For Soviet-free Afghanistan

Carter proposes transitional rule

MADRID, Spain (AP) — President Carter proposed a transitional arrangement for governing Afghanistan to prevent "a mass slaughter" of pro-Soviet elements if Soviet troops are withdrawn, a senior Carter administration official said today.

He said assurances that a slaughter would be prevented and that a staunch anti-Soviet government would not emerge might be necessary ingredients for an eventual Soviet withdrawal, and disclosed that Carter's proposal had been presented to the Soviets last month.

"We recognize that the Soviet Union has a legitimate security interest in Afghanistan not being transformed into an anti-Soviet outpost of some sort," the official told reporters aboard Air Force One, as the president flew from Belgrade, Yugoslavia to Madrid on the next-to-last day of an eight-day European tour that ends in Lisbon on Thursday.

The administration official, who spoke on the grounds that he not be identified by name, also said the United States had received "some reports" that the Soviet Union had increased its number of troops in Afghanistan from 85,000 to "over 100,000" in recent weeks.

The official revealed that Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie had discussed Carter's proposal for a transitional arrangement for Afghanistan with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko when they met in Vienna in mid-May.

He said that Britain and other countries had also had contacts with the Soviets on the matter, but that no negotiations are underway.

Carter, completing a 24-hour visit to Yugoslavia in which he repeatedly praised the non-aligned communist nation and its late leader, Josip Broz Tito, said Tuesday night that the United States would like to discuss a "transitional arrangement" for instituting a new and independent and neutral government in Afghanistan.

In a toast at a banquet given in his honor in Belgrade, the American president renewed a suggestion that apparently fell on deaf ears last February.

The United States hopes it will be taken more seriously this time as it becomes increasingly evident to the Soviet Union that its military forces face a protracted guerrilla war and are unable to gain complete control of the southwest Asian nation.

"We would be prepared to explore a transitional arrangement, to be implemented along with the prompt withdrawal of all Soviet troops from Afghanistan, for the purpose of restoring peace and tranquility in that suffering country," Carter told his host, Yugoslav President Cvetin Mijatovic.

As explained by other U.S. officials, the transition could involve a phased replacement of Soviet troops with neutral forces from Islamic countries who would provide security for a peaceful transition from the Soviet-backed Babrak Karmal government to a new group of leaders.

GRAB YOUR PARTNER — To help kick off this year's Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion, local square dancers gathered on Main Street in front of the Howard County Court House to hold an old fashioned hoedown, Tuesday night. The rodeo will get under way at 8 o'clock tonight.

Says ex-chief, in rebuttal

'McCain matter resolved'

By JAMES WERRELL

At approximately 4 p.m. Friday, Police Chief Stanley Bogard was asked by City Manager Don Davis to resign his post.

He did so, and the resignation became effective immediately, with Captain of Detectives Sherrill Farmer being named as interim Police Chief.

Contacted by the Herald on Saturday, Bogard was reluctant to comment, saying that he was "upset" and "afraid I (Bogard) would say the wrong thing." On that same day, Bogard contacted local attorney John Burgess for advice in the best manner of answering the charges leveled against him by the city manager.

The following is a written statement submitted to the Herald by Bogard, this morning:

"Due to recent statements made by Don Davis, city manager, concerning my termination as Chief of Police I feel I owe it both to myself and the citizens of Big Spring to issue a statement of my position as to the matters referred to by Mr. Davis.

"The making of this statement is solely for the purpose of responding to Mr. Davis' comments and in no way should be construed as an attempt on my part to be reinstated as Chief now, in the future, or so long as the "state of turmoil" as referred to by Mr. Davis exists.

"1. In regard to the state license application of former Captain Jim McCain for a private investigator permit, the issuance of such a license does not authorize the carrying of firearms, grant the power of arrest, or constitute 'law enforcement work.' The intent of Mr. McCain in making application for such license was to become a business partner with a local citizen to engage in the business of installing burglar alarm systems and other types of security devices.

"Under state law such a license is required for this type of occupation. The approval of all law enforcement agencies must be obtained by an applicant within the county in which he intends to operate.

"Regardless of these facts Mr. McCain, officially withdrew his license application from the state licensing agency at approximately 10:00 a.m. on Friday, June 20. The City Manager was advised of this fact at our meeting Friday afternoon, and therefore I was quite surprised that Mr. Davis would even mention the matter at his press conference concerning my resignation, and even further surprised that he did not advise those attending the news conference that the matter had been resolved. But to the contrary, Mr. Davis left the impression that the application was still pending.

