Japanese leader, Ohira, dies

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira, a staunch U.S. ally battling growing political unrest at home, died early today after suffering a heart attack. The death of the 70-year-old Ohira sent stocks plummeting on the Tokyo stock market and set the stage for a fierce political power struggle.

Ohira's death left the Liberal Democratic Party leaderless only 10 days before parliamentary elections. The balloting comes after Ohira's surprise loss of a confidence vote in Parliament on May 16, when 56 members of his own party abstained, giving the Socialist Party opposition the victory.

President Carter, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Chinese officials were among the world leaders sending condolences on the death of Ohira, who headed the government since December 1978. Officials in Washington and Tokyo agreed his death was unlikely to affect U.S.-Japanese ties.

Doctors said Ohira succumbed to "complications of a myocardial infarction," or heart blockage, suffered early today.

The prime minister had been hospitalized 12 days ago for fatigue and a mild heart attack suffered at the end of a marathon foreign tour that took him to the United States, Mexico, Canada and finally to Yugoslavia for the funeral last month of Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito. According to aides, Ohira had spent 70 straight days either working or traveling before he entered the hospital on May 31.

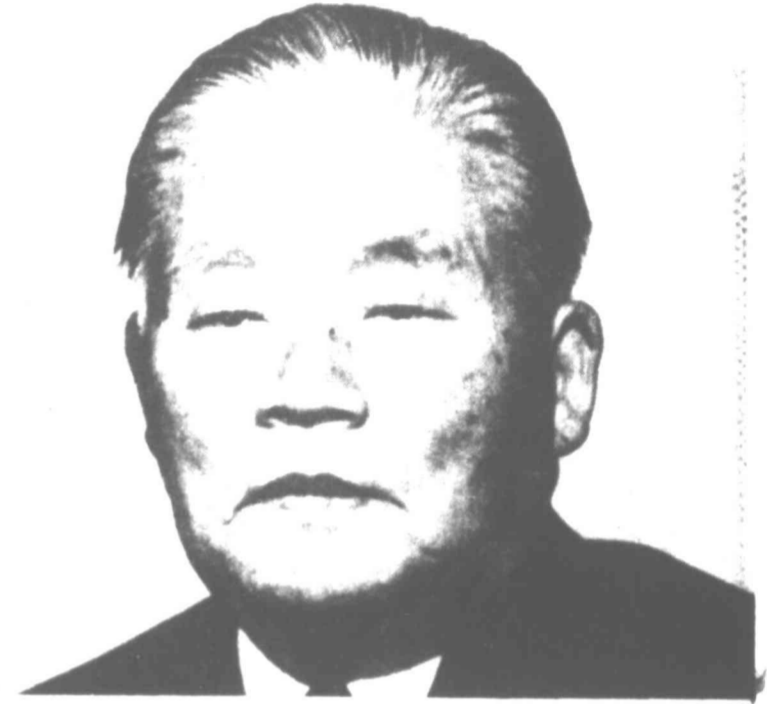

As late as Wednesday night, doctors had reported him in good condition.

Most Japanese were stunned by the death of Ohira, the first Japanese prime minister to die in office since World War II.

Only last Sunday, Ohira held a brief news conference at his bedside and told reporters, "I feel quite all right and would like to get out of bed as soon as possible. All I have thought about lately are the elections."

Funeral plans were not immediately announced.

Under Japanese law, Chief Cabinet Secretary Masayoshi Ito became acting prime minister.

Murder indictments returned by Howard County grand jurors

Indictments were returned Wednesday at 3 p.m. by a Howard County Grand Jury against two murder defendants including 51-year-old Nelta Thompson, charged with the shooting death of 12-year-old Kaylee Thomas.

Bobby Earl Williams, charged with rape of a 14-year-old girl, was not indicted. Charges will be dropped.

The other murder defendant indicted was Raymond Lester Kennedy, charged with the March 28 murder of his wife, Lucille.

Robert Earl Mesker was indicted for voluntary manslaughter in the April 28 shooting of his brother, Stephen Allen Martin, at his home.

The case against Gerald Bailey was passed. Bailey allegedly left town without making good some debts against his company, Bailey Drilling Company, located at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said experience of the jurors was the reason for the smoothness of the proceedings. The current grand jury's term expires June 23.

Other indictments include:

Billy Wayne Aldridge, March 4 theft of stolen property; Albert Carrasco, Feb. 29 possession of marijuana; Tommy Gilbert Choates, DWI felony on April 27; Kenneth Crow, forgery of a check; Netha Thurman Felts, possession of marijuana; Jeannie Hemingway, theft by check; Orlando Hernandez, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle; Joe Hollingshead, theft by check; Bob Kirkpatrick, theft; Jim Magarity, hindering secured creditor; Luis Martinez, possession of marijuana; Rick McCartney, theft of services; Frank Morphis, aggravated robbery; Sally Ann Peterson, forgery of U.S. Treasury check; and Jimmy Pina, forgery.

Others indicted are Jessica Eugene Randle, forgery of a U.S. Treasury check; Hugh Farrell Riera, credit card abuse; James Vasser Rosser, DWI felony; William Dubb Thomas, DWI felony; Rickie Weldon Tinnon, theft of services; Jesse Angel Vega, arson; James Earl White, burglary; Charles Edward Whitsell, DWI felony; Anthony Wright, forgery of a U.S. Treasury and burglary check; Nathan Wright, theft of stolen property; Ynez (Sonny) Yanez, possession of marijuana; Bill Yockers, theft by check; and Oscar Solis, aggravated assault by use of a deadly weapon.

Other defendants who were not indicted include: Virgil Evans Burns, burglary of a motor vehicle; Edward Chavarria, Jr., theft of stolen property; Terry Forrest, theft by check; Raul Hernandez, theft over $200; Johnny Hilario, burglary of a habitation; Dillard Curtis Johnston, forgery; Jim Matlock, theft; Daniel Ornelas, theft; Johnny Rueda, burglary of a motor vehicle; and Adolfo Salazar, kidnapping.

Several cases were passed. These included the cases against Kenneth Crow, theft; Joe Lara, burglary;

Thomas Lujan, burglary; Kevin Michael, theft by check; Richard Thurman, delivery of a controlled substance; Bobby Wayne White, aggravated assault; Hamby said cases are passed usually because the grand jury has required more information.

Two cases were reduced to county court cases. They were against Mike Johnson and Rocky Torres. Johnson's charge of assault by use of a deadly weapon and reduced to simple assault. He allegedly attacked Linda Moss with a knife June 1.

The charge against Rocky Torres alleging assault on Police Officer Carl Thurman was reduced to simple assault.

Three cases on the grand jury's docket were not presented. They are Michael David Imbriani, charged with assault on Police Officer Ron Newby on May 29; Dale Painter, charged with forgery on Feb. 23 and Roy Levi Teeler, theft by check.

Security tight at Western European summit

Leaders want end to difference with U.S.

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Shielded by extraordinary security, Western Europe's leaders opened a two-day conference in the splendor of this lagoon city today, determined to narrow their differences with the United States on major issues that threaten world peace.

The nine Common Market leaders started their meeting on the historic Venetian island of San Giorgio Maggiore, across from St. Mark's Square, expressing their sorrow over the death in Tokyo of Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

The Red Brigades, Italy's most feared urban guerrilla gang, has threatened to mount an offensive to disrupt the conference of heads of government.

Heavy security measures have been mounted and Venice in the height of the tourist season appeared to be a city under martial law.

Combat-ready troops in armored personnel carriers guarded land approaches to the city and its Marco

Polo airport which was closed to commercial traffic.

Machine gun-mounted coast guard launches patrolled the canals while police helicopters hovered overhead. Nearly 10,000 paramilitary police reinforcements brought in from as far as Naples were deployed throughout the city.

Naval frogmen on the lookout for hidden explosives repeatedly dived into the waters around the tiny island of San Giorgio Maggiore, the conference site, across from St. Mark's Square.

"We want to give peace to the leaders who are discussing world peace," said Salvatore Pandolfi, the chief security officer of the Venice region.

The leaders of Belgium, Britain, Denmark, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Ireland and West Germany are meeting in the 16th century Benedictine monastery, adorned with Renaissance masterpieces.

The same site will be used for the big seven summit of the United States, Canada, Japan, Britain, France, West Germany and Italy on June 22-23.

'Chinese fire drill' paves way for signing of contract

City officials and nine members of the Big Spring Industrial Development Board made hurried arrangements to sign a lease agreement with Western Container Corporation in Houston, today.

The city had to execute what amounted to a "Chinese fire drill" to get to Houston, said City Manager Don Davis.

"We had been advised that this was just a ceremonial affair, and that most of the officials wouldn't have to be there," said Davis.

With this in mind, Mayor Clyde Angel drove to Waco to visit his son, and most local officials made no arrangements to leave for Houston today. When the city learned that all dignitaries had to be present at the signing, however, the fire drill began, said Davis.

Development Board members got a lift on a local plane, and Angel made last-minute arrangements to fly from Waco to Houston on a roundabout flight that required several connections.

"And the last I heard, Tom Ferguson (city secretary) and Elliott Mitchell (city attorney) were waiting to catch a standby flight out of Midland," said Davis.

Assuming the lease is signed, Western Container will be offered a package which gives them a five-year base lease with one five-year and nine 10-year options.

The company will occupy the large, new hangar at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

Planes collide

on airport runway

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A Colombian air force plane and a Spanish Airline Iberia DC-10 collided Thursday on the runway of Bogota's International Airport, authorities reported.

No fire occurred and witnesses at the terminal building saw passengers evacuated from the Iberia airliner. Police prevented other than officials from reaching the scene and there was no immediate word on casualties.

The Iberia airliner was about to leave for Madrid, authorities said.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Bubble gum

Q. What makes bubble gum bubble?
A. Same thing that makes balloons balloon. Rubber. A highly refined and purified rubber, true, but rubber nonetheless.

Calendar: 'Burnt Offerings'

TODAY
Big Spring Slow pitch Industrial League will play no games tonight.

FRIDAY
The Howard County Library will have Story Hour for pre-school aged children from 10 a.m. until 11 a.m.
Merry Mixers Square Dance Club will dance at a new location, West Side Community Center, 1311 W. 4th St., 8 p.m. until 11 p.m. Club caller will be James Moore. A salad supper will be held following the dance.

Partly cloudy and very warm this afternoon. Partly cloudy and hot Friday. High today in the mid 90s, low tonight near 70. High Friday in the upper 90s. Winds will be from the south at 15 to 25 mph today, 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Plain folks take pleasure in putting deciders of law in their place

Texans method of selecting judges needs overhauling?

By JIM DAVIS
Herald Staff Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Lawyers tend to be an uppity lot, and judges are supposed to be the top of the legal crop. So it's little wonder that each election year we average folk take pleasure in putting judges in their place — literally.

There's nothing like a few months of forced smiles, firm handshakes, rubber-chicken lunches and speeches to bored civic groups to instill a little humility.

Make them beg for political contributions and compete with dishwashing detergents for the television viewers' attention and our satisfaction is complete.

There's a problem, however. This is a poor way to select the supposedly distinguished men and women who comprise our judicial system.

We may not like to admit that judges are special, but they are.

They are supposed to be the fair and impartial deciders of law, the glue of any civilized society.

They are not necessarily supposed to be Republicans or Democrats; wealthy or poor; conservative or liberal; black, white or brown; handsome, pretty or ugly. Most are at least one each of the above, but they shouldn't be selected on that basis.

The Texas election system sets up a judicial selection process that emphasizes such criteria, however, as this year's races point out.

In the Democratic primary runoff last Saturday, each of the two races for the Court of Criminal Appeals focused on a particular issue. One was whether an incumbent was too liberal; the other, whether a woman deserved a place on the all-male court.

Ideally, judgeship elections do not have any issue other than qualifications.

Being of a certain political leaning or sex is not a legitimate criteria.

Another problem is that political races are becoming more costly every year. In Saturday's runoff for a seat on the Texas Supreme Court, each of the two candidates apparently spent in the range of $200,000. We won't know the final totals for a month.

Most of that money came from lawyers and law firms, particularly from ones in Houston and Dallas. One candidate borrowed $120,000 from his brother, an Austin real estate man, obviously with the hope of paying it back with post-election political contributions from lawyers hoping to get on his good side if he won.

Campaign finance reports even show several political action committees of special-interest lobby groups throwing thousands into several judgeship races.

The common excuse that lobbyists give for making political contributions is to promote good government. A few of them can't say that with a straight face and admit that they are seeking access to office-holders.

Why would a lobbyist or a rich Houston law firm need access to a judge if our system is working the way it should?

The judge is supposed to sit high on the bench, consider evidence and give an impartial decision.

Such problems are obvious this year, and they are going to become worse in the future.

In the past, judges ran only in the Democratic primary because that was the only true political horse race in the state. But Texas is moving toward becoming a two-party state, and we will see more Republican judgeship candidates.

That means the candidates are going to be facing almost a full year of campaigning, first for a May party nomination and then for a November election.

Our court system already is straining from the growing number of both civil suits and criminal cases.

The criminal appeals court's caseload has almost doubled in five years and an appeal to it takes an average of two years to be heard. Judges on this court write an average of 300 opinions each year, compared with a national average for appellate judges of only 40 to 50.

Can we demand that a judge keep up such a load while trying to win reelection in a state the size of Texas? Won't the system, and ultimately the citizens, suffer from such an arrangement?

The next question has to be: What alternative method of selecting judges would be better? There's no easy answer.

In some states, the governor makes the choice, but a straight appointment system has as many evils as one involving partisan elections. A governor is a politician and tends to use such appointive powers to reward supporters or promote a certain political philosophy.

Alternatives have been proposed involving a form of limited gubernatorial appointive power.

Such systems call for a special panel — made up of lawyers or a combination of lawyers and others — to review judicial candidates and to make recommendations to the governor. The panel could recommend three or four candidates based on qualifications and the governor could pick one.

There could be further review such as confirmation by the Senate. After one term, the judge's name could be placed on the November ballot without opposition or political designation. The voters could decide whether he or she deserved another term or should be thrown out.

A less-ambitious change would involve a competitive election but on a non-partisan basis. All candidates would be listed only on the November ballot.

Many judges, including Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Greenhill, are recommending such reforms.

It is unlikely that the 1981 Legislature, distracted by bitter redistricting fights, will take any action. But the problems with the system are going to grow worse in the 1980s, and someday we will be forced to change it.

Breach opens in state teachers association

AUSTIN (AP) — A major breach in the political unity of Texas teachers opened last weekend when the Texas Classroom Teachers Association announced it would not require members to join the much larger Texas State Teachers Association.

Underlying issues appeared to include TSTA's decision to lobby for collective bargaining rights for teachers.

"We deplore the action... We think the action is foolish... It is not in the best interest of teachers," Jim Butler, executive secretary of the TSTA, said.

The century-old TSTA has been the main voice of teachers in Austin on such issues as pay raises and sick leave.

About 35 percent of the TSTA members participated in the mail poll. They voted

3-to-1 to reject mandatory membership in TSTA.

"It appears teachers are united against any attempt by TSTA to control the right of members to decide which professional association they want to join," Rae Juan Markunas, president of the 36,000-member TSTA, said.

