TOKYO (AP) — Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party suffered a surprise defeat in a no-confidence vote today on claims that it had failed to combat inflation, had neglected welfare needs and was bowing to U.S. pressure to boost its defense budget.

Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira must resign or call for new parliamentary elections. If he should resign, a new prime minister would be chosen by the parliament.

Ohira, who expected to weather the balloting by a simple majority, looked stunned by the 243-187 vote against him and his 17-month-old cabinet.

Flooding reported in Scurry County

Area lakes storing precious water

If area farmers are rejoicing over the rains which fell Thursday, officials of the Colorado River Municipal Water District feel like dancing in the streets.

The reports they are getting from the two reservoirs they maintain, Lake Thomas and Lake Spence, are great and are getting even better.

Lake Thomas caught eight surface feet of water or about 14,000 acre feet. That means that the big basin now has more than doubled its supplies in the past 48 hours. It was down to 11,700 acre feet when the rains began early yesterday morning. Indications are Lake Thomas will catch another half foot of the precious moisture before the runoff ends.

The catch was quality water, too, according to O.H. Ivie, general manager of the CRMWD. Ivie is optimistic that the rains in the area, if long overdue, are just beginning and the reservoirs at both Thomas and Spence will trap even more.

The catch at Thomas, Ivie said, insured that water supplies can be taken out of the basin throughout the summer ahead.

The catch at Lake Spence, located 50 miles downstream from Lake Thomas on the Colorado River, will likely amount to about three surface feet or 10,000 to 12,000 acre feet from the Thursday downpour.

Lake Spence had about 93,000 acre feet prior to the rain. Ivie said the basin will shortly hold more than 100,000 acre feet of water and the catch is virtually free of chlorides, which means it will taste better.

Combined, the two lakes will have added about 27,000 acre feet of new water. The two lakes are still far short of capacity but in excellent shape to withstand the demands of summer.

Much of the rain going down river to Spence fell around Snyder. Widespread flooding was reported in Scurry County. As much as 5.7 inches of rain fell around Snyder's Deep Creek, overrunning its banks and forcing authorities to order the evacuation of some homes in the lower sections of town. Several motorists had to be rescued from cars. Some elderly people whose homes were threatened were taken to the National Guard Armory but later returned to their homes, after the rains stopped.

The river reportedly was out of its banks at Colorado City but that area can take a lot of water without posing problems for the city itself.

The rainfall in Colorado City itself exceeded 1.5 inches. Snyder's four-day total amounted to 7.2 inches, the heaviest reported there in a number of years.

Thursday's rainfall at the Big Spring U.S. Experiment Station amounted to 2.33 inches. The rain actually started with sprinkles prior to midnight Wednesday and continued until after 11 a.m. Thursday.

The downpour brought May's official total to 3.01 inches and the year's aggregate to 4.66 inches. Normal for the year through May 16 is 5.23 inches.

The rainfall was heavier in the Luther community but areas like Knott, Ackerly and Coahoma soaked up tremendous amounts of moisture. It was lighter in the southwest part of Howard County.

Fields washed badly in some areas and farmers are going to have to wait several days before getting into the fields to assess the damage. For the present, nobody is complaining. Stock tanks have been replenished. Range grass is thriving. In short, there is nothing quite like a West Texas rain.

U.S. skippers forced to carry Cuban refugees

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Coast Guard reinforcements have been dispatched to help shut off the "Freedom Flotilla" of Cuban refugees amid reports that some unwilling U.S. skippers were being forced at gunpoint to carry refugees from a Cuban port.

The Coast Guard late Thursday dispatched 400 active and reserve Guardsmen, six cutters, nine aircraft, six utility boats and 14 boating safety detachments to South Florida.

"We're going to have half the Coast Guard down here," said quartermaster Lou Merck, duty officer at the Coast Guard Station in Key West.

Merck said a handful of boats were known to have left Key West Thursday for the Cuban port of Mariel, despite warnings of seizures and stiff fines if they returned with refugees.

Refugee-laden boats were "coming in hot and heavy" here early today, said Federal Emergency Management Agency spokesman Clay Edwards.

Merck said, "We've had reports over the radio from Mariel all night that the Cuban government is holding them forcibly and at gunpoint and not letting them come back without refugees."

Edwards said beleaguered immigration officials had not had time to update arrival figures since 9 p.m. Thursday, when 55 boats had brought ashore 3,346 refugees, swelling the 3-week total to 46,461.

Each of those boats, along with some two dozen arriving late Wednesday, was seized by Customs agents. As the boats tied up, agents slapped a bright red seizure sticker on each one, then served each captain with a notice he could face fines of $1,000 for each refugee for violating immigration laws.

In Washington, the Treasury Department announced that U.S. skippers who defied President Carter's order to end the boatlift could be fined $50,000 and jailed for 10 years.

In his statement Wednesday, the president said the ragtag boatlift was too dangerous, and ordered that no more boats leave Florida and that those in the Cuban port of Mariel return empty.

Carter offered to send planes and ships to ferry refugees back to the United States if Cuba would agree to let U.S. authorities screen refugees before departure.

Meanwhile, Key West Coast Guard Cmdr. Samuel Dennis said four U.S. government-chartered boats were en route to Key West to begin a sealift of refugees if Cuban President Fidel Castro agrees to Carter's plan.

Carter's order was mocked by the official Cuban newspaper Granma. "Carter governs in Florida but in Mariel, Cuba governs," the newspaper said in an editorial broadcast by Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

Officials said 26 boats returned without refugees Thursday, as ordered by the president. But 35 had returned empty on Sunday, they noted, so there was no way to tell if Carter's order had any effect.

Big Spring car dealer believed by local jurors

A Big Spring car dealer is not liable in a deceptive trade practices suit heard Thursday in 118th District Court, a local jury found.

David Mitchem of Mitchem Auto Sales was found not to have misrepresented a car he sold to Johnny Tidwell of Big Spring.

Tidwell claimed Mitchem sold him a 1974 Ford Gran Torino, which was represented by a salesman at the car dealership as a 1976 automobile. Tidwell claimed damages of $1,125 and asked for a treble penalty plus court and attorney costs.

According to documents filed in the case, Tidwell purchased for $3,500 a two-door Gran Torino July 17, 1978, from Mitchem. The car was represented as a 1976 model.

Tidwell at some later date went to have the automobile repaired. The mechanic working on the vehicle informed Tidwell that 1974 replacement parts were needed.

On closer inspection, Tidwell found the identification number on the dash differing from the plate on the door. The dash number 6G50h179973 was, he claimed, a 1974 designation. The door number 4B32A146286 was a 1976 identification.

Mitchem filed a cross action against Glenn Hyden of Glenn's Body Shop. Mitchem purchased the vehicle in question on July 13, 1978. The title and odometer statement, Mitchem claimed, showed the Gran Torino to be a 1976 model.

Mitchem claimed he offered to give Tidwell his money back, but the plaintiff refused. Tidwell wanted to keep the car, Mitchem claimed.

Tidwell countered that he informed Mitchem of the suit 30 days in advance and no cash payment was offered.

Mitchem commented on the trial, "I felt like they were opportunists. They wanted an automobile and money, too."

1,900 formal claims filed with VA

Agent Orange 'connection'

WASHINGTON — About a dozen letters of concern a day arrive at the national headquarters of Vietnam Veterans of America here. They come from military bases in Texas, suburbs of Honolulu, and small Pennsylvania towns.

Most of the writers are wives or other relatives of Vietnam veterans seeking information and relating tales of birth defects in their children and persistent and unexplained medical problems for the men who served in Southeast Asia. The letters are marked "AO" in the upper right hand corner, a packet of information is sent out and the daily count of suspected casualties to the herbicide Agent Orange increases once again.

The Veteran's Administration, however, has yet to classify exposure to Agent

Orange as a service-related disability requiring treatment at its hospitals.

"Agent Orange has become a kind of final battlefield," VVA executive director Robert Muller told a congressional committee earlier this spring.

A herbicide and defoliant, Agent Orange was banned for use in the U.S. in February, 1979, after the Environmental Protection Agency concluded there is no safe level of exposure to the "dioxin" chemical found in the substance.

But between 1962 and 1970, an estimated 12 million gallons of Agent Orange was sprayed over South Vietnam, often in close proximity to U.S. troops. The average dioxin level in the Vietnam-brand Agent Orange was 20 times higher than that banned for domestic use by the EPA.

Five European research studies released on Capitol Hill in April claimed a connection between cancer in humans, especially stomach and lymph system cancer, and Agent Orange.

The Veteran's Administration, faced with an increasing number of veteran's claims of health problems due to Agent Orange spraying over three to four million acres of South Vietnam, does not concede there is any connection.

So far, 1,900 formal claims have been filed with the Veteran's Administration alleging disability from the spray that was used to defoliate the South Vietnamese jungle. Only 21 have been accepted, after the VA determined they were caused by something other than Agent Orange.

The agency is building a file of informal complaints, now at 5,000 with a goal of 10,000, which it will use to detect trends in a possible connection between Agent Orange and health problems.

But inspired by a nationwide toll-free number and VVA pleas to "come out of the closet" with their health problems, the veterans and their families are wondering more openly than ever if there is a connection.

A woman from Fort Hood in Killeen wrote VVA that her husband returned from Vietnam in 1971 with a skin rash that has persisted, especially on his hands. His buddies, she said "got the shuffle" from the Veteran's Administration, so he hasn't sought help, feeling it isn't worth the "hassle and disappointment."

From Huntsville comes a more urgent and detailed account that, like the rest, describes the maladies as medically unexplained despite repeated examinations.

Through July 15, aircraft operated by the Colorado River Municipal Water District and for the National Center for Atmospheric Research will seed summer storm clouds to research further the enhancement of precipitation by this technique. City files suit for back rent

The city of Big Spring has filed a suit for back rent against Cage Company of Abilene and Big Spring Electronics.

The city is seeking $12,060 in unpaid rent from Big Spring Electronics which was a sublessee of Cage Company of Abilene.

On Oct. 7, 1977, Cage entered into a five-year lease agreement with the city for space at the Industrial Park. The lease called for $1,506 monthly rent.

Big Spring Electronics vacated the premises April 9.

Robinson valedictorian of Jones High School

Pam Robinson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Mac Robinson of Beeville, Tex., is the valedictorian of her graduating class at A.C. Jones High School in Beeville this year.

She transferred to Jones High School as a junior from Seagoville High School, when her father accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist Church in Beeville.

PAM ROBINSON

The past school year, Pam has been a member of the Trojan newspaper staff, National Honor Society and "Who's Who," members of which are selected by the high school faculty. She also placed third in the state UIL contest in editorial writing. Pam is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woner Robinson of Rte. 2, Big Spring, and Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Overton, Forsan.

Pam's four-year grade average in high school was 95.571.

Pam is planning to attend Baylor University as a pre-law student this fall. Her older sister, Tammi, is now a sophomore at Baylor. She was valedictorian of her graduating class at Seagoville. The Robinsons also have two younger daughters, Kenda, a Beeville junior, and Amy, a second grader.

Permits down in Lamesa

LAMESA — Building permits totaling $102,200 were issued by the City of Lamesa during April, bringing the year's total to $419,400.

Most of the amount came in the large commercial permit. The new structure reportedly will house a laundry, sandwich room and office space.

Big Spring tax rebates hit $73,476 during May

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said May rebates to Texas cities for the one-percent city sales tax will amount to $38.7 million.

Bullock said that while most cities will receive a larger check this month compared to the same period last year he doesn't believe it's because the state's economy is growing at a robust pace.

"We've been tinkering around with our processing system to improve it over the past few months and as a result fund allocations and rebates have shot up from time to time because of improved handling of tax accounts," he said.

Bullock said overall sales tax collections from the first of the fiscal year through April are up only 21.5 percent compared to last year.

Crude oil supplies at high; refineries cut back production

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil supplies are at an all-time high and refineries are cutting back production because they can't find enough customers, but that won't mean lower prices at the gas pump. Analysts say gasoline prices will go up this summer anyway.

The increases, however, could be tempered for part of the summer by price wars in parts of the country — particularly in New York, Washington and sections of the Midwest — one analyst says.

