'Toughest decision of my life'

Ford not a candidate

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford announced Saturday he will not enter the Republican Party race for the White House, saying that to do so would only divide the party at a time when "America needs a new president."

Describing it as "the toughest decision of my life," Ford said he had reached the conclusion that "I can best help that cause by not being a candidate for president."

Wearing a gray suit and with wife Betty standing at his side outside the couple's luxurious California desert home, Ford said:

"I am not a candidate. I will not become a candidate. I will support the nominee of my party with all the energy I have."

Ford's surprise announcement came on the same day that Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, his 1976 vice presidential running mate, formally ended his quest for the presidency.

Ford, 66, said he had agonized over the question of entering the GOP sweepstakes because he feels "our country is in very deep trouble."

"America needs a new president,"

GERALD FORD

he declared. "That single fact is more important than anything else."

Ford, also accompanied by former Air Force Secretary Thomas Reed, chairman of the recently formed Draft Ford Committee, said, "I have determined that I can best help that cause by not being a candidate for president, which might further divide my party."

The former president read his brief statement and then left without accepting any questions.

When asked what Ford based his decision on, Reed replied, "It was a very personal decision and I can't answer that."

Only three days earlier Ford had delivered a blistering verbal attack on President Carter, the man who turned him out of the White House four years ago.

"Carter must go. My sole single purpose politically or otherwise is to get President Carter out of the White House and to replace him with a Republican president," the former president told a GOP fund-raising dinner in Washington.

"The nation is in peril," Ford said in the Wednesday night address. "The Carter policies are the villain. His economic program has been a disaster, his energy policies have been misguided and ineffective. His foreign policies have been contradictory, erratic and dangerous."

The Ford announcement was greeted positively by three of the men seeking to become the Republican Party standardbearer.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan told reporters in Rock Falls, Ill., that "it clears the air of a lot of uncertainty."

"Obviously, I have to be pleased," said Reagan, the GOP front-runner who Ford had criticized as being too conservative to defeat Carter in November.

Rep. John Anderson, campaigning in his home state of Illinois, said, "I am of course pleased that the president will not enter the race for the Republican nomination." Anderson said that Ford had jumped into the race, "it might have proved a complicating factor in my campaign."

Big Spring resident dies in Turkey aircraft crash

Airman 1st Class Howard K. Watkins, 18, one of 18 persons to die in the crash of a C-130 in the hill country of Southeastern Turkey at 6:15 a.m., Friday Big Spring time, was a resident of Big Spring.

All persons aboard the airplane perished. The aircraft was assigned to the 773rd Tactical Aircraft Squadron of 463rd Tactical Aircraft Wing.

Watkins was assigned to the 463rd Organization Squadron. The other victims were on duty with the 773rd Tactical Aircraft Squadron.

The ill-fated plane was returning to the strategic NATO base at Incirlik near Adana, after unloading supplies at Diyarbakir and Erzurum in Turkey. The four-engine turbo prop transport had scheduled a stop at Synop, Turkey, but overflew it because of weather conditions there.

The plane reportedly was hit by lightning before it exploded and fell in pieces.

A second Air Force transport trailing the ill-fated craft by about 40 miles pinpointed the crash and notified the Air Force of the crash.

The 463rd Wing is assigned to Dyess AFB, Abilene, Tex.

Kidnapped mom of bank exec hunted in Oklahoma, Texas

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The FBI said Saturday it is conducting a search in Oklahoma and Texas for the kidnapped 88-year-old mother of a bank executive.

Ed Pistey, agent in charge of the FBI in Oklahoma, said Ella Shelton, 88, who was abducted from her suburban home in The Village sometime Thursday morning, was still missing although a ransom was paid Thursday in Denton, Texas.

Mrs. Shelton was abducted sometime between 7:15 a.m. and 9 a.m. Thursday, said Pistey. The woman's daughter, whose name was not released, is an executive at an Oklahoma City bank, he said.

The FBI said the daughter received a telephone call about 10 a.m. Thursday from an individual indicating her mother had been abducted and demanding $25,000.

Several additional telephone calls were received providing instructions at intermediate locations, and the money was ultimately dropped and picked up in Denton about 6:30 p.m., Pistey said.

Since then, no one has been in contact with the daughter, who lived with her mother, and Mrs. Shelton has not been located, Pistey said.

The FBI developed a composite drawing of a man who may have picked up the ransom and released it Saturday afternoon.

The man is described as being white, 20 to 30 years old, with a dark complexion and dark full-length straight hair to the middle of his neck. He had full bushy sideburns and was driving a late-model Chevrolet sport pickup, Pistey said.

The shortbed pickup was described as being silver or gray in color with an orange and blue stripe running down the side. It has oversized tires, tinted windshield and a white roll bar mounted with Baja lights. Pistey said the pickup had Oklahoma license plates.

The FBI asked for assistance from anyone who may have seen Mrs. Shelton or the man or the pickup they are seeking.

Mrs. Shelton is described as white, about 5-feet-5, with a slight build and weighing about 100 pounds. She has a dark complexion and white hair.

At the time of her abduction, she was believed to have been wearing a royal blue full-length robe with red-and-white stripes and a green nightgown.

Pistey said agents in both Oklahoma and Texas are working on the case.

LATE ARRIVALS ON MOVIE SET — Robert Vaughn (right), one of the stars in the Sunn Classics movie, "Hangar 18," being filmed in Big Spring, is shown conferring with Joseph Campanella, one of Hollywood's best known character actors. The footage shot on the movie up until the past week did not require the presence of either man on the set. The two went to Midland Saturday with the filming crew to shoot a restaurant scene in the First National Bank building. The setting was an exclusive club in Washington, D.C., and several local men took the role of extras in the movie. Hal Boyd, who assumed the role of a maitre'd in the club, was the only local man with a speaking part in the sequence.

Option agreement approved

Tenant for big hangar likely

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
With a bare quorum, the Big Spring City Council approved an option agreement Friday afternoon with the Western Container Corporation.

The option agreement obligates the city to leases of three sites at the industrial park. Western Container has the choice to exercise the leases.

Western Container is a company that produces two litre plastic bottles that hold soft drinks.

John Dunagan, President of Western Container, said his company's decision to expand here is dependent on several factors.

"We are waiting on our financing," Dunagan said primarily. The Herald reported Friday that a portion of this funding will come from $10 million in revenue bonds.

Dunagan said his company, which was started in October 1979, has been attracted to the Big Spring Industrial Park.

He told the council, "The existence of that building (big hangar) was the only reason we decided to move here."

Dunagan added after the meeting, "The building was the first thing. It was the right size in the right place."

Dunagan added that he has been impressed with the attitude of the Big Spring City people.

"I've been amazed and extremely pleased with the way the people of Big Spring have responded," Dunagan said. "It has had an impact on our decision to relocate in Big Spring."

The three sites covered in the lease arrangements are the big hangar which consists of 5.5 acres; the refueling facility of 50 acres; and a two-acre parking lot. The lease has a primary term of five years, with an additional five-year leasing period followed by nine successive 10-year terms.

The rent for the three sites is $88,800 annually. This rent will escalate 10 percent at every level.

Western Container has the option to lease two other sites. The first site is an area north of the big hangar and hangar nine. The agreed to rent is $25,680. The other space is an area 150 ft. by 600 ft. between the terminal and big hangar. The proposed rent for this second area is $1,620 annually.

Industrial Team Chairman Granville Hahn told the council, which consisted of Larry Miller, Bill Henkel and Mayor Wade Choate, he was pleased with the lease features.

"I think it is consistent with what we have been negotiating the last four months," Hahn said.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: How many beers?

Q. In some states, it is against the law to drive with a blood alcohol level of 10 percent or above. How many beers would a 150-pound man have to drink to reach this level of legal intoxication?

A. If such a man consumed four or five beers within an hour, he would have a blood alcohol level of above 10 percent. However, studies prove that driving skills begin to suffer with the first drink, and two beers result in a 30 percent decrease in ability to drive safely.

Terrorists raid headquarters of two presidential hopefuls

By The Associated Press

Masked terrorists toting guns raided the headquarters of two presidential candidates in New York and Chicago on Saturday, subduing campaign workers, ransacking the offices and painting the walls with Puerto Rican nationalist slogans and the name of the terrorist group "FALN."

The raiders struck simultaneously at the Chicago headquarters of President Carter and the Manhattan offices of Republican George Bush. They tied up the campaign workers, searched the offices, scrawled such slogans as "Free Puerto Rico," and left.

None of the temporary workers — seven in Chicago and 10 in New York — was hurt, and all were free in about an hour.

The New York raiders claimed to be FALN members. An FBI spokesman in Chicago, George Mandich, said the bureau was "certain" the raid there was the work of the same group and had been coordinated with the New York raid.

The takeovers came on the eve of Puerto Rico's Democratic presidential primary, where the choice of a candidate is tangled with the question of statehood for the island.

Bush, who favors statehood, won the island's Republican presidential primary on Feb. 17.

Bush, in Chicago to campaign for Tuesday's Illinois primary, condemned the attack and told reporters he would not "be intimidated by outrageous extremist groups in this country or anyplace else."

"This society cannot condone this type of international terrorism, and I hope that they are promptly caught and promptly convicted," the candidate said.

There was no immediate comment from the White House.

At about the same time as the Chicago raid, three men and a woman got into the Bush headquarters on Manhattan's East Side by telling the doorman of the building they were campaign volunteers.

During the elevator ride to the ninth-floor offices, the four intruders apparently donned masks and pulled handguns from hiding places.

Porno raids staged in LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Posing as distributors of obscene materials, undercover police raided nine pornography distributors they said were responsible for selling $12 million worth of videotapes monthly.

Investigators said Friday they requested warrants of arrest for 20 persons connected with the businesses, although they made no arrests immediately following Thursday's raid.

The two-month probe revealed that about 80 percent of all adult video tapes sold in the United States last year were made in Los Angeles, investigators said.

Iranian ballots cast

Conservative Moslem clergyman on Saturday appeared headed for control of Iran's parliament, which Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has said will decide if and when to free the 50 Americans hostages in Tehran.

Early returns in the first round of balloting for the 270-member parliament, or Majlis, indicated a strong showing by the Islamic Republican Party, dominated by Moslem clerics who are expected to challenge the authority of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

Castro offers asylum

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro has offered asylum to guerrillas holding an estimated two dozen hostages including the U.S. ambassador and 18 other foreign diplomats in the Dominican Republic Embassy, a Colombian newspaper reported Saturday.

The newspaper, El Tiempo, said the offer was relayed to Colombian President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala in a message sent Friday by Castro.

The newspaper did not cite sources for its report, but the newspaper is regarded as reliable and as politically aligned with the government.

Polish plane crash eyed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A U.S. diplomat Saturday inspected the site of a Polish airline crash that claimed the lives of all 87 persons aboard, including a number of Americans, and said many of the bodies so far reclaimed from the partly-submerged wreckage were dismembered beyond recognition.

U.S. officials said 28 Americans were killed in the crash, but airline officials in Warsaw and New York said the number was 29. The discrepancy appeared to arise from the nationality of one of the passengers, Max Kurtz. Airline officials said he was a resident of New York City, but his ticket had earlier led them to believe he was an East German.

Lowenstein eulogized

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter and other top political figures on Saturday eulogized former Congressman Allard Lowenstein, who police say was slain by his former protegee from the early civil rights struggles of the 1960s.

Dennis Sweeney, 37, was arraigned Saturday in Manhattan Criminal Court before Judge Alain Bourgeois, who ordered him held without bail. Sweeney was taken to Rikers Island prison until a hearing scheduled for Monday.

He was charged with second degree murder and possession of a deadly weapon — a 9mm pistol he bought for $120 Tuesday at a sporting goods store near his home in New London, Conn., court officials said.

Dole cites five M's

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Confessing he had failed to achieve the "five M's of politics," Sen. Bob Dole withdrew from the Republican presidential sweepstakes Saturday.

"It has been clear for quite some time that I did not have the five M's necessary to win a presidential campaign: money, management, manpower, momentum and media attention," Dole told some 300 persons attending a Chamber of Commerce breakfast in Lawrence, Kan.

"In any event, I'm glad I said 'yes' 10 months ago," he said, referring to his declaration to seek the GOP nomination on May 14 in his hometown of Russell, Kan.

"At the time, I felt like Chrysler," Dole said, referring to the financially troubled automaker. "I had a good product, but a cash-flow problem."

The 19-year member of Congress declined to announce formally whether he will seek another term in the Senate.

Hard hats to get review

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fifteen electrical workers fired from their construction jobs for wearing American flag decals on their hard hats will get reviews of their dismissals at a grievance hearing, a company spokesman said Saturday.

Clayton Musgrove, Cleveland manager of the National Electrical Contractors Association and a spokesman for L.K. Comstock & Co., said the dismissals would be reviewed on Tuesday by a panel made up of three representatives from Local 673 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and three from management.

Comstock, of Danbury, Conn., fired 10 electricians last week from its 350-person work force at the construction site of the Perry Nuclear Plant at North Perry for wearing decals of the American flag and the slogan "Free the Hostages" on their safety helmets.

Through the week, the total rose to 15 and, on Friday, Lake County commissioners passed a resolution supporting the fired workers for their "unswerving dedication and loyalty to this country and the American flag."

Advisory board will not meet

The Herald Editorial Advisory Board will not meet Tuesday as scheduled.

Opportunities will be given the reading public to become members of the board. Its ranks have become depleted by transfers, resignations and illness, with the result that attendance has suffered in recent months.

The ideal board consists of about 15 persons.

Publisher Tom Watson said that the Herald staff is grateful for those who agreed to serve as members of the panel, adding they all pursued their duties faithfully and objectively. He added a new panel may be formed around those who have agreed to continue to serve.

Feels his honor at stake

Clayton to answer Brilab questions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House Speaker Bill Clayton will answer a Houston federal grand jury's Brilab questions instead of exercising his right to silence because he feels his honor is at stake, friends say.

The speaker, regarded as one of the three most powerful state government officials, goes before the grand jury Monday.

An associate said Clayton recognized that invoking his Fifth Amendment right to remain silent would hurt him politically because many Texans equate "taking the Fifth" with guilt.

"But it's more than that. He feels his honor is at stake," the associate said.

Charles Burton, Clayton's lawyer, said he and other attorneys in the case acceded to Clayton's wish to testify.

"He is going to testify. That has been our plan for the past couple of weeks. There is no question about that. He has always insisted on testifying. His concern about this, his interest in this, is influencing our decision," Burton said.

Clayton was a target of the FBI's Briab — bribery and labor — sting operation. After news of the operation leaked, he told reporters he received $5,000 in cash from Houston labor leader L.G. Moore after a discussion of state group insurance contracts with Moore and a man purportedly representing Prudential Insurance Co.

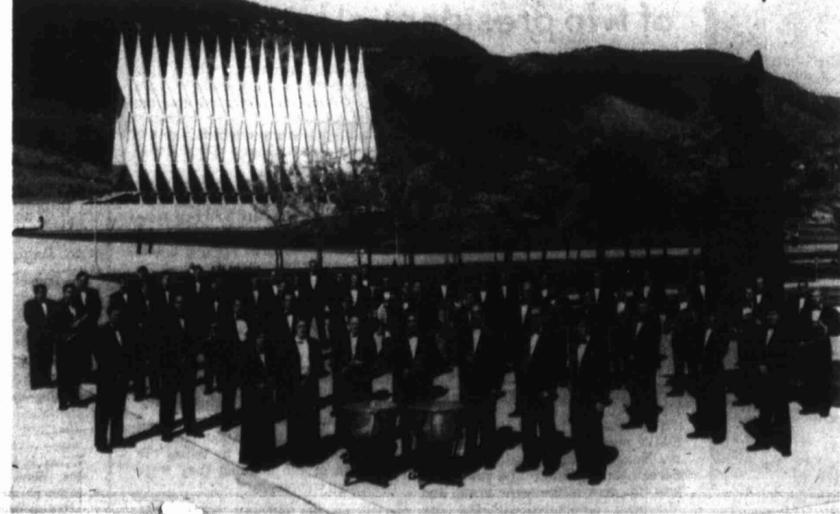

The Prudential "representative" turned out to be Joseph Hauser, who turned FBI informant after receiving a federal prison sentence in an insurance case.

Clayton said he intended to return the money to Moore, but it was still in an aide's cabinet three months later.

Clayton repeated his claim of innocence in letters received by all House members this week.

"I have done nothing illegal and therefore I am confident the system works and I will be vindicated," he said in a mailing from his reelection campaign headquarters here.

"I continue to solicit your prayers and friendship. With them, I have no doubt that the outcome will be good," Clayton's letter said.

Police beat Whole lot of fighting going on

It was right out of a movie, Officer Carl Thurman said of Saturday morning's uproar at a popular drinking establishment here.

"It was the thing everybody likes to see," Thurman said. "It was a free-for-all."

Around 1 a.m. Saturday, Big Spring Police were called to Bogart's, which is located at the Industrial Park, to quell a ruckus involving about 50 persons.

"It started out with a fight between two groups outside," Thurman said. "We (he and Dean Boyd) tried to break it up."

What ensued was most people at the bar getting involved in fighting. Thurman and Boyd were struggling with a number of persons.

"It was 10 minutes before anyone else came out," Thurman said. A total of six Big Spring policemen were on the scene.

Eventually the policemen were able to round five of the instigators and locked them up in the office of Bogart's.

Seven persons were charged with something involved in the melee.

Rocky Torres, 18, 3807 Connally, was arrested for assault on a police officer.

No injuries were reported, except some bruises and abrasions, Thurman said.

"It was an extremely bad deal," Thurman said. "It was fortunate no one got hurt."

Of the seven arrested, Thurman discounted the seriousness.

"They are all basically good kids," he said. "They just had too much to drink."

There was one other local man charged with resisting arrest. Rickie Lee Blackmon, 27, 406 Douglas, was arrested for public intoxication around 11:30 p.m. Friday. When officers attempted to arrest Blackmon, a struggle resulted.

Two instances of burglary were reported. Michael Pohl, 110 B Goliad, reported someone had entered his residence early Friday. Pohl listed as missing two tapes and his checkbook.

Police officers arrested a man at Fina's Cafe at 200 N. Gregg around 4 a.m. Saturday. Officers were cruising the area when they discovered an open door to the establishment. The policeman found one person inside. Nothing was taken.

Leslie Coffman, 1517 Kentucky Way, reported someone had stolen her dog between 4:30 and 7 p.m. Friday. The dog is a cross of a pit bulldog and a sheepdog.

A black male walked off Saturday morning from the Country Fare Restaurant at Highway 87 S and Interstate 20 without paying for his meal.

Six accidents were reported between Friday night and late Saturday afternoon.

A vehicle driven by Eugene Deleon, 19, of 1504 Mesa, struck a highway marker on Highway 87 North about 5 a.m. Saturday.

Billy Jack Kuykendall, 52, 702 Tulane, lost control of his 1979 Ford Explorer around 8:30 p.m. Friday on Highway 87 South and Hearn St. The vehicle struck a guard rail on the west side of the road and then veered and struck a guard rail on the east.

A vehicle driven by Bonnie Bennett, 60, of 504 Douglas veered around 8:25 p.m. Friday and collided with a car driven by Henry Martinez Trevino, 21, of O'Donnell.

118th District Court cases decline by seven

Cases pending in 118th District Court at the end of February decreased by seven. During the month two cases were added and nine were disposed.

A total of 265 cases pending at the first of February were increased to 267 during the month. One of the cases was a theft and the other was a forgery.

Cases pending at the end of February included 28 in burglary, 25 in assault and 47 in theft.

Of the cases disposed of in February, five were dismissals due to convictions in other cases. One was acquitted on an assault charge. One conviction for theft was a jury verdict on a not guilty plea. One conviction came on a plea of guilt to a robbery charge.

One case under the "other felony" column was dismissed.

One defendant was sent to prison on a robbery charge. Probations granted totaled one. Total years in prison assessed totaled 45. Total amount of fines assessed totaled $2,000. Two juries were sworn in; one in an assault case and another in a robbery case.

Jurors need not show up

Jurors scheduled to appear for a civil trial in 118th District Courtroom Monday do not need to appear, said District Clerk Peggy Crittenden. Attorneys settled the matter out of court, she said.