The TSTA has 112,000 members. Its members also must belong to the National Education Association.

In March, the TSTA amended its constitution to require all members of its "department affiliates," including TCTA, to join TSTA and NEA this fall. In other words, a teacher could not belong to TCTA without joining TSTA-NEA.

Dues in TSTA-NEA will rise this September from $92 to $123 a year; TCTA dues will remain $15 a year.

A major function of teacher associations has been lobbying, since teacher salaries and fringe benefits are largely determined by the legislature. Tommy Duck, TCTA spokesman, said the TCTA "is going to have to take a more aggressive legislative stance."

"For years we rubber-stamped the TSTA. You'll find TCTA is going to become more aggressive in its own legislative program," he said.

TCTA delegates rejected overtures from TSTA in February to merge into a single association but also reaffirmed TCTA's wish to remain affiliated with TSTA.

TSTA, which rejects any hint it is a "union," has become increasingly embattled in recent years. After it unified with NEA in 1975, many conservative teachers quit. They recently announced creation of a 19,000-member organization called the Association of Texas Professional Educators.

In 1978, the Texas Association of School Administrators ended its affiliation with TSTA, largely because of TSTA's tie with NEA.

Nail bomb explodes

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — No one was injured and no one claimed responsibility when a bomb containing nails exploded outside the former Iranian consulate here, police said.

The radio-sized bomb speared shrapnel over a 75-foot area when it exploded late Tuesday. Lt. Russ Olson said the bomb was "strictly anti-personnel in nature," geared to harm people rather than damage buildings.

The explosion caused no damage. The consulate has been closed since President Carter ordered Iranian diplomats out of the country but continues to house an Iranian gift shop and restaurant.

Solar energy benefit

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Owners of solar heating systems will get a 10 percent discount on their utility bills, a move city officials believe may be the first such discount in the nation.

The discount will be granted to those who provide 50 percent or more of their domestic needs through solar-heated water. Palo Alto owns its utilities system, and is offering the discount as an incentive to increase the use of solar heating.

Utilities director Ed Aghajyan said Palo Alto expects to lose up to $6,000 in revenues the first year and more in later years. There are now about 50 solar units that would qualify for the program.

Elks will hold public Flag Day event Friday

Elks Lodge No. 1386 will hold a public Flag Day ceremony Friday evening at the V.A. Hospital. The public is invited to the 7 p.m. program, which will be in front of the main entrance to the hospital.

Exalted ruler Odys Wood will officiate, offering the pledge to the flag led by Rick Scott. Tom Conway will review the history of the flag and the response will be extended by Max Moore.

Deaths

D.O. Cummings
D.O. Cummings, 82, died at 7:15 a.m. today in a local hospital. Services will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel, with the Rev. Dan Sanford, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Sand Springs, officiating. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

He was born Aug. 26, 1897, in Anson, Tex. He married Ada F. Denier July 22, 1920, in Baird. He worked for the T&P Railroad for 20 years at Baird. He moved to Big Spring in 1942 and started work for Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. He retired from Cosden in 1962. He was a Methodist.

Survivors include his wife, of the home; two sons, Charles Ray Cummings, Big Spring, and Durwood O. Cummings Jr., Midland; three grandchildren; a step-grandson; and a great-grandson.

Police beat Accused car thief arrested

A local man is in custody in Norman, Okla., on suspicion of stealing a car from the Mesa Valley Toyota Dealership, 511 Gregg, in January.

According to local detectives, a man walked into the dealership on Jan. 28 and asked to test drive a 1980 Toyota Corolla. The man drove off the lot in the new car and never returned.

Witnesses, however, believed that the thief may have been Charles W. Clayton, 27, a Howard County parolee. He was indicted by a local grand jury for the theft of the auto.

On March 12, the stolen car was found abandoned on a street in Fort Worth. And on Wednesday, Clayton was arrested in Norman on a charge of DWI, and held over when officers learned he was wanted.

Burglars broke out a window at the home of Wade Brown, 711 Cherry, around 7:25 p.m. Wednesday. After entering, they stole a fan, a clock radio and nine cans of mackerel meat. Loss, including damage, was estimated at $112.

A home at 703 N. Cherry, belonging to Joe C. Renteria, 604 S. Abrams, was invaded by vandals, Wednesday night. Two windows were broken, broken bottles were scattered throughout the home and several appliances were overturned. Loss was estimated at $300.

Charlie Shanks, 1412 Johnson, got a lucky break, Wednesday. When $185 worth of electric and hand tools were stolen from his home over a month ago, he made no report to police said Sgt. Richard Doane.

Rain 'grounded' at Sweetwater

SWEETWATER — It rained a half inch here Wednesday but the city's three lakes caught no appreciable moisture. Observers said the rain, slow as it was, "just went into the ground."

Low lake levels have forced the city to cut back on the use of water and a utilities firm to reduce its power output. West Texas Utilities has an 86,000 kilowatt plant on the west side of Lake Sweetwater.

Woman pleads insanity

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A woman found innocent by reason of insanity of charges stemming from a $11,000 welfare fraud has been sentenced to a state mental hospital.

Donna Wallace, 40, allegedly used 43 bank accounts and 24 identities in bilking the state welfare system over a three-year period. In April, Superior Court Judge Charles Stevens agreed with a county psychiatrist that Miss Wallace was insane at the time.

On Wednesday, Stevens committed her for a maximum term of three years and eight months. Deputy District Attorney Daryl Perlin said he considered the sentence adequate because Miss Wallace had no prior record.

Discovery assured

A discovery has been assured in Howard County.

D.E. Radtke & Associates, Midland, No. 1 Carpenter Estate (amended from No. 1 N. Cato, et al.) one location east of a depleted producer and 3/4-mile south-southwest of the current six-well Sara-Mag (Canyon reef) field of Howard County, three miles northwest of the three-well Vincent, South (Strawn) field and one mile southwest of Vincent, has assured production in the lower Canyon, with the flowing of 70 barrels of oil, no water, in 24 hours, plus gas at the rate of 130,000 cubic feet daily.

Flow was through an 8-64-inch choke and perforations at 7,740-744 feet. Testing continued.

Scheduled as a three-mile northwest outpost to the two-well Vincent, South field and amended as a wildcat, it was drilled to 8,000 feet.

Location is 330 feet from the south and 990 feet from the west lines of 10-25-H&TC. (Application was filed 2,310 feet from the north lines.)

The Sara-Mag field produces from pay topped at 7,451 to 7,580 feet and formerly produced from the 7515, the Wolfcamp at 6,223 feet and the Palo Pinto at 7,961-66 feet.

LAMESA — Services for Clyde J. Bailey, 78, of Big Spring and formerly of Lamesa will be at 10 a.m. Friday in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Milo Arbuckle, a Midland Baptist minister, officiating.

Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park under direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Bailey died about 11:45 a.m. Tuesday at his home three miles east of Big Spring. Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin ruled the death was of natural causes.

The Swisher County native and retired lab technician moved to Dawson County in 1906, where he was a Mason and a member of First Baptist Church. He was a member of Lamesa High School's first football team and was a 1923 graduate. The World War II veteran married Opal McNew in 1942 at Lamesa. She died in August 1976. Bailey moved to Big Spring three years ago.

Jordan changes positions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hamilton Jordan is temporarily leaving his job as White House chief of staff to take formal command of President Carter's re-election campaign.

"We've got a lot of work to do," said White House press secretary Jody Powell after announcing the change Wednesday.

"A general election campaign is 40 days and 40 nights — it's like the great flood, and you have to hire two of each kind," he said.

Powell said that while Jordan had time to perform his White House duties as well as to devise primary election strategy, there was not that luxury during the general election.

Powell said Jordan would now have "a few weeks" to do the same general election planning that was done over several months for the primary.

"His going over will mean he will do the same sorts of things but will be able to do them in the shorter time frame of the general election campaign."

Jack Watson, assistant to the president for intergovernmental affairs, will become chief of staff during Jordan's leave of absence. Watson and Jordan had vied for the top staff job when Carter was elected.

Eugene Eidenberg, Watson's deputy, will move up to become an assistant to the president.

Weather

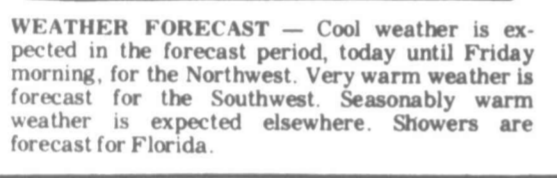

Clear skies prevail over state again

By the Associated Press
Clear skies and slightly warmer temperatures dominated Texas weather today.

Highs were mostly in the 90s although a few readings along the Rio Grande in Southwest and South Texas were to reach 100 or slightly above.

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy and hot through Friday. Widely scattered mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms, mountains. Highs near 90 north to near 105 Big Bend.

EXTENDED
WEST TEXAS — Chance of afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms mainly north over the weekend. Otherwise partly cloudy with no important temperature changes and highs mostly in the 90s except 105 Big Bend Valley. Lows mostly in the 60s except 70s southwest.

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Friday morning, for the Northwest. Very warm weather is forecast for the Southwest. Seasonably warm weather is expected elsewhere. Showers are forecast for Florida.

Several electrical utility systems reach agreement

Electrical utility systems in Texas and adjacent states have reached an agreement, subject to approval by regulatory authorities, on electrical interconnection across state lines, Texas Electric President Bill Marquardt announced today.

Under terms of the agreement, interconnection would be possible without adversely affecting service reliability and without imposing cost burdens or additional federal regulations on TESCO customers.

Extensive litigation over the interconnection began in 1976 between Central and South West Corporation, a holding company with operations in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, and certain electric utility systems in Texas that are members of the Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT).

The ERCOT utilities primarily involved in the litigation were the operating companies of the Texas Utilities Company System — Dallas Power & Light, Texas Electric Service and Texas Power & Light — and Houston Lighting & Power.

Central and South West and its two wholly-owned operating companies in Texas — West Texas Utilities and Central Power & Light — took action in the courts and before federal and state regulatory agencies in an attempt to use the facilities of the TU System companies and Houston Lighting & Power to connect the CSW Texas-based utilities to the rest of its system in other states.

The TU companies and Houston Lighting & Power have long believed their customers are best served by operating without ERCOT, and that belief is supported by their long record of successful intrastate operations.

Engineers from the utilities involved have been studying possible solutions to the disagreement. "We believe this proposed settlement may be satisfactory to all concerned," said Marquardt.

He said the company believes the terms of the settlement can achieve the inter-connection Central and South West wants without being detrimental to the interests of the customers of TESCO and the other utilities.

"Under this agreement, our customers would not bear any additional costs and their service reliability would not be impaired," he said.

Marquardt pointed out the continuing effectiveness of the agreement is contingent on an order from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission exempting the TU System companies and Houston Lighting & Power from additional federal regulation. "We are hopeful that FERC will issue such an order," he said.

The proposed settlement calls for one interconnection between the ERCOT system at Oklahoma, Texas, and the Southwest Power Pool system in Lawton, Oklahoma.

Another connection would be made from Southwestern Electric Power Co., possibly in Walker County, to the South Texas Nuclear Project in Matagorda County.

The connections would be made with direct current (DC) transmission lines. Use of DC lines will prevent many potential operating and reliability problems which would be posed if ERCOT were connected to SWPP by alternating current (AC) interconnections.

Draft registration may begin by end of July

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the long debate over and Senate approval practically a foregone conclusion, peacetime draft registration of men could resume as early as next month.

The Senate scheduled a vote on the plan today after opponents gave up their futile fight to derail it with a five-day filibuster and then an all-night session — the first in three years and the 14th this century.

Every indication was that the Senate would join the House in approving President Carter's request for $13.3 million to register all 19- and 20-year-old men at post offices across the country.

An attempt by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., to kill the bill by tabling it was defeated 61-26 Wednesday — an indication of strong Senate support for registration.

If the House approves a minor amendment, the measure could go to Carter early next week. In that case, the Selective Service System has said it plans to begin registering about 4 million men over two weeks starting in mid-July — one week for those born in 1961 and the following week for those born in 1960.

Men now 18 would register next year and 18-year-olds would register each year after that. Failure to register could be punished by up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

In exchange for agreeing to stop talking after 32 hours, instead of the 100 allowed after the filibuster was broken, opponents were promised a vote today on one last Hatfield amendment. It would cut the funds to $4.7 million, a point where registration would have to be delayed until the president orders renewal of the draft itself in a war or emergency.

Opponents conceded they expected the amendment to be defeated.

The Senate invoked cloture Tuesday, limiting debate to 100 additional hours. When Hatfield vowed to try to use them, all Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., put the Senate in continuous session in an attempt to wear down opponents.

The difference between that and the all-night session in 1977 was that the last one was an out-and-out filibuster, with no end in sight, over deregulation of natural gas.

Young Dallas officer surprised with find

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas police, armed with a search warrant, swooped down on a garden in southeast Dallas this week, preparing to raid some growing marijuana.

What a young police officer sighted and believed was marijuana growing amidst the onions and cabbages in the garden turned out to be carrots.

The police were as surprised to discover the carrots as the residents were to find that police wanted to raid their garden.

Between laughs, a superior of the young police officer said the officer is getting some additional training in how to recognize marijuana plants.

Officers didn't pull up all the carrots, just enough to be sure what they were.

The owners of the garden didn't appear to be overly upset by the mistaken identity and the raid, police said.

"I heard that the people had a hard time staying on their feet because they were laughing so hard," a police spokesman said.

Give tax payers credit for thinking

Howard Jarvis perhaps was overwhelmed by the shadow he cast as a critic of taxation. Perhaps the defeat of the bill he championed in California this year (Proposition 9) will help to restore his perspective.

Jarvis flexed his muscles two years ago when Californians voted, in effect, to slash their property tax by $7 billion a year. Public officials everywhere became nervous.

Proposition 9, the bill put before the voters this year, proposed to cut California's state income tax by more than $4 billion. It was to have been frosting on the cake as far as Mr. Jarvis was concerned.

HE RECKONED without the voters, however. Where two years ago the voters believed that the property tax was unfair in the manner it was assessed, polls showed that the electorate this year was of the opinion that the income tax was "fair to most people."

The people in the higher income bracket, those making $40,000 annually and more, naturally were rooting for Jarvis. Unfortunately for them, there aren't too many of them. They have precious little clout at the polls.

Two years ago, the people believed that a lot of the fat could be cut out of the cost of public services. Public agencies in California have since learned to live on less. Had Proposition 9 been approved, those agencies, no doubt, would have had to look elsewhere for revenue and start charging for services that currently are supplied by state-supported institutions.

Gov. Jerry Brown didn't come off too well in the voting, either. He wanted to sting the oil companies but the voters did not approve Brown's proposed ten percent surtax on oil company profits, which would have produced upwards of $400 million annually to finance a mass transit system.

Give the voters credit for using a little moxie. They realized that nobody gets a free ride. If the oil companies were saddled with the tax, it became obvious to them that the cost would inevitably show up in the prices charged consumers.

IN EFFECT, THE motorists would be subsidizing mass transit riders. Looking at it another way, the motorists in the country's most populous state want to keep their cars.