The retail price will rise about one cent per gallon each month, predicts Dave Knapp, an analyst with the Third time a charm for weather modification experiment here

The third time was charm for the kick-off of the High Plains Weather Modification Experiment (HIPLEX) in Big Spring Thursday. For the third consecutive year there was weather activity as scientists and officials gathered for a briefing on the two-month's project, and this time nature beat the weathermen to the punch.

Even as they assembled at the Big Spring Airport Thursday morning to check equipment, clarify assignments and scope of study, rain was falling, but none complained. Big Spring had an inch and a half, Lake J.B. Thomas five inches and at places in Snyder up to seven inches.

Through July 15, aircraft operated by the Colorado River Municipal Water District and for the National Center for Atmospheric Research will seed summer storm clouds to research further the enhancement of precipitation by this technique. NCAR has a Queen air craft equipped with instruments for measuring pressure, dewpoint, temperatures, cloud droplet size, precipitation droplet sizes, ice crystal density and size as well as avionics packages to pinpoint height and distance from the radar controls. These will be backed up by a staff checking wind direction and speed, temperatures, humidity aloft several times a day. Texas Tech scientists will correlate data against weather satellite images, and those from Texas A&M will project the data as a macroscale for the target area which is roughly the north Borden-Scurry and south Mitchell-Howard County lines between Big Spring and Sweetwater.

One of two planes furnished by CRMWD has a physics package similar to the Queenair, but it will fly at a different altitude. CRMWD also will monitor 81 recording rain gauges on a 10-kilometer spacing and 25 on a five-kilometer spacing in the Lake J.B. Thomas area, also 82 fence-post gauges.

Operations will be directed by John Girdzus, CRMWD meteorologist.

British author rebuffed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A British writer who wants to dig up Lee Harvey Oswald's grave to prove Oswald is not buried there had been rebuffed by a state appeals court.

Author Michael Eddowes has written a book that contends Oswald did not assassinate President Kennedy and claims the impostor is buried in Oswald's grave.

In rejecting Eddowes' request Thursday, the 2nd Texas Court of Civil Appeals agreed with an earlier ruling by a Fort Worth state judge who told Eddowes he was not entitled to bring the suit.

Woman will stand trial

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A 32-year-old white woman is to go on trial Aug. 11 on charges of kidnapping and strangling a 5-year-old black boy, whom she did not know, because of his race.

The trial date was set Thursday for Darlin June Cromer, charged in the Feb. 5 death of Reginald Williams of Alameda.

Assistant public defender Dean Beaupre, who is representing Ms. Cromer, said he would enter a plea of innocent by reason of insanity. Conviction on a murder charge with special circumstances can bring a death sentence.

Mother sentenced to prison

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A judge has given a one-year prison sentence to a Yonkers woman convicted of tying her 9-year-old son to a radiator for 11 days and not feeding him.

"She blamed her son for the breakup of a relationship and believed the punishment was reasonable," Supreme Court Justice Isaac Rubin said Thursday in sentencing Julia Cremen, 34.

Mrs. Cremen pleaded guilty to unlawful imprisonment, admitting she tied her son, Daniel, to a radiator from May 17 to May 28, 1979. Police found the boy bound by the wrists. He and his 2-year-old sister were placed in the care of the county.

Gacy defenders file bill

CHICAGO (AP) — The two lawyers who defended convicted mass murderer John W. Gacy Jr. have submitted expenses of $70,000 in addition to the $60,000 they were paid in fees.

The lawyers, Sam Ammirante and Robert Motta, submitted the expenses Thursday while telling Circuit Court Judge Louis B. Garippo that they were withdrawing as attorneys for Gacy's appeal. Garippo set a June 5 hearing to decide whether to approve the expenses.

The expenses included $20,100 paid to a psychiatrist who served as a witness for Gacy's defense. Gacy was convicted March 12 of the sex-related killings of 33 young men and boys and was sentenced to death.

Bodies of women found

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (AP) — The bodies of a woman and her mother, who ignored pleas to jump from a second-story window as a fire burned in their home, have been found in the charred debris.

The victims in the Thursday fire were identified as Rose Marie Verdone, 40, and her 20-year-old daughter, Joanne. The body of Mrs. Verdone's son, Joseph, 14, was found huddled in a corner of the downstairs pantry.

"We begged and we pleaded with them to jump," said Cliffside Park Patrolman Don Umland. "They walked away from the window, and we didn't know what happened."

LULAC head threatens withdrawal of support

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A top Hispanic leader says he'll withdraw his endorsement of President Carter unless Carter quickly nominates state Rep. Matt Garcia as immigration commissioner and agrees not to snub a national Hispanic convention next month.

Ruben Bonilla, president of the 100,000-member League of United Latin American Citizens, made the threat Thursday in attacking the "patronizing" attitude of some White House staffers toward Hispanics.

Last month, Bonilla gave his personal endorsement to Carter's re-election even though Sen. Edward Kennedy is the choice of a vast majority of Hispanics. LULAC does not make political endorsements.

But Bonilla said Thursday he would withdraw his support unless Carter quickly ends months of "stalling" and nominates Garcia to head the troubled Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Bonilla said he and other LULAC members would also feel snubbed if Carter doesn't accept their invitation to speak at next month's LULAC national convention in Washington.

Garcia, a San Antonio Democrat, has been considered a virtual shoe-in for several weeks as the new INS commissioner. But the White House has yet to announce a successor to Leonel Castillo.

Weather One woman killed in violent Texas weather

By the Associated Press

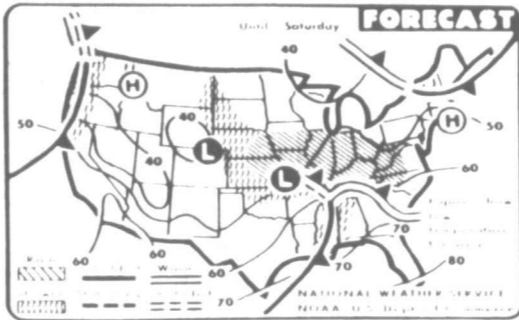

Violent thunderstorms pelted Texas with rain and hail, spawning at least three tornadoes and flooding throughout the state. One woman drowned when flood waters swept her car off a rural road, and another woman was struck in the head by lightning.

An elderly couple clung to a mesquite tree for more than two hours Thursday after their car was swept off a bridge over Goose Creek, near Jourdanon, south of San Antonio. Rescue workers reached Antonio Robles, 69, and his wife Teresa, 52, by boat.

Alma Brauchle drowned after swirling water caught her car on the family ranch near Charlotte.

Diana Gilbert, 27, was in stable but serious condition at a Houston hospital after she was hit by lightning.

WEATHER FORECAST — Precipitation is forecast through early Saturday for much of the central portion of the nation, according to the National Weather Service. Showers, changing to rain, is predicted over the Great Plains and extending into the Midwest. Showers are also anticipated in the Pacific Northwest and from Tennessee south to Louisiana.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Beverly Walthall and her daughter Romy won the 1980 National Mother-Daughter Beauty Pageant here Thursday night.

The Walthalls, of Pasadena, Texas, won over 11 other mother-daughter combinations in the competition.

First runnerup honors went to Carolyn Liles and her daughter Debra of Galloway, Ohio. Carole Clements and her daughter Cheryl Valley of Auburn, Ala., were named second runnersup. Third runnerup honors went to Susan McCarty and daughter Stephanie Grosscup of Salt Lake City, Utah.

GOD FORGIVES. Let Him.

Feeling Guilty? Many people do. Reasons range from broken homes to unbroken habits. Whatever the cause, it's an ugly feeling. FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

Christ is the answer to sadness and discouragement. This is a world of thwarted hopes, broken dreams, and frustrated desires. G.K. Chesterton says, "Everywhere there is speed, noise and confusion, but nowhere deep happiness and quiet hearts." A Hollywood columnist wrote about a famous movie star, "The bright, carefree radiance has gone from her pretty face." Optimism and cheerfulness are products of knowing Christ. If the heart has been attuned to God through faith in Christ, then its overflow will be joyous optimism and good cheer. You will never be free from discouragement and despondency until you have been tuned to God. Christ is the wellspring of happiness. He is the fountainhead of joy. Here is the Christian's secret of joy.

It's no wonder English hard to learn

A naturalized citizen who has been in this country more than 30 years said recently that English was one of the world's most difficult languages to master.

It is that, because the tongue most of us speak is not the King's English at all but an amalgamation of all languages. Metaphors have become the rule rather than the exception. The language of the street adds to the confusion.

SOME OF THE MOST common words have five or six different meanings. The words "no-where" and "now-where" offer the same arrangement of letters yet mean exactly the opposite. The words "aye" and "eye" are pronounced alike, but their meanings are poles apart.

Virtually every industry has its own language, bewildering to the man or woman new to the beat, and the fellow from Brooklyn cannot understand the drawl of the Cajun. The average Texan is fascinated by the jargon of the Cockney, though he rarely has an inkling of what the Englishman is talking about.

The word "razorbacks" means a fierce kind of hog to the people who inhabit the Ozarks but to the man who toils for the circus it refers to the men who load and unload railroad cars.

The lyrics in the famed Australian marching song, "Waltzing Matilda," are absolutely bewildering to the Yank, although he found it easy to step to.

American tourists may feel at home visiting in the British Isles because they are supposed to share a common language with the natives. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The verbs may not vary much. Virtually every other word does.

For instance, Americans say "aisle" when they are referring to a walkway in a theater. The British call it "gangway." A "baby carriage" to us is a "perambulator" to our cousins across the sea. An American biscuit could be a "scone" or a "tea cake" to the people on Winston Churchill's tight little isle. Molasses to a British gent would be "black treacle." A newstand in England is called a "kiosk." A monkey wrench over there is called a "screw spanner." If you call long distance in England, you're using the "trunks."

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE is growing all the time, thanks to the spices added by the alien tongues new to the country. But, as it grows, it gets more difficult to understand each other.

The Tower of Babel was destroyed a long time ago, but the seeds of confusion planted there in the long ago have contributed much to the perplexities of communication today.

The late Mr. Klempt

Around the rim

James Werrell

I was leafing through a book called "The Moviegoer's Companion" the other day when I came across a picture of a poster for the movie "Return Of The Fly."

"Return Of The Fly. All new and more horrific than before. Scream at the terror created by atoms gone wild; the ghostly fly monster, a blood curdling giant fly creature that runs amuck!"

"My God!" I thought, my mind reeling. "That's what flew up my nose, Saturday morning."

THE REALIZATION was frightening. I had long known that the one most annoying experience in the world is being awakened at 6 o'clock on a Saturday morning by a fly in your nose. But I hadn't really realized what I was up against.

I decided to do some research. Most of the books I found about flies were the same old, dry scientific tomes that had put me to sleep in biology class. I didn't really need to know how to say "fly" in Latin; I already had enough names of my own for the rotten little insects.

Finally, though, I came across a dusty little volume hidden behind a stack of books about aphids that gave me what I wanted. It was written by Rheinhart Klempt, a little known Viennese lepidopterist who had spent much of his free time pretending he was a fly, and thus infiltrating their ranks.

In "My Life Among The Flies," Klempt skips the scientific clap-net, and gets right into the social life of his little friends.

"I flew with them, I frolicked with them. About the only thing I didn't do was eat with them," writes Klempt.

At a very early age, flies begin intensive annoyance training. Tiny, young flies are given rudimentary instruction in nose and ear diving.

As they grow more adept, the flies learn to recognize when humans are just about to drop off to sleep, before making a raid. They also learn that the optimum time for a strike is during the early morning hours of any day the human doesn't have to go to work.

As the flies grow old, they are assigned more difficult tasks. Among their favorites are flying into half empty Coke bottles and becoming mired in the icing of cakes.

"The flies really seem to get a kick out of this type of behavior. The experience seems to be all the more thrilling if they can give the human a good dose of cholera or amoebic dysentery," writes Klempt.

Some of the more advanced flies receive training in driver education. The flies' plan is simple: enter the open window of a car and avoid all attempts by the driver to get them to fly back out.

"THE FLIES SEEM to get the most pleasure out of this maneuver when the driver leaves the road while trying to swat them with a road map," states Klempt.