"2. In my opinion the matter now pending before the State Equal Employment Opportunity Council concerning the Big Spring Police Department will be resolved in favor of the City. If there is any 'bad judgment' concerning this matter I would have to feel that Mr. Davis used very poor judgment in publicly commenting about a case involving the City of Big Spring that is now pending before the EEOC, and in particular when such comments are not consistent with the proper defense in the case and are not in the best interest of the City.

"My position in the case, as Chief of Police of the City of Big Spring, is clearly stated, and my actions clearly defended, and are a matter of record in that case with the EEOC.

"3. During my meeting with Mr. Davis last Friday fiscal management and budget control were never discussed. As a matter of fact, I had recently completed a series of meetings with Mr. Davis concerning preparation and approval of the fiscal matters under my direction for 1980-81.

has been 'excessive' constitutes an admission on the part of Mr. Davis that he himself is in violation of the personnel policy enacted by the City Council prior to his arrival in Big Spring. As is true in any effectively run organization the personnel policy for all departments headed by me has been that any member with a complaint is first to bring it to the attention of his immediate supervisor.

"From that point, unless resolved, a complaint may proceed up the chain of command eventually reaching the office of the City Manager. Mr. Davis states that his involvement in police departmental affairs has been 'excessive' and took 'more time than I wanted to,' as according to him the department was in a state of turmoil.

"The simple fact is that the reason for this so called turmoil has been Mr. Davis' repeated refusal to himself abide by the personnel policy. Mr. Davis has made himself available and even initiated his own involvement in personnel problems within my department prior to the time policy would have required he become involved.

"The procedures are clearly set forth in the personnel policy and do not provide for personal involvement of the City Manager except in those cases in which the employee concerned has made the proper appeal to the City Manager's office. I have always been available to the City

Stoker appears in 'Bronco Billy'

Rodeo star movie stunt man

By ANDREA COHEN

A trick roper who will be performing in this year's Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo played the double of Sam Bottoms in the movie, "Bronco Billy."

J.W. Stoker of Weatherford says he did most of the tricks, with Bottoms performing some of them. "He did the Texas Tommy and a butterfly with his left hand, in the scene where he was on a porch in front of an insane asylum," he says.

Allan Cartwright, who played Clint Eastwood's double, was taught what he knows by Stoker at the age of seven.

He recalls how he was given the job.

"Malposo Productions, Eastwood's production company called Allan about a year ago," he says. "They were looking for someone who could trick ride who was as big as Eastwood. He sent them publicity information. Last September they called and said they wanted to come out and look at the horses. He trick rode a little bit and they were pleased. They needed a trick roper but I was out of town."

"When I got back, I called on a Friday and they asked that I fly out on the following Monday. I had a rodeo that Monday night. So they said if I would fly out, they'd have me home in time for the rodeo.

"Allan and I flew out and we were met at the Los Angeles airport with a limousine that was used in "Every Which Way But Loose." They took us to Warner Brothers. They got the costume people and heads of the departments and they told us what the movie was about and gave us a script.

"They asked if I knew who Sam Bottoms was," he recalls. "He was supposed to meet us in about a half hour. They told us what kind of wardrobe he was going to have and they'd try to get me the same thing.

"They told me he was 6'1", 23 years old and weighed 135. I'm 5'7", age unknown and weigh 175. I figured the job was shot," he says laughing.

"Then I went outside and trick roped for them. When I was through, they had me come in and finish the deal so I could get back to Dallas. We made a deal, they fit me for wardrobe and then I flew home. From the airport I went right to the rodeo."

Stoker will not disclose his pay, but he says it was "much better than rodeo pay."

"They pay all the expenses, fly you first class and put you in the best hotels. They provide two meals a day on location but for the third meal you receive $150 a week."

The next time he flew to Los Angeles to teach Bottoms the trick roping, he says they greeted him with $200 in pocket money. He smiled as he told how they apologized because the rental car was not going to be available to him for a half hour.

"I had showed Sam the basics that Monday and I sent him the rope," he says. "But he hadn't gotten too far. When I went out there again, we practiced twice a day for about a week. The following Saturday, we flew to Boise, Idaho, the location of the shooting."

"Three days later they flew me to Texarkana for a rodeo. The second week I drove to Claremore, Okla. for the Will Rogers Memorial Trick Roping Contest."

Stoker won three first prizes for all around, fancy horse catches and rope spinning.

"I remember the first day of shooting, Sam introduced me to Clint, who was real nice and down to earth. He's a super nice guy. You wouldn't believe it.

"It's really a cute picture. I think," he says of the movie. "It's simple and cute. They invited us to the private screening in Los Angeles."

