

Saving shrimp instead of gold new trend?

Federal plan could start fisherman's war

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal plan to close parts of the Gulf of Mexico to shrimping could touch off a fisherman's war and send the cost of shrimp to $20 a pound in Washington, D.C., industry spokesmen say.

"They'll have to start advising people to save shrimp instead of gold, if this goes through," says Joe Carinhas, who operates seven shrimp boats of more than 65 feet in length.

Carinhas said he sells the bulk of his catch to a retailer in the nation's capitol and estimated the retail cost of shrimp would go to $20 a pound there if the plan is put into effect.

The plan calls for closing federal waters 10 miles out in the Gulf for up to two months. The offshore closure would correspond with the Louisiana shrimping season, when the inland waters of Texas are also closed.

The result will be a flotilla of Texas boats competing for the catch in Louisiana waters, said Tee John Mialjevich, a burly shrimper appointed spokesman by his peers.

He said there are 3,300 Texas-registered boats that fish the offshore waters and another 6,000 that work the sheltered coastal bays.

"Are these people going to just sit idle for almost two months, or are they going to come over to Louisiana waters and make a nickel?" Mialjevich asked rhetorically.

"If they put that fleet of boats over here, the shrimpers in Louisiana are not going to stand for it."

"I don't know if there'll be boats burned or shootings. I hope not, and I don't want to go into it. But I do know these people, and I do know their tempers can run high."

As Carinhas and Mialjevich explain it, the plan is based on the idea that closing the offshore waters would allow shrimp to grow larger before being harvested.

Since Louisiana imposes no minimum size on the shrimp that can be marketed, and Texas does, Mialjevich and Carinhas see it as a direct assault on their market. Texas forbids sale of shrimp smaller than 39-to-the-pound.

Shrimp that size have edible tails about the length of a long cigaret — ideal for boiling, they said.

"Last season, 1,407 Texas boats purchased Louisiana licenses so they could keep the small shrimp and sell them in Louisiana," Mialjevich said. "They're not being thrown over the side, like the federal biologists say. They're being sold and eaten in Louisiana."

"What they're doing is gambling a guaranteed catch on the theory that an increase in size will mean bigger shrimp and higher prices."

Fuel and ice supplies won't support two fleets in Louisiana, Mialjevich said.

Louisiana shrimper can't get fuel for his boat?"

"And ice is always in short supply. What's going to happen when the last load of ice goes to a Texas shrimper?"

J. Burton Angelle, head of Louisiana's wild life and fisheries department, sided with the two shrimpers.

"The Louisiana shrimp industry, as you and I know it, can't survive an experiment cooked up in Washington that is aimed at allowing shrimpers and the shrimp industry of other themselves to a lion's share states to harvest, or hoard, of the shrimp resources in their shrimp, and then help Louisiana," he said.

Chief abolishes traffic bureau

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's new police chief abolished his traffic bureau Tuesday and said 221 officers will be reassigned to patrol.

Chief B.K. Johnson said his department still is in the business of writing traffic tickets but must strengthen general patrol for fighting serious crime.

Johnson said the 221 traffic officers are being reassigned to the city's five police substations where they will become "generalists rather than specialists."

The chief said the number of calls being received by police has increased 23 percent in the past year but the number of uniformed officers on the streets has remained roughly the same.

For the past two years, officers have been investigating only major accidents or minor collisions in which vehicles are not driveable. Motorists involved in "fender-bender" collisions must go to substations to make reports.