Finally, as flies become too old to accomplish some of the more daring raids, they are taught what is known as the "Kamikaze Mission."

As the flies grow weak, and sense that the last roundup is near, they are instructed to crawl into sugar bowls, hors d'oeuvres or Christmas fruit-cakes to die.

I was, of course, fascinated by Klempt's account, and I was anxious to read his next book. I was shocked and saddened, however, to learn in a short paragraph at the end of the book that there would be no "Return Of My Life Among The Flies."

It seems that poor Klempt was pretending to be a fly in a swamp on the outskirts of Vienna, and was eaten by a large frog.

Caribbean crossroads

Joseph Kraft

MIAMI — The latest wave of Cuban refugees directs attention to a major new development in American life. That is the transformation of southern Florida, largely because of the Cuban-American community here, into a significant international center, a crossroads for the Caribbean.

Fidel Castro set the present flow of refugees in motion apparently in order to unload at least some of the Cubans dissatisfied by recent economic difficulties. The initial American response, framed by the national security community in Washington, was to try to stem the tide by applying to the letter tough immigration laws.

In line with that approach, the captains of the first ships bringing over Cuban refugees were subjected to heavy penalties. But then the local Cuban community entered the picture.

SCORES OF CUBAN-AMERICANS set out in small boats to bring relatives and friends to this country. Their spontaneous action was then coordinated under the direction of a local Dade County official, Sergio Pereira. Over $2 million in food and clothing was raised for the newcomers. Elaborate health and legal services were made available. Hundreds of volunteers were mobilized to help them through the bureaucratic maze of immigration. "I don't know any other community in the country," a White House official now working here said, "that has the resources, the motivation and the organization to do what the Cuban-Americans did."

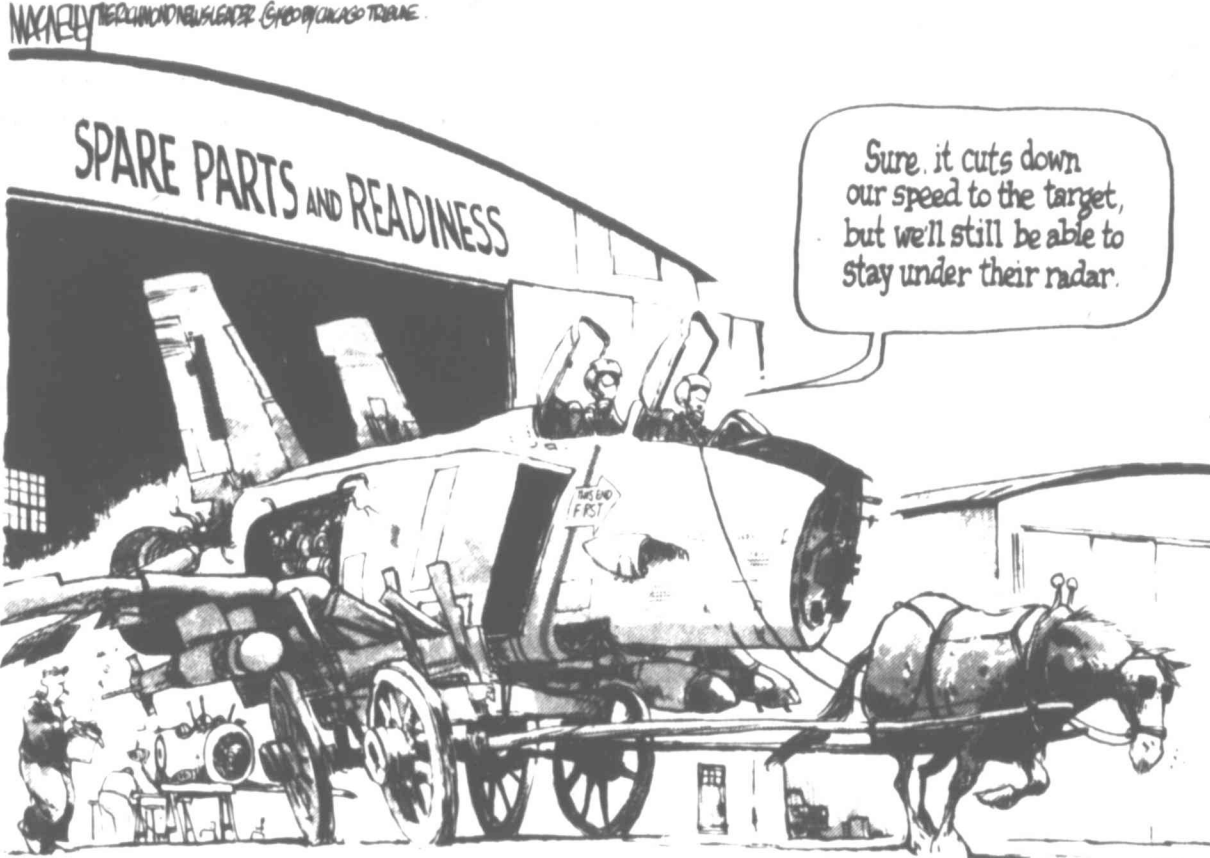

Gov. Bob Graham backed up the local effort with state services. No doubt his action was heavily motivated by humanitarian considerations. But there was also a sense widespread in the business community here, of what the Cubans contributed to southern Florida. In a telephone interview the governor said:

"I was born in Miami in 1936, and I grew up in Miami, and I remember that the city slogan was 'Gateway to South America.' In fact we were the gateway for south Georgia. But the advent of the Cuban refugees in 1960 made the slogan a reality. Now Miami is an international financial center. About a hundred corporations have their Latin American headquarters in Coral Gables. Miami has ceased to be a southern city. It is a cosmopolitan capital."

President Carter had to follow the local lead. Not only because Graham is a vital supporter in a state that could vote for Ronald Reagan in the fall. In addition, the action of the Cuban-American community made any other policy impossible. "We cannot exactly have the Coast Guard sinking mom and pop boats," one federal official here put it.

SO WASHINGTON switched signals. The refugee problem was moved away from the national security community and given over to the domestic policy side of the White House. Florida was declared a disaster area. Tom Casey of the Federal Emergency Management Agency was sent here to coordinate the multitude of interested federal agencies — Immigration, Social Security, FBI, CIA, Coast Guard, State Department and others — in a drive to expedite the processing of the refugees.

The operation is still far from perfect. While rapid in some places, the flow is agonizingly slow in others. Some criminal elements slip by the screening process, and probably some espionage agents.

Low sodium can create problems

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am worried about my brother. He is 68 and is told he loses sodium out of his blood. He is thin, lacks energy and has no appetite. Blood samples have been sent to labs across the country. Can you give a reason for his problem? He says he eats salty foods. — Mrs. M.W.

Potassium usually gets all the attention for low levels. We think of sodium in terms of its high levels causing high blood pressure. However, a low sodium level can be troublesome, too.

Addison's disease is an example of a condition (less common today) in which blood sodium levels are too low. The cause is a shrinking of the adrenal glands.

The adrenals make hormones that regulate the amount of sodium in the body. Without the hormones, sodium is lost in the urine. Other symptoms are weight loss, low blood pressure and great fatigue. Kidney disease can also cause a low sodium level in the blood.

What has to be done in your brother's case is to find the cause of his low sodium. Otherwise no good advice can be given to effectively raise the level.

Simply taking in salt (sodium) is not always the answer. If he were found to have Addison's disease he would need hormones to replace those not being produced in his body (by the adrenals remember?). A different approach would be needed if the kidneys were at fault.

I hope the cause of your brother's condition is found quickly. As an afterthought, people who are compulsive drinkers of enormous quantities of water can lower the relative sodium level in their blood.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A friend told me that if you cut a piece of garlic into small pieces and put it into vodka that you will not have high blood pressure if you have a drink. Is this scientifically right? — J.S.

Do you mean that you wouldn't have high blood pressure or wouldn't really care? The idea is nowhere scientific. He must have an interesting name for his drink, like a "stinker."

Dear Dr. Donohue: Two doctors have told me that ice cream or milk will not create mucus or phlegm. I would like your opinion. — Mrs. E.S.

I agree with the rest. Ice cream or milk does not cause mucus, although I can see why you might think so.

Legal, but--

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Like Ian Fleming's fictional Goldfinger, Nelson Bunker Hunt is a portly man with a love of fine racehorses and an unabashed craving for precious metal. Given his preferences in metal, he might be called Silverfinger.

Unlike the spy thriller's homicidal villain, Hunt stayed within the law in his quest for bullion. There was also no James Bond to keep an eye on him. Instead, there was the Federal Reserve Board, which had ordered the nation's banks to discourage loans to speculators as a means to curb inflation.

Yet the "Fed" was strangely blind to the free-wheeling speculative binge by Hunt and his brother Herbert in the silver market, which was financed largely by banks and brokerage houses.

PAUL VOLCKER, THE 6-foot-7, cigar-chomping chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told Congress that the board knew only what it read in the papers about the Hunt brothers' silver market shenanigans.

But confidential memos from Commissioner Read Dunn of the Commodities Futures Trading Commission tell a different story. They make clear that, though the Fed was repeatedly warned about silver speculation, it did nothing to learn about the Hunts' activities until the collapse of their pyramided silver empire forced an expensive bailout. This was hastily arranged to keep the Hunts' backers from financial ruin.

Last September, as the price of silver was beginning to climb toward its dizzy, artificial peak at $47 an ounce, Dunn called a Federal Reserve Board official "to inquire if the Fed had any concern about the futures market in gold and silver," one memo states. The answer he got: "The Fed was inclined to look on silver as just another commodity, and did not pay special attention to it. They followed gold more closely."

Dunn's memo continues: "During the course of the next three months, I initiated frequent telephone conversations with various officials of the Treasury and Fed to keep them advised on developments in silver."

Dunn noted that "whenever the question came up, I told them my personal view was that the basic problem but it can be controlled. To learn how, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, 'Bed-Wetting: Ways To Stop It.' Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We have tried to be strict with our children about what they watch on television. However, it seems like other parents aren't concerned about this. Do you think we are overreacting? — C.S.S.

DEAR C.S.S.: Definitely. There are many wholesome programs on television (both commercial and public channels) from time to time, but, unfortunately, there are far too many programs which are trite and a waste of time. There also are a great number which present ideas and lifestyles which are the opposite of Christian views. The emphasis on sex, violence and unwholesome language is wrong.

The Bible tells us clearly that children are a responsibility given us by God, and they are in large measure shaped and molded by the experiences they have in early life. The Bible says, "Train a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not turn from it" (Proverbs 22:6). But what if you neglect that responsibility, and let television in large measure be the teacher of your children? Should we be surprised if they grow up believing that life is to be lived for pleasure, or that immorality is acceptable, or that the key to happiness is how much money you have or how many expensive things you own? (Don't forget the influence of advertising, either, which also often presents a false view of life.)

Remember, of course, that while you should monitor carefully what your children watch, you should also do all you can to give them a happy and full life. In other words, you do not want to make them bitter at you, but you should show that you love them so much that you are willing to spend time with them and have fun together as a family. Many people watch television simply because they cannot think of anything else to do with their time. But with a little planning and forethought you can discover ways to do things together which will be constructive.

And remember, above all else, your responsibility to help your children come to know Christ. Both by your words and your lives, you should let them see Him in you.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: I am hoping you will permit me to use your column for "An Open Letter to All the Residents of Big Spring."

As a resident of the Big Spring Highway House, as one whose immediate future residence is at stake, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to those who have helped us toward the continuing operation of this particular Highway House.

While I have been a resident here, I myself, have found help when I needed it, support for my failing confidence, encouragement and assistance in my search for work in an unfamiliar "little city"; gentle guidance toward a church of my affiliation, group counseling in regard to work orientation as well as psychological and social adjustment counseling. All these services recommended as follow-up treatment after having been a patient in Big Spring State Hospital.

In your city, and your citizens, I have found a warm and gracious welcome into your work force, your lodges, your churches, your museum, your hospital, your community center, your library, your A.A. groups, and your places of business.

