SIX DIE IN CRASH — Portion of the wreckage of a British cargo plane that crashed Saturday in Billerica, Mass., killing six of seven crewmen aboard. The plane crashed and exploded a few hundred yards from a residential neighborhood. (AP LASERPHOTO)

British cargo plane crash kills six of seven crewmen

BILLERICA, Mass. (AP) — Six of seven crewmen aboard a British cargo plane were killed Saturday afternoon when it crashed and exploded a few hundred yards from a residential neighborhood, officials said.

The crash occurred in a snowstorm minutes after the plane took off from Logan International Airport in Boston on a flight to Shannon Airport in Ireland. The plane was carrying computer parts bound for Digital Equipment Corp. in Galway, Ireland.

According to an eyewitness, the plane plowed through a line of trees, skipped through a field and hit more trees before coming to rest on an embankment behind an industrial park about 200 yards from a housing development. Witnesses said debris and pockets of burning fuel were scattered over a wide area.

"It must have been trying to make the field. It hit the first line of trees and started coming apart. Pieces of the plane were flying up in the air and there were a lot of small fires and a big explosion," said Jim Murphy, 17, of Billerica.

The lone survivor was identified as Richard Creer, 59, of Dorset, England. He was listed in critical condition at St. John's Hospital in Lowell.

The six dead were not identified.

Another eyewitness, Martin Martinello, said he heard a low-flying plane and looked out his window shortly before the crash. "There was smoke coming from its belly," he said.

Bruce Richardson, a nearby resident, was one of the first to arrive at the scene of the crash.

Local man slain, suspect posts bail

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

A northside Big Spring lounge was the scene Friday night of a shooting that resulted in the death of one Big Spring man.

Ronald Dean Jeter, 36, of Big Spring, was pronounced dead at 9:30 p.m. Friday at the Malone-Hogan Hospital emergency room. Jeter had been shot twice about 8:40 p.m. at BJs Country Lounge on the Snyder Highway.

Services will be at 11:30 a.m. Monday in Nalley Pickle Rosewood Chapel, with Chaplain Clayton Hicks, Veterans' Administration Medical Center, officiating. Graveside services will be at 4 p.m. Monday in Elmwood Memorial Park in Abilene.

Charged with murder was Abe Perez Gonzalez, 35, of Big Spring. Gonzalez was arraigned before Peace Justice Lewis Heflin, who set bond at $30,000. Posting bond was Gonzalez's employer, Carl Small of Small Fishing and Rental Tools.

According to the owner of BJs, Billye Rogers, said an argument had arisen between Gonzalez and another man.

"Two fellas were arguing and wanted to go outside and fight," she said.

Jeter was sitting at the bar at the time drinking a beer and watching the two men.

"As far as the fella that got shot, he was not even involved," Rogers added. "He was sitting at the end of the bar drinking his beer."

Jeter had got up from his seat and what appeared to Rogers was walking toward the bathroom. He was caught up in a hysteria that was beginning to envelope the bar.

"Someone jumped him by the pool table," Rogers said.

During the fracas, Gonzalez was outside. He came back in the bar with a saw-off shotgun.

"He (Gonzalez) didn't say a word, just shot him (Jeter)," Rogers said. "He shot him twice."

Jeter received wounds to the neck and left shoulder.

Rogers said Gonzalez intended to shoot Jeter a third time, but was prevented.

"Someone whacked him in the head with a pool cue," Rogers said.

Jeter was rushed to Malone-Hogan Hospital.

"He was still alive when we arrived (officers)," Gary Porter, Sheriff's deputy and investigating officer, said.

Sheriff's deputies picked Gonzalez up about 10:30 p.m. at Cowper Clinic where he was seeking medical attention for a head wound. The accused had his head heavily bandaged.

Jeter was born June 21, 1944, at Baird. He moved to Big Spring in 1951 and graduated in 1962 from Big Spring High School. He had served four years in the Marines, touring Vietnam twice. He was a sheet metal worker at Jeter Sheet Metal.

Survivors include one son, Jimmy Duane Jeter of Odessa; his mother, Mrs. Ella Mae Jeter of Rockport; his father, L.J. Jeter of Big Spring; and one brother, Gary Duane Jeter of Big Spring.

Iranian panel may be named today or Monday

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim worked Saturday on details of a five-member commission to investigate Iran's grievances against the deposed shah. Waldheim's spokesman said the panel could be named Sunday or Monday.

Spokesman Francois Giuliani told reporters "some details remain to be worked out" in the settlement plan, which is hoped to lead to release of the American hostages in Iran. He said not all members of the panel have been selected.

Well-placed diplomats at the United Nations have said lawyers from Algeria, Bangladesh, Venezuela, France and Syria, will be named to the five-member panel and will leave for Iran later in the week.

In Paris, Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh warned against speculation that the release of the hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was imminent, saying the first step was the formation of the commission. The American captives ended their 15th week as hostages.

"We have got to go step by step," he told reporters. "Do not try to speculate on what is going to happen during the work of the commission. Things will stay as they are until the commission finishes its work."

He has said the investigation would take 10 days to two weeks.

Ghotbzadeh spoke at the Iranian Embassy on Saturday after meeting with French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet. Asked if the hostages might be held captive even after the commission completed its work, Ghotbzadeh said: "I wouldn't even talk about that. Let us go to the resolution of the problem. Let us have the commission."

Two shells found at murders scene are being tested

Two unfired shells found near the scene of the April 26 murder of Ann and Tracey Reeves are being tested by Department of Public Safety ballistics experts in Austin.

Standard said if markings are found on the shells, it might indicate that the gun ejected the shells because of a malfunction. If so, the information would aid the investigators in finding the gun.

Fred Rymer, ballistics section supervisor, told Standard the department was interested in the Howard County case because of its similarity to cases in Nacogdoches County and Georgetown near Austin.

A man and his wife died from small caliber gunshot wounds in Nacogdoches County. The woman was stripped. Near Georgetown a boy and girl were killed in a similar fashion.

Howard County Spelling Bee scheduled Tuesday at HC

The 1980 Howard County Spelling Bee will be conducted in the Howard College Auditorium starting at 4 p.m., Tuesday.

Winner in the contest here becomes eligible to take part in the Regional Bee at Lubbock next month. Sponsor of the annual event is the Herald, which offers an expenses-paid trip to the Regional event.