He says his face can be seen in an audience shot at the beginning of the movie where a girl falls off a horse.

"In the first trick roping shot, the camera showed a head-on shot of me but you can't tell it was me. All the other shots of me were from the back or straight above."

Stoker says he liked working in the movie "real well."

He is scheduled for two more movies. The first, "The Cowgirl," was scheduled for shooting this summer but has been delayed because a male lead has not been hired to play opposite Margot Kidder.

The other movie, called "Appaloosa Bear Paw," is scheduled to be shot in Florida next January and February.

"One movie is better than 35 rodeos financially," he says.

Weather High pressure system keeping weather hot

By the Associated Press
More record-breaking heat was expected across almost all of Texas today as the state remained under the influence of an upper atmosphere high pressure system.

The high pressure system, forecasters said, kept the state under a virtual "dome" and prevented other, weaker weather systems from moving in with cooler, moist air.

Much of Texas had 100-degree plus readings Tuesday and more of the same appeared certain today.

Forecasters called for sunny skies and continued hot temperatures. Highs were to range from the middle 90s to near 114 except along the immediate coastal area where readings were to top out in the upper 80s. El Paso has had more than its share of heat with today expected to be the 16th consecutive day when the mercury moved above the 100-degree mark.

Some of the readings around the state Tuesday included 111 at Wichita Falls, 106 in Lubbock, El Paso and Dallas-Fort Worth, 107 at Wink and 104 at Amarillo and Midland.

Some clouds were reported before dawn over eastern and southern sections of the state, but most of Texas was under clear skies.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s. Extremes ranged from 65 at Marfa in the mountains of South-west Texas to 88 at El Paso.

WEST TEXAS - Fair and hot through Thursday. Highs 100 to 112. Lows 70s.
EXTENDED FORECAST WEST TEXAS: Mostly clear with hot afternoons. Highs 98 to 106 except near 110 lower elevations of the Big Bend. Lows 68 to 78 except near 80 mountains.

FORECAST - Showers are forecast Thursday in portions of Washington, Idaho and Oregon, according to the National Weather Service.

Baby boy found in pile of leaves

TYLER, Texas (AP) - A baby boy found crying in a pile of leaves near an exclusive neighborhood south of here may have been left to die by the unwed mother who gave birth to the child just two hours earlier, investigators said.

Chief Deputy Jim Collins of the Smith County sheriff's department said the infant was found by construction workers early Tuesday morning and rushed to Tyler's Mother Francis Hospital.

Hospital spokeswoman Beverly Mason said both the nine and a half pound infant and the 16-year-old mother, who officials declined to identify, were listed in good condition Tuesday.

Mrs. Mason said physicians estimated the child was two hours old when it was discovered about 8:30 a.m.

Collins said it appeared that someone had tried to hide the baby in the wooded area behind the affluent home where the young mother lived with her parents.

"It had been left there for some time. Does that sound like someone planned to return to take care of the baby?" asked Collins. He said the incident was still under investigation.

Collins said deputies found "blood and things of that nature" near the spot where the child was found, leading them to believe the baby was born outside.

One of the construction workers said the blood and the cries in the woods led them to the baby.

"I noticed some blood and we heard it out in the woods," said one of the construction workers who asked not to be identified. "We knew it was a baby right away."

Collins said the girl's parents contended they did not know she was pregnant.

Her parents said she was going to see a doctor Tuesday about what they thought was a tumor, said Collins. He said the parents said their daughter had been gaining weight and had a growth on her stomach.

"They had taken her to a doctor yesterday (Monday) and he suggested she was pregnant. They didn't believe him and planned to take her to another doctor today," he said.

Collins said the sheriff's office would retain custody of the baby until he is released from the hospital. The baby then will be the responsibility of the child welfare unit of the Texas Department of Human Resources.

Mrs. Mason said hospital officials had not determined whether to list the child under the name of the unwed mother or give him a John Doe identity.

"It's been a long day trying to decide that fact," she said.

Larson suffered cuts and abrasions to his legs after being hit by a 1976 Pontiac driven by Maurice Parson, Garden City.

The accident occurred at 11:06 p.m. Monday. Larson was released approximately two hours after the accident.

Mexico tells U.S. to fill up elsewhere

REYNOSA, Mexico, (AP) - Border-crossing American drivers seeking to fill up on cheaper Mexican gasoline won't be able to get more than a quarter of a tank for their trouble in the future, officials of Mexico's oil monopoly say.

Pemex, the Mexican national oil company, says increased demand from Americans has depleted northern Mexico gasoline supplies. So, an order was issued last week limiting sales to cars with American plates to 100 pesos, about $4.60. That will put about a quarter of a tank worth of gas in a full sized car.