Texas delegation lines up against tax on oil

States News Service

WASHINGTON — The votes of the Texas delegation in Congress this week:

The House Thursday passed the House-Senate conference agreement on the long-debated federal tax on domestic crude oil. The vote was 302 to 107 with four members voting present.

The final version of the agreement is expected to bring the U.S. treasury $227 billion during the next decade. Considered a major victory for President Carter's energy program, the so-called "windfall profits" levy would tax oil companies on the increased profits realized as a result of deregulated crude oil prices. The Senate must adopt the compromise agreement before the President can sign it into law. It is expected to reach the Senate floor sometime within the next couple of weeks.

FOR: Leland, Wright

AGAINST: De la Garza, Gramm, Hall, Hance, Hightower, Kazen, Leath, Pickle, Stenholm, White, Wilson, Wyatt, Loeffler

By a vote of 185 to 227, the House defeated the independent oil producers in their final attempt to win an exemption from the excise tax for some of their oil.

Rep. William Archer, R-Texas, proposed that the first 1,000 barrels of oil an independent oil producer sold each day be exempted from the windfall tax.

Independents argued that they could put the money in question — an estimated $20 billion this decade — to better use in oil exploration than the federal government.

FOR: De la Garza, Gramm, Hall, Hance, Hightower, Kazen, Leath, Pickle, Stenholm, White, Wilson, Wright, Wyatt, Loeffler

AGAINST: Leland
The House narrowly defeated a resolution Thursday that would have recommended that revenues generated from the windfall profits tax be directed primarily towards solving the nation's energy problems. The vote was 201 to 215.

The non-binding resolution would have replaced the conference committee's recommendation to target the revenues towards income tax cuts.

FOR: Hall, White, Wilson, Wright

AGAINST: De la Garza, Gramm, White, Wilson, Wyatt, Loeffler

There were no major votes in the Senate this week.

Take precautions when you leave house

It's disturbing to note that the local crime rate rose 11 percent during February. The people who resort to physical violence to achieve an end or to intimidate were especially busy.

Automobile thefts were down but thefts of other kind were up. There is still an abundance of burglaries being committed.

In many instances, the intended victims make it easy for the people who have chosen crime as a first or second occupation.

HOW LONG WOULD it take you to lock your doors and windows when you leave your premises? Sixty seconds, maybe. Certainly not much more time than that is needed to tighten security around your house.

It might surprise you, though, to know how many people don't go to the trouble to check all possible places a thief can enter a home. According to figures released by the Census Bureau for the Justice Department's statistical division, close to half the home burglaries in America are committed without force having been used. Most might have been prevented simply by locking doors and windows.

The report estimated the annual loss from such burglaries to approximate $400 million.

The criminal doesn't need much encouragement. He certainly must feel elated when the property owners reduce his challenges to almost nothing.

IT'S UNTHINKABLE to leave keys in an automobile when a person departs it for any length of time, yet a lot of motorists are guilty of not thinking. The same conditions apply to a house, where the rewards of the burglary are often much greater.

Homer F. Broome Jr., acting director of the Bureau of Justice

Statistics, aid the preventable burglaries amount to a serious national problem, adding "these crimes could be prevented with just a little care."

To make matters even worse, in 82 percent of the cases studied by the Justice Department, no recovery of stolen goods was made through insurance.

If it's inconvenient to check and lock all doors and windows when you leave your house, learn to live with it. It's far better than coming back and being horrified that burglars have invested your time and their's wisely.

Virtuous falsehood

Around the rim

Walt Finley

I think it was Deloris Albert, secretary to the Herald Publisher Tom Watson and who observes her birthday Wednesday, who said unlike Texans, residents of California don't have to worry about frying in summer heat.

They just shake and break!

Herald Pressman Glen Scott, who celebrates his birthday Monday, March 24, said Washington is flying a new patriotic symbol — a flag waving from a staff that looks very much like a hockey stick.

WE HAVE DEVELOPED a new standard of criminal justice. A person with five charges against him can plead guilty to one of them, get the other four dismissed and thereby prove he's innocent.

Former Herald Family Editor MERRY Jo Bright, who underwent major surgery Wednesday in Austin, says: Surely no one would object to a virtuous falsehood. "That's the kind that music teachers often tell parents who ask about their children's talent."

Jo's address is Seaton Hospital, room 244, Austin, Texas, 78705. Her phone number is 512-459-2121.

FAST FINGERS SANDRA GREEN, Herald word maker, says: There are facial exercises that make almost anyone look better. One of them is called a SMILE.

Herald word chaser, Saletta Crow, says:

A report on families in the 1970s showed there was a decline in the number of babies in the U.S. . . . but they required a lot more baby-sitters.

That intrepid reporter, John Edwards, former Herald crusader presently employed as city-hall reporter for the El Paso Herald-Post, credits "Pepper" Pott for the idea of establishing an Alco-Hall of Fame.

After turning down sites at Champaign, Ill., and Rye, N.Y., Pott settled for Bourbon, Ind. He envisioned his Alco-Hall of Fame as a structure built "fifth sized" and leaning slightly. "It will be erected on a foundation of stone," he said. Why stone?

"Because the Alco-Hall of Fame would have to be on the rocks," Pott explained.

John, who celebrates his birthday Thursday, said:

"It's time drinkers stand up, if they can, and honor themselves."

RONALD REAGAN demonstrated in New Hampshire what is meant by Bush coming to shove.

President Carter said his economic politics suit him just fine but they need to be tuned.

I'd say so. They seem pretty flat to most of us.

Case against Bush

William F. Buckley, Jr.

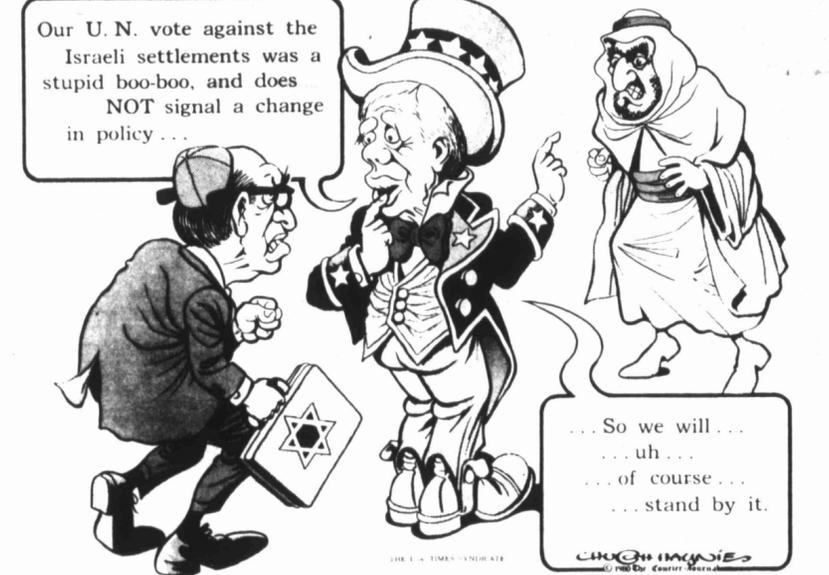

The reasons for the setback of George Bush in New Hampshire are being vigorously explored by his supporters. Meanwhile, one comes upon two analyses, both of them written before the voters acted, which, were it all a laughing matter, would make sublimely comical reading. The first thesis is that George Bush is an instrument of the Trilateral Commission and as such devoted to selling out U.S. sovereignty for the benefit of the Chase Manhattan Bank. The second concludes that George Bush is a warmongering anti-Communist, the instrument of Richard Nixon and the C.I.A. The former thesis is beloved of right-wing kookery, the second of left-wing kookery. One is reluctant to believe that in New Hampshire there was enough zaimness to translate either thesis into a significant anti-Bush vote. It is true that the state has lacked for snow this year. But it hasn't been transformed into a fever swamp.

IT IS THE WALL Street Journal that prominently reported on the damage being done to George Bush in virtue of his sometime membership in the Trilateral Commission. The same article documents wide interest in George Bush's undergraduate membership in a secret society in Yale University, with what end in mind one isn't absolutely sure. If the New Hampshireites suspicious of George Bush's membership in the society believe it to be a part of the left conspiracy, they would be obliged to account for the membership in that same society of Senator Robert A. Taft, the last major historical statesman of conservatism; and of his father, former President William Howard Taft, also a member of the society.

AS FOR THE Trilateral Commission, the only truly interesting thing about it is that it does meet secretly. The notion that those who meet secretly do so in order to subvert the republic no doubt gained currency when it set out to subvert the republic.

But what's wrong with meeting secretly? The Trilateral Commission includes men who are supposed to have in common an interest in stimulating a successful and mutually advantageous relationship among the three major economic units in the free world, namely West Europe, Japan and the United States. It is true that half the cabinet of President Carter were members of the Trilateral Commission. But so was Jimmy Carter, and the Trilateral Commission was the only place he ever met any important people. So that it is hardly a surprise that, on becoming president, he staffed the executive office with members. Add to this that the Trilateral Commission for obvious reasons seeks to make members men already accomplished in their own worlds (e.g. I.W. Abel of the Steelworkers' Union), and you have the nexus. The Trilateral Commission isn't composed of average people. Neither is Congress. Neither is the Manchester Union Leader.

Meanwhile, on the left, two of the most reliable America Lasters, Alexander Cockburn and James Ridgeway, figured out George Bush in such a way as to save their constituency in America, which is about the size of Moscow's, any necessity to think about George Bush. They have it all figured out, and, appropriately, they divulged their secrets in "Rolling Stone." He Ran The GOP For Nixon. He Ran The CIA For Ford. Who Would He Run The Country For? The answer is: Not For "Rolling Stone," or "The Village Voice," or The Brezhnev Doctrine. Accordingly, George Bush is anathematized. An interesting conjunction, but then right-kooks are more like left-kooks, and vice-versa, than they are like non-kooks, left or right.

Digestion problems and weight loss

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please comment on improper food assimilation. Does it affect weight loss? During the past five years I have had what has been called "subtle weight loss." I went from 120 to 90. I am 63, and 5 feet, 8 inches tall. I am concerned about this inability to gain weight. I take vitamins regularly. Please advise. — Mrs. E.E.E.

I wouldn't use the word "subtle" to describe a 30-pound weight loss. "Obvious" is the word. Improper food assimilation is called "malabsorption." Absorption of food requires chemical and biological changes in the food so that it can be used by the body for energy and for building tissue.

In the stomach and upper intestines, digestive juices break food down into small particles that can then be absorbed into the bloodstream. The juices come from the stomach, the pancreas and liver. If any of those organs are not working properly food is not broken down properly. This causes severe weight loss, often diarrhea, anemia, weakness and even bone pain.

A critical point in absorption is getting the nutrients across the lining of the intestinal tract and into the blood. Some illness (Whipple's disease is one) alter the intestinal lining, thus preventing this transfer. Readers may recall, too, my recent discussion of Crohn's disease in children.

You need lab tests to identify where your problem lies, whether in the stomach, the liver, the pancreas or the intestines. Most malabsorption problems are treated effectively when the source is found.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is diverticulosis inherited? I'd like your booklet on this. — Mrs. H.H.

No. Forgive me for not going into the other questions you have about your problem. The subject was covered here quite recently. You will find your concerns discussed at length in the booklet you asked for. Other readers who may have missed previous discussions can order the booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," by mailing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 16-year-old girl who will be 17 soon. Please, briefly explain menstruation. — C.C.

Menstruation involves several body organs. They are the hypothalamus and the pituitary glands (both located in the brain), the ovaries (the chief source of female hormones) and the uterus, whose lining is shed during menstruation.

The glands in the brain mentioned above produce special hormones that stimulate the female hormone production from the ovary. That helps the uterus lining prepare itself for the anticipated implantation of a fertilized egg. One egg is produced each month after a girl reaches puberty. If no egg is fertilized by a male sperm, the uterus, realizing it has been "fooled again" by those hormones, sheds its lining. That is what the slight bleeding (menstruation) is all about.

The average age for beginning periods is 12, but they can begin between nine and 16. Some girls may not begin until a year or two later. Probably the biggest factor in this is heredity. Girls whose mothers did not begin until later in adolescence often have delayed onset themselves.

Other delay factors to consider are nutrition (severe dieting, for example) or a severe illness in adolescence. A girl who has not had periods by age 16 should probably be examined for possible medical causes and to ease any anxieties. This should answer the many young girls who ask the same question you do.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A while back you told a reader who wanted to know how she could further the cause of diabetes research to contact the American Diabetes Association. The ADA is certainly a fine group, but why didn't you also refer her to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation? I hope you will correct this oversight in the future. — B.A.

The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is a fine organization. It supplies worthwhile information and fosters important research. The address is Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, 22 East 26th St., New York, N.Y. 10010. Thanks for the material you sent me, B.A. I intended no slight.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a woman of 49. I will soon be having a hysterectomy. I understand all about the surgery. My question is about another problem. I have a duodenal ulcer. I take medicine for it. Is it possible for the doctor to take a look at the ulcer when he's doing the surgery for the hysterectomy? Would this require another incision than for the uterus surgery? I am afraid to ask my doctor since I hope I only need the one incision. I wouldn't want him to get carried away. — Mrs. G.M.L.

No, it's not possible to view the ulcer from the incision made for the hysterectomy. Anyway, the ulcer can be looked at without an incision. Doctors use a gastroscope, which is passed through the mouth. Instead you can ask him to take a look at your bladder while he's in there. I'm sure he won't get "carried away," as you say. Anyway, it was a reasonable question.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I read recently that they have discovered the cloth which was wrapped around Jesus' body when He was buried. Do you know anything about this? — S.G.C.

DEAR S. G. C.: You are probably referring to what is known as the "Shroud of Turin" (because of its present location in Turin, Italy). This long piece of cloth is clearly very ancient, and has imprinted on it an image which seems to be that of a crucified man. The image has baffled scientists who have studied it; it appears to have been made by a burst of energy — such as might have taken place when the body of Jesus Christ came back to life and went through the grave clothes which bound His body.

A team of scientists not long ago applied virtually every known present scientific test to the Shroud of Turin. The results of their studies have not been released as yet, although it is clear some of them at least are convinced it is probably the cloth in which Jesus' body was wrapped, and that it gives convincing proof of the resurrection of Jesus. I am sure, however, that when the final results of these tests are made public there will still be many who will not accept their conclusions, whatever they may be.

While this is an interesting subject, I want to remind you that we already have more than sufficient evidence of Christ's resurrection. The Bible's witness is clear, for it recounts in a number of places that Jesus' resurrection was witnessed by a large number of people. The testimony of countless Christians throughout the ages who have experienced the power and presence of the living Christ in their hearts by faith should not be neglected either.

While we may never know conclusively if this is the burial cloth of Jesus, we can know Christ right now by faith. We can invite Him into our hearts, and know He is alive and willing to forgive our sins.

Watered down

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The munitions lobby — including the powerful National Rifle Association — has teamed up with some friends on Capitol Hill to water down a congressional report on terrorist bombings.

The still-secret study claims that many experts on terrorism "believe that the United States may experience an increase in ... catastrophic bombings in the years ahead."

Prepared by Congress's Office of Technology Assessment (OTA), the 500-page report explains this alarming consensus as "based upon an assessment of United States vulnerability to bombings and the observation that the United States has recently had less of a terrorist problem than other developed countries."

Aircraft exploding in flight as a result of bombs planted by terrorists, criminals, lunatics, vandals or "experimenters" is the greatest danger, the report states.

THE ANALYSIS GIVES this breakdown on perpetrators of bombings, from a study of traceable incidents: The mentally disturbed, 44 percent; vandals and experimenters (whose blasts are usually the least damaging), 40 percent; terrorists, 10 percent; and professional criminals, six percent.

The exhaustive OTA report was ordered by Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and others who wanted to assess the possibility of tracing — or better yet, preventing — bombings by putting tiny identification particles, or "taggants," in commercially manufactured explosives.

These little i.d. particles, which are detectable by black-light scanners at the scene of an explosion, enable investigators to trace the explosive back to the manufacturer and possibly the retailer, thus narrowing the field of inquiry aimed at the actual bomber. A different kind of taggant consists of vapor molecules that permit hidden explosives to be spotted, in much the way airport metal detectors expose guns or "pot dogs" sniff out marijuana.

Although the benefits of a successful explosive-tagging program are self-evident, the bill being considered by the Senate Government Affairs Committee is opposed by Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska. Stevens is a dedicated handmaiden of the munitions industry, which opposes taggant legislation. He is also a vice-chairman of the board that oversees the Office of Technology Assessment. Under pressure from Stevens' office, the original draft of the OTA report was significantly watered down in its appraisal of the bombing danger.

Another opponent with ties to critics of taggant legislation is Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who like Stevens is a member of the board that has life-and-death power over the OTA. Dingell also is a board member of the National Rifle Association. The NRA opposes tagging, and so does Dingell.

TORN BETWEEN THE facts and pressure from powerful critics, the OTA staff bowed at least partially to the pressure. For example, the original draft's warning that the United States "can be expected to experience" an increase in bombings was reworded to "may experience." And the original reference to taggants as an "extremely useful" tool against terrorist bombings was rewritten, dropping the "extremely" and modifying its usefulness to "most terrorist" bombings.

That last change, sources told my associate Les Whitten, was the direct result of a vehement protest from the NRA's executive director, Neal Knox. At a meeting behind closed doors last Dec. 14, Knox bulldozed the OTA staff into other changes that further diluted the impact of the report.

Even after the barrage by its critics who complained of the cost and questioned the safety and effectiveness of tagging, the OTA report still contains some compelling arguments for the program.

Identification taggants would facilitate the investigation of almost all significant criminal bombings in which commercial explosives were used," the report says.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my appreciation publicly to Clyde Angel for offering his services to the people of Big Spring as a candidate for Mayor. There is no one on the ballot comparable to Clyde Angel. He has been a resident of Big Spring for 40 years or more and during my 30 years of residency here I have never heard anything but good about Clyde Angel. He has served with honor on the school board and as trustee of Howard College. Through his official position with the First National Bank, from which he retired as a vice-president, he is responsible for the success of many businessmen in our city by authorizing loans to assist them in operating and continuing in business.

In Clyde Angel we have a man who understands finances probably better than any one person ever offering themselves as a public servant in Big Spring. His integrity and honor are impeccable. He is an active member and deacon in the First Baptist Church and constantly lives the life of a Christian gentleman in our community. In addition, he is a member of the Masonic bodies and Big Spring Shrine Club where he is held in high esteem and respect by all who know him.

We have had a small handful of people in recent months who have worked real hard to discredit our public servants and destroy our confidence in them, including attacks on the president of Howard College. What they cannot dominate they seek to destroy.

Clyde Angel will be a Mayor beyond they reach of these poison-pen scandal mongers. His life is surrounded by goodness and unselfish contributions to Big Spring. He is fully retired from his former employer and seeks only to return more of his services to the people of Big Spring by serving as their Mayor. Clyde will provide conservative, honest and enlightened leadership to the City Council. In spite of the continued attacks by a small group of negative thinkers, Clyde is willing to give of his time in a well-earned retirement to serve the City of Big Spring as its Mayor. I hope the voters will see fit to select him as our Mayor to provide enlightened leadership of our city.

Hey kids, it's now reading, writing, using computers

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — By the end of the decade, there will be a new definition of literacy in the United States that will include reading, writing and familiarity with computers — or so say the men who sell them.

"A child today who grows up without some knowledge of computers will be considered partially illiterate when he's an adult," said Ed Juge, merchandising director for Fort Worth-based Radio Shack, the world's biggest marketer of personal computers.

"Having kids educated to deal with microprocessors (small computers) is going to be important to getting a job," said Arlington computer programmer and salesman Phil Dorcas. "My 9-year-old son gets up in the morning and while he's waiting to go to school, he doesn't turn on the TV and watch cartoons, he goes in and plays with our computer," said Dorcas' partner Ed Hammonree.

"In older people there's still a fear of the computer, somebody whose bill got fouled up and he owed some company $1 million," said Byron Kirkwood, a Dallas microcomputer retailer.

"The computer video games let young people put their hands on a computer and get past the fear of touching the keyboard," he continued. "They forget it's a computer, get comfortable with it and start programming and doing math."

"We had a 3-year-old kid in here the other day, with his daddy," Hammonree said excitedly, "and he was running the computer, going through the learning program. Three years old!"

"I went to some schools a couple of weeks ago to demonstrate the (computer) system, and spent the entire day there," he added. "I loved it and the kids loved it. I could still be there."