The winner at Lubbock, and Howard County has frequently supplied the champion there, goes to Washington, D.C., later in the year to compete in the National Bee, where several scholarships are in the offing.

Schools which will have champions in the local bee are Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic School, Moss Elementary, Elbow, Marcy Elementary, College Heights Elementary, Washington Elementary, Goliad Middle School, Runnels Junior High, Bauer Elementary, Kentwood Elementary and Coahoma Elementary.

Janice Rosson will be the pronouncer in Tuesday's bee here. Members of the Howard College staff will serve as judges.

Howard County jobless rate lower than national average

Unemployment for December in Howard County was 3.6 percent, according to the Texas Employment Commission.

TEC figures show that during the last month of the previous year 14,297 were employed out of a county labor force of 14,830. This means that 533 persons were unemployed during the month.

This 3.6 rate compares to a national unemployment rate for the same month of 6.2 percent.

The unemployment rate for December 1978 was also 3.6 percent with 14,168 working out of a labor pool of 14,695.

Joe Wallace of TEC said the December, 1979 rate 3.6 percentage was slightly lower than November.

"You have a few more firms hiring for Christmas help and December inventories," Wallace said.

Wallace pointed out that the 1979 unemployment rate remained constant.

"It had been consistent all year between 3.4 and 3.7 (percent)," he added.

Wallace said the lowest month for 1979 was March when the county had 2.9 percent without work. The highest monthly average was July with 4.5 of the labor pool being unemployed.

Eclipse seen from Africa to China

National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists launched U.S.-made rockets from a wilderness camp in Kenya Saturday to photograph a total solar eclipse that raced nearly 8,000 miles across Africa, India and China in 3½ spectacular hours.

In northern Tanzania, a Japanese film team climbed Mount Kilimanjaro, Africa's tallest mountain, to film the eclipse while other Japanese crews recorded animal behavior at the nearby Ngorongoro crater.

India's Hindus rejoiced in what they believed was a convention of gods during the eclipse.

Muslims in Kenya offered special prayers thanking Allah for protecting them during the darkness.

The sun was beginning to set when the eclipse was seen in China as millions of Chinese celebrated the Lunar New Year and the arrival of the year of the monkey. Chinese superstition has it that an eclipse on New Year's Day is bad luck, but the Peking press has been treating it as a great opportunity for scientific investigation.

At the San Marco Base Camp, a rural jungle outpost in northeast Kenya, the NASA officials, aided by Italian astronomers, shot seven rockets up to 200 miles in space to photograph the corona, a glowing envelope surrounding the sun, and to record atmospheric changes during the total eclipse.

In the nearby Kenyan village of Ngomeni, tribesmen went into their huts, puzzled and afraid of the daytime darkness. A hush fell. The air cooled. Cows and antelope lay down to sleep and birds settled on roosts.

A U.S. Air Force jet loaded with observation gear flew down the eclipse path from Nairobi, the Kenyan capital. In the port of Mombasa, darkness interrupted warm-ups for an international tennis tournament.

During an eclipse, the moon comes between the sun and earth. At the time, the sun's light is blocked, enabling scientists to measure, photograph and take the temperature of the star that warms Earth.

Small investment doubles money

A woman who was disappointed when a building contractor offered her six cents a brick for 9,000 Antique common bricks she owned decided to see if she could get more by advertising them in the Want Ad section of the Herald.

She sold the bricks for 12 cents each and said she had two persons 'fighting' over them to see who could get the check to her first. That's a case of doubling one's money with a very small investment.

If you think you have something of commercial value or have a service to perform, why not opt for quick results by advertising it in the Herald. You can do it by initiating a call to the Herald, 263-7331.

Magna Carta to be put on display in state

AUSTIN — Plans for the Texas exhibition of one of the world's most important documents, the Magna Carta sealed in 1215 A.D. by King John of England, have been announced by representatives of sponsoring institutions.

The 700-year-old charter, considered the basis of legal and just freedom of English-speaking countries, is being brought from England's Lincoln Cathedral to Texas only and will be on exhibit in five cities in March and April: Austin, San Antonio, Dallas, Houston and Luling.

"This is a rare educational opportunity for all Texans, really a reaffirmation of faith in our freedom and liberties," said the Rev. Robert B. Greene, director of the Resource Center for Small Churches in Luling, who originated the idea of bringing the Great Charter to Texas.

The charter, along with a document sealed in 1072 by William the Conqueror, will be on view March 28 at the Church of the Annunciation in Luling. The University of Texas at Austin will show the exhibition at the LBJ Library Museum March 29-April 5. Texas Military Institute will sponsor the exhibit in San Antonio April 7-11, moving it to the Institute of Texan Cultures for viewing on April 12.

The charter then goes to Palmer Memorial Episcopal Church, across from the Rice Institute campus, in Houston for viewing April 14-18. The exhibition will end in Dallas at Thanksgiving Square April 21-25 and Belo Mansion April 26-27.

The dean of Lincoln Cathedral, the Very Rev. the Honorable Oliver Twisleton-Wykeham-Fiennes, is accompanying the charter on its Texas tour.

In all locations the exhibition of the Magna Carta will be open free to the public.

To dozen inmates who survived bloody riot

Prison like 'heaven on earth'

SEAGOVILLE, Texas (AP) — A minimum security federal prison in this Dallas suburb is like "heaven on earth," 12 inmates who survived the bloody New Mexico prison riot have told the Dallas Morning News. The News published interviews with several of the prisoners in a copyright story Saturday. Jerry Hewitt, 22, who had arrived at the prison near Santa Fe only four days before the riot broke out Feb. 2, said to this day he is unable to sleep, and other inmates told of seeing the executions by torture of some of the 33 inmates who died.

"I still can't sleep at night. I can still see the guys yelling and screaming and begging for their lives," Hewitt said. "What happened was unbelievable."

Hewitt said it is difficult, almost impossible, to describe the carnage carried out by the rampaging prisoners. "It's like the smell of marijuana," he said. "You know what it smells like, but you can't describe it to anyone else. I can't describe to you what all the killings and screaming and dying was like."

Seagoville Warden Ken McDannell said his prison had initially been informed it would not receive any of the hundreds of prisoners sent to various institutions around the nation, but he said he learned of a change in plans just before the 12 inmates arrived there Feb. 7.

He said all 12 are similar to the other inmates held at the federal prison. "They've been screened, and it looks like they're going to fit here," he said. "From what I've observed, they are no different from the type I have here now, minimum security-type individuals."