I have watched and listened in awe, Mr. Editor, as your Herald staff and other local news media have given freely of your pages, your air time, your total cooperation, support, assistance and still more important, your time to this cause... my cause.

Because my counselors have assured me that rehabilitation includes assuming my responsibilities in every phase of life, I would feel remiss if I failed to let you, all of you, know how much I appreciate both 1) your acceptance of me as a "rehabilitating fellow citizen" and 2) your city's generous donations toward the continuing operation of this Big Spring Highway House.

Your generosity, compassion, understanding and neighborliness have yet to see equalled. This very moving evidence of your caring has seldom been witnessed in my lifetime.

That I may, at some future time, be able to pass these same values along to another in need is my fervent prayer.

Again, thank you. And may God bless.

Dear Editor: Several months ago you printed my letter about the need of used Bibles and Testaments by the World Home Bible League of So. Holland, Ill. I sent several boxes, but there's still need for more. If someone didn't see the other letter or has one, or more, used Bibles or Testaments they'd like to put into use, I can be contacted to pick them up or bring them to my home and I will mail them.

Dear Editor: Although I live in Arlington now, there is rumored there that John Smith is no longer the Big Spring High School principal.

It is a sad day for my generation of Big Spring High graduates to know that Mr. Smith will not be there as he was in our time. Perhaps the town has forgotten the many fine things he has done for our community; most of which are possibly known only to the individual student he has helped, as in my case.

Such students now are scattered all over the state. They are well-educated and valuable cogs in the wheels of progress. We all owe our gratitude to the one person who, when the time came, made the difference between success or failure.

Desegregation suit filed against Houston schools

HOUSTON (AP) — Comments ranging from "stupid" and "ridiculous" to "long overdue" came from school officials after a landmark cross-district desegregation suit was filed by the Justice Department against all 23 school systems in the Houston metropolitan area.

"I am tremendously disappointed that this action has been taken," Billy Reagan, Houston Independent School District superintendent said Thursday after the suit was filed in federal court in Houston.

"I feel that under the leadership of the Texas Education Agency, steps are being taken to deal with the desegregation issue," Reagan said.

Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti said the suit adds 22 suburban school districts as defendants to a 23-year-old private desegregation suit against HISD.

The expanded suit asks the court to order all 23 school districts, along with state and local officials, to develop a metropolitan-wide desegregation plan.

HISD board president Tarrant Fendley called the suit "the most stupid move I've ever seen in my life. I don't believe the Justice Department is interested in education."

The case is the first time the Justice Department has asked the court to address cross-district desegregation in a large urban area while charging inter-district integration violations.

In the past, the department has filed suits of this nature only against rural districts or small cities.

Named in the actions as defendants are the 23 school districts, the city of Houston, the Harris County Department of Education and the Texas Education Agency.

An angry Houston Mayor Jim McConn called the suit "asinine," saying the Justice Department was "totally confused."

"(The city) has nothing to do with where kids go to school," McConn said.

Houston City Attorney Ed Cazares agreed, saying he was "flabbergasted that the Justice Department could dream up a theory that would try to make the city of Houston responsible for Houston schools."

But J.C. Jones, one of two black members of the HISD school board, said the action was "long overdue," adding "it's what we should have for all our kids to have a quality education."

In the suit, the government alleges there are four reasons that led to the concentration of minorities in Houston schools:

- a student transfer system operated by the metropolitan school districts,
- the city's refusal to allow low-income housing outside minority neighborhoods,
- the state's refusal to allow the school system to expand,
- and encouragement by the state of racial discrimination in the housing market.

Houston's school system is the sixth largest in the country with an enrollment of 177,218 students in 225 schools. About 46 percent of the students are black, nearly 26 percent are Hispanic and the rest are white or belong to other groups.

Not surprisingly, representatives of several of the school districts named in the expanded suit were upset.

"I think the federal courts have a total disregard to the cost of anything," said Thomas Milsch, superintendent of Crosby Independent School District, adding he was concerned about the cost of busing students between districts.

Lawrence Elkins, superintendent of the Fort Bend Independent School District, said he thought "pandemonium" would result if the action were successful.

"Such a plan would not be in the best interests of students or the districts," Elkins said. "I hate to think about those children getting up at 5 a.m., to get on a bus."

Lloyd T. Dickens, superintendent of the Sheldon Independent School District, called the suit "ridiculous. I'm against voluntary busing. I don't think it helps the kiddos. I think it's a waste of the taxpayer's money."

Dickens also said a 5-3 Supreme Court ruling earlier this week that vetoed a similar plan in Atlanta "should have stopped the whole thing."

Spring Independent School District superintendent Joseph S. Beneke said he felt federal officials should give the proposed "magnet" school program adopted by HISD time to work before taking action.

HISD school officials earlier this year started the magnet program, one which would offer special courses at certain HISD schools in hopes of getting suburban students to attend Houston schools.

"I truly believe that was a good plan," Beneke said. "We out to give that plan a fair trial before we throw it in the wastebasket."

In the 22 school districts that surround Houston, 10.9 percent of the 310,000 students are Hispanic and 10.7 percent are black.

The suit notes that while Houston has only 36.6 percent of the metropolitan area students, 71.3 percent of the blacks and 59.6 percent of the Hispanics are in city schools.

David Ryan, general counsel for the TEA, said the action is "further evidence that the Justice Department has gone crazy in the last few years. I invite them to prove those allegations — I just don't think they're true, entirely true, anyway."

For the most part, city minority leaders applauded the suit, but were troubled by the effect busing might have on minority students.

"It is obvious that the desegregation plan now being tried has not worked," said Frumencio Reyes, attorney for the Political Association of Spanish-speaking Organizations.

But he said he doubted the metropolitan plan would work because "we will be dealing with the same elements, the same people who will always be opposed to any desegregation plan."

C. Anderson Davis, former director of the Houston National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said blacks would be asked to sacrifice the most.

"If this results in busing, it will be a one-way street," he said, "with black students being bused to white schools and not the other way around."

"We don't need this type of thing if it can be avoided," Davis added. "We don't need another Boston or Detroit."

Top military experts' picture bleak

U.S. two years behind Soviet Union

DALLAS (AP) — The decline in military spending in the '70s has left the United States so much weaker than the Soviet Union that catching up is an impossibility for several years, say two top military experts.

The Soviets are "playing hardball, and they're playing very, very well," said Navy Adm. Arthur S. Moreau Jr. "They're willing to commit their national treasury to it."

Moreau and Air Force Brig. Gen. James P. McCarthy rolled out figures and projections to punctuate the bleak military outlook at the Dallas Council on World Affairs' annual meeting Thursday.

McCarthy, an expert on the MX missile program, said the exchange of power has produced a "bathtub effect" with a $104 billion difference in military spending from 1968 to 1978.

Military research and development during that period decreased by 19 percent in the United States, but increased 92 percent in the Soviet Union, he said.

"With our present approved programs, we could never get equivalence" with the Soviets, McCarthy said.

He said the proposed MX system will make up the difference, but not until 1989. That's assuming the Soviets abide by the SALT agreements, he added.

The MX now is in full-scale engineering development, with 10 missiles scheduled to be ready in 1986, McCarthy said.

The Soviets' "awesome power" would be evidenced by the number of strategic weapons left in each country after a nuclear exchange, he said.

Conventional weapons figures also show the Soviets "have us outnumbered on a sizeable scale," Moreau said.

The Soviets even have a larger force of soldiers — 3.6 million to 2 million — and "our military forces are stretched too thin," he said.

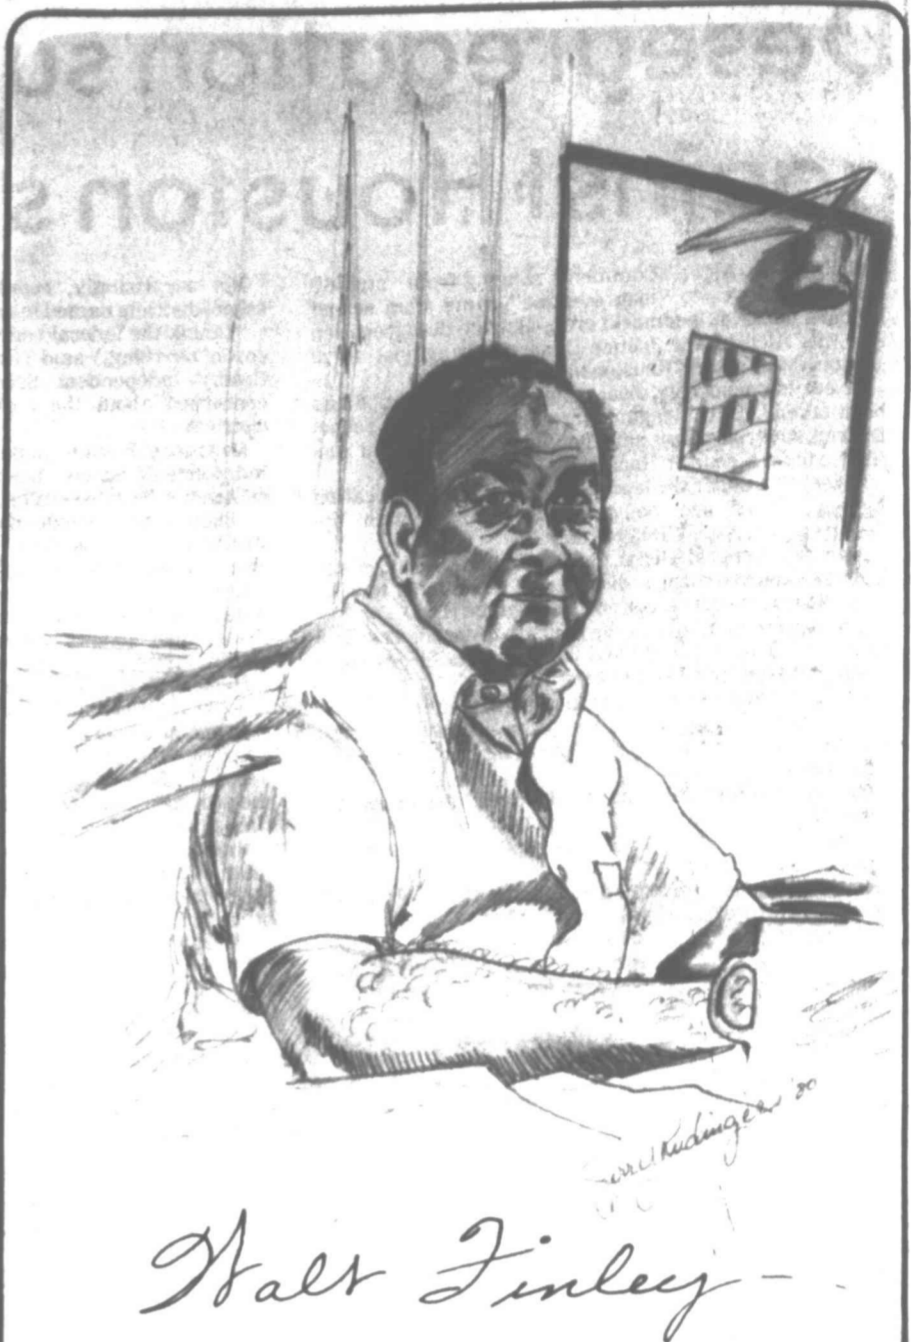

The U.S. technological advantage is quickly disappearing, he said, and "the errant son is quickly moving to the full height of the man."

Moreau said that as long as the spending ratio remains the same, "the disadvantage will increase over time. In other words, it's going to get worse."

A "new and ominous" development is the increase of turbulence around the world that governments have not been able to resolve, Moreau said.

The turbulence stems partially from the Soviets' "carefully orchestrated plan to gain hold of the Third World," but at the same time, the Third World is realizing the "economic and resource vulnerability of the industrialized world, and our inability to provide military support to protect our vital interests," he said.

"The world is becoming a more and not a less dangerous place for the United States."

City Editor Walt Finley brings over 30 years of solid newspapering experience to the Herald.

Walt determines largely what you, the reader, gets each day in the Herald and the way the news is presented on the page. He also makes assignments and manages the Herald's reporters.

The key to Walt's ability to judge news comes largely from his years as a reporter.