Texas Easter Seal campaign shaping up

Governor William P. Clements proclaimed the period of March 1-April 6, 1980, as Easter Seal Appeal Campaign in Texas on Feb. 19, 1980. Jeanette Alvarado, National Easter Seal Child from San Antonio, joined by Walt Garrison, presented Governor Clements with the first sheet of 1980 Easter Seals. The Easter Seals represent the Easter Seal Society's traditional mail campaign. The Texas Easter Seal Society was founded in 1919 by Abe Goldberg, a prominent Rotarian. 1979-1980 marks the Society's 50th Anniversary in Texas. Objectives of the organization are — to assist disabled persons and their families in finding and making effective use of the resources which will be helpful to them in developing their abilities and in living purposeful lives; to assist communities in developing their necessary and appropriate resources for disabled persons; to establish and maintain appropriate and realistic programs in accordance with state and local needs; and to create a climate of acceptance which will permit and encourage their self-fulfillment as individuals and as contributing members of their communities. The Easter Seal Society provides orthopedic equipment including wheelchairs, walkers, and braces; occupational, physical and speech therapy and transportation to rehabilitation centers. The Society helped nearly 13,000 Texans last year.

AFA directors call for action to chill Soviet imperialism

(Special To The Herald) WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. is experiencing a severe national emergency that is likely to persist and intensify, the 147,000-member Air Force Association (AFA) said in a recent position paper adopted by its board of directors. With particular reference to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the AFA directors called for measures to stem the tide of Soviet imperialism. "There is a clearcut need," the paper states, "for a coherent, consistent and credible national strategy." Reactive, inconsistent and often self-defeating policies of the past must be supplanted by an active and bold strategy that seizes opportunities to prevent further Soviet expansionism.

AFA directors called for providing supplemental funds for FY '80 and increasing the FY '81 Defense Budget and the Five-Year Defense Plan "to accommodate the new and accelerated programs that national security requires." Specifically, the AFA directors called for across-the-board military pay raises augmented by selective benefits — including a 50 percent increase in flight pay — to ease the retention problem; a firm public commitment to mobilize the Reserve components as required; registration and classification to meet the critical manpower problem; immediate production of the "Neutron Bomb"; and ac-

Two BSSH volunteer leaders attend confab

Returning recently from an in-service training session held at the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation (TDMHMR) offices in Austin, were Elma Martinez, coordinator of Volunteer Services at Big Spring State Hospital and Randall H. Huey, assistant coordinator. The meeting, which was a concentrated work and study session, highlighted the Management by Objectives concept currently being adapted for use in TDMHMR facilities throughout the State. Ron Allen, executive assistant to the director of the Texas Youth Council, presented a half-day workshop on the theories of this practice. Other features of the 3-day meeting were a presentation on "Creative Stress Management" by Kathryn L. Goldman, Ph.D., and a presentation concerning past and upcoming inspections by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals by Louis Cornblith, director of Client Education Standards and Compliance for TDMHMR. The coordinators also met in small groups to discuss proposed changes to several Commission's Rules governing TDMHMR directly affecting Volunteer Services Departments. "This was one of the most productive and educational meetings I have attended," according to Huey. "It was very beneficial to Mrs. Martinez as she is new to the TDMHMR system having reported to work only two days prior to leaving for the workshop. This will enable her to develop a basic knowledge of the over-all program from which she will be able to expand and develop her program for our hospital."

Teacher shortage looming

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas school districts may have trouble finding the 4,600 additional teachers they will need by the middle of the decade, predicts State Education Commissioner Alton Bowen. "We have heard and read a great deal about a teacher surplus," Bowen told the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers Tuesday. "I believe, as Mark Twain once said about stories of his own death, these reports have been greatly exaggerated." Bowen said Texas Education Agency projections indicate the public school population will be 3,112,500 in 1984; compared to the current three million students. The student increase will combine with a drop in the number of future teachers now in Texas universities to cause a teacher shortage, he said. "We are faced with two critical problems today. First, we must improve the quality of teacher education. At the same time, we must assure a steady supply of new teachers, particularly in critical areas of need," Bowen said.