McDannell said it appears that the New Mexico prisoners held here now "were just trying to get out of the way during the riot."

One of the prisoners blamed the prison's administration for the riot and said they should have known it was going to happen.

"The prison administration itself was what made the thing blow up," said Daniel Sosa, 26. "I'd heard there was going to be a prison riot for 10 months. The administration had to know it, but they wouldn't do anything about it."

Although the inmates claimed they knew such a thing was going to happen, it appears they were stunned by the magnitude and brutality of the riot.

"If you rolled every bloody, Alfred Hitchcock-type movie into one, that would be like a Saturday morning cartoon compared to what happened in that prison," said James England, 23, of Albuquerque, who was serving a prison term for armed robbery.

Five of the inmates said that although they were not "snitches," they were locked up in Cellblock 4 where New Mexico prison authorities said most of the killing took place because that's where prisoner-informants were held.

Hewitt said he was there because he had just arrived and other areas were full.

Richard Chavez, 24, said he and others in his cell area heard some noises that sounded like scuffling when the riot first broke out. "Then, all of a sudden, these guys came down the stairs with ski masks and bandannas over their faces. They had keys and started opening other cellblock and dormitory doors," Chavez recalled.

He said the masked prisoners tried to calm the other prisoners by telling them the riot was "against the administration."

But he said the atmosphere rapidly changed. "They broke into the pharmacy and got all the pills, and then they broke into the shoe shop and started sniffing glue and polish," Chavez said. "That's when things went crazy."

Chavez said he and Bobby Holliman, 22, got out of their cells and began roaming around the prison, searching for a way to escape to the safety of the prison yard.

What they saw on their way to the yard probably gave them more incentive to escape to safety.

"Everywhere you went there was killing and violence," he recalled.

"You just had to keep walking. It was real dark and smoky," Chavez said. "Sometimes you'd stumble over a body. There was about two inches of water running on the floor."

"I saw one guy killed just because he bumped into another guy. First they beat him with pipes and then a couple of other guys came up and started stabbing him," Chavez said.

Sosa, who stayed in his cell in Cellblock 4, said he had just heard a radio broadcast describing the riot as "a non-violent prison revolt" when "These guys were coming into the cellblock."

"They started pulling people out and beating them," Sosa said. "Some people they just dusted (killed) right in their cells.

"They were going totally insane. I was scared. I was scarer than hell, but I didn't think about it," said Sosa.

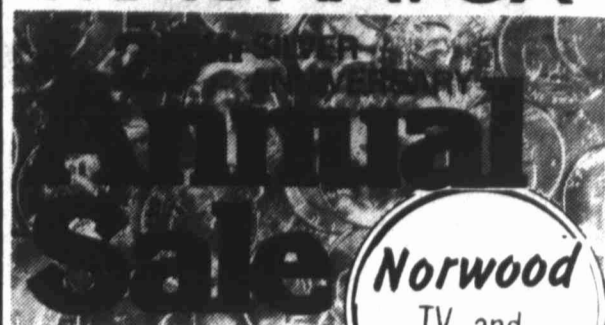

Hewitt said he too remained in his cell, using a bed frame to keep the rioting prisoners from opening his cell door. He said the rampaging prisoners beat on the door of his cell and told him "Get out and fight the establishment or die."

Hewitt was able to stay inside the cell, but he watched much of the carnage.

HC trustees to reconsider name change

Members of the Howard College board of trustees will reconsider the name for the College for the Deaf, an HC adjunct, when they meet in regular session at noon Tuesday in the board room of the Student Union Building.

The trustees will also study faculty recommendations for the 1980-81 school year, consider changes in the school catalog and undertake personnel considerations.

The college's financial report and current bills will be offered before College President Charles Hays offers his report.

SWEETWATER — The annual Sweetwater Jaycees Rattlesnake Roundup, billed as the world's largest, will be held March 7-8-9. Headquarters will be the Nolan County Courthouse.

Snake-handling demonstrations will be given throughout the roundup by a veteran snake handler. Deep fried rattlesnake meat will be available throughout the three days.

Rattlesnake milking will be undertaken periodically. The venom is collected for medical research.

Canada

Thank You, Canada

Canada deserves the massive American outpouring of praise and gratitude currently being given them for their country's help in rescuing six U.S. diplomatic employees from Iran.

President Carter called Canada's action "a tremendous exhibition of friendship and support." Congress adopted resolutions of gratitude to Canada, and Canada's embassy in Washington and consulates around the country were besieged with countless telephone calls expressing thanks.

They deserve our thanks... and our friendship. Canada's conduct first in hiding the U.S. diplomatic employees in the Canadian embassy, and then aiding in their escape from Iran was exemplary. In short, Canada acted the way a good neighbor should act. Thank you, Canada.

Weather modification conclusions cloudy

A strong statistical picture can be painted for effectiveness of weather modification, but whether the program has resulted in increased water flow into area reservoirs is inconclusive.

These are some of the conclusions drawn by John Girdzus, meteorologist for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, which has been conducting weather modification operations and experiments in a five-county area for the past nine years.

"Prior to the initiation of the program," said Girdzus, "surface water reservoirs were below normal and still remain in that condition. If the program had not been conducted, it can only be speculated what the conditions of these reservoirs may have been today."

Girdzus concluded in his report of 1979 operations and review of previous years.

On the other hand, "range-land conditions and crop production which are highly dependent on rainfall have obviously been enhanced."

In 1979, for instance, 26 percent more rainfall was observed within those counties over which the cloud seeding activities had occurred than those counties where no seeding had occurred.

The District on Jan. 20 received a permit from the Texas Water Commission to continue its operations and studies for another four years. When the program was first undertaken it was recognized that a long-term program would be required to reduce statistical biases and show economic and scientific benefits.

The Texas Department of Water Resources in 1974, joined in a scientific and economic evaluation of the precipitation enhancement efforts, and in 1975, the Water and Power Resources Service selected Big Spring as one of their HIPLIX (High Plains Experiment) sites. The HIPLIX program runs concurrently with the CRMWD efforts during part of the summer cloud seeding season, and the district performs cloud seeding and sampling for HIPLIX. The TDWR coordinates project research by Texas A&M University and Texas Tech University.

In the target area (Borden and Mitchell Counties, the east half of Howard County, west half of Scurry County and north half of Coke County), CRMWD monitors a network of 106 recording and 81 "fence post" rain-gauges constantly.