Two years ago, Kirkwood told a reporter for a national magazine that by the early 1980s, "every home will have a computer. It will be as common as a toilet." Computer salesmen enthusiastically predicted most U.S. homes would have a central computer to run everything from the household budget to climate control.

Today the enthusiasm remains, but is slightly modified.

"I think home computers eventually will be as popular as microwave ovens," said Juge, "but we have to show them something neat enough to justify the expenditure."

"It won't be to control home heating and air conditioning," he said. "Or balancing your checkbook. That's ridiculous. You can do that faster and easier with a $9 calculator."

"Lots of people over-emphasized the growth of the home computer industry," Dorcas concurs. "People aren't gonna buy a home computer to run their budgets or figure out their diets — there's got to be a bigger need."

That need, said Dorcas, Hammonree, Juge and Kirkwood, will be to deal with information and, they repeat, will start with educating children.

"That's what I perceive as a big field," said Juge. "They (children working with computer) are learning a logical approach to problem-solving."

"Kids are learning how to use computers in school," said Dorcas, "and some of them even are getting classes in how to write programs."

"After a kid has been working with computers for five or six years in school, he's going to start bugging his mom and dad to get one at home."

"The future is not going to be based on industrial or manufacturing breakthroughs, like in the past," he continued. "It's going to be based on information, and the computer is the newest, most efficient means of sharing and keeping information."

"I don't have a clear vision of the computer's future in the home," said Kirkwood, "but it's going to be a lot like what the newspaper did when it first started, make a mass of information available we've never had before."

"You can plug your telephone into your terminal and get all kinds of information on display, like the latest news, stock market reports, and that stuff."

"Or consumer shopping," adds Juge. "Like if a housewife can sit down at a terminal and find out who has boy's jeans, size 12, on sale this week and how much."

But after their near-boundless optimism of a few years ago, most computer retailers now edge their predictions with caution.

"The software (computer programs) will be the big stumbling block for everybody, including us," said Juge. "Maybe by the mid- to late 1980s..."

"It has to evolve," said

Kirkwood, "and there are still a few major things have to be done with programming."

"Nine out of 10 people who walk in this door are here because they're curious, not because they want to buy a computer," said Dorcas.

"They want information. And 90 percent of the people who buy a home computer use them for entertainment — video games and like that."

"But the big thing that'll make them start selling is education."

'Closed captioning' to aid deaf will be launched by networks

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of preparation, the NBC, ABC and public television networks Sunday night will inaugurate a new service designed to open prime-time TV to Americans with impaired hearing.

The new "closed captioning" service is being launched before the first batch of special TV set decoders have even been delivered to the public. But enthusiasm for the project's start-up has built to the point that first lady Rosalynn Carter has scheduled a reception Wednesday for the officials most involved in making it happen.

"We're all very excited because we're on schedule and we know there is a substantial segment of the American public that's going to benefit," said Jane Miller, spokeswoman for the National Captioning Institute.

The new service involves the transmission of regular prime-time programs with written captions, similar to, but more complete than subtitles in foreign films.

The system is considered "closed" because the captions will not be visible without a special decoder, which the Sears, Roebuck & Co. is marketing at a price of $249.95. The decoders were prominently featured in Sears' spring catalog with a notation that orders would not be filled until March 15.

Federal officials estimate that 14 million Americans have impaired hearing and that 2 million of them are totally deaf.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced final plans for the new system in March 1979, with then-Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. declaring it was time "for the nation's deaf and hearing impaired people to enjoy television."

A federal grant was used to establish the non-profit National Captioning Institute, which opened last summer outside Washington. The institute is expected to become self-sustaining through the fees it charges for captioning the shows of participating networks.

ABC and NBC will each offer five hours of prime-time captioned programs every week, starting Sunday night. The Public Broadcasting Service will start with four hours of captioned programs, but move to 10½ hours by July.

The commercial networks said their captioned programs will include three movies a week and several popular series, such as the "Wonderful World of Disney," "Eight is Enough" and "Barney Miller." PBS will begin its service by captioning such shows as "Masterpiece Theater," "Once Upon A Classic" and "Mystery Theater."

CBS declined to join the other networks in the new service, arguing that the captioning equipment to be used will soon become obsolete.

Instead, CBS has been testing different "teletext" systems already in use in Europe. These allow a viewer to call up news, stock market reports, movie listings and other information in addition to providing captions.

Say "I care" with quartz.

Not many anniversary clocks have the precision of this one by Howard Miller. Its quartz movement is accurate to within 5 seconds a month.

Again unlike most, it counts on the hour and strikes on the half. A single battery supplies power for a year.

And there's much to please the eye. The rich walnut case provides a warm contrast to the ample display of brass on movement and dial.

Etched glass panels and a mirrored back panel complete a very lovely picture.

At night, Taggart turns into terrorist tracer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — By day, Frank Taggart is a quiet, mild-mannered public relations officer for the El Paso office of the Texas Department of Human Resources.

At night, he turns into a terrorist tracer. His nocturnal sideline — a newsletter on terrorist activities — began in 1976 while reporting for the Dallas Times Herald.

Taggart says he stays up late reading 15 newspapers and culling articles on terrorism.

"As soon as I get home from work I have another eight-hour day looking me in the face," says Taggart. "I have to go through and clip all the newspapers, newsletters and security publications."

The International Terrorist Center, a one-man operation, distributes a biweekly publication called Intersearch.

The newsletter sells for $36 a year. It includes lists of recent worldwide terrorist acts, in-depth features on the subject, reviews of books on terrorism and a calendar noting national and regional seminars on terrorism security.

Taggart says he has 1,200 subscribers, including the CIA, the Soviet and Hungarian embassies, Kennedy Space Center and the FBI.

A bank teller, he says, saw checks he had deposited from the various agencies and asked if he was a spy.

Taggart says the security chief at the Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y., bought a subscription.

He calls some clients "armchair anti-terrorists." Many small-town police departments order the newsletter, he adds.

The big customers are the terrorist-faring, big corporations, Taggart says.

"Corporations are desperate for this kind of information," he says, "they have no place to turn because the FBI or CIA could not or would not give out terrorist information."

Taggart says he works every night and 16 hours each weekend going through the New York Times, the Los Angeles Times, the Miami Herald and local newspapers. He also peruses periodicals from London, South Africa, Germany and Latin America.

"I have to do a lot of reading," says Taggart. "I'm not married, so that gives me plenty of time to do this," says Taggart. "I couldn't do it if I were married. Other people can go out to bars or play tennis and golf and do their things — I get as much excitement out of doing this."

Security officers in corporations in the United States, Canada, Mexico, South America and England want to keep up on terrorists' activities, according to Taggart.

"Somebody told me, 'You're not doing much more because the things I get are not necessarily in the lead (first part) of a story. They're buried and I glean them out to make them an item I can use in the newsletter."

"I probably know as much about what's available as anybody else," he says, "even law enforcement intelligence agencies — 90 to 95 percent of the information they get is collected the same way I collect it."

"I'm really not too concerned about my safety. I'm essentially not doing anything more than a library provides. I'm not threatening any groups or doing any undercover work."

Taggart charges $36 a year for 24 issues of the eight-to-12 page newsletter.

"I wanted to make it at a price level so an individual could subscribe."

Taggart says he has not made much money in the venture, citing expenditures for printing, stamps, promotion and advertising. "The thing that I'm real sensitive about," he adds, "is not doing something that would conflict with my regular job as far as time goes."

Tough times ahead, mart pros convinced

NEW YORK (AP) — Whatever the impact of the government's latest anti-inflation moves, many Wall Street analysts warn that the economy is headed for some bad times in the next few months.

The belief is spreading in the financial community that rapid inflation and record-high interest rates have set the stage for an economic slump that could rival the 1973-75 recession in severity.

While President Carter and government leaders were debating their options over the past few weeks, analysts maintain, market forces were already at work pushing the economy toward a potentially painful slide.

In a report written early this month, Allen Sinai of the Lexington, Mass., firm Data Resources Inc. declared: "The prospect of a credit crunch and recession has become a reality."

Some observers began forecasting a recession as long ago as 1976 or 1977. Until now, they have been wrong. But this time, analysts say, the various financial markets — where traders express their convictions with money, not words — are beginning to behave as if a slump is finally at hand.

The inflation-hedge commodities, gold and silver, have suffered a sharp price break in the past six weeks, with gold falling from a January peak of $875 an ounce to just over $500 early Friday, and silver skidding from around $50 an ounce to just over $25.

And the stock market, which began the year in a sort of inflationary boom, has nosedived of late in apparent anticipation of trouble ahead for corporate profits.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials recorded its fifth consecutive weekly decline this past week with an 8.87 loss to 811.69.

Since mid-February the average has fallen 92.15 points, in a decline just about as severe as last October's "massacre."

Other weekly readings show the New York Stock Exchange composite index down 89 at 60.07 and the American Stock Exchange market value index off 15.47 at 262.03.

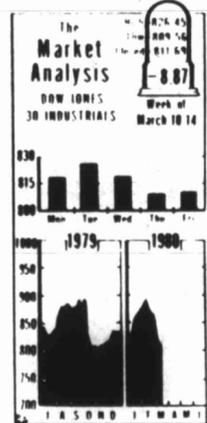

Big Board volume averaged 38.27 million shares a day, against 46.56 million the week before.

For a year or more, many Wall Street analysts have been saying that a recession was needed to squeeze out some of the inflationary pressures in the economy. But they acknowledge that, needed or not, it isn't likely to be a pleasant experience.

Nevertheless, analysts say such a slump could lead to a long-awaited downturn in interest rates in the next few months — though they may not yet have reached their peak — and some letup in inflation.

With cash steadily losing purchasing power, the bond market in disarray, stocks falling, gold on the skids, and the housing market looking shaky, where are investors putting their money?

One haven they have turned to, for better or worse, is the money market mutual funds. These funds, which didn't even exist until a few years ago, at last count had become a storehouse for $60 billion of American capital.

ANALYSIS — The Dow Jones average closed at 811.69 Friday, down 8.87 from the week prior.

Whopping tax increase in store for Texans

WASHINGTON — President Carter's anti-inflation message is a message to Texans of an $800 million tax increase, warned a Texas leader of congressional budget-balancing efforts Friday.

That figure is Texas' share of a 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline price rise, said Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station. The tax was announced Friday in a White House speech by Carter, along with an administration plan to balance the federal budget next year.

But while the president said revenues from the tax will not be used to help wipe out the 1981 budget deficit, various estimates at between $18 million and $26 million, Gramm was less than convinced when he returned from the White House Friday.

A former Texas A&M economics professor, Gramm, like Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, has been a leader in his house of the Congress in recommending cuts to bring federal spending in line with federal income.

Carter's Friday speech placed the projected 1981 deficit that must be wiped out at $18 billion.

Gramm, who leads a 60-member House coalition in favor of spending cuts, places the amount needed to be cut at $26.4 billion. Bentsen, head of the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, points to his committee's annual report that says $25 billion worth of cuts will do the job.

"The president is proposing cuts that are about $10 billion short of balancing the 1981 budget, but then they are going to raise $10 billion through the tax on imported oil," Gramm argued.

"They say this money from the gasoline tax will be a buffer, but I am worried they will look to this tax to balance the budget. This will cost Texans $800 million a year. The American people want a balanced budget, but they don't want more taxes in order to do it."

While Gramm said he assured White House officials he will support Carter's budget cuts, he noted Congress has no authority to block the president's raising of gasoline taxes.

Bentsen stopped short of issuing support for Carter's plan, announcing Friday his Joint Economic Committee will begin questioning administration officials about the plan at hearings set for Monday.

"These are broad-based cuts in the budget," Bentsen said of plans for major reductions in revenue sharing, jobs programs and highway construction.

"They will effect every interest group and I'm sure we will hear from all of them. But Congress has to convince the American people that it has the courage, the tools and the will to bring about a balanced budget."

While the pair of Democrats indicated they will have serious questions for the president's inflation battle plan, Texas Republican Sen. John Tower declared his own war of sorts with the administration.

"Fraud, duplicity and insufficiency are the major characteristics of the budget cuts proposed by the President of the United States, a president, who, as a candidate, promised never to lie to the American people," Tower said in a statement released to the press prior to the Carter speech.

"Mr. Carter's unrelenting vendetta against the petroleum industry by imposing an import fee on oil on top of a windfall profits tax, proves the fallacy of his entire energy conservation ethic."

Charging Carter with using the gas tax to fuel his administration's "chicanery for another four years," Tower hit hard at the president's plan to charge a $1.4 billion increase in

Jobless funds are shrinking

DETROIT (AP) — Prolonged auto industry layoffs are shrinking the supplemental unemployment benefit funds of the nation's top two automakers.

General Motors Corp. has lost about $100 million since July and had a balance in the fund on March 1 of $330.7 million, or about 43.2 percent of maximum funding.

military fuel costs to the defense budget.

"In the face of a growing Soviet threat," Tower said this effective cut in Pentagon dollars is an "underhanded" way to cut defense spending "when that deficit was caused by unrealistic administration inflation estimates in the first place."

Gramm also cautioned the administration is venturing onto thin ice by tampering with the so-far untouched, $147.8 billion Pentagon budget.

"I'm concerned about any cuts in defense and I think Congress will be also," said Gramm. "Defense spending as a percentage of the gross national product is the lowest in our history. It has been cut over the last 20 years for social programs."

Automaker ruled innocent

DETROIT (AP) — Had the jury failed to reach a verdict, the judge in Ford Motor Co.'s reckless homicide trial said he probably would have acquitted the automaker, a Detroit newspaper said Saturday.

The Detroit Free Press reported that Judge Harold Staffeldt said he had the power to do so.

The nation's No. 2 automaker was found innocent on Thursday of criminal charges in the deaths of three young women who died when their 1973 Ford Pinto was struck from behind and burst into flames.

OCAW strike settlement

Gulf offer might set pattern

HOUSTON (AP) — A contract offer from Gulf Oil Corp. to refinery workers that could set the stage for final industry-wide settlement has been sent to Denver for approval by the national oil bargaining policy committee of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

An OCAW spokesman in Houston called Gulf's Friday night offer "a cheap one for the industry" but one that, if confirmed, "would be a fair basis for a 2-year agreement."

Following action on the proposal by the OCAW national bargaining committee, it will be returned for a ratification vote by Gulf's Port Arthur refinery workers.

The offer is the fifth made by Gulf since talks began last November with the 2,600-member Port Arthur local, OCAW's largest local union in the nation.

A Gulf spokesman, W. Kirk Voageley, said indications are the pact will get the union's approval. The new offer was discussed at meetings this week with OCAW president Robert Goss, Voageley said. Goss, who had met with Gulf officials at least twice in January, flew back to Denver Thursday night and is to meet Monday with the bargaining committee.

OCAW spokesman H.J. "Mac" McClain said he expects approval to come quickly.

The union has reached contract agreements already with 19 independent oil companies.

QUICK MIXER — About to input various functions in McMahon Concrete's new computer is Clyde McMahon Jr. The computer is able to control the mixing mechanism for concrete. The computer is one of a series of innovations McMahon Concrete has seen in 28 years. The business at 605 N. Benton was founded by Clyde McMahon Sr.

Couple Mixes concrete bathed kids Computer all but human in bleach

BALTIMORE (AP) A prosecutor says a couple running a West Baltimore foster home over a 10-year period abused children assigned to their care, at times beating them and bathing them in bleach.

As the trial for the two began Friday, prosecutor Edwin O. Wenck also charged that the city Department of Social Services knew about the abuses, but refused to take action.

Geneva Garland, 64, charged with six cases of child abuse, and her husband, Bennie, 69, charged with a sexual offense against a child, are on trial before Judge James A. Perrott, who is hearing the charges without a jury.

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

Computerization of the concrete mixing process is just one part of a succession of industry innovations McMahon Concrete has seen in 28 years.

"It is one of a series of changes," Clyde McMahon Jr. said, pointing out that his father, Clyde Sr., and he have seen one innovation and envision nothing better could come along and yet another does.

The latest thing to come along is a computer that replaces manual mixing of concrete. The computer, which is made by the Automatic Control Electric Company of San Antonio, has some 40 different functions that control the meticulous batching of concrete.

The computer was brought in January of this year.

"We have only been using it two months," Clyde Jr. said. "It is too early for a cost evaluation."

He added, "We never did feel like it would replace any employees."

One advantage, Clyde Jr. mentioned, of the computer is the control of error. Making concrete involves developing a paste from water and cement that will harden.

Concrete consists of water, cement and aggregate, usually sand and gravel. Through the chemical reaction of the cement and water the concrete forms.

Before the computer, an employee had to make the necessary calculations, and daily measurements had to be made about, among other things, the presence of moisture in the sand.

"We had human error before," Clyde Jr. said. "We feel like with this we can catch an error faster."

This is important, for the character of concrete is determined primarily by the water-cement ratio. The strength of the paste is dependent on the weight of the water to the cement. The lower the ratio, the more durable the concrete.

The computer is able to catch any shifts in the moisture level of the sand. It is also able to make fine variations when the concrete is batched.

Of course, the computer is not infallible, and it makes minor errors.

Clyde Jr. said the computer gives the concrete business "better control, quality, faster inventory, and faster information on a day to day basis."

The computer can retrieve information about any past job. By inputting some type of identification figures, McMahon's can get the specifications about the concrete any customer purchased in the past.

"It is the coming thing," Clyde Jr. said, adding that most businesses could actually do without a computer, but with the information gained a business goes on and makes the investment.

Clyde Jr. added the computer allows his business to stay competitive.

"There is a big demand for these type of computers," he added.

Bridge luncheon slated by GOP women April 17

Bill Crocker, candidate for Howard County Commissioner, Pct. 3, spoke to the West Texas Republican Women's Club during the Thursday luncheon at La Posada.

Mrs. Myra Robinson offered the prayer and Bill Crocker led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. Dene Sheppard, president, challenged the group to recruit new members. She stated U.S. Congressman Jim Collins will give the member who recruits five new members a coffee mug bearing the Congressional seal and his signature.

Representatives of the local club will attend an intensive one-day workshop to be held May 17 in Austin.

Mrs. Betty Price announced that the Club will host a bridge luncheon at the K-C Steak House April 17 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. $50 first place prize will be awarded for those playing progressive bridge. Those who wish to play with their own foursome are invited to do so. There will also be door prizes throughout the day. Tickets are $5 each and can be obtained from Betty Price or any member.

Members are urged to keep track of their community volunteer hours and turn them in each month. This includes hours given to civic or church projects. Mrs. Sheppard reminded the group that absentee voting will open Monday for the city and school elections and urged members to exercise their right to choose by voting absentee or on April 6.

Crocker stated that it is most difficult for government agencies to stay within their budget due to continuous rise in cost of living and feels his past experience on the commission will enable him to better serve the people. He further commented that his precinct represents about 25 percent of the people and roads in the county and he has enjoyed the challenge and looks forward to serving another term.

The next meeting will be held April 10.

Moist air nets low cloud cover

By the Associated Press

Moist air pushed through Texas Saturday, bringing about a low cloud cover over the central part of the state.

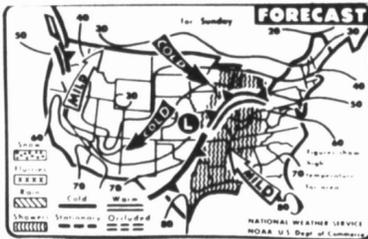

Winds ranged from 10 to 20 mph, gusting occasionally to more than 30 mph in Central Texas.

Temperatures were mostly in the 50s and 60s statewide Saturday, with a few readings in the 70s along the coast and over far South Texas.

The National Weather Service said scattered thunderstorms are likely Sunday afternoon and evening across the eastern half of the state.

It should be continued windy and warm in most sections through the weekend, the weather service added.

WEATHER FORECAST — A wide area of showers is forecast today from the Gulf Coast north, according to the National Weather Service. It will be hot in the Southwest and Southeast and cooler elsewhere.

HBO loses court fight

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge in Manhattan has refused to enjoin American Broadcasting Companies from televising the movie "Force 10 From Navarone" on Sunday night pending resolution of a court suit.

The action by U.S. District Judge Morris E. Lasker was a defeat for Home Box Office which had brought suit to block ABC from showing the film.