Walt attended the University of Oklahoma, where he got his start as the campus correspondent for the Daily Oklahoman and Times. He was at one time the city editor, sports editor and police reporter for the Durant Democrat, the paper in his hometown.

After college, Walt began covering the Missouri State Legislature for the Associated Press.

From Missouri, Walt moved to the El Paso Herald-Post, where in 1952 he scored journalistic coup d'etat in Las Cruces and New Mexico.

Walt was sent one day in May to investigate the murder of "Cricket" Coogler, an 18-year-old waitress. What resulted was headline story after story, exposing corruption and wrongdoing in New Mexico. His stories resulted in grand jury indictments, gambling joints being closed and county and state officials being sent to jail.

Through his work, Walt was nominated and was a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize.

After working in El Paso, Walt returned to Oklahoma, working for the Tulsa World as the business editor and child affairs reporter.

Walt came to Big Spring September 15, 1966. While here, Walt has won first place in the Associated Press Statewide Contest on three occasions in headline writing and once for a feature series.

Deepwater support sought

Texas given more time

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Department of Transportation has given Texas more time to round up financial support for a proposed deepwater port to accommodate jumbo tankers carrying imported oil to Texas refineries.

Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt gave the state an extension to June 30 and said he probably would allow the state another six months, to Nov. 15.

Goldschmidt warned, however, there would be no further extensions unless the Texas Deepwater Port Authority can show signed commitments from potential port users by November.

Until the extension, Texas had a May 15 deadline to accept a federal license for the port. To be built near Freeport, DOT offered the license Aug. 15, 1979, but state acceptance has been delayed by difficulty in securing oil company commitments to use the port.

Gov. Bill Clements asked Goldschmidt for a one-year extension on the deadline.

"The continued viability of our petrochemical and refining industry rests in part upon our ability to import oil in the larger, more efficient ships. I will continue to lend my support to this project, as well as to the other deepwater port projects in Texas, so that this important economic resource can be preserved," the governor said.

In a letter to Clements, Goldschmidt said, "We recognize that the state of Texas has the largest crude oil refining capacity of all the states, and a deepwater port to serve these refineries and others in the region is clearly in the national interest."

The port would be state-sponsored but construction bonds would be paid off by fees from users, primarily oil companies.

"If the Texas Deepwater Port Authority is unable to meet these requirements, I believe the TDPA should step aside and permit other applicants to come forward and submit an alternate proposal," the secretary told Clements.

Life's roughest years

Being a teen-ager can be torture... a lot of the time. And the early twenties don't flatten out that smoothly. There's a desperate loneliness about having problems your kid-brother hasn't encountered and your parents must have forgotten.

The loneliness is worst if your folks gave you nothing to believe in — or if they turned you off when they tried to share their convictions with you.

No one has to stay away from God. Many a young searcher has found his faith, found himself, and found his family in his quest for spiritual certainties.

Sunday morning there's more to do than lean on a tree.

MAXIE ANDERSON

Balloonist hits target

KITTY HAWK, N.C. (AP) — Maxie Anderson, the cross-country balloonist, has finally landed in Kitty Hawk, but not the way he'd hoped.

When Anderson set out with his son Kris from San Francisco last week in an attempt to make the first transcontinental balloon flight, he said Kitty Hawk was his destination.

But winds took him far to the north and on Monday, he ended up setting down in Quebec, along the St. Lawrence River.

But Kitty Hawk — site of the Wright Brothers' historic first flight — honored Anderson anyway after he flew in.

Among other gifts, he received a stained-glass replica of his balloon, which was named Kitty Hawk.

Chan looking for site

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charlie Chan, the movie detective, has been searching in San Francisco for elusive prey — a place to film his latest picture.

The movie, "Charlie Chan and the Curse of the Dragon Queen," was supposed to have been filmed in Chinatown. But community leaders objected, saying the character of Chan presents a racist characterization of Chinese-Americans.

Part of the film was also to have been shot on the sailing vessel Balclutha. But David Nelson, executive director of the National Maritime Museum Association, which runs the Balclutha, said he turned down a request to film on the ship to protect it and to maintain good relations with the Chinese community.

The movie's star, English actor Peter Ustinov, arrived Wednesday and began filming in Golden Gate Park.

Fonda celebrates 75th

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Fonda, who celebrates his 75th birthday today, says he's feeling great, "for an old fogey."

"I have to be reminded how old I am," Fonda said in an interview in today's editions of the Daily News. "I just don't have any feeling about it."

Fonda, known for his roles in such films as "Mr. Roberts," and "The Ox-Bow Incident," will get a birthday party at the Wilshire Theater in Los Angeles, where he is appearing in a play, "The Oldest Living Graduate."

Fonda said he expects his son, Peter, and his daughter, Jane, to attend.

W.R. Grace & Co. expects excellent year during 1980

NEW YORK — An excellent year in 1980 is expected for W.R. Grace & Co. following record 1979 earnings of $223 million, despite recession, high inflation and high interest rates, Felix E. Larkin, chairman, told shareholders at Grace's annual meeting here recently.

J. Peter Grace, president and chief executive officer of this firm with balanced worldwide interests in chemicals, natural resources and selected consumer services, presided.

In the chairman's report to shareholders, Mr. Larkin said: "Many of Grace's businesses have strong recession-resistant characteristics."

Despite difficult economic conditions in the decade of the seventies, including relatively slow economic growth, high rates of inflation and two major recessions, Larkin pointed out, "Grace made consistent and substantial progress during this period." Larkin stated: "As we enter the Eighties, Grace is stronger in every way than it was at the beginning of the 1970s."

Grace sales grew at an average annual rate of nearly 10 percent and more than doubled over the 10-year period to $5.3 billion last year. Net income grew almost 14 percent per annum for the 10 years and more than tripled to $222.6 million.

"Even more important, perhaps," Grace's chairman said, "is the fact that this growth was accompanied by a major increase in productivity — a factor which has become critically important, not only for Grace, but for the nation as a whole."

Grace sales per employee went from $29,253 in 1969 to $64,149 in 1979. Net income per employee went from $877 in 1969 to $2,711 per employee in 1979. "And this improvement in productivity was achieved," Larkin commented, "despite the fact that our entry into the retail and restaurant businesses in recent years brought with it a significant increase in numbers of personnel."

Larkin announced that 1980 capital expenditures are estimated to exceed $600 million, a better than 26 percent increase over 1979 and more than double the amount of only two years ago. The expenditures in 1980 will be divided about evenly among Grace's three major lines of business. In discussing Grace's operations with shareholders, the Grace chairman described Grace as the largest producer of specialty chemicals in the United States, "and this has been and will continue to be our cornerstone business."

After tax earnings from Grace's specialty chemical operations rose 21 percent last year to $151.9 million.

"For the remainder of this year," Larkin predicted, "Grace's specialty chemical businesses, particularly in Europe and the Far East, should grow at a rate of 12 percent to 15 percent."

Concerning Grace's agricultural chemicals, which are primarily fertilizers, 1979 marked the beginning of the long-awaited recovery. Earnings from this Grace business rebounded 33 percent last year, and Larkin stated: "We expect this trend to continue in 1980."

Grace shareholders also elected the company's nominees for director, including two new directors — Klaus Gotte, a general partner of the Flick Group who replaces the Flick Group's Gunter Max Paefgen on the Grace Board (the Flick Group has been represented by three directors on the Grace Board since its initial investment in the company in January, 1976), and Lloyd L. Jaquier, a Grace executive vice president and group executive of the company's Agricultural Chemicals Group. The Grace board of directors now numbers 31.

Shareholders also ratified the selection of independent accountants; approved amendments to Grace's stock option plans; and defeated a shareholder proposal relating to cumulative voting.

DR. PHILLIP MCCLENDON

Hillcrest pastor gets doctorate

Rev. Phillip McClendon, pastor of the Hillcrest Baptist Church, recently returned from Jacksonville, Fla., where he was awarded the Doctorate of Ministry Degree.

Dr. McClendon was among more than 413 graduates of Luther Rice Seminary participating in graduation ceremonies at the Jacksonville First Baptist Church on May 9.

Dr. McClendon has served as pastor at Hillcrest for the past three years. He and his wife, Jackie, are the parents of three children, including Scott, 10; Gwen, four and a half; and Crystal, one and a half.

The Hillcrest pastor also serves as contract chaplain at the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Guest speaker for the graduation ceremony was Ben Haden, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Completing the programming were Dr. Nestor Chamorro, director of Campus Crusade in Columbia, South America.

Dr. Stephen Olford, president, Encounter Ministries, Wheaton, Ill.; and Dr. Paige Patterson, president of Criswell Center for Biblical Studies.

Chartered in 1962, the Luther Rice Seminary (LRS) has grown into an international student body of over 5,000 from across America and 55 other countries. In addition to the Jacksonville campus, LRS has pioneered non-traditional and distance teaching-learning techniques which greatly facilitate continuing education for the Christian ministry.

"The Hillcrest church family has taken great pride in our pastor's accomplishment and invites the public to attend a special service honoring Dr. McClendon on Sunday at 3 p.m. in the church auditorium," said a church spokesman.

At the present time, construction is underway at the church for a new fellowship hall and classrooms.

Hillcrest is also the site of extension courses for the Criswell Center for Biblical Studies out of Dallas.

WCG meets for program

The Women of the Church of God met Monday evening in the home of Hettie Minix for their monthly meeting.

The May program, "Stretch and Grow" was written by Willetta Bevis who is a member of the National Spiritual Life Committee of the WCG.

The objective of the program was to challenge each lady to stretch and grow to her greatest potential.

Charlene McKinnon directed the activity part of the program. Each woman was asked to stand by a measuring chart as she arrived to determine her height. After she was "measured in" her childhood picture was placed under the "Then" side of a poster and her current picture on the "now" side. These pictures were mixed so as not to correspond.

The correct matching of "now" and "then" pictures was completed at the end of the program. Arah Phillips was awarded the gift for correctly matching all pictures.

Kathryn Thomas directed the worship using scriptures 11 Peter 3:18 and Philippians 4:13. She stressed the thought that growth means change. Life is a growing process. Every stage of growth requires effort, yet it can always be a challenge both physical and spiritual.

Bush, Kennedy calling for last-minute debates

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — To Vice President Walter Mondale, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's latest challenge for a campaign debate — that classic American political confrontation — amounts to "desperation" politics from a loser.

To a top Kennedy aide, it was a "bold" move in which the Massachusetts senator offered to withdraw from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination if President Carter agrees to a campaign debate and then whips him in the last big round of primaries June 3.

By whatever description, though, it doesn't appear that the senator will get his debate, a prospect which he hints could lead to a floor fight this summer at the Democratic national convention.

Kennedy was not alone in calling Thursday for a debate. Republican George Bush also wants to face his party's frontrunner, Ronald Reagan, in public debate before the voters. It remains to be seen whether he'll get the chance.

Kennedy and Mondale both campaigned Thursday in California. The Massachusetts senator then flew to Oregon where he arranged to stump today for votes in the state's primary next week.

"Why should the sitting president debate a losing candidate in his own party," Mondale said in response to Kennedy's new challenge.

"We will debate the Republican nominee, but not once in 200 years a president debated a member of his own party and I think that it would be preposterous," he said.

Mondale also put in a plea for party unity, saying it is time that Democrats "stop fighting ourselves and start fighting" against the probable Republican nominee, Ronald Reagan.

But Kennedy, too, discussed unity, saying that if President Carter "is as concerned as he claims for party unity, let him debate the issues before the primaries end."

Kennedy is far behind in national convention delegates, 1,365 to 770, and most observers believe the president will go over the 1,666 delegates he needs for the nomination on June 3. Eight states, including California, Ohio and New Jersey, hold primaries that day, electing 696 delegates.

In his speech to the Los Angeles Press Club, Kennedy laid out his differences with Carter's economic, energy and foreign policies, and declared, "It is the quality of lives, not the quantity of delegates, that we should be counting in this campaign."

A debate, Kennedy said, would make the final day of the primary season "the truest test" of the campaign.

If there is a debate and Carter then gets the most votes in the eight primary states on June 3, "then I will withdraw," he said. "If I prevail, I will continue in this race, and I expect to win the nomination."

