Hostage situation may be indefinite

By the Associated Press

Signals coming from Iran indicate the American hostages may be held indefinitely, the U.S. government said today. Meanwhile, Iranians celebrated the new year with fiery incantations, lucky goldfish and strolling minstrels after 61 prisoners were freed under an amnesty by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The new year holiday, called Now Ruz, closed government offices for the next week and took public attention away from the slow counting of votes in the parliamentary election last week and the 50 hostages, who began their 138th day in captivity in the U.S. Embassy today.

"The signals which are now coming out of Iran suggest that the detention of the hostages may continue indefinitely," State Department legal adviser Roberts B. Owen told the World Court in the Hague, Netherlands.

"No one in this courtroom has any way of knowing whether the Ayatollah Khomeini will continue to hold the hostages in captivity for a month or for a year or for a decade," he declared.

Owen said that U.S. hopes for release of the hostages were shattered early this month when the U.N. investigating commission left Iran without seeing the captives. He called the World Court the most promising hope for the ultimate release of the hostages and called for an urgent final judgment on the U.S. case against Iran.

Owen told the court on Wednesday the hostages were held under "harsh and inhumane conditions" and were "confined like common criminals."

He said 13 black or female hostages who were released Nov. 16 reported that women were tied to straight chairs facing the wall for 16 hours at a time, that at night the hostages' hands were bound or handcuffed and they were kept under lights around the clock to inhibit sleep, that some were made to sleep on the cold bare floor without blankets, that some were denied changes of clothing and that baths or showers were allowed only rarely.

"On one occasion a student who was interrogating a woman hostage showed her his revolver to let her know that one of its chambers was loaded, and then proceeded to intimidate her by pointing the gun at her and repeatedly pulling the trigger," said Owen. "Happily he stopped in time, but the experience must have been terrifying."

He also denied Iranian charges that the embassy was a spy center. He said it was "a normal diplomatic mission operating as such missions normally do."

The 61 amnestied Iranians left Evvin Prison Wednesday and were kissed and hugged by waiting relatives and friends. Most or all were believed to be minor offenders, and it was not known if any had been arrested because of activities while Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was still in power.

Some 400 other prisoners were expected to be freed in the next few days. Although Khomeini's proclamation specified that it would apply to members of the armed forces, the secret police and the clergy during the monarchy, it excluded those accused of killing, torture or misuse of public funds or property.

Throughout Tehran, families celebrating Now Ruz built small street fires and ran through them, chanting to the fire to take away sickness and give them health. Holidaymakers bought goldfish for good-luck charms and swayed to the drumbeat of minstrels who begged from the crowds as they danced through streets jammed with cars.

The holiday dates back more than 3,000 years to Iran's Zoroastrian religion, which views life as a struggle between good and evil. Many of the practices promise good luck or protection against evil or ill health.

Conservative Moslem clerics say the Now Ruz customs should be discouraged because they are not rooted in Islam and are nationalistic.

SPRINGTIME FOR POLAR BEARS—Springtime seems far away in Denmark this year, but at the Copenhagen zoo the polar bears are enjoying themselves and the public. A new cub was presented yesterday. It was born in December 23, but the male cub was outside for the first time and learned how to play with a rubber-tire by its proud mother.

'In some respects it was a waste of money' Industrial Park master plan gigged by Chamber president

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

The president of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce questioned Wednesday the efficacy of the Industrial Park master plan put together by Texas A&M University.

"Many of the things they recommend in the study we have already done," Jimmy Taylor, president of the Chamber told the directors at a noon meeting. "In some respects it was a waste of money."

The report was commissioned by the city with federal funds. It describes the results of a study made for the industrial development possibilities at the former Webb Air Force Base by the Center for Strategic Technology at Texas A&M University.

Taylor broke down the highlights of the report for the directors. He pointed out the plan calls for three bodies within Big Spring to take on a purpose. The city is to maintain economic and political stability; the Chamber of Commerce is responsible for marketing and promotion; and the Industrial Foundation serves as a financial agent.

Taylor commented, "This report goes on to say that the Chamber should take the lead."

Toward this, Taylor said, "The Chamber should have a full-time industrial developer."

Taylor also told the board that the report recommends a start-up budget of $23,000. This amount would be broken down to the city's contributing $15,000 and the Industrial Foundation $5,000 and the Chamber of Commerce $3,000.

Board member Jeff Brown queried Taylor if any thing in the report will be useful.

Taylor did say that City Manager Don Davis thought the master plan could be a useful planning device for the city's future policy at the industrial park.

The president of the Chamber then took exception to one part in the study. On page 11, the report reads, "Due to the overlapping of the activities of the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Foundation in industrial development, there appears to be a general lack of confidence and communication between the two organizations, even though the directorships are overlapping."

Taylor remarked, "If there is a lack of confidence, I don't know where it is; if there is a lack of communication,

I don't know where it is."

In other action, the directors learned that the energy committee with the Chamber and area oil companies will host a reception and press conference at 2:30 p.m. on April 8 with Railroad Commissioner John Poerner.

The Chamber was also told that when all bills are finally paid, a profit between $800-$900 will be realized from the Region 5 Girls' Junior College Basketball Tournament.

The Big Spring Rotary Club will sponsor a clean-up drive in April or May. The theme for the clean-up project is "Take Pride in Big Spring." The Rotary will enlist the help of all area civic organizations.

A report was also given revealing that Big Spring hotels and motels have experienced a good season. Schick Sunn Classic has used 80 or more rooms daily since starting here in January.

Leroy Tillery in his executive report asked directors to write Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Texas) to express support for House Bill 4612. The bill will cut the benefit extensions for unemployment compensation. It has been estimated by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce that $1 billion could be saved by passage of this bill.

Finally, the Midland-Odessa Symphony will appear in concert in Big Spring on May 15.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Prison policy

Q. Why is the Big Spring prison camp allowed to discriminate against prospective employees because of age? Is this a policy of the Federal Prison System or is it a policy that is confined to the camp at Big Spring? Discrimination because of age certainly is not a part of the Civil Service hiring process of the Federal government.

A. According to John Allman, superintendent of the prison camp, the mandatory age for retirement is 55, because of pressures the work at a federal prison camp requires. Retirement can be taken at the age of 50 if the employee has 20 years service. If someone is hired after the age of 35, the employee cannot get 20 years accumulated. This law was enacted by congress and is upheld by the Civil Service Commission. Allman says this is a policy of every federal prison in the United States.

Hard decisions on spending cuts still ahead in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — House budget writers appear on track toward recommending the first balanced federal budget in 12 years, but hard decisions over spending cuts are still ahead.

In its first day of work on the 1981 budget Wednesday, the House Budget Committee tentatively approved cutting $2.6 billion from the budget originally proposed by President Carter in January. Little opposition appeared to be emerging to the revised budget proposed by Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., the committee chairman.

The committee was to resume work on the budget today with votes possible on some of the more controversial cuts, such as an end to Saturday mail deliveries and elimination of the state share of federal revenue sharing.

Giaimo, who declared Wednesday that rising inflation "makes a balanced budget imperative," recommended a total of $15.9 billion in spending cuts to produce a budget surplus of $1.4 billion for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

In other economic news Wednesday:

—New figures showed the profits of U.S. business sagged in the final quarter of 1979, despite a jump in oil company profits. Analysts called the profit figures another sign of an economic slowdown.

—Savings deposits at the nation's savings and loan associations registered the smallest February increase in a decade, rising $1.6 billion last month, another negative economic indication.

In announcing his new anti-inflation plan last week, President Carter called for $13 billion in spending cuts to balance the 1981 budget. However, administration officials said the president has yet to make final decisions on what specific cuts to recommend.

In the absence of Carter's revised budget proposal, Giaimo's recommendations — which are generally supported by the congressional leadership and the administration — are emerging as the framework for the 1981 budget.

Giaimo also proposed enacting "modest" tax cuts, essentially by rebating the $10.3 billion expected from the president's oil import fee. That fee will boost gasoline prices by 10 cents a gallon.

Giaimo said an additional $3.5 billion could be raised for general tax cuts by increasing user fees for airports and waterways and by reducing tax breaks, such as the business lunch deduction.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., an influential committee member, said the tax cut likely would reduce Social Security taxes by about $10 billion and allow businesses $3 billion for faster tax write-offs on investments.

Forty votes cast in city contests

A total of 40 voters have cast absentee ballots in the city election, said City Secretary Tom Ferguson, today.

Absentee voting began Monday, and will continue through April 1 for hand-carried ballots, and through 10 p.m. April 3 for mailed ballots. Those who expect to be out of town or those aged 65 or over may vote absentee.

Absentee voting for Big Spring Independent School District reached a total of 44 this morning. Voting for Howard County Junior College Board of Directors totaled 50. Voting site for these two elections is at the county clerk's office.

Three Big Spring officials to meet with congressmen

Three Big Spring officials leave today for Washington, D.C., to meet with federal officials on the Howard College Southwest School for the Deaf.

These representatives from Big Spring are Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, Douglas Burke, executive director for the school for the deaf, and Rep. Mike Ezzell, D-Snyder.

The itinerary of the Big Spring delegation calls for a meeting with the Secretary of Education and a 2 p.m. meeting Monday with several congressmen and senators. These will be sponsored by U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm and U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen.

"We will have an opportunity to meet with congressmen and senators from the nine-state region that Howard College will be serving with the school for the deaf," Hays said.

Hays added the purpose of the meeting will be to explain the school for the deaf to the members of congress and to gain support for federal funding.

Hays admitted the task in asking for funds will be difficult, especially in light of the president's and Congress' proposed budget cuts and commitment to balancing the budget. On top of proposed programs, existing federally-funded services will be cut back, Hays added.

Another inmate walks away from prison camp

A second inmate in little over a week escaped from the Federal Prison Camp here Wednesday, Jerry Gibson, Assistant Supervisor, said today.

Carl Russell Newman, 25, of Little Rock, Ark., was reported missing at the 10 p.m. count, Gibson said. He added that Newman was last seen in the evening.

The Federal Camp had another prisoner, Eugene Stephens, 47, walk off from the minimum security institution on March 11.

Newman is described as being a white male. He is 5-foot 11-inches and 165 pounds. He is blond, blue-eyed and wears a mustache.

Newman was serving a two-year sentence for being convicted of violating the National Motor Vehicle Act, which is transporting a stolen vehicle across state lines. He had a scheduled release date of May 15, 1980.

He is not considered dangerous and has no prior offense record.

Federal, state and local authorities have been contacted. No leads have developed.

Gibson said, "It is somewhat our suspicion that he might try to return home."

Maryland approves plan

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The House of Delegates has approved the proposed constitutional amendment that would give the District of Columbia voting members in Congress, making Maryland the eighth state to ratify it.

The Maryland Senate had passed the resolution earlier this year. It was approved Wednesday in the House with exactly the 71 votes required for passage.

The issue came up for a final vote in the Maryland House three times last year, and each time fell one vote short of the number needed for approval.

Tribal salaries count

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that Indian leaders must pay federal taxes on their tribal salaries.