The state will supply funds for about 4,600 additional teachers, the commissioner added. Projections indicate a need for 45 percent more teachers in the kindergarten through sixth grade levels and a need for 55 percent more teachers in grades seven through nine, said Bowen. There will be an even greater demand for teachers trained in specific areas, he said, citing as examples bilingual education, elementary reading, secondary math, secondary science, secondary industrial arts and vocational training. School districts in the state are also trying to find more men to teach in the elementary grades and more minority teachers. Bowen said the Commission on the Teaching Profession is prepared to make recommendations to the State Board of Education. The recommendations include changes in duration of teaching certificates and the possible use of competency tests for new teachers prior to certification.

Weather Scattered showers forecast for today

By the Associated Press Texas were expected to reach the lower 80s. Showers and a few thunderstorms were reported during the night in South Central Texas and in extreme Northeast Texas, but there were no reports of significant rainfall. Early morning temperatures ranged from the 30s in the Panhandle to the 60s in South Texas. Most areas had readings in the 50s. Sun sets today at 6:57 p.m. Sun rises 3:20 at 6:50 a.m. Highest temperature this date 79 in 1930. Lowest temperature 19 in 1936. Most precipitation 2.13 in 1967.

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period, today until Thursday morning, from the central Gulf to the Midwest. Most areas are expected to be clear and temperatures will be mild across the nation.

ATC proposes Goodfellow not be closed, Bentsen says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Tuesday the Air Training Command has advised him it has proposed that Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, Texas, should not be closed. A final decision on an Air Force proposal made last year to move Goodfellow operations to bases in two other states "pending while an environmental impact statement is completed." The Air Training Command has its headquarters at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas. Bentsen, D-Texas, said the command also has recommended that all bases under its jurisdiction should remain open. An Air Force spokesman said the command's proposals would be taken into consideration along with all other factors to be studied before the final decision is made. "Nothing more, nothing less, and the points raised would be studied," the spokesman, who asked not to be identified by name, said.

Election fraud probed Khomeini declares amnesty

By the Associated Press Iran's Revolutionary Council ordered an investigation of charges of fraud in the parliamentary election, and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini declared an amnesty for all members of the shah's regime except those accused of killing, torture or misuse of public funds and property. Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said after a meeting of the ruling council Tuesday night that a commission of five to seven members would conduct a thorough probe of the charges of fraud in the voting last Friday. However, most of the allegations are against the clergy-led Islamic Republican Party which dominates the council. So it was considered unlikely the investigation would lead to new halting in many of the 270 parliamentary districts. The Interior Ministry, which is in charge of the elections, said on the whole the first round of voting Friday was held "in a satisfactory manner, despite pressure and violation of regulations by some political groups." It said "complaints about shortcomings in some constituencies and polling stations" should be submitted to local central supervision committees for consideration of possible legal proceedings. It said the supervision committees would then report to the executive committees, and that if deviations were proved, the results would be invalidated. The hard-line Islamic Republican Party, which wants the American hostages held until Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his fortune are returned to Iran, has won 34 of the 79 seats in the Majlis, or parliament, decided so far. Supporters of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who wants to resolve the hostage issue without delay, have won 16 seats, while independents and minor-party candidates have 29. In the other 191 districts, the results have not been announced (finished or the outcome must be decided by runoff elections April 4). Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime, had said the Majlis will decide the fate of the 50 Americans who today began their 137th day in captivity in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, first secretary of the Revolutionary Council and the head of the IRP, has said the new Majlis won't be able to start the hostage debate before mid-May. SAVAK was the shah's secret police and the government agency most hated by the foes of the deposed monarch.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. What is the NEW IMPROVED PAY BY MAIL PROGRAM?
A. This is a program offered to readers of the Herald, whereby those people who prefer to pay for their newspapers through the office may do so.

Q. How does the PAY BY MAIL PROGRAM work?
A. The reader may pay for his subscription for three, six or twelve months in advance.

Q. Can the reader pay through the office by the month?
A. No. We are not able to offer this service.

Q. How much does it cost?
A. There is no charge for this service. It is offered as a convenience for you and your carrier.

