Carter gives Iranians May deadline

The Carter administration today gave Iran until mid-May to move toward the release of the U.S. Embassy hostages or face possible military pressure. But in Tehran the Iranian government was considering postponing still further the election of the new Parliament that must decide the hostages' fate.

A leading ayatollah said the debate on the 50 American hostages may be as much as three months away

The Boston Globe reported that the U.S. government has informed its allies and the Iranian government that it is prepared to impose a naval blockade on Iran if the hostage stalemate is not broken by the week of White House press secretary Jody Powell called the report "inaccurate and said no decision on a possible blockade or similar move "has been taken or communicated." A West German spokesman denied his government had been informed of such a decision.

An aide to President Carter, who declined to be identified, told reporters Carter might impose new economic and diplomatic sanctions against Iran as early as Thursday but would not consider any military moves until mid-May. That should give the Iranians ample time to "respond positively" to the U.S. sanctions already in force, the aide

In Tehran, a decision by mid-May looked less likely than ever today. The official Pars news agency said the already-postponed second round of the parliamentary elections is likely to be put off again — from May 2 to the following week. The ruling Revolutionary Council will decide whether to order the new postponement, it said.

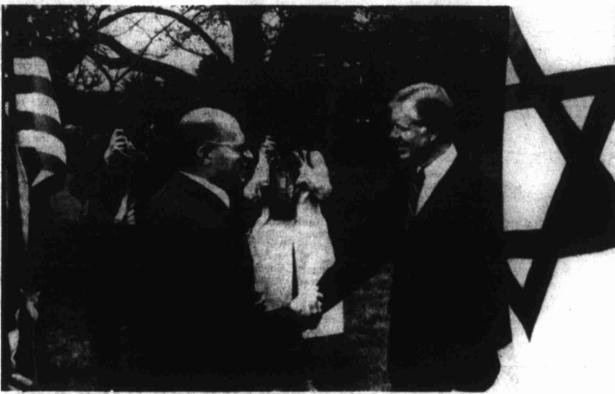

Revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini says the Parliament must decide whether and when to release the hostages, held by Moslem militants occupying the U.S. Embassy since last Nov. 4.

Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, influential secretary of the Revolutionary Council, told a news conference today the debate on the hostages would take place "perhaps in June or July.

Iran's government radio announced formation of an "Islamic Revolutionary Army for the Liberation of Iraq" and called for a holy war, or jihad, to overthrow the secular Iraqi government vying with Avatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for dominance of the Persian Gulf. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein lashed back, calling on the Iranian people to oust "the rotten Khomeini" and Iranian President Abolhassan

The manifesto broadcast by Radio Tehran thundered charges at Iraq's ruling Baath Socialist Party and appealed for an uprising against it. But it gave no information about the leaders of the rebel force or whether it had any men under arms vet

Local drug bust info revealed

By JAMES WERRELL

Information about a drug bust that occurred on the night of April 2 was released today by Mike Eggleston, member of the Big Spring Major Crime Task Force.

'We have been sitting on the story because we thought we could get some more mileage out of our undercover man. It looks now like his cover has been blown, and it would be too dangerous to use him again," said Eggleston, today.

That undercover officer, Lonnie Payne, reportedly succeeded in purchasing a pound of marijuana from two adults and two juveniles on the night of April 2. All four were arrested, and the two adults, Inez Yanez Jr., 27, 509 N.W. 11th, and Netha Thurman Felts, 19, who lives in a trailer court, have been released on

According to Eggleston, Payne first contacted the two juveniles, who claimed that they could find someone else to sell him the dope. Payne was wired for sound, and was monitored by Officers Bruce Johnson, Mike Dawson and Eggleston.

The juveniles allegedly led the undercover officer to Ms. Felts who required that Payne show her $475 in cash before she went ahead with the deal. She and Yanez then picked up the substance and they and the juveniles arranged to make the exchange at an address on Rosemont.

All this time, the arresting officers were just out of sight waiting until the moment the deal was consumated before closing in, said Eggleston.

"When we heard from Payne that the exchange had been made, we fell on them, and they scattered in all directions. We had to chase some of them for a couple of blocks before we caught them," he explained.

Both adults face charges of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver, while the youths will be handled by juvenile authorities.

Hearing scheduled for Tuesday delayed

A hearing scheduled for Tuesday, to hear the merits of the case brought by Mary Thomas against Charlie Hays, Howard College president, was postponed until Hay's attorney replies to questions posed by Ms. Thomas.

