

Valdes women reportedly in Havana

Lillian and Norma Valdes were aboard the shrimp boat, "Rubber Duck," which apparently landed in the Havana, Cuba, harbor shortly before 8 o'clock this morning.

The two women, one a resident of Big Spring and the other a former Big Spring resident, made the all-night trip from Key West, Fla., hopeful of taking aboard at least eight of their relatives and returning them to America.

Money for the trip by the Rubber Duck was raised in Big Spring, perhaps something in excess of $25,000.

Processing of the refugees could take as long as four weeks. It depends upon the Cuban authorities, who can be very obstinate at times.

The Rubber Duck was stocked with enough food and supplies to last for two weeks. The fare back to the United States likely will cost as much as $1,350 per passenger.

Hundreds of Cubans shouting "Viva Presidente Carter" arrived in the unstopable "Freedom Flotilla" back at Key West as U.S. officials readied a refugee tent city at a military base.

Officials say as many as 2,000 vessels may make up the so-called armada.

"If the people of Cuba have the opportunity, President Fidel Castro will be the only one left there," said refugee Jose Antonio Arce, 77.

The Coast Guard said Thursday the Cuban exile fleet that has carried more than 7,000 refugees across the Florida Straits in the last 12 days now numbers at least 3,000 boats.

The exodus apparently is the heaviest flow of Cubans ever into the United States. Some 1,000 refugees a week flew into Miami at the height of a Cuban airlift in the late 1960s and 1970s.

Meanwhile, the White House was expected to announce today that new arrivals would be airlifted to Eglin Air Force Base near Pensacola, where crews were setting up tents and laying in supplies. Officials said the $1 million tent city could accommodate 15,000 refugees within three weeks.

In a May Day speech in Havana, Castro called the exodus a "hurricane" that started in the Peruvian Embassy in Cuba's capital city and "follows its natural course to the United States."

In the past two days, nearly all incoming refugees here have been among the 10,000 Cubans who flocked to the embassy a month ago seeking political asylum. Castro denied reports he was forcing undesirable of the communist-controlled island and onto boatlift vessels.

"We never have deported anybody," he said. "But we have the absolute right...to authorize the exit of anti-socials who want to leave."

Cuban ex-convict Jesus Blanco Perez said in Miami that Castro's police "are picking up everybody who has been in jail and telling they must leave the country or go to prison for four years."

Seventy-two refugees had been detained for security reasons by late Thursday, said Richard Gullage, deputy U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service director in Miami.

Many of the refugees said thousands more Cubans are hoping for a rebirth of the "Freedom Flights" that brought 250,000 Cubans to South Florida a decade ago.

"The number of people who want to leave is in the millions," said Roberto Castro Bernal. "They are waiting for word of an air bridge from Havana."

On Thursday, Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter's challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination, attacked the president for reacting too slowly to the refugee influx. But new arrivals shouted Carter's praise. Chants of "Viva Presidente Carter" rang out from a boat packed with 200 refugees until a U.S. Customs office demanded "Silencio!"

TEA helps SWCID

HC awarded $1.9 million grant

In a special called meeting of the Howard College Board of Trustees Thursday morning, it was announced that a grant totaling $1.9 million has been awarded the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf by the Texas Education Agency.

It had been announced earlier that the grant would total between $1.5 and $1.75 million, and would begin in June. But in a phone call Wednesday afternoon from Bob Caster, Associate Commissioner of Occupational Education and Technology in Austin, Dr. Charles Hays, president of the college, was informed that the grant would total $1.9 million. "We are really pleased that we were given even more than we were originally told," said Hays. "With this start-up money, we are assured that the opening of SWCID will go off on schedule this fall."

Hays explained that the special called meeting was needed to authorize him to contract for a survey of the acreage at the site of the former Webb Air Force Base, which is the proposed site of SWCID.

Dr. Hays stated that the commitment of $1.9 million to Howard College by the Texas Education Agency, effective June 1, 1980, necessitates proceeding without delay on securing the property for the institute for the deaf.

"In order for the property to be transferred to Howard College by the city of Big Spring," said Hays, "an accurate survey of the acreage involved is required."

The Board authorized Hays to contract for the survey, which is estimated to cost approximately $1,500.

Commenting on the acquisition of the grant, Chairman Don McKinney said, "I would like to express the appreciation of the board and of many citizens of Big Spring to Dr. Hays for the successful effort made by him and other Howard College staff members in securing the funding for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf from the Texas Education Agency."

In other action, the board voted to take over the San Angelo vocational nursing program presently being operated by the San Angelo Independent School District.

According to Dr. Hays, "Because of a change in state funding methods, the San Angelo Independent School District vocational nursing program is available for operation by Howard College."

"I believe that Howard College could benefit in numerous ways from taking over this program," said Hays.

Dr. Hays also reported that the vocational nursing program in Lamesa was approved by the Texas Education Agency.

Hays also said the college would start hiring instructors for the deaf college in June. Hopefully, he added, 60 such teachers would be under contract by the time classes start in September, 99 percent of which will come from outside the community (because of exacting qualifications). The salary range, Hays said, would range between $18,000 and $28,000.

The college's preliminary budget will be ready sometime in June, according to the school's chief executive.

Howard College is also looking for financial help from Washington, where "enabling bills" prepared by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Charles Stenholm are due to be out of committee and on the floor by May 15.

The grant coming from the state can be used only for salaries, equipment and supplies and not for a building program, according to Hays.

Jet-age whistle stops highlight campaign days

Presidential hopefuls pumped hands, made speeches and visited wounded commandos as they raced across Texas making jet-age whistle stops to court voters in the final days before Saturday's primary.

President Carter, expected to whip Sen. Edward Kennedy in the Democratic beauty contest Saturday, ended his self-imposed rose garden exile with a "non-political" jaunt to San Antonio Monday to visit servicemen injured during the aborted rescue mission in Iran.

"Our nation owes them a debt of appreciation, gratitude, respect and admiration," Carter told reporters when he emerged from the hospital.

Kennedy, who contended Carter tried to bolster his campaign with the hospital visit, followed the presidential footsteps the next day and made his own stop at Brooke Army Medical Center to visit the injured commandos.

More than 5,000 supporters in San Antonio roared their approval Monday when Kennedy berated the Carter administration. About 2,500 persons greeted the Massachusetts senator Tuesday at Houston's City Hall, where a day before GOP hopeful George Bush attracted only 700.

Bush, in an intense effort to overtake front-runner Ronald Reagan, arrived early and stayed late, hitting Houston on Monday, Dallas Tuesday, Fort Worth and Houston on Wednesday and San Antonio and Austin on Thursday.

GOP conventions 'plum'

Demo 'beauty contest' sparks delegates test

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
Texasans get into the act of the presidential selection process Saturday when they travel to their party's primary.

Democrats in Howard County will have a choice of President Jimmy Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, California Governor Jerry Brown and "uncommitted."

Republicans on the other hand, will pick between George Bush, a former Texas congressman and former U.N. ambassador; Ronald Reagan, a former governor of California and "uncommitted."

The Democrat's primary is a "beauty contest." Delegates to the national convention in New York City will be chosen at the Texas Democratic party's convention in San Antonio.

The voting tallies in the Republican primary will affect the Republican presidential nominees. Delegates to the GOP national convention this summer in Detroit will be apportioned to the number of votes in each congressional district.

Each presidential candidate submits a list of three delegates he wants from each congressional district. Whoever gets a majority of votes from the congressional district gets all three of his district's delegates.

If neither gets more than 50 percent, the candidate with the most votes will get two delegates and the runnerup will get one. This is dependent on each getting 20 percent of the vote.

If only one candidate gets more than 20 percent of the vote, then he gets all three of the delegates. If no candidate receives 20 percent of the vote, then the top three finishers get one delegate each.

The Democrats will elect national delegates through the convention system. Those who voted in the primary may attend at 7:15 p.m. Saturday their precinct convention which will be held at the polling place.

The precinct convention will select delegates to the county convention and consider resolutions. Each precinct convention will be allotted a certain number of delegates to the county convention; this is based on the number who voted for the Democratic gubernatorial nominee in the last election from that precinct.

Delegates elected from the precinct conventions will meet at 7:30 p.m. May 10 in the 118th District Courtroom. The order of business will be to select delegates to the state convention.

Howard County will be sending 11 delegates to the Democratic state convention, which is to be June 20-21 in San Antonio. This number is again based on the county's vote for the Democrat's gubernatorial nominee.

The break down will be either delegates selected from various precincts and three elected at-large. The state convention will then select delegates to the national convention.

The Republicans will also hold precinct and county conventions to select delegates to their statewide convention this summer in Austin.

The GOP precinct conventions will take place at 7:15 p.m. Saturday at the polling places.

Delegates will be chosen at the precinct conventions to go to the county convention which will take place at 1 p.m. May 10 in the 118th District Courtroom.

A total of 20 delegates will be elected at-large to go to the summer statewide convention in Austin.

Race for sheriff hottest in county Demo primary

By DON WOODS
Howard County voters will cast votes for one of three candidates for county sheriff Saturday in what is expected to be the hottest county race in the Democratic primary.

In all, races for six county posts will be decided; sheriff, justice of the peace Pct. 1, Pct. 1 county commissioner, Pct. 1 and Pct. 3, tax assessor-collector, and county attorney.

The Pct. 3 commissioner's contest is the only race with a Republican candidate, W.B. "Bill" Crocker. Two Democratic candidates are running in; Dick Nichols and John J. Roemer, Sr. Crocker will face one of them in November.

Sheriff's race candidates are incumbent A.N. Standard, Bill Eggleston and John Bursen.

All three have been knocking on doors. Eggleston claims to have "knocked on every door in the county." All three have expressed confidence of victory. Voters will settle that issue Saturday.

In the justice of the peace race, incumbent Bobby West is pitted against Former Justice Walter Grice, who is attempting a comeback. Bill Marsalis is making his bid for the post as well.

Pct. 1 Commissioner O.L. "Louis" Brown faces opposition this year by two challengers; Hershel L. Eason, Sr., and Bruce Parker. The race is drawing interest from northside voters.

In the tax assessor-collector race, two candidates with the same first names, Dorothy Moore and Dorothy Bennett, are bound to cause some confusion. Mrs. Moore was trained in the office of the retiring Tax Collector, Assessor Zerah Bednar. Mrs. Bennett is a long-time bookkeeper in Howard County.

County residents will be getting a new county attorney Saturday. County Attorney Harvey Houser is calling it quits after serving one term. He also served from 1964 to 1967. Taking his place will be Fred L. Coleman or Robert D. Miller.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Woes of seniors

Q. What does a senior citizen do when he or she is not allowed to work and can't live on Social Security?

A. You're asking to share the wisdom of Solomon, and even he might not have been able to answer that. Realistically, an increasing number of senior citizens are having to face up to the problem. Food Stamps would help, if the applicants are eligible, but the problem is going to become monumental until the curve in the cost of living levels off.

Texans view court race with ho-hum attitude

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Texans traditionally take a ho-hum attitude toward State Supreme Court races, and there's little evidence they are any different this year despite two more-lively-than-average contests.

There also have been some semi-hard words between some of the candidates to liven up the contests.

After months of an almost totally quiet race, the contest between incumbent Sears McGee and young challenger Lawrence E. Bergman has sparked one of the sharpest court fights in years.

The candidates lack the organization and political funds needed to publicize their differences statewide, but they are sniping through newspaper, radio and television interviews.

Bergman accuses McGee, the incumbent, of being a big-business judge whose written opinions don't reflect the average Texan's views. He also says the Supreme Court isn't working hard enough and wants the court to accept more cases for review.

Bergman is a 39-year-old Garland lawyer specializing in family law. This is his first political race.

McGee is 62 and has 27 years of civil judicial experience, including 11 years on the state's highest civil court. He treats Bergman's complaints as political rantings unworthy of serious reply, calling them ridiculous.

The court works hard and his experience best qualifies him for another six-year term, he says. After that term he plans to retire.

Supporters of McGee point out that Bergman won't meet the minimum 10-year legal experience requirement for court service until June.

RECORD BREAKERS — Because the two women here broke all records for recruiting Heritage Museum members, they were awarded appropriately decorated 'broken records' by the museum's board of directors. They are Erma Balch (left) and Dee Zinn, who were presented the awards by Frances Wheat, museum president, at Thursday evening's annual Chuck Wagon Party held at the Dora Roberts Community Center. Mrs. Wheat said an all-time record crowd, estimated at 300, attended the barbecue.

GOP primary races to be relatively quiet

A quiet Railroad Commission race and two non-binding propositions will fill out the rest of the Republican Primary ballot. Voters participating in the GOP primary Saturday will have a choice in the presidential race between adopted Texan George Bush, who served as a congressman at one time in Houston's 7th District, and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bill Sheppard, Howard County Republican Party Chairman, said the GOP primary will give voters more of an opportunity to influence the choice of the presidential nominees. "Our presidential preference primary will be binding," Sheppard said. "The delegates to the Republican National Convention will be chosen based on the votes received by the candidates in the polling places on May 3."

Sheppard added, "The Republican Primary will also give the voters of Howard County an opportunity to express their opinion on two of Governor Clements' proposals, the use of wiretapping to help massive distribution of illegal drugs in our state and the question of Texans having the use of Initiative and Referendum, a method by which the voters of the state could make laws in the general elections."

The Republican contest for Railroad Commission pits a former Houston high school teacher, Hank Grover, who almost defeated Gov. Dolph Briscoe in 1972 and a Democrat-turned-Republican, John Henderson, who ran for the commission in 1973.

A third candidate is a Weatherford car dealer, E.W. Kidd. The winner of the race will face the victor of the John Poerner-Buddy Temple Democratic matchup.

There are three uncontested races in the Republican primary. H.J. "Doc" Blanchard is running for the unexpired term on the Railroad Commission. He will face the winner of the Democrat's contest between Jim Nugent and Jim Hightower.

Michigan school saved

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan will pay the Pontiac school district its $2.3 million state aid installment two weeks early, giving the schools time to solve a cash flow problem.

State Sen. Kerry Kammer said Thursday the state will make the payment May 15. The district said it needs $8 million to finish the school year, which ends June 12.

The district, which had feared it would be unable to meet its May 16 payroll, developed financial problems when no bids were made this week on $8 million worth of tax anticipation notes, Kammer said. The district can try again for bids May 12.

Whale receives autopsy

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Specialists from a Central Florida marine attraction are here to perform an autopsy on a beached 11-foot pilot whale with a gash in its upper stomach.

It was one of five whales that swam too close to a sandy strip of beach north of Everglades National Park on Wednesday. The other four whales swam back to sea — one after being coaxed by a team of Coast Guardsmen and Marine Patrol officers.

Officials from Sea World of Orlando hope the autopsy will explain what caused the whale to come ashore.

Three sisters stand trial

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Three sisters have been ordered to stand trial on charges of jostling and indecent exposure after police said they smeared their naked bodies with mustard and took off for the Garden of Eden in a delivery truck.

They were bound over to circuit court by Ingham County District Judge R. William Reid after a preliminary hearing Wednesday.

Doshaline McCuin, Charlene Roper and Sandra Lewis were free on personal recognizance bond. They had been arrested April 17. One of the sisters explained that "sunshine and the Holy Spirit" prompted the escapade.

Businesswoman guilty

DENVER (AP) — A district judge here has found a New York businesswoman guilty of bilking a Denver bank of nearly $1.3 million through a scheme involving the transfers of huge sums of money between banks in New York City and Denver.

Denver District Judge Joseph Quinn announced his verdict Wednesday after a week-long trial without a jury.

Sandra M. Brown was convicted of swindling Denver's Cherry Creek National Bank in a complicated transfer of funds through checks and deposits between that bank and Bank of Hapoalim of New York. The judge set a hearing on defense motions for May 28 and continued $50,000 bond for Ms. Brown.

Dean quits county job

Howard County Tax Appraiser Earl Dean has resigned his post effective May 31. Dean received a job offer as appraiser in Kaufman County in East Texas where he will be paid a higher salary.

"It was no hard feelings or anything. Earl was one of the best there is. He liked Big Spring and wanted to live here in Big Spring. He was always getting job offers, good ones," said Deputy Appraiser Weldon Peoples.

Dean's letter of resignation went out to Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board members Thursday.

Both candidates listed political advertising as their major expense. Ezzell bats .000 with the Texas Consumer Association following its voter analysis of the 1979 legislative session.

The rating is based on 17 key votes in Austin. And I quote: "Ezzell voted for Senate Bill 357 which weakened consumer protection by reducing the damages a fraudulent business must pay to an injured buyer."

"The bill, nicknamed the Consumer Destruction Act, waters down the legal protections formerly available against such unfair practices as failure to honor warranties, land fraud, and bait and switch forms of false advertising."

Ezzell also voted in favor of H.B. 1161 which would limit recoveries for loss of life or injury resulting from a defective product. The bill would reduce the manufacturer's incentive to produce safe products. The bill passed the House, but died later in the Senate.

"On another key bill, S.B. 359, Ezzell voted to let car dealers charge an extra $25 fee on new car sales supposedly for paperwork incurred. The bill allows car dealers to collect an extra $30 million annually for a fee that was formerly illegal."

Nancy Reagan is out plugging for her husband, getting in shape in case the next campaign keeps him in the rose garden.

Watching campaigners like Rosalynn Carter and Nancy Reagan... it's a good thing some of our political leaders don't have to run against their own wives.

A turkey was found on the White House grounds while Herald Editor Tommy Hart was there. In the first 24 hours the turkey lined up 12 delegates votes for the Democratic presidential nomination.

That turkey hanging around the White House gave the Carters a clear choice of alternatives. They could call in the Humane Society people or celebrate early Thanksgiving.

The outcome of the presidential nominating contest in Texas is not exactly filled with suspense. It's like reading a mystery novel by starting with the last chapter.

School of Vocational Nursing now accepting applications

The Howard College School of Vocational Nursing is now accepting applications for the next class which will begin in September, according to Ramona Harris, director of the LVN Program.

This class, which will be limited to 30 students, is a 12-month course including 600 classroom hours and 1112 hours of clinical experience.

Upon successful completion of the course, the student and school faculty will submit a completed application for State Board examination. Upon passing the State Board examination, the applicant will be a licensed vocational nurse as registered in Texas.

Applicants for this one-year LVN program must be 17 years of age or older. Students must be 18 years of age to take the State Board examinations. The applicant must have completed at least two years of high school or its equivalent and is required to submit a transcript.

