Eight Americans killed when two aircraft collide

Attempt to free hostages fails

Iran's foreign minister today condemned President Carter's "act of war" in launching an airborne mission to rescue the Tehran embassy hostages, but he said he hopes Iranians will react with restraint to the failed military operation. Eight American crewmen were killed when two of the rescue aircraft collided as they tried to withdraw, President Carter said.

Sketchy reports from Tehran indicated the Iranians believed some Americans might have been stranded in the eastern Iranian desert where the daring mission was aborted because of what Carter called "equipment failures."

Government-run Tehran Radio told people in the area around Tabas, in the Dasht-e-Kavir desert 350 miles east of the capital, to search for "Marines and raiding personnel now in the region."

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told CBS in an interview he had received information "there were some Americans" left behind "but this has not been precise."

Carter said, however, that all those involved in the operation — by Iranian estimates 400 or 500 — were safely withdrawn.

The president, in an address broadcast nationwide at 7 a.m., said the equipment failure occurred aboard "the rescue helicopter." But he did not describe the problem, and various other reports from Washington, Tehran and elsewhere said the mission was aborted because of the collision, because of an explosion aboard a helicopter or because helicopters became mired in mud.

The Iranian military command claimed the planes crashed while fleeing from Iranian warplanes, but Carter said there were no hostilities and the Iranians were unaware of the U.S. attempt until several hours after the withdrawal.

The American raiders took a busload of Iranian prisoners briefly before releasing them and flying off, Tehran Radio said.

The desert was being used as a staging area for the final leg of the mission to Tehran, Carter said.

In Tehran, an estimated 10,000 jubilant Iranians poured into the streets around the U.S. Embassy when they got word of the failed mission, celebrating with shouts and cheers. They flashed victory signs, clenched their fists and screamed, "Down With Carter!" and "Carter's Finished!"

A spokesman for the Moslem militants who have held the 50 embassy hostages since Nov. 4 said they were "doing well," the Japan Broadcasting Corp. reported from Tehran. The militants previously had threatened to kill all of the hostages if the United States took the slightest military action against Iran or made any attempt to rescue them.

Speaking in English, Ghotbzadeh told ABC-News he hopes the Iranian government will proceed with caution and "not react as nervously as the Americans did" in launching the raid. He said he also asked the militants who seized the Americans at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran 174 days ago to "refrain from harsh actions."

The militants holding the 50 Americans in the embassy since Nov. 4 threatened previously to kill their captives if an attempt was made to rescue them. Their spokesman said today they would announce their decision once they had received more details on the raid.

Ghotbzadeh said he had spoken with the militants several times as well as with members of Iran's Revolutionary Council and urged restraint. Ghotbzadeh said he had not spoken directly with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini but that he believed the Iranian revolutionary leader and the entire Iranian government shared his feelings.

He said Carter had not explained why the action was taken. "And therefore I certainly see it as a clear indication for the act of war against Iran ... If these kind of things continue, believe me our nation is ready to go, to set fire in the whole region not to let the Americans by force win anything."

Earlier in an interview with France's Channel TF-1, Ghotbzadeh had used the same phrase, saying the mission constituted "an act of war." He did not elaborate on the phrase, but added, "If the students now do something, who will be responsible? The Iranian government or the American government?"

The Iranian Joint Military Command said the two planes crashed and burned near Tabas, in the Dasht-e-Kavir salt desert 360 miles southeast of Tehran, while fleeing from Iranian air force planes. It said the U.S. planes carried Marines and CIA agents.

"The world-devouring America, proud of her satanical equipment, had tried to play with fire and had sent forces to the desert," Tehran Radio said.

Carter catching some flak for failure of mission

By DON WOODS

Local civic leaders reflected feelings of area residents in their assorted reactions to the miscarried attempt to rescue American hostages in Iran this morning.

Winston Wrinkle, KBST radio station owner and a supporter of Ronald Reagan, expressed his disappointment with the outcome of the attempt. "I do support President Carter being the head of state in making these types of decisions," he said.

Wrinkle said he was "puzzled" however, with why the attempt had been in the planning stage so long. He said the attempt should have been planned better.

Wrinkle called the rescue effort "harmful" to relationships with West Germany, Britain and Japanese allies. He said they "may interpret this as our acting alone when we have been asking for their cooperation."

Wrinkle said the United States has been asking for support of the economic sanctions on the May 17 deadline. He said by not informing the allies we may have hurt our chances for their support.

Referring to the Associated Press report that some American soldiers may be "prisoners in the boundless prison of the desert," Wrinkle said, "I certainly hope that isn't true. I just can't believe there wouldn't be some kind of back-up."

Democratic Committee Chairman for Howard County C.V. Rjordran said he found "comfort" in the fact that "they've got information that I don't have."

"It looks serious and it is serious. Carter and Cyrus Vance have information that I don't have."

"Just like the Panama Canal at first it didn't look good," said Rjordran, until he learned that five secretaries of state and four presidents had also advocated the gift of the canal.

Clergymen were also polled as to their feelings about the aborted rescue effort. Royce Clay, 14th and Main Church of Christ minister, said Carter should have created a rescue plan with more force behind it.

"He should have gone into a little better force, maybe," said Clay. "Put enough force into it to be sure it succeeded without it having to abort," he said.

"It's real hard to know with getting the information. I think the president was certainly in his rights. Sanctions have just pushed them into Russia's arms," Clay said. Carter tried going through the United Nations and other methods. "I realize just an invading army would have only gotten them killed," he said. The "secret force" was the best plan, said Clay.

The Rev. Carroll Kohl, St. Paul Lutheran Church pastor, expressed the belief that, "If the president had succeeded he would have been a hero. Since he failed, everybody looks down on him. We just have to accept the fact that he did what he did. It will take a long time before we figure out what happened and how it happened. I don't think we can fault him unless we are sitting in his seat. A mechanic failure could have happened to anyone. It can't be blamed on him."

Meeting draws packed house

Ezzell, Shaw both 'score'

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

Howard County's Larry Don Shaw and incumbent Mike Ezzell of Snyder went after the title of 63rd State Representative Thursday night at the Eagle Forum's meeting.

Both candidates scored their best punches and both went the distance. The decision? The judges will not release that until May 3.

Shaw started early, telling the 75 people in attendance that Ezzell was absent during the last session on a house bill, which would have given teachers a seven percent pay raise. The measure, Shaw said, was House Bill 558.

Ezzell said he was absent on House Bill 558, which was the House Appropriations Bill. He added that he was in conference on the Senate side when the vote was conducted.

The Snyder representative said he supported the measure; and since the legislation passed the house, he did not feel he needed to go to the clerk and record a vote.

Ezzell added that the legislation that effectuated teachers' pay raises was Senate Bill 350, which he voted on affirmatively.

The issue of Speaker Billy Clayton, who was recently indicted in the Brilab case, popped up again.

Ezzell told the crowd he would not support Clayton's run for re-election to the top spot in the house, which many regard as the third most powerful position in Texas.

But, Ezzell said, "If it comes down to a race between him and John Bryant (representative from Dallas)," Ezzell said, "I would vote for Bill Clayton."

The reasons, the Snyder man said, were philosophical. Ezzell maintained that Bryant is a liberal, opposed to the agriculture interests of West Texas.

Shaw said he had been contacted by two men interested in the speaker's position. These two were Bryant and Rep. Bennie Bock of New Braunfels.

The Howard County native said he would not vote for Clayton.

"Billy Clayton has had the power and leadership of the house for six years," Shaw said. "He is not concerned with the same issues I am concerned with."

One of those issues, he said, is education. He did not elaborate further.

Shaw also took aim at Ezzell and the House over East Texas timber.

He claimed that the large timber companies were given a tax break in the same legislation that provided tax exemptions to small family farmers and the elderly.

The state's voters approved in November 1978 a tax relief referendum.

Shaw said, "It is not what the people of Texas wanted."

Ezzell said the legislation placed a floor on taxation at the 1978 level on timber lands.

"The Timber corporations did not get a dime of tax relief," Ezzell said.

Shaw countered and said the tax relief bill aids real estate speculators.

He added, "I think it is a piece of legislation we should have looked at a little closer."

Ezzell said a provision in the bill calls for retroactive taxation on any land that changes from agricultural use to a real estate subdivision.

The retroactive tax goes back for five years and a charge of seven percent interest is added.

As far as issues, the candidates expressed differences on several.

One key distinction between the two was on the issue of electronic surveillance.

Ezzell said, "Texas is a major drug trafficking area." He added that electronic surveillance would give law enforcement officials a needed tool to fight the movement of drugs in the state.

The Snyder candidate said if elected he will be sponsoring legislation during the next term, giving law enforcement agencies the use of electronic surveillance.

"We have provided in that legislation proper safeguards."

Those safeguards, Ezzell said, are a court of law would have to grant the use to law enforcement officials, and that the criteria that electronic surveillance is a last resort would have to be shown.

"It is only very restrictive that the DPS (Department of Public Safety) will own and operate the equipment," Ezzell said.

Eight votes cast in city runoff

A total of eight ballots were cast in the city runoff election for the Place 2 seat of the Big Spring City Council. Hal Boyd is the only name on the ballot.

Deadline for absentee voting was 5 p.m. Thursday. The official election will be held from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday.

Shaw said he would not support electronic surveillance. He claimed passing such a bill would set a trend toward law enforcement invading the privacy of the private citizen.

"I think it does set a precedence in this country that the people I have talked to said is not the best way to go," Shaw said.

The two candidates have similar views on the issue of initiative and referendum. Both Ezzell and Shaw favor an indirect method.

The indirect method allows voters to place legislation after it is approved in a referendum before the legislature. The legislators may or may not approve the measure.

The direct method allows the voters to place law on the ballot and approve it without consideration from the legislature.

Both candidates said they will not favor a tax increase in the next two years. Both expressed opting for a cut in services.

When briefing took place

Signal was already given

By TOMMY HART

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "It is a judgment the president will have to make," Jimmy Carter replied at Wednesday's session with executives and newsmen with Harte-Hanks Communications at the White House, when asked if he were prepared to jeopardize the lives of the American hostages in any move to free the human pawns in Tehran.

Mr. Carter was careful with his phraseology in replying to the question. His face had suddenly taken on the look of a troubled man, an individual who had been pushed to the limit of his patience. In view of the abortive attempt by American military forces to free the prisoners, which occurred this morning, it is obvious now that Carter had already given the signal to his military commanders to initiate the action when he sat down with the Harte-Hanks group.

The president accepted full responsibility for the failure of the mission, as any competent commander-in-chief is supposed to do. The question is, and this will be debated at great length in the weeks ahead, will the populace fault him for finally "doing something" or will they lay the responsibility on the doorstep of the military?

President Carter conceded to the 30 newsmen present Wednesday that the threatened invasion by neighboring Iraq could also result in the death of the hostages. Such a threat, he added, was a 'disturbing' complication in a crisis that even then was in its 173rd day.

Carter also said he was troubled by the fact that the Ayatollah Khomeini had not seen fit to respond to the terrorist threats that had come on the heels of "stirrings of political fragmentation."

"There have also been some disturbing statements made by the terrorists," Carter added. "For instance, (they said) if Iraq invades Iran it would be as a puppet of the United States, and the hostages would be executed."

The newsmen came away from the session better briefed on the Iranian crisis but with burgeoning sympathy for the man in the Oval Office.

Good or bad, Carter has at least 'done something.' The raid was an abject failure but it certainly will not stop further attempts to free the hostages.

The president is not in a position to end a confrontation, as President Nixon did in Southeastern Asia by ordering a withdrawal of American troops in Vietnam. The Iranian malcontents obviously will continue to keep the Americans in bondage, even if all U.S. troops were withdrawn from the Middle East. They want the scrap of the Shah and the money they say he stole from Iran, and they insist they will not settle for anything less.

If the latest incident did nothing else, it took much of the attention away from the primary elections coming up May 3. The question is, did it help any one candidate more than the others? Likely, the answer is "no."

Several American lives were surrendered in the disaster. It could be a sample of the price we will have to pay if military action is stepped up against the Iranians. Perhaps only a major upheaval by the Iranian people against the conditions that now exist in their country is the only thing that can bring about a solution to the crisis, and that is unlikely to happen.

A 'violent' sandstorm in the Iranian desert is credited with causing the failure of the American platoon to carry out their mission, disabling as it did three of the helicopters pressed into service.

Diehards who still resent the closing of Webb AFB say such an act of nature likely wouldn't have bothered the Americans had they trained at Webb — where sandstorms occurred with great regularity and did little to deter the training mission.

Action/reaction: Clements to run?

Q. If Governor Clements gets the nod to run with Reagan on the presidential ticket, does he have to resign his gubernatorial seat?

A. The question is that if nominated on the Republican ticket, he does not. But, if Reagan-Clements won in November he will be required to resign. If Clements resigns, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby would assume the office until the next gubernatorial election in 1982.

Glasscock County to conduct second Republican primary

By ANDREA COHEN
GARDEN CITY — In 1964, Glasscock County was one of the three counties in Texas that cast a majority vote for Sen. Barry Goldwater against President Lyndon Johnson in the presidential election, according to Barbara Ratliff who was Republican chairman that year.

Despite this, the county will be holding its second Republican primary. "The reason we're doing it is to give us more delegates. It will give us more voice in who we select. That's the way I understand it," she says.

