Khomeini orders cultural revolution

Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has announced a cultural revolution "to finish the enemies of Islam," wipe out remnants of Iranian society as it was under the deposed shah and place Moslem clergy in charge of education, state radio reported Tuesday.

European newspapers were first to carry the report, which was confirmed later in the day by Western reporters in Tehran.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Potebzadeh, meanwhile, reiterated his confidence the U.S. hostage crisis would be solved in a peaceful manner.

Speaking with reporters in Stockholm, Sweden, where he attended a meeting of the Socialist International, Ghotbzadeh said he was "convinced that the American hostage problem will be solved as soon as possible in a peaceful and honorable way. But the crisis between Iran and the United States must (first) be viewed in full and solved in full," he said, repeating a remark made earlier at the conference. Saturday was the 24th day in captivity for the 53 Americans held by Islamic militants in Iran.

Reports of Khomeini's newly announced "cultural revolution" were carried by French and West German newspapers. They said Khomeini announced the revolution in a declaration Friday that was carried on state radio.

The leftist French daily Liberation and the West German newspaper, Cologne Stadt-Anzeiger, said Khomeini ordered that a committee of seven persons, presumably clergymen, be set up to oversee education on the basis of Islamic culture.

"All schools and universities established under the reign of the shah must be placed under a direct control in order to protect their students from the danger of contamination of ideas contrary to the values of Islam," Liberation quoted Khomeini as saying.

According to other French reports, Khomeini said the cultural revolution was aimed at fears that "our culture will remain the same as during the domination of the corrupt regime" of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now living in Egypt.

The West German daily quoted the ayatollah as calling for a "cultural and educational revolution."

Meanwhile, the French socialist-oriented daily Le Matin reported that Thursday's rioting in Tehran between Moslem fundamentalists and leftists indicated a tightening of the "dictatorship of the mullahs," the Islamic clergymen who are the backbone of Khomeini's Islamic revolution and dominate Parliament. Khomeini has ordered Parliament to decide the fate of the hostages.

The clashes between the Moslem fundamentalists and supporters of Iranian Mujahedeen, or leftists, which began in a stadium near the embassy and then moved closer to the diplomatic compound, left at least five dead and 300 injured in some of the worst fighting since the February 1979 revolution. The leftists have their centers of power in Iranian universities, which may have been a reason Khomeini ordered that clergymen take control of education.

No suspects, no motives

Wylie woman hacked to death

WYLIE, Texas (AP) — A killer swinging a three-foot ax "damn near remembered" a 30-year-old housewife and left her mutilated body in the blood-spattered laundry room of her fashionable home, police said Tuesday.

The body of Betty Gore was found by three neighbors sent into her home Friday night by her husband, Allen Gore, who was in Minnesota on business.

The Gores' 1-year-old daughter Bethany was found crying in her crib, but was not harmed. The Gores' other daughter, 5-year-old Alisa, was spending the day with friends at the time of the killing.

It was found, and no valuables were taken from the $75,000 brick home in this small town 25 miles northeast of Dallas, he said.

The investigation is being conducted by the Wylie police and Collin County Sheriff's office. However, Dallas homicide detectives said they have been in contact with Wylie police and will assist in the investigation.

Abbott said there was no sign of forced entry. He said Mrs. Gore's husband, who is in the electronics business, had left Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport on a 12:30 p.m. CDT flight to St. Paul, Minn.

The police chief said it was believed Mrs. Gore was last seen alive about 9:30 a.m. Friday. He said the death probably occurred during the daylight hours, because officers can "reasonably assume" people had been trying to reach her for several hours and got no answer.

Accidental shooting claims life of girl

A 12-year-old girl was accidentally shot and killed early Saturday morning.

According to reports, Christine Gores, 1504 A Sycamore was watching television at approximately 2 m. Saturday.

When she was ready to go to bed, her movements awoke her mother, Helen Jones. Thinking it was a burglar, Jones shot her daughter once in the head, near one eye. It is not known what kind of gun was used.

The girl was pronounced dead at 4:47 a.m. by Judge Lewis Martin.

The shooting was ruled accidental. Charges will be filed against Mrs. Gores.

Justice of the Peace John "Buddy" Newton said evidence indicated Mrs. Gore, a fifth grade schoolteacher, lived long enough to put up a struggle.

"There was blood all over the place," he said. "She was damned near dismembered ... axed between the eyes. It was horrible."

Newton said an autopsy performed by Dallas County medical examiners indicated the cause of death was blows to the head.

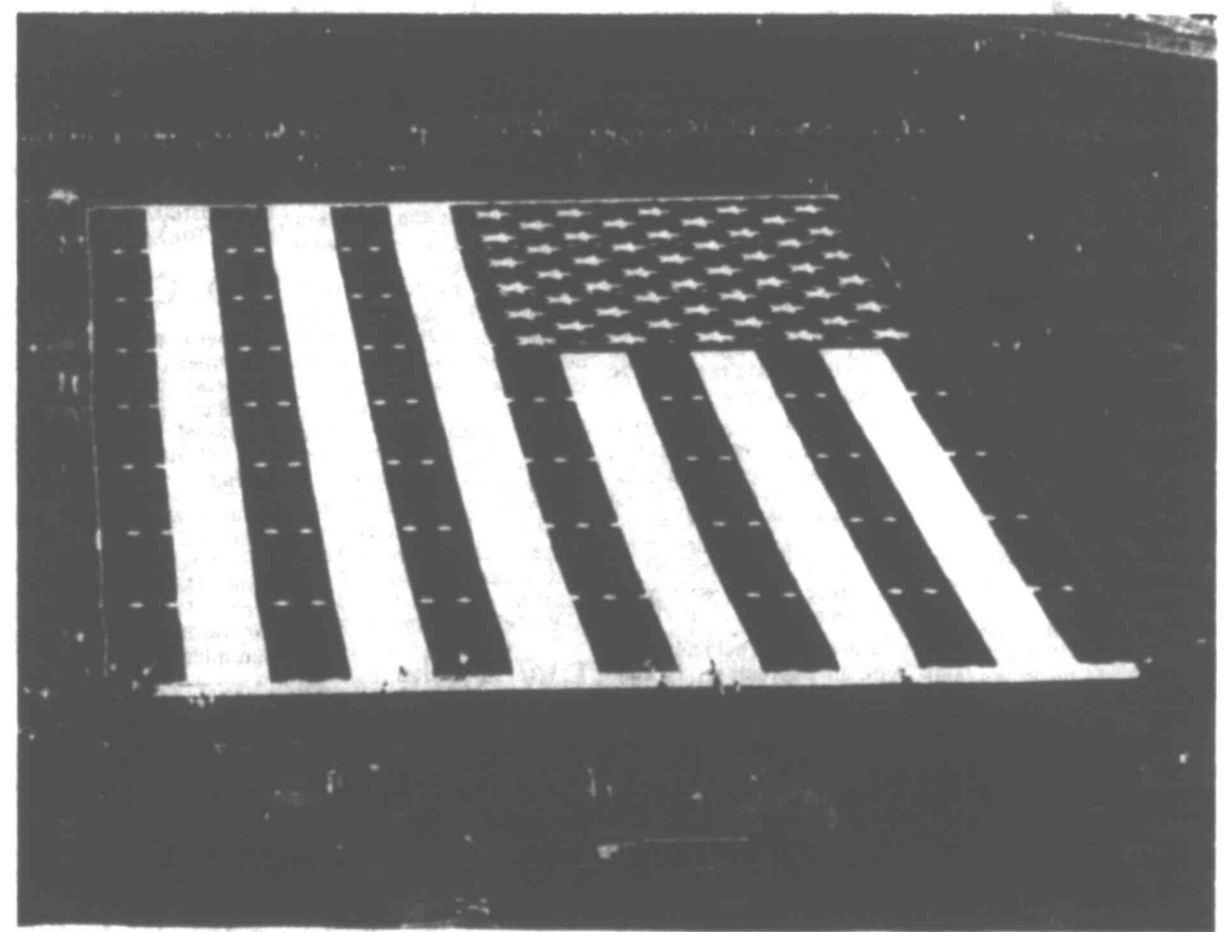

"She had defensive wounds from her efforts to fight off the attacker," said Newton.

Mrs. Gore formerly taught the fifth grade in the town now stunned by her brutal slaying.

"We were just shocked. I couldn't believe it. She was a very quiet woman, an attractive person, very sweet and very nice," said Nancy Conkle, whose daughter Cynthia was Mrs. Gore's student last year.

MOURNING THE DEAD — Family and friends are looking on the grave of Mostafa Eakeri, 15, a member of Mujahedeen Khalgh Party, killed Thursday during an attack of Islamic right wing members. This clash, during a meeting of the Mujahedeen Party in a stadium of Tehran, ended with one killed and hundreds injured.

Joe Swinney named mayor of Coahoma

COAHOMA — The Coahoma city council voted unanimously in a special meeting Friday night to name Joe Swinney mayor. Swinney, who was present when the invitation was extended, agreed to serve until the elections next April.

He did not rule out the possibility that he would offer for the office again in 1981.

JOE SWINNEY

Swinney comes not without experience in city administration. He first was elected mayor in 1967, at which time he served a two-year term. He ran again in 1975 and once more was elevated to the position.

Joe succeeds E.O. Richters, who resigned recently after announcing he planned a move away from the Coahoma community go into business with one of his sons.

Dean Swinney, married and a resident of Odessa, John Swinney, an eighth grader in the Coahoma school system, and Mrs. Brian (Marlene) Jensen of Coahoma.

Joe's son-in-law, Brian Jensen, is a Coahoma councilman.

Other members of the Coahoma council are Junior Dorn, Ronnie Dodson, Jack Martin and Gary Hanson.

Under Coahoma's form of government, the mayor does not vote on issues brought before the council unless that vote is needed to break a tie.

The council meets the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

Mr. and Mrs. Swinney are the parents of three children. They are

Aesthetic value of water colored in city Saturday

Don't worry if your water turned a little red over the weekend, said Bill Brown, assistant city manager.

"We had a little difficulty with a filter failure over at the plant, but it has been corrected," said Brown, Saturday morning.

Then why was the water still red?

"Even after we got the problem solved, there was still some of the water in the system. The faster people use it, the faster it will go away," said Brown.

Actually, he added, the water was bacteriologically safe. It's just that its "aesthetic value" left something to be desired.

"I also want to say that I appreciate the attitude of the people who called us about this. They were very patient and understanding," said Brown.

Carter to try to get Hussein to join in Mideast negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will try to convince King Hussein of Jordan to join a renewed effort to decide the political future of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territories, the president said in remarks made public Saturday.

Carter also repeatedly misquoted a key point in the 1978 Camp David accords dealing with Israel's right to maintain military outposts in the West Bank and Gaza after withdrawing its occupying forces.

Hussein is to arrive in Washington Monday. He will meet with administration officials Tuesday and Wednesday in a state visit that U.S. officials hope will lead to improved relations with the Jordanian leader who was once America's closest friend in the Arab world.

The president's remarks came in a question-and-answer session with representatives of American Jewish publications on Friday. A transcript of the meeting was made public by the White House on Saturday.

Asked if Hussein is ready to take an active part in Middle East peace talks, Carter said he plans to use his first meeting with the Jordanian monarch since the signing of the Camp David accords to "use all the persuasive power that I have" to convince him to join the negotiating process set up by the accords.

Hussein was furious because he wasn't consulted before Carter summoned Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to the Maryland presidential retreat for intensive negotiations that led to the historic separate peace between the two nations.

Although the West Bank of the Jordan River belonged to Jordan before the 1967 Six-day War, and although the accords contemplate Jordan's participation in determining its future, Hussein has refused to have anything to do with the autonomy talks between Egypt and Israel.

A tale of politics and $8 million in loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government could lose up to $8 million on loan guarantees to an Alabama contracting firm that apparently benefited from the intervention of two U.S. senators, a congressman and the Carter White House.

The loan guarantees were issued under a 7-year-old Agriculture Department program designed to create jobs in rural America but which is coming under increasing scrutiny as possibly a new source of political favoritism.

Some Agriculture department officials point to the case of Ball-Co Contractors Inc. of Bay Minette, Ala., as an example of some of the problems facing their business and industrial loan program.

Over the past three years, Ball-Co has received $9.3 million in loans guaranteed from 80 percent to 90 percent by the federal government. That means that if Ball-Co goes out of business, the taxpayers will be stuck with an $8 million bill.

The loan guarantees were made despite the strong objections of the federal loan officer assigned to the case, who repeatedly warned his superiors that the company was in poor financial shape and a bad credit risk.

The president of Ball-Co, Lowell Harrelson, however, was supported in his loan applications by the late Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., Allen's widow, Maryon, who was appointed to his seat after he died in June 1978, and Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala.

The last of the three loan guarantees was issued in August 1978 after an inquiry from President Carter's chief of congressional liaison, Frank Moore, who had received a strongly worded demand for action on the guarantee from Mrs. Allen.

Despite the government's help, Ball-Co's financial condition continued to worsen and the firm began selling off its equipment early in 1979. It currently continues a scaled-down operation and is seeking restructuring of its loans.

Agriculture Department officials, however, believe the government will eventually be forced to accept a loss of at least $4.5 million and some privately say the loss could be much greater.

The concern about such potential losses on high-risk loans has led Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to begin tightening lending procedures. The program has so far written off $30 million of its $3.9 billion in guaranteed loans.

Last month, the department issued new guidelines intended to increase review of loan applicants and to reduce — or at least pinpoint — one of the program's apparent problems, the use of political influence.

Since its creation in 1974, the program has assisted hundreds of enterprises to get started or keep going in rural communities. Those businesses have ranged from a steel mill in West Virginia to a racket ball court in Ohio.

Harrelson sought loan guarantees under the program when his building and mechanical contracting firm ran into financial trouble in the mid-1970s and lost its bonding, which insures a contractor's satisfactory completion of a job.

In his effort to obtain the guarantees, he had the backing of Allen, the chairman of the Senate Agriculture subcommittee on credit, and Edwards, who represents Harrelson's district.

In a telephone interview, Edwards said he took part in two meetings with department officials and Allen's representatives on the Ball-Co loan guarantees — one in June 1977 and another in January 1978.

After each of those meetings, the Agriculture Department's Farmers Home Administration, which runs the business and industrial loan program, issued loan guarantees. The first was for $3.9 million, the second for $1.6 million.

Edwards noted that Ball-Co employed several hundred of his constituents, but denied putting pressure on the federal officials to grant the loan guarantees.

Department officials said they approved the loan guarantees despite Ball-Co's shaky financial situation because of the company's record for doing quality work and the hope that new money would put the firm back on its feet and save 370 jobs.

However, Richard E. Nazary, the loan officer who opposed granting the loan guarantees, wrote in an internal memo that he sensed an "unusual amount of political interest" in the case. In its recommendation against the loans, he had cited lack of collateral, poor business practices, failure to collect debts owed the company, and personal debts by Harrelson.

The strongest example of political pressure on behalf of Ball-Co came after Harrelson returned to Washington in August 1978, seeking a third loan to bail out his ailing company.

Harrelson, who on July 27, 1978, contributed $1,000 to Mrs. Allen's campaign to win election to finish out the two years remaining in her late husband's term, sought her help in obtaining the loan guarantee.

In a telephone interview, Mrs. Allen said she agreed to assist Harrelson because "he was a fine man (with) an excellent record for having built for the government."

Her assistance involved a meeting in her office on Aug. 2, 1978, with department officials, who said a proposal for the loan guarantee that would enable Ball-Co to receive bonding appeared to be illegal.

Mrs. Allen then sent a telegram to Bergland and an angry letter to Moore complaining about the "arrogance" of the officials who had scotched the loan proposal.

Mrs. Allen, who lost the 1978 election, said her anger with the department had already caused her to support a Republican effort to cut $1.7 million from the agriculture secretary's budget.

Moore forwarded Mrs. Allen's complaint to the department, and on Aug. 29, federal loan officials notified the president's congressional contact that an additional $3.8 million loan guarantee had been arranged for Ball-Co.

Agriculture Department sources said the Ball-Co loan guarantees are under investigation by the U.S. attorney's office in Alabama. An internal department audit has alleged that misrepresentations were made by the borrower.

However, Harrelson, in a telephone interview, denied any misrepresentation and vowed to keep Ball-Co in business, even at a reduced level, to try to pay back the loans in full.

Mayor charged with arson

HILLSBOROUGH, N.J. (AP) — A Somerset County grand jury has charged a former Hillsborough Township mayor with setting fire to his home to collect insurance.

Assistant Prosecutor Michael Rosenberg said William F. Musa Sr., 58, a school board member who served six years on the township committee, was charged Friday with one count of arson in the 1979 fire. Musa was arraigned and released on his own recognizance.

If convicted, Musa could face a three-to-five year prison term and a fine of up to $7,500.

Museum employees back

NEW YORK (AP) — Employees of the New York Historical Society go back to work Tuesday for the first time in six months, ending the longest museum strike in the nation's history.

The 22 editors, librarians and service workers approved their first contract Friday. Museum officials had opposed the staff's decision to join District Council 65, which later merged with the United Auto Workers. The archives on early America were closed by the walkout.

The settlement provides a $61-a-week increase over the three-year contract with wages ranging from $127 to $320 a week, union officials said, adding the contract also calls for a union shop. Museum officials refused comment on the settlement.

Trucker gets settlement

HONOLULU (AP) — John Santos III, a truck driver crippled three years ago when he was nearly electrocuted, will receive $4.3 million in an out-of-court settlement.

The 33-year-old man lost his left arm, right foot and part of his left foot, and was burned over 85 percent of his body when he was hit with 12,000 volts of electricity after his truck hit a power line at a construction site on Maui in August 1977.

The settlement, largest in state history, will be paid in installments by the Maui Electric Co., Hawaiian Dredging Co., and the Kapalua Land Development Co. The initial payment will be $854,000.

Detoxification to be tried

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — Scientists plan experiments at a factory here on a new way to detoxify the banned chemical PCB.

Ed Kern, president of Rogers Electric Co. Inc. of Hyattsville, said the new method detoxifies polychlorinated biphenyls by breaking down the chemical rather than incinerating it, the only approved method.

PCBs must now be transported to special incinerators, increasing danger of a spill. The system to be tested, if approved, is self-contained and could be done at the site of the PCBs, Kern said.

State permits are required for the tests by Rogers Electric, E.O.I. Corp. of Jessup and Chemical Waste Management of Ontario.

Tuesday final day for BS signups

Howard County rodeo contestants are being reminded that Tuesday is the last day they can sign up to compete in the annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, which gets under way Wednesday, June 25, and continue through Saturday night, June 28.

Those planning to compete should notify Driver's Insurance Company, 215 Runnels Street, no later than 5 p.m. Tuesday. The office opens at 9 a.m., Monday and Tuesday.

This show is being staged without the benefit of stars from the entertainment world. The emphasis instead will be on the pure athletic talent of the entries.

There is little telling what rodeo greats will be here, since the local show is competing with two others for entries. However, the riders, ropers and bull doggers in each are assigned by computer out of Denver, Colo. The lineup of stars here will, no doubt, be impressive.

Even if the country-western entertainers are missing, this will be a championship rodeo in every other respect. All points scored here count toward national championships.

Cosden boosts price July 15

DALLAS — Cosden Oil & Chemical Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of American Petrofina, Inc., today announced a price increase, effective July 15, on its full line of polybutenes. The increase is one cent per pound on all bulk shipments and two cents per pound on all container shipments.

Substantial increases in the isobutylene feedstock costs necessitates the upward price adjustment. Also, higher freight cost and surcharges, as well as increased container costs figured in the upward adjustment.

Dr. Alsie Carleton will serve McMurry as aide

Dr. Alsie H. Carleton has accepted the invitation of McMurry President Thomas K. Kim to join the college administrative staff in a special capacity Sept. 1.

Dr. Kim says Bishop Carleton, who retires from his church post at the end of August, will serve as Counseling Bishop and Special Assistant to the President of McMurry College.

Dr. Carleton has served as bishop of the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Conferences of the United Methodist Church for the past 12 years.

"Dr. Carleton will continue to have his office in Albuquerque," says Dr. Kim. "We know that his advice and assistance will be particularly valuable in matters of admissions and development."

Bishop Carleton is himself a 1933 graduate of McMurry. He later did graduate studies at Southern Methodist University, where he earned a theology degree, at the University of Chicago and at Boston University.

He has been honored with Doctor of Divinity degrees from McMurry, Texas Wesleyan College and SMU.

Following his ordination in 1938, Carleton served Northwest Texas Conference churches including those in Lubbock and Big Spring.

He left to become pastor of the University Park Methodist Church in Dallas in 1953, and then he served as superintendent of the Dallas Northeast District 1961-64.

Carleton then became professor of church administration, director of field education and director of the Conference Course of Study at SMU's Perkins School of Theology.

Carleton has had a lifelong interest in education. He made a survey of Methodist schools and other institutions in Europe at one point.

