Patio destroyed by winds, hail in local storm

A Tuesday night deluge that brought the county's rainfall above average proved not such a blessing for the historic Hatch home at 605 Bell.

High winds and hail collapsed the patio of the home, better known to Big Spring residents as Number 10 on local restaurant placemats.

Brenda Powers, resident, said, "When all the heavy hail hit and everything, we couldn't even get out the back door. The patio went through the windows."

Average rainfall for this time of year is 5.71 inches. Actual rainfall here totals 6.43 inches to date.

A tornado was indicated on radar about 15 miles northwest of Gail in Borden County but apparently it did no damage.

Ric Anderson, a Borden County rancher, who resides six miles west of Gail, said his place had winds of up to 50 miles per hour. Marble-sized hail fell along with heavy rains.

Anderson said the winds damaged his roof. The hail shredded some trees at his home. Anderson said an inch of rain fell in less than ten minutes.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday a small flash flood caused a city trash dumpster to float east on First St. and strike a pickup that injured Gary Richardson, Route 1, causing minor injury.

Nature made a mess of things in Coahoma, as well, where rain totaling 3.2 inches fell for the highest reported rainfall in the area.

Beverly Martin, Coahoma school employee, said, "One of our bus drivers came in and said every student he had, came from homes which sustained glass breakage."

A shack behind the Charles Thompson home, Midway Road, blew over the house and landed in a heap in the front yard, said Ms. Martin.

Hail in Coahoma increased from pea to marble size and finally to golf ball size.

Some items near windows inside homes were torn up when the windows broke, said Ms. Martin.

South of Big Spring, near Forsan, "One mobile home was moved off its blocks," according to J.F. Poyner, Forsan school superintendent.

"I really suspect we had a tornado above because of the suction in the houses," he said. He said a storm door he was trying to open wouldn't budge because of the suction.

At the Forsan school a bus left out of school was pulled by the wind into an air conditioner at a home across the street.

Screens were torn off the tennis courts. Vents were torn off the roof of the school. Antennas were bent, tree limbs and trees were severed.

In Big Spring, rain totaling up to 2.5 inches fell. "It fell in about 30 minutes," said Owen H. Ivie, general manager of Colorado River Municipal Water District. "That's what causes the flooding."

James "Red" Thomas, 107 E. 13th St., reported 1.85 total inches of rain, with 1.03 inches falling on the first wave of the storm.

At Lake Thomas, rain totaled 3 of an inch. At Lake Spence a trace fell.

At the upper end of Lake Thomas, a river is flowing eight feet deep. Ivie said eight feet was not much inflow but that the river was usually dry. "It is significant but not compared to what we had last week," he said.

At the Big Spring pump station four miles north on the Snyder Highway, a third of an inch was received.

Moss Creek Lake rose two feet from run off.

Southwest of Big Spring, Garden City received .04 of an inch of rain. A large amount of hail was received 10 miles north of there.

Northeast of Big Spring, in Luther, .7 of an inch fell at 5:30 p.m. East and south of there two to three inches with hail fell, some windows were broken.

Mrs. James Ellison, who resides south and east of Luther, reported "quite a bit of hail. It broke the rain gauge. Hail was less than marble size. It looked like snow. Hail piled up about 8 inches up against the north side of the home."

At the Ray Walker home, north of Big Spring, 1.6 inches fell mixed with pea sized hail. Suzy Walker said her son reported baseball size hail at his home, eight miles north on the Snyder Highway. Four windows were broken there.

Ackerly received .7 of an inch between 4 and 5 p.m.

The Wilkinson ranch west of town received .7 of an inch at 7 p.m. with high winds. A total of four inches fell there last Thursday.

The Big Spring U.S. Field Station on IS 20 received 1.77 inches.

At Lomax, southwest of town, .6 of an inch fell. In the Ackerly area residents received .75 of an inch between 7 and 8 p.m.

One inch of rain was reported in Knott and a half inch fell on Stanton.

The eastern part of Dawson County received 1.5 inches while most of the rest of the county had .03 of an inch.

Residents in a Midway Trailer Park Mobile home were not hurt when winds blew the roof off the home at 7:49 p.m. Howard County Sheriff's Deputies assisted the residents from the home.

Less than $1,000 needed to keep HH doors open

Less than $1,000 is now needed to insure the success of the Halfway House Fund.

Only six donations for the campaign arrived at the Herald during the 24-hour period ending at noon today but five of those were $100 each.

That brings collections to $12,644.88. The objective is $13,581.91, which means the campaign workers are now only $937.03 short.

Those planning on giving can make their checks out to the Halfway House Fund and mail them to the Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring 79720.

Hotel dies, memories survive

"Yesterday, All my troubles seemed so far away, Now I need a place to hide away, Oh, I believe in yesterday."

By WALT FINLEY

The Settles Hotel, a Big Spring landmark, will officially die today. But memories of activities in the 15-story structure will linger with thousands of persons.

A renovation program will convert the hotel into a downtown condominium, hotel employees said May 4.

However, today Mrs. Jerry McElreath, hotel manager, was not so optimistic.

"I live in the penthouse and it's flooded," she said. "The roof leaks and the water poured in last night."

"The hotel is apparently constructed over an underground spring or river. The big water pump burned up Saturday. Walls are weak as a result of runoff water. There are five busted places in the boiler room."

Mrs. McElreath said Bob Reed, hotel owner's representative boarded a plane bound for Dallas this morning. "He is supposed to let us know the owner's decision soon," she added. "I'll call you."

All but three of the tenants vacated the hotel. "We have a guest on the 14th floor, the 12th floor and the third floor," Mrs. McElreath said. "They have promised to be out of the building today."

The permanent hotel tenants of the hotel were advised May 1 of the changes planned.

A letter prominently displayed between two elevators on the first floor of the hotel states:

"Please be advised this letter constitutes thirty (30) days advance notice that you must vacate your apartment and — or space in the building no longer than 6 p.m. CST June 1, 1980, in order that the rehabilitation program be commenced."

The letter was signed by William P.

Wortley, Dallas, hotel owner, and Harry D. Hawm, a business associate.

Some of the tenants said they were ordered Tuesday to get out of the hotel.

Jerry McElreath, hotel maintenance chief for the past two and one half years, said Wortley with business offices at 2001 McKinley ave., suite 230, Dallas, owns hotels in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and Florida.

A crew of workers from Dallas were scheduled to start replacing present hotel windows with aluminum storm windows last week, McElreath said. The workers did not show up.

"The inside of the building is about half way gutted," McElreath said, "with most of the furniture already sold," he said May 4.

"Many tenants can't find a place to go," they can't afford to buy houses or pay rent charged by a lot of apartment owners in town."

McElreath said his "main job is seeing that tenants move out. I also work as security guard at night. I'm tired. I'm working a lot of hours and no rest."

"We've been talking about closing the hotel for about a year, but when it happened most of the tenants were shocked."

Asked what he thought killed the hotel, McElreath replied, "We didn't get through traffic guests due to the interstate highway system. Bus passengers and occasionally someone too drunk to continue his journey were about the only one or two-day customers we got."

Fame of the hotel was spread far and wide by sexy stories — some true and many untrue.

The $500,000 structure opened with a splash on Oct. 1 and 2, 1920.

"A pretentious program in keeping with the high type of service to be offered in this hotel is being arranged," "The Big Spring Daily Herald reported.

Michael Cool and his 11-piece stage band from Lake Worth Casino filled the 300-person ballroom to capacity both nights.

Course studies for SWCID authorized

The administration at Howard College was authorized by school trustees Tuesday to study seven new instructional programs, most of which relate to the Southwestern Institute for the Deaf and the former Webb AFB hospital which has been acquired by the college.

The college for the deaf, an adjunct of Howard College, opens its doors for the first time this fall.

The courses which could be started by the college concern Dental Hygiene, Operating Room Technology, X-Ray Technician, Fire Protection Technology, Lab Assistants, Interpretative Training and Optical Technology.

Douglas Burke, executive director of the Institute for the Deaf, told the trustees the idea of locating a school for the deaf had been endorsed by such prestigious groups as the International Parents Association of the Deaf and the American Deafness and Rehabilitation Association. The latter's membership consists of professional people who work with the deaf.

Cheri Sparks, who has been in charge of the Continuing Education Programs at the college, was named to succeed Terry Newman as Dean of Students. Her salary will remain unchanged for the time being.

Newman is leaving the educational field May 31 to enter private business.

Other resignations were accepted by Allen Moore, instructor in the school's Law Enforcement class; and Ronnie Phillips, instructor in Biology.

Moore has taken a position as a security officer for a firm which plans to give him an overseas assignment. Because government grants for Law Enforcement classes have been cut, a full-time successor to Moore likely will not be appointed.

Phillips, who has been with the college about eight years, is also getting out of the education field. He has been associated with a business in the Bryan-College Station area which has been demanding more and more of his time.

Mrs. Alma White, who has been working at the Big Spring State Hospital, will be moving to Lamesa to take a position as Director of the college's LVN training.

Admission standards for the Institute for the Deaf were adopted by the trustees after they were told by Burke that the school's campus at the site of the old Webb AFB had not yet been built and likely will not be ready until 1982. It was determined that the college will not accept students the school cannot adequately serve. High school students can be accepted at the college if they are gifted and are recommended by their high school superintendent or principal.

An Affirmative Action Plan, which has Mary Dudley as its coordinator, was adopted by the trustees. The school has more than the suggested minimum of female employees but has a shortage of applicants of ethnic origins, a complaint heard by smaller schools everywhere.

The school's fee for GED training was boosted from $5 to $10 on recommendation by the president.

Ms. Sparks explained in detail the Intensive English course being adopted by the college. Intensive English is designed especially to help international students and is strongly recommended by the federal government.

Ms. Sparks also said the college would absorb the CETA program which last year was assigned to the local high school. CETA students are given two hours of classroom work daily before being sent to different departments to polish their skills in work to which they aspire.

Trustees, architects meet to determine repair action

Trustees of Howard College decided at their regular board meeting Tuesday to meet a last time with representatives of the former architectural firm of Gary and Hertz before determining what action to take to get repairs done to the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The college has been withholding an estimated $20,000 from the final payment on the structure in hopes leaks in the coliseum would be repaired. Last week's heavy rains proved conclusively that (1) a major problem does exist in the coliseum, and (2) that the problem will endure until corrective action is taken.

The meeting with representatives from the architectural firm, scheduled later this week, will likely determine if the trouble is the result of a design or construction defect.

Unless the $2.5 million building is repaired, very serious problems will ultimately occur, according to college president Dr. Charles Hays.

The building, for the first time, leaked inside the big room. Parts of ceiling fell in other areas. Water stained the ceiling and walls in some areas and pools of water accumulated in some sections.

A legal consultant told Dr. Hays: "The problem likely will have to be settled in a court of law." The trustees indicated they were ready to take such action, if it comes to that.

The building's roof has leaked from time to time in the past but never had as badly as it did last week.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Bogus check laws

Q. What are the laws on writing hot checks in New Mexico?
A. Checks in the amount of $25 and over are handled by the district attorney's offices there. In Texas, checks below $200 are handled by justices of the peace. In New Mexico the writing of a hot check over $25 is a felony. The case can be presented to a grand jury and result in indictments. A district attorney's office spokesperson in New Mexico said there has not been a case prosecuted in the two years the program had been in effect in her district.