Kennedy coupled his offer with a veiled threat to lead a floor fight at the party convention is turned down.

"I know that if a debate is not held in the primaries, it will be held at the convention," he said.

"I could not prevent this if I wished to," he said to the laughter and applause of his audience.

Bush, in Los Angeles, called for "a public forum to discuss the issues that interest California Republicans" before the state's GOP primary June 3. He said he could win in California "by continuing to spell out the issues for Republican voters in the days ahead."

A spokesman for Reagan, a former California governor, said the frontrunner hadn't learned of Bush's challenge and therefore there would be no immediate response from the Reagan camp.

Warning: Anderson could be harmful to Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ask the people close to President Carter's campaign whether they think Rep. John B. Anderson is a threat to the president's reelection and you get a variety of answers.

"No one can ignore the potential problems."

"It remains to be seen what kind of effort John Anderson will mount."

"We're not very concerned about him."

But what says even more about how the Carter camp views Anderson's independent campaign is an analysis of the situation completed for John White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"In a close campaign, a well organized independent could greatly influence the outcome," the analysis says. "Free of spending limits, an appeal to independents (nearly 40 percent of the electorate considers themselves 'independent') could draw sufficient votes to dramatically influence totals in the volatile political climate we foresee this year."

"It is safe to say that an Anderson campaign would be harmful to the Democrats in a Carter-Reagan race," the memorandum states, echoing the findings of most surveys and conventional political wisdom.

An ABC-Louis Harris poll made public Wednesday showed Reagan with 39 percent of the vote, Carter 33 percent and Anderson 23 percent if the election were held immediately.

But when the 1,190 respondents were asked how they would vote if they thought Anderson really had a chance, the results narrowed to 35 percent for Reagan, 31 percent for Carter and 29 percent for Anderson — with Anderson the leader in eight states having 216 of the 269 electoral votes needed for victory.

The response of a White House aide who was asked about Anderson was as telling as the Democrats' analysis. He had ready a litany about the Illinois Republican's record in Congress and offered it on the condition his name not be used.

The aide's comments each called attention to Anderson's conservative side. They reflected a White House concern that Anderson's appeal to liberals could attract support that might otherwise be Carter's.

The official, who is knowledgeable about the Carter political operations, said Anderson has "an erratic track record."

"People will see he is not the sort of progressive and thoughtful leader he is portraying himself as being," he said.

Then, he turned to what has become a standard line: Anderson, in 1961, 1963 and 1965, proposed a constitutional amendment declaring the United States to be a Christian nation. The congressman has since said "I was totally wrong" to propose the amendment.

Rainstorm puts damper on Laredo's birthday party

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Laredo celebrated its 225th birthday Thursday in the midst of a rainstorm that chased dignitaries lugging a 30-square-foot cake into a motel.

The city was founded in 1755 by Spanish army captain Tomas Sanchez and was in 1824 the capital of the short-lived Republic of the Rio Grande.

The birthday party, held at San Agustin Plaza across from the old capitol building, was interrupted twice by cloudbursts. Mayor Alda Pantangelo finally cut the 5-by-6 cake after guests carted it in and out of shelter four times.

PHILADELPHIA — The tone of the Philadelphia 76ers' championship celebration changed dramatically Thursday when Los Angeles Lakers' Abdul-Jabbar, who injured his ankle during tonight's sixth game of the 76ers in Philadelphia, was taken to the hospital. Abdul-Jabbar to miss sixth game tonight

PHILADELPHIA — The tone of the National Basketball Association championship series changed dramatically Thursday when the Los Angeles Lakers announced that injured center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar would miss tonight's sixth game against the 76ers in Philadelphia.

Abdul-Jabbar injured his ankle during the third quarter of Wednesday night's victory over the 76ers that gave the Lakers a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven playoff finals. Postgame X-rays were negative and Abdul-Jabbar was supposed to accompany the team here, but when the Lakers' flight took off without Abdul-Jabbar, it did not have the dominating center aboard.

Can the Los Angeles Lakers win without Kareem Abdul-Jabbar?

"He's our offense, he's our defense," said Lakers guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson. "He's the man we go to when we're in trouble."

But the Lakers won't have the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar to go to tonight when they take on the Philadelphia 76ers in the sixth game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

Abdul-Jabbar is back in Los Angeles nursing the sprained left ankle he suffered in Wednesday night's 108-103 victory that gave Los Angeles a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven playoff finals.

"It is extremely doubtful that Kareem would be able to play," said Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Lakers' team physician, who reported the ankle had swollen and become stiff overnight. "By keeping him in Los Angeles and treating him here, he will be much better prepared to play on Sunday if that game is necessary."

But Kerlan said the odds of Abdul-Jabbar playing on Sunday are only 50-50 at this point.

A win tonight and the Lakers don't have to worry about Sunday — they'd be wearing the NBA crown for the first time since 1972. But winning without Abdul-Jabbar, a five-time most valuable player and the most dominating force in the game, won't be easy.

Especially since it's a must-win situation for the Sixers, who will have a noisy crowd of 18,276 at the Spectrum rooting them on.

"There's no tomorrow for us," said Philadelphia guard Henry Bibby. "Either we win or else. And we're not ready for anything else yet."

Los Angeles survived without Abdul-Jabbar for the final 3:58 of the third period Wednesday night, even extending its lead from two points to eight.

"But it's a completely different thing to be without him for 48 minutes instead of just four," observed Doug Collins, the Sixers' injured guard. "They need his scoring and his presence inside."

(AP LASERPHOTO)

WINNING BASKET — Los Angeles Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (33) scores the winning basket over Philadelphia 76ers Julius Erving who fouled Abdul-Jabbar on the play with 33 seconds remaining in the fourth period Wednesday night in the 5th game of the NBA championships in Los Angeles. The score was tied at 103 each when Abdul-Jabbar scored the three point play. The Lakers defeated the 76ers 108-103 to take a 3-2 game advantage. Jabbar's injury will cause him to miss Game 6 tonight.

Roadrunner Classic tomorrow morning

The Roadrunner Classic has received over 150 entrants thus far for its inauguration jaunt tomorrow morning around Comanche Trail Park.

The Roadrunner Classic will have two lengths in which runners may participate. There will be a two-mile course and a five-mile course.

Both men and women are eligible to compete. There will be divisions for each sex as follows: 19 and under, 20-29, 30-39, and plus 40-age groups.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners of each division in each length, and a top prize to the outstanding male and female runners will also be given.

The affair, sponsored by the Herald, the YMCA and Sportsworld, will also give two door prizes that will be chosen at random.

The two-mile race will begin at 8:30 a.m. The five-mile run will begin 3-5 minutes after the initial race is over.

A three dollar entry fee is required from each runner. Runners will receive numbers to help clarify times and which division entered.

Both races will start from the pavilion by the softball park. The two mile trek is a race from that point to Highway 87 (through the Figure Seven Tennis Center down Whipkey Road) and back.

The five-mile trek begins at the pavilion, goes down Whipkey Road like the two-mile run, and then moves south on Highway 87 to the park entrance by the trailer rest area. It will proceed on to the swimming pool, then runners will reverse their steps back to the original starting point.

Doctors will be on duty to assist runners that encounter difficulties.

Stanton teachers hosting tourney

STANTON — The Stanton Teachers Golf Tournament will be held tomorrow morning at the Martin County Country Club beginning at nine o'clock.

Dallas trades Henderson to 49ers

DALLAS (AP) — Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, the flamboyant linebacker fired by the Dallas Cowboys and now headed for San Francisco, says he is "still a great football player" and he looks forward to playing for the 49ers.

"I'm very flattered about it and very excited that someone like San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh would make me feel like a man and feel good," Henderson said Thursday.

Cowboy spokesman Greg Aiello announced Thursday that Dallas traded Henderson to San Francisco for an undisclosed 1981 draft choice.

"I think they (the Cowboys) probably got a box of tape," Henderson said after the announcement.

Aiello said the deal was unconditional, that Dallas got a draft choice even if San Francisco "cut Henderson tomorrow."

However, Cowboy player personnel director Gil

Brandt said certain conditions will determine how high the draft choice will be. He said Henderson does certain things the draft choice will be higher, if not, it likely will be a middle-round selection.

"We feel we're getting a top player who will play for us — a man we expect to add experience and leadership to our young team," Walsh said in San Francisco Thursday.

"Thomas is coming to the 49ers from an organization that has taught him how to play the game right, from one that wins, and that can't help from benefit us. He's played well in three Super Bowls and I think he will play exceptional for us. In fact, I expect him to."

Brandt said he thinks the trade is a good deal for all concerned.

"I think Thomas will go out there and play well; that he will become a valuable part of their football team," said Brandt. "Sometimes a fresh start is the thing that a person needs."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry fired Henderson on Nov. 19, just one day after the linebacker mugged for national television cameras while his teammates were being trounced by the Washington Redskins 34-20.

"The world should know I got fired for what they call mugging a camera so you can check with ABC, NBC and CBS and see how many players over the years have said 'Hi mom' and pointed the finger No. 1 at the camera," said Henderson.

"I hate people to hold my career on what happened there. I'm still a great football player," he added.

Henderson announced he would retire from football after Landry told him he was being placed on waivers.

However, Henderson later asked to be reinstated and when Landry refused, he said he wanted to be traded to another National Football League team.

"I thought I was playing for a Christian and religious man and the Bible says if a man asks forgiveness a 1,000 times, give it to him. So on that basis of the Bible and the Christianity that Tom believes in I was very disappointed they didn't take me back," said Henderson.

Henderson, a five-year veteran and former No. 1 draft pick out of Langston University, still had three years left on a contract with Dallas.

ESCAPING THE PACK — Big Spring Steer running back Bill Brown breaks through the arms of some defensive players and prepares to elude the grasp of prospective tackler Todd Darden during recent action at the BSHS spring training. The Steer gridders will hold a scrimmage tomorrow morning at nine o'clock at Memorial Stadium, and the public is urged to attend. They are preparing for the annual Black-Gold spring game, which will also be held in Memorial Stadium on Thursday night, May 22.

Aggies favored in SWC meet if Dickey can run

WACO, Texas (AP) — Curtis Dickey scrimmaged during spring training one day several years ago then showed up to capture a 100-meter race the next.

Worried Texas A&M Coach Charlie Thomas hopes his big horse can pull off the equivalent of the aforementioned feat beginning today in the 65th annual Southwest Conference Track and Field Championships.

Dickey, the No. 1 draft choice of the Baltimore Colts, has been going through rookie camp all week for the National Football League team. There has been a lot of non-track type running. No scrimmaging but a different strain on Dickey's already overtaxed right knee.

Both sprint aces Dickey and Leslie Kerr have been bothered with problems in the muscles behind their right knees.

Preliminaries in the 100-meter dash were set for this afternoon to answer the big question on Dickey.

Houston's Carl Lewis was to provide the biggest challenge followed by the return of injured Texas sprinters Herkie Walls, Fred Acorn and Wayne Johnson.

The 400-meter dash was supposed to belong to Kerr but he hurt himself in California last week and now it's wide open in that event this afternoon.

Kerr, who won this event as a freshman and a sophomore, was to be tested by teammate Steve Willis, Arkansas' Stanley Redwine, the three Texas runners, Texas Tech's Edwin Newsom, and Texas Christian's Festus Oginfeiyimi and Andre Newbold.

The Texas Aggies were favored to upset defending champion Texas with Houston the darkhorse.

"Dickey is the key," said Baylor Coach Clyde Hart. "If he's healthy, the Aggies ought to win it."

"I think Houston is the real darkhorse. Arkansas and Texas will be tough."

The meet began today with javelin and shot put preliminaries and then finals. All running events were prelims except for the 10,000 meter run at 6:30 p.m.

On Saturday afternoon, the discus prelims and finals begin at 1 p.m. The meet concludes at 8:30 p.m. with the one-mile relay finals.

Texas won its 38th title last year at Memorial Stadium when Longhorn freshman Oskar Jakobson scored 24 points with victories in the shot put and discus and a fourth place in the javelin.

The Longhorns were first with 110 points to 96 for the Aggies.