Serving this episcopal area since he was elevated to bishop in 1968, Dr. Carleton has shown great interest in strengthening McMurry College which belongs to his two conferences.

"Bishop Carleton has wholeheartedly supported our seven year Thrust for Excellence campaign," says Dr. Kim, "and its success has been in large part his work."

The McMurry president also notes that the new United Methodist Campus Center was proposed and promoted by Bishop Carleton.

The chapel in the Campus Center was named in honor of the bishop and his wife. His wife is the former Artha Blair Crutchfield.

"I have often sought the advice and aid of Bishop Carleton in my 10 years as McMurry president," Kim says. "His advice has always been excellent; his aid has been unfailingly generous."

Ortega is transferred

Henry M. Ortega, 45, 817 N.W. Sixth, was transferred from the city to the county jail Friday.

He was arrested June 11 at the 700 block of N. Cherry, charged with criminal trespass and burglary.

Bond has been set at $10,000 on the burglary charge and $2,500 for criminal trespassing by Judge John Coffee.

Burns released from custody

Virgil E. Burns, 404 Nolan, was released from sheriff's office custody Thursday on a no bill. He had been charged with burglary of a 1969 Ford Bronco.

Weather

Sunny skies, hot temperatures today

By the Associated Press
A few isolated thunderstorms rumbled along the lower Rio Grande Valley Saturday, but most of Texas experienced sunny skies and hot temperatures.

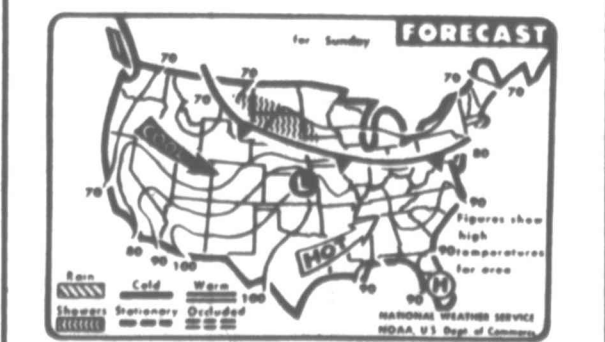

Winds were southerly at 5 to 15 mph across most of the state and gusty in portions of the Panhandle and parts of North and West Texas. Temperatures were mostly in the 90s, but the 4 p.m. extremes Saturday ranged from 87 at Galveston to 100 at both Lubbock and Wink.

Forecasters called for continued sunny and hot weather Sunday with scattered afternoon showers along the lower Rio Grande Valley.

WEATHER FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Generally fair skies today continuing central and south tonight and Monday. Partly cloudy and cooler north tonight and Monday. Widely scattered thunderstorms extreme northeast tonight. Highs today 95 extreme east to 110 Big Bend Valleys. Lows tonight 57 north to 75 extreme south. Highs Monday 82 north to 110 Big Bend Valleys.

EXTENDED
WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy through Thursday. Cool Tuesday, warming Wednesday and Thursday. Widely scattered thunderstorms southwest Thursday. Lows Tuesday near 60 north to mid 70s Big Bend, warming to upper 60s north to mid 70s Big Bend Thursday. Highs Tuesday mid 80s north to near 110 Big Bend, warming to mid 90s north to 110 Big Bend Thursday.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today predicts an area of showers for parts of Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa.

MIAMI BOUND — A group of Cuban refugees walk up steps of a Miami-bound jet charter flight as a young Cuban boy waves as he is held in his mother's arms. A total of 150 Cuban refugees boarded the jet at Harrisburg International Airport in Middletown, Pa., Saturday morning. The refugees completed their processing at nearby Fort Indiantown Gap and are on their way to family members or sponsors in the Miami area. This first charter flight of a large group of refugees is part of efforts to quicken relocation of refugees.

Bush gets most votes in straw vote here

The monthly meeting of the West Texas Republican Women was held Thursday at La Posada Restaurant with Mrs. Dene Sheppard presiding. Following the Pledge of Allegiance, Mrs. Frances Wheat offered a prayer.

Mrs. Sheppard reported 12 delegates and 12 alternates will attend the Republican State Convention in Houston June 20 and 21.

Mrs. Ethelyn McCann, treasurer, advised the club now has 69 members and urged continued recruitment efforts.

Mrs. Polly Mays presented a thumbnail sketch of possible candidates under consideration for vice president, which included John Connally, George Bush, Phil Crane, Richard Lugar, Jack Kemp, Jesse Heims and Howard Baker. Mrs. Mary Joy Cowper related some tidbits on the wives and on Nancy Reagan.

Following the presentation, a straw vote was taken to reflect the members' choices. George Bush received the most votes. Mrs. Sheppard added there are more being considered, including Texas' own Anne Armstrong.

The club will hold a garage sale in September, is continuing to sell pralines and to receive donations on a custom stained glass window design.

Next meeting will be held at noon July 10 at La Posada Restaurant. All ladies interested are invited to attend.

Police beat Man struck on head with bottle

Joe Lopez, 806 S. Bell was found lying in an alley behind 604 N.W. Fifth after he was struck on the head with a bottle Saturday morning.

A motorcycle belonging to Jonathan Perez, 4209 1/2 Walnut, was turned over in front of his residence and a cement block broken on his front porch Friday night.

Betty Hamilton, 1405 State, says she was struck near the eye by a rock which flew up from a vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed Friday night.

The residence of Ruby Brown, 2204 Nolan, was broken into and an air mattress set on fire. Value, $150.

A wallet with $300 owned by Betty Jackman was stolen at Denny's sometime Thursday night.

Eighteen 12-ounce cans of beer were stolen from 7-11,

Scientists say conditions similar before recent eruptions

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Similar conditions at Mount St. Helens before the volcano's most recent eruptions should help scientist predict future explosions, a U.S. Geological Survey spokesman said Saturday.

Meanwhile, a plume of steam floated above the volcano to about 12,000 feet — jumping at one point to 18,000 feet for about a minute — and earthquake activity continued to decline.

In Portland, Ore., the annual Rose Festival Parade went on after streets were cleaned of ash from the volcano's latest major eruption.

And at Longview, Wash., a memorial was held for Harry Truman, the 84-year-old who refused to leave his home at Spirit Lake at the foot of the mountain and is presumed killed by the volcano's May 18 eruption. Pete Rowley of the U.S. Geological Survey said

Deaths

Christene Byars

Christene Byars, 12, died at 3 a.m., Saturday in a local hospital after she was shot accidentally.

Services are set for 2 p.m., Monday in the Northwest Third Church of Christ. Burial will follow in the Evergreen Cemetery in Stanton under the direction of the Larry Sheppard Funeral Home.

She was born July 10, 1967, in Dimmitt, Tex. She was student at Goliad Middle School and a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include her father, John Byars, Big Spring, her mother, Mrs. Helen Jones, Big Spring; a sister, Ruth Jean Jones, Big Spring; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Jones, Stanton; and the paternal grandfather, John A. Byars, Sr., Bellview, Tex.

T.W. Cole

Thomas W. Cole, 79, of Abilene died in the Big Spring State Hospital at 9:15 p.m. Thursday after a lengthy illness. Services were held at 3 p.m. Saturday at Elliott-Hamil Chapel of Faith.

The Rev. Paul Kenley, pastor of Southwest Park Baptist Church, officiated, assisted by Ira Harrison, retired Baptist minister. Burial followed in Blackwell Cemetery.

Born Jan. 8, 1901, in Coolidge, he was reared there and farmed there until he moved to Abilene in 1958. He worked for Abilene State School until he retired in 1968. He married Virgie McLendon Nov. 12, 1925, in Sweetwater.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, William C. Cole of Irving and Donald E. Cole of Arlington; a brother, A.J. Cole of Coolidge; and five grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a daughter in 1947.

Alvin Sipes

Alvin L. Sipes, 83, died at 2:24 a.m. Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness.

Services are pending at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He was born Oct. 12, 1896. He had been a resident of Big Spring for 55 years and had operated Sipes Grocery and Cafe at 500 Benton for 38 years. He retired several years ago.

scientists were excited by similarities between the volcano's pre-eruptive activity before Thursday's explosion and prior to an eruption May 25.

He said the patterns of increased seismic activity, harmonic tremors and steaming should make it easier to predict eruptions. Conditions were different when the volcano blew its top May 18, its first eruption in more than a century.

Rowley said ash from Thursday's eruption was darker and thicker than the previous eruptions. The thickness may explain the color, he said.

Seismologists at the University of Washington in Seattle said earthquake activity was declining. Only a few quakes, each measuring below 3.0 on the Richter scale of ground motion, were recorded at the mountain Saturday.

Deaths

Mr. Sipes was preceded in death by his wife, Dora, March 20, 1976. Mr. and Mrs. Sipes married Aug. 23, 1926 in Clovis, N.M.

He is survived by a brother, L.D. Sipes of Mississippi; a sister, Billie Redman of Big Spring; and several nieces and nephews, including Mrs. Benny McChristian and Ray Myers, both of Big Spring.

D.O. Cummings

Funeral services for D.O. Cummings, 82, who died Thursday were at 10 a.m. Saturday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Van Sanford officiating.

Burial was at Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Pallbearers were Grover Wylie, Gene Wilson, Wayne Morris, R.W. Hallbrook, Ed Reynolds and William Cummings.

Nina Hughes

Funeral services for Mrs. Ernest (Nina) Hughes, 57, who died Friday, were at 11:30 a.m. Saturday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with Royce Clay officiating.

Burial was at Trinity Memorial Park. Pallbearers were Clyde Denton, Luke Fortenberry, Jess Wilcher, Jerry Musgrove, Delbert Harland and O.A. Davis.

Industry giant, AT&T, may now face other suits

CHICAGO (AP) — If American Telephone & Telegraph Co. loses an appeal of a record $1.8 billion antitrust award, its costs will be borne by shareholders and may, in part, be passed along to consumers in the form of higher rates, a federal official said Saturday.

But the company that won the judgment said it would make the long-distance telephone industry more competitive and could lead to lower rates.

The award, which AT&T attorney George Saunders called the largest ever, was made late Friday night by a U.S. District Court jury that found the communications giant had violated antitrust laws by denying certain intracity telephone connections to the much-smaller MCI Communications Corp.

The jury said AT&T willfully maintained or attempted to maintain a monopoly on the long-distance market, and that MCI had suffered to the tune of $600 million. The award was two-thirds of the $900 million MCI sought, but was trebled to $1.8 billion automatically on the plaintiff's motion. AT&T's top antitrust attorney, Hal Levy, said Saturday that the company would appeal to the 7th U.S. District Court of Appeals. "I don't regard this as a decision that at this time has any measure of finality or weight," Levy said.

Ormand J. Wade, vice president, AT&T Long Lines-Central Region said in a statement: "To all who might consider that the Bell System's size makes it fair game for legal harassment we have demonstrated our readiness to defend ourselves in the courts. We will continue to do so."

Levy said 40 antitrust suits were pending against AT&T or its Bell System subsidiaries. The best-known is a case filed by the Justice Department which charges AT&T has affected a number of companies besides MCI through many years of anti-competitive practices.

In Washington, Philip Verveer, chief of the Federal Communications Commission's Common Carrier Bureau, said Saturday that the FCC treats penalties and fines as "below-the-line expenses" to be borne by the shareholders.

"They are to be charged off against the shareholders, not part of the normal expenses the company is allowed to take," he said.

Verveer, who had disqualified himself from any participation in the case because of a previous involvement with MCI, said it is likely that AT&T will contest the FCC policy.

He also said at least some of the costs indirectly might wind up in the laps of consumers through higher rates. That would occur if AT&T has to pay more to borrow money because of the judgment.

However, MCI Chairman William G. McGowan said the verdict will allow "everybody in the country to get long-distance service at a much lower rate" and will "force the Bell System to be a lot more efficient."

He said MCI, a Washington-based firm formed in 1968 with service now in 2,000 communities, was held back from realizing its growth potential because AT&T in 1969 denied a request for intracity connections. MCI needed the connections to complete long-distance calls on its own microwave system and said AT&T had violated Section 2 of the Sherman Antitrust Act by denying the connections.

The verdict showed that the jury "will not allow the biggest corporation in the world to use its power to try and stifle its competitors in this business," McGowan said.

Saunders said the suit, filed in 1974, was a "ripoff." He said MCI wanted to "skim the cream" by serving the most profitable long-distance markets and ignoring the more remote ones — a practice which would ultimately increase prices to the public.

The jury reached its verdict following roughly 20 hours of deliberation which began Wednesday. In 54 days of often complex testimony, jurors heard from some 70 witnesses and reviewed more than 1,000 documents.

Rural community baffled

Death mars 'Friday the 13th' celebration

QUENEMO, Kan. (AP) — More than 1,500 motorcyclists roared into Quenemo for a Friday the 13th celebration "to get drunk, get high and have a good time." When it was over, three people were dead, at least six were injured and many residents of this tiny farming community were up in arms.

"It was wild and woolly," George Bell, mayor of the east-central Kansas town of 430 people, said Saturday. "They were drinking in the streets, running their motorcycles. I don't mean just riding, I mean running."

Authorities said one man was fatally shot late Friday as he stood in the crowd that gathered in the town. The other victims were killed in separate traffic accidents involving motorcycles and other vehicles that were coming to or leaving Quenemo.

From across the country — California, Minnesota and New York — the bikers came to join in what had become a ritual celebration each Friday the 13th with 25-cent beer at Quenemo's lone tavern.

Drawn by advertisements in biker magazines and word of mouth, more than 5,000 people lined the streets of the community by early evening.

"They get drunk, get high and have a good time," said Carolyn Sue Duffey, wife of the one of the town's two police officers. "They'll run their races, but usually there's no problem with them. I don't know what caused this."

Bell said several windows were broken out of the City Hall and vacant building along the three-block length of the town's main street, where motorcyclists held drag races in pairs.

"As far as what's going to happen next Friday the 13th, I have no idea. I'm open to suggestions," said Bell. "I feel damn lucky that we haven't had someone killed before. It doesn't do any good to have a law if you aren't big enough to back it up. And we just weren't last night (Friday)."

A spokesman at Ransom Memorial Hospital in Ottawa, about 15 miles east of Quenemo, said five persons were admitted for injuries suffered in falling accidents. One person broke a leg falling off a small building.

Osage County Sheriff Robert Masters said at least 60 law enforcement officers helped disperse the crowd with police riot dogs after the shooting, and nearly all the bikers had left by early Saturday.

At least one person was arrested for driving while intoxicated, and several motorcyclists were ticketed for drag-racing. Shot dead was Randy Lee Sible, 27, of Pomona, Kan. The cause of the shooting was not known, and no arrests were reported.

A 31-year-old Kansas City, Kan., man identified as Larry E. Rank died when his motorcycle rammed into two other vehicles wrecked in a collision just north of Quenemo.

A rural Williamsburg, Kan., woman, Mary J. Graen, 23, was killed in a crash several miles to the east. She was the driver of a vehicle which collided with another car and a motorcycle, police said.

Compromise is announced

LAMESA — As a compromise, Dawson County commissioners have increased valuations of the county tax roll by $18.2 million, lifting the tax base for county operations to around $80 million.

A recent reappraisal of oil and gas properties, utilities and financial institutions alone would have added $33 million to the tax roll.

The compromise was negotiated with a representative of Cities Service Oil Co., largest taxpayer in Dawson County.

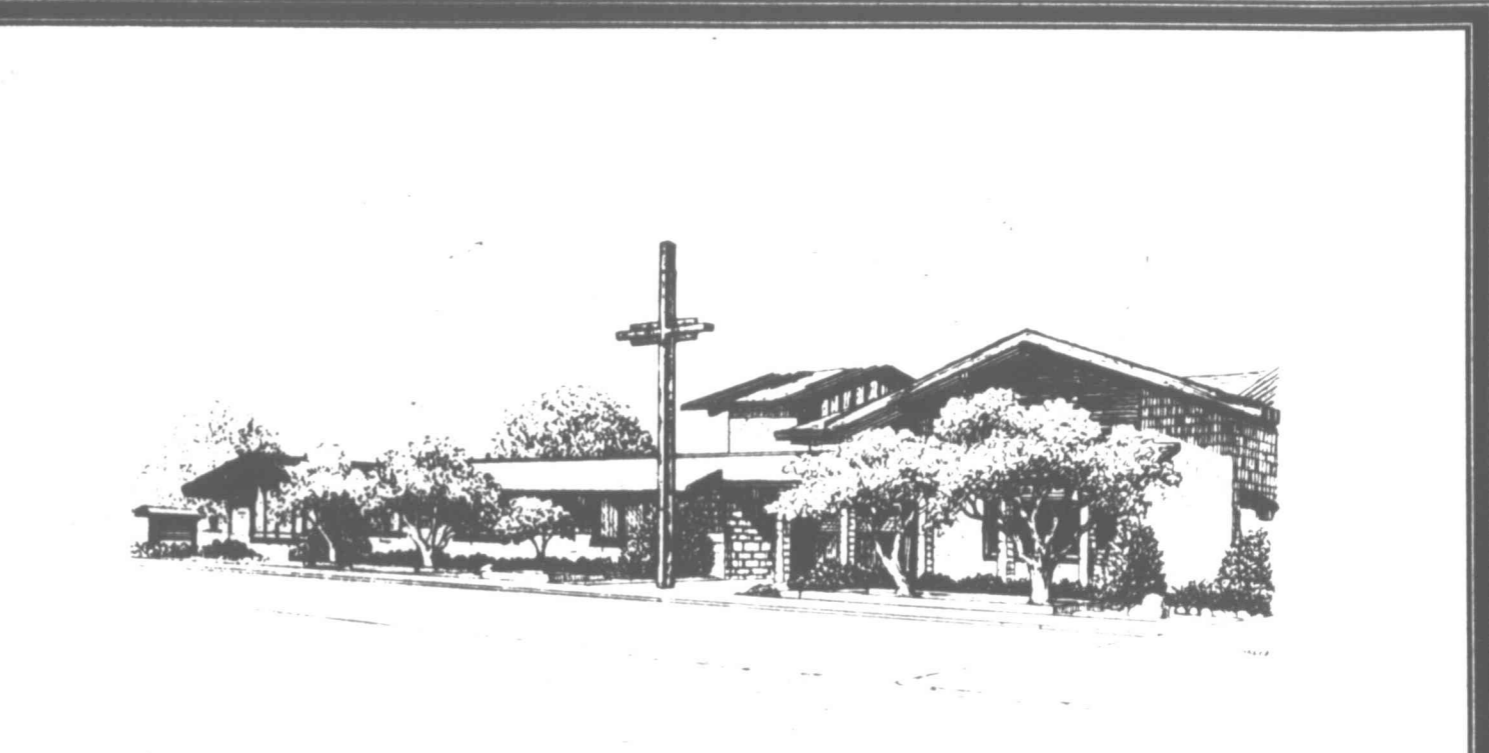

Beginning next year, all property in the county will be reappraised and put on the tax roll at 100 percent value. The tax rate will then be lowered, in all probability.

Will winner be fearful of 'jinx'

Some students of the presidency gloomily predict that who ever wins the general election in November will not live to finish out his term. They point to a curious record that has endured since William Henry Harrison's time:

Every president who has been elected in the 20th year since 1840 has died in office, either at the hands of an assassin or as the result of natural causes.

HARRISON WAS elected to succeed Martin Van Buren as the nation's chief executive. He caught pneumonia during his inauguration the following February, died April 4 that year and was succeeded by John Tyler (Tyler was the man who signed the resolution annexing Texas to the United States). Abraham Lincoln was elevated to the position in 1860, took office the following year and was dispatched by John Wilkes Booth while attending the theater in 1865.

Twenty years after Lincoln had been blessed by the electorate, James Abram Garfield was endorsed by the voters as a compromise between Gen. U.S. Grant, James G. Blaine and John Sherman. Sworn in in 1881, he didn't live out the year. An unbalanced office seeker named Charles J. Guiteau shot him to death in a Washington railroad station. On June 30 the following year, Guiteau was hanged for the crime.

A one-time governor of the state of Ohio, William McKinley, was first named president in 1896 and re-elected in 1900. McKinley, a man who abhorred violence, was shot by an anarchist named Leon Czolgoz in Buffalo, N.Y. McKinley lived eight days. His last words were "It is God's way. His will, not ours, is done," which might lead some latter day prophets to ask "is this pattern one not condemned by Divine Providence?"

The superstition got another test in 1920 when Warren Gamaliel Harding was swept into office. Harding, his presidency in the White House stained by scandal never completed his term in office. He died in 1923 after becoming ill following a trip to Alaska, clearing the way for Calvin Coolidge to take over.

IN 1940, Franklin Delano Roosevelt was reelected for his fourth term. His health betrayed him before he was able to complete another four years in the White House and he died in 1945, opening the way for Harry Truman to take over.

The uncanny chain of events passed yet another test after the 1960 election, when John Fitzgerald Kennedy was able to outscramble Richard Nixon in the race for the highest office in the land.

It appeared that Kennedy would beat the jinx until 1963, when bullets allegedly fired by Lee Harvey Oswald cut him down during a parade in Dallas.