Public employe unions and politicians seemed to have worked especially hard to defeat Proposition 9 and Gov. Brown's pet legislation.

There is a need for the Howard Jarvises and their work. The tax scolds keep the politicians edgy and in line, but there is also need of a taxing system that can keep government and its programs running smoothly. The answer is to elect officials on all levels who would budget wisely and cut out all excesses where necessary.

Sloppy theology

Don Woods

Joni Eareckson is paralyzed from the neck down from a diving accident that occurred several years ago.

Many of you were acquainted with her through her book "Joni" (pronounced "Johnny") or through the film of the same name.

The unusual thing about this quadriplegic is that she is happy. It's unusual because many are not. Most find it impossible not to experience remorse about their circumstances.

Not Joni. In her film she made a comment from the stage of a Billy Graham crusade. She was sure, she said, that she would have never found herself speaking to that group if it weren't for her handicap. She was thankful for the paralysis because of the direction God had taken her.

SHE IS CONTENT, motivated and quite unaware that paralysis is supposed to make you helpless. Tremendously creative, she has learned to paint with vividness and variety with a brush held between her teeth.

She is mighty in spirit and not at all to be pitied. As a Christian she has had a ministry in a lot of people's lives.

There are Christians afoot, though, that would say that Christians like Joni are disabled because there is something wrong with their spiritual lives.

For example, a radio preacher from Odessa angered me recently by saying that Christians who remain sick or disabled have unbelief or sin in their lives.

I would have him tell that to Miss Eareckson.

I wonder if God rages, too, when He thinks of the devastating effect the perpetration of that belief could have on disabled believers.

Remember Job from days of yore who was sick because God allowed Satan to knock him down? Job was commended for his uprightness and praised by God Himself for his righteousness. In fact his good standing was the reason for Satan's attack on him.

Remember Paul who had a physical defect in his body? Can you imagine the audacity of a little tin god telling the great Paul he was sick because he was faithless?

Paul asked God to remove the weakness three times until Paul finally learned the reason for sickness.

When he learned the reason he thanked God for it just as Joni did. Paul learned (because he was a man he had to learn like everyone else) that his strength is in his weakness.

Read for yourself in the last chapter of the second book of Corinthians.

WHEN WE ARE weak we have to trust God. Trust in our own strengths is deceiving because we think we are strong enough. But our strengths always give out.

If we are weak in general or in specific areas we aren't tempted to rely on ourselves, resulting in a trust in God and subsequent consistent power.

Okay, back to sickness. The reason for it is this ... we glorify God rather than ourselves.

There is another kind of sickness; the sickness unto death. It is the result of something wrong in the spiritual life. It comes to the believer when he has stayed so far away that God checks him off the earth to heaven where he can't do further damage.

In Job's case, though, and in Paul's as well, sickness is seen as something God has allowed and even placed in His plan in these men's lives. God sees it as something positive, productive and beneficial.

But don't let anyone tell you that all sickness in all Christians at all times is the result of sin or disbelief. That is sloppy theology.

"I'm working harder but enjoying it more," Ed Muskie says of his new job as secretary of state. He generally rises at 5:30, reads cables and papers at home and reaches the office at 7 in the morning. He does not quit until at least 12 hours later — a far more rigorous schedule than in the Senate.

He still shows signs of being the new boy. He is not altogether sure which meeting is scheduled for Vienna and which for Venice. Nor is he totally at home with the various committees of the National Security Council system.

But he has developed a general foreign policy strategy — a strategy for at least controlling the damage between now and the election. Basically what Muskie would like to do is to re-establish harmony between the U.S. and its principal allies on dealings with Russia, the Near East and the Persian Gulf.

The new secretary does not expect uniformity or unity of views. But he would like the policies of the U.S. and its allies to work in complementary fashion rather than at cross-purposes.

HE KNOWS THE EUROPEANS have a special interest in detente with Russia, but he does not think that they have to pursue that interest in ways that undermine the effort to make Moscow pay a price for the invasion of Afghanistan. He understands the Europeans and Japanese feel that sanctions against Iran are unproductive, but he claims they can behave in a way that does not vitiate American moves to apply pressure on behalf of the hostages.

He realizes the Europeans are pessimistic about chances for moving beyond the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty to accord on Palestinian autonomy. But he believes they can launch a new initiative that promotes rather than destroys the joint efforts of Israel, Egypt and the U.S. to foster peace in the area.

Formidable obstacles stand in the way of realizing even those limited hopes. The evidence suggests that the Europeans, especially the French, conceive of the new initiative in the Near East as a means of profiling themselves against the U.S. as more favorable to the Arabs. In other words, they may not want a position that could be harmonized with the approach of Washington.

Consultation among the allies is inevitably tricky. Muskie feels he has established good personal relations with his main opposite numbers — Carrington of Britain; Francois Poncelet of France; and Genscher of West Germany. But the French will consult on political matters only within a four-power context. The Italians and others want in. If only because it takes place on Italian soil, the Venice summit meetings on June 22-23 will not be propitious for detailed political talks.

More may emerge from the NATO foreign ministers meeting in Ankara a couple of days later. Muskie would eventually like to establish a new consultative mechanism — but only in the future, if President Carter wins reelection.

The White House also presents some problems for Muskie. Not, as widely advertised, in the person of Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's special assistant for national security affairs. Muskie is steadily cutting away at Brzezinski by assigning State Department people to jobs the NSC staff used to handle. "He plays Zbig like a yo-yo," one assistant secretary of state says.

THE GREAT PROBLEM for Muskie — as it was for Cyrus Vance before him — is Jimmy Carter, and his irrepressible habit of trying to make domestic political points by foreign policy actions.

Apraxia: Brain must relearn

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Disturbing critique

WASHINGTON — Defenders of the Central Intelligence Agency have always responded to exposure of the agency's illegal activities and operational failures by stressing the importance to U.S. policy-makers of accurate information about what's happening in the world.

But now an authoritative CIA critic — a respected employee who served 25 years in the agency — has challenged the very heart of the CIA's justification for existence. In a nutshell, he says the CIA does a rotten job of intelligence-gathering.

The former agent, Ralph McGehee, has set down his disturbing critique in a book-length manuscript, and expanded on his views in an interview with my associate Dale Van Atta.

THE CIA'S PRIMARY function, McGehee concluded, is to provide "information" that supports the preconceived notions of an administration's top policy-makers — in other words, to tell a president and his advisers what they want to hear. This, of course, is worse than no intelligence at all, since it reinforces wrong-headed assumptions while suppressing accurate information that conflicts with the prevailing policy views.

The results can be disastrous for the United States — as in the cases of Vietnam and Iran, where the CIA systematically exaggerated the strength and popularity of the South Vietnamese government and the shah while minimizing that of their opponents.

Citing a personal example, McGehee told of his success with a low-cost, non-violent anti-communist program he directed in Thailand in 1967. His well-trained, 25-man Thai task force was able, by peaceful persuasion, to turn the pro-communist natives of one province completely around.

The program was discontinued by the top CIA brass, McGehee says, because it belied their view that the Thais were basically pro-American, but were being terrorized by at most 4,000 communist guerrillas. Yet McGehee had found at least that many in a single province, plus widespread support among the population — and had thwarted the communists without resort to heavyhanded counter-insurgency measures in vogue at headquarters.

BY CONTRAST, McGehee told of a colleague in Thailand who claimed to have subverted a Communist Party official, and sent back glowing reports of disruptive activities within the party. The agent was given a medal and promotion. But his successor in the post found that the operation had been largely imaginary; the Thai defector had been lying. Nevertheless, the agent eventually became chief of personnel for the East Asia division, McGehee said.

"Ours was not an operation to produce intelligence," McGehee has reluctantly concluded. "Instead we produced only that information

My answer

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think overeating is a sin? If so, why? — B.M.T.

DEAR B.M.T.: Yes, overeating is wrong, there are several reasons for this. The basic reason it is wrong is because the Bible makes it clear that God considers it a sin. The Bible says, "Do not join those who drink too much wine or gorge themselves on meat, for drunkards and gluttons become poor, and drowsiness clothes them in rags" (Proverbs 23:20-21).

There are several reasons why the Bible speaks of this. One reason is certainly because overeating is bad for our health — as study after study reveals today, but if you belong to Jesus Christ — if you have put your faith and trust in Him — then you are to seek to honor God in everything — including your body. The Bible commands, "So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God" (1 Corinthians 10:31). The Bible also reminds us that we are no longer to live for ourselves, but must remember that even our bodies should bring glory to God. "Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your body" (1 Corinthians 6:19-20).

Also, the Bible tells us that a person who is constantly concerned about food and drink is in danger of placing these physical pleasures ahead of God. The Bible speaks of people whose "god is their stomach... their mind is on earthly things" (Philippians 3:19). But nothing should come before our love and worship of God.

Then we should remember that there are millions of people today who live on the verge of starvation. We have a responsibility to meet their needs, and God will hold us accountable if we selfishly fill our own stomachs and forget the hungry and poor in our world.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 70-year-old female. I have gait apraxia. Can you tell me about this disease, its causes and what exactly is the treatment? Will it get better? — J.P.F.

Let's attack apraxia first. It's rather hard to understand. The definition is "a loss of purposeful movement without paralysis." That definition doesn't clear up much. Let's take an example — walking.

That simple act is required early in life by learning and practice. Once the brain is fully "programmed," the act is remembered and can be reproduced. We can forget about that problem. The so-called "motor area" of the brain sends its electrical impulses down cables of nerves in the spinal cord and out of the spinal cord through more nerve cables to the muscles of the legs. We simply walk.

The person with apraxia cannot execute the act of walking. There has been a breakdown somewhere between the formation (in the brain) of the idea of walking and the transmission of the necessary electrical signals to accomplish the act. The muscles are fine; there is no paralysis.

The person with apraxia appears to understand how to walk. He can make his legs move, but he has lost the memory to put it all together into the familiar rhythmic gait.

The causes are many. Little strokes in the brain can produce it. The treatment is to try to get the brain to relearn what it has forgotten. Physical therapy helps with this, but I cannot predict how successful it will be for you. Perhaps understanding what has happened will help you appreciate the value of whatever therapy you are getting. I hope you are getting some.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How can one tell if leg cramps are related to poor circulation? — M.A.

I can give you a few clues.

Most leg cramping is related to poor circulation. When blood flow is diminished (because of arterial narrowing, for example), crampy pain is felt in the calf when the legs are exercised. The pain may also be felt in the buttocks, thighs or feet.

Dear Abby

G.E.D. Lets Dropouts Drop Back In

DEAR ABBY: May I use your column to help all those kids who have dropped out of high school and wish they hadn't?

If you are a dropout and now regret it, you don't have to settle for the lowest-paying job all your life and be referred to as "uneducated." And you don't have to go back to high school for two or three years to get your diploma, either.

Every state in this country offers a high school diploma by examination. The exam is called the "General Education Development" test. It is offered to everyone and is even accepted for college entrance!

Abby, this may not be news to you, but it was news to me, and I'm sure there are thousands, maybe millions of people who have never heard of it. After kicking myself for five years for having dropped out of high school, I learned about G.E.D. from a friend. Exactly three months later I had my high school diploma. I then passed my college entrance exams and I'm now going to college.

I am very grateful to the person who told me about G.E.D., and I'm sure your readers will be grateful to you if you pass on this information to them.

SACRAMENTO READER

DEAR READER: Thanks for a helpful tip. Anyone interested in obtaining a high school diploma may call any high school in his community for the necessary information. Or write to: General Education Development Testing Service, American Council on Education, 1 Dupont Circle N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

DEAR ABBY: Recently our family stayed in a very nice motel overnight, and we ordered food from room service. Before checking out, my mom insisted on washing the dishes. I say that we paid for the room and that includes any dishes we dirtied when we ordered from room service. Who is right?

JUDY IN AZUSA

DEAR JUDY: Your mom is a super-neat lady in every sense of the word, but motel guests are not expected to wash their own dishes.

DEAR ABBY: My son who is getting married soon informed me today that my husband and I are not invited to the wedding breakfast to be given by the bride's parents. The reason (we are told) is that costs must be kept to a minimum. My two other children, a boy and a girl, will both be attending, as they are in the wedding party.

My son also informed me that as the groom's parents we are responsible for the rehearsal dinner, and we must include the bride's parents. What is your opinion of this? Are we wrong to feel slighted? Or should we accept the fact that as the groom's parents we can expect to be left out of the picture?

Please hurry your answer. I need your advice.

HURT IN CLEVELAND

DEAR HURT: The parents of the groom should be included in all the wedding festivities, just as the parents of the bride should be. If the bride's parents are not aware that this is so, they should be so informed.

DEAR ABBY: How would you define "old age?"

BILL HERRICK IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR BILL: To recycle an old cliché, old age, like beauty, lies in the mind of the beholder. But I would say that you've reached it when:

You need your glasses to find your glasses.
You walk into another room and wonder what you went there for.

People start telling you you're looking good, but no one says you're good-looking.

You pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your heart.

You think today's policemen look like kids.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Laaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Forsan band member brings back medal

Four students from Forsan High School participated in the Texas State Solo and Ensemble Contest held in Austin June 1.

Contestants were Jay Barron, contra-bass clarinet; Cheryl Welander, flute; Zena Clark and Vicky Baggett, twirling.

Barron received a second division bringing back the only medal of the group.

Big Spring and Coahoma also participated in TSSEC in Austin.

Mrs. Mary Hefley talks on the 'world of Welk'

Ruth Pittman and Candy Andrews were hostesses at a Dutch Treat dinner-meeting Tuesday evening for the Past Matrons' Club of Big Spring Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star, in the private dining room of Alberto's Crystal Cafe.

Dorothy Hull read the Father's Day message from the Worthy Grand Matron Kathy Johnston, Grand Chapter of Texas, Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Johnston gave the thought for June — "Happiness is having Dad on our side."

Candy Andrews, president, introduced Mrs. L.B. Newman and Susan, daughter and granddaughter of Mary Arnold Hefley.

Mrs. Andrews called for reports from Mrs. Hefley, Ina Richardson, Pyrie Bradshaw, Mae Hayden, Edith Murdock, Vera Gross, Zan Ryan, Ruth Pittman, Doris Mason, Elva Biffar, Ortry Boatler, Ila Keathley, Dorothy Hull, Dorothy Parish and Sue Stripling.

Members were reminded that the Past Matrons' Club will give a reception for the new officers of Big Spring Chapter No. 67, O.E.S., 8 p.m. Friday at the Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Hefley gave the program, "The 'Wunnerful' World of Welk" based on a story by Douglas Jones. She told the members that "back in 1955, Lawrence Welk turned on his bubble machine for the television viewers for the first time; the critics predicted nothing but busting bubbles.

The "uh-one, and uh-two" bandleader, now famous for his champagne music hasn't been off the air since. He has outlasted all other variety shows.

Now in his 25th straight coast-to-coast season, Welk says, "It's a long-running love affair with my audience of 28 million people a week. This keeps me going, and I have no intention of quitting."