In 1978, for the first time, clouds were seeded with silver iodide crystals at cloud tops as well as cloud base. Also, the district installed a mini-cloud physics system on its P-Navajo aircraft. This computer-based data system collects, displays and records signals from 13 transducers consisting of time, temperature, pressure, humidity, cloud water and ice particles, and Spectra-type data. Under favorable conditions, silver iodide particles form ice crystals on which moisture collects until they become large enough to fall out of the cloud as precipitation particles or rain.

"Rainfall increases within the target area in 1979 amounted to 42 percent as compared with 16 percent for the control (surrounding) area," Girdzus reported. There was no substantial increase in the district's reservoirs, Lakes J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence, but there were other dramatic results.

Beginning in 1971 and continuing through 1978, which is the weather modification period, distinct crop yield responses were evident. Only in 1974 was yield in cloud-seeded counties less than observed in upwind and downwind counties. Historically this had never before occurred.

In the years 1941-71, there were only three years (1941-50-70) when target area counties produced more cotton per acre than either of the other areas. When the extraordinary cotton production figures of 1979 are reported later this year, the contrast may be even more pronounced.

Downwind counties (in the direction of the prevailing movement of clouds) have shown extensive residual benefit from the seeding, particularly as compared to upwind counties. For example, in 1978, in Dawson County, northwest of the target area, yields per acre were down 48 percent, while Fisher County to the east of the target area was 34 percent above its historical average. Also, in 1978, a poor crop year, mean cotton yields in the target area were 8 percent lower than the historical average, while yields in upwind areas were 34 percent below normal.

While there is statistical evidence supporting the value of weather modification, the scientific verdict may still be out, Girdzus acknowledged. "While the program does have merit and provides certain community benefits, it cannot be stated with certainty that present day water impoundments are weather modification related."

Starring Steve Martin

'The Jerk' opens here

Steve Martin is Navin Johnson in Universal's "The Jerk," which opens at the Theatre.

Navin is the adopted son of a family of black sharecroppers. He's one of eight children. As the family dines on cornbread, greens, hog maws, and sweet potato pie, his mother tells them: "Today is Navin's birthday and I cooked him up his favorite meal, tunafish salad on white bread with mayonnaise, a Tab, and couple of Twinkies."

Soon Navin moves on, becoming a weight guesser in a carnival, where he becomes romantically involved with Patty Bernstein, a sexy motorcyclist. Patty beats him up when she thinks he's unfaithful.

Eventually, in this rags to riches to rags saga, Navin becomes a millionaire and in the person of sweet Marie, cosmetologist, finds true love.

Appearing in "The Jerk" with Steve Martin are Bernadette Peters as Marie, the love of his life; Catlin Adams, the feisty Patty Bernstein; Mabel King, as Navin's mother, and Jackie Mason, as Harry Hartouman, gas station owner.

"The Jerk" is a wild and crazy comedy which marks Steve Martin's film-starring debut. His short film "The Absent-Minded Watier" won an Oscar nomination, and he previously played cameos in "The Muppet Movie" and "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band."

Directing Martin in the film is the versatile and talented Carl Reiner, whose affability, compassion, and outrageous sense of humor, have produced such comedies as "Oh, God," "Where's Poppa?" and the original Dick Van Dyke Show.

In the Spring of 1979, both Martin and Reiner attended an unprecedented first in the history of motion pictures — the kleig-lighted world premiere of a trailer. The trailer, of course, was for "The Jerk." Ads appeared in newspapers and trade papers announcing that it began at 8 p.m. and ended at 8:02 p.m. Prospective viewers were warned that no one would be seated after the first six seconds.

Before the actual showing of "The Jerk" trailer, Martin and Reiner were interviewed outside the theatre before a throng of fans (many in rabbit ears, and others with arrows in their heads). Very proudly, the star and the director told the interviewer Army Archerd, that the trailer had not only come in under budget but also ahead of schedule. Thus, they had saved Universal Pictures approximately $110,000 and a couple of hundred feet of film.

In an era of over-budget films, "The Jerk" itself was shot in 45 days, finishing ten days ahead of schedule. Approximately 80 locations were used in all, and 15 stage sets were constructed for filming at Culver City Studios.

The cast and crew worked at such varied locations as the controversial sheik Al-Fassi mansion on Sunset Boulevard in Beverly Hills, a Pasadena gas station, a Westlake Village ranch, Devonshire Downs Fairgrounds, and Griffith Park miniature train park, among others.

The Al-Fassi mansion, depicted for the first time in a film, was the most elaborate location. An arrangement to use the spectacular home was made after the producers had rejected about half a dozen other notable area mansions, including the former Harold Lloyd and Marion Davies estates.

During filming, this was Martin's favorite location. Was it because of the controversial nude sculptures with which the place abounds? Or the overall air of sensuous opulence?

"No," says Martin, "because it was close to home."

Apart from its suitability in terms of the script requirements, the Al-Fassi structure was selected because parts of its enormous interior permitted cameramen shooting in one room to achieve excellent views of adjacent quarters at the same time.

Also valuable from the production standpoint were excellent examples of Eastern and Western art and the presence of a unique basement disco, complete with strobe lights and professionally equipped sound system.

Steve Martin stars in "The Jerk." A Universal Picture which also stars Bernadette Peters, Catlin Adams, and Jackie Mason as Harry Hartouman. An Aspen Film Society-William E. McEuen — David V. Picker Production of A Carl Reiner Film, the screenplay is by Steve Martin, Carl Gottlieb and Michael Elias; story by Steve Martin & Carl Gottlieb. The comedy was produced by David V. Picker and Wilham E. McEuen, and directed by Carl Reiner.

Boston museum to show photos

BOSTON (AP) — A loan collection of 50 classic drawings and watercolors by major 20th-century European artists is being shown at the Museum of Fine Arts through April 27.

The museum says the show includes works which represent the main currents in the modern tradition from the first decade of the 20th century to the 1960s.

Also on view at the museum through April 27 is "Photographs From the Collection," more than 50 photographic portraits of celebrated performing artists such as Charlie Chaplin.

New magazines are taken locally

Gentlemen, the library is for you

By RONALD TESTER
County Librarian

Gentlemen's Quarterly, now expanded to ten issues per year, is one of several new magazine subscriptions at the Howard County Library. It is unique in that it is the only consumer-oriented fashion periodical in the United States devoted solely to masculine interests.

