BREAKING LOOSE — A four-inch water main broke this morning at the intersection of NW 2nd and Scurry. Assistant City Manager, Bill Brown said the break was small and the spraying water is the result of city crews working on the pipe "live." Brown added that water pressure — except for the immediate area — should not be affected.

'Super Bucks' starts today in Big Spring

A new kind of legal tender goes into circulation in Big Spring and environs today — Super Bucks.

Today's Herald includes the kickoff of the first week of a new advertising and retail trade campaign called, 'The Newspaper Faces of Big Spring.' Hundreds of dollars in 'Super Bucks' will be awarded to sharp-eyed readers of the newspaper.

The campaign starting on page 3-B, features many photos of Big Spring-area people with the faces of individuals circled. Persons circled are invited to visit the office of the Herald to claim the amount of 'Super Bucks' shown on the opening page of the section.

The 'Super Bucks' are redeemable for goods and services from the sponsoring businesses participating in the campaign and whose advertisements appear in the special section.

Over a period of five weeks, more pictures will appear in the paper each Tuesday. More faces will be circled and more 'Super Bucks' will be awarded.

Throughout the section are special advertisements of local business firms, which are making the 'Super Bucks' awards possible to dramatically show the readers that they can find super values, super service and super attention here.

Winners can use the 'Super Bucks' like cash and spend them with any business firm participating. In turn, they will be redeemed from the merchant by the Herald.

The Herald photographer will be showing up all over town during the next few weeks, taking pictures to be used in 'Newspaper Faces.'

While looking for your picture each week, be sure to read the advertising of the participating merchants for special buys and opportunities, including the probability that some of the business firms may even offer extra values for your 'Super Bucks.'

Big Spring businesses are progressive and growing, and their owners and managers want to serve all the public's shopping needs. Money turned over in business transactions here can only strengthen the community. Local business people provide jobs for many, contribute to the city, school and county treasuries with tax dollars.

Death sentence of former Big Spring resident upheld

(Special to The Herald)

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the conviction and death sentence of a former Big Spring resident, Ronald Clark O'Bryan, who poisoned his son on Halloween night six years ago.

The court refused to hear arguments that O'Bryan was denied a fair trial and received too harsh a sentence.

Prosecutors said O'Bryan poisoned his son, Timothy, then 8 years of age, in order to collect $10,000 in insurance money. O'Bryan was earning $150 a week at the time. Employed by an optical company in Houston, he had the same type of employment he had when he lived in Big Spring.

Prosecutors revealed the defendant was $20,000 to $100,000 in debt. O'Bryan, who lived in the Deer Park suburb of Houston with his wife and two children, had taken his wife and daughter and some neighborhood children out 'trick or treating' Oct. 31, 1974.

Prior to that night, according to the testimony introduced in court, O'Bryan had laced several large candy sticks with lethal portions of cyanide.

Only Timothy ate the candy, although the other children, including O'Bryan's six-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, had been given the candy sticks containing the cyanide.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals upheld O'Bryan's conviction and death sentence last Sept. 26. His Supreme Court appeal raised numerous constitutional arguments over the adequacy of his trial and the appropriateness of his sentence.

Clark may face criminal charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark may face charges from the department he once headed for doing on his own what he couldn't do on behalf of President Carter — go to Iran.

Shortly after Khomeini followers seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Carter designated Clark as his special envoy to negotiate the release of the American hostages, but the Iranians refused to let him into the country. A few weeks later, Clark said he sent a letter advising Iran of legal steps it could take to have the deposed shah returned.

Justice Department spokesman Robert M. Smith said the Clark group, which includes Nobel Prize-winning biologist George Wald, was told of possible penalties as late as two days before leaving Sunday for Tehran.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the group was denied an exemption to the May 18 travel ban because the administration feared the conference would be no more than a "propaganda circus."

"Our concern was that an exemption would be misconstrued as our acceptance of the premise of U.S. crimes against Iran and may give the conference a standing and credibility it does not have," he said.

The American Friends Service Committee in Philadelphia said the group accepted the invitation to attend the conference "in the hope that they may help to diffuse tensions between the two countries."

"The delegation believes that its participation may begin a needed dialogue," the committee said. "The delegation has been assured that the

Unknown Israeli terrorists blamed for bloody attacks

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Callers told Tel Aviv newspapers today that two underground Israeli terrorist groups were responsible for the bloody attacks against Palestinian nationalist leaders on the occupied West Bank. Arab merchants in the occupied zone began a general strike to protest the attacks.

The callers claimed to represent the "Sons of Zion" and the "Anti-Terror Unit," two hitherto unknown groups. In both cases, the callers said the bombings were in reprisal for a Palestinian guerrilla ambush last month that killed six Israelis in the West Bank city of Hebron.

One caller told the Haaretz newspaper that the "Sons of Zion" set off the explosions Monday that maimed two Palestinian nationalist mayors and injured seven other Arabs. The Maariv newspaper said its caller identified the bombers as members of the "Anti-Terror Unit."

It was not immediately known if authorities considered either claim to be genuine.

There were no reports of violence on the West Bank as the three-day protest strike got under way, but an Israeli army spokesman said troops forced some shopkeepers to open.

The Palestine Liberation Organization had called for the strike in reply to the attempted assassinations of its prominent West Bank supporters.

Accusing Israel of trying to "muzzle the free voice of the Palestinian people under occupation," the PLO vowed revenge for the attacks in four West Bank cities and said it was seeking a U.N. Security Council session to take up "the explosive situation."

PLO chief Yasser Arafat blamed Israel and the United States for a campaign of "official terrorism against the Palestinians." However, Israel and the United States, as well as the United Nations, Egypt and Russia condemned the attacks on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The bombings came at the end of the 30-day mourning period for six Israeli settlers killed by PLO terrorists in the West Bank city of Hebron, and were applauded by Yossi Dayan, of the rightist Kach movement and the Jewish Defense League.

Dayan is deputy to Rabbi Meir Kahane, the American founder of the JDL, who has been jailed the Israelis for allegedly plotting anti-Arab terrorism.

"These people who did this are very professional," Dayan said. "They did very good work." However, Dayan said neither Kach nor the JDL was responsible.

Palestinian and Israeli authorities said the attacks began about 7:30 a.m. Monday when someone hurled a grenade into the crowded main square of Hebron, 20 miles south of Jerusalem. Grenade fragments injured seven Arabs, three of whom were hospitalized.

Local retailers not feeling crunch of economic slowdown

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a three part series on the local economy.

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

While retail merchants nationwide were feeling a first quarter pinch in sales, Big Spring businessmen for the most part were spared the pain.

"We in this area are not a part of the whole U.S. recession," said Odis Bradshaw, dealer at Western Pontiac Datsun. "We're growing while everyone else is receding."

Data from the State Comptroller's office sheds some light on retail activity during the first three months of this year.

Big Spring businesses reported a 15 percent increase in taxable sales during the first three months of this year.

The biggest increases came during the first two months of this year. In January a 21 percent was reported from here.

For February, Big Spring merchants reported a 38 percent increase in taxable sales.

Comptroller records show that the local one percent sales redirected to Big Spring for January of this year was $64,919.69, compared to the 1979 figure for the same month of $54,798.94.

The February 1980 local sales tax allocation was $155,994.91, compared to the February 1979 figure of $111,923.41.

The March 1980 local sales tax rebate was $44,971.41, compared to the March figure for last year of $66,066.75.

Nationwide, the Commerce Department reported retail sales in March were 1.3 percent below February sales, which, in turn, had been down 1.6 percent from January sales.

Contributing to the strong first quarter was the bumper cotton crop and the filming of "Hangar 18" in Big Spring.

According to figures from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service here, a total of $33 million in cotton was produced in 1979 in Howard County.

The movie, which was produced by Schick Sunn Classics, generated some $3 million into the local economy.

"That $3 million got spread pretty wide across the community," said Leroy Tillery, the local Chamber of Commerce executive vice-president.

According to Rochelle Durrant, the movie's business manager, Schick Sunn spent $24,000 at retail clothing stores, $180,000 in motel rooms and about $60,000 to a local caterer. Spending went beyond these businesses. Restaurants, entertainment outlets and other merchants reaped at least a piece of the $3 million.

"I think it was great for Big Spring," Durrant said, "a real boost in the arm."

Outside the movie, retailers have not had a decline in sales. They have seen a change in consumer spending habits.

The head of a local hardware store said his business had about a seven percent increase in sales during the first quarter over last year.

He said, "People are doing less impulse buying."

The manager of a furniture store said business has been coming in spurts, but there was no noticeable difference in sales.

The owner of an appliance shop remarked people are comparing prices more and visiting several outlets before purchasing.

Ship captain arrested

Cuban refugees in U.S. reaches 100,000 mark

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The number of Cuban refugees reaching the United States since the boatlift began 45 days ago shot past 100,000 today with the arrival of 847 persons aboard a single ship, the freighter Red Diamond V.

The red and white 118-foot ship, which had its Panamanian registry revoked overnight, was towed into Key West shortly before 9 a.m.

U.S. marshals were standing by to take into custody the ship's owner, captain, crew and those who chartered the vessel for its trip to the Cuban port of Mariel.

Earlier, Federal Emergency Management Agency officials had put the total number of refugees at 99,419. The Red Diamond V and several other refugee-laden vessels arrived after that 7 a.m. count, and a new official total was not immediately available.

Eric Fisher, an assistant U.S. attorney, said the Red Diamond's owner, captain, crew and the estimated 50 Cuban-Americans aboard who chartered the trip would be taken to the Monroe County Jail in Key West to await a bond hearing before U.S. Magistrate Jack Saunders.

Between midnight and 7 a.m. today, 18 other boats carrying 2,259 refugees tied up a government docks in Key West.

U.S. Coast Guard spokesmen said the cutter Point Spencer took the Red Diamond V under tow early this morning after the ship developed engine trouble while nearing Key West.

Federal officials said the ship was given permission to enter U.S. waters "for humanitarian reasons." That permission came after the ship's masters indicated they wanted to go to the Bahamas.

The arrival of the Red Diamond V came as federal officials became concerned that Cuban-Americans were chartering foreign vessels to circumvent the U.S. ban on any new Freedom Flotilla boats.