Welk and Fern, his wife of 48 years, live in Palisades, a suburb of Los Angeles. The Welks have three children and 10 grandchildren. Welk recently drove from California to the University of North Dakota at Grand Rapids to receive an Honorary Doctor of Music degree.

Welk played in Big Spring at the Stampede. The late Adolph Swartz managed and booked him, Mrs. Hefley concluded.

Under new business, Vera Gross was elected president; Mrs. Hefley, vice president; Doris Mason, secretary and Ruth Pittman, treasurer.

Certificates of outstanding service in the Big Spring Past Matrons' Club were presented by Mrs. Andrews to Grace Kinney, Mrs. Ryan, Viletta Ballou, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Stripling, and Mrs. Hefley.

ATTEND SCREENING — Paul Simon, left, and Carrie Fisher attend a party and invitational screening recently night in New York of "Carny." The film, set to open in mid-June, is a three-way romance starring Jodie Foster, Gary Busey and Robbie Robertson and is set against a traveling carnival.

Records can be seal

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I read a letter in your column about a boy who wanted to be a state police officer but was afraid that his juvenile record might stand in his way.

Tell this guy that when he turns 18, he can have his juvenile record sealed by the court. I should know, I had mine sealed. All I did was to see my probation officer, fill out some forms, go before a judge, and promise not to go wrong again. There is no hassle or cost. — David, Oriand, Calif.

David: Yes, juvenile records can be sealed when the person reaches age 18. For those who do not or have never had a probation officer, contact the juvenile court in your county court building for further information.

Dr. Wallace: I am about 28 pounds overweight and have heard that jogging is an excellent way to lose weight. How far should I run each day? I'm 16 years old. — Timmy, Michigan City, Ind.

Timmy: Jogging is not meant to lose weight. Jogging one mile will burn up 100 calories.

Remember, one piece of chocolate cake contains about 500 calories. Don't use jogging as an excuse for overeating — it just doesn't work that way.

If you are trying to lose weight, combine jogging with a sensible diet. What jogging does is firm up muscles and slim your waistline.

If you are going to jog, start out slowly.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 14-year-old girl and I like a boy very much. He likes me, too, and wants to go with me but he is too shy to ask me. He went to my best friend and told her to ask me and I told my friend no because I didn't want this girl to know about my love life. If this boy would have asked me himself, I would have said yes.

Now I'm confused and don't know what to do. I think I've scared this boy away for good. — Missy, Galesburg, Ill.

Missy: Your solution is easy. Talk to this boy alone and tell him that you really do care for him but that you wanted to hear that he cared for you from his lips, not those of your best friend. He will be thrilled that you talked with him.

Dr. Wallace: I have the horrible problem of always putting people down. It doesn't make any difference who the person is — friend or foe. Either the guy has too large of a nose or the gal is overweight.

I'm sure my close friends are aware of my problem.

but they haven't said anything to me.

Why do I always do this? I'm 16 and a girl and would like to change. — Marie, Ontario, Oregon

Marie: You are headed in the right direction by first realizing that you do have a problem and second, choosing to change.

By putting people down you probably try to make yourself look good. Instead of being negative, be positive. Look for good qualities in people and your friends will notice a pleasant change in your personality.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

325 register at 50th McNew family reunion

Descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McNew held their 50th family reunion June 7-8 in Forest Park Community Center, Lamesa, with 325 registering.

A number of families were represented by four to six generations. Work on the family genealogy, currently dating back to 1703, was compiled by Gertrude McCann and Bonnie Bennett.

Big Springer Delia McNew, 87, was recognized as the oldest person attending. Lynde Dale Johnson of Andrews was the youngest present. She is 3½ months old.

Reunion activities included visiting, table games, music and singing.

Charlene Freyburger, New Maadi, Egypt, was the relative who traveled the farthest distance. Others attended from Arkansas, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Colorado, California, Virginia, New Mexico, Washington, D.C., Missouri and Texas.

Attending from Big Spring, in addition to Delia McNew, were Mr. and Mrs. T.A. Davidson and Shan and Michael; Bobby McCracken, Bonnie Bennett, Jackie Seay, Callie Bennett and Jerry; Gertrude McCann, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Joe McCann and Denise; Mr. and Mrs. R.X. McNew and Bryan Sledge.

Rice reunion is June 15

The descendants of pioneers George and Ellen Rice will hold a reunion June 15 at the Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center, 2805 Lynn.

All old friends and relatives are invited to attend this luncheon.

Former C-54 pilot donates book to the Heritage Museum

Heritage Museum received from Robert J. (Jack) Cook, independent Oil and Gas Lease operator, and a member of the Hump Pilots Association (China-Burma-India) a book, "China Airlift, The Hump," published by the association. Cook flew the Hump in C-54's and is a member of the association.

The book is a saga of the World War II Airlift support of Mainland China over the "Roof of the World" after the Japanese gained control of the Burma road which cut off normal means of access to Mainland China. This airlift was accomplished under almost impossible odds and it was aptly called "The Forgotten Theater." The area had few navigational aids. Its isolation was so complete as to beggar description. James F. Brewer, president of the Association, in his Foreword, said: "This history is being published as a record of what the Hump really was and to document the membership's role in this distinguished accomplishment."

Jack Cook received his commission as Pilot March 11, 1943. Prior to that time he was civilian instructor at Army Primary Flying School, Coleman, Texas. Cook's first base was Memphis, Tenn., 4th Ferry Group, flying domestic and foreign flights. He was based in Memphis until transferred to Homestead, Fla. for 4 engine airline pilot training, then from Homestead to Tezgaon, India, 1346 AAF Base Unit, Bengal Wing, Air Transport Command. Cook flew the hump in C-54's out of Tezgaon until end of war and left the service as Captain.

He says his most memorable event was losing 2 engines over the Hump on instruments, making a turn around and emergency landing at Yoke Oboe North and East of Myitkyina. He flew hospital evacuation from Hump bases to Karachi. Cook flew on the Cannon project airlifting Chinese 8th Army from Luichow to Shanghai after Hiroshima.

Jack still flies for business and pleasure. Gerri Atwell, curator, says "We think this book is one among the greats which will go down in the annals of the history of World War II, and we are honored to have a copy in the museum."

Jack is a member of the Heritage Museum Board of Trustees.

Cauble School alumni plan for get-together

Alumni of Cauble School, teachers and former residents are invited and urged to attend the upcoming reunion to be held at Elbow Cafeteria and Gym.

Registration will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

The gym will open Saturday at 8 a.m. Each family is requested to bring a picnic lunch to be served at noon.

Parking will be available at Elbow School for those with recreational vehicles.

Young and old unite

G.A.P.: A gap to bridge all gaps

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

Does a gap truly exist between the generations of the young and old?

It does if you consider the Generations Alliance Program (G.A.P.). However, the aim of this G.A.P. is to bridge any other gap that may exist between the young and old.

G.A.P. is an innovative service program sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons. It offers the opportunity for young and old alike to embark on one of the most exciting activities to be undertaken by anyone—an adventure in sharing.

G.A.P. is a gap to bridge all gaps. Through the program, younger and older persons break down the barrier which separates one age from the other. Common interests and concerns emerge, and participants develop rich new friendships, according to Janet Rogers, county extension agent.

"In August, 1979, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Howard County was contacted by the National Association of Retired Persons to involve 4-H youth and older adults in a pilot community service project," Mrs. Rogers revealed.

Twenty-three members of the Howard County Retired Teachers' Association, nine members of the Gayhill 4-H Club and the Howard County Council on Aging are involved in the Howard County intergenerational project.

4-H leaders responsible for coordinating the 4-H portion of the project are Mrs. Cromwell Rhoton and Mrs. Easton Hollis.

Retired teachers and members of the Gayhill 4-H Club have been working together since the beginning of June and will continue to do so until the middle of the month.

Their job as an intergenerational group is to deliver an average of 85 Mobil Meals daily to residents of Howard County. The Howard County Council on Aging is assisting in coordinating the schedules and delivery routes.

"The Mobil Meal program is locally funded and delivery depends entirely on volunteer help," the county extension agent pointed out.

"The groups involved felt that this would be a good choice of projects since the Mobil Meal program is in desperate need of volunteers," Mrs. Rogers said.

By sharing in G.A.P., the young and old alike are benefitted. Young persons have the opportunity to get to know older people as individuals of competence, wisdom, humor and affection.

In turn, older persons get to know the younger as talented, interested and concerned individuals. They are stimulated by youth's questing spirit and desire to learn by doing, sharing and experiencing.

"It is a pleasure to see how these young 4-H'ers greet each patron with warmth and enthusiasm," commented retired teacher Evelyn Holley, concerning her participation in the intergenerational program.

"It is truly a thrill to see the reaction of the senior patrons to the appearance of a sparkling young person at their doors," she added.

Retired teacher Marie Landers is impressed by the dedication and eagerness to serve of the Gayhill 4-H'ers.

"These boys and girls bring joy and sunshine into the lives of nearly 900 citizens. Otherwise it would be just another ho-hum day in their lives," Mrs. Landers stated.

Approximately 23 retired teachers are giving their time, cars and love for youth and older citizens that they might share in this rewarding experience.

"Together, we have been able to quicken emotions within us that have been dormant and would have remained so without this experience," Mrs. Landers explained.

Mrs. Landers continued, saying that she was made to realize that "there are many lonely people suffering with ill health who do not have all the comforts of a good life."

Dr. Laurence Snively thinks the local G.A.P. project has been a success from every standpoint.

"The retired teachers find the children to be as enthusiastic, cooperative and delightful as young people have always been," Dr. Snively revealed.

Another goal of the G.A.P. project is to provide homebound senior citizens with more people contact. Both older adults and youth take several minutes of their time to visit with residents as they deliver meals.

Through their interaction with these residents, 4-H youth have been educated and interested in the numbers of different people, different living conditions and various environments they have been exposed to through the program.

"Through our participation in this program," commented 4-H'er Tonya Sneed, "we've become more aware of the different living conditions among the people."

Another 4-H member, Tonya Hollis, stated "The people we deliver meals to get real excited because sometimes we're the only ones who ever come to see them. It makes them happy to know someone cares about them."

Included on the Mobil Meal routes of the group is a blind man and a 107-year-old woman. Many residents are handicapped in some way.

Gayhill 4-H Club member Joie Brummett said "We are able to see how handicapped people live and do for themselves."

All 4-H'ers agree they've made many new friends through their participation in the program — friends from generations different from theirs.

Tessa Underwood, another 4-H member, has delivered meals to a woman who used to live in the area she now lives.

"While I was delivering Miss Haney her meal," Tessa explained, "we began talking and I found out that she had once lived out in the country where I now live near Luther. She lived out there in 1938. I found out that she knew my parents and many of my aunts and uncles."

In summing up all 4-H members' feelings, adult leader Lois Rhoton stated "I think they've enjoyed their interaction with people of other generations as well as their exposure to different lifestyles and environments."

"I feel this intergenerational program has been good for them. It is something they can see first hand the good they are doing," she concluded.

INTERGENERATIONAL EXCHANGE — Gayhill 4-H members Dawn Underwood, left, and Randell Hollis, right, are among nine youngsters helping to bridge the generation gap by participating, along with area retired teachers, in the Generations Alliance Program. 4-H'ers and retired teachers chose the Mobil Meals program as their project. Here Dawn and Randell greet Anna Haney as they deliver her lunch.

THERE'S NO GENERATION GAP HERE! — This combined group of 4-H youngsters and retired teachers are getting the opportunity to exchange their ideas, interests and concerns by participating in the Generations Alliance Program. The aim of G.A.P. is to bridge any gap that may exist between the young and old. Together, until the middle of June, they will deliver meals through the Mobil Meals program to home-bound senior citizens.

Recipes

4-H'ERS RECIPES

Joie Brummett's BANANA BREAD

- 2 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 bananas
- 2 cups flour
- Nuts, if desired
- Cream sugar and shortening together; add eggs. Mix vanilla, soda, salt, and flour together. Add to sugar and shortening. Smash bananas and pour in loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Trevor Moore's JOHNNY KNOWS IT

- 1 1/2 pound ground meat
- 1 package noodles, small
- 1 jar stuffed olives, small
- 1 can tomato soup
- 1 onion
- 1 can mushrooms (optional)
- 1 green pepper
- 1 can tomato paste
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- grated cheese
- salt
- Brown meat. Cook and drain noodles. Cook pepper, onion and celery in butter. Add all ingredients together. Top with cheese and cook at 350 degrees for 30 minutes, or until cheese is melted.

Kevin and Duncan Hamlin's CHIP BARS

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2-3rd cup shortening, melted
- 2 cups packed brown sugar
- or 1 cup liquid brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 slightly beaten eggs
- 1 cup chocolate chips
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- Mix flour, soda, baking powder and salt. Add sugar to melted shortening. Mix well. Blend in eggs and vanilla. Add flour mixture gradually. Spread in greased and floured 13 X 9 inch pan. Sprinkle with chips and nuts. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool and cut into bars.

Tonya Sneed's SUPER-DUPER CHOCOLATE COOKIES

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 3 chocolate squares or 6 tablespoons cocoa
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 4 eggs, unbeat
- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup nuts
- Melt shortening and cocoa over hot water. Then add sugar and vanilla. Mix well. Add eggs, one at a time. Beat well.

Sift dry ingredients and then add nuts. Chill for 3 hours. Form into small balls. Roll in powdered sugar.

Bake at 350 degrees 12 to 15 minutes. Do not over bake. Makes six dozen.

Tanya and Randell Hollis' CHEESY CASSEROLE BREAD

- 4 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 packages dry yeast
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons shortening, soft
- 1 egg
- 1 cup (4 ounce) shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1 cup quick or old fashion oats, uncooked
- Combine 2 cups flour, yeast, sugar and salt in a large mixing bowl. Heat milk, water and shortening over low heat until warm (110 to 115 degrees F.). Shortening does not need to melt. Add milk mixture to flour mixture. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 2 minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Add egg, cheese and 1/2 cup flour.

Beat at high speed two minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Stir in oats and enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Beat until blended. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 45 minutes.

Stir batter down. Beat vigorously 30 seconds. Turn into a greased two-quart casserole. Bake in preheated moderate oven at 350 degrees 50 to 55 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Makes 1 round loaf.

Scott, Dawn and Tessa Underwood's ORANGE COOKIES

- Cream together:
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 3/4 cup brown sugar
- 1/4 cup sugar
- Add:
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup concentrated orange juice
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Mix well and add:
- 1/4 cup coconut
- 1/4 cup chopped pecans

Bake at 350 degrees for 9-11 minutes. Makes 6 dozen. Cover tops of cookies with frosting when cool.

Frosting

- 2 cups powdered sugar
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup concentrated orange juice

RETIRED TEACHERS' RECIPES

Mildred McFall's Congealed Cabbage Salad

- 1/2 small head of cabbage
- 2 apples
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 2 medium carrots
- 2 small package lemon jello
- Make lemon jello as directed on box. Put cabbage, apples and carrots through the blender. Add the 1/2 cup nuts after removing from blender. Add this mixture to the lemon jello and let congeal. Top with pecan halves, if you wish. Serve with Hidden Valley Salad dressing.