In 1976, Glasscock held its first Republican primary. When presidential primaries became legal in Texas, there were 72 persons voting. Gerald Ford received 12 votes with Ronald Reagan, the current GOP front-runner, receiving the rest.

"The reason we think we'll have a large turnout is because of the local offices. Everybody is running unopposed," says Mrs. Ratliff.

"They got very excited about it. They had gone for (Bill) Clements in 1978," says Bob Monaghan, Republican district committee chairman for the 25th Senatorial District.

"I called over several months ago to talk to the ranchers about a county chairman to support Reagan. They called back and said, 'We heard we can't vote for the Republican candidates unless we have the primary' and they decided to do it. The people are doing it all."

Monaghan says he was asked by Ernest Angelo, mayor of Midland who is also the Texas National Committeeman of the Republican party and the Texas State Chairman for the Reagan for President Committee, to serve as vice chairman of the Committee for the west Texas area in the 9th and 16th congressional districts.

He says his first job is to raise money for the Republican party and his second is to raise money for the Reagan for President Committee.

With his first job he says "I need an election in each county and I needed a chairman to do it. That's why I called the people in Glasscock County."

The election will cost the county approximately $600.

Texans urged to take houses when moving

PHILLIPS, Texas (AP) — Residents are being urged to move and take their houses with them in the wake of a refinery explosion that damaged every building in this tiny company town three months ago.

Phillips Petroleum Co. spokesman Jim Ormsby said company officials do not think any more explosions are likely at the huge refinery, but because of the potential risk every homeowner living on company property is being urged to relocate.

The company is offering a $2,200 subsidy to help pay for moving the houses, and another $1,500 for personal relocation expenses. In addition, Ormsby said Thursday, residents who are Phillips Petroleum Co. employees will get an extra 25 percent for income tax protection.

A Jan. 20 explosion injured 34 persons and caused structural damage to every house in Phillips, Ormsby said.

It was the second accident at the plant in a four-month span, following an October 1979 gas leak that killed two plant workers.

The company owns an undeveloped plot of land west of Borger, and has said some residents could put their houses there.

The company has already ordered 159 houses moved away from the refinery, and has made the relocation offer to owners of another 317 homes.

The offer would cost Phillips Petroleum more than $1 million, but Ormsby would not say how many residents have said they will accept it.

Local officials estimated complete relocation of all 476 houses would reduce the town's population by 1,600 — more than half — and would leave no more than 300 houses in town.

Hunt silver speculation probed

Congressional interest rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigations of the Hunt brothers' silver speculation are widening after the disclosure that the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board helped arrange an $800 million credit line tossed to their rescue.

The chairman of the House Banking Committee accused board chairman Paul A. Volcker of violating the board's credit restraint policy by approving of the loan to Texas billionaires Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wisc., said he would schedule hearings on the development and suggested the board consult his committee or the Senate Banking Committee before carrying out any similar actions.

Meanwhile, federal subpoenas were served to the Hunts in Dallas requesting their appearance Tuesday before a House government operations subcommittee investigating the silver market's collapse.

The subcommittee's chairman, Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., called the latest reports "obviously a very, very serious matter" and said he expected Volcker would testify later next week.

Reserve has not approved any such loans," it said.

The board's spokesman, Joseph Coyne, said he could not expand on the statement but Volcker would testify before Congress in the near future.

An informed government source, however, said Volcker became involved after the Hunt brothers' regular bank could not meet their urgent request for money to meet debts stemming from their earlier speculation in the silver market.

One source said that brokerage firm and bank representatives asked for Volcker's approval of the loan in late March on the grounds that financial defaults might be in store if the Hunts could not make their payments.

A young student of the piano went to Europe on a summer vacation and visited the home of Beethoven and asked the guard for permission to play on the great master's piano. When she had played a few bars she turned to the guard and said, "No doubt all the great artists play this piano when they visit here?"

"No," replied the guard. "All the great contemporary pianists have visited here, but none of them so much as touched the piano. They did not feel worthy to do so. I have found that all the truly great are humble. Perhaps that is part of their greatness."

Tween 12 and 20 No rules for kissing

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Connie, 14, from Gadsden, Ala., needs some tips on kissing. Jenny Farmer, 15, who lives in Fresno, Calif., and Joe Gonzales, 16, from Odessa, Texas, will share their kissing secrets with Connie and all teens in similar predicament.

Dr. Wallace: I have been invited for my first date and I'm really excited. A boy in my drama class asked me to the movies and said we would get something to eat after the show.

The boy has met my father and Daddy thinks he is nice. I'm not shy, and I think he is cute so I know we will have a good time.

I've never kissed a boy before and have been wondering what to do if he tries. What are the rules regarding kissing a boy on the first date? If possible, I'd like to hear from the teen guest writers. — Connie, Gadsden, Ala.

Connie: There are no "kissing" rules. If the boy starts to kiss you, and you want him to continue, close your eyes and let nature take its course. But for the first time, keep it short and sweet. — Dr. Wallace

Hi Connie: My mother told me that nice girls do not kiss on the first date. Last year I was asked out by a really neat guy. I was in heaven. When he went to kiss me good night, I told him no. Now he is going steady with my best friend. He never asked me out again. I'm sure that you see the moral to my story. — Jenny, Fresno, Calif.

Hello Connie: I have dated nine girls so far in my young "romantic career." Seven allowed me to kiss them on the first date, one said "No thank you" and one said she had a sore throat. That figures out to a happy 77 percent who liked what they saw. Needless to say, I never dated the "No thank you" again but I did give "sore throat" one more chance. On the second date she evolved into an "I've got a canker sore" woman.

Presently, I am going with one of the lucky seven. The rules on first date kissing are simple. If you want to — do it. If not, simply say no thank you or have a convenient sore throat. — Joe, Odessa, Texas per, stating your sex and age.

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me, in care of this newspaper.

Dr. Wallace: My parents are always giving me 10 minutes to pick up my toys out of the kitchen or they say they will throw them away. Yet they can leave keys, purses, cards and other things in the kitchen and no one throws their stuff away. Is this fair? — Mindy, Tacoma, Wash.

Mindy: You wouldn't have a problem if you kept your toys out of the kitchen. Unfortunately for you, your parents are saying, "Do as we say, not as we do."

I think parents should set an example for their children, but I also think you should remove your toys from the kitchen and obey your parents. Your question, "Is it fair?" can't be answered. As you know, adults have privileges that kids don't.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 23-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Divorce from a child's point of view

Is lifetime intimacy a risk worth taking?

NEW YORK (AP) — She was a tree-climbing, hopscotching 9-year-old when her parents were divorced. Today, at 23, Julie List believes she has at last learned to accept the simple, central fact:

Her mother and her father stopped loving each other 14 years ago.

"I don't think most children take divorce quite as hard as I did," she says. Julie took her parents' divorce so hard that years later, as a student at Princeton University, she wrote a series of memoirs about her troubled childhood.

Drawing on childhood diaries and letters, Julie expanded her recollections into a book called "The Day the Loving Stopped." It is an account of one divorce from a child's point of view.

She writes: "Children, they say... bounce back. I agree — children are terrific survivors." But she adds, "Children bounce back because we know no other life than this."

Julie bounced back. She never retreated into drugs or alcohol, never sought a therapist's help.

"I don't feel I was a deprived child. I always knew my parents loved me," she says now.

But Julie was torn and troubled by the divorce; it made her doubt that love can endure, that anyone finds happiness. She says she has overcome those fears: "I'm more optimistic than I'd have thought possible."

Her father, a psychologist, and her mother, a writer, were divorced in 1966. Mrs. List and her two young daughters stayed in their suburban Connecticut house. List moved into New York. His visits with his daughters were scheduled — weekends, all of August.

"I missed my father, so I was glad to know there would be fixed times for me to see him. I couldn't have known then how disruptive this kind of life would be... From now on, seeing my father was to be a scheduled event. The spontaneity was gone."

Julie's visits with her father grew to be separate from her day-to-day life: "My father didn't know who my friends were or what I was learning at school... Our lives were linked by blood, by love, by weekends in New York. But he did not watch Abby and me grow up daily."

Julie's mother dated a few men seriously; one man grew close to Julie and her sister before he and Mrs. List parted. Meanwhile, Julie met a parade of women who passed through her father's life.

Eventually, he remarried. Four years later, he divorced again. The break was total: "One day we had a stepmother and two stepisters. The next day we didn't." Julie hasn't seen the woman since.

For years after the divorce, Julie's mother and father could not speak without arguing. As a result, List made plans directly with his daughter.

"When you're dealing with parents who cry and parents who fight, you have to start making decisions even though you're only 9. I often had to tell my father on the phone that I'd decided not to come into the city. I negotiated holiday plans with him."

Today, Julie is a researcher at New York's public television station. She says she wrote her book in part to alert parents to a child's feelings about divorce.

"Whenever I see a divorced father, I want to say: 'Listen, call your kids every day. Don't disappear from their daily lives.' If I could go back and change anything, I'd have my father continue to be a part of my daily life," she says.

She has other advice to divorcing parents:

"Explain to a child that the divorce isn't his fault."

"It's very, very important for children to know it's all right to love both their mother and their father even though they don't love each other anymore."

"Don't malign each other."

"Don't say to a child, 'You have to make a decision. Do you want to be with your mother or your father on Christmas Day?' A child wants to be with both. It's unfair to ask him to choose. It's not his job."

"A father should not bring a new woman into his children's lives unless he thinks she'll be fairly permanent. Neither should a mother. It's destructive because children get attached so easily."

Despite her troubled childhood, Julie says she is not opposed to divorce:

"I think staying in an unhappy marriage is worse than divorcing. Children are not dumb. They feel the tension. I think it's harder on a child because it's a lie, it's living a lie."

"Although divorce is painful, it's an acknowledgement of the way things are. It says to children, we're trying to try to make things better and we're going to try to make things better for you, too."

Will Julie List marry one day? She writes about that: "My parents' divorce has made me wary and frightened of the decay of love. And yet... I believe in marriage. I now believe that lifetime intimacy is a risk worth taking."

Open House is planned at Camp Boothe Oaks

An Open House at Camp Boothe Oaks will be held Sunday from 3-5 p.m. Newt Newberry, chairman of the West Texas Girl Scout Council Camp Committee, says this will be an excellent time to visit the facilities and meet some of the summer personnel. The camp is located 8 miles southwest of Sweetwater off of FM 1809. Camp Boothe Oaks is used for year-round activities by Girl Scouts and their families and is used for a resident camping program for girls, fourth grade through twelfth grade, during June and July. How to find a perfect therapist

NEW YORK, N.Y. — No surefire method exists for finding the perfect therapist, but if you feel you need professional help for your problems, these tips from a recent Seventeen will make the search a lot easier. Psychiatrists have a medical degree and usually three to five years of post graduate training in psychiatry. They are qualified to prescribe drugs. Psychologists usually have a doctoral degree from a university certified by the American Psychological Association. The good ones also have at least 2 years of experience in therapy and are licensed in the state they practice. Psychiatric social workers must have had at least two years of graduate training in programs accredited by the Council on Social Work Education. To be certified by the Academy of Certified Social Workers, they must also have a masters or Ph.D. in social work, 2 years of post degree experience, a state license, and a passing grade on a special exam. Individual therapy can involve a few sessions or several years' work. Groups generally run for twelve to eighteen months, meeting for about two-and-a-half hours each week. Most psychiatrists in private practice charge at least $50-$60 an hour, private psychologists run $40-$50 an hour, and psychiatric-social workers' fees are $25 an hour and up. Clinics, however, generally operate on a sliding-scale basis according to income. You can get a referral from a local hotline (check the Yellow Pages under "Clinics" or "Mental Health"), or a city or county health department. Members of the Camping Committee will serve as hosts and hostesses for the Open House. The West Texas Girl Scout Council is a participating agency of the United Way.

This Fantasy Needs Weaker Signal

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for 16 years. My problem is that since before we were married I've had a crush on my husband's older brother, whom I'll call Arnold. It seems ridiculous at my age (39) to admit this, but it's true. Arnold is 42 and seems happily married. Arnold and I have the same interests, share the same opinions, and we seem to have much more in common than he has with his wife or I with his brother. Not that it's important, but even members of the family have commented on how much alike Arnold and I are. I'm ashamed to say that I've often wondered what it would be like to go to bed with him. How do I put this man out of my mind? And why do I still fantasize about him after so many years? I love my husband, and at times feel that my feelings about his brother could be considered infidelity. It would be a great relief to have an answer soon.

DEAR CRUSH: Fantasizing is a far cry from acting out, so don't feel guilty. Unless you're looking for trouble, avoid fantasizing in Arnold's presence. He could be operating on the same wavelength and pick up your signal.

DEAR ABBY: I have just graduated from college and am thinking about getting married. I have a girlfriend whom I love very much, but I am afraid if I marry her I will also be marrying her mother. My girlfriend is 24, and she still tells her mother everything! When she's not at home with her mother, she calls her on the phone just to "talk" or "ask her advice." She has never made an important decision without consulting her mother first. She freely admits she doesn't have any self-confidence, and she needs her mother for support. Abby, I can give her all the support she needs, and if she wants to talk things over, she has me to talk with. I think at 24, it's time she cut the cord between her and her mother. What do you think?

DEAR ME: I think you're right. If you marry this woman now you will be competing with her mother. So unless she changes her priorities, don't rush out to buy a ring — it might end up through your nose.