The ruling Wednesday concerned Roger Jourdain, chairman of the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians, who failed to pay $6,750 owed on his 1971 and 1972 tax returns, the court said.

He had argued the General Allotment Act of 1887 exempted his income as tribal chairman from taxation. But the federal court upheld a tax court's finding that Indians are subject to federal income taxes unless specifically exempted by treaty or statute.

Oil no longer a threat

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The Coast Guard says it is unlikely any more oil from the Mexican well Ixtoc I will threaten Texas beaches.

"I don't think we have a great deal to worry about," Coast Guard Capt. Gerald Hinson, coordinator of the U.S. team monitoring the nine-month-old oil spill, said Wednesday.

Pemex, the Mexican government oil monopoly that owns the offshore well, says crews have almost shut it down. When it erupted in the Bay of Campeche last June, it spewed an estimated 30,000 barrels a day, sending some 10,000 tons of raw crude onto Texas beaches.

Evidence goes to jury

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Evidence will be presented to a grand jury beginning Friday in the "Angel of Death" case in which patients at Sunrise Hospital died after someone allegedly tampered with their life support equipment.

Clark County District Attorney Bob Miller declined further comment on the case in making the announcement on Wednesday.

Several employees were suspended last week pending the outcome of an inquiry into allegations that at least two and possibly six intensive care patients died after someone — reportedly a hospital employee — tampered with equipment.

$850 million to upgrade rail passenger service voted

WASHINGTON — A House committee Wednesday approved an $850 million plan to upgrade rail passenger service between urban areas that include the "Texas Triangle," between Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and Houston.

The Texas route is ranked sixth among 13 proposals approved by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee for major new construction beginning in 1982. The money would come from the proposed Windfall Profits Tax on oil.

Committee member Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Austin, had proposed the money be appropriated in the 1981 budget, but the panel's majority, faced with numerous balanced-budget moves for 1981, refused to go along.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Houston, said Wednesday the bill could reach the House floor as early as next week for a vote.

The Texas route has been considered one of the most likely to eventually receive federal money; if not for the 4.3 million gallons of gasoline it is estimated will be saved when Texas auto commuters turn to the rails, then because Wright has actively supported the route.

In testimony before the committee last month, Wright urged the Texas route be considered a "very high" priority for new money.

"Many people, in my opinion, will return to passenger trains with enthusiasm, if we can establish good, efficient service where the public needs it and the ridership potential warrants it," Wright said.

The 772-mile corridor, which rolls through a population area of seven million, includes the following proposed station stops: Dallas, Corsicana, Houston, Rosenberg, San Antonio, San Marcos, Austin, Taylor, Temple, McGregor, Cleburne, Fort Worth and back to Dallas.

Congressional estimates say three trains a day between these cities would cost approximately $192 million for track and signal improvements and purchase of rail cars. This would result, say the estimates, in a 4.3 million gallon annual savings in gasoline use in the area.

Firefighters strike sends 37 to jail

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty-one more striking Kansas City firefighters were sentenced to jail terms for contempt of court today, bringing the total imprisoned to 37.

Municipal officials said they would use management-level city workers along with city police and National Guardsmen to provide fire protection for the 500,000 residents of Kansas City.

The firemen were sentenced to 20 days in jail and fined $300 for violating a no-strike order issued during a work slowdown three months ago. They joined 16 others who were sentenced Wednesday, and more contempt hearings were scheduled today.

Meanwhile, officials said the prospects remained bleak for a quick settlement of the firefighters' walkout.

"It's going to take a lot more work," said Gov. Joseph Tensada after meeting separately with city and union officials Wednesday night.

Since the strike by 900 members of Local 42 of the International Association of Firefighters began Monday night, the makeshift forces had handled 221 fire calls by 5 a.m. today. They included 87 grass or trash fires, 35 false alarms and 42 structural fires, mostly in vacant buildings.

Austin G. Sherrill, Walnut, Texas, was arrested on charges of probation violation this morning at the District Probation Office.

Sherrill is accused of delinquency on probation fees and changing his place of residence and occupation without notifying the probation officer. He has also allegedly failed to pay restitution.

He was placed on probation Oct. 31, 1978 for theft. A revocation motion was filed Wednesday.

951 working oil rigs in Texas

The number of working oil rigs in the state rose slightly again this week.

As of Monday, 951 rigs were making hole, compared to 945 for the previous week. This exceeds both the 928 total for a month ago, and the 701 total for this time last year.

The national total also rose slightly, from 2,667 a week ago to 2,669 as of Monday. Again, this exceeds the 2,608 total for a month ago, and the 1,966 total for this time last year.

Typical weather for first day of spring

By the Associated Press
 Typical spring-like weather was forecast for all of Texas today on the first day of spring. Forecasts called for scattered thunderstorms in northeastern and southern sections of the state and for windy conditions and cooler temperatures in northwestern sections. Highs were to range from the upper 50s in Northwest Texas to the low 90s in South Texas. Most of the state was to have readings in the 60s and 70s.

Travelers' advisories were issued early this morning for Northeast Texas because of fog. Dense fog covered much of the northeastern section of the state and along the middle Texas coast. Visibility was reduced to less than one-eighth of a mile at Texarkana and Longview, one-fourth of a mile in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and less than half of a mile in Tyler and Corpus Christi. Clear skies were reported before dawn over Northwest Texas and cloudy skies were reported over the eastern half of the state. Early morning temperatures ranged from the 30s in the mountains of Southwest Texas and on the South Plains to the 70s along the coast. Most areas had readings in the 40s and 50s.

WEATHER FORECAST
 WEST TEXAS — Mostly fair through Friday. Cooler today and tonight, warmer Friday. Highs upper 50s. Low 40s to near 70 south except low 80s Big Bend. Low 50s upper 20s northwest to mid 40s extreme southwinds. Highs Friday upper 60s to low 70s except upper 80s Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST
 WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy. Cooler most sections Sunday than warmer Monday. Highs Saturday 60s north to 80s Big Bend cooling into the 50s north and the 70s Big Bend on Sunday. Highs warming back into the 60s north and the 80s Big Bend on Monday. Lows will range from the 30s in the mountains and the north to the 40s in the south.

For Sale: Mansion for mere $10 million

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — For Sale: one gracious white-walled mansion, 22 rooms with guest house, 100-foot pool and all the silent screen era memories money can buy.

Anna Pavlova danced there. Maurice Chevalier sang there. Charlie Chaplin, Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, Rudolph Valentino and Norma Shearer partied there.

And Mary Pickford, the screen's first major star known as "America's Sweetheart," lived there for 59 years with her second and third husbands — Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Charles "Buddy" Rogers.

The house is Pickfair, and it went on the market this week for $10 million.

"How do you put a price on history?" said Elliott Feinman, executive vice president of the Harleigh Sandler Co., which is handling the sale. "This is really a legend."

But it's a lot of money even in Beverly Hills, where homes more commonly range from $1 million to $5 million.

Before Miss Pickford's death last May at age 86, she and Rogers had tied to offer Pickfair to the city, local universities and charitable organizations. There were no takers — its yearly upkeep was estimated at $300,000 to $400,000 — and the proceeds from its sale will go to charities under the terms of Miss Pickford's will.

Prospective buyers and reporters on Wednesday got a last glimpse of one of Hollywood's original palatial homes — just as it was during Miss Pickford's lifetime.

Miss Pickford and Fairbanks were among the founders of United Artists. The house commands a magnificent hillside view of the Pacific Ocean. Inside are antiques, including a set of firearms and daggers given to her by silent film heart-throb Rudolph Valentino that will go to the Smithsonian Institution.

Among its special features is an adobe-walled Western bar room complete with a bar from a Gold Rush-era saloon and a concealed projection booth.

Miss Pickford and Fairbanks moved into the one-time hunting lodge after they were married in 1920. In those days, the movie world's "White House" was surrounded by 15 acres of lawns, rose gardens and pools with woodland paths winding down to the beach about eight miles away.

In the last years of her life, Miss Pickford secluded herself in her bedroom, saying she didn't want to disappoint the public that remembered her as a light-haired beauty of silent films.

RECUPERATING — Uruguay's Ambassador Fernando Gomez Fyans, 43, lies in hospital bed in Bogota, Colombia, Wednesday, recovering from injuries he suffered leaping two stories from the terrorist occupied Dominican Embassy to the street below. Gomez Fyans suffered a broken wrist and sprained knee, but is to leave Bogota for his native Uruguay Thursday. Meanwhile, the M-19 guerrillas who are still holding 32 hostages at the embassy called on the Colombian government Wednesday to resume negotiations on the captive's fate.

OCAW strike could continue indefinitely

DENVER (AP) — As efforts to settle a 10-week nationwide strike by oil refinery workers bogged down, the union president accused the oil companies of "trying to chisel" the 55,000 strikers and said the strike could continue indefinitely.

The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union announced a tentative agreement Monday with Gulf Oil Corp. and Cities Service Oil Co., saying the two-year contract was expected to set a pattern for the rest of the industry to follow.

By Wednesday night, OCAW had received offers from 18 other oil companies, but none of the dozen offers that had been given initial study by union officials was deemed acceptable.

OCAW president Robert Goss said the recent offers failed to correspond to Gulf's expected "pattern" contract, and called that situation "a major complication."

The package offered by Gulf included a 52-cent per hour wage boost in addition to a 5 percent increase negotiated earlier, retroactive to Jan. 8, along with a 10.5 percent increase in 1981. Oil workers currently average $9.55 per hour. In addition, Gulf offered to pay a larger share of workers' medical insurance, to start a dental plan, and to give long-term workers more vacation time.

Gulf apparently was spokesman for the industry and had been acting in concert with the rest of the industry in making offers to the union, union spokesman Jerry Archuleta said. "The implication was that Gulf would set a pattern."

Earlier Wednesday, Goss told a reporter "the problem is that the oil companies, as usual, are trying to chisel the strike." Asked how long the strike might continue, Goss replied, "Indefinitely."

Archuleta said the additional offers were made by Texaco, Mobil, Atlantic Richfield, Phillips, Amoco, British Petroleum, Shell, Exxon, Union, Conoco, Ashland, Sun, Standard of Ohio, Jefferson Chemical, Rock Island Refining, Champlin, Energy Cooperative, and Amdel.

OCAW contracts are negotiated by individual locals but must be approved by the union's National Oil Bargaining Policy Committee before being sent back to the locals for ratification.

Medium income people getting break

You may have come to the conclusion that the costs of homes are unrealistically high. Be thankful then you don't have to pay the prices being asked in other areas.

It's almost impossible to purchase anything worth living in around the Washington, D.C., area for less than six figures. The Southern Florida regions are about as bad, if not worse. In Southern California, specifically in the Los Angeles area, basic house costs start at $100,000.

THE WALL STREET Journal, in a recent edition, tells of a new concept in business that may be a real break for the people with medium incomes.

The walls of the houses are neither wood nor brick, however, but polystyrene. That's the same material from which disposable coffee cups and picnic coolers are made. (Polystyrene is marketed nationally by Cosden Oil and Chemical Co.)