"Houston could win it all," Thomas warned. "The Cougars have an outstanding team. Texas, Houston and A&M are strong in the same events and will cut into each others' points."

But stronger field expected than at Kentucky Derby Genuine Risk favored at Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I definitely think it is a stronger field than the Derby," says trainer LeRoy Jolley in sizing up Saturday's Preakness which he will try to win with sensational filly Genuine Risk. "It shapes up as a tougher race than the Derby," agrees Riley Cofe, trainer of Jaklin Klugman who finished third when Genuine Risk became only the second filly to win the Kentucky Derby. "It's got tougher horses in it."

With rout of Islanders Flyers even series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For more than one and a half games, the National Hockey League championship series sat smoldering like a forgotten stew on a kitchen stove. The New York Islanders and Philadelphia Flyers — two notably physical teams — had been very nice to each other in New York's series-opening overtime victory. Then it boiled over.

It may have been because, by the time the ugliness started at 12:54 of the second period, the Flyers already led 5-2 on the way to a series-tying 8-3 triumph Thursday night. It may have been because, "Possibly we took everything too light. We weren't hungry enough," as Islanders Coach Al Arbour put it.

Whatever the real cause and effect, be it the loss they suffered or the punishment they took, the New York dressing room had all the frustrated fury of a rush-hour traffic jam.

"Maybe the referees were intimidated in this building, but running after a guy after he passes the puck, like the Flyers do, is ridiculous," said goalie Bill Smith, ineffective the two periods he played before being replaced by Glenn Resch. "If they keep doing it, our guys are going to have to retaliate. They are going to have to put their sticks up — hold their sticks up to protect themselves in the next game. Otherwise, I'm afraid someone will get hurt."

Arbour, who put an abrupt end to his post-game remarks by walking away from his interviewers, later charged into the dressing room and belittled an unprintable characterization of the winners. He added, "All they (the Flyers) do is wield their sticks."

RETALIATION — Flyers Behn Wilson pushes New York Islanders Garry Howatt to the ice in retaliation to Howatt hitting Flyers goalie Pete Peeters Thursday night in third period of NHL Stanley Cup playoff game at Philadelphia. Wilson was assessed 14 minutes of penalties. Flyers won the game, 8-3.

Genuine Risk is the early favorite, at 9-5. "This is a super filly," said Tommy Kelly, who trains the speedy Colonel Moran. "She won the Derby and she has a good shot at them all (the Triple Crown)." Kelly's colt is listed at 3-1 behind Codex, 2-1, and ahead of Jaklin Klugman, 3-1.

The other four 3-year-olds entered Thursday are outsiders who have never won a stakes. In fact, Bing has failed to win a race in eight career starts. The others are Samoyed, Knight Landing and Plucky Luck, a gelding who was made a sup-

France's NOC voted on Tuesday to participate in the Games, disappointing the Carter administration. However, sources said the West German vote was considered more significant because "many nations have said they will follow Germany, whereas few are expected to follow France."

Food stamp program keeps going

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 21 million Americans who rely on food stamps to help feed themselves can take comfort today, assured that their subsidies will not be halted next month.

Congress gave speedy final approval Thursday to a $2.56 billion appropriation to keep the program going for at least a few more months.

The emergency appropriations was sent to President Carter to be signed into law, along with companion legislation authorizing continuation of the program for the remainder of this fiscal year and for all of fiscal 1981.

The emergency money bill passed the House, 316-56, and the Senate, 57-17.

But Congress left the future of the food stamp program in doubt by rejecting additional funds supporters insist will be needed to keep the program in business through Sept. 30, the end of the current fiscal year.

Sponsors of the move to expand and continue the program said the extra $2.56 billion probably will run out by Sept. 1. They suggested Congress will be obliged to return during the summer for another hurry-up rescue effort.

Both houses raced to meet a deadline set by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. The $6.2 billion previously appropriated for food stamps this fiscal year is expected to run out this month and Bergland had said he would be forced to tell the states the program would be suspended June 1 if new food stamp money was not appropriated by Thursday.

A Senate-House conference committee acknowledged that the $2.56 billion in emergency relief it eventually agreed on almost certainly will not be enough to pay for food subsidies through the summer.

But House conferees, led by Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-

Miss., rejected a Senate proposal to increase the supplemental appropriation by $440 million, to $3 billion.

In a compromise, the conference committee approved a non-binding pledge that said Congress is likely to provide the extra money before the end of the fiscal year.

But proponents of stricter spending controls on food stamps got the conference to also agree that Congress does not intend to go beyond the $3 billion mark under any circumstances.

If necessary, the committee said, Bergland should be prepared to cut back benefits to stay within that figure through September.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., predicted the nation's deepening recession and rising unemployment would force a cutback in benefits even if $3 billion was provided.

RUNNING FOR COVER — A member of the Miami Police SWAT team runs for position near a Chalk's International seaplane after a would-be hijacker took a 17-year-old maintenance worker hostage and then occupied the plane for over eight hours before surrendering. The FBI identified the gunman as James Thomas Wright, 34, of Mt. Vernon, Ga. Wright had demanded to be flown to the West Indies or South Africa.

Government swamped by Possum Kingdom backers

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A government attorney who was inundated by environmentalists, landowners and state officials battling over the release of water from Possum Kingdom reservoir says even more testimony may be needed.

Don Garber, Federal Energy Commission staff attorney, said a formal public hearing may be held to decide whether to begin regularly releasing water from the Morris Sheppard dam, which impounds the reservoir, into the Brazos River.

About 100 lakeside property owners, residents along the Brazos River, environmentalists and state officials showed up Thursday at a FERC technical meeting to argue about the releases, forcing the FERC to alter its agenda.

Garber said the disputants took up so much time the commission's scheduled business would have to be conducted by telephone.

The FERC makes the final decision on whether the releases will be made.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, supported by the Sierra Club, an environmental group, says the releases would improve canoeing and fishing along 120 miles of river below the dam.

State officials opposing the releases contend only the Texas Water Commission has authority to regulate Possum Kingdom's water.

"The state of Texas is here as owner of the water and final decider in what should be done with this resource," said Assistant Attorney General Tim Brown.

Brazos River Authority lawyer David Culgem said a Dallas consulting firm study shows 5,211 megawatt-hours of energy capacity could be lost each year.

"If you want to have your lights come on when you flip the switch, you ought to be deeply concerned about this," Culgem said.

But Howard Saxton, chairman of the 2,000-member Dallas-Fort Worth Sierra Club, said the state lost its rights when the federal government licensed the Brazos River Authority to generate power.

"It (the water release) is a national Sierra Club issue," Saxton said. "We hope to set a precedent nationwide."

Jerry Johnson, field supervisor for the Fort Worth office of the Fish and Wildlife Department, said the present sporadic releases from the reservoir have hurt the Brazos.

"The river as it is now is not in good aquatic condition," he said, but regular releases of water would encourage wildlife proliferation.

Persons holding long-term leases on Possum Kingdom lakeside property claimed the releases, which would lower the lake level six inches, would infringe on their property rights.

"At the time I acquired the property, I acquired the rights as they existed," said lakeside resident Ray Masters. "If anyone comes in and changes that... they are encroaching on my private rights as a citizen..."

Spy trials called for again Pipeline blows up in Iran

By the Associated Press

A pipeline in Iran's major oil-producing region was blown up and set afire overnight and despite an immediate shutdown of the oil flow the flames burned through the night and today, Tehran Radio said.

The radio, quoting an official Pars news agency report, did not say who blew up the pipe between Naft-e-Shah and Kermanshah, but Iranian Arabs who want autonomy for the region, have been fighting the central government and are believed to have sabotaged pipelines in the past. The Arabs are an ethnic minority in Iran — which is mainly Persian — and they make up a large part of Iran's oil field work force. It was Iranian Arabs who seized the Iranian Embassy in London earlier this month and held it for six days until crushed by British commandos.

In Tehran, a leading Iranian revolutionary said "genuine spy suspects" among the American hostages should be tried, but he hoped none had committed "grave sins" and that all would be returned safely to their families.

Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, who displayed the remains of the eight American servicemen killed in the aborted hostage rescue mission three weeks ago, spoke Thursday to Iran's official Pars news agency.

The call for spy trials has been made before by hardliners like Khalkhali and some of the members of the Islamic Republican Party that dominates the new Iranian Parliament that is to decide the hostages' fate late next month.

In the meanwhile, the 53 hostages — seized Nov. 4 when militants took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran — have been reported dispersed among 15 cities, including Tehran, in an attempt to foil another rescue attempt.

The Iranians claim 96 U.S. agents and 19 Iranian exiles recently were landed by helicopter in Iran for a two-week mission of assassination and sabotage, but a White House aide denied the claim Thursday as "ridiculous."

However, President Carter has not ruled out another rescue attempt, and in a new step aimed at readying U.S. troops for possible intervention in the Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf area, a California headquarters for a 12,000-man quick-reaction Marine brigade goes into operation today.

While keeping its military options open, the Carter administration is trying to get its European allies and Japan to join it in imposing economic sanctions against Iran.

The Common Market foreign ministers have vowed to cut off exports to Iran Saturday if there is no "decisive progress" toward freeing the hostages, and are expected to keep their word at a meeting in Naples, Italy, this weekend.

Canterbury mothers honored on their day

A reception was held Sunday from 4-5 p.m. honoring all mothers living at Canterbury. The refreshments were provided by the daughters who live in the Big Spring area.

The refreshment table was covered with an ecru lace cloth, loomed in Germany and purchased in that country by the Galen Bradfords. A multicolored spring bouquet of flowers arranged in a crystal, cut glass, bowl from Czechoslovakia and two ivory tapers in crystal candlesticks from England, formed the center of interest. Over 200 people, including residents, friends and family members were in attendance.

Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Carroll Choate and Mrs. Evelyn Burchett, both daughters resident Mrs. Addie Kilpatrick. Mrs. Gladys Choate's daughters, Julie and Laurie assisted.

Mrs. Raymond Phillips and her daughter, Nancy Crenshaw, also helped with these duties. Mrs. Phillips is the daughter of Mrs. Melvin Choate, another resident of Canterbury.

Mrs. Bill Wilson, daughter resident Mrs. Lillie Hennig, served as a hostess. Mrs. Ann Williams, daughter of resident Mrs. Layla Evans prepared name tags for each son and daughter who attended the function.

L. Galen Bradford acted as master of ceremonies, presenting a carnation to the oldest mother present, Mrs. Virginia Cauble, 92; one to Mrs. Orpha Little for having a child furthestest point from Big was honored for having the most children, 9, and Mrs. Winnie Scantling was honored by having the most children, 9.

A humorous talk on motherhood was given by Mrs. Charles Sweeney and a special medley of Christian music was presented in a duet by Mrs. Marvin Wise and Mrs. Dave Berryhill who were accompanied by Mrs. Bill McCrea. The speaker and music group are all members of the First Baptist Church.

The afternoon concluded with a brief worship service and Mother's Day message by Chaplain C.O. Hitt.

Dear Abby

Life Begins at 40? For Somel's 80

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you published a priceless article describing the advantages of being 80 years old. I foolishly neglected to cut it out, and now that I am approaching 80 I would very much like to have it. Can you please locate it and run it again?

MARY P. IN LA MESA, CALIF.

DEAR MARY: With pleasure. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: We oldsters sure do get away with a lot just because we've managed to keep breathing longer than most folks. I have just celebrated my 80th birthday and I've got it made.

If you forget someone's name or an appointment or what you said yesterday, just explain that you are 80, and you will be forgiven. If you spill soup on your tie, or forget to shave half your face, or take another man's hat by mistake, or promise to mail a letter and carry it around in your pocket for two weeks, just say, "I'm 80, you know," and nobody will say a thing.

You have a perfect alibi for everything when you're 80. If you act silly, you're in your "second childhood."

Being 80 is much better than being 70. At 70 people are mad at you for everything, but if you make it to 80, you can talk back, argue, disagree and insist on having your own way because everybody thinks you are getting a little soft in the head.

They say that life begins at 40. Not true. If you ask me, life begins at 80! Sign me

GOT IT MADE AT 80

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl, 12, very inexperienced, and I need to know the correct way to kiss a boy. My mother says it will just come naturally, but in case it doesn't, can you give me a few pointers?