Fame of local hotel was spread by sexy stories

A group of girls including the hotel manager's daughter punctuated the dance with "specialty numbers."
Visitors from Dallas, El Paso, St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City and Louisville, Ky., came to see the luxury hotel in a city of 14,000.
Big Spring and hotel spokesmen showed little humility about the new skyscraper.
"I have no hesitancy of comparing in class, service and beauty the Settles Hotel to the New Yorker in New York City," said Fred W. Crow, a veteran of 28 years in hotel business and first manager of the Settles.
"In fact, I think this hotel is superior in many respects."
Cool's band was the first of a series of musical groups to play for those dining at the Settles.

Musicians entertaining during the early years included band leader Wilson Humber and his group, pianist "Jelly" Brooks; Blue Steel and his band and Jack Free and his band.
Big Springers considered the Settles restaurant one of the city's finest "back then." The restaurant last closed about four months ago.
Rupert Ricker, the Big Spring resident who assembled the block for the first major oil strike in the Permian Basin, taught a men's Bible class at the Settles several years. From 50 to 100 men frequently attended the class.
The Big Spring Athletic Club once rented facilities.
Former President Herbert Hoover and his son were among the famous to visit the Settles Hotel during the 1930s. Gregory Peck stayed at the Settles one night.

A playboy and winner of the British Open Championship, National Open Championship and the PGA Walter Hagen slept once at the Settles.
The man who made golf famous, called up Herald Editor Tommy Hart, then sports editor, and asked:
"You got a golf course?"
Big Spring had two. "Well, let's go play a round."
Coming from Tucson, Ariz., Lyle Talbot, who always lost his girl in the movies, spent one night in the local skyscraper.
For a time, during World War II American Airlines contracted for a whole floor of the Settles. Pilots and stewardesses stayed overnight, since Big Spring was a division point.
American had scheduled flights between here and Oklahoma City and

Los Angeles. Jess Maxwell, Glenn Golden and Woody Campbell were managers for American.
Organizations meeting regularly at the hotel until a few years ago included Rotary, Downtown Lions, Kiwanis, American Business Club, railroad lodges, an association of insurance agents and the Big Spring Club. The Eagles Lodge Hall was located in the hotel for years.
Continental Trailways, Kerrville bus line and Texas-New Mexico bus line had contracts with the Settles for lodging of their drivers. Texas & Pacific Railway trainmen also stayed at the hotel.
On the average, 15 to 20 railroad men and 20 to 25 bus drivers were tenants at the hotel in the good old days.
Housing construction ceased during World War II, and many hotels like the Settles had low rates when prices were frozen. Many persons stayed in hotels by the month.

The price freeze kept the Settles from profiting although it was packed.
"It and your Crawford Hotel, demolished in 1969, were houses of gaiety," one oldtimer recalled.
"It was just about impossible to get a room at the Settles," he said. Dances were staged there three times weekly.
Once a guest was pushed or jumped from the second floor and there have been suicides.
Guests in recent years were a lot quieter, but Charles Bradley, hotel employee "off and on" for the past 25 years said, "There's never a dull moment. Something new happening every day. The hotel was good for the town. I'm sorry to see this happen to the hotel and to the town.

Leroy Fife, who worked at the hotel as bell man or chief bellman from opening night until about a month ago, doubted the hotel was ever profitable except during the Snyder oil boom of 1948-1950.
"If the owners of the Settles made any money during World War II," Bradley said, "I didn't get my share. I was in a Japanese prison camp for 3 1/2 years. I wasn't released until after the war was over."
Manager of the hotel was asked to express her feelings about the death of the hotel.
Her reply was short: "I could just cry!"
So could a lot of other folks.

Digest

AMC joins big brothers

DETROIT (AP) — Small-car specialist American Motors Corp. is joining its industry big brothers in red ink and white-collar layoffs.
The smallest U.S.-owned automaker said Tuesday it would lose money in the current quarter and in its fiscal year, which ends in September. The company did not say how much money it expects to lose. Since tight credit aborted the spring sales revival in March, the Big Three companies all have announced heavy white-collar layoffs.
AMC has about 7,000 white-collar employees and 25,000 active production workers. Another 2,350 blue-collar workers are on indefinite layoff.

Secession gains support

AVALON, N.J. (AP) — The deputy mayor of Egg Harbor Township says a move to have eight southern New Jersey counties form a 51st state has picked up the support of four mayors and is being considered by 40 municipalities.
Joel Jacobovitz also said signatures to place the question on the November ballot are being gathered at the rate of 1,000 a week. And he predicted the question could pass because of "voter apathy" in the northern part of the state.
Backers of secession contend the Statehouse is controlled by North Jersey residents. If voters approve the measure, it would have to have the consent of the state Legislature and Congress.

Lance back in court

ATLANTA (AP) — Former U.S. budget director Bert Lance is back in court, asking a judge to clear him of three bank fraud charges.
Lance was acquitted last month on nine charges of misusing bank funds by making loans to relatives and friends. Jurors deadlocked on three other charges and U.S. District Judge Charles Moyer Jr. declared a mistrial on those counts.
Lance's lawyers argued the judge should direct a verdict of acquittal on the counts. Prosecutors last week said they had not decided whether to argue for a new trial. Moyer told both sides Tuesday to submit briefs on the issue.

Nurses walk off job

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Some services were suspended at Danbury Hospital when nurses walked off their jobs in a contract dispute.
The strike began Tuesday after the nurses, members of the Connecticut Health Care Association, rejected a contract offer that would have raised starting pay by 50 cents an hour to $6.60. The union, which represents the 227 nurses, said it wants $6.90 an hour.
No new negotiating sessions were scheduled.

B.T. Faulkner in hospital

B.T. Faulkner, a former Big Spring resident, remains hospitalized at St. Anthony's Hospital in Midwest City, Okla., following removal of a cancerous bladder.
Faulkner, father of Ben and Mike Faulkner of Big Spring, underwent new tests after suffering nausea. Doctors said the nausea was caused by a hernia near the esophagus and added that no operation would be needed to correct the problem.
Faulkner has eaten only solid food two days since checking in at the hospital April 21 but may shortly be allowed to return to that kind of diet. He has been told he might be allowed to leave the hospital at the end of the month.
He is in Room 2031 at the hospital.

Police beat Man charged with arson

A local man has been charged with arson in connection with a fire that occurred, 5:19 p.m. Tuesday, at 508 N. Lancaster.
Jesse Angel Vega, 24, 1502-A Virginia, is suspected of setting fires in three places in the home of his parents on Lancaster. According to Ricky Womack, local arson investigator, the home had been condemned, and the residents were in the process of moving when the fire started.
"We have a warrant for another person who may have been involved," said Womack, this morning. "We weren't so concerned about that home because it was condemned anyway, but that fire could have spread to other homes in the neighborhood."

A vandal sprayed black paint on the headlights, bumper and grill of a car belonging to Mrs. Earl Wilson, 2304 Roberts, while it was parked in the lot of Cowper's Hospital, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. Witnesses spotted a man leaving the scene, carrying a spray can of paint. Damage was estimated at $50.
Mitchem Auto Sales, 700 W. 4th, reported the theft of a 1976 Mercury Cougar from the car lot, Tuesday night. The car was recovered shortly after that on the 1900 block of Gregg, but the passenger window had been broken out.

Two mishaps were reported Tuesday.

Two members of the Howard County Democratic Party Executive Committee were present in County Clerk Margaret Ray's office Monday morning to determine the order candidates in the upcoming June 7 Democratic primary runoffs will appear on the ballot.

Cecil Riordan, the new Democrat head, and M.H. "Slick" Boatler, former Demo chief, attended a drawing of names for races for three state appellate judgeships.

The ballot in the primary runoff will read in the Associate Justice for Supreme Court, Place 1, John Phillips and Jim Wallace; in the Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 2, W.T. Phillips and Mike McCormick; and in the Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 3, Tom Davis and Edith Roberts.

Howard County will use paper ballots. Mrs. Ray said four voting polls will be open; one each in a commissioner's precinct. Those voting polls will be for commissioner, precinct 1, Cedar Crest School; for commissioner, precinct 2, Washington Place School; for commissioner, precinct 3, the 18th and Main Fire Station; and for commissioner, precinct 4, the 4th and Nolan Fire Station.

Those eligible to vote are anybody who is registered and did not vote in the Republican primary on May 3; in other words, those who voted in the Democrat's primary and those who did not vote at all on May 3 are eligible.

The estimated cost of the runoff in Howard County is $1,196.37, Mrs. Ray said. A total of 5,000 ballots will be printed.

Texas' high court races probably were the most overlooked political campaigns in the recent Democratic and Republican primaries.

The survivors hope they will get more attraction in three runoffs.

In the May 3 political, the low-key judicial races were overshadowed by a hot presidential primary contest, particularly when three of the men who want to be the next U.S. president spent much of the last week in Texas.

There also were two loud and bitter campaigns for the Texas Railroad Commission.

None of that will be around during the next month. This is a period of political calm while both parties organize internally for the late June state conventions and the July and August national conventions.

The leading statewide race in the June 7 second primary undoubtedly is the campaign to pick a successor to Associate Justice Zollie Steakley of the Texas Supreme Court, who is retiring.

Judge Jim Wallace, 51, of the Houston Court of Civil Appeals, a former state senator, faces Judge John D. Phillips, 63, of the Austin Court of Civil Appeals. The two went into a runoff when Wallace got 45.68 percent of the vote on May 3 and Phillips 33.28 percent, while Wayne Scott, 42, law professor at St. Mary's University, San Antonio, was eliminated with 21.04 percent.

Two seats on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals will be at stake in the runoffs.

For Place 2, incumbent Judge W.T. Phillips, 67, faces Austin attorney Michael J. McCormick, 35. In the first primary, McCormick got 40.59 percent of the vote and Phillips 32.82 percent. Dallas lawyer John E. Humphreys, 55, was eliminated with 26.58 percent.

In Place 3, Incumbent Judge Tom Davis, 58, got in a runoff with Austin attorney Edith Roberts, 47. Davis collected 41.33 percent of the vote while Ms. Roberts got 31.16 percent. Houston attorney Walter Boyd, 44, lost with 27.50 percent.

The judicial races may get some help when other runoff races stir up interest in selected areas of the state.

There are congressional runoff races in Dist. 14 that runs from Corpus Christi north into Central Texas, Dist. 22 in Houston, and Dist. 10 in Austin and Central Texas.

There also are 16 legislative runoff races in state House and Senate districts that include Lake Jackson, Henderson, Lufkin, Rep. Jack Brooks of Beaumont and Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas appear to be the wealthiest members of the Texas House delegation, according to financial disclosure statements released.

Brooks, whose wealth became an issue in a surprisingly tight Democratic primary victory earlier this month, reported holdings between $1.6 million and $2.8 million.

He listed his liabilities between $400,000 and $1.3 million.

Collins, a conservative Republican who represents affluent north Dallas and its suburbs, placed his holdings between $5.5 million and $11.2 million.

He attached to a long list of blue-chip stocks and other properties the claim that none of his stocks or bonds are in the areas closest to his legislative interests.