Once the houses are erected, the plastic foam walls are sprayed inside and out with cement. The contractors insist that makes the walls five times stronger than conventional walls and provides additional insulation.

The houses with the polystyrene walls have been selling like proverbial hotcakes in Southern California. At an average cost of $50,000, which includes the price of the lot, they must be considered a genuine bargain.

One purchaser of a house with polystyrene walls, who was unaware of the building's content, said she liked every thing about the residence other than the fact that she was having trouble driving picture hangers into her walls. Another purchaser said he had spotted hairline cracks in the cement walls but was reassured the contractors would patch the cracks when the house settles.

THE SYSTEM CENTERS on a 'core module' produced by an assembly line. The module contains a fully equipped kitchen, two bathrooms, furnace, laundry room and plumbing and electrical fixtures.

The module is trucked to the building site, where the surrounding concrete slab is poured. The houses don't have basements.

The wall panels are put up. Strips of polystyrene are compressed inside steel wire frames to produce four-foot-by-eight-foot panels, which are linked together and then sprayed with the concrete. Finished houses are from 1,200 to 1,350 square feet.

The construction process is cheaper because it eliminates lots of costly lumber and some skilled labor. Manufactured houses are nothing new, but most are built with lumber and are assembled on the site by highly skilled carpenters.

What's to keep the manufacturer from getting a cookie-cutter image? The contractors hope to avoid that by developing variations of its core modules and roof styles and by adopting new ceiling panels to allow optional 'cathedral' ceilings.

If the purchaser orders too many changes, however, the price starts going up again and we in the same old cycle.

No labels

Steve Hershberger

"Are you conservative or liberal?" a man asked me three Springs ago when I was running for the San Angelo City Commission.

"I'm a Hershberger," I replied. "No, no, I know your name," he said. "I want to know if politically you are conservative or liberal."

I replied, "I am 100 percent Hershberger. I believe totally in the ideology of Steve Hershberger."

A LOST VOTE? Perhaps. But, fortunately enough people believed in me to elect me to a term on my hometown's city council.

The point of this is not that I won by being a smart aleck; rather, political labeling is empty and too demanding.

Most political scientists contend the terms "conservative" and "liberal" are obsolete. They assert that only three percent of the political spectrum are actually true to their label.

I recognize it is natural for man to classify. The political label is, however, a device that is too demanding and thus too inclusive. The neat political tags do not give the officeholder flexibility and individualism.

If a person says he favors environmental protection, then automatically it is presupposed that he supports wide-reaching social programs, believes in unrestricted abortions and active economic robbing — redistributing the wealth from the rich to the poor.

Likewise, if a person comes out in favor of gun control, then he is against double taxation on corporations, against increased welfare payments and thinks labor unions have destroyed the country.

The point of contention here is that by branding someone, we limit the range of the person.

This is probably best demonstrated by the rating systems of the Americans for Democratic Action or the American Conservative Union. The performance of an individual legislator in the eyes of these two groups is gaged totally by the "yes" and "no" on each vote. Little is taken into account for reasoning, human compassion, or, for that matter, foresight.

I believe political labeling is largely responsible for negativism — the old platitude that "if you aren't for me, you are against me."

Negativism for me is old-fashioned selfishness. The political label in the '70s so well reflected the "me" attitude that ran rampant this decade.

HOW MANY BANK presidents discuss the plight of the poor at board meetings? Likewise, how many labor union members are concerned with the need for a healthy profit among corporations and businesses?

The "me first" mentality permeated our Congress and is possibly the reason we have no energy policy, we have double-digit inflation and at the same time, a recession walking the path to our doorstep.

William Broyles in a recent edition of Texas Monthly put it this way, "Our labels, in short, have given us myopia. We have attitudes, not convictions, and the result of these attitudes is a paralyzed government able only to pursue negatives."

The gist of this column is simply our political process and the coming decade may not be able to survive the exclusiveness of "conservative" or "liberal."

This is particularly true for the next 20 years as our entire way of life must transform and change to a different energy system. Man has finally consciously realized that what is on this earth is finite.

What I have said should not be construed that we cannot look to better times. Quite the contrary! This decade should be an age of affluence. The baby-boom babies, which I am a part of, will be coming of age during this time. The demand for washers, dryers, refrigerators, televisions and all other gadgets will be high.

The jobs created by our society's transforming to solar, nuclear and grain-related fuels will be numerous.

But, we can no longer attempt to make profit at the expense of the masses, and we cannot envelope ourselves in an ideology that excludes too large a number of others.

Finally, we will have to start listening and recognizing the other guy might just have something worth hearing.

Robert Frost in his poem "Mending Wall" says,

There where it is we do not need the wall:
He is all pine and I am apple orchard.
My apple trees will never get across

And eat the cones under his pines, I tell him.
He only says, "Good fences make good neighbors."

Here we go again

William F. Buckley, Jr.

President Carter's economic package has the appearance of a pointillist painting on which every living artist was invited to supply one dot. It is a compendium more political than economic. To the extent that it works it will aggravate the general economic problem and cause petty social annoyance. To the extent it doesn't work (the guidelines), it will have the disillusioning effect of treating an illness with a placebo. Suddenly you look down and you find your left leg missing.

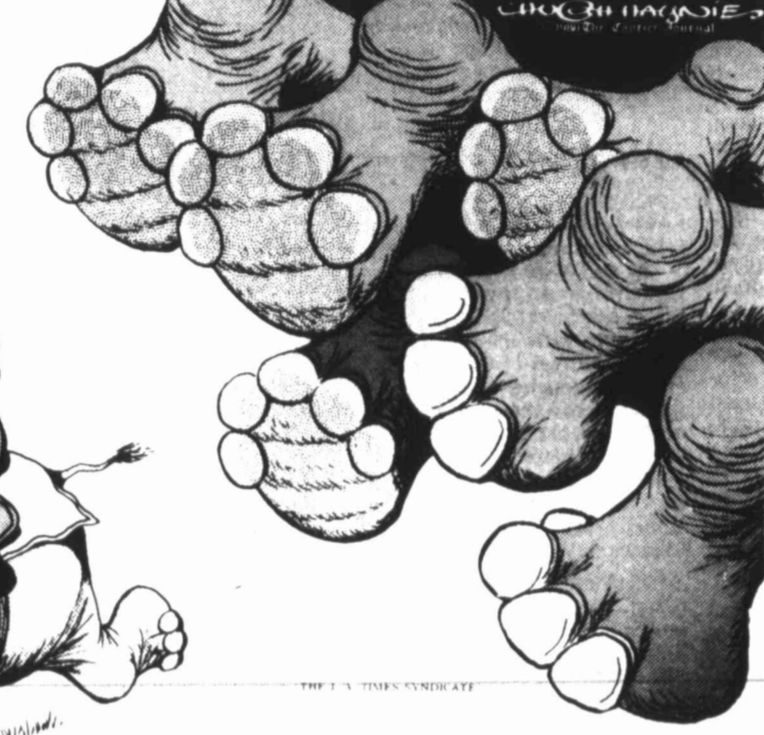

THE REPUBLICAN candidates, with the exception of John Anderson, who every day becomes a more convincing candidate for the Democratic nomination, are pretty generally committed, with to be sure differences in emphasis, to what is known as supply-side economics. When you have inflation, you need to do one of two things, or both. Either you increase productivity, or you reduce the money supply.

The supply-side people argue that although the federal moneymakers must be slowed down, strategic results are best secured by increasing the number of goods. If, let us say, the average worker, spending 40 hours per week at the assembly line, produces goods that permit his employer to pay that worker $10,000 per year, then the objective is to increase production without increasing the cost of production. One way to do this is to retool, with advanced equipment, the worker's shop. This requires the investment of capital from savings. A second way is to increase the worker's incentive. This requires paying him more (but that is an increase in cost), or letting him keep more of what he makes. There are two ways of doing the latter. One is to take less from him in taxation; the other is to permit him to be paid more by his employer by reducing the employer's governmental costs.

It is a central axiom of the supply-side people that it is easier to get people to produce more than it is to persuade them to do with less. President Carter finds himself generally on the second of the two positions. There are psychological reasons why this is so. Government is all about the exercise of power. As a term of extreme scorn, a generation ago people who desired a caricature for government hyperactivity would refer to "shower-adjusters," i.e. the Big Daddy whose appetite to regulate the life of the people extends to telling them what is the temperature of the water that suits them best. We are shower-adjusting all over the place, including specifying the heat and cold of buildings under federal regulation. Carter's package is best symbolized by its call for doubling the staff of the people who monitor what other people get paid in contracting privately with other people to do a job.

Ronald Reagan has come out for an across-the-board decrease of 30 percent in taxation. General proposals of such a nature have a great appeal. In economics, unlike, say Baroque cathedrals, simplicity is good. The inevitable question is: But if you grant diminishing the tax by 30 percent will free up a lot of capital for investment and will invigorate the working population to higher endeavor, how meanwhile will you handle the resulting deficit pending increased receipts from a higher national, and taxable, product?

REAGAN'S ANSWER to that would certainly be, in part, a reduction in the level of federal activity. But if you were to cut by one-third the current revenues from income taxation, you would be faced with a reduction of $72 billion.

"What? A forthright, articulate, liberal, issue-oriented, courageous, Republican winner? Quick, get 'im!"

Retiree doesn't have to be 'gauged'

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband retired recently, and since has been nothing but a grouch, complaining of this or that ailment. I have heard, but never believed it till now, that these guys just retire to die. Why? It is distressing me terribly. Any comment on this "non-medical" question? — Mrs. R.T.

It may not be as "non-medical" a question as you think. This retirement syndrome is real for many men. Why this downhill slide occurs at a time when life should be most pleasant, without the worries of work, is a puzzle. Some studies have, in fact, shown some sort of a correlation between retirement and heart-related illnesses.

Some men need and thrive on the anxieties of daily work. In a discussion of this recently, one physician remarked, "There are some individuals who feel retirement is a just reward for a lifetime of work and others who regard it as a punishment for growing old." We are not sure whether there are direct links between physical ailments and retirement, but we have suspicions that there may be several.

I don't have an answer for your distress, except for you to make it clear to your husband that you do not intend to join him in his grouching "declining" years. Maybe he needs a part-time job or a full-time interest. I've always felt that the first thing a new retiree should do is to have a thorough physical examination.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband, 67, had a heart attack 12 years ago and has angina flare-ups. Now his feet and legs from his knees down get cold. The bottoms of his feet burn so bad at night that he has to get up and walk a cold floor. Is there anything to do? — R.D.S.

There are three possibilities to investigate:

1. If this is due to poor circulation generally, pulses at the feet would be weak. A gradual program of exercise will help if his health allows it. Warm baths at night may give relief.

2. Erythromelalgia, the intermittent dilation (expansion) of blood vessels, can also cause such burning sensation. Foot pulses are good, but in addition to the burning and tingling the feet turn bright red. Heat aggravates the situation, so people with this like to sleep with their feet outside the blankets. Sometimes aspirin will lessen the burning.