The next president will be elected in November of this year, 1980, and take office in 1981. The superstitious will then begin the countdown — whether Jimmy Carter is returned to the Oval Office or Ronald Reagan takes over the administrative reins. Will the winner finally be able to beat the jinx?

Same old GOPs

Evans, Novak,

WASHINGTON — Only days before the Republican "unity" dinner in Los Angeles June 13, Ronald Reagan faced advice from his oldest, most trusted political associates that he renege on his promise to retain William Brock as Republican national chairman through the 1980 campaign.

The unity dinner was billed as "a laying on of hands" in which Reagan and Brock, at the head table, would confirm each other's legitimacy. But it could result in fists, not hands, considering Republican infighting all too reminiscent of the bad old days of the 1960s.

The advisers who say Brock must go are so influential that it would be a major surprise if Reagan kept him. But Brock's fate is less important than the mess made of handling him. That Reagan as prospective presidential nominee neither firmly retained Brock nor cleanly severed him is evidence that his political operation is by no means honed to run against Jimmy Carter.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, REAGANITES have been waging a poorly-coordinated, consistently unsuccessful campaign to purge anti-Reagan state party leaders. The causes are not policy disagreements but ancient feuds buttressed by cultural differences. Contrary to greatly exaggerated reports of the Grand Old Party united by a passion for victory, these look like the same old Republicans expert at snatching defeat from the jaws of victory. Perhaps fearful of losing to Carter in November, these Reaganites want to consolidate party power now.

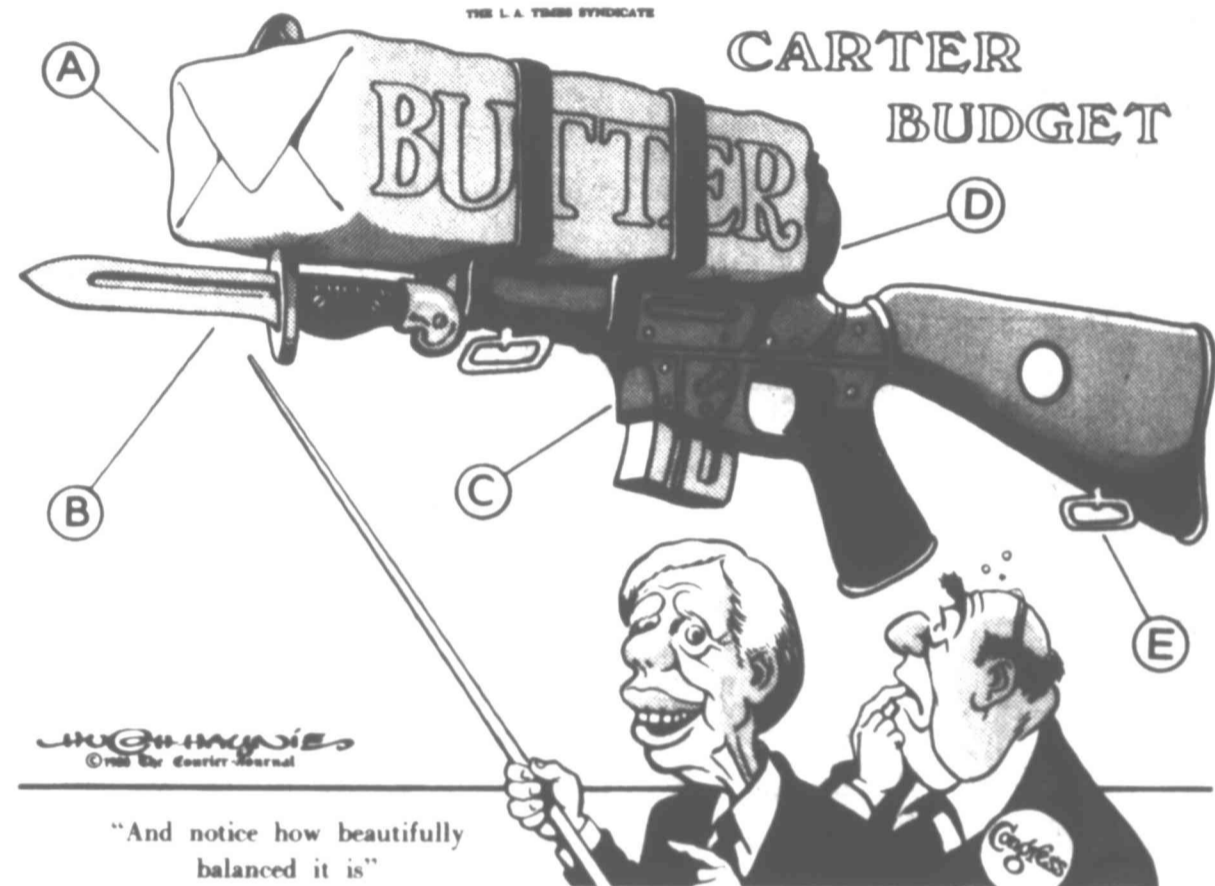

When Brock journeyed May 3 to Reagan's California home, such blood-letting seemed likely to yield to good sense in the interest of defeating President Carter. Nobody had ever accused Brock of pro-Reagan passions, but now he conceded Reagan's nomination.

A deal was struck on the Pacific shores. Brock, highly esteemed in the party's non-Reagan establishment, would be retained as chairman through the national election. Reagan would assign his own operatives to Republican national headquarters.

But nobody pinned down the fate of Ben Cotten, the tough Washington lawyer who is Brock's deputy chairman and far less an admirer of Reagan than even his chief. The Reaganites thought Cotten would go; Brock recalled no such commitment. Returning to Washington, Brock began to feel like a figurehead at national headquarters with Reagan's agent, New Hampshire Republican leader Jerry Carmen, in real control.

Oddly, nobody included Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, national chairman of the Reagan campaign, in the deal. Laxalt was outraged that Reagan would not have a national chairman of his own choosing. Carmen last week sent the candidate a secret report arguing recommending that Brock must go in order to remove an anti-Reagan aura at national headquarters. Old Reagan hand Lyn Notziger, just returned to the inner circle, enthusiastically concurred. So did veteran Reagan adviser Edwin Meese.

Against this array, Reagan is told by the party establishment that the purge of Brock will shatter the gossamer of Republican unity. That view was once supported by Reagan campaign chairman William Casey, but he has quietly bowed to the insistence and persuasion of Laxalt.

"And notice how beautifully balanced it is"

The young asthmatic and sports

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My teenager loves sports, but he also has asthma. Many times when he plays hard he gets an asthma attack. I am at a loss. If I tell him to give up sports, I know he won't listen to me and I don't want him to get upset and get a bad attack. What would you advise? — Mrs. G.W.

Activity does not necessarily have to be a no-no for the asthmatic child. In fact, I'll make that stronger. Exercise can be truly beneficial for them. However, if a particular sport, particular environment or a certain season of the year is associated with severe attacks, then caution has to be observed.

Exercise can, indeed, induce an attack of asthma. The exact mechanism involved in triggering the attack is still a subject of controversy. Some say that the lactic acid produced during exercise contributes. Others state that the prolonged rapid breathing that results from activity stimulates the airways and is the factor that induces the attack. It has been shown that exercising in the cold predisposes the asthmatic to attacks.

Try to analyze the times when your son gets his attacks to see if there is a common factor bringing them on. Do they happen in only one place or while playing only a particular sport?

He might be able to adjust his medication, and you should consult his doctor about that. For example, the doctor might approve his taking the airway-expanding medicine about 30 minutes before the activity. If he is using the oral inhaler (with cromolyn) he should avoid breathing in very cold air.

Swimming seems to be one of the most suitable exercises with the least tendency to provoke an attack. Does his school have a swim team?

Carefully supervised activity programs have by and large done far more good than harm to the asthmatic child.

Dear Dr. Donohue: The trainer for our basketball team told me I had strained a muscle. My thigh hurt for quite a while. He wanted me to take some sort of treatment with electricity. I didn't like the sound of it, so I refused to take it. What was he talking about? — C.L.

Transcutaneous electrical neural stimulation (TENS) is relatively new on the sports scene. It is the application of a low dose of electrical current to produce pain relief. This therapy has come into vogue with the development of safe, portable units to deliver the current. No one is absolutely certain just how electrical current helps things. It may produce tiny muscle contractions and thus help clear away the fluid (swelling). The technique is safe in the hands of a person who knows how to operate the machine and who knows its limitations.

It should not be used so that an injured athlete can continue practicing and possibly worsen an injury. This use of electric current in medicine is not new. In the first century A.D., Pliny recommended giving shocks from the torpedo fish (an electric ray) for a variety of ills.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I noticed with horror that the back of my heel on the bottom is turning black. I do a lot of running. What is going on? My running mate (husband) tells me my heel will fall off. — Mrs. H.O.

"Black heel" is caused by little black patches made up of tiny specks of dried blood. These are tiny hemorrhages (bleedings) in the skin of the heel. That's what causes the color changes. Blood darkens as it dries. It is painless and does not indicate any serious problem. Your heel is not going to fall off. A felt pad can prevent the blackening from taking place. The sight of such a condition admittedly is scary.

There's an old saying — if your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have been reading the New Testament recently and am impressed with the Apostle Paul. How did he manage to change his life so dramatically, and do away with all the guilt he must have felt because of the wrong things he did when he persecuted Christians? — D.V.F.

DEAR D.V.F.: If Paul were answering this question I am sure he would tell you immediately that he did not change his life — God did. In fact, Paul in his letters often stressed the impossibility of us ever being able to change our basic nature. He knew that we often want to do right, but lack the power to accomplish it. Looking at his own life whenever he had tried to change without God's power, Paul once declared, "What I want to do I do not do, but what I hate to do . . . I know that nothing good lives in me, that is, in my sinful nature. For I have the desire to do what is good, but I cannot carry it out" (Romans 7:15, 18).

Paul was changed because he met Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ came into this world not just to give us an example of how God wanted us to live. He came into this world to bring us back to God, and to make possible a whole new life for us. You see, we are separated from God because of our sins, and as long as we are apart from Him we will never have the power to change our lives permanently for the better. But Christ came to take away our sins by His death on the cross, and to give us new strength for living as God wants us to live through His resurrection from the dead. The Bible says, "He himself bore our sins in His body on the tree, so that we might die to sins and live for righteousness" (1 Peter 2:24).

This was Paul's experience, and it can be yours as well. Through faith in Christ — repenting of your sins and trusting Him alone for your salvation — you also can know the joy of forgiveness and the power of the Holy Spirit.

People endangered

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — For residents of Love Canal, N.Y., whose land has been made uninhabitable by years of poisoning from chemical waste dumping, the most frightening thing is the deadly, unknown effect of the pollution — and the long reluctance of government authorities to recognize the danger.

For the country at large, the most frightening thing should be the deadly, unknown effect of similar toxic dumping at literally thousands of similar locations — and the reluctance of certain government authorities to admit that there is even a problem.

THE SICKENING fact is that Love Canal is just the tip of the iceberg. At more than 30,000 locations across the country, chemical wastes are poisoning the ground on which thousands — perhaps millions — of Americans have built their homes, schools and churches. Yet the strict federal pollution controls designed to identify and clean up these future Love Canals are being systematically thwarted by timid bureaucrats, fearful of touching off a fire storm of public outrage.

More than a year and a half ago, I warned about the lethal time bombs ticking away in the ground and drinking water of countless communities from decades of indiscriminate dumping of poisonous wastes. Now in a secret deposition before the Senate Judiciary Committee, a government expert on hazardous wastes has outlined the shocking extent of the danger.

"Perhaps tens of thousands of Americans living in the Northeastern part of the United States are at any given time sick or dying early as a result of hazardous wastes management practices," warned Hugh Kaufman, of the Environmental Protection Agency.

"The amount of hazardous wastes generated in the United States every day would fill three professional baseball stadiums," Kaufman told the committee. By comparison, he said, the amount of nuclear wastes from power plants — which has generated far greater public concern — has been enough to fill one stadium since the dawn of the atomic age.

DESPITE THE magnitude of the toxic dumping, and the nightmarish possibilities for catastrophe, federal environmental watchdogs have been less than effective in remedying the situation. My reporters Carol O'Connor and Jack Mitchell have learned part of the reason for this: Investigators have been unable to pry essential information out of officials and business executives.

The strange inertia of federal enforcers is also to blame. Even the EPA's Kaufman admitted that the Justice Department had to force the agency to run the Love Canal study on chromosome damage — for a paltry

$11,000. The technology exists for alternative methods of waste disposal, but the dangerous dumping is allowed to go on, even though, as Kaufman warned, "Until the federal government outlaws dumping these organic wastes we are going to continue to have Love Canals."

INTELLIGENCE DIGEST: CIA employees are chortling over a titillating tidbit about Iranian Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh. Seems those recent trips to Paris weren't on official business at all, but in pursuit of 'I amour. The urbane, U.S.-educated Ghotbzadeh has a mistress in the French capital.

The CIA's files are so stuffed with information — secret and not-so-secret — on the Palestine Liberation Organization and its relationship to the current Iranian regime that it would cost at least $22,700 just to pick out and reproduce the documents that could be made available to the public.

If the mass exodus of Cubans weren't proof enough of discontent in Fidel Castro's island, the Defense Intelligence Agency has discovered another indication: graffiti. Restive Cubans have taken to expressing their displeasure with the Castro regime by scrawling messages in public places. A government crackdown has had little effect.

The Pentagon assured the public that the eight helicopters used in the Iranian rescue mission were the best the Navy had to offer. But a classified Defense Department document puts this assurance in a disturbing context: It shows that last year only about half the Navy's 30 Sea Stallion choppers were combat-ready at any given time. This means that the Navy may have had only 15 helicopters — or even fewer — to choose from for the rescue attempt.

MONEY HOGS: For their reckless greed, I nominated the Aramco partners — Exxon, Texaco, Mobil and Standard Oil of California — for the Hog-of-the-Year award.

The Greedy Four started out the first quarter of 1980 with exorbitant profit increases. Exxon rang up nearly $2 billion in earnings, the highest quarterly take for any company in corporate history. This boosted the company's profits 102 percent above its first-quarter earnings for 1979.

The other three posted similar percentages. Mobil's profits were up 105 percent, Texaco's 97.6 percent, Standard Oil of California's 83 percent.

These huge profits were taken, in part, from savings that were intended to benefit all Americans. Saudi Arabia offered oil to the United States below the world price. But the four money hogs paid the special low price to Saudi Arabia, ignored Saudi intentions, sold the oil to their U.S. customers at the world price and kept all the benefits for themselves.

Head of lobby organization claims

Texas prison system 'not one of the best'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The head of a group that lobbies for prison reform says three state prison directors have "created a myth" that Texas has one of the best prison systems in the country.

Executive Director Charles Sullivan of CURE — Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants — says Texas' "large human warehouses are dinosaurs, and really they should be done away with — period. They destroy people."

Sullivan was interviewed on the radio program State Capitol Dateline for broadcast over the weekend.

He said past prison directors O.B. Ellis and George Beto and current director W.J. Estelle "created a myth that we have one of the best — if not the best — system in the country." It's "certainly not the worst, but it's certainly not the best. It's got a lot of prisoners who are released return to prison."

Ellis became prison director in 1946, Beto in 1961 and Estelle in 1971.

Sullivan said the federal suit filed by inmate David Ruiz against the prison system "has demythologized the prison system. I think what has happened is people are seeing more than just showcase units. I think the Texas taxpayers were sold a bill of goods ... that they had this great institution known for rehabilitation."

Sullivan said Texans do not realize that at least 40 percent of the prisoners who are released return to prison.

He suggested U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's yet-to-be-announced ruling in the Ruiz case may include a "lid" — or maximum population figure based on the amount of prison space.

Asked if Justice's ruling might bring about major changes in Texas' criminal justice system, Sullivan said, "Not only the state but probably in the country." He said the Ruiz suit "is the most comprehensive lawsuit ever filed against a prison system in this country."

Sullivan said CURE will ask the 1981 Legislature to allow prisoners who work to be paid $1 a day, with 50 cents of each $1 doing to the state compensation for victims of crime. He said this would provide $3 million a year for the fund.

"I think most prisoners now feel they are exploited by the state. They feel they are doing slave labor," Sullivan said.

He said he thought the prison system should be self-sustaining, but added, "I think it's gotten out of control. I think it has become the only priority of the prison system."

For example, he said, a "long-growing season" for crops "seems to be the only priority" for the location of a proposed new prison.

Sullivan said the prison population has doubled to 28,000 since 1970 but blamed rejections of recommendations for parole as the "chief cause of overcrowding." He said Gov. Bill Clements has rejected 34 percent of the recommendations for parole.

Also, he said, "I think our sentences are the longest of any state in the country and the U.S. gives the longest sentences in the world."

OHIRA FUNERAL — Hiroshi Ohira, son of the late Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira, carried his father's ashes as he accompanies his mother following cremation of Ohira's remains Saturday in Tokyo. Ohira died Jan. 12 at age 70. Ohira was a member of Japan's Christian minority.

Inflation biting down hard on penny gumball

AKRON, N.Y. (AP) — Forget about the credit crunch. About mortgage rates and price rates and discount rates. There's a much more serious problem: Inflation is biting down hard on that American institution called the penny gumball.

The Ford Gum and Machine Co. has been making the brightly colored gumballs for nearly half a century — since 1934 to be exact. On an average working day, the plant here turns out 4.95 tons or almost 10,000 pounds of gumballs. That's about 2,227,000 balls a day. Licorice and lime. Orange and cherry. And lots more. If all the gumballs produced in a year were laid end-to-end, they'd stretch around the world.

Officials at Ford Gum are worried, however. Can they keep the price of a penny gumball at a penny? The problem is that the cost of refined sugar has more than doubled, rising to more than $40 per 100 pounds because of a drop in the world sugar crop.

"When you consider that sugar is about 75 percent of our product, that's really killing us," said John Fry, the executive vice president of Ford Gum.

If the price of sugar stays where it is, or goes still higher, said Fry, "You can definitely say the one-cent gumball is in jeopardy ... We may have to ... charge two cents."

The Ford Gum and Machine Co. was founded by Ford S. Mason, a roofer who wanted a way to survive during winters when there wasn't much work. He originally tried to use a symbol similar to the car company's. Fry said that when the Ford Motor Co. told Mason to stop, he replied: "I'm the Cadillac of the gum business and besides, Ford is my name." It didn't work and the company emblem was redesigned.

Back in the early days, Ford Gum had more than 30 competitors. Today, said Fry, it's one of only a handful of gumball manufacturers.

Ford — which is owned by the Atlanta-based Automatic Service Co. and, according to Fry, makes "about $5 million a year" — manufacturing gumballs and rectangular "chickie-chews" — has tried to hold the penny line.

The gumballs have gotten smaller. Back in 1959, they were three-quarters of an inch in diameter. Today, they're only half an inch in diameter.

Shrinking the gumballs still further to hold the price steady is a possibility, but company officials say it wouldn't work. They would have to retool all 350,000 Ford gumball dispensers in the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada.

Ford Gum also has tried injecting a little air bubble into each gumball to take up space that otherwise would be filled with expensive ingredients.

USDA will offer new food stamp regulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has adopted new regulations that will eliminate a boost in food stamp benefits that poor families were scheduled to receive July 1. Recipients will have to wait until January for the adjustment.

In the most recent tabulation in March, an estimated 21.8 million persons received benefits.

The USDA, in announcing the new rules Friday, also said other moves will eliminate about 800,000 persons from getting benefits from the program.

Congress specified the tougher rules when it appropriated more money last month to bail out the financially strapped program. Without the extra funds, it would have been terminated June 1.

Previously, adjustments in food stamp benefits were made twice a year — July 1 and Jan. 1 — to reflect increases in food costs. Now, there will only be a single annual adjustment.

Originally, USDA had $6.2 billion to operate food stamps this fiscal year, but rising food costs and larger participation caused funds to run out last month.

Congress approved an additional $2.56 billion to fund the program this summer, but that money probably will run out by Sept. 1.

Under the old formula of adjustments, the amount of free food stamps for a family of four without any net income would have risen from $209 a month to $218. Now, the family will have to wait until Jan. 1 for an adjustment in its monthly benefits.

The current poverty line or limit used in food stamps is $7,150 a year for a family of four, officials said. Under the old procedure, it would have been raised July 1 to $8,300 a year. But under the new formula, it will be held to $7,450 a year.

UTPB working for scholarships

Dr. V. R. Cordozier, president of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa, met with area educators, members of the news media and friends of the news media at La Posada Restaurant at noon Thursday.

Dr. Cordozier said that members of the UTPB Development Board, including John Currie and Joe Pickle of Big Spring, are working to raise matching funds for a scholarship endowment fund, which would be used by students transferring to UTPB from community colleges like Howard College.

The UTPB executive said the school year just completed at the university was the best the university had had since its opening, in his estimation. He praised the harmonious atmosphere of the college, adding he and his administrative staff had concentrated on getting "good" teachers for the UTPB program.