The 276-foot motor vessel Rio India entered the Mariel harbor on Sunday, said Coast Guard Lt. Norris Turner. The ship, which could carry as many as 4,000 refugees, apparently was chartered by 37 exiles from Tampa, he said. It would be the largest vessel used in the flotilla.

Meanwhile, U.S. Navy officials reported a dramatic at-sea transfer of an estimated 200 refugees from a ship that sank soon afterward.

David Carren pens scripts for 'Starsky and Hutch' and 'Buck Rogers'

'Fired' Herald reporter now successful TV writer

Six years ago last month, a freshly minted Journalism major out of the University of Texas at Austin went to work as a reporter for the Big Spring Herald. By self-admission, he was somewhat flawed.

The young man, a resident of Dallas, was terminated after six months, when management determined that what talents he possessed were not suited to the newspaper business.

When he reached the end of the line with the Herald, he bought a keg of beer and invited his co-workers to Birdwell Park for a farewell party, where no tears were shed and no rancor spoken.

As it turned out, the beer turned to foam after it warmed up. Carren apparently didn't know that beer has to be kept cool in order to give the desired results.

The following day, he hopped a bus for Los Angeles and a date with the muses.

It took David Carren about three years to get his act together after he arrived in Los Angeles. He spent most of that time writing movie scripts and pestering producers of motion pictures and television films for jobs.

Ultimately, after countless rejections, Carren got his first entertainment-related job — by submitting a script that was accepted for an episode of the ABC cops-and-robbers series, "Starsky and Hutch."

David was on his way. During the last three years, the outgoing Carren has written scripts for such programs as "Switch," "Beyond Westworld" and "Buck Rogers."

An episode he pieced together for the Buck Rogers series, shown last week, cost over $1 million to produce.

After his success as a movie-TV writer was assured, Carren couldn't resist the opportunity to write a letter to the Herald editorial management to say: "Thanks for firing me. Here, I love the people I'm working with, and am loved. And I'll be a millionaire soon."

Carren, who freely admits he was a 'nurd' in high school (he was over-weight, unappealing to the girls and uncoordinated) kept telling his co-workers at the Herald he wanted only to write novels, preferably novels that would appeal to the movie producers. He had no appetite for the things he was assigned to do, like "digging for stuff at the courthouse on how many farmers sold how much land and how many cattle had been sold to whom. I wasn't a very good digger."

Carren obviously was referring to one of his assigned duties, that of reporting public records for the Herald (one of its best read features). He appeared happiest when he was assigned to do articles for TV this week, a Sunday supplement of the Herald.

This week, Carren is making plans to attend the tenth reunion of his old senior class at Thomas Jefferson High School in Dallas. He should have a lot of stories to tell.

Digest

Students ready for party

SILVER SPRINGS, Md. (AP) — Scientists here say it's time for students at Washington State University to haul out the beer.

The students — who partied when ash from Mount St. Helens reached the school, when ash blew into Montana and when the fallout reached the East — pledged to hold their biggest bash when the gritty powder from the volcano's May 18 eruption went clear around the world.

Roland Drexler, a meteorologist with the Air Resources Laboratory of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said Monday the ash had circled the globe and had reached Alaska. "It's probably in very low levels and you couldn't see it," he said.

Transmissions can resume

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS News has received word from the federal government that it can resume satellite transmissions from Cuba.

The network was barred May 22 from using the Comsat Corp. satellite to broadcast a story the State Department did not consider to be important spot news. Cuba receives payment for such transmissions and the State Department ruled the report on economic problems did not warrant an exemption from the U.S. trade embargo against that nation.

"It's always gratifying when the bureaucratic processes, even if they get temporarily off the track, come to a sensible conclusion," CBS News president William Leonard said Monday.

Club now open to women

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The prestigious Duquesne Club is open to women.

But the 477-192 vote by club members Monday has no immediate effect — no women have applied and club officials say they expect no more than four or five women to find sponsors and pay the $4,000 initiation fee and $740 annual dues.

Club president David Roderick, board chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., had informed the club's 2,500 members the directors supported the change. He noted the "growing probability of significant financial losses, occasioned by governmental pressures, facing any club that practices discrimination in its admissions policies."

Midstate ready for service

MARSHFIELD, Wis. (AP) — Midstate Airlines, grounded by the Federal Aviation Administration on May 24, hopes to have problems corrected and operations back underway next week, airline officials say.

Midstate planes were grounded after the federal agency cited alleged mechanical and administrative violations discovered during an investigation. The line serves Milwaukee and Chicago and a number of smaller cities in Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan.

A A Reynolds, assistant to the airline's president, said Monday the company had set a conservative target date of next Monday for resumption of service.

West Side Community Center directors discuss funding

The board of directors of the West Side Community Service met Monday night to discuss its summer programs, funding from the United Way, leasing of the center to other groups, and renaming of a new director for the West Side Community Center.

Thirty youths from the center will be participating in the YMCA summer programs from June 9 thru July 17. The board voted to approve the $1,140 in fees to pay for their tee shirts, class fees, and movie charges.

The Boy Scout troop from the center also discussed its plans for the summer and its use of the center's van for trips during the middle of July.

Individuals from the board meeting with the officials of the United Way gave a brief report of the meeting. Delores Hull, treasurer of the center, said that she answered the questions posed by the United Way and asked for twice what the center had received in the past. Hull said she doubted whether their request would be granted since the United Way was unable to meet their goal during the last drive.

Jane Thomas, president of the West Side Community Center board, said that she had received calls from groups that were interested in renting the center and would like to discuss the fees and policies involved in renting the facility to other organizations.

During the discussion, it was decided that a $25 refundable deposit would be required of groups using the facility. The fee would be returned to organizations that cleaned the building after their meetings and functions. The rental of the actual facility would be left to the discretion of the board president, with a rate being set competitively with other facilities in the city.

Earnie Garcia, director of the center for the past four years, submitted her resignation to Thomas effective after the summer programs. The resignation was accepted with regret by the board and a replacement for the post was interviewed during the meeting. The board moved that the vacancy be filled by the applicant, with a special committee being appointed to discuss the pay scale for the new center director.

Madelin Boadle reported that the "tasting tea" held by the Church Women United group in May to benefit the center was a success and funds were still coming in from the annual event. As of the meeting, over $400 had been cleared by the community-wide organization.

Thomas also reported that the air conditioners at the center had been repaired with the assistance of M.R. Koger and that the Boy Scout troop at the center were still looking for a trailer.

TESCO proposes offering of $350,000 shares of stock

Texas Electric Service Company today filed a registration statement with the Securities & Exchange Commission relating to a proposed public offering of 350,000 shares of cumulative preferred stock.

Proceeds from the sale, approximately $35 million, will be used to repay part of the short-term loans from Texas Utilities, TESCO's parent company.

The loans have been used to help finance Texas Electric's construction program to build new generating plants that use cheaper and more available fuels.

The program to build generating plants that use lignite and nuclear fuels, instead of high-priced natural gas and oil, began more than 10 years ago. Eight lignite-fueled units have been completed. Two more lignite units and the Comanche Peak nuclear plant are being built.

The company's use of lignite fuel so far has saved TESCO customers about $250 million, compared to what they would have paid for the same amount of electricity produced with natural gas.

The preferred stock will be offered for sale to the public on or about June 17. Blyth Eastman Paine Webber Inc., Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Merrill Lynch White Weld Capital Markets Group have been named to manage the underwriting group that plans to market the shares.

Wildcat scheduled

A wildcat has been scheduled for Howard County.

Sayer Operating Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Simpson, a 7,800-foot wildcat in Howard County, 3/4-mile northwest of the depleted open and lone producer of the Luther, Easter (Canyon oil) field, separated by 7,740 and 7,731-foot failures and three miles northeast of Plugger.

Location is 660 feet from the south and 2,143 feet from the west lines of 8-31-2m-T&P.

The Luther, East opener, Goldston No. 1 W.D. Anderson, was finished Oct. 28, 1965 for 187 barrels of oil, gravity unreported, plus two-tenths of 1 percent basic sediment, through a 1/4-inch choke and open hole at 7,708-714 feet.

Woodard released

J.C. Woodard, Big Spring Motel 9 Room 9, was released Friday from Howard County Sheriff's Office custody and charges dropped on authority of District Attorney Rick Hamby.

Woodard was charged with aggravated assault with his fists against his wife, Shirley, last Wednesday. She filed the charges in the Office of Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin Friday.

Cooling fans suit scheduled

A civil trial in 118th District Court is scheduled this afternoon in which Roman Electric Company is blamed for injuries received by two workmen when 18-foot cooling fans were turned on in a cooling tower they were working in.

Harvey L. Coffman, Jr., and his wife, Maxine, and Ovis James, and his wife, Doris, claim Walter Brumley turned on the fan in a alkalinization cooling tower Aug. 20 while the two men were inside.

Brumley is a Roman Electric employee. Roman Electric's owner, James R. Roman, is also named in the petition.

Appraisal pact now official

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Commissioners signed a contract with the Mitchell County Tax Appraisal District.

Police Chief Stanley Bogard was among those who found that their sheds had been burglarized at the AAA Mini-Storage Center, 3301 E. FM 700, Saturday night.

Police learned Sunday afternoon that 45 sheds had been tampered with sometime between 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 10:25 a.m. Sunday. As of Monday morning, over $6,000 worth of merchandise had been reported stolen from the sheds.

Later that afternoon, Bogard and Walt Shaw, 300 W. 9th, added their names to the list. Bogard lost $1,000 worth of fishing equipment, electric hand tools and assorted other items. Shaw reported the loss of a camera, three lenses and various accessories, all valued at $450.

Two local women had trouble keeping men out of their apartments, Monday night. Doris Wilson knows the man who tore the screen from one of the windows of her residence, and then put his fist through a pane of glass.

He was arrested and taken to a hospital to have his cut arm treated. Damage to the window was estimated at $25.

Yolanda Carillo, 1002 N. Main, reported that a man she knows tried to pull the screen from her apartment window and crawl through before she could close the window. He was unsuccessful, but damage to the window was estimated at $15.