First step for a prospective applicant is to call the LVN office at 915-267-6311, ext. 74, for an appointment, at which time complete details and applications will be discussed, and arrangements made for the pre-entrance test to be given by the guidance and counseling department.

Permian Airways given green light to suspend flights

Permian Airways, Inc. has been given official permission from the Texas Aeronautics Commission to suspend flights to the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area.

The order took effect on Tuesday. Jimmy Pena, 1018 Nolan St., was released Thursday on $15,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

GOD FORGIVES. Let Him.

Feeling Guilty? Many people do. Reasons range from broken homes to unbroken habits. Whatever the cause, it's an ugly feeling. Guilt is both the fact of having done wrong and the feeling of blame for doing it. It's worst when the way you live leaves you empty, frustrated, and filled with regret. But there is a solution. Face the fact and remember God forgives. Then let Him! Before this ad was placed we started praying for you because we care. Give us a chance to share.

NRC getting tough with Texas utility

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission's staff is telling a Texas utility to let it know why the construction permit for its South Texas Nuclear Power Station should not be suspended.

Houston Lighting and Power Co. also faces a possible $100,000 fine in connection with alleged construction problems at the nuclear point near Bay City.

The commission's staff told the utility to show cause why its construction permit should not be suspended in 90 days until corrective steps are taken.

"We will suspend the construction permit...if they haven't responded satisfactorily to the show cause order," said NRC spokesman Clyde Wisner at the regional office in Arlington, Texas.

The regulatory commission's staff proposed the fines after conducting an investigation at the plant from Nov. 10 to Feb. 7.

The investigation found alleged items of non-compliance related to the quality control program of Brown and Root, Inc., one of the plant's main contractors.

The investigation also turned up evidence that X-ray tests of piping welds were not conducted according to the procedures of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers code, as NRC regulations require.

The fine for all 22 alleged items of non-compliance could be as high as $527,000.

Federal law, however, limits the fine for any 30-day period to $25,000, so the most that the utility could be fined for the time period of the investigation would be $100,000.

Victor Stello, director of the NRC office of inspection and enforcement, said that the utility has the prime responsibility for correcting problems, even though most reports concern the Brown and Root quality control program.

"Similar items of non-compliance and substantiated allegations of harassment and lack of support of quality control personal have been the subject of previous NRC correspondence with you and indicate that your past corrective action on these matters has been incomplete or ineffective," Stello wrote.

"The deficiencies in the Brown and Root program were so extensive that they should have been readily detected," the letter said.

The utility and Brown and Root will be required to meet near the site with senior NRC officials.

Houston Lighting and Power has 25 days to pay the fine or file a protest.

However, utility President George Oprea said Thursday that some of the issues raised by the NRC report already have been corrected.

"The project has already implemented corrective action related to each of the items identified by the NRC," said Oprea. He said the company would review those unspecified actions to see if further changes are needed.

SATAN'S GOAL IS TO KEEP CHRISTIANS FROM PRAYER.

Hope MacDonald asks the question, "Have you ever stopped to wonder what the devil's favorite word might be? I've thought a lot about this and have concluded that his favorite word is tomorrow. He is always trying to keep us from praying today. In fact, that must be one of his main jobs - to keep all Christians off their knees."

If prayer does more damage to Satan than anything, he must fear prayer more than anything. Samuel Chadwick adds, "The one concern of the devil is to keep the saints from prayer. He fears nothing from prayerless studies, prayerless work, prayerless religion. He laughs at our toil, mocks at our wisdom, but trembles when we pray."

Machinery for conscription necessary

This country has seen nothing like the mass demonstrations that are likely to occur, if military conscription is re-instituted.

Still, if the situation in Iran is not resolved, it may come to that. Certainly, we could start registration again before too many months have passed. In event of war, an all-volunteer army simply could not meet the challenges this country would face.

A LOT OF YOUNG MEN (and women) say aloud they would accept roles in the military only if this country were invaded. A few say they would not agree to serve even then. If the thought of serving in one of the military branches turns a lot of people off, there has been a resurgence of patriotic fever among others. In the first five months of the current fiscal year, the armed forces welcomed 150,900 new members, or 99 percent of their recruiting goal. This was in marked contrast to the previous year, when for the first time all of the service branches failed to meet their goal.

The statistics, however, indicate some potential trouble for the armed forces: While the numbers were up, the quality may well have been down. Only 43 percent of the Army's new recruits were high school graduates, as compared to 62 percent the year before. The Navy was at 64 percent, down six percent. The Air Force, 70 percent, was down two percent.

Only the Marine Corps represented an increase in percentage of high school graduates, inching up three percent to 65 percent.

THIS IS NOT exactly calculated to reassure: At the risk of running the theme into the ground, we must again point out that many of the tasks which must be performed by soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines are far more complex and demanding than those accomplished by their counterparts in days gone by. By relying on a volunteer format which seems to be taking in more and more uneducated or under-educated youths, we might be threatening our whole readiness standing.

Nor, in this connection, can we forget that the armed forces even now are only taking in the bare minimum necessary to maintain a bare-bones military establishment. In event of a major confrontation, say, with Russia, there could well be a mad rush to beef up the services. If the machinery necessary for securing that talent is not in place, we might well wind up in the proverbial land of hurt. President Carter would do well to keep this in mind as he looks over those recruiting statistics.

Qualified apology

Around the rim

James Werrell

O.K., it's at least partially my fault. I couldn't resist using the term "goon squad" in a story written Tuesday about a Police dragnet on Gregg Street.

The phrase was uttered by City Manager Don Davis, and was not the product of my imagination. But my intention in reporting it was certainly not to embarrass the city manager or members of the police department.

Actually, I thought the statement was pretty funny, and very harmless. To those who disagree, I offer a qualified apology.

out from behind a curtain of bellicose ululations of latent literacy (B.U.L.L.) to show their true colors.

It is thus refreshing to reporters and, we hope, to readers, when the curtain drops. Even when it's a slip of the tongue.

In quoting Mr. Davis, I had hoped that the inclusion of the word "laughingly" before the reference to "goon squad" would help to indicate the nature in which the phrase was used. I also included the entire quote in which those two nasty little words were uttered.

IT IS THE habit of any reporter, and, I think, a good habit, to look for tidbits of information or statements such as the aforementioned that will add color to a story. The reasons for doing this are probably self evident, but I will mention a couple anyway:

— Such information can induce a reader to plow through a story that would otherwise be ignored. A large number of stories about Sen. Kennedy's early attempts to take the nomination from President Carter were probably unread.

But when the president stated in regard to the Senator from Massachusetts that he would "whip his ass," readers took notice. That statement was not only newsworthy, but also prophetic.

— Such statements are also useful in "humanizing" otherwise faceless politicians. The press is faced with hordes of politicians, bureaucrats and public officials who refuse to step

IT WAS MY IMPRESSION, and my hope to imply in the story, that the words were used in good-natured jest, in the spirit of camaraderie and mutual purpose. Davis has never spoken about the police department with anything but respect, and I share that respect.

The police with which I spoke after the story appeared also accepted the statement with typical good nature. I regarded this as fortunate in that most of them are bigger than I am, and most were carrying firearms.

As I have said, I offer an apology, a qualified apology, to those who misunderstood. That qualification could include a lofty examination of the correlation between intellect and a sense of humor, or the dangers of taking one's self too seriously.

Instead, I think I will close with the adage, "If they can't take a joke, who needs 'em'?"

Hostage is guest

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — First Lady Rosalynn Carter invited a U.S. hostage to the White House last week for a chat. Of course it wasn't one of the Tehran U.S. Embassy hostages, but Richard Starr, a former Peace Corp volunteer who spent three agonizing years as the captive of Marxist guerrillas in the jungles of Colombia.

Mrs. Carter had a special reason for welcoming the 32-year-old botanist back to the United States: She played a quiet but effective role in his release last February.

Unlike the bureaucrats in her husband's State Department and the Peace Corps, who gave Starr's mother, Charlotte Jensen, the brushoff when she sought their help in freeing her son, Mrs. Carter interceded twice for Starr.

ON A TRIP to Colombia a few months after Starr was abducted, she asked Colombia's then-President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen about the U.S. captive's predicament. Later, when she learned of my ransom negotiations with Starr's kidnapers, the first lady initiated contact with the government of President Julio Turbay Ayala and asked for their cooperation.

Starr and Mrs. Carter discussed the Tehran hostage situation during their White House meeting. She expressed the hope that the new sanctions against Iran by the United States and our allies would drive the Iranians into the arms of the Soviet bloc — which appears to be just what's happening.

Starr had a special request for the first lady. This, of course, was before last week's abortive hostage rescue attempt. Would it be possible, he asked, for him to speak with the families of the Tehran hostages? He told Mrs. Carter he felt he could reassure them that their loved ones could weather their ordeal without permanent ill effects.

Mrs. Carter thanked Starr for his offer to reassure the hostages' families, and said she would pass it along to the president.

There's no doubt that Dick Starr is an expert on the trauma a hostage faces. For three years he endured repeated threats, endless interrogations, barely palatable food and soul-searing loneliness. He spent his scorching days and chilly nights huddled in a makeshift hammock under a tarpaulin. Except for six armed, unsmiling guards, he had no human companionship.

UNLIKE THE Tehran captives, Starr never knew if his family thought he was alive or dead, and had no way of knowing if any steps were being taken to rescue him.

As it turned out, his brave, indomitable mother never gave up hope that he was alive, and never gave up her battle to free him. Unable to penetrate the bureaucratic curtain of indifference, Mrs. Jensen finally came to me. Months of secret negotiations led to a sudden ransom demand for $250,000. I borrowed the money from a friend in the business world and my associate Jack Mitchell flew to Colombia via the military.

After six tense days of clandestine meetings, coded phone calls, and pre-dawn car rides, the ransom was paid in a dingy hotel room near the edge of the jungle.

Four nights later, an exhausted but elated Starr, was quietly brought to Mitchell at his hotel, and after a hasty exit from Colombia via a Lear jet, he was reunited with his overjoyed and tearful mother the next morning at an Air Force base in Panama.

Footnote: Mrs. Jensen's heroic efforts were successful, but she still hasn't been able to recover the full amount of the ransom. Contributions, which are tax deductible, may be sent to the Drew Pearson Foundation, P.O. Box 2300, Washington, DC 20013.

CAPITAL CURIOSITY: Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., is a respected if somewhat lackluster legislator, second only to Jimmy Carter in his devotion to the Baptist faith, more likely to be found in the prayer circle than the cocktail parties of Washington.

Hatfield has always put public service ahead of material gain. He disdained a salary increase, for instance, because "I don't need the money for personal finances."

Yet the senator and his wife, Antoinette, have managed to accumulate more than their share of the fifty lucre. Most of their money has come from honest enterprise, the stuff of the U.S. dream. But some of their financial dealings might raise Baptist eyebrows.

As the ranking Republican member of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which has jurisdiction over energy legislation, Hatfield should disdain oil money above all other. Yet he accepted a no-interest loan of less than $15,000 from Graham Lacey, a Londoner who controls half a dozen companies. One of his companies has an interest in the North Sea oil field, and another sells products to the oil industry.

Hatfield also received a $25,000 loan at the ridiculously low interest rate of 4 percent from Paul Temple, chairman of the Energy Capital Company, which holds substantial oil and gas leases in the United States.

Dear Editor: The City Manager's recent referral to members of the Big Spring Police Department as "The Goon Squad" was a very bad choice of words. Also, The Herald used bad taste in headlining the "quote."

At a time when our police deserve respect for the job they do, ridicule even jokingly by an official of the City is in bad taste.

I do not live in Big Spring proper, but still feel that the police are to be respected and given all the assistance possible.

Mike Ezell has done a good job for us. He has a very important place on several committees. This would lose for some time at the best.

Vance vs 'Pygmies'

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The gap between Cyrus Vance and Jimmy Carter had so widened that the now-departed secretary of state specifically included the president in a slighting reference to "those pygmies in the White House" during an intimate chat recently with friends in his State Department office.

Vance's target, however, was less President Carter than the political aides who run the nation's policy on the basis of what is best for their chief's re-election. The "pygmies," Vance believes, had changed Carter's mind about the U.S. vote in the United Nations criticizing Israel. That greatly intensified Vance's alienation from the political team, headed by Hamilton Jordan, that long preceded the embarrassing presidential switch on the U.N. resolution.

Thus, what is at stake in the first walkout by a secretary of state since William Jennings Bryan in 1915 is not high U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union nor any sudden Carter switch from dove to hawk. Vance simply had reached a point of no return in working with a White House staff that, with the onrush of the 1980 election, had seized tactical control of policy at his expense.

EVIDENCE SUPPORTING this is the Carter private offer to Vance April 21: You can come out publicly against the hostage-rescue operation, Carter told Vance, and I still want you as secretary of state. Carter gave Vance three choices: publicly disagree and stay; publicly lie — pretending support of the hostage mission — and stay; or quit.

In other words, the president was not abandoning Vance's policy of conciliation at the expense of firm positions backed by a strong defense. The president wanted him to stay as secretary of state, if he would only acquiesce — in some way or another — in the Iranian hostage strategy devised by his political aides.

In his dramatic exit, Vance has become a martyr to the foreign policy establishment and other detainees who fear the "born-again hawk" in the White House is leading the nation to destruction. While Vance's departure seems to strengthen the more confrontational position of national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, no celebration has broken out among those who advocate a tougher foreign policy.

Vance was principal author of Carter's failed effort to make the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) the bedrock of detente with Moscow. Vance and his lieutenants at State repeatedly turned a blind eye to multiplying signs of Soviet incursions. That strategy was behind a tight-fisted attitude toward the defense budget, particularly naval and air expenditures.

But the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan made pursuit of SALT II and the Carter-Vance detente policy impractical with a presidential election one year away. So, Vance's grand design lies buried in the dust of contemporary events, not a conscious rethinking of global strategy.

ALTHOUGH BRZEZINSKI always demanded tougher policies toward Moscow than Vance wanted, it is uncertain whether the president is truly willing to accept them. As we have reported, the burst of anti-Soviet rhetoric from the president as Afghanistan was raped and the election neared has not been matched by changes in policy. Carter's agents on Capitol Hill have fought hard against higher budget ceilings for defense; his diplomats have kept the framework of U.S.-Soviet negotiations intact and tried to cover up Soviet germ warfare capability.

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How would you like a nice statue of yourself with a plaque hailing you as the savior of a suffering humanity? I can arrange it along with some others of our senior citizens' group. All you have to do is tell us how to get rid of the godawful pain from shingles. I have had mine for eight months and have talked to others who've had it for years. Please help. — F.C.

Put away your chisel for the present. I'll send along a picture suitable for framing just in case I make a discovery that has eluded medicine up to now. You'll be the first to know.

Shingles is due to a virus that causes chicken pox in children. The virus is called herpes zoster. The virus lives with us forever. It can come out of hiding in later life, travel down a nerve and produce the skin eruptions followed by the pain of shingles. Another name for this is "postherpetic neuralgia."

For most, it is a short but unpleasant experience. For others (and I think I hear from most of them during a year) it is a distressingly long period of pain, worse for elderly persons. I'll list some of the solutions that have been proposed for the pain.

Pain-relieving drugs are a mainstay, but doctors tend to avoid the stronger ones because of their addictive potential. The patient, with the advice of his or her doctor, can try a few home remedies. Heat to the area helps some. When the chest and back are affected, warm baths may bring relief. Other doctors have tried a class of drugs different from regular pain relievers. They give combinations of tranquilizers with some success. It's almost "hit and miss" (most often "miss").

When caught in the early stages (skin eruption) blocking the nerves with Novocaine-like drugs has helped. This is called sympathetic block, not altogether a matter of the physician's compassion for the patient. A prominent neurosurgeon wrote me recently to say he finds this quite successful. Even later, after the rash has disappeared, the nerves can be blocked with an anesthetic.

Some doctors feel that steroids (cortisone drugs) given early (when the rash first appears) will greatly reduce the dreaded later pain. Finally, there is a technique called transcutaneous electrical neural stimulation. A small current of electricity is applied over the painful nerve. This helps abolish the pain.

I am sorry to say there are no truly effective home remedies. The warm moist packs or baths are about all. I wonder if this answer qualifies for a small plastic bust in a dark corner.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain "skin tags." What causes them to form around my neck area only? How can I get rid of them? Are they ever malignant? — Mrs. R.R.

Skin tags are soft, flesh-colored harmless outgrowths of skin, most often seen on the neck and upper chest. Their numbers increase with pregnancy and at the onset of menopause. The cause is not known, although changes in the body's hormone systems at those times (pregnancy and menopause) might play a role in it.

Skin tags can be removed by cutting them off, either by electric current or by freezing them. They are not malignant.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What causes swollen and drooping eyelids? Mine are swollen so much they are beginning to block my vision. There must be a medical reason for this. It worries me and is making me self-conscious about the way I look. I am 70, but still have lots of pride. I have considered plastic surgery. — B.K.M.

Many conditions cause upper eyelids to swell and droop. For example, an underactive thyroid gland might cause this. An allergic reaction is another cause. Many people get chronic swellings by habitually transferring allergic substances from hands, where they do not cause reaction, to eyelids, where they do.

Simple extra growth of skin is a frequent cause in older persons. First, have the medical aspects checked out. Then, certainly, if the drooping is interfering with your vision consider the plastic surgery, which can be quite effective. Has myasthenia been suggested to you as a cause of eyelid drooping? Is it unlikely at your age, but a thought.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How do you know the difference between blood in your stool and blood from hemorrhoids. I have had a little hemorrhoid that shows up once in a while, and then when I go to the bathroom I see fresh blood.

I always heard one should be careful with rectal bleeding, that it can be cancer of the colon. I mentioned this to my doctor at my last checkup, but he did not seem worried. Maybe you can explain it better to me. — L.R.

It is virtually impossible to tell on sight where blood in the stool is coming from. Often it does come from a hemorrhoid. But blood in the stool should not be dismissed as due to "hemorrhoids." Making that diagnosis should be left to your doctor who can assess the situation, and if need be by doing a sigmoidoscopy, which employs an instrument to view the lower part of the colon (large bowel).

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you have any suggestions about prayer? I find my mind seems to wander a great deal when I pray, although I love God very much. — T.A.A.