The university had about 1,600 students during the 1979-80 school year, 45 percent of them graduate students. Immediate enrollment projections are for no more than 2,000, Cordozier said.

Cordozier said the next few years are going to pose challenges for learning institutions around the country, since it is being predicted that the number of high school graduates throughout the U.S. is going to decrease. He said, however, that Texas schools likely won't be affected much because of the mass migration to Sun Belt states now going on.

The UTPB chief officer also said it was going to become increasingly harder to get new programs approved for school curriculums.

The space now provided for UTPB classes is now quite adequate, Cordozier said, and no major building programs are on the drawing board.

VA burial benefits vary from $450 to $1,100

Veterans should remind their families periodically that the Veterans Administration can provide from $450 to $1,100 toward their burial expenses, Jack Coker, Waco VA Regional Office Director, said today.

If a veteran's death is service-connected, VA will pay an amount not to exceed $1,100 in lieu of the usual burial allowances.

These VA payments will be reduced or eliminated in cases where the veteran's employer or a state agency has made such payments.

Veterans discharged under other than dishonorable conditions who served in the Spanish-American war, during the Mexican Border period, World Wars I and II, the Korean Conflict or the Vietnam Era are eligible for VA plot and burial allowances and for burial in a national cemetery.

Peacetime veterans with other than dishonorable discharges are eligible for burial in a national cemetery and for a headstone or grave marker. But peacetime veterans are not entitled to the burial or plot allowance unless they were receiving compensation payments or were discharged for disability reasons.

VA will also provide a headstone or grave marker for eligible veterans, and memorial markers will be furnished for certain members of the armed forces who die on active duty and whose remains are not recovered, or who are buried at sea.

An American flag will also be provided upon request for use in covering the casket, Coker said.

With the exception of Arlington National Cemetery, burial is available to eligible veterans at all national cemeteries having space, and may also be authorized for an eligible veteran's wife or husband, minor children and, under certain circumstances, unmarried adult children.

Eligibility requirements for burial at Arlington National Cemetery may be obtained from the Superintendent, Arlington National Cemetery, Arlington, VA, 22211.

Westbrook church hosts anniversary celebration

WESTBROOK — First Baptist Church of Westbrook, observing the church's 90th anniversary, will host a Homecoming and Community Worship Service at the church next Sunday.

All members, former members, and friends are being invited to attend.

The service will start at 9:50 a.m. with a time of testimony and reminiscing.

At 10:30 a.m. the Worship Service will begin.

The church choir, under the direction of Wayne Pierce, will present several specials. Accompanists will be Mrs. W.D. Whitesides, organist, and Mrs. Charles Ranne, pianist.

Also presenting selections will be Tommy Sloane, The Clawson Family, Eddie Ranne, Mrs. Opal Powell, and Hoyt Roberts.

Bro. Bob Manning, pastor of Westbrook Baptist Church, will deliver the sermon.

Following the services a catered noon meal will be served at the Westbrook School.

A warm welcome is extended and everyone is urged to attend to help make this a dynamic 1980 Homecoming.

Military

Rorick enrolls in Army's Delayed Entry Program

SALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Billy D. Rorick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy W. Rorick, Route 1, Big Spring, Texas, recently enrolled in the Army's Delayed Entry Program.

This program is designed to allow the individual to take up to one year before actually entering active duty. Additionally, this delay insures that the individual will be able to select the training and even the location of assignment upon entry.

Upon entering the active Army, the individual will undertake basic training learning skills such as drill and ceremonies, marksmanship, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Completion of basic training is but the first step. After graduation, the individual will be assigned for training in a specialty field.

Rorick has met the qualifications and elected to receive training as a materiel supply specialist.

He is a 1980 graduate of Coahoma High School.

'Dawn Patrol' for Balkus

LINCOLN, Neb. — Air National Guard S-Sgt. David M. Balkus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Balkus of 5403 S. 53rd St., Omaha, Neb., is a member of the Nebraska Air National Guard which recently returned from the annual North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) exercise "Dawn Patrol '80."

The exercise involved photo reconnaissance missions over central and eastern sections of the Mediterranean Sea. The exercise is designed to promote improved coordination and cooperation of multi-national forces and to demonstrate a readiness to deter aggression along the southern flank of NATO influences.

His wife, Evette, is the daughter of Julian Fisher of Big Spring, Texas.

Pvt. Coleman is training

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo. — Pvt. Richard J. Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Coleman, 561 Hoser Road, Big Spring, Texas, is attending basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

During the training, students receive instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Choir to be featured at special

Another in a series of Starlight Special programs, which are sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Council of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, will be staged in the amphitheatre of Comanche Trail Park starting at 9 p.m., next Sunday.

This one will feature the choir of the First Assembly of God Church under the leadership of Shirley Ryalls.

A charge of 25 cents will be asked of each person who attends. The money, of course, is used to defray expenses.

Big Spring's own recording artists, the Wesley and Dorothy Pearce Family, were featured in a Starlight Special show Friday evening. The crowd was relatively small but the western-style singing program was well received.

Several requests from the audience were sung by the Pearce family, including an old-time favorite, "In the Shady Green Pastures".

Stephen Pearce, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Pearce, was outstanding in his rendition of "I'll Rise Again," a song written by Dallas Holmes.

Trustees meet here Tuesday

Members of the Howard College board of trustees will consider the appointment of a college auditor and the adjustment of the property assessment percentage when they meet in regular session at 12:30 p.m., Tuesday in the board room at the college.

The trustees will discuss the employment of several people, including an Agriculture teacher, personnel for the deaf college, which opens as an adjunct to Howard College this fall; an assistant librarian and a director of the Adult Basic Education Program.

Officials will, in addition, take a look at a preliminary budget for the 1980-81 school year and consider bids on the coliseum sign, several college vehicles and equipment for the deaf college. Resignations from the staff will also be reviewed.

The trustees will adjourn after hearing a report from the college president, Dr. Charles Hays.

Union leader key figure in FBI Brilab operation

HOUSTON (AP) — There is a common thread weaving its way through the indictments against four Texans in the FBI Brilab undercover operation.

That thread that apparently holds the legal cloth together is L.G. Moore, a burly, beefy man who seldom smiles, seldom talks, and once carried a gun and a motorcycle chain in his briefcase during union organizing meetings.

He is an imposing figure, standing 6-foot-4 with 250 pounds distributed on a frame that would be better placed in a professional football uniform than a three-piece business suit.

On his earlier arrival to testify before a federal grand jury probing alleged insurance kickback schemes — nicknamed "Brilab" as a contraction of bribery-labor — Moore never looked right nor left.

After his indictment on charges of fraud, conspiracy and racketeering, he arrived at the U.S. Marshal's office, silent, his face a blank, unpainted wall.

Also named in this, the first of the indictments to come from the Brilab operation, was Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and two Austin attorneys, Randall B. Wood and Donald W. Ray.

But it was Moore, the regional director for the Operating Engineers International Union, that from the start had been the mystery man of the case.

In the indictment, more than 20 overt acts were listed, including nine meetings and 13 telephone calls.

Moore attended seven of the meetings and was involved in 11 of the telephone calls, according to the indictment. Speaker Clayton allegedly was involved in only three meetings and one telephone call.

Based in the indictment, here is a scenario of the events involving Moore, Clayton and the others that culminated Thursday when the indictment was filed.

It began in October. Moore met with the lawyers, Wood and Ray. Then he saw Clayton and called the office of the two attorneys. The meeting had been "super," he told them.

On Nov. 8 Moore and Joseph Hauser, an FBI informant, met with the House speaker and Clayton accepted $5,000 from the Houston labor leader.

Clayton later said he thought the money was only a campaign contribution and that he had put it in a safe place, intending to return it to Moore at a later date.

At this same meeting, the indictment claims, Clayton agreed to receive an additional $600,000 if a $70 million-a-year state employee insurance program was awarded to a firm Hauser claimed he represented.

Moore met with Wood again on Dec. 7 and then called what happened to be an FBI undercover agent in Beverly Hills, Calif.

On Jan. 3 Moore met with Ray and Wood in Houston and then made another call to Beverly Hills — listed as the office of Hauser's firm but actually an FBI front.

On Jan. 15, the labor leader made two more calls to Austin. First to Clayton, then to Ray.

On Feb. 1, Clayton met with Wood and Ray and that same day Moore called long-distance from Houston to talk with the attorneys.

It was, according to the indictments, always Moore checking in by telephone or in personal meetings.

Before his indictment, Moore told a Houston reporter that he had been duped "by the slickest, sweetest, nicest con man I've ever met."

Moore said at that time he was guilty only of "being a political person. That's my only crime in this case."

The person that Moore described as the super con man was Hauser.

Moore said, "This is really scary. Do you realize what happened to me can happen to you and anyone else. They can tap your phones, record all your conversation. How safe is anyone today from such tactics by the government?"

Mike Ramsey, attorney for Moore, said the indictment was "weird and reads like a conversation between the U.S. Attorney's office and a bottle of wine."

Ramsey said Moore would plead "absolutely, unequivocally not guilty."

Ron Woods, an assistant U.S. attorney, said the grand jury would be returning next month and that more indictments were possible.

Woods refused to elaborate. Moore has long been active in Texas politics. He worked hard for Democrat John Hill in Hill's unsuccessful bid for governor.

A native of Nacogdoches where his parents lived on a dirt farm in the piney woods of East Texas, Moore worked his way to the top of the labor movement and was appointed in 1975 by then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe to the Texas Amusement Commission.

Later, he was named to the Texas Constitutional Revision Commission.

Both Clayton, 51, and Moore have asked for a speedy trial.

They will appear for arraignment in Houston June 20.

MIKE WINGER

Winger gains DQ promotion

Mike Winger has been named an area supervisor for Dairy Queen of West Texas, Inc., with primary responsibility for the operation of four of the corporation's DQ restaurants — three in Big Spring and one in Stanton.

A native of Athens, Greece, Winger comes to Dairy Queen from H.I.S. Pizza Corporation, where he served as a lead manager in Burnet and Llano. He is a graduate of Robert E. Lee High School in Midland and studied business management at Midland College.

Winger also is a member of the Optimist, Chamber of Commerce and is a sponsor, coach and player in softball leagues. He and his wife Kelly live at 801 Marcy, in Big Spring.

Announcement of Winger's appointment comes from James L. Utley of Abilene, executive vice-president and chief operating officer of Dairy Queen of West Texas, Inc., and from E.G. (Gene) Bland of Abilene, vice-president of operations for the company.

The Chapman organization is the largest independent operator of Dairy Queen restaurants in the world, and its corporations also include Dairy Queen of Taylor County, Inc., Dairy Queen of Central Texas, Inc., and Taco Plaza of West Texas, Inc.

Cantebury given 1,000 stock shares

A gift of 1,000 shares of common stock in the Tom Brown Inc., Oil Company has been presented to Canterbury, the retirement center for senior citizens. It came from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Brown.

Canterbury is owned and maintained by St. Mary's Episcopal Church of Big Spring.

The Rev. Harland Birdwell, who acknowledged the gift, said it came at a most appropriate time, since the board of directors is thinking in terms of expanding the Canterbury facilities. Canterbury, according to Birdwell, has a long waiting list of persons seeking apartment space.

Value of the stock at the time the gift was made was $46,000.

Mrs. Brown is the former Rosalynne Craig, a one-time St. Mary's parishoner and an ex-resident of Big Spring.

Birdwell also revealed that Howard Quander of New York, who is affiliated with the U.S. Episcopalian Church and who works with this type program, will be in Big Spring July 11 to help plan the addition to Canterbury. St. Mary's has acquired property immediately north of its present location, where the expansion likely will be undertaken.

The Canterbury addition could at least double the size of the present facility.

BLAGG ORDAINED — The Rev. James Blagg, (right), deacon in St. Mary's Episcopal Church here, was ordained into the Sacred Order of Priests in a ceremony held at the local church Saturday morning. The Rev. Mr. Blagg, who has been in training here the past week, is shown accepting the traditional Holy Scripture from the Rev. Harland Birdwell, pastor of St. Mary's Church. Blagg will take a short vacation before moving to Monahan where he will serve as pastor of churches in both Monahan and Kermit.

Gonzales named to Dean's List

ALPINE — William Gonzales Jr. of Big Spring was named to the Dean's List at Sul Ross State University for the 1980 spring semester.

According to Dr. Earl Elam, vice president for Academic Affairs, undergraduate students who have been enrolled for as many as 15 semester hours during the previous semester and have earned a grade point average of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 scale are named to the list each semester.

Gonzales earned a grade point average of 3.2.

Conquest of Central Asia paved Russia's way to Moslem world

Editor's Note: As recently as a century ago Russia did not border on Afghanistan. The territory that gives the Soviet Union and Afghanistan a common boundary was taken in a Russian imperial drive south in the 1800s. The Soviet move into Afghanistan late last year seems to have continued that campaign, which was czarist Russia's last great land conquest.

WASHINGTON — In Tashkent in the heart of what was once ancient Turkestan, the old men in turbans still gather in the park on Sunday afternoons to cook pilaf, sip green tea, sit cross-legged, and talk for hours.

In the Moslem cities of Samarkand, Bukhara, and Khiva, centuries-old blue-tiled mosques, mausoleums, and minarets still cast dome-shaped shadows toward Mecca. And colorful Asian bazaars and markets are still crowded with stalls selling lush melons, grapes, spices, and shashlik (lamb shish kebab).

But the places where these predominantly Turkic people carry on their old ways are now part of the modern Soviet state.

A rich and tangled history has turned this Central Asian area into a crossroads for the enduring influence of Islam, the sustaining heritage of ethnic nationalities, superimposed with the 20th-century Soviet motherland.

Today its population is the fastest growing in the Soviet Union. It has the largest number of Moslems, a wealth of natural resources, and gives Moscow access to Asia and the Third World.

Tied to the Soviet industrial state for their material well-being, its people are bound to the Moslem world by blood, religion, history, custom, and language.

The conquest that first brought these forces together and eventually took Russia to the current borders of Iran and Afghanistan resembles the saga of America's Old West.

While the U.S. cavalry was galloping across the American West, on the other side of the world Russian czarist troops were capturing frontier lands of their own, marching south into the vast, empty plains of Central Asia.

The imperial conquest of lands once ruled by Alexander the Great, Genghis Khan, and Central Asia's own warrior Tamerlane was considered as inevitable as the "manifest destiny" of America's Old West. "Russia was as much compelled to go forward as the earth is to go round the sun," one 19th-century British scholar commented.

Like their U.S. Army counterparts, Russian generals erected forts to protect frontiers and set up advance posts to defend the forts — in a leapfrog pattern that each time gobbled up another few thousand square miles of territory and pushed the frontier line deeper into Central Asia.

By the end of the 19th century the imperial drive that began in military force with Peter the Great in the early 18th century had amassed a tremendous territory, nearly half the size of the continental United States. When the rival British, nervous about their own interests to the south, protested, the Russian government in the late 19th century declared: "Russia repeats that Afghanistan is outside of her sphere of influence."

The expansion of the empire south into Central Asia was halted at the Persian, Afghan, and Chinese borders. It marked the last great land conquest of czarist Russia and set the boundary for today's Soviet Central Asia.

By crossing that border into Afghanistan on a military conquest, the Soviet Union appears to have picked up where its czarist predecessors left off. From Afghanistan, Western observers point out, it is just 300 miles across Pakistan to the Arabian sea and a long-sought warm-water port.

Central Asia — sparsely settled in czarist times with sheep- and horse-grazing nomads in the north and sedentary oasis dwellers in the south — had long been the path to riches elsewhere.

For centuries the great camel caravans crossed its soil on the Silk Road linking Europe and China. When Peter the Great first dispatched Russian troops there, he was seeking a route to India and the riches of the East.

Russia contended that her early drive into Central Asia was not for foreign conquest, but to protect her trade routes, defend caravans against raiding tribes, and stabilize her frontier. Orenburg, Troitsk, Petropavlovsk, and Semipalatinsk were Russia's early Fort Laramies.

More than a century passed before the final imperial campaign south. Russia had been distracted by the lure of expansion into Siberia and of domination of southeastern Europe in the Crimea. But when defeated in the Crimea, Russia decided to retrieve some lost prestige by making this last — rather easy — conquest of Central Asia.

The taking of Tashkent, a trading center strategically situated at the crossroads of the routes to India, Southeast Asia, and China, was the key to ultimate victory.

On June 15, 1865, Russian troops — with the chaplain of the Fourth Orenburg Line Battalion leading what resembled a holy crusade — successfully stormed Islamic Tashkent. One by one the Moslem cities of Samarkand, Bukhara, and Khiva fell under Russian control, Samarkand almost without a shot being fired.

The imperial conquest did not cost Russia much in either manpower or money. "By that time Central Asia was strangely stagnant," explained Dr. Edward Allworth of Columbia University, a Central Asian scholar, "and this was one of the main reasons why the Russians got in so easily."

"There was a tremendous isolation among the Central Asian leaders who sat in Bukhara and Khiva and other cities and didn't know about the outside world or want to know about it. For reasons that nobody can quite understand, they didn't arm themselves although modern weapons had been used against them for centuries."

And there was no one on the outside to stop the Russians. "This was a colonial time," Allworth recalled. "England was in southern Asia. France was in Africa. Portugal was everywhere. Everybody was grabbing country after country, and there was nobody to stand up and point an accusing finger."

"For all its baseness and Slavonic dirt, Russian domination is a civilizing element... on Central Asia," Friedrich Engels wrote Karl Marx in 1851. His words have often been invoked, even today, to justify Russian action in Central Asia.

Under czarist Russia, Central Asia was treated like a colonial possession. The Russians interfered very little in the cultural affairs of the conquered people and generally maintained a hands-off policy toward Islam, believing it was the force around which they might unite.

On the plains in the north, however, the migratory way of life of the people was totally disrupted. Between 1896 and 1916, more than a million Russian settlers moved in, squeezing the Kazakhs, Kirgiz, and others off their grazing lands in the same way that the American Indians were crowded off their hunting grounds.

After the Soviet takeover in the 1920s, the colonial relationship continued, "but with a great difference," Allworth pointed out. "The new regime intruded itself into every aspect of local life: social, cultural, economic, and political."

Islam was driven out as a formal functioning religious institution. The veil was removed from the faces of women. The people's written Arabic alphabet was replaced first with Roman and later with the Cyrillic used by Russians. Marxism and Leninism were inserted into every walk of life.

A policy of ethnic segregation was imposed. The Central Asians were split up into five union republics based on ethnic origin: the Turkic Uzbeks, Kazakhs, Turkmens, and Kirgiz, and the Iranian Tajiks.

"The creating of ethnic division that is going on in Afghanistan today follows this pattern closely," Allworth pointed out.

The Soviet regime has bestowed universal education and economic stability on the Central Asians. Although there was a Moslem school system as far back as the 10th century, it provided only a broad primary education, with just a small, privileged group that was highly educated. The Soviets now claim complete literacy among Central Asians under the age of 50.

Moscow has changed the physical face of Central Asia by building a centrally organized industry around its vast natural resources — oil, natural gas, iron ore, coal, and minerals. It has supplied on a large scale the one precious resource the region lacked: water.

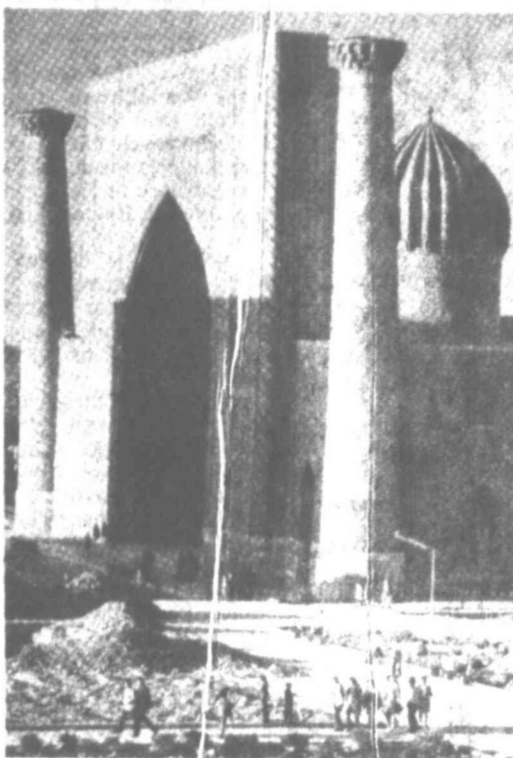

The Soviets have constructed hundreds of miles of irrigation canals, including the world's longest, running more than 600 miles through the Kara Kum desert. The once parched land has become the U.S.S.R.'s leading producer of cotton.

To solve the chronic water shortage problem, they are considering a staggering plan to divert some of the north-flowing rivers of Siberia south into Central Asia.

Central Asia is the home of the Soviet Union's main spacecraft launching site and the ice-skating complex where its Olympic stars train. In recent years, Moscow has promoted the ancient Moslem cities as tourist attractions.

But signs of the old colonialism remain.