The interrogatories were served the egal firm, Weaver and Ferguson, college attorneys, approximately two weeks ago, and the time allowed for answering them has not elapsed, according to George Thomas, local attorney and husband of Mary

Thomas. Hays has 30 days to answer the questions.

The questions would have to be asked in the courtroom if they were not posed beforehand. They serve to act as a time saving measure.

Mr. Thomas said they deal with all aspects of the suit, which charge Hays of not complying with Open Record Act laws in regard with releasing college records.

County census 1980-1

About 25 percent of households fail to answer questionnaires

By STEVE HERSHBERGER About 25 percent of the households in Big Spring and the towns of 29 Rolling Plains counties have not responded to the census by sending in their questionnaires, the field Operations Supervisor, Gerrie Butler, said today.

The Lubbock office said that 75.9 percent of the occupied housing units in this district have sent in their questionnaires. The total rate of response for this area, which includes 30 counties of the Rolling Plains and Panhandle, is 61.4 percent.

The number of people this represents is pure speculation, Butler

In an effort to fulfill the obligation of counting the population within this country, the U.S. Census Bureau begins today the second phase of the enumeration.

"This is the enumeration of the nonresponse household," Butler said. "People who did not send back their questionnaires, we will be sending people (census workers) to.'

This phase will be called "Follow-Up 1." This portion of the enumeration calls for workers to visit personally those households on the master register that did not send back their census form. On March 28, residents of this county received one of two census questionnaires. They were asked to complete this form and send it in on

The first form contained 12 questions about personal identity, marital status and ethnic background. This form required about 10 to 15 minutes of a respondent's time to complete.

The second form, which was given out to one of every six urban residents and one of every two rural, required some 45 minutes to finish. On top of the questions in the short form, the longer form asked about fuel use, plumbing, insurance, language use, employment, education and income. The principal enumeration came after months of working on a precensus poll, which was taken to determine where questionnaires were to be mailed and to establish a master

Addresses came from numerous sources. These were the Texas Vehicle Registration lists, postal and commercial sources and visual checks. In some areas, field workers went out to the residences and quizzed

To persuade people to fill out the forms, bureau officials waged an enormous promotional campaign. Local officials likewise stressed the importance of participating in the vertisements were distributed by the Advertising Council and the firm of Ogilvy & Mather created the ads without charge.

To preserve the validity of the census, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti placed an order restricting the action of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

According to local immigration officers, no illegal alien with a fixed address in the United States may be picked up until July 1.

Civiletti's order read that the INS "shall not go into a residential area or a place of employment except as part of routine casework and certain, specific types of investigation: fraud, abscondees, or character investigations, or unless agents have a judicially authorized search warrant.

According to Butler, the Census Office waited 20 days after March 28 before beginning "Follow-Up 1." This delay, the field operations supervisor said, was to allow stragglers to send in their forms and to allow time for the addresses on formed returned to be Between the time of the initial census from mailouts and "Follow-Up 1," the census office conducted a project called "Special Places." This project was designed to count the transient.

On April 7, "T-Night" was conducted to count those living in hotels, motels and recreational vehicle

Butler said that clerks at these lodging areas aided in reminding patrons to fill out their forms.

On April 9, the Census conducted "M-Night" which was a drive to count those in charity-type missions, truck stops, bus stations, parks and even under bridges. After Follow-Up 1, the Census office will conduct one more project. By early this summer, the actual enumeration will end.

From this, the population of Big Spring and Howard County will be Under federal law, the data from the census must be on the president's desk by April 1, 1981. Likewise, cities, counties and other political subdivisions must be supplied the information on April 1, 1981.

Of the entire enumeration, Don Burrell of the Lubbock District Office said, "Everyone will be counted."

SUSPECT HELD - Donald Wayne Hemphill, 30, of Dallas, Texas, is being held in Dallas County Jail on $500,000 bond in connection with the murder of a young Dallas attorney's wife, Debbie Martinson. The appliance repairman was arrested and charged in the case early Sunday. Hemphill is shown during transfer from Dallas City Jail to the County Jail.