The limits affect the region between Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, to Nuevo Laredo-Laredo, said Marco Antonio Loiza, public relations spokesman for Pemex.

"We have a definite supply problem here in our region of the country because we are, in effect, serving a lot of South Texas," he said. "What has happened as a result is that our citizens have been penalized by spot shortages."

Mexican gasoline sells for 51 cents a gallon for regular and 72 cents for premium.

Loiza said the directive would not affect tourists traveling in the Mexican interior.

"It's not the tourist that has caused the shortage, but those that seek to take advantage of the cheaper price of our gasoline. We have a firm conviction to support our tourism, but tourists and gas gougers are two different things," he said.

Clements disappointed but pleased at state job cuts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he is both pleased and disappointed at the pace of state government job reductions.

He reacted Tuesday after his budget director, Paul Wrotenbery, presented figures showing there are 1,000 fewer full-time employee equivalent state jobs now than a year ago.

Clements' short-term goal is elimination of 8,000 jobs by Aug. 31, compared with when he took office in January 1979. It became clear Tuesday the goal would not be reached.

Clements said it was "no mean accomplishment to stop that growth (of state employment) and start having a net reduction," though falling short of the goal.

"I'm disappointed, yes, but also pleased," he told reporters who attended a meeting of his Management Effectiveness Council, consisting of the heads of the 12 largest state agencies.

Wrotenbery attempted to close the meeting to reporters, but newsmen and newsmen refused to leave on the ground they and the public had a right to be there under the Texas Open Meetings Act.

The governor's lawyer, David Dean, arrived with a law book, but no further effort was made to evict reporters.

Clements took no part in the dispute.

Wrotenbery said projections indicate state employment could rise this summer to more than it was when Clements took office.

"We need an extra effort to make sure that does not happen," he told the agency heads.

Clements told reporters the reduction that has occurred is particularly significant because the state's population has grown. He said the number of employees per 10,000 population has dropped, "which is the right criteria."

The governor said he had not changed his belief that state employment is excessive nor that it should be reduced by 25,000 jobs by the end of his first term in 1983.

"It's swollen, it is fat, it does need paring down," he said.

Ken Clapp, one of the three commissioners of the Texas Employment Commission, objected when Wrotenbery chided the TEC for hiring more workers.

He said he had "tried 100 times" to explain to Wrotenbery that TEC jobs must increase when unemployment rises because there are more benefit claims and job applications to process.

Clapp said more than 300,000 Texans are unemployed, and the jobless figure should rise to 5.5 percent when all the data from May is collected. April's jobless level, he said, was 5 percent.

"This recession, Governor, is more than a recession," Clapp said.

When Clements suggested the TEC could get more work done with fewer people, Clapp said, "If you were standing in a line five miles long, you wouldn't feel like that."

Marriage off to flying start

LONDON (AP) — Newlyweds James and Eunice Bradbury held their wedding reception six miles high.

The couple had wanted to get married in an airborne plane but legal difficulties meant they had to settle for a blessing instead. So James, 46, and Eunice, 48, spoke their vows at the Keighly register office in Yorkshire, then flew to London's Heathrow Airport to catch a "wedding cake" flight to Los Angeles on Tuesday.

Their local vicar, the Rev. Frederick Bosley, his wife Doris, and a childhood friend of the bride, Barbara Wilson, also joined the 400 other passengers on the British Airways Boeing 747.

Bradbury was paying the $11,650 bill for the wedding party's trip to California. He is a real estate developer and his bride runs a nursing home.

The couple was to fly on to Hawaii, alone, for the second part of their honeymoon.

Low prices and few takers

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Hardly anyone noticed when two-digit gasoline prices returned to one Decatur service station.

Robert Born, owner of Born's Shell Service Station, tried a one-day experiment Tuesday, offering regular leaded gasoline at 99 cents a gallon.

"It was a test to see if people are reading the signs," Born said.

But apparently many people weren't. Though Born had his share of customers, there were no long lines.

"People just automatically think independents are cheaper," he said. So, today, Born was to return to selling regular gasoline at $1.16 a gallon.

Lunch munch reveals style

NEW YORK (AP) — What you wolf down for lunch on the run may say as much about your style as your taste, says a Brooklyn psychiatrist.

After a study of the quick-lunch habits of 3,000 people, Dr. Leo Wollman concluded that if your taste leans to hot dogs, you tend to be "outgoing, aggressive, ambitious."

If you grab a hamburger, you're more likely to be quieter, introverted and more conservative — and executive material, he said, adding he did the study just for fun.