Edna Goodman's ASPARAGUS CASSEROLE

- 2 (10 ounce) cans asparagus
- 1 large can of medium green peas
- 1 can mushroom soup, undiluted
- 1 1/2 cups grated cheese

Drain asparagus. Arrange in dish. Spread half of the mushroom soup and half the cheese over the layer of asparagus. Drain peas and pour over the layer of cheese. Spread the remaining soup over the peas. Top with the rest of cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes — until the cheese melts and the soup bubbles.

Leona Ebersole's RICE BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

- 1/2 cup onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup celery, chopped
- 1 cup rice
- 1 package broccoli, chopped
- 1 can cream mushroom soup
- 1 can cream chicken soup salt to taste
- 1 small jar Cheese Whiz

Saute onions. Cook rice and celery separately. Mix onions, soups and cheese whiz together with broccoli. Place rice and celery mix in casserole as a lining for the dish. Pour the other ingredients over rice and sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 minutes.

Gladys Archer's MEXICAN BEEF CASSEROLE

- 1 1/2 lb ground beef
- 1 can cream chicken soup (undiluted)
- 1 can cream mushroom soup (undiluted)
- 1 (4 oz.) can green chiles, chopped
- 1 (10 oz.) can hot enchilada sauce

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 12 corn tortillas

Dash of Parmesan cheese

Brown meat and onion in cooking oil. Pour in soups, sauces and chiles. Cook together until real hot. Place a layer of tortillas in dish. Pour half of mixture over the tortillas. Cover this layer with grated cheese. Add a second layer of tortillas and the rest of the meat mixture. Top with the rest of grated cheese. Cook at 350 degrees for about 20 minutes.

Jane Walker's LIME GELATIN SALAD

- 1 package lime gelatin
- 1 small package cream cheese
- 1 cup 7-up
- 1 cup small marshmallows

- 1 small can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1 cup hot water

Mix gelatin, cream cheese and marshmallows in one cup of hot water. Add pineapple, peans and 7-up. Chill in dish set.

Evelyn Holley's PLAIN POUND CAKE

- 1 lb. box powdered sugar
- 1/2 lb. butter or oleo

- 8 eggs
- 1 lb. plain flour, sifted
- 3 tsp vanilla

Cream butter and powdered sugar to look like whipped cream. 1 lb. of flour and 8 eggs are added alternately. Add 1 egg at a time and beat 1 minute after each egg is added. Beat 5 more minutes. Add vanilla. Bake in an Angel Food Cake pan for 1 hour at 325 degrees.

Partners in peace bickering publicly

While the White House announced plans for Egyptian and Israeli negotiators to meet in Washington in hopes of renewing the stalled Palestinian autonomy talks, the two partners in peace bickered publicly over which side was holding up progress.

In Cairo, an Egyptian Foreign Ministry spokesman read a prepared statement Wednesday accusing Israel of deliberately "creating more obstacles" to the peace process with its stated policy to build new settlements in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The obstacles, he said, should be "liquidated" during the talks in Washington, set to begin sometime in the next few weeks.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, meanwhile, said in Tel Aviv that Israel had made "tremendous concessions" in the peace process and that he did not "see a possibility for Israel to give in more."

A Foreign Ministry spokesman added: "There was no problem with Israel. We didn't cut off the talks. I think now the talks (must) be renewed without any conditions."

Shamir was interviewed on Israeli television after a spokesman for President Carter announced in Washington that the negotiators — Israel's Yosef Burg and Kamal Hassan Ali of Egypt — would meet there to discuss renewing negotiations.

In breaking off the year-long talks last month, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Israel's settlement policy set pre-conditions that virtually made the West Bank issue unnegotiable.

Sadat also suspended the talks to protest a bill in the Israeli Parliament that would have perpetuated Israeli control over Arab East Jerusalem, held by Israel since the 1967 Mideast war.

Stenholm fights discount hikes for low 'mikes'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — For over 30 years, a general statute of limitations has protected individuals from prosecution in civil actions after a period of five years. The American businessman, however, has had no similar protection.

Recently, I introduced legislation, H.R. 7506, along with Congressman Jack Hightower (D-Tex.) which would establish a four-year statute of limitations for businesses on record keeping and alleged civil violations of federal rules, regulations or laws.

At present, businessmen are required to maintain records indefinitely and are subject to civil penalties without any time limitations.

The Department of Energy, for instance, is one of several federal agencies with open-ended enforcement abilities of regulations. An independent oil producer, as an example, could misread a price order and be held accountable to DOE for overcharges for any number of years. His children and grandchildren could, conceivably, be held responsible for an honest mistake and be required to come up with the paperwork 20 or 30 years later to defend their case. And, if their defense failed, the interest payments alone could wipe out a business.

Perhaps the clearest way to illustrate the burden caused by the lack of statute of limitations for business regulations is this: Imagine your own personal filing system if the Internal Revenue Service did not have a three-year statute of limitations for income tax returns. You would have blank checks and invoices filed in every nook and cranny of your home.

No business needs that kind of burden hanging over its head indefinitely. A statute of limitations placed on all government agencies will give the businessman some sense of certainty in operating his business.

This type of open-ended enforcement can happen to any other sector of the business community across the nation in its dealings with various federal agencies, and this legislation will have a beneficial impact on all businesses, particularly small business.

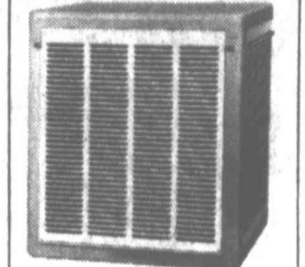

This legislation is one means to cut down the cost of doing business, and therefore chip away a little at the inflation rate as these costs are invariably passed along to the end user of the product or service involved if that business is to remain solvent.

Excessive paperwork and excessive regulations are two inflationary problems that I have fought since coming to Congress.

I am pleased that we have received a great deal of support from a wide cross-section of the business community across the country for this bill even before we introduced the measure last week. Various groups are joining together to enlist additional support and to assist in the passage of this bill. We are expecting backing from business and trade groups, oil and gas and agricultural sectors as we work toward passage of the bill.

Largest automobile recall looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government appears on the verge of ordering the largest motor vehicle recall ever. Until it does, it is warning owners of 16 million Fords that the cars and light trucks, all with automatic transmissions, may suddenly lurch into reverse.

More than 98 deaths, 1,700 injuries and 6,000 accidents have been attributed to the transmissions, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said Wednesday in issuing its warning and in notifying Ford of its intention to proceed with steps leading to a recall.

Only a hearing the agency has scheduled for July 21 seems to stand in the way of the recall. If ordered, a recall could cost the automaker, already suffering from depressed sales, several hundred million dollars.

In Detroit, a Ford spokesman reiterated the company's position that there is nothing wrong with the transmissions.

Subject to the recall would be vehicles sold after August 1972 and made before October 1979 with automatic transmission types C3, C4, C6, FMX and JATCO. The safety agency said most of the accidents reported to it were caused by runaway vehicles that shifted by themselves from park to reverse after they were left unattended with their engines running.

Throughout the agency's 2½-year investigation, Ford has contended that any problems are caused by drivers misusing the transmission and motorists' failure to use the parking brake when the vehicle is in park.

In a statement issued Wednesday in Detroit, Ford reiterated that position.

"There is no design defect in our transmissions. There is no fundamental difference between the Ford automatic transmissions and those installed in millions of other U.S., Japanese and European cars. We are fully prepared to prove our points scientifically in an objective atmosphere."

But the federal agency, in what is called an "initial finding," said its investigators believe there are safety defects in the transmissions. After the July 21 Washington hearing, called to give Ford and other interested parties the chance to have their say, the recall would be ordered.

But until the issue is formally resolved, agency Administrator Joan Claybrook said, owners of Ford cars and light trucks made before 1980 should be careful when parking to "make sure their gear shift levers are shifted all the way to the park position, that the parking brake is set and that no vehicle should be left unattended with the engine running."

Opponent charges deception

Lewis sure of House speaker seat

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The numbers game in the 1981 House speaker's race grew more intense Wednesday, with Rep. Gib Lewis claiming victory and Rep. John Bryant accusing him of deception.

"The race to succeed Bill Clayton is over," said Lewis as he laid out a list of 92 House members and candidates he said had pledged their support to him in writing.

"I am confident I am going to be elected speaker," Bryant said a couple of hours later.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, is running only as a second choice to Speaker Bill Clayton, who might abandon his quest for an unprecedented fourth term.

Bryant, however, is running for speaker against all comers, including Clayton.

Clayton said Wednesday he expected to be indicted in the FBI's Bribe investigation and was giving himself until "early fall" or "before it gets too cold" to be acquitted. Without such vindication, he said, he would quit the speaker's race.

The House elects the speaker on the opening day of a regular legislative session — in this case, January 1981 — and it takes 76 votes to win if everybody is present.

"Bryant said Lewis' list was full of soft spots and accused him of 'deception' and a 'less than honest manipulation of House members and facts and figures.'"

For one thing, Bryant said, Lewis included 15 Republicans whose chance of election is poor because they are running against Democrat incumbents in traditionally Democratic districts.

Another 33 names are legislators or incumbents who have opponents in November, including seven Republican legislators targeted by the Democratic Party for defeat in November, he said.

Bryant said five are "pledged to me or someone else or uncommitted," including Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, who had been scheduled to endorse Bryant at a Wednesday morning news conference.

Kubiak later issued a statement saying he was committed to Lewis. He said he signed pledge cards for both Lewis and Bryant because "I think the pledge card system is a farce."

Others who Bryant said were uncommitted or pledged to others are Reps. George Pierce, D-San Antonio, and Charles Fennell, D-Holiday, and candidates Larry Browder of Shepherd and Dave London of Leonard.

Bryant also charged that eight persons named by Lewis were "stampeded" into signing on by Lewis' claim to have 90 pledges.

They are, he said, Reps. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo, Bo Crawford, D-Beaumont, Frank Gaston, R-Dallas, Al Edwards, D-Houston, and Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio, and candidates, Dee Miller, Amarillo, John Gavin, Wichita Falls, and Bruce Gibson, Godley.

When only legislators and candidates who likely will be sitting in the 1981 House are counted, Bryant said, Lewis has about 62 solid pledges and Bryant has about 65.

FAA okays building of control tower in Midland

MIDLAND — The Federal Aviation Administration has authorized construction of a new control tower at Midland Air Terminal. Construction will get under way later this year.

Chief's job proposed for assistant chief

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City Council was presented with a petition Tuesday night proposing that Assistant Police Chief Jerry D. Cowin, 36, be made chief of police.

According to Councilman Ray Dillard, the petition bore 54 names.

Cowin has been assistant chief for four years. He has served as head of the police department for several months during the absence of Chief Fred McWhorter early in the year and also since McWhorter's resignation April 1. Cowin has said he will be an applicant for the post.

The petition was referred to City Manager Ray Mason since Mason will be largely responsible for the new chief of police.

The council also approved a rate hike requested by Texas Electric Service Co. Manager B.B. Hardee, with the provision that it be tied to whatever the state Public Utilities Commission awards the company in hearings later in the year.

Hardee said the rate increase would take effect whenever the PUC make its decision, probably this fall.

Mason told the council that there would be some work going on at the city airport and asked for the council's feeling on city participation in the mostly volunteer labor parties at the airport.

Gasoline tanks are to be installed and wiring for lights is to be put in the ground.

INJURED IN EXPLOSION — New York Emergency Medical Services administer aid to injured man with help of New York City police and fireman at site of explosion at dry cleaning store in the Bronx borough of the city Wednesday morning. A fire department spokesman said the area smelled of gas and investigators were checking the possibility that a gas main may have ruptured. Area hospitals report that a baby was dead and eight other persons were injured due to the explosion.

In Iranian army unit

Plot reported uncovered

By the Associated Press
The Iranian army's revolutionary tribunal announced today a "plot" was uncovered in an army unit in the Kurdish region and 11 soldiers were seized, Tehran Radio reported.

No details of the plot were given. The broadcast said the army unit involved was in Piranshahr, near the border with Iraq, an area where renewed turmoil this week was said by Iran's interior minister to have left "a large number" of persons dead. Kurds in the region want to make Kurdistan an independent province.

Tehran Radio also reported a day-long series of clashes Wednesday between Iranian guards and Iraq's Baath army troops near two border posts. The broadcast said the Iraqis launched the attack and suffered heavy military losses. It said two Iranian guards were killed.

Meanwhile, in Oslo, Norway, Iranian Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh renewed his private dialogue with Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, reportedly discussing ways of resolving the deadlock over the 53 American hostages who spent their 22nd day in captivity in Iran today.

Initial reports indicated the meeting, in a hotel during the night, may have been more successful than the meetings Ghotbzadeh held with Kreisky and other socialist leaders in Tehran last month. Ghotbzadeh is attending a meeting of the Socialist International.

Informed sources quoted by Oslo newspapers said Ghotbzadeh reiterated the Iranian position that the hostage crisis can be solved only if the United States admits it committed crimes against the Iranian people during the rule of the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

One paper said Ghotbzadeh indicated the hostages could be released in four to six weeks' time if the United States admitted past interference in Iranian affairs, something President Carter has refused to do.

However, Ghotbzadeh stressed that the fate of the hostages ultimately will be decided by the new Iranian parliament, just as Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has said in the past.

Kreisky was the only Western leader to visit Iran since the hostage crisis began with the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4. He and socialist leaders from Sweden and Spain discussed the crisis with Iranian leaders last month, but did not see the hostages.

Fair housing bill headed for uncertain fate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A housing discrimination bill President Carter calls "perhaps the most important civil rights bill" in a decade is headed for an uncertain fate in the House after surviving — by the margin of a single last-minute vote switch — an attempt to kill its main provision.

House leaders scheduled final action on the bill today.

The measure passed a major test Wednesday when Rep. Joseph Gaydos, D-Pa., switched his vote from "no" to "yes" after the time given members to vote had expired.

House leaders, who had not formally closed the voting, did so immediately, keeping alive by a 205-204 margin a key section that creates a new procedure for enforcing provisions of the 1968 fair housing act.

If there had not been an apparent breakdown in the House's electronic voting system, the vote could have ended in a tie, allowing House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to cast the tiebreaking vote.

The tie apparently would have resulted if the electronic voting system had recorded the "no" vote of Rep. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, whose vote was not recorded although he was on the floor at the time. Symms said afterward he had opposed the crucial enforcement provision.

The key vote came after some parliamentary maneuvering designed to give each side the advantage.

Opponents of the measure had offered an amendment that would have removed most of the enforcement provisions. But Rep. Michael Synar, D-Okla., countered with an amendment to the opponents' amendment. This meant the first vote would be on Synar's proposal, which would keep enforcement intact with some minor changes.

Synar's amendment — the one that passed 205-204 — allows the Department of Housing and Urban Development to file housing discrimination complaints before an administrative law judge who would have power to settle complaints, order appropriate remedies and impose a maximum $10,000 fine if discrimination was found.

Unlike the original bill, however, Synar's amendment would have the law judges selected by the Department of Justice rather than by HUD.

Passage of the Synar substitute effectively killed the attempt to weaken the enforcement provisions.