3. Arteriosclerosis obliterans is another possibility. That means literally a closing off of an artery. The pulses are faint in the area. This usually affects only one leg, and there is calf pain when walking any distance. One common solution is quitting cigarettes.

You can try any of the suggested steps above, but your husband will probably need an examination to determine just what is amiss. You mention angina. The symptoms of angina usually include arm pain. There is special medicine for that.

Talk, no action

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's new "tough" policy toward the Soviet Union is neither tough nor policy. In a pathetic mockery of Teddy Roosevelt's "big stick" maxim, the president has been jawboning loudly and carrying a fly swatter.

The grain embargo hurt American farmers more than it damaged the Soviets. The summer Olympics boycott appears to be falling apart. The one move that could really punish the Russians is the ban on export of technological goods. We have the computers; the Russians want them — badly.

WITH MUCH fanfare, the president announced that the sale of American technological merchandise would cease. But the ink was barely dry on the presidential directive before Commerce Department officials were reassuring American manufacturers: Don't worry, the freeze is only temporary.

In fact, the technology embargo is not only temporary, but as full of holes as an Emmentaler cheese. And the bureaucratic mice at Commerce are busily chewing even more holes in the embargo.

Incredibly, one of these holes is literally big enough to drive a truck through. The disclosure that Russian troops rode into Afghanistan in trucks produced with American equipment at the huge Kama River industrial complex was shocking enough. Now the Commerce Department hucksters are drafting an exemption to the export ban that would permit continued servicing, plus the shipment of spare parts to the Kama River factories.

THE CARTER administration has given conflicting accounts of its technology embargo. The president assured members of Congress at a top-level briefing Jan. 8 that he wanted the sale of sophisticated machinery to the Soviets and their satellites stopped, period. Yet no order was issued.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., wrote a terse letter to the president, demanding to know why the administration had not lived up to Carter's assurances. The White House didn't even reply for over a month. A spokesman explained that Thurmond's letter somehow "fell through the cracks."

Meanwhile, over at the State Department, Richard Cooper, undersecretary for economic affairs, told my associate Vicki Warren, "The suspension is temporary." The idea was to halt equipment sales while an inter-agency task force studied the situation, he explained. The freeze was never meant to be permanent, according to Cooper, nor does he anticipate a "dramatic shift" in policy when the review is completed.

A contradictory appraisal came from the Commerce Department's general counsel, Homer Moyer. He insisted that the changes in the export program will be "profound," and said, "It will not be a short-term policy."

But others in the department are working on exemptions that would permit the lucrative export trade to continue. Larry Brady, who quit Commerce in disgust over the lack of firm export controls, described the planned exemptions as "directly contrary to the president's stated goal of attacking the economic plans of the Soviet Union."

Even without exemptions, much useful technology slips through to the Russians because of loose licensing requirements. Many commodities can be exported without licenses, and these are unaffected by even the temporary embargo.

One such item, unbelievable as it seems, is an assembly line for production of diesel engines at — where else? — the Kama River truck plant. It will be shipped this spring unless the administration takes action and this it has failed to do, despite inquiries from the manufacturer, Ingersoll-Rand.

As part of its jawboning techniques, the administration has called on U.S. allies to adhere strictly to the rules laid down by the allies' export control committee for technology sales to the Soviet sphere. The request has a hollow ring to it, since most of the rule violations are for sales by U.S. firms.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I feel I really need God in my life. I thought I could always be happy and have a good time in life, but I am miserable. How can I find God? — A.F.

DEAR A. F.: Almost every day I receive letters from people who say almost the same thing you do. Many of them seem to have everything in the way of material possessions, money and status. In fact, they have spent their lives looking for such things. But now that they have them, they find they are empty and miserable and find no real meaning in life. This has apparently been your experience. Like King Solomon many centuries ago, you have tried to find happiness apart from God only to discover that "when I surveyed all that my hands had done and what I had toiled to achieve, everything was meaningless, a chasing after the wind" (Ecclesiastes 2:11).

God did not mean for life to be that way. He created this world for a purpose, and yet we have chosen to leave God out of our lives. Only when we find Him and restore Him to His rightful place in our lives will we know true and lasting peace in your hearts.

How can you know God? By realizing first that He loves you very much even if you have given Him very little thought. How much does He love you? He loves you so much that His Son came into this world to take away your sins and restore you to a right relationship with God. Sin is your greatest problem. It is sin which separates you from God. It is sin which makes you seek things which have no lasting value. But Christ came to take away your sin.

By a simple prayer of faith you can accept Jesus Christ into your life and know that God has forgiven you and made you His child. Tell God you are sorry for your sins and that you turn from them and accept Christ as your Savior. Then seek to follow Christ every day as you read His Word and talk to Him in prayer. Let other Christians also help you grow closer to Christ.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor:

On Thursday, March 20th at 7:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce Conference room there will be a meeting of all the candidates running for public office. Next to electing our state and national candidates I feel the most important election is our city officials. They are the ones who determine the future of Big Spring. If we elect good men who deeply care about what happens to Big Spring, then we will have a city government that cares and will try to change some of the problems we have here.

I feel that each of the candidates running for public office cares about the future of this city. I do not feel they would consider running if they didn't feel this way.

I would very much like to encourage each of you to get to know the candidates before election time because these are the men who want to represent you, the people.

I wish to take this opportunity to congratulate each of the candidates. They are Jack Watkins, Pat Githens, Clyde Angel, Mr. Hal Boyd, Mr. Bill Henkel, Mr. Robert Fuller, Mr. Jerry Higgins, Kenneth Williams and Fred Maddux, for having the fortitude to avail themselves for a thankless, never ending, sometimes ridiculed job. So many times when someone steps in the public eye as these are doing they become the bunt of some very unflattering remarks, some of which are not even true. So whether you agree with their stand or not you need to give them credit for being willing to step out. It's a lot easier to sit back and gripe than to get up and do something about it. "It" being the situation in Big Spring.

We the voters fail our candidates sometimes by not finding out ourselves who the best candidate would be. We let other people tell us who to vote for just because they are pushing one particular candidate. Sometimes we just vote for the one whose name we hear the most. The most damaging of course, is when we hear a vicious untrue rumor about a candidate and judge him on the rumor that sometimes isn't true at all.

I would like to encourage each of you to please make it a point to come out Thursday night and meet, hear and visit with the local candidates running for city council and mayor.

Nelda Reagan

Energy

Stocks swap letter inked

Parker Drilling Company, Tulsa, Okla., and Perry Gas Companies, Inc., Odessa, announced today that they have signed a letter of intent for an exchange of Parker shares for those of Perry. The announcement was made by Robert L. Parker, Parker's chairman, Robert L. Parker Jr., Parker's president, and Charles R. Perry, Perry's chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Under the proposed agreement, Perry's shareholders would receive 3/4 of a share of Parker's Common Stock for each share of Perry Common Stock. Approximately 1,361,192 shares of Parker would be issued in exchange for the Perry stock. Parker, a publicly-owned, worldwide drilling contractor, currently has 12,893,834 shares outstanding.

Perry is a closely-held diversified domestic energy holding company engaged in the business of processing, transporting, and selling natural gas, and designing and constructing natural gas treating and processing plants.

Commenting upon the transaction, Parker and Perry stated that the proposed transaction presents a splendid opportunity for both companies to broaden their respective involvement in the energy field. Perry would continue its operations independently.

The new price schedule will be:

Regular grades A, B & C (40,000-lb. minimum) 64 cents per pound.

Modified grades A, B & C (40,000-lb. minimum) 70 cents per pound.

All prices are f.o.b. shipping point; freight equalized with nearest producing point.

Coal consortium is allocated $200,000

(Special to The Herald)

AUSTIN—Coal—especially lignite—has become a major source of energy in Texas. Experts say its importance will continue to grow.

In recognition of that increasing prominence, a Texas University Coal Research Consortium has been established and chartered. The founding members are The University of Texas at Austin, Texas A&M University, University of Houston and Texas Tech University. The Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council will participate as a non-research member and has allocated $200,000 in research funding.

UT Austin will serve as the lead institution, with administration of the consortium through the University's Bureau of Economic Geology.

According to the consortium's charter, it was established "for the coordination and encouragement of university coal research and to undertake such research as will ensure the optimum utilization of the State's coal resources." Research will focus on the occurrence, characterization, production and utilization of coal, as well as the reclamation of coal-mined lands and other environmental aspects.

"The past and current level of lignite and coal research conducted by the various Texas universities is substantial," said Dr.

William Fisher, Bureau of Economic Geology director. "The consortium, working in concert with the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council, will be an excellent mechanism for addressing many of the present and future coal research needs of Texas," Dr. Fisher said.

The consortium has applied for designation as one of 13 national University Coal Research Laboratories, as authorized in Title VIII of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. A number of research proposals developed by the new consortium currently are pending before the U.S. Department of Energy.

Children's home under scrutiny for alleged abuse of youths

By the Associated Press

Authorities in Forrest County are looking into allegations that operators of a second children's home in south Mississippi have physically abused young people at the centers.

Forrest County District Attorney Paul Holmes reportedly is probing reports of alleged abuse at Redemption Ranch near Eastabuchie. Meanwhile, a defender of Bethel Children's Home at Lucedale says marks found on the backs and legs of several students were a result of corporal punishment policy and not of abuse.

The Rev. Wallis C. Metts of the Christian Law Association of Cleveland, Ohio, spoke at a press conference Wednesday held by the Rev. Herman Fountain, Bethel's director.

Fountain and three of his assistants are free on bond after being arrested on charges that included assault and battery and disorderly conduct.

Two runaways from the Redemption Ranch filed an abuse complaint with youth court authorities shortly after a grand jury visited the facilities two weeks ago. Jan Lewis, Youth Services Bureau director at Hattiesburg, said the two said they had been beaten with a board.

District Attorney Mike Moore of Pascagoula said earlier that children who were interviewed at the Bethel youth court hearing had complained of beatings. He said examinations of the youths, ranging in age from five to 18, showed they had been struck on the legs with a belt or rod.

The 38 children in the home were moved to foster homes in other parts of the state or turned over to their parents after a youth court hearing received complaints that the youths may have been subjected to abusive treatment and forced to live in unsanitary conditions.

Some of the children came to the home with stab wounds, Metts said. "They're not out of a Sunday School picnic."

He said the state may not interfere in the Bethel home "unless the children are in imminent danger."

Fountain said he followed the Bible in operating the institution and that the children in his care had received proper medical attention.

Pointing to his Bible, he said, "I use this right here. What the Scripture says is my policy."

Fountain said he was a former heroin addict who was "saved, called to preach, attended Bible school" and eventually went to work as a "soul-winner" for Evangelist Lester Roloff in Corpus Christi, Texas.

He said the staff was giving the children the best education possible, even though they were not accredited.

Health officials investigating the complaints told authorities the children apparently had been subjected to unhealthy and unsanitary conditions.

Fountain, during a news conference at the home Wednesday, refused to discuss the charges against him.