CBS building up momentum for fall

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS had the week's eight highest-rated programs, including "The Jeffersons" in first place, and continued to build momentum toward the upcoming fall season.

CBS won the race for the 1979-80 season which ended April 20 by a fraction of a point over four-time winner ABC. Then it lost the weekly competition twice in a row, but is unbeaten in the last seven weeks.

CBS' rating for the week ending June 22 was 14.6 to 14 for ABC and 13.2 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.6 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

Figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed CBS winning three nights of the week — Monday, Friday and Sunday. ABC won the other four nights, while NBC, which did not win a night, returned to the No. 3 position after a week in second place.

The top-rated show for the second straight week was "The Jeffersons" on CBS with a rating of 22.3. Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 22.3 percent saw at least part of the program.

Of 65 shows on the air in the week, only 16 had not been broadcast before. The highest-rated of the new shows was "The Barbara Walters' Special" on ABC, tied for 10th place with another ABC program, "20-20." An NBC movie, "Steel Cowboy," was 15th.

CBS won the week despite having three of the lowest-rated shows. An ABC movie, "Captains Courageous," was 61st, followed by NBC's prime-time broadcasting of the U.S. Olympic boxing trials and the three CBS programs — "Bad News Bears," "The Stockard Channing Show" and a Republican political announcement, "It's a Great Night America."

Here are the week's top-rated shows:

"The Jeffersons," with a rating of 22.3 representing 17 million homes, "Dallas," 21.8 or 16.6 million, "M-A-S-H," 21.5 or 16.4 million, "House Calls," 20.7 or 15.8 million, "Lou Grant," 20.2 or 15.4 million, "Alice," 19.9 or 15.2 million, "Dukes of Hazzard," 19.6 or 15 million, and "Trapper John, M.D.," 19.5 or 14.9 million, all CBS; "Fantasy Island," 19 or 14.5 million, ABC, and "20-20" and "The Barbara Walters' Special," both 18.8 or 14 million, both ABC.

The rest of the Top 20: "60 Minutes," CBS; "Love Boat" and "Charlie's Angels," both ABC; Movie: "Steel Cowboy" and "Quincy, M.E.," both NBC, and "Three's Company," ABC, three-way tie; "Vegas" and "Taxi," both ABC, tie, and "Facts of Life," NBC.

Grain embargo not working

By STEVE SNIDER
State News Service
WASHINGTON — Fresh heat is being applied to the Carter administration's grain embargo against the Soviet Union, combining increased election-year pressure and new evidence the embargo is not working.

A Friday story by the Minneapolis Tribune, reporting the administration has granted permission for U.S. companies to sell grain to the Soviets, was followed shortly by announcements of new efforts in both houses of Congress to rescind the embargo.

The Agriculture Department has confirmed that U.S.-based multinational grain companies have received a green light from the administration to offer foreign-grown grain to the Soviet Union, but not American-grown grain.

Rep. Thomas Harkin, D-Iowa and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. each have drafted legislation to scrap the embargo Harkin calls "ridiculous" and Dole describes as a "charade."

Harkin's measure will likely be at center stage during House Agriculture Committee hearings on the embargo, scheduled for today. The proposal has already won the support of committee member Kent Hance, D-Lubbock. Members Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford and Eligio "Kika" de la Garza, D-Mission, were uncommitted as of late Monday.

"If it's all right for the big grain firms to go back to business as usual, then it's okay for the American farmers also," said Harkin.

Texas Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, a Democrat, and Republican John Tower, early supporters of the embargo like the other Texas lawmakers, have taken no position on the effort by Dole, a one-time GOP presidential candidate and a strong backer of Republican candidate Ronald Reagan.

"The Carter-Mondale administration no longer believes an embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union can be effective, but they don't have the courage to admit their failure to the American farmer," said Sen. David Durenberger, Minnesota Republican.

President Carter announced the halt of a 17 million metric ton sale of wheat and corn to the Soviet Union Jan. 4, saying in a report to Congress. "The restrictions can reasonably be expected to bring home to the Soviet leaders that they cannot act as they have in Afghanistan without paying a significant price."

Critics now say the only significant levy is being paid by U.S. farmers, whose wheat brought 20 cents less per bushel in May than it did last December on average.

"The administration is simply saying that the large corporations cannot be made to suffer by the boycott, but farmers and rural Americans will continue to pay the price," said Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., a Dole co-sponsor. "Foreign grain will be allowed to enter the Russian market while American grain will remain in surplus to depress the prices."

The combination of stinging inflation and generally lowered commodity prices, has pushed most major American farm groups into the battle against the embargo, including the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Farmer's Union and the American Agriculture Movement.