Earlier Wednesday, the House had halted, by a 257-156 vote, an amendment that could have allowed a neighborhood's racial makeup to be considered in determining the value of a home.

RINGO STARR

BARBARA BACH

Starr may marry again

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There may be a wedding ring in the future for former Beatles drummer Ringo Starr.

Starr, who currently is working on a film career, plans to marry actress Barbara Bach late this year after she is divorced from her current husband, film sources said Wednesday.

The 39-year-old Starr and the 33-year-old Miss Bach were not available for comment on the report. The two met this year on the Mexico set of the United Artists movie "Caveman." Last month, both escaped injury when Starr's car flipped over on a London street.

Starr, who got the nickname "Ringo" because of his bejeweled fingers, has been married previously to hairdresser Maureen Cox. Miss Bach's previous films include "The Spy Who Loved Me."

Kids benefit from song

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — One of the most performed songs of 1979 may mean $500,000 for the world's children, says the United Nations Children's Fund.

Royalties from the song, "Too Much Heaven" were donated to UNICEF last year by the Bee Gees group. Barry, Robin and Maurice Gibb first performed the hit at a U.N. concert and a souvenir album of the concert by the Bee Gees and other popular performers has raised about $1 million, UNICEF said Wednesday. The song is expected to earn $500,000.

On Tuesday, the song was recognized by Broadcasting Music, Inc., a major American music society, as its most performed pop song of 1979. In accepting a BMI award, UNICEF executive director James P. Grant thanked performing groups and said the funds are used to help improve the situation of the world's children through programs in more than 100 developing countries.

Sinatra to help Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — Frank Sinatra rarely does commercials. But for $1 a year, Ol' Blue Eyes has taken on the task of commercial spokesman for ailing Chrysler Corp.

"Frank Sinatra is a fighter for the underdog and I am delighted," said Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca. He said Wednesday that details of the agreement were not complete, but that the singer would get a deal similar to his own — a dollar a year plus a good financial return if we make it work.

The company quoted Sinatra as saying he was "impressed with Iacocca's personal crusade to save Chrysler Corp. and to protect American jobs."

The 65-year-old Sinatra will step into the commercial role recently performed by Iacocca and in the past by baseball announcer Lee Caragola.

PORT VILA, New Hebrides (AP) — France withdrew its special riot police from the revolt-torn New Hebrides today, 24 hours after they arrived, claiming the situation had eased. But the islands' chief minister, Walter Lini, warned if fresh rioting broke out the responsibility would lie with France.

There was no immediate reaction from Britain, which had been preparing to send royal commandos to join the French in a "scare operation" against rebellious New Hebrides natives, including cultists who worship Prince Philip and believe a World War II GI named John Frum is the Messiah.

The last time British and French armed forces operated together was in the Suez Canal crisis in 1956. "Maybe we'll have to take it in turns to command the force," said one official before the French withdrawal decision was announced by Jean-Jacques Robert, the French commissioner in Port Vila.

Some 200 British Royal Marine commandos were to leave England Friday aboard three VC-10 jet transports and seven C-130 Hercules jets, arriving Saturday following refueling stops in the United States, Canada and Fiji, 500 miles west of here.

Both the British and French forces were to be based in Port Vila, and the British and French commissioners from the two-power condominium which has governed the islands since 1904 had said they hoped their presence would be enough to scare the natives into ending the revolt.

Fifty-five French riot police, dressed in combat fatigues and carrying rifles, submachine guns and field radios, flew in here Wednesday from the neighboring French possession of New Caledonia.

They arrived hours after hundreds of cultists on the island of Tanna, who believe their GI god will ascend from a volcano bringing them refrigerators, radios and other worldly goods, attacked government offices in a second attempt to seize the island. One man was killed in the ensuing gunfight with government supporters, the first casualty of the 16-day rebellion.

The 72-island archipelago is scheduled to gain independence July 30 but in London Wednesday, British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington warned the move may be postponed because of the ongoing "insurrection."

The rebellion began May 28 when natives on Tanna and on the New Hebrides' island of Espiritu Santo, 300 miles to the north, attacked government offices, kidnapped local police and freed prisoners from the local jails.

While the initial attack on Tanna failed, the one on Espiritu Santo succeeded — and Jimmy Stevens, the separatist leader there, declared the island independent, appointed himself chief minister and forced the evacuation of government officials and 1,000 Commonwealth residents.

Stevens is supported by American businessmen allied with a group called the Phoenix Foundation, which is trying to set up a tax haven free of government control on the island. The State Department says it is investigating whether the Americans may have broken U.S. laws by aiding the rebellion.

The Frum Society is one of the largest groups on the island, which has a population of 16,000. The cultists, who emerged after the war, have been studied by anthropologists who say they watched large amounts of American war supplies land on Tanna.

Donors still needed

Donated blood can now be stored for 35 days

Donated blood can now be stored for 35 days, thanks to a new anti-coagulant being used by United Blood Services. The addition of citrate phosphorous dextrose adenine — commonly called CPDA — allows blood to be kept two weeks longer than previously.

The improvement lies in the adenine, a nutrient (food) which boosts the energy level of the red blood cells so they can live longer outside the body. Adenine also helps the red blood cells maintain their bi-concave disk-like shape, the best shape for carrying oxygen.

According to Shirley Goetz, director of Donor Resources for United Blood Services of San Angelo, the use of CPDA will enable the blood center to operate more efficiently, but it will in no way reduce the number of volunteer blood donors needed to supply the blood. "Patients in our area will still need the same number of transfusions," Goetz explained.

"The use of CPDA will have its biggest impact on our shipping department. Since hospitals can keep the blood in their blood banks longer, chances are good it will be used within that hospital before it expires.

Normally, blood would be shipped out of one hospital and into another if it looked like it wouldn't be transfused within the 21-day shelf-life. The extra 2 weeks will probably result in less shipping throughout the region.

The new blood additive has been thoroughly tested and approved by the Food and Drug Administration. It has been in use in some areas of the country for several months, and with excellent results.

Goetz emphasized blood donors are still needed on a continual basis to provide the necessary units used each day in this region. "As a matter of fact, we expect that blood needs will go up 10 percent this year, which means we'll need more donors than ever before," Goetz explained.

Watson seeks crown

Open is special

SPRINGFIELD, N. J. (AP) — Tom Watson says he's ready for the U.S. Open championship, the one golf title he wants to win more than any other in the world.

Watson, the most outstanding golfer in the game the last three years, went into today's opening round of the 80th Open at Baltusrol Golf Club as the favorite among the field of 156. The entries include Jack Nicklaus, who won the Open here in 1967, two-time Open winner Lee Trevino, defending titleholder Hale Irwin and Seve Ballesteros, the Masters champion from Spain.

"I put a lot of pressure on myself," said Watson, winner of five tournaments this year and the leading money-winner at $359,525. "I can't treat the Open as just another golf tournament because I don't see it that way.

"It's the Super Bowl, the NBA championship and the Rose Bowl. It's impossible to say, 'It's just another golf tournament,' because it isn't."

Watson teed off today in the 16th threesome over the historic Lower Course at Baltusrol, a demanding and long par 70 that plays between 7,013 to 7,076 yards, depending on the tee placements.

Most of the players believe that even par 280 would be a good score during the four rounds, with Watson, Trevino and Nicklaus, among others, saying that one or two below par should win the $350,000 tournament.

Golf's premier player likes the challenge

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — How much does Tom Watson, the world's greatest active golfer, want to win the U.S. Open?

"So much I have dreams about it — dreams and nightmares," said the boyish shotmaker from Kansas City, pondering his ninth bid for the biggest tournament prize that has escaped him.

"People try to tell you it's just another golf tournament. Not to me. It's the national championship. It's the Super Bowl. It's the Rose Bowl. It's the World Series."

"I admit I put pressure on myself. I look at it different. I like it. I like the challenge. Not winning it is a burden I would like to get off my back."

bunker. I blasted short and putted back into the trap. I must have putted up seven times before the nightmare ended."

Watson woke up in a cold sweat.

The ogre that leers over Tom Watson's shoulder is one that has haunted the great and near great over the years.

The most notable case is that of Sam Snead, the sweet-swinging Virginia hillbilly who in a brilliant career won 84 tournaments — three Masters, three PGAs and even the British Open in his only try — yet never captured the Open although he was runnerup four times and blew perhaps half a dozen others.

Before Snead, Lighthorse Harry Cooper and MacDonald Smith suffered similar frustrations. Arnold Palmer, who dominated the sport in the 1960s, never managed to win the PGA.

It's the fickleness of the game.

"Don't worry, Watson will win the Open, maybe several," says Gary Player, one of four to have won every major crown. "He is too solid to be denied."

Watson, 30, a cool, calculating craftsman who has the Masters and two British Opens to top a dossier of 21 tour victories, has inherited Jack Nicklaus' mantle, beating the Golden Bear in birdie duels in the 1977 Masters and British Open.

"It's hard to pick one tournament and say, 'I'm going to win that tournament,'" says the tousle-haired Kansan, golf's Huckleberry Finn. "You can't force it."

"But a man's got to try. I'm ready."

Watson, the sport's dominant figure for the last three years and headed for a fourth Player-of-the-Year award with five tour victories and a record pace-setting $359,525 in official prize money, was both the book and sentimental favorite in the 80th Open Championship, which began today over the long and demanding Baltusrol course.

But he recognized that he was battling what has taken on the specter of a personal jinx.

"Ever since I was a kid I've dreamed of winning the Open — not the Masters, not the British, but the Open," he acknowledged with a deep sincerity and no attempt at theatrics. "Even when I was in my teens."

Gobbling down a turkey sandwich after a pretournament practice round, he said he once dreamed that he came to the 72nd hole in the Open with a chance to win it.

"I had a 20-foot putt," he related with a look of anguish, "and I putted into a

TESTING THE ROUGH — Seve Ballesteros winner of the 1980 Masters tests the rough Wednesday at the U.S. Open as he hits into the first green during the practice round. First round play started today at the Baltusrol Course in Springfield, N.J.

Little is seeking 2nd in row

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Sally Little is finally coming down from the high of the biggest victory of her golfing career, but not down so far that she doesn't think she can make it two in a row.

"If I felt that way I wouldn't be playing here," the slim South African said Wednesday. "I feel I've reached one of my goals and I have others, winning golf tournaments."

She has won six of them in a pro career that started in 1971, when she was the Ladies Professional Golf Association's rookie-of-the-year. But no victory was so satisfying as the one last Sunday in the LPGA Championship.

"It's like the Super Bowl compared to a regular game. There's no comparison. That's how I feel when I play a major tournament. I get so psyched for it. You can't do it every week," she said.

But she appears mentally prepared for this week's tour event, which began today on the par-72, 6,029-yard Radisson Ferncroft course north of Boston.

"I've achieved one of those little goals I set for myself and I've gained confidence within," she said. "I love the game and for people to recognize me as playing well can only make me feel good."

"I wouldn't consider myself a fierce competitor. That's not my nature," Little added. "Competitiveness comes from success, too. The more you succeed the more competitive you become. If you like it you want more."

Her career took off two years ago when she was the eighth leading money winner on the LPGA tour.

Boycott hurt attitude of athletes, says star

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) — Al Oerter admits that the Olympic boycott has dampened the enthusiasm of many of the nation's track and field athletes, including himself.

Oerter, a four-time Olympic champion in the discus throw — the only athlete in the history of the Games to win four consecutive gold medals in the same event — said, "I can see the deep disappointment in a lot of the athletes. They're just not pushing through their injuries."

"I'm sure that if we were going to the Olympics, they'd say the heck with the injuries and be competing...hurdling, jumping or whatever," the amazing 43-year-old Oerter added today, prior to the start of Friday's Athletics Congress Outdoor Championships, formerly the National AAU meet, at Mount San Antonio College.

Oerter, scheduled to compete Friday, the first day of the three-day championships, will be facing a stout field, including 1976 Olympic champion Mac Wilkins, silver medalist John Powell, Norway's Knut Hjeltnes and Ben Plucknett.

Oerter, who recently threw his career best — 227 feet, 11 inches — not far off the world mark of 233.5, held by Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany, and more than six feet farther than his previous best — will be aiming for his seventh national discus title, his first since 1966.

"I have to stay stoked up for these competitions," said the massive Oerter, a remarkable physical specimen, "because I see no goal this year beyond the nationals and the Olympic Trials (beginning next week at Eugene, Ore.)."

"I think I am putting in as much energy as I can into these meets. But in all honesty, I would be putting in 20 or 30 percent more work if there was a chance of going to the Olympics," added the 1956, 1960, 1964 and 1968 Games' gold medalist, who plans to take a shot at making the U.S. team in 1984.

"I'm not just dogging it through, but I know I'm not giving my usual 110 percent effort. It's probably been true of everybody. The energy flow has just not been there in small competitions. I just hope I'm not withdrawing too much energy."

The national championships, however, are something special for Oerter. "They are always exciting, one of the better competitions I've ever been in, win, lose or draw," he said.

They also have been exciting for Wilkins, winner of the last five national discus titles and the American record holder at 232.6.

In addition to the strong discus field, there are several notable entries. Among them are shot putter Brian Oldfield; pole vaulters Mike Tully, Earl Bell and Dan Ripley; high jumpers Franklin Jacobs and Dwight Stones; long jumpers Larry Myricks, Carl Lewis and Larry Doubly and triple jumpers James Butts, Willie Banks and Ron Liviers.

Also, high hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah, sprinters James Sanford, Clancy Edwards, Stanley Floyd and Mike Robertson; middle distance runner Steve Scott, 5,000-meter runner Craig Virgin and women's middle distance runner Mary Decker.

Writers noticed Kiner

By the Associated Press

Home run slugger Ralph Kiner played in Pittsburgh, when the Pirates were the worst team in baseball and the national pastime wasn't on television. Without a lot of national attention, Kiner still became the top vote-getter for the National League's All-Star team in 1950.

How did he do it?

He had the stats, but he also had something more. Kiner had sex appeal.

Now a broadcaster for the New York Mets, Kiner was a man ahead of his times. Thirty years ago, he knew the value of national publicity.

"Getting the most votes came right after I took Elizabeth Taylor out," said Kiner, a powerful swinger on and off the field who once was married to tennis star Nancy Chafee. "Bing Crosby was one of the owners of the Pirates, and he fixed me up. She was living with her parents then, and we went to Grauman's Chinese Theater to see '12 O'Clock High.' We had a real good time."

After that, the couple went to an eatery popular with the show-biz set. Gossip columnist Luella Parsons came by to say hello to Taylor, who introduced Kiner as a player for Pittsburgh.

"Luella knew the Stealers were in town to play the Rams, so she said 'I hope your team wins tomorrow,'" Kiner recalled.

Even though Parsons wasn't up on her sports, she dropped Kiner's name into her syndicated column that type of exposure and the fact his name was high on the home run charts cemented his image with the fans, who selected the All-Star teams through a newspaper poll.

"Before TV came along we talked to everybody," said Kiner. "The only way to get known was to get into the newspapers, do commercials and play in the All-Star Game. And it was special coming to New York. That's where the big baseball writers were. New York was the only place where we could get national exposure."