Q. What happens to my payment?
A. Your carrier is given credit for your payment each month after it is earned.

Q. Is there any advantage to my carrier if I pay by mail?
A. Yes. You are registered as a PAY BY MAIL customer and this eliminates the necessity of his making a collection each month.

Q. What happens if I stop for a vacation?
A. The copies missed during the vacation period will be saved in a vacation pack and delivered upon your return.

Q. If I stop my paper for any reason, do I lose my money?
A. No. A full refund will be made if you must discontinue your paper for any reason.

Q. Will I be billed when my payment is due?
A. Yes. You will be billed by the Big Spring Herald on the first of the month prior to the expiration date.

Q. On what day does my subscription expire?
A. All PAY BY MAIL payments commence with the first day of any month. Therefore, your subscription would expire on the last day of the month of the period for which you have paid.

Q. What happens if my payment is past due?
A. If your payment has not been received by the expiration date, your carrier will be notified and collection will be made at the home.

Railroad Commission: A race for power--III

Nugent insists Hightower stands for Yankee ideas

By JACKIE CALMES
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Even if Jim Hightower and Jim Nugent really wanted to run positive, issue-oriented campaigns void of personal attacks, which they apparently don't, they couldn't. They are the issues. Between these two candidates in the May 3 Democratic primary race for the Texas Railroad Commission, the similarities end with the first names.

got all the elements of a good Texas story." Hightower, 36, professes to be a populist. But in a predominately conservative state, he's guilty of being liberal by association. The Denison native worked five years as a public interest advocate in Washington, D.C., then managed the 1976 presidential campaign of former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris, worked for former Texas Sen. Ralph Yarborough and most recently edited The Texas Observer. Nugent, 57, earned conservative stripes during 18 years as the Texas House member from Kerrville. In 1978, former Gov. Dolph

Briscoe appointed him to replace Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton, who resigned saying oil discoveries on family property constituted a conflict of interest. Editorials criticized the selection of Nugent since he held interests in oil and gas lands and corporations. His 1979 financial statement shows the questioned interests were sold "to preclude any conflict of interest as a member of the Railroad Commission." Contrasting himself with Hightower, Nugent says, "I represent the Texas consumer and he is raising his money in the Northeast. Obviously he'll be representing the northeastern United States consumer."

Poerner. His choice of Nugent fueled speculation that this is a quixotic venture. He denies that, "I'm running to win," he says. "I'm not a kamikaze of any sort. I'm not even a liberal. I'm a populist — and populists win." He mechanically ticks off the factors that bred his optimism: — "Hot issues" he could exploit, such as high gasoline and gas utility costs, a too-restrictive commission policy granting trucking permits for intrastate freight haulers, a process of issuing lignite surface mining permits that favors the industry, and too little consumer input in commission matters.

Nugent, however, says Hightower had only one reason for entering the race — to lead the "Northeast power bloc" in a takeover of the Railroad Commission. In a Feb. 14 fundraising letter, Nugent told potential contributors that "brazen" outsiders "want more of your oil and gas at bargain basement prices." Enclosed were copies of invitations to Hightower fundraisers last year in Washington, D.C., and New York City sponsored by "people whose views are the opposite of most Texans."

"It's the old McGovern progressive league on a national scale," Nugent says of his opponent's supporters. Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and several other liberal congressmen sponsored the Washington party at the home of Stewart Mott, a patron of liberal politicians. That party net about $9,000 and the affair at New York's Texas-chic Lone Star Cafe about $5,000 — less, he says, than Nugent received from some individuals. He adds that most who attended are expatriated Texans, including former state representatives and two-time gubernatorial candidate Sissy Farenthold and former U.S. immigration director Leonel Castillo.