Collins said he does not hold stocks or bonds in banks or savings and loan companies; insurance companies; utilities; oil companies; airlines, railroad or bus companies; radio, television or cable companies; municipalities or governments; newspapers; shipping companies or hospital management companies.

As his only liability, Collins listed a land mortgage worth between $15,000 and $50,000.

The man who listens charms the ladies

The man who can figure out two of life's greatest mysteries could write his own ticket, so to speak, by letting his fellow males in on the secret. The two questions have plagued man since Adam and Eve were told their lease on the Garden of Eden had been terminated.

One of the questions is easy: "What does woman want?" The answer should be equally easy but it is not. Man has never figured out what woman wants, probably because a woman herself doesn't know.

THE SECOND QUESTION has been asked repeatedly in each generation. "What makes men attractive to women?" Lend that some thought. Can Adam's Rib herself supply the answer?

Some of the homeliest looking men in history have attracted some of the world's most beautiful women. The question is: Did they do it with looks, money or their charm? If we had to pick one of the three, we'd have to go with charm but what one would classify and isolate as bewitchment would turn aside another individual.

The late Aristotle Onassis attracted women like sugar lures flies, and not especially because of his money. Those who knew and studied him would have been irresistibly drawn to the female species, even had he been a barber. Physically, Onassis was anything but impressive. He was too short. He had very ordinary features and, as far as is known, he wasn't a masterful talker. But women were forever seeking out his company.

One thing is for sure: The man who rallies a great deal of energy and who acts supremely confident in the presence of the distaff side has a lot going for him. Invariably, women are impressed by the man who is sold (but not oversold) on himself.

The ugly man, more often than not, succeeds in charming la femme — perhaps because he tries harder. And he tries harder because he knows he has farther to go. Nature, he knows, has deprived him of the endowments he needs to compete, so he studies the prey with detachment and the curiosity of a man of science. To his credit, while the chase is going on, he never lets his attentions wander.

Some men of great wealth will tell you that it is easier to make your first million than it is to win the heart of a desirable woman, although the poor wretch will argue that point. The man who lacks material things will argue that his conquest would come much easier if only he could court with roses, Rolls Royces and weekends in the Bahamas.

The astute observer, the kind who is always studying human nature, says the real secret of the man who succeeds the most at turning the heads of the ladies is the good listener. It's a theory not hard to buy, since what male doesn't have to train himself to listen, or at least to appear to be listening? If he succeeds at marriage, he stays tuned in. And the more he listens, chances are the more fondly he is regarded by the better half.

So that brings us back to Square One? What does woman want?

Nothing like a win

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

The annual Bob Hope Amateur Golf Classic it definitely was not.

The scenery didn't even begin to compare with the luscious green golf courses that decorate Palm Springs, Calif.

And no, I didn't see Jack Nicklaus, Ben Greshaw or Tom Watson even once. I'm sure they had previous tournament commitments or they would have been there, no doubt.

WHERE'S "THERE"? The Sweetwater Municipal Golf Course. On location at this small town "resort", I observed a group of very amateur golfers, including my husband and father-in-law, play in a cow pasture pool tournament this past weekend. (If you're not familiar with West Texas lingo, cow pasture pool is synonymous to golf.)

I'm sure CBS was dying to televise the event. And I'm sure if it hadn't been for its previous contract obligation to show a "Dennis the Menace" rerun, it would have.

I was unable to attend the first day of the tournament. (I was slaving away down here Saturday at the Herald so you could wake up to a Sunday morning paper.)

And on that particular day — the day I didn't get to attend — the weather was beyond perfection.

The skies were colored a beautiful bright blue and the mercury on the thermometer was pushing past 90 degrees.

Because of such favorable conditions, most of the tournament participants, and their wives, wore short sleeved shirts and cut offs during the next day of competition, hoping to turn a shade or two darker in the rays of the Sweetwater sunshine.

Well that morning, the sun and a few rain cloud friends of his got together and made plans to make complete fools out of those golf enthusiasts down below. The sun took the day off, guess who filled in for him? Winter.

Billowy, gray-black clouds, which appeared as though they could burst at any given moment, hung overhead. I doubt that the temperature ever rose above 50 degrees. That would have been tolerable. But that wind out through our already chilled bodies like ice.

So much for the weather report. Back to golf...

I WISH I had taken my camera. The events would have made an incredible picture story. In fact, some of the things I saw would have raised CBS' ratings a good 35 percent.

Captions under a few of the pictures would have read:

"See the golfer aim at the little hole in the ground."

"See the golfer miss the hole."

"See the golfer give it another try."

"See the golfer miss again."

"See the angry look on the golfer's face when he hears the camera man giggle."

"See the golfer maliciously rid the camera man of his camera."

"See the camera man run."

It was cold out there, but we had a good time.

But you would think after braving winter-like weather to watch a bunch of frost-bit ten golfers hunt for their golf balls, I would have my quota of torture in for one month.

But to top it all off, my husband won consolation honors in his flight. Now he thinks he's Lee Trevino. He had a big enough head just being Deweyn Crow.

Oh, I hope he doesn't contemplate the idea of quitting his job, turning pro and moving to Palm Springs. We'd starve to death.

Castro's failure

Joseph Kraft

The flow of refugees from Cuba pierces another hole in the foreign policy of the Carter administration. For the administration sought to muffle confrontation with Cuba in a web of fuzzy ties with the Third World.

But the refugees challenge Washington directly. Behind the refugees, moreover, lies a catastrophic failure by the Castro regime precisely because of its Marxist commitments and its character as a Soviet satellite.

Fidel Castro himself confessed the failure of his regime in a remarkable, secret speech to the People's Assembly on Dec. 27. The speech was subsequently obtained by American officials. But it received almost no public attention — a sure sign the U.S. had gone out of the business of embarrassing Castro.

THE ESSENCE of Cuba's trouble is economic. Castro acknowledged that blight had ruined Cuba's main exports — sugar and tobacco. Almost all the yield from the two crops went to finance petroleum imports from Russia. As a result there were severe shortages of "foodstuffs, medications, and raw materials."

Efforts to make do by local production have apparently been a fiasco. Castro spoke of defects in "towels, bed sheets and mattresses." He referred to a clothing factory built in record time which produced trousers prone to tear and shrink. He spoke at length about inefficiency and corruption among party officials, about labor absenteeism and about consumer greediness. He said that in consequence of the economic failure, Cuba had "tens of thousands of youths out of work."

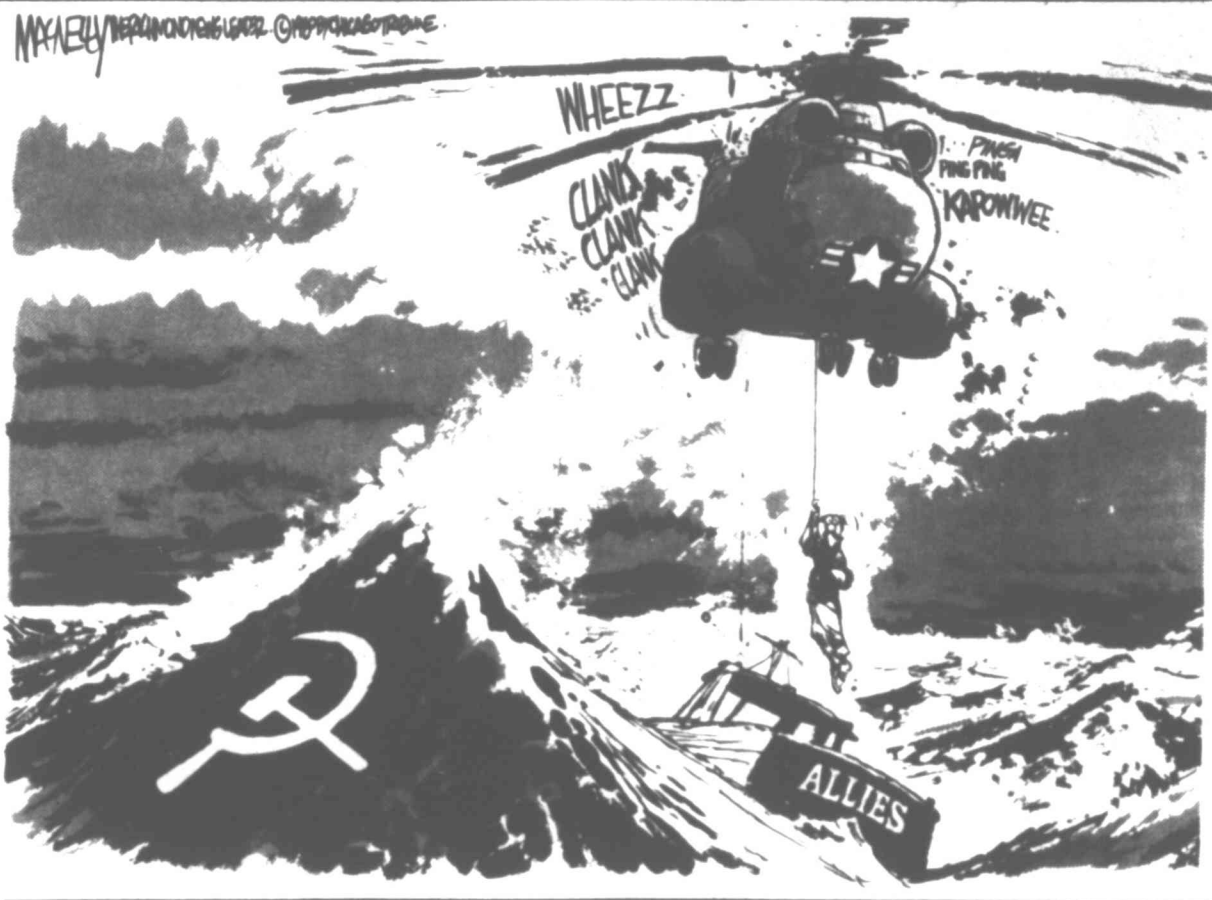

When it came to solutions, Castro rejected the idea of a new burst of revolutionary zeal. He took a shot at the Soviet Union, sarcastically suggesting that maybe "10,000 Cuban workers" could be sent to "produce lumber in Siberia." For lack of anything better, he came down hard for belt-tightening and efficiency. "We are in a terrible world crisis," he said. "We cannot conceive ambitious plans."

In retrospect it is clear that the flow of refugees was set in motion as a partial response to the crisis. Castro first moved to drive out surplus labor, especially unmarried males who represent the great potential for dissidence. He has since tried to maneuver the flow in ways that work to discredit the U.S. as unresponsive to Cubans.

The initial response of the Carter administration followed the policy of not getting crosswax with Castro. It breathed the same spirit that led to negotiations toward recognition of Cuba, that minimized Cuba's pro-Soviet role in Africa and the Caribbean, and that looked the other way at the time of the Russian combat brigade in Cuba.

In that same spirit, the administration started to treat the Cuban refugees as if they were refugees from anywhere else — not subject to special consideration because they were fleeing Castro. That approach was dropped only when the Cuban community of south Florida, with help from the governor, put pressure on Washington to have almost all the refugees accepted as persons seeking political asylum.

BUT NO SOONER was that change made, when the administration sought to avoid confrontation again. It moved to "multilateralize" the Cuban refugees question at a meeting of a score of countries in Costa Rica. The session there sought to concentrate upon Castro the condemnation of the international community.