Career of Bill Noel spotlighted

ODESSA — The amazing career of W.D. (Bill) Noel will be spotlighted May 12 when friends and dignitaries from California to New York and throughout Texas gather at the Ector County Coliseum in Odessa to pay tribute to the soft-spoken oilman, banker, rancher, and philanthropist. The festive affair has been billed as a celebration by Dan Hemphill, former mayor of Odessa, who has directed numerous planning sessions since he conceived the idea last fall. Said Hemphill, "It is to be a celebration on the occasion of an overdue expression to Bill Noel of what Odessa thinks of him, and remembers of him, and also I think what it feels about a man who in a special way did so much for the town."

Former Gov. Allan Shivers will be master of ceremonies. Lady Bird Johnson and countless other notables, in government, banking, oil and related industries, have indicated they plan to attend. Hemphill stressed that the public is invited, too, and tickets for the 7 p.m. tribute are available at the Odessa Chamber of Commerce.

It's come to the point where it is hazardous to run a small business in a big city, especially if its operators stay open at night.

Time was when criminals were content to smash windows and take what was being displayed there, but the robbers have become far more professional and far more ruthless. They realize that unless they are caught within minutes after their heist, they will not be caught at all.

The frequency of robbery and burglary is extremely high in some neighborhoods and is threatening to go higher. Some individuals living in such areas have been robbed numerous times. They survive by offering no resistance.

The crime rate has been escalating despite the fact that millions of dollars are being channeled to agencies which are organized to lessen the problem. The crime fighters usually experience some success but the criminals are innovative and invariably try another

It's a tragedy that society has come to embrace the idea that "it's wrong only if you get caught." Lawlessness is contrary to Christian concepts, no matter if it is never detected.

Dear Editor:

Mrs. Horn's letter of April 10 was a less than eloquent rendition of Roman Cicero's "O tempores, o mores," What times! What morals! The laundry list of social ills presented in Mrs. Horn's epistle to Big Spring deserves some comment.

What was expected of the "refined" generation of Mrs. Horn's childhood was graciously denied to the Hispanics, blacks, and poor. In 1930 nearly .7 million children between 10 and 15 worked while 10.7 million women worked. No time for knitting and making quilts there. High interest rates are not set by today's young same sexuality as the children of today and the same ignorance and misconception about behaviors. Sexual activities result in teen-age pregnancies not because the sophisticated children of today know too much about sex, but because they understand not enough, Early physical maturity and uninformed judgments make teenage pregnancies more likely for this generation.

Mrs. Horn's denunciation of lying of cheating was delivered in a fashion which would make the reader suspect these are new vices. They are not. Nor is turning to welfare new. Our own welfare system has its legal base in 16th century English law.

Sex education has been needed in public schools because parents, the natural educators, have not provided the guidance their children need. Ignorance about sexuality is not bliss, it is irresponsibility, contributing to illegitimacy, venereal disease, and a whole panalopy of social problems which should not be condoned by society, the family, and least of all, the young people most affected by misconceptions and myths about sex

The schools, while teaching the basics, need to continue in efforts to teach the pupil how to think. Mrs. Horn offers the opinion that youths cannot think for themselves or have visions of the future because it is "all laid out...in black and white," but at the same time, she is upset by efforts to assist youths in thinking for themselves. Writings which teach and literature which illumines are not always comforting to the comfortable. Mark Twain was believed crude when he published "Huckleberry Finn," and unpatriotic in his "War Prayer.

Four letter words and scurrilous publications exist whether we like them or not. X-rated movies, as offensive as they may be, have only been shown in Big Spring late in the evening to persons of legal age. Local theater owners have not shown Xrated previews as general patronage

The world is not a genteel place. It affords sweetness and light with no troublesome realities only to those who utterly ignore our modern conditions or are demonstrably schizophrenic. To closet our children away, to sequester them in a Pollyanna-like illusion leaves them unprepared to think, to make critical decisions, and to act responsibly.

quite severe? Doctors say there is nothing to do, that it is a common problem, yet I have never met anyone with a problem as severe as mine. Why do doctors dismiss this? I'm not a neurotic. I've survived through a lot, but this is getting to me. — Mrs. L.B. Post-nasal drip drives both patient addressed envelope to me care of the and doctor crazy Big Spring Herald.

The lining of the nose produces moist secretions in order to trap foreign particles in the air. This mucus blanket is constantly being forced up to where the back of the nose joins the throat. This is done by an "escalator" of fine hairs (cilla) in the nose. Afterwards, the mucus passes into the throat and is swallowed. This is normal function Mrs. H.A.