Children at the home reportedly were expected to memorize a chapter from the bible each month.

Students meet with Clements

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The lobbyists who say they have trouble sleeping at night when it rains sat quietly and waited for the late-arriving governor to emerge from behind closed doors for their scheduled meeting.

"Hi kiddos, good to see you," Clements said after eyeing the 13 Friendswood students prepared to tell him about their friends who lost their dogs in recent floods and get scared when the first few drops of drizzle begin to fall.

The low-lying Houston-area city is plagued by recurring floods. In January, as a storm brought another flood threat to the city, the pupils wrote to Clements for help. He responded with an invitation to the Capitol.

Todd Travaille, 10-year-old spokesman for the group, told the governor about the difficulties of growing up in an area where any rain could mean the end of a home.

"Every time it rains even a little, people are afraid that it will happen again. One of the kids says her little sister is so afraid she can't go to sleep when it rains," he said, adding that student Byron Coffman said "just the small rain we had Sunday night made him remember all the horrible memories of the flood, especially the loss of his pet dog."

Young Travaille talked about the "big one" — Tropical Storm Claudette that inundated the city last July.

"Brian Rooney has had to live in eight different places since July," he told Clements.

Travaille offered a three-point program developed by the students. They want a slowdown in building in the flood-prone areas, an end to draining of water in Friendswood from surrounding counties, and state help in cleaning up clogged creeks.

Clements told the students he has flown over the area and is working on possible solutions. He promised to visit their schools — Westwood Elementary and C.W. Cline Primary — in the spring.

"Out of the mouths of babes sometimes comes wisdom," Clements said.

He also presented the students with two Texas flags that had been flown over the Capitol.

Clements listened to several of the students who had made the four-hour bus trip that started at 5 a.m. in Friendswood.

Hester Smith, a Westwood fourth grader, also lobbied for help. She said a survey in her reading class showed 17 of 30 students lived in homes that had been flooded. "Fifteen of the kids get scared when it rains," she said.

"One girl that I know spent her birthday on the roof."

U.S. population grows by 1.6 million in 1979

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' population grew by almost 1.6 million persons in 1979 as the birth rate increased and the death rate declined, the National Center for Health Statistics reports.

Not only were there more women of child-bearing age last year, but more of them were having children, a report released today showed.

There were 3.5 million live births, 4 percent more than for 1978, and 1.9 million deaths, about 2.2 percent fewer than for the previous year.

For the fourth consecutive year, the number of marriages rose to the largest total ever recorded in this country. The 2.3 million marriages in 1979 were nearly double the 1.17 million divorces recorded.

Marriages declined between 1972 and 1976. But in 1979 the number of marriages was up about 3 percent from 1978, exceeding by about 26,000 the previous marriage peak of 2.29 million, recorded in 1946.

The NCHS, an agency in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, compiled the statistics using a U.S. population estimate of 219.9 million for 1979.

For 1979, the birth rate was 15.8 live births per 1,000 population. That translates to a fertility rate of 68 live births per 1,000 women aged 15 to 44 years of age. The overall birth rate was up 3 percent from 1978 and the fertility rate was 2 percent higher.

The number of women of child-bearing age rose 2 percent between 1978 and 1979, and the Census Bureau projected an 8 percent increase in that female age group by 1985. Annual increases of less than 1 percent are anticipated in the number of women of child-bearing age between 1986 and 1990.

The rate of natural population increase — not counting immigration — was 7.1 persons per 1,000 in 1979 compared to 6.5 per 1,000 in 1978.

The marriage rate was 10.5 per 1,000 population, 2 percent higher than 1978. The divorce rate was 5.3 per 1,000 population, also up 2 percent from 1978.

The death rate of 8.7 per 1,000 compared to 8.8 per 1,000 for 1978. There were 45,000 deaths of children under 1 year old, making the infant mortality rate 13 deaths per 1,000 live births. That rate was 4.4 percent lower than the 13.6 infant deaths per 1,000 births in 1978.

Small oil producers crippled?

Final consideration of the so-called "windfall profits tax" was completed by the House on March 13, with the House-Senate Conference Report approved by a vote of 302 to 107.

The millions of words that have argued against the tax fell on deaf ears, as the drive to "punish the majors" now lacks only Senate approval. The fact that the tax will reduce — not increase — supplies of petroleum seems to have been a minor consideration. The fact that many small producers and royalty owners will be seriously crippled economically is a point that has gone ignored.

One vote stopped an attempt to exempt the first 1,000 barrels of production from the tax, an exemption that would have given the small royalty owner and producer a needed break.

A recent letter from a retiree who depends on the royalty income from his stripper wells, says it far better than I could: "Inflation of 16-18 percent and the windfall profits tax is going to destitute us. Without inflation, this tax is going to take more than 40 percent of our small royalty income. Worse still, this tax will very probably shut down the properties from which we get 90 percent of our income — stripper wells. This tax will render these properties unprofitable. "It makes no sense to tax out of existence 75 million barrels annually of stripper oil just to punish the major companies."

I fought this "consumer tax" (that is who will ultimately bear the tax) from start to finish, but unless it is rejected by the Senate and returned to the Conference Committee, the bill has passed.

This week I announced my support for the Bipartisan Coalition to Back Efforts to Balance the Budget and its proposal to cut Federal spending by $26.4 billion this year.

Among the reductions recommended was a 17.5 percent cut from 17 major regulatory agencies. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) was not among the agencies named and I would like to point out why: Agriculture has already been cut far more severely than any other department or agency. Just two years ago, agriculture's budget totaled $7.7 billion, compared to $2.8 billion in the 1981 fiscal year budget submitted by President Carter earlier this year.

I particularly oppose further reductions in agricultural research. A cutback on research funding would return about $2 to taxpayers on a per capita basis, but in six or seven years, without additional agricultural research, food prices will escalate 10 to 15 times as much. That's being penny-wise and pound-foolish. It's time to cut the unproductive areas, not the productive.

Deep drilling

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — In the United States alone during 1979 the total depth of wells drilled in search of oil and gas was 44,913 miles.

That distance is the equivalent of drilling from the North Pole through the South Pole more than five times, according to estimates from Aminoil USA.

American businessman missing in Afghanistan

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — An American businessman named Charles Brockunier has been missing in Kabul since the Afghan capital was rocked by anti-Soviet rioting nearly one month ago.

Western diplomatic sources said today.

They said the U.S. Embassy has asked the Soviet-backed Afghan regime whether Brockunier was detained along with another American, Robert Lee, but has received no reply.

American diplomats in New Delhi refused to comment officially.

Afghanistan's government radio reported Lee was arrested last month and accused of being a CIA agent.

The U.S. addresses of Brockunier and Lee were not known here.

More than 300 civilians were reported killed in the Kabul riots of Feb. 22-23, when residents of the capital protested the Soviet occupation of their homeland.

The Kremlin has poured an estimated 80,000 troops into Afghanistan to support the nation's communist government and help fight the Moslem rebels opposing it.

Foreign travelers arriving in Pakistan Wednesday from Kabul said the sounds of gunfire could be heard nightly in the Afghan capital, but they said they could not tell who was doing the shooting or if there were casualties.

The travelers also said the area east of the capital was quiet during the day and the main east-west highway between Kabul and Pakistan was open despite rebel claims of military successes in the area.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for one rebel coalition was quoted by Tehran radio today as appealing for material and moral aid from Iran's ruling revolutionary regime.

$42 made more per acre.

In 56 comparisons over the last three years, certified Lockett 77 from Pioneer produced an average gross income of $309* per acre... giving it a $42 per acre advantage over competitive varieties.

Why such an advantage? Outstanding seedling vigor with excellent cold tolerance and seedling disease escape help Lockett 77 make a good stand. Added to that are multiple disease tolerance, hardy plant characteristics, and early maturity... a combination that helps Lockett 77 deliver outstanding performance.

Farmers who've grown certified Lockett 77 are well pleased with results. Jack and Paul Hopper at Knott recorded a lint yield of 1,553 lbs./planted acre in 1979. Ben Roming at Lariat got 830 lbs./A. And over the last four years at Tell, Texas, Clinton Halford averaged 975 lbs. of lint per acre with certified Lockett 77.

Rewards cut bank robberies

DETROIT (AP) — He walks quietly across the bank and hands the teller a note: "I have a gun. Give me $500." He gets his money and quickly flees the bank.

In California or New York — indeed, just about anywhere in the country — the bandit has a good chance of getting away. But in Detroit, nine out of 10 times the robber will be caught.

In five years, the number of bank robberies in the metropolitan area has been slashed by 79 percent — 90 percent in the city itself — while the national total has risen 86 percent.

Far cry from 1974, when Detroit helped earn its reputation as crime city by having 237 of Michigan's 294 bank robberies — the third highest total in the country.

In the first six months of 1978 — the latest figures available from the FBI — there were 39 bank robberies in all of Michigan. During the same period, California had 839, New York 357, New Jersey 111, Pennsylvania 103, and Maryland and Florida 91 each.

Much of the credit for Detroit's remarkable flip-flop goes to a bank robbery reward program created in 1974, said FBI agent Jerry Craig. The program pays $1,000 for information resulting in an indictment for bank robbery.

It's operated by the Detroit Clearing House Association's security committee — an organization of 69 banks and savings and loan associations — along with the FBI and local law enforcement agencies.

The group places "wanted poster" advertisements in newspapers and on city buses promoting the rewards. Most of the ads bear actual photographs of bandits taken by security cameras, Craig said, and urge people to call in information about robberies.

William Kalmar, chairman of the security committee, said some callers are eyewitnesses, but in many cases they either recognize the bandit from seeing his photo or offer inside information about the holdup.

"We've had relatives turn in a bank robber. We've had sons and daughters — fathers and mothers turning in sons and daughters," he said.

"In one instance a bank robber, after seeing his picture prominently displayed in the local newspaper, turned himself in. Apparently he was hoping to use the $1,000 for his defense fund."

The bandit was not paid — just arrested.

Other factors contributed to the decline in holdups, said Jack Thistlethwaite, committee vice chairman.

He cited the use of bullet-proof glass at teller windows, tear gas and red dye packets "designed to separate the crook and his money the minute they go off."

But rewards are the key, Thistlethwaite said.

Such programs have been around since the 1930s. What makes Detroit's program work while the others fail?

Craig noted that in New York state, in which a program pays $10,000 upon arrest and conviction, bank robberies rose 43 percent between 1974 and 1978.

Seattle's "Rat on a Rat" program pays $10,000 upon arrest, yet holdups have increased by 20 percent in the last year, said Kalmar.

Kalmar said the difference leading to Detroit's success seems to be payment for indictment, not an arrest.

"They're putting a dollar amount on the value of the information in Oregon," he added. "I don't know how you can look at what the citizen gives you and say

"That's only worth 200 bucks. We don't do that. It's a thousand bucks. That, I think, gives our program integrity."

Thistlethwaite said constant, repeated advertising also has helped. The association has spent $440,000 on the program since its inception, including $94,000 in rewards. Because of that, he said 105 robbers were arrested and 199 holdups were solved.

