletti's letter asked that the congressional ethics panels forego their probes pending completion of Justice Department prosecutions.

The letter said the department would then be willing to fully cooperate with congressional investigations which can lead to disciplining of members found guilty of wrongdoing or improprieties.

Earlier today in a CBS-TV interview, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee, said Heymann told him Tuesday night that FBI evidence would not be made available for congressional investigations.

Heflin said his committee might go to court to force the Justice Department's cooperation in its inquiry, but he said he hoped some settlement could be reached without legal action.

At this point, officials said, the House and Senate ethics panels lack independent information on which to conduct effective probes of their own.

Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., chairman of the House committee, said that a Justice Department refusal to share its information would leave his committee with little to go on.

But he also said he would prefer to delay the committee inquiry, which would concentrate on possible violations of House rules, if it would imperil the FBI's case.

"If it means that persons would escape criminal prosecution because of a committee hearing... obviously people should not be allowed to escape criminal prosecution," Bennett said.

However, several members of the two panels are known to feel strongly that some investigation should go forward even in the face of an FBI refusal to cooperate.

Meeting with House leaders during the day Tuesday, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti urged a three-month delay in any Capitol Hill inquiry, according to several congressional sources.

Even if wrongdoing were found, the House and Senate panels have no authority to exact punishment. They can only recommend punishment ranging from a reprimand to expulsion from Congress.

In all, some 20 public officials and 10 businessmen and lawyers have been implicated in the 14-month investigation, in which sources say FBI undercover men posed as aides to a wealthy Arab sheik willing to buy favors from congressmen and other public officials.

The undercover agents paid out almost $500,000 in cash, but sources said fewer than half the officials actually took money. Some transactions were videotaped by the agents.

Besides state and local officials in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, sources say subjects of the FBI investigation include Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., and Reps. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.; Michael O. Myers, D-Pa.; Raymond F. Lederer, D-Pa.; John W. Jenrette, D-S.C.; John P. Murtha, D-Pa., and Richard Kelly, R-Fla.

Most of them have denied any wrongdoing.

A source said Tuesday that "the cases of those eight will be presented to grand juries."

A source close to the investigation also has said a ninth member of Congress may be involved in the case.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Eisenhower dollars

Q. Is it true the 1971 Eisenhower dollars have more silver than the ones minted later. If so, just what is the difference in the silver content?
A. Outside of the Susan B. Anthony dollar (which resembles the 25-cent piece and has never been popularly accepted), there has been no dollar coins minted since the Eisenhower dollar appeared. Bank officials here say the Eisenhower coin is less than half silver content.

'Scandalous and derogatory'

HC president files answer

Charles D. Hays, Howard College president, denied allegations made against him in a suit filed Jan. 16 in 118th District Court. The suit alleges he withheld college records from inquirers for personal gain.

Hays filed his answer to the suit Monday. He called the suit's reference to his relationship to the Spring City Ice Company "scandalous and derogatory" and said the reference "should be stricken from the record."

The suit had been filed by Mary Thomas. She had made inquiries about the college's purchase of ice from the ice company. She claimed in her suit that Hays had been responsible for withholding the information. She named Hays as an office holder in the ice company.

Hays said in his answer he took exception to the suit because it didn't show facts proving access was denied.

He also said the suit's claim that he should pay his own costs of suit was based on the unsubstantiated conclusion that he acted in his own interests. He said the allegations didn't apprise him of what the plaintiff will attempt to prove.

The answer also said the alleged reluctance to disclose information did not constitute violation of state statute. State statute would have been violated only if the records were actually withheld, he said.

Hays said Howard College should pay costs of suit because it adopted the policy referred to in the suit. The suit said a policy governing disclosure of records mandated that records be released "in a reasonable period of time, usually 24 hours." Mrs. Thomas said in her suit that section 4 of the state Open Records Act stated records should be released "promptly."

Hays claimed that the college's policy caused records to be released "efficiently, safely and without delay."

He answered Mrs. Thomas charge that 55 cents was too high to pay for copies of records by claiming that the amount was set by the State Board of Control.

Hays said because the suit asks for declaratory judgment against Howard College the college only should have been named in the suit.

His answer, prepared by attorney John T. Ferguson, said, it is "necessary that Howard College itself retain lawyers to defend this suit and that such attorneys be paid for out of funds of the college."

Mrs. Thomas's petition asked that Hays be made to pay for cost of suit so that public tax money could not be used.

A copy of Hays's answer was mailed to Mrs. Thomas.

Candidacy for mayor announced

Henkel favors pay raise for employees of city

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

City Councilman Bill Henkel became the first person Tuesday to enter local political battles this year by filing his candidacy for mayor in the upcoming April 5 municipal elections.

Henkel, a long-time Big Spring business man, has served two years on the council. He is attempting to replace Mayor Wade Choate who is not seeking reelection.

"I am running because I think it is a challenge," Henkel told the media at a Tuesday evening press conference. "I have had two years' experience working with the city manager and the people of Big Spring."

Henkel matter-of-factly said he favors a salary boost for city employees.

"Personally I think they need it," he said. "Some start at $572 a month, and I don't see how they can live on it."

He added, "I think we will have to give it (wage increase) to them or lose them. I don't think there is a soul in Big Spring who would not support it."

A city bus system was one of several items Henkel introduced as his platform.

"I want to get a transit

system for the city of Big Spring," Henkel said. "We have a great number of senior citizens who cannot afford a taxi. The taxi service is too high."

Henkel said he is looking initially at a three-bus system. He estimated the cost would be about $75,000, and added there are available federal funds that could finance up to 80 percent of the bill.

He said one of the challenges facing Big Spring in this decade is to bring industry into the area. "Industry is a high priority on my list," he said.

He listed several policy goals designed to lure companies to locate or relocate in Big Spring.

"I want to improve the city's streets," he said. "They are in bad shape."

He said that rough streets could discourage a company from setting up here.

Henkel also said he will start a cleanup campaign in the city, specifically on the north and west sides.

Henkel added that his administration would focus on reducing the presence of drugs.

"We are going to work on drugs," he said. "These drug peddlers better pack up and go."

Henkel and his wife, Pat, live at 2706 Coronado. They have a son, Billy, and two daughters, Beverly and Betty.

Henkel said his family fully supports his campaign and added they will be working in it. Henkel said he will not undertake a door-to-door campaign, instead he will focus himself through the conventional media.

His campaign treasurer is Jim Potter of 1103 E. 15th.

The Utah-based firm is now cranking up to film "Hangar 18—UFO" almost entirely in the Big Spring area.

Movies like "Hangar 18" are created on the basis of audience reaction in advance, according to Charles E. Sellier Jr., Schick-Sunn Classics Production president, who scouted the locations in Big Spring personally before deciding to film here.

The Parade article, "Making Movies the Computer Way," was written by Patricia Morrisroe and includes pictures of Sellier and the man who will direct "Hangar 18," Henning Schellner, along with actor Dan Haggerty and the bear which appeared in the television series, "Grizzly Adams."

Making movies the computer way

The most recent issue of Parade Magazine, which is circulated widely throughout the United States as a newspaper supplement, has an article on the manner Schick-Sunn Classics Productions gauges the market through use of computers before it begins production of a film.

The Utah-based firm is now cranking up to film "Hangar 18—UFO" almost entirely in the Big Spring area.

Movies like "Hangar 18" are created on the basis of audience reaction in advance, according to Charles E. Sellier Jr., Schick-Sunn Classics Production president, who scouted the locations in Big Spring personally before deciding to film here.

The Parade article, "Making Movies the Computer Way," was written by Patricia Morrisroe and includes pictures of Sellier and the man who will direct "Hangar 18," Henning Schellner, along with actor Dan Haggerty and the bear which appeared in the television series, "Grizzly Adams."

Pre-testing audience reaction by highly sophisticated computer technology, according to the Parade article, has paid off for Schick-Sunn Classics Production. The company has produced an unbroken chain of "hits"—17 movies that have each grossed an average of $14 million.

Its most successful picture to date has been "In Search of Noah's Ark." Made for only $360,000, it has returned $28 million at the box office.

"By using cost-cutting devices, such as small casts of little known actors and non-union crews, Sunn can spend huge amounts on expensive but well-timed television advertisements," the Parade article says. "As a result, audiences flock to see their 'limited run' movies. In a business where six out of seven films lose money, Sunn's pictures regularly gross 30 times their production costs, a ratio enjoyed by only a handful of films in history."

The article identifies Sellier, 36, who is a Mormon convert, as the inspiration behind Sunn's approach to the movie making industry. Sellier himself attributes his good fortune to two important factors: God and the computer.

Sellier identifies his main target group as working-class families who attend films only once or twice a year.

In pinpointing this market, according to the magazine, Sellier has found an unexplored resource. "Only 23 percent of the U.S. population sees movies with any sort of regularity," he says. "Hollywood is just not making the kind of movies that turn on the other 77 percent. All we did was find an angle that other people weren't pursuing."

Ms. Morrisroe writes that Sunn's productions (like "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," "The Adventures of Frontier Fremont" and "The Outer Space Connection") can't compare with the polished looks of Walt Disney's productions, but they do fill a need for simple entertainment.

"It's not surprising," the article continues. "Under Sellier's leadership, the audience practically designs every aspect of the films themselves. Each month researchers are dispatched across the country to question potential movie goers on unusual ideas, newspaper articles, current books, or anything else that might get them out of the house and into the theater.

"Once the most popular ideas are collated, Sunn's research teams are sent out again. This time the man-on-the-street is asked to help flesh out the concepts. Take, for example, the research conducted for "The President Must Die," a documentary on the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

"After feeding out data into the computer," explains screenwriter Brian Russell, "we went with the conspiracy theory—the premise that was closest to what the majority believed." What if the computer had pinned the blame solely on Oswald? "We would have gone with that angle instead," Russell says. "We're interested in drama, not politics." —By T.H.

Trials due next week

The 118th District Courtroom will be the scene of two trials next week.

The defendants have not been named yet, but three announced ready in Wednesday's docket call. One trial is scheduled to begin Monday and the other when the first is finished.

Pre-trial hearings Friday will determine who will go to trial. Lonnie Green, 1502 Robin St., and Ronnie Ray Barber, 1606 State, will be involved in hearings to determine the validity of their indictments.

Green is charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of Raymond Brown, 50, Lamesa. He was killed in a collision at the corner of FM 700 and Cedar Oct. 30.

Green was arrested that night. Bond was set at $15,000 by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin Oct. 31. Green was transferred and released from county jail the same day.

Barber is charged with an armed robbery that occurred at Waterhole No. 3. He was arrested Aug. 15 and released Aug. 16 on $10,000 bond set by Heflin.

Forgery rap hits Williams

Johnny Clifford Williams, 1002 N. Main No. 44, was charged Wednesday with forgery. The charge was filed in the office of Justice of the Peace Bob West.

Williams was arrested Monday and transferred to county jail Tuesday where he is being held in lieu of $10,000 bond set by West. The complaint against Williams was signed by Big Spring detective Avery Faulkner.

Indecency with child charged

Wesley Gordon Taylor, 1908 Runnels, was charged Tuesday in the office of Justice of the Peace Bob West with indecency with a child.

The charge involves sexual contact with a male juvenile.

Taylor was arrested Monday. Bond was set at $7,500 by Justice of the Peace Bob West. Taylor is free on bond.