A post-nasal drip is an exaggeration of this normal process. Many irritants can cause it. Do you smoke, and has quitting been suggested to you? It would help. Have allergies been investigated? Have you been checked for pollen sensitivity? Vasomotor rhinitis, which is a peculiar sensitivity of the blood vessels in the nose, can add to mucus production. It's not that doctors are dismissing the condition. It is most frustrating to treat it. I hope it helps to realize that it is, after all, a normal process gone out of hand. Sometimes simple home remedies help. One patient tells me that sipping warm tea reduces the feeling of thick mucus in her throat. Decongestants at night can help.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the difference between bursitis and rheumatoid arthritis? - A.M.

Even though both bursitis and rheumatoid arthritis are inflammatory processes, each involves different structures of the joint. The bursae (plural) are friction-reducing sacs located near joints. They cut down the harmful friction of muscles and tendons passing over the joints. Bursae can become inflamed (bursitis), and since this occurs near the joints the pain can be mistaken for an

What do you suppose is causing this? I have dermatitis on my face and wonder if that has anything to do with the condition. I'm 46. -

The cause of the nipple itching may be something as trivial as a minor skin infection. Eczema can produce itching of the breast and nipple. However, even though itching is rarely a sign of cancer, it should be considered. Other factors to investigate are an ill-fitting bra (irritation) or one made of synthetic Injected testosterone (male hormone) can actually reduce the body's own production of it. This may bring a slackening of testicle function and shrinking of the testicles themselves.

The male breasts may enlarge. Ache has been reported from it along with liver damage, If such drugs are needed for medical reasons, then they are used. But for hair growth? What would you say?

DEAR S.E.: I hope first of all that you will thank God for this opportunity. God has brought this youn man many thousands of miles, and of all the roommates he might have gotten, God led him to you, a Christian. Pray for him and seek to show the love of Christ to him. Students from other nations who come here for several years are one of the greatest mission fields we have, and I wish more Christians like yourself (as well as churches which are near campuses) would take advantage of these opportunities for witness. (Your pastor, incidentally, can probably supply you with the names of several Christian organizations which have ministries with foreign students.)

As you seek to help him understand Jesus Christ, the first thing is for you to be knowledgeable about what you

Bible says, "Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have" (1 Peter 3:15). Study your Bible every day, and seek help also from other Christians who can help you understand what you believe as a Christian. A Christian worker on your campus, or a local Christian bookstore, may be able to recommend books that will help you with this.

Then learn as much as you can about your roommate's religion. This will show him that you have a genuine interest in him, and will help you answer his questions as well. Again, I would encourage you to seek Christian books which will be helpful describing various religions and in evaluating them from a Christian

Most of all, demonstrate by your lif that Jesus Christ is real to you. Ask God to help you show Christ's love to him in practical ways, and introduce him to other Christian friends you

I did not line my pockets; but, I have something far more valuable than money. I have the satisfaction of knowing that through the efforts of the CETA employees, I was a part in doing something for others that they could not do for themselves. In this world where the almightly dollar takes preference over common concern for others, it is nice to know that we still have people attempting to help, inequities and all.

JEAN-PAUL SARTRE

French writer dies

PARIS (AP) - President Valery Giscard d'Estaing today eulogized Jean-Paul Sartre, dead at 74, as one of the great intellectual lights of modern times and a true Frenchman.

"Perceiving the tragic outcome of the human being, he replied in a generous way, dogmatic but authentic, militant, and despite his rejection of all classification. singularly French," the president said in a statement.

Sartre, the pope of the existentialist movement and one of Europe's most notable postwar literary figures, died Tuesday night at Broussais Hospital, where he had been under treatment since March 19 for pulmonary edema, an accumulation of fluid in the

With him when he died were Simone de Beauvoir, the feminist writer who was his lifelong companion; Arlette el Kaim, his adopted Algerian daughter, and Liliane Siegel, one of his biographers.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete today.

Sartre was a philosopher, a teacher, a political activist and a prolific writer of plays, novels, pamphlets and arphonther public, however, for the philosophy of existentialism German philosopher Martin Heidegger, expanded and made a potent cultural force in postwar Europe and America.

Sartre held that there is no God and no fixed human nature, and that man is therefore completely free and entirely responsible for his actions. But he also saw man as a lonely being, terrified by his freedom, without soul or meaning unless he is committed to a cause. It was that commitment, he said, that separated man from animals and inanimate objects.