Should the girl quit breathing? I heard she isn't supposed to make a "smack" when kissing a boy, but it's OK for kissing relatives, right?

Another question: Am I supposed to move my head? Or do I just move my lips? One last thing: What am I supposed to do with my nose?

NEVER BEEN KISSED

DEAR NEVER: You should not quit breathing. No "smack" sounds — not even with relatives. It's not necessary to move anything. And all you do with your nose is breathe through it.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ladies luncheon scheduled

TWEEN 12 and 20 — Clearing up the myths about mono

By Robert Wallace, Ed D

If you discover that your best friend has mononucleosis, should you run to the doctor? Not necessarily, since the disease is not as easily transmitted as we once thought.

"There is still a lot of misunderstanding and myth about mono," says Dr. Ellis Caplan, assistant professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University Medical School in Maryland.

A diagnosis of mononucleosis often brings about visions of isolation from friends, weeks (sometimes months) of total bed rest, lost semesters, wretched athletic careers and ruined lives. But a good deal of these grim thoughts are simply not true.

"Mono is a benign, self-limiting disease that clears up without specific treatment and leaves no ill-effects," says Caplan.

Scientists have discovered that mononucleosis is caused by the EB virus — a close relative of the virus that gives us cold sores and shingles.

Studies indicate that a patient's family or spouse is no more likely to develop mono than someone who is not so closely exposed to it. Although doctors have no definite explanation for this, they have found that the EB virus is so widespread, many people are unknowingly infected by it during infancy and have developed

EB antibodies. Antibodies increase people's immunity, thus preventing them from contracting mono, regardless of their proximity to the infected person.

Typically, the symptoms of mono are a miserable threesome: sore throat, swollen glands in the neck and armpits, and an enlargement of the spleen. Usually the first signs of the disease are fever, extreme fatigue (some patients want to sleep all day) and a generally sick feeling during the first five days.

Definite diagnosis of mononucleosis can almost always be made on the basis of a physical examination and a three-minute blood test that can be done right in the doctor's office.

In general, patients can expect the disease to last a few days or a few weeks at most. Relapses do occur, but are usually mild.

Once recovery from a mono infection is complete, an individual's immunity is lifelong.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Texas produced third of U.S. cotton in '79

AUSTIN — Final tallies on the 1979 Texas cotton crop showed a total value of $1,745,569,000. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service breakdown just released gave $1,469,196,000 value for Upland cotton lint and $11,485,000 for American Pima cotton lint. Cottonseed added $264,888,000 to return totals for Texas farmers. Over 5.5 million bales were ginned.

"Texas produced a third of the U.S. cotton last year with the near-record-breaking harvest," Brown said. The largest production area was the Southern High Plains.

Fewer peaches for consumers

AUSTIN — Texas consumers can expect far fewer peaches at the grocery store this summer. According to Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, peach growers will harvest about 250,000 bushels this season, 67 percent less than they did a year ago.

East Texas growers were among the few who escaped the freezing temperatures and hail that destroyed much of the crop this spring. Production in Central Texas, the state's major growing area, was lost completely in many orchards. Growers report that Gillespie County peaches will be sold locally but will not be shipped.

Considerable losses also occurred in North Texas and on the High Plains where cold fronts caught trees in full bloom.

Brown said Texas peaches should be available in the stores around mid-June.

Production increased in all areas of the state, except the Northern High Plains, which fell to 415,000 bales from 500,000 in 1978.

The number of bales per region are as follows: Southern High Plains, 2,265,000 bales; Northern Low Plains, 624,000; Southern Low Plains, 730,000; Cross Timbers, 26,000; Blacklands, 321,000; East Texas, 48,000; Trans-Pecos, 53,000; Edwards Plateau, 108,000; South Central, 44,000; Coastal Bend, 245,000; Upper Coast, 106,000; South Texas, 78,000; Lower Rio Grande Valley, 441,000.

American Pima cotton growers added 24,000 bushels to the state total for Upland. The average price for American Pima was 97.7 cents per pound; for Upland, 55.5 cents.

Total cotton production for the U.S. exceeded 14.6 billion bales with a value of $5,097,579,000. The average price per pound was 99.8 cents for American Pima, 62.3 cents for Upland.

Top students honored at Forsan barbecue

FORSAN — The annual Awards Barbecue for students and parents of the Forsan School District and the surrounding community was held in the Forsan High School Gymnasium Tuesday.

The Forsan Student Council served the food. In previous years, this event has been catered. The students took on the project themselves as a money-making project. George White, Student Council sponsor, was responsible for the over-all coordination of the project.

An estimated 275 people were served. The Forsan Booster Club donated $1 toward each student ticket.

Cheryl Welander, president of the Student Council, was in charge of the program. Recognition of student participation in UIL literary and athletic competition was given by coaches, teachers and administrators.

Scholarship awards were made by Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, and Jack Woodley, high school principal. Christi Adams and Ernie Strickland were named to Girl's and Boy's State by Ollie Branson, American Legion Post Commander in Big Spring.

Miss Welander and Weldon Nichols were selected Outstanding Students and received medallions from the Legion. Mary Lovell, junior vocational student by the VAC coordinator, Mrs. Irene Ward.

Kem Hooper was named the 1980-81 school year's drum major. The assistant will be Kim Kendrick. Twirlers will be Vicki Baggett, and Debbie Holguin. Zena Clark will serve as Head Twirler.

Brent Raney was selected as president of next year's Student Council. The vice president will be Ellen Williams while Kristi Tarbet will be the secretary.

Kennedy backers upset with chairman

Rift develops in state Demo party

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg, an avowed supporter of President Jimmy Carter, has gone too far says backers of Sen. Edward Kennedy on the State Democratic Executive Committee.

"This is the last straw," committee member Don Mason, Dallas, said at Thursday's meeting of the governing body of the state party. "This committee should not condone the conduct of our state chairman."

"I think our chairman is ill-advised and I would like to see him resign," said Louis Caddell, San Antonio.

The 64-member committee met Thursday to canvass the May 4 primary results but ended up in a series of "personal privilege" speeches about Goldberg.

Goldberg, wealthy Houston businessman who was unable to attend because he was in Washington, joined nine other state party chairman Monday in urging Kennedy to get out of the presidential race. He said the money being used for Kennedy's campaign could be better used against Republicans in November.

"Our chairman is telling us that 300,000 Texas voters don't know," said Richard Solo, another committee member from Dallas. "If he is successful (in getting Kennedy to withdraw) it would disenfranchise 300,000 Texas voters."

Solo said the Kennedy vote in Texas included a large percentage of Mexican-American voters, plus members of the 20 labor unions that had endorsed him.

The committee's main action Thursday was to canvass the May 3 voting results and certify candidates for the June 7 runoff elections.

The committee ordered recounts in close races in Senatorial District 18 and State Representative District 23 because of the closeness of the races.

In the senatorial district, Rep. John Wilson, LaGrange, had a vote of 28,756 over Jimmy Carroll, with 28,125.

In the state representative district, Ray Grisham, Howe, had a vote of 8,143, over David London, Leonard, with 7,935.

A request for a recount in representative District 35, McLennan County, was denied, because the state committee had no authority over one-county districts.

The recounts will be made by a committee to be appointed by the State Democratic Chairman at a time and place to be announced later.

Official Democratic primary results of the non-binding presidential preference referendum May 3 showed Carter with 770,390 votes, 55.9 percent, Kennedy 314,129, 22.8 percent, Edmund G. Brown 35,585, 2.5 percent, uncommitted 257,250, 18.6 percent.

In the Texas Railroad Commission races, Commission Chairman John Poerner was defeated with 534,810 votes to 697,034 for Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll. Commissioner Jim Nugent defeated Jim Hightower 633,423 to 588,475.

For Place 1, Texas Supreme Court, Judge John C. Phillips of the Austin Court of Civil Appeals got 358,680 votes to go into a runoff with Judge Jim Wallace of the Houston Court of Civil Appeals, with 497,278. Wayne Scott, San Antonio law professor, was eliminated with 224,218 votes.

For Place 2, Texas Supreme Court, incumbent Associate Justice Sears McGee defeated Lawrence E. Bergman, Rowlett attorney, 557,697 to 477,264.

In the three races for Texas Court of Criminal Appeals:

Houston attorney Marvin Teague defeated incumbent Judge Leon Douglas 559,729 to 478,104.

Incumbent Judge W.T. Phillips with 336,759 votes goes into a June 7 runoff with Austin attorney Mike McCormick 416,049. John Humphreys, Dallas, was eliminated with 281,355 votes.

Incumbent Judge Tom Davis with 422,363 votes is in a runoff with Austin attorney Edith Roberts with 317,031 votes. Houston attorney

Walter Boyd was eliminated with 279,447 votes.

In contested congressional races, the official results showed:

District 2 — Rep. Charles Wilson, Lufkin, with 88,557 votes defeated Allen Summers, Lufkin, 25,338.

District 4 — Former state Sen. Ralph Hall, Rockwall, won over Denison Mayor Jerdy Gary, 36,874 to 27,341.

District 9 — Rep. Jack Brooks, Beaumont, won nomination with 26,343 votes. W.L. (Bubba) Pate had 22,188 and Jack Brookshire 3,600.

District 10 — Rep. J.J. Pickle, Austin, with 65,409 votes defeated Greg Stallings, Austin, 21,271.

Six Flags over Texas plugs Judge Roy Scream

ARLINGTON — On the heels of one of the most successful spring seasons in its 20-year history, Six Flags Over Texas will begin daily operation for the summer Saturday.

Since opening March 1, the Arlington theme park has hosted nearly a half million visitors from throughout the nation.

General Manager Ray Williams said the park's entertainment lineup is being bolstered for the summer months, with particular emphasis on nighttime entertainment.

A nightly fireworks show will begin May 24, and special entertainment will be featured each evening in the park's Music Mill Amphitheater beginning June 1.

Elvis impersonator Raymon Michaels will appear in the open-air theater six nights a week during the month of June. Each Friday night we'll see a top name entertainer on the Music Mill stage. The lineup for June includes Jerry Jeff Walker, Ronnie Milsap, Crystal Gayle and Kool and the Gang.

Williams said the park's new, wooden roller coaster, Judge Roy Scream, has carried more than 375,000 thrillseekers since its March opening.

Census takers in area completing follow-up

Census takers in this area are completing the first follow-up operation of the 1980 census, which involved contacting households that had not returned their census questionnaires by mail to the census office.

According to Mitzi Jordan, district census office manager, census enumerators in each county have been gathering the necessary information from households where the Census Bureau did not receive a mail response. This includes those which did not return their census questionnaires by the April 11 mail deadline as well as some households that did not receive a census form in the mail.

Ms. Jordan explained that in many rural areas and smaller communities, census questionnaires were not delivered by mail March 28 to some persons holding post office boxes or with a General Delivery address. Because the Census Bureau uses the "enumeration district" or physical area in which a household is located as its basis for counting, all questionnaires must have a code number showing the location. Where it was not possible to pinpoint a residence's location using only the post office box, forms could not be coded.

In those cases where census forms were not delivered by mail, a census taker should have called on the household during this first follow-up operation. Any persons who have not yet been contacted by a census taker, and who did not fill out the 1980 census questionnaire, are urged to call the district census office in Lubbock at (806) 762-7511, giving their name, address and phone number. A census taker will then call to assure that every individual is counted in the census.

A second follow-up phase of the 1980 census begins at the end of May and involves contacting households that returned incomplete questionnaires, additional checks on residences that had earlier been reported as "vacant" and further attempts to reach households not already counted. Because Census Day was April 1, all information given to the Census Bureau should show the status of the household on that date.

Friends of boys in sports to gather at Coahoma complex

Friends of boys in sports are being asked to gather at the Coahoma baseball complex at 8 a.m., Saturday to carry out a blitzkrieg attack on litter and weeds that scar the area.

All managers and parents of boys who will compete in the summer baseball programs have been given special invitations to help with the clean-up chore, bringing with them the tools needed to complete the job.

If the whole community bends to the task, it shouldn't take long to complete the job.