Kalmar thinks the next two years will test the preventive nature of the Detroit program, with the economy likely worsening and with some 260 bandits sentenced in 1975 being released from jail.

Other cities have expressed an interest in the program, Craig said. And he said it could easily be adapted to fighting other crimes.

"People are people, and it doesn't really matter if it's Seattle or Phoenix or Cleveland, Detroit or wherever," said Thistlethwaite. "Assuming the program would work the same way in any other area of the country, people are going to come forward."

"All you have to do is ask."

Amateur astronomer ambitious dreamer

HURLEY, N.Y. (AP) — Some dream of owning their own private mountaintop. Jack Smolen was a more ambitious dreamer.

He got his mountaintop, all right, 200 acres known locally as Eagle's Nest. At the summit, perched in a clearing, is the rest of his dream, the result of 25 years of planning and labor.

He named it Eagle's Nest Observatory. When he finished it, in 1983, he wrote to a friend of the joy he felt: "Finally I have the moon and the stars to play with."

Eagle's Nest Observatory, however, is no plaything. It might be the Palomar Observatory in miniature — Palomar viewed, as it were, through the wrong end of a telescope.

Its rotating dome is 14 feet in diameter, motor driven, with a panel that slides aside to expose a 10-inch telescope. A 10-by-16-foot room serves as library and lab. Charts and photographs decorate the walls.

Its location on the planet Earth is at latitude north 41 degrees, 56 minutes, 30 seconds; longitude west 74 degrees, 4 minutes, 52 seconds; elevation 580 feet.

If a 580-foot Catskill eminence doesn't exactly qualify as a mountain by, say, Colorado standards, Eagle's Nest surely qualifies as an observatory by any measure. Jack Smolen takes his astronomy seriously, though he insists it is only a hobby.

Just recently, for instance, he and his wife, Muriel, journeyed to the remote village of Ankola on the west coast of India so he could see and photograph a total solar eclipse. Some hobby.

"I'm 72 years old," he explained. "I might not get to see another one. It is, after all, a spectacular sight and a good excuse for a trip."

The proud proprietor of this private observatory is a quiet-spoken, modest man of about 5-foot-9 with eyes the color of a cloudless sky. He studied to be an electrical engineer, but his fascination with the heavens led him, instead, to the field of optics.

"I wanted a telescope," he said. "I didn't have the luxury of buying one, so I made one, a 3½-inch Newtonian. Naturally, when it was done, I wanted a larger one. Optics became my career."

So he made a larger one. He ground a 10-inch mirror on his kitchen table, fashioned a 75-inch open tube of strap iron and piano wire, all with the exactness of a fine watch. Clearly, such an instrument was not something to be propped on a windowsill. Clearly, such an instrument deserved a proper observatory. A dream was born.

"It has a drawback: too many cloudy nights. That's why the big observatories are out west, where the weather is clear."

Survival training

Diabetes is nation's third greatest killer

Diabetes is a disorder in the body's ability to process carbohydrates, proteins and fats normally. It is the nation's third greatest killer and a major contributor to heart disease and kidney failure.

Diabetics cannot be cured, but it can be controlled through patient understanding, proper care, medication and diet.

Diabetics are learning about their disease and how to live with it through a new Diabetic Teaching Clinic conducted by the Department of Internal Medicine at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Patients are referred to the teaching clinic by their doctors, nurses or other health professionals. Following examinations and evaluations by medical school endocrinologists, an individualized teaching program is planned for each participant. Upon completion of the program, patients return to their own physicians for long-term care and management.

"The teaching clinic's goal is to help the patient achieve independence through self-help and self-care," said Carlos Menendez, M.D., assistant professor of internal medicine. Menendez and Jose Becero, M.D., chief of endocrinology, work with nurses and nutritionists as a team to help patients achieve that goal.

"Each patient begins with survival level training," Menendez said. "We have found that even patients who have been diabetic for some time frequently lack basic information about the disease."

Survival training is conducted on a one-to-one basis by a specially trained registered nurse. It covers such topics as a definition of the disease; recognition of diabetic crisis symptoms and countermeasures to take; relationships between rest, activity, meals, snacks and diabetic symptoms. Medications are explained and insulin injection techniques taught.

A nutritionist works with patients individually to help them understand the diabetic exchange list of foods and how to plan a balanced diet.

Efforts are made to modify the patient's usual diet, according to Sandy McLeroy, R.D., staff nutritionist. Patients have more success in controlling their diet if they can eat the foods their family eats and don't have to change their lifestyles too drastically.

Group sessions are held for patients who are on medications and for patients who can control their symptoms through diet alone. Group sessions provide a forum for sharing experiences and can help the patient realize he is not alone, said Nancy Yarbrough, R.N.

Disciplinary actions may delay contract

HOUSTON (AP) — Disciplinary action taken by oil companies against striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union members may delay settlement of the strike for weeks, an OCAW official says.

H.J. "Mac" McClain, District Four OCAW chief, said Wednesday "if the industry remains adamant about taking actions with these employees," the strike might last for "weeks and weeks."

About 1,500 angry Port Arthur local OCAW members rejected Gulf Oil Co.'s latest contract offer because the company allegedly fired two striking workers and threatened a dozen more with suspension.

Gulf says the affected workers must go through the company's grievance procedures, but union officials say the matter must be solved before the contract is accepted.

Let freeloader pick up her own tab

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: We are a group of four young married couples, plus one single girl who goes out to dinner once a month. Our problem is that one of the married couples always winds up paying for the single girl's dinner. She always offers to pay her share but we are embarrassed to take the money yet none of us can really afford to pay her way.

How can we solve this problem without hurting her feelings? We enjoy her company and want her to continue eating with us. Help. — Diners, Lodi, Calif.

Diners: You won't hurt her feelings by taking her money when she offers to pay. Your single friend is taking advantage of the situation. Even though she offers to pay for her dinner, she should insist.

Would I be macho if I asked why she doesn't occasionally have an escort?

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and my boyfriend is 17 and we are very much in love and plan to get married when I graduate.

My problem is that my parents don't accept him because they found out that we had sex together. In fact, they hate him and think that he only likes me for sex. This isn't true. He loves me very much. I'm still allowed to see this boy but one of my parents must be home when he visits me. When we have a car date, another couple has to go with us.

It really bothers me that my parents don't trust me. I don't know what I can do to help. Can you think of the word? — Karen, Zanesville, Ohio

Karen: You are fortunate that your parents are permitting you to date this boy. I think their rules are fair and that you should have no complaints. To earn trust, one must be trustworthy. In your case, it's also going to take time.

Dr. Wallace: I have a really neat friend who is 12 years old. The problem is that our teacher saw him smoking and now we think this teacher is going to flunk him. Do you think this is fair? — Fred, Klamath Falls, Ore.

Fred: Don't jump to conclusions. His smoking has nothing whatsoever to do with his grade and it would be a rare teacher who would flunk a student for such a reason.

But I do think the teacher has a responsibility to inform this boy on the evils of smoking.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Leader-daughter camp scheduled

A new concept in out-of-door training is being offered by the West Texas Girl Scout Council at Camp Boothe Oaks on Saturday, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Jayree Shaw, training coordinator, is presenting an opportunity for a troop leader and her own Girl Scout daughter to train together at the council's resident camp south of Sweetwater.

Twenty-one leaders and their daughters have registered from Snyder, Sweetwater, Abilene and Haskell. The trainees will enjoy firebuilding, outdoor cooking, knots, lashing, compass and maps, tent pitching and knife safety.

A nursery for the younger children will be supervised by an experienced leader and several Cadettes from Snyder. Fathers coming will join the Camp Committee members in the annual task of putting platform tents up in Plateau, Sherwood and Gypsy Glen Unit Areas.

The West Texas Council is registered from Snyder, Sweetwater, Abilene and United Way.

Garden club views film on landscaping

The Oasis Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. C.B. Lawrence recently with Mrs. Cecil Suttles and Mrs. Spencer Wolfe serving as co-hostesses.

A film was shown on "Landscaping Your Home From the Inside." Five environmental factors effect house plants — light, temperature, gases, soil moisture and nutrients. The temperature should be 70-75 degrees in the daytime and 60-65 degrees at night.

Containers should be the right size and have proper drainage. The growing media should consist of loose soil that is high in organic matter, perlite, sandy loam and peat moss. Plants that do well in our area were listed.

The members answered roll call by naming eyesores in Big Spring.

A flower arranging workshop will be held March 26 at 10 a.m.

A discussion followed on ways to help clean up Big Spring.

The next meeting will be a trip to a local nursery.

Bars Unweds In Her Beds

DEAR ABBY: Twenty two years ago, when I was in college, I was very much in love with a girl named Dotty. Unhappily, we broke up, both married other people, raised nice families, and lost track of each other.

We ran into each other about a year ago and discovered that we were both divorced. The old flame was rekindled, we started seeing each other again, and it is wonderful! We live 150 miles apart, but because of our jobs we can't marry at this time. However, we spend almost every weekend together. Our children, all over 18, approve of our relationship, and the fact that we sleep together has never been hidden from them.

Dotty has invited me and my children to spend Easter week at her home. Her children will be there, too. Dotty has also invited her parents.

Being a very open and honest person, Dotty told her parents about the sleeping arrangements, and they were horrified! They say they will not sleep under the same roof with Dotty and me if we're sleeping together!

It is not a religious issue, but they are calling it that in order to give more substance to their objections. (They don't attend any church.) I would like your opinion.

NO HYPOCRITE

DEAR NO: Even though you may not consider sex outside of marriage a religious issue, Dotty's parents do, so out of respect to them, you and Dotty should forego sharing the same bed on that weekend — unless you want to flaunt your total disregard for their and their values.

DEAR ABBY: I am a reasonably attractive working woman in my late 20s. In my job I am constantly in contact with the public. My problem is that I am frequently asked out by men and find it very difficult and sometimes embarrassing to say no.

Would it be wrong for me to wear a wedding ring while I work even though I am not married?

UNMARRIED BUT UNAVAILABLE

DEAR DOUBLE UN: A wedding ring (like a sign that says, "WET PAINT") is not always a deterrent. Wear one if you wish, but a more mature solution would be to develop sufficient spunk to say, "No," emphatically, convincingly and without apologies or excuses.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl with a very touchy problem. I have a friend who is cross-eyed. My mother says this can be corrected by surgery, but I just can't bring myself to mention it to her because I don't want to hurt her feelings.

Many people know she's my best friend, and they ask me why she doesn't get her eyes fixed because she would be so pretty otherwise. I usually say, "I don't know why," and walk away. What else can I say?

Guys notice it right away, and I am sure that's the reason she has very few dates. She is a lovely girl with a nice personality. Is there some way I can help her without hurting her feelings? We are both 15.

WANTS TO HELP

DEAR WANTS: Yes. Only a good friend would care enough to tell her that most cross-eyes can be corrected. Perhaps she doesn't know. Or perhaps she isn't aware of how conspicuous it is. If you tell her in the spirit of friendly loving kindness, she should be grateful, not hurt.