Susan B. Anthony to be circulated at local Post Office

The Big Spring Post Office is using the new Susan B. Anthony dollar coin when window clerks are making change. Postmaster Frank Hardesty announced today.

Nationally, the Postal Service is supporting the efforts of the Treasury Department, the postmaster said, because "the widespread use of these dollar coins could be of great benefit to both our window clerks as well as our customers. They are easier to handle at the counter, and they can be mechanically sorted and counted."

"We will use the dollar coin in making change, unless a customer prefers not to accept them," Hardesty said.

The Susan B. Anthony dollar coin, introduced last July, was designed to be convenient and easy to handle in cash transactions. Over 600 million of the new dollars were produced in fiscal year 1979 by the Bureau of the Mint. Approximately 300 million have been released to Federal Reserve banks for distribution to commercial banks.

TV blackout

West Texas Microwave is replacing television equipment in Sweetwater. Work started at 11 p.m. Tuesday. Dallas TV signals are expected back in service to West Texas Cable systems this afternoon.

Two more file for city offices

Two more candidates filed today to run for city offices. Thomas R. Woolverton, 22, 1800 Hamilton, declared for the position of Councilman Place 1. The post is currently held by Bill Henkel, but Henkel declared Tuesday for the mayoral race, leaving the Place 1 seat open.

Woolverton is an employee of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, and is a 15-year Big Spring resident.

Kenny Williams, 407 Lancaster, an employee of Big Spring Taxi Cab Company, today added his name to the list of mayoral candidates. Neither of the two candidates could be reached for statements at press time.

Memphis revival set

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Beale Street, birthplace of the blues, is being billed as the star attraction at a Memphis revival.

A $5.2 million renovation of the historic street began Monday, and is expected to open as the Beale Street Historic District in 1981. Developers hope to recapture the flavor of Beale Street, once famed for its gambling, liquor and music, which began a decline in 1917 when W.C. Handy, known as the father of the blues, took his "Beale Street Blues" to New York.

Mayor E.H. Crump clamped down on prostitution and Prohibition closed the saloons. A 1960s urban renewal project finished the decline.

Alaska may enact first

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A bill introduced in the Alaska Legislature would make that state the first to allow renewable trial marriages.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Mike Beirne, R-Anchorage, was introduced Tuesday and would allow couples to marry for a specific period agreed upon in advance. The "marriage contract" would automatically expire when the period is up unless renewed.

Couples would be required to write an agreement outlining the disposition of assets and custody arrangements for any children. Beirne said he introduced the measure in recognition of unmarried Alaskans living together outside traditional marriage.

Dick Reavis, who wrote the article "The Crackup" for Texas Monthly Magazine, is the nephew of Mary Crawford, librarian at Howard College.

"The Crackup" concerns the crash of a young writer on a motorcycle and a vehicle piloted by a drunk driver that nearly ended the young writer's life and the agonies that followed for the victim and his family.

Dick J. Reavis is the son of Ms. Crawford's brother, also named Dick. The father owns and publishes the Moore County News in Dumas and has other newspaper interests. Ms. Crawford's father, E.P. Reavis, was a small-town publisher of country weeklies in both Oklahoma and Texas. E.P. Reavis established the Groom News in 1927, a paper that is still in operation today.

In addition to his other challenges, E.P. Reavis wrote an editorial column under the heading "Col. I.M. Nutty."

Dick J. Reavis, the grandson, who is on the Texas Monthly staff, has made several trips to Mexico as a consultant for NBC on the guerrilla movements there. He has also published a book, "Without Documents," concerning illegal aliens, their lives and motives. It is available only in paperback. The Anthony Hunt Library at Howard College has several copies.

Young Reavis has also written a story about a motorcycle gang which calls itself the Banditos. He spent two weeks at the Rusk State Hospital, accumulating material for an article about the situation there. He was also the author of "I Was a Bum in Houston." Of Dick Reavis, editor William Broyles Jr., of Texas Monthly Magazine said recently:

"Dick Reavis will go anywhere for a story and he is fearless."

Reavis' Texas Monthly article, "The Crack-Up," has met with critical acclaim everywhere.

'Misfortune 500': Three down, 497 to go

NEW YORK (AP) — An elite police squad has been created to arrest, and send to prison, Manhattan's "Misfortune 500" — the thugs who rape and steal and hustle up and down the island, sidestepping punishment with ease.

Although civil libertarians have their qualms, police and prosecutors say they are excited about the program.

"We feel that a significant amount of crime in the city is done by a very small group of criminals between the ages of 18 and 25," said Lt. Terence McCann, executive director of the management division of the Chief of Detectives' office.

To catch those criminals and help to convict them, McCann said, the police department has devised a three-point program:

— First, a unit combs police records for the worst 500 offenders. A type of rating is compiled as the number and types of crimes are weighted. For example, a man who assaults elderly women gets more "demerits" than one who beats young men.

— Second, 50 officers in a street crime unit will keep the 500 worst offenders under surveillance. Officers will stake out areas where a known offender works in the hope of catching him committing a crime.

— Third, when one of the targeted individuals is arrested, members of an investigative team of 25 top officers will work to build a good case, seeking corroborating witnesses and evidence. Up to now, police relied largely on the testimony of victims.

McCann said many of the criminals pick on tourists in the belief that when a trial comes around, the victim will be long gone and unable to testify. McCann said police will pay to have some victims return for trials.

McCann says the district attorney will not allow plea bargaining for the 500 targeted criminals, but Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau says plea bargaining will not be necessary if the program produces enough evidence to make stiff charges stand up in court.

"They'll notify us so that we'll know if someone comes in on robbery and the guy has five robberies, well, they're going to tell us that so we can tell the court and get stricter sentences," Morgenthau said.

The program started Jan. 14. The target list of 500 offenders has been compiled, and three men have been arrested — two by happenstance and one who allegedly committed a burglary while under surveillance.

"These guys run the gamut — street robbery, narcotics, larceny, assault, rape, burglary, weapons possession," McCann said. "They're not specialists. They're criminal opportunists. If you ask them what they do for a living, they'll say they hustle."

Subject A, one of the targets, has been hustling for a long time. He is 23 years old, 6 feet tall and 200 pounds; he hangs around Washington Square Park in Greenwich Village with several cohorts, snorting cocaine and smoking dope.

His first adult arrest was in 1975, when he was charged with petty larceny, assault and possession of stolen property. The charges were dismissed. Three months later, he was charged with robbery, assault and criminal trespass. The charges were dismissed.

Since then, he has been arrested eight times on 17 charges ranging from narcotics possession to riot to grand larceny. He has pleaded guilty six times, has been given a conditional release five times, and has once been sentenced to the time he had already spent in jail waiting for trial.

"We certainly do run across the same people," said Lt. George Aylward, head of the arrest unit for the program.

"If, by the age of 25, starting at the age of 16, we arrest the same person ... maybe 20 times, obviously we keep hitting up against the same people. It's like playing tag. We just tag them, and then we do it again," he said.

But Dorothy Samuels, executive director of the New York Civil Liberties Union, said it cannot be assumed that somebody is going to commit a crime just because he's done it in the past.

"I don't think there is any doubt that there will be people who will commit crimes. But is that the notion that you sit around and wait for people to commit crimes? I think that's a very dangerous business," she said.

"...The notion that you can then open a criminal investigation on somebody, on a named individual, on the basis that well, you did it before, you may or may not have been convicted but WE know you did it, so we're going to investigate you — it's an extraordinary idea."

But Morgenthau rejected Ms. Samuels' position.

"The public has a right to be protected," he said. "When somebody has a propensity toward crime and is a very active criminal, we ought to be on the lookout for him."

After Tito, what comes to pass?

During WW II, the story got out that Tito and the Yugoslavians were so Marxist in their political concept they accepted shiploads of American goods only on the condition their people meet the Yankee freighters far out at sea and transfer the supplies to their own watercraft. Once the transfer had taken place, the Yugoslavians would then triumphantly return to port and save themselves the problem of having to explain where the goods came from. For all most of the Yugoslavians knew, the wares could have originated in Russia, and Tito did nothing to discourage that belief.

BE THAT AS IT MAY, the Americans have regarded Tito more of a friend than a foe in recent years, regardless of their conflicting ideologies, if for no other reason than the fact that Tito has let the Russians know he has always wanted to do his thing his way.

Be that as it may, this is a time of crisis for Yugoslavia because President Josip Broz Tito is ill and may not be long in departing this mortal coil.

The situation is especially trying for the Yugoslavians because Tito has not picked his successor. The thought that the country could be caught suddenly without someone at the helm promoted an emergency session recently of the Communist Party Central Committee in Belgrade.

The Yugoslavians are painfully conscious of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. They realize that Moscow might take advantage of the confusion that would attend Tito's death to quash the independent-minded Yugoslavians and install a compliant puppet leader. The question has been rattling around in the Yugoslavian psyche for decades. Only recently, however, did it become an immediate and pressing concern.

EVEN ASSUMING THE Soviets hold off, the question of succession remains unresolved. It had generally been expected that Tito would be followed by his aide and confidante, Edward Kardelj, a comrade from Tito's partisan days and an astute politician. It was never destined to be, however — Kardelj turned up his toes and died last February. No heir apparent has emerged in the interim.

The issue is not an academic one. Whatever Tito's failings, he has managed to hold Yugoslavia for more than three decades. Given the highly volatile ethnic mix of the country — in which Serbians, Croats, Montenegrins, Macedonians and other groups have been continually at one another's throats through history — that is no small accomplishment. Will a successor be able to keep the nation from fragmenting? The outlook is uncertain, and will become more so if the succession is contested.

Tito bids fair to hang on for a while but, after all, he is 87 years of age, and the United States would do well to be prepared for the rude jolts that may ensue when the man who has become Washington's favorite Marxist fades from the scene. For our part, we prefer not to experience any additional unwholesome surprises like the Afghan model.

Names, numbers

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

I have a question. I really don't think it qualifies for Action-Reaction and I'm not desperate enough to write to Dear Abby — yet.

The question is, why do parents all over our vast planet (and probably on Mars and Jupiter, too) spend months and months arguing over a suitable name for their soon-to-be-born infant?

"LET'S NAME 'HIM' Balderach Frankford III after my great-great-grandfather," says the anxious husband, glowing with the grandeur of his Four-Star General heritage.

"Over my dead body," shrieks the mother-to-be, whose heart is set on a bouncing baby girl which radiates in the likeness of last year's Miss Teenage America. "We're going to christen her Isabella Elizabeth after my mother."

And so the argument continues. But why? Names mean nothing in today's world of computerized everything. If you're numberless, then you might as well be nameless, too.

My parents blessed (?) me with the name Robbi Dianne, but to the mailman I'm 1805 Wallace; to the phone company I'm 263-3315; to my employer I'm 459-2-8449, and the bank knows me as 444-4444. (Now don't get your hopes up that the way is clear for you to withdraw all of my millions and millions of dollars. As you can guess, I fabricated that number. However, should you desire to make a healthy deposit to my account, I'd be more than happy to give you the real number.)

Although the issuance of numbers as a replacement for names seems somewhat cold and impersonal, look on the bright side. Each person's number is his and his alone. More than likely there's more than one Robbi, Joe, Fred and Harriet, but there's only one 428-6764.