Hair loss: Kind of hair important

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 69, a female in good physical condition. In the past year my hair has started falling out excessively. I'm told not to worry. Oh, yeah? Any answers like quick? — M.B.

Dermatologists like to categorize hair loss based on what kind of hair is being shed. About 80 percent of scalp hair is, at any given time, in the growing stage. Loss of that kind is called anagen effluvium, a term of resound and beauty meaning a "rainfall of hair."

If the hair is fully grown and the follicles are in the resting stage the loss is called telogen effluvium. By looking at hair under a microscope the doctor can tell what kind is falling out.

Finding out is not just idle curiosity. Causes of resting phase hair fallout can be a stressful event, like a high fever or a serious infection. The loss may not occur until two to four months afterwards. There is generally total recovery in four to six months.

Loss of growing hair (anagen) may stem from drug treatment. The kind that occurs during some forms of chemotherapy is an example of this. Growth returns after therapy ends.

Other causes of hair loss can be neatly pigeonholed. Patchy loss can occur if the body's immunity system goes haywire. Sometimes, steroids applied to the scalp help in this kind of loss. Illnesses associated with hair loss include thyroid disease, scleroderma and sarcoidosis. With these, only treatment of the illness helps check the loss. Hereditary male baldness causes the horseshoe-shaped loss, and not much can be done for that, short of transplants.

I hate to suggest a lot of things for you to worry about needlessly. Hair loss is really complicated, and only by determining the cause can specific advice be given. Normal people lose a hundred hairs a day from their scalps. That is of no concern. In answer to H.S. (another reader), vitamins do not restore hair.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can niacin be harmful? What does the flushing and pricking of the skin indicate when I take it? On occasion I have been so stiff in the morning I can hardly move. Is it "mental" that after the flushing the niacin produces I can move easier? I do not take other medication. I want to continue taking the niacin, but my daughter is upset that I take a "pill" that causes my skin to flush. Please advise. — M.L.

Niacin (nicotinic acid) is a B vitamin. Despite the similarity of spelling, nicotinic acid has nothing at all to do with tobacco nicotine. Niacin causes vessels to dilate (expand) and that is the reason for your facial flushing. It is the contact of the warm blood with the cooler skin surface.

The amount you tell me you are taking is not harmful. The B vitamins are soluble in water, so any excess amounts are passed out in the urine and not stored.

I can't comment on why your stiffness is helped by this. But, if it is great. At last, a beneficial side effect!

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had a bad cold recently and my new doctor would not give me a shot of penicillin for it. Before I always got a shot and my cold would disappear. Why was I refused a shot this time? — K.A.

Your doctor was trying to practice good medicine. Most colds are due to viruses. Antibiotics like penicillin, do not help viral infections. You must have read that here before if you are a regular reader.

Your doctor is trying to avoid unnecessary use of a medication that does no good for your cold and might only serve to lessen its effectiveness later on when you really need it. Regular antibiotic use can cause a person to be sensitized to it, making it less effective. If an upper respiratory infection is due to bacteria, or if an original virus infection leads to bacterial infection, then antibiotics may have to be used. Apparently your doctor didn't think you fit either category.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you have any comment on the area of bariatrics? Is it new? Is it an accepted specialty? — Mrs. W.L.M.

Bariatrics is the study of overweight, its causes, prevention and treatment. Some doctors specialize in this field, but so far as I know there is no specialty board designated as "bariatrics" in medicine.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write him care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I received a letter the other day promising me good luck if I would purchase a certain religious medal. It is in the shape of a pyramid, and is supposed to have special powers. Is this possible? — S.F.

DEAR S.F.: Don't waste your money. At best, a device like this is worthless. At worst, it could lead you into all kinds of strange occult and psychic ideas which are actually demonic. The Bible warns us against such things, and you should heed its warnings. When Paul visited ancient Ephesus, which was a center of pagan worship, so many people became Christians and turned their backs on the silver good luck charms which were made there that the silvermiths started an anti-Christian riot. (See Acts 19). The Christians knew they were not to have anything to do with such things.

One reason such things are wrong is that they are basically selfish. That is, a person wants good luck or good fortune so he will be happy and have an easier life. He is not concerned about God's will, nor is he concerned about the needs of others. Another reason we are not to have anything to do with such things is that they easily take the place of God in our lives. If you believe a "religious" medal or a good-luck piece is going to help you, why should you bother to turn to God and trust Him? Why pray, or seek God's will, if the medal has such powers in it?

Nothing should take the place of God in our lives. God loves us, and we can know that we are His children and He watches over us if we will turn to Him and accept His Son into our hearts by faith. Jesus Christ died on the cross to deal with our greatest problem — sin. Our problem is not that we need more luck. Our problem is that we need forgiveness. We are separated from God, and all the good-luck medals in the world will not bring us one inch closer to God. Only Christ can do that — and He will if we turn to Him.

Justice probed

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department has come to the rescue of U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt, who once privately but pointedly assured FBI investigators that he was "not an FBI man" in his courtroom.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is quietly investigating the department's handling of serious allegations against Pratt, and it now appears that important evidence of Pratt's misconduct has been withheld from the committee.

Pratt's is one of 14 politically sensitive cases being looked into by the Judiciary Committee, spurred by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. The Justice Department has refused to let the chief of its Public Integrity Section of the department's Criminal Division, Thomas H. Henderson Jr., testify, but instead has sent the Senate committee written responses.

IF THE DEPARTMENT'S reply to the charges against Pratt is typical, it demonstrates the need for a thorough investigation of the way cases of official corruption are handled.

I broke the story of Judge Pratt's misconduct on April 12, 1979. My associate Gary Cohn turned up strong evidence that Pratt and his secretary had conspired to delete from court records some remarks made by the judge. Moreover, we obtained evidence that Pratt's secretary ordered the court reporter to destroy his stenographic tape of the judge's remarks. A conspiracy to destroy court records is a felony punishable by up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The evidence — including a secretly taped conversation between Pratt and his court reporter — shows that the judge lied to FBI agents who interviewed him about the allegations. Incredibly, a Justice Department official wanted to warn Pratt about the incriminating tape before he was interviewed, but the FBI agents correctly refused.

Most serious of all, the evidence quoted Judge Pratt as reminding the FBI agents that he was "very pro-government and especially pro-FBI."

If this was an empty boast designed to defuse the FBI investigation of Pratt and his secretary, it would be bad enough, constituting a possible obstruction of justice. But if it was indeed true, it means that plaintiffs and defendants appearing against the government during Pratt's dozen years on the bench were not given fair and impartial treatment by the judge.

Yet despite the tampering with court records and the attempt to influence an FBI investigation, the Justice Department told Senate aides: "A Public Integrity Section investigation revealed that Judge Pratt engaged in absolutely no criminal activity."

He "never covered up any impropriety by altering court transcripts," the department's statement said. Yet it acknowledges that the court reporter refused repeated orders from the judge's secretary to "destroy his notes ... and to cover up the deed."

The Justice Department states flatly that Pratt "never pressured the FBI in any way during the investigation," despite substantial evidence to the contrary in the department's own files.

Pratt was let off the hook, and an even stronger case against his secretary was dropped when she agreed to resign.

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

The weekend of April 24-27 the newly elected student council officers of Big Spring High School attended the annual Texas Association of Student Council's State Convention. This convention was held in Austin, Texas. A local car dealer in Big Spring loaned the Student Council a station wagon to travel in. This enabled us to travel together in one car with one sponsor.

Through the kindness of Jack Lewis, we were able to have a great time, and a successful trip. Once again, the Council appealed to the community for help, and you answered our appeals. We are looking forward to a successful year for the Student Council and Big Spring.

We thank Lewis for his continued support and help with our projects. We really appreciate his concern for the young people of Big Spring.

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank the Herald, the YMCA, and Sportsworld for sponsoring the "Road Runners Classic." I hope those who participated for the first time saw that the real meaning of such is not coming in first, but reaching one's personal goal. All those who finished should feel self-satisfaction. And the fellowship with other runners — the pre-race nervous chatter and the post-race discussion of each turn in the road — makes the sport of running more than just a physical workout.

Roland and Pam Beal of Sportsworld should be given special thanks for their support. They furnished nearly 200 T-shirts, a pair of running shoes to top male and female finishers in each race, and numerous prizes and trophies. This is a very generous donation from Sportsworld in that it was the only store to contribute. They are interested in the runner and are putting up a special bulletin board in their store for notices and entry blanks of upcoming races.

Again, thanks also to the Herald and YMCA. The Herald did a fantastic job publicizing and covering the event. I also appreciate the Y's (especially Nadine Teague's) interest in the runners.

Sherill Easterling Coahoma, Tex.

Computer greets callers

A computer's voice is greeting long distance callers at coin telephones here.

The computer's voice, which is not a recording but a voice actually produced by a computer, is part of the new Automatic Coin Toll Service (ACTS) being introduced by Southwestern Bell.

The female-voiced computer is programmed to tell coin telephone customers the amount of money needed to complete 1-plus long distance calls, said Southwestern Bell spokesman Ben Young, manager.

"The computer also tells customers when the initial calling period is over and how much money to deposit for longer calls," Young said.

"The computer is programmed to calculate the cost of a call and then verbalize that calculation to the customer. And, like operators, the computer is polite, saying 'please' and 'thank you,'" Young said.

"The system was designed to provide faster coin telephone service and help us hold down costs," he said. "Increasing call volumes normally require the addition of operators from one year to the next, but ACTS will help reduce the number of new people we need to hire."

ACTS also will free telephone operators for other duties, such as handling 0-plus long distance calls. Operators will take over from ACTS should there be difficulties in placing 1-plus calls.

"Since the computer system can't hear — it can only talk — we've made it possible for customers to contact an operator simply by depressing that switch hook on coin phones, Young said.

He added that the ACTS computer has the capacity to handle some 240 coin calls simultaneously and also will notify residential and business customers of time and charges for long distance calls when requested.

Program to stress stamp value

The Postal Service will launch a new program this month designed to acquaint its customers with the educational benefits of stamp collecting.

Big Spring Postmaster Frank Hardesty said the campaign, called "Collect the Spirit of America," will focus on stamps issued in recent years that commemorate various aspects of American life and history. "Our window clerks will be showing our various philatelic products to customers and answering questions about stamp collecting," the Postmaster said.

Philatelic products offered by the Postal Service during the two-week campaign starting May 19 include Stamps & Stories, a 256-page book designed to introduce non-collectors to stamp collecting.

Other products include the 1978 and 1979 Mint Sets containing all commemorative and special stamps issued by the Postal Service during these years. New collectors can also obtain several topical stamp collecting kits being offered during the program.

Hardesty explained that stamp collecting has become the world's most popular hobby, attracting more than 20 million collectors in the United States alone.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Videotape is emerging as a potent and versatile communications tool for business. Since 1973, the number of businesses employing video has risen 25 percent annually," says Dan Roberts of US JVC Corp., a manufacturer of industrial video products.

"Properly and creatively used, videotape can add excitement and impact to a business message."

In a growing number of corporations, he says, videotape is taking the place of film or slides for much of their training and communications.

To White House conference

Texas governor appoints local woman as delegate

Eadie (Mrs. Avery) Falkner, 708 W. 17, was appointed by Texas Governor Bill Clements recently as a delegate to the National White House Conference on Families in Los Angeles, Calif., July 10-12.