That's not the case anymore. Rod Carew, playing for Minnesota in 1977 and '78, received the most All-Star votes both years, and he did it without dating a starlet. Thanks to national TV, everybody can watch baseball and decide for themselves who the best players are.

With Kiner's All-Star background and his media awareness, it's easy to understand why the Hall of Famer was made spokesman for this year's All-Star balloting, which annually is America's largest nonpolitical election.

Carol Wasserman new to Hawk Queen roster

Carol Wasserman, a 5'9" wing from Rogers, has signed a basketball letter of intent with the Howard College Hawk Queens in Big Spring, announced Don Stevens, head coach of the Hawk Queens.

Miss Wasserman played the wing and post positions for the Rogers High School Eaglettes under Harley Doggett, an astute and successful coach, whose 11-year record at Rogers includes 305 wins and only 62 defeats. His district record is 133 wins and 12 defeats.

During Carol's four-year high school career, Rogers never lost a district game, participating in 52 wins, no losses. Season-wise, they were 27-5, district champions; 35-4, district champions; 40-2, state semifinals; and 26-9, regional finalists.

As a sophomore, Carol scored 538 points and averaged 13.7 points per game, while averaging 17.3 in district play. In her junior year, she scored an even 500 points, averaging 11.9, while shooting 56.9 percent from the floor. In district play that year, she averaged 16 points per game and 60 percent from the floor. Her high game that year was 34 points.

As a senior, she scored 594 points, averaged 16.9 points per game, and hit 50 percent of her shots. Her high game that year was 32 points.

Miss Wasserman has been selected to play in the annual Texas High School North-South All-Star game in San Antonio in mid-July. She is the second Hawk Queen signee that will participate in the game, the other being Carrie Lee Lutrick of Abernathy.

"Needless to say, I am very pleased that Carol has chosen to further her basketball career at Howard College. She comes with good stats and from an excellent basketball program," said Stevens. "She will play the wing position for us and I like her aggressive style of play," concluded Stevens.

Carol is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Wasserman of Rogers.

Cleveland to be host

CLEVELAND (AP) — The city of Cleveland is patting itself on the back after winning its battle with the National Basketball Association to keep the 1981 NBA all-star game at the Coliseum in suburban Richfield.

"It was a community effort, and the community won," the Cleveland Plain Dealer editorialized in today's editions. "Take a bow."

The NBA board of governors had voted June 3 to move the 1981 event to Los Angeles as part of a plan to hold the annual game in a major media center such as Los Angeles or New York.

But Cleveland-area officials, including Mayor George V. Voinovich and U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, and Cleveland daily newspapers and hundreds of fans quickly made their displeasure known through letters and telegrams to NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien.

"I never know how I'm playing these days," he said. "I think I'm playing very well but we have to see."

Watson said he believes the course is ideal for Nicklaus, Ballesteros, Hawaiian Open winner Andy Bean, last week's Atlanta champion Larry Nelson, Kemper Open winner John Mahaffey and Dan Bahls, a four-year pro whose best finish was a second in this year's Crosby.

Nicklaus declined to handicap the players. "I don't like to talk about somebody else's game because I don't have any control over it," he said. "If I don't play well, I don't care who is playing well."

The tournament will be televised by ABC, with highlights tonight and Friday beginning at 11:30 p.m. EDT and live action from 2:30 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Americans win in first round

LONDON (AP) — Americans John McEnroe and Vitas Gerulaitis scored first-round victories in the $125,000 Queen's Club Tennis tournament.

McEnroe completed a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Tom Leonard in a match started the previous day and interrupted by rain, and Gerulaitis whipped Byron Bertram of South Africa, 6-3, 7-6.

In other matches, Tom Gullikson downed Pat Dupre 4-6, 6-4, 7-6; Vic Amaya defeated Bruce Manson 6-7, 7-4, 6-3; Brian Gottfried beat Australia's John James 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, and Chris Johnstone of Australia upset Tom German 6-4, 7-6.

Webster case is returned

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit sent the Marvin Webster compensation case back to Special Master Telford Taylor for a new determination as to whether the award made by National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien was "significantly excessive."

If Taylor so finds, then the award will be overturned and O'Brien would have to make a new determination as to what compensation the New York Knicks must pay the Seattle SuperSonics for signing Marvin Webster as a veteran free agent nearly two years ago.

The original award was forward Lonnie Shelton, a first-round draft choice and $450,000.

GIMME FIVE, BJORN—The San Diego Chicken put in an appearance at the Minnesota Kicks-Seattle Sounders soccer game Wednesday night in Bloomington, Minn. To the delight of the fans and players. Here the chicken, played by Ted Giannoulas, slaps hands with Kicks defenseman Bjorn Nordqvist as Steve Litt, right, watches during the player introductions before the game. His presence didn't hurt the Kicks as they managed a 3-2 win.

Richards intimidating Nothing but big zeroes

J.R. Richards, the flame-throwing Houston right-hander, has been one great, big zero for the Astros lately. Richards, 8-3, fired his third consecutive shutout and stretched his scoreless inning string to a club-record 31 Wednesday night, hurling the Astros to a 3-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

It was the eighth straight victory for the Astros, leaders in the National League's West Division, and the fourth in a row for Richards. The next run he gives up will be the first one he gives up in the month of June.

Actually, his shutout string reaches back to May 26 when he blanked San Diego in the final four innings of a 4-1 victory. Since then, he's shut out San Francisco twice and the Cubs Wednesday night. Early in the season, he also blanked Los Angeles.

It's a nice feeling for Houston to know that Dallas isn't the only Texas town with a J.R. making news.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday night, Montreal also stretched its winning streak to eight games, edging San Diego 7-6, the New York Mets surprised Los Angeles 6-2, Cincinnati edged Pittsburgh 3-2, San Francisco downed Philadelphia 7-4, and St. Louis shaded Atlanta 4-3 in 10 innings.

Expos 7, Padres 6
Ron LeFlore drove in his third run of the game with a two-out, ninth-inning single that delivered Chris Speier as Montreal beat San Diego. Speier started the winning rally with a two-out walk and moved up when reliever Elias Sosa stroked a single, setting the stage for LeFlore.

HOUSTON'S SHUT OUT PITCHER

Mets 6, Dodgers 2
Mike Jorgensen, a defensive replacement an inning earlier, ripped a grand slam home run in the bottom of the 10th to lift streaking New York over Los Angeles. It was the Mets first grand slam since Lee Mazzilli hit one July 4, 1978, almost two years ago.

The victory was the sixth in the last seven games for the Mets.

Reds 3, Pirates 2
Frank Pastore limited Pittsburgh to seven hits and struck out 10 for his fourth straight victory as Cincinnati edged the Pirates.

"He threw in the ninth inning like he did in the first," said an admiring Chuck Tanner, manager of the Pirates.

In that ninth, Pastore, 8-2, permitted a leadoff single to Dave Parker but retired Willie Stargell, Mike Easler and Phil Garner to nail down the victory.

"I knew every pitch had to have 100 percent on it and perfect location," he said. "They did."

Giants 7, Phillies 4
Rookie Rich Murray, 22-year-old brother of Baltimore's Eddie Murray, hit his first major league home run and drove in four runs, leading San Francisco past Philadelphia.

Ed Whitson, 3-7, victim of an invisible offense until now, got the win.

"It's my time to be excited for once," said Whitson, who has seen the Giants average 0.83 runs in his last 12 appearances. "They've had no luck scoring for me. I thought I was in heaven with those seven runs."

Cavaliers cry 'foul' in signing

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—The new president of the Cleveland Cavaliers is crying foul, but Stan Albeck insists he is the new head coach of the San Antonio Spurs.

"The situation in Cleveland has been worked out," said Albeck, who previously had signed a three-year contract to continue as coach of the Cavaliers.

"As far as I am concerned, I am the coach of the San Antonio Spurs, Albeck said Wednesday.

But Ted Stepien, who took over as president of the Cavaliers about a week ago, said he believes Albeck made a deal with the Spurs weeks ago, and that some form of tampering may be involved.

"If he thinks he's going to get out of it (his contract) as simple as that, he's nuts," said Stepien.

Spurs officials said at a news conference here Wednesday that Albeck has reached, but not yet signed, a multi-year agreement with the National Basketball Association team. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

Armond Arnsen, Albeck's attorney, said that before Nick Mileti stepped down as president of the Cavaliers he released Albeck from his contract.

Spurs President Angelo Drossos said Mileti gave Albeck permission to talk with the Spurs and that Stepien has no authority to object to the deal.

"If Ted had a say, Stan wouldn't be here now," Drossos said.

Steapien, however, disagreed.

"We won't release Albeck from his contract unless we are compensated by the other team," said Stepien.

"No employee leaves a company without another job... It's ridiculous for him to sit there and tell me he wants out of a contract and he wants to go shopping. He must take me for an imbecile," said Stepien.

Earlier Wednesday in Cleveland, Albeck broke off talks with Stepien aimed at smoothing over their differences. Stepien had ruffled Albeck's feathers by saying he would have preferred to sign Albeck to a one-year contract.

Arnsen said the 48-year-old coach said he would not return as long as Stepien controls Cleveland's National Basketball Association franchise.

Albeck will become the fourth head coach of the Spurs in the last seven years. He succeeds Doug Moe, who was fired last March. Spur General Manager Bob Bass served as interim coach for the remainder of last season.

"I've always had a special affection from the ABA (American Basketball Association) days here," said Albeck. "I am very positive and enthusiastic. I feel an emotional guy and I feel my strongest point is consistency with the players. The players are told their role and are expected to carry it out."

Oakland expects 100,000 for its series with NY

OAKLAND (AP)—The Yankees are coming, and Billy Martin insists he'll be treating them as just another team.

"I'm not concerned about the Yankees. I'm not wearing pinstripes now. The only team I'm concerned about is the Oakland A's," says Martin, who wore the New York team's uniform as a player and later manager.

He was fired, for the second time, by Yankees Owner George Steinbrenner in November.

This weekend, starting with a twinned doubleheader Friday, Martin will be thinking about how to beat the Yankees.

More than 100,000 are expected to be at Oakland Coliseum during the three days and Saturday's game will be a national television offering. The following weekend, the A's will visit Yankee Stadium and the crowds will be even bigger.

Martin said last week he didn't expect to participate in the Yankees' annual Old Timers game June 21, explaining: "I guess I feel the way I do because of the way I was fired and everything."

But he said early this week, when asked if he'd put on his old Yankee uniform No. 1. "I haven't decided yet."

Martin added: "I don't have any hate in me. Besides, George set me up pretty good with money before I left."

The A's, last in the AL West with a 54-108 record in 1979, jumped off to a great start this year under Martin and led the division until mid-May.

The team has slumped to under .500 lately, but Martin says, "They're young players and they're molding themselves into one hell of a ballclub."

The fans have found the team entertaining, and Martin himself obviously has a lot to do with the dramatic increase in A's attendance. He receives ovations almost every time he leaves the dugout.

Friday night's crowd, expected to be over 40,000, will push the A's attendance for 31 dates—less than half the season—to about 325,000. The team drew 306,000 all of last season.

Martin, who grew up in nearby Berkeley, says the thing he wanted most when he took the A's job "was to see the fans come out, because I want to see baseball stay in the Bay Area."

Two books about Martin have been published recently and both concentrate on his New York years, as a player in the 1950s and as manager in the 70s.

Another book, an authorized biography, is coming out soon and Martin says: "It reveals everything the first two books just talk about."

He was upset that one of the books out now alleges he took pep pills as a player.

"I never took a pill in my life," Martin said, "and if I'd needed any kind of pill when I was playing it would have been one to calm me down."

Rugged A's fight back to topple Baltimore

Y'win some, y'lose some. In the bottom of the 12th inning Wednesday, Baltimore's Ken Singleton literally climbed the right field wall in Oakland and, with a magnificent catch, turned Dave Revering's "sure" home run into just another out.

But in the 14th inning, he barely missed a second spectacular catch and Revering's leadoff drive to right-center field skipped off his glove for a triple.

"Both of them were in the sun and were difficult to catch, and I came up with 50 percent," Singleton shrugged.

Two intentional walks later, Tony Armas, hitless in his six previous at bats, strode to the plate for the seventh time in the game. On the first pitch to him from Sammy Stewart, Armas put the ball over the left field fence for a grand-slam homer that beat the Orioles 6-2.

Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee pounded Texas 7-1, Chicago defeated Toronto 7-4, Minnesota beat Detroit 9-5, Boston downed Seattle 7-5, New York topped California 9-7 in 11 innings and, in a twilight doubleheader, Kansas City split with Cleveland, winning 5-0 and losing 8-5.

Brewers 7, Rangers 1
Sixto Lezcano, in a moderate slump since his six RBI-game on opening day, drove in three runs with a pair of homers for Milwaukee, and Ben Oglivie added a three-run homer to support Lary Sorensen's five-hitter against the Rangers.

White Sox 7, Blue Jays 4
Chicago's Lamar Johnson cleared the bases with a triple in a four-run fifth inning that beat the Blue Jays.

"It was breaking ball up," Johnson said of the drive that skipped past diving left fielder Bob Bailor. "When I rounded second and saw he was just picking it up, I said to myself, 'Why not?' and kept going. That's the way I get my triples—when everybody falls down."

Twins 9, Tigers 5
Mike Cabbage's two-run homer and Rob Wilfong's two-run single in a six-run fifth inning helped the Twins beat Detroit. Rick Sotfield's suicide squeeze bunt and Butch Wynegar's single accounted for the other runs in the inning.

John Castino had a homer for Minnesota while Lance Parrish had a homer and an RBI single for the Tigers.

Council stresses need to exploit nuclear energy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An energy advisory council touted nuclear energy and suggested a way it said the federal government could save electric customers in the Southwest $29 billion over the next decade.

The Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council adopted a committee resolution Wednesday emphasizing "the need to fully exploit" nuclear energy — a "proven domestic energy resource."

Another committee recommended re-examining national policy to determine if licensing and constructing nuclear power plants could be speeded up. It said a House proposal prohibiting funds for nuclear projects should be removed.

The second committee's recommendation, which also was adopted by the council, stated:

"Any project that has the effect of decreasing the dependence on foreign oil should be considered as being desirable from a public policy perspective because of the national security problems of higher oil imports."

The electric utility resolution was directed at the 1978 federal Powerplant and Industrial Fuel Use Act, which prohibits the use of natural gas as the fuel for electric power plants after 1989.

R.H. "Dick" Cory, a member of the council's Advisory Committee on Industrial and Electric Utility Fuel Use, told the council natural gas accounts for 75 percent of electric generation in Texas.

He said Texas' electric utilities are voluntarily converting from gas to coal-fired boilers, but to comply with the federal law would cost the Southwest $29 billion — including $17 billion in Texas — by the year 2000.

The Northeast and western regions would only have to spend $6 billion to $9 billion to convert to coal, Cory said, and federal funds would pay about one-half the cost.

He said the average cost of electric utility service would increase by 10 percent in Texas by 1985 but would decrease by 5 percent in the Mid-Atlantic region and by 15 percent in the Northeast.

Also, Cory said, the federal law could result in the use of an additional 300,000 barrels of oil a day in the Southwest, rather than less oil as was the intent of the law.