Carter offers no quick hope on hostages in Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bitterly disappointed President Carter says even the election of a new Iranian parliament may not produce a settlement freeing American hostages held for more than four months.

In a glum report, Carter told the nation Friday night that authorities in Iran had reneged on their commitments and appear incapable of running their own government.

"They obviously do not have the authority to speak and carry out their own commitment," he said at a news conference. "Whether they will have that authority after the elections are completed I don't know. I certainly hope so."

Carter did not say what promises Iran had not kept. But his angry accusation and personal disappointment clearly related to the collapse of a United Nations mission earlier this week.

The five panel members returned to New York after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and militants in charge of the U.S. Embassy refused to permit them to see the Americans inside.

Carter indicated he did not think the Americans would be liberated soon, even though he said, "We have constant negotiations." The elections began Friday, but it could take a month to seat a new parliament.

"We have done everything we possibly could in the last four months to honor the principles of our nation ... to try to preserve in every way the health and the lives of those hostages, and to work for their freedom," Carter said.

"I don't know when they will be released," he said. He called the continued detention of the Americans an "abhorrent act" and described the militants as terrorists.

At the same time, he offered no specific course of U.S. action. And the only ray of hope he glimpsed was that a new parliament might strengthen President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and other Iranian leaders.

"Whether they will have that authority after the elections are completed I don't know," Carter said. "I certainly hope so."

On another foreign policy matter, Carter took full responsibility for the U.S. vote at the U.N. Security Council — two weeks ago sharply condemning Israel. He appeared to go out of his way to pacify the Jewish state and its supporters.

"It was an honest breakdown in communications between me and the United Nations," Carter said.

The resolution called for Israel to dismantle the more than 100 settlements on lands lost by the Arabs in the 1967 Six-Day war and condemned its annexation of east Jerusalem.

Carter said the resolution violated his agreement with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat at Camp David in 1978 that Jerusalem not be divided again.

Also, Carter said, the resolution was in conflict with his agreement in the accords not to call for dismantling settlements while Israel and Egypt were in negotiations.

Or raise property taxes Cities will be forced to fire many workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many towns and cities will be forced to fire workers or raise already-high property taxes to cope with President Carter's proposed $1.7 billion cut in federal revenue sharing, local officials say.

And some human services financed by this money may have to be shifted to beleaguered local budgets if they are to survive intact, these officials warn.

"Many of our cities will be faced with serious disruptions of their budgets," said John Gunther, executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"virtually guarantee layoffs or property tax increases."

"Many communities will have no choice ... because it's become impossible to raise taxes in this Proposition 13 climate," added Bernard Hillebrand of the National Association of Counties.

Since 1972, municipalities have used revenue sharing primarily for police and fire services, public works, transportation and recreation. States use much of their portion for education and welfare programs.

The no-strings-attached money has proven crucial to communities, which have found it legally or politically difficult to increase property taxes, or are have seen their revenue sharing dollars shrunk by 40 percent since 1972.

President Carter on Friday proposed to slash 75 percent of the states' $2.3 billion revenue sharing portion. This will help create the largest federal budget surplus in more than 30 years — a move designed to cool double-digit inflation.

However, that is little comfort to localities that have grown increasingly dependent on revenue sharing.

Carter chose not to touch the $4.6 billion in revenue sharing money that would go directly to localities. However, many states pass through all or part of their portion to counties, cities and towns or provide services to them.

Cynthia Pols of the National League of Cities said the proposed cuts

"Illinois just bailed out the Chicago school district ... Now, the state is about to lose much of its revenue sharing. How willing will Illinois be to bail them out the next time?" asks Joseph P. McLaughlin Jr., spokesman for the governors' group.

Carter doesn't know Ted's plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter says he doesn't expect Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to drop out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination despite the fact that Carter has won most of the early competition between the two men.

Carter told a news conference Friday that he has "done very well" in competition for the nomination thus far, defeating Kennedy in a dozen primaries and state caucuses while Ken-neddy has won twice. Asked if he thinks he has Kennedy whipped, Carter replied that the primaries and caucuses are piling up and "we've done very well in those contests."

"But the acknowledgment of defeat is a judgment to be made completely by my opponents and not by me," he said.

Carter, who unveiled a new anti-inflation program Friday, assailed as unworkable the mandatory wage-price controls that Kennedy wants installed to stop inflation.

"Mandatory wage and price controls will not be used," he told a White House news conference. "They have never worked in peacetime."

Carter has won 292 of the 1,666 delegate votes he needs to win the nomination while Kennedy has 148.

In Chicago, Kennedy said that Carter's new economic package is "too little, too late," and may do more to increase inflation than to end it.

He said his proposed six-month freeze on wages and prices, to be followed by mandatory controls, is the "only program which can deal a death blow to inflation in our society."

Carter disagreed. "We simply cannot outlaw inflation with a massive federal bureaucracy or wipe it away with a magic formula."

He also said that the results of his program will not be evident immediately.

"We can expect several more months of very high inflation, but toward the end of this year the inflation rate will begin to drop," he said.

That forecast would mean continuing high inflation rates during the rest of the fight for the Democratic nomination during the spring and early summer.

Carter, who had denounced Kennedy at his last news conference for criticizing administration foreign policy, didn't mention his challenger's name this time.

If energy problems solved

Coming to grips with certainties

HOUSTON (AP)—In a recent lecture at Brigham Young University, W.F. Martin said solving the energy problem means coming to grips with three certainties.

"The first certainty is we have the resources here at home to solve our energy problem and we have the technology to develop these resources," said Martin, chairman of Phillips Petroleum Co.

"The record certainty is it's going to take a lot of time and effort to develop them. And the third certainty is developing these resources is going to be expensive."

To illustrate his points, Martin referred to Phillips' involvement in the huge Ekofisk development in the North Sea.

Although an overseas project, Martin said, Ekofisk bears many parallels to the types of projects needed here at home.

"We had almost given up on the North Sea in 1969 when we hit Ekofisk, a discovery that eventually led to development of seven fields and production of oil and natural gas liquids at a rate which has exceeded 600,000 barrels a day," he said.

"It took four years before we had a commercial discovery in the North Sea. It was six years before we produced our first barrel of oil. If we were to discover a similar major U.S. oil deposit today, in a similar environment, it would take a number of years to bring that petroleum to market."

Martin said the development of Ekofisk over the past 10 years has cost Phillips and its partners some $6 billion.

"For a time it was the second largest private commercial engineering project in history, ranking only behind the Alaskan oil pipeline," he said.

"We figure that if we were to develop a comparable complex today in a U.S. environment similar to the North Sea, it would cost us two-and-a-half times as much as Ekofisk."

Martin said that, in the final analysis, the U.S. energy problem is not one of resources.

"It's a problem of time, and most important, of money. It's a problem of generating sufficient capital and making sure it's invested in a way that will bring forth the greatest amount of energy supplies. Of course, there are alternatives to making adequate energy investments, but not very good ones in my opinion."

Martin said the nation can continue to increase its reliance on foreign oil producers, implement stringent conservation measures, even rationing, and get along with much less energy.

"And we can reduce our standard of living," he said.

"But we must remember that anything short of adequate energy supplies will adversely affect our economy by limiting growth of industry and availability of jobs," Martin said.

"And most important, we cannot feel militarily secure without adequate supplies of energy produced right here in the United States."

Martin said everyone has a role in overcoming the energy problem, including the obligation to be informed.

"I don't mean you have to master endless details of the energy problem, but each of us should know the basics," he said.

"We need to recognize that energy isn't a localized phenomenon, not just something that goes on at the corner service station, but a problem of global proportions."

There is need, he added, to recognize the energy problem is not a question of running out of resources "but a case of providing the proper incentives to conserve fuels currently available and to develop the abundant resources we have and must utilize in the future."

"And we need to recognize that an important key to solving the energy problem is to make sure enough money is invested to provide the energy Americans want and expect," Martin said.

"If we can establish that basic knowledge among enough people, I feel it will bring forth a deeper understanding of a national unity of purpose that joins business, government, education and the public in a common effort to create an America self-reliant in energy."

Oilers trade Dante

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland Raiders officially announced Saturday what quarterback Kenny Stabler had said Friday night — that he has been traded to the Houston Oilers for quarterback Dan Pastorini.

DAN PASTORINI

KEN STABLER

'I really didn't lie'

Bum confirms trade

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips confirmed for the first time Saturday that quarterback Dan Pastorini had been traded to the Oakland Raiders for quarterback Ken Stabler after denying the deal hours earlier.

"I'd rather apologize to you for a lie than to a player," Phillips said when asked about his strong denial of the trade Friday night. "It's the rules of the game. I denied it at first because it wasn't supposed to be announced until 1 p.m. (CST) today."

"I really didn't lie because anything could have happened to stop the deal until 1 p.m. (CST) today. Now it is official."

"Today, and not yesterday, we traded Dan Pastorini for Ken Stabler," Phillips told a hastily called news conference. "We are tickled to have one of the great players in the game today. He's a great two-minute offensive football player and he's a complete football player."

Stabler is leaving a two-year feud with Oakland managing general partner Al Davis and Pastorini is finally getting his long desired wish to play on the West Coast.

Phillips, who had always been the first to defend Pastorini through his stormy Oiler career, said he made the decision to seek the trade.

"Good or bad it was all my decision," Phillips said. "I felt it was time to make the move."

The Oiler coach said Pastorini's recent request to be traded had nothing to do with the deal.

"We'll never make a trade as long as I am here that is to accommodate the player," Phillips said. "This football team comes first and we made this trade because we feel it is good for the team."

Little League registration nears

Little League president Jack Barber is reminding anyone interested that sign-ups for this year's action will take place on consecutive Saturdays, March 22 and 29.

Purdue advances to NCAA Final Four

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Drake Morris hit eight free throws down the stretch as Purdue defeated Duke 68-60 Saturday to claim the championship of the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament.

The victory was Purdue's 22nd against nine defeats and earned the Boilermakers a date next Saturday with UCLA in the NCAA semifinals at Indianapolis. UCLA won the West Regional title with a 85-74 victory over Clemson.

Purdue took its first lead in the second half, but the Boilermakers were unable to build a significant margin until Morris began earning trips to the foul line.

A pair of Morris free throws with 9:38 to play gave Purdue a 47-43 lead. Morris hit six more free throws inside the last five minutes as the Boilermakers expanded a shaky three-point margin to 58-50 with 3:09 left.

Duke, which finished 24-9, made its final challenge behind baskets by Bob Bender and Gene Banks. But Purdue put the game away at 1:53 on a three-point play by Joe Barry Carroll to build the margin to 61-54.

Carroll, Purdue's 7-foot-11 All-America center, led both teams in scoring with 26 points. Keith Edmonson had 12 and Morris added 10.

Mike Gminski, Duke's 6-11 center, led the Blue Devils with 17 points, but managed only two baskets in the second half.

Wrightsil, Olague hit Steers by Eagle Pass

EAGLE PASS — The Big Spring Steers used the one-two punch of Dickie Wrightsil and Tommy Olague to defeat Eagle Pass and take seventh place in the Eagle Pass Tournament here Saturday afternoon.

Midland Lee picked in 5-AAAA

Midland Lee has been tabbed as the pre-season favorite in the District 5-AAAA baseball poll, as the Rebels accumulated 96 points.

The poll was conducted by a survey of the sports-writers and six of the district coaches. Not participating were coaches from Midland and Big Spring.

Lee had but three of eight first place votes, but managed to pick up enough elsewhere to be tabbed the favorite, as voting was skeptical due to lack of knowledge by those involved concerning the others records and strengths.

Cooper picked up one first place vote and finished second, edging out Midland and Abilene, who picked up three and four first place votes, respectively.

Rounding out the list were Odessa, Odessa Permian, Big Spring and San Angelo. Big Spring and San Angelo were actually tied for seventh place.

5-AAAA POLL	Points
1. Midland Lee (3)	96
2. Abilene Cooper (1)	81
3. Midland (3)	75
4. Abilene (4)	74
5. Odessa	50
6. Odessa Permian	50
7. Big Spring	22
8. San Angelo	22

"They are both outstanding players who have proved themselves in big games and in the post-season," said LoCasale, second in charge to Raider managing general partner Al Davis.

"We're hoping the trade will work out for both teams, and for both players," he added. "They deserve it." LoCasale was in Southern California for the National Football League meetings which ended Friday in Rancho Mirage.

Stabler, a 10-year veteran with the Raiders, told Mobile, Ala., station WKRGTV that the deal was finalized Friday night. There had been speculation about a possible trade.

"I've known about the deal for some time and didn't know when it would take place," he said.

"I felt it was in my best interests to play somewhere else and it was also in the Raiders' best interests," said Stabler. "Going to Houston is a great chance to play on a talented team with a chance to return to the Super Bowl."

Pastorini, a nine-year veteran with Houston, was not immediately available for comment.

Stabler, a left-hander, completed his 10th year in the National Football League this season. He was the Raiders' No. 2 draft choice out of Alabama in 1968.

Stabler was the No. 2 passing leader in the American Football conference in 1979, fourth in the league, completing 304 of 498 passes for 3,615 yards and 26 touchdowns, and 22 interceptions.

Pastorini was 13th in the conference on a rushing oriented team led by running back Earl Campbell. Pastorini had 163 of 324 passes for 2,090 yards, 14 TDs and 18 interceptions.

In 1978 Stabler was intercepted 30 times while throwing just 16 TD passes. That resulted in some critical observations from Davis. Stabler responded by demanding to be traded, but the dispute appeared to be settled by the time the 1979 season began.

Also after the 1978 season, Stabler was involved in a bizarre incident in which a California sports writer, seeking to meet with Stabler in Alabama for an interview, was arrested on drug charges. He was later released when it appeared that the writer had been set up by other still-unidentified persons.

The highlight of Stabler's career was his quarterbacking of the Raiders to a 32-4 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl XI in 1977.

Harris positive Steers can win in football

IN THE 1978 TEXAS SCHOOLBOY FOOTBALL SEASON, the Big Spring Steers of Class AAAA suffered through yet another disappointing grid slate, ending with a record of 0-10. Meanwhile, at Class AA Sealy, the Tigers of Coach Ralph Harris thumped themselves to perfect 15-0 record and a state championship in the process.

Things didn't get much better in the 79 season for the Steers. They managed a win over Hobbs, but continued their 5-AAAA losing streak to an atrocious 37 games, as opponents scored 323 more points than the Big Spring team.

But that didn't stop Harris from accepting the football coaching position last Tuesday when offered by Big Spring Athletic Director Ron Logback.

"I don't care what's happened in the past," Harris explained in an interview Saturday morning, "not in mine or in theirs."

And by looking at Harris' record as a head coach, it shows that he's on the level in regard to the past.

HARRIS, FRESH FROM GRADUATING from Sul Ross where he also excelled in numerous sports, began his coaching career in Big Spring at Runnels Junior High in the 1968-69 school year.

He then moved to Devine, where he was the varsity football defensive coordinator, and also served that Central Texas town as the Head Basketball Coach.

From Devine, Harris accepted the Head Football Coaching position at Dublin, a Class A school in 1972. And as in the Big Spring situation now, things hadn't been too bright for Dublin upon Harris' arrival. The Dublin Fightin' Lions were coming off an 0-10 season, and had won only five games in the previous four years.

But this was quickly turned around, as Dublin went 7-2-1 in Harris' first year, followed by a 9-1 mark the following season.

IN 1975, Harris moved to the Sealy head football job. As in the Dublin situation in 1972 and the Big Spring circumstance now, Sealy's football program was down, nursing an 18-game losing skien.

The Sealy transition to a winning program took more time than Dublin, but the dividends paid off handsomely by the fourth year.

Harris' Sealy teams went 2-8 and 4-6 in his first two seasons, but then improved to 7-2-1 in 1977, followed by the 15-0 Class AA state championship in 1978. Sealy, without the services of all-everything Eric Dickerson, was a respectable 6-4 last season.

TO SAY THE LEAST, the Big Spring football situation is one that Harris can relate to, and Athletic Director Logback stated when hiring the new Steer mentor that his past situations and ensuing success played a big part in hiring him.

Logback had expected Harris to arrive on March 24, but he arrived 10 days early, pulling into town on Friday night, obviously anxious to implement his program as soon as possible.

Harris has his goals set for the BSHS football program, and he explained that hard work is a part of his diet, and expects that the athletes and coaches around should also realize its importance.

"The process of turning a program around is gradual," said Harris. "To be successful in football, you've got to build things on a year round basis. It demands a great deal on my part in the leadership factor, but I believe in Ralph Harris."

"BUT WHEN I SAY I BELIEVE IN RALPH HARRIS," he explained, "I'm not tooting my own horn. I've made many mistakes as a coach, and I'll make many more. I've also had many football teams, and I'll have many more. The kids just have to realize that for many of them, this is a great chance in their life to obtain something."

"My job," Harris continued, "is to give them an opportunity to be prepared to have a chance at success on the football field. To do this, I'll work year round at it. But I believe in myself, and the athletes here have to believe in themselves. The job of the coach is to create an environment where a person can grow with a total education."

"And although some people don't agree with me," he added, "I believe that the football field or any athletic participation is a part of the education process."

AND BEFORE THE TEACHERS get the impressions that Harris is not academically oriented, that's not the case, as he explained.

"Just because a person has a great mind doesn't mean that he can't be successful in sports," he philosophized. "And just because a person is gifted athletically doesn't mean that he doesn't have the ability to excel in the classroom."

"A person should have the opportunity to excel to the utmost of his abilities, whatever the case may be," he continued, referring to both the classroom and to sports other than football.

"I'm all for the football players participating in the other sports. I can still remember my feelings as an athlete, which I feel are very important. I'm for an all-around program of participation, as long as the athletes are getting proper supervision from their coaches and working hard."

"Besides, another sport can be the best type of off-season program."

AND WHILE BIG SPRING PEOPLE HAVE MADE EXCUSES, such as the tough District 5-AAAA, the lowest enrollment in the district, poor facilities, etc., Harris approaches his task with a positive attitude.

"If you don't shoot high, you have laid the groundwork for not accomplishing what you're capable of," Harris continued, referring to the Steer football program. "I expect to be competitive next year, but there has to be the proper type of environment."

"We don't need excuses here. I am expecting something good to happen, and the environment for the football players has to be that something good is expected from them. Some people might not think so, but (Continued on page 2-B, column 1 'Steer football.')

UCLA Bruins come out of hibernation

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Sophomore Mike Sanders and senior Kiki Vandeweghe tossed in 22 points each to lead the UCLA Bruins past Clemson 85-74 Saturday in the finals of the NCAA West Regional basketball tournament.

The victory sends the 21-9 Bruins to the NCAA Final Four in Indianapolis March 22, UCLA's first trip to the national semifinals since 1976.

Clemson, which was participating in the NCAA tournament for the first time, finished its season at 23-9.

A Clemson cold spell at the start of the second half, including a five-minute period during which the Tigers went scoreless, led to the impressive victory by the Bruins. UCLA ran off an 11-2 spurt in the early seconds of the half to gain an 18-point advantage at 57-39.

Clemson never was closer than 10 points after that time.

Vandeweghe, one of two starting seniors for UCLA, hit five of six free throw attempts in the closing seconds of the game to preserve the Bruin victory.

Guard Billy Williams scored 18 points to lead Clemson.

UCLA's halftime edge of 46-35 represented its largest lead of the game to that point.

Neither team was able to assert itself in the game's opening minutes, with both squads shooting well and UCLA matching up well against taller Clemson on the boards.

Clemson never was closer than 10 points after that time.

Seagraves, Klondike win Forsan Track Meet

FORSAN — The Seagraves boys and the Klondike girls raced to their respective championships here Saturday in the Forsan Invitational Track Meet.

The Seagraves boys earned 117 points to easily outdistance second place Bronte, who finished with 72 points. The Seagraves boys are basically the same group that has also won the football and basketball titles in District 5-A this year.

The Forsan boys finished with 13 points for the day. Five different Forsan boys earned points.

The 400-meter relay team comprised of Tim Decker, Brent Nichols, Ernie Strickland and D.F. Strickland finished fifth in that event to earn four points.

Forsan's Donald Pena added eight points with a second place finish in the 800-meter run. Pena's time was 2:09.2. Brent Nichols added the final Buffalo point in the meet with a sixth place finish in the 100-meter dash.