DEAR ABBY: You recently asked how the children should be named if both parents retained their own names. Both my wife and I kept our own names, and we agreed that our children will be named in this way: Girls will take their mother's last name, and boys will take my last name. This seems both fair and sensible. We rejected using both our names, hyphenated, because it would be too cumbersome. And we didn't want to give our children a new name unrelated to ours.

DEAR M.H.: Your solution makes sense. Read on for another solution.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are professional people, each with a separate identity, so we decided that I should keep my maiden name after we married. What to name our children was no problem. My last name was used as our children's middle name; their last name is the same as their father's.

CONFIDENTIAL TO G.C.: If you are going to the hospital and prefer that no one know you are there, under the Privacy Act you have the right to request that your name not be listed on the switchboard.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-ager Ought To Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

'Perfect murder' leads to arrest

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Law enforcement officials called it "the perfect crime," a three-year-old murder that led to the arrest of an Arlington construction worker.

Larry D. Ferguson, 32, who has lived in Arlington for the past year, was arrested Wednesday by Arlington police, waived extradition and was taken to Fayetteville, N.C., where authorities said he would stand trial on first-degree murder charges.

Ferguson and two other men have been charged in the June 1977 slaying of William "Red" Wilson, 67, of Sandy Lake, Pa. Wilson's murder was not detected until a month ago.

"You might could describe it as the perfect crime," said District Attorney Samuel Orr of Mercer County, Pa. "If the wife hadn't come forward, it could have gone on forever."

The crime was reported by the wife of a defendant,

Charles Reagle. Reagle, 26, of Sandy Lake, Pa., and David Moon, 27, of Jackson Center, Pa., were jailed in Pennsylvania on March 28 for extradition to North Carolina, said Sgt. Norman Dunkle of the Pennsylvania State Police.

Wilson, who had no family, had not been missed in the three years since he was killed. His friends had assumed he was living in a Pennsylvania nursing home.

U.S. Secret Service investigators allege Reagle collected more than $30,000 in Social Security retirement benefits intended for Wilson.

Ferguson's wife of the past year, Nancy, said she believes her husband was arrested on "trumped-up charges," and said the arrest "was a complete surprise."

"I just found out about it last (Wednesday) night when the police came for him," she said.

LINING UP — First Lady Rosalynn Carter with Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young at her side greets guests at a reception in Detroit Thursday night that ended a day-long tour of Michigan that featured mostly stops at airports. Michigan Democrats will caucus Saturday throughout the state to select 141 delegates to the national convention in New York this summer.

Missile shortage reports may lead to more defense spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reported shortage of air-to-air missiles on two U.S. carriers stationed near the Persian Gulf is likely to bolster congressional arguments for higher defense spending in the 1981 budget.

Pentagon sources said Thursday the Navy has had to scrounge for air-to-air missiles to arm warplanes aboard the carriers sent to the Persian Gulf region. "We've had to draw from other areas and put most of our eggs in the Indian Ocean basket," said one source who asked to remain anonymous.

One of the Pentagon's leading allies on Capitol Hill,

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., said the shortage is evidence that the warships "don't really have what they need if they get into a confrontation with Soviet ships."

"This is one of the manifold shortages that we face in all of our services," said Stratton, a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

Russell Hale, a committee staff aide, said the Navy did not have enough Phoenix air-to-air missiles for "more than one or two sorties" on either carrier. Two battle groups, formed around the carriers Coral Sea and Nimitz, were deployed to the area after militants took 50 Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4. Three others were being held elsewhere in Iran.

Discussion of the reported missile shortage came Thursday prior to word of the aborted U.S. attempt to rescue the hostages by military force — an operation that claimed the lives of eight U.S. servicemen.

Pentagon sources said shortages of Phoenix, Sidewinder and Sparrow missiles are the result of several years of the Carter administration trimming budgetary requests for such weapons, used for fleet defense.

But Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., said Thursday's news appeared to be another example of the Pentagon making a "well-orchestrated" disclosure of a shortage while Congress is considering a money bill.

The House is in the midst of debate on a balanced budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1. One major battle is expected to be over an amendment to shift $5.1 billion from domestic programs to defense.

The Armed Services Committee on Thursday approved a $3.2 billion 1981 defense authorization bill that contains $387 million to ease the missile shortage.

Harris-Nixons Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — John C. Phillips, Wayne Scott, James P. Wallace, Lawrence E. Bergman and Sears McGee.

These are not exactly household names. Chances are that unless you're a lawyer who handles civil appeals cases, you don't know that these five men are seeking election to the Texas Supreme Court.

Or what about the nine candidates for the highest criminal court in Texas, the Court of Criminal Appeals? How many can you name?

This may sound like the latest parlor game, but it's really part of the serious business of electing judges to the top courts of Texas — judges who will help set the legal trends in Texas for the next six years.

Texas voters seldom pay much attention to the judicial races, which are notoriously dull. Most votes often come down to name identification or even picking the best sounding name.

Such a situation led to Don Yarbrough's 1976 election to the Supreme Court. Yarbrough was an unknown Houston lawyer with a history of financial difficulties, but voters confused him with a twice gubernatorial candidate of the same name and former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough.

Yarbrough resigned under the threat of impeachment by the 1977 legislature.

There were predictions at the time that Texas voters would learn from that experience and pay more attention to judgeship races. But many political observers believe the more likely result was encouragement for more — and sometimes less-than-distinguished — candidates to jump into races with hopes of a name-identification victory.

Four of the nine judges of the Supreme Court and three of the nine on the Court of Criminal Appeals are up for election this year. The only contested races next month are in the Democratic primary.

The hottest race has been for the open spot being vacated by Supreme Court Justice Zollie Steakley.

The judges of civil appeals court — the middle level between district courts and the Supreme Court — are asking for promotion to replace Steakley.

They are Judge Jim Wallace, 51, of Houston and Chief Justice John C. Phillips, 62, of Austin.

Both have traveled extensively in their campaigns. The Texas Bar Judicial Poll of Texas lawyers gave Wallace 4,348 votes and Phillips, 3,620.

The third candidate is Wayne Scott, 41, a law professor at St. Mary's University at San Antonio. He received 541 votes in the Bar Poll.

Wallace and Phillips have concentrated on running against each other, and the race has provided most of the heat in the judicial contests. Phillips has called Wallace a judicial activist. Wallace has stressed his experience as a state senator and judge and calls for neighborhood justice centers for reducing civil appeals backlogs.

The only other contested race for the Supreme Court in the May primary is Rowlett attorney Lawrence Bergman's challenge of incumbent Justice Sears McGee. This has been an extremely quiet race, with little campaigning. McGee is 62, Bergman, 39.

Challenges to incumbents blossomed in the Court of Criminal Appeals this year, with Justices Leon Douglas, M. T. Phillips and Tom Davis fighting for survival.

Douglas, 64, faces a tough fight against Houston lawyer Martin Teague, 47. Teague ran unsuccessfully for the court in 1978 and trailed only 5,284 to 4,687 in the Bar poll this year.

Douglas takes a strong law-and-order stand and often dissents from court opinions he considers too pro-defendant.

Teague is a defense lawyer and calls for sensitivity in the judiciary.

Incumbent Phillips, 67, is challenged by Dallas lawyer John E. Humphreys, 55, and Michael J. McCormick, 35.

McCormick is a former prosecutor who says he wants to balance the rights of the accused with the rights of victims.

Phillips stresses his experience and the 600 opinions he has written on the court the past three years.

Humphreys has been less visible in the race. The Bar poll gave Phillips 4,540 votes, McCormick 2,700 and Humphreys 847.

Incumbent Davis, 58, has been the most active candidate in the third race. He is being challenged by Walter Boyd, 44-year-old Houston defense lawyer, and Edith Roberts, 47, of Austin, possibly the first woman to run for the court.

The Bar poll gave Davis 5,738, Boyd 1,526 and Roberts, 1,335.

Reagan assembles in Texas House

Private meeting draws sparks

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ronald Reagan's closed-door House Chamber session behind layers of security set a precedent that the chairman of the committee that controls the room does not like.

The GOP presidential contender met with invited supporters in the chamber Thursday as part of his quick campaign stop here. Security personnel manned the doors and checked invitations.

The meeting, largely ceremonial, took place right before Reagan headed for the Senate chamber for a news conference, open to the public, with Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

"I was under the impression he wanted to use the House to give a little speech," said Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, adding he did not know it was going to be a private meeting.

Laney is chairman of the House Administration Committee which gave the Reagan camp permission to use the chamber.

"What they ended up having up there, locking all the doors and all that was not part of the deal. Why they did it, I don't know," he said in a telephone interview from his home.

Laney and Gale Kloesel, House sergeant-at-arms, said they could not remember any previous closed-door gatherings held by private citizens in the House.

"I don't know that the doors have ever been locked, except for a call of the House," said Laney. "But that was to keep everyone in, not to keep everyone out."

The doors were not locked for the Reagan meeting, but Department of Public Safety, Secret Service, and Capitol Security guards manned the entrances.

Kloesel said about 80 Reagan supporters were at the session. Most of the time was consumed taking photographs. The candidate made a five-minute talk, he said.

Laney said he is looking into what went on in the House.

"What he did in there will definitely have an effect. Our policy may have to be tightened up," he said.

Kloesel said he considered opening the House gallery but meeting organizers insisted on shutting out the public and press as a security measure.

"People like presidential candidates are more prone to get shot at," he said. "It's only reasonable to have (security) beefed up."

Ernest Angelo of Midland, Reagan's Texas campaign chief, said the meeting "was not any closed-door meeting."

"We were taking pictures and we couldn't have a mob in there. They do it all the time," he said.

Candidates in previous presidential races have been allowed to hold news conference, open to the press and the public, in both the House and Senate chambers.

Marsalis seeks seminar here

Denton and Johnnie Marsalis, D&C Sales, have returned from attending the annual Texas Manufactured Housing Association show in Dallas, this past week.

Marsalis, who is the State Chairman for the Education Committee for Texas Manufactured Housing Association, and the members of the committee had a booth displaying the works of the Education and Homemaking Committee.

While there, Marsalis also attended a seminar for one day relating to the manufactured housing market. Marsalis hopes to work with the local Cameo Energy Home Manufacturing plant in getting the same type of seminar held in this area.

Not only would it be beneficial to the manufactured housing industry, but to many other fields. Marsalis will be leaving this week to attend the Texas Manufactured Housing Association Board of Directors meeting of which he is a director.

Also, he will be holding a meeting of the Education Committee for the state and will be attending the meeting of the TMHA State Membership Committee, which he is also a member.

D&C Sales feels it is an honor to have a Big Spring person represent their city and the manufactured housing industry at the state level.

Reagan encounters different welcomes in Texas Thursday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — GOP presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan got a rousing welcome mixed with protest at the University of Texas campus Thursday and a cordial yet neutral welcome from Gov. Bill Clements, who addressed him as "Ron."

A crowd of more than 1,000 persons — mostly students — cheered Reagan wildly when he said young Americans should never again die in battle "when their government is afraid to let them win."

The candidate's three-hour campaign visit, nine days before the Texas GOP presidential primary, included a private political lunch with Clements and a closed-door gathering with campaign workers in the Texas House Chamber.

"I'm going to pick his brains as much as I can about the general election.... We won't touch on the primary," Reagan said before joining the governor for cheeseburgers.

Clements has said repeatedly he would remain neutral in the primary and would support any GOP nominee. Reagan said this was a position he had urged on Clements.

The state's first Republican governor since the 1870s indicated his neutrality might end once Texas Republicans have spoken in the May 3 primary that will allocate the state's delegate votes at the GOP national convention.

"After the May 3 primary I will reassess the situation and I suspect I will make an announcement on May 4," Clements said at a joint news conference with Reagan in the Senate Chamber.

Reagan is competing with

Texas George Bush for Texas '80 delegate votes.

The Californian spoke in the auditorium of the Lyndon B. Johnson Library at the UT campus. The library houses the late president's papers, and one of about 50 protesters waiting outside the auditorium for Reagan held up a sign saying, "LBJ is Turning Over in His Grave."

Protesters chanted, "Reagan, go home," but the crowd inside the auditorium cheered as he entered to "The Eyes of Texas," played by a band from predominantly black and Mexican-American Albert Sidney Johnston High School, named for a Confederate general.

UT students waved the "horns" gesture of extended index and little finger that they use in cheering on their Longhorn athletic teams.

Reagan said it was time to give up the "Vietnam syndrome," which he said resulted in a stance that "never again will this country resist Communist aggression."

"We should be saying, never again will we let our young men die for their country when their government is afraid to let them win," he said to prolonged cheers and applause.

Reagan later flew to Dallas to attend an evening fund-raiser at the suburban Highland Park home of Southland Corp. President Jerry Thompson.

With former Texas Gov. John Connally by his side, Reagan fielded questions from about 50 persons at the event that was closed to reporters.

A spring storm delayed Reagan's departure from Dallas-Fort Worth Airport by more than an hour Thursday night.

ALAN JAY LERNER

Seventh suit filed

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Jay Lerner, the lyricist of "My Fair Lady," "Camelot," and "Gigi" fame, is being sued for divorce by his seventh fair lady.

And reports from London say the 25-year-old leading lady in a revival of "My Fair Lady" may be auditioning for the part of Mrs. Lerner No. 8.