Imagine a civilization in the distant future... A baby is born. Proud pop 3-3-6 and proud mom 3-3-7 are the glowing parents of bouncing baby boy 3-3-9. Grandma and Grandpa 4-0-8 can't wait to show off little 3-3-9 to the rest of the 4-0-8 clan.

AS LITTLE 3-3-9 grows up, he'll gain many new numbers. In nursery school he'll be known as Crib No. 2. In kindergarten, when they can get him to sit down, he'll be called Chair No. 5. When he graduates to grade school, he'll be recognized as a member of Reading Group No. 3; high school, locker No. 17; and finally, college, basketball player No. 10.

Names, as we know them today, don't seem to have any established place in the computerized world of today and tomorrow. Someday, entire languages may be converted into total numbers.

I remember when I was a kid, if my mother ever called me using my full name, I knew I was in big trouble.

"Robbie Dianne Rogers, you better get yourself in this house right now!" That same sentence, in the near future, may sound something like this: "459, you better get your little 666 in this 298 right now!"

Golden proposal

William F. Buckley, Jr.

What should we do with all our gold? At $650 per ounce, it is theoretically worth (we have 265 million ounces in reserve) $1,722,500,000. Hoarding gold is costly beyond the obvious features of vaults, guards, burglar-alarm and the other paraphernalia of security. Gold, you see, fails to earn interest. It has had a huge rise in capital value, but it is hard to discern how exactly to put this to practical use for the government, which every now and then should be reminded that it represents its citizenry.

A most ingenious proposal has been devised by Mr. Evan Galbraith, a bright American banker who is head of Dillon Read's operations in Europe. The proposal is drafted in a British context, but it is easy enough to translate into American terms. The design is essentially anti-inflationary.

CONSIDER THE EXISTING situation. In Great Britain, debt interest is the second largest item in public spending, after social security. The rise in public interest appears to be almost ineluctable, as the government borrows money, year after year, to finance its deficit. In 1973, debt service represented 10 percent of British public spending. In 1979, the figure has risen to 14 percent. In order to finance the deficit, every year the British Treasury needs to roll over the equivalent of at least $5 billion of long-term gilts, as they call them, and nowadays, you can't sell the stuff at less than 13 or 14 percent. An example of the kind of thing that has been happening, and is likely to continue to happen, is the maturity of gilts on September 26, 1978, that brought 5 percent interest. These were turned around by the Treasury at 12 percent. Today, you need to go higher — 13 1/4 percent. And why not, with inflation running at an even higher percent?

THE TREASURY'S strategic problem, of course, is that if it should succeed in controlling inflation, it is left with a huge and unnecessary carrying cost for the gilts it sold during the inflationary years. There is a secondary and subtle problem, mainly that in order to fetch $5 billion at 13 percent you compete with other borrowers, the effect being to drive up the interest rate. This has an instant impact, e.g. on the housing industry, and a generally deflationary effect which in specific circumstances can be good, in others serve only to prolong a general economic torpor that does nobody much good. But what if excess money, now exacerbating inflation, were to be surrendered voluntarily from the market which money would go to the Treasury at virtually no carrying cost, to be used to reduce indebtedness, lower taxes and stimulate the economy in a healthy way?

So: Dillon Read has come up with a plan. Instead of selling government bonds at the high interest rate necessary, peg their convertibility into gold. Here's how it would work: a 20-year bond would be issued, in two denominations — 100 British pounds and 10,000 British pounds. This would attract the individual investor and the institutional investor. Any day, beginning 30 days after their issue, those bonds could be converted into gold — at the price at which gold was selling on the date of purchase. These bonds, which the investor would view as proof against inflation, would pay a very low interest rate — let us say one to 2 percent. Remember, that any interest rate at all is an improvement over present arrangements, which have a negative interest rate: that is what your Kruggerand costs you — the forfeited interest rate you would earn from lending your money to the bank.

Reiter's: Strange group of symptoms

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I complained to my doctor about eye irritation and he said I had conjunctivitis. He asked at the time if I had any body pains. I didn't, but six months later I do. I made another appointment and told him about the pains and he said I had Reiter's syndrome. Exactly what is this? — Mr. E.T.

Reiter's syndrome is a strange assortment of problems, four usually. Not all four have to be present for Reiter's diagnosis to be made. They are arthritis, conjunctivitis, inflammation of the urethra (the urinary outlet) and skin rashes. You had two signs. Others may follow.

Why the problems occur together is not known, but they do frequently enough for doctors to distinguish them with the name "syndrome."

Many patients with Reiter's syndrome have another factor in common — a certain characteristic of their white blood cells. This can be determined by special laboratory tests. If present, it is further convincing evidence of Reiter's syndrome.

The arthritis is treated with the usual anti-inflammation drugs. Often, the conjunctivitis needs no treatment, but if the iris of the eye is involved, then steroids have to be used. The rash usually clears up on its own.

The urethra matter is watched for. If there is inflammation there, it can be treated with tetracycline. Your doctor has probably already alerted you to the possibility of urethral inflammation.

The outlook for Reiter's syndrome is usually excellent.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 35 years old and have taken up smoking for the first time in my life. I am doing it to lose weight. I read that it speeds up metabolism and dulls appetite. Many others use this as a diet trick also. You could help by giving a list of foods that speed up metabolism instead of cigarettes. — T.

Among its many other side effects, nicotine can cause an increase in heart rate and increased activity of the gastrointestinal tract. But this won't help you lose weight. The only way smoking might would be by making food taste less inviting. You must get on a sensible, balanced calorie-restricted diet.

I suppose your theory originates with the phenomenon of weight gain some experience after quitting smoking. This is the same effect in reverse. Once you've quit, food tastes better. Some people take to impulse snacking as a substitute for the oral habit of smoking. Incidentally, I might advise quitting cigarettes if one needed to gain weight. But smoking to lose weight — never.

As to your question about foods to "speed" metabolism: There is no list. Metabolism is controlled by certain glands, not by food.

FURTHER NOTE TO N.H. — You inquired about hemangioma (birthmark) on your infant's eyelid. The danger is not from the hemangioma itself. If, however, the problem causes a swollen lid to cover the eye, then the child could develop impaired vision in that eye because of lack of use. This is called amblyopia. Visual images must be formed by both eyes at once. This possibility should be investigated. I wish to thank the ophthalmologist reader who took the time to make this observation.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Are there any side effects from a vasectomy? I have heard some stories. Please clear the matter up for me. — N.C.

The complications from a vasectomy (severing or tying off of the male sperm delivery tubes) are few and usually minor. There may be some discomfort for a few days after the operation. Some men may have congestion of the epididymis, the small structure on top of the testicles. This may cause mild pain. Such pain usually subsides in short order.

Occasionally, a small mass of sperm may form, called a sperm granuloma. This may cause pain and have to be removed. As in any operation, an infection may occur.

Vasectomy is a safe procedure. Potency is not affected and production of male hormones is not altered.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: This is in response to a recent letter that appeared regarding what to call a pharmacist. I am a pharmacist. I am not a flaming women's libber, but I do not appreciate being called "Mr." You are perpetuating a myth that all pharmacists are male. I suggest you keep that in mind in the future. — J.A., R.P.H.

I was trusting that powers of observation would distinguish a female pharmacist from a male one. There are many excellent women pharmacists, to be sure. I have a niece who is studying to become a pharmacist.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in this column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a Christian and am in love with a young man who is not a Christian, but who promises to go to church with me when we are married. My friends say I am taking a risk in marrying him. What do you think? — A.S.

DEAR A.S.: I believe you would not only be taking a risk, you would be doing something clearly wrong. I know this may be difficult for you to face, but the Bible is clear on this in both the Old and New Testaments. In discussing the remarriage of a widow, Paul stated, "She is free to marry anyone she wishes, but he must belong to the Lord" (1 Corinthians 7:39). Elsewhere the Bible teaches: "Do not be yoked together with unbelievers... What does a believer have in common with an unbeliever?" (2 Corinthians 6:14-15).

There are several reasons why the Word of God teaches this principle. For one thing, if you belong to Jesus Christ and are seeking His will how can you possibly avoid conflict if you are married to someone who is not interested in the will of God? On a practical level, how will you raise your children to honor God and love Him if their father does not believe? That is not to say that such a marriage will not be relatively happy occasionally, but it could have been so much more joyous if there had been a spiritual oneness. On the other hand, I wish you could read some of the heart-breaking letters which come to me every day from women or men who have deliberately disobeyed God's teaching and have married an unbeliever, only to find great tension and conflict because of different outlooks.

Don't assume that your boyfriend will change just because you marry him. His greatest need is not just to go to church with you, but to be born again spiritually right now by faith in Christ. And let me promise you one thing: if your friend refuses to come to Christ, God has someone far better for you if you will have the patience to wait for His choice.

Helped invasion

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Any suggestion that American officials and businessmen helped the Soviet Union invade Afghanistan would raise cries of outrage from the White House and Wall Street alike.

Unfortunately, it happens to be true. Both the military trucks and the transport jets that disgorged Red Army troops and supplies in Afghanistan during Christmas week were built with the indispensable technological know-how provided by profit-hungry U.S. firms and approved by high-level U.S. officials.

IN AN INCREDIBLE replay of pre-Pearl Harbor days, when American businessmen sold the Japanese war machine scrap metal that later rained down on U.S. and allied troops in the Pacific, we have been selling the technologically backward Russians. U.S. computers and other sophisticated equipment that have enabled the Kremlin to threaten our economic lifeline in the Middle East.

For years I have warned against the openhanded giveaway of American technology — the one field in which the United States was clearly miles ahead of the Soviet Union. There was one momentary success: A May 24, 1977 column stopped the shipment to Russia of a Control Data computer, which was more than a decade ahead of the Soviets' own technology.

I also published warnings against the sale of other sophisticated equipment to the Russians, including IBM computers. But the warnings were drowned out by eager corporate salesmen and an administration eager to believe the Russians. The CIA has now learned that the IBM computers were used to build military trucks, which hauled Soviet troops into Afghanistan.

Over the objections of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and members of the National Security Council, President Carter personally approved the sale of $144 million worth of sophisticated equipment, ostensibly to be used by the Soviets for deep-well oil drilling. Experts cautioned that the American machinery could easily be converted to the manufacture of anti-tank ammunition.

TO QUIET CRITICS of the deal, Carter appointed a special task force of technological experts, headed by Fred Bucy, chairman of Texas Instruments, to study the sale. To the administration's consternation, the panel opposed the sale. But it went through anyway.

According to Dr. Miles Costick of the Institute on Strategic Trade, the Russians also acquired their know-how to build wide-body jet transports from American firms. The Soviets' technique was simple: They kept after the three U.S. aircraft firms bidding on a contract to submit more and more detailed information — until the Russians had enough data to build their own planes.

Costick also said the Soviets went so far as to send their technologists to U.S. plants wearing special shoes that picked up traces of the special alloy metals used in construction of American products.

Armored cars and amphibious vehicles produced at the Gorki automobile plant were built with technical assistance from the Ford Motor Company. Truck chassis used for anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns were made at a factory outfitted by U.S. firms.

vulnerable were developed with the help of equipment the Russians bought from Geospace Corp. and Litton Industries.

Jimmy Carter personally approved the sale of a Sperry Rand Univac 1100-10C computer the Kremlin had been thirsting after for two years. According to intelligence sources who talked to my reporters Vicki Warren and Mark Zusman, the computer is being used to upgrade the Soviets' Backfire bomber.