DEAR T.A.A.: I believe the first step for you may be to understand the importance of prayer in God's eyes. Prayer isn't something to be treated casually; God has told us it should be at the very center of our lives as Christians. In fact, His Word repeatedly commands us to pray. The Bible says, "Pray continually" (1 Thessalonians 5:17). It also states, "I urge, then, first of all, that requests, prayers, intercession and thanksgiving be made for everyone" (1 Timothy 2:1).

Why is prayer important? First of all, it is important for us. You have certain spiritual needs, and one of the purposes of prayer is to bring these to God and allow His Holy Spirit to search our hearts. When we pray we should confess our sins to God and claim His promises of forgiveness. When we pray we also seek His will for our lives, especially as we face problems or decisions. We do not have the wisdom to guide our lives in the right way; we need God's wisdom and we bring our need to Him in prayer. As long as we think we are self-sufficient and do not need God very much we will never pray. But when we see our need of God every hour of the day we will naturally turn to Him frequently. Perhaps your problem is that you do not see your need of God's wisdom and grace every day.

Prayer also is important because of others. Intercession (praying for others) should be an important part of our prayer life. We may not understand how God answers prayers we make for others — but there is ample proof that He does. In this connection, many people find it helpful to keep a prayer list to remind them of the needs of others.

Ask God to show you your need of prayer, then set aside definite times to come to Him when you will not be distracted. "Devote yourselves to prayer, being watchful and thankful" (Colossians 4:2).

Railroad hasn't changed its mind

WASHINGTON (AP) — A possibility that could be discussed at the upcoming Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad spokesman says. MKT management has not changed its mind about accepting a loan from shippers to help it assume temporary operation of a 450-mile route of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad.

"They still feel the financing should come through a government source," MKT attorney Art Albin said after presenting the shippers' loan offer to top railroad officials. But Albin said the railroad had accepted the invitation of federal officials to attend a second meeting aimed at working out a plan for its temporary operation of the three-state route from Herrington, Kan., through Oklahoma to Dallas.

The meeting, scheduled for Tuesday in Dallas where the MKT is headquartered, will also include officials from the transportation departments of the three states. "I really believe this second meeting will offer us a strong opportunity to put aside the obstacle to acquisition" by the MKT, said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan.

The MKT says it needs $3 million in "start-up" money before it can consider resuming service on the line that stopped operating March 23 when federal subsidies expired. About 45 percent of the Rock Island's 7,000 miles of track are now being temporarily operated by 17 other railroads at their own financial risk.

Federal Railroad Administration and the Interstate Commerce Commission officials told Albin at the April 23 meeting that no federal funds were available, and shippers along the route offered a $1.5 million loan to the MKT and agreed to pay higher freight rates to help the railroad repay that loan.

"Management has the facts in front of them for consideration and I'm sure they've been thinking about it," Albin said of the shippers' offer. "But there really is no practical change in the outlook. He said the MKT remains opposed to risking the shippers' money on a route that may not be successful, especially when it deals with many of those shippers on other routes. He said one

Government not getting its share of stock interests, Carter says

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration says the government is being cheated because it doesn't get its share of interest on your savings and dividends on your stocks, and it hopes to do something about it.

And so the administration and Congress and the banks and others are arguing their cases with facts, figures, testimony, opinions, lawyers and money, and they will let you know when they reach their decisions.

But there is another constituency too, the individuals who would have their incomes withheld. It deserves to be considered at least, and if nothing comes of it, the individuals involved deserve an explanation.

But first, the positions of the administration and the institutions:

The administration hopes to create a withholding system for interest and dividend income, using banks, corporations and others to route directly to Washington 15 percent of payments intended for you.

The administration has its reasons. As Secretary G. William Miller explained: "We must ... take positive action to avoid needless loss to the Treasury of billions of dollars due under present tax laws."

The laws, it seems, are being flouted. According to Miller, about 9 percent to 16 percent of interest and dividend income to individuals — more than $2 billion a year — fails to show up on income tax returns.

Congress, however, might not buy the proposal, now before the House Ways and Means Committee, one reason being that those who would do the routing, such as banks, are uniformly and adamantly against it.

Their "anti" arguments are many, but generally relate to the cost of bookkeeping, to be assumed by institutions, and feelings that the plan would discourage savings and divert funds from more productive uses.

Presumably, someone will speak for the millions of individuals who would feel the pinch, but they won't have nearly the same ability to make so professional a presentation. They may have to rely on logic.

First, with the income of corporations already taxed, why should individuals have to pay taxes again on the dividends they receive from those profits? It's an old, old argument, but as relevant as ever. Secondly, how many people have any real income from interest on savings? Very few. Inflation has consistently deprived individuals of that type of income during the Carter years. It has cost them instead.

Howard County native vs. Snyder incumbent

Barbs spice Shaw-Ezzell race

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

The Democratic Primary battle for the 63rd State Representative comes down to whether a Howard County native can deny the Snyder incumbent a fourth term.

Because there is no Republican opposition in November, the winner of Saturday's contest between the challenger Larry Don Shaw and Rep. Mike Ezzell is assured seating when the Texas Legislature meets in January 1980.

Shaw grew up in the Knott area and lives in Big Spring. He is a fourth generation farmer and cattleman. Shaw's dry land cotton production has been widely publicized in agricultural journals.

Shaw has been active in politics in the state and area. He has served as a State Executive Committee and Regional Coordinator for the Texas Young Democrats.

Ezzell was first elected in 1974 to the Texas House. He took the place of retiring Rep. Renal Rosson, who also came from Snyder. At the time of his election, Ezzell was a teacher in Scurry County.

In 1974, Ezzell finished second to a Borden County man, Judge Glenn Toombs, in the May 5 primary. Toombs failed to gain a majority in the polling, so he and Ezzell faced each other in a June 1 run-off. Ezzell in that election carried five of six counties to win.

"There is enough in his record to point to where we need a change" — Shaw

The following November, Ezzell faced Republican John R. Anderson, a Borden County rancher, in the general election. Ezzell beat the GOP contestant by a margin of 8,618 to 4,742.

In 1976, Ezzell coasted to an easy victory over Bill Atwood in the Democratic primary. He did not have any opposition in November.

In 1978, the Snyder representative was unopposed in the primary and general election.

The campaign has seen its heated moments. The hottest was April 23, when both candidates were caught playing loose with the facts.

Ezzell started April 23 by releasing a statement saying Shaw had been endorsed by the Texas AFL-CIO. Ezzell then went on to paint Shaw a liberal, with the association of the statewide labor union.

"Water is more than a farmer's and rancher's concern." — Shaw

Ezzell said the AFL-CIO's endorsement of his opponent was a part of a statewide campaign by liberals to oust conservative lawmakers from office.

Shaw was never endorsed by the statewide AFL-CIO; although he was endorsed by local labor unions.

Ezzell later admitted he had been endorsed in his previous campaigns by the Texas AFL-CIO.

The Ezzell bombshell led Shaw to call a press conference at 1:30 that afternoon at his headquarters.

Shaw said at the conference, "The last printout (from the Texas AFL-CIO) shows I was not endorsed."

He added, "He (Ezzell) is trying to blow smoke about unions. This is how he is, trying to call me liberal, yet he had endorsed him."

Shaw went on to inform the press he had contacted the Federal Communications Commission about Ezzell's campaign treasurer, Jim Baum, who is also a popular radio personality.

He said the FCC called Baum's involvement unethical, but the agency was unable to spell out legal recourse.

The political bureau of the FCC told the Herald on April 24 that no such statement from the agency itself was made.

Voters in Howard County have seen for the last eight weeks, Ezzell running on his record and Shaw attacking that legislative log.

Shaw has also tried to develop a strong sense of localism from his home county in the race. This is partly explained from Howard County, principally Big Spring, having the largest number of registered voters in the horseshoe-shaped 63rd Legislative District. Howard County has 14,433 registered voters, or 45 percent of the district's voters. This compares to Scurry County with 7,566; Dawson County with 6,713; Coke County with 2,028; Sterling County with 680 and Borden County with 513.

Shaw has been banking on getting a following similar to that of a local man who ran for Congress in 1978. During the Democratic primary that year, Jim Baum of Big Spring, who also is Ezzell's local campaign treasurer, took 78 percent of Howard County against Charles Stenholm, who would be the eventual winner, and Dusty Rhodes in the 17th Congressional District race to replace retiring Rep. Omar Burleson.

Ezzell has emphasized his membership on several committees aid the district. During the last session, he chaired the Health Service Committee and sat on the House Administration Committee.

He is also a member of the Sunset Advisory Board, a body responsible for reviewing executive agencies and determining if the life of these bureaus should be continued.

Ezzell is also a member of the U.S.-Mexico Border Health Initiative.

Shaw has countered Ezzell by saying, "His political clout has been weakened by his involvement with Bill Clayton."

The Howard County native added, "He is not well received by his colleagues. He has not made friends. He has stepped on people's toes under the arm of Billy Clayton."

Clayton is the present Speaker of the House. He was recently implicated for taking $5,000 in exchange for favors during the BRILAB operations.

The speaker is currently being reviewed by a grand jury.

Shaw has also taken exception to Ezzell's record in the House.

"There is enough in his record to point to where we need a change," Shaw said.

Shaw points to the incumbent voting for a mandatory $25 documentary fee for car dealers, not supporting generic drug substitution for the elderly and voting for a bill to raise three times the interest rate on small loans.

"When it comes to the average taxpayer," Shaw said, "he voted to raise interest rates."

Shaw pointed out that Ezzell voted to take rate making authority from the cities and give the power to the Public Utilities Commission, even though the Snyder representative voted against the PUC initially in 1975.

Ezzell answers to Shaw by saying, "He is looking at votes, not issues."

"He is looking at votes, not issues." — Ezzell

"It is going to be the number one issue" — Ezzell

As for the documentary fee, Ezzell said, "Dealers in Houston and Dallas were charging up to $250 and hiding it."

Ezzell said the fee is optional and added, "If a consumer chooses to do his own work, he could not be charged a dime."

Ezzell said of generic drugs, "It has been sold on one basis and that basis is a cost savings." He added that generic drugs have a higher recall than brand drugs.

As for platforms, Shaw has emphasized education, water and agriculture. Ezzell meanwhile has stressed redistricting, electronic surveillance and initiative and referendum.

Shaw believes strongly in local control of education. This may be due from him being a graduate of Sands High School.

"The money we spend in education will pay us back down the line," Shaw said. "The legislature has waited until the last minute to deal with education."

Shaw sees centralization of education and tax money in Austin as detrimental to local schools.

"It would hurt our education level here," Shaw said.

Shaw maintains he understands the urgency of water.

"Water is more than a farmer's and rancher's concern," he said. "Water is industry's prime requirement."

He added, "Existing Colorado River Municipal Water District projects should receive first priority." A major objective of his is to develop existing water sources and work to bring more water into the area.

Shaw would also like to see a limit on foreign ownership of farm land and the development of a gasohol industry in Texas.

Ezzell has said throughout the district the reapportionment that will take place during the next session will be the top priority of the legislature.

"It is not going to be the only thing we will be dealing with," Ezzell said. "It is going to be the number one issue."

Ezzell stresses that a veteran legislator would be better able to protect the district during redistricting.

The Snyder representative also said, if re-elected, he will carry legislation on granting law enforcement use of electronic surveillance.

Ezzell said such a bill will establish that law enforcement officers must get permission from a court of law and show that all efforts to apprehend a criminal have been used.

Ezzell also favors indirect initiative and referendum. Under such a set up, citizens may be able to put a legislative matter on the ballot for voters to decide on. If approved, the legislature must take up the matter.

Industrial Arts Project Fair

Nine Forsan students win

FORSAN — Nine Forsan students won first place in the Industrial Arts Project Fair held in Odessa last Saturday.

The larger number of students participating and winning is credited by Reeh in part to the Occupational Orientation Program the school uses instead of the traditional Industrial Arts curriculum. The concept of this program is to allow students more responsibility and self-evaluation through the use of individualization of instruction.

Courts nine incumbent justices seek re-election

Defendants' rights versus public's rights

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Judicial races seldom spin around controversial issues, but contests for three Court of Criminal Appeals seats this year are putting some centrifugal force into the fight over defendants' rights versus the public's rights.

A third of the court's nine incumbent justices are seeking re-election and all three have opponents. A principal issue in each race is whether the court's justices are too hard or too soft in deciding whether defendants' rights were violated by technical errors in trial courts. Put simply, it's the law-and-order hardliners against the Bill of Rights defenders. The drawing of such a line probably is clearest in the contest between incumbent Leon Douglas and Houston criminal defense attorney Marvin O. Teague.

Douglas, 64, has a reputation as a conservative who doesn't believe in reversing convictions because of minor errors. He formerly was district attorney in Vernon and spent 14 years as the state's attorney, representing the prosecution in criminal appeals cases. He is drawing strong support from prosecutors who say some other justices nitpick in ordering new trials. They see Teague's candidacy as an attempt by defense lawyers to swing the court even further to the left. Teague, 47, is considered a legal scholar and writes analyses of court decisions for the Texas Criminal Defense Association's newsletter. He ran unsuccessfully for the court in 1978. The Houston attorney says Douglas has a prosecutor's mind and starts each appeal believing the conviction should be affirmed.

A poll of lawyers by the State Bar gave Douglas a narrow edge, 5,284 votes to 4,697. An opposite confrontation exists in the Place 2 race where incumbent W.T. Phillips is challenged by Michael J. McCormick and John E. Humphreys. Phillips is being attacked by his opponents as too liberal in reversing convictions on so-called "technicalities." He responds that the court has only one purpose: to study appeals and make sure that Constitution and laws are carried out. Phillips, 67, was elected to the court in 1976 after 39 years of practice in Waco. His chief challenger is McCormick, an energetic and prosecution-minded young attorney from Austin. An appeals judge must be 35 years old and McCormick was only 34 when he filed, however, he will have a birthday before the winner is sworn in next year. He is a former assistant district attorney and currently on leave as the executive director of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association to challenge Phillips. He says he wants to restore a balance in the court between the rights of defendants and the rights of victims. In travels across the state, he maintains that Phillips is too technical in seeking ways to throw out convictions. Humphreys, 54, also is running a law-and-order campaign, but a much more subdued one. He is a Dallas attorney who says he wants the court to make the streets and homes of Texas safe through swift and orderly process of the law. The State Bar poll gave Phillips 4,540 votes, McCormick 2,700 and Humphreys 847. But McCormick says defense attorneys gave Phillips that margin. In the third criminal appeals court race, the law-and-order issue is less defined. In fact, it's somewhat confusing. Lawyers generally consider incumbent Tom Davis to be a moderate with some law-and-order leanings. He is running on his experience as a district judge from 1969-71, criminal appeals commissioner from 1971-76 and two years as appeals judge. Both challengers are defense attorneys, Walter Boyd of Houston and Edith Roberts of Austin. But Boyd has campaigned against what he calls "judicial nitpicking" that reverses convictions because of technical errors. Roberts bases her campaign chiefly on her status as probably the first woman to run for a top state appellate court. She says she would bring a fresh approach to the court. No candidates filed for the Court of Criminal Appeals in the Republican primary, so a Democratic primary victory means election for any of the candidates.

British author continues quest

Oswald exhumation case appealed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The British author who wants to prove the body buried in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave is that of a Russian assassin has taken his exhumation case to a civil appeals court here. The three-judge panel that heard arguments Thursday will decide later whether Michael Eddowes, author of "The Oswald File," has the right to ask that the body be exhumed. Eddowes claims a Soviet imposter, substituted for Oswald in 1969 during his 17-month defection to the Soviet Union, shot President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. The writer, who cited discrepancies between Oswald's Marine physical and the autopsy on the assassin, asked a state district court to order the Tarrant County district attorney's office and the medical examiner's office to open the grave and perform another autopsy. County officials refused to disturb the grave, saying they would exhumate the body only under a court order. The district court denied Eddowes' petition, so he appealed. Thursday, assistant District Attorney Fred Schattman argued Eddowes has no legal right to demand exhumation. "The question is whether these individuals have an interest in this body. The only interest these people have is that he's written a book," Schattman said. Schattman referred to Eddowes as "some interloper, some stranger, some foreign national coming in ... perhaps to help the sale of his book." At issue is Eddowes' right to ask for the exhumation order and Tarrant County's responsibility for exhuming the body to prove or disprove the author's claims. If the justices rule in Eddowes' favor, attorneys would still have to go back to court to seek the actual exhumation order. Eddowes' attorney, John Collins of Irving, argued that evidence uncovered by the writer makes it the "mandatory duty" of Tarrant County to put the imposter question to rest. "The Code of Criminal Procedure speaks as what the district attorney and the medical examiner have to do when there is a question of identity of a body," Collins said. Confusing the issue is the fact that the code is not specific about which medical examiner's office has jurisdiction: the one presiding in the county where a person dies or the one presiding in the county where that person is buried. The presidential assassin was killed two days later by Jack Ruby in the basement of the Dallas police department building. He was buried in neighboring Tarrant County. Ruby later died of cancer in jail while his murder conviction in the case was on appeal. It was not known when the judges would hand down a ruling on Thursday's arguments, but attorneys said no decision was ex-

Eddowes cites details from Oswald's U.S. Marine physicals that do not match with autopsy reports on the body of the assassin. Asked if the military physicals could have been in error, Eddowes replied: "I don't think they erred. In all the Marine physicals he was listed as 5-11 and had those three scars on his left arm and one behind his ear. The autopsy never recorded a 3/4-inch scar. The body of the assassin was recorded at 5-9. "The man who shot the president was 5-9. It's all so very simple." Last fall, Eddowes took his claims to the Dallas County medical examiner's office, who ran several tests and later announced there was significant doubt about the body's identity to warrant the exhumation. Dr. Charles Petty and his assistant, Dr. Linda Norton, said there were numerous discrepancies between Oswald's military records and autopsy reports on the man arrested for Kennedy's slaying. "The discrepancies were numerous," Norton said at an October press conference. "Scars on the body ... color of eyes, height. The differences show up between his military entrance records in 1956 and the autopsy. In one his height, for instance is 5-11. In the other it is 5-9." But the issue bogged down in the jurisdictional dispute, and Petty said later he would not push Tarrant County for the exhumation. Oswald's mother, Marguerite, who lives in Fort Worth, vehemently opposes the exhumation. Eddowes efforts, she said are "a waste of time." A congressional investigation last year conwas the result of a conspiracy. Eddowes claims the imposter was substituted for Oswald shortly after he was discharged from the Marines and defected to Russia in 1969. Oswald married a Russian woman, now Marina Oswald Porter, and returned to the United States in 1962. But Eddowes said, "Marina never met the real Oswald. She married the imposter."