Klondike claimed 101 points to capture the Girl's Division. Seagraves was also strong in the fem events, as they were second with 77 points. The Forsan girls finished fifth in the 15-team female field, scoring 50 points.

Christi Adams earned 18 points with a first place finish in the shot put and a second place ribbon in the discus. Adams tossed the discus 103' and the shot put 37'2".

Teresa White also added points in two events for the Forsan fems. White had a fifth place finish in the high jump, and captured first place in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:35.6.

Forsan's Karla Cregar was also a double finisher. She took a third place in the 100-meter dash, and finished fourth in the 200-meter.

Curtis Dickey wins another 60-yard dash title UTEP captures NCAA track title

DETROIT (AP) — Suleiman Nyambui, running smoothly and confidently, won the mile and the two-mile in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships for the second year in a row Saturday, leading Texas El-Paso to its fifth team title in the past seven years.

The 28-year-old Nyambui, a sophomore from Tanzania, captured the two-mile in 8:36.82, then came back an hour later to take the mile in 4:05.26, helping the Miners compile a meet record 76 points.

It was the first time that a runner had twice won the difficult distance double in the meet's 16-year history.

The only other athletes to do it once were newly elected Hall of Famer Jim Ryun of Kansas in 1968 and Marty Liquori of Villanova in 1971 — and they ran their two races on separate days.

The tireless Nyambui did it both times on the same day — within 60 minutes and with relative ease.

In the two-mile, after exchanging the early lead with Amos Korir of Villanova and John Gregorek of Georgetown, the unflappable Nyambui shot to the front shortly after the half-mile mark.

He then led the rest of the way, fending off only two ineffectual challenges from Gregorek, and appeared to be toying with the field as he leisurely circled the 11-lap-to-the-mile track at the new Joe Louis Arena.

In the mile, Nyambui, called the best runner in his school's history by Coach Ted Banks, again appeared well in control.

The former elementary school teacher seemed content to just stay with the field in the slowly paced race. After running the early laps in last place, he bolted into the lead, then backed off until the gun lap, when he charged ahead and coasted home in the lackluster time.

Nyambui's two victories were the only triumphs for Texas El-Paso on the final day of the two-day competition. But the Miners didn't need many more points. They had taken command with 37 points in Friday's opening program enroute to breaking the meet record of 52 set by Villanova last year, when Texas El-Paso finished second with 51.

Tennessee was third with 38, followed by Kansas with 26 1/2 and Indiana with 25.

Villanova, scoreless Friday, got victories from Don Paige, Rodney Wilson and its distance medley relay team Saturday, and finished second with 42 points.

Paige, who had collapsed last week because of a severe virus during the IC4A Championships, set an indoor record for automatic timing for an 11-lap track in the 1,000-yard race in winning the event for the third consecutive year.

Meanwhile, powerful Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M won his third consecutive NCAA 60-yard dash title, equalling the meet record of 6.12 set by Greg Edmond of Houston in 1977.

Dickey, who matched the meet record of three straight 60 triumphs set by Charlie Greene of Nebraska from 1965-67, had won his two previous titles in 6.15.

Franklin Jacobs of Fairleigh Dickinson University won his second NCAA indoor high jump title — his first victory was a meet record 7-5 in 1978. This time, he cleared 7-4 1/2 for his tenth victory in a row during the 1980 indoor season.

Forsan netters tough in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — The Forsan High School Tennis Team finished in third this weekend at the Lubbock Tournament.

Forsan finished behind Post and Baird in Division C. Dana Cannon won first for Forsan in girls singles.

Other top netters were Steve Wright and Allen Martin, who reached the semifinals in boys doubles; Donna Anderson and Tina Nix reached the quarterfinals in girls doubles; Weldon Nichols was beaten in the third round by Trey Dyer, who eventually won boys singles; and Sherra Bennett reached the quarterfinals in girls singles.

Others participating in the Friday and Saturday events were in boys singles, Trent Rainey, Layne Mims, Kenny Harris; in boys doubles, Troy Croft, Quirt Huitt, Bobby Little, Adolphus Rosas, Preston Daniels, David Harrell, Ricky Bedwell and Jerry Price.

In girls singles Genia Strickland and Toni Clark participated; and in girls doubles, Kelly Kraus, Tiffany Donaghe, Connie Fuller, Connie Strickland, Rhonda Gaskins, Julie Poynor, Diane Bates and Sherra Callahan.

A DOUBLE VICTORY — Suleiman Nyambui, holds up two fingers after winning the mile run (shown) and two-mile in Saturday's NCAA Indoor Track Field Championships for the second year in a row, leading Texas-E Paso to its fifth team title in the past seven years. The 28-year-old Nyambui, a sophomore for Tanzania, captured the two-mile event in 8:36.82 then came back an hour later for the mile in 4:05.26.

At Doral Open Nicklaus takes lead

MAMI (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, a deeply frustrated non-winner for more than a year, fought his way to a windblown, 1-under-par 71 and a 3-way tie for the lead Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

That dropped him back to a tie with Keith Fergus and Bruce Lietzke at 210, 6 shots under par.

Fergus, who has played strongly this year, had a 69 that ranked as the best round of the day on a course was raked by winds gusting above 30 mph. Lietzke, a runner-up last week, matched par 72.

Leonard Thompson, who started the day in a tie for the lead, fell victim to a 74 and was tied at 211 — 1 stroke back — with Wayne Levi. Levi had a 71.

Leading Rancho Bernardo LPGA Red-hot Carner continues streak

RANCHO BERNARDO, Calif. (AP) — JoAnne Carner, with a 2-under par 70, propelled into a 2-stroke lead over Pat Bradley on Saturday in the third round of the $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Rancho Bernardo Inn.

Carner, in quest of her fourth tour victory in six appearances this year, needed three birdies on the front nine to erase a pair of bogeys for a three-day total of 210, 6 under par.

Bradley, the first-round leader, stayed close with a 70, overcoming a shaky start that included bogeys on the first two holes. Mardell Wilkins and Judy Rankin were three strokes off the pace at 213. Wilkins had the best round of the day with a 68, carding five birdies on the last seven holes for a back-nine 32. Rankin shot a 70.

Carner and Bradley finished 1-2 here last year, with Carner posting a 7-under par 281 total for a 3-stroke victory.

Four strokes back, in a three-way tie, were Alice Ritzman, Cathy Sherk and Jane Blalock. Ritzman, in just her second full year on the tour, shot a 69, aided by an eagle on the par 5, 490-yard third hole. Sherk had a 72 and Blalock a 73.

Kathy Martin, the second-round leader, ballooned to 76 after a 66 Friday to fall five strokes behind.

"It was sort of hit and hang on," said Carner, who bogeyed two of her first five holes. Despite her third straight sub-par round, the 40-year-old veteran said she was concerned enough with her swing that she spent two hours to rectify it after Friday's round. "It's finally starting to come around," she said.

Bradley, who finished fourth on the LPGA money list last year, said she was looking forward to the final-day, dual with Carner.

New Steer coach stresses defense

a winning attitude is just as contagious as a losing attitude.

But that's where the coach comes in. I have to do my half and help develop that atmosphere, because every athlete deserves the opportunity to excel. If the football players here take care of their half, they can win here. I'm sure of it."

AND WHAT HAS BEEN HARRIS' FORMULA in transpiring a down-trodden football program into a winner in his stints at Dublin and Sealy?

"First of all, we have to teach what we know best and have belief in what we're doing. If we as coaches don't believe in it, we can't sell what we're trying to accomplish to the football players."

"Something that I really feel is important in coaching," Harris said, "is that no matter what the level, we're dealing with people. Everyone is an individual, and I respect that, but you have to be consistent in dealing with the group as a whole."

Many people have already expressed interest to this writer as to what style of football Harris will employ at BSHS, and he quickly mentioned defense.

"I believe that defense wins championships," philosophized Harris. "It's the first point of emphasis in my football program, wherever I've been."

"When we won the state championship at Sealy," the new Steer mentor further explained, "Eric Dickerson and the offense got all of the publicity."

"Well, Eric Dickerson is an exceptional athlete, but our defense and our kicking game were what put us in the position to win that year. We kept people in their own end of the field nearly all of the time."

"I'll try to play as few kids as possible both ways," Harris explained. "But we'll put the quality athletes on defense first. You get people enthused about playing football on defense."

"Offensively, I believe in the importance of a balanced attack. We'll run a lot of option, and I like to throw the ball, too. I was a receiver when I played and I realize the importance of a passing attack."

"BUT YOU HAVE TO HAVE BOTH," Harris mentioned. "There are situations when you need to use one or have to use one, and it's important to be skilled at both."

Harris, after guiding Sealy to the Class AA state championship, was no doubt searching for a move into the AAAA echelon of coaching. The fact that he started his coaching career here at Rumpels in 1968 did have some bearing on his accepting the Big Spring High School job, although he explained that it was not his main concern.

"I'm not tied down regionally to any area. I had more than one opportunity to advance to the AAAA level. But I do have fond memories of Big Spring, and had no hesitation about taking the job. I like the leaders of the school, and the fact that they believe that by working together we can accomplish a first class football program a BSHS."

AND WHILE SOME MAY QUESTION the change from the AA level to the AAAA level, Harris downplays that theory.

"That's not a critical factor in my mind. No matter what the level, you're still dealing with people. Either way, I feel that you've got to have a highly organized program in order to be successful in football, and that also means as far down as the seventh grade level."

"An organized program is also very important in that it gives the players time to do what he has to do in order to be successful on the field of play, but also allows him to have time to pursue other interests that are needed in order to keep a person happy."

"Football is just a phase in the life of a young person," Harris emphasized. "But to be successful it has to get to be an important phase, and they've got to make the commitment to it."

The straight-forward Harris left no impression that he believes Big Spring can win in football and is willing to do his share to accomplish that, but the next step must come from the local athletes, coaches and the community.

Friday's NCAA Regionals

Louisville stops Aggie title hopes

HOUSTON (AP) — Second-ranked Louisville's All-America guard Darrell Griffith made four free throws and a layup in the overtime period to pace the hard-purged Cardinals to a 66-55 victory Friday night over Texas A&M University in the NCAA Midwest Regionals.

The Cardinals, champions of the Metro Conference, will now play the winner of Friday night's second game between Missouri and Louisiana State Sunday to advance to the final four.

Griffith, who had a game-high 24 points and started the game sensationally with a slam dunk, missed a 15-footer in the final second that would have given the Cardinals a victory in regulation play.

The Aggies tied the game 53-all with 1:59 to go in regulation and the Cardinals stalled the rest of the time off the clock before Griffith missed.

The Cardinals jumped ahead in the overtime on a Griffith free throw and a bucket by Roger Burkman off a Griffith miss.

Griffith then made three more free throws and the Cardinals ran away with a Griffith layup icing matters with 11 seconds to go.

Texas A&M of the Southwest Conference finished the season 26-8, the best basketball year in the school's history.

The Aggies were led by Dave Britton, who had 16 points, Vernon Smith, who made 12, and Rynn Wright, who had 11.

Backing Griffith for the Cardinals was Wiley Brown with 15 points and Jerry Eaves with eight.

Griffith made four straight buckets as the Cardinals ran off a 12-2 lead before Wright and Smith rallied the Aggies.

Britton, who turned the ball over seven times in the first half, scored six straight points in the final two minutes, and Louisville led only 35-33 at halftime.

Aggie center Rudy Woods came alive with eight points in the second half as A&M slugged to a four-point lead at 47-43.

The Cardinals went six, totaling 28, without a point before Brown got hot with two buckets and three free throws that set up the overtime.

Louisville Coach Denny Crum said he felt the Cardinal press took its toll on the Aggies in overtime.

"I think the Aggies got tired," said Crum. "They don't like to play at the pace we do. We made them play that way all the game and they were fatigued at the end."

LSU outlasts Missouri

HOUSTON (AP) — Junior forwards DeWayne Scales and Draud Macklin combined for 33 points Friday night to carry third-ranked Louisiana State to a 68-63 victory over Missouri and a meeting with No. 2-ranked Louisville in the finals of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Louisville outlasted Texas A&M University 66-55 in overtime to set up Sunday's matchup with LSU of the Southeastern Conference.

LSU used a slowdown game in the second half to victimize Missouri of the Big 8 Conference.

Leading into 52-50 with 13:28 to go, LSU Coach Dale Brown ordered the Bengal Tigers into a four-corner slowdown that immediately produced results.

Macklin shook free for a three-point play. Scales did the same thing the next time downcourt, hitting the front end of a one-on-one layup.

Sharp-shooting Larry Drew kept Missouri in the game, scoring eight straight points in one stretch of the second half and finishing the night with 16.

Mark Dressler had a game-high 20 points for Missouri.

Scales scored 17 and Macklin added 16 for LSU, which ran its record to 26-5.

Missouri, which led at halftime 40-39, completed its season at 25-6.

Missouri players in double figures other than Drew and Dressler included Ricky Frazier with 12 and Steve Stipanovich with 10.

Georgetown upsets Maryland

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eric Floyd scored 18 points and highlighted a game-breaking burst in the second half to lead the Georgetown Hoyas to a 74-68 triumph over eighth-ranked Maryland Friday night in an NCAA East Regional semifinal.

The Hoyas advanced to Sunday's East championship game against unheralded Iowa, which earlier upset sixth-ranked Syracuse 88-77 with the help of a key technical foul and Vince Brookins' 10 late-game free throws.

The 11th-ranked Hoyas put the nightcap away with an 18-11 burst, highlighted by Floyd's 10 points. The spurt broke a 49-all tie and gave the Big East Conference champions a 67-60 lead with six minutes left.

The Hoyas then nailed down their 15th straight victory, longest in the nation among Division I basketball teams, when Eric Smith sank seven free throws in the last three minutes.

Buck Williams and Greg Manning scored nine points apiece in the first half for Maryland to help the regular-season Atlantic Coast Conference champions take a 39-38 lead into the dressing room.

Maryland opened a 43-38 lead at the start of the second half as Manning contributed two more field goals. But the Terrapins then buckled before a Georgetown rush that saw the Hoyas eventually tie the game at 47-all on a shot by Floyd with 16:06 to go.

Ed Spriggs hit a basket for Georgetown and Manning delivered one for Maryland to tie the game again at 49 and set the stage for the Hoyas' decisive spurt.

John Duren finished with 14 points for Georgetown (26-5) while Smith added 13. Manning led Maryland (24-7) with 19, Williams had 18 and All-American Albert King wound up with 15.

Iowa rallies by Syracuse

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The unheralded Iowa Hawkeyes, aided by a technical foul and Vince Brookins' free throw sharpshooting late in the game, upset sixth-ranked Syracuse 88-77 in the semifinals of the NCAA's East Regional basketball championships Friday night.

The victory sends the Big Ten team into Sunday's East finals at the Spectrum against the winner of Friday night's second game between eighth-ranked Maryland and No. 11 Georgetown.

Iowa, which tied for fourth in the Big Ten during the regular season, turned the opening game around with a nine-point string with less than eight minutes to go.

The Hawkeyes were helped by a technical foul on Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim, which turned into a five-point play and actually gave them the lead.

The technical was called against Boeheim when he complained about a foul called on Syracuse freshman Tony Bruin. Brookins made both ends of the 1-and-1 foul against Bruin and one of two technical foul attempts to give Iowa a 58-57 lead. The Hawkeyes also got possession of the ball and a basket by Steve Krafcsin made it 60-57 with 6:52 to go.

Four quick points by Roosevelt Bouie later brought Syracuse within one at 62-61 but that was as close as the Orangemen came the rest of the way.

And he said that all of the players he coached at Old Dominion and SMU graduated. He said he believes that if a player isn't doing well in the classroom, "he can't perform" on the court.

UNR President Joe Crowley announced Allen's selection Friday morning, saying, "We had three good candidates and it was a difficult choice."

UNR Coach Jim Carey was fired two weeks ago after getting into trouble for his fiery tantrums during games as well as the behavior and academic records of his players.

Allen said he has a different coaching style: "I just sit and watch. ... I won't be throwing any temper tantrums."

Sonny Allen takes Nevada-Reno post

RENO (AP) — Former Southern Methodist University basketball coach William "Sonny" Allen has promised to bring his "run-and-score" offense to the University of Nevada-Reno.

Allen, who turned 44 Friday, resigned at SMU two weeks ago after a 16-12 season. He cited a conflict with Athletic Director Russ Potts.

Overall, Allen compiled a 61-77 record in five seasons at SMU after a highly successful 10-year stint at Old Dominion, which won the NCAA Division II national championship in 1975. He was named the Associated Press coach of the year in the division that year.

His 1976 SMU team was named the nation's most improved by Basketball Weekly. In Nevada-Reno, he steps into another situation which could use improvement.

Governments study alternate Olympics

LONDON (AP) — At least 10 governments are expected to send representatives to Monday's meeting in Geneva to discuss holding alternate games to the Moscow Olympics.

Australian Home Affairs Minister Robert Ellicott said here Friday.

But reports from other Western capitals suggested that not all who attend will be enthusiastic about the plan being promoted by the United States, Britain and Australia in retaliation for the Soviet military move into Afghanistan.

Meanwhile, Olympic associations and athletes continued to resist calls for a boycott of the Moscow

Games. Two of Britain's top athletes, long jumper and social services official Sue Reeves and shot putter and policeman Geoff Capper, said they would go despite the British government's withdrawal of its traditional paid leave for civil servant Olympic contenders.

But "The Bird" still won't complain

Untimely injuries have cost Fidyrych potential wealth

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — If life, as some say, is just a roll of the dice, then Mark "The Bird" Fidyrych must wonder why his life turned from early 7's and 11's to a string of snake eyes.

"Sure, I was disillusioned at first — I wondered if the world was against me," said the colorful, crowd-pleasing young right-hander of the Detroit Tigers. "Now I have rationalized. I have no bitterness at all.

"I am happy to be playing baseball. If it's ordained that I don't make it, I can always become a carpenter or pump gas. Anybody can get a job."

It was in a nationally televised Monday night game against the New York Yankees on June 28, 1976 that he mesmerized his audience of millions.

A gawky-looking kid with a shock of curly blond hair, he wasn't content with merely blowing down opposing batters. He talked to the ball. He made a point of going around and congratulating his teammates as each inning ended. In long loping strides, he raced between the dugout and the mound.

After he had beaten the Yankees 5-1, the crowd gave him a standing, thundering ovation. In the vernacular of the theatre, he got a dozen curtain calls.

Fidyrych went on to a 19-9 record, completing 24 of his 29 appearances, starting the All-Star Game and finally winning Rookie of the Year honors. As the game's premier drawing card, he played his act before 901,239 spectators, averaging 31,077.

Emerging simultaneously with the advent of free agency, "The Bird" loomed as a certain multimillion dollar property. If an aging "Catfish" Hunter could demand $3.5 million from the Yankees, what would a younger, dynamite Fidyrych be worth in the open market — $7 million? Maybe $10 million.

But the dice didn't roll that way.

In spring training 1977, Fidyrych tore a cartilage in his left knee, requiring an operation. In July, tendinitis developed in his right shoulder. He pitched in only 11 games.

His miseries continued unabated through 1978 and 1979 when he pitched in a total of only seven games. He began a desperate round of leading doctors.

He didn't get his millions. He signed a one-year contract for $130,000.

Fidyrych made his 1980 debut Monday in an exhibition game against Kansas City. In 1 1/3 innings, he threw 48 pitches, gave up four hits and four runs, three unearned, walked two and struck out one.

Not the Fidyrych of old, but the pain was gone.

The Bird went about his business in a cold, deliberate way — no groundskeeping, no talking to the ball. Fans missed it.

"It's different when you're 25 than when you're 19," a somber Fidyrych said.

SUFFERING A STRING OF SNAKE EYES — Detroit Tigers pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidyrych pats down the mound in 1976 when he was a rookie pitcher, when it looked like lady luck was rolling the dice his way. But torn cartilage in his left knee and tendinitis, turned his career from early 7's and 11's to a string of snake eyes. Nevertheless, Fidyrych says he has no bitterness at all.

Soaring baseball salaries threaten survival

Twins owner sees trouble ahead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — He is the last of a vanishing baseball breed — an owner in the game for love and survival — and he sees nothing but black clouds ahead.

"The players all say they want security," said Calvin Griffith, president and board chairman of the Minnesota Twins. "What security do the owners have?"

of a new players' agreement, effective with the 1980 season.