Hightower says he knew Nugent would use the damning issue of Yankee money but he had budgeted a winning race at $300,000, "and I knew I wasn't going to raise that here in Texas." Nugent will only say he'll spend "whatever I can raise." Campaign manager Dwayne Holman says that's about $300,000. Nugent has three committees for contributions, including "Citizens to Re-Elect Railroad Commissioner James E. Nugent" — a misnomer since Nugent was appointed. Of $38,000 raised by that committee in 1979, all but $500 were contributions greater than $50. Contributions from oilmen and their attorneys range from $500 to $3,500. Many of the same persons chipped in to a second committee that got $84,000 last year. The statements at the secretary of state's office also list gifts from political action committees representing interests with a stake in commission decisions. They include $5,000 from the Central Freight committee, $2,500 from oilmen's Good Government Fund and $1,000 from a Houston Natural Gas group. "I'm not denying any Texas citizen the right to participate in the political process," Nugent says in justifying such contributions.

Tech junior from Lamesa faces challenging TSEA job

LUBBOCK — Challenging and time-consuming describe the job facing newly-elected Texas Student Education Association (TSEA) State President Janiel Johnson.

A junior from Lamesa, Johnson is the first Texas Tech University student to hold the state presidency in more than 15 years. She is majoring in elementary education with a specialization in speech communications. TSEA is the student affiliate of Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA). There are 8,000 TSEA members, and most major universities and junior colleges in Texas have chapters, Johnson said. "I will be working with chapters throughout the state to try to start better programs and workshops," she said. "I want local chapters to feel they are a meaningful part of TSEA. On the local level, TSEA works to get programs started so student teachers experience what they will find in the classroom as teachers after graduation." State level functions of TSEA include working with TSTA to bring about changes in teacher salaries, contracts and working conditions and to improve the quality of education. Johnson will work closely with TSTA and its lobbyists in Austin, she said. She will live in Austin from August through December 1980. Johnson is also a member of APO, a service fraternity, as well as the speech team and Swing Choir. Johnson said she believes she has picked the right profession. "I have been interested in education since I was four. To me, education is the profession to be a part of. It is a challenge to sell knowledge, to make it attractive and interesting so students want to learn."

Persons in both campaign organizations say he would have a better chance against Commission Chairman John voters.

Cosden will respond to complaint by EPA

DALLAS — American Petrofina, Incorporated, commenting upon allegations of the Environmental Protection Agency that the Port Arthur, Texas, refinery used more tetraethyl lead than permitted to make gasoline during the fourth quarter of 1979, noted that the regulations alleged to have been violated relate to the average lead content in a refinery's total gasoline make and do not relate to the amount of lead in a particular grade of gasoline. The Company said it will respond to the complaint within the 20 days allowed and emphasized that there were mitigating circumstances. First, the scheduled use of lead at the refinery was in compliance; however, a prolonged maintenance turnaround of the catalytic cracking unit reduced the amount of gasoline produced into which lead usage could be averaged. She will attend the TSTA convention Mar. 21-22 in Fort Worth. She also will participate in a presidential leadership conference in Los Angeles during the summer.

Johnson said she believes she has picked the right profession. "I have been interested in education since I was four. To me, education is the profession to be a part of. It is a challenge to sell knowledge, to make it attractive and interesting so students want to learn."

Cotton pest management meet Monday

A meeting will be held on Monday, March 24, 1980 of the Howard County Cotton Producers Association. The meeting will take place at the Texas Electric Service Co. meeting room in Big Spring located at 409 Runnels Street. Time — 7:00 p.m.

This meeting will begin the 1980 cotton pest management season in Howard County. An election of new directors to replace those whose terms have expired will be conducted. Other business matters pertaining to your cotton pest management program will be discussed.

Danny Walling Fund started

Friends have started a Danny Walling fund at First National Bank for anyone wishing to contribute.

Danny was in a serious motorcycle accident last Saturday night and will be confined to a hospital for a number of weeks. He will be unable to work for a number of months.

His condition is stable but he is in a lot of pain.

Hospitalization costs are covered by insurance, but there are no programs which cover the first few months of living costs for the family.

If you wish to contribute ask for the Danny Walling Fund.

Two deputies attend school

Civil Process Training School is in session for Howard County Sheriff's Deputies Bill Whitton and William Shankles in Midland.