The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, representing Canada's grain belt, has recommended to its government that Canada's participation in the embargo end July 31. Another big producer,

Court rejects man's appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today turned down the appeal of a Michigan man jailed for refusing to tell a grand jury, under immunity, about the crash of a marijuana-laden airplane in Marfa, Texas.

The justices refused to hear Jackie Wayne Scarborough's arguments that he should not have to testify because he later may be prosecuted by Mexico.

Law enforcement officials say Scarborough was the pilot of a plane that crashed not far from the Texas-Mexico border in March 1976.

He was called before a federal grand jury in El Paso last Sept. 18 but refused to talk about the plane crash — even after being given immunity from prosecution for anything he might say. Scarborough said he feared subsequent prosecution by Mexican authorities.

Scarborough was cited for contempt and jailed until he cooperates with the grand jury or until the scheduled end of the grand jury session on Aug. 12.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the contempt citation last Feb. 20.

In seeking Supreme Court review, lawyer Thomas Rabette of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., argued, "A valid fear of foreign prosecution is encompassed with the protection against self-incrimination guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment."

The appeal noted that Mexico has no right against self-incrimination, and that information Scarborough supplies to the El Paso grand jury could be used against him by Mexican authorities.

Court records referred to Scarborough only as a Michigan resident, but did not list a hometown for him.

DR. AND MRS. P. W. MALONE
A PART OF
HOWARD COUNTY'S HERITAGE
THURSDAY, JUNE 26

When one thinks of Big Spring pioneers, the name Malone figures prominently on the list.

Dr. P. W. Malone was born near Watertown in central Tennessee on Sept. 15, 1903. Although there is nothing at first glance to indicate anything especially significant about that date, it is one that augured extremely well for the city of Big Spring.

By the time Malone had managed to graduate from the University of Tennessee in Memphis and complete his medical training at the Baptist Memorial Hospital there, it was nearly the end of the Roaring 20s and nearly the beginning of hard times in this country.

"The stock market had crashed and times were really tough. But I had heard that there was an oil boom in West Texas and that the economy was good out here," said Malone.

So, with that in mind, Malone boarded a train for Big Spring on July 26, 1930. The ticket cost $32, and Malone had to borrow $25 in order to pay for it.

"I stayed in the Crawford Hotel that night, and woke up the next morning in debt," said the doctor.

Nonetheless, the move stuck, and Malone settled here with his wife, Inez, whom he had wed on Oct. 22, 1926. The third member of the family is a daughter, Mary Frances, who now teaches piano and harp in Jonesboro.

After Malone had practiced medicine here for six years, another young doctor, John Hogan, moved to Big Spring. The ensuing friendship of these two men would also prove to be an auspicious occurrence in the city's history.

"There was an eight-bed hospital for sale, and we bought it. It cost $25,000 and we had a hard time getting the loan back then," said Malone.

They did, though, and in 1938 the first Malone-Hogan Hospital was founded. And that alliance spawned what is today a modern, multi-million dollar medical facility, one of the finest in this part of the country.

Even now, at the age of 77, Malone continues active practice at the Malone-Hogan Clinic. He retired at the age of 70, but since the clinic is still looking for an ophthalmologist (an "eye man," explains Malone) to replace him, he continues to see patients and do surgery.

Malone is not the only member of the family to remain active inside hospitals. Mrs. Malone has been busy as a volunteer worker at the reception desk at Malone-Hogan and at the pharmacy in the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital for many years.

Both have also been steady volunteers for activities in the First Baptist Church for over 30 years. In addition, Malone was one of the founders of Howard College, and has been voted as a member of the board of directors since its origin in 1945.

Another passion of Malone's is flying.

"I guess I'm about the oldest licensed pilot in this neck of the woods. I got started flying in 1933 and had my own plane in 1936. It was a Fairchild KR-8 biplane with an open cockpit," he said.

As of late, Malone has been doing less flying and more touring in a well-outfitted motor coach with Mrs. Malone. It's not exactly the same as riding through the clouds in an open cockpit in goggles and a leather helmet, but the spirit of adventure is still there.

"There is still lots to see, and I'm still not above doing anything as long as it's honorable," concluded the doctor.

Over 70 take part in drive

FORSAN — Over 70 people took part in the clean-up campaign conducted here last Saturday.

Major projects included the burning of two long-vacant and neglected houses and the removal of abandoned automobile hulks. Vacant lots in the township were cleaned and mowed.

Coffee and tea were served all day at the Community Center. Doughnuts were brought in during the morning and sandwiches were served by women of the community at lunch.