The Russians originally wanted a super-Univac, supposedly to help Tass in its coverage of the Olympic Games. Administration advisers warned against the sale. After initially vetoing the Soviets' purchase, Carter okayed the sale of a scaled-down version of the computer.

To give U.S. businessmen a few lucrative contracts, and to promote the now-shredded hope of detente, the United States has given the communists the one thing they lacked in their arsenal of aggression — American know-how.

SCUTTLEBUCKS: The White House is mulling over a proposal by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., to close all U.S. ports to Soviet merchant ships — an economic sanction that would hit the Russians hard in the pocketbook. A CIA analysis estimates that in 1977 the Soviet merchant fleet earned nearly $1 billion in hard currency for the Kremlin — second only to the income from oil, gold and timber sales.

COSTLY CONFUSION: Officials at the Energy Department seem to be so deep in the dark about what the agency is doing that they've shelled out $34,000 of public funds for more than 90 subscriptions to a private publication they hope can shed a little light on their own activities. It's called Inside DOE.

WATER, WATER: When Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., decided to fight $4 billion in new water projects — which he described as "pure pork" — he was ostracized by the powerful House Public Works and Transportation Committee. When he took his fight to the floor, he sank like a stone. The committee had added 25 new pork-barrel projects — in districts of key congressmen. The vote was no contest.

DRINKABLE DOLLARS; form of insulation

You've heard about the fellow with money to burn? He couldn't hold a candle to the Federal Reserve system, which annually withdraws $15 billion in worn-out greenbacks from circulation and shreds them. What is left is sold for such prosaic use as landfill and insulation.

The system has found a new use for old money, it comes to light. A federally-funded project has come up with a way to convert tattered bills into sugar. Enzymes break down the cellulose and turn it into sucrose.

That is not, however, the end of the process. The sugar can then be fermented to produce drinkable alcohol.

ALEXANDER HAIG CLARENCE KELLEY

Haig wants presidency

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former NATO commander and White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. leaves little doubt about his future plans: "I will someday be president of the United States."

Haig made his declaration Tuesday at a news conference prior to accepting a civilian award for leadership. But when pressed further on the subject, Haig said he is happy in private life and that while he decided in December not to run for the GOP presidential nomination, he was not ruling out "anything" in the future.

Karpov wins chess award

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union has won the 1979 world chess award given by the International Association of Chess Writers.

Karpov won the award, announced Tuesday, based on balloting by 111 chess journalists representing 36 countries.

The award was decided among players who played a minimum of 24 matches against grand masters during the past year.

Previous winners include Boris Spassky, Soviet Union, in 1968 and 1969, Bobby Fischer, United States, in 1970, 1971 and 1972, Karpov in 1973, 1974, 1975, 1976, 1977 and 1979, and Victor Korchnoi in 1978.

Kelley in private security

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former FBI director Clarence M. Kelley will head up a branch office of the Florida-based security firm Wackenhut Corp., according to company president George Wackenhut.

Kelley said an office will be established here — his hometown — with expansion later if that proves successful. He said the office will focus on arson and white-collar crimes — both are considered specialties of Kelley's.

Remaining files sealed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The six remaining pages of Judith Campbell Exner's FBI file will remain sealed despite claims by the self-proclaimed mistress of the late President John Kennedy that the information might result in mob reprisals.

The 9th U.S. Court of Appeals on Tuesday refused Mrs. Exner's appeal of a 1978 ruling in which she asked that the remaining pages from her 92-page file be made available to her.

Mrs. Exner, 47, who also claimed to have been romantically involved with the late reputed Mafia boss Sam Giancana of Chicago said she feared the files might contain sensational, and inaccurate information about her crime and White House connections that could endanger her life.

Bomb threat a hoax

CHARLOTTETOWN, Prince Edward Island (AP) — An anonymous call that a bomb was aboard the plane carrying Canadian Prime Minister Joe Clark turned out to be a hoax, officials say.

Clark's chartered campaign jetliner returned to Charlottetown on Tuesday after the pilot was notified of a bomb threat. No bomb was found after a 90-minute search.

Clark is leading his Conservative Party in national elections scheduled for Feb. 18.

Supreme Court to hear arguments on school prayer

BOSTON (AP) — While most Massachusetts public schools planned voluntary prayer periods for a second day, the state Civil Liberties Union asked the state Supreme Court to halt the sessions until the constitutionality of the law requiring them is determined.

John Roberts, director of the ACLU's Massachusetts branch, said he would try to get a restraining order today from the high court on behalf of five families in Marblehead and three in Framingham who are challenging the law. Other groups, including the American Jewish Congress and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith were expected to file similar requests.

"The First Amendment prohibits the establishment of a religion," Roberts said. "This law involves the schools in promoting a religious exercise. Asking a student to lead a class in prayer is clearly a religious exercise."

The new law, which requires homeroom teachers to ask for a student volunteer to lead the class in prayer, met with varying degrees of success or indifference when it went into effect Tuesday.

Newton and Beverly school districts ignored it, while students in other districts offered Hail Marys, readings from Mao Tse-tung and poems during their prayer sessions.

However, State Education Commissioner Gregory

Anrig, who asked school districts across the commonwealth to presume the law constitutional, said his "overall impression was that in many instances no volunteers came forward, so no prayers were said."

KAREN JOHNSON JILL BEALL

Local girls bring back top honors

Two petite Big Spring beauties returned from Hobbs, N.M., recently where they participated in the International Modeling and Talent Association presentation.

Eleven-year-old Jill Beall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beall, was awarded a number of honors in her age categories including party dress and jazz dance competition, first place; tap dance and sports wear competition, second place. Miss Beall was also named Cameo girl of her division.

Little Karen Johnson, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Johnson, didn't return without leaving her mark either.

She received first place honors in party wear, swim wear, sports wear, gymnastics and jazz in her age category. She was named second place winner in formal wear, sleep wear novelty dance.

Besides being crowned Cameo Girl of her division, Karen was proclaimed the overall sweepstakes winner.

Cameo Girl winners are eligible to compete in National IMTA competition with their entry fees paid. The competition will take place in Baton Rouge, La., in August.

Big Spring will serve as the host city for another IMTA modeling and talent presentation Feb. 26 in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Diabetes association will hear Dr. Caplan

The Greater Big Spring Chapter of the American Diabetes Association will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Malone-Hogan Hospital Classroom. Dr. Brian Caplan will speak on "Diabetes and the Effects It Has on Your Body."

Recently, the American Diabetes Association opened a new office in Midland. The office will be run by Steve Owen, West Texas Regional Representative. Before, the nearest staff office of the A.D.A. was in North Texas Affiliate in Dallas.

Owen feels that by having an office closer to the surrounding Chapters, they can become more effective, due to the fact the advice and information will be more readily available.

This job entails working with the Board of Directors in each of the individual Chapters, and also with the Committee Chairmen in Patient and Professional Education, Public Education, Fund Raising, and Publicity.

Eventually Owen also plans to use the office as a Distribution Center for pamphlets, books, posters and other information related items on Diabetes. Literature about Diabetes is distributed without charge.

The A.D.A. can never find a cure or even stop the growth of Diabetes if it doesn't have Volunteers. There are Chapters located in Midland, Odessa, Lubbock, Big Spring, Abilene, and San Angelo.

If you would like to volunteer or just want some information concerning Diabetes, then call, write or come by the new office at: 2209 N. Big Spring, Suite J., Midland, Texas 79702, (915) 682-0314.

TwEEN 12 and 20—Sexual preference is private matter

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 17 years old, a guy, and I'm gay. I have a good friend who is a girl. Every time I try to tell her I'm gay, she starts crying and telling me how much she loves me.

Can you please tell me how I can tell my classmates that I am gay? — S.S., Columbus, Ohio

S.S.: I see no reason whatsoever to tell your classmates that you are gay. Your sexual preference should be your own business.

It seems that before he met me, he was dating a girl and they were accustomed to sleeping together.

Since he couldn't sleep with me, he dropped me claiming that I had a problem and that scared him off.

We discussed our relationship openly and he wants to see me again.

My question is this: Should I go out with him and trust that he will behave himself or should I refuse to see him? I do like him. — Cindy, Anaheim, Calif.

Cindy: See him again. You can always tell him to get lost if he gets too eager.

He said he liked me but that he was really attracted to me sexually.

Now he is dating another girl and I'm so upset that I don't know what to do. If I can't keep him with sex, what can I keep him with? — Denise, Everett, Wash.

Denise: Try honesty, loyalty, sincerity, humor, wit, friendship, warmth, a sense of caring, and a high moral standard.

If that doesn't keep him, nothing will.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 25-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

Opponents say no Is the women's draft debate helping ERA?

Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment believe the swelling debate over possible draft registration for women will boost their cause. ERA opponents say no, the controversy will help them.

Yet neither side is beating the drums in support of restoring the draft — for men or for women.

which bans discrimination on the basis of sex — had been ratified. She believes it would make drafting women mandatory.

"If we had ERA, it wouldn't make any difference what the American people wanted," said Mrs. Schlafly, head of Stop-ERA. She said equality under the ERA "means drafting girls and putting them in military combat."

Kathleen Currie of ERA America takes the opposite view: "This whole question on the draft has pointed out what we've said all along, that Congress already has the power to draft women; it has nothing to do with ERA. Whether to draft women is a political decision, not a legal one."

Pointing to the growing debate on registering women, anti-ERA leader Phyllis Schlafly said Wednesday there would be no need for discussion if the ERA —

To become part of the Constitution, the ERA must be ratified by 38 states by June 30, 1982. It has been approved by 35 states. Five states have rescinded their approval, but the validity of that action is in question.

When President Carter called last week for renewal of draft registration, he did not say whether women would be required to register. He is expected to decide the matter by Feb. 9. Meanwhile, debate on the issue has grown.

In states that have not enacted the ERA, many of the amendment's opponents and proponents are claiming the debate over drafting women reinforces their positions. Yet there was no clear indication that the draft debate would directly affect ERA's ratification.

— In Illinois, anti-ERA Rep. George Hudson, a Republican, noted that Congress now can decide whether to draft women, but "if ERA becomes part of our Constitution, I don't think there will be any option."

— Florida National Organization for Women Executive Director Lis Handley said a call to draft women would "probably help" ERA passage because "it would be awfully hard to deny women equal rights if we expect them to serve their country in time of war."

Dear Abby

Her Husband Is Mac the Strife

DEAR ABBY: Mac and I have been married for 30 years. We have a great marriage, except for the resentment he shows when I go out every Monday evening to play canasta with the girls, and bingo on Friday evenings in the basement of our church.

I've asked Mac to come along and play bingo, but he refused. He didn't mind my going out for four years because he was working second shift. But now that he's back on first shift, he wants me to sit home and listen to him snore in a chair after supper.

Abby, I never worked when my kids were growing up, so I think I have earned two nights a week out.

Am I wrong or selfish? Should I give up my canasta and bingo, or put up with Mac's complaints?

WILLING TO PLEASE

DEAR WILLING: Offer Mac a compromise. Tell him you will spend only one night each week away from him provided he spends the other night doing something with you. (Playing honeymoon bridge, Scrabble, or going to a movie.) He is being selfish to expect you to sit home and listen to him snore.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl. Last year my Mom and Dad split up. I live with Mom, and Dad lives in an apartment with Marge, his girlfriend. When Dad and Marge started living together, they didn't hide it. They had me over their apartment as if they were married. When I said, "Dad, does this mean that Ricky (he's my 17-year-old boyfriend) and I can live together when we're of age?"