Burglars hit both A.H. Scoggins' home at 1807 1/2 Johnson and his pickup, Sunday night. After cutting the screen on the door of the home, the intruders slipped inside and stole $142 in cash from a pair of Scoggins' pants.

WHATTAY DAY FOR WHATABURGER — When Big Spring's newest drive-in restaurant, Whataburger, staged its grand opening Monday morning, the Chamber of Commerce Redcoats were on hand to extend congratulations and help with ribbon cutting ceremonies. ## Mother, son hurt in wreck

Two local residents were treated and released at Malone-Hogan Hospital Monday after an accident 10 miles north on the Snyder Highway.

Larry and Glenda Williams were not seriously injured in the wreck that occurred at 6:02 p.m. Monday. They were taken to Malone-Hogan by private automobile at 6:55 p.m.

The two are mother and son.

TESCO proposes higher rates for summer months

Each petitioner is asking $100,000 for injuries received while doing the repair work. They allege that a sign had been posted warning persons not to turn on fans.

The petitioners are being represented by Richard J. Clarkson of Warren Burnett Associated, Odessa. Defendants are represented by Paul McCollum and Jack Little.

TESCO is trying to revive its old winter-summer differential for electrical rates in 48 counties of North Central and West Texas, including Howard.

On May 15, seven months after TESCO's last rate increase went into effect, the Fort Worth-based utility asked the Texas Public Utility Commission for a 17.7 percent rate hike.

TESCO and utility commission officials were to meet in Austin today to discuss the proposed increase — the fourth in as many years — and decide whether the rate hearing will be held July 28.

Part of the proposed $123 million increase would come from higher rates during the warm weather months from May to November.

Under the proposed rates for a residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity, the monthly summer bill would be $51.01, plus the fuel charge.

The monthly winter bill for November through April would be $46.09, plus the fuel charge.

That same customer now pays $33.79, plus the fuel charge, with no differences between winter and summer rates.

Current rates include a $6 minimum and a charge of 2.85 cents for each kilowatt hour above 25.

New rates include a $6 minimum and a charge of 4.57 cents in the summer and 4.07 cents in the winter for all kilowatt hours above 15.

Residential rates would go up 20.1 percent under the proposal, and business and industrial rates, 16.9 percent.

TESCO officials say the rate increase is needed because of inflation and the high cost of converting to lignite and nuclear fuels.

The last rate increase went into effect last fall. The 10 percent increase provided TESCO with $37.9 million more in revenues, less than half of the $88 million they requested.

Among the cities served by the company are Wichita Falls, Big Spring, Burk Burnett, Midland, Odessa, Archer City, Breckenridge, Crane, Monahans, Snyder and Gorman.

Police beat Chief's fishing gear stolen

Police Chief Stanley Bogard was among those who found that their sheds had been burglarized at the AAA Mini-Storage Center, 3301 E. FM 700, Saturday night.

Police learned Sunday afternoon that 45 sheds had been tampered with sometime between 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 10:25 a.m. Sunday. As of Monday morning, over $6,000 worth of merchandise had been reported stolen from the sheds.

Later that afternoon, Bogard and Walt Shaw, 300 W. 9th, added their names to the list. Bogard lost $1,000 worth of fishing equipment, electric hand tools and assorted other items. Shaw reported the loss of a camera, three lenses and various accessories, all valued at $450.

Two local women had trouble keeping men out of their apartments, Monday night. Doris Wilson knows the man who tore the screen from one of the windows of her residence, and then put his fist through a pane of glass.

He was arrested and taken to a hospital to have his cut arm treated. Damage to the window was estimated at $25.

Yolanda Carillo, 1002 N. Main, reported that a man she knows tried to pull the screen from her apartment window and crawl through before she could close the window. He was unsuccessful, but damage to the window was estimated at $15.

Burglars hit both A.H. Scoggins' home at 1807 1/2 Johnson and his pickup, Sunday night. After cutting the screen on the door of the home, the intruders slipped inside and stole $142 in cash from a pair of Scoggins' pants.

Back to normal after tritium scare

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Baptist church still holds Sunday services. Traffic still hums along South Plumer Avenue. Children still walk through the midtown Tucson neighborhood on their way to parochial school.

But underlying the calm are reminders of the turmoil created last year when a local plant was accused of leaking radioactive tritium, enough so it showed up in a cake baked in a nearby school kitchen.

Today the red brick and adobe buildings of the American Atomics Corp. plant on South Plumer Avenue stand virtually empty, a "For Lease" sign in front of one.

Last spring, the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission accused American Atomics of allowing excessive emissions of tritium. Company officials denied the accusations.

But on June 1, 1979, tests performed in the school kitchen showed that cake, which had been served to 40,000 school children in the Tucson Unified School District, contained excessive amounts of tritium.

The public, already concerned by the earlier allegations, became alarmed. American Atomics said low levels of tritium were not harmful to people, but two weeks later, after furious efforts to rid the area of radiation, the plant was ordered closed.

Questions and unresolved issues remain a year later. Possibly the most significant is just how harmful a substance is tritium, a low-level radioactive hydrogen isotope. Even experts cannot agree what it will do.

Also undecided is what to do with the American Atomics' valuable tritium. Most of the tritium that was removed from the plant under Gov. Bruce Babbitt's orders four months after the closure remains at the Navajo Army Ordnance Depot outside Flagstaff. Plans to sell it or otherwise move it out of Arizona have been stalled.

"We're still waiting for a letter from the Department of Energy because proposals from the private sector have not worked out," said governor's aide Dale Pontius.

Also pending is decontamination of the American Atomics plant. The company went broke and the facility is under control of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court and the state.

It is being decontaminated now — slowly. Darrel Warren, the supervising state health physicist, said American Atomics is strapped for funds and is using only two or three cleaners.

The state Atomic Energy Commission is inspecting the cleanup, testing each piece of equipment to make sure all traces of radiation are removed. When all the equipment is cleaned, the buildings themselves will be scrubbed inside and out.

"All it takes is someone getting down with a scrub brush and a mop and using elbow grease to clean it up," said Warren.

The bankruptcy action, filed by American Atomics after its main asset — tritium — was removed by the state, is nowhere near resolution. Last week, the court gave the company permission to auction more than 300 pieces of equipment and furniture that had been decontaminated.

School lunches have been prepared in individual school kitchens since the district's central kitchen was closed. School district officials say they hope to reopen the central kitchen in time for the start of summer school on June 9.

It was closure of that central kitchen which triggered a whirlwind of action.

The state Atomic Energy Commission issued an emergency order closing the American Atomics plant pending hearings on the alleged emissions. A month later, in the midst of the hearings, American Atomics surrendered its state license, saying it would move its radiation-related operations out of Arizona. But the company declared bankruptcy before it could relocate.

Government officials, reacting specifically to the American Atomics situation and in general to state regulations, tightened controls on businesses using radioactive materials.

Babbitt, disturbed that the state AEC was set up to promote atomic energy as well as to regulate it, called for establishment of a true state regulatory agency. This year, the Legislature responded by creating the Radiation Regulatory Agency.

American Atomics is out of business in Tucson. But company president Peter Biehl is an officer in a new company that has applied for licensing to operate a similar but smaller plant near Odessa, Texas.

Except that 200 American Atomics employees no longer show up for work each day, the South Plumer Avenue neighborhood appears to be about back to normal.

Closing one chapter, opening another

One of the most significant and memorable times in the life of any individual comes when he or she graduates from high school. Students may hesitate to discuss in any depth with members of their family about the experience but invariably they sense that traumatic changes are ahead for them. In their cases, one significant chapter of their lives has ended, another is about to begin.

One who did lend it a lot of thought, and who stayed up past midnight one night the past week to put her thoughts on paper was Sandy Kuykendall of Big Spring High School, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J.W. Kuykendall. She titled the literary "At Least I'm Trying" and here is what she wrote:

Deep in thought —
My mind is as cluttered as my room.
So many things to decide
What to do now? Now —
Now that I'm supposed to be out on my own.
But Lord —
I can tell you this — I'm a little bit chicken.
I mean — it's a big world Lord.

I'm not sure I can handle it.
I'm not sure I want to.
Everyone says that it's great but I can tell you, Lord, it's scary!
They say I can decide on my own,
Decide things that used to be cut and dried;
used to be when my parents cut and dried them.
They say I can run my own life.
But, Lord —
I'm worried that I'll make mistakes.
Worried that my decisions will be wrong.
You know —
Lord, everything seems so easy when I talk about it.
It's the doing part that's hard.
No one ever said that it's going to be easy.
But Lord that's all I'm used to.
I never had to fight my way to the top.
I was born there. I never went without.
I was always given.
Lord —
Maybe I need some struggles,

maybe a little work
But, Lord
Not all at once.
Everything's happening now,
demanding my attention.
Lord —
Why didn't my parents ever face these fears, fears which haunt me at night, when I sit to think?
They seem so together, Lord, so calm, so with it.
Lord —
I'm all bent out of shape,
Emerging from a cocoon, where I've hidden all my life.
My wings just aren't quite ready.
And I know, Lord, that I can't go back.
My cocoon won't fit anymore.
And I don't want to go back, that is
But I'm not ready to jump forward.
But rather work toward a new place
Stopping every now and then to notice where I'm at.
So Lord —
If I'm in slow motion right now,
And no one understands me,
You and I know —

That I'm only noticing where I'm at.
And trying to decide where I want to go, and trying not to decide wrong.
I don't want to make the mistakes, but I want to take the risks.
So you see, Lord —
I'm going to need your help.
You know where I'm headed, even if I don't,
And if by chance I stumble and fall flat on my face,
Lord —
You'll pick me up and dust me off, then give me a kick in the right direction.
And I thought that I'd take time now just to say thanks,
Because later on when I hurt, I might forget,
Or I might not want to say it.
And if I forget, please forgive me.
I don't mean to, but now especially
I realize I'm only human, and far from perfect.
But, Lord, you and I know, that at least I'm trying.

In for surprise

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

It's been almost two years since I saw her last and the letters have gotten fewer and farther between. But she is still one of my best friends.
I'm referring to Diana Totah, my roommate in college who celebrates her 24th birthday Friday. (She doesn't know it yet, but she's going to celebrate her 25th by being a part of my wedding.)