The day ended with a big barbecue, prepared by volunteer chefs. Each family was asked to bring a covered dish.

Loren's Field Service of Forsan loaned its equipment in the clean-up drive and individuals made available their pickups, trailers and mowers.

Weaver gains signal honor

LAMESA — Bill Weaver has been designated National Cotton Ginner of the Year for 1979 by the National Cotton Ginners Association, which presented him with an appropriately engraved trophy.

Weaver, a longtime farmer and ginner in the Lamesa area, previously had been named Texas Cotton Ginner of the Year.

Weaver is part owner and manager of the Weaver Gins, located just west of Lamesa. The three gins handle 15,000-20,000 bales of cotton a year, on the average. He has been in the ginning business since 1949.

Names in the news Boxing star celebrates

NEW YORK (AP) — His voice was hoarse, his movements slow, but Jack Dempsey's pleasure was obvious on his 85th birthday.

Dempsey, born June 24, 1895, in Manassa, Colo., had been sitting impassively for the better part of an hour listening to a roll call of "the all-time greatest 125 athletes" and descriptions of their feats, but broke into a wide grin when a huge birthday cake was rolled out Tuesday.

"Come on up, Jack," the master of ceremonies at the news conference and luncheon invited.

"Oh, no," said Dempsey's wife, who has been serving as a buffer between her aging husband and the ever-present demands of the media and fans.

Dempsey, his face wrinkled and tanned, moved back his chair, laboriously lifted himself out of it, and with the help of a heavy wooden cane moved to the front of the restaurant dining room.

Photographers rushed to capture the scene as Dempsey posed over the cake surrounded by retired baseball stars Hank Aaron and Frank Robinson, former pro football player Dick Butkus, Houston Oilers running back Earl Campbell and former tennis star Don Budge.

"I feel wonderful, great," he said as he cut and recut into the birthday cake topped by two replicas of boxing gloves.

Dancer now U.S. citizen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Juliet Prowse, the leggy dancer-actress who first appeared before American audiences in the movie "Can Can" opposite Frank Sinatra, has become a U.S. citizen.

Federal Judge David Williams performed the ceremony Monday. Miss Prowse, who was born in Bombay, India, currently resides in Beverly Hills with her son Seth.

Twenty years ago, the dancer came to Hollywood from Barcelona, Spain, where she had been appearing at the Teatro Comico. "Can Can," a Cole Porter musical about life among Paris showgirls, was released in 1959.

Jackson a Good Samaritan

NEW YORK (AP) — When Ingrid Rachinger of Nuetingen, Germany, was struck by a car at Madison Avenue and 78th Street, little did she know the attention the Good Samaritan who helped her could have generated.

She didn't know it, but the man who put a wet towel on her head and pleaded with Tuesday's noontime crowds to stand back was Yankee outfielder Reggie Jackson.

Jackson was walking nearby with his agent, Matt Merola, when the accident occurred. He sent Merola to call for an ambulance and rushed to the injured woman's side.

The Yankee superstar asked for wet towels and a pedestrian got them. As he applied the towels to her face, he consoled her: "You'll be all right, an ambulance is coming."

The woman was taken to Lenox Hill Hospital for treatment of a shoulder injury. And Jackson walked off, unrecognized.

Death toll at 2,000 in violence in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The discovery of a mass grave in the village of Athara Card has pushed the death toll in violence between local tribes and immigrant Bengalis in northeastern India to 2,000, the Indian Express newspaper reported today.

Tribesmen surrounded the village, set it on fire and "systematically hacked to death about 1,000 inhabitants," a witness told the Express. The newspaper report originated in the Tripura state capital of Agartala, located about 250 miles east of Calcutta.

The victims, members of the Hindu Bengali community, emigrated to India from predominantly Moslem Bangladesh. An extremist faction of a Tripura political organization led the attack, aimed at punishing the Bengalis for creating unemployment and housing and food shortages in the impoverished state, the newspaper said.

The report said police discovered 12 rotting corpses at the entrance to Athara Card, adding that the attackers apparently threw hundreds of bodies into a nearby river.

Officials from neighboring Bangladesh reported sighting the bodies of about 400 beheaded men, women and children floating down two rivers in the violence-ravaged state.

Official confirmation of the incident at Athara Card or when it took place was not immediately available. The Express reported that when a police party visited the site of the alleged massacre it was beaten back by the tribesmen who outnumbered them.

The newspaper report did not give further details on the mass grave, its location or how many bodies it contained.

Indian officials said at least 1,000 persons have been killed in the violence which began June 7 when local tribesmen attacked Bengali settlements. State authorities claim that the attacks are part of a movement by tribal insurgents seeking independence from India.