"It still seems like a beautiful dream, the way it all happened," she said. "Nelda Reagan, president of Eagle Forum, recommended me to Governor Clements as did Charlie Stenholm, Congressman, Mike Ezzell, State Representative, and several prominent Big Spring residents. I wrote a letter, also, sending my resume, but didn't dream that I had a chance to be one of the delegates that the Governor would appoint."

"I am really excited about attending the National Conference in July! I attended the Conference on Families in Lubbock at the Civic Center on March 8 and participated on a panel."

"I received a letter and phone call from Jonathan Hole, Texas Director White House Conference on Families, Austin, telling me that I was being considered by the Governor as a delegate, about two months ago. About three weeks ago I received the Texas Report from Governor Clements and also the list of 53 delegates he had appointed and my name was on the list."

Mrs. Falkner's qualifications as set forth in Nelda Reagan's the Eagle Forum's president, letter recommending her are that she is a senior citizen and mother of three sons, Avery Falkner Jr., Agoura, Calif.; John Falkner, Lubbock and Riley Falkner, Big Spring and grandmother to four, two grandsons and two granddaughters.

Avery Falkner is a detective on the Big Spring police force which qualifies her to speak out in the area of crime. Mrs. Falkner is church secretary for the 14th and Main Church of Christ. She has been employed for 22 years in three other jobs including this one.

The Falkner's will have been married 43 years July 3.

Other activities of Mrs. Falkner are as a member and past president of the Lion's Auxiliary. She went on a Campaign for Christ to Jamaica in 1974; attended the Stop ERA rally in Austin April, 1977; attended the Pro-Family Rally in Houston during the International Women's Year convention; attended the debate of Phyllis Schlafly and Karen DeCrow in Lubbock January 1979 and was tour host for the David Meiers Tour Group, 1977 and joined the Eagle Forum January 1979, both national and local.

EADIE FALKNER

Forum January 1979, both national and local.

Jimmy Carter proposed that the federal government "examine the strengths of American families, the difficulties they face and the ways in which family life is affected by public policies" as a candidate for president in 1976.

President Carter has followed through on the idea in calling for three regional White House Conferences on Families. Participants will be official delegations from the 50 states.

Organizers of the conference don't want them to "deteriorate" into more forums for the continuing debates on abortion, "gay rights" and the Equal Rights Amendment. However, in the eyes of Texas' 78-member delegation, the conference has a moral responsibility to address those volatile issues.

"The State's official 20-page written report, prepared for the western regional gathering in Los Angeles, is a conservative clarion call for revitalizing "traditional" family structures."

Texas' 20-page report represents the views of 3,415 state residents heard at five regional forums, written in to Austin or called in on one of six toll-free "hotlines" to the governor's office. Their opinions about the family were ranked according to the number of times particular topics were mentioned.

1. Preserving the traditional family definition (cited by 707 persons in either their written or oral testimony) 2. Pro-life, anti-abortion (698) 3. Government intrusion into family life (642) 4. Inflation (637) 5. Anti-ERA (572) 6. Anti-sex information in the public schools system (516) 7. Government intrusion into education (497) 8. Opposition to federal funding of day care centers (482) 9. Opposition to the teaching of secular humanism in public schools (440) 10. Concern about declining morality (427)

Margaret Baillargeon, who chaired the forum on families in Dallas last month, said, "Texas made a concerted effort to make sure that ordinary citizens knew they were invited to contribute to the state's official report at the White House Conference on Families."

The Eagle Forum of Howard County will meet in Texas Electric Reddy Room at 7:30 p.m. Thursday evening, Cindy Miller, Midland, who was the initial speaker upon organization of the Forum will be speaking on these issues.

Dear Abby

Straightening Out A Gender Bender

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman with the deep voice who was tired of being called "sir" on the telephone could have been written by me.

I like the way Bea Arthur handled it on one of the "Maude" episodes.

When a telephone caller said, "Yes Mr. Findlay," Maude replied, "This is Mrs. Findlay. Mr. Findlay has a mustache."

VERA IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR VERA: Should you ever sprout a mustache (and many 45-year old women do), here's an alternate solution for handling it:

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the 45 year old woman with the deep voice who is frequently called "sir" on the telephone. Why should anyone assume you are a "sir" or a "madam"?

My solution works great. Example:

Operator: May I have the number of so and so?

Operator: "Sir, the number is —"

Me: "Thank you sir."

Operator: (Slightly annoyed) "You are speaking to a lady."

Me: "Oh really? Well, so are you."

Operator: (Somewhat surprised) "Oh, please excuse me."

Abby, as you said, skip the correction unless it's important to the gender bender, but I have found this a good way to treat myself to a chuckle instead of being annoyed.

SNAPPY COMEBACK

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for you older people that will make future generations bless you. Get busy and go through all those family pictures you have stored away in boxes, and label them with names, dates and places if possible.

I recently found a box of family pictures in my mother's attic, and so many of them had no identification whatsoever. I could have cried.

There was one wedding picture of a stunning couple with only "1882" scribbled on the back. How I wish I knew who they were!

Another picture shows a couple, about 60, with "Missouri" stamped on the back. My great-grandparents left Missouri in the mid '20s, so it could be them. But we'll never know for sure.

There were several beautiful baby pictures, but very few had names or dates on the backs and no one in the family can identify them now.

Future family genealogists will bless you for providing names, dates and places for these old family pictures.

FRUSTRATED IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Thanks for a great idea. Readers, act now — or all those priceless pictures will become strangers without names, and a precious part of your family history will be lost forever.

DEAR ABBY: Would it be ethical for my husband and me to stipulate in our wills that the gold in our teeth be removed upon our demise and returned to our estate?

People aren't buried with jewelry, so now that gold is so valuable, why not?

After the mortician is through, who's to know anyway?

PRACTICAL PERSON

DEAR PRACTICAL: It would be ethical, but whether it would be practical is another matter. My dentist informs me that the gold in one's teeth usually isn't worth extracting.

P.S. Since most wills are read after the deceased has been buried, if you have any instructions for the mortician, better leave them with your family, lawyer, physician, clergyman or the mortician himself while you're still able.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Sex symbol now mother

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Ursula Andress, a sex symbol during the mid-1960s, has become a mother — at age 44.

The Swiss-born actress gave birth to her first child Monday — a 6-pound, 10-ounce boy — according to Tess Griffin, a spokeswoman for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. She said Tuesday that mother and son are "doing just fine."

Miss Andress — who appeared in such films as "Dr. No," "Casino Royale" and "What's New Pussycat?" — is not married. She has said the father of the child is actor Harry Hamlin, who she described in a recent interview as "a beautiful man."

Miss Andress is the former wife of John Derek, who is currently married to sex symbol Bo Derek.

McCartney felt stupid

LONDON (AP) — Rock superstar Paul McCartney says being caught in Japan with eight ounces of marijuana in his luggage made him feel "really stupid, like a schoolboy caught smoking a ciggie in the lavatory."

"I goofed. I didn't check if I was carrying any grass with me," McCartney said in an interview here. He said he has spent much of his time since the January arrest — when he was forced to spend nine days in a Tokyo jail before he was deported — at his farm in Sussex County and his cottage in Scotland.

He said he had no hard feelings about the incident. "I still don't feel that grass is that dangerous a drug," said the former Beatle. "I know Scotch is worse for you than grass — it is for me, anyway."

Monroe different in work

NEW YORK (AP) — Sir Laurence Olivier thought Marilyn Monroe was enchanting — until they worked together. "It was dreadful," says the celebrated English actor.

Olivier's comments came in an interview with ABC-TV reporter Barbara Walters that will be aired June 10, said the New York Daily News, which said it had an advance peek.

According to the News, Olivier saw the late sex symbol as a mixture of "two clearly demarcated, entirely different people."

"One was the most enchanting girl I ever met. I thought, 'this is terrible, I'm going to fall in love with this girl so much,'" Olivier said.

Then, as the two worked together in the 1957 film, "The Prince and the Showgirl," "it became obvious to me that when she was working, she was an entirely different person."

"She was thoroughly ill-mannered...she humiliated me and put me through the most dreadful time," said Olivier. "Being a star and being an actress is not necessarily the same thing."

Good vs. evil returns in 'Star Wars' sequel

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Force" is with us again.

Starting today in 126 theaters in North America, Darth Vader breathes down the neck of the rebel alliance; Chewbacca growls at danger; and Luke Skywalker lets "The Force" — a strange, mystical power — guide him.

"The Empire Strikes Back" — the sequel to the most successful film in history, "Star Wars" — blends old and new elements in its story.

To begin with, producer-creator George Lucas has subtitled the movie "Episode V" and says there will be seven other "Star Wars" films. In addition, a Muppet plays a central role and the soldier-of-fortune Han Solo gains a larger part, one that includes some romance with the Princess Leia.

What is the same is the avalanche of special effects and national attention.

In Hollywood, fans camped outside a theater for 36 hours to see the initial showing of the sequel.

One of those standing in the drizzle outside the Egyptian Theater, Terri Hardin, said the 36-hour encampment was not nearly as difficult as the three-year hiatus between films.

"We're waiting for our high. It's in that door. You know, we don't want anything else. We don't need anything else," said Miss Hardin.

"The Force is with us and it's going to carry us right on into that theater," she said.

Miss Hardin had been firmly entrenched on Hollywood Boulevard with 12 or 13 other fans since early Monday, even though tickets — priced at a record $5.50 each — didn't go on sale until 11 p.m. Tuesday. The screenings began at 12:01 a.m. today and continue for an unprecedented 72 hours, said Egyptian Theater executive Roy Evans.

It's that kind of fanatical devotion that enabled "Star Wars" to earn $300 million in box office receipts since it was released in May 1977. And 20th Century-Fox officials feel that kind of fervor portends success for the sequel.

End to OCAW strike nearing in Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union workers at the Gulf Oil Co. refinery in Port Arthur have voted to rescind an earlier resolution to stay off the job until three fired workers were reinstated.

A union official, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday the crucial vote by 800 to 1,000 union members could signal an end to the 134-day-old strike by 2,400 union members at the Gulf refinery.

Seismic exploration Demand of landowners for higher fees hit

Rapidly rising fees demanded by private landowners and administrators of public lands are forcing some exploration companies to back away from prospective seismic studies, according to Charles F. Darden, president of the International Association of Geophysical Contractors.

Joe H. Smith, president of Petrophysics Inc., of Houston, says landowners in the Big Spring area are among the worst offenders and, in a sense, "are cutting off their noses to spite their faces."

Smith, who grew up in Big Spring, conducted a series of seismic studies in this area a couple of years ago. At that time, Smith commented that area landowners were becoming increasingly hard to deal with.

"Greed may be too strong a description for the phenomenon," Darden told a news reporter in Houston recently, "but the situation has changed markedly from some years ago when landowners demanded no basic fee for seismic exploration as long as the seismic company stood good for restoration of the land."

"It evolved in a few places to where the landowners negotiated fees on a per line-mile basis, plus damages," Darden added. "Now the trend in most areas of the country has seismic companies paying hole money — fees per shot or shot point instead of the line mile. With one hole every 40 or 50 feet, you can run up a significant cost there."

In addition, Darden said, many landowners are claiming additional damages over and above the hole money. "The fees originally were intended to compensate for such damage," Darden stated.