Then Dad said, "No! If you can support yourself totally when you are of age, then you can live any way you like, but as long as I'm expected to kick in with money for your support, I will have something to say about it."

Abby, how come it's OK for Dad to live with somebody outside of marriage, but not for me?

DON'T GET IT

DEAR DON'T: With your Dad it's a matter of money, not morals. As long as he's providing the roof over your head, he wants a say about who's sleeping under it.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked, "How long should a hostess hold up a meal for a tardy guest?"

You replied, "15 minutes is long enough."

I agree. The question and your reply reminded me of the rule I always had when I was in the corporate entertaining world: "NEVER EARLY, AND NOT MORE THAN 15 MINUTES LATE."

It was such a steadfast rule that, one evening, in order not to arrive 15 minutes early at the home of friends who had invited us to dinner, my wife and I proceeded to drive around to kill time. We got lost, and drove around for 45 minutes before finding our way back! I spent the entire evening apologizing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO KNOW BUT HATES TO LOOK STUPID": Ask anyway. There is no such thing as a "stupid" question if it's sincere. Better to ask and risk appearing "stupid" than to continue on your ignorant way and make a stupid mistake.

DEAR ABBY: For the past year, my boyfriend (I'll call him Sid) has been receiving erotic (and sometimes obscene) correspondence at his office. Nothing is ever signed. This is supposedly leading up to "a rendezvous the likes of which he's never dreamed possible!"

Well, surprise! We just discovered through handwriting analysis that this garbage is being sent by a girl we both know. She is the girlfriend of one of Sid's best friends. Here's the puzzler: She doesn't seem to be anything like the obviously sick person who is sending this stuff.

After discussing it, Sid and I have decided to let the matter drop without confronting either Sid's friend or the girl. Seeing them socially as we do, we are afraid if we let on that we know, our relationship might become strained and difficult.

We are all around 30, so it can't be just a childish prank. (I am certainly not laughing!) What do you think should be done?

NO NAMES

DEAR NO NAMES: Nothing

Address comments and questions to Abby, c/o Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Frito-Lay employees indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A federal grand jury capped an 18-month investigation by returning indictments against five former employees of Frito-Lay Inc., on charges including extortion and tax evasion.

The five, and the wife of one of them, were ordered to surrender today or face arrest, according to assistant U.S. Attorney Dan C. Guthrie.

"The charges ... are interstate transportation and aid of racketeering, extortion and tax evasion," Guthrie said Tuesday, shortly after the indictments were returned.

He said those indicted were Michael M. Hansen and his wife, Ann, of Dallas; Verne E. Regan of Plano; Clifford P. Huff of Farmers Branch; James E. Wilkins of Garland and Claude E. Smith Jr. of Irving.

Guthrie said four of them — Smith, Wilkins, Regan and Huff — were engineers at Frito-Lay.

"It was their job to supervise installation and construction of various plants Frito-Lay had throughout the country," he said. Hansen was material manager for Frito-Lay.

"The allegations in the indictment are that the four installers received over $100,000 in illegal kickback payments ... that in their capacity as representatives of Frito-Lay they extorted money from contractors doing business with Frito-Lay in various locations throughout the United States."

He said Hansen, Frito-Lay's former material manager, and his wife were indicted on three tax evasion counts.

Guthrie said maximum punishment for conviction on all counts range from 15 years in prison, a $30,000 fine plus court costs for the Hansens, to 365 years in prison, a $220,000 fine plus court costs for Smith, who is named in 22 counts.

"This indictment culminates one aspect of the investigation," Guthrie said. He declined to say whether more indictments would be forthcoming.

Arraignment has been set for Feb. 14 before U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, the prosecutor said.

TANGLED MASS — This shows part of the seventy-nine boxcars that were involved in train wreck near Denison, Texas, Tuesday. Some of the grain-laden cars broke loose during switching operations, crashing into the switching engine. One trainman killed, two others injured.

Denison wreckage costs millions

Engineer buried under grain cars

DENISON, Texas (AP) — It took nearly 12 hours to cut the body of an engineer from the wreckage of a massive train derailment that also injured two crewmen, destroyed 59 grain cars and spilled more than $1 million worth of corn on the ground.

On the light side Game for the fainthearted

LONDON (AP) — An Irish engineer says he has invented what may well be the most boring game in the world — on purpose.

"My game is dull, tedious and depressing," said 37-year-old Denis Murphy. "It is designed to drive players right up the wall."

Murphy thinks the game, called "It's a Bore," has commercial possibilities. Unlike games designed to spur excitement and competitive spirit, Murphy's is aimed at giving hypochondriacs something more to complain about. Or making auto workers happier with their jobs.

"If every car worker had a 30-minute spell (with the game) before clocking on, they would be screaming to get at those production lines," he says.

The game is played on a board divided into numbered squares, some of which are marked "D" for distress. Markers are moved around the board on the roll of a pair of dice. When a player lands on a "D," he is penalized by returning to the previous "D" marker — and so on.

Murphy said it took his daughters, aged 11 and 9, only a few minutes to become fed up with the game.

Rationalizing rationing

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Tired of odd-even and maximum purchase gasoline rationing, a motorist has devised a way to turn the tables on the oil companies.

"Dear sirs. I have received your latest bills for my gas credit cards.

"Due to increased demands for my funds and depleted money allocations this month, I will not be able to furnish you with the requested payments..."

That was the beginning of an anonymous letter published in the February issue of Spotlite, a magazine of the Associated Licensed Detectives of New York State Inc.

"Moreover, because of limited supplies," the letter went on, "I am forced to adopt an odd-even method of payment... Creditors with even numbered ZIP codes will receive payments this month, those with odd-numbered ZIP codes will receive funds the following month."

The writer concluded:

"I will be forced to limit checks to only $5 per payment to each creditor."

cars derailed on impact, gouging up several hundred yards of newly repaired track and spilling corn as much as six feet deep in places.

Officials at the scene said the wrecked cars carried about 240,000 bushels of corn, with an estimated market value of $1 1/4 million.

Cleanup crews were to work through the night, hoping to have the track cleared by this afternoon, company officers said.

Chris Putsche, general transportation supervisor for the railroad, said the switch engine was on a routine run to pick up some cars a few miles north of the Ray Yard, when the grain cars began moving.

"For some reason," he said, "the cars of grain rolled out of the yard, overtook and slammed into the switcher." He said the runaway cars traveled about a mile before the crash.

"There apparently were two impacts," Putsche said. "The first they survived and it caused some of the cars to derail. In the second impact, the big pileup occurred. This is just conjecture, of course."

Investigators said they would check several possible causes for the accident, including a leakage of air from the cars' automatic brakes.

The grain cars were parked in the yard until an engine picked them up. The Ray Yard is located just west of Denison and just south of the Red River that divides Texas and Oklahoma.

"All we know at this point is that the grain cars were parked at the 'Y' in the Ray Yards waiting for power to take them south," said Katy northern division manager, M.L. Janovec. "They broke loose and rolled down the track, gaining momentum as they rolled toward the river."

The dead engineer, Jimmy Derischweiler, 31, was crushed beneath the engine car and buried under dozens of grain cars.

Peace Justice Charles Odle pronounced Derischweiler dead at the scene about 3 a.m., but workers were unable to remove his body until shortly after 2 p.m.

The two crewmen were pulled to safety shortly after the wreck.

Tracy Badgett, an engineer on another train, said he was talking by radio to the victims just as the cars hit. He told witnesses at the scene they said, "We're all right; just bruised," just after impact.

But the grain cars began to jam up, crushing the manned engine and shooting the other engine southward down the tracks where automatic emergency brakes brought it to a halt.

Doctor, nurse testify

The gas company or the elderly, who suffers?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A nurse who is a member of the Gray Panthers and a Texas Department of Health doctor agree that old and ill people could face health problems if their natural gas service is stopped on a wintry day.

But a gas company executive testified Tuesday it would be hard for his company to determine which customers might suffer health problems if the heat is turned off because of non-payment of gas bills.

The testimony came at a Texas Railroad Commission hearing on federally-suggested guidelines for termination of natural gas service to customers who do not pay their bills.

The guidelines — proposed by the U.S. Department of Energy — include advance notice of disconnection, a hearing before an impartial body and a ban on cut-offs to customers whose health could be threatened by a lack of heat in their homes.

"There are questions as to who would make such a determination and how it would be done," Robert Laczo of Southern Union Gas Company told a Texas Railroad Commission hearing examiner. "One person's discomfort might well be a health hazard to another."

Several gas company spokesmen said such matters are usually handled on a case-by-case basis and such customers can come in to discuss the bill.

But Charlotte Flynn of the Austin Gray Panthers said: "Some of the older people are not in a position to go in and talk with someone to work out their problems. I don't think they would be talking to the gas company before they would die. You'd find out about it after they died."

Dr. Clifton Price of the Texas Department of Health said old people are susceptible to hypothermia — potentially damaging drops in body temperature. He said some old people "may not even perceive that they are cold."

The Texas Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now gave hearing examiner Lee Allen Everett a copy of proposed rules the association supports.

The proposed rules closely mirror the federally proposed guidelines. The companies would be required to send bilingual, bold-faced, large print notices before halting service.

Customers would be allowed to take their case to an "impartial decision maker."

Gas company spokesmen at the hearing said they saw no need for such a hearing. William Cates of Entex said his company is "proud" of its record in dealing with customers with overdue accounts.

But ACORN spokesman Jack Jackson said ACORN would be safer with an outside party handling the matter.

"Our main concern is that you don't send the fox to guard the chicken coop," he told Everett.

Everett asked if full-time staffs should be set up in each community to hear the cases. Jackson said no; adding that government employees could probably "squeeze that into their day between the first and second coffee break."

Trial of Chagra relative resumes in El Paso today

EL PASO, Texas, (AP) — The marijuana conspiracy retrial for a relative of convicted drug fugitive Jimmy Chagra was to resume here today with testimony from a government informant.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton ruled Tuesday that attorneys could not bring up Chagra's name in a retrial of the convicted drug conspirator's brother-in-law, Rick De La Torre and another defendant, Ben Garcia.

Chagra fled before sentencing after he was convicted last August in Austin on the federal drug conspiracy charge.

De La Torre and Garcia are accused in an alleged smuggling operation involving bringing Colombian marijuana into the United States.

Opening statements by prosecutors painted a South American drug smuggling operation the same as one brought out at Chagra's trial.

The first trial for De La Torre and Garcia ended in a marijuana conspiracy conviction. A new trial was granted by a federal appeals court because jurors in that case had problems defining "conspiracy" and the judge reportedly was not available to personally answer questions.

Government informant Richard Gross — who testified at the pair's first trial and at Chagra's trial, was the first prosecution witness. Gross was expected to again testify about his role in drug smuggling activities.

PLAYING KEEP AWAY — Howard College Hawk Queen Shawn Smith (32) passes the ball back out to the front court during the final minutes of the Hawk Queens 89-78 win over the Western Texas Dusterettes in action here Monday night. The win gave Howard College sole possession of the Western Conference lead. Hawk Queen Jill Floyd is at the far right of the picture. The Queens and the Howard College men both return to action here tomorrow night, at which time they host South Plains.