How far can we go and still be safe? Get Abby's new booklet: What Teenagers Ought to Know: Send $2 and a long stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

One more step toward womanhood

Scouts whip up well-balanced meal

By ROBBIE CROW
Family News Editor

Just because that's what little girls are supposed to do, most pig-tailed, care-free doll dressers will grow up to become housewives, mothers, career women and cooks.

In general, they will become the organizer, hurt healer, discipline teacher and broken-heart mender for one of the most lasting unities known to man — the family.

But how do little girls cross that bridge which leads from childhood to womanhood? Nature, maternal instinct and help from mom all play major roles, yes. But many young girls receive that basic understanding and extra polish for their future roles as hearts of households through participation in Girl Scouts.

Amongst the banging and clanging of pots and pans, these eager-to-learn scouts, with the supervision of their leaders, completed one requirement of many to earn their Cook Badges.

"We went to Elbow Elementary School cafeteria to plan and prepare a simple, well-balanced dinner," said Mrs. Self.

The preparation of the well-balanced meal was one requirement of ten listed in the Girl Scout handbook.

Prior to taking on the cooking task, each scout learned how to measure dry, liquid and solid ingredients and each had to know and understand measuring equivalents.

They were also taught how to control stove top burners, preheat the oven and clean a stove safely.

Miniature chefs participating in this cooking adventure were Girl Scouts Kori Doane, Leslie Foster, Susan Self, Debbie Nelson, Shawn Davies, Angel Cannon and Kelly Sampson.

HEAD WASHING — A clean Mexican Salad is a good Mexican Salad, so Girl Scouts Leslie Foster and Kori Doane along with Brownie Brandi Nelson make sure all the vegetables are adequately rinsed before preparing the salad.

Lending their helping hands were Brownies Becky Self and Brandi Nelson of Troop 49.

Each girl went to work preparing her respective portion of the menu which included flavorful Porcupine Meatballs, mouth-watering Mexican Salad, tasty Drop Biscuits and creamy Banana Pudding.

By the time the scouts were seated around the table to taste the results, many learning processes had taken place and their knowledge of meal planning and preparing had been expanded.

"The biggest surprise to most of the girls," revealed Mrs. Nelson, "was the fact that additives, such as cereal to meat or buttermilk to cake, enhanced the flavor instead of hurt it."

"Once they tasted the rice in the meat, it was okay. It was the thought of it being added as a filler that bothered them."

There is an understood rule in Troop 200 that all food prepared must be sampled by each scout — at least one bite — whether they like it or not.

"A few of the girls almost refused to taste the Banana Pudding," recalled Mrs. Self, "but we finally persuaded them to try it."

"Once they tasted it," she continued, "we couldn't keep them out of it."

Another important aspect digested by each scout along with their food was that of taking turns.

"They realized that everyone couldn't be a cook," pointed out Mrs. Nelson, "someone had to cleanup."

In the near future, the scouts will take their kitchen knowledge with them when they brave the wild woods on their May campout.

"It will be up to the scouts to figure out how much food will be needed and what to buy," said the leader.

"They'll even be required, with our supervision, to go to the store and buy everything."

The girls, according to Mrs. Nelson, will vote democratically on what they want to eat during the campout.

"We're really proud of our girls," stated Mrs. Self. "They've come a long way."

"And we've learned a lot from them too," Mrs. Nelson added.

Where do little girls get their kitchen know-how?

If they were Girl Scouts, they acquired many important basics and just the right amount of polish while earning their cook badges.

Girl Scouts are supported through the United Way.

2 pounds hamburger
4 large potatoes (1/2 per person)
4 carrots (1/2 per person)
2 onions (1 slice per person)

Tear piece of heavy duty foil 8 inches wide. Lay on flat surface. Form hamburger patties and lay on foil. Then place half potato, peeled and sliced, on top of patty. Add 1/2 of a carrot, peeled and cut in half lengthwise. Place thin slice of onion on top.

Fold foil in a store wrap to seal good. Place packages directly on coals for 20 minutes, turning once very carefully to avoid tearing foil and losing juices. Remove from coals and turn back foil and eat from it.

To cook in oven, heat for 1 hour and 15 minutes in 375 degrees.

With 58-55 win over Minnesota

Virginia captures NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Virginia Cavaliers believe their victory in the National Invitation Tournament qualifies them as one of the best college basketball teams in the country — despite their 10 losses and fifth-place finish in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

But with three of the NCAA championship tournament's final four were also-rans in their own conferences, who's to say Coach Terry Holland and his team are wrong?

"I believe we're as good as any team in the country when we play well," said Holland after Virginia defeated Minnesota 58-55 in the championship game of the NIT Wednesday night.

"We didn't get enough time to jell together during the season, but we played well in the tournament," said Jeff Lamp, whose four free throws in the last 19 seconds secured the victory.

"We had our ups and downs all season and the adversity pulled us together."

Lamp, who scored 30 points in Monday night's semifinal victory over

Nevada-Las Vegas but was held to nine in the championship, was referring to Virginia's season-long struggle to adjust to highly recruited freshman center Ralph Sampson.

The 7-foot-4 Sampson, amazingly mobile and agile for his size, was named the NIT's Most Valuable Player after scoring 15 points and 15 rebounds Wednesday night following his 26 points and 15 rebounds Monday.

"You can't really call him 'Virginia wins NIT'"

DOMINANT PLAYER — Virginia University's Ralph Sampson towers over other players as he grabs a first half rebound in the NIT final game at New York's Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. Sampson was the tourney MVP with 15 points and 15 rebounds in the final game. He towers over Minnesota's Gary Holmes (42), Virginia's Lee Baker and Minnesota's Randy Breuer. Virginia won the tourney 58-55.

Stabler excited with new team

HOUSTON (AP) — Quarterback Ken Stabler, speaking in a slow Southern drawl that fits right in with his new Houston Oilers teammates, can list a number of reasons why he's happy to be an Oiler.

Examining an Oiler helmet as he was introduced to the Houston Oilers staff Wednesday, Stabler observed, "The last time I saw one of these things it was sticking in my back."

Stabler, obtained from the Oakland Raiders last week in exchange for quarterback Dan Pastorini, also said he liked what he had seen of the Oilers fans and heard about Bum Phillips.

"Playing in the Astrodome is like going to a party," he said. "In other places, they throw beer bottles and can openers at you. But when they start singing that Oiler song and waving those pom-poms, it's a different world and I want to be a part of it."

Stabler said he had heard many compliments from players concerning Phillips' relationship with the team.

Stabler, who completed 304 of 498 passes for 3,615 yards and 26 touchdowns last season, said the trade also had rejuvenated his interest in playing.

"I had thought several times about hanging them up," Stabler said. "But you get to thinking about it in July and you're back." This trade has me all pumped up again. I feel like a rookie.

"It's a challenge to me to come to a city like Houston and to prove myself to these fans. I know I have to earn my job. There's another good quarterback already here."

Stabler, 34, had been at odds with Oakland general manager Al Davis after Davis criticized the quarterback publicly. Stabler downplayed his squabble with Davis.

"Oh, I'd probably speak to him if I met him on the street," Stabler said. "I didn't see any need for a relationship with Davis. I had good communication with the staff and players. But I'm glad Mr. Davis traded me."

Stabler said his desire to be traded had nothing to do with the Raider staff or players.

"Maybe it was just being in one place for 10 years, I needed a change," Stabler said. "But it's not easy to leave after you've been in a 'Stabler'"

Cancer Society sponsoring unique basketball games Friday

Their will be a pair of unique basketball games on Friday night at Poverty Pavilion on the campus of Howard College, with the proceeds going to the American Cancer Society.

At seven o'clock, the Howard College Hawks men's team will play an exhibition against a group of local women.

Immediately following the first exhibition, the Howard College Hawk Queens women's team will meet a group of local businessmen in what promises to be an embarrassing affair.

Price of admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students, with all proceeds going to the local Cancer Society fund. Officials for the contests are Jim Baum and Pete Harris.

The businessmen's team is coached by Wayne Henry.

BSHS netters experience success

Big Spring High School's Kip McLaughlin and Alyssa Burns each advanced to the finals of the Andrews tennis tournament before suffering defeats.

Other BSHS players that had some success in their competition included Aubrey Weaver, Greg Franklin, Todd Gilbert, Diane Ladaga, Terri Miller, Amy Burleson, Kim Madry and Debbie Fulcher.

McLaughlin lost to a Fort Stockton netter, while Burns suffered her championship defeat at the hands of Liz Alvarado of Odessa.

The Big Spring JV netters also experienced success over the past week, taking a 12-6 win over Coahoma.

Winning matches for the Steer JV netters were Cavan McMahon, Todd Gilbert, and Scott Nelson in boys singles competition, while Gilbert and Nelson won their boys doubles match.

Big Spring girls JVs winning their matches included Madry, Miller, Marie Lawrence and Karen Jones, while Madry-Penny Prudhomme, Miller-Lawrence and Jones-Lea Kay Moore all won their doubles matches.

The Big Spring varsity netters return to action this afternoon when they play host to Post. The matches will take place at the local tennis center and the public is urged to attend.

When Louisville-Iowa battle in NCAA semifinals

Backcourt aces hold the key

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Louisville Coach Denny Crum calls Darrell Griffith, the Cardinals' star, "a true All-American, the best all-around guard in nation."

But Iowa Coach Lute Olson, whose unranked Hawkeyes will go up against the No. 2-rated Cardinals Saturday in the semifinals of the NCAA Basketball Championships, feels just as strongly about his team's backcourt ace, Ronnie Lester.

"When he's 100 percent, Ronnie is the best guard in America," Olson declared.

But that's the catch — "when he's healthy."

How well the Hawkeyes do may hinge on just how healthy Lester is. The senior and leading scorer in Iowa history, missed 15 games this season because of a knee injury, and in his absence Iowa was a very ordinary 8-7 team. With Lester in the lineup, the Hawkeyes are 15-1.

Lester showed the after-effects of his injury last weekend, as Iowa beat Syracuse and Georgetown to win the East Regional. At times he limped while on the court, and never did he display the blazing speed that had the pro scouts raving about him a year ago.

"I'm still not 100 percent," concedes the 6-foot-2 Lester. Olson says it's more like 75 percent.

But even that is remarkable when you consider that Lester underwent knee surgery in midseason.

"I thought when Ronnie had surgery his season was over," said Olson. "But he left the recovery room at 4 a.m. and by 10 a.m. he was lifting weights with the leg. If you don't think he wanted to come back, you're mistaken."

And now?

"He is a little better each day," Olson said. "He's still a great player, but he doesn't have that blazing quickness back yet. He's a little reluctant to turn it on. But by Saturday, you will see the after-burners going."