Picture Pretty

Pretty as a picture, isn't she? She looks "downright" angelic. Yet, five minutes from now, she may be a little bundle of fury!

Children change faster than the wind. They haven't learned to hide their feelings. But while grown-ups may present a better camouflage to the world, there are few of us without inner conflicts. And these conflicts can be serious.

It would be a lonely world if we had to keep all our problems to ourselves. We don't. God never intended that we should have to solve all our difficulties single-handed. Remember, He established His church on earth for us. In that Church we will find understanding fellowship, and the faith to work out our own destinies.

Take your problems to Church. Pray that you will find a solution to them. Talk them over with your minister. And what seems a maze today may become a straight road tomorrow.

Ohio city facing another walkout

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Police have struck in this troubled city of idled steel mills, and other municipal workers, including firefighters, threaten to join the walkout today.

Citing Youngstown's ailing economy, Mayor George Vukovich said the city can't meet the unions' pay demands — can't offer any raises at all. He could fire workers who refuse to return to their jobs.

Contracts with six unions representing about 1,000 city workers expired at midnight Wednesday, and hundreds now are on strike.

Nearly 300 police officers walked off the job at 9 p.m. Thursday. 53 wastewater treatment workers left their posts at 7 p.m. and maintenance employees struck at midnight.

About 200 firefighters threatened to strike at 8 a.m. today.

No trouble was reported in the first few hours of the strike.

The city apparently is negotiating separately with the unions, which are looking to the Fraternal Order of Police for a model pact.

Contract talks — the first

Thursday between the mayor and the FOP, but no progress was reported.

"I say we made no substantial progress," Vukovich said.

This eastern Ohio city of 125,000 has been hit hard by cutbacks in the steel industry. Some 9,000 area steel workers have lost their jobs since 1977, and two U.S. Steel Corp. mills, which employ 3,500 workers, are shutting down gradually this year. Steelworkers' and community groups are trying to take over those mills.

With its industry and tax base ebbing, Youngstown can offer no raises to its employees. "We still don't have any money," Vukovich says.

Villainous television star subject of song

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Villainous J.R. Ewing of "Dallas" is getting a dose of his own orneriness in a country music song titled "J.R."

Take this, J.R.: "You're rotten to the core. You're just downright mean."

And there's no sympathy just because J.R. got shot recently.

"You got what you deserve," the song says. The song, recorded by B.J. Wright, was released two weeks ago and is shooting up the country music charts.

It even offers a confession to the nationwide guessing game over who blasted J.R.

"I'll take the blame," the song says.

Wright, 37, was a bass guitar player for country music veteran Hank Snow for 11 years until making a power play and striking out on his own two years ago. After some arm-twisting that would make J.R. proud, he teamed with country music singers Loretta Lynn and Ferlin Husk.

"Everywhere you go, people are talking about J.R. Ewing," Wright said by telephone Thursday from his home in Portland, Tenn. "It was time for a song." He wrote it with Don Lee, Joe Meador and Dave Hall.

Wright, who occasionally wears a white hat like Ewing, has never met actor Larry Hagman, who portrays the oil-rich millionaire. But, he said, personnel at a Texas radio station played the song for Hagman.

"They said he liked it," Wright said.

Dear Abby

Better 30 Inches in Chest Than 60 Inches in Ground

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps if less importance were placed on the size of a woman's breasts, women wouldn't have such a horror of mastectomies. As an American Cancer Society volunteer, for 10 years I have driven patients to and from hospitals for chemotherapy treatments, and believe me, I could write a book!

One woman I drove for over a year old me that she had deliberately put off seeing a doctor for three years because she was afraid that the lump she felt in her breast was malignant, and she might have to have her breast removed. (It was and she did, but, unfortunately, it was too late.)

I myself fell victim to cancer and had to have both breasts removed. The day after I came home from the hospital, I helped cook dinner for my family of five. Two days later I was driving in the car pool again, and within two weeks I was back into the full routine of housework, social activity and volunteer work.

The loss is minimal. Sign me, "Better 30 inches in the chest than 60 inches in the ground," or...

ONE OF MANY

DEAR ONE: Thanks for a timely letter. I wonder how many women are aware that simple self-breast-examination instructions are available at every local American Cancer Society office. They're free for the asking.

DEAR ABBY: My compliments on your new picture. But, Abby, I must ask, didn't you have your face lifted?

M.C. IN TUCSON

DEAR M.C.: No, but my photographer lifted a few lines.

DEAR ABBY: From the very first time my mother-in-law held my twins, there were hugs and kisses and tickles on the tummy, and she told them that they were the prettiest babies on earth and that Grandma loved them best of all. Today, at 18 months, they drop everything and run to her shrieking with delight when she comes into the room. It bothers me because I am not as open as she is, and I'm afraid they will really believe that Grandma loves them best, so I asked her to stop it.

She said she understood and would stop it if I thought about it some more and still wanted her to stop. She says in time they will realize that everyone loves them in a different way and that I love them just as much as she does. What do you think?

HAVING DOUBTS

DEAR HAVING: Be honest. What bothers you is that Grandma is more demonstrative in her affection than you, and you're afraid your children will love her more than you, so you're asking her to cool it. You're being unfair, Grandma is right.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were at the home of friends recently for dinner. These friends have two dogs who are considered "members of the family."

We were served a lovely dinner on the hostess's finest china. After dinner, the dishes were removed from the table. A few minutes later our hostess returned with two of the lovely plates with some leftover food on them. She set the plates on the floor in a corner for the dogs to lick. Noticing the expression of disgust on my face, she said, "Well, it's perfectly sanitary. All the dishes go into the dishwasher to be sterilized anyway!"

Any comment?

YICH IN DETROIT

DEAR YICH: Even though the dishes are sterilized after the dog-licking, the thought of eating in the home where pets and people are served off the same dishes is understandably unsettling to some. However, I'm told that there is a greater danger of dogs catching something from humans than vice versa.

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with the woman whose 46-year-old husband has begun taking clarinet lessons. How about a 56-year-old wife who has taken up tap dancing?

Do you think I'm being unreasonable when I insist that she do her tapping out in the garage? She has a long extension cord for the record player.

HAD IT IN LOS ALAMOS

DEAR HAD IT: Better not banish your dancing doll to the garage, or it might be "taps" for your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who would like to vote in an upcoming election, but he has served a prison term. This is a small town and I don't want to ask anyone here. Can you tell me if he is eligible to vote or not?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Unless your friend receives a full pardon from the governor of his state, he is ineligible to vote. (And for a federal offense, one needs a pardon from the president of the United States.)

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (26 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Drafting project takes top award

Big Spring High School drafting students participated in the West Texas Industrial Arts Regional Competition in Odessa April 25-26.

Ernest Jara received the award for the best student project in regional competition. This placed his drawings as top project over a thousand entries from all fields of Industrial Art. These fields include drafting, woodworking, metalworking, restored vehicles, crafts and welding.

Big Spring High School took all three possible places in architecture, second year ink. Brad Glaser took 1st place, Ernest Jara, 2nd and Jim Buske, 3rd.

architectural pencil division, Big Spring took two places with Gary Hernandez placing 2nd and Randy Menges, 3rd.

Ricky Robertson, the only entry from Big Spring in the second year commercial architectural drafting division, placed 2nd.

They're still in love but . . . Road for mildly retarded couple still far from smooth

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — Virginia and Roger fell in love at a crafts class held at a home for the mentally retarded. The matchmaker was Virginia's papier mache rabbit.

That was a decade ago. Roger was 21, Virginia 18. Things clicked like they do for other young lovers, but unlike most couples, Virginia and Roger faced financial, social and physical obstacles some people said were insurmountable.

Their ages were below 80, Virginia dragged her left leg and tired easily because of birth defects and neither had ever lived without special care.

done, and together they're saving for a plane trip to visit relatives in New York state this August.

"We'll put aside $150 — and that's no April Fool's joke," Virginia said in a recent interview.

Their second-floor apartment costs $220 a month — up $15 from what they paid for the ground-floor unit they rented as newlyweds back in June 1977.

A check for $680 comes every month, a combination of state and federal funds under the Supplemental Security Income Law. They plan to "get off the program and really on our own" someday.

Meanwhile, they bank a monthly check from Roger's brother and they keep their financial records straight with three savings accounts.

special education classes, when nobody thought they telling how handicapped could. people can survive together

Today, they are husband and wife. And the story of their special love and struggle has made them minor celebrities.

A paperback version of their story, "Like Normal People," came out this spring. Written by Roger's brother, Washington Post reporter Robert Meyers, the book was made into an ABC-TV movie that aired April 13, 1979, starring Shaun Cassidy as Roger and Linda Purl as Virginia.

Their life now is stable and close, but "it was like a bumpy road for the first five months — and that's why we had the psychiatrist," Virginia says.

The psychiatrist, paid with public funds, visits only occasionally now, "just to show us simple ways to stretch our money," she says.

Still, the road for a mildly retarded married couple in 1980 is far from smooth, they say.

The busboy's job Roger handled four days a week is down to a single night at a local barbecue because of declining business. He earns $12 for that shift, plus $6 or $7 in table tips. After several months, Virginia has given up training as a hotel maid.

Recalls Roger: "She came home empty."

Roger is now doing part-time work as a handyman for the manager of their apartment house, but he was recently turned down for a job he really wanted — stockboy at the corner convenience store. He says he dreams of a profession.

"The community won't accept me — I can't understand it," he says.

But Virginia is proud of how well her husband has

Don't say 'I do' if you have doubts

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: Dave and I plan to marry very shortly. I love Dave deeply and want to get married but something is bothering me.

Dave went with another girl for a year (in fact, they lived together) and they exchanged many personal photos and gifts. He insists that after we are married, he will keep them in our house. I feel that his past is gone and he doesn't need mementos of a past love.

He claims that he doesn't love her anymore but when we are in some public place and she is there, he leaves me and goes right over to her. I honestly think that he still loves this girl.

With the way things are, I'm not sure that I should start my wedding plans. What is your opinion? — Beth, Hagerstown, Md.

Beth: Marriage is permanent (or it is intended to be) and since you have doubts, your wedding plans should be delayed or terminated depending on Dave's attitude and behavior.

I agree with you.

I think he still has a thing for his old flame.

Dr. Wallace: I've been reading your column ever since it started in our paper and have found it very informative and helpful. I have found your advice useful and I want to thank you.

My mother says that your column is made up and the letters you print are not true. I believe your letters are not made up and are true letters dealing with teen problems. I could prove it to her that your column is real if you would print my letter. Please do it for my sake and yours. — Eileen, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Eileen: I hope for your sake and especially mine that your mother believes in when I mean that every letter printed in this column is authentic.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

On the light side

Trick proves upsetting

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Chester Cyrus tried the old tablecloth trick, but he upset more than the tableware. In fact, he was charged with assault and battery.

Cyrus, 28, of Mukwonago, Wis., attempted to pull a tablecloth from a table without disturbing the glasses and candleholders at a downtown hotel where he and other car salesmen and guests were attending a banquet.

Several glasses spilled onto the table and a brawl started.

A police officer called to the scene said that when he arrived bottles and chairs were flying and men in three-piece suits and women in long dresses were involved in the melee.

The city attorney's office, which claimed Cyrus struck five persons in the fight, issued the charges.

'Best excuse for speeding'

ATLANTA (AP) — One man said he had just received a potent shot at a hospital and doctors urged him to "get home very fast."

Another said he was speeding to test a car he was about to buy.

But Georgia law enforcement officials say those are only a few of the outlandish excuses given by speeding motorists.

Those two entries were among many submitted by law officers to "The Most Creative Excuse for Speeding" contest sponsored by the Georgia Fraternal Order of Police.

"We're not poking fun at speeders," said FOP President Bill Peacock, a sergeant with the DeKalb County Police Department. "We're just hoping folks can become more aware of the nature of the problem."

Peacock said the excuse judged the best was submitted by Lumber City police department patrolman Gary E. Roberson.

As Roberson tells it: "I was on a radio dispatch shift when one of the squad cars called in an ambulance speeding through town with a car following right on the bumper. The officer turned on the blue lights and attempted to stop the auto without success.

"The car continued to chase the ambulance ... all the way up to the entrance of the hospital emergency room, where the driver — a middle-aged, white male — darted out of his car.

"The officer collared him and asked why he was chasing the ambulance at such a high rate of speed, and the driver replied, 'Are you kidding? That's my only uncle in that meat wagon. Wouldn't you follow your kin to the hospital?'"

Roberson said a crowd then developed and the embarrassed officer was "offering apologies to the irate driver when the ambulance doors swung open and attendants rolled out a stretcher bearing a 70-year-old black woman." The driver was arrested for following an emergency vehicle and speeding, Roberson said.

Teachers in Midland schools gain 15 percent pay boost

MIDLAND — Teachers in the state pay the highest public school salaries to 25 percent have received a 15 percent pay boost.

School trustees earlier this week granted Midland instructors a salary adjustment from 25 percent above the state. In finance the raise, Midland property owners will be asked to pay an additional three cents per $100 evaluation in taxes.

TI will establish speech synthesis center near Midland

MIDLAND — Texas Instruments Inc., a Dallas-based firm, has announced it will establish a speech synthesis center at its Midland-Odessa plant, which is south of IS 20 midway between the two cities.

The new technology reconstructs the human voice from stored digital data on a single silica chip that performs 200,000 additions and multiplications per second. This, according to TI President J. Fred Bucy, provides computational capability that formerly would have required four IBM 1800-Class computers.

DICK NICHOLS RELEASED FROM HOSPITAL

Dick Nichols, candidate for Commissioner of precinct 3, was accidentally exposed to a poisonous herbicide last week that required hospitalization.

His doctor has assured him there will be no side effects or lingering illness from this exposure to the poison. Dick would like to thank all his friends for their concern, for the cards, flowers, phone calls and personal visits while he was in the hospital.

Dick Nichols is still in the race for Howard County Commissioner, precinct 3. He states that he believes that only a short tenure is best for a Commissioner's Court official and if elected, he would only ask for one more term and then step down. He believes that a short-term Commissioner would give more of his time with more vigor and with more new ideas than a long-tenured Commissioner.

If elected Dick Nichols states he will be a Commissioner for all the people and will work hard for harmony and unity for progress in the Commissioner's Court of Howard County.

Dick Nichols asks for your support Saturday, May 3 in his bid for Commissioner of precinct 3 in the Democratic primary. Go to the polls tomorrow and elect Dick Nichols Commissioner of precinct 3.

Underdog Republican Bush feels

Texas voters shifting his way

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Underdog Republican presidential candidate George Bush says he can feel Texas voters shifting his way, but acknowledges there might not be enough time to overhaul heavily favored Ronald Reagan by Saturday's primary.

Bush arrived here late Thursday night, nearing the end of his extensive, five-day tour of major Texas urban centers on the heels of his surprise win over Reagan last week in Pennsylvania.

He has a hectic campaign schedule here today before heading back for some eleven-hour campaigning tonight in his hometown of Houston.

"There is a lot of movement out there, a lot of change. There is significant movement. I know my home state," Bush told reporters Thursday night at San Antonio International Airport.

Noting that Reagan hastily squeezed in another campaign appearance today in Houston, Bush added, "Reagan's back in the state. Significant. They thought they had it wrapped up."

Bush said he feels like he did before the voting in Pennsylvania.

Earlier Thursday, Bush had also told Austin reporters he felt "movement," but tempered it by acknowledging he might not have enough time to catch Reagan.

"Something is happening in Texas. Our telephone banks are showing it, the people who travel with me feel it. My question is, do I have enough time to do the impossible and beat Reagan in Texas?" he said, in a joint news conference with neutral Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

Bush admitted he started "way, way behind Reagan, and we only have 48 hours."

"I don't have to do very well in Texas to do better than most people expect me to. That's one good thing, your expectations are lower," added Bush, who vows he won't drop out of the race for the Republican nomination.

"I'm in the race to stay. I was written off long ago by some people. I'm here today ... if I still believed the polls I would not be here," Bush said. "I do not consider the Texas primary a last stand any more than I considered Pennsylvania a last stand."

Reagan won the Texas primary in 1976 over Gerald Ford. Reagan is heavily favored Saturday to capture most of the 80 delegates Texas will send to the Republican National Convention. Clements reaffirmed his neutral stance, but said he would announce his endorsement Monday after Saturday's primary.

"I have no hesitancy in endorsing either one of them Reagan or Bush," he said.

Clements appeared April 24 at a joint news conference with Reagan and made similar remarks.

Be informed.

The Texas Railroad Commission is far too important to the proper conservation and management of Texas energy resources to elect a Commissioner on the basis of vague information, mistaken identity or a general "feeling" about a candidate.

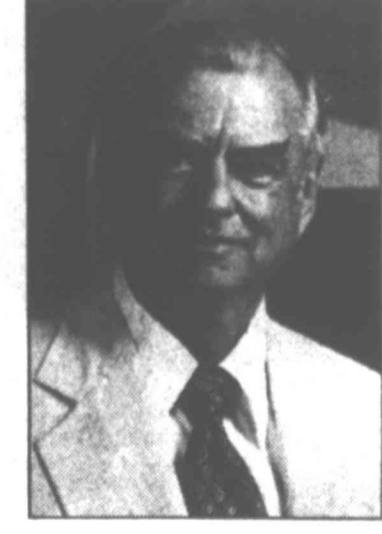

Make sure you know the facts before you vote!

Did you know Jim Nugent:

- Is uniquely qualified to handle the complex technical and legal matters that come before the Commission, thanks to his background in law and engineering.
- Has almost 20 years of service to Texans, first as a State Representative, now as our Railroad Commissioner.
- Successfully introduced and passed the first "ethics laws" for elected Texas officials ... and completely revised the state's penal statutes improving criminal prosecution procedures without violating individual rights.
- Is supported by a broad cross-section of conservative, moderate and liberal Democrats who know he's the best man for the job!
- As a member of the State Legislature and as our Railroad Commissioner, is respected and known as a tough, independent and dedicated public servant who has consistently fought for the rights of Texas consumers.