Soviet Central Asia

An East-West crossroads, Soviet Central Asia still shows signs of its Islamic and ethnic roots. A mosque in Tashkent, Uzbekistan, theological seminars in Samarkand and a reminder that Central Asia is the home of most of the U.S.S.R.'s Moslems. Near by old nomadic regional customs, superimposed on a soil that doubles as table and chair. Bundled babies in Tashkent. Pedicars to stoke boost the population explosion among Central Asian nationals. Near the fastest growing parts of the Soviet Union.

U.S. not only nation with economic woes

Carter, others to work up cure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and leaders of six other nations plan to devise a 1980s treatment for their countries' economic ills at next weekend's summit conference in Venice. It may provide sugar coating for some bitter pills.

There has been speculation for weeks that Carter and the other leaders might postpone the June 22-23 economic summit meeting because of mounting disagreements among them on a variety of issues, including sanctions against Iran and relations with the Soviet Union in the wake of the Afghanistan intervention.

However, U.S. officials say there is more to be gained than lost by holding the summit as scheduled. One official said privately that postponing it could place the future of summitry in jeopardy.

The main reason for the summit is to help provide international backing to individual leaders seeking support for unpopular policies at home, one official said.

"They provide collective reinforcement for actions which are tough to take domestically," he said. As an example, he cited policies that lead to higher unemployment.

"That's an unfortunate cost of the period of tight money and monetary and fiscal policy," he said.

Carter will leave Thursday for Europe. Prior to the summit, he will make stops in Rome and the Vatican, where he meets Saturday with Pope John Paul II. After the conference, the president plans visits to Yugoslavia, where he will lay a wreath on the grave of Marshal Tito, and to Spain and Portugal before returning home June 26.

Italy has been plagued by terrorism and security for the summit is extremely tight, with frogmen helping provide underwater security in the canals of Venice. Besides the United States, the conference will be attended by France, Germany, Great Britain, Canada, Italy and Japan. All will be represented by their heads of government or state except Japan, which will send its foreign minister because of the death last week of Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira. In an interview with Italian journalists, the text of which was released Friday, Carter sought to play down the nations' differences.

Referring to the summit as a "conference of democracies," Carter said,

"This is not a Warsaw pact where there are dominant forces there from the Soviet Union; this is a matter of free exchange."

"Obviously in a democracy an open discussion of issues quite often creates the impression of disharmony."

THE GROWING THREAT — Triangles mark the volcanoes in or near the Cascade Range, the area shown in white. Solid triangles designate volcanoes that have erupted in the last 200 years and still show signs of thermal activity.

Dead have come back to life

Mountain-sized time bombs waiting in Cascade range

By SUSAN LOTH
National Geographic
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Mount St. Helens may not be the only one to blow its stack. "All of the Cascade volcanoes will erupt again," says Dr. Richard Fiske, a volcanologist and director of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. "But when they will erupt is the question. They're all considered active."

Sometimes people mistakenly refer to a volcano as extinct when it's merely dormant. Fiske explained, "It's always difficult to know whether a volcano is dead," he said. "Generally, if we look at it and it hasn't erupted for hundreds of thousands of years or millions of years, somebody might pronounce it dead."

"But many allegedly dead volcanoes have come back to life." The Cascade Mountain Range of the western United States is peppered with volcanoes. Washington state's Mount St. Helens and California's Lassen Peak, which erupted from 1914-21, are the only two that have exploded this century in the 48 contiguous states. But Mounts Baker, Rainier, Hood, and Shasta also have erupted in the last few hundred years. That's a long time by human standards but not so long in the life of a volcano.

There is evidence of heat inside all six of these volcanoes, as well as others in the Cascades, according to Fiske.

The hot sulphur spring at Mount Shasta, the steam vents at many volcanoes, and the hydrogen sulphide emissions at Mount Hood and Mount Adams are all examples of this thermal activity.

Scientists haven't yet come up with a crystal ball that can tell which volcanoes will explode and when. But they are getting better at the forecasts.

In 1975 Dwight R. Crandell, Donal R. Mullineux, and Meyer Rubin of the U.S.

Geological Survey predicted that Mount St. Helens was the Cascade volcano most likely to reawaken from dormancy.

"We had predicted Mount St. Helens would erupt within 100 years," said Crandell. "But then we went out on a limb and said 'before the end of the century.'"

Predicting a volcano's future is based largely on its past — what Crandell and his colleagues call the "geologically recent time" of the last 11,000 or 12,000 years.

One reason they expected trouble from Mount St. Helens, for instance, is that it has been the most active and the most explosive of the Cascade volcanoes in the last 4,500 years. It's also the youngest — another indicator that there may be more eruptions ahead. Its last eruption before this spring was in 1857.

For many years, USGS scientists have been studying evidence from old eruptions in or near the Cascades. By finding out what came out of the volcano, how often, and how far it traveled, they have been able to map out the areas of the western United States most likely to be affected by lava flows, mudflows, flooding, and ashfall.

The maps show that eruptions similar to the largest in the last 12,000 years could endanger tens of thousands of people.

A mudflow from Mount Rainier about 5,000 years ago covered more than 300 square kilometers of southern Puget Sound. Thousands of people live there now in communities southeast of Tacoma, Wash. And flooding from a large eruption at Rainier could reach as far north as Seattle.

Oregon's Mount Hood has been better behaved than Rainier or St. Helens in the last 15,000 years. But it could send mudflows and floods

Heat, pressure, lava and ash help give volcano its punch

Volcano — the word goes back to Roman times. People then believed that Vulcano, a volcanic island in the Mediterranean Sea, was the entrance to the world of the ancient Roman god of fire.

"Volcano" is defined as both the opening in the earth's crust that emits hot rock, and the hill or mountain formed by the ejected matter.

What causes the earth to open up and spit enough material to make a mountain? Deep beneath its surface, the earth is extremely hot. When allowed by a crack in the earth's crust to expand and liquefy, this superheated rock moves upward along narrow fissures.

Just a few miles below the surface, the hot rock — or magma — usually collects in a reservoir, where pressure builds. It is this "magma chamber" that feeds the volcano. Sometimes the gas in the magma chamber gathers so much pressure that when it finally bursts free it produces a violent explosion.

The rock spewed forth is called lava, whether it emerges as a solid or a liquid. If it comes out as liquid, as in Hawaiian volcanoes, it is called lava flow, but if it is solid, it is termed lava rock.

Mount St. Helens has emitted quantities of pyroclastic material, named from the Greek words meaning fire-broken. Pyroclastic material is rock blown out in fragments that solidify or partly solidify before reaching the ground. Initial eruptions usually belch clouds of gas-bearing rock fragments, blobs of molten matter called volcanic bombs, and brown, gray, or black ash. The ash gives the volcano its column of "smoke."

A volcano is considered active when, based on its history, it appears likely to erupt again someday, while an extinct volcano long has ceased signs of activity. A dormant volcano is an active one in a state of sleep.

An active volcano's slumber can last so long that it appears extinct. Helgafjell on Heymaey Island off the coast of Iceland, dormant an estimated 7,000 years, erupted without warning on Jan. 23, 1973, opening a 1½-mile-long crack in the island.

Volcanoes take many forms, but four main types stud the Cascade Range, home of Mount St. Helens, according to the book "Fire and Ice: The Cascade Volcanoes" by Stephen L. Harris. They are:

Cinder cones — Built entirely of pyroclastic rock, the volcanic fragments composing them resemble cinders. The black and orange mass of Lava Butte near Bend, Ore., is an example.

Shield — Usually much larger than a cinder cone, a shield volcano is built by a succession of fluid lava flows. A shield volcano looks like a warrior's shield laid

Voice of volcano heard in the East

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Late on the night of May 18 research meteorologist Walter Hoecker heard the news that Mount St. Helens finally had made good on her threats.

But several hours earlier — at 2:50 p.m. local time — an instrument that detects sound waves in Hoecker's Silver Spring, Md., office already had found out. In three hours and 20 minutes the volcano's voice had crossed the United States.

The instrument, a sensitive microbarograph, was developed by the U.S. Bureau of Standards to measure atomic bomb blasts, natural explosions, and weather phenomena. Hoecker and a co-worker, both employees of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, operate the microbarograph as a hobby, mostly using it to track thunderstorms.

But the waves that Hoecker saw on the instrument when he went to work the next morning weren't made by any thunderstorm. On the paper that runs constantly under a pen were five irregularities, registered at five-minute intervals. Each irregularity represents a sound wave, Hoecker says, all caused by that one mighty blast.

"In a way it was a surprise that the blast was large enough to be recorded here," he said.

It was not a surprise to Dr. William Donn of the Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory. Donn now estimates, based on sound waves, that the volcano's force was equal to 10 to 15 million tons of TNT — 500 times more powerful than the bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

It took the sound waves 10 minutes longer to reach the sensitive microbarograph at Donn's Palisades, N.Y., laboratory. After studying the recorded waves, Donn and a colleague turned to the files to compare the volcano's energy with other explosions, including 30 years of nuclear testing.

"Some volcanoes in the past have been much bigger than nuclear explosions," Donn explained. "They're almost always at least equal to a killer-type of nuclear blast."

The scientists concluded that Mount St. Helens' eruption was indeed a big boom, bigger than most bombs that have been detonated by the United States and the Soviet Union. The energy it released compared precisely to a U.S. hydrogen bomb test on Bikini Island in the Pacific in 1944.

It was not, however, the biggest blast ever created by a volcano. The eruption of Indonesia's Krakatau in 1883, for example, let loose the energy equivalent of 100 million tons of dynamite, according to Donn.

Although the sound waves put out by Mount St. Helens probably traveled around the world, Donn said it is possible they skipped over people standing close by.

"If all the sound that broke out was directed to the north, someone to the south might not have heard it all," he said.

To reduce the threat, they called for land-use zoning in high risk areas and careful site selection for dams and power plants. The authors conceded, however, that a volcanic eruption in the Cascades remains an unusual happening.

They estimated the chance of a small eruption somewhere in the Cascades at 1 in 100 for any given year.

Chiles, Vines take Country Club lead

The team of Vice Vines-Leland Chiles teamed for a round of 65 to take the first round lead in the annual Big Spring Country Club Partnership.

Their round gave them a two-stroke advantage entering today's final day over a pair of teams. Those teams are Jimmy Newsom-Jim Newsom and Steve Whiteside - Randy Geselman, who fired four-under pars 67.

Numerous teams remained in contention for the lucrative title, which will have a payoff of over 750 dollars to the first place team in both the scratch and handicap divisions.

Four teams had rounds of 68, while five duos had rounds of 69 to maintain slim chances at the title.

Last year's champions, Howell Martin-Mike Weaver, all but shot their ways out of the championship race in carding a round of 72.

The pair of Harold Davis-

Dick Pfeiffer carded a 63 to take the lead in the handicap division.

But they enjoy only a one-stroke advantage over Paul Shaffer-Eddie Houser, who had a 64.

Four teams had rounds of 65 in the handicap division, with six teams tied for fourth place with rounds of 66.

Action concludes today with the handicappers teeing off at nine this morning and the scratch linksters starting at 2:00 p.m.

CO-LEADERS — Jack Nicklaus and Isao Aoki of Japan smile as they walk off the 18th green Saturday at the U.S. Open in Springfield, N.J., as co-leaders in the tourney. They finished the third round with a total score of six under par 204.

US Open set for dramatic finale

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Isao Aoki of Japan birdied the last two holes and tied struggling Jack Nicklaus for the lead after the third round Saturday in the 80th U.S. Open golf championship.

Aoki, a slender 37-year-old and a veteran international golfer, putted his way to a third consecutive 2-under-par 68 and a 204 total, six shots under par.

Nicklaus, playing with Aoki in the final twosome, squandered a 2-stroke advantage with some shoddy putting down the stretch. He finished with a round of par 70 and a share of the top spot.

It set up a dramatic confrontation for Sunday's final round of the most prestigious of all the world's tests of golfing greatness.

On the other hand is Aoki, by far the finest player in his country and seeking to become the first Oriental to win one of the game's Big Four titles. Should he do it, it would mark the first time in history that non-Americans had won four consecutive major titles.

On the one hand is Nicklaus, now 40, considered by many as the greatest player of all time. He's trying to cap a comeback from two years of deep frustration with a record-tying fourth American national championship.

But Nicklaus and Aoki, who have played together for three days and will be paired again Sunday, are not alone.

Henderson's shot gives Mets win

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Henderson slammed his first home run of the season, a three-run shot that capped a five-run rally in the ninth inning, giving the New York Mets a 7-6 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday night.

Doug Flynn beat out a bunt single with one out in the ninth, advanced to second on a groundout and came home on Lee Mazzilli's single to cut the Giants' lead to 6-3.

Greg Minton, the second San Francisco pitcher, then walked Frank Taveras on a 3-0 pitch and Claudell Washington singled home Mazzilli to make it 6-4.

Henderson then lofted a 2-1 delivery from reliever Allen Ripley, 1-1, into the Mets bullpen in right field, giving the Mets their eighth victory in 10 games, seven of them coming from behind.

The winner was reliever Jeff Reardon, 4-2, who pitched the ninth.

With Nicklaus failing to take advantage of his opportunities, Lon Hinkle, Keith Fergus, Mark Hayes and Tom Watson — the most dangerous of them all — moved into position.

The long-hitting Hinkle, an easy-going guy who caused such a stir when he discovered a shortcut in last year's Open, birdied the final hole for a 69 that left him one shot behind at 205.

"Whatever will be, will be," he said in a look ahead to Sunday's chase for golf's greatest title. "It's not a matter of who can putt or anything now."

Watson, Fergus and Hayes were another stroke back at 206, only two away.

Watson, a grittily determined man who has supplanted Nicklaus as the leader of world golf over the last three years, birdied four holes in a row on the way to a 67.

"I want to win the tournament," repeated Watson, who has named this title as his goal throughout the season. "I simply want to win it. And I'm in good position to do it tomorrow."

"You can't force it to happen. You have to let it happen. It will be a game of patience."

Hayes finished off his 69 with a eagle 3 on the last hole and Fergus, who once shared the lead this hot, humid day, had a 70.

The only others under par figures for three trips over the 7,076 yards of wooded, rolling hills that make up the lower course at the Baltusrol Golf Club were Lee Trevino and Craig Stadler, a two-time winner this year. But, at 209, they were five strokes back and tied for seventh. Both had a 69, with Trevino closing with an eagle 3.

Co-Ed Slowpitch Tourney slated

The Second Annual Big Spring Alliance Co-Ed Slow Pitch Tournament is slated for June 27-29, and there is a 50-team limit on the three-day affair.

It will be held at Johnny Stone Park, and the entry fee is 60 dollars per team. The entry deadline is Wednesday, June 25.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three teams, with individual trophies given to all members of the first and second place teams. There will also be a MVP to a male and female player.

Teams are limited to 14 players, and five men and five women must be on the field at all times. There is a 55-minute time limit on games, and a 20-run rule after four innings and a 15-run rule after five innings.

Anyone wishing to play should contact one of three people. They are Nadine Teague at the YMCA, Box 1428 (Phone 7-8234), A.W. Robinson at 1425 East Sixth, Apt. 124 (Phone 3-1645) or Don Bussell at P.O. Box 505, Phone 393-5718.

Chamber of Commerce Tourney set June 20

Entries are still being accepted for the Second Annual Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Invitational Slow-Pitch Tournament.

The affair is slated for next weekend, June 20-22, and it will be a double elimination affair open to the first 40 teams.

Entry fee is $60, with the entry deadline being Tuesday, June 17. Those wishing to enter should call John Weeks at 7-8323 or 3-1246.

Individual awards will be presented to the first place team, with the first, second and third place teams all receiving team trophies. There will also be awards for the All-Tournament team, as well as MVP trophy and Home Run trophy.

Each team may have only 16 members, and must bring their own balls. A one-hour time limit is on all games except for the finals of both the winners' and losers' bracket.

Nehemiah, Franklin repeat as champions

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) — World record holder Renaldo "Skeets" Nehemiah showed Saturday that he was back from the injuries that have plagued him most of the year, winning the 110-meter hurdles event at The Athletics Congress Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

The fluid Nehemiah, hampered by a torn cartilage in his left ankle, a "hip tilt" and an Achilles tendon injury in 1980, skimmed over the hurdles in 13.49 seconds in edging Dedy Cooper, the runner-up in 13.56, for his third straight national title.

Rod Milburn, the 1972 Olympic champion who is making a comeback this year after a seven-year absence from amateur competition, finished fourth in 13.76, behind Anthony Campbell of the University of Southern California, timed in 13.70.

Although Nehemiah's time was not close to his world mark of 13.00, he beat some of the best hurdlers in the country. The only major absentee was Greg Foster, the NCAA champion from UCLA. Foster decided to skip the national championships to get ready for next week's U.S. Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore.

Frankline Jacobs of Fairleigh Dickinson University also repeated as champion. The 5-8 1/4 high jumper took his second straight crown, clearing 7 feet, 4 1/4 inches.

Dwight Stones, a five-time national champion, finished third at 7-3.

Like Jacobs, long jumper Larry Myricks became a national champion for the second year in a row. Myricks won in dramatic fashion, soaring 27-1 1/4 on his final attempt.

In the men's 100-meter race, Auburn University freshman Stanley Floyd extended his winning streak to 11 in finals, nipping James Gilkes of Guyana. Both were timed in 10.19 seconds.

Yaz's muscle defeats Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run home run Saturday, the 15th homer by a Boston player in the last seven games, to lead the Red Sox to a 7-3 victory over the California Angels.

Manager Jim Fregosi wasn't around to watch his Angels suffer their 10th loss in 11 games and their 18th in the last 21 games at Anaheim Stadium. He was ejected before the game even began for a rhubarb with umpire Larry Barnett.

Boston's fifth consecutive triumph gave the Red Sox a 30-27 record, the first time they have been three games over .500 this season.

Yastrzemski's sixth home run of the season came off Angel rookie Alfredo Martinez, 1-2, with two out in the third. It brought home Fred Lynn, who had walked to lead off the inning.

Murcer's dramatics stops A's

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Murcer's two-out, two-run homer on a 1-2 pitch from Rick Langford powered the New York Yankees and Ed Figueroa to a 2-1 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Reggie Jackson singled with one out in the ninth for the fourth hit off Langford and Rickey Henderson, the Oakland left fielder, made an outstanding running catch to rob Graig Nettles of an extra-base hit. But then Murcer put the Yankees ahead with his sixth homer of the year, a drive over the right field fence.

Figueroa, 2-2, gave up only three hits through eight innings but left after Henderson led off the ninth with a single. Rudy May and Rich Gossage relieved, with Gossage recording his eighth save.

Langford is 4-6.

Ryan, Astros batter Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nolan Ryan, and three relievers teamed for a seven-hitter and Ryan stroked an RBI single as the Houston Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3 Saturday night.

Rafael Landestoy doubled, tripled and sacrificed a run home for two of Houston's 16 hits. Pirate right-hander Don Robinson, 2-2, got the loss after yielding nine hits and four earned runs in 3 2/3 innings.

Ryan, 45, served up an RBI single to Mike Easler in the fourth inning. Joaquin Andujar relieved Ryan in the seventh and Joe Sambito and Frank LaCorte entered the game in the eighth, when the Pirates scored twice on an RBI single by Dave Parker and a run-scoring grounder by Willie Stargell.

Landestoy led off the first with a double, advanced on walks to Joe Morgan and Jose Cruz and scored on Benny Walling's single.

In the second, consecutive singles by Cesar Cedeno and Alan Ashby set up Ryan's hit which scored Cedeno. Ashby crossed the plate on Landestoy's sacrifice fly.

Houston got one more run in the fourth, when Lan-destoy tripled and raced home on Terry Puhl's groundout.

Cruz's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning scored Puhl, who tripled off Pirate reliever Enrique Romo. The Astros scored their final two runs of the night on Cedeno's homer in the ninth.

Cardinals upend Reds

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ted Simmons doubled home Keith Hernandez with the tying run in the seventh inning and scored one out later on a wild pitch to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds Saturday night.

St. Louis' winning rally developed after Joe Price, a left-hander making his major league debut, han-deduffed the Cards on six hits and two runs through six innings.

Mario Soto, 0-2, relieved Price to start the seventh. Hernandez greeted him with a double to right-center field and scored on Simmons' hit down the right field line. George Hendrick's groundout advanced Simmons to third, and Soto's wild pitch brought home Simmons with the winning run.

Wide open race foreseen

Defending co-champions Arkansas and Houston were picked as the teams to beat again for the 1980 Southwest Conference football championship in a summer poll of league coaches, but at least four other schools were rated talented enough to win it all.

In a poll of SWC coaches compiled by Bill Morgan and Tom Turbeville of the SWC office with the help of sports information directors, there was one unanimous opinion: It could be the wildest of SWC campaigns.

"It will be tough again," said Texas Tech Coach Rex Dockery. "I think Arkansas and Houston will be the preseason favorites" but there are a lot of good teams. Texas should challenge and Baylor is coming off a good season so that should carry over."