Read by apparel manufacturers and dealers as well as the general public, a typical issue may touch on what color shirt to wear with the latest styles in addition to current fashion availabilities. Gentlemen's Quarterly has more than passing interest for the fashion-aware man as well as the woman who helps him purchase his clothes.

No longer the oversized magazine of the 1960s, Esquire is now in a normal format with an imaginative approach to the general magazine scene. Its wide range of articles, fiction, and departments interest men and woman alike. It is most noteworthy for special features which tend to trace trends in everything from the American campus to politics and the social-literary arena. The specials are made up of speculative editorial matter usually surrounded by satirical photographs and cartoons.

Hot Rod is the world's largest automotive magazine, with tuning and modifying information for the mechanic, drag racer, and customizer. Technical articles describe speed tricks and products, and feature articles cover national drag meets. A separate section is devoted to customized cars, and the magazine emphasizes the feats of individual mechanics, body craftsmen, and racing personalities.

Financial World is a twice-a-month publication directed primarily toward the private investor. Each issue includes reviews of industries, trend forecasts, and profiles of specific companies. In the first issue of each month there is a section rating about 1,600 stock issues. Once a quarter, data on convertibles, preferred stocks, and mutual funds are added. It is a good companion to Forbes, another well-written business and investment magazine, which cuts through the news releases and gets down to the essential facts about business operations, executives, and general practices.

Venture is a new magazine directed toward entrepreneurs, and contains helpful information on financing a new business, coping with a sour economy and franchising. It also presents new ideas and opportunities to help businessmen increase their profits. One recent article deals with people who have started over after an unsuccessful first try at business and who now have the advantage of knowing which mistakes to avoid the second time around.

Rolling Stone, formerly the basic music magazine of the counterculture, is rapidly taking on the image of the establishment. It has moved into other fields, including books and politics, but owes its following to factual reporting about the music scene. It has interviews with established personalities and lesser-known music writers and musicians, excellent record reviews of both singles and albums, and a winning format — the magazine is put together as a tabloid newspaper with numerous illustrations and photographs.

The purpose of Song Hits Magazine is to publish the lyrics of current songs in the various fields of popular music, and for this reason it has a massive following, especially among teenagers. Each issue has at least one article about some current star or group and the lyrics to sixty or more songs, arranged in the three areas of pop songs, soul songs, and country songs.

Beef referendum begins Monday

In the upcoming beef referendum, 51 Howard County beef producers are eligible to vote, according to figures released by the Howard County ASCS office Friday.

The referendum begins Monday and ends on Feb. 22. The purpose of the election is to determine whether an assessment should be placed on cattle sales. The imposed charge would be deducted from the sale of cattle and placed in a fund for research and promotion of the livestock industry.

The funds would be handled by a Beef Board composed of representatives from cattlemen's organizations. The number of positions on the board will range from 60 to 68 members.

Eligibility on the board will be based on the individual organization size and cattle representation. Final selection will rest with the Secretary of Agriculture. The secretary will also be responsible for overseeing the audit and execution of laws associated with the board's duties.

Those voting qualified by registering during an earlier period, which was a requirement to determine eligibility to vote later.

Voting will take place in the Howard County ASCS office.

Pointers help keep choppers for life

FLOSSING DEMONSTRATION — Linda Conard, dental assistant to Dr. James R. Cave, 1500 Scurry, demonstrates that when flossing, the patient is instructed to gently ease floss between teeth, move it up and down in curved "C" motion several times and then move it just under the gumline. This method removes harmful plaque buildup.

By MICKIE DICKSON

Teeth will now last a lifetime? "People now can keep their own teeth all their life with current dental hygiene practices and preventive dentistry," says Dr. Robert P. Paterson.

The observance of National Dental Health Month during February provides us with important news about the latest developments in the care of our teeth and gums.

The past decade has witnessed a new trend affecting teeth care which emphasizes the prevention of disease before it can get started. The modern preventive approach not only enables us to keep our teeth for a lifetime but sets a whole new standard for a fresher, cleaner mouth. It starts with a good oral hygiene program that helps keep the mouth clean and free of food particles and plaque, a colorless coating of bacteria that is constantly forming on tooth surfaces and contributes to cavities, gum disease and possible tooth loss. All people have bacteria in the mouth, but the speed and progress of dental disease may depend on the frequency and care in removing plaque and upon the intake of sweets.

Dentists today use the services of a dental hygienist to clean their patient's teeth on a regular basis and to instruct the patient in correct brushing and regular flossing procedures. Marsha Blackwell, Midland, hygienist for Dr. John Key and Dr. Dickey Stanley, 709 Scurry, says that preventive maintenance is up to the patient after she instructs them on how to brush and floss teeth.

"Dentistry isn't expensive," said Dr. Key, "neglect is what is expensive. Home care is the key."

Brushing, alone, is not sufficient in maintaining good, healthy teeth and gums because it misses bacterial plaque and food particles lodged in the spaces and on the gums between the teeth. It is necessary to floss at least once a day, preferably before bedtime, to remove plaque and therefore prevent its accumulation in spaces and on gums between the teeth.

The most common reasons for losing teeth are not sufficiently understood, according to Dr. Howard Marshall, a New York City periodontist and author of the soon-to-be-published book, "How To Save Your Teeth — The Preventive Approach."

"Teeth can be lost either through decay or gum disease. Most people don't realize that gum disease is the cause of most adult tooth loss. As many as seven out of ten adults have gum disease in some form, from mild to advanced, and don't recognize it until it is too late. Children lose their teeth primarily from decay, but adults over 30 lose their teeth primarily from gum disease."

Inflamed, red and bleeding gums are frequently the result of plaque buildup when we don't follow a daily oral hygiene program of flossing and brushing to help keep teeth and gums healthy. Lack of proper home and professional dental care is so common that after age 40, three out of four teeth are lost due to gum disease. By age 65, more than half of all Americans have lost their teeth.

Gum disease is often painless and difficult to detect without regular checkups at the dentist. You can tell that the gums are healthy when they are firm, pink and attractive. In the first stage of gum disease, or gingivitis, the gums become tender, swollen and bleeding. The color changes from healthy pink to unhealthy red. It could even contribute to bad breath. At this early stage, a conscientious home care program of flossing and brushing may help to prevent the disease from progressing. If the disease progresses, you begin to lose supporting bone without experiencing pain. In the advanced stage, gums recede and teeth become loose due to destruction of supporting bone. In the final stage, the supporting bone is destroyed and teeth require extraction.