DIANA WAS THE first and only real roommate I ever had. I had shared a two-bedroom apartment during the summer with another girl but we hardly crossed paths. I was a "calming" influence on Diana because she had suffered through two bad roommates. She was a little wary of me at first, but it didn't last long.

We hit it off great. From the middle of August until the first of May 1978 we were like the Bobbys Twins. We had classes together, we did lots of things together and we even taught each other a few things.

We learned a lot about two different cultures. I learned of the Arabic way of life — Diana's grandmother was pure Arabic. And from me, Diana learned the customs of the German people.

But most of all we just had a lot of fun together. If we didn't have a date to a football game, we didn't break down in tears and suffer great pangs of embarrassment. We went to the game together and threw parties afterwards — a great way to meet people.

And, if there was no football game but the weekend still held no date in store, we gathered a few more "lonely" girls and headed for the local disco to make some fun of our own.

One weekend, Diana and I and two other journalism majors, took off for Magnolia and the Renaissance Festival there. We took lots of pictures, ate lots of food, spent lots of money and had a fabulous time.

Then there was the time we spent the weekend at her home in Houston in order to see the Rice-A&M football game. The afternoon before the game we were stranded in the middle of a busy Houston intersection with the rain pouring down. Then after the game we were supposed to meet a photographer friend of mine at one section of the stadium. He was going to take us to a party. It took us 30 minutes, we got lost but we found him as he was just about to give up on us and leave.

THE MOST memorable thing we ever did together occurred early one morning. We had been at the campus television station working on a project (Diana also worked there) until 4 a.m. We were on our way home when we passed by the parking lot of one of the men's dorms. In this particular dorm was one young man that had shunned Diana for months. She was feeling pretty daring and decided we should look for his car. We did. We found it. We (I mean, I) eventually let the air out of two of his tires. The young gentlemen never figured out who the culprit was.

More than any of the stunts we pulled or the things we did together, Diana has stayed a friend because she has always been there to listen to me, never making judgments, only offering advice. I know she will always be there to listen if I need her, even though she's 400 miles away in Houston.

Happy Birthday Diana.

Cash and carry

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — As controls on credit cards become more stringent, people are paying for their purchases in cash. Since most sales clerks in large department stores have no experience in handling money, they are now attending crash courses to learn how to deal with it.

One of the leading department stores in Washington permitted me to attend a class.

The instructor used slides to familiarize the clerks with the various denominations of money they would be handling.

"Before the credit card," he said, "Americans used paper money when buying goods. Then plastic was invented and cash was abolished as a way of paying for goods in stores. Now because of the credit restrictions placed on the customer, people are returning to the use of paper again, and you are permitted to accept it. Are there any questions?"

"How do we recognize the value of the currency?"

"THAT'S A GOOD question. Please watch the slides. First I will show you a one-dollar bill. Note that it has a picture of George Washington on it and in the corner a large figure one! This is the smallest denomination. It will not buy anything by itself but is used to supplement a purchase when the person uses the following bills: Here is a five-dollar bill with Abraham Lincoln's picture, and this is a ten-dollar bill with a likeness of Alexander Hamilton and a twenty-dollar bill with Andrew Jackson on the face of it. We will deal with fifty- and hundred-dollar bills in the Advanced Cash Course!"

Now, let's simulate an actual purchase so we get used to dealing with money. Frankie Kelly, you will be the saleslady, and Lizzie Diamond, you will take the sale of the customer. Let us assume, Frankie, that Lizzie has just purchased a bathroom scale. Now go ahead."

Lizzie said, "I wish to buy this scale and I want to pay cash."

Frankie replied, "It is $25.60."

Lizzie handed over three ten-dollar bills.

Frankie inspected the money. "May I see your driver's license, please?"

"No, Frankie," the instructor yelled. "It is not necessary to ask to see a driver's license when someone pays cash."

"All right," Frankie said. Then she turned to Lizzie.

"Do you have any other identification?"

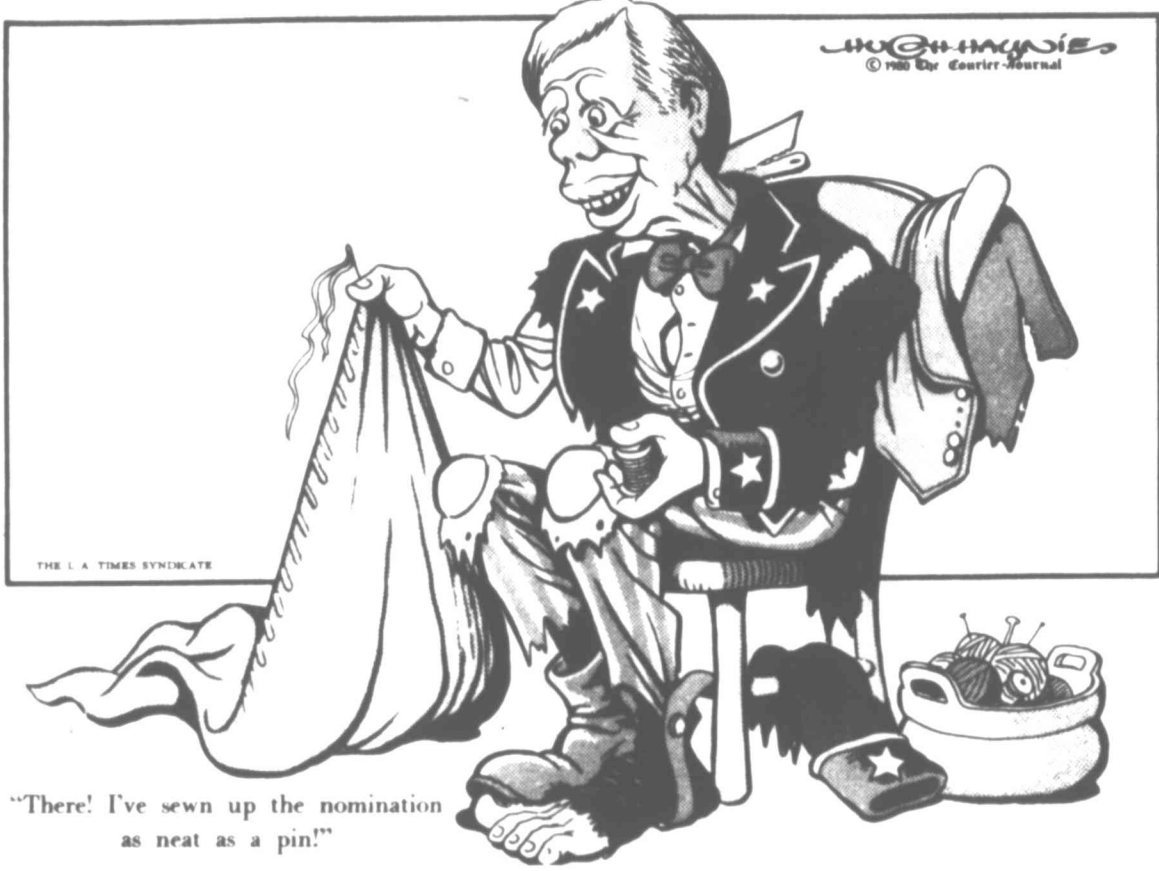

"Wait, hold it," the instructor said, jumping up. "When a customer pays cash, you do not have to ask for identification."

"How do we know the money is any good?" Lizzie could be using someone else's cash," Frankie said.

"We have to assume the money is good and that it belongs to Lizzie."

I could tell Frankie was upset. She took a pen to write on the ten-dollar bill. "May I have your address and home telephone number?"

"Don't write on the money," the instructor shouted. "It will only confuse the next person who uses it. Just take the cash."

"There! I've sewn up the nomination as neat as a pin!"

When gullet watchman goofs off

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

NOTE TO H.K. — You won't find your letter on hiatal hernia because its great length would have limited my ability to answer in the space available. You'll find most of your questions answered below.

The heart burn associated with hiatal hernia may not be caused directly by the hernia. Many people have no symptoms with H.H. The real villain is reflux.

The esophagus passes through an opening in the diaphragm, which is the muscle separating the abdomen from the chest. When the upper part of the stomach bulges upward through the opening, that's a hiatal hernia.

Also, there is a "doorman" muscle at the lower end of the esophagus called an esophageal sphincter. When he is on duty he will not allow irritating stomach juices to back up into the esophagus. When he is taking a break this can happen, and it is called "reflux." The pain is described as "heartburn." Hiatal hernia does not always interfere with this "doorman."

Reflux can occur, though, when one bends over, after meals, when lifting or when lying down. Lying down deprives the doorman of one of his greatest aids — gravity. The downward flow of saliva, which helps neutralize stomach acid, and the normal downward propelling movement of the esophagus both are lessened when lying down.

Things that help prevent reflux include avoiding of rich, fatty food, alcohol and smoking. Smaller meals help. Don't eat before bedtime. More protein also helps, because protein neutralizes acid. You can assist gravity by elevating the bed head six to eight inches. Liquid antacids also help.

Surgery is for those who cannot be helped these ways or who have ulcerations of the esophagus from reflux irritation. The goal of surgery is to restore the sphincter watchman to duty. When needed, surgery has helped in about 85 percent of patients. I should re-emphasize the point that only a few H.H. patients ever need surgery. You may find the booklet you asked for, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It," helpful. You can get a copy by mailing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 70-year-old woman I have had very few sick days in my life so far, but recently I have had pain down the side of my face next to my ear. It is not like a headache, just a painful area that is more tender to the touch. Can you suggest what this might be? — K.M.

From this distance I can only suggest a common cause of such sudden pain in an elderly person. What comes to mind is temporal arteritis, which is inflammation of the vessels in the head. You should not let that go unchecked. It can be treated with corticosteroid drugs. Prompt treatment of temporal arteritis is important to prevent potential eye involvement.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been a bit confused, and maybe you can straighten me out for sure. What is the actual first day of a menstrual cycle and how do you know when that cycle has stopped? — M.M.