Nina Bushkin is suing the 61-year-old Lerner for divorce, the New York Post reported Thursday.

"I loved him when I married him three years ago," said the 29-year-old daughter of jazz pianist Joey Bushkin. But she says the age difference was a problem.

"I didn't notice it at all when we were alone together. Alan is very young at heart. But when we were with friends it became very obvious — some of his friends are 80 years old."

In London, Lerner said he was "very happy" with Liz Robertson, who is Eliza in the revival. "Liz is a wonderful girl, and I'm lucky to have her."

Every American a poet

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Robert Penn Warren, a two-time Pulitzer Prize winner for poetry, says every American is a poet.

"Any person brighter than a half-wit who can fall in love is writing poetry, although he doesn't know it," Warren said Thursday. He gave a reading here Wednesday.

A mother's love is poetry, Warren said. Being honorable is poetry. "Poetry is man's search for values and experience," he said.

Warren, 75, said the nation needs poets, but "our nation is spoiling our sense of poetry."

Slander suit settled

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A diet doctor's $30 million slander suit against CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" and newsmen Mike Wallace has been settled out of court.

Dr. Joseph Greenberg withdrew charges of negligence by CBS on Thursday, and the network said it "regrets any embarrassment that Dr. Greenberg feels he's sustained as a result" of a 1976 "60 Minutes" broadcast.

"I don't care about the money," Greenberg said. "It was just my reputation. I'm happy we settled this amicably. I am vindicated."

He had charged that CBS, Wallace and producer Grace Diekhous defamed him in a segment in which a woman said she took more than 80 pills a day under his direction in an effort to lose weight.

Greenberg claimed he lost $100,000 a year after the broadcast.

Cuban exiles turn resort into boom town

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Some 10,000 exiles eager to liberate loved ones from Cuba are turning this resort into a boom town — and one exile spokesman says President Fidel Castro has decided to permit thousands to leave the Caribbean island.

Store shelves in this town of 29,000 are bare and boat captains are flush with cash as Cuban-Americans crowd in hoping to bring relatives to Florida.

Napoleon Vilaboa, organizer of the "freedom flotilla" that has ferried more than 1,000 Cubans to South Florida since Sunday, says the Castro government has flung open the doors to potential refugees.

Authorities said 536 Cubans arrived Thursday and Radio Havana reported that at least 300 boats were jammed in the harbor at Mariel.

A steady stream of boats chugged out to sea from the city marina Thursday, their skippers ignoring war-rings of fines of up to $1,000 for each refugee brought back from Cuba.

Boat operators were charging up to $1,000 per refugee to make the journey across the choppy Florida Straits. There were reports that boats were changing hands for double their value.

"These people are bloodsuckers, man," one boat owner said. "People are turning down $10,000 to $12,000 because they think they'll get a better deal tomorrow."

Other marine operators defended their prices, saying they were risking valuable equipment on uncertain seas.

A Florida Marine Patrolman who asked not to be identified estimated 10,000 of Florida's Cubans have streamed into Key West this week, straining resources to the limit.

"You can't buy a life jacket, fire extinguisher or safety equipment," he said. "Everything's sold out. You go to a grocery store and there's no beer or soda on the shelves."

Meanwhile, Vilaboa told The Associated Press today that a top aide to Castro had assured him no restrictions would be placed on the number or destination of refugees.

Vilaboa said Rene Rodriguez, president of the Cuban Institute of Friendship with the People, told him "the Cuban government won't put any obstacle (in the way of) the people who want to leave."

He said Rodriguez assured him "the people who want to go to the United States, they won't be pushed to other countries."

An airlift of 10,000 Cubans who sought refuge at the Peruvian Embassy in Havana three weeks ago was suspended last Friday after Castro insisted that refugees flown to Costa Rica not be allowed to emigrate to other countries.

Costa Rican officials had no explanation late Thursday when a plane load of 107 exiles landed unexpectedly.

An informed source who refused to be identified by name said the guerrillas would take Asencio and three or four other hostages with them as insurance, then free them when they reached Cuba.

Government representatives and the guerrillas' masked woman negotiator met twice on Thursday. The president's office said they "shortened the distance" between their positions, but a Foreign Ministry spokesman said another bargaining session would be held this morning.

Darvon under new scrutiny to limit use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Darvon, the nation's most widely prescribed painkiller, is coming under renewed scrutiny by the federal government in a move that could sharply limit its availability at doctors' offices and drugstores.

The Drug Enforcement Administration said Thursday it already has tightened federal regulations on Darvon in pure, bulk form.

The Food and Drug Administration is considering the same restrictions, including prohibiting telephone prescriptions and banning refills, for other, more common forms of Darvon. This would include the pills and capsules, plain or combined with other drugs, used by millions of Americans each year for pain ranging from headaches to toothaches.

All types of Darvon had been on the government's list of low-risk drugs — those having little potential for abuse and leading to only limited physical or psychological dependence. Pure, bulk Darvon now is being reclassified as a drug with only limited medically approved uses and with a greater danger of being abused.

Government figures show Darvon second only to barbiturates among prescription medications used to commit suicide. About 1,000 to 2,000 deaths a year are associated with Darvon.

The drug, which is marketed under the names Darvocet-N, Darvon-N and Darvon Compound, can be addictive and can cause serious injury or death when taken with alcohol or other drugs or in large doses. Sidney Wolfe, who heads the Public Citizen Health Research Group, said about 22 million prescriptions for Darvon were written in the United States in 1979. The public spent $130 million on the drug.

Methodists are willing to spend millions on suits

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The United Methodist Church says it is willing to spend $4 million over the next four years fighting collective church liability lawsuits that it says imperil its existence and operations and "threaten all other religious denominations."

The church's governing conference appropriated the money Thursday to fight lawsuits that want the entire church held liable for losses from the 1978 bankruptcy of Pacific Homes, a chain of retirement and health care facilities.

The 14 facilities, serving 1,900 residents in Southern California, Arizona and Hawaii, are affiliated with the Southwest Conference (regional unit) of the church.

Charging that Pacific Homes failed to live up to contracts with elderly residents, the suits seek $600 million damages and maintain that the 9.6 million member denomination is collectively responsible.

In preliminary proceedings, the California Court of Appeal has held the denomination as a whole answerable.

The class-action suits, the largest of which goes on trial in San Diego on June 16, claim the Methodist-affiliated operation had been warned as early as 1954 that its resources were improperly handled. Pacific Homes sold life-care contracts to old people, many wealthy Methodists retirees, but failed to set aside adequate long term reserves — the suits charge

Mistake costs child her sight

'I can't see, it's too dark'

NEW YORK (AP) — Bahadur Khan knew something was wrong the minute he saw his 2½-year-old daughter being wheeled out of the operating room. The bandage was wrapped over the wrong eye.

The surgeon had cut out the good eye, not the one rotting with cancer.

Doctors at the Indian government hospital in Hyderabad had blinded Nasreen Banu for life. Her father, a $100-a-month mechanic from Hyderabad, doesn't blame anyone. He just cannot understand.

"If I make a mistake in my factory, I would say, 'OK, I'm uneducated. I could make such a mistake.' But they are educated and professional people....I am perplexed," he said.

Nine weeks have passed since the tragic mix-up.

In that time, the child and her father have come to New York for surgery, at Indian government expense.

In that time, specialists at the Eye Tumor Center at New York Hospital have learned that cancer has spread to Nasreen's spine. Whether the disease could have been checked had Indian doctors removed the correct eye, doctors cannot say.

Nasreen, a chubby, playful child with jet black hair and clear, dark skin, is going home with her father this weekend, ending their three-week stay. Two artificial eyes will fill the hollows left by surgeons in her country and in New York — Dr. Robert Ellsworth, director of the tumor center, could not restore her sight and had to remove her diseased eye.

If Nasreen's life is to be prolonged, she must submit to a rigid schedule of intensive radiation and chemotherapy. Ellsworth said she has one chance in 100 to be cured. If she is not cured, she probably will die within four years, he said.

"There was a flame in my heart that my daughter might see again. Now I am reconciled to the will of the god," said Khan as he sat, legs crossed, on the floor of Ronald McDonald House here, a home for child cancer victims, where he and Nasreen have been living.

A shy man, Khan spoke through an interpreter as his daughter played beside him. She sang "Aba, Aba" (Daddy, Daddy) and groped at the toys and gifts sent by Americans who heard of the tragedy. She climbed into her father's lap, crying now and then for attention.

Nasreen has been frightened and confused since she came to New York. "She's still a child. She only says, 'I can't see. It's too dark. Where's Mommy, where are my sisters and brothers?'" said Khan.

The questions — "Why is it so dark? When will the lights go back on?" — have been on her lips since the day after the Indian doctors cut out the wrong eye.

No one knows exactly what caused the mix-up at the Sarojini Eye Hospital on Feb. 22. Indian officials have speculated the chart that accompanied Nasreen into the operating room was mislabeled.

The incident sparked such a furor in India that state legislators called for an investigation. Officials suspended the doctors involved and promised to pay for future medical treatment.

That treatment in New York has been painful for Nasreen. She waits when strangers touch her. She doesn't like American food and is uncomfortable in the cool weather.

"The only thing she likes about New York is ice cream," her father said, smiling.

Khan says he doesn't have the courage to tell his daughter she will never see again. But what Khan does not fully understand — because he speaks little English and hasn't been able to read news accounts of Nasreen's plight — is that she probably will die.

"We hinted to him that she is not going to live," said Dr. V.H. Rao, the government doctor whom Indian officials sent to New York with Khan. "We told him we have done everything possible for the child, that if anything happens, it is our misfortune."

Rao and Dr. Dattatreya Nari, a radiation therapist at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Hospital who arranged for the surgery in New York, said they will not tell Khan of the child's limited lifespan until he returns home.

The doctors said that Khan, who is brought to tears when he talks about his daughter's intelligence and sensitive nature, needs the moral support of his family to take the news.

For now, he responds to questions about Nasreen's future by referring to his 13-year-old daughter's past. The girl, one of five other children being cared for by his wife in India, had cancer of the eye 10 years ago. The eye was removed, the disease was contained and Khan said she will marry this year.

Ellsworth has been emphatic about Nasreen getting the right drugs and the best treatment. She will undergo cancer therapy under Rao's care at Hyderabad Cancer Hospital in south-central India.

Khan said he is confident the Indian government will take care of his daughter.

BLIND, SHE HAS ONLY ONE CHANCE IN 100 TO LIVE — Bahadur Khan of India plays with his two-year-old daughter Nasreen Banu Thursday. The youngster is a cancer victim and nine weeks ago, was tragically blinded when doctors in Hyderabad removed her good eye rather than the one afflicted by cancer. Now, the cancer has spread and despite therapy, she has only one chance in 100 to live.

New information to determine amount of grain supply in 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is sifting through new information that will have an important bearing on how much grain farmers and elevators will have on hand as the 1980 crop season moves into high gear.

The process also involves computing the "disappearance" of wheat, corn, soybeans and other commodities in the form of exports and domestic uses for livestock feed, food and other purposes.

The USDA's quarterly "grain stocks" report was issued after commodity markets closed Thursday.

According to the report, U.S. stockpiles of corn and soybeans — key ingredients as livestock feed — are at record levels for this time of year, basically reflecting the huge 1979 harvests.

Corn on farms, in elevators and in the marketing pipeline totaled 4.78 billion bushels April 1, up 8 percent from a year ago, it said.

Producers had 3.36 billion bushels of corn stored on farms, up 8 percent from a year ago, also a record. Holdings by elevators and other "off-farm stocks" were reported at 1.42 billion bushels, up 7 percent from a year earlier and the most on an April 1 since 1961.

Total "disappearance" of corn in the January-March period was shown at 1.99 billion bushels, a boost of 12 percent from the first quarter of last year.

Soybean stocks, at 1.18 billion bushels, were up 34 percent, the report said. Of that amount, farm storage accounted for 604 million bushels, a 34 percent increase from April 1, 1979. The off-farm stocks, at 580 million bushels, were up 24 percent.

Total disappearance of soybeans during the first quarter was put at 587 million bushels, a 15 percent increase from the same period a year ago.

The nation's wheat inventory was shown at 1.23 billion bushels, slightly less than a year ago, the report said.

Farm storage held 570 million bushels, down 9 percent from a year ago, the report said. But the off-farm inventory rose 10 percent to about 655 million bushels.

Wheat use, including exports and domestic, was about 491 million bushels in January-March, up nearly 21 percent from the first quarter of last year, the report said.

Some other commodities and their April 1 inventories included:

—Oats, 344 million bushels, down 12 percent.

Soviets pull out all stops in herd slaughter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union apparently is pulling out all the stops to keep from mass slaughter of its livestock herds, according to the latest information being assessed by the Agriculture Department.

"Large poultry and livestock inventories in the Soviet Union suggest that the Soviets are trying to maintain herds and flocks," the department said Thursday. "However, lighter slaughter weights during March indicate feed supplies are tight."

Since President Carter imposed a partial embargo on further U.S. grain shipments to the Soviet Union Jan. 4, officials have insisted the Soviets would feel a pinch in providing enough feed for livestock.

The brief analysis, included in a routine weekly report on world agricultural production and trade, said Soviet inventories of cattle and poultry on collective and state farms as of April 1 "reached a record high for that date."