JOE SMITH

"Now they amount to excess fees, with damages added up."

"Permit fees used to amount to about 4 or 5 percent of the total seismic costs," Darden added. "Now they are approaching 15 percent. And even that's not going to be a high number if things keep escalating the way they are."

According to Darden, those higher fees often are added to the total amount which a seismic company charges the operator for whom it is doing the work. But, he added, some clients now are specifying maximum limits to what they'll pay, forcing seismic contractors to absorb some of the higher land fees.

"As the costs increase," Darden said, "it's reaching the point where many clients are reconsidering plans for seismic work in some areas."

Darden said the demand of landowners for higher fees for seismic crews to work their land is ironic in light of the possible benefits from seismic findings.

Thousands of travelers trapped by volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — An estimated 5,000 travelers stranded by the shutdown of ash-clogged highways and airports jammed shelters across Washington as the death toll from the devastating eruption of Mount St. Helens climbed to 10. Gov. Dixy Lee Ray asked President Carter to declare the state a disaster area and officials kept wary eyes on a dam of mud and debris that stood between the waters of Spirit Lake and the residents of cities below the mountain.

Officials listed 98 people were missing following the blast that a scientist described as a "unique event" in the history of Mount St. Helens. And the cloud of ash that blanketed much of the West and Midwest with a layer of grit moved today across the eastern third of the country. "I feel as though I have just come back from a trip to the moon," Miss Ray said after a helicopter tour over dozens of miles of flattened trees and mud-devastated homes.

About 1,000 people had been evacuated from homes near the volcano, while untold numbers of others found temporary lodging without assistance and never checked with authorities, said Ben Dew of the state Department of Emergency Services. The number of known victims of the blast and mudslides rose late Tuesday to 10 and Cowlitz County Sheriff Les Nelson said the toll from the Sunday eruption would climb much higher. He said he expected a party of eight campers to be declared dead, since their campsite was obliterated. As eruptions subsided to a column of steam rising to an altitude of about 11,000 feet, U.S. Geological Survey volcano hazards expert Dwight R. Crandell said the waters of Spirit Lake were likely to remain impounded behind mud and debris piled as high as 200 feet along the first 17 miles of the North Fork of the Toutle River. Officials had feared that the blockage might give way, causing floods.

Lightning strikes child during storm

By The Associated Press
A band of low clouds hung over most of the state today, spawning heavy thunderstorms that battered the Hill Country and parts of Southeast Texas.

was struck by lightning near Keller, just north of Fort Worth. The child was taken to Hurst-Eules-Bedford Hospital, where she was listed in critical condition, hospital authorities said.

An upper air disturbance triggered thunderstorms that slowly inched southeastward across the state. Light rain, accompanied at times by intense lightning, dampened North Texas on Tuesday night. The National Weather Service reported the Dallas-Fort Worth area received "probably less than a quarter-inch."

Forecasters predicted scattered thunderstorms would continue over the eastern half of the state through tonight, with partly cloudy skies and widely scattered thundershowers over West Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s, but ranged from the 50s in the Panhandle to the 80s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and along the coast.

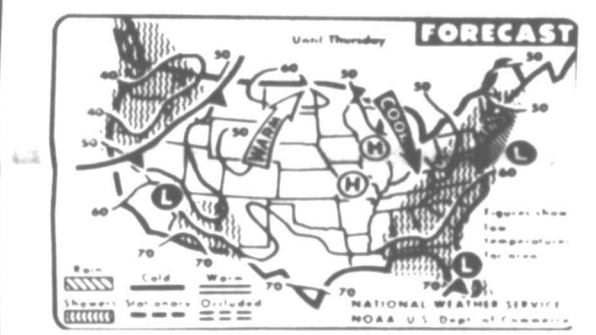

Mineral Wells received the heaviest rainfall, 1.75 inches in 30 minutes, the weather service said.

Marfa was the coolest spot in Texas at 48 degrees, while Brownsville and McAllen both reported 76.

During the storm, 11-year-old Patricia Leigh

Winds generally were variable at 5 to 10 mph.

Arson played down in Jamaica fire

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Prime Minister Michael Manley played down suspicions of arson in the poorhouse fire in which 153 women were killed or missing but said it could not be ruled out.

Manley told Parliament the fire early Tuesday was "of unknown origin up to the present time." But he added that "the possibility of arson cannot be ruled out."

Earlier in the day, the prime minister told reporters first reports from the security forces "indicate strongly that this may have been the work of arsonists."

But as hundreds gathered at the site of the fire, he said "rumors were rife" among them and appealed for calm.

It was unclear what effect the fire might have on an already heated political situation resulting from deep economic crisis that has prompted riots over food shortages and violence in which police say eight people have been killed.

Opposition leader Edward Seaga told Parliament he and his Labor Party were concerned about other recent fires, and that many residents of the old folks' home had been his constituents.

Survivors told of sudden panic and a frantic rush to grab what few possessions they had as they ran for their lives.

An assistant in the ward, Vida Wedderburn, said people began shouting, "Fire! Help!"

"We saw fire on the eastern side of the Myers Building... They (the firemen) came quickly but by that time the whole building was burned down and everybody burned up."

Joyce Aikman, a resident who survived, said she yelled next Monday a day of national mourning, and Manley said the government would make all arrangements for the burial of the victims.

Cannibal Draw Reunion will be held Friday

The third annual Cannibal Draw Reunion will be held starting at 7:00 p.m., Friday rather than Saturday, as announced in Monday's edition of the Herald.

A number of people from out-of-town plan to attend the Friday dinner, which will be held in the Brandin' Iron Restaurant on US 87 South.

H.M. (Mack) Underwood, who organized the reunion for people who resided in the old Cannibal Draw area in the eastern part of Big Spring more than 50 years ago, said he was looking for a record turnout exceeding 55 for the event.

The event will be stag but Underwood said discussions would be held during the meeting on whether to invite wives and girl friends to future meetings.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Any changes you want to make with associates should be postponed to another day to be more effective. Be wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who is resolute and conscientious in handling regular duties, so give an education that could lead to much success during lifetime. Be sure to give ethical training early in life.

Rural town kills meeting

COVERT, Mich. (AP) — While most eyes were on the presidential primary, the residents of Covert Township in Van Buren County were considering another crucial issue: whether to abolish the township's annual meeting.

When the unofficial tally was in Tuesday night, the town meeting was no more.

Residents of the southwest lower Michigan community decided 124-45 to end the yearly gathering because business that had been conducted there — setting salaries, establishing a budget — was being resolved in weekly supervisors' meetings or settled by the state legislature.

Skiers won't stop

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — It's been fun-in-the-sun as scantily clad skiers swoosh down the slopes at Killington this week.

"They're out there in shorts," Foster Chandler, vice president and director of marketing for the ski resort in Fayston, said Tuesday.

Killington officials hope to remain open until Friday, making it the last ski resort in Vermont to close this year.

The central Vermont ski area doesn't need to advertise for warm weather skiing, said Chandler. "The regulars keep showing up. They're the die-hard skiers who want to get in a few last runs."

Over the weekend, a group of 88 turned up at Killington, said Chandler. But he said most wanted to picnic or just bask in the sun.

On Tuesday, there were more tourists than skiers riding the ski lift to Killington Peak in order to admire the spring scenery.

Chandler said if the season stretches to Friday, Killington will have put in 221 skiing days. That number represents one of the resort's longest seasons, despite the lack of snow this winter.

But there's no secret to the resort's success. Chandler said it was just a matter of having a well stocked supply of man-made snow.

HC Men's Rodeo Team wins trip to national finals

A strong showing during the spring season has earned the Howard College Men's Rodeo Team second place in the regional standings and a trip to the national finals scheduled for next month, according to team coach Skipper Driver.

The Howard College Women's Team finished third in the region by only 130 points and will not be eligible as a team for the finals to be held in Bozeman, Mont. June 16-21.

The regional standings were announced last weekend following the final rodeo of the year held at Tarleton State University in Stephenville, Texas. The HC women won third and the HC men took fourth in the rain soaked, mud mired rodeo.

Pam Mitchell, a sophomore from Alamogordo, N.M., capped her first place regional finish in goat tying with a first in that event at the Tarleton rodeo in a time of 11.04. Her first place standings qualifies her for goat tying at the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association finals.

In addition to her first in goat tying, Mitchell also placed fourth in breakaway roping at the Tarleton rodeo.

Annette Mitchell, an HC freshman, won fourth in goat tying with a time of 11.74 seconds.

Ronnie Werner, New Braunfels sophomore, won all-around cowboy at last weekend's rodeo with a first in bull riding and a second in steer wrestling.

Jessie Doss, freshman from Big Spring, took first in calf roping with a time of 12.19 and Wes Smith, freshman from Carlsbad, N.M., finished second at 12.24 seconds. Jim Bob McNeil won fourth with a time of 12.49.

Smith teamed with Mac Algizer of Sul Ross University to place third in team roping. Smith also split fourth, fifth and sixth places in saddle bronc riding.

Cody Lambert, a freshman from El Paso, won third place in saddle bronc riding, while James Garlick, freshman from Van Horn, took fifth in bareback riding.

Lambert and Garlick also placed high in the regional standings in individual events. Lambert won all-around cowboy for the region and Garlick finished second.

Lambert placed first for the year in saddle bronc riding and Garlick finished third in bareback riding.

Smith earned third place finishes for the region in both steer wrestling and team roping.

HC will send a team of six cowboys and Pam Mitchell to the NIRA finals. The first and second place teams and first and second place individuals in each event from each region are eligible for the finals.

There are 10 regions of the NIRA in the nation.

Driver said HC has a chance of winning the national finals, if the men have a good rodeo.

"Everyone starts with zero points, so we have a chance to win the championship up there," he said.

Driver's optimism rest on the strength the men have shown this spring. "Sul Ross has had a tremendous lead all year, but we cut the gap and moved into second place after our rodeo."

"They've done a real good job. I'm proud of them," Driver added.

"There was kind of a lull in there and it threw them behind. It was close all the way around. They only lost by 130 points," he said.

Farm Old problem recently recognized

The old, familiar problem of blister beetle poisoning has been recently recognized in commercial horse feed.

County Agent Don Richardson said the problem is not a crisis and "we do not want people to panic."

Blister beetle poisoning in livestock has been a widespread problem in the southwest for years, but frequency of toxic poisoning is low. Cantharidin is a toxic substance produced in the glands of blister beetles, Richardson said.

Livestock poisoning occurs when animals eat fresh-cut forages or hay which was harvested while blister beetles were feeding. Beetles feed in swarms in small areas of a field so generally only a small fraction of the forage is contaminated.

Richardson said cantharidin is highly toxic to horses and they may develop colic by eating only two to five beetles. Blister beetles can be found in any type of forage — weeds or other blooming plants are located in the fields. Beetles are more attracted to alfalfa, however, because of flowering at harvest. Alfalfa is an excellent horse feed and the agent does not discourage its use as a livestock feed.

The blister beetle problem is not unique to Texas, and purchasing hay from other states does not solve the problem. The level of toxic cantharidin will vary between individual insects of the same species, and animal reaction depends on the number of beetles consumed.