Sartre rejected the middleclass background from which he came. In 1964, for example, he rejected the Nobel Prize for Literature when it was awarded to him.

A brilliant scholar, Sartre obtained a diploma in philosophy at the age of 19 and then entered the prestigious Ecole Normale Superieure. There he began his lifelong relationship with Miss de Beauvoir, another young philosophy student. never married, maintained separate apartments and had numerous affairs on the side but remained an inseparable year later. His literary career was briefly interrupted by World War II during which he was taken prisoner, escaped and became a leader of the French Resistance after the German Occupation of France in 1940.

In 1943, he also published "Being and Nothingness" in which he first set forth his version of existentialism. In the summer of 1974, he announced he was with-drawing from all publishing activities because of ill health. A hemorrhage began to destroy what was left of his vision. He had lost the sight in one eye when he was

Deregulation of trucking industry weighty problem

WASHINGTON

Deregulation of the trucking industry, a weighty attempt at reform facing both Houses when they return this week has drawn the usual lineup of strident friends and foes. But exactly how decontrol will reshape the industrial and economic landscape, not even they know for sure.

Those who support trimming the Interstate Commerce Commission's reins on overland shipping range from the Carter Administration to Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. Opposing them are the Teamsters, trucking representatives and their allies, many of them leaders in local business communities

Supporters measure will open the trade to competition, lowering prices, reducing wasteful trips and beefing up service on neglected routes. Their dissolving sav regulation will do just the opposite, leaving 'rural' areas with less or no service throughout the industry in general

Part of the difficulty in figuring out who is right is that the wad of regulations decontrol advocates are seeking to peel away is complex, governing every aspect from rate-setting to route and certificate approval.

Equally as bewildering is the hailstorm of rhetoric being flung from pro and con forces. Proponents both within the Administration and in consumer lobbies such as the Nader-affiliated Congress Watch have papered the debate with mountains of supportive testimony and statistics. Not to be outdone, the American Trucking Association (ATA) is rumored to have spent several million dollars in an attempt to at least water down the bill enough to leave their way of life relatively undisturbed.

"The position of the ATA is deregulation will mean less service," spokesman Jack Murphy said.

Opponents here say this is what would happen under decontrol. Without the stabilizing influence of rate bureaus trucking is the only U.S. industry where firms can band together to legally fix shipping rates would fluctuate wildly.

Remote destinations outside the more profitable shipping lanes, some business leaders fear, would be abandoned, because regulations requiring carriers to serve those areas as well as the busier routes would be climinated.

Grown Children Should Be Heard Before Seen

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both of us. All our children are grown and live away from home. Now for my problem: His children never call and ask if we have plans for the weekend, holidays or whatever; they just call and say, "We will be there on a certain day." Occasionally they don't even call, they just come.

Sometimes we've made plans to visit friends, or we've invited my children to visit us, and we can accommodate just so many houseguests.

When his children are here, they call up their friends and invite them over for dinner without asking us first. If they're moving from one place to another, are out of work or had a fight with a spouse, they bring their furniture, clothes, etc., to store at our house without asking permission.

My husband says this is their house, too, and they can come and go as they please.

Abby, I agree we should want our children to feel at home, but just how far should they go?

My children and I have an understanding that we never visit each other's homes without being invited. How do you draw the line between making your children feel at home and letting them use you?

DEAR NEEDS: The line is (or should be) clearly drawn when a child is grown and leaves home. Should he return for a day, a week or a month, he returns as a guest. This means he should not come without an invitation. If he's between jobs, or marriages, and needs a roof over his head, the chances are he will not be refused, but he should always ask first. And inviting others to one's parents' home, and storing furniture, clothes, etc., without permission is also out of line.

DEAR ABBY: I'm new here and have a problem with a coworker. I'm right out of college and she is an older woman. She never misses an opportunity to put her hands on me. Body contact doesn't normally bother me - most of my friends greet me with hugs and kisses - but this woman's touch is not that kind. It's a lingering, caressing feeling that makes me uncomfortable. Whenever she passes my desk she'll stroke my hair or playfully massage my neck or shoulder. I think you get my point.

I don't want to make an enemy of her, but I don't want to hold still for this either. Got any ideas?

UNCOMFORTABLE

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: Why not lay it on the line in a friendly, inoffensive way. Try this: "Please don't touch me — I'm ticklish."