Coach F.A. Dry of Texas Christian concluded: "Texas

A&M, Arkansas and Houston, not necessarily in that order, are Top 20 teams. I know everybody will be better but we feel we'll be able to step on the field with the rest of the league."

Thoroughbred runoff needed

WITH THE THREE SO CALLED MAJOR SPORTS (football, basketball and baseball) relying on end of the year championship playoffs to determine a champion, it seems that in this year of wild and crazy horsing around at the Belmont, Preckness and Kentucky Derby, the controversy concerning who is the cream of the crop could be decided in a unique three-horse race, which would appropriately be called a runoff.

In some years, when far superior horses like Secretariat, Seattle Slew, Affirmed and Spectacular Bid steal the show, a runoff wouldn't seem necessary.

But with all three major races for three-year-old thoroughbreds having different winners, a runoff would do nothing to harm the popularity of the sport.

JOHN THOMAS SMITH, former star BSHS athlete who is now making his name in the NFL as a wide receiver-punt returner for Kansas City, will have some new competition in camp this summer.

KENNETH COFFEY, who played football and ran track at BSHS in 1976-78, earned a starting assignment at the strong safety position at Southwest Texas State University during spring drills.

Error proves costly to Rangers in loss

TORONTO (AP) — Texas Rangers relief pitchers pushed their luck once too often Saturday afternoon against the Toronto Blue Jays.

On three previous occasions, Texas pitchers struggled out of bases-loaded jams against the Blue Jays.

With the bases loaded and one out, Damaso Garcia hit a grounder that Bud Harrelson bobbled — allowing the tying run to score.

CHICAGO (AP) — Ivan DeJesus ripped four singles and scored four times while Larry Bittner and Mike Vail each had three hits and three runs batted in Saturday as the Chicago Cubs snapped a four-game losing streak with a 10-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Cubs hammered Phil Niekro, 5-9, for 11 hits and seven runs in the first two innings while Dennis Lamp, 5-5, gained the victory.

they loaded the bases for a fourth time, though, and Toronto responded by punching across two runs for a 7-6 victory.

With the bases loaded and one out, Damaso Garcia hit a grounder that Bud Harrelson bobbled — allowing the tying run to score.

CHICAGO (AP) — Ivan DeJesus ripped four singles and scored four times while Larry Bittner and Mike Vail each had three hits and three runs batted in Saturday as the Chicago Cubs snapped a four-game losing streak with a 10-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Cubs hammered Phil Niekro, 5-9, for 11 hits and seven runs in the first two innings while Dennis Lamp, 5-5, gained the victory.

For young athletes and MDA

Sportstacular proves a success

The local version of the Bob Griese ERA-Sportstacular ended a successful morning on Saturday with an awards ceremony in which many young athletes received medals for their performances.

The Sportstacular, sponsored in Big Spring by ERA Reeder's, drew over 40 participants and raised some much needed money toward the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The drive to raise the funds is not officially over, however, as the athletes must now collect the pledges that various sponsors throughout town offered in reference to their performance, and also have a chance to raise more money for the charitable organization in hopes of winning one of the five grand prizes.

First prize for the most donations will be a bicycle, which was donated by Big Spring Hardware. Second prize will be a 20 dollar gift certificate from Big Spring Athletics, with third prize being a bulletin board from Gamco Industries. Fourth prize is 10 movie passes to the Big Spring Movie Theaters, with fifth prize being 10 ice cream cones at Baskin Robbins.

Those participants that need to turn money this week for the MDA are reminded that Friday, June 20 is the cutoff date. Donations should be turned in at Reeder's, which is located at 506 East Fourth.

Prizes will be given on Friday, June 20 at Reeder's at 10:30 a.m. Youngsters competed in as many as 10 events in the competition. 50 points were awarded for entering each event, with 25 points for a first place, 15 for a second place and 10 points for a third. A penny a point is what most sponsors are asked to pledge.

Parents of the athletes that participated yesterday are also reminded that pictures of their children at the presentation ceremony will be available to any of them for a purchase price. All proceeds will go to the MDA.

Lila Estes, Broker-Owner of ERA-Reeder's, and their staff of sales associates, also wished to thank all of the media in Big Spring that helped in promotion for the very worthwhile event, as well as all of the young athletes and parents that made the event possible in hopes of helping curb the fight against muscular dystrophy.

Lundquist takes commanding lead of Denver LPGA

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Dale Lundquist found her putting stroke and shot the best round of her career, a 6-under-par 66, to grab a commanding 4-stroke lead after the third round of a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament Saturday.

The closest golfers to her total of 12-under-par 204 with the final set for Sunday were Beth Daniel, who shot a 70, and Pat Bradley, who had 69. Both were at 208.

Lundquist is in her fourth full year on the tour and never has finished better than a third-place tie. She has won only $9,190 this season, never finishing higher than 18th. But this has been her tournament from the start.

She was the sole leader after the first round with a 68. Her 70 Friday tied her for the second round lead with 1979 rookie-of-the-year Daniel at 6-under-par 138 on the par 72, 6,029-yard Ferncroft course.

Despite boycott, Soviet officials predict record Olympic turnout

MOSCOW (AP) — Despite a boycott by the United States and other major sports powers, Soviet officials predict a record number of entrants in track and field events at the Moscow Summer Olympic Games.

"Traditionally this is the most representative sport. Track and field athletes compete for the biggest number of Olympic medals. In Moscow they will compete in 38 events," the Soviet news agency Tass noted in a report Saturday.

"Around 1,500 athletes, a record number for a modern Olympics, are expected to take part in the track and field tournament," the agency said. Thirteen gold medalists from the 1976 Montreal

Olympics are among "a real constellation of famous track and field athletes" expected at the July 19 to Aug. 3 games, it said.

Among entries in the men's events are sprinters Donald Quarrie of Jamaica and Hasely Crawford of Trinidad and Tobago, middle distance double winner Alberto Juantorena of Cuba, Finnish distance star Lasse Viren, high jumper Jacek Wajola and pole vaulter Tadeusz Slusarski of Poland. Also signed up are Mexico's 20-kilometer walker Daniel Bautista, Miklos Nemeth of Hungary in the javelin, East German shot putter Udo Beyer and Yuri Sedykh of the Soviet Union in the hammer throw.

Women gold medalists who will try to repeat their triumphs at Lenin Stadium are East Germans Ruth Fuchs in discus, Rosemarie Ackermann in the high jump and Soviet runner Tatyana Kazankina, double gold medalist in the 800 and 1,500 meters at Montreal.

A number of other world stars will be trying for their first medals at the Moscow games, Tass said.

Sebastian Coe of Britain, holder of all world records in middle distance events; teammate Daley Thompson, the world record holder in the decathlon; Thierry Vigneron of France, world record pole vaulter; Ethiopian distance runner Mireus Yifter and triple jump record-holder Joao Oliveira of Brazil are among the challengers.

Tass said that the large number of world records at the beginning of the season showed that "competitions will be stiff and the results brilliant" at the Summer Games.

Among the new marks were the 10.87 clocking in the 100 meters by Soviet sprinter Ludmila Kondratyeva, East German Ilona Slupianek's world record effort in the shot put, Hungarian Ferenc Paragi's javelin record and a world record hammer throw by Soviet Sergei Litvinov.

Olympians to play NBA stars

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — America's young Olympic basketball team, which won't be going to the Summer Games in Moscow due to the U.S. boycott, opens a five-game tour against National Basketball Association stars here on Monday.

Expected to lead the Olympians are three players who have just finished their collegiate freshman years, Isaiah Thomas, Sam Bowie and Rod McCray.

Thomas, a 6-foot 2-inch point guard from Indiana, is good enough that former star guard and coach Jerry West terms him "ready for the NBA right now."

Bowie, a center from Kentucky stands 7-1, and McCray is a 6-6 forward from NCAA champion Louisville.

The NBA team includes Elvin Hayes, Moses Malone, George Gervin, Michael Cooper, Marques Johnson and David Thompson.

In battle for life against cancer

Giants linebacker finding a much bigger game

We measure our athletes by statistics. Runs, hits and errors. Yards gained, yards lost. Neat little packages of numbers that don't tell you anything about what goes on inside a man.

But they are more than simple stacks of numbers, these inhabitants of the world of fun and games. They are people, vulnerable human beings. Sometimes, they are too vulnerable. Take, for example, the case of Dan Lloyd, football player.

Until this year, Lloyd was a New York Giants linebacker — not the best one in the National Football League, not an All-Pro, but a capable, talented professional football player. He will not play football this year. He may never again play this game he loves so much.

Last week, Dan Lloyd sat down to discuss quite matter-of-factly the out-of-control multiplication of cells in his body — the lymph node cancer with which he is living.

Lloyd wasn't talking about fumbles or tackles or touchdowns. The usual topics of conversation for a football player. He was talking about living, about the chemotherapy treatments he must undergo daily. He was talking about the nausea the treatment causes, about the headaches, the sapping of his strength, the thinning of his hair and other side effects.

"It's not like taking an aspirin," Lloyd said.

The nightmare began for Dan Lloyd last winter, when he noticed a slight swelling in his neck. He had been lifting weights and thought he might have pulled a muscle. But the lump would not go away and soon it was accompanied by pain, pain severe enough to cause

Lloyd to check with team physicians. That's when the cancer was first diagnosed.

Immediately, chemotherapy began, a treatment program that would last 21 weeks. And almost as soon as he began taking the treatments, Lloyd felt better. The pain subsided and he thought about recovering in time to play football this season.

At Manhattan's Memorial Sloan Kettering Institute, Lloyd got the bad news. The chemotherapy had sent the lymph node cancer into a form of remission. That's why he had been feeling better. But it was unable to check the spread of the cells in Lloyd's spinal column.

Even spinal injections were not reaching the top of the spinal column. So on Wednesday, the treatment advances a step farther. Surgeons will drill a hole in Lloyd's skull, implant a tube, and drain the medication down into the area they must reach.

Lloyd has been encouraged by letters from people he never met, people who have beaten cancer. Perhaps the most important came from Washington Redskins Coach Jack Pardee, who sat out three years because of the disease and then returned to play eight more productive seasons in the NFL.

The cancer diagnosis will not defeat him. He won't let it. All it means is that he can't play football for awhile. But he will sit in on team meetings and think about a future as a football coach.

Decathlon mark broken

FILDERSTADT, West Germany (AP) — Guido Kratschmer of West Germany set a world record in the decathlon Friday and Saturday, scoring 8,649 points and eclipsing the mark held by Briton Daley Thompson by 27 points.

Thompson had scored 8,622 points less than a month ago during a meet at Goetzis, Austria.

Kratschmer, who will miss the Olympic Games because of West Germany's boycott, surpassed Thompson in six of the 10 athletic events. The West German matched the Briton in one event and was below Thompson's marks in the other three disciplines.

The 26-year-old West German had said before the meet he would shoot for the record to prove he was a gold medal contender if his team would participate in the Moscow Games. He racked up 4,460 points on the first day after a tight duel with Juergen Hinzen, a young West German in only his second year of decathlon competition.

Hinzen could not keep the pace on the second day, however, as Kratschmer exploded for a blistering 13.92 seconds in the opening event, the 110-meter hurdles. It was the best time clocked in West Germany in this event this year.

His time already moved him 27 points ahead of Thompson's score during the Briton's record-setting performance in Austria.

Kratschmer kept up his record hunt with 149 feet 4 inches in the discus throw, surpassing Thompson by nearly 1 1/4 feet, opening a 75-point lead.

But the bearded West German also had some frightful moments in the technical events.

He cleared the high jump bar on Friday at 6-6 1/2, slightly below Thompson's mark, and needed two attempts at 14-1 1/4 in the pole vault Saturday before finishing it with 15-1 1/4 against Thompson's 16-1.

Kratschmer's lead had dwindled to four points by then, but the Mainz student captured the record with two strong performances.

FIGHTING FOR LIFE — Dan Lloyd, right, talks with Brad Benson and Calvin Miller at the Giants' camp in Pleasantville, N.Y. last week. The linebacker for the New York Giants has recently learned that he is forced to battle the dread disease of lymphocytic lymphoma — cancer of the lymph nodes.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGGER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 15, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to show appreciation to those who have done favors for you in the past. Maintain a cheerful manner with those you come in contact with now. Express happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take time for meditation early in the day and adopt the right philosophy for the future. Make this a worthwhile day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your relationship with friends and know where they fit best in your future plans. Catch up on your rest today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Seek the company of influential persons who can be helpful in furthering your career. Devote evening to loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to advance with the assistance of important and clever individuals you know. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good time to make plans that could give you more abundance in the days ahead. Don't be taken in by doubtful persons.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan that easy chair and be more active and happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to come to a better understanding with family members. Plan how to show gratitude and increase harmony.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Arrangements with friends you truly like for the recreation you desire. Plan the best ahead so that it becomes more productive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans to improve your status in your line of endeavor. Take note out to charming places in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to study whatever is spiritual and educational. Visit friends and relatives and express happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new methods and ideas that can bring you greater income in the future. Make needed repairs to property.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make the right arrangements for gaining personal aims. The evening is best for being with persons you enjoy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one endowed with artistic talents that could lead to much success in life. Teach to be appreciative of any favors from others and to do something in return to please them. A very fine sport in his chart.

The Stars Impel: they do not compel... What you make of your life is largely up to you!

SAY AH — With his mouth wide open, Los Angeles Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda gets some dental work done by Dr. Maurice Sakland in New York Monday. Lasorda had hardly checked into his New York hotel room Monday morning when the telephone started ringing. A call from Italian Society reminding luncheon in his honor. Old friends wanting to say "hello." Strangers requesting baseballs, caps and other paraphernalia. But he appears happiest when he is doing things for the ordinary people. He's always on the stump.

Lasorda can't forget friends

NEW YORK (AP) — Los Angeles' manager Tommy Lasorda had hardly checked into his New York hotel room Monday morning when the telephone started ringing.

A reminder from Dr. Maurice Sakland about an 11:30 dental appointment. The Italian Society called to say don't forget the luncheon in his honor Tuesday. Old Friends wanting to say "hello." Strangers requesting baseballs, caps and other paraphernalia. Endless club details.

Then there were those two army sergeants from World War II.

"I never shut off my phone," said the ebullient Dodger perennial. "If somebody wants to talk to me, I don't care how trivial, I'll talk to them."

But back to those sergeants: They weren't begging. They were just collecting.

"It's a funny but true story," said Mr. Dodger, who brought his club to town as No. 1 in Division West and bent on reviving the pennant surges of 1977 and 1978 interrupted by a slump last season.

"It's 1945 and I'm doing an army hitch at Fort Meade, Md. I go up to my master sergeant and ask for a weekend pass.

"Naw, nothing doing," he said.

"I said, 'If you give me a pass I'll give you two tickets to a major league game when I get out."

"The sarge was skeptical. He asked what major league team I played for. I told him I pitched for Concord in the North Carolina State League.

"The North Carolina State League!" he blurted, almost falling off his chair. But he seemed amused at my gall. I got the pass.

"A couple of weeks later I repeated the request. 'Not again,' the sergeant said. But he gave me the pass. Before I was through, I had hustled him out of about 10 weekend passes."

Eleven years passed. Lasorda, a left-handed pitcher, had paid his minor league dues — Concord, Dover, Schenectady and mostly Montreal — and put in a couple of inauspicious years with the Dodgers before landing with Kansas City in 1966.

Then Kansas City's swung into Boston for a series with the Red Sox. An obscure pitcher on the roster didn't forget.

"I knew my old master sergeant, Lou Rinaldi, lived in Springfield, Mass., Lasorda said, "I got the hotel operator to put in a call. 'Sarge,' I said, 'guess who this is? This is Lasorda from Fort Meade. Come on over and you can get those tickets."

"He came. Since then, I have repaid those weekend pass debts 10 times over."

Scheduled for a ticket to tonight's game with the Mets was another sergeant, a Lasorda war buddy.

"He was my barber in the service," Lasorda explained with unbridled relish. "Sure, I made crazy deals with him for haircuts just like I promised tickets to my uncle who owns a restaurant in my hometown, Norristown, Pa. How do you think I got all those hot Italian sandwiches?"

"I can't say 'no.' I'm a bleeding heart."

He bleeds Dodger blue.

Red Grange has celebration 77

INDIAN LAKE, Fla. (AP) — Harold "Red" Grange, football's spectacular "Galloping Ghost" who once raced for four touchdowns in 12 minutes, matched his old jersey number Friday. He turned 77.

He tried to celebrate quietly. But the telephone wouldn't let him. Calls poured in steadily from friends and fans of the University of Illinois standout, who helped change pro football into a major sport.

"I planned to stay home and have a bottle of champagne with my wife. But all I've been doing is answering the telephone — and trying to smile," he chuckled. "You know you're a year older."

During the 1920s the blasting speed and electrifying performances of the brilliant Chicago Bears halfback catapulted the game for deep inside sports sections to front-page headlines across the country.

"Yes, I think I brought some attention to the game," he said modestly.

At New York's Polo Grounds in 1925, where an average crowd was fewer than 20,000 fans, Grange packed in 65,000 when Chicago played the Giants. And for the first time, four ROLLS THIRD 300 — Ruby Thomas, a south-paw from Abilene, recently rolled the third 300-game of her career in the final round of the Big Country Travelling League, of which some Big Spring ladies compete in.

SWC coaches conclude theirs is the toughest

Texas A&M Coach Tom Wilson said "I believe that the Southwest Conference is the toughest league in the nation today, so every conference game will be like a war. Houston, Texas, and Arkansas are the three that most folks will favor. But don't sell any team short."

Texas Fred Akers said "Arkansas, with its returning experience, is a clear-cut choice. I don't know how to rate 'em but Houston has a lot of talent returning as does A&M, SMU, Baylor and ourselves."

SMU Coach Ron Meyer said "I think Texas A&M and Houston should be considered the favorites."

Rice Coach Ray Alborn said "I think it will be more of a dogfight this year than it has been recently with it coming down to two teams in the final analysis — Houston and Arkansas."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman picked Arkansas, saying, "This year's race should be similar to last year."

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said "I'd pick Houston with Texas, Arkansas and Texas A&M pushing. The rest of us are capable of jumping into the thick of the race."

Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz added, "Houston, Texas and Texas A&M should be outstanding. Baylor took us to the wire last year and Tech and SMU should be in the hunt. TCU almost beat us and Rice keeps getting better."

"You can't take anything for granted. The Southwest Conference is the toughest in the country."

Play begins Sept. 1 with Arkansas at Texas in a nationally televised game to kick off the 1980s for collegiate football.

ERA introduces the first risk-free way to buy or sell your home.

When you buy a new house before you sell your old one a lot of things can happen.

Most of them are bad. You might end up with double mortgage payments. You might lose a lot of money when you have to sell at a distressed price. You might even be forced to move and be separated from your family.

The problem is there's never been any other way to do it. Until now.

Until ERA introduced the unique new Sellers Security Plan.

Now you can use your home's equity before you sell. And you can avoid double house payments. And you can be sure your house will sell at a price you can live with.

Now there's the Sellers Security Plan. The first risk-free way to buy before you sell.

For more details, contact your local ERA Real Estate Specialist. We're in the Yellow Pages under "real estate".

'Gunsmoke' Doc Adams dies at 75

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) - Actor Milburn Stone, known to millions of television viewers as Doc Adams in the long-running Western series of "Gunsmoke," has died of apparent heart failure at the age of 75. A close friend, producer A.C. Lyles, said the actor died early Thursday at Scripps Memorial Hospital. Stone, who had a coronary bypass operation in 1971, had been ill for a few days.

"He was one of my very dear friends and associates and just the ultimate professional actor," said Dennis Weaver, who as the perpetually complaining deputy Chester joined Doc Adams in numerous checker games. Doc - along with Chester, James Arness's Marshal Matt Dillon, Amanda Blake's saloon keeper Kitty and Ken Curtis's Festus - became one of the most beloved figures in television as "Gunsmoke" played out week after week for 20 years. In 1968, Stone won an Emmy for best supporting actor.

John Mantley, who produced "Gunsmoke" in its final years, called Stone "a marvelous man, a close friend and a splendid actor." "What a legacy all of the people in 'Gunsmoke' will leave behind," Mantley added. "It was seen by 80 million people in this country and in 100 countries around the world. Doc Adams is a figure of love and legend."

By the time the series ended in 1975, Stone once said, the character of the gruff but fatherly medic had become almost a real identity. "Except for my immediate family, Milburn Stone no longer exists," he said. "To everyone else, I'm Doc. Good old Doc Adams. Getting so I have to restrain myself from making house calls."

Viewers found the distinction between actor and physician hard to make, too, and in those days before Dr. Kildare and Marcus Welby M.D., many wrote in asking him for prescriptions for their ailments. He got mail from doctors as well.

"About a dozen wrote telling me I had my stethoscope backward in one episode," he recalled. In between filming, Stone was an equally popular draw on the state fair and rodeo circuit. Weaver recalled traveling with Stone and Miss Blake in the late 50s, and when Weaver left the series, his replacement, Curtis, joined Stone in a comedy act.