Did you know that Jim Nugent's opponent, Jim Hightower:

- Has no qualifications to serve. His only background is having worked as editor of a radical left-wing newspaper (he calls himself an "investigative reporter") and working for a former liberal senator.
- Is the candidate of Ralph Nader, George McGovern, labor organizer Cesar Chavez and a group of Northeastern liberals intent on buying a seat on the Railroad Commission so the Northeast can continue to buy cheap energy from Texas.
- Is basing his campaign on hopes that the electorate will confuse his name — Jim Hightower — with well-known conservative Congressman Jack Hightower.

Don't make a mistake.

Jim Nugent has been endorsed by major newspapers throughout the state. They have carefully considered qualifications of the two candidates, and have chosen Jim Nugent as the best man for the job.

Area girls ready for state meet

Big Spring's Pam Banks and Carla Jackson; Forsan's Christi Adams and Teresa White

AUSTIN — Big Spring Steerettes Carla Jackson and Pam Banks will be the only two District 5-AAAA representatives entered in the Class AAAA competition when the two-day girls' state track meet gets underway here today at the University of Texas' Memorial Stadium.

Both of the Steerettes will be entered in the field events. Jackson qualified for the state meet by winning the Region I affair two weeks ago in the long jump with a leap of 18'8", while Banks high jumped 5'4" in the regionals to qualify for the state meet.

Banks has jumped higher than that on many occasions, and will probably have to do so in order to have hopes of taking the state title.

Jackson will be going against some very tough long jumpers, with the best being Denise West of Galena Park, who leaped 19'8" in winning her region. Jackson, who qualified for the regional affair in all five events, is a sophomore, while Banks is a senior.

Two other area female tracksters will also be competing at the state meet in the form of Forsan Buffalo Queens Christi Adams and Teresa White.

White, only a freshman, won the regional Class A competition in the high jump with a mark of 5'0". Adams, a junior was second in the regional competition with a 38'2" shot put.

Bryan, winner of the Region I affair with 88 points, seems to be the favorite in the AAAA competition to take the team title.

Bryan has the best regional performance in four events entering the state meet, with their 400-meter and 800-meter relay teams favored.

Last year's AAAA state champion Fort Worth Trimble Tech, will probably provide the stiffest competition for Bryan.

Early favorites in the other division include defending champion Brennan in AAA, Sealy, Canadian, Clyde and Slaton in AA, Hamlin in A and Miami in Class B.

Lopez takes LPGA lead

S.C. (AP) — Nancy Lopez-Melton says the first 18 holes of the Women's International golf tournament, which gave her a one-stroke lead in the four-round event, felt good.

"I really enjoyed myself," the 23-year-old Californian said.

"I was concentrating on just hitting the ball well," she added after firing a 4-under 68 Thursday over the 6,500-yard Devil's Elbow South course at Moss Creek Plantation.

In 1978, Lopez-Melton won nine tournaments and eight more last year. But since September 1979, her only victory has been the Women's Kemper Open.

"I feel like mentally I haven't been too strong this year," Lopez-Melton said Thursday.

"I've been feeling very frustrated and I have to get over that if I expect to win. I wasn't being positive. I've got a lot of pressure on myself.

"But it's getting better," she added.

That was after she shot a 35 on the front nine and a sizzling 33 on the back side to finished ahead of a field of 72 in the $100,000 72-hole Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I really feel good now. I really do," she said.

Veteran Pam Higgins was one stroke back, using a blazing putter to sink two putts of 30 feet or more, one 15-footer and a pair of 10-footers for five birdies.

Her 35-34-69 round put her 3-under and one stroke in front of six other golfers going into today's second round.

"My caddy was a big help on the greens," Higgins said. "He's a member here and he knows how the grain moves on these greens. He helped me get the speed."

Six were tied at 2-under 70 and six more were just one stroke back at 71, all within striking distance of leader Lopez-Melton.

The tournament is sponsored by CPC International Inc. and Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

BUFFALO QUEENS IN STATE MEET — Forsan Buffalo Queens Christi Adams (left) and Teresa White (right) will be among the participants in the Class A competition when the state girls track meet gets underway today in Austin. Adams will be entered in the shot put, while Adams, a freshman, will be competing in the high jump.

Steer gridders begin spring drills today

By NATHAN POSS Sports Editor

The regime of recently appointed Big Spring Steer football coach Ralph Harris will begin taking a more definite look this afternoon when the prospective gridders don the pads for spring training, and the new BSHS mentor appears ready for both himself, his staff and the team to take the field.

Harris, who was appointed to take over the downtrodden Steer program in March, has a coaching history of turning programs around, and seems very confident that it can be accomplished here.

"You bet," replied Harris yesterday in answer to a question concerning if the prospective gridders have made progress thus far in his off-season program.

"We're real pleased this far with the response of the players," Harris continued. "There are a considerable number of athletes coming out for spring training that previously weren't with us. They've developed good working habits and have seemed to gain confidence in themselves."

The 1980 Steer team will practice on Monday through Friday for the next three weeks from 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the practice field across from the YMCA by Steer Park. On Saturday mornings, the Big Spring gridders will work out at Memorial Stadium from nine to 11 o'clock.

Harris has set Thursday, May 22 as the date for the spring game, which will culminate drills, but has not decided what type of format to use for that affair.

The new Steer mentor, who two years ago guided Sealy to the Class AA state title, indicated that fundamental defense will be the sole topic on the gridders agenda during the first three workouts.

"We're going straight defense for the first three days of spring training (today, Saturday and Monday)," Harris stated.

Harris, who emphasized to this writer the belief in the value of defense, accentuated that theory again. "As I've said before, to truly become a champion, you've got to play excellent defense first."

"We're going to split everyone up into very small groups with the coaches and just work on defensive fundamentals here at the beginning," said Harris.

The Steer head football coach also stated that he would have the freshmen working together in one group, and would have the sophomores and juniors (next year's juniors and seniors) in another group.

Harris has made it very clear to the coaches wishing to stay in his program that he expects them to do their football tutoring homework, with numerous learning and strategy sessions taking place thus far in the coaches office.

He is pleased with the response of the local coaching sides, and feels that the hard work will pay dividends.

"I am very proud of the people (coaches) still left. They're ready to go, and have prepared themselves," said Harris.

Harris will take 13 coaches into spring training, including himself. He indicated that six will work strictly with the upper two classes, while the other six will concentrate on the potentially strong freshmen class. Naturally, Harris will oversee the entire operation.

Astros continue pounding Big Red Machine

CINCINNATI (AP) — Houston's bats came to life this week at a time when the Cincinnati Reds had almost no punch at all. As a result, the Astros vaulted 1½ games ahead of the sagging Reds and the surging Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

"We've never hit the ball harder," Houston pitcher Joe Niekro said after Thursday night's 9-3 victory over the Reds. "I had one tough inning, but after we got that big lead, I knew everything was going to be all right."

It was the third complete game in five starts for Niekro, 31, who survived a rocky third inning when he loaded the bases on walks and Ray Knight doubled off the center field wall to score three runs.

"One thing our staff has a reputation for is finishing games," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon, who stuck with Niekro even though he said it "really isn't quite as necessary that our starters go all the way this year."

"Last year, Joe Sambito was the only guy in the bullpen we could depend on," Virdon said. "Now we feel we have three guys — Sambito, Frank LaCorte and Dave Smith — who can finish a game for us."

The victory ended a three-game sweep of the Reds, something Houston hadn't done in Riverfront Stadium since September 1971. Two keys for Houston were the hitting of Joe Morgan and Cesar Cedeno, who each homered twice during the series. Both had a slow start this season, and Cedeno was benched for three days last week and then demoted to seventh in the Astro lineup.

"I'm a .300 lifetime hitter — people shouldn't be surprised that I'm hitting now," said Cedeno, who has been eight-for-17 in his last five games. "Everybody is going to go through some good and some hard times — these are my good times."

Cincinnati managed just six hits off Niekro, while the Astros had 13 hits and victimized loser Mike LaCoss, 3-2, for five unearned runs in the sixth inning.

Ken Griffey was a perfect three-for-three with three stolen bases, but Reds Manager John McNamara said he had little help for Griffey with George Foster, Dave Collins, Dan Driessen and Johnny Bench all out of the lineup with injuries.

Bench "jammed his back" Thursday night in a collision at home plate, though the extent of the injury wasn't known, McNamara said. Foster has a muscle strain, Collins a pulled hamstring and Driessen a hand injury.

Houston got a run in the third on an RBI single by fifth on Morgan's second homer of the season, five in the sixth as the Reds committed two errors and one in the seventh on an RBI single by Morgan. All three Cincinnati runs came in the third on Knight's double.

Mets ad man fined $5,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Della Femina, the New York Mets' Madison Avenue advertising man, says he will pay a $5,000 fine levied by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn against the club for what the Mets said was described to them as "conduct detrimental to baseball."

At the same time, Della Femina took blame for the fine, which resulted from remarks Della Femina made about the Mets' intracity neighbors, the New York Yankees.

Della Femina, whose agency will receive 15 percent of the $400,000 the Mets are spending to bolster the team's attendance, said Thursday: "The New York Mets are completely innocent in this matter and I regret any embarrassment I may have caused them."

"I have offered to pay any fine they have incurred myself, and I am at a loss to understand why they are being fined for something I said," Della Femina said.

Lions coach impresses Sims

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Billy Sims is in the Detroit Lions' rookie training camp today for just one reason: he likes Coach Monte Clark.

"There's something about his personality that I can see he really, truthfully cares about his players," Sims said Friday. "I think that's much more important than just trying to coach somebody."

"I can see he's no phoney," Sims, the 5-foot-11, 210-pound All-America running back from Oklahoma whom the Lions made the No. 1 pick in the National Football League draft Tuesday, previously had said he would stay away from this weekend's special camp for draftees and free agents.

Negotiations between Sims' agent, Houston real estate broker Jerry A. Argovitz and Lions' General Manager Russ Thomas have broken down several times into bitter name-calling and accusations.

Argovitz reportedly asked for a $4.50 million package covering six years for Sims and Thomas countered with a proposal of $700,000 for three years.

Argovitz has threatened to take Sims to the Canadian Football League if the Lions don't come up with the right amount of cash.

Sims said he felt it was safe to attend the drills this weekend, because he didn't expect any heavy hitting.

"We had talked about it, Jerry and I and Coach Monte Clark," Sims said. "I had stated that if he (Clark) wanted me to come up, I was going to come. We don't want to have anything negative about things and I intended to come anyway."

Thursday, Sims sent Clark a message which read:

"Thank you for making me your No. 1 selection. There will be no more 2 and 14 seasons in Detroit."

Clark was clearly touched by the unexpected telegram.

"He's really a class individual," Clark said, taking the message from his secretary and heading back into his office at the Silverdome.

Clark, who has called Sims "the franchise," refused to consider what might happen to his club's morale if Thomas is unable to sign the 1978 Heisman Trophy winner.

"I have a rule around here about not assuming anything," Clark said. "But, in this case, I absolutely have to assume that Billy will be in my backfield when training camp opens in July."

Where was Lou Holtz when I needed him?

AS SPRING TRAINING BEGINS LOCALLY for the Big Spring Steer football team and their new head coach, Ralph Harris, I think that it is only proper that the readers should take a light-hearted look at some of the true feelings of a teenage griddier during the hot afternoons of May.

Speaking from a personal standpoint, I went through six spring trainings as a football player. Three were in high school, and the other three at Rice University. Talking to Harris yesterday, he seemed very anxious to start putting his troops through the spring drills, but that's not really so surprising. I mean, I've never met a good coach that didn't rehash the thought of watching his prospective gridders drag their tongues on the dusty practice field, which causes the young athlete to gag on the distasteful dirt.

And if a coach can progress in moving to a college that has an artificial turf, (which attracts heat), he can enjoy watching the gridders even burn their tongues when they drag the ground.

In high school, I compared spring training to two-a-days. I just could not understand what this sometimes dehumanizing three-week football orgy in the hot May afternoon accomplished.

I felt pretty much assured that I would have my starting position, and therefore lost much of my desire to improve.

I UNDOUBTEDLY FELT SORRY for myself throughout May, and usually let it affect my overall outlook on life as early as mid-April.

To really make matters worse, my high school coach, Clovis Hale (who I respected dearly) preached to us that we should love every minute of it. I finally realized that Clovis swallowed a big load of Big Red chewing tobacco during his first spring training as a coach, and that time of the year made him say and do strange things.

In college, I began the freshman year of spring training with basically the same negative outlook. It was not as hot, since it occurred in March and April, but the Houston weather was sometimes unmercifully humid, which only made you more aware of how much you were sweating.

To make matters worse, the seniors that were no longer eligible made it a habit to sit in the top deck at Rice Stadium, dressed coolly in nothing but skimpy shorts, and drink numerous assortments of fluids while screaming obscenities and laughing at the gridders in full uniform.

Again, I sensed a bit of cruelty from the coaches, as they seemed to enjoy the attention the new exec gave the sweating Rice team. "Ha, ha," I remember hearing one laugh, "look at Zammit (290-pound tackle), I think we're going to have to carry him off on a stretcher."

THE ULTIMATE SCENE finally happened to me during spring training. It had happened to many others, but in my usually dehydrated state, I never really grasped the feeling.

Playing cornerback, in a spring training scrimmage at Rice, a quarterback started down the line in my direction on an apparent lead option play.

Reading quickly, I charged forward, evaded the blocking fullback and flew through the air sideways to upend the runner as he attempted to take the pitch. A fumble resulted, so I was told.

The wind was knocked out of me, but I was still excited in that I knew I had made a great play. But while I lay in pain with my face up, trying to regain my breath, the defensive coordinator appeared, I knew the pain would be worth it, simply because of the results.

He looked down at me, with an expressionless stare. He then turned toward the rest of the team and replied in a tone that would indicate I was a hindrance: "Move the drill back 15 yards."

I suddenly realized, as my breath came back, that spring training was not a time for torture. I quickly began to realize that improving and enjoying it could only be accomplished by overlooking the heated conditions.

My quiet revolt against the coaches ability to enjoy the heat disappeared. I began looking forward to each spring training workout. Well, at least I didn't dread it.

And it showed in my performance. A good performance in the spring only makes a player better, but it took me time to understand it.

But maybe I would have understood the importance of spring training if I had only had ARKANSAS' LOU HOLTZ for a coach.

MAYBE HOLTZ' SUCCESS in the land of the Sooney Pigs is that he understands the miserable conditions. In a recent Arkansas newsletter, Holtz gave some quite hilarious, yet enlighteningly true statements, about how he and his players sometimes feel about spring training.

On the length of the Razorbacks spring practices, HOLTZ stated: "We always have long workouts, or at least they seem long to the people wearing pads. They don't seem that long to the guy wearing the whistle around his neck."

The highly successful HOLTZ then related spring training to another phase of life, saying: "Spring practice is a lot like getting remarried. It's something you aren't that enthused about, but you do it anyway."

And although I've given some of the negative feelings a player can have toward spring football training earlier in the column, the enthusiasm has been known to occur, and with sometimes clumsy appearances.

As HOLTZ explains: "We have a lot of young football players and they're very enthusiastic. They jump up and down in the huddle and seem to get quite excited. But then, some of them can't find the line of scrimmage unless we paint it for them."

Which sums up what spring training is for. To learn and improve.

Rockhill Native favored in Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When you have one horse stable, it's especially nice to have the favorite in the Kentucky Derby.

That's the position of Harry A. Oak, a retired United Parcel executive, whose Rockhill Native has been installed as the early line 8-5 favorite over 1 rival for Saturday's $200,000-added Derby at Churchill Downs.

Rockhill Native's trainer, Herb Stevens, has never saddled a Derby starter before. In fact, the 83-year-old Stevens, who lives in Versailles, Ky., hasn't been to a Derby since 1948. "They never gave me a seat," he said, "so I never came back."

Tom Kelly, who trains John M. Schiff's Plugged Nickle, has saddled two Derby starters but without success. Plugged Nickle, who finished seventh to Rockhill Native as a 2-year-old in their only meeting, was made the early second choice at 2-1.

The early odds on the rest of the field goes from 8-1 to 30-1, indicating the 100th running would be a two-horse race. However, most close observers feel this year's 3-year-old classic is a wide open race because of the absence of a superhorse, such as Spectacular Bid, Affirmed and Seattle Slew in recent years.

Although Rockhill Native was the 2-year-old champion, his not overly-impressive times and two losses at Hialeah — despite recent victories in the Blue Grass Stakes and Calumet Purse — make him suspect as Derby champion.

Plugged Nickle has won his last three races, but in both the Florida Derby and Wood Memorial he drifted out from the rail late in the stretch run, an indication of a tiring or sore horse.

Their presence didn't scare away Mrs. Bert Firestone's Genuine Risk, who will be the first filly to run in the Derby in 21 years since Silver Spoon ran fifth.

The only filly ever to win the Derby was Regret in 1915.

The daughter of Key To The Mint had won all six starts against fillies before winding up third in the Wood. She is listed at 10-1.

Two of the four West Coast invaders, Jaklin Klugman, owned by actor Jack Klugman and John Dominguez, and Rumbo, owned by Gayno Stable and bell Bloodstock Co., are listed at 8-1.

The rest of the field consists of Mrs. Philip Hofmann's Gold Stage and Elmendorf Farm's Super Moment, each 15-1; the Hughes brothers' Bold 'n Rulling, 20-1, and five 30-1 outsiders, Barry K. Schwartz's Degenerate Jon, Howard B. Noonan's Execution's Reason, Russell Michael Jr.'s Withholding, Glenn Bromagen's Tonka Wakhan, and Andrew Adams' Hazard Duke. The last two were designated as field horses for parimutuel wagering.

More than 100,000 fans are expected to jam this historic track and millions more will watch on national television ABC. Posttime is set for 5:38 p.m. EST.

If all go, the total purse will be worth $325,800, the richest in Derby history. First prize is $239,300 and a garland of roses.

Shue leaving as San Diego Clippers coach

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Gene Shue, head coach of the two-year-old San Diego Clippers, is leaving the National Basketball Association club

"to explore other opportunities," according to club president Irv Levin. Shue's two-year contract, with a one-year option, expires July 1, but Levin said he gave Shue permission

"effective immediately, to commence negotiating for future opportunities." The move set off speculation that Shue may be the leading candidate to coach the new Dallas expansion franchise.

"Gene indicated he wanted to explore other opportunities which he felt were more professionally and financially rewarding, and I agreed to honor his decision," said Levin.