The first day of the menstrual bleeding is day "one" of the cycle. You number the days consecutively thereafter until the first day of bleeding occurs again. That becomes day "one" of another cycle. The usual length of this cycle is 28 days, although this can range from 21 to 35 days and be considered normal. Months when menstruation is missed are those in which there has been no ovulation.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: It seems to me that a lot of people who claim to be Christians are not very balanced. I mean, they seem to stress religion a bit too much. Don't you think it's important to keep things in the balance? — I.T.A.

DEAR I.T.A.: From what you write, you would say that you believe in God but that you are not really a Christian. I would imagine that you believe you probably are "balanced" in your approach, since to you God is one of my interests you have, not one of which completely dominates or overshadows the other interests.

But to understand your acquaintances who are Christians you need to understand what they believe. They believe God not only exists but that He is personally interested in each one of us because He loves us. They believe that each human being was created by Him, and that we are all separated from God because we have sinned. They also are convinced that God does not want us to be separated from Him, because He wants us to know Him and follow His perfect plan for our lives so that we will know true happiness. They have come to believe that Jesus Christ is God's Son, who came into this world to take away our sins. He did this by dying on a crude Roman cross as a sacrifice for the sins of each of us.

In addition, they are persuaded that by faith in Him they are now forgiven, and know God in a personal way. They can talk with Him in prayer and know that He hears. They can read the Bible and know it is His Word which speaks truth and gives guidance. They know that some day they will go to be with God throughout all eternity. It grieves them that others do not know Christ as their personal savior and lord; they know that others can never experience the joy and peace God gives to His people, and that some day they will die and go into eternity without God, separated from Him forever.

If you believed that with all your heart, wouldn't you be excited and wouldn't you want to make God the center of your life? And that is what I hope you will do when you open your heart to Christ.

Ties questioned

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — According to the latest public opinion polls, many Americans are so disenchanted with the likely Democratic and Republican candidates for president that they'd welcome a chance to vote for "None of the Above" this November. Indeed, this disenchantment among the electorate is the main thing Rep. John Anderson has going for him.

Oddly enough, the same problem exists in the Soviet Union, where the so-called electoral process leaves the voters no choice when they file into the polling booths to "elect" the only candidates on the ballot.

AND YET, ACCORDING to America's Kremlin-watchers, disenchanted Russians still manage to "vote with their feet" by staying home on Election Day. This has also been confirmed by a Soviet defector who was once a high official of the Politburo.

The defector, who used to be a Communist Party supervisor for several election districts, told my associates Vicki Warren and Dale Van Atta how widespread the practice was. "In all the districts that I supervised, as well as in districts where the real results were known to me," he said, "between 15 and 20 percent of the voters declared their unwillingness to vote."

How many actually persist in their intention to boycott the spurious election process is not known. First of all, it's against the law for Soviet citizens to abstain from voting. Communist Party activists are saddled with the job of getting people to the polls for the formal endorsement of party candidates.

The Soviet party hacks have lists of all voters in their districts, and check off each one as the vote is cast. Those who don't show up are visited during the day.

Despite this heavyhanded charade, our Soviet sources estimate that more than 60 million voters — about a third of the adult population — refused to vote for the official Communist Party candidate in elections of the mid-1970s. This was, the sources said, a way of expressing opposition to the government.

There could be other reasons, though. Soviet elections are held on Sundays, and a lot of Russians use their day off to get drunk, according to a State Department source.

THE TRUE NUMBER of Soviet citizens who vote — or, more importantly, the number who don't vote — never reaches the bigshots in the Kremlin. Party bureaucrats, fearful of losing their jobs, "systematically falsify" the figures on voter turnout, according to our sources.

Not long ago, one Kremlin official had the temerity to suggest that more than one candidate be offered to the "voters." Later, a non-Communist social organization quietly fielded a candidate for the Soviet Parliament. Just as quietly, he was forced to drop out.

FRAUD FUROR: Washington's most potent pressure group is the military-munitions lobby, which is engaged in the great corporate scramble for defense dollars. Staggering amounts have been lavished on armaments that should have been scrapped or never should have been built in the first place.

Some restraints on defense profiteering are contained in the False Claims Act, which was passed in 1863. Virtually unchanged since then, the law is now being revamped for the 20th century by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. The modifications would crack down heavily on contractors who shortchange Uncle Sam.

But the Pentagon is afraid that getting tough with pet suppliers might throw sand into its well-oiled operation. An assistant defense secretary, Gerald P. Dinneen, wrote a letter expressing doubts about the bill to Sen. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

The letter was sent without the knowledge of the Carter administration, which supports a hard-line approach to defense-contract swindlers. So the White House fired off a letter of its own to the Pentagon, noting that Dinneen's letter "had resulted in needless embarrassment to the administration."

APT ACRONYM: The State Department's Vietnam-Laos-Cambodia office has won a sardonic nickname in Foggy Bottom. Because of its apparently unending diet of disaster, the VLC office is known as the Office of Very Lost Causes.

Dear Editor:

The board of directors, staff and residents of Big Spring Halfway House wish to express many thanks to you, as Editor of the Herald, and to your staff for the excellent support and management during the contribution drive for us. We also wish to give thanks to Radio Stations — KBST, KBYG, and KHEM for their time and support. Without the support of all the medias, this fund-raising drive would surely have been a failure.

To those in the community who gave cash contributions, and some businesses who gave their unpaid bill contributions, we are now in a position to pay all the accounts of Big Spring Halfway House. All past due accounts of the Halfway House will be paid no later than June 10. As there is an excess of money from the fund drive, the board will take the accounts that were written off by local businesses either as bad debts or as contribution, and these accounts will also be paid.

The board of directors also wishes to recognize Polly Mays for her extra effort, along with Gloria Strom Ezell, who worked so hard to raise money.

As chairman and a member of the board of directors, we make a promise to the community that Big Spring Halfway House will operate within an approved acceptable budget, and if this facility cannot be supported through clients and non-crisis fund-raising, we will, as a board, close this facility.

Missing list revised

Volcano outwardly calm

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Only steam plumes and deep, minor rumblings beneath Mount St. Helens are reminding scientists the volcano is still active.

But U.S. Geological Survey scientists know the mountain is dangerous and are keeping as close an eye on it as overcast skies allow.

Meanwhile, the official list of persons missing from the volcano's May 18 explosion was revised Monday to 51, but the death toll remained at 22, according to Rhonda Brooks of the Washington state Department of Emergency Services.

Removed from the list were Royal City, Wash., residents Tom and Leona Goven. The couple said they weren't near the mountain during the eruption and finally convinced officials they were alive.

Meanwhile, the low cloud cover on Monday kept scientists from checking to see if lava was bubbling in the crater.

Super-heated rocks, emitting a bright, reddish glow in the crater, had convinced scientists late last week that lava had reached the surface. Geologists said lava hadn't thrust up through the crater but scientific measurements indicated that magma, or molten rock, continued its movement toward forming a volcanic dome.

"Even if the mountain was to start forming a dome, further eruptions from the volcano can't be ruled out," said Norm Anderson with the U.S. Forest Service.

"There probably will be continued eruptions from the dome for some time, but scientists say probably not as large as the May 18 blast," he said.

No major ash eruptions have been noted since May 25. But meteorologists said Monday that ash from the violent May 18 explosion had circled the globe and was back over North America.

The explosion killed more than 1 1/2 million wild animals and birds and at least 441,000 game fish, state game officials report.

Despite the weekend conclusion of an official search for missing persons, Cowlitz County Coroner D.F. Winebrenner said Monday he would not immediately issue presumptive death certificates for the missing.

"I am going to wait a while," Winebrenner said. "However, from the victims I have examined, I doubt if anyone up there is still alive."

Clean up mosquitoes breed places around your home

By DAVID FOSTER
County Extension Entomologist
Martin, Howard, Glasscock,
Upson, & Reagan Counties

Recent rains have brought a mosquito problem to many Texas communities. Standing water from these showers makes an excellent breeding place for mosquitoes, noted County Extension Entomologist David Foster.

Mosquitoes can lay eggs wherever standing water is available for a week or longer. "Old tires, tin cans, birdbaths, roadside ditches, rain gutters, temporary water containers and swampy places all can hold enough water to provide breeding sites for mosquitoes," the county entomologist warned.

If mosquitoes are a problem, the county entomologist advised, the first thing to do is eliminate their breeding sites.

Empty out old tires and place them where they cannot collect additional water. Flatten and discard tin cans. Change the water in birdbaths every week. Clean out rain gutters, remove temporary water containers and see that rain barrels and water storage tubs are tightly covered. Drain standing water from ditches and swampy areas.

"If there is standing water that serves as a breeding site but cannot be drained or eliminated, treatment with a larvicide will be necessary," Foster said.

One of the most effective larvicides is No. 2 diesel oil with a biodegradable spreader, applied at a rate of 20 gallons for each surface acre of water, or approximately 6 ounces per 100 square feet of surface.

Abate, malathion, or Dursban applied to standing water at rates indicated on their labels also are effective larvicides, the county entomologist said. But he warned that labels should be read carefully to determine the hazards these insecticides pose to persons applying them and to fish and animals that may use the water.

Control of adult mosquitoes offers the most immediate relief. Inside the home, aerosol bombs containing pyrethrin offer quick knockdown of adult mosquitoes, the Extension entomologist said. The killing effect of pyrethrin is very short-lived, so frequent application will be necessary to control adult mosquitoes inside the home. The "pest strip" offers effective indoor control for long periods. "One pest strip for each average size room is necessary to control mosquitoes," the entomologist said.

"Persons who are active where mosquitoes are a problem should use repellents," the Extension entomologist advised. "These repellents will protect you from biting mosquitoes for from one to three hours, depending upon your type of activity."

Adult mosquitoes around the home can best be controlled by space or residual treatments of insecticides such as malathion, Dibrom, methoxychlor, or Dursban, he suggested. Space treatments, generally fogs, have very little residual activity and require repeating at frequent intervals. Space treatment should be done during the cool hours of the night or early morning and when wind velocity is less than five miles an hour.

Residual treatment applied as mists or sprays to the resting sites of adult mosquitoes gives longer-lasting control than space treatments, the county entomologist noted. These should be applied to vegetation, eaves of roofs, under porches, and similar shaded areas where adult mosquitoes rest by day.