The council's resolution says the Fuel Use Act should be amended so that "utility boilers that are not coal-capable without modification be allowed to burn natural gas or oil for the remainder of their useful lives or until a scarcity of natural gas can be demonstrated."

Council member Michel Halbouty of Houston, an independent oilman, said, "Washington doesn't know what in the hell it's doing" on energy, and Speaker Bill Clayton, another council member, added, "Can I second that?"

Halbouty said the Department of Energy proposes the conversion to coal, yet regulations of the Environmental Protection Agency prevent that conversion.

"The only way to convert to coal is to clean up the Clean Air Act," said Halbouty.

General Counsel Lynn Coleman of the DOE predicted the next Congress would review the act.

"Our room to wiggle has just about run out," said Chairman John Blair of the Texas Air Control Board, also a council member. "In some places it is impossible to live with the act."

Council member Ed Vetter, energy adviser to Gov. Bill Clements, said predictions that solar energy will provide 25 percent of the nation's energy needs by 2000 are "highly unrealistic."

Such forecasts, Vetter added, "give American people the luxury of sitting back and saying, 'I don't have to do anything about the Clean Air Act.'"

Clements told Coleman he would like to hear more "strong statements" from DOE that the American people cannot count on solar energy as an important energy source any time soon.

"Our perception is we say it almost every day," said Coleman.

"If you're saying it, you're whispering it," replied

Clements. "They (American people) are hearing what they want to hear and think as opposed to putting their nose to the grindstone."

Other recommendations of the Cory committee, which the council adopted, included the "timely" development of synthetic fuels and federal reimbursement for plant conversions or shut-downs that occur as a result of federal mandates.

The council also adopted the committee's recommendation to permit automatic fuel adjustments after 1985.

"DON'T SAY TOMBOY, SAY TOM-GIRL... UNLESS YOU WANTA GET CLOBBERED."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An excellent day to observe the progress you have made, and to make plans to have greater progress in the days ahead. You have a good chance to express your talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your position with friends and strive to improve the relationships. Show that you have poise. Be wary of outsiders.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Conditions in the business world may appear strange now, but later on turn to your benefit. Be more self-assured.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't rush into a new interest before making a careful study. Take no risks with your reputation at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take steps to improve the relationship with loved one. A new contact can bring many benefits your way.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Resolve a problem you have with an associate and cement better relations with this person. Be wary of newcomers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure to finish regular routines before engaging in amusements. An argument with a friend is not serious, so forget it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't try to be forceful with others, or you could regret it later. Don't neglect a worthy friend of long standing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure to keep promises made to family members. A new project needs more study before going ahead with it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be more objective in dealing with others and get better results. Use extreme caution in motion and avoid possible accident.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to save more money instead of spending more than you can afford. Show others you have wisdom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A time to be calm and serene while going after a personal aim. Be sure to use your money wisely at all times today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) New interests are good for you now, so delve into them without delay. Quietly get things done in a sure and positive manner.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who has much ability in scientific matters, so send to right schools where your progeny can learn modern methods and gain good background for life's work. A most unusual profession could emerge here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

BSHS Student Council sponsoring film Friday

Big Spring High School Student Council will kick off its summer activities by sponsoring a Midnight Movie Friday night at Ritz Theatre.

The feature is "Burnt Offerings," a light horror movie that lasts about an hour. Tickets may be purchased from any student council member or at the main office at the high school. Advanced tickets are $2 or $3 at the door.

The movie will be supervised by the student council sponsors. Proceeds from the movie will go to benefit upcoming projects of the council.

The council will also be helping with the Community Day Blood Drive Saturday at Highland Mall.

Other activities during the summer include a float in the rodeo parade and attending a summer workshop at Angelo State University in July.

Abilene firm reports theft of elevator east of Coahoma

Galloway Well Service, Abilene, reported theft of an elevator last weekend from a site one and a half miles east of Coahoma.

Elevators are the devices used in oil drilling to raise pipes from the ground. The theft is the second reported in the area in the last two days.

Benefit show Delaney specializes in oil industry art

Franklin D. Ward, Jr., a native of Midland, who paints under the name of F. Delaney, will be adding his well-received paintings of the oil industry to the benefit art show at Citizens Federal Credit Union.

Proceeds from the show will benefit the West Side Community Center and is open to the general public free of charge.

Having been raised in the "heart of the oil industry" and an employee of a major oil company for over 30 years, it is no surprise that Delaney has specialized in painting the oil industry.

His photo-realistic water color paintings help preserve the history of the oil industry, much as Russell and Remington helped preserve the history of the West.

In addition to painting subjects directly related to the area's oil industry, Delaney also paints pictures of old houses, windmills, wild life, and the countryside he sees on his way to the "oil patch."

Delaney has been very busy and has participated in many one-man shows this year, including one in Carlsbad, N.M., and the highly selective Midland Woman's Club in Midland. In 1979, Delaney saw much of his work travel to such far-flung places as Fairbanks, Alaska, and New York City.

Most of the work to be displayed by Delaney at the benefit show will be new work that has not been seen by the general public. For those wishing to view his work as well as that of other top artists, the benefit show is open Saturday, June 14, from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.; Sunday, June 15, from 1:00 to 6:00 p.m., and Monday thru Friday from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. The show will end on Friday, June 20, at 4:00 p.m.

Former United employees to be questioned in bombing

CHICAGO (AP) - Authorities are preparing a list of former United Airlines employees who are to be questioned in an attempt to pinpoint the origin of a package bomb that injured United President Percy A. Wood.

Wood, meanwhile, remained hospitalized in good condition and postal authorities said the investigation is not necessarily focusing only on the airline or its employees.

"There is no reason to focus on a United Airlines employee - or anyone else at this time - until we come up with a motive," Raymond L. Oldham, postal inspector in charge, said Wednesday.

Oldham said one former United Airlines employee was questioned but was not considered a suspect.

Lake Forest Police Chief Bernard Prais said a bogus name and address that appeared on the package bomb also appeared on a letter mailed to Wood's suburban home several days earlier.

Wood received a letter "two or three days ago" from an "Enoch Fisher," with a return address that turned out to be an empty lot in Chicago. Prais said the letter informed Wood he would receive a book that would be of interest to him.

The package that exploded when Wood attempted to open it Tuesday contained a pipe bomb inside a hollowed-out book, Prais said. Federal demolition experts said they believe the bomb contained enough explosives to kill a man, but that "faulty craftsmanship" reduced its explosive force.

National finals

HC Men's Rodeo Team to compete in Montana

The Howard College Men's Rodeo Team will soon be departing on a trip to the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association's Finals, which are being held in Bozeman, Mont., June 16-21, according to Skipper Driver, coach of the HC teams.

The regional standings were announced following the final rodeo of the year, held at Tarleton State University in Stephenville. The HC Men's Team finished second in the region.

There are 10 regions of the NIRA in the nation. The first and second place teams and first and second place individuals in each event from each region are eligible for the finals.

Helping lead the way for the HC Men's Team were Cody Lambert and James Garlick, both of whom placed high in the regional standings in individual events.

Lambert, a freshman from El Paso, placed first for the year in saddle bronc riding, and won All-Around Cowboy for the region.

Garlick, a freshman from

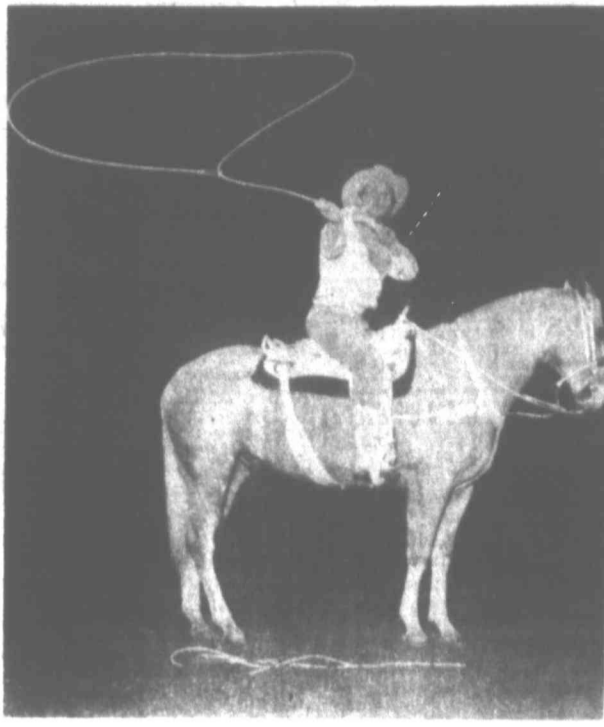

Van Horn, finished third in regional standings in bareback riding, and second in the all-around cowboy competition.

The HC Women's Team finished third in the region, and will not be eligible for the finals as a team, but Pam Mitchell and Sherry Altizer will be eligible for the finals in individual events.

Mitchell, a sophomore from Alamogordo, N.M., qualified for the finals in the goat tying competition with a first place finish.

Altizer, a sophomore from Del Rio, placed third in the region in the barrel race competition, but is now eligible for the finals after the second place winner dropped out of the competition.

Driver said HC has a chance of winning the national finals, if the men have a good rodeo. "Everyone starts with zero points, so we have a chance to win the championship up there," said Driver.

IN SPECIALTY ACT HERE—J.W. Stoker, originator of trick roping with the strobe or black light, shows the art of trick and fancy rope spinning that he will perform each night of the 47th annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo scheduled June 25-29. Stocker has appeared at every major rodeo in the U.S. and has made trips to several foreign countries. The action takes place starting at 8 o'clock nightly in the Rodeo Bowl here.

Local rodeo entries must be in Tuesday

Local contestants may enter this year's Big Spring Rodeo by signing at Driver's Insurance Agency at 215 Runnels Street no later than 5 p.m. Monday and Tuesday through June 23.

Adult tickets for each performance sell for $4 each and can be purchased in advance at the First National Bank, Chamber of Commerce office, Driver Insurance Agency and Ward's Foot and Saddle Shop.

Rodeo action will begin the night of June 25 and continue through June 29.

Vincent field well has been finalized

A well in the Vincent field has been finalized at a depth of 4,359.416 feet, which had been acedized with 300 gallons.

Murphy H. Baxter, Midland, No. 1, Bobby Cathey, 1 1/2 miles southeast of a 2 1/2 mile southwest extension to lower Clearfork production of Howard County, four miles south of Vincent, was finalized to pump 41 barrels of 26.5 gravity oil plus 121 barrels of water with gas solution of 75.1.

Production was through the field also has one upper Chisum well, which shows not to be producing at this time.

Majority of Texans vote to override Carter's veto

WASHINGTON — The votes of the Texas delegation in Congress for the week ending June 5:

HOUSE

OVERRIDE OF PRESIDENTIAL VETO: By a vote of 335 to 34, the House Thursday night voted to override President Carter's veto of a bill rejecting his proposed oil-import fee. The action came after the House Wednesday, in an overwhelming vote, refused Carter his 10-cent-per-gallon increase. The vote marked the first time since 1962 that a democratic Congress turned back a president of its own party.

Carter proposed the import fee in March to encourage energy conservation and to provide $10 billion in extra revenues, a move he hoped would aid in balancing the budget.

FOR: Reps. Hall, Gramm, Pickle, Leath, Hightower, Wyatt, de la Garza, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Kazen.

NOT VOTING: Wilson, Roberts.

FTC APPROPRIATION: The House voted last Friday to extend the Federal Trade Commission's appropriation, funding FTC operations until the end of the fiscal year in September. By a vote of 241 to 109, the House granted the commission the $49.7 million it needed.

FOR: Hall, Wilson, Roberts, Gramm, Leath, Hightower, Wyatt, de la Garza, Stenholm.

AGAINST: Loeffler.

NOT VOTING: Pickle, White, Hance, Kazen.

FOREIGN AID BILL: The House Thursday night gave final passage to a $5.2 billion foreign aid appropriations bill for fiscal 1981. The vote was 221 to 147.

The bill includes $53 million in economic aid to Nicaragua. Last week, the House voted to cut $5.5 million in military aid to the Latin American country. Opponents of the aid contended last week that the country was coming under communist domination.

The largest portion of economic and military funds will go to Middle East countries including $1.47 billion for Israel and $560 million for Egypt.

FOR: Wyatt.

AGAINST: Hall, Gramm, Pickle, Leath, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Kazen.

NOT VOTING: Wilson, Roberts.

OIL IMPORT FEE: The Senate Wednesday, after similar action by the House, voted to disapprove President Carter's proposed oil import fee 73 to 16.

Thursday afternoon the President vetoed the measure. A vote to override the veto was expected in the Senate Friday.

Senator Tower voted to disapprove Carter's proposal and Sen. Bentsen did not.

When it comes to industry, don't count out dairy farming

AUSTIN — In a state where beef cattle is king, dairy farming has often been overlooked. But the Texas dairy industry ranks ninth in milk production nationwide and is third statewide in cash receipts, just behind cattle and cotton.

In 1979 Texas dairy cattle produced 3.44 billion gallons of milk. Out of this came more than 35 million gallons of ice cream, 15 million pounds of cottage cheese and around 2 million pounds of butter — not to mention all the gallons of whole milk sold in retail outlets around the state.

MONDAY-SATURDAY

"That is reason enough to salute the Texas dairy industry during June, National Dairy Month," said Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

"No other livestock enterprise can boast such rapid strides in increasing production with fewer animals than can the dairy industry," Brown continued. "Thanks to improved methods of production and industrial ingenuity over the decade, dairymen have been able to maintain production levels despite a 30 percent reduction in herds and 60 percent less manual labor."

Dairymen received $440 million in cash receipts for the 1979 milk production. This figure represented a $12 million increase over the previous year. Brown said cash receipts and the price paid for milk per hundred pounds were at a record high in 1979.

In April milk production per cow average 1,000 pounds, a record for the state. Production was up 25 pounds per animal over last year.

Northeast Texas was the state's biggest dairy area with $120 million in milk sales in 1979.

Howard County 4-H members will get thrill

Howard County 4-H members will get the thrill of their young lives this week when they attend and take part in the 4-H NRA Junior Olympic Shooting Sports Training Camp at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The 4-Hers have been selected in statewide competition to participate in the National Rifle Association's Junior Olympic Shooting Program June 15-21, according to Andy Vestal, county extension agent.

Those attending are Kelly Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.G. Rogers and John Guitar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Repps. Guitar, Repps is attending as a trap shooting trainer.

According to H.T. Davison, 4-H and Youth Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Coordinator for the 4-H Shooting Sports program, the NRA Junior Olympic Shooting Program has been developed in cooperation with the National Rifle Association and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service as a continued effort to develop the shooting sports project in 4-H throughout the nation.

The purpose of the program is to encourage shooting as a project and a sport for 4-H youth and to give good shooters a chance to improve their shooting skills by training under renowned coaches.

The camp has also been established to encourage good shooters to consider Olympic competition.

These 4-Hers are a part of 35 Texas 4-H members and six volunteer coaches who will attend the camp. The training program will include phases: 22 rifle marksmanship, ISU automatic trap, international skeet, running game, and pistol marksmanship.