Shue, 47, was considered a miracle worker in his first year at San Diego. Taking over a first-year club, he guided the Clippers to a 43-39 record, with his team narrowly missing the playoffs. This past season, stripped of two starters through the Bill Walton compensation case, the Clippers were 35-47, with Walton sitting out most of the season with various injuries.

Shue, a five-time NBA All-Star, previously coached the Baltimore Bullets to four division titles in seven years and guided the Philadelphia 76ers to another before his dismissal early in the 1977 season. At San Diego, he became only the fifth NBA coach to reach the 500-victory plateau.

In January, Shue was hit with the stiffest fine for a coach in NBA history for striking an official. NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brian levied a $3,500 fine and suspended Shue for a week without pay.

Shue, who compiled a 526-520 record in 14 NBA seasons, agreed to stay during the transition of the coaching change, Levin said.

"We plan to interview a number of qualified candidates for the heading coaching position," said Levin.

"I have set no timetable for the hiring, other than to promise it will be far enough in advance of the college draft to permit the new head coach to be involved in those important decisions."

Bosox happy to escape Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Don Zimmer heaved a sigh of relief and said, "Thank God we don't have to play them again for a while," after his Boston Red Sox edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 Thursday night in a game which ended in a heavy fog.

"They hit, they pitch and they steal bases. What else is there?" asked Zimmer, who also was pleased that his Red Sox came up with good pitching in the series. It marked the first series Chicago has lost this season after winning its first five.

"We hadn't been pitching well, but we got some good pitching in this series," said Zimmer. "The kid Bruce Hurst pitched good and Dick Drago was outstanding. We needed it all because they also got good pitching.

"In that ninth inning, I kept pulling for ground balls because I could just see someone losing the ball in that fog with all of those runners on base," said Zimmer.

Indians 2, Blue Jays 1 Mike Hargrove drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the eighth inning to lead Cleveland over Toronto. The Indians loaded the bases and chased Blue Jay starter Dave Lemanerik in the eighth with a double by Rick Manning and walks to Ron Pruitt and Jorge Orta.

Angels 2, Mariners 1 Pinch-runner Bert Campaneris scored on a fielder's choice to lift California over Seattle in the seventh inning to lift California over Seattle in a game which was protested by Mariner Manager Darrell Johnson. The protest stemmed from an Angel appeal play in the top of the seventh which wiped out two Seattle runs.

Freddie Patek led off the bottom of the seventh with an infield single, taking second on a wild pitch and third on an errant throw by catcher Larry Cox. After Tom Donohue struck out, Jim Beattie was replaced by Shane Rawley, who intentionally walked pinch-hitter Joe Rudi and Lansford to load the bases for Rod Carew.

Morgan takes rain-delayed Houston lead

HOUSTON (AP) — As he often does, PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman held a brief, routine new conference to brief local writers on "the state of the Tour."

"The state of the Tour," the Commissioner said in solemn tones and without a trace of a smile, "is wet."

He paused for a moment.

"What is this, 13 out of 16 weeks or something like that?" He made his remarks during another of a series of weather-delays that have plagued the tour all season.

The latest, caused by a violent thunderstorm, was almost three hours in duration. It came Thursday in the first round of the $350,000 Houston Open. Play eventually was resumed in late afternoon but was halted again by darkness with 57 men in the field of 155 stranded on the rain-soaked

Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist who has averaged about $160,000 a season in golf earnings for the past three years, set the pace with a 6-under-par 65.

Rehired Rocket Coach Harris believes stability will help

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Rockets Coach Del Harris, awarded a three-year contract by owner George Mloof, compares his team to a culinary disaster — good ingredients but a bad mixture.

"You can take various good ingredients and mix them and they might not make the best pudding," Harris said Thursday in outlining the job ahead of him in rebuilding the Rockets. "We're looking for the best mix. Harris was careful to explain his comment was not a criticism of any one Rockets player."

"We didn't always match up well with our opponents," Harris said in reviewing the roller coaster 1979-80 season. "This is not a time to think we didn't have any good players. But we feel our chemistry and our mix was not as good as it could be."

Harris, who worked under a one-year contract last season, figures the multi-year pact will be helpful in dealing with players.

"I'm a demanding coach," said Harris, who worked under a one-year contract last season. "There are things I want done and if a player sees a coach that might be bailing out at the end of the year, he might not make the sacrifices he would otherwise."

Harris said he didn't think the Rockets players consciously held back.

"Often a player feels his key to survival is statistics but now I just don't feel there will be that temptation."

Kingman, Richard earn NL honors

NEWYORK (AP) — Chicago Cubs' slugger Dave Kingman was named the National League's Player of the Month for April, while fireballing J.R. Richard of the Houston Astros was named Pitcher of the Month, the League announced.

Kingman hit .375 with major league-leading totals of six homers and 16 runs batted in during April. Richard had a 3-0 record, one shutout, struck out 40 batters in 30 innings and posted a sparkling 1.80 ERA.

Islanders win marathon affair

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Islanders, riding momentum which threatens to sweep the Buffalo Sabres out of the Stanley Cup chase, didn't mind the bumps and bruises of an 81-minute-plus hockey game.

"I feel great now," said goaltender Dilly Smith after stopping 41 of 42 shots Thursday in a 2-1 double-overtime victory over the Sabres. "The win gave us a second wind. Our emotions are everything mixed together now. It's fun and it's pressure."

Meanwhile, the Buffalo locker room was bleak. "I didn't feel that bad," said team captain Danny Gare, nursing his swollen ankles into socks and shoes. "It was tiring, but we kept the shifts fairly short."

The triumph on enemy ice gave New York a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven semifinal

AT THE VATICAN — Pope John Paul II puts a hand on the head of a young boy who carries a lamb on his shoulders as a present for the Pope in St. Peter's Square during a weekly general audience.

Fellowship Hall building begun

Hillcrest Baptist Church is building a new fellowship hall on their FM 700 property expected to seat 400 to 500 people.

Pastor Phillip McClendon said the church traded property on Gregg St. to Sneed and Company in exchange for the new fellowship building.

The property they traded is adjacent to their old church building on Gregg, Kentucky Fried Chicken and One-Hour Martinizing is situated on the property.

The new building will be built by Sneed and Company of Odessa. The building will double for Sunday School and fellowship. It was made necessary by increased attendance at the church. Numbers have tripled in the last three years.

"The Lord worked it out," said McClendon, calling the new building a "miracle."

"Without money you have to have faith," he said.

Sneed and Company is the same firm building the What-a-burger store on Gregg and Dr. Moore's offices on FM 700. The 60-foot by 100-foot fellowship hall was designed by Architect Daryle Hobertz.

The existing fellowship hall was too small. The back wall of it will be partially knocked out and the new building connected by a short hall. The old fellowship hall will be made into a kitchen.

Ground breaking ceremonies were Easter April 6, when church deacons held the ceremonies. They are John Joslin, Alton Ditto, Buster Gartman, David Roberts, Mike Dobbs, Mike Moates, Mark Hyatt, Gary Phillips, Willard Hemdrick, Rex Green Wood, Sam Robertson, Jim Samuels, Harvey Coffman, and Johnnie Sevey.

The corrugated metal building is expected to be completed June 1.

Criswell Bible Institute Extension will also be headquartered in the new building. The extension is a school affiliated with First Baptist Church in Dallas, pastor W.A. Criswell.

Criswell has long held a vision to see Christians instructed in "deeper things" of the Bible. Originally designed for the layman, it has courses for the pastor and his staff as well.

President of the school is Dr. Paige Patterson. Big Spring is the first home of extension courses for the school.

Church schedules Family Month

May is "Family Month" at College Baptist Church, located at the corner of Birdwell Lane and Eleventh Place.

Activities for the month include a weekly family life seminar: "Making Good Marriages Better." These sessions will include subjects such as: Personal Growth in Marriage, Realizing Autonomy in Marriage, Effective Communication, Managing Conflict, Setting Aside Couple Time, Effective Money Management, Clarifying Expectations, and Spiritual Companions. These sessions will be for one hour at 6 p.m. each Sunday beginning Sunday. A nursery and child care is provided.

Family activities continue with a recognition of senior adults on Sunday, a dedication of children and recognition of mothers on May 11, a men's breakfast on May 18 and a children's musical that evening, Girl's Auxiliary presentation and an all-church fellowship on the evening of May 25.

Other special programs are scheduled throughout the month and additional information may be obtained by calling the church. The public is cordially invited to attend and participate in any ministry of the church.

Mormons plan Sunday as Stake Conference

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 1803 Wason, would like to invite the public to attend the Stake Conference Sunday at 10 a.m. Regional Representative H. Aldridge Gillespie, Oklahoma City, will be the main speaker.

The conference will be under the leadership of Larry James, Midland, and his counselors: Brent Rigtrip, Midland, and Glenn Jones of Big Spring. Gillespie will be presiding.

Gillespie will be representing the Quorum of the Twelve of Salt Lake. His native home is Oklahoma City. He is employed by the Department of Transportation there. His region covers the entire Panhandle of Oklahoma and Texas and the Texas West Stake which is from Abilene to Pecos and includes Alpine, San Angelo and Fort Stockton to the south. He will be speaking on repentance and the four steps of family preparedness. He had just finished a speaking engagement with Mission President O.W. Matthey, Dallas, in the North Texas Stake Conference. Matthey is a native Texan, having been born in Borger. As a young man, he went with an oil crew to Canada, returned as a Mormon convert, and later became the mission president. His son-in-law is head quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys.

Assisting with the Stake Conference in Big Spring will be Bishop Steve Marshall and his counselors Marshall Horn and Donald Fortner. Anyone interested is cordially welcome to attend.

Former Webb Chapel gets new congregation

Dedication services for the New Life Covenant Chapel (formerly the First Pentecostal Church) will be held at the church's new facilities located at the former Webb Air Force Base chapel. Church officials state the dates for the services will be Thursday through Sunday and will feature a variety of church services, each emphasizing a different phase of the local church's ministry.

On Thursday at 7:30 p.m., a Christian education rally will be held at the church said New Life Covenant Chapel pastor Rev. M.J. Mullins. Entitled "For God and Country", the rally will feature highlights of the multi-faceted educational ministry of the Big Spring Christian Academy, which the local church sponsors. A review of the educational, spiritual and musical aspects of the school will also feature guest speakers Pastor David Pearcy of Oaklawn Park Baptist Church in Midland, and Pastor Basil Williams, Sr., of Calvary Pentecostal Church in Albuquerque, N.M.

Pearcy is the speaker of the international radio broadcast "Gospel Outreach" and is the area coordinator of Accelerated Christian Education based in Lewisville. The Accelerated Christian Education's individualized, Christian, self-paced curriculum is currently used at the Academy. Pastor Williams is founder and president of Apostolic Bible College, in Albuquerque.

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies will be held at 11 a.m. Friday. That evening, beginning at 7:30 p.m., the church facility dedication will take place. Williams will again be the featured speaker and the music will be provided by the exciting sanctuary choir from Life Tabernacle, Wichita Falls. Pastor T.H. Chapman, District Superintendent of the United Pentecostal Church, International, will give the dedication prayer. The service will conclude with special numbers by the New Life Chapel Choir including a multi-media presentation involving choir music coordinated with a slide presentation.

Jimmy and Becky Pearce, "The Pearces", featured songwriters and singers on Mark Hanby's "Wide World of Truth" television broadcast will be appearing Saturday. Jimmy Pearce is nationally known and recognized for his popular gospel songs such as "It's My Desire," "I Know His Name," and "He Means So Much To Me." His songs have been recorded by The Downings and Donny McGuire. Local church singing will also be on the program that evening.

The dedication weekend will end with an evangelistic service beginning Sunday at 4 p.m. Guest speakers and singers will be announced at a future date.

Pastor and Mrs. M.J. Mullins and the local congregation of New Life Covenant Chapel cordially invite everyone to share in this great time of dedication and rejoicing. Further information may be obtained by calling 263-7714 or 267-6251.

Church Women United hold Canterbury board meeting

The board meeting of Church Women United was held April 25 in the dining room of the Canterbury Apartments.

The board meetings are held only three times a year, one week before each Ecumenical Celebration. This one preceded May Fellowship Day, to be observed May 2, at 10 a.m. at the Salvation Army Citadel. All women are invited.

The salad luncheon was enjoyed by thirteen members of the board, and four guests, Rev. Steve Birdwell, Mrs. Thelma Lewis, Mrs. Jessie Broughton, and Mrs. Neva Clinkscales.

Rev. Birdwell, pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, gave an informative talk about the Canterbury Apartments.

Mrs. Ben Boadle presided at the business meeting. A nominating committee was appointed for the Officers for 1981. These are Anna Smith, Florence Lennox and Vada Perrin.

The executive committee is to have the 1981 budget ready by the Oct. 31 meeting. Plans were finalized for the Tasting Tea to be held May 18 from 3-5 p.m. at the First Methodist Church in the Dorothy Garrett Fellowship Hall. Tickets are being sold by C.W.U. members, or may be purchased at the door. All proceeds will go to the Westside Center.

Mrs. Boadle reported that she and Vada Perrin attended a training session in Lubbock April 11. She held seminars on Communication, Intercontinental Missions and Celebrations, and Global Concerns.

After the meeting the apartments of Mrs. Clinkscales, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Broughton were visited by the group.

Mrs. Boadle will be going to the National Assembly of C.W.U. June 26-29, in Los Angeles.

The next board meeting will be Oct. 31, at 12 noon, at the dining room of the Canterbury Hall for a luncheon.

Christ' label refuted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Lutheran theologian has deplored attempts at "Christianizing politics," saying "it is ultimately blasphemous to use 'Christ' as an adjective to describe" partisan agendas.

"There's no such thing as Christian politics," says the Rev. William Lazareth of the church and society section of the Lutheran Church in America. He is to become head of the World Council of Churches doctrinal department later this year.

JIMMY STEWART

Infection instead of cure

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Actor Jimmy Stewart, who was in the state capital to receive a new Pennsylvania award, says he may be the only man to go to a doctor to contract a sore throat.

Stewart, a native of Indiana, Pa., was given the first Distinguished Pennsylvania Artist Award by Gov. Dick Thornburgh on Thursday.

But before receiving the award, he told reporters how some authenticity was added to the famous filibuster scene of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Stewart said the director thought the hoarseness he needed for the scene sounded false, "so on the way home from work I stopped at a nose, ears and throat specialist and asked him to give me a sore throat."

"He looked at me and said, 'You Hollywood people, I heard you were crazy, but this is the craziest. I've spent 35 years trying to cure sore throats, and you want me to give you one.'"

Stewart said the doctor gave in, squirted some drops near his vocal chords, "and I had my sore throat."

He said the physician later visited the set equipped with the drops — "I don't know what happened to his practice," Stewart said. "Every once in a while I had to tell him, 'Doctor, my throat's getting better.'"

Actress old at right time

NEW YORK (AP) — Helen Hayes says she's glad she's growing old at the right time.

The 79-year-old actress, one of 50 elderly persons gathered to hear Mayor Edward Koch proclaim May as "Senior Citizens Month" said, "I'm very gratified that I have had the good fortune to grow old at a time when old is fashionable."

Miss Hayes was recently named an adviser to the 1981 White House Conference on Aging.

White supremacist on trial

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — National States Rights Party chief J.B. Stoner says he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate "so as to give the white people a choice on election day."

The white supremacist, who faces trial this month in Alabama in connection with a bombing at a Birmingham church, says his friends have urged him to run for the seat now held by Sen. Herman Talmadge.

Stoner was indicted in September 1977 in connection with the bombing, in which no one was injured. The Marietta attorney fought his extradition all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, where his appeal was denied.

He has labeled his Democratic opponents, who include Talmadge, "four race-mixing peas in a pod" because they favor making the birthday of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. a national holiday.

Bush ignored at fund raiser in Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Republicans have been advised by Sen. Howard Baker to "acknowledge that this race is over and Ronald Reagan is going to be the Republican nominee" for president.

The Thursday night prediction, four nights before the votes are counted in the state's presidential primary, came at a $250-a-plate dinner which raised $12,500 to help pay the campaign debts of Baker and another former Reagan rival, Texas' John Connally.

It ignored George Bush, former U.N. ambassador, who plans 11th-hour campaigning Monday in Knoxville, Chattanooga, Nashville and the Tri-Cities — the upper East Tennessee area where Reagan began his two-day campaign swing Thursday.

Vice President Walter Mondale, standing in for President Carter, and Robert F. Kennedy Jr., nephew of Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, will be in Nashville Saturday for proxy Democratic campaigning. Robert Kennedy plans to campaign in Memphis on Saturday night, following Democrats' Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner here, and Sunday.

With 15 percent of the vote, Bush can pick up nine of the 27 delegates to the Republican National Convention in Detroit which are at stake Tuesday. Democratic voters will pick 38 delegates to their convention in New York.

Party leaders will choose five additional GOP delegates and 17 more Democratic delegates later. Reagan, who was to return to Texas today by way of Memphis, refused to say if he might choose Baker for vice president. He told reporters he would not consider a running mate "until I'm right at 998 delegates, which is the number I have to have" for the nomination.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, spent Thursday night at the Executive Residence with Gov. and Mrs. Lamar Alexander, after the candidate collected about $85,000 for his own campaign during a 45-minute, $1,000-per-couple reception at the home of David K. Wilson, former GOP finance chairman.

About 500 persons at the fund-raiser heard Reagan blame Carter for inflation, the energy shortage, high taxes and failure to maintain military preparedness.

And he said Carter's "foreign policy of appeasement ... allowed a savage mob to hold our American hostages" in Iran, although he supported the aborted military effort to rescue them.

While Reagan and Connally returned to Texas, Baker planned to meet in Columbus, Ohio, with former President Ford who, he said, "has offered to be of some help to me to pay off the debt." Baker supported Ford against Reagan four years ago.

Arriving from East Tennessee, Baker and Connally were among the first of the Reagan plane in Nashville, followed by former Gov. Winfield Dunn, Alexander, state Senate Republican leader Tom Garland of Greeneville, and James Rep. Quilled of Kingsport, who represents the state's 1st Congressional District. Also debarking was Irby Simpkins, president of the Nashville Banner, who said he is considering the Republican race for Public Service Commission.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The billionaire Hunt brothers, facing a possible contempt citation, are testifying under oath on Capitol Hill about their roller-coaster ride in the silver market that ended in a crash.

The Texans defied a subpoena to testify Tuesday before a House Government Operations subcommittee, and they were appearing before the panel today in hopes of avoiding a contempt finding that could carry a jail term of up to 1 year.

Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt also were to testify before a Senate Agriculture subcommittee investigating March's collapse of the silver market, the Hunts' massive silver dealings, and the reaction of federal agencies to the crisis.

Some insight into federal actions are contained in a report issued Thursday by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

According to the report, the Hunts worked for three months last year to buy up to 42 million ounces of silver through a veiled Bermuda-based company before the strategy was detected by the CFTC.

The commission acknowledged it was not aware until late September of the Hunt manipulations, which began in July.

Once the agency did detect these Hunt activities, "concern was heightened" that the brothers might imperil the silver market, commissioner Read P. Dunn said in an interview.

"It took us a while" to learn of the Hunts' silver moves because the firm, International Metals Investment Co. Ltd., was outside the United States, Dunn said.

The report also said that despite intensified surveillance of the silver market, the commission "did not predict the rapid price declines that occurred after March 25."

While a sizeable downward movement in price was detected, the collapse on March 26 and 27 — which threw financial markets into turmoil — "was not anticipated," the report said.

Silver prices shot up to $52.50 in January, only to slide to a low of $10.80 in late March.

Dallas proprietor witness

Landry obscenity witness

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys football coach Tom Landry testified Thursday that he believes the average Dallas County resident would consider a movie shown by a local adult book store to be obscene.

Landry was called to the witness stand as an expert witness on community standards during the trial of Michael Wayne Kickbush, an adult book store proprietor, accused of violating Texas obscenity laws by showing the movie in a coin operated "peep show."

The popular football coach said he viewed the 12-minute film at the Dallas County courthouse at the request of Assistant District Attorney Richard Aguire.

Landry said that in his opinion "there was no question" that the average Dallas resident would consider the film obscene.

The coach testified that he speaks to 8,000 to 9,000 persons each year in Dallas County during speeches to civic organizations, schools and other groups and said he almost always speaks about the problems of obscenity and pornography.

"I speak on the philosophy of humanism which is creeping into our society, the philosophy that man is the center of everything," Landry said.

"That, coupled with materialism, and we have hedonism, the philosophy that you should do whatever feels good to you, which I think is a bad philosophy."

Landry said it is "very seldom" that he does not speak about obscenity in his speeches.

Landry said he receives many letters about his speeches and said most are favorable to his comments about obscenity.

"I get some other letters about football that are unfavorable," he said, drawing laughter from a packed courtroom.

Aguire asked Landry if he had viewed the film which Aguire said depicts sexual intercourse and oral sex.

"Unfortunately, I did. I had to watch the whole thing too. I was amazed it was being tried to determine if it is obscene — that we would be wasting our time determining the obscenity of it," Landry said.

Surrender of gunman ends jetliner seige

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A gunman who commandeered a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet before it was disabled by authorities surrendered to FBI agents early today, ending a 5½-hour seige, officials said.

PSA spokesman Skip Meyers said he did not know what prompted the man — identified by FBI agents as Steve W. Bilson of Ceres — to end the Stockton Municipal Airport stand-off.

Unconfirmed reports said a lone hostage, an unidentified PSA flight engineer, had convinced his captor to give him the gun.

Earlier, authorities let the air out of the Boeing 727's tires, effectively disabling it. The incident began before the plane was loaded and witnesses had indicated all crew members with the exception of a flight engineer had fled before they could be taken hostage.

"The crew looked like a bunch of scattered quail ... the crew just ran out," one unidentified witness said.

An airport security guard said the man scaled a fence and dashed up the rear ramp of the plane.

One PSA spokesman said he thought the man wanted to go to Salt Lake City, but there was no confirmation from authorities.

The jet was Flight 818 from Stockton to Los Angeles.

Record number died on Texas highways in '79

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A record 4,229 persons died on Texas highways in 1979, even though total driving dropped by 715 million miles and other courtesies extended to us during our recent bereavement at the passing of Marvin Louise Williams.

The final statistics for the year showed a 6 percent increase over the 1978 fatality total of 3,960. "This is the third consecutive year traffic fatalities in Texas have reached record highs and the first time motor vehicle deaths have exceeded 4,000," said DPS Col. Jim Adams, director of the department.

The 715 million mile decrease in miles traveled represented a 7 percent drop from the previous year. Adams said the death total included 356 motorcyclists, an 11 percent hike over 1978. The 1979 total total was almost double the 1976 figure, the last full year that motorcyclists were required to wear helmets. More than 70 percent of the motorcyclists killed in the past two years were not wearing helmets, said Adams.

A review of the book, "The Gardener's Guide To Better Soil," will be given by John Payne. The business meeting will be conducted by Mrs. Johnny Johanson, club president. For further information call 7-1009.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Difficult aspects are in effect early in the day, so use caution in all endeavors at this time. Don't force issues with others for your judgment is off where new ventures are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not a good morning to ask higher-ups for favors but fine for getting practical affairs working better by own efforts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) It's better to wait until the afternoon before making new arrangements you have in mind. Gain cooperation of associates.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle responsibilities early and be sure to keep any promises you have made. Be more optimistic about the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do what is expected of you in the morning and then carry through with other duties later. Spend money wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Morning is the best time for handling boring tasks. Avoid an argument with an associate and later all works out well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have important work to do now, so relegate fun and pleasure to the evening. Use tact in handling a personal matter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Have a good talk with associates and the future will be brighter for all. Don't neglect an important business matter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact influential persons who can help you advance in career matters. Be extremely careful in motion today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The morning is not good for handling important financial affairs but the afternoon is fine. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You could have the Monday morning blues but later everything brightens up for you. Rely on your common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are restricted in some way early in the day but careful planning brings good results. Engage in creative work.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to the advice of a friend which can be very good for you when you analyze it well. Be careful of outsiders.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who instinctively knows how to do what pleases others and thereby gain their cooperation. Much ability at organizational endeavors here, so provide with a fine education and success will follow.

God's army gains strength

Army has marched a century

By MICKIE DICERSON

The "soup, soap and salvation" philosophy of the Salvation Army as originally proclaimed by colorful brass bands and street corner sermons, is celebrating its centennial in the United States this year.

The primary aim of the Salvation Army is to communicate the gospel to men and women who have been untouched by ordinary efforts. Since its members are "servants of all," the army includes social and community services to those who need help in 83 countries around the world.

Edward H. McKinley in his new book, "Marching to Glory," points out that in addition to the charitable services the Salvation Army provides, most Americans tend to overlook the fact that it is a religious crusade. The Army is an evangelical Christian movement the sole purpose of which is to secure the redemption of lost sinners through faith in the Atonement of Christ. The Army believes, however, that some people must first be given practical assurance that God loves them and will not leave them in want and despair, before they can be told of God's grace and love.

This article, as is the book from which part of it is taken, "Marching to Glory," by Dr. Edward McKinley, is offered to the reader as part of the National commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the Salvation Army in the U.S. Dr. McKinley is professor of history at Asbury College, Wilmington, Ky.

On March 10, 1880, George Scott Raitton, the leader of the "splendid seven" struggled down the gangplank of the steamer Australia with a flag and luggage at Castle Garden, New York City, to claim America for God. The "splendid seven" were the pioneer party of the Salvation Army and consisted of seven women so graceless that their leader referred to them affectionately as "half-a-dozen ignoramuses."

The commissioner and the women were in new uniforms, he in a dark blue suit, cutaway coat and a high peaked hat. The ladies wore short blue dresses, blue coats trimmed in yellow and derby hats. Each had carried a red band upon which "The Salvation Army" had been worked in gilt letters. The pioneers literally leapt from the bottom step of the steamer Australia into action. The Salvation Army flag with a small American flag affixed in the corner, was planted and the country was claimed for God and the Army. The group landed in a dingy, first-class cabin, which is still in the Army Songbook, was characteristic to the point: "With a sorrow for sin, let repentance begin." A curious throng formed, thinking the little group was some kind of traveling concert troupe. This impression was dispelled by the singing of the second hymn, "You must be a lover of the Lord, or you won't get to Heaven when you die."

Upon his arrival in New York, Raitton spied newspaper reporters and with an instinct that has served the Army well, began to converse with several of them. The Army early recognized the value of free newspaper publicity. Reporters in those days had the habit of showing up at Castle Garden to watch the steamers unload their colorful and often newsworthy immigrant cargoes, and the novel arrival of the Salvation Army was an unexpected boon to the New York press. Raitton was delighted. The commissioner said to one wondering reporter that the Salvation Army "did not consist of wild and thoughtless fanatics and that its members had no idea of making a mockery of religion. On the contrary, it consisted of pure men and women who were devoted to Christ and who had agreed to sacrifice their lives to making converts." Captain Emma Westbrook, leader of the women and a ten-year veteran Army officer, reeled off statistics that demonstrated the success of the Army in England under William Booth, its founders. Raitton made inquiries of the reporters as to whether there were nearby printing shops that would produce free posters for the new arrivals.

Rev. and Mrs. James Ervine of Jersey City and Amos Shirley greeted the pioneer Army and the Ervines took them to their home.

Lt. Eliza Shirley and her parents Amos and Annie, unofficially commenced Salvation Army operations in the United States in 1879. Eliza was won to the Army in 1878 at age 16.

Attending a weekly prayer breakfast of Christian businessmen and ministers, with Ervine, Raitton turned down the offer of several churches to hold meetings in, still determined to reach the unchurched where they lived, on street corners and in music halls.

When the newspaper accounts of the Army's landing brought an invitation from Harry Hill, owner of a concert saloon, to "do a turn" on Sunday at Harry Hill's Variety on Houston and Crosby Streets. The Salvation Army held its first official meeting in the United States among the chipped gilt, stale beer and gaslights.

The service was well attended by the Variety's usual clientele on Sunday, March 14, 1880, and by the Army's "Christian Friends." It was well-reported by the New York World who called it "A Peculiar People amid Queer Surroundings." No immediately visible results were discerned, but Richard Owens offered the pioneers the free use of his Hudson River Hall for a month. That very night they secured their first convert, a homeless, hopeless drunkard named Ash-Barrel Jimmy or "Jemmy" as he was sometimes called. James Kemp earned his nickname when he was found by a policeman dead drunk in a barrel, his hair frozen to the bottom, and was dragged thus embarrassed to the police court. The magistrate, in a jocular mood, ordered Kemp to attend the Salvation Army act at the Variety. Ash Barrel lacked the 25 cents admission, but dutifully and drunkenly found his way to the Hudson River Hall the next night. After making several efforts to get past the policeman patrolling the front of the hall, Ash-Barrel was finally gathered up in Raitton's loving arms and carried over the threshold. Kemp was soundly converted, a turning point in more lives than his own. Ash-Barrel was a well-known local hard case, and word of his "getting saved" brought crowds. Enough money was collected by the Army pioneers to rent a hall of their own, the Grand Union, which became the "Blood & Fire New York No. 1" corps.

On March 15, Raitton held one of several meetings in a converted brothel in a desperate slum. The floor was spattered with tobacco spittle and the place was stinking, smoke-filled and noisy, but the Army didn't seem to mind and held a full service. Other similar halls were used and large crowds attended. Raitton traveled beyond New York City, renting halls and theaters to "open fire" on the lost cities of New Jersey. The Great Salvation War was launched in Newark in Odeon Theater on March 21 while Camden and Atlantic City were opened later in the same month.

The Salvation Army operated in grinding poverty and under varying degrees of persecution for many years, but perseverance, dedication, hard work and an unwavering loyalty to their Lord and to the principles set down by William Booth eventually gained the respect and support of the communities where they served.

Crowds attracted to services outgrew the rented halls very soon, and Raitton attempted to take the good news to the street corners. Mayor Edward Cooper refused to issue the special permit necessary, so Raitton moved the Army "headquarters" to Philadelphia and join the Shirleys.

A newspaper, The Salvation News, was started July 3, 1886 which was a forerunner to the familiar War Cry which began publication Jan. 15, 1881.

The Army's singular theology which puts salvation first and foremost always, caused waves among more traditional Christians. Salvationists were convinced that their doctrines were based solely on the Bible. The energy and fervor with which they preached touched the hearts of pathetic and lonely people who were all too aware of the price mankind paid for sin and who, appraised at last of the cure, flocked forward, outdoors and in, to be "washed in the Blood of the Lamb."

Once rescued, the new convert was pressed into the war for souls, as a testifier and supporter if not as a soldier. The life of converts was given new meaning. They were not only saved, but given the privilege of saving others.

After salvation, converts were urged to dedicate their hearts to Christ without reservation, so that His love poured in and purged all selfishness and pride. The "sanctified" soldiers could then shed the love of God abroad to save souls, to share love and to provide some kind of physical or emotional comfort for people they daily encountered who were miserable and desperate. This was the doctrine of "holiness" upon which the Army was founded from the beginning.

The Army abandoned the practice of the sacraments when General Booth, strongly influenced by Catherine Booth and Raitton, came to believe that participation in sacraments is not essential to salvation. These practices were confusing to the ignorant, and in the form of Communion wine were a dangerous temptation to the salvaged drunkard. The Army insisted that the only real religion was that which was believed heartily and lived out daily.

The Salvation Army came to Big Spring in 1930, commanded by two ladies, Lt. Ellen Lynn, now Mrs. Major Donald Nelson, retired and the now retired Mrs. Lt. Col. Guy Hepler.

Moving from an old storefront building on Third St. to the Dora Roberts Citadel, at 301 Aylford St., in 1941, the Army has administered a community oriented program for 50 years. The program, now administered by Lt. and Mrs. Bill Thrasher, commanding officers, provides recreation and guidance for youth and younger children; help for families in times of need; emergency assistance for everyone in times of disaster; rehabilitation services for people in trouble and hope for senior citizens.

Rev. Carroll C. Kohl, chairman of the Army's Advisory Board said in his letter, presented in the 1979 Salvation Army report for Howard County and Big Spring, that 1979 and first few months of 1980 was a turning point for the Salvation Army. This began with the arrival of Lt. William Thrasher as Commanding Officer June 17 when new programs were introduced such as the implementing of the Community Children's Christmas Parties, and the Christmas Clearing-Family Adoption Bureaus.

"The 'old' services all took on new life and enthusiasm: transient and traveling aid welfare, family and children services, the Dora Roberts Neighborhood Center, the annual Doll Dressing Contest by local high school students, the Christmas Kettles and all the other programs of love and service," said Rev. Kohl.

The 1979-80 volunteer advisory board members came in for their share of acclaim from the outgoing chairman of the Army's board of community members from all walks of life. Many churches and organizations are represented on this board which served tirelessly with enthusiasm for all of the Salvation Army's work.

Rick Hamby, 1980 Advisory Board, chairman, is a member of the First Christian Church; Rev. Carroll Kohl, Sr. vice chairman, is pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church; Mrs. Myra Robinson, vice chairman, is Presbyterian; Helen Ewing, secretary, is a Methodist and A.J. Prager, treasurer, is Jewish, showing a wide range of advisory capabilities on the new board of 27 members.

A report of services rendered in 1979 shows a total attendance of community based religious, educational and recreational activities to be 11,629. Emergency financial assistance was given to 3,920 persons while 1,516 received Christmas assistance.

Services rendered to homeless men and their rehabilitation amounted to 2,057 admissions, with 6,140 meals served, lodging provided for 2,512. 63 religious and group therapy sessions were provided and 153 job referrals made.

1,445 institutionalized persons were visited or assisted. Residential and day camps ministered to 440 children. Under disaster services, one emergency was taken care of, and 4 volunteers assisted 366 people.

Under correctional services, 44 offenders were counseled, four offenders families were assisted and two court cases were aided. Total persons served by The Salvation Army in Big Spring in 1979 were 21,423.

The Army maintains a 24 hour hotline number, 267-8230 for any one who has a problem in some area of their life.

Lt. Thrasher of Big Spring Salvation Army, was gratified at the cooperation of the community organizations and churches participating in the Christmas Clearing-Family Adoption Bureaus. He believes this principle could be carried further to avoid duplication of benefits in care of the transient needy by those who are approached for help notifying the Army at 267-6141. The Army serves three hot meals a day which are available for those in need. Sometimes benefits are duplicated without the knowledge of the beneficiaries, and more people could be helped if lines of communication which are open would be utilized the churches and organizations cooperating.

Clear up 'fog'

From JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

Do-it-yourselfers can remedy 'fog' between the two panes of double-glazed sliding glass doors.

Usually, dead air space between the two panes of glass serves to insulate the glass area and the home against heat loss and heat gain.

However, prefabricated double-glazed doors are subject to condensation between the two panes of glass.

The most common type of double-glazed door is two panes of glass separated by a hollow aluminum mullion.

Usually the mullion is filled with a desiccant, such as silica-gel granules so air between the panes is continuously dried.

Problems with condensation generally occur after long-time use of the unit. Breaking of the seal causes the desiccant to become waterlogged and condensation forms between the panes of glass.

Do-it-yourselfers can correct the problem for the cost of a tube of sealant and about two hours of actual labor.

Solving the problem involves taking the unit apart, drying out the silica granules and putting the unit back together with new sealant.

Follow these steps:

First, remove screen and then the sliding section of the door by turning screws to relieve tension on rollers.

Pry the door up and, with a helper, left the heavy panel out. Place on a flat surface resting the unit on the metal edges rather than the glass.

Remove metal edging from the sides, top and bottom by tapping gently with a mallet and wood block.

Carefully remove the rubber or vinyl gasket and save for reuse. To cut through the old sealant, run a razor-type knife around the perimeter between the top glass and the mullion.

Then, lift off the top glass. Cut loose the mullion containing the desiccant, remove end caps, and pour silica into a baking dish. Avoid contact with the silica gel.

To drive off moisture and to restore moisture-absorbing properties, heat the granules in a 400-degree F. oven for at least three hours.

Clean old sealant from glass and mullion by using a razor scraper and a solvent-saturated cloth. Clean and polish the glass.

Then, pour the dried desiccant granules back into the mullion and reassemble.

Place a thin bead of clear silicone sealant around inside edge of the bottom sheet of glass, and position the mullion onto the sealant. Press down lightly.

Run another bead of sealant on the top side of the mullion and lower the top sheet of glass onto it.

To reset the vinyl gasket, run a medium bead of clear sealant around the edges of the slides and top of the glass.

Positioning the gasket so the splice is at the top, press the gasket into the till-wet sealant.

Finally, replace metal edges of the door and set it back into the frame.

Catholic church is setting for ceremony

The Immaculate Heart of Mary Church was the setting Saturday morning for a double-ring ceremony uniting Leticia Padilla and Albert Torres.