A visit to Dr. Marshall's office shows signs of the emphasis many dentists are placing on plaque control to combat cavities and gum disease. The attitude is one of "No more Mr. Nice Guy." Posters like "Don't Floss All Your Teeth, Just the Ones You Want To Keep!" are grim reminders. Large photos of plaque magnified under a microscope hang on the walls. Several oral hygiene rooms, equipped to teach patients plaque control, have a video-tape camera, a phase contrast microscope and a TV screen to enable patients to see what plaque looks like in their mouths. Various flossing aids are provided for instruction and practice.

How often should a person have his teeth checked? "It varies with each individual," declared Dr. Key, "I have to have my teeth cleaned every three to four months. Others may go for six months to a year. My body chemistry is such that plaque, builds up in three months in spite of the fact that I maintain proper dental hygiene."

"A balanced diet is important to good dental health," said Miss Blackwell. "Many times we catch a vitamin deficiency by the discoloration of the tongue and other signs." "Roughage type foods help keep the teeth cleaner, such as apples, carrots, oranges and celery," added Dr. Key. "Sweets and sugars set up a bacteria forming acid that can cause decay if the teeth are not kept clean. If you don't clean your mouth, no matter how many times a day you brush your teeth, bacteria will form. Toothpicks can help clean the mouth if properly used."

The enhanced role of the hygienist in working with patients is part of the modern trend. In addition to cleaning the patient's teeth, she is responsible for educating patients in how to maintain their own teeth by proper flossing and brushing methods and in the use of disclosing tablets to check for plaque.

The flossing method shown to patients is to wrap 18 inches of floss around the middle fingers. Using thumb and index fingers, guide the floss gently between the teeth. Curve it around each tooth into a C shape, and using an up and down motion, gently scrape the sides of the teeth and move it just below the gumline to remove plaque. As the floss becomes soiled, move it to an unused portion to avoid redepositing plaque.

Dr. Marshall recommends following the American Dental Association program — floss and brush the teeth every day, use a fluoride toothpaste, maintain a nutritious diet low in sweets and have a checkup at the dentist twice a year or as often as your dentist recommends.

Dr. Douglas Smith, orthodontist, 804 Gregg, said, "Teeth should be brushed for five minutes rather than the two or three minutes most people spend." We provide a tooth brushing bar with two lavatories and disposable tooth brushes and cups. If the young patients haven't brushed in the last few minutes, we require them to brush their teeth and braces before working on them."

"Orthodontics has a great deal to do with hygiene and putting the teeth in the mouth in a condition so they can be cleaned. Of course, people with braces in their mouth have to learn an entirely different way to brush their teeth and it's doubly important that they keep their teeth clean for they wear braces usually up to two years, some more, some less. People with braces cannot use dental floss at all. With braces on, there is an obstruction or wire all the way around on each arch, and the person wearing them must learn to brush behind the wires and behind the appliances, and it's doubly important that they learn to brush their gums to prevent dental inflammation," said Dr. Smith. "After the braces are removed, we re-teach them on how to use floss, water irrigation, and proper brushing."

"Often the patient thinks of braces in a purely cosmetic sense to improve the looks," said Dr. Smith, "but actually it has a great deal to do with function in that crooked teeth are a lot harder to keep clean and a lot harder to stay away from periodontal or bone disease. We place function on just as high a level as looks, trying to get the teeth so that they are aligned properly so people can clean them good and the patient can keep them for the rest of their lives hopefully. It's important also to have them meet together properly and have them function so that they are right."

Johnson & Johnson makes five kinds of floss to satisfy different needs — waxed floss which some people may find easier to insert and remove is recommended for novices; unwaxed floss is preferred by veteran flossers; extra fine is for closely spaced teeth and a green mint flavored variety is favored by many new flossers for its pleasant taste and because they can see the food particles that have been removed.

Morning wedding performed in Airport Baptist Church

Wedding bells rang Saturday morning at the Airport Baptist Church when Sandra Gail Booth became the bride of Donald L. Smith. The Rev. David W. McNary, pastor, read the 11 a.m. ceremony before an archway entwined with greenery. Two seven-branch candelabrams flanked either side of the sanctuary setting which was completed by a Unity Candle and a kneeling bench.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rony H. Booth, 511 Edwards Blvd. Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Smith, 3306 Cornell, are the parents of the groom.

Wedding selections were provided by vocalist Kim McKorkle, Canyon, who was accompanied by pianist Betty Downey.

The bride was given in marriage wearing a formal-length gown of ivory organza over satepeau. The fitted bodice, which featured a natural waistline, was underlined with a scooped neckline which created sheerness at the yoke.

Pearl encrusted Alencon lace embellished the slit stand-up collar and long fitted sleeves highlighted with lace appliques. A walking slit accentuated with lace applique beautified the fitted, straight skirt which featured scalloped lace circles at the hem and the gathered chapel-length train.

As a complement to her wedding attire, the bride chose to wear a derby-style hat of ivory adorned with Alencon lace and sprinkled with pearls and crystals. An illusion butterfly bow and streamers adorned the back.

She carried a silk cascade of candlelight roses and dogwood highlighted with apricot carnations. Jeri Dawn Booth, Monahans, attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a floor-length apricot dress of shadow print tinstea chiffon.

Dan Newsom attended the groom as best man. Guests were seated by Victor Ramos and Rickey Pitts, Odessa.

Wearing a floor-length ivory gown of organza featuring a skirt of sunburst pleats was Letreca Ann Pitts, niece of the bride, who served as flower girl. Chad Daniel Newsom was the ring bearer.

Immediately following the rite, Mr. and Mrs. Smith were feted with a reception in the church fellowship hall.