"Hot, dry summer weather should dry out these temporary pools of water and give people some eventual relief from these biting mosquitoes," the county entomologist said.

Sissy Spacek honored

QUITMAN, Texas (AP) — Turtle racers, egg tossers, tricycle riders and members of the high school class of '68 mobbed a park as this town of 2,000 celebrated Sissy Spacek Day.

Mary Elizabeth Spacek, who recently portrayed country singer Loretta Lynn in "Coal Miner's Daughter," responded with squeals of delight as she was embraced by old classmates and peppered them with questions: "What are you doing now. Who did you marry? Whatever did you do to your hair?"

"It's just wonderful to be home," Miss Spacek said as she signed autographs and handed out prizes to games winners during the weekend festivities. As darkness fell and the people of Quitman began to trickle off to home, Sissy, parents and friends finally settled down to a picnic supper.

Model favored for spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Hollywood insiders are betting that model Suzie Coelho will be the first choice when the producers of ABC-TV's "Charlie's Angels" award a new set of wings, says The New York Post.

The Post said Monday that Miss Coelho, Sonny Bono's longtime companion, leads a list of four candidates to replace Shelley Hack, who lasted just one season in the private detective series.

Others in the running are actress Cornelia Sharpe, former model Tanya Roberts and CBS sportscaster Jayne Kennedy, the newspaper says.

"We looked at more than 2,000 girls before narrowing our choice to four," said production executive Brett Garwood. "We will make the final decision this week."

The winner will join Cheryl Ladd and Jaclyn Smith. Former Angels include Farrah Fawcett and Kate Jackson.

Brain okay, Ali says

MIAMI (AP) — Muhammad Ali says a British doctor is "crazy" for thinking his brain is damaged — "only Allah knows about my brain."

The London Sunday Times had asked an unidentified neurologist to study filmed interviews of Ali done in 1970, 1978 and 1979. The doctor said he noticed a marked deterioration in the 38-year-old former heavyweight boxing champion's speech and movements, possibly from brain damage.

"He's crazy," Ali told The Miami News in an interview from his Deer Lake, Pa., training camp. "I'd like to meet this doctor in a discussion and we'll see who's the most intelligent and who has the fastest reflexes, mentally. We'll see who has the brain damage."

Ali has been advised not to fight again, but he says he's determined to win the heavyweight crown an unprecedented fourth time this fall in a fight against Larry Holmes.

Ali's wife, Veronica, told The News "anything is possible," but she doesn't believe her husband has brain damage. "The older you get, the slower you get. As far as his speech, sometimes he's just lazy."

Violent storms hit Midwest

By the Associated Press

A series of violent storms, packing high winds, hail and tornadoes, pummeled Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, killing one person, injuring at least 35 and causing millions of dollars of property damage.

"It was unbelievable," said Postmaster Donald Ringenberg after the roof collapsed Monday at the Pekin, Ill., post office during a driving electrical storm.

"There was no real warning. It sagged down in the middle of the building and then collapsed under a tremendous force of water."

No one was injured in the incident, which occurred after 5 inches of rain fell on the area near Peoria, officials said.

Three tornadoes touched down in central Illinois and two Illinois State University students were injured when lightning struck near them, authorities reported. University officials said the two were in fair condition Monday night.

Elsewhere in Illinois, hail the size of tennis balls damaged crops and cars near Macomb in the western part of the state. Civil defense crews were forced to rescue 20 children stranded by high water at a nursery school in Morton, and an ambulance on the trip from Champaign to Lafayette, Ind., to pick up a patient was blown over west of Danville.

Numerous tornadoes accompanied by heavy thunderstorms slashed across southern and eastern Iowa Monday. More than 6 inches of rain fell on Lee County in the southeastern-most part of the state, causing flash floods.

A Monday morning tornado slammed into a Chicago & North Western freight train, derailing seven of its 116 cars near Allerton.

"In my whole life, I've never heard of anything like this," said D.B. Carlisle, a division manager for the railroad.

The fatality occurred in western Indiana, where Twilla G. Emery, 46, was struck and killed by flying debris from her trailer, officials said. Her 15-year-old son, who was inside the trailer when the high winds struck, was seriously injured, authorities said.

"The trailer is scattered over 20 or 30 acres," said Montgomery County Coroner Russell Powers.

Several tornadoes were reported in Indiana, but only one in northeast Indianapolis was confirmed by the National Weather Service. High winds also tore off a portion of the roof at Culver Hospital in Crawfordsville, but damage was limited to some hospital records, officials said.

There were at least 24 persons injured by the storms in Indiana, police said.

Suburbs north of Cincinnati seemed to be the hardest hit in Ohio. Police in Madeira reported part of the roof of the high school cafeteria was pulled off by the Monday storm. No injuries were reported.

Cincinnati area hospitals said 10 persons were treated for slight injuries after the storm struck shortly after 5 p.m. It was the second straight day of severe thunderstorms and punishing winds in Ohio.

Company pays deer-ly

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Checker Motors Corp.'s 930 union employees have won Nov. 15 as a paid holiday.

The new holiday was approved when the employees of the tiny automaker approved a new contract over the weekend. They will get a 30-cent hourly raise the first year and a 24-cent increase the next two years.

And the money will help some of them buy ammo. Nov. 15 is the opening day of Michigan's deer season.

Billboard debate: On, off

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — An outdoor advertising company that painted bikinis on its billboard depiction of naked women sunbathers is going to have to go au naturel after all, company officials say.

Complaints from residents unhappy with all the bare skin on the billboards had prompted Peterson Outdoor Advertising Corp. to paint bikinis on the two women shown lying on their bellies on the beach.

But the Miami-based client, Sun Systems Promotions, has a contract that forbids alterations, according to Andy Anderson, head of the billboard company. So his crews will have to go back and paste up new copies of the ad on 12 of the 30 billboards painted before Sun Systems protested, he said.

"After we researched the contract we signed, we discovered we did not have the right to alter the copy or reject it for any reason," Anderson said, adding the contract expires in three months.

"I doubt if we'd renew it with the existing design," he said.

Defendant's chair empty

NEW YORK (AP) — Judge Burton B. Roberts shed his robes to prosecute James Sturgis on a robbery count. F. Lee Bailey, whose fees run to six figures, flew from Boston to represent Sturgis without charge.

Each lawyer, considered among the best in his respective field, put the facts before the jury — to be rewarded with a rousing ovation.

Sturgis didn't mind. He doesn't exist. Bailey, whose clients have included newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, and Roberts, a former Bronx County district attorney, were flexing their skills during the Trial Advocacy Program, a training session designed to hone the skills of young lawyers.

Although both Bailey and Roberts played their roles with straight faces, Roberts could not resist a touch of flamboyance.

He's back, but not as astronaut

DALLAS (AP) — David Laughlin, once an all-city quarterback and all-city third baseman in Dallas, is back in Texas again.

But not as an astronaut in the space program, as he had hoped when he left in the mid-1960s to accept a football scholarship with the Air Force Academy.

He's the new president of Trailways Food Services, Inc., whose officials hope he will make the same kind of innovative changes that made him the talk of the industry in four years with Trailways' chief competitor, Greyhound Bus Lines.

"The secret of running a good organization is putting together qualified, well-trained employees with the right background with a winning attitude," Laughlin said.

"If you get people like that, properly enthusiastic and get them so they are all marching to the same drummer, they have to be successful," he said.

A shattered collarbone in a scrimmage ended his football career — and his flight fitness — in his sophomore year at the Air Force Academy, but the 31-year-old Laughlin has been covering a lot of ground ever since.

He returned to Dallas, joined the SMU baseball squad and took a parttime job in the mail room at Bonanza Steak House.

He started moving up through the ranks in a hurry and soon found himself, still in his 20s, trying to teach men twice his age how to run their operations better, how to hire better workers and how to train the workers to assure a successful business.

"One of the things that helped me, I'd have to say, is I never minded working hard. I spent a lot of hours working, and I was a young manager at that time," he said.

"I felt there were drawbacks to working with managers older than me. I felt, therefore, I had to do something to compensate for that, although my personnel management skills were not too polished then at all."

Discipline had been hammered home when he was at the Air Force Academy, and to that he added a positive attitude and a determination to let those working for him know that he appreciated them.

In rapid-fire order, Bonanza made him manager, supervisor of several restaurant operations, director of training, director of franchise sales, director of franchise operations and division manager.

"I had visions then of saying I started in the mailroom of this company and became president. You know the old story. I had a lot of pride and loyalty to that company."

He was only 27 but, after eight years with Bonanza, Greyhound hired him to head its fast food operations.

He received extensive media and industry recognition for his innovative management approach and sales-building track record. Within four years under his leadership, Greyhound's fast food service developed into the highest-volume franchise in the Burger King international restaurant chain.

His hiring as president of the Trailways Food Services, Inc., was announced Monday, and he instituted his first motivational innovation immediately.

Employees were stunned Monday morning when somebody from the Hardee's fast-food franchise, operated by Trailways in the bus terminal downstairs, brought around a tray of free, steaming hot biscuits.

"It's little things like that, a touch of professionalism, that helps let people know they're appreciated. It'll be done every day from now on," said Laughlin, who made it plain his motivation attempts will be aimed not only at teen-agers who serve food but at secretaries and other Trailways employees.

Hiring properly qualified people is the most important factor to a successful operation, he said. That means repeat interviews in an attempt to fill an opening with the best person.

"If we were hiring a kid, they often don't have prior experience for us to look at, but we would be looking for someone who maybe had been successful in school or had a high grade point average or was involved in extracurricular activities," Laughlin said.

"You don't want to ever get to the point where you're in such desperate need of employees that you take just anybody that comes in off the street. Then once you have been careful in your selection and get people with winning attitudes, then you need to motivate them properly and get them trained."

The motivation may be only a pat on the back, or it may be an employee's picture on the wall for being the employee of the month or for selling more fried pies than anybody else, Laughlin said.

"Everyone wants to feel like they contribute to the success of an operation. And every level is a part of how well the company is doing," he added.