DEAR ABBY: This is for women who loudly insist that housewives are also working women. Turn it around and you have the true picture - working women are also

Extent of DES problem growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, raising sharply its count of cattle fattened with a banned cancer-causing growth stimulant, says its earlier estimates of the problem have been "greatly exceeded."

The Food and Drug Administration and the Agriculture Department said Tuesday at least 344,000 cattle from 115 feedlots in 16 states had been treated with DES after the ban took effect last year. And that estimate, up from the initial one of 105,000 at 46 feedlots and a revised one last week of 200,000 at about 50 feedlots, could go even higher.

"Present indications are that the final figure will be in the neighborhood of 500,000" by the time the government investigation ends, said FDA spokesman Wayne Pines, who added, "The figure could go higher." DES, a synthetic hormone, has been shown to cause cancer and birth defects in animals and has been linked to Pines acknowledged, as officials have previously, that some contaminated meat may be reaching consumers. But officials maintain there is "no appreciable health risk" from consuming the DES-treated beef still finding its way to consumers' tables and contend that "the hazard ... is not from a few exposures, but from continuing exposures over a number of years."

The agencies also said they had found 24 firms that continued to sell DES implants after the July 13 federal sales ban. All uses of DES, which can be mixed in feed or implanted as a pellet in an animal's ear, were to end by

The number of cattle and feedlots involved do not represent a large proportion of the industry. But the figures do suggest the frequency with which the regulations have been ignored.

The maximum penalty for violating the ban is three years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The FDA refused to provide a list of the feedlots and distributors involved until it is certain that each of them has received an official notice

But it did list the states and the number of feedlots in Prison may be overcrowded, but the state Six of the inmate should have been warned before Sheriff Charles Foti tried to add 150 of his inmates to their load, the state Supreme Court says. So today, Foti — who on Monday surprised the state prison warden when he tried to transfer 150 of his prisoners to St. Gabriel was stuffing other city jails with the over-really a stop-gap measure."

Harley said Foti expected to be in compliance by mid-morning with a March 10 order from U.S. District Judge Lansing L. Mitchell, who directed the prison population be cut to no more than 700. The order did not tell Foti how to do it, however.

Monday, Foti and four dozen deputies loaded up 150 Orleans inmates and whisked Institute at St. Gabriel, about 70 miles return the inmates to New Orleans

Six of the inmates faced the death penalty, 77 had been given life sentences and the other 67 had been sentenced to an average of 42 years in prison. They were being kept in Orleans Parish Prison while appeals were pending.

Warden Ross Maggio refused to accept the Orleans inmates. He said he did so on orders from Attorney General William Guste and the state district attorney - and, besides, he didn't have enough people to

But Foti carried with him an order, signed last Friday by seven state judges in New Orleans, requiring him to turn the inmates over to Louisiana penal authorities.

In that order, the judges reasoned that the inmates technically belonged to Louisiana go from there is anybody's guess, but we can because they were convicted of state

Foti's odyssey promptly produced four more court orders.

Orleans District Judge Matthew Braniff told the sheriff by phone that he'd better not bring the inmates back. Obediently, Foti returned alone to New Orleans.

Then, the Louisiana Supreme Court said the prisoners could spend Monday night at St. Gabriel pending a Tuesday hearing. Hours after that, U.S. District Judge John V. them without warning to Hunt Correctional Parker ruled that Foti had just 24 hours to

Deep domestic spending cuts get second look

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Budget Committee's guns-over-butter spending plan is coming under fire from leading liberals, but it seems unlikely the Senate will roll back proposed increases in defense spending.

In the face of the liberal opposition, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd called for a review of the 1981 budget by Senate leaders, delaying the start of floor debate from Tuesday until next week.

"I think we need more time to have discussions about it," Byrd said Tuesday of the proposed balanced budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

The Senate committee plan, like ones recommended by President Carter and the House Budget Committee, would balance the budget for the first time in 12 years. But it differs sharply in its priorities.

The Senate committee's $612.9 billion plan recommends $5.2 billion more for defense than the $150.5 billion Carter sought in his $611.5 billion budget. It would pay for that higher military spending by making deeper cuts in domestic programs.

The House Budget Committee's $611.8 billion version, which is expected to reach the House floor next Wednesday, is closer to Carter's package although it favors $2.6 billion less in defense spending than the president wants

Meanwhile, the Carter administration also has objected to some of the Senate committee's reductions

'Tool for the prudent'

Consumers are warned to use credit carefully

By the Associated Press

Some of the same people who used to tell you to charge your way to happiness are now warning you to be careful of what you spend.