When the series ended, Stone and his wife, Jane, built a $300,000 home stocked with western and movie memorabilia in the resort community of Rancho Santa Fe, north of San Diego. Stone was born July 5, 1904, in Burrton, Kan., about 150 miles from "Gunsmoke" locale, Dodge City. He was a good student and was offered an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy. But instead he joined a repertory company and in 1930 entered vaudeville with a song-and-dance act.

Stone's Broadway debut was in the 1932 Sinclair Lewis play, "The Jayhawkers," and two years later he appeared in his first film, "Ladies Crave Excitement."

He appeared in more than 150 movies, including "The Savage," "Arrowhead," "White Feather" and "The Long Gray Line." Stone is survived by his wife and a daughter. Funeral arrangements were not announced immediately.

Sherrad posts $5,000 bond. Jimmy Sherrad, 35, Box 2528, was released Thursday on bond of $5,000 set by a Borden County judge. Sherrad was arrested on suspicion of enticing a minor Wednesday north of Big Spring.

BELL RINGER - Amelia Devine, 96, of Burlingame, Calif., was soliciting donations for the Salvation Army in New York years ago when she thought of ringing a bell to attract more donors. Bell-ringing now has become a hallmark of the Army, which Friday opened a celebration of 100 years in the United States.

Spreading the Word with booming bands

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Displaying a flamboyant old technique, hundreds of Salvation Army soldiers took to the streets Saturday in a large-scale offensive of booming bands and fervent preaching. Open-air evangelism is a time-honored Army tactic, and the robust effusion of it came at the biggest gathering of Salvationists in their 100-year history in America. "Do you know the cleansing power of Jesus?" implored a blue-uniformed young soldier at a shopping center. "Let his love come into your heart. Let the Holy Spirit renew your life with courage and purpose." Red-coated brass bands let forth with throbbing melodies and martial drumbeats, in between the evangelistic appeals and Scripture quotations. Out of the 12,000 Army officers (clergy) and soldiers (laity) gathered from across the country for their National Centennial Congress, about 500 deployed in the evangelistic operation. "We're soldiers marching on the way to heaven and we're going to take everybody with us," said Colin Devautt, a young, uniformed cadet (seminarian) from Dover, Del. "We're going to win the world for Jesus." The sidewalk campaign focused on five shopping centers, with the music and preaching vigorous at each, by women as well as men. Women have had equal rights as officers in the organization from the start, and they clearly outnumbered the men at this turnout. As for talk about the proposed federal Equal Rights Amendment, "our women have had it from the start," said Col. Andrew Miller of Chicago. "Nothing can stop them. They live the ERA." He told a morning rally of men: "Oh, that we men could respond to God as the women respond! Would that we could be equal in service to the word of God... that we could become equal to women in commitment to his work." Led by a chorus, about 4,500 males in the city's Music Hall sang, "Soldier, raise thee! War is raging, God and fiends are battle waging!" Meanwhile, at a women's rally in the adjacent Municipal Auditorium, about 7,500 women heard Mrs. Arnold Brown of London, wife of the international commander, detail women's high place in the Army. Amid the widespread "search for equality stirring in the hearts of women of the world," she said, "we've always known that opportunity was equal for all for loving and serving God and working for fellowship in the human family."

Muppets giving up TV for the silver screen

LONDON (AP) - It looks like curtains for Kermit and his friends as the Muppet network gave up their first big commercial TV break. "But that's not to say that they won't return to TV at some future date," he added, holding out a glimmer of hope to the estimated 235 million fans in 106 countries who adore Miss Piggy and the rest of the Muppet crew. Miller said that as soon as their last TV show is in the can at the end of August, the Muppets will start on the cinema sequel to their blockbuster, "The Muppet Movie," which came out last year. "What went wrong? "Nothing," Miller said. "If anything, too much went right." Henson and his crew reportedly were amazed at the phenomenal box office success of "The Muppet Movie," a gripping tale of Kermit the frog's search for stardom. But when the movie hit big, they knew they were on to something. Now, Miller said, the Muppets want to focus their creative energy on the silver screen and they need their ATV Ellstreet Studio outside London free to shoot the sequel. Henson first obtained the copyright to the word "Muppet" in 1956 after he introduced his custom-made puppet designs on a local Washington, D.C., TV station. Soon Henson and his Muppets became regulars on "The Ed Sullivan Show." The 250-odd Muppet characters went on to feature in the U.S. educational television series "Sesame Street" and millions of American children became addicts. But soon even adults were sneaking a peak because of the Muppets' wisecracks and wit. It was in 1976 that Grade agreed to back the Muppets and help them develop their commercial potential by producing a full season's series of Muppet shows to be sold around the world. The TV shows sent the Muppets' popularity soaring. And in the past five years, a star-studded lineup of special "human" guests have appeared, including Rudolf Nureyev, Milton Berle, Peter Clark, Elton John, Petula Sellers and Diana Ross. Now the cash flows in. One episode of the Muppet TV series is worth an estimated $3 million in worldwide sales.

The TV shows sent the Muppets' popularity soaring. And in the past five years, a star-studded lineup of special "human" guests have appeared, including Rudolf Nureyev, Milton Berle, Peter Clark, Elton John, Petula Sellers and Diana Ross. Now the cash flows in. One episode of the Muppet TV series is worth an estimated $3 million in worldwide sales.

Comedian still critical

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Comedian Richard Pryor spent "a fairly good night," but remained in critical condition Saturday, a hospital spokeswoman said. However, the 39-year-old Pryor, who was severely burned in an accident Monday night at his Northridge home, was buoyed by good wishes and gifts from fans. "Lots of flowers, cards and fruit are coming in for Mr. Pryor," Marilyn Gonzalez, nursing supervisor at Sherman Oaks Community Hospital, said. The Emmy and Grammy winner is in the hospital's burn ward. Police say Pryor was burned when ether being used to make a cocaine derivative exploded, but Pryor's attorney says the accident occurred when a glass of rum caught fire. No evidence of drugs was found in a search of Pryor's home. Pryor received telephone calls from independent presidential candidate John Anderson and from California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s office, as well as fellow performers Johnny Carson and Sammy Davis Jr.

Second payment of estimated taxes due soon, IRS points out. Individuals who do not have enough tax withheld, must make the second installment of estimated 1980 federal income tax no later than Monday, the Internal Revenue Service said. Generally, taxpayers having estimated tax of $100 or more and estimated gross income not subject to withholding exceeding $500 must file from 1040-ES, "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals." Taxpayers who filed estimated income tax last year will receive Form 1040-ES tax packages by mail. The package includes a set of instructions, an estimated tax worksheet, and declaration vouchers, the IRS said. Those persons who do not receive Form 1040-ES tax packages, but are required to file a declaration of estimated tax, may obtain them from local IRS offices. A handy IRS pamphlet, Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax" is available free from local IRS offices.

Don Chandler heads band. COLORADO CITY - Don Chandler has been named band director and music coordinator at Colorado City High School. His annual salary was set at $21,000. Chandler taught at Middle School in Colorado City the past year. He replaces Kent Holder, who resigned to accept a position in Glen Rose. Chandler is a native of Ben Wheeler.

A standard of excellence

BY ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

There once was a day when few knew who they were or what they stood for.

Their presence was often noted at important community functions and people could be heard whispering inquisitively "Who are those classy young ladies in those stylish outfits greeting patrons with such dazzling smiles?"

Steadily their attendance at college and civic affairs became more frequent. Their chic way of dress and their poised mannerisms were locked permanently in the minds of all those with whom they came in contact.

The group's exposure in Big Spring has been but a brief three years, but today Howard College's official student representatives, the Presidential Classics, continue to make their mark in public relations and service to the college and community.

What was once known as the "Presidential What?" has become an organization of notoriety, stature and pride.

Dr. Charles Hays, HC president, once envisioned a dream of having a cadre of quality young ladies represent the college. His dream has been more than fulfilled.

"I've become the envy of all other community college presidents," he commented with pride.

The coveted honor of serving as an HC Presidential Classic is not bestowed upon everyone.

Specific traits, characteristics and qualities are sought when sponsors search for each group of classic coeds.

And 100 per cent quality is the most appropriate way to describe the latest nine young ladies recently selected to serve as College Classics, each with enough charm to hypnotize a rattlesnake and enough style to make anyone look twice.

Get to know these vivacious, energetic and soon-to-be familiar faces who will be serving their college with pride and dignity as a part of the Howard College Presidential Classics.

BETH BOEKER

Piano playing is a prominent part of the life of Presidential Classic Beth Boeker. In addition to taking piano and organ lessons, she also teaches piano lessons. She plans to major in business management or marketing and is active in numerous clubs and organizations at HC related to business. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Boeker.

KAREN SMITH

You've been told that the HC Presidential Classics are special as well as unique. Karen Smith, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Smith, is no exception. There's not many places this classic would rather be than on a river or lake fishing. When she's not fishing, though, Karen enjoys racquetball, swimming, skiing and jogging.

JANENE SHIVE

Education major Janene Shive is a member of the Howard College Rodeo Club and appropriately so if you consider her love for horses. Janene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Shive. This 1980 Rodeo Queen candidate graduated from Coahoma High School and will represent Howard College as a 1980-1981 Presidential Classic.

LISA WARREN

Lisa Warren is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles O. Warren and she, along with eight other young ladies, will act as an official hostess for Howard College. This active racquetball player is majoring in elementary education and participates in the Student Government Association as well as intramurals at the college.

TRESA HOHERTZ

Be on the look out for pretty Tresa Hohertz while driving down the street. This Presidential Classic's favorite pastime is jogging. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daryle Hohertz, Tresa's probable college major is business. Outside of jogging, this energetic 18-year-old classic enjoys dancing, sewing, swimming and boating.

Nuptial vows unite couple

The Sand Springs Church of Christ was the setting for the Saturday evening candlelight wedding of Kimberly Dawn Thompson and Timothy Mark Greenfield.

The 7 p.m. double ring ceremony was performed before an archway enhanced by greenery and flowers, flanked on either side by floral arrangements and candelabras. A unity candle completed the scene and candles marked the pews. Eric Dickey, minister, officiated the exchange of vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, Rt. 1, Big Spring. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Greenfield, Rt. 1, Big Spring.

Andy Spell, Coahoma, provided the vocal music.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing a floor-length white satin A-line gown overlaid with silk organza trimmed with swirling Venice lace embroidered with seed pearls. The gown featured an empire bodice with sweetheart neckline and long fitted sleeves edged in matching lace. The A-line skirt ended in pleated organza flowing into a chapel-length train. The chapel-length veil of illusion, edged in lace and seed pearls, fell from a headpiece adorned with seed pearls.

The groom's family hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday evening at Alberto's in Big Spring for the wedding party and families of the bride and groom.

The bride attended Coahoma High School and is employed at Winchell's Donut Shop.

The groom is a graduate of Coahoma High School and is employed by A and N Electric Company.

After a wedding trip to the Dallas-Fort Worth area, the couple will be at home in Big Spring.

Tara Robertson, Coahoma, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. Tina Robertson, Coahoma, cousin of the groom, served as candlelighter. Darrell Spears, Coahoma, was ring bearer.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the church fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over a yellow underlay, centered with the bride's bouquet and crystal candleholders with yellow tapers. The three-layer white cake, decorated with yellow roses, featured a flowing fountain of yellow water topped with white satin wedding bells. Crystal and silver appointments were used. Terri Jo Cook and Rhonda Griffin served.

Members of the houseparty were Mrs. Boyce Sneed, Mrs. Brice Wilborn, Mrs. Jerry Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. J.N. Hamlin and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Scott.

Out-of-town guests came from Midland, Odessa, Pampa, Kermit, San Angelo and Colorado City.

MRS. JIMI RIVAS

Vows exchanged in Midland rite

Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, Midland, was the setting for the Saturday morning wedding of Sandy Ramirez and Jimi Rivas.

The couple exchanged vows at 10 a.m. before an altar decorated with candles, officiated by Rev. Allen Brelivet, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Ramirez, Midland. Mrs. Cresencia Rivas, Lenora, is the mother of the bridegroom.

Vernon Godfrey, organist, supplied the wedding music and accompanied himself vocally.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing a bouffant gown of white wedgewood lace styled with a Victorian collar and long fitted sleeves ending in flounced cuffs. The tiered bouffant skirt ended in a cathedral length train.

Rosie Ramirez, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and Tamra Williams, maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Jessica Briseno, Christy King and Tricia Hunt.

Pedro Briseno, Tarzan, was best man. Groomsmen were John C. Briseno, Radrick Hunt and Jessie Ramirez III, brother of the bride. Charley Hendley and Raul Gomez seated the guests.

Jessica Briseno served as flower girl. Radrick and Tricia Hunt served as ring bearers.

A reception honoring the couple was held immediately following the ceremony in the parish hall.

The bride attended Grady High School in Lenora and works at Levi Strauss, Midland.

The groom attended East Central High School, San Antonio and is an employee of Gibson's in Midland.

The couple are making their home in Lenora.

Recipe shower held

Martha Allen, bride elect of Daryl Witt, was honored June 10 at a recipe shower in the home of Jamie Sink.

Guests brought favorite recipes and ingredients to prepare them. The hostess gift was a recipe file.

Hostesses were Lavelle Bradford, Lynn Shipman and Jamie Sink.

The refreshment table was decorated with the bride's chosen colors, green and yellow. The cake was decorated with the bride's flower, the daisy.

The couple were wed Saturday.

Midway Baptist is scene of rite

Wedding vows uniting Jean Annette Barnes and Robert Donald Kelso were solemnized Saturday evening in the Midway Baptist Church.

The bride's father, the Rev. Frank Barnes, and the groom's grandfather, Robert C. Kelso, officiated the 7:30 p.m. rite.

The couple spoke their vows before a 15-branch arched candelabrum flanked on either side by multi-branched candelabrum. Enhancing the setting were two three-tiered candle arches entwined with greenery and white satin.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Frank L. Barnes, Spokane, Wash. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Kelso, Garden City.

Wedding music was provided by organist Mrs. Bill Fryear who accompanied Karen Durham, vocalist.

The bride was presented down the candle-lit aisle attired in a Mori Lee fashion of white poly sheer styled with a Queen Anne neckline and full bishop sleeves. Chantilly lace formed the bodice and sleeves. A full, deep crystal, pleated flounce edged the hemline.

As a complement to her ensemble, the bride carried a bouquet of white roses, white carnations and baby's breath tied with cascading white ribbons.

Mrs. Judy Gregory, Huntsville, attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Pam Barnes, Brownwood, sister-in-law of the bride; and Mrs. Cindy O'Daniel, Coahoma, sister of the groom.

Serving the groom as best man was Howard Stovall, Cisco. Groomsmen were Len Kelso, Garden City, brother of the groom; and Bryan Davis, Corpus Christi.

Guests were seated by James Barnes, Brownwood, brother of the bride; Robble O'Daniel, Coahoma, brother-in-law of the groom; Rick Gregory, Huntsville, brother-in-law of the bride; and Billy Kelso, Garden City, brother of the groom.

Before leaving on wedding trip to Ruidoso N.M., the newlyweds were feted with a reception in the church fellowship hall.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of University High School, Spokane, Wash. She presently attends Howard Payne University in Brownwood as a junior.

The groom graduated from Coahoma High School in 1975. He is a 1980 graduate of Howard Payne University, and has signed as a free agent with the Houston Oilers.

MRS. ANDREW LOYD ADAMS

Dallas ceremony unites couple

Suzanne Askew became the bride of Andrew Lloyd Adams in a double-ring ceremony performed Saturday evening in the Park Cities Baptist Church, Dallas.

Officiating the 8 p.m. rite was the Rev. Roy Harrel, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Gary Garrison Askew, Dallas. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Adams, Dallas. The groom is also the grandson of Ma. Imogene Rickabaugh, Mr. C.F. Whittington and LaDon Lloyd of Big Spring.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, chose to wear a formal gown designed with a Victorian neckline and fitted sleeves of silk organza decorated with Aleton lace. Falling gracefully from the lace-embellished bodice was a chapel-length train.

A fingertip-length veil of lace which fell from a Juliet cap completed the bride's ensemble. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Gina Bell, Dallas. Bridesmaids were Sheryl Walker, cousin of the bride, Plano; Ginger Askew, Dallas, sister-in-law of the bride; and Pam Siviglia, California, sister-in-law of the bride.

Serving as best man during the ceremony was Deane Blaine. Groomsmen were Ray Adams Jr., Joe Siviglia, Kenneth Askew and Scott Askew.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds were honored with a reception at the Brookhollow Golf Club.

The bride is a graduate of Highland Park High School and Texas Tech University. The groom graduated from Thomas Jefferson High and has attended Texas Tech.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Nassau in the Bahamas, Mr. and Mrs. Adams will make their home in Lewisville where the groom is employed by Ray Adams Ford.

Beauceants hold annual dinner

The Social Order of the Beauceant held the Annual Friendship Dinner and Program June 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Masonic Hall. Mrs. Steve Baker and Mrs. Dick Mitchell were in charge of the affair.

After dinner, Mrs. Mitchell gave a reading on "Social Friends." Favours of memo books were given to the thirty five attending, including Sir Knights.

Mrs. R.L. Lee presided at the regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. A clean-up day will be announced soon, to work on the Hall. A picture was donated by Mrs. Steve Baker, and two lamps donated by Mrs. Willard Sullivan for the Parlor Room.

Aug. 2, at 7:30 p.m. was set for the Annual Family Picnic, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Porter.

The birthdays of Mrs. Alfred Tidwell and Mrs. E.A. Fiveash were celebrated.

The next meeting, June 23, will be the final meeting until Sept. 8.

Amy Jo is welcomed home by her brother, David Lee, 11 months.

New eye make-up enhances eyes

If eye make-up doesn't do for you all you would like it to do, there's a new product on the market designed to enhance the entire eye area.

The Revlon Research Group developed Formula 2's new instant concealer both to hide skin imperfections and serve as a shadow base.

Applied beneath the eye, it erases dark circles and tiny lines, leaving a clear, natural skin tone. Smoothed on the lid, it creates a base that keeps eye shadow crease-proof and color true hours longer.

The formulation comes in shades to blend with every skin tone. Its sponge-tipped applicator glides smoothly without pulling delicate tissue.

You can wear it swimming, jogging, or walking in the rain. It's waterproof and will endure.

Focus on family living Summer cleaning saves

FROM JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

So you missed "spring" cleaning this year — after all, rainy days aren't the best incentive.

Then do some "summer" housecleaning — and this year, make it "conservation cleaning" with energy savings in mind.

Pay lots of attention to your heaviest energy users — such as furnaces, air conditioners and major appliances. That includes the clothes washer and dryer and the refrigerator and freezer.

Energy-saving cleaning also means maintenance — like drivebelt tightening or lubrication — to help your appliances work more efficiently and last longer.

Start with the furnace. Since the average household furnace uses about half the total family energy consumption in a year, give it top priority.

You won't use the furnace until next fall, but now's the time to get it in shape.

Make sure the filter is clean — and promise yourself you'll clean the filter or change it every two months when you're using the furnace. This can save much money.

Some filters just need a tapping and a good vacuuming for cleaning — or you can wash them with a hose or under a faucet. Most are disposable now.

Also, lubricate electric motors, fans and pumps according to the manufacturer's directions. Use oil sparingly once or twice a year.

Check all the drive belts for proper tension. If belts are properly adjusted, you should be able to press them together one-half to one inch. Replace cracked or frayed belts.

Clean the air conditioner next. Inspect the filter. Clean it or replace it every month during the cooling season. Make sure the condenser is clean. If not, the unit will have to run longer to do the job.

Regular lubrication is important, here, too, if required by the manufacturer.

Have a professional repairman check the air conditioner every other year.

Here are some other energy-saving things you can do:

Keep the condenser coils on your refrigerator and freezer clean — to help them work their best during the hot summer months when demands on them are heaviest.

Think about repainting the walls with lighter colors to reflect more light and reduce lighting costs.

Keep all lighting equipment clean. Dust and soil reduce lighting efficiency.

Check lampshades for discoloration. White reflects more light. If the insides of your shades have darkened, clean the shades, reline them or replace them.

Draperies, kept closed, will go a long way toward keeping hot summer sun from heating your home — and they will reduce air-conditioning costs. In winter, they can help keep out cold air, and that reduces heating costs. Make sure your draperies are clean and in good condition for greater efficiency.

"Summer" cleaning means heavy laundry chores, too — bedspreads, curtains, blankets and other bedding. Be sure to use full washer loads to save energy. For heavily soiled items, use hot water. For the rest, use warm or cool water to save energy, if possible.

Line drying is fashionable again, so cut even more energy costs by drying clothes outdoors in good weather.

During balmy days of late spring and early summer, save energy by opening windows more and using air conditioning less — but make sure your screens are clean to allow optimum air circulation.