Farmers have 1.2 billion in reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers now have about 1.2 billion bushels of grain, mostly corn and wheat, stored under the government's reserve program.

According to the latest Agriculture Department figures based on surveys as of April 18, the reserve included approximately: barley, 23.1 million bushels; corn, 817.7 million; oats, 32.8 million; sorghum, 73.4 million; and wheat, 253.9 million.

Under the program, farmers normally have to store their grain for up to three years or until market prices rise enough to trigger its release. The object is to remove grain from the market, holding it in storage, so prices will go up.

Horner still won't report

ATLANTA (AP) — Al Thornwell, executive vice president of the Atlanta Braves, said Thursday night he has extended by two days the time in which Bob Horner has to report to the club's Class AAA farm team at Richmond.

"In order to be a little lenient with Bob, I have extended his reporting date to Sunday," Thornwell said. "This gives him a couple extra days to rethink his position."

"The Braves can give Bob to Friday, Sunday or next Saturday, but he is not reporting to Richmond," said Bucky Woy, Horner's agent. "We just want out. That hasn't changed. Ted Turner has taught us who's boss. He loves controversy, but it's destroying Bob."

Horner, the 1978 National League Rookie of the Year who batted .314 last year but was hitting .059 in 10 games this season.

At Salvation Army Banquet

Teaff guest speaker

The Salvation Army's Annual Civic Dinner this Saturday night will feature Grant Teaff as the principal speaker for the occasion.

Teaff, the head football coach and athletic director at Baylor University, is a well-known dinner speaker and football coach.

Taking over the Baylor program in 1972, he guided the Bears to the 1974 Southwest Conference championship and a berth in the Cotton Bowl. The Baylor squad went to the Peach Bowl the past season, defeating Clemson 24-18 in that post-season affair.

Saturday night's dinner is a community service appeal kickoff. It will begin at 7:00 p.m. at the Big Spring High School cafeteria. Filet mignon steak will be the main course, and tickets to this charitable function are $7.50.

Dallas Cowboys play charity tilt tonight

MIDLAND — The Dallas Cowboys basketball team will be playing a group of Midland All-Stars tonight in a benefit game for the Permian Basin Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

At least nine Cowboys will be in the game, but it is not known which members of the team will appear. The Cowboys basketball team is actually playing in two contests tonight, as they will also play in El Paso against a group of All-Stars from that team.

Cowboys that will possibly show up for tonight's contest, which will be played in Midland College's Chaparral Center, include Bruce Huther, Aaron Mitchell, Roger Staubach, Tony Dorsett, Doug Cosbie, Danny White, Scott Laidlaw, Billy Joe DuPree, Robert Newhouse, Larry Bethea, Glenn Carano, Ron Springs, Tony Hill, Jay Saldi, Drew Pearson, Mike Hegman and Butch Johnson.

Midland College Athletic Director Delnor Poss is in charge of providing the opposition. Poss stated that he is in no way expecting to win the contest, but feels that he has put together some formidable players.

Joining the MC athletic director will be former Howard College All-American Archie Myers, former Odessa College and Nebraska ace Quincy Wallace, and Midland College Coach Jerry Stone.

Former Midland High and UTEP great Gary Brewster was expected to play here tonight, but will join the El Paso All-Stars against the Cowboys. Others on the Midland team include Bernard Lankford, C.E. Boyd, Mark Poss, Mark Thomas and Nathan Poss.

The contest will begin at 8:00 p.m., with tickets for the charity affair being $3.50.

BSHS Spring Sports Banquet set May 2

The Big Spring Steers Spring Sports Banquet will be held on Friday, May 2 at the BSHS cafeteria. The annual event, which is sponsored by the Big Spring Booster Club, will honor participants in the sports of basketball, track, baseball, golf, tennis and cross-country.

Awards will be given in each sport to outstanding performers, with the announcement of the Obie Bristow Award winner culminating the night's events. This award is presented to the outstanding athlete at BSHS.

Joshua Owusu, track and field star at Angelo State University who competed in the 1972 Olympics in Munich, and would have participated in the 1976 Olympics if not for political complications in regard to his native country of Ghana, will be the guest speaker. Owusu was recently named the Lone Star Conference Athlete of the Decade by San Angelo Standard-Times.

Country Club Tourney begins tomorrow

The Big Spring Country Club Invitational Golf Tournament will get underway tomorrow morning at nine o'clock, as local and area golfers start toward the $350 first prize in each flight.

The annual affair will have both a handicap and scratch flight. The two-day, 36-hole competition will begin with one group tomorrow morning, with the second group of golfers teeing up at 2:00 p.m.

The deadline for entering was yesterday, and club pro C.G. Griffin indicated that the number of places paid in each flight was to be determined by the total number of entries.

The defending champion of the Country Club Invitational is Grant Spencer.

Umpires set Saturday meeting

The Big Spring Umpires Association will hold a very important meeting Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce's meeting room.

Rocky Viera is stressing that all umpires be in attendance, as the schedules and assignments for the upcoming weeks will be given out.

Area tracksters test skills at regionals

LUBBOCK — Six area boys representing Big Spring and Coahoma will be on hand today when the regional track and field meet gets underway on the campus of Texas Tech.

Class AA and AAAA will be represented at this meet, with participants in the affair having earned that right by coming in either first or second in their district affairs. The top two finishers at the regional in each classification will advance onto the state meet, which will be held in Austin in the second weekend in May.

The Big Spring Steers will be represented by four people in three different events.

The Steers mile relay quartet of Joe Willie Jones, Brocky Jones, Mike Domino and Eugene Boardie, which finished second in the District 5-AAAA affair two weekends ago, will be running in hopes of advancing to the state meet.

The Steers will have to improve upon their season best time of 3:23 in this event in order to qualify for the state meet, but anything is possible. The quartet ran a time of 3:37.1 in taking second place at the 5-AAAA meet, but that time is deceptive in that the weather conditions made it impossible for the runners to perform in their usual speed.

Both Joe Willie and Brocky Jones will also be competing in the individual competition.

Joe Willie placed second in the 5-AAAA meet in the 400-meter run with a time of 50.25, but has run as fast as 49.5 this year.

Brocky, meanwhile, finished second in the 5-AAAA meet in the 300-intermediate hurdles in a time of 39.9, which qualified the Steer senior for the regional affair.

Coahoma will send two District 6-AA double winners to the Class AA regional meet in the form of Gary Gee and Larry Newton.

Gee is a veteran at the regional meet, as he won the 110-meter hurdles last year in a time of 14.2 and advanced to the state meet.

But the speedy Coahoma senior pulled a hamstring in the early portions of the track season, and has had a tough road to recovery.

He still does not feel that he is fully recovered and in top form, but still managed to win both the 110-meter hurdles and the high jump at last weekend's 6-AA fracas.

Gee set a new district record in the hurdles last week with a time of 14.93, but still is not satisfied with that mark, and a repeat of last year's regional performance would probably place the Coahoma thincind in the statewide Austin meet.

Gee also will compete in the high jump. He cleared 6'3" in the district meet last week, and felt that he could have jumped higher, but pulled himself out after claiming the gold medal in 6-AA in order not to risk injuring his leg.

Newton won both the 100 and 200-meter races in the 6-AA meet last week, and will enter in both of these races in today's prelims.

Newton won the 6-AA 100 in a time of 10.9, and claimed the 200 in a time of 22.89.

Steers take two wins over Crane

The Big Spring Steers got back on the winning track here Thursday afternoon, taking both ends of a double-header with the Crane Golden Cranes in a pair of baseball contests at Steer Park.

The Steers utilized a 15-hit attack in the first game to take a wild scoring 18-11 triumph over their foes, then relied on the pitching of Tommy Rodriguez and Tim Shaver in the shortened second contest for a 4-0 win.

The pair of triumphs boost Coach Howell Martin's team to a record of 10-14. The Steers return to District 5-AAAA play tomorrow when they visit first half champion Abilene Cooper.

Cooper is currently tied with Midland, Midland Lee and Abilene for the second half lead with a 3-1 mark. The Steers defeated Lee in the first half, which allowed the Cooper team to take that half of the title, and Martin would like for his team to play the role of the spoilers again.

"We knocked Lee out of it in the first half," Martin said, "and I think it would be only fair to knock Cooper off in the second half."

Martin indicated that he will start sophomore Moe Rubio on the mound in tomorrow's contest, but was quick to point out that he will probably use Rodriguez, Robert Moran and Wayne Shipman in relief.

"We're going after them with everything we've got. I wouldn't be surprised if we used all four of them a little bit on Saturday," Martin said.

The Steers jumped off to a 5-0 lead in the first inning of the initial contest against Crane, but the Golden Cranes used only one hit, combined with numerous walks off Bradley Files, to rally and take a 7-6 lead in the top of the second.

But Big Spring's Dickie Wrightsil, who was torrid with the bat yesterday, drilled an opposite field three-run homer in the bottom of the second to give the Steers a 9-7 lead. It was an advantage that the Big Spring crew would never relinquish.

Regular centerfielder Mark Warren moved in to make a rare pitching appearance in the top of the third, and he limited the visitors to only four runs the remainder of the way. Most of these were unearned, too.

Meanwhile, the Steer bats took advantage of the Crane pitchers. Wrightsil added two more doubles to his cause, and Lupe Ontiveros also connected on three hits during the contest. A total of nine Steers hit safely in the contest.

The second game was shortened after four innings due to darkness, but that was enough to put the win in the record books.

Tommy Rodriguez shut out Crane in the first three innings, and Shaver moved in to record the save with a scoreless fourth stanza.

Crane managed only one hit in the contest, a single by Pahl in the third inning.

The Steers scored all of their runs in the 4-0 win in the third inning.

AGONY OF VICTORY — Rosie Ruiz breaks down during a press conference in New York Thursday after telling reporters that she ran the distance Monday in the Boston Marathon. Controversy has evolved from the finish as to whether or not she actually ran the full 26-miles. The hand around her waist is that of Steve Marek, president of the Suburban Road Runners Club of Yorktown, N.Y.

Boston marathon question continues

NEW YORK (AP) — For Rosie Ruiz, the hardest part of posting a record time in the Boston Marathon may be having to explain it. She came to a news conference to talk about the race but burst into tears after her meeting with the media took on tones of a police interrogation.

In only her second marathon and without the benefit of the extensive training prescribed for long distance runners, Ruiz was the first female finisher at Monday's Boston race with a time of 2 hours 31 minutes 56 seconds — the third fastest marathon by a woman.

That was the easy part, compared to the one-hour grilling she underwent Thursday at a packed news conference here. She explained her appearance by saying: "I'm not guilty. There is no reason why I should not answer questions. I don't have to prove myself innocent because I know that I ran it." Asked to describe the marathon course around Boston, Ruiz didn't recall too many details. There was "beautiful countryside. There were roads winding in and out," she said.

Some of her inquisitors Thursday were marathon runners, who laced their remarks with such words as "fraud" and "cheat." Fred Lebow, organizer of the New York City Marathon, said Ruiz didn't finish that race last October or the Boston Marathon. He scheduled a news conference for today to reveal his evidence. It was Ruiz's time of 2:56:29 in New York that qualified her for Boston.

Ruiz said at the Thursday conference that her next race would be a 10-kilometer race (6.2 miles) here. The July 5 event is run by Steve Marek, president of the Suburban Roadrunners Club of New York, who was with Ruiz on the podium.

"I am not a marathon runner per se. I think a time of 2 hours 31 minutes is remarkable for me," said Ruiz, who doesn't have the typical taut, lean body of a long distance runner. "Running is not a profession for me. I just love to run." Thursday's New York Post quoted unidentified sources in Boston as saying Ruiz would be disqualified today and the second-place woman, Jacqueline Gareau, would be declared the winner.

Cloney was interviewed on a Boston television show, along with second-place finisher Gareau.

He told her: "Even if we do reverse the decision, and we have not made that announcement yet...There is nothing we can possibly do for that moment of glory that you missed, or perhaps missed...If we do reverse the decision I want you to get all the acclaim to which you're entitled."

Under a barrage of rough questioning, Ruiz cried off and on but finally broke down when asked if she would continue running if she is stripped of her Boston title. Marek then led her out of the room.

No matter how long Ruiz did run on Monday, her hour on the podium Thursday must have seemed as long as a marathon.

And the results are showing

Mets missed chance by bypassing Martin

By the Associated Press
There is a fiend in town, a longtime sports buff and one of the original disciples of the New York Mets, who is sore enough to blow a gasket. "Look," he said, smoke pouring from his ears, "the Mets could have had Billy Martin, and they blew it. So what happens? Here we have the Mets still wallowing in the cellar, going nowhere fast, and Billy's out there in Oakland setting the place on fire. "It's a tragedy." The friend, Eddie Jaffe, press agent for sports personalities and a man who has counted Joe Namath and Muhammad Ali among his clients, is just one of 7,256,553 residents who have become disenchanted with the "other team" in New York's major league baseball structure. Jaffe recalls, with some bitterness, that the Mets had their big opportunity last January when Nelson Doubleday and friends purchased the deteriorating, financially-troubled franchise for $21 million. At that time, Martin, the feisty saloon-brawler but possessor perhaps of the sharpest managerial mind in baseball, was in limbo, having been fired again by Yankee owner George Steinbrenner for slugging a marshallow salesman in a Minnesota hotel lobby. "I know Billy had his heart on managing the Mets," Jaffe says. "Representations were made to the new

Mets owners. It never got around to a discussion whether the Yankees would release him from the remainder of his contract. Money wasn't a factor. "Billy was sure he could turn the Mets around — just as he has done with every big league club he ever managed. It was a personal thing with him — a sort of vendetta. He wanted to show up Steinbrenner."