"Use your MasterCard only for necessities and emergencies," urges one advertisement.

"Sears agrees with the government that credit must be used with care, that it is a tool for the prudent, not a license for spendthrifts," says another promotion.

The words of caution come in the wake of the March 14 announcement of President Carter's latest anti-inflation program - a program designed to control spending by putting curbs on credit use.

Interbank Card Association, which operates MasterCard, had been running a national advertising campaign designed to let people know that the card - formerly called Master Charge - had a new name. The campaign, part of an $11 million advertising and promotion effort this year, also advertised MasterCard as "the only card needed to help achieve a fuller, richer life," according to Interbank.

"We have substituted a new program on a crash basis," said Timothy J. Connor, public relations head for 'The Good Life' campaign immediately after March 14," he

A new promotion, which began last Saturday, has Russell E. Hogg, Interbank president, telling consumers to use their cards wisely. "We're all feeling the money squeeze these days and Washington has asked us to help fight inflation," says Hogg. "Buy only what you need. Don't over-

Cynthia Chaddick of Visa said the San Francisco-based card operation had "attempted to cancel our spring campaign" that featured a family traveling around the United States on bicycles, visiting famous landmarks. The television campaign started March 10. About three weeks later, according to Ms. Chaddick, Visa "notified the networks and requested relief from our media schedule.

Ms. Chaddick said it is "a little too early to tell" what type of campaign will be substituted. She said it depends on whether the networks could sell the advertising time previously purchased by Visa and how much of its expenditure the card company could recover. She also said that advertisements for Visa travelers checks that are issued separately would continue as scheduled.

Note: The local banks that actually issue Visa and MasterCard may continue running their own promotions, although Connor said many of them had been cutting back as well.

Some creditors, meanwhile, are trying to reassure customers and urge care at the same time. Sears, Roebuck and Co. ran fullpage advertisements with a quote from the company chairman, Edward R. Telling. Sears will continue to finance the needs of its customers," the headline says. The ad goes on to note that a Sears booklet, published in 1970, urges the wise use of credit and offers free copies of the booklet, "How to Choose and Use Retail Credit

Following a vote last Saturday by the U.S. Olympic Committee's House of Delegates to back Carter, the boycott appeared to be gaining momentum.

Last week, the govern-ments of Japan and West Germany came out in support of Carter's call to boycott the Moscow Games because of the Soviets' military presence in Afghanistan. Thatcher also was before her House of Commons, where she told its members if Britain sent a team to the Olympics, it would be "a national disgrace."

"Russia is using troops to hold down a people, and in those circumstances it would be quite wrong for British athletes to go to Moscow if they value their freedom as much as we do," Thatcher

In Moscow, Vitaly G. Smirnov, first vice president of the Soviet Olympic Organizing Committee, said those hurt by a boycott would be athletes, fans and businesses - not the Soviets.

Hurlers regaining sucessful form

While Jon Matlack and comebacks from serious arm injuries that season, Steve McCatty returned from an ego injury

Matlack handcuffed the Cleveland Indians on five hits and ran his consecutive scoreless innings streak to 18 Tuesday night to lead the Texas Rangers to a 3-0

McCatty, meanwhile, recovered from a less serious blow. The 6-foot-3 Oakland right-hander was bombed for five runs in 12-3 innings Monday night, but Manager Billy Martin started him again Tuesday night and he responded with eight innings of shutout pitching as the A's bombed the Seattle Mariners 12-3.

In the other two American League games, the Chicago White Sox defeated the New York Yankees 4-3 in 14 in-nings and the Baltimore Orioles routed the Kansas City Royals 12-2.

Neither Matlack nor Tanana had expected to go

nine innings.
"I feel as though I have fully recovered, but I should be just going seven innings," said Matlack. who also went nine innings in Texas' opener with the Yankees before being relieved in a 0.0 game.

NICE FACE — Atlanta Hawks Dan Roundfield (32) makes a slam dunk, net-popping basket in spite of Sixers Caldwell Jones' efforts Tuesday night during fifth game of NBA playoff series. Sixers won the game,

76ers, Lakers advance to conference finals

Philadelphia and Los Angeles have joined Boston in the conference finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs, which means the teams with the three best records during the regular season have qualified for the round of four.