"The way to do that is to let them know how important their job is and help them in setting goals they can reach out and strive for to reach even more productive levels."

Dear Abby

Mental Barriers Make "Invalids" of Us All

DEAR ABBY: This letter is written in response to the woman whose son was planning to marry a paraplegic. I am a rehabilitation counselor, working solely with spinal cord injured persons. I was distressed, but not surprised, that the woman referred to her future daughter-in-law as an "invalid."

Her ignorance concerning the limitations of persons with spinal cord injuries is all too common. This lack of understanding can be a far greater hardship to a person with such an impairment than the impairment itself.

There is no way to undo generations of misinformation in one letter, but I will try. The easiest way is simply to list some of the things a paraplegic (one with lower body paralysis) can do, with proper equipment and/or assistance: Work, play, marry, divorce, love, be loved, have sex, become a parent, raise children, keep house, drive a vehicle, shop, attend school, church and engage in sports. I could fill your column with more, but I think you get the general idea.

Of course, each situation is different, depending on the extent of injury, motivation, environmental barriers, attitudinal barriers and other factors. But then we're all different, aren't we? Some of us able-bodied people do very little with our lives while others accomplish a great deal. The same applies to persons with physical disabilities.

What we can all do is make sure that we never prevent another human being from living as full and rewarding a life as he is capable of. Let's not be barriers ourselves.

JOE BUTLER, BATESVILLE, ARK.

DEAR JOE: Right on!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl. I know lots of boys as friends but have never had a real boyfriend. To be perfectly truthful about it, I have liked several boys a lot, and one in particular was on my mind night and day. He never paid any attention to me so I just went on dreaming about him, but nothing ever came of it.

Now for my problem. There is a rumor going around school that I got pregnant and had an abortion last summer. Abby, it is a lie. I never even had the chance to get pregnant, so I don't know where this rumor got started. How can I prove this is not true? I need your help.

LIED ABOUT

DEAR LIED ABOUT: Trying to prove that a rumor is not true is like trying to put toothpaste back into the tube. Just behave in a manner that will make those who spread those rumors look like liars.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I attended a wedding reception a month ago. The bride is the daughter of friends. The affair was elegant. They had 200 guests for a sit-down dinner and dance at the finest hotel.

My question: Is a wedding considered a social obligation — or a thing apart?

We entertained the parents of the bride at a dinner party two months before the wedding, but we aren't sure if we now owe them, or if they should make the next move socially. Please advise.

NOT SURE

DEAR NOT: Since the parents of the bride were your guests last at a dinner party, they now owe you a similar invitation. Even though their daughter's wedding was elegant, it cannot be considered repayment for your dinner party.

Should teen's room have to pass inspection?

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Nancy, 16, from Hagerstown, Md., has a mom who gives her room a captain's inspection and wants the teen guest writers to share their thoughts. Alice Connors 16, who hails from Vancouver, Wash., and Jeff Lange 16, who lives in Ogden, Utah, are the thought-makers.

Dr. Wallace: My mom is constantly on my back to keep my room neat and clean. Every morning before I leave the house, we have a captain's inspection and if everything is not just so, I receive a certain number of demerits. Fifty demerits and some privilege is denied. Last week I could not attend a slumber party because I exceeded my allotted 50 demerits.

Dr. Wallace, my room is never really dirty or messy. I should happen to fall asleep while studying, I'm in trouble because I know I won't have time to pass inspection the next morning. After all, it's my room not hers! Please have your guest writers share their thoughts on my dilemma. — Nancy, Hagerstown, Md.

Nancy: I'm going to make a lot of mothers mad at me but I think your room should be just that — your room. Every teen needs privacy. I also think that mother would get better results with a merit system instead of the demerit system. — Dr. Wallace

Hi Nancy: My brother is a freshman at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs and he said you will make a fine cadet with the training you are receiving. Actually, he said that you have it more strict than he does.

My mom is always on my case to keep my room tidy and I usually say, "Mom I'll get it straightened out," but I seldom do. But believe me, after reading your column, I'll never have to be told again. I promise you, mother. — Alice, Vancouver, Wash.

Hi Nancy: I'm going to give you an odd answer in that I have two views and I don't know which one is my true feeling. 1. You are very lucky that you have a room of your own. Most teens throughout the world would trade places with you, even with the demerit system. 2. Mother is a nit picker and she is actually making your teen years miserable by her petty ways — take your choice. — Jeff, Ogden, Utah guest writer please write to me in care of this newspaper.

If you would like to be a

Dr. Wallace: Every time that I have anything to do with another girl, my girlfriend "blows her top" and she is getting worse.

Yesterday I took a sports magazine to school and it had a pretty girl in a bikini on the cover (Sports Illustrated). I'm a sports fan and always read this magazine.

When my girl saw the magazine she was furious and refuses to talk to me. She thinks I bought the magazine to look at the pretty girls. Please help. — Rob, Columbus, Ohio

Rob: Your girlfriend seems very immature and insecure and it's time that you and this young lady had a heart-to-heart talk.

If you both can't come to an understanding and agreement about her possessiveness, go your separate ways.

P.S. I'm also a sports fan and just happened to see the magazine in question. The stories were good, but the pretty girl on the cover was better.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 25-cent, stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Stomachcramps cause French Open uproar

PARIS (AP) — While Harold Solomon, Jimmy Connors and Vitas Gerulaitis tried to end a 25-year American men's drought at the French Open tennis championships, a tempest erupted over a match that didn't happen.

The tempest surrounded a match scheduled Monday afternoon between Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, seeded No. 4 here, and Spain's Manuel Orantes, who was runner-up here at Roland Garros Stadium in 1974.

Vilas, who won last Sunday's Italian Open and looked very sharp here in the opening week, came down with stomach cramps Monday and asked for an hour's delay to start the match. Tournament organizers granted the delay.

But Orantes said later he was not informed of the decision until just before he was set to walk onto the clay courts at the originally scheduled time. He asked that a rule granting delays of only 15 minutes be applied or else Vilas must default.

After a confusing stew that followed, the match was put off until today and the thousands of ticket-holders who had come to see the day's big match were told they could return free of charge today.

But for Orantes, the tournament officials had breached a point of honor, and as late as Monday night he refused to give a clear answer on whether he would play the match that will complete the quarterfinals lineup toward the $53,000 men's crown.

In matches played Monday, Borg continued his consistent, often brilliant, usually error-free march to his fifth French crown, a feat which would be unprecedented in the modern history of this tournament, the first of the four legs of the Grand Slam of tennis.

Borg quickly dispatched Hungary's Balazs Taroczy 6-2, 6-4.

Sixth seed Harold Solomon also advanced to the quarterfinals, with an easy 6-0, 6-1, 6-3 dumping of fellow American Brian Gottfried.

Italy's Corrado Barazzutti, always tough on the slow clay here, also advanced to the quarterfinals with a 6-4, 6-2, 7-6 victory over Peter McNamara of Australia.

Barazzutti will meet Borg in the quarterfinals, probably on Wednesday. The Italian has never beaten Borg.

Solomon will meet the winner of the Vilas-Orantes match.

Jimmy Connors meets Chile's Hans Gildemeister and Vitas Gerulaitis meets Poland's Wojtek Fibak in the other quarterfinal matches.

The wind and the rain settled down here Monday, but not the upsets. No. 2 seed Billie Jean King had her hopes of a title match with Chris Evert Lloyd upended by Australia's Dianne Fromholtz 6-1, 6-4.

Romania's high-flying Virginia Ruzici will meet Fromholtz in the semifinals. In pending women's quarterfinal matches, Lloyd will continue her bid for the $42,500 French crown against Kathy Jordan. In the other match, Argentina's Ivana Madruga meets Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia.

Monday makes appropriate TV debut with game winning blast

By the Associated Press

It was the first Monday Night television show of the baseball season — and it certainly turned out to be Monday's night.

Rick Monday, out of the Los Angeles Dodgers' starting lineup these days but not completely forgotten, came through with a ninth-inning pinch homer for a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"Sutcliffe asked me to hit one out," said Monday, referring to pitcher Rick Sutcliffe, "and I told him that if I got a certain pitch, it was either feast or famine. (Doug) Bair threw me a breaking ball that I'm sure he was not trying to get in."

Monday hit the second pitch from the Cincinnati reliever into the right field bleachers at Dodger Stadium, wrapping up a game that boosted the Dodgers' lead over the Reds to two games in the National League West.

Monday, who failed in a pinch-hitting role on Sunday, came on to hit for rookie catcher Mike Scioia.

In other NL games, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 9-3; the San Diego Padres whipped the Houston Astros 3-0; the Atlanta Braves stopped the San Francisco Giants 4-2 and the Montreal Expos nipped the Chicago Cubs 8-7 in 13 innings.

Pirates 9, Phillies 3
Vance Law, Dave Parker and pitcher Don Robinson drove in two runs each to lead Pittsburgh over Philadelphia.

The Phillies held a 3-2 lead through four innings. But the Pirates, capitalizing on two errors by Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt, broke open the game with five runs in the fifth. Robinson improved his record to 2-1.

Padres 3, Astros 0
Willie Montanez sparked a first-inning rally with a two-run single and Rick Wise and Eric Rasmussen combined for a four-hit effort as San Diego defeated Houston.

Wise, 3-3, shut out Houston for the first five innings but left in the sixth with a pulled muscle in his left rib cage. Rasmussen finished up to earn his first save of the year.

Braves 4, Giants 2
Atlanta edged San Francisco behind Phil Niekro, who scattered 11 hits to beat the Giants for the 23rd time in his career.

The Braves broke through with two runs in the fifth inning on Luis Gomez' RBI single and Glenn Hubbard's sacrifice fly. They scored their winning runs in the seventh on RBI hits by Dale Murphy and Chris Chambliss.

Expos 8, Cubs 7
Lynn McGlothen walked pinch-hitter Bob Pate with the bases loaded to force in the winning run in the bottom of the 13th inning, giving Montreal its victory over Chicago.

Rodney Scott led off the inning with a single and Andre Dawson was hit by a pitch. Gary Carter then moved the runners up with a sacrifice before Warren Cromartie drew an intentional walk to fill the bases.