Richardson said a good understanding of the beetle's life cycle and feeding habits will help plan management strategies to reduce financial losses. The female beetle deposits up to 1,000 eggs in the ground. The larvae feed on insects eggs. Grasshopper eggs are the main host for developing immatures, and this close association causes concern for the 1980 production season since grasshopper numbers are expected to be up from 1979.

Following emergence, adult beetles congregate in swarms and feed on the pollen of flowering plants. Common host plants are potatoes, tomatoes, alfalfa and weed species like nightshade and pigweed.

Blister beetles suspected of causing most cantharidin poisoning are the three-striped blister beetle, Epicauta temexa and E. occidentalis. The critical problem develops when large swarms of adult beetles are physically incorporated in feed during the harvesting process.

Adult beetles range in size from about 1/2 to 3/4 inch long. General body color is black with longitudinal yellow stripes on the elytra. The bodies are cylindrical, elongated and fairly soft to touch.

Adults are mobile and can be found in pockets throughout a field. Inspecting a field two days before harvest, Richardson said, gives extra attention to field margins.

CRMWD directors will receive optimistic reports at meeting

When directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District convene in Big Spring May 27, they will have a great deal more cause for optimism than had they met a week ago.

The reason is approximately 34,000 acre feet (over 11 billion gallons) new water which flowed into the district's two reservoirs over the weekend. Instead of considering hard alternatives at the meeting, board members will get reports of considerably improved quality as well as ample supply.

Other matters due to be on the agenda include reports on operations, finances, a progress report on the Stacy reservoir application and the start of the HI-PLEX weather modification project. Directors also will consider an application for a water sales contract.

Monday morning Lake J.B. Thomas, the district's quality control reservoir, reached elevation 2220.84, the highest point since July 18, 1977. This represented a vertical gain of 8.78 feet and in volume 16,950 acre feet. The total content of the lake gained by 240 percent to 28,580 acre feet. Most of the water came from intense showers on the watershed in the near proximity to Lake Thomas.

At the same time, Lake E.V. Spence, 80 river miles downstream from Lake Thomas, had reached an elevation of 1856.00 feet, the highest point since the first of 1979. This inflow, resulting from flood conditions around Snyder, caused a 3.50 vertical feet increase and a volume gain of 16,250 acre feet, with a small amount still expected. The 15 percent gain put the content at 109,000 acre feet.

Improved quality of water will be noticeable as soon as the pipeline content is displaced by new water, said O.H. Ivie, general manager of CRMWD. The new supply at Lake Thomas will mean that production from that source may be pushed up to 12,000,000 gallons a day.

Quality of Lake Spence water has escalated 10 fold at the pump station as an immediate result of the inflow, but Ivie cautioned that this dramatic change will be temporary. However, even after the new water homogenizes with the existing content at Spence, there will be a 15 to 20 percent improvement there.

NHL finals offering the epitome of violence

It looked like a padded version of the "Thrilla of Manila."

There were these two 200-pounders — Bob Nystrom of the New York Islanders and Mike Busniuk of the Philadelphia Flyers — on the edge of the ice, whaling away at each other's countenances for all they were worth.

Not five feet away a pair of officials in their striped zebra shirts stood placidly, making no immediate move to halt the hostilities.

"Gracious," said the lady of the house, watching the scene on TV, "why don't they do something?"

"Relax, honey," replied the husband. "This is ice hockey. This is the way it's played."

So it is — not legalized mayhem perhaps, merely tolerated violence.

Comedian Rodney Dangerfield coined a quip that has now become one of sports' most oft-quoted cliches.

"I went to a boxing match," he said, "and a hockey game broke out."

At least in boxing, where the purpose is to maul the opponent into unconsciousness instead of slipping a little black disc into an open net, the referee takes the trouble to separate the combatants.

Not in ice hockey where the credo is: "Let 'er rip, and heaven help the hindmost."

Sports fans are seeing this exercise in stick-swinging, body-banging, teeth-shattering warfare in its highest form in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup series, now drawing to a climax.

The Islanders, a nine-year-old rags-to-riches expansion member of the NHL and country cousins of the old and established New York Rangers, go back to Philadelphia's Spectrum Thursday night, needing only one victory to clinch the championship.

Before the Islanders and Flyers came to grips, it was hailed as a potential "blood bath" series because the two rivals are notorious as among the toughest, hardest-hitting teams on skates.

The rivalry has measured up to advance notices although the fourth game Monday night in the Nassau Coliseum, won by the Islanders 5-2 for a 3-1 lead, showed both antagonists growing jaded and weary from the drawn-out postseason grind.

A few ribs got jarred, a few jaws got rocked and on one occasion Philadelphia's Mel Bridgman and the Islanders' Dave Longenecker made out as if they were Muhammad Ali and Smokin' Joe Frazier in rematch No. 2. It was nothing to compare with the Nystrom-Busniuk brawl of last Saturday night.

Why does professional ice hockey allow such wholiganism to continue almost unabated while the Russians and the U.S. Olympic gold medalists have shown that speed and skill can bring rich rewards?

The answer is simple. Hockey is a macho sport. The players pride themselves on their prowess, their ability to take and give punishment. It's this physical quality that has given the sport its gate appeal, particularly among women.

Bill Chadwick, a Hall of Fame referee, said, "Hockey is a physical game. If you called everything, nobody would be left on the ice."

Longhorns capture SWC Tournament

Texas (AP) — Arkansas regional tournament, which begins Friday in Austin. "The difference had to be the extra ball game and Arkansas' injuries," Texas coach Cliff Gustafson agreed.

"Being bunged up and tired hurt us," said Arkansas coach Norm DeBriyn after Texas' Longhorns drubbed his team 9-4 Tuesday for the host role in the NCAA South Central regional tournament, which begins Friday in Austin. "The difference had to be the extra ball game and Arkansas' injuries," Texas coach Cliff Gustafson agreed.

"We're two different ball clubs. They're a power hitting club, and they have two outstanding pitchers in Steve Krueger and Scott Tabor. We're more oriented to speed, defensive ability and a little more overall depth. Their bats looked a little dead today."

Local swimmers conclude big meet

The Sharks scored 376 points to take a narrow victory over the Dolphins in a local swim meet conducted the weekend at the YMCA.

The two teams were comprised of participants from the YMCA team (ages 8-18), the Big Spring High School team and the Masters squad (ages 18-and-higher). The three teams were divided equally into the two squads in order to enhance balanced competition.

The local teams will have a busy schedule this summer, with the YMCA squad traveling to Lubbock this weekend.

The Masters teams, which will be competing in a meet in Monahan in June, is open to all adults over the age of 20. They will practice every Wednesday night, with the sessions slated for the Comanche Trail Park pool when schools close for the summer. Practice sessions begin at 6:00 p.m. and last for two hours.

While meet competition is included in the Masters, the emphasis is on swim strokes and healthy exercise.

To Indy 500

Competition lured rookie driver

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Tim Richmond is young, handsome, articulate and fast — but if the fastest rookie qualifier for this year's Indianapolis 500 knows it, he's not letting on. "I haven't changed," said the 24-year-old driver said Tuesday after receiving a $1,500 prize for being the fastest rookie in the field for the May 25 race. "I'm still Tim Richmond. I still put my pants on like anybody else. I ain't no better or worse."

Richmond and the 32 other starters for Sunday's race will have a final opportunity to practice during a two-hour period Thursday. Except for that, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will be closed until race day.

Many drivers who come to Indianapolis started out as mechanics, so it's a natural step from working on race cars to driving them. For Richmond, however, the lure was competition.

"I've always been competition-oriented. I can remember when I was a kid. My dad used to tell me to go down and get the newspaper. I told him I wouldn't get it unless he timed me on his watch. If I can do it better and faster than anyone else, then that's what I want to do."

Richmond's qualification speed of 188.334 mph was the fifth best, but only landed him in the seventh row of the 11-row starting field, because it came on the second weekend of time trials.

Although he ran a lap at 193.508 in pre-race practice, the fastest time of the month, a crash during the practice session on first-day qualifications sidelined his car until the second weekend.

Because of his youth and friendliness — he gladly signs autographs for all who stop by his garage in Gasoline Alley — Richmond was himself a following among the fans here.

"I can't believe all the attention I'm getting," he said. "I've enjoyed it all. The toughest thing for me is keeping everybody else nothing new to Richmond, who learned to fly before he was 15. He began racing super modified cars in 1977 and won the Ohio Racing Association's point championship that same year.

The first time he drove a rear-engined car at the U.S. Auto Club's Mini-Indy race in Phoenix, he won.

Richmond set a goal in 1977 to reach Indy in five years. "And so far, we're ahead of schedule. I guess it's pretty amazing."

Merit Cuts Through Low Tar Clutter!

"Best-tasting low tar I've tried," say 96% of MERIT smokers in latest survey.

There is a difference between other low tar cigarettes and MERIT.

A proven difference.

MERIT Solid Winner.

Test after test with thousands of smokers continues to provide evidence—not mere claims—that low tar MERIT delivers the flavor of high tar brands, and continues to satisfy long term.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed!

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried!

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

Economy may look worse in future months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy grew at a snail's pace — only half as much as predicted — in the first quarter of the year, but that looks downright robust compared to what may lie ahead.

The first-quarter growth of the gross national product, at an 0.6 percent annual rate, was less than the 1.1 percent estimated earlier by the Commerce Department and substantially less than the 3.6 percent growth in the final three months of last year.

However, most economists believe the GNP will decline in the second quarter and remain at negative levels for the rest of the year as the nation sinks into a recession.

The GNP is the value of the output of goods and services and is considered the best barometer of the nation's overall economic health. Two consecutive quarters of decline usually mean a recession.

If the recession is mild and short, as President Carter has predicted, the decline in the GNP may not be substantial. However, many private economists and some administration officials now expect a serious economic

Wealthy are not starving

WASHINGTON — The senior senator from Texas, Republican John Tower, submitted financial disclosure statements Monday that prove government service is no get-rich-quick scheme, while Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, filed records that show a wealthy man doesn't have to starve when he comes to Washington.

Property and stock sales helped push Bentsen's income to at least $400,000 or above and beyond his $58,290 congressional in 1979. The second term senator from Houston listed holdings in property and stock of at least $2 million.

Tower, who didn't report any property or stock holdings, earned $23,100 from 22 speaking engagements with stipends that ranged from $200 at American University in Washington D.C. to $2,000 before the National Retail Merchants Association in New York.

"I would bet he is in the bottom five (members of the Senate) in terms of income," Tower's press secretary Linda Hill said.

The figures are revealed in annual financial disclosure statements members of the Senate were required to file with the Officers of the Senate.

Disclosure regulations require only that congressmen identify their incomes and holdings by category — $15,000 to $50,000, $50,000 to $100,000 etc.

Because Sen. Bentsen reported income in the more-than-$100,000 bracket and five property and stock holdings worth more than $250,000, Senate regulations preclude identifying the upper limits in either category. Bentsen's press secretary Jack Devore said the senator has a policy of restricting personal financial disclosures to the public record.

Bentsen reported common stock holdings in 10 companies with more than $250,000 interests in the First National Bank of Mission, Texas Commerce Bancshares, Inc. and Tide Products Inc.

Income from Bentsen's two farms in Texas and another in Virginia totaled $74,567. The senator's liabilities, including the total value of several property holdings, totaled at least $613,000 during the year.