The school is sponsored by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Standards and is accredited.

Executions, sequestrations, bonds to be taken to civil process, will be taught, said Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Classes will go on for three days at the Police Department Academy for all Texas law enforcement officers. Standard and another deputy attended the course around the first of the year.

Astrology is subject of lecture

Howard Higgins, who teaches Physics for the Science Department at Howard College, will give a discussion titled "Astrology Its Basics and Its Meaning" at the next Library Lecture which is scheduled for March 28.

Though Astrology is not considered a "pure science", the subject has a wide following, and many persons will be interested in hearing Higgins' discussion. He has done wide research into Astrology and takes a scientific approach to the subject.

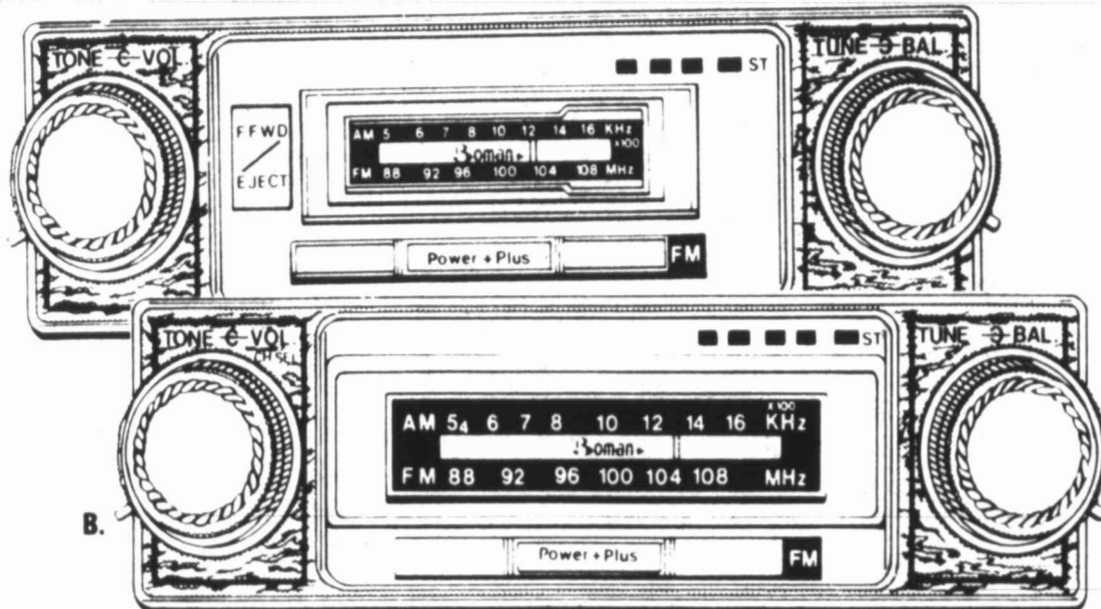

The program will be in the Tumbleweed Room of the Student Union Building on the Howard College Campus at 7:30 p.m. on a Friday night. Refreshments will be served following the discussion and question-and-answer period.

All residents of the Howard College area are invited to attend this program, which is open to the public, free of charge. All junior and senior students of Big Spring and surrounding towns are urged to take advantage of the program. It is hoped also, that many Howard College students will be able to scheduled the lecture.

TIGHT COLLAR — Clark Clifford, a former Defense secretary now serving as special emissary of the president to southwest Asia and the Persian Gulf, grimaces as he reaches to relieve a tight collar during testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday in Washington. Clifford reported on his trip to the area.

Stricter trade is imposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union will find it very difficult to buy computers and other high-technology goods from American businesses under the Carter administration's strict new Soviet trade policy.

Officials have estimated that more than $1 billion in goods and services could be involved. The only apparent exception, one official said, would be for products related to health or safety.