According to Jaffe, the idea was quickly nixed by the Mets' new brass. Fred Wilpon, the club president, reportedly said, "We can't do this to Joe Torre (Mets manager). He is too nice a fellow." Doubleday and others determined that they didn't want to inherit the problems associated with a guy whose quick temper and quicker hands were constantly getting him in hot water.

To the Dallas Cowboys

Will Too Tall return?

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are ready, willing and eager to have Ed "Too Tall" Jones back in the lineup next season.

"I have said before we would welcome him back with open arms," said Cowboy president Tex Schramm, "and I reiterate it."

"I think he is serious as far as wanting to do something else instead of boxing," Schramm said. "I think he's serious about wanting to come back."

The 6-9, 270-pound defensive end said when he announced his retirement from football that boxing had always held a stronger appeal for him than football.

Jones has had six fights in the past year, and won all six, but has not fought since a Jan. 22 knockout of Billy Joe Thomas in Indianapolis.

In a conversation with the Dallas Times Herald, Jones denied he was leaving the ring. "I'm only concentrating on one thing — boxing," he said.

But Jones' agent, Don Cronson, was telling another version, according to Schramm.

"We had one conversation in which we were told he probably would like to come back to football," Schramm said.

Jones' boxing manager, Dave Wolf, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, in a copyright story, he advised his fighter to quit boxing after the Nevada Boxing Commission refused to sanction two of his fights.

"It left us in a position where he could not fight enough to be a contender," Wolf said. "By the same token, Ed was not enjoying boxing as much as he thought he would. We decided that if he could get a good offer in football, that it would make sense for him to return."

Both sides indicated the only hurdle to Jones' rejoining the National Football League team would be contract terms.

"We'd have to get the details of a contract worked out," said Dallas Player Personnel Director Gil Brandt. "We've never received any figures as to what they want."

Wolf added, "The only question right now is whether the Cowboys will offer him the right money."

Coach Tom Landry said he hoped Jones would decide soon.

"If he is going to play football we need to get him back fairly quickly," Landry said. "As much as he trains, I know that he is in good shape, but he needs to get himself prepared to play football again."

Jones was Dallas' No. 1 draft choice in 1974. He fulfilled the terms of a five-year contract before switching to boxing. He left the Cowboys on good terms and Landry said he would like to see Jones back in a Dallas uniform.

"His career has been here and his home is here," the coach said. "We haven't done anything to discourage him from playing here."

Celtic coach stresses turnovers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Boston Coach Bill Fitch says the Celtics have to take better care of the ball tonight if they hope to even their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Philadelphia 76ers.

"You just can't get by the 25 turnovers," said Fitch, calling that statistic the key to the Sixers' 99-97 victory Wednesday night. "Our fastbreak was one of the best weapons Philadelphia had going for it. We had too many turnovers, most of them on the break, just careless ballhandling."

"It was like trying to eat soup with a fork."

What causes such a rash of turnovers?

"They tried the impossible, going one step too far or not far enough," Fitch said of his players. "Why? Why does a guy with 10 gold gloves boot a ball in the ninth inning, for that matter? It's just the human factor."

Philadelphia's victory, behind 28 points by Julius Erving including a series of spectacular baskets in the second half, gave the Sixers a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals. Another win tonight would put the Celtics, who had the NBA's best record during the regular season, on the brink of elimination.

"It's not do-or-die until you can't afford to lose another one," said Celtics playmaker Nate "Tiny" Archibald, who committed seven turnovers Wednesday. But Fitch conceded, "Game Four is the key. Our team is going to be high."

Neither team has been able to score 100 points in any of the three games of this intense playoff war, in which one of the hottest battles has been between Erving and Boston's M.L. Carr.

Those two players squared off after Carr upended Erving when the Philadelphia star drove to the basket during the third quarter of Wednesday's game.

"M.L. took deliberate fouls on two successive plays,"

Erving said. "I began to question whether these things were coincidental. If I had a scowl on my face, it was there for a reason. A man cuts (under) me like that, he's messing with my career."

Carr admitted he wanted to foul Erving, but said he did not try to hurt him.

"I wanted to foul him, to stop the play, but he finished it off anyway and made a great one," said Carr. "You don't want to retreat, not in this series. There's no bad feeling. I respect Julius Erving. Whether he still respects me or not, you're going to have to ask him." Erving says he's willing to bury the hatchet.

"I've never started a fight on a basketball court," Erving said. "I don't see where it accomplishes anything. If a player is roughing me up, I think it's more effective to just play that much better, to beat him at my game. The object is still to win the game, right?"

So what does Erving expect from Carr tonight?

"A handshake," he replied. "I'd like to put what happened behind me."

No home court edge in Lakers, Sonics game

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics and the Los Angeles Lakers move their National Basketball Association playoff series to the University of Washington campus tonight.

The Sonics, who set an NBA single season attendance record at the Kingdome in 1979-80, were forced to move Games Three and Four of the series to the smallish Hec Edmundson Pavilion, which holds 9,600, because the Kingdome and the Seattle Coliseum were booked.

The Kingdome is being used by the American League Seattle Mariners and the Seattle Coliseum was booked for an ice show.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Lakers played at the campus facility for UCLA more than a decade ago and Gus Williams, the Sonics' offensive star, played there for University of Southern California. Jamaal Wilkes played there for UCLA.

But, other than that, the building basically is uncharted territory for both teams.

"I don't even know where Hec Edmundson is," joked Seattle center Jack Sikma.

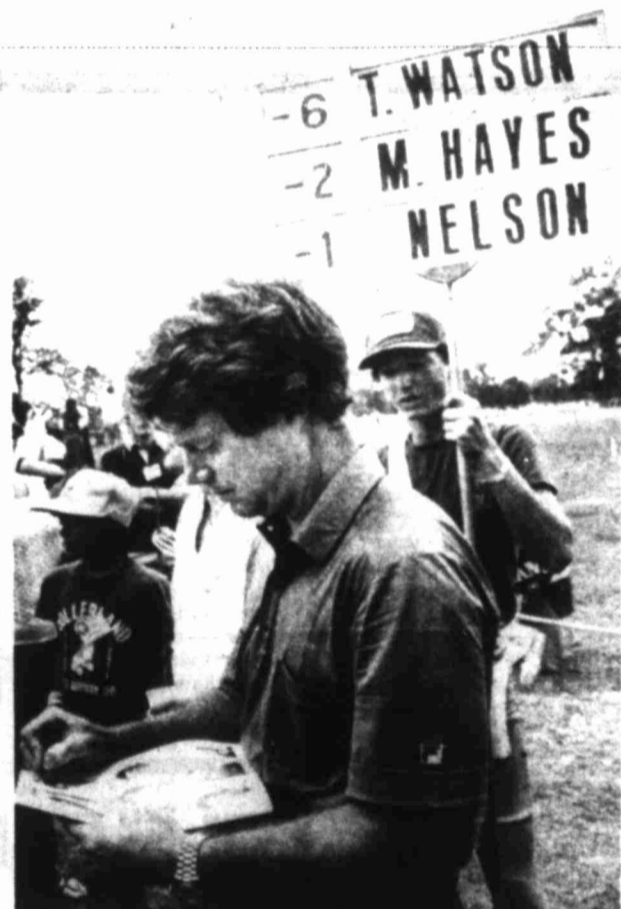

The best-of-seven Western Conference finals, which is tied at one victory apiece, will continue at the University of Washington Sunday.

The Sonics and the Lakers split the first two games of the series at Los Angeles' Forum. Seattle won 106-107 Tuesday night and the Lakers came back to win 108-99 Wednesday night.

Coach Lenny Wilkens of the Sonics is unhappy about the officiating, saying he thinks Abdul-Jabbar is getting special treatment against Sikma in the series. He said the officials of Wednesday night's game, Joe Gushue and Jim Capers, allowed Abdul-Jabbar to go over Sikma for several tap-ins of rebounds. Abdul-Jabbar scored 31 points and pulled down 18 rebounds in the Laker triumph.

"It's not fair that guy (Kareem) can do that," Wilkens said. "If you let him do that, nobody can stop him."

He added, "A lot of times, Jack was being held and we weren't getting any calls. Not just with Kareem but all year. Jack just doesn't get any calls. He hardly ever goes to the line."

MAN ON TOP — Golfer Tom Watson pauses to autograph his picture in a program for a fan after shooting a 6-under par 66 to share the first round lead of the New Orleans Open. Watson, the tour's top money winner, is shooting for a fourth tournament victory of the season.

Trio share lead in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Longshot Chip Beck, in a surprise share of the first round lead in the $250,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament, says he knows what to expect.

"I know what they're going to say," the 23-year-old Beck said after posting a no-bogey 66 in a tie for the lead with defending champion Hubert Green and Tom Watson, golf's outstanding performer.

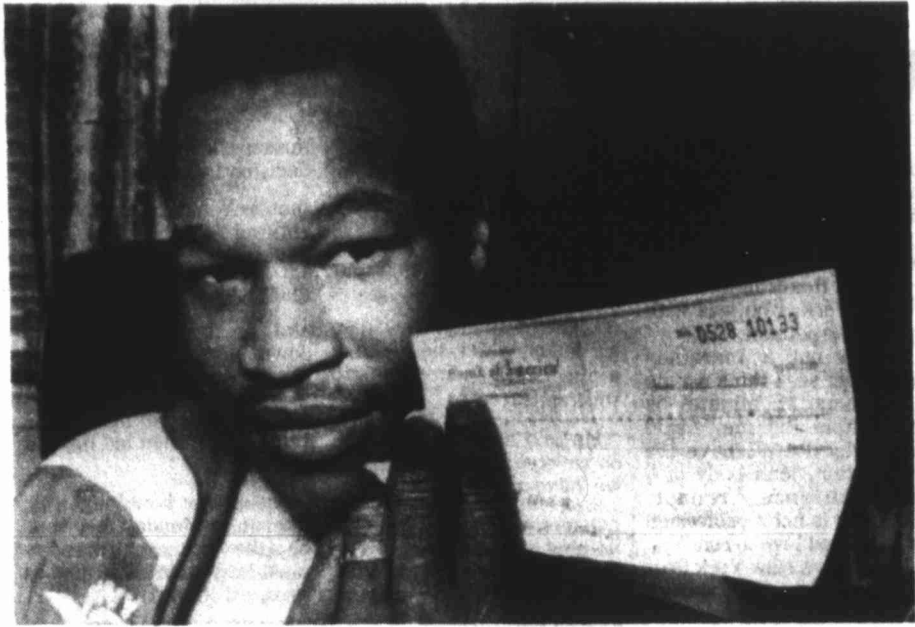

"They're going to say, 'That guy will fold. He'll choke.' And it'll be a tough row to hoe," said Beck, who never before has had a lead and hasn't finished higher than 31st in his brief, two-year career.

"I know I've got to play good to stay anywhere around the lead."

"But I figure I'm going to play good. I know what it is to play a bad round. I figure I can prevent that. I'm starting to get some confidence in my ability. I'm looking forward to the next couple of rounds."

White Sox change produces win

The Chicago White Sox are loaded down with left-handed pitchers. But as everyone knows, Fenway Park is not for left-handers.

When in Boston, it's usually to your advantage to throw right-handers at the Red Sox, with that cozy "Green Monster" wall looming in left.

Two of Chicago's leading men were pitchers Richard Dotson and Ed Farmer, who combined to hold the Boston sluggers to two earned runs.

"Dotson pitched a good game but his arm stiffened during the sixth," said Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa. "I had to take him out."

Dotson struck out nine and walked two through his strong six-inning performance before giving way to Farmer. The right-hander left with the game tied 3-3, but the White Sox came up with two runs in the top of the seventh and thus presented him with the victory.

"If we hadn't scored the two tie-breaking runs, I really would have been weighing taking him out," LaRussa said of the 21-year-old Dotson. "I hate to take a pitcher out with no decision, especially after he has struck out four batters in a row, like he did."

The game was the only one played in the American League Thursday. In the National, the Atlanta Braves edged the San Diego Padres 8-7 and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 5-2 in 10 innings.

Along with the good pitching supplied by Dotson and Farmer, the White Sox continued to get good hitting from Lamar Johnson. Johnson drove in four runs, two of them with a homer in the third inning. His RBI grounder in the seventh produced the tie-breaking run.

The victory gave the surprising White Sox a 9-4 record so far this young season.

"What we have is a bunch of guys who like to play," said LaRussa, explaining his team's hot start. "If we go out and play every day, we're good enough to be in the ball game."

Braves 8, Padres 7
Brian Assestine's RBI single capped a two-run rally in the ninth inning, leading Atlanta over San Diego. Larvell Blanks started the rally with a single and eventually scored the tying run on Jeff Burroughs' infield single before Assestine's game-winning hit.

Willie Montanez' two-run homer in the top of the eighth had provided the Padres with a 7-6 lead before Atlanta's rally.

Dodgers 5, Giants 2
Dusty Baker's three-run homer broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the 10th, leading Los Angeles over San Francisco. Reggie Smith, who homered in the fourth, singled to start the winning rally. Steve Garvey followed with another base hit before Baker's homer gave the victory to Jerry Reuss, 3-0.