Pate, batting for winning pitcher Woodie Fryman, 1-1, then worked McGlothen, 2-1, to a full count before checking his swing on ball four. Pate was just called up Friday from Denver to replace the injured Ellis Valentine.

JOINS BRUINS — Olympic goalie Jim Craig is helped into his new uniform shirt of the Boston Bruins by his father Donald Craig after it was announced by the Bruins Monday in Boston that Craig had been signed away from the Atlanta Flames. Craig who is a native of North Easton, Mass. was acquired for two future draft choices.

Genuine Risk continues Preakness fight

BALTIMORE (AP) — The owners of Genuine Risk continue their efforts today to revive the filly's chances of becoming a belated candidate for racing's Triple Crown.

After becoming the first of her sex in 65 years to win the Kentucky Derby, Genuine Risk was beaten in the Preakness Stakes on May 17 when a foul claim against winner Codex was disallowed by Maryland stewards at Pimlico Race Course.

Diana and Bertram Firestone, the owners of Genuine Risk, appealed the decision and the three stewards were the first witnesses as a hearing on the matter opened Monday before the Thoroughbred Board of the Maryland Racing Commission.

Tapes belonging to ABC, which televised the Preakness nationally, were expected to be offered into evidence today when attorney Henry Lord begins presenting the case for Genuine Risk.

A precedent for viewing network films was established in 1973, when CBS tried to prove that Secretariat had broken the Preakness record. The commissioners did not change the running time recorded by the automatic timer, however.

Board Chairman Robert W. Banning promised to expedite the current hearing in an effort to reach a decision prior to Saturday's running of the Belmont Stakes, the final race in the Triple Crown series.

In his opening statement Monday, Lord contended Genuine Risk had been impeded, jostled and either struck or intimidated by the whip of Angel Cordero Jr. aboard Codex as the filly made her move near the quarter pole of the 13-16-mile classic.

Lord argued that the action against Genuine Risk and jockey Jacinto Vasquez was premeditated and added: "What we have here is a 104-year-old tradition that has been sullied by jockey Cordero."

The attorney suggested that should the Firestone's position prevail, the board should hold further hearings to consider "possible strong sanctions" against Cordero.

Lord contended carrying Genuine Risk wide was "conscious behavior on the part of the jockey," which caused the filly to break stride and "change her lead when she didn't want to."

The attorney also charged that the filly was intimidated by Cordero's waving whip at close quarters, whether or not she was struck.

Stewards J. Fred Colwill, Clinton Pitts Jr. and Edward Litzenger, who rejected the foul claim by Vasquez, reiterated belief in their decision Monday.

All three stewards said they saw no impeding, jostling or intimidation and no willful or careless action by Cordero to injure Genuine Risk.

Millions of viewers saw the ABC version and many who were already rooting for the filly were further inflamed when former jockey Eddie Arcaro, the network's analyst, said he would have upheld the objection.

Michigan ousted from tourney
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Craig Lefferts of Arizona said he threw a lot of fastballs and sliders. Michigan players said they saw a lot of curve balls and change-ups.

It's no wonder the Wolverines were shut out. Michigan lost, 8-0, when Lefferts scattered five hits in an Arizona victory that sent the Wolverines packing from the College World Series Monday night.

Superb pitching also had done it earlier Monday to Michigan, when undefeated the Big Spring Red Sox scored a split of their doubleheader with the Ozona Royals in semi-pro action Sunday afternoon at Roy Anderson Complex.

Frankie Rubio pitched the win for the Red Sox in the opener, as the Big Spring crew won 6-5. Supplying the hitting power for the Red Sox were Fernie Paredes and Joe Martinez.

Ozona jumped out to an early lead in the night-cap and trailed in taking an 8-5 win. Milo Solis was the losing hurler.

The Red Sox, who now have a record of 7-4 for the season, return to action this Sunday when they play host to the Marfa Indians.

Of Feeney's suspension Madlock lodges appeal

PITTSBURGH (AP) — National League President Chub Feeney has ruled Bill Madlock's 15-day suspension must stand, but the Pittsburgh Pirates third baseman won't take that lying down.

And it remains to be seen how future developments in the month-old case sit with the major league umpires' union.

Through the players association, Madlock lodged another appeal with baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn hours after Feeney made his final decision Monday.

So Madlock remains in the lineup while Kuhn considers a matter that began May 1 with a jab of Madlock's glove at the face of umpire Jerry Crawford and escalated to arguments and affidavits from lawyers for the players' and the umpires' unions.

"I find the penalties originally leveled to be appropriate," Feeney said Monday in New York in upholding his penalty, including a $5,000 fine.

"The major league umpires association is gratified that the endless delays in the Madlock appeal have now come to an end," said umpire Paul Runge, vice president of the umpires' union, which had threatened to eject Madlock from every game to speed up Feeney's ruling.

There were other views. "Feeney upholds Feeney. That's no surprise," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association. "This represents a mockery of due process."

"I'm disappointed the suspensions and fine were not reduced based on comparison of this incident with similar past incidents," said Pirate Vice President Pete Peterson.

Madlock, who helped the Pirates beat Philadelphia 9-3 Monday night, said he only wanted to talk baseball.

"Let's stick strictly to the game," he said.

"The suspension? That's the last thing I'm worried about. I'm thinking about pitchers like Steve Carlton."

It was during a game against Montreal that Madlock clashed with Crawford. At issue was Madlock's contention he had checked his swing on a called third strike with the bases loaded.

Feeney's suspension came May 5. Three days later, Feeney heard an appeal in which Madlock said he was only gesturing with his glove.

On Monday, Feeney said, "Even if contact was not intended, the forceful shoving of his glove in the face of an umpire... was so reckless and unacceptable to merit a severe penalty."

Last Saturday, umpires' attorney Richie Phillips announced the umpires would eject Madlock from every game, beginning June 6, unless Feeney made a decision.

Bird, Jabbar head all-NBA squad

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics has become the first rookie since 1969 to achieve all-league honors by being named to the National Basketball Association's first team.

Bird, the brilliant passing forward who was a key to the Celtics' turnaround from a 29-53 record in 1979 to a league-best 61-21 mark last season, received 110 points in the balloting of a panel of 66 sports writers, three from each league city, who voted at the conclusion of the regular season.

Two points were awarded for each first-team vote and one for each second-team mention.

Bird, who led the Celtics with 21.3 points and 10.4 rebounds per game, is the first rookie to make the squad since Wes Unseld in 1969. Earvin "Magic" Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers, who lost to Bird by a 63-3 vote in Rookie of the Year balloting, did not make either of the two all-league teams.

The top vote-getter on the first team was Los Angeles Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led the Lakers to the NBA title and last week was named the league's Most Valuable Player for an unprecedented sixth time. He received 130 of a possible 132 votes in gaining all-league honors for the seventh time in his 11-year career.

Joining Abdul-Jabbar and Bird on the squad were forward Julius Erving of Philadelphia, 118½ points, and guards George Gervin of San Antonio, 90, and Paul Westphal of Phoenix, 68.

Last year's all-league team consisted of Gervin and Westphal in the backcourt, Houston's Moses Malone at center and forwards Elvin Hayes of Washington and Maurice Johnson of Milwaukee.

Johnson and Malone were named to the second team this year, along with Atlanta forward Dan Roundfield and guards Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams, both of Seattle.

Dallas might get title bout

DALLAS (AP) — Officials of Reunion Arena say chances appear good that promoter Don King will stage a heavyweight championship fight in the new $25 million, 19,000-seat facility July 7 through Larry Holmes and Scott LeDoux.

King called a news conference for today in New York to discuss sites for the fight, said Gordon Rea, in charge of special events for Reunion Arena.

"We're not totally sure we're going to get it, but I think we've got a good chance," said Rea.

King told the Dallas Times-Herald in a telephone interview Monday that Dallas will get the fight "if a local co-promoter can be found who will give me a proper guarantee," King said. "It's between Dallas and Bloomington, Minn."

Eyewitness to shooting meets with FBI agents
FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) - Martha Coleman, the only person with Vernon E. Jordan Jr. when he was shot, met with federal agents behind closed doors as investigators checked every tip and every phone call for clues in the attack on the National Urban League president.
 Jordan, who was shot in the lower back with a bullet from a .30-06 rifle, was in serious but stable condition Monday. Hospital officials said he continued to show steady progress and walked with the aid of two other people, his first steps since the hotel parking lot shooting early Thursday.
 The attack came as the civil rights leader got out of a car driven by Mrs. Coleman, 36. He had joined the Fort Wayne Urban League member for coffee at her home.
 Mrs. Coleman, who had been in seclusion since the shooting, met with FBI agents Monday, according to agent Roy Mitchell, who declined to disclose details immediately.
 Her lawyer, Charles Leonard, blamed the delay on "an incident that greatly troubled my client and greatly troubled me." He did not elaborate, saying only that the incident had been resolved.
 Special agent Wayne G. Davis, who is heading the federal investigation, has said he hoped Mrs. Coleman's testimony could lead to a break in the case.
 Meanwhile, authorities kept busy chasing an endless parade of tips.

Mayor Winfield Moses said authorities received a call Saturday from a resident of Auburn, 20 miles north of Fort Wayne.
 "The caller said he had seen someone throw something into a pond near his house and whatever it was had sunk to the bottom," Moses said. The FBI flew agents and skin-divers to Auburn, he said, but nothing was found.
 On Monday, detectives slugged through deep mud a half-mile from the site of the shooting and added a campsite resembling "one that a Boy Scout might build" to the list of possible clues.
 But Fort Wayne detective John Phenice said, "we have no evidence to connect it with what happened." He said the campsite most likely was built by children long ago.
 Investigators say they still have no suspects in the shooting of Jordan, whose struggle for recovery could take three months, according to his doctor.
 Jordan was able to walk Monday.
 "Whether he will have a limp, I can't say at this time," Parkview Memorial Hospital surgeon Dr. Jeff H. Towles said. "But I don't anticipate any permanent damage."
 Several bullet fragments, including one "slightly larger than a thumbnail," remain in his body, said Towles, who added he sees no reason to remove them.
 He said Jordan will be hospitalized a total of two or three weeks.