In a statement Tuesday, Commerce Department Secretary Phillip M. Klutznick said the new guidelines "impose tighter controls in such areas as computers and software, manufacturing technology and materials critical to the manufacture of high-technology defense goods."

The restrictions could spell rejection of "a substantial number" of the 700 export license cases held up in January by President Carter while trade with the Soviets was reviewed, government officials said.

Businessmen must obtain licenses from the Commerce Department before they can ship certain goods overseas.

Carter ordered the export policy review Jan. 4, when he blocked the shipment of some 17 million metric tons of grain the Soviets had arranged to purchase.

Last month Carter asked American athletes to boycott the Summer Olympics in Moscow and in recent days asked U.S. manufacturers of Olympic-related products to refrain from shipping them.

The actions have been designed to underscore U.S. displeasure with the Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan in December. The Carter administration sees the action as a threat to the stability of the oil-rich Persian Gulf region and a violation of Afghan sovereignty.

U.S. businesses were not immediately sure of the impact the new policy would have on their contracts.

Information about the new policy was provided at a briefing by officials of the departments of State, Defense and Commerce. Under rules of the briefing, the officials were not to be identified.

The policy will: —Block the export of most high-technology products to the Soviets.

Many licenses in the past were issued only after exceptions were obtained by the administration from the Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Exports, an international, Paris-based agency that helps regulate Western trade with Communist nations.

"We will be seeking very few COCOM exceptions," said one of the administration officials.

—Bar most exports involving raw materials and products that could be critical to Soviet industry.

—Toughen the government's stance on the sale of so-called "process technology," such as petrochemical installations.

—Tighten regulations on the transfer of products or data that could give Moscow clues about U.S. technological advances.

Contract goes over guideline set by Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first major contract settlement reached since President Carter loosened his voluntary wage guidelines apparently tops the new 9.5 percent ceiling. But oil industry officials hope to convince the government that a tentative agreement with striking refinery workers complies with Carter's anti-inflation program.

A source close to the bargaining estimated Tuesday that a settlement reached this week with the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union would boost wages and fringe benefits a total of 10.4 percent this year.

The settlement with Gulf Oil Corp. and Cities Service Oil Co. was accepted by union leaders as a pattern for the rest of the industry to end a 10-week-old strike by 55,000 workers, some of whom planned to return to work today after ratifying the agreement.

The settlement also provides a 10.5 percent pay boost next year, but that is not affected by Carter's wage restraint program, which is limited to 1980.

Carter's new wage guidelines, announced last week, allow increases of 7.5 percent to 9.5 percent in 1980, but the oil industry plans to cite exemptions in the program to justify its higher increase.

"We do feel this settlement is within the guidelines, which we understand to allow additional increases on an exemption basis," Gulf Oil Corp. spokesman Kirk Vogeley said.

Specifically, the oil industry wants the government to allow the higher settlement in recognition of the fact that oil workers do not receive automatic cost-of-living raises under their contracts, as do members of most other large unions.

Workers affected by cost-of-living clauses can receive more than 9.5 percent increases under the guidelines because of the way the clauses are calculated by the government.

Sen. Bentsen supports anti-inflation program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's anti-inflation program won the support of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, Monday, but the senator indicated he will continue his calls for tax cuts to aid business growth.

Farm Block and Bridle Club maps judging contest

SAN ANGELO — Angelo State University's Block and Bridle Club will conduct a 4-H and FFA livestock judging contest Thursday, March 27 at the Management, Instruction and Research Center.

Registration begins at 7:30 a.m. and the contest gets under way at 8:30 a.m. Each county or chapter may enter a maximum of eight contestants, and a $2 entry fee per contestant will be charged.

In 4-H competition, competitors will judge two classes of cattle, two classes of sheep, and two classes of swine. A set of reasons will March 28 will be the end of a 60-day period during which the public had been asked to tell the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) the direction they think future conservation programs should take.