But for the club with the fourth-best mark, the defending champion Seattle SuperSonics, the outlook is

The Sonics were beaten by the Milwaukee Bucks 108-97 Tuesday night and now trail in their best-of-seven second-round series 3-2. The Bucks can wrap it up at

"We feel we've played tremendous basketball in four of the five games of this series," said Richard Washington, who came off the bench to score 21 points while filling in both at center and forward. "We're as confident as we can be going back to Milwaukee."

And the Sonics, who fell behind in the series 2-1 only to tie it at Milwaukee and thought they were in the driver's seat with two of the last three games at home, know they are in trouble.

Philadelphia and Los Angeles did it on Tuesday.

The 76ers, getting 30 points apiece from Julius

Erving and Darryl Dawkins, beat the Atlanta Hawks 105-100 to win their series 4-1. Philadelphia will meet the Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals starting in Boston Friday night. The Lakers, with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scoring 35 points and grabbing 16 rebounds, whipped the Phoenix Suns 126-101 to win their series, also by a 4-1 margin. The Lakers will face the winner of Milwaukee-Seattle in the Western Conference final. Boston had advanced to the round of four by completing a sweep of the Houston Rockets Monday night. Milwaukee's win may have been costly, because forward Dave Meyers suffered a bruised knee and sixth man Junior Bridgeman bruised his lower back during the game.

Milwaukee led 85-72 after three quarters, but Seattle rallied to cut the gap to three at 92-89 on a follow-up shot by rookie James Bailey with 4:19 left. But the

Bucks turned back that charge by scoring six straight points on a free throw by Lanier, a stuff shot by Marques Johnson and a three-point play by

76ers 105, Hawks 100

The Sixers trailed 53-43 at halftime but outscored the Hawks 35-20 in the third period to take command. Erving and Dawkins combined for 21 points in the decisive quarter. The 22-year-old Dawkins, playing his best game of the series, hit on 14 of 20 shots from the field against Atlanta centers Wayne "Tree" Rollins and Steve Hawes, who were both in foul trouble for most of the second half.

Lakers 126, Suns 101

The Lakers made six of their first seven shots, broke to a 16-8 lead and never trailed in posting their 23rd victory in the last 25 starts on their home court. They broke the game wide open by scoring 13 of the last 18 points in the first half and 11 of the first 14 points in the second half to go ahead 71-45.

Niekro led Astros extend Braves losing start

The Atlanta Braves have played six games this season and lost all six, and the streak is taking it's toll on Manager Bobby Cox.

"it's driving me crazy," Cox said following his team's 6-1 loss at Houston Monday night. "I can't sleep at night — and when I do, I hate to wake up in the morning and read the newspapers.

"We need to break out of this in a big way, but I'm still waiting for that to happen. Our pitching has been poor and our offense has been sputtering." However, Braves pitcher Gene Garber is still optimistic. Not Monday night. Joe Niekro baffled the Braves with his knuckleball, pitching a six-hitter, and the Astros broke the game open early with four runs in the second inning. Doubles by Luis Pujols and Julio Gonzalez were the big hits in the uprising.

"If you watch the ball from the time it leaves Joe's hand, you go crazy," said Pujols, the Astros' catcher.

"It's better to wait until just before it gets to you." It was the first win of the year for Niekro, who was 21-11 last season.

The Astros took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Jose Cruz and Enos Cabell, then broke it open in the second on RBI hits by Jeff Leonard, Gonzalez and Cesar Cedeno and Joe Morgan's fielder's

Reds 8, Giants 3

Cincinnati raised its record to 6-0 as Dave Concepcion drove in three runs. Dave Collins continued his hot hitting with three singles and Tom Seaver won his first start of the year.

Seaver, who missed the season opener because of the flu, pitched six innings, giving up three runs on six hits. It was the 236th victory of his career, tying him with former New York Yankees pitcher Whitey Ford for 40th place on the all-time list.

Warren Cromartie hit two home runs and Montreal scored four unearned runs as the Mets tied a team record with six errors, three of them in the Expos' fiverun first inning.

"It was a bad day," said Mets Manager Joe Torre. "We win as a unit and we lose as a unit. This was a team effort."

Cards 7. Phils 2 Pete Vuckovich pitched a five-hitter and also doubled in two runs as St. Louis defeated Philadelphia. Ken Oberkfell's two-run triple capped a three-run uprising in the sixth inning for the Cards that broke open the game.