Ropes beat Buffalo Queens on controversial shot

FORSAN — Regina Melton connected on a questionable field goal at the buzzer to give the Ropes girls an exciting 46-44 win over the Forsan Buffalo Queens in a very important District 5-A second half game here Tuesday night.

The question on the play concerned whether Melton released the ball before the buzzer. Nevertheless, it was ruled good, and Ropes was declared the winner.

The victory gives the Ropes girls a second half district record of 5-0, while the Forsan girls slipped to 4-1. The Buffalo Queens are now 20-6 on the season.

Forsan has games remaining against Seagraves and first half champion Whiteface, and so does Ropes.

The game was very close throughout its entirety, with the two teams tied at 38-38 at the end of three stanzas.

Forsan outscored Ropes by 12 points from the floor, but the Ropes girls won the game at the charity line, connecting on 18 of 23 free throws, in comparison to the Buffalo Queens four of seven performance from the line.

In the first half, the Ropes girls went to the free throw line 18 times, while the Buffalo Queens never received a charity toss. The Forsan girls shot their first free throw with less than four minutes remaining in the game.

Regina Melton, who sank the winning field goal, led all scorers in the contest with 18 points, with Glenda Stevenson adding 14.

Lavonne Brumley connected for 15 points for the Forsan girls, with Christi Adams chipping in 10.

Another factor in the Buffalo Queens loss was the fact that they could hit only 30 per cent from the floor.

The Ropes boys then increased the Forsan frustration for the night, as they rallied in the final stanza to overcome the Buffaloes by a score of 52-47.

Forsan held a 37-32 lead entering the final stanza.

Gene Valentine paced the Ropes attack with 14 points, while Mark Moore and Ricky Guzman chipped in with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Dale Earnest paced the Forsan effort with 22 points, with Weldon Nichols adding 14.

The Forsan boys are now 2-3 in second half play and 7-15 on the year.

The Forsan girls junior varsity defeated Ropes in a preliminary contest, taking a 42-24 decision. Teresa White had nine points for Forsan.

Coahoma sweeps Stamford

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Bulldogs boys basketball team, after suffering their first loss of district play last Friday, got back on the winning track by taking an easy 64-43 win over Stamford here Tuesday night.

The Bulldogs jumped out to a 15-8 lead after the first quarter, increased it to 27-13 at the intermission, and were never threatened thereafter.

Michael Meyer paced the Bulldog attack, collecting 20 points and 11 rebounds. Philip Ritehey had 11 points and Ron Belew 10 for the Bulldogs.

Ritehey led the Bulldogs in rebounding with 16, and Gary Bayes had 12.

The win gives the Coahoma boys a second half record of 2-1. They won the first half of District 6-AA. The Bulldogs are 17-5 on the year.

Coahoma also won the girls game, taking a 64-37 win. The victory boosted the Bulldog fems to a second half record of 4-1, and are 14-8 on the season.

Andrea Fowler was the high point woman for Coahoma with 15 points, with Rhonda Griffin and Darla Henry chipping in with 10 each.

The Coahoma boys junior varsity also won, taking a 71-28 win. Bobby Joe Tucker, Jay Hall, Greg Harrington, Damon Harmon Troy McGee were all praised for their play.

State throw contest proves tough for locals

TEMPLE — The two local girls in the state free throw contest were shut out in competition over the weekend.

Big Spring's Mary Ann Guevara and Coahoma's Shana Fowler were entered, but could not place in the top two positions of their age groups. Guevara was entered in the 8-9 group, while Fowler competed in the 10-11 age group. There were a total of 28 districts represented, so competition was fierce.

The state winners will be eligible to compete in the five state regional contest to be held in Lawton, Oklahoma, on March 1. Winners in that contest will then advance to the nationals. The Elks Lodge National Foundation is the sponsor of the nationwide free throw contest.

State winners in the girls competition were Zahrod Schlenoka of Plano (8-9 age) with 11 of 25 free throws; Theresa Rosenbaum of Brenham in the 9-10 age group, with 14 of 25 free throws; and Debbie Nichols of Mesquite in the 12-13 age group, with 18 of 25 free throws.

State winners in the boys competition were: Bobby Vaughn in the 8-9 group, making 20 of 25; Jay Rory of Seguin in the 10-11 group, connecting on 19 of 25; and Mike Baker of Plainview in the 12-13 age group, making 22 of 25 free throws.

St. John's wins 20th

By the Associated Press

If Lou Carnesecca were a baseball pitcher, he'd be a cinch Hall of Famer. The St. John's University basketball coach makes a habit of winning 20 games every year.

Carnesecca's eighth-ranked Redmen did it again Tuesday night with an easy 89-73 triumph over the University of Baltimore, making loud little Looie a 20-game winner for the seventh year in a row and 10th time in his 12 seasons at the helm.

"I never expected to be 20-2," said Carnesecca, whose overall record is 252-87. "We have a chance to be something good."

St. John's was the only member of The Associate Press Top Twenty in action Tuesday night. The Redmen had a 17-game winning streak snapped by third-ranked Louisville on Sunday and Baltimore, in its second season as a Division I school, was just what the doctor ordered.

"We're a tired club," said Carnesecca, whose team has played 10 games in 23 days. "It was obvious tonight. We didn't have any quickness. It just wasn't there."

Little Looie said he would give the Redmen a day off today since they don't play again until Saturday.

"They need a day's rest. That's why I substituted after five minutes, to keep them fresh. The players were looking at me to come out and you never see that.

They always want to stay in. They must be tired.

"I saw it in the Niagara game (eight days earlier). We were lucky against Rhode Island (a one-point victory last Friday) but it caught up to us against Louisville."

Wayne McKoy scored six of his 18 points during a 10-0 burst in the first half as St. John's went from a 10-10 deadlock to a 20-10 advantage. McKoy was joined in double figures by five teammates. Reggie Carter and freshman David Russell each had 14 points, Curtis Redding had 13 while Frank Gilroy and Ron Plair each added 11.

Elsewhere:

—Michael Burns had 28 points and 14 rebounds to help offset a 41-point effort by San Diego State's Eddie Morris and lead Nevada-Las Vegas to a 98-86 victory for its 12th win in a row.

—Robert Byrd's two layups in the last 1:41 capped a rally from a 10-point deficit and helped Marquette beat Creighton 81-71.

—Andre Smith scored 21 points and tipped in a rebound in the final two minutes to put Nebraska ahead for good as the Cornhuskers defeated Kansas 61-56 in a Big Eight contest.

—Chad Kinch, playing with a pulled groin muscle, scored 26 points and led North Carolina-Charlotte past Alabama-Birmingham 72-68.

Spurs lose without Gervin

The Iceman is hot over his contract, but it's the San Antonio Spurs who are getting burned.

George Gervin, nicknamed the Iceman because of his impassive court demeanor, wants to renegotiate his contract with the Spurs which calls for $350,000 a year. San Antonio owner Angelo Drossos says no renegotiations until the season is over.

Gervin, who leads the National Basketball Association with a 33.6 average and is gunning for his third straight scoring title, called in sick Tuesday night, telling the team doctor he had a stomach virus. The Spurs, without Gervin, dropped a 123-115 decision to the New Jersey Nets.

The Spurs lost the game in the third period, when the Nets poured in 43 points to take a 94-88 lead. New Jersey reeled off seven points in the final 12 seconds of the period, including a three-pointer at the buzzer by Mike Newlin.

"That seven-point streak was the key," Nets' Coach Kevin Loughery said. "The momentum carried over into the last quarter."

Gervin has missed the last four Spurs practice sessions. He missed the team's flight to Houston last Wednesday, paying his own way on a commercial flight. Spurs' Coach Doug Moe says he hasn't talked to the high-scoring guard since the All-Star Game, in which Gervin scored 34 points and was chosen most valuable player.

Moe contended, "We didn't lose it because Ice wasn't there. We lost it because we played stupid."

The Nets' big guard, Newlin, scored 30 points, including 17 in the decisive third quarter.

The Spurs trailed by 13 with 4:51 remaining in the game but rallied to pull with two before Eddie Jordan sank a pair of free throws in the final minute to clinch the victory.

Jazz 116, Bulls 106

Adrian Dantley scored 47 points as Utah beat Chicago and climbed out of the Midwest Division cellar for the first time since the opening week of the season. The loss dropped the Bulls six percentage points behind the Jazz.

Sonics 123, Cavs 121

Dennis Johnson scored 34 points, including two free throws with two seconds left, as Seattle remained one-half game ahead of Los Angeles in the Pacific Division.

Cleveland Coach Stan Albeck tore into referees Jim Capers and Dick Bavetta, saying, "The incompetency of NBA officials is unbelievable. We had those two guys against Indiana last week and they blew it and they come right back here tonight. We haven't won a game with those two guys. I know I'm going to get fined, but they're cheating this time."

BLOCKED SHOT — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers rises to reach and block a reverse layup by the New York Knicks Larry Demic, left, in the fourth quarter of Tuesday night's NBA game at New York's Madison Square Garden. Abdul-Jabbar scored 22 points and turned on the defense when he had to as he led the Lakers to a 116-105 win.

Soviets arrive at Lake Placid

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — In a swirl of fur coats and hats, about 90 Soviet athletes and coaches have checked into the Olympic Village and some planned to start practicing today for the 1980 Winter Games which start next week.

The group arrived on two buses from Montreal Tuesday night, after a daylong flight from Moscow.

Preceding them was the head of their National Olympic Committee, who said President Carter's call for boycotting the Moscow games could "destroy the Olympic movement."

"We don't want to boycott anyone and destroy the Olympic movement," Sergei Pavlov told a brief news conference, through an interpreter.

"Our sportsmen are here to participate. We want to see the Olympic movement strengthened."

The Soviets have been traditionally tough in speed skating, hockey and Nordic skiing.

About an hour later, some 87 athletes and coaches crowded into the credentials area, which turned into a sea of bobbing fur coats and hats.

The official Soviet uniform was said to be made from nutria, a small, furry animal. The men's are dark, with round hats called "shapkas." The women's outfits are blonde, with more stylish hats.

As the Soviets arrived in the reception area, their bags were collected in midroom, and sniffed by Jicki, one of nine German shepherds who check for explosives.

At one point, the dog showed interest in a canvas bag. A state trooper checked it, and found nothing more potent than a small bottle of vodka.

And, following the custom, the biathletes had to put their rifle bolts and ammunition in lockers outside the secure area.

The Soviets were then walked through metal detectors before being sent to their rooms.

In figure skating, Aleksandr Zaitzev and Irina Rodnina have returned to competition after she dropped out to have a child.

They are expected to be strong challengers to America's Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner in the pairs figure skating.

The Soviets have won every Olympic hockey title since 1956, with the exception of the surprise American victory at Squaw Valley, Calif., in 1960.

Davenport has chance at Olympic record

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Willie Davenport embarks upon an Olympic odyssey today that no other man has undertaken.

At the age of 36 and already an Olympic gold medalist, Davenport and four-man bobsled teammate Jeff Gadley are the first black Americans to enter the Winter Olympics, but his trek through the Winter Games' record book may not end there.

Davenport also has a chance to become the first man since Eddie Eagan to win a medal in both the Summer and Winter Games. Davenport won the Olympic high hurdles in 1968 at Mexico City, then added a bronze medal in the same event at Montreal in 1976. Eagan won a gold in boxing in 1920 at Antwerp and a gold in bobsledding here in 1932.