Fewer cattle in feedlots

AUSTIN — Texas cattle feeders have reported fewer cattle in feedlots this March than a year ago, as movement both into and out of feedlots slowed, according to Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

"As of the first of March, there were 1.68 million head of cattle and calves on feed in Texas," said Brown. "This compares with 1.73 million head on feed last year at this time. Placements into feedlots were down by about 16 percent, while marketings of feed cattle dropped off some 12 percent."

An even greater decline in feedlot populations was noted for the nation as a whole, said Brown. March 1 figures from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service show 7.44 million head of cattle on feed in the seven largest cattle feeding states. This was down 9 percent from a year ago.

Again, both placements and marketings were down, as tighter feeder calf supplies, higher grain prices and rising interest rates worked to limit inventories.

"Since December, the number of cattle on feed has declined each month," noted Brown.

"I will lend the president my support in his effort to carry out his program," Bentsen told Charles Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, at a hearing sponsored by the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee.

"My major disappointment with the president's announcement last Friday was the lack of specific proposals for revitalizing American productivity and controlling inflation in the long run."

Carter Friday announced a five-point anti-inflation agenda that includes a balanced 1981 federal budget, stricter credit and wage and price guidelines, a 10-cent per gallon gasoline tax, and long-term "structural" changes.

Among those structural changes, is a plan for a presidential commission to study and recommend methods for making the economy more productive. The measure appears to be at odds with legislation introduced by Bentsen March 12.

At an estimated cost of $3 million per year, the bill calls for a beefed-up "National Productivity Council," with a director, staff, and more than a dozen members, to improve the productivity of workers and industry.

Although the plan was drafted in large part by the General Accounting Officer for Bentsen, who is chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, it has drawn no comment from the Carter administration.

To work most effectively, Bentsen has argued, the council idea must be implemented along with a $25 billion tax cut his committee said should be enacted this year. Half that cut would go to taxpayers, the committee said in its annual report, and half would be breaks for business to encourage investment.

"We shouldn't wait for the report of the president's Commission on the 1980s to enact long-term measures. We could reduce taxes to stimulate savings and investment without waiting for that report," Bentsen told Schultze Monday after issuing his support of the administration's plans.

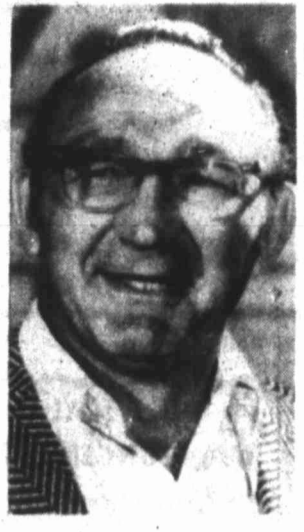

"President Carter's proposals aim at cutting inflation in the short run, but they will be effective only if they go hand in hand with long-run measures as well."

Schultze said that productivity — or "risk-taking" in new business investment as he called it — is one of the benefits of the Carter plan to balance the budget and promote energy conservation through the gasoline tax. "Price stability is the most important long-term thing needed to fight inflation," said Schultze.

"For now, we have ruled out tax cuts to achieve this. Our first priority is to balance the budget."

But Bentsen warned that this first step may be a giant step for some members of Congress to take.

"All the lobbyists have gone to their computer lists," he said. "They are going to alert their particular constituencies to say 'yes we want a balanced budget, but don't cut my program.'"

RGV citrus harvested

AUSTIN — Still feeling the effects of a hard freeze last winter, citrus growers in the Lower Rio Grande Valley had harvested 300,000 tons of grapefruit as the citrus season began drawing to a close.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said this figure was better than anticipated — down 17 percent from last year but 14 percent higher than a previous estimate.

The season's total orange production is forecast at 166,000 tons, a 39 percent drop from a year ago. Forecasters estimated that 98,000 tons of early and mid-season oranges and 68,000 tons of Valencia had been harvested.

Brown said trees overall are in good condition and are starting to bloom. Fruit set should be nearly normal except on trees heavily damaged by the 1979 freeze.