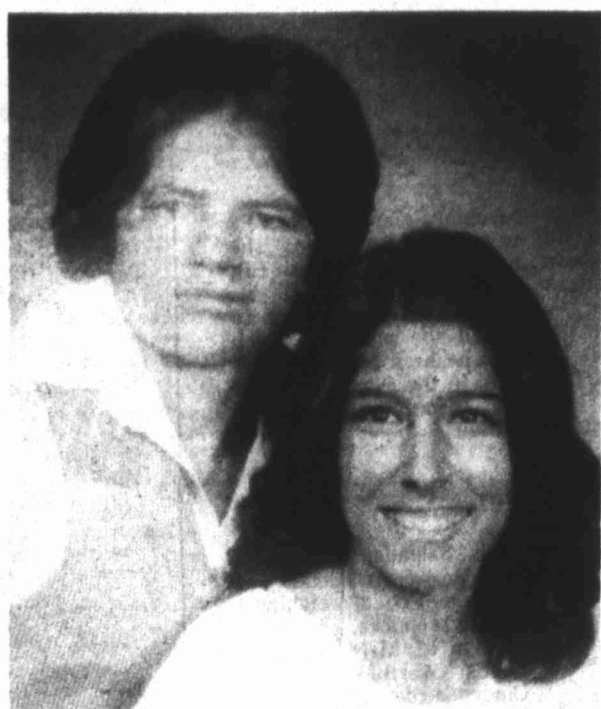

Candlelight lace underlaid with chocolate brown cloth accented the bride's table which was centered with a basket of candlelight, chocolate and apricot silk flowers. The bride's table also held a three-tiered pedestal cake decorated with a cascade of apricot-colored fresh flowers and topped with doves.

The groom's table was draped with brown cloth overlaid with candlelight lace. Silver appointments were used by Cathy Coughenour and Cindy Stollings, both of Canyon; Mrs. Rickey Pitts, Odessa; and Pam Henthorn, Amarillo, served the vanished chocolate cake which depicted the groom's occupation.

The bride is a Big Spring High School graduate and has attended Howard College and West Texas State University. She is presently employed in family business with her husband.

The groom graduated from Big Spring High School and has attended TSTI in Waco. He is the present owner of O & A Tex Pack Express.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Midland and make their home at No. 11 January in Big Spring.

MAY MARRIAGE — Mrs. Sandra Head, 1806 Owens, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Sonna Lee, to Theodore Christian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Christian, Gail Rt. The couple will recite their vows May 9 in the Baptist Temple Church. The Rev. Allen McHam, pastor, will officiate.

Woman receives child support from estate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled recently an Orange County woman is entitled to $6,477 for unpaid child support payments from the estate of her former husband.

The Supreme Court also awarded Virginia Adair $1,500 in attorneys fees.

Ms. Adair and James Martin were married in 1955 and divorced in 1960, and she received custody of their three minor children. Martin was ordered to pay child support of $30 a week until the children reached the age of 18.

Martin died in August 1974, and Ms. Adair filed suit. She alleged Martin had not complied with the support requirements and owed her $6,477.

The trial court rendered judgment for her but a court of civil appeals reversed the judgment.

"It was the rationale of the court that child support payments do not constitute a debt but only a personal obligation enforceable by contempt proceedings or rendition of a judgment against the defaulting father during his lifetime," the Supreme Court said.

The Supreme Court reversed the appeals court and upheld the trial court judgment.

Attend seminar Children want parents time, not their gifts

Many parents attempt to buy their children's love with material gifts or presents. What children really want is parent's time spent willingly and enjoyably with them.

Time spent by a father sitting on the floor building a city of blocks with his preschooler, building a birdhouse or taking a bike ride with an older child are treasured experiences for a boy or girl — ones they will now boast about to their friends and remember for a lifetime.

Mothers who bake cookies with willing little helpers, read to pre-schoolers, teach their 10- to 12-year olds how sew, or just spend time in a friendly "playing" situation, are building memories and lasting relationships that will never be forgotten.

Parents who work, attend college or evening classes, have evening meetings or need to spend many hours away from their children will do well to spend 20 to 30 minutes with them before they depart or soon after they return home. A period of undivided attention from parents will reassure the child of the parent's love and interest in them.

The seminar which is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be held Feb. 25 from 9-11 a.m. and again from 7-9 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church at 400 Scurry. Enroll for this free seminar by calling 267-8469 by Feb. 20.

All Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Home fire hazards boosted

These are the things that tragedy is made of during the winter months.

More than 6,000 persons died in fires in 1978, according to the National Safety Council. More than four out of five were killed in residential fires.

Fire prevention officials say there is a definite increase in the number of fires in the winter. People spend more time indoors and turn to makeshift sources of heat to keep warm.

According to statistics collected by the U.S. Fire Administration, more than 10 percent of all residential fires are associated with heating devices.

The National Bureau of Standards says that many people also underestimate the time it takes a fire to spread. According to the bureau, you may have only two minutes from the time a fire begins until the room is engulfed by what's known as the "flashover." If you have any doubt about your ability to put out a fire quickly and easily, leave the house immediately. Don't wait to call the fire department. Use a neighbor's telephone.

Here are some of the things you can do to avoid trouble:

PORTABLE ELECTRIC HEATERS

Look for a model with a broad, solid base and an automatic cut-off switch that will turn the heater off if it tips over accidentally. Check to see if the heater has been tested by one of the major laboratories and make sure the test applies to the entire unit — not just to the cord.

Find out if your heater needs a separate electric circuit. Don't try to take shortcuts and assume you will be safe. Have an electrician install proper wiring before you use the heater and always follow the manufacturer's instructions.

Keep heaters away from curtains, furniture and walkways and do not use them to dry clothing. As a general rule, if a wall or nearby object feels hot to the touch, it is too close to the heater. Warn children not to poke fingers or toys through protective guards and keep a close eye on toddlers whenever they are in the same room with heaters. Avoid using electric space heaters in bathrooms. Never touch one with wet hands.

KITCHEN STOVES

Never use a gas range or oven to heat your kitchen. It could produce potentially dangerous levels of carbon monoxide.

Do not leave oven doors on any kind of stove open. Children can burn themselves on heating elements.

NON-ELECTRIC SPACE HEATERS

Make sure there is proper ventilation. Many fuels, including kerosene, propane and coal, produce deadly fumes. You also need to get fresh air to prevent suffocation that can be caused by a heater consuming oxygen as fuel burns.

PLANS REVEALED — Mr. and Mrs. Larry Stockton, Gail Rt., Box 152, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Terry Lynn, to James Edward Gross, son of Mrs. Irene McCullough, 804 Willia, and Don Gross, Riverside, Calif. The wedding date has been set for April 9 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Ray, 2306 Marcy, sister and brother-in-law of the groom.

Tribute paid to faithful member

Ima (Smitty) McGowan recently died in her sleep, but not before she was recognized for 50 years of service as a member of the Chancel Choir of the First United Methodist Church.