North Stars force Canadians to the limit

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars' offense, all but dead for three games, exploded with a flourish Thursday night and prevented the Montreal Canadiens from eliminating them in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Glen Sharpley's backhanded goal with 41 seconds left in the second period capped a five-goal outburst by the North Stars and carried them to a 5-2 victory over the stunned Canadiens.

of-seven National Hockey League quarterfinal series at three games each, with the deciding game scheduled for Sunday night at the Montreal Forum.

"I would be lying to you if I told you I was expecting a second period like that," said Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor. "I was as sure as can be that the score would be 3-2 or 4-3."

Minnesota had won the first two games of the series in Montreal, but then was outscored 16-3 by the Canadiens in the next three games. Now, the four-time defending Stanley Cup champs must overcome the momentum the North Stars achieved with Thursday's triumph and win once more before the demanding Montreal fans at the Forum.

"If we cannot win one game in our building, we do not deserve to be in the semifinals," said Montreal Coach Claude Ruel. "There is just one game left; it is a whole new series."

A very mini-series, and that's just why the North Stars don't feel the Canadiens will have a home-ice advantage.

"I've said from the start of the series that in the playoffs the home-ice advantage is not nearly as much a factor as it is during the season," said Sonmor.

"There's not going to be too many things affecting that game except good or bad play," added Steve Christoff.

Christoff, an Olympic standout who joined the North Stars late this season, scored his sixth goal of the playoffs on a power play at 5:22 of the second period to offset a first-period tally by Mark Napier.

Palmer, DeVicenzo, Boros Legends of Golf has nostalgic touch

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — At age 78, Gene Sarazen still has deep pride in the way he plays golf and the manner in which the game has progressed.

"I still shoot below my age everytime I play and I guess I'll keep playing as long as I can do that," said Sarazen, who was first to tee off today in the $400,000 Legends of Golf Tournament.

Sarazen, who was paired with Jim Ferrier, said, "I shot 71 two weeks ago at a good course (Hole in the Vicenzo will be such tandem as Art Wall and Tommy Bolt, Sam Snead and Don January, and crack Australians Peter Thomson and Kel Nagle.

Wall and Bolt forced the tournament into six extra holes in 1979 before DeVicenzo ended the marathon playoff with a birdie.

"People still talk to me about this tournament and the way it ended last year almost everywhere I go," said Sarazen. "Next to the U.S. Open and the Masters this tournament will have the biggest television audience of any in 1980."

Palmer who has played well in practice rounds, said he certainly did not consider the Legends of Golf a mere exhibition.

"Any tournament I have entered I feel is important that I win," said Palmer, who has shot 3 under par in practice over the par-70 Union Creek Golf Club that plays to a friendly 6,584 yards.

Palmer, who turned 50 this year to become eligible, said, "I really enjoy the format of best ball and the potential of this tournament is very good. I think seniors golf in this country has a very attractive future."

January, who also just turned 50, was asked what he thought about playing in the tournament. "I'm not sure what a legend is, but I'm tickled pink to be one."

Super PAC provides help in 'swing districts'

By STEVE MCGONIGLE
Staff Writer Corpus Christi Caller
Special to Austin Bureau Harle-Hanks

CORPUS CHRISTI — Taking a page from organized labor's campaign strategy book, a group of Texas business interests is experimenting with an effort to form a united front in several races for the Texas House and Senate.

The stated purpose is to elect people who understand and support conservative business ideals, as labor has done for years for more liberal thinkers through its Committee on Political Education (COPE).

The Austin-based business federation operates under the innocuous sounding name of Businessmen Are Concerned Political Action Committee — BACPAC, in politicalalese.

Its treasurer calls BACPAC "no big deal," but skeptical Capitol observers are referring to the businessmen's coalition as a front to camouflage special interest contributions, a Super PAC, a PAC's PAC or even more ominously, The Ultimate PAC.

The reason: each of BACPAC's eight contributors is also a political action committee, something never before seen by Capitol observers in the financing of Texas political campaigns.

Statewide businessmen's groups like the Texas Association of Taxpayers, the Political Action Committee of Texas and the Texas Association of Business have been active political participants for years, but none has proved to be an effective vehicle for broad-scale action.

Comprising BACPAC are the political arms of the Texas Chemical Council, Texas Savings and Loan League, Texas Real Estate Association, Texas Association of Business, Texas Dental Association, Texas Motor Transportation Association, Texas Restaurant Association and a group of Houston realtors.

Lobbyists for the individual groups are considered among the most influential spokesmen for the state's conservative business community. The PACs they represent are among the most generous campaign financiers.

In 1978 campaigns, the group of special interests minus the dentists reportedly contributed a total of $758,451 to candidates. The Real Estate Association PAC, known as TREPAC, contributed $376,085, the second highest total of any statewide political action committee.

BACPAC, however, is not in the business of making large political donations — at least directly. Its contributions are in the form of consultant services provided by Austin lobbyist — public relations specialist Jerry Hall.

Hall, a former press secretary to Gov. Preston Smith and one-time associate of Lobbyist George Christian, former press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson, is a veteran strategist for conservative candidates.

"Six or seven of these guys got together back last fall and formed a little PAC or side PAC on their own to hire me to do research and get political intelligence and advise them on the various races," Hall says.

One House aide contends, "When you buy Jerry Hall, you buy a less visible George Christian."

This year, between his BACPAC involvement and work on his own, Hall says he represents almost a dozen incumbent legislators and candidates he describes as conservative challengers to more liberal incumbents or office-seekers.

The races involve both valued, old friends of business and those new friends who could be added in "swing districts" where the incumbent either retired or is considered vulnerable.

Among Hall's clients are Abilene Democrat Grant Jones, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, and Bryan Democrat Bill Moore, the Senate State Affairs Committee's longtime chairman.

Through BACPAC, Hall has advised and helped organize campaigns for challengers to liberal-to-moderate House members Betty Denton of Waco, Fred Head of Athens and Bill Keese of Somerville.

BACPAC's help also found its way to senatorial candidate John Wilson of La Grange and House candidates Garry Luker of Granbury and Robert Saunders of La Grange, all of whom are seeking open seats.

So far, BACPAC has listed $3,373.10 of in-kind contributions, including $2,500 each to Wilson and Moore, according to campaign finance reports filed with the secretary of state. Five other House candidates received contributions of $750 or less.

Each of the five House candidates on the BACPAC list also have received money donations from BACPAC contributors, although to a much smaller degree than senate candidates.

Asked if his was a Super PAC, Hall responded, "I wish it was. We'd all be getting rich."

There are, however, some indications that BACPAC is acting as a guidepost for special interest donations to candidates worthy of business support.

Incumbent Sen. Moore and senate hopeful John Wilson are among the largest beneficiaries of special interest money this year. Their heaviest contributors have included realtors, savings and loans and manufacturers who make up the Texas Association of Business.

Since January, Moore has reported receiving $10,000 from the realtors PAC, $5,000 from the manufacturers PAC, $5,000 from the savings and loan PAC and $1,000 from the Texas Chemical Council PAC.

Notes lobbyist and former liberal Rep. Betty Denton's opponent Keith Jones of Mart has received $1,500 from realtors, $1,000 from savings and loans, $500 from manufacturers and $250 from the chemical council.

Even two senate candidates Hall says he had limited contact with, Bob Glasgow of Stephenville and Bill Whittle of Corpus Christi, have seen their campaign treasuries fattened with funds from BACPAC members.

In addition to being conservative, six of the seven direct recipients of BACPAC assistance hail from rural areas.

Their election would strengthen the hold rural conservatives have over both houses for next year's legislative redistricting.

Besides House Speaker Bill Clayton's legal troubles, one insider says, "all they talk about is redistricting at lobby meetings."

legislator Dean Cobb, "It would be naive if anybody failed to assume the importance of this election."

Cobb says money invested in a coalition of trade associations would be well spent.

Other lobbyists also point out the addition of a few extra pro-business legislators improves the chances business interests will win revisions in unemployment compensation and products liability laws they did not win from the 1979 legislature.

And while he is assisting the campaigns of two former Clayton aides and is a longtime friend of the speaker, Hall insists he is not involved in electing pro-Clayton candidates.

"That's bull," he says of rumors to the contrary. BACPAC, Hall says, was created for no purpose other than to provide consultation and planning for a handful of conservative candidates.

"The thing is dormant," he adds.

"I don't think it's going to continue — I don't know. It was an experiment, more than anything else."

Since the Feb. 4 deadline for filing candidacies, he says, BACPAC members have been supporting candidates independently.

Outside the seven candidates BACPAC helped, Hall insists, "I have absolutely no say."

Other lobbyists concur with Hall that the state's conservative business interests are too diverse, too jealous of one another and too single-issue oriented to combine forces in electing legislators.

"There's no way to get all these people to agree on all these candidates, because their priorities are so different," says one oil company lobbyist.

But, he says, the idea of even an experimental coalition of PACs would have been laughed off as impossible a year ago.

One man who says he is surprised at the business lobby's consolidation effort is Harry Hubbard, director of the Texas AFL-CIO.

Hubbard says he only wonders what took business so long.

Political consultants compile 'hit lists'

By STEVE MCGONIGLE
Staff Writer for the Corpus Christi Caller

CORPUS CHRISTI — BACPAC was born behind closed doors, where its lobbyist-creators traditionally conduct their strategy sessions.

Those present at the beginning included publicist Jerry Hall and Texas Chemical Council lobbyist Harry Whitworth, once known as 25 percent of the business lobby's Big Four.

Eventually they would bring in Durward Curlee of the Texas Savings and Loan League, Richie Jackson of the Texas Restaurant Association, Bob Looney of the Texas Association of Business, Gerhardt Schulle of the Texas Real Estate Association and Terry Townsend of the Texas Motor Transportation Association.

Since its formation in October, BACPAC has collected $35,000 from its eight members. They directed Hall to set up interviews with candidates for legislative office and scrutinize their electability.

"They hired a hired gun to kind of look over things and report back to them," Hall says.

Hall says he gleaned the idea to start a PAC coalition from Oklahoma, where business groups began merging their political financing efforts two or three years ago.

A veteran Oklahoma state-house observer says the coalitions were formed there as an economizing effort meant to reduce business's costs of financing campaigns.

Prior to the formation of Super PACs, Oklahoma Observer editor Frosty Troy says individual business PACs were being "milked to death" by legislative candidates.

"They were afraid to tell legislators now," the outspoken newspaperman says. "They have all that money, and they can't turn a guy down or he'll vote against them."

After individually potent Oklahoma business groups like Realtors and life insurance companies joined forces, Troy says they learned they agreed on many issues. He says they switched their financing technique to "using a rifle instead of a shotgun."

The PACs also used political consultants, Troy says, to compile hit lists and gift lists to determine in which races their money was spent.

Cases pending in 118th District Court mount

Number of cases pending in 118th District Court increased in March from 258 to 269.

A total of 32 cases were added to the docket with a total of 21 disposed of.

Of the 21 cases, nine were disposed of by pleas of guilt. One case was disposed of by a jury verdict on a not guilty plea.

One case was disposed of on a dismissal for insufficient evidence. In six cases the defendant was convicted in another case and the case was dismissed.

A total of four cases were transferred to county court and reduced to misdemeanors. Deferred adjudications totaled two.

Pleas of guilt brought one conviction each in murder, voluntary manslaughter, assault, robbery and burglary categories. Three thefts were disposed of on pleas of guilt and two marijuana possession cases. The case disposed of by jury verdict on a not guilty plea was a voluntary manslaughter case. The single case disposed of by dismissal on insufficient evidence was a burglary case.

Four of the six cases where the defendant was dismissed because of convictions in other cases were theft cases; two were under the heading "other felony."

A total of four defendants were committed to state prison; one each under murder, assault, robbery, and burglary.

Probations granted totaled six; one voluntary manslaughter case, three theft cases and two marijuana possession cases.

Total number of years in prison assessed was 109 years. Total fines was $2,000. One jury was sworn in and one defendant was convicted for a lesser than indicted offense.

A BIGGER WORLD

There comes a time, even in a child's life, when the way must open to a greatly expanded world. When his confining shell no longer allows proper growth, he makes a point of throwing off his shackles and steps out into a big, strange world.

This comparatively simple phenomenon is paralleled in human existence as each child grows toward adulthood, and reaches out for the wider horizon. What he finds there will depend in great part on what he has been taught.

For this reason the early and continued guidance of Christian home and church are all-important. From these things the foundation of faith is built. Through faith and understanding the shackles of fear and bondage are dispelled, and your child grows spiritually strong to meet the ever-widening horizons and challenges of a modern world.

Silver mogul Hunt has Christian perspective

'Chicken-fried steak and Jell-O... and all the silver in the world'

You have just been invited to dinner at the Dallas home of Nelson Bunker Hunt.

He owns one million acres of ranchland in the South-west and four million in Australia.

You wonder what your host will serve. Maybe an elegant cut of beef from one of his ranches.

own that company, too — some 400 shops in the United States and abroad.

Upon arriving at the Hunt home, you are mildly surprised. Yes, it is a lovely home, but quite modest for a man of such staggering wealth.

In short, your dinner with the Hunts is a great time. You feel comfortable, without a trace of the cultural intimidation you may have feared.