Hal Holbrook hosts 'cultural ghetto'

'Omnibus' to air once again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In its original incarnation, "Omnibus," once a cornerstone of television's so-called Sunday afternoon "cultural ghetto," gets a brief return to life this weekend.

A one-hour version of the pioneering magazine of the lively arts will be broadcast by ABC at 7 p.m. CDT Sunday. "I love that time period," said producer Bob Shanks. "We come right after '60 Minutes,' and I hope we'll get a lot of their audience."

In its original incarnation, first on CBS and then on ABC, "Omnibus" presented such attractions as William Saroyan narrating one of his short stories, excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," and Lili Palmer in Maxwell Anderson's "The Trial of Anne Boleyn."

Alistair Cooke was the host in those days, and it was on "Omnibus" that Mike Nichols and Elaine May became famous, that Leonard Bernstein first exposed the TV audience to classical music and that Jacques Cousteau first sailed the "Calypso" to explore the ocean depths.

Actor Hal Holbrook is host for the new program, which is divided into six segments. It was not seen in preview. A second show has been taped for broadcast later.

Segments for the premiere program include: —Academy Award-winner Meryl Streep reading "America the Beautiful," with the National Theater for the Deaf singing it.

—A look at the 75th anniversary of "Peter Pan" in America. Sandy Duncan sings "I'm Flying" from the current Broadway hit.

—Lewis J. Stadlen does a one-man show on Groucho Marx.

'OMNIBUS' ROLLS AGAIN — Actor Hal Holbrook will host a one-hour version of the television magazine of the lively arts, "Omnibus" Sunday, June 15 on ABC-TV. The show was originally broadcast on CBS-TV and hosted by Alistair Cooke. The first program, which is divided into six segments, will include an essay on 50 years of Hollywood fashion and a performance by Sandy Duncan of "I'm Flying" from Peter Pan.

Larry Butler pays price for successful career

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Larry Butler, who became the country's top record producer by spearheading the rise of Kenny Rogers, is paying the price of success.

He gets 200-300 calls a day, is too busy to take a lunch hour, and has had up to four unlisted telephone numbers.

His harried secretary politely tells callers who want him to produce their records:

"If you'll send us a tape, he'll be glad to listen to it. It might take three months, but he'll review it on nights, weekends, whenever."

Busy? During a recent recording session for Bobby Goldsboro, Butler was in the studio from Tuesday evening to Saturday, with just four hours off for sleep.

It's that kind of commitment that earned Butler a Grammy award this year as the nation's No. 1 record producer. It was the climax to a stint in which he produced hits for Rogers like "The Gambler," "Lucille" and the current "Don't Fall in Love with a Dreamer," which Rogers sings with Kim Carnes.

Now there are T-shirts proclaiming: "Larry Butler is My Record Producer."

As Rogers' producer, Butler reviews songs and suggests material. After the songs are selected, he directs the recording session — instructing the musicians and background vocalists.

At Howard County Library

Many activities planned this week

By JUDY FRANKLIN
Children's Librarian

Looking for excitement? Check us out!

Tuesday, June 17 at 10 a.m. Halliburton Company will have a representative at the library to talk to area young people about the company's many and varied operations. Slides will be shown. Area students at any grade level are welcome to attend, as this presentation is especially geared to those interested in possible careers with companies such as Halliburton.

Since no one, especially a youngster, likes to have to choose between two great things to do, we are moving the Wednesday morning activities to Wednesday afternoons at 2 p.m., so as not to conflict with KBYG's 50 cent movies. This week we're going to take a look at Water Sports. The YMCA will present a program with special emphasis on safety.

On Thursday, June 19 at 10 a.m., be sure to have your child dressed in play clothes, as we'll be making puppets and cache boxes out of paper mache. We will do the basic construction this week and put on the finishing touches (painting, decorating, etc.) next week. Anyone who starts his project this week but is unable to come back next week will have his or her project saved for them.

Friday, June 20 at 10 a.m. our Little People will also make paper mache puppets while watching an amateur puppet show put on by the Summer Program staff.

Saturday's special film offerings, "Isabella and the Magic Brush" and "Two Tars" will be shown at 1:30 p.m. for all age groups. Both films should delight and entertain. A Japanese film, "The Secret of the Telegian," will be this week's "Young-At-Heart Film Festival" showing at 3 p.m. Saturday. A survivor of an attempted murder is kept alive by electricity by a scientist who was crippled by the murder attempt. One-by-one the would-be murderers are tracked down by the "electric avenger." This film should make for a delightfully "chilly" afternoon for all lovers of B-grade movies.

"The Hobbit" is coming! Watch for details. Don't forget that our Sports Splash Reading Club Members are earning free books, and it's not too late to sign up.

Annual Summer Mummies melodrama open June 27

It's Summer Mummies time again in Midland, and on June 27 the state's longest-running melodrama will open for its 32nd season at the Summer Mummies Hall, 206 S. Colorado in downtown Midland.

"Pettifoggery in the Pines" or "She Was Bred In Old Kentucky But She's Only A Crumb Out Here" will be performed on Friday and Saturday nights, June 27 and 28 and July 4 and 5, then every Thursday, Friday and Saturday night through August 30.

The popular show will once again feature a hero (Ezekiel G. Godsend), a villain (Pierre LePutrid), a beautiful heroine (Caressa Comelylass), and her maidenly aunt (Polly Esther) along with an assortment of other characters with equally fitting names. The traditional chase scene will again be portrayed through silent movie sequences, filmed in an assortment of unlikely settings including the "pine forests" of Midland.

Following the melodrama, the audience will see the olio, featuring can-can girls, comedy routines, and a number of new acts designed to please the crowd. Throughout the olio, members of the audience can purchase novelty items, popcorn and chances on a luxury trip to London, Hawaii or a cruise.

For the first time this year, all beverages must be bought inside the Mummies Hall. Absolutely no alcoholic drinks may be brought into the Hall. Soft drinks, mixed drinks, beer and wine will be available.

The box office is now open, and reservations can be made by calling 682-4111, or write "Summer Mummies, 2000 Wadley, Midland, Texas 79701. Cost for reserving any size table, seating from two to 12, is $6.00. Tickets are $4.00 each.

Auditions for melodrama scheduled for this week

Will Terence Trueblue and Patience Plugback overcome the dastardly doings of Lester Leasehold?

Is Sliderule Simpson really a credible friend to the lovestruck couple?

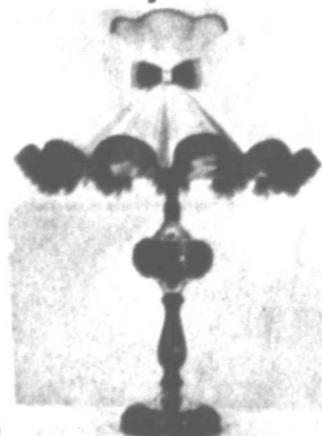

Will Frank Formfill win Odessa Delilah's heart or will Peaches remember where she once knew him?

And, what is Lady Lucretia Lugbottom's "real" background?

Assume the role of one of these outrageous, outstanding, outlandish characters in the melodrama being presented by the Spring City Theatre at the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheatre. Cecelia McKenzie will be the director.

Try-outs will be Wednesday and Thursday, June 18 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Amphitheatre.

MRS. KENNY BATLA

Couple recite vows in Catholic ceremony

The St. Lawrence Catholic Church was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony uniting Vicki Sageser and Kenny Batla.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Sageser, Box 31, Midkiff. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Batla, St. Lawrence Rt., Garden City.

The Rev. Bill Detlaas, cousin of the groom, performed the 3 p.m. double-ring ceremony before two spiral candelabums and a rainbow candelabrum flanked on either side by bouquets of blue and white silk daisies and carnations set atop pedestals.

Wedding music was provided by Dale Hilger, guitarist; Diane Eggmeyer, organist; and Jacque Frerick, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage wearing a lace-embellished gown of bridal satin. The lace-edged Queen Anne neckline enhanced the bodice which was decorated with a row of self-covered buttons. Falling gracefully from the fitted waistline was a lace-adorned and pearl-dotted A-line skirt which ended in a chapel-length train.

A two-tiered fingertip-length veil edged in coordinating lace accentuated her bridal attire. She carried a colonial bouquet of silk daisies and carnations.

The bride's sister, Connie Sageser, Midkiff, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Kim and Karrie Young, El Paso, cousins of the bride; Cathy Livingston and Linda Batla, both of Garden City; and Nancy Batla, St. Lawrence, all sisters of the groom.

The groom's brother, Mike Batla, St. Lawrence, attended him as best man. Groomsmen were Garry Batla, Midkiff; Greg Schraeder and Larry Batla, St. Lawrence; and Jody Schwartz and Steve Livingston, Garden City.

Ushers were Clay Harris, Midkiff; Douglas Plagens, Barry Hirt and Wayne Hirt, all of St. Lawrence.

Serving as altar boys were Richard Batla, brother of the groom; and David Frerick, cousin of the groom.

Following the exchanging of vows, Mr. and Mrs. Batla were honored with a reception in the church parish hall. A supper and dance followed.

The bride is a Rankin High School graduate. The groom graduated from Garden City High. He is currently engaged in farming in St. Lawrence where the couple will make their home upon returning from a wedding trip to Grand Caymen Island in the Caribbean.

Awards offered to young people for first-aid accomplishments

Young people under age 18 are encouraged to vie for $2,200 of awards in the seventh annual National First Aid Contest, by Johnson & Johnson.

A panel of experts in the health-care field will evaluate first aid-related accomplishments of the entrants, citing a top achiever with a $1000 award. Twelve other outstanding contenders will win $100 each and the 500 semi-finalists will each receive a Johnson & Johnson First Aid Kit. All entrants will be awarded a personalized certificate of merit.

Outstanding achievements of past top award recipients are varied, ranging from one teen's classroom presentation of basic first aid techniques to another winner's administration of lifesaving first aid to a nearly-drowned child.

Nina Rossi Millimet, Consumer Affairs Coordinator for the sponsoring corporation, says, "We encourage all young people under eighteen years of age to write and tell us about their involvement in a first aid-related project. It's shocking to hear National Safety Council statistics which indicate that about every ten minutes, two people are killed and 200 more suffer a disabling injury. We at Johnson & Johnson want to help raise the nation's accident prevention-consciousness and level of preparedness."

Friends and relatives may enter young people who deserve recognition in the contest, too, as long as entrants are within the age category, she adds.

Contest entrants or friends entering a contestant should mail a minimum 100-word description of the first aid-related accomplishment, along with the achiever's name, age, address, phone number and name of school, to First Aid Contest, P.O. Box 1332, Stamford, Connecticut 06904. (Applications or other materials cannot be returned.)

Entry deadline is June 30, 1980, and winner announcements will be made by September 15, 1980. Employees of Johnson & Johnson, its agencies and their families, are not eligible to enter the contest.

HOME CEREMONY — Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Glendening, Tarzan, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Debbie, to John Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith, Stanton. The ceremony will be performed July 25 in the home of the bride's parents.

Dear Abby

What Hath Bell Wrought? Too Many Ding-A-Lings

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter from an employer who resented having his telephone calls to others screened by a secretary. The stupidity and ignorance that make people believe they can invade anyone's privacy at a time of their choosing by simply picking up the telephone and calling is indeed remarkable.

After 30 years of professional life, I have concluded that one of the most difficult tasks in secretarial training is teaching office personnel how to handle telephone calls.

Alexander Graham Bell invented a wonderful instrument, but unfortunately he never anticipated the problems his invention would cause with its improper use.

When I get to heaven, I plan to discuss this with him in detail.

SYRACUSE PHYSICIAN

DEAR PHYSICIAN: If there's a line to heaven, it must have an unlisted number, so I will have to wait to join you up there to hear the outcome of your discussion.

In the meantime, may I suggest the proper (and most tactful) way to screen telephone calls:
Caller: "May I please speak to Mr. Smith?"
Secretary: "May I tell him who is calling, please?" (Never, "Who's calling?" Those four little words, "May I tell him," soften the demand to know who is calling and dispel the implication that only persons on a preferred list can get through to the boss.)

If the boss is out, unavailable, unable or unwilling to take the call, the secretary then says, "I am sorry, but Mr. Smith is unavailable at the moment, but if you will give me your number I will ask him to return your call." (She never says, "I'm sorry, but Mr. Smith is in conference." There is no way of saying those words without sounding pompous.)

An increasing number of busy executives are answering their own phones, having given their direct-dial number to only those they want to have it. If the call is a nuisance or inconsequential, anyone bright enough to be an executive will know how to terminate it quickly and diplomatically.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO BE POPULAR": When you enter a room, do you say, "There YOU are," or "Here I am?" Ponder that a while.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Allen-Witt vows exchanged in Presbyterian Church

Martha Jane Allen became the bride of Daryl Witt in a ceremony held Saturday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church with Rev. William Henning, minister, officiating.

Vows were exchanged by the couple at 4 p.m. before a 15 branch candelabrum centering the chapel altar flanked by nine branch candelabrams on either side. Pew markers with votive candles marked the sides of the center aisle.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Allen, 805 Dallas and Mt. Ida, Ark. Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Witt, Coahoma, are the parents of the groom.

Mrs. James Flatte, Mt. Ida, Ark., aunt of the bride, organist, and Mary Catherine Allen, Mt. Ida, sister of the bride, flautist provided the wedding music.

The bride chose a floor-length gown of white cluney lace styled with an oval neckline edged with a lace ruffle. Long, tapered sleeves repeated the lace ruffling with cuffs falling over the wrists. The semi-circular skirt, edged in a ruffle, swept from fullness at the back into a train. The finger-tip veil of illusion fell from a circlet of flowers. A nosegay of spring daisies, yellow and mint carnations and baby's breath completed the bride's ensemble.

Phyllis Hart, Lubbock, served as maid of honor and the bridesmaid was Jamie Sink, Big Spring.

Jesse Griffin, Coahoma, was best man and the groomsmen were David Witt, brother of the bridegroom, John Allen, Big Spring, brother of the bride, and Dennis Witt, Coahoma, brother of the groom, seated the guests.

MRS. DARYL WITT

A reception honoring the couple immediately followed the ceremony in the fellowship hall which was decorated with fresh flowers and green plants. The bride's table was covered with a sheer embroidered cloth and centered with an arrangement of baby's breath, sweetheart roses and daisies in an antique crystal basket. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with festoons of fresh flowers. Silver and crystal appointments were used.

Catherine Allen, Mt. Ida, Ark., kept the guest register. Mrs. Joann Decker, Abilene; Mrs. Julie Bailey, Tyler; Mrs. Donna Hipp, and Lynn Shipman served at the reception.

Members of the houseparty were Mr. and Mrs. Olen Puckett, Col. and Mrs. Jerry Grimes, Mrs. Susan Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. John Currie, Rev. and Mrs. Harland Birdwell, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tucker and Mr. and Mrs. John Gary.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and will attend Tyler Junior College. The groom is a graduate of Coahoma High School.

The couple will make their home in Tyler.

Bake Days are new

JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

The Women's division of the Howard County Fair Association is planning something new for the 1980 fair.

A series of special "Bake Days" will be featured Monday through Friday during the fair. Judging of the "Bake Day" entries will be at 1:30 p.m. each day. First, second and third prize ribbons will be awarded each day. You may pick up your exhibits for each "Bake Day" at 10 a.m. the day following the exhibit. In this way, food products can still be used instead of wasted. The "Bake Days" schedule is as follows:

CAKE DAY, Monday, Sept. 15, entries accepted from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Pick up products Tuesday at 10 a.m.

PIE DAY, Tuesday, Sept. 16, entries accepted 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Pick up Wednesday at 10 a.m.

BREAD, ROLLS, DONUT DAY, Wednesday, Sept. 17, entries accepted 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Pick up Thursday at 10 a.m.

COOKIE DAY, Thursday, Sept. 18, entries accepted 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Pick up Friday 10 a.m.

DECORATED CAKE AND CANDY DAY, Friday, Sept. 19, entries accepted 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Pick up Saturday at 10 a.m.

In addition to the series of "Bake Days", the first Howard County Fair Cookbook is being compiled. Those who submit food entries in this year's fair should submit the recipe for the entry. Recipes for the new 1980 Fair Cookbook must be submitted to Janet Rogers at the County Extension office by Aug. 15. Recipes will be accepted that are to be entered in the culinary division or for one of the special bake days.

These cookbooks will be on sale from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. daily during the week of the fair and all day that Saturday. Prize winning recipes from this year's fair will be featured in future cookbooks.

You may obtain entry blanks for the cookbook from the County Extension Office (Basement of Courthouse), County Library, Chamber of Commerce and the Senior Citizens Center. If you need additional information, contact Zula Rhodes 398-5531 or Janet Rogers 267-8469.

MRS. MARK TATE

Farmington, N.M. is wedding site

The wedding of Teri Louise Gibson to Mark Wayne Tate were solemnized in a ceremony Saturday afternoon in the Northside Church of Christ, Farmington, N.M.

The 2 p.m. vows were repeated before two white candelabrams enhanced by greenery and two blue and white floral arrangements in wicker baskets.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donnie E. Gibson, Kirtland, N.M. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Newell Tate, Tarzan.

Furnishing the wedding music were A cappella singers Mrs. Roy Newberg, Mrs. George Willis, Mrs. D. Greening, Kayla Newberg, Ruth Hamilton, Curt Parson, Gene Chopin and Greg Hawthorne.

The bride chose to wear a floor-length white gown of organza and chantilly lace. The scoop neckline of lace topped the scallop trimmed fitted bodice enhanced by long fitted lace sleeves ending in organza ruffles. The full, circular skirt featured lace appliques and a wide lace panel with a full organza flounce flowing into a chapel-length train. The fingertip length, two-tiered silk illusion veil trimmed in chantilly lace was attached to a headpiece of lace and seed pearls. A cascading bouquet of blue silk roses and white daisies completed the bride's attire.

Sharon Williams, Albuquerque, N.M., served as maid of honor and Melinda Bell, Hobbs, N.M., was the bridesmaid.

Best man was Bryan Milegar, Aurora, Colo. The groomsmen were Charles Sanson, Ft. Worth, Timothy Tate and Ronald Chee, Tarzan, brothers of the groom and Tracy Gibson, Kirtland, N.M., brother of the bride, seated the guests.

A reception honoring the newlyweds was held following the ceremony at K-Bob's Restaurant. Serving were Mrs. Foy Partain, Mrs. Dennis Taylor and Mrs. Max Love assisted by Mrs. Terry Tate, Laurie Tate and Mrs. Mark Morales.

Pre-nuptial party hostesses were Mrs. Floyd Martin, Mrs. Buddy Stewart, Mrs. Max Leach, Mrs. Ted Gates, Mrs. Malcolm Tunnell, Mrs. Bob Sims, Mrs. Gover Springer, Mrs. Vanny Glaze, Mrs. Bill Baker, Mrs. Betty Blake, Mrs. Alex Haggard and Mrs. Joe Glaze.

The bride is a graduate of Highland High School, Albuquerque, N.M., and is a senior home economics major at Abilene Christian University.

The groom is a graduate of Grady High School, Lenora, and a Junior physics major at Abilene Christian University.

Following a wedding trip to Vallecito Lake and the Southern Colorado area the couple will be at home in Abilene.

Denita's Beauty Basics

Q: I have a difficult time spreading my make-up foundation smoothly. I use a moisturizer but my face seems to "drink it" since my skin is dry. I need the coverage my somewhat heavy foundation gives, but would like for it to go on with more ease — Any suggestions?

A: Be sure you are treating your dry skin daily to help keep it balanced and normal looking.

Consider trying a different moisturizer. If you use a good night cream, you don't necessarily need a heavy moisturizer for day wear under make-up. Remember that a moisturizer should be very fluid. It should not "sit" on your skin, but work with your skin's own natural moisture.

An effective make-up trick to delute foundation is to mix a small amount in the palm of your hand, add a very small amount of skin freshener and mix — now apply. You will notice how much easier it spreads and with the same amount of coverage.

Salt causes tension

Too much salt in a woman's diet contributed to the symptoms of premenstrual tension experienced by at least half the women of childbearing age, says New York Times medical writer Jane E. Brody in her current Family Circle magazine article, "Sodium: The Hidden Menace to Your Health."

LAMESA RITE — Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Holcomb, Stanton, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sharalyn, to Ronyd Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Doy Ferguson, Sparsburg. The couple will exchange vows July 26 in the First Baptist Church, Lamesa.

Patent pointers for inventors

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Prepared a potion promising eternal youth? Discovered how to harness solar energy? Whatever your invention, there are steps to ensure it doesn't end up in someone else's lab, says a recent Seventeen.

To qualify for a patent, your invention must be new, not obvious and useful. A patent gives you exclusive rights over your invention for 17 years. Since 1790, about four million patents have been granted, and each year the Office of Patents and Trademarks receives 100,000 applications.

Despite the large number of applicants, the number of patents granted has declined. "There's been some debate as to whether Americans are losing their innovative touch," says Lutrelle F. Parker of the Office of Patents and Trademarks. "The lack of interest in science and limited knowledge about patents are reasons for the decline."