Like Eagan, Davenport has found his winter home in bobsledding. He is a pusher on a four-man bobsled driven by Bob Hickey of Keene, N.Y., who shattered his own track record Tuesday in the final day of U.S. eliminations.

"It's very difficult to explain my feelings right now," said Davenport, a graduate of Southern University who now lives in Baton Rouge, La. "I guess the best way to explain them is that I feel very good."

Asked if breaking the racial barrier of the Winter Games was important to him, he replied: "It's what inspired me ... there is a myth in this country that blacks can't make the Winter Olympics. Gadley and I proved that you don't have to be rich or white to make it."

Gadley, an Empire State Games decathlon champion from Plattsburgh, N.Y., called it "a kind of big first. It definitely was reaching a goal. I'm very proud to have done it."

With Gadley on brakes and Davenport and Jeff Jordan of Warrensburg, N.Y., pushing, Hickey drove his sled to a time of 1 minute, 1.32 seconds Tuesday, eclipsing his old mark of 1:01.71. Counting only his best four of six runs Sunday and Tuesday, Hickey had an aggregate of 4:06.56.

It's easy to coach hockey All-Stars

DETROIT (AP) — The Prince of Wales Conference has an absolute lock on National Hockey League All-Star competition and Buffalo Coach Scotty Bowman thinks it's likely to remain that way for a good long while.

"You look around this room and I don't know of any coach who wouldn't look like a master with the talent that's here," Bowman said after his Wales squad had skated to a 6-3 victory over the Clarence Campbell squad in the 32nd NHL All-Star game Tuesday night.

"I mean look, there — in various stages of undress — you see the one-and-only Gordie Howe, Guy Lafleur, Marcel Dionne, Danny Gare and on and on. This conference is loaded.

"You don't do much as an All-Star coach. You certainly aren't going to change any styles. I just tried to make sure that everybody got plenty of skating time."

Despite all that firepower, however, the Wales squad trailed 3-2 going into the final nine minutes of the game before 21,002 — the largest crowd ever to see a pro hockey game.

Then, in the span of 4:26, the Wales squad exploded for four goals — the fastest four All-Star goals ever by one team — and it was over.

Not surprisingly, the Detroit crowd saved its longest and loudest cheers for Howe — its favorite son who almost certainly was playing in his last All-Star game. The 51-year-old legend responded by setting up Cloutier's goal to notch his ninth assist and 19th point in All-Star play — both records.

"Maybe it's true that absence makes the heart grow fonder," Howe said of the 2½-minute ovation that began even before his name was announced before the game. "I love Detroit, too. They know that."

MEET THE PRESS — Sports writers gather around Hartford Whalers' hockey great Gordie Howe, 51, in the locker room after the National Hockey League All-Star game at Detroit's new Joe Louis Arena. Howe had just played in his 23rd NHL All-Star game, not counting six others while in the World Hockey Association. In the final period Howe got his 9th assist and his 19th All-Star point, both records.

Ali controversial as diplomat

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Writer

Muhammad Ali: Diplomat. Roving ambassador. Uncle Sam's prescription for wooing the Third World.

Laughable, you say. How can a high school dropout whose career has been limited to the confines of a 20x20-foot boxing ring and who couldn't pass an elementary army examination invade the subtle and devious councils of high diplomacy?

Well, he has. He has got his nose bloodied worse than in any of his 59 professional fights. He has been shunned by some dignitaries, battered by a cynical press and scoffed at by friends and foes alike.

But he's still in there punching.

For which we have only seven words: "Ali! Ali! Ali!" "Go get 'em, Ali!"

President Carter and the U.S. State Department are being roundly booed for even considering such a ludicrous idea. Moscow's subsidized press, generally close-mouthed, is delicious in reporting Ali's problems in trying to lure African nations into the American orbit on the proposed pullout of the Moscow Olympics. Some say his informal tour is holding the United States up to ridicule.

Bosh. The whole thing is terrific.

Okay, so Ali doesn't have a degree in statesmanship from Georgetown University. He is not versed in the intricacies of international politics. He is not equipped for the hypocritical, wheeling and dealing gooble-de-gook that goes on behind the closed doors in loftiest chambers.

He's just Ali, a charmer who has a feel for basic, corn-pone philosophy, a sort of a modern Pied Piper with a magnetism for the plain, ordinary people of the world.

This puckish, garrulous ex-pugilist can't possibly do more damage to our foreign policy than some of the slick talkers in pin-striped suits have done in the past.

Ali has a natural appeal to the underprivileged and the oppressed. Yet in his capacity as a three-time winner of the world heavyweight championship — perhaps the world's most recognizable personality — he has been able to hobnob with princes and potentates.

He can stop traffic on any main thoroughfare in the world — whether it be in Moscow or Madagascar. He is lionized by blacks and Muslims. What was wrong with selecting him for this sensitive assignment?

They say the president is fidgeting in the Oval Room. The State Department is getting heartburn. Whose idea was it? Washington buck-passers are passing the buck.

Ali remains undaunted. This is the black man who 13 years ago defied the government and refused army induction for the unpopular Vietnam War, protesting:

"I am 90 percent preacher, 10 percent fighter."

He was upheld by the Supreme Court. Labeled a slacker and stripped of his title, he hung on and the country ultimately came around to his side. Ali regained his crown twice after that.

The world was his oyster. He kidded Mobutu in Zaire. He danced with President Marcos' wife in the Philippines. He carried his WORLD (World Organization for Rights, Liberty and Dignity) to the United Nations. His zeal has been inexhaustible.

He never pretended to be a statesman. He is just himself — the best in the world with his fists, changeable as a chameleon at times, bombastic, reflective but always earthy.

In the 1960s when blacks were striving to crash white neighborhoods, he said, "I don't want to live next door to anybody who don't want to live next door to me." So he built a mansion in the Pennsylvania hills.

Speaking of high finance, he said, "Nobody can claim money. It belongs to God. It's just lent us to do good with it."

He's so fresh and basic it's disarming. He is naive — at times a wide-eyed little boy, the next moment sharp as edged steel. He is an actor, always on stage. Thus his inconsistencies.

His fault, if any, is saying what people want to hear. He can be hypnotic with his charm.

Education or no, he is the diplomat supreme.

MUHAMMAD ALI CLOWNS WITH FANS IN AFRICA.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 7, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Decide early just what you want your relations with others to be and the trend for your future activities. You'll then be able to plan a campaign of action for the future. Evening is the best time to find new interesting ideas.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Confer with associates early and then carry through with your part of any agreements reached. Strive for more harmony at home.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle that work you have to early in the day; later, you can confer with new allies and plan a more prosperous future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your talents more carefully and put them to work with greater efficiency. Enjoy company of good friends in the evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A project you have in mind will work best if you first find out what family wishes and you gain their cooperation.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan communications early so that you can later carry through with them efficiently. Invite a bigwig to your home and make a good impression.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your ideas are practical but they need further study and data before you can make them work successfully. Take time to see good friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be more practical in the handling of personal affairs and you get good results. Be more sensible with property and monetary matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Think over what is best to do to improve interests and formulate a good plan, get it working. Evening is best for making new contacts.

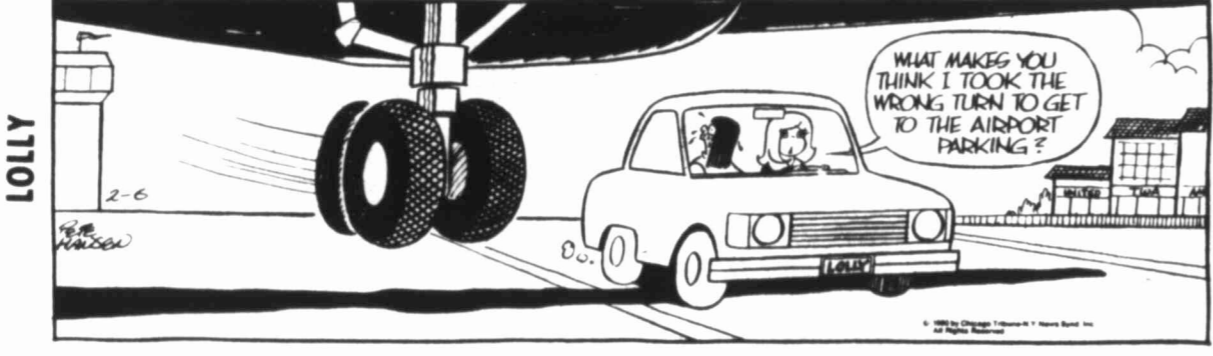

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Seek the advice of a higherup in a plan that could improve your financial setup. Clear up any misunderstandings with a loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get more involved in community affairs. Take in amusements you like in the evening. Be happy with loved ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure to approach the right bigwigs for support in a plan you have for the future. Conditions are right for making travel plans.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Consider the best way to close the rift that may be developing between you and a close friend. Avoid any big expenditures of money.

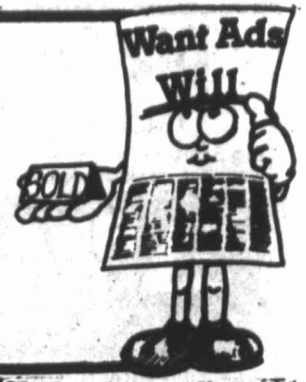

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will appeal to almost everyone because of a sweet nature and will be able to understand others easily early in life. Later in life the nature will become a very dynamic one. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Outlook is bullish

All indicators point to near unprecedented U.S. drilling activity in 1980 that will be constrained only by availability of equipment. The outlook is so bullish, in fact, that it is no less than awesome to those who struggled through the extremely depressed years of 1970-74, and to forecasters who have not been exposed to such optimism in more than two decades.

World Oil's 1980 forecast — made with some trepidation simply because of the enormity of the numbers — is for the drilling of 56,083 wells and 271.2 million feet of hole, up 11.4 percent and 9.4 percent, respectively, over totals for last year. Included are 20,622 new oil wells (up 14.2 percent) and 14,379 new gas producers (up 10 percent). Wildcat drilling is expected to total 13,075 wells, a 12.2 percent increase. Holes drilled during 1980 should rank second only to all-time record year 1956, and should be more than double the total drilled in depressed 1971. If 1980 footage is achieved, it will set a new high for the third consecutive year.

After a slow start, 1979 U.S. activity accelerated during the last half of the year in response to price decontrol measures applied to both oil and gas. Drilling last year totalled 50,332 wells — the first 50,000 well year in the past 20 — and 247.9 million feet of hole, a new record. The 13,075 gas wells drilled also constituted a new high. Exploratory wells unexpectedly declined 4 percent to 11,658 tests, mainly due to gas price confusion and a wait-and-see attitude regarding crude price decontrol that severely depressed work during the first half.

Recent moves toward higher prices for oil and gas and the promise of eventual total price decontrol provide principal support for the forecast. Recent free market prices for heavy, stripper and newly discovered crude, well prospects for additional decontrol, will stimulate more oil well drilling, particularly for smaller, shallower deposits.

Similarly, removal of controls for high cost gas and relaxed controls on other categories should maintain currently high gas well activity. Other positive indicators include record seismic activity, significantly increased leasing, all-time high operating company budgets, no apparent shortage of outside financing and the trend of major operators to increase domestic investment.