In transactions exceeding $1,000 in value, Bentsen sold five to 10 acres of citrus trees in Hidalgo County, each worth between $15,000 and $50,000, and purchased between $100,000 and $250,000 in Petro-Bravo bonds.

On the other hand, former professor Tower disclosed records for the year that list "none" in property, dividends and transaction categories — all categories that spill over to an appendix in Bentsen's statement.

Tower listed liabilities for the year in the $20,000 to $25,000 range in bank loans from the City National Bank in Wichita Falls. No listings for mortgage payments were in the statement because Tower's home is in his wife's name.

The fourth term senator from Wichita Falls accepted a stipend for only one speaking engagement in Texas last year, an address before Schwan Sales Enterprises from which he netted $1,500. Hill said Tower usually speaks to audiences in Texas without charge "because it's part of his job."

Most of Tower's honorarium speeches were clustered in the east and included speeches before groups as diverse as the U.S. League of Savings Associations, the New York Times, Bendix Corporation and the Consumer Credit Association of Greater Washington.

Tower's income from honorarium engagements was less than $2,000 short of the $25,000 permitted per senator.

downturn, with sharply rising unemployment.

A new economic analysis by Georgia State University, which has been close to the mark on several recent forecasts, predicts an annual rate of decline in the GNP of 7.7 percent in the second quarter, 2 percent in the third and 0.8 percent in the fourth.

Data Resources Inc., a forecasting firm, predicts a second quarter slide of 8 percent at an annual rate.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Tuesday that although the economy is definitely slowing, it is too early to say whether the recession will be worse than the administration forecast.

However, he indicated that if it is worse, the administration might drop its insistence on a balanced budget before it will support a tax cut. He said the administration still would insist on spending restraint by Congress, but he acknowledged that Congress has little control over government tax receipts, which would drop off in a recession.

The Commerce Department provided additional evidence of a slowing economy in its GNP report Tuesday. The report showed that corporate profits grew sluggishly in the first quarter.

It said after-tax profits of corporations rose 5.9 percent in the first quarter, to an annual rate of $155.5 billion. Before-tax profits were up 5.8 percent, to an annual rate of $257.1 billion.

However, after-tax profits actually fell 12.7 percent in the first quarter to an annual rate of $70.1 billion when adjusted for the impact of double-digit inflation on replacing inventories or worn-out equipment.

Muskie at home with diplomacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edmund Muskie is a politician in a diplomat's job, and he thinks that's the way it should be.

He doubts his own skills as a problem-solver. He says it would be foolish to think he has suddenly developed a range of policies on all the world's problems.

And he has a sense of humor about himself.

Home in Maine last weekend after his first diplomatic whirl in Europe, Muskie was treated like a conquering hero.

"I wonder if I was too fast in ending my elective career," he quipped. "But maybe the message I am getting is that you're delighted I made the switch."

If Cyrus Vance, Muskie's predecessor, had a sense of humor, he hid it well. Vance dashed off neater quips nor

At first, following standard political practice, his speech writers supplied him with jokes, but Vance ignored them until they finally gave up.

Toward the end, as his own stock plummeted within the Carter administration, he stopped holding press conferences.

He curbed his travels, delegating assignments to Warren Christopher, his deputy. He wrestled out of other assignments by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his principal antagonist in the White House.

Still, Vance worked hard at the job, he got his views to President Carter and he stood by them. He would not believe Brzezinski was undercutting him.

In fact, it was the president and not the national security adviser who often vetoed Vance. But his authority whittled away, and Brzezinski was constantly looking over his shoulder.

Muskie doesn't intend to let that happen.

Except for interpreters, he was alone for three hours in the Hofburg Palace in Vienna last Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Muskie's telephone call to Carter afterward was the only version the president was getting of the meeting.

Brzezinski's deputy, David Aaron, the director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, Ralph Earle, and David E. McGiffert, an Assistant Secretary of Defense, all had turned up mysteriously in Vienna but were left in an adjoining room. There would be no "back-channel reports" to conflict with the one Muskie was filing.

Even Henry Kissinger, a virtuoso at bureaucratic politics, could not accomplish that.

As a short-termer who will be out as secretary of state in January if Carter loses the election, Muskie can afford to be his own man and skip the cautious diplomacy that State Department professionals invariably apply to most problems.

Quebec will stay a part of Canada

MONTREAL (AP) — The people of Quebec are born-again Canadians today, having pulled back from the road to secession in a historic referendum.

But Tuesday's vote in which 60 percent of those balloting rejected independence for Quebec does not mean that the spirit of separatism is dead in the largely French-speaking Canadian province. It means that the federal government has one more chance to meet the French Canadians' expectations for greater self-rule.

Undaunted provincial Premier Rene

Levesque, the leader of the separatists, told a tearful but thunderous crowd of supporters late Tuesday to remain hopeful, that one day Quebec will have its "rendezvous with history" and win equality with English-speaking Canada as a nation to itself.

"Till next time," he said as he left the "independentists" waving blue fleur-de-lis Quebec flags.

Hundreds of his young supporters marched through the English-speaking Montreal suburb of Westmount, throwing stones, breaking some windows, tearing down a flagpole and roughing up a TV technician. Riot police swinging their clubs scattered the marchers.

Levesque and his Parti Quebecois had asked the voters to give him a mandate to negotiate "sovereignty-association" with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's federal government, an arrangement whereby Quebec would have political independence but would retain close economic ties with Canada.

With more than 98 percent of the votes counted, there were 2,171,913 "no" ballots and 1,478,200 voting "yes."

The turnout, after a highly emotional campaign, was 87 percent.

The vote showed that "we are proud to be Quebecers... and at the same time proud of being Canadians," Claude Ryan, leader of the provincial Liberal Party and head of the federalist campaign, told a victory rally.

But with the 20-percent English-speaking minority voting overwhelmingly against secession, the result meant that the French majority was split roughly 50-50 on the issue.

This formidable French support for Levesque's ideas underlined the challenge facing Trudeau as he seeks to placate Quebecers and Canadians in other provinces who demand more power for their provincial governments.

Trudeau has promised to convene a constitutional conference as early as July to negotiate reforms.

"Now that we have reaffirmed our will to live together, we must apply ourselves without delay to the task of rebuilding our home to conform to the present needs of the Canadian family," he said Tuesday night.

'It took half of me away' NBC still continues its struggle

HOUSTON (AP) — On Jan. 23, the 81st day of his captivity, Army Warrant Officer Joseph Michael Hall wrote to his wife, Cheri, from his small room inside the American Embassy in Tehran.

"They took me outside for some fresh air yesterday for about 15 minutes. Cloudy and cold. The air and the pines smelled wonderful."

"I saw a large crow flying. It was free. I had to keep swallowing fast to choke back the tears. I pray this will be over soon." Soon never came. Wednesday is the 200th day of captivity for Hall and 52 other Americans.

Cheri Hall, 29, holds her husband's letter in her hand, sitting in a townhouse in Houston where she is staying a few extra days following a government briefing for the families of 14 hostages.

She knows the ill-fated rescue effort that came three months and a day after her husband wrote the letter may have severed their tenuous link. "Now I feel like it's gonna go on for a while," she says.

Cheri picks up an issue of Time magazine. Inside are two pictures of her husband at the embassy. "He's so pale," she says, tracing Joe's cheek with her finger. "So pale."

"I fear I will pass the entire winter indoors. You know better than anyone how I love the outdoors."

"That has to be the hardest thing for him," she says, "being inside like that. He's a great sports freak and he likes the outdoors."

Cheri describes how she and Joe had been stationed Athens, Greece, how he accepted the Tehran job because it meant a promotion to warrant officer.

"I wish I had been man enough to refuse this assignment for both of our sakes. I think we almost expected something like this. My desire to excel, mixed with my requirement to serve my country, has left me in a pickle."

"We have never been apart," Cheri says, glancing down at the neat stack of Joe's letters. "We worked together, read the same books — people said we were totally incredible. It wasn't to us."

Her brown eyes soften. "We liked it that way. As far as we're concerned, there is no other way."

"The only thing more precious in this world to me than my freedom is you. I think of you constantly, accompanied by dry tears."

Cheri's head snaps around as a television newscast mentions Iran. A colored map shows the cities where the hostages have been taken after the aborted rescue raid. As she watches, her jaw muscles tighten; a frown pulls on the corners of her mouth.

"They're scattered to the seven winds now," she says softly.

She picks up the magazine again and points to Joe. His hair is short in front, but falls over his collar in the back. "I sure would like to know who his barber is," she says, a small grin brightening her face. "He's so neat, so tidy. He's perfect for the army."

Joe, who will mark his 13th year in the Army in July, wanted to be a soldier "ever since he was a kid," Cheri says. "He volunteered for Vietnam... but when his orders came down, he got sent to a Armed Forces Entrance Examination Station in Jacksonville, Fla."

"That's where I met him. I had gone there to stay with relatives and go to college and I was working in a pharmacy. He used to come in the store and buy something so he could come through the cashier's line and talk to me."

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite consistently high ratings from series like "Little House on the Prairie" and "Real People," NBC continues to struggle in the networks' prime-time competition, and has finished third for the 12th week in a row.

The most recent survey by the A. C. Nielsen Co. for the week ending May 18, showed NBC No. 3 with a rating of 14.5, behind CBS at 17.4 and ABC at 16.6. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.5 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to NBC.

NBC spotted "Little House on the Prairie," a success for several seasons, in fourth place, and "Real People" 12th. After that, it was all the way to 23rd before another NBC show — "CHiPs" — showed up.

In addition, NBC had the four lowest-rated programs, and six of the last 10.

The first place finish for CBS was the No. 1 network's second straight, helped along by a one-two finish for the "Miss USA Pageant and '60 Minutes."

The rating for CBS' broadcast of the beauty contest Thursday night was 23.7, to 21.6 for "60 Minutes," the No. 1 show in the recently completed television season.

Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 23.7 percent watched all or part of the Miss USA show.

In addition to the two highest-rated programs, CBS listed "M.A.S.H." in fifth place, "Jeffersons" sixth and "Alice" ninth. ABC's top-rated show was "Three's Company" in third place.

ABC and CBS each have finished first twice in weekly Nielsen surveys since the 1979-80 season ended April 20.

"Looking for Mr. Goodbar" on ABC was the highest rated of the many movies broadcast during the week — No. 10 in the ratings.

The first production in NBC's three-part "Movieland" series, "This Year's Blonde," was No. 26 for the week, followed by "Flamingo Road" on NBC, 32nd; "The Hostage Tower" on CBS, 33rd; "The Hustler of Muscle Beach" on ABC, 34th; "Casey's Shadow" on NBC, 44th, and "A Fistful of Dynamite" on ABC, 52nd.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Miss USA Pageant" with a rating of 23.7 representing 18.1 million homes, and "60 Minutes," 23.6 or 18 million, both CBS; "Three's Company," 23.5 or 17.9 million, ABC; "Little House on the Prairie," 22.7 or 17.3 million, NBC; "M.A.S.H.," 21.8 or 16.6 million, and "The Jeffersons," 19.7 or 15.1 million, both CBS; "Laverne and Shirley" and "Taxi," both 19.6 or 15 million, both ABC; "Alice," 19.5 or 14.9 million, CBS; and "Movie: Looking for Mr. Goodbar," 19.4 or 14 million, ABC.