You wonder what your host will serve. Maybe an elegant cut of beef from one of his ranches.

high finance.

As you eat, you notice delightful touches of family warmth all around. The Hunts tell you they have four grandchildren.

Yes, you have just been a dinner guest of a billionaire. And, as you trot down the steps toward your car, you feel as if you'd just eaten supper with Harry and Marge, your old friends across town.

Rest assured that this casual dinner with the Hunts was no fluke. Whatever stereotype you may have about the ultra-rich, it probably does not apply to the Bunker Hunts.

Bunker travels by jet, he sits in the coach class and carries luggage that has seen better days.

Humble? Certainly — even the term "down home" is no exaggeration. As one Texas periodical put it, Bunker "is the kind of guy who orders chicken-fried steak and Jell-O... and then goes out and buys all the silver in the world."

Brother Herbert, another of the sons of the late H. L. Hunt Jr., apparently has the same humble tendencies. Noted the New York Times, with no slight amazement, "... during last summer's gasoline crisis Herbert, one of the world's oil moguls, was spotted in a two-hour gas line, waiting patiently with his wife and his dog."

Clearly, money has not captivated the focus of every millionaire in this world, and no one is better proof of that fact than Bunker Hunt.

Of course, that's not to say that Bunker is lax in his entrepreneurial duties. Indeed, he is very intense — but his primary goal is to maximize his business potential, not simply to amass more wealth.

Libya nationalized his vast oil holdings in that country), he has indeed been very successful.

He can give horse pedigrees for five generations back. He can tell you how much a barn should cost and what type of roofing you should put on it."

But there's more to the story of Bunker Hunt than his adeptness at making money.

He has special convictions on how to spend it. A believer in Christ from his early church days, Bunker makes it a priority to support evangelistic work.

Due to the command of Scripture in Matthew 6:1-4, he is hesitant to declare his amount of giving, but he has become a leading figure in the campaign to raise $1 billion for Here's Life. World, a campus crusade for Christ evangelistic campaign.

"This is an answer to the Great Commission," says the 54-year-old Hunt. "I believe in Dr. Bright and the Here's Life movement. They have the know-how to do a thorough and efficient job. I've always felt that, if the trumpet call is uncertain, no one will follow. In Dr. Bright's case, the trumpet call is very certain — to bring the gospel to the whole world. I consider him to be one of the greatest Christian leaders of this century."

Bright, in turn, is enthusiastic about Hunt's role in world evangelization. "Bunker has been anointed by God with the ability to make money," he says. "He is acknowledging that in his giving to the Lord."

Lighthouse for the Blind loses door-to-door sale

DALLAS (AP) — Declining sales, rising costs and a shortage of salesmen have doomed a 24-year-old Dallas institution — door-to-door sales by the Lighthouse for the Blind.

Scott said the Dallas operation, down to three outside salesmen now, is losing $1,000 a month on its door-to-door program, which he said is the only one of its kind in the country.

"There's too much overhead and not enough volume," he said, citing the costs of gasoline and the salary for the driver who takes the salesmen on their routes.

The sales program started in 1956, selling brushes, mops and brooms made by blind workers at the Lighthouse.

The Lighthouse has always used salesmen who were legally blind. Tye is completely blind and has been a door-to-door salesman, using a seeing-eye dog, since the Lighthouse program began.

Adkins scheduled for revival

A special invitation is extended by East Fourth Street Baptist Church to all residents of Big Spring and the surrounding communities to attend revival services Sunday through Friday.

Evening services Monday through Friday will begin at 7:30 p.m. Also included during the week will be noonday services from 12 until 12:50 p.m., with a meal provided for all who attend.

The church nursery will be open for pre-school children for all services.

The evangelist for the week will be Rev. Dave Adkins, pastor of Second Baptist Church, Odessa, where he has served since August of 1978.

Guest singer will be Conley Cook, also from Odessa. He is in full-time music evangelism. Prior to this ministry he was with a singing group from New Jersey called "His Ambassadors." Mr. Cook attended Hardin-Simmons University and West Texas State University. He has served as Music Director for Eastern Hills Baptist Church in Albuquerque, New Mexico, Belview Baptist Church, Kermit, and Kingston Avenue Baptist Church, Odessa.

These men will share life-changing messages through music and the Word of God.

Of course, that's not to say that Bunker is lax in his entrepreneurial duties. Indeed, he is very intense — but his primary goal is to maximize his business potential, not simply to amass more wealth.

France destination for Crestview team

An evangelistic team from Crestview Baptist Church, left the United States April 16 in response to an invitation from the French Baptist Union in France.

Rev. Sammy J. Sims of Big Spring will be leading the team. He will be assisted by team members Voncille Sims of Big Spring and Elaine Baker of Gonzales.

The team members are composed of lay people and their pastors who pay their own expenses and give two weeks of their time to share His message with the people of other lands.

Activities of the team members will include worship services, Bible studies, concerts and fellowships. Schools, hospitals, nursing homes and prisons will be visited by member of the team.

Dr. W.H. Jackson, Jr., president of WEF, said, "One thing we have learned in these partnership endeavors is that participants from the states receive more than they can possibly give."

The teams will return to the states on April 30th.

National Manufactured Homes Week observed

These homes are delivered to the building site as wall panels, 8' high, by whatever length is required, usually 20' to 30'. Exterior wall panels include insulated sheathing and exterior siding, with windows and doors installed in the factory. Interior panels generally consist of only the structural 2 x 4 lumber. Some manufacturers install interior wallboard, electrical and plumbing items in these panels, but generally these items are installed at the site by local craftsmen.

The MODULAR-SECTIONAL HOME: These are the most sophisticated and complete form of manufactured housing. They are nearly 95 percent complete before leaving the factory, and are most often shipped as two, three-dimensional units which form the front and back halves of a home. At the building site they are placed on the foundation and joined at the ridge of the roof. Before leaving the factory, the interior of these homes is also completed with carpeting on the floors, paint or wallcovering on the walls, and complete kitchens and baths installed. After this home arrives at the building site, it takes only a week or two to finish it and have it ready for occupancy. Over 43,000 modular-sectional homes were produced in 1979.

For more information on activities being planned during National Manufactured Homes Week, watch your local newspapers, or write to the National Association of Home Manufacturers for a schedule of events in your area.

For more information about manufactured housing and the location of home manufacturers serving your area, the National Association of Home Manufacturers published a Guide to Manufactured Homes. This is a 112-page magazine which contains many informative articles, 23 pages of floorplans, and a directory listing the names and addresses of over 100 home manufacturers. To obtain a copy of the GUIDE, write to: National Association of Home Manufacturers, 6521-Arlington Boulevard, Falls Church, Va., 22042.

Enclose $4 for delivery by 3rd class mail (allow 4 to 6 weeks for delivery) or send $5.50 for delivery by 1st class mail.

The Association also has a 15-minute color, sound movie entitled, "The House the Factory Built" which is available without cost for showing to social, civic, church, and business clubs.

The PANELIZED HOME: This is the most popular and versatile form of manufactured housing. Over 314,000 panelized homes were erected by builders in communities all across the country last year.

Suit asks transcript of Ake hearing made public

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The state Court of Criminal Appeals has been asked to bar Canadian County District Judge Floyd Martin from closing any more sanity hearings involving persons facing criminal charges.

A petition filed by attorneys for the Oklahoma Publishing Co. contended Martin acted illegally on April 10 in closing a sanity hearing for Glen Burton Ake. Ake and Steven Keith Hatch were charged in the shooting deaths of the Rev. Richard B. Douglass and his wife, Marilyn, at their rural Okarche home on Oct. 15, 1979.

Martin convicted Hatch April 16 after a non-jury trial and sentenced him to death. Ake's sanity hearing was closed over the objections of attorneys for OPUBCO, which publishes the Daily Oklahoman and Times.

The suit said the petition for Ake's commitment apparently was filed after Ake was sent to Eastern State Hospital at Vinita for psychiatric observation.

"Because the records are sealed, the petitioner does not know when the commitment petition was filed, who filed it or what it alleges," the attorneys said.

Martin announced after a closed hearing that Ake had been found incompetent and unable to stand trial.

The petition said only Martin and OPUBCO attorney Michael Minnis participated in a discussion over whether the hearing should be closed.

"None of the attorneys for the defendant Ake waived any of defendant Ake's rights to a public trial or any other rights, nor did they object to the closure," the attorneys said.

The petition asks that Martin agree in an announcement after the April 10 hearing that the public had a legitimate interest in knowing the outcome of the hearing. The petition contends the implication was that the public had no legitimate interest in the hearing itself.

The petition asks the appellate court to prohibit Martin from holding closed sanity hearings for persons facing criminal charges and to order him to make public transcript of Ake's April 10 hearing.

Economy in trouble -- III

Going where the jobs are

By the Associated Press
The "Help Wanted" sign is out at Volume Shoe in Topeka, Kan. The Bath Iron Works in Bath, Maine, has a $600 million backlog of orders for ships. There is still a strong market in the Orient for the wheat grown by Washington farmers.

While unemployment lines in most parts of the country are growing, selected industries in selected areas say business is booming. Firms like the Boeing Co. which have military contracts are expanding. Rhode Island and North Carolina say the textile business is strong. The jobless rate in many parts of the West and South is lower than the national average. And companies which specialize in products or services involving sophisticated technology report continued growth. Even in Michigan, where auto industry layoffs have hit hardest, "There are still pockets of real strength," according to John Haneski of the state's Economic Development Office. Haneski said Grand Rapids in particular is doing well because it has a diversified economic base and a healthy office furniture industry.

Volume Shoe in Topeka, which already employs 563 people, is building a new distribution center and will be hiring workers to staff it during the next three to six months.

The payroll at the Bath Iron Works numbers 6,000 — about 1,000 higher than last April. The shipbuilding firm has the largest backlog of orders — military and civilian — in peacetime history. A spokesman for the yard said the prosperity was due to the company's ability to get the ships built ahead of schedule, without cost overruns.

Eighty-five percent of Washington's wheat crop is exported and officials of the state's agriculture department say demand — and profits — are good. Dave Kile, the assistant director of the department, said the export market for apples and other fruit also is strong, although he warned that high costs mean farmers have to be careful. "If you're a sloppy farmer and drop dollars down the cracks, you're gonna be in serious trouble," Kile said.

The brightest spot in Washington — and in several other areas as well — is Boeing. The company has $18 billion worth of back orders for commercial jets. It has just won a contract for the air-launched Cruise missile. And it recently bought and plans to expand Numerical Engineering of Macon, Ga. On a nationwide basis, Boeing has expanded its payroll by 2,500 to 104,000 this year. "We're sort of at a plateau, but drifting higher," said company spokesman Pete Bush.

The unemployment rate for Utah in March was 4.6 percent — slightly higher than it was a year ago, but more than a full percentage point below the national average. "Utah's economy will show positive economic growth in every quarter in 1980," said Dr. Joseph S. Perry of the Tracy-Collins Bank and Trust Co. in Salt Lake City. Among the bright spots: Hercules Inc. and Thiokol Corp., both involved in aerospace work, and the state's mining industry, which employs about 17,900 people.

no problem at all and there's plenty of overtime, too," Azzinaro said.

More than 250,000 people are employed in the textile industry in North Carolina and more than 125,000 others have jobs directly related to it. In the last year, 16 new plants were opened and 67 were expanded, creating 4,500 jobs.

Most Massachusetts firms also are at least holding their own and some are expanding, with capital spending in the region up 18 percent from last year. Digital Equipment Corp. recently opened two new facilities, one in Hudson, the other in Boston; GTE Sylvania and Avco are expanding because of military contracts; and the General Electric jet engine plant in Lynn is expected to benefit from Canada's decision to buy F-18 fighters from McDonnell Douglas.

Some business and government officials were concerned about possible problems at the General Dynamics Corp. shipyard in Quincy, Mass. Massive layoffs were expected when construction of the last of 10 liquefied natural gas tankers was completed in the fall. But the company got new contracts for the renovation of a Navy cable ship and for repair jobs on oil barges and officials say employment should remain stable through at least 1980.

Like the Washington farmers, Rhode Island textile workers depend heavily on exports and Samuel Azzinaro, state director for the Amalgamated Clothing & Textile Workers Union, said that not even the recent surge of the dollar has hurt the market. "Our people are getting 40-hour weeks with

Assaulted policeman shoots man to death

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police officer shot a man to death late Thursday after the man threatened the policeman and began beating and choking him, a police spokesman said.

Spokesman Bob Worth said officer Otis K. Griffith, a 28-year-old vice squad officer on an undercover assignment, had arrested Donald Ray Rodgers, 23, on a charge of prostitution and was attempting to handcuff Rodgers when Rodgers threatened the policeman and attacked him.

Griffith said the men struggled in a police car, fell to the ground in a parking lot in downtown Dallas and were wrestling when Rodgers began choking him. Griffith said he pulled his pistol and Rodgers attempted to take it from him.

Worth said Griffith fired one shot into Rodgers' chest as the man choked him. Rodgers was pronounced dead at the scene.

Rodgers was convicted in July, 1978 on a charge of prostitution and served a 30-day jail term, Worth said. He also said Rodgers was convicted on an aggravated robbery charge last October and was given a five-year probated prison term.

The shooting was the 11th shooting of a civilian so far this year by Dallas police, Worth said. The shootings have resulted in the deaths of 7 persons and the wounding of 4 others, he said.