Too, the anticipated rig force this year appears capable of fulfilling the 1980 projection. Although some spot shortages of tubulars for shallow and very deep wells may occur, the projected 1980 supply appears adequate to satisfy requirements.

From the negative standpoint, only a reimposition of price controls at unrealistically lower levels — not out of the realm of possibility in an election year — would seem capable of dampening 1980 enthusiasm. Despite all of the conjecture over the so-called windfall profits tax, passage of even the "worst case" version should not affect the 1980 outlook, although paperwork will be a nightmare and problems could arise down the road.

Under versions of the tax bill now being considered, it appears that producers can expect to retain from 10 to 15 cents of each dollar of increased 1980 revenue realized from further decontrol of oil prices during the year. Combined with current profit margins from oil and gas, and barring a hyper inflation rate, there should be no difficulty in supporting the aggressive drilling year expected.

Of all U.S. industry, none would appear to have a brighter year ahead than the exploration, drilling and producing business.

For the fifth consecutive year, Canadian drilling is expected to set another all-time high in 1980, with 8,574 wells and 32.4 million feet of hole projected. Political uncertainties related to the forthcoming national elections shouldn't appreciably affect 1980 activity.

But if a government hostile to oil comes to power, long term operations could be seriously influenced. Of primary concern are future prices in established producing areas, whether tax incentives prevailing in Frontier areas will continue and whether new finds off Newfoundland will be embroiled in a territorial dispute. Cautious optimism prevails, but prospects for a stormy political sea exist.

Elsewhere, Saudi Arabia will set the pace in the Middle East by markedly expanding drilling towards its reported goal of an 11 million bpd production rate. Mexico will continue its steady expansion, and Venezuela, Argentina and Brazil should lead increased activity in booming South America. Significantly higher drilling in Indonesia is expected, as Caltex embarks on a 300 well development program on Sumatra, and North Sea activity should remain steady. Overall, international drilling excluding Canada and communist countries should top 7,000 wells for the year.

The accompanying tables present WORLD OIL's detailed 1980 U.S. outlook for the petroleum industry.

Gas cloud sends many Houstonians to doctors

HOUSTON (AP) — A foul-smelling cloud of sulphur dioxide gas that leaked from a chemical plant drifted across a residential area prompting about 100 persons to seek medical treatment, according to hospital officials.

Residents who caught a whiff of the cloud as it floated along a four-mile path across south Houston Tuesday night complained of headaches and nausea. Officials said none appeared to be seriously injured.

"We only transported one person to the hospital by ambulance for treatment because of the gas," said fire department spokesman Dale Everett. "But we understand a lot of people went on their own."

Before the gas dissipated late Tuesday night, a police department dispatcher said officers advised persons living in the area affected by the gas to leave their homes if they became uncomfortable.

Ken Kirksey, superintendent of the Stauffer Chemical Plant where the gas leak occurred, said the gas was sulphur dioxide.

"It's non-toxic," he said. "It's more irritating than it is toxic."

Everett said a firm used by the fire department to determine the toxicity of chemicals termed the gas "very irritating" and advised persons exposed to it to seek medical treatment.

Kirksey said the leak occurred shortly before 6 p.m. Tuesday, and that it took workers about 30 minutes to stop the leak.

Reagan, Bush will go one-on-one

HOOKSETT, N.H. (AP) — Ronald Reagan, having decided to debate his rivals for the Republican presidential nomination, is likely to make it a doubleheader by also meeting George Bush one-on-one before New Hampshire's primary election.

Reagan, the pre-season favorite who lost his first 1980 outing, said he is now ready to face the other six Republican candidates because he has decided it will not divide the party after all.

That was his excuse for shunning a debate last month in Iowa: debates divide the party.

He also has decided a role in New Hampshire's debates is essential to refuel his campaign for the GOP presidential nomination.

"I think it became necessary," Reagan said Tuesday.

The former California governor wound up a 10-stop, round-the-clock campaign burst at a birthday party with about 200 supporters at a Chinese restaurant Tuesday night in Hooksett. He is 69 today.

Reagan said his years should not be an issue; that he has his health and his faculties, along with the experience age brings.

"Someone asked me how I felt about my birthday and I said, 'Considering the alternative...'" The rest was drowned out in applause and laughter.

Reagan's opponents are not making an overt issue of his age, but they don't miss a chance to draw attention to it. Bush, who beat Reagan in the GOP's leadoff competition Jan. 21 in Iowa, makes the point by emphasizing his own vigor, his 54 years, and his dedication to jogging.

But debating was the exercise of the day Tuesday in New Hampshire. All the candidates save Reagan had agreed earlier to meet as they did in Iowa and the former California governor said Tuesday he'll be there, too.

The 90-minute debate is sponsored by the League of Women Voters and is to be televised nationally by the Public Broadcasting System.

It will match Reagan, Bush, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., of Tennessee, former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois and Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas.

In addition, two more debate proposals are awaiting answers. Foster's Daily Democrat of Dover, N.H., wants all the GOP candidates to debate and The Nashua Telegraph has invited Bush and Reagan to a two-candidate meeting Feb. 23, three days before the presidential primary.

Baker renewed his New Hampshire campaign today in Nashua, gaining the endorsements of two Republican governors — Richard Snelling of Vermont and Robert Ray of Iowa. Ray's endorsement in New Hampshire was curious since the Iowa governor maintained a facade of neutrality during the campaign in his own state.

Bush, campaigning in Boston, gained the endorsements of former Attorney General Elliott Richardson and former Assistant Attorney General William Ruckelshaus.

Anderson, campaigning in Hanover, said he was glad Reagan "has finally come out of the closet." Anderson said he thought Reagan would have won in Iowa if he hadn't skipped the debate there.

Mondale for Carter race hectic

WASHINGTON (AP) — St. Hyacinth's Church, Westbrook, L.L. Bean, Freeport, The Bath Iron Works (at dawn), Warren's Lobster House, Kittery.

All were on Vice President Walter F. Mondale's itinerary in Maine Monday and Tuesday. You go such places when you're running for office. Or, more exactly, when you're running Jimmy Carter for office.

That is what the vice president is doing — and if he is successful, the people will get Mondale in the bargain.

"If you re-elect Jimmy Carter, you also get someone I'm quite proud of — Fritz Mondale," the vice president is fond of saying.

The campaign stops give birth to a raft of political cliches. The list is a typical Mondale agenda these days as he travels the primary election circuit — first Iowa, now Maine and New Hampshire — leading the Carter-Mondale campaign.

President Carter has not left Washington, except for visits to Camp David, since Oct. 29. He and his aides have said he will not engage in partisan politics under the "present circumstances," referring to the crises in Iran and Afghanistan.

On a day-to-day basis, the vice president's campaign trips are easy-going affairs, not the two-plane extravaganzas that accompany a presidential campaign.

"He doesn't go in and escape notice," said press secretary Albert Eisele. "But he doesn't create the excitement of a president. He does not get the attention the president does, or maybe even a Kennedy."

Still, he turned some heads Monday evening at L.L. Bean. He signed autographs, discussed fishing, bought two pairs of boots, and confided that the visit to the huge camping outfitter fulfilled a lifelong dream.

"I've been reading L.L. Bean catalogues for years," the vice president said. "My drawers are full of L.L. Bean catalogues. I hope Carter doesn't catch me reading them during business hours."

The campaign days are a 14-hour mix of visits to factories — at a Biddeford, Maine, textile mill he toured every nook and cranny, his words of chit-chat with the workers drowned out by clacking looms — and press conferences and political receptions.

There is a stock speech in which he says Carter is showing his leadership qualities in the foreign crises, taking positions that might not be politically popular.

Carter's leading challenger, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, has lately sought to portray the president as a conservative following Republican economic policies.

The vice president disagreed with that and noted that under the Carter administration, 9 million jobs have been created. Then, localizing that figure, he said in Bath that the local shipyard employment has been climbing.

"We've put America back to work," he said.

Air Force wants tests

MX missile plan ready

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The Air Force brass has returned to the Pentagon with its plans for the MX missile system after a month of hearings to determine public sentiment about the proposed project.

The task now is to test the MX for durability — to see if it can withstand the critical assaults of those who live in the area targeted as the project's site.

The Air Force held 15 "scoping" hearings in Nevada and Utah during recent weeks — its first such effort to gain public comment on a major defense project.

Several thousand persons attended the meetings and heard concerns aired by scores of speakers, from cowboys and miners to the state's top political leaders. There was some MX support, but not much.

"If the federal government, President Carter and the Air Force think they're going to shove this thing down our throats, they can think again," said Utah state Rep. Jeff Fox, D-Salt Lake. The Air Force wants to begin building roads and bases for the $50 billion project by 1982.

A team headed by Brig. Gens. Forrest McCartney and Guy Hecker explained the program and fielded questions at the hearings. As they outlined the MX system:

— A total of 200 missiles would be scattered among 4,600 shelters from Salt Lake City, Utah, to the tiny Nevada town of Tonopah.

— The nation's enemies wouldn't be able to tell which shelters hid missiles, but if a new strategic arms limitation agreement required that Soviet satellites be allowed to count them, it could be done.

— The system provides mobility and secrecy and heads off what some foresee as the vulnerability of existing Minuteman and Titan missiles.

The Air Force and President Carter see the MX as vital to national defense.

Clements giving crew good odds

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements gives crews at a blown-out Mexican offshore oil well a 90 percent chance of shutting off the runaway flow by Thursday or Friday.

The governor said Tuesday he had heard from sources at the Mexican well site that two wells being drilled diagonally to cut off Ixtoc I have hit their mark.

"Hopefully, if everything goes right, they'll start pumping cement tomorrow or the next day. And I would anticipate the well will be killed then," he said at a news conference.

The well blew out of control in the Bay of Campeche June 3 and more than 100 million gallons of crude oil have polluted the Gulf of Mexico in the world's worst oil spill.

South Texas beaches wore patches and ribbons of thick ooze last summer and scientists predicted a repeat this spring if the well were not capped by March.

The governor said his estimate of a 10 percent chance of failure to cap the well would be "due to some kind of mechanical breakdown or weather problem beyond someone's control."

Clements refused to identify his sources of information except to say they were in Mexico.

The second directional well reached its target this week, Clements said.

The two wells first pumped salt water into Ixtoc I, then a dye which spewed out to the surface letting drillers know they had reached the well.

Mud mixed with acid is being forced into the well and will be followed by cement, he said.

"We are confident that if it is killed in next few days or few hours, there will be no recurrence on the Texas coast," he said.

Clements cautioned he was not absolutely certain the well will be shut off. On Jan. 4, he made a similar prediction that did not come true due to weather and equipment failure, he said.

Pemex, the Mexican national oil company, has spent an estimated $800,000 a day to control the well and has all available help on the job, he said.

He described as "pure baloney" reports that Mexican crews cannot handle the job and have not worked long enough hours to do so.

Before taking office as governor, Clements headed SEDCO Inc., a Dallas-based international oil exploration company he founded.

The governor has cautioned against U.S. retaliation or lawsuits against Mexico or Mexican companies for the oil spill. SEDCO has been named defendant in several oil spill suits.

The company leased the rig used at Ixtoc I to a Mexican contractor. Clements earlier toured the Brownsville shrimp harbor and talked with shrimp fishermen about their poor financial condition.

Shrimpers have applied for Small Business Administration disaster relief loans due to poor catches, rising fuel prices and loss of access to winter fishing grounds off Mexico.