Many insiders predict a strike. Even the most optimistic foresee a bitter, blood-letting battle in the council rooms and a delay in the campaign opening.

"We have to taper off some way," said Griffith, propping his feet on the desk of his executive office at Tinker Field, the Twins' training headquarters.

"We must get away from the arbitration. We must devise some means of proper compensation for players lost in the free agent draft. Some rein must be put on payrolls. We can't survive the way we are going."

Griffith is unique in the modern bigtime baseball structure. He doesn't own shipyards. He doesn't sell billions of hamburgers a year. He is not a Wall Street conglomerate. He is merely the head of a ball club that has been in the family for generations.

He and his sister, Mrs. Thelma Griffith-Haynes, inherited it from their uncle, Clark Griffith, long boss of the Washington Senators. The elder Griffith died in 1955. Five years later the franchise was moved to Minnesota where it has compiled a winning record (.523) for 19 years and frequently finished in the black.

With the Stonehams yielding their Giants' empire, Griffith and the Chicago White Sox' Bill Veeck remain the only owners to whom the game is a livelihood. And Veeck is an imaginative entrepreneur who, with syndicate support, has moved in and out of baseball over the years.

Last year the Twins drew 1,070,521 and, after trading super batsman Rod Carew, stayed in the pennant fight until the last two weeks of the season.

Griffith said the aim of every baseball club is to develop a gate attraction such as the Yankees' Reggie Jackson — "classical, controversial, he hustles and excites" — but under present conditions it is an elusive commodity.

"You sign a kid out of high school," he said. "You give him a bonus, you develop him in the minors, option him out for two years and, when he shows promise, you bring him to the big leagues.

"If you develop him into a star, you can't keep him. If you keep him, you can't afford him.

"You're damned if you do, damned if you don't."

"I guess I'm just not man enough to take it"

Beck resigns at Sweetwater

SWEETWATER — Sweetwater football coach and athletic director Don Beck submitted his resignation to the school board in a meeting here Thursday night.

Beck has been a highly successful football mentor throughout his career. He had compiled a record of 119-46 prior to coming to Sweetwater last year, and this mark included seven district championships. In his stint before Sweetwater at Perryton, Beck directed that Panhandle school to four district titles in six years.

But in his first season at Sweetwater, Beck's Mustangs suffered through a 1-9 record, which Beck admitted had an impact on his decision.

"I've been coaching 20 years and never lost more than five games in any one year until this past season," said Beck. "I guess I'm just not man enough to take it."

In submitting his resignation, Beck told the school board: "I feel it necessary for me to step down from the head football coaching position due to the fact that it would not be in the best interest of my wife and myself physically and mentally. We have been big winners throughout our coaching career until this past season and being a failure is more than my wife and I can stand. The stress of this position is killing us."

Sweetwater School Board president Temple Dickson indicated that the board would proceed immediately looking for a replacement.

From baseball's Hall of Fame Mize becoming bitter about absence

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The "Big Cat" waited by the telephone. He waited... and waited... and waited... When I didn't get a call by 1 o'clock, I knew I had missed again," Johnny Mize acknowledged from his home in Demarest, Ga.

"I didn't expect it much. I've been waiting 27 years. You can get a little hardened in that time. But I was sorry for my mother. She's 85 and in a nursing home. And for my grandson, 12, down in Florida.

"They see it on television. They read it in the papers. And they get their hopes up. My hopes — well, they've just about been killed."

All week the sports pages and the TV tubes had been blaring the story that of Johnny Mize, the "Big Cat" of the Cardinals, Giants and Yankees, was a certainty to get into baseball's Hall of Fame.

The 18-man Veterans Committee was meeting in Tampa Wednesday to redress oversights that may have been committed by the Baseball Writers of America in their responsibility to vote deserving players into the game's museum in Cooperstown, N.Y.

At 12:15, the doors opened and out stepped the committee with sheaths of statistics. Did the "Big Cat" finally make it? Well, no, sorry not this time. Honored posthumously were the pre-World War II slugging outfielder of the 'Phillies, Chuck Klein, and the longtime owner of the Boston Red Sox, the late Tom Yawkey.

"A year ago, they said it would be Hack Wilson, Klein or myself," Mize said over the phone from his rural Georgia home. "When Hack got it my wife said, 'Next year for you honey.' I said, 'Don't count on it. Klein will get it.' It was like it was written between the lines.

"I get the feeling that it'll never happen to me." The continuing disappointment has turned Johnny's pain into burlesque irony. He can laugh only when it hurts.

"In 1953, when I retired, the writers suddenly decided to put in a five-year waiting period for the Hall of Fame," he said. "Just when my 20-year eligibility expired and I was transferred to the Old Timers list, that committee decided on a five-year wait.

"The next thing they do probably will decide there has to be another 10-year wait. I get the feeling everything is stacked against me." The "Big Cat's" credentials are imposing.

STRUGGLE CONTINUES — Crystal Lee Sutton, on whose life the movie "Norma Rae" is patterned, gathers her thoughts during an interview in Los Angeles recently. Unlike the movie's happy ending, Mrs. Sutton's situation so far is anything but happy as she continues to

No TEA employees to lose jobs

Current polls indicate former President Ford is popular with voters, including rank-and-file Republicans. Statistics say he could whip Ronald Reagan or President Carter in a popularity contest today.
But presidential nominees are named by convention delegates, who tend to be party regulars. And all political soundings indicate they think Ford has waited too late to join the fray.
That groundshell of support he is seeking to launch his candidacy won't come from Republican Party leaders, particularly in Texas.

"We're not going to have to fire anybody... unless it's for incompetence, and I'm not too sure state agencies do that very often," Bynum told the House Subcommittee on Oversight of Public Education.
Bynum said the education agency is authorized to have 1,016 full-time classified employees.
"The truth is we don't have but about 930 actual employees working today," Bynum said.
He said TEA traditionally has "a bunch of vacancies," primarily in clerical areas. College and vocational school graduates often go to work at the agency just long enough to get experience and then leave, he said.
"We're having a lot of difficulty," he said.
Personnel expenses take $20 million of TEA's $25 million annual budget.
He said the agency is following the legislature's intent to reduce personnel by 5 percent. Further reductions in the number of employees will be possible as the agency gives employees in upper levels greater responsibilities.

Five seeking three seats

STANTON — Five candidates will be seeking three seats on the Stanton City Council in the April 5 election.
Howard Jenkins and Bill Rees are the incumbent councilmen, Rees having been appointed to fill an unexpired term.
The other candidates are Ronnie Christian, last person to file, Pearl Pruitt and Robert Haggard.

Water rate setting causing problems

AUSTIN — The Department of Water Resources wants out of the water rate-setting business.
Currently, the power to set water rates in Texas is scattered among the water resources department, the state Public Utility Commission, local governments and private business.
Water resources staff attorney Ronald J. Freeman told the House water code subcommittee Friday that the department supports placing all water rate-making jurisdiction in the Public Utility Commission, which "has the professional expertise to resolve the problems in an expeditious manner."
The water code subcommittee is looking into the question of water rate-making, but is not expected to produce a report until late this year.
Freeman later qualified his statement that all water rate cases should go to the utility commission by saying, "I don't think you'll see water rate cases inside municipalities being brought to the state, at least for original jurisdiction — maybe on appeal from a citizens group."
"The cities are just too powerful," he said.
Utility commission General Counsel John Bell said the commission is not ready to say whether it would like to assume power over most water rate cases.
The utility commission generally sets water rates only when drinking water is sold by privately owned companies for a profit, Bell said.
To date, the utility commission has identified more than 1,000 private water suppliers subject to state control, but state engineers say that "is only about 25 percent of all that is out there," he said.
"Many utilities don't even know we exist," the utility commission counsel said. "We're continually uncovering utilities that have not been certified by the PUC or have increased rates without permission."

Political soundings indicate Ford waited too long to join fray

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — I know how Gerald Ford feels. Sixteen years ago I was willing to make a personal sacrifice for the greater good.

There are huge differences between being President of the United States and being managing editor of a student newspaper, of course, but disguised ambition is about the same under any circumstance.

I was about to receive my second undergraduate degree and to venture into professional journalism. But the front-runner candidate for the managing editor slot on my beloved student newspaper wasn't one of our gang.

He had worked for the hated local newspaper for money rather than putting in long hours with us for love. Our gang met at a local beer garden to grumble, and out of that grew my highly popular candidacy.

A special board of faculty members and student politicians held the power of appointment, however. It looked at our qualifications, grades and my vague commitment to go to graduate school, and gave the job to the other guy.

I was pushed out into the real world where I belonged and my opponent became a top-notch managing editor.

At the State Republican Executive Committee meeting in Austin last week, even dedicated Ford workers from 1976 showed little enthusiasm for a repeat of Ford versus Carter.

Several said Ford's popularity would be like Sen. Edward Kennedy's on the Democratic side: much higher as a potential candidate than as an actual one.

But Ford's decision for 1980 probably will be based as much on emotion as on careful analysis.

The former president can have no love for Reagan, whose bitter campaign to take the 1976 Republican nomination from Ford helped put Jimmy Carter in the White House.

He undoubtedly wants to save the country from both Reagan and Carter and thus can look upon his possible candidacy in terms of sacrifice rather than ambition.

I understand, but I wonder if he wouldn't be wise to stay out of beer gardens until after the July convention.

Texas Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg is using the term "political bribery" to describe Gov. Bill Clements' success in turning Democratic lawyers into Republican judges.

Clements has appointed Democrats to several judicial vacancies after extracting promises to run for full terms as Republicans.

Goldberg says defeating these new Republicans is a top priority for Democrats this year.

Clements' action also has angered some longtime Republicans who think party regulars should benefit from the governor's appointive powers.

One Clements appointee, George Strake Jr., told the GOP executive committee last week that he is the third Republican to be Texas' secretary of state.

The first two served back in the turbulent post-Civil War days. Strake said one committed suicide and the other was indicted.

"I stand here to tell you that I will improve on the record of both of them," Strake deadpanned.

Feasibility studies start

STANTON — Feasibility studies for the formation of a YMCA have been undertaken by the Martin County Chamber of Commerce.

Donnie Hull and Herb Sorley told Chamber board members that a Y could function here without a special facility. Two gymnasiums in Stanton and one in Grady could be used for Y activities, according to Hull and Sorley.

BAGGING GROCERIES — Fifth District Congressman Ken Kramer (right), R-Colo., talks with Mrs. Diane Gosney as he bags groceries at a supermarket in Aurora, a suburb of Denver, on Friday. Kramer, who is running for re-election, said he bagged groceries to get closer to the voters.

SEWER SMOKE — Albuquerque city workers pump smoke into a section of the city's sewer system Friday in an attempt to discover possible illegal residential sewer hookups. Officials said the smoke drifted from sewer pipes through vents that lead to all houses hooked up to the sewer section and exited through roof vents.

Railroad Commission: A race for power -- I

Record sums to be spent on agency races

By JACKIE CALMES
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The glamour offices of governor, lieutenant governor and U.S. senator are the acme for most ambitious Texas politicians. Though those offices aren't available this election year, two seats on the Texas Railroad Commission are.

Many say that's where real power — if not glamour — resides.

Eight men, four Democrats and four Republicans, are vying in their parties' primaries May 3 to join the three-member commission that regulates Texas' powerful energy, transportation and gas utility industries.

Among the Democratic contenders are two incumbents, John H. Poerner of Hondo and James E. Nugent of Kerrville, both former state representatives and appointees of former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

After two years on the commission, Poerner, the current chairman, says, "I don't know if any other state official that has more power than we do. But I'm not saying we're the most powerful."

Translation: the three commissioners do not have great individual and wide-ranging powers, but collectively, they have important regulatory authority over major industries.

But Nugent says, "This is a regulatory agency; it's not a power agency." A New York producer for CBS' "Sixty Minutes" may have been dissuaded from doing a piece on the commission partially because, the producer says, Nugent convinced him the agency isn't the powerhouse it once was.

Originally, as the name implies, the commission regulated only railroads. It was established in 1891 at Gov. Jim Hogg's impetus as a rein on greedy rail barons.

In 1919, the commission, being an established regulatory agency, was given its more familiar powers over the oil and gas industry, powers that were strengthened in 1930 as oil gushed from East Texas fields. The commission, controlling the flow and cost of most of the country's fuel, became a force beyond Texas borders.

But the force was only as vital as the Texas fields and in the 1970s both diminished. The commission power eroded as that of the federal government and, more importantly, the Arab oil cartel increased. Moreover, when the commission began allowing full production in 1972, it lost its power to fix prices by limiting supply.

The commission retains its original control of intrastate rail operations. It also regulates commercial trucking and bus transportation. It administers federal pricing and production regulations for oil and gas. And, not the least of its functions, it sets gas utility rates.

"Within the state the railroad commission has tremendous specific regulatory powers," says Rep. Arthur "Buddy" Temple of Diboll, Poerner's challenger in the May 3 Democratic primary.

"And," he adds critically, "it should have great national influence because it's the energy agency for the country's leading energy producing state."

That it lacks its former national clout is the fault of the commissioners, particularly Poerner — a "laughingstock" in Washington, D.C., Temple says.

All three men are "goofballs" in national circles, says Jim Hightower, Nugent's Democratic opponent.

Hightower, a self-proclaimed populist who worked in Washington as a public interest advocate from 1970 to 1975, says, "They're just not listened to. They're buffoons... just caricatures of Texans."

But Chairman Poerner says commissioners "are on a first-name basis" with federal bureaucrats and have influence with them.

Sure they fight sometimes, he says, especially on energy issues.

"We just know more about it than the feds," Poerner says. "But in a nice way we try to gently persuade them to see the side of a producing state." Nugent says the commission shares its energy-related data, which he says is the best in the country, with the federal government. "And it's benefited both of us," he says.

For the 1980 primaries, the commission races top the ballots. Occupants of other nonjudicial state offices, including the governor, are just halfway through four-year terms now in 1978.

The unusual prominence has attracted media attention unprecedented for commission races. And candidates, particularly Democrats, are planning media campaigns of their own, ensuring that record sums will be spent on both races.

Several Republicans say they'll spend little more than the $1,500 filing fee for the primary. But Democrats' estimates range from $300,000 for Hightower, Poerner and Nugent to $600,000 for Temple.

Hightower, former editor of the Texas Observer, foresaw the media blitz and counts it as one factor in his decision to run.

"It used to be that they (commission candidates) were so far down on the ballot that by the time people got down there, it was a name recognition race based on whatever billboards or media spots voters had seen," he says. "That favored an industry candidate because they could just buy that."

Hightower says he welcomes even the media plans of other candidates because they will draw public attention to the Railroad Commission.

"If people know what the Railroad Commission is, if they know it's their utility bills, if they know it's oil prices, strip mining, truck permits — their pocketbooks — they'll vote and they'll throw these industry guys out."

Both Nugent and Poerner chafe at charges they are industry pawns. Nugent says the commission acts in consumers' best interests. Poerner agrees, and says the public scrutiny of this election year will bear him out.

Like Hightower, Temple has been campaigning for months. He, too, has encountered public ignorance about the commission. "Most people understand that it has pretty broad and important powers, but they are not sure what those powers are," he says.

Two of the four Republican candidates are knowledgeable about commission powers. H.J. "Doc" Blanchard, Austin Attorney and part-time lobbyist, and Henry C. "Hank" Grover, a Houston public relations man, both served in the Texas House and Senate. Grover's narrow margin of defeat in the 1972 governor's race convinced others, notably Bill Clements, that a Republican could win.

Blanchard is unopposed and will meet the winner of the Nugent-Hightower battle in November. He says he joined the race out of frustration that the present commissioners "just mouth a lot of rhetoric" in response to increasing energy costs and decreasing supplies.

He says they have failed to push development of alternate sources of fuel such as gasohol, lignite and solar energy, to hold down gasoline prices and gas utility rates, to convince Texans that the energy crisis is real and to lobby in Washington for the state's interests.

Grover, who is one of three Republicans in the primary opposite Poerner and Temple, says the commission "is one of the most powerful offices in the state and one of the most important. It always has been, but more so now in view of the energy situation."

Grover's less-known rivals are John Thomas Henderson of Austin and E.W. "Billy" Kidd of Weatherford.

Henderson, a retired sales representative, ran as a Democrat in 1978 and came within a half million votes of beating incumbent commissioner Mack Wallace.

As in 1978, the self-financed Henderson is running on a consumer platform void of specifics. "The railroad commissioners have been playing footsie with the big oil boys for years — that's general knowledge," he says.

Kidd, unlike the others who say they specifically want a commission seat, candidly says he is running because railroad commissioner is the only state office other than judge that is available.

The owner of Eddie Kidd Ford in Weatherford, he is a political newcomer motivated by remorse — "I haven't been an active citizen and I really feel ashamed" — and by the radio message of conservative millionaire businessman Eddie "I'm Mad" Chiles.

"Mr. Chiles there in Fort Worth told us to get mad, and I guess I just got mad," Kidd says.

Colorado cowboy collects $2,035 at Angelo rodeo

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The highlight of the San Angelo rodeo, which sold out for four of its six performances, was undoubtedly timed-event competitor Dave Brock of Pueblo, Colo. Brock won the first round, placed in the second, and took the average in the steer wrestling for a total of $2,035.

The top cowboy is also a competitor in the upcoming Schlitz Roundup of Champions, to be held in the San Diego Sports Arena March 21-23.

Schlitz Roundup of Champions is a blend of conceptual rodeo firsts — the culmination of a 15-month, $400,000 commercially sponsored plan to corral the proven best athletes in professional rodeo for competition; and the first event other than the "world series" National Finals Rodeo (NFR) to be both sanctioned and produced by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA).

In 1979 and early 1980, Schlitz was the primary sponsor of the PRCA circuit system, which was created for the close-to-home professional. Many top cowboys travel the North American continent in quest of PRCA world cham-ionships. There are others of great professional ability and skill who, because the jobs, family or other responsibilities cannot devote their full time to rodeo. For those cowboys, the circuit system maintains the tradition of local competition and recognition, as well as financial reward for the hometown top hand.

The circuit system is composed of 12 geographical areas which cover the entire continental United States. PRCA members and permit holders earn circuit points only when competing in the circuit in which they reside. Accumulated points at the season's end determine the circuit champions and rodeo fans within the circuit are given the opportunity to follow their hometown favorites — contestants with familiar names. At the end of each rodeo season, top circuit contestants compete in a circuit finals rodeo.

Schlitz' contribution in awards (both trophies and added purse money) for the circuit system totaled almost $150,000 last season. In addition, Schlitz provided special added purse money — more than $70,000 — at six selected PRCA rodeos in 1979. Their effort is topped off with $191,000 in special purse money at the Prorodeo Roundup of Champions in San Diego. Another $25,000-plus in contestant entry fees will be added to the special purse.

PRCA divisional leaders: ALL AROUND COWBOY — Paul Tierney, Rapid City, S.D., $28,347; SADDLE BRONC RIDING — Bud Munroe, Billings, Mont., $13,918; BARREL RACING — Mickey Young, Feffron, Utah, $15,480; BULL RIDING — Denny Flynn, Charleston, Ark., $14,441; CALF ROPING — Paul Tierney, Rapid City, S.D., $17,047; STEER WRESTLING — Tom Ferguson, Miami, Okla., $12,951; TEAM ROPING — Doyle Gellerman, Okla., $7,274 and Walt Woodard, Stockton, Calif., $7,274; GRA BARREL RACING — Martha Josey, Karnack, Tex., $7,771.

Starting work at Stacy reservoir is discussed

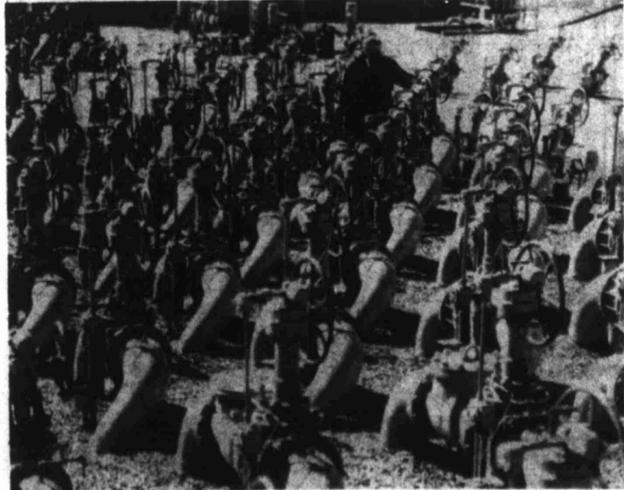

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District Thursday discussed the possibility of beginning work on the Stacy reservoir pending final adjudication of an appeal of a permit for the lake.