The couple spoke their wedding vows before a setting enhanced by two large arrangements of white gladiolus, spider mums, gypsophila and azalea daisies.

Also accenting the scene were two Grecian columns draped with asparagus fern.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crescencio Padilla, 300 N.E. 8th. The groom is the son of Mrs.

Santos Torres, Coahoma, and the late Santos Torres.

Providing wedding music for the ceremony were Evelyn Rodriguez, organist, and Carmen Salazar, guitarist.

The bride was presented down the aisle attired in a formal gown of white chiffon over tulle. Fashioned with spaghetti straps, the bodice was accented by a bolero jacket lavishly appliqued with Alencon lace and sprinkled with seed pearls. It featured long, full accented sleeves.

Falling gracefully from the empire waistline was the chiffon skirt which extended to a chapel-length train.

Completing her bridal ensemble was a fingertip-length veil edged in Alencon lace which was secured by a lace-embellished Camelot cap.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of asters, Mary lilies, pink miniature carnations and red sweetheart roses accented with baby's breath and English ivy.

Janie Chavez attended the bride as maid of honor. Mrs. Yolanda Rodriguez, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Josie Hernandez, Mrs. Dolma Haro, Mrs. Yvette Padilla, Mrs. Mary Padilla, Mrs. Linda Bernal, Mrs. Cindy Hernandez, Sherry Parker, Mrs. Maria Hernandez, Mrs. Elvia Padilla, Mrs. Susie Gonzales, Paty Mendez, Mrs. Melinda Hernandez, Mrs. Juana Padilla, Belinda Clayman, Mrs. Mary Ann Padilla and Rita Gonzales.

Nelda Padilla and Annabel Gonzales attended as junior bridesmaids.

Alex Torres attended his brother as best man.

Groomsmen included John Rodriguez, Apolonio Hernandez, Henry Haro, Jose Padilla, Thomas Padilla, Silverio Bernal, Salvador Hernandez, Eddie Torres, Sam Hernandez, Authur Hernandez, Humberto Padilla, Ben Garcia, Gilbert Padilla and Henry Gonzales.

Serving as flower girl was Yvette Yvonne Padilla, ring bearer was Michael Torres.

Guests were seated by Ray Bustamante and Roland Garcia.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Torres were feted with a reception in the church parish hall. Guests were registered by Janie Gonzales.

The reception table was overlaid with white tulle bordered with pink satin ribbons and flowers. Brass candelabras enhanced the setting.

Serving were Mrs. Linda Padilla, Mrs. Carolina Velasquez, Mrs. Christina Gaitan, Mrs. Amelia Martinez and Mrs. Luis Herrera.

Following the reception, the newlyweds were feted at a wedding dance in the Dora Roberts Community Center.

Guests attended from San Antonio, Dallas, Fort Worth, Midland, Laredo, Odessa, Winters, Levelland, San Angelo, and Pampa, Tex.; Lawton, Okla.; and Antioch, Tenn.

The bride is a Big Spring High School graduate and has attended Howard College. She is employed by the Big Spring Independent School District in the Special Education Resource Center.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Austin, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Stop playing games

By Robert Wallace, Ed D

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old girl in love with a 17-year-old boy. My mother found out that I was on the pill but she did not get mad. But she did say that she didn't think that I was old enough for sexual love.

Now I'm really embarrassed when my boyfriend and I are around my mother. I refuse to allow him to put his hands on me if my mother is watching.

What can I do to end this embarrassment? — Karen, Marysville, Calif.

Karen: Mother will realize that you are old enough for sexual "love" if you should happen to become pregnant (yes, even those on the pill can get pregnant). She is making a grave error by taking your promiscuity so lightly.

As for you, young lady, your sexual activity is wrong, pill or no pill. Stop playing games and your embarrassment will end.

Dr. Wallace: I'm very much in love but my boyfriend is constantly working and I never get to see him. My friends are all getting mad at me because I am always talking about him. It's just that I am ever thinking of him. Do I need help? — Cindy, Pleasanton, Calif.

Cindy: No! You need to do less talking and thinking and your true love less working.

When you are with your friends, enjoy their company and keep your mouth shut about your boyfriend.

Head Start, kindergarten registration is May 8

Registration day for Head Start and kindergarten pupils in the Big Spring Independent School District is May 8. Students entering school next term are to register at either Kentwood Elementary or Lakeview Elementary.

Parents are asked to bring with their children birth certificates and immunization records for the official registration. Registration theme is "It's Spring Planting Time!"

Parents should take note of the following information: Kentwood half-day kindergarten program registration begins at 2:30 p.m. and ends at 3:30 p.m. Parents may register children anytime between 12:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. at Lakeview full-day kindergarten program and Head Start.

Kindergarten students must be 5 years old on or before Sept. 1, 1980. Head start students must be 3 years, 6 months on or before Sept. 1, 1980.

State immunization requirements are: polio, at least three doses of vaccine, provided one or more doses have been received since the fourth birthday; diphtheria-tetanus, at least three doses of DTP and/or Td vaccines, provided at least one dose has been received on or after the fourth birthday; measles, one dose or proof of illness; mumps, one dose or proof of illness; and rubella, three day or German measles, one dose.

On the polio and diphtheria-tetanus immunizations, "the law specifically requires that at least one dose of each of these vaccines must have been received since the fourth birthday. This is the state law and takes precedence over any medical interpretation or personal opinion of any physician. In order for a student to enter and/or remain in school, this requirement must be met, along with other requirements." (Communication from Texas Department of Health Resources—May, 1977).

At the time of registration, principals and teachers will explain programs, distribute materials, and answer questions parents may have.

Present enrollment in the Big Spring Independent School District Head Start and Kindergarten programs is approximately 510 students. In addition to classroom teachers, the services of counselors, speech therapists, nurses, and librarians are incorporated.

Parents who have questions concerning registration or the Head Start, Kindergarten programs should call the central administration office at 267-8245.

The school district stresses the importance of attendance at one of the registrations in order that necessary planning be completed before school begins in August. The cooperation of parents is appreciated.

Reception marks couple's 50th anniversary

In observance of their 50th Wedding Anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tippie will be honored today from 2-4 p.m. at K-Bob's Steak House in the banquet room.

Hostesses for the occasion will be members of the Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. Mrs. Tippie is a charter member of this chapter and is now a member of the organization. Carl E. Tippie and D. Charlotte Harris were married May 4, 1930 in Hamilton, Tex. The Rev. S.A. Raines, a Baptist minister, officiated.

Mr. Tippie was born and reared in Hamilton. His wife is a native of Bosque County, Tex., having been born to a pioneer ranching couple. She completed school at Meridian Junior College. Mr. Tippie has worked in the oil fields south of town many years, coming to this area in the early development of the Howard-Glascock Pool.

He was employed as a pumper for 30 years, working for two independent companies. He was employed by the Felmont Oil Corp. until they sold their holdings in 1964. He accepted early retirement, rather than transfer to another area.

Following his retirement, Tippie began work as a maintenance man for the Forsan Independent School District, retiring in 1974 after 11 years of service.

The couple make their home at 1309 Mulberry Ave. Both are members of the East Fourth Street Baptist Church, having been affiliated with the First Baptist Church of Forsan several years.

They have lived the majority of their married life in the Forsan area.

stork decorated with baby's breath and pink and blue candies. Crystal appointments were used.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Herren, Mrs. Reuben Englert, Mrs. Robert Caffey, Mrs. Stanley Harris, Mrs. Buck Kirsley, Mrs. Manuel Torres and Mrs. George West.

Dear Abby

Americans Want More Than Orientals Express

DEAR ABBY: A reader complained, "Although my boyfriend is very affectionate, I wonder why he never says, 'I love you.'"

You replied, "Perhaps he isn't ready to make a commitment yet." Abby, I am definitely ready to make a commitment to my girlfriend, but I, too, find it very difficult to say, "I love you."

In college, I had a Japanese roommate who said, "If a Japanese boy were to tell a girl he 'loved' her, she would become very uncomfortable and wonder what he expected of her in return. Oriental men express their affection in more subtle ways—such as doing nice things for a girl, or giving her small gifts."

He also said that when American couples kiss in public in Japan, it causes a great deal of embarrassment and curiosity among the Japanese, who are unaccustomed to such a display of emotion in public.

I think we Westerners would do well to adopt the Oriental custom of keeping one's emotions under control.

Z.A.R.

DEAR Z.A.R.: It's true that controlling one's emotions certainly would reduce the incidence of accidents among the Occidentals, as it does among the Orientals. But it will never play in Paris—or Paris, or Palm Springs, or Pecos.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the woman who admits to being 65 pounds overweight, but insists that she is "happy, popular, good-looking, well-dressed, and couldn't care less what other people think." If she really believed this, she is not being honest with herself, so how can she be honest with others?

I have yet to meet an obese person who was totally honest. Generally speaking, they cheat on diets, lie about how much they eat and what they weigh; they even lie about having a "thyroid" condition.

Men prefer feminine women, and there's nothing feminine about hippos. They can't walk ladylike, they can't sit ladylike, and God forbid they should have to run! And if they were to see a moving picture of themselves walking away from the camera, they would never wear tight pants in public again!

In case you think I'm a skinny person with no understanding of the fat person's pain, let me assure you that I am a former fatty who is constantly fighting the battle of the bulge.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: Not all fat people fit your stereotype. Some are honest, self-confident and able to accept themselves as they are. Witness "The National Association to Aid Fat People," a newly formed organization dedicated to fighting discrimination against the obese and to assuring them that fat is fine and nothing to be ashamed of.

Lives of film stars highlighted

FIRST DEATH SCENE — Actress Natalie Wood stars in the role of a mother, above, and also as her disturbed daughter in different time periods for CBS's "The Memory of Eva Ryker." The mystery drama revolves around a sunken ocean liner. Wood plays in her first death scene ever in the film.

By RONALD TESTER
Howard County Librarian

Autobiographies by Phil Donahue and Ricardo Montalban and a controversial Errol Flynn biography head the list of books recently added to the Howard County Library collection.

As his fans might expect, Phil Donahue, the top-rated talk show star, doesn't pull any punches in his engaging autobiography, "Donahue." His candid account of his growth as a man and as a professional makes his book a pacesetter for celebrity confessional. His Catholic upbringing, his years at Notre Dame did not prepare him for the harsh realities of the world. Donahue tells of his loss of religious faith, of the failure of his marriage, of his realizations about power, institutions, fame and the television milieu. His behind-the-scenes stories about his show, augmented by some well chosen words from his staff, provide plenty of TV lore and amusement. But what makes "Donahue" special is the author's spirit, his unblinking look into self and his willingness to share what he's learned.

In "And No Birds Sang," the distinguished Canadian author, Farley Mowat, recalls an experience so agonizing he could not write about it for over 50 years. In 1940, when he was 19 years old and full of patriotic fervor and idealism, Mowat joined the Canadian army. Service in Sicily and Italy gradually bore in upon him the full horrors of the Second World War. In battle scenes of searing immediacy and resonating insights, he conveys the immense toll war wages on men's psyches as they are thrown into suicidal situations by a sacrificial high command. There is humor, too, some of it hilarious, and poignancy, both contributing to an intensity of feeling that fuels a powerful narrative drive. Mowat's epilogue, in which he reveals his purpose in writing this memoir, is, like the rest of the book, strong, sobering, and beautifully expressed.

In "Reflections: A Life in Two Worlds," Ricardo Montalban muses about the differing ways religion, family life and his film work have sustained him. The actor, supported by his Catholic faith and family, overcame stereotyping in his career and learned early the hard lessons of prejudice. As he tells his story, he speaks of parents, siblings, wife, children, his life in Mexico and in Hollywood. A family man who could not afford to wait for dream roles, he worked when and as he could on stage and screen. Through the years he managed to build a solid career, and, in his own way, maintain standards of spirit and character. Montalban's reflections, sparked by a weekend religious retreat, are sometimes touching, sometimes amusing, always frank. His fans will find the star of "Fantasy Island" a steady man of old-fashioned convictions and virtues.

Readers whose hearts aren't of stone-cold will have to find out what happens to Sheila, the six-year-old intimately described in Torey L. Hayden's book, "One Child." Awaiting commitment to an overcrowded state mental hospital, Sheila was placed in the author's class of retardates and instantly turned it into bedlam. Wild and immune to Charles Higham's accusation in "Errol Flynn: The Untold Story" that the actor was a Nazi spy and a traitor to Britain and America has already made news. The author's documentation, however, proves to be more inferential than substantive. From the portrait of Flynn that emerges here, it's hard to credit that the actor was committed to anything but his hedonism, certainly not to politics, even though the young Flynn's friends included known fascists, among them the curious Hermann Erben, an Austrian physician who turns up in espionage dossiers of several countries. Flynn, star of such films as "Adventures of Robin Hood," acted with the same derring-do in life as on screen, behaving irresponsibly toward his three wives and four children, as well as his young lovers. Flynn was by no means an attractive human being, but he probably doesn't merit the abuse this author heaps on him.

'The Memory of Eva Ryker'

Natalie Wood: Twice as much

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You'll see twice as much of Natalie Wood in "The Memory of Eva Ryker" — she plays a double role. She is both a mother and her daughter in the mystery thriller, which opens in two decades.

"It's not a question of aging," said Miss Wood. "I'm relatively the same age for both roles. We use flashbacks for the mother. The other characters do the aging."

The three-hour movie, which airs Wednesday on CBS, also stars Robert Foxworth, Ralph Bellamy, Bradford Dillman, Morgan

Fairchild, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Peter Graves and Roddy McDowall.

"It's a murder mystery," said the actress. "Something so awful happened to the daughter when she was 6 years old, it only she could remember it, it would unlock the mystery."

To find the key, the daughter is put under hypnosis and led back to her childhood. Miss Wood, to get into the right frame of mind, for the scene, actually had herself put under hypnosis.

"I was really under when I did the scene," she explained. "I've never done a thing where I had to regress.

So I went to Arthur Ellen and he put me under and I regressed so I would have the feeling of it.

"Then he gave me a post-hypnotic suggestion — but only for the scene. I couldn't really be hypnotized for the scene — I had to do my lines. It was only the suggestion for what it would feel like."

The mystery they are seeking to solve had its origin on an ocean liner now at the bottom of the Atlantic. The Queen Anne was torpedoed by German U-Boats in 1939 at about the time the incident took place and was witnessed by young Eva Ryker. Her mother died when the ship sank.

The memory drove her into mental institutions. Her wealthy father Bellamy also is obsessed with the ship and hires a novelist Foxworth to look into the mystery.

Someone wants the investigation stopped before the shipboard mystery is revealed, and soon there is a wave of new murders.

Although Miss Wood still is very active in feature films, she has done a number of things for television. She was in "The Cracker Factory" and the miniseries "From Here to Eternity," though she declined to do "Eternity" when it became a regular series on NBC.

"I can't imagine myself doing a series," Miss Wood said. "It would be too time consuming. Although I did one when I was about 12 — 'Pride of the Family,' with Paul Hartman and Fay Wray."

Music Makers: An air supply from down under

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As anyone who's worked more than two minutes in the record business will tell you, God created Top 40 radio and hit singles to boost album sales.

There's nothing wrong with selling lots of those little 45 rpm discs, of course. But since they cost just about as much to make — and certainly as much to promote — as the bigger, costlier LPs, the idea is to hook listeners via airplay and get them to shell out for albums.

Which is why the good folks at Arista Records were ready to move heaven and earth — not to mention two Australian musicians to rush the U.S. debut album of soft-rockers Air Supply into your friendly local record store.

You see, Air Supply's first U.S. single, "Lost in Love," was a hit that happened before its album's time.

The dreamy-sounding ballad catapulted into the Top 40 a scant six weeks after it was released, and was a Top 10 tune seven weeks later. So Arista — which had an option on an album but had been in no tearing hurry to put it out — quickly flew in the band's co-founders, Graham Russell and Russell Hitchcock, from Sydney to put the finishing touches on the "Lost in Love" album.

It was an unusual position for the record company to be in, but business as usual for Russell and Hitchcock, who squeezed in an interview at Arista's posh Century City offices moments after listening to the album for the first time.

"This is the second time we've been in this sort of situation," says Hitchcock, a 30-year-old Dudley Moore look-alike who signs the soaring vocals on "Lost in Love" and handles most of the lead vocalizing on the album of the same name.

"I guess the single was like a test piece to see what sort of reaction there would be. I mean, we had the album ready to go — the songs and all that stuff."

"I'm not surprised that the single's done as well as it has at all, because it's a great song. I'm surprised that it's done it so quickly."

The success of Air Supply's easygoing sound also took the experts by surprise when the group started out in Australia four years ago. At that time, hard rock was in vogue — which is more or less the case in the U.S. now.

"It just proves that if it's a real good song, it will do well no matter what's going on at the time."

'Women of strength' to be honored May 11

Mother's Day, May 11, is an occasion to honor women of 'strength and inspiration.' So proclaimed Woodrow Wilson in marking the first such event in 1914.

When President Wilson acknowledged women of 'inspiration,' he probably never realized the extent to which mothers would inspire those in the marts of commerce.

Herewith, a summary of motherly trade styles as compiled by the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

Bridal Lines

by Toni Choate & Kathryn Perry

Your friend is getting married and you want to give her a shower. The question is, when? Here at Accent Shoppe we advise planning your shower from six weeks to one month before the wedding. This gives the bride plenty of time to enjoy your party (and write her shower thank-you notes) before she becomes involved in last minute preparations for the wedding. Your party may be planned for any time of the day or evening, according to the type of shower you will give. These days, we are seeing an increasing number of joint showers where both the bride and groom are included in the festivities. Lucky for you to have a friend like you!

Denita's Beauty Basics

Q: I am interested in up-dating my eye make-up. Will you give me some tips on what will be fashionable this summer.

A: Smoky, mystical shades of gray for shadowing the eyes will temporarily replace the browns for summer. Soft pewter grays with a lively hint of shine to highlight brow bone and eyelid. Contour the eye crease with a dark or smoky-toned shadow. Add a dash of pink or mauve to this ensemble for those times when you want more color.

Eye-liner is back, worn softly with a smudged effect-easy to do with soft kohl pencils in shades of deep charcoal and-or mauve.

Mascara may be the most important part of your new eye make-up — so for really lavish lashes, add a third coat!

The name of the game is experiment. Be sure to set aside extra time for doing just that!