Iowa figures to need Lester operating at or close to top

KOed writer takes cheap shot at Dante

Talk is still fresh about the PASTORINI-STABLER trade. In Sunday's Houston Post, sportswriter DALE ROBERTSON editorialized that Houston would be better off with STABLER than PASTORINI. ROBERTSON went on to emphasize Dante's weaker points, and in rather harsh fashion. What the Houston sportswriter didn't say in the editorial was that Pastorini kayoed him last year before an Oiler practice session, which is probably why ROBERTSON cheap-shot the former Oiler QB in print.

New Big Spring High School football coach RALPH HARRIS is wasting no time getting his program started, as local grid coaches are finding out. All of the football coaches in the Big Spring system are to meet Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings at 6:15 a.m. this week for "school."

Midland High will come under investigation this Monday by the District 5-AAAA Executive Committee for alleged off-season rules violations. The meeting doesn't have new MHS Coach PAT CULPEPPER as disturbed as he is with the anonymous letter that prompted the investigation. "Anonymous letters are as low life as anything I can think of," says Culpepper. "If someone has something to say, they should come out in the open and say it."

It's too bad that someone turned in Midland High. Most every program bends the off-season rules. I'm not saying that's right, but to compete, you have to work longer than the one-hour per day in the off-season.

The NFL projects that 60 percent of its players by 1985 will come from the south and southwest rural areas. BOB HAYES, recently paroled from prison, once again proved that he is truly the world's fastest human. NFL official DON ORR, who decided that Houston Oiler MIKE RENFRO did not have possession on the now infamous non-catch, felt that he should have been more emphatic when he signaled no-touchdown. "I did not believe he had possession. I should have made a more emphatic signal," says ORR.

Recent Hall of Fame inductee BOB LILLY was recently praised by Cowboy Coach TOM LANDRY. Says LANDRY: "A man like this comes along once in a generation, and there won't be another BOB LILLY in my time. He is something even a little bit more than great. Nobody is better than LILLY. He is a man who will become a legend." RAY WERSCHING of San Francisco led the NFC and TONI FRITSCH of the AFC in the final NFL stats released recently. Fritsch connected on an NFL best percentage of .840 in a 21 for 25 performance. FRITSCH was an excellent nine of 12 from over 40 yards out. Arkansas Razorback kicking extraordinary ISH ORDONEZ, who has led the Southwest Conference in scoring the past two years, will be redshirted this season.

Western Texas College of Snyder, who is carrying an unbeaten and number one ranking into the second round of the national juko tourney, has only four Texans on their 15-player squad. All four Texans are from El Paso. The Region V men's juko basketball circuit continues to have its exes perform admirably in the major college ranks. This year, LEWIS LLOYD of Drake (and formerly of NMMI) and SAM WORTHEN of Marquette (formerly of McLennan) both made third team AP-All American. LLOYD finished second in the country in scoring and rebounding, while WORTHEN is a sure fire pro guard. RAE WHITE of Temple JC, who displayed her abilities here in the Hawk Queens College Classic in November, has been selected to play in the NJCAA East-West All-Star game on March 29 in Hutchinson, Kansas. The Temple scoring and rebounding ace will play for the West stars.

The Texas High School Basketball Coaches All-State team has two names that are familiar. On the first team is MIKE WACKER, a 6'8" senior who is the son of Southwest Texas State football coach JIM WACKER. On the third team is DOUG MOE of San Antonio Clark, a 6'2" guard who is the son of former San Antonio Spurs Coach DOUG MOE, who was fired only weeks ago.

The SMU basketball program will change from a run-and-gun strategy to a defensive minded unit under new Coach DAVE BLISS. BLISS' teams at OU never allowed their opponents a season average of over 70 points per game. For the fifth straight year, college basketball scoring has declined. The most probable answer is inflation and the NCAA scholarship limit, which creates more equality. Trivia question: Who is the only school to make it to the final 16 every year in the NCAA Tourney since 1975? UCLA. In fact, the Bruins have made it that far for the last 14 years.

DAVE WINFIELD was recently honored for his outstanding humanitarian service outside of baseball. The next week, WINFIELD asked for a contract worth 1.7 million per year, plus the right to veto a new owner. Such a humble man. Big Spring Steer baseball team looks good for such a young crew. Coach HOWELL MARTIN'S crew usually doesn't start a senior, which is becoming commonplace at BSHS this year.

Midland College Athletic Director DELNOR POSS called last night from the national men's juko tourney in Hutchinson, Kansas, in a depressed state. His mood was due to the fact that after watching the first day's action, POSS felt sure that Midland College could have beaten any of the teams in the tournament, with the exception of Western Texas. "Western Texas is simply in a class by themselves, even at this tournament," observed the Midland College AD.

WARMING UP — Big Spring Steerette Pam Banks, who has been a consistent point getter for the BSHS girls track team this year, clears the high jump bar in a recent practice session. Banks, along with both her female teammates and the boys track team at BSHS, will be hosting the ABC Relays Track and Field Meet here Saturday in Memorial Stadium. The event is bringing in 12 teams in both the boys and girls competition, with school from as far away as Amarillo and El Paso competing. Running prelims and field events are slated to begin at 10:00 a.m., with the running finals scheduled for a 1:30 p.m. start.

Rangers pledge support if strike occurs

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers have pledged their unanimous support for a major league baseball players strike if such a walkout is called by the Players Association's executive board.

The vote, along with strike Miller, who met with the Rangers prior to their exhibition game with the New York Yankees, said he was unimpressed with the decision by negotiators for the owners to drop a proposed salary scale for players.

Zebra's wild driving can't stop Jefferson State in NJCAA Tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — A freak accident involving a basketball referee, a car and a motel room put Steve Hedden on the bench — but it didn't stop his Jefferson State teammates.

James Shortnacy of Duncanville, Texas, was released on $500 bond after appearing in a Reno County court Wednesday for driving while intoxicated, but tournament officials ordered him suspended from working the tourney.

Hedden, a starting forward on the Birmingham, Ala., team, received 110 stitches in his left leg early Wednesday after a car driven by a referee careened through a window into his motel room.

But Jefferson State, in the best Hollywood script tradition, responded Wednesday night by thumping Anderson of South Carolina 83-67 to advance to the semifinals of the Men's National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Jefferson State, with Hedden watching on crutches from the sideline, wiped out an early 10-2 Anderson lead to take a 36-30 halftime advantage and gradually pull away on strong free-throw shooting.

In an earlier second-round game, John Van Uden scored the game-winning basket with one minute left, then hit two insurance free throws in the final 30 seconds as Yavapai, Ariz., upset defending champion Three Rivers, Mo., 62-59.

Three other contests saw Tyler, Texas, rout Westchester, N.Y., 102-83 and Baltimore down Westark, Ark., 66-54 in first-round games, and Middle Georgia slip past Kansas City 4, Colo., 89-85 in overtime of a losers' bracket battle.

Four consolation games and two second-round games were scheduled today.

In losers' bracket action, Monroe, N.Y., played North-west Mississippi; North Idaho met Cloud County, Kan.; Westark took on Westchester and Three Rivers played Anderson.

The second-round games matched Western Texas against Lincoln, Ill., and Baltimore against Tyler.

Lyle pitches Rangers by NY

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gaylord Perry pitched five shutout innings and Sparky Lyle blanked the New York Yankees in relief Wednesday as the Texas Rangers won 3-1 to claim their first exhibition baseball win of the spring.

The Rangers are now 1-9 in exhibition play, the Yankees fell to 5-4.

Lyle, relieving Adrian Devine with runners on first and second and one out in the seventh, got Yankee infielder Gary Smith to hit into a double play. Lyle gave up only one hit, a lead-off single to Roy Staiger in the ninth.

UT-Arkansas reschedule game

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas and Arkansas have agreed to switch their traditional Southwest Conference game from mid-October to the first week in September to kick off ABC-TV's 1980 college football package, possibly in prime time. The Associated Press learned Wednesday.

The game will be played in Austin, Texas, on either Saturday, Sept. 6 or — pending network approval — in prime TV time on Monday night, Sept. 1.

The Texas-Arkansas game originally was scheduled for Oct. 18.

"I generally don't care when we play Arkansas," said Texas coach Fred Aikers.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAR. 21, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to consider the problems and perplexities that face you, and to plan a better way to operate in the days ahead. Take positive steps to gain your most cherished aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your financial status and make plans to have more security in the future. Find a better way to be more productive at work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You want to have more abundance in the future but make sure your plans are practical. Relax at home tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't do anything at this time that could jeopardize your fine reputation. Sidestep one who is detrimental to your progress.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are tempted to be too extravagant now, so take right steps to control this. Clear up whatever is in error.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact a most successful person who can give you good ideas. Avoid the social today and concentrate on business affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Forget ideas of expansion right now and take care of problems at hand. Take pains to handle routine tasks in an effective manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure to carry through with promises you have made. Keep busy at tasks that could bring you increased income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Applying yourself with more vigor at this time can result in added income. Don't neglect to pay an important bill.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use your ability to solve a difficult problem. You have excellent judgment now and can easily gain your aims.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Strive to be more efficient at work and have more rapport with co-workers. Be more serious and get good results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study whatever has been puzzling you in the past and come up with the right answer. Your hunches are accurate now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure not to invest more than you can afford or you could regret it later. Take modern treatments to improve your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a clever person who can solve problems easily and should be given as fine an education as possible to make the most of this quality. There is musical ability in this chart. Teach good manners early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Virginia shot only 38.2 percent for the game to Minnesota's 41.7 percent, leading Lamp to say, "We won the game on defense. Intensity throughout the game and the tournament was the reason we won."

"We had lots of desire and hustle defensively, but didn't have any offensive movement," said Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher. "We just didn't move to the basket strong enough. Almost all of our turnovers were on intercepted passes."

The game was almost a free-throw shooting contest at the end. Sampson hit two with 1:31 remaining to give Virginia a 54-53 lead before Lee Raker intercepted a pass with 1:08 left.

A FAMILIAR FACE - Players at the New York Yankees spring training camp in Fort Lauderdale can get expert help from an old pro. Mickey Mantle, now 49 years old, appeared in numerous World Series games from 1951-68, and is now a batting instructor at the camp during spring training.

HOUSTON (AP) - Between the "Chicken Man" and Houston guard Calvin Murphy, the New York Knicks never had a chance.

Murphy uncorked a season-high 38 points, including 15 in the third quarter when Houston hit a sizzling 19 of 20 field goals, to lead Houston to a 139-113 victory over the Knicks Wednesday night and keep

Spurs take big win over 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham says it will take a miracle for his 76ers to catch the Boston Celtics for the home court advantage in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"It was very frustrating for me not to be able to play," said Griffith, expressing a feeling that Lester knows all too well. "But the other guys just took over. I was just another cheerleader. It made me feel good to see them go ahead and play well without me."

The win over LSU had Coach Crum crowing that Louisville is "not a one-man show," and Griffith agrees.

That same point was made by Purdue Coach Lee Rose, who contends that there is more to his Boiler-makers than 7-foot 1 All-American center Joe Barry Carroll.

But the fact remains, stopping Carroll will be the major task confronting the UCLA Bruins when the teams square off in Saturday's second semifinal. And UCLA's starting center, sophomore Mike Sanders, is only 6-6.