O.H. Ivie, general manager, reviewed in detail the aspects of the project in view of the judgment by Herman Jones, judge of the 53rd District Court, upholding validity of Permit 3676 issued by the Texas Water Commission. P.C. Harbour, Odessa, District president, said that there was a sense of urgency about proceeding, and that the board is exploring the matter.

The project has been in the mill since October 1977 when the board filed a permit application, which was contested by the Lower Colorado River Authority and others in the longest and costliest water hearing in the state's history. This long delay, Ivie said, has thrown the project substantially behind schedule, and all the while growth has accelerated in the area, particularly the west end of the system.

In other matters, the board approved a lease of some 10 acres to the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, which is exchanging land on the north side of Lake J.B. Thomas to be nearer the main body of the lake when it reaches a normal level. Most of the new pumping equipment is in place or on hand to enable the delivery of 10,000,000 gallons of water a day to the western leg of the system, W.P. Odom, assistant general manager, reported. The Ward County well field, which was brought on production February 23 as a quality control measure, has been automated with electronic controls for smoother operations.

DON'T TURN THE WRONG ONE — Unidentified technician examines some of the more than 100 shutoff valves grouped at a Long Beach, Calif., central gathering station. Each bank of valves represents a different petroleum product or refinery. Major oil companies send refined products through the station, where they are routed to military, commercial distributors and other consumers throughout southern California, Nevada and Arizona.

GRISLY HOSPITAL PLOT — David Brandsness, executive director of Sunrise Hospital in Las Vegas, Nev., told reporters that Clark County Law enforcement authorities are investigating charges an unnamed nurse allegedly "pulled the plug" on several intensive care patients during recent months while handling bets from staffers on when the patients would die. "It probably makes me about as sick as anything I can think of," he said.

Cotton Inc. issue aired

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Charges and countercharges regarding the management of Cotton, Inc., the research and promotion program financed by some 90,000 U.S. cotton farmers, have been bouncing around for months.

The entire issue was given a thorough airing during recent oversight hearings held by the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Cotton, of which I am a member. Following some 15 hours of testimony, I feel a great deal of the misunderstandings and misconceptions which clouded the issue were cleared up and steps were reviewed that I believe will ease tensions and tempers and put Cotton, Inc. back on the right track: solving problems facing the cotton industry and effectively promoting cotton products.

Cotton, Inc. has been a unique program since its inception. Since 1976, when the last government funds were appropriated for the program, it has been totally financed by the per-bale check-off program. Since farmers have the option to request a refund of that hard-earned money, producer confidence is essential. While many of the charges have, in my opinion, stemmed from personality conflicts among some national figures, it was the complaints by the producers themselves that I noted most of all.

Keeping in mind the fact that the producer is, in effect, a share-holder in Cotton, Inc. the same as in any large corporation, I could not help but agree with many of their proposals. Basically, the most common request involved increased accountability for the financial actions and directions of the program.

Other recommendations included the direct election of members of the governing boards by producers themselves and possible merger of the Cotton Board and the Cotton, Inc. Board to avoid duplication, division and unnecessary expense. They also asked for more detailed reporting to producers of the program's budget and expenditures.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm

None of these requests are unreasonable and all, I believe, will now be seriously reviewed by the Cotton Board, the Cotton, Inc. Board and U.S.D.A. Then it is time to put aside any personality differences and get on with the job at hand.

That job is by no means a small one. Despite the many contributions made by Cotton, Inc. in past years, there is much work that demands immediate attention. Just one critical area is the need for continuing cotton dust-byssinosis research. Lack of such applied research, with particular emphasis on the ginning level, can cripple the entire industry. Initial efforts to solve this complex problem must come from the cotton producers themselves.

After months and years of letters, innuendoes, allegations and generally the "trial by the press" of Cotton, Inc., I am pleased to reach the point where I feel we have heard "the rest of the story." I have every confidence in the producer leadership of Cotton, Inc. to make the right decisions.

Now it is time to move ahead and time to begin thinking in terms of "100 percent cotton" again.

Epic comedy bends history like a pretzel

Following the international success of "Jaws" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," which rank among the most popular films of all time, Steven Spielberg decided that his next project would be a comedy. The result is "1941," which opens at the Theatre, a large-scale production set in Los Angeles during the panic-stricken days following the attack on Pearl Harbor, when most of the population of Southern California believed that a Japanese invasion could come at any time.

Specifically, "1941" is a zany account of just 24 hours — the day and night of December 13th, just six days after Pearl Harbor, when the hysteria, paranoia and fears of the times were climaxed by a mysterious 14-hour blackout that threw Los Angeles into a state of pandemonium. Cars driving without headlights piled into one another on the freeways. Normally sane people ran through the streets, breaking store windows to put out the lights. Rumors of Japanese troops landing on the coast swept through the city.

"This is a comedy, not a war picture," explains the brilliant young filmmaker.

"We've bent history like a pretzel and filmed 'The Great Los Angeles Air Raid' as it might have happened." Several other bizarre incidents of the period add to the confusion and hilarity of the story. "The Zoot Suit Riots," a series of street fights between servicemen and the colorfully dressed Pachuco give an extra dimension of humor to the film's biggest scene — a riot on Hollywood Boulevard during the blackout. And the real-life submarine shelling of a California oilfield that resulted in less than $500 worth of damages is dramatized in "1941" as an attack on the Pacific Ocean Park pier, a somewhat more amusing target.

Starring in Spielberg's "action misadventure," as he calls it, are Dan Aykroyd, Ned Beatty, John Belushi, Lorraine Gary, Murray Hamilton, Christopher Lee, Tim Matheson, Toshiro Mifune, Warren Oates, Robert Stack and Treat Williams. In addition to a big costarring and featured cast, literally hundreds of extras and stunt people were used to dramatize the sweeping panorama of this one frantic day and night of hysteria.

A carefully researched replica of Hollywood

Boulevard during the 1941 Christmas season, the film's largest interior set, was recreated at the Burbank Studios for the riot scenes. Other important scenes were filmed at a Long Beach airport, with more than a dozen vintage World War II airplanes; inside a former theater converted into the war-time Hollywood USO, where more than 100 dancers house which they later demolished for one spectacular climaxing scene of the film.

In addition to the actual locations and interior sets, two of the largest miniatures ever built for a film were constructed in exacting detail to represent Hollywood Boulevard and the Ocean Park Amusement pier. Most of the special effects, however, were created in the old-fashioned way — by performers doing their thing in front of the camera rather than with miracles of action being created in optical laboratories. More than 50 trained stunt people were employed to enact the non-stop stream of action and sight gags that keep the manic narrative of "1941" rolling along.

Technical innovations include the most extensive use of the Louma Crane, a modular, hand-portable camera platform that gives unprecedented flexibility and kinetic energy to camera movements. The inventors of the ingenious device, Jean-Marie Lavalou and Alain Masseron, were present during the use of their invention in the submarine sequences of "1941."

A Steven Spielberg Film, "1941" is A Universal Pictures and Columbia Pictures presentation of An A-Team Production. Dan Aykroyd, Ned Beatty, John Belushi, Lorraine Gary, Murray Hamilton, Christopher Lee, Penny Marshall, Tim Matheson, Toshiro Mifune, Warren Oates, Robert Stack and Treat Williams star in the film, which was directed by Steven Spielberg. Produced by Buzz Feunshang, with John Milius as Executive Producer, the screenplay is by Robert Zemeckis & Bob Gale, and the story is by Robert Zemeckis & Bob Gale and John Milius.

'Saturn 3' a futuristic thriller

"Saturn 3," an AFD science-fiction release starring Farrah Fawcett and Kirk Douglas as space scientists is isolated on Saturn's third moon, and Harvey Keitel as their demented visitor opened Friday at the Cinema Theatre.

The futuristic thriller, produced and directed by Stanley Donen from a screenplay by Martin Amis, is from an original story by the late John Barry, Oscar-winning production designer of "Star Wars" and "Superman."

Marking the science fiction debut for Donen as well as for the stars, "Saturn 3," finds Fawcett and Douglas happily sharing their lives as they work in a high-tech space lab to find new ways to feed an overcrowded, exhausted Earth some four hundred years from now. Their space-age Eden is shattered when Keitel arrives and sets loose an 8-ft. monster robot — Hector, the first of the Demi-God series. Hector is programmed by a direct drain from Keitel's psychotic brain. Then Saturn goes into eclipse . . . and the defenseless space-station, cut off from the rest of the universe, becomes an orbiting chamber of horrors as Hector, congenitally insane, runs amok. While Hector himself is a brain-child of modern technology — with champ-like hands, laser-beam eyes waving on stalks, vital juices flowing through exposed tubing on a frame based on Leonardo Da Vinci's famed anatomical drawings — the space-station he sets out to pulverize is a showcase of futurology.

To bring to life this final vision of John Barry, production designer Stuart Craig (Barry's assistant on "Superman") created a future-world on two huge adjoining sound stages.

Two modules — one a lab of whirling, flashing computers, nutrient chambers and an attached garage for a moonbuggy; the other a suede-lined living area filled with 24th century "antique" furniture from the present — were built of paneled sections. Outcroppings of lava at intervals attest to their lunar underground origins.

Connecting them is a honeycomb of strangely sinister tunnels, winding every which way and perpetually lit with a psychedelic, fluorescent blue.

Controlled by a thousand-eyed energy center, the space station is geared for any contingency . . . except an 8-ft. rogue robot running wild.

"Saturn 3" is a Lord Grade Presentation in association with Elliott Kastner of a Stanley Donen Film. Director of cinematography was Billy Williams, B.S.C., and music was by Elmer Bernstein. Martin Starger was executive producer.

A couple's struggle accounted Library has four new novels

By RONALD TESTER
County Libraries

Four novels and a true account of one young couple's attempt to trade urban life for the wilderness are among the new books at the Howard County Library.

Few of Winston Graham's 25 novels pack the punch of his new book, "The Merciless Ladies," delivered in the kind of British understatement that heightens the drama. William Grant, narrator, explores events in the lives of a large cast, chiefly friends who grow up during World War I. During the 1920s, Paul Stafford attracts Diana Marnsett and her London "smart set" as a promising painter. Paul's impoverished boyhood affects him so that he settles for facile success and the society of Diana until he becomes disillusioned. When he paints her portrait and hangs it among a series of famous courtesans, Diana's suit for libel becomes the crux of the plot. But the affair also involves Paul's marriage to another "merciless lady," and the narrator's heroic act of self-sacrifice when Paul's freedom to create is in jeopardy. The story's many intertwined events and haunting characters combine to create nonstop surprises, none so unexpected as the last.

"Labors of Love," by R.V. Cassill is not your standard fiction about midlife crises and a man torn between two women. The author has presented us with a novel that is particularly wise, witty and observant, and there is a freshness to his prose that makes one sit up and take notice. Troy Slater is a textbook editor, a would-be writer, with two terrific kids, a tough and practical wife, and a somewhat crazy, mystical young mistress who declares their love is "sacred" and builds a shrine to Slater in her bedroom. As the Slatters summer on Cape Cod, the mistress decides to push the issue — force a divorce — and eventually the truth comes spilling out, despite Troy's reluctance to split up his family and his maneuvers to keep the affair secret. Author Cassill is inventive with his characters, and his story never once lapses into cliché.

In "The First Book of Eppe," author Roderick MacLeish introduces us to Sherborne Eppe, as charming a character as a reader could hope for. At 24, he has just been released from a classy mental hospital where he has been unjustly incarcerated for the past seven years, committed after he had the nerve to toss his mother's obnoxious Latin lover into the pool. His first move is to find a job, which he does, working for a short time before he realizes he is involved in selling stolen auto parts. This gets him into trouble with the cops as well as with the thieves. He flees cross-country, stumbling into a position as press officer for a political candidate in a tough mining town, then into a role as an investigative reporter probing a phony evangelist for a local TV station. His adventures, which eventually lead him to his long-lost father, are delightful; his fellow characters are a pleasure; the novel is terrific fun.

In recent years, disillusioned young people have attempted to escape from the materialism of urban life, seeking privacy and contentment in the wilderness. "Island Sojourn," by Elizabeth Arthur, describes one such escape attempt. The author and her husband ruefully discover, as many others have, that living in the wilderness means isolation and hardships. By themselves, the couple built a permanent house on a three-acre island in Stuart Lake, British Columbia. The second winter brought storms that cut them off from other people for more than seven weeks, and the house became a prison. They realized that, though they loved the wilderness, they could not stay. Despite the bad experience of that winter, Arthur does not spin a tale of defeat and self-pity; it is an honest story of human limitations.

Mary Vann Hunter's first novel, "Sassafras," tells of a girl's growing up in the post-World War II decade and encompasses three generations of a rural North Carolina family. Batty begins her reminiscences at the funeral services for her beloved Granddaddy and the reader is caught up in the real-life humor and pain of being female in small-town America. In Batty's girlhood her beauty, innocence and upbringing are formidable hurdles on her journey to fulfillment as a woman. Author Hunter excels in evoking the loving ambience of Batty's extended family and the enduring relationship with her parents. Batty's people-filled world is charming Americana of what seems, in retrospect, a much gentler time.

You & your family are cordially invited to Open House Today & we believe you'll be pleasantly surprised in these brick homes. Very spacious by today's standards, the 3 br, 1 1/2 bth features refrigerated air, central heating, covered patio-storage, pretty tree lined streets, neighborhood play parks and priced under $30,000.00. Other 2 & 3 br for under $25,000.00. Howard County soil fertility levels variable Records on every soil test submitted to our Soil Testing Laboratory at Lubbock were surveyed this week, reports Don Richardson. This step was considered essential since our producers are beginning to wrap up another soil preparation and fertilization period. Rising production costs is another factor which prompted this survey.

Records from the County Extension Agent's office were separated into two groups, said Richardson. The first group included the soil tests taken before the fall of 1979. This first set of records go back until 1975.

"The second group included only this year's soil tests. Our first glance is to check where are our producers headed. Soil test numbers this year are running three-fold higher than soil tests determined in previous years," said Richardson. Fertilizer costs is a big factor for this additional interest. Newer technology at the soil testing laboratory is another factor.

Generally, we see that soil fertility levels are becoming more productive. Cotton yields this year are an indication of this point. Our 1979 cotton yields are running over 500 lbs.-A against less than 500 lbs.-A from previous years remembered as "one of those good ones."

Hog producers raise market checkoff rate

ST. LOUIS - In what the industry calls "a giant step forward" for producers, the National Pork Producers Council approved Thursday an increased voluntary market hog checkoff rate.

Hog producers raise market checkoff rate

A 10-cent per hog increase will be implemented in January 1981 following a meeting of delegates to the American Pork Congress in St. Louis. The checkoff now will be 20 cents per hog.

Easter Seals Telethon aids handicapped to achieve life goals

By MICKIE DICKSON
The National Easter Seal Telethon scheduled March 22-23 helps make dreams come true. The happy family of Dave and Christine "Chris" Kunchik proves it.

The Easter Seal Telethon, participated in by the Howard County Easter Seal Society with local telephone pledge location in the Mesa Valley Toyota showroom, will air over KOSA TV, Channel 7, next weekend.

Russell Rawlings, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rawlings, 1505 Tucson, is the Easter Seal Poster Child for 1980 and will be featured on the Telethon.

Christine Valasek of Ford City, Pa., was struck with multiple sclerosis, a progressive illness which attacks the central nervous system at 16 years of age, and spent about five years in bed. Chris was unable to feed herself or get out of bed by the spring of the next year. She watched television until her eyesight failed and had two years of homebound instructions, lacking only four credits graduating from Ford City High School. Chris is legally blind.

Today, at 31, she is living a Cinderella story through her real-life experience. Chris met David Kunchik at Camp Lend-a-Hand near Conneaut Lake which was sponsored by the Easter Seal Society. David was spending the summer there as a full time counselor, having taught swimming for Easter Seals. The couple met on July 20, 1975, fell in love, married and soon had Amy Kim, their daughter who is now 3.

Chris discovered that she had to fight back against the disease when her mother died of cancer and she was able to sit in a wheelchair for the funeral. She began sitting in her wheelchair a little more each day, learning to talk again by looking in a mirror so that she could learn to pronounce words. She started on the Dantrium program in Pittsburgh, Pa., which helped her muscles relax enough for her to force them back into use. "I also went into the therapy program so that I could learn to dress and wash myself," she said. She learned to eat again. At first it was with fingers and then a spoon. "Now I eat with a fork, anything, just as long as it is food, I eat good balanced meals."

She remembers the summer of 1975 vividly. She felt comfortable in her wheelchair and her determination was still strong. Since she was Pennsylvania's Miss Wheelchair, the Venango County Easter Seal Society encouraged her to spend two weeks at Camp Lend-a-Hand. "It was a wonderful weekend," Chris recalls.

On Aug. 2 Dave went to Ford City and they had their first date, a full day of folk festival, a movie and places to eat. When Chris went to the Columbus, Ohio, pageant to select the country's Miss Wheelchair, Dave was at her side. Chris received the special national honor of Miss Achievement and a huge trophy that went with the honor. The young couple became engaged and planned a wedding the following June. Instead they eloped on April 14, 1976 and lived in an apartment in Franklin, Pa.

Dave, Cris and Amy Kim moved to Big Spring last August for her health, Dave having been born in Houston. He started to work at Big Spring State Hospital, took in-service training, and is now working with the behavioral modification program. David has a year of psychology at Slippery Rock State College in Pennsylvania, three years experience in a general hospital in Franklin in addition to counseling experience.

The Howard County Easter Seals Society has sponsored the Easter Seal Parent and Family Group recently, and the Kunchik's are avid participants and supporters. Dave has to work on weekends so one of the members, Mrs. Dixie Fortune, baby sits with Amy when the Immaculate Heart of Mary day-care center where she goes week-days is closed. His and Chris' experience with living with her disability is an aid to parents of handicapped children in helping them to prepare to live full lives.

Amy participates in the Kindergarten program at the YMCA and the whole family goes swimming. Chris floats well and is able to move her arms enough to propel herself through the water. Dave taught her to swim when she was 27.

Dave takes Chris to the Rehabilitation Center on his one day off. It is his hope and Larry Bristo's (director of the Rehab) dream for the Rehab Center to eventually have a 15-passenger van equipped with a hydraulic lift and lock-ins for wheelchairs to transport patients to the Center for therapy.

Russell Rawlings, the Easter Seal Poster Child for 1980, was born with his right lung collapsed in Feb. 4, 1977. Treatment began at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center for him at five months when he evidenced lack of head control, had no use of his arms, and unusually small chest and didn't make crying noises. Russell could not sit alone, his head would lag when pulled to a sitting position and he didn't reach for toys. The diagnosis was developmental delay. With special handling techniques and Caren Rawlings, his mother, helping him with exercises she was taught to prevent deformities, facilitate head control and encourage normal movement of his arms, he showed improvement by July 25. Showing head control, he rolled from prone to supine position and showed some muscular control. Russell could play with objects, put his hand to his mouth and reach for things.

The goal set for Russell by the Rehabilitation therapists January of 1978 was to improve his head control, to increase strength in the upper trunk, and to get him to rolling over, propping on forearms and using his arms. By December, he was reporting to the Center four times a week for Occupational Therapy activities and improving slowly. His speech and knowledge of forms, numbers, letters and colors was increasing rapidly. By October, 1979, as a two and a half year old Russell had learned to crawl on the floor by pulling himself along on his stomach using his elbows, hips and lower extremities. Russell's diagnosis at the present time is cerebral palsy.

"Any family that has a handicapped child or family member is going to have to deal with frustration," said Caren Rawlings, Russell's mom. "You learn to take each day at a time and watch for and be grateful for small improvements rather than looking at the overall situation. Russell is extremely bright mentally, which causes frustration for him as well as me. He will go to Early Childhood classes at Moss Elementary School next year which will help."

Many children and adults are helped at the Rehabilitation Center, in the Special Education classes in Big Spring Independent School District, the Public Health Department, Department of Human Resources, and other agencies as well as the Association for Retarded Citizens and the Howard County Easter Seal Society.