The day-before-Valentine's-Day celebration honoring this faithful choir member was held in the home of Dr. and Mrs. James Shelton, 704 Capri Court.

The home was decorated in a Valentine setting and Mrs. McGowan was honored as the choir's sweetheart. Cake was served and a specially-made banner paying tribute to Mrs. McGowan noted the importance of the occasion.

The sweetheart was presented an engraved walnut-based pen and pencil desk set for her many years of participation in the choir. Charles Parham, minister of music, made the presentation.

THE LATE SMITTY MCGOWAN

Special guests present at this unique event, in addition to Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Chappell, were sisters of the honoree, Mrs. Bill McIlvain, Mrs. Willie McDaniel, Mrs. Grady Hodnett and Mrs. W. L. Osborne. Also present as a special guest was Mrs. McGowan's daughter, Mrs. Tom Newman of Lomax.

Mrs. McGowan grew up in the Moore Community of Howard County and left when she married. She returned in 1930 as a young widow. During that year, she began attending the First United Methodist Church and joined the choir.

Mrs. McGowan had been a faithful choir member throughout the 50 years except when she was ill.

She was the grandmother of two, Tommy, of Stanton, and Freddy of Lomax. She was the great-grandmother of five, including Kevin, Cody, Stanton; Robbie and Clint, Lomax; and Kendall, who is now deceased.

Aside from outstanding and continuing participation in the church choir, Mrs. McGowan was an active beautician. She belonged to the Philaetha Sunday School class and the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Other members of the Chancel Choir say the tribute to Mrs. McGowan was well-deserved.

Supreme Court refuses to hear DAR case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court refused to hear arguments in a case stemming from an internal squabble among Texas members of the Daughters of the American Revolution about the sale of a Jefferson plantation owned by the DAR.

The Fort Bend DAR Chapter, joined by other Texas chapters, filed suit claiming the Texas Society of the DAR improperly sold the plantation that served as state headquarters. A trial court entered a temporary injunction ordering Texas Society leaders not to use DAR funds to defend themselves in court.

The 6th Court of Civil Appeals at Texarkana said Georgia Bingle Edman of Houston, DAR state regent, and Mrs. Kenneth Wickett, another DAR official, violated the injunction.

They were ordered to pay $500 fines and $3,675 in court costs.

The Supreme Court found no reversible error and refused to hear the case.

Girl may have to play lose

By Robert Wallace, Ed D

Dr. Wallace: Behind our house, three boys play basketball every day after school and on Saturday. They are always asking me to play because they need me to balance the teams for a game — two against two. I want to play but I'm afraid it wouldn't be ladylike. My parents don't care one way or the other. Please tell me how you feel about it. — Debbie, Porterville, Calif.

Debbie: If you would enjoy playing — then join in. As for playing basketball not being ladylike. Many college and high schools have excellent girls' basketball teams. There is also a professional basketball women's league.

Your only problem is that if you are too good, the boys might not ask you to play again.

Dr. Wallace: A few days ago, the very first girl I have ever gone out with broke up with me. My problem is that now I even like her more than I did before. I cannot avoid seeing her because she is in some of my classes at school.

Do you think that I should try to get her back, or should I forget about her? — R.R. Pottstown, Pa.

R.R.: It's very natural to feel the way you do but it won't be easy forgetting this girl. Don't go chasing after her. It will only tarnish your image. She broke up with you so it's up to her to come back.

If I were in your shoes, I'd concentrate on finding another girl.

Dr. Wallace: I'd like to comment on the letter from the girl in San Antonio, Texas, who goes to parties but feels out of place because she doesn't smoke or drink. I will admit that every party I've gone to in the past two years has booze on the premises.

But so has every party my parents have attended. I, too, don't smoke or drink, but that doesn't stop me from having fun at the party. And I don't feel out of place.

I have had friends practically pour a beer down my throat at parties. According to them, one can't have a good time unless one drinks. It just so happens that I don't believe in that philosophy. When I'm at a party, I'm just myself.

Whenever someone offers you a drink, a simple "no thank you, I don't drink" is sufficient. Some will actually respect you for being honest.

To all teens in this situation, I hope you understand that drugs, tobacco and booze are body wreckers and it isn't worth it to partake just to be with the "in crowd."

Mary: Thanks for sharing. Your words reached many teens.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Whiteside, Gail Rt., Box 175, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jeanni Mae, to George W. Harwood Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Harwood, 710 Birdwell. The ceremony will take place at the Hillcrest Baptist Church. The Rev. Phillip McClendon, pastor, will officiate.

Aspirin may prevent strokes

Studies in 35 American and Canadian medical centers have provided strong evidence that aspirin prevents stroke-susceptible people from having strokes.

So says a current Family Circle feature on preventing, diagnosing and treating strokes.

In persons susceptible to stroke, platelets (substances in blood involved in clot formation) tend to adhere together in clumps and clog small blood vessels in the brain.

Aspirin appears to interfere with this process, says the magazine. The magazine warns, however, that it is unwise to start medicating yourself with aspirin. Consult your doctor.

New birth control technique to be tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Birth control equality for the sexes may result from a new contraceptive technique soon to be tested on men and women in the United States.

The National Institutes of Health announced recently that they are sponsoring the first American clinical studies of a birth control approach that may prove effective in men as well as women.

The new technique uses hormonal proteins called peptides instead of steroid hormones such as the estrogens used in female birth control pills.

Dr. Gabriel Bialy of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development told a briefing that peptides have less of an impact on the body than synthetic steroid hormones.

Steroids not only affect most of the cells in the body, but also resist rapid excretion from the body, Bialy said. Peptides, on the other hand, have more restrictive effects biologically and appear to break down and leave the body more easily, he said.

Bialy, chief of the institute's contraceptive development branch, said his agency is financing the first limited clinical studies in this country aimed at studying the contraceptive hand, have more restrictive aspects of peptides.

Be color conscious

Be color conscious when it comes to picking cosmetics.

According to a Family Circle feature on choosing the color that best suits you, you should re-create, or complement, the colors that already exist in your natural visual appearance.

The article points out: "Skin, hair, eyes, lip and teeth tones are what count most when selecting clothes and makeup."

Family Circle offers these tips on being color-coordinated: Never wear a white brighter than your teeth. Your best shade of red — and a perfect choice for a blusher — is the color you see when you pinch your fingertip.