Tom Farquhar, 72, of 615 Ridgela, was electrocuted while working on the 3M plant at Brownwood January 28, 1969 when he was caught between two phases (hot wires) of 480 and 277 volts with full loads on each. After spending two weeks in the hospital, Farquhar began a life-long series of therapy treatments, surgery and many more hospital stays. The accident destroyed the bursa or oil throughout his shoulders and caused bone deterioration. The therapy he takes is to keep his shoulders from freezing up. Farquhar has taken treatments from twice a day for two weeks to twice a week for 12 years. In between times he gardens and exercises his arms and shoulders at home. Recently Farquhar suffered two heart attacks and has developed diverticulitis. Before his accident, Farquhar was an electrician since 1945 and wired the Big Spring Herald building.

Farquhar has a high regard for the medical and therapeutic help he has received at the hands of fine people who are dedicated to helping those in need. Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center came in for its share of praise from him for he feels that the whole staff is dedicated to serving the patients and that they need all the support the community can give them.

The Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Howard County's program is designed to help disabled persons find and make effective use of available resources which will help them develop their abilities and live purposeful lives. A primary function of Easter Seal Societies is a program of information, referral and follow-up whenever feasible. The societies establish, operate and develop programs and services in health, welfare, education, recreation and employment which are necessary for the rehabilitation of crippled children and adults.

In addition they develop and conduct educational programs for the public as a means of helping the crippled achieve fuller and better lives physically, emotionally, intellectually and vocationally.

Through the Easter Seal Research Foundation, the HC Easter Seal Society participates and furthers research into the causes and prevention of crippling conditions and improving methods of care, education and treatment of crippled children and adults.

The Easter Seal Society recently sponsored the Parent and Family Group as an awareness group so that families with crippled children and adult members can aid each other through sharing and assistance. The group meets every other Monday evening at the Dora Roberts Rehab Center and have a baby sitting service available. So far they have an average attendance of 14 and have had a speaker each meeting. Monday night the meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the Rehab Center when a program on the March of Dimes will be presented and officers will be elected. Further information may be obtained by phoning 267-6387 and asking to speak to Leslie Lacy, or Carla Warrington. Visitors are welcome at all the meetings.

The Howard County Easter Seal Society conducts an annual Easter Seal Campaign and other necessary fund raising activities. This year they are selling Nestle's solid milk chocolate Easter rabbits at $2.50 each which can be purchased at the Rehabilitation Center, Swartz and the Howard County Abstract Company between now and Easter, and at the Mesa Valley Toyota on Telethon weekend, March 22-23. The Easter Seal Telethon is conducted in March of each year. The 1980 Telethon is over KOSA, Channel 7 and the local Telethon telephone pledge location is Mesa Valley Toyota showroom 511 Gregg St., 267-2555. Contributions may be mailed to the Easter Seal Society P.O. Box 2029, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Memorials are also accepted anytime.

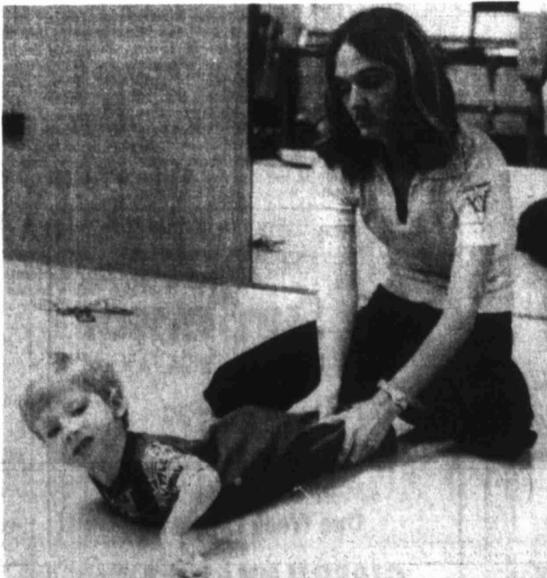

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center personnel as well as patients are grateful for all donations, realizing that many could not receive treatment if it were not for the kind people of Big Spring area's financial support, they could not operate. The Center is understaffed and lacks needed equipment, but goes a long way toward meeting the needs of crippled and handicapped people.

Remodeling series is available

From JANET ROGERS, County Extension Agent

Housing costs are going up faster than incomes because of high loan, land, labor and material costs. Money for new home loans is in short supply because of Texas laws and high interest rates. Therefore, fewer people can afford to buy housing at today's costs.

Those who already own a home are choosing to remodel since money is easier to borrow for home improvements. Homeowners who choose to remodel face major consumer decisions.

A new mailout series on "Home Remodeling" will provide some guidelines for making those decisions. The mailout series is free upon request. The series will consist of five sections focusing on topics such as evaluating the structure of an older home, guidelines for remodeling, how to select and work with professionals, remodeling alternatives, and planning a new bathroom for the home.

You may request enrollment in this series either by phone or mail. You will receive the first section of the mailout series March 31. Contact Janet Rogers, county extension agent-home economics, 267-8468 or 267-1821 P.O. Box 790, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serves people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Mrs. Audrey Early of Coahoma, was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Bill Early reported the name Early-Early was adopted from the Irish name

B & PW begins 'Tally Rally'

The Big Spring Business and Professional Women's Club met March 11, at the Texas Electric Service Company community room, at 7 p.m. for their regular monthly business meeting. Kip Bracy, president, presided.

The main idea of business was centered around the upcoming "Tally Rally" membership drive, and to acquaint women with B&PW's goals, services and opportunities.

The Tally Rally is a new endeavor to attract new members and is a partnership arrangement. The club membership chairman and club treasurer are the coordinators and every member becomes a part of the team.

The two teams are Tally "A's" with Louise Nuckolls, chairman; and Tally "B's" with Nancy Martin, chairman.

The completion date for the Tally Rally is May 15. The deadline date for payment of dues is June 1 (end of our fiscal year). The winning team will be rewarded by the losing team.

Any working woman in business or the professions should benefit as a member of B&PW which consists of three federations, state, national and international.

The National Federation was organized in 1919 to elevate the standards for women in business and the professions; to promote the interests of business and professional women, to bring about a spirit of cooperation among businesses and professionals in the United States; and to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along lines of industrial, scientific, and vocational activities.

The State Federation supports the National Federation, which in turn supports the International Federation which extends to many countries throughout the world.

The National Foundation, designed for research and expansion of educational opportunities for working women serves as a research center and library which is a source of data and information on matters relating to working women, provides educational assistance to women through loans, scholarships or fellowships and sponsors meetings and conferences for those interested in the role and advancement of women in business and the professions.

This foundation is supported by members of B&PW clubs throughout the nation. Grants, scholarships and fellowships are given to individuals rather than to schools.

The Texas Federation of B&PW clubs is divided into 15 districts with more than 8,000 members.

Any employed woman in Big Spring is invited to inquire further concerning the club and its activities, its purposes and goals.

The Senior Citizens Community Center was the setting for the Wednesday morning wedding of Martina McDonald and Hewitt Sides.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at 11 a.m. March 5 before an archway entwined with pink and white roses, cupids and wedding bells by the Rev. Harland Birdwell of St. Marys Episcopal Church.

Traditional wedding music was performed by Marguerite Hyden, pianist, and R.C. Utley, soloist.

The bride was accompanied by J.V. Will, her brother-in-law, wearing a pink knit street length dress and an orchid corsage. The bridal bouquet of pink and white silk daisies completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Dorothy McCauley, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor and her husband, John, as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Sides were feted with a dinner and reception in the Senior Citizens Center with over 200 guests attending.

The reception table was overlaid with a pink cloth and centered with a two-tiered wedding cake decorated with pink and white miniature roses and wedding bells. Mrs. Margie Booher, Mrs. Perry Burleson and Eva Goodson served the guests.

Out of town guests were J.V. and Jim Witt, Pettus; Mrs. Iona Yewger, Alvin; and J.R. and J.M. Simmons, Clyde.

'Ain't misbehaving'

From JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

When your 9-year-old comes in and tells you he got sent to the office for "jumping" someone who told him to "kiss a girl," remind yourself that he is not just misbehaving but also is learning.

Unfortunately, children don't "arrive socialized" — they have to be taught to behave in ways that are approved and accepted by society.

Learning acceptable behavior is a hard and continuous task. Mistakes and misbehavior are part of growing up.

Helping children adopt acceptable behavior is one of the critical tasks of parenting.

For the most part, children must be told, directed, shown how and told again — much to the dismay of their parents.

This requires time and patience, but being an effective parent also brings special rewards.

Think of the compensations parents receive as they watch their children develop into mature, responsible and caring adults.

In dealing with normal misbehaviors, remember several ideas:
1) Consider the child's age and experience. Children misbehave because they are children with inexperienced, impulsive and emotional natures.

Accept these childish qualities and redirect their actions with understanding.
2) Use discipline as guidelines for behavior, and use punishment only as a result of not following the established guidelines.

Approach discipline in positive ways — focus on what can and should be done, rather than what not to do.

Make sure punishment is fair and just — and in keeping with the child's age.
3) Help the child understand the consequences of his behavior.

Listen to his point of view. Point out what might have — or could — occur because of his actions.

4) Help the child develop acceptable ways of handling his emotions.

Remember that each child is an individual with his own set of personality traits.

5) Guide the child with love, consistency and with strong parental example.

The greatest lessons parents teach are with the models they present.

As society changes and life's pace intensifies, there is a greater tendency to rely on outside agencies — including schools and churches — to do some of our parenting.

Researchers are pointing to an urgent need for parents to focus again on our role as parents — who have major responsibility for transmitting values, attitudes and behaviors to our young.

Remember, our children are not "just misbehaving," they're doing a great deal of learning. What they're learning is up to us, their parents.

Slob Story

DEAR ABBY: WONDERING asked what marriage would be like with a woman who kept reminding him to keep his elbows off the table, chew his food thoroughly, etc. You said, "Like being 9 years old again and married to your mother." You were right. Nothing spoils a fine meal or any pleasurable setting as much as incessant nagging about etiquette.

I hope the unfortunate man decided to lean across the table, with his elbows firmly planted on it, and kiss the young woman goodbye. And I hope that before he did it, he rattled the spoon while stirring his coffee, slurped it loudly, wiped his mouth with his sleeve and belched!

Another of this perplexed man's complaints involved his beloved's refusal to let him talk with food in his mouth.

A romantic little tableau comes to mind in which the guy's girlfriend gently places her knife and fork on the plate, chews thoroughly, swallows completely, dabs at the corners of her mouth with a napkin and says, "Dearest, your pants are on fire."

And she'd probably object if he used his glass of water to put himself out.

PATRICK MOTT

DEAR PATRICK: Beautiful! I am informed that you write a consistently bright column for the Register in Santa Ana, Calif., in which my column also appears. Congratulations, Patrick, you've just won another reader!

DEAR ABBY: We have a 17-year-old son who sucks his thumb. He seems so mature in all other ways that we can't understand it.

He sucks his thumb when he is alone, or thinks nobody is watching. We have a rather cool TV room. Sometimes he will cover himself with a blanket, way up around his nose, and he goes to town on that thumb!

Is this a sign of insecurity or perhaps a mental problem? He has many friends and nothing to feel insecure about.

We have tried to break him of this habit, but we never imposed any serious punishment on him. In later years we've tried not to make much of it.

Have you or any of your readers ever heard of this problem in a boy this age? And what do psychiatrists recommend?

PERPLEXED IN UTAH

DEAR PERPLEXED: Thumb sucking is a habit formed in infancy which provides the thumb sucker with a feeling of pleasure and gratification. It is harmless. The possibility of embarrassment and humiliation may motivate the thumb sucker to overcome the habit, but in some cases, being told that it's babyish will only make the thumb sucker all the more anxious, so it's not recommended. Psychiatrists say, "Leave him alone."

DEAR ABBY: My Dad, a widower who lives in another city, has a December-May romance going. He has informed us that he and his girlfriend will be coming to stay with us for a weekend soon. We have only one guest room, but can accommodate two guests in separate rooms if necessary by using our sofa-bed, too.

We know for a fact that they have taken trips together and registered as Mr. and Mrs., although Dad doesn't know that we know this.

Our problem: Should we just assume that Dad and his girlfriend want to share one room? Or should we just set them up in separate rooms?

Some facts you should know: Dad and I never had sex talks while I was growing up.

We thoroughly approve of his girlfriend. She has done wonders for him, and if they want to stay together we have no objections.

DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Prepare the guest room for two. Also have the sofa-bed in readiness. When Dad and his friend arrive, ask Dad (privately) which set-up he prefers, and act accordingly.

4-H leaders, parents to re-create spirit

4-H leaders and parents of 4-H'ers from all parts of the state will gather together at the Texas 4-H center near Brownwood on March 22 and 23 for their annual Forum. The Forum is held in conjunction with an annual meeting of the 4-H Volunteer Leaders' Association of Texas.

Participants at the Forum this year will delve into the theme "Re-Creation of the 4-H Spirit." Every feature of this Forum weekend has been designed to help build fun, learning, inspiration and fellowship experience into its agenda.

Tommy Martin and Carl Jaks, both of San Marcos, will lead three workshop sessions on how adults can help youth in re-creating the 4-H Spirit in their clubs and committee.

4-H leader and county extension teams will conduct four mini-workshops on "How To's" in Fund-Raising, Improving Publicity, Involving Parents and exchange programs.

"There will be plenty of time for sharing ideas and fun with 4-H leaders from other counties around the state," notes Linda Fuchs, assistant county extension agent. "Forum participants are reminded to bring their old or new tacky clothes for the contest between district groups Saturday evening following the forum banquet."

For further information and registration details, interested persons may contact the Howard County Extension Office located in the basement of the Courthouse, or phone 267-1821.

The Texas 4-H center offers about 12 weekend training workshops each year, from eSeptember through May. These workshops focus on helping 4-H volunteer leaders, adults, and youth to become more knowledgeable, skillful, and effective in their club and county 4-H program roles.

When persons attending these workshops take these newly gained ideas and skills home with them to share with others, the benefits of 4-H training are multiplied to reach many in every area of Texas.

Rebecca Rowden becomes bride of Bobby Doe

Rebecca Rowden and Bobby Doe were united in marriage Feb. 29 in Coahoma at the home of the bride's brother.

The Rev. Charlie Murphy, pastor of the Coahoma Presbyterian Church, read the 7:30 p.m. rite before a heart-shaped archway entwined with greenery. Candelabrum flanked either side of the setting and a unity candle completed the scene.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.C. Rowden, 1307 Mommouth, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Doe, Garden City, are the parents of the groom.

Sherry Rowden, sister-in-law of the bride, provided traditional wedding music as the bride was given in marriage attired in a gown of pink satin.

The bodice was enhanced by an oval yoke which extended to an old-fashioned high collar. A long, sweeping train fell gracefully from the empire waistline.

Matching ecru lace decorated the bridal veil which fell from a crown of silk roses.

A nosegay of pink silk roses sprinkled with baby's breath carried by the bride accented her ensemble.

Karen Battle attended the bride as maid of honor. Bebe Doe, sister of the groom, Garden City, served as bridesmaids.

Both carried long-stemmed silk red roses complemented with touches of baby's breath.

Floyd Schwartz, brother-in-law of the groom, St. Lawrence, was best man. Mike Newsom, Midland, was groomsman. Candlelighter was Craig Wall, nephew of the bride.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Doe were feted with a reception.

The bride's table was draped with red cloth and decorated with wedding bells and the bridal bouquet. The three-tiered, heart-shaped cake featured red roses and pink hearts.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School and has attended Lubbock Christian College. She is presently a sophomore at Howard College.

The groom is a graduate of Snyder High School and attended Lubbock Christian College for two years. He is presently attending the University of Texas at the Permian Basin and is an employee of C and N Paint Contractors of Midland.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to an undisclosed location, the newlyweds will reside at 711 Creighton.

FOR A WORTHY CAUSE — Frances and Walter Wheat of Wheat Furniture and Appliance are among a number of Big Spring merchants who will donate merchandise to be auctioned at this year's Rehab Round-up on April 19. Mr. and Mrs. Wheat, along with Kitchen Aide Company, will donate this Kitchen-Aid dishwasher. All proceeds from this auction will benefit the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Rehab Round-up scheduled April 19

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center will again benefit from the proceeds of this year's Rehab Round-Up scheduled for April 19.

The Rehab Round-Up, formerly known as the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center Gala, will get underway that evening with a barbecue from 6-8 p.m.

An auction will be conducted from 6-9 p.m. and a country-western dance, featuring Frenchie Burks and his band, will take place from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

According to Jan Iden, chairman of this year's event, the style of the benefit has been changed in an effort to cut back on expenses as well as include more people.

"Because we adopted the western theme," explained Mrs. Iden, a member of the rehab center board of directors, "we changed the name of the benefit from the Gala to the Rehab Round-Up."

Pot User objects to 'loser' label

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: In one of your columns you said that a person who drinks booze and smokes pot is a loser. How can you make that statement? I'm 20 and have been getting high for the last five years.

I agree that the majority of boozers and potheads are losers but I happen not to be a loser. I am a college student and work as a messenger for a highly regarded law firm in Columbus.

Pot and alcohol haven't interfered with my goals in life. I have great drive and I plan to be a success. All this and I smoke about 15 joints a week. It used to be 30, but I couldn't find the time and had to cut down.

I used to think you were cool until now. You insulted me. — William, Columbus, Ohio

William: I didn't mean to insult you and you weren't the only person to write complaining about pot

Don't assist grounded bat

You seldom see them, since they're nocturnal, but if you spot a bat on the ground or fluttering in a tree or bush, leave it alone.

That bat just might be rabid, says the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

During the past two months, more and more rabid bats have been found in Texas, and several people have been bitten, reports State Health Commissioner Dr. Raymond T. Moore.

Through July, only 25 cases of bat rabies had been verified by Texas Department of Health laboratories. But 24 cases were added in August and another 14 were found positive by TDH laboratories through September 18 to bring the year's total to 63.

Adult foster homes urgently needed here

Adult Foster Homes are needed in Big Spring. Many people are aware of the need for foster homes for children, but few realize that adults also sometimes need to be in a foster home.

The purpose of adult foster homes is to furnish care to people who can no longer function independently, but who do not need skilled nursing care. It offers them a desirable home-like atmosphere and prevents premature institutionalization.

Services provided in an adult foster home would include meal preparation, transportation, laundry, and possibly some assistance with personal grooming needs.

The clients pay for room and board out of their personal income and the department of human resources pays $5 per day per person for those living in an adult foster home licensed by the department of human resources.

It requires a special type of person to be a foster home director. Qualities needed are patience, flexibility, ability to accept others and a desire to work with elderly and disabled people. The rewards are great and it's especially rewarding to know that a needy person is being provided a desirable place to live.

Those interested in more information about how to become a certified foster home for the Texas Department of Human Resources, should contact Valynia Kirby, social worker, 707 East Third, Big Spring, TX, phone 263-7671.

Couple set date

Gail Shafer, Big Spring, and Rudy Norwood, Snyder, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Debra Kaye.

Miss Norwood will wed Guy William Schillings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Schillings, Big Spring, on March 21 at the First Baptist Church of Sand Springs.

The Rev. Dan Sanford, pastor, will perform the rite.

Cut energy with fans

COLLEGE STATION — Toss out your air conditioner and cool off with fans? Absurd? Not if you want to slash your utility bill in half in some Texas areas.

Air conditioning accounts for up to 50 percent of all home energy used in some areas of Texas, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Fans save money, and they provide comfort, she says. You can use them as "helpers" to your air-conditioning system — or in place of it. Dr. Berry is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Here are two types of fans to start with — in deciding which will do the best job in your home.

Circulating the air inside the home makes you feel cooler because it speeds up evaporation of moisture from the skin. These fans "help" air conditioning — or work alone.

Bubble gum therapy here

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — E-Mycin E, liquid (erythromycin ethyl succinate), a bubble gum-flavored pediatric antibiotic, is being introduced this month, The Upjohn Company announced today.

"The new erythromycin formulation offers a valuable alternative for children who need antibiotic therapy, but have difficulty swallowing tablets and an aversion to injections," said Louis C. Schroeter, Ph.D., vice president and general manager for Upjohn's Domestic Pharmaceutical Division.

Always tip the plate at an angle to make sure it's smooth, free from waves or pinholes, and reflects light well.