In Tripura, where an estimated 1.3 million immigrants have settled among some 500,000 natives, is one of five northeastern Indian states where natives have battled immigrants and central government authorities. Earlier clashes occurred in Mizoram, Assam, Meghalaya and Manipur.

Chrysler receives much needed loan

DETROIT (AP) — There's a car advertisement whose catch line is "Oh, what a feeling!"

The ad is not Chrysler's, but it probably expresses the No. 3 automaker's sentiment after its 12-month campaign to stay in business was fulfilled Tuesday.

The company received a desperately needed $500 million infusion Tuesday as part of a federally guaranteed loan program and restructuring of its $4.4 billion debt.

Chrysler officials say the money will go toward paying its 19,000 suppliers — whose $175 million in bills has gone unpaid this month — and launching the new "K-car" compact this fall.

Tuesday's ceremony saved Chrysler from tottering into bankruptcy, officials said. It also concluded two weeks of frantic work by company and government officials trying to get about 20 reluctant banks to join in the fiscal rescue plan. The congressionally approved plan for Chrysler requires lenders, suppliers, labor unions and governmental agencies to join the effort.

And after the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board gave its OK in Washington, there was still another nerve-racking period before the final check-passing. A fire in a New York office building Monday night occurred where lawyers had been handling some of the Chrysler agreement's paperwork and the signing was delayed 90 minutes.

"What else can go wrong?" a Chrysler executive wondered to a caller during the delay.

Government officials originally estimated Chrysler would have to pay 15 percent interest, but rates dropped drastically in recent weeks. The lower rate means a savings to Chrysler of $23.25 million a year in the early years the notes are outstanding.

The notes were almost all sold during the afternoon, Salomon Brothers said.

J.R.'s back, alive and kicking

DALLAS (AP) — Only the good die young, while the dastardly wheeler-dealers like J.R. Ewing live on to survive both gunshot wounds and contract disputes with television producers.

A pistol-packing assailant gunned down the crafty, cutthroat J.R. in the final episode of the popular CBS television series "Dallas," leaving fans to ponder for six months the gunman's identity.

Almost every character in the weekly, hour-long soap opera is a suspect in the attempted murder. And executives at the California-based Lorimar Productions are determined to keep the mystery a secret until the show airs Sept. 19.

"This is a dramatic show and the whole affect would be lost if everyone knew who did it," said Lorimar publicist Earl Wingard. "We want the audience to hang in there with us."

All "Dallas" fans were really sure of Tuesday was that prime time's favorite villain would survive his wounds.

Larry Hagman, who portrays the sinister oil and cattle baron, re-joined the 10-member cast Tuesday on location here, Wingard said.

"I was supposed to have guards 24 hours a day," cried J.R. as he was rolled in a wheelchair from the fictitious Dallas General Hospital on Tuesday.

"What burns me is how they got in the office in the first place ... They're just trying to drag more money out of me, that's what they're trying to do," he screamed.

The Texas-born actor flew from London to Texas on Sunday, almost two weeks after filming of the fall series began.

Hagman and Lorimar officials reached an agreement Monday on their lengthy contract dispute. Industry spokesmen had speculated Hagman, who also starred in the sit-com "I Dream of Jeannie," had demanded as much as $100,000 per episode to return to the show.

The settlement, which reportedly makes Hagman one of the highest paid actors on television, sealed the villain's fate, the question still remains: Who shot J.R.?

"Dallas" police already have arrested Cliff Barnes, the brother of J.R.'s sister-in-law played by Ken Kercheval, and attorney Alan Beam, depicted by Raymond Powell.

Authorities planned to arrest J.R.'s wife, Sue Ellen today, Wingard said.

Sue Ellen Ewing, played by Linda Gray, was to be arrested and taken to police headquarters for questioning in the shooting of her husband.

But, Wingard insists. "Nobody really knows who did it."

"That decision will be made after several shots (of nabbing the suspect) are made," he said. "One will be skipped in right before air time."

Dress the part during Rodeo Week

Hidden cowboy in everyone emerges

By MICKIE DICKSON and ROBBIE CROW
For the hundreds of rough and rowdy cowboys who make up a large portion of our wrangler-type town, there won't be any problem. They dress the part of the classy cowboy day in and day out. Boots, blue jeans, belts and hats are embedded in their lifestyles and heritage.
However, Rodeo Week is here, and with its arrival emerges the little bit of cowboy hidden inside everyone from the plumber to the taxi-cab driver.
Not just cowboys, but everyone experiences that previously unexposed desire to dress the part of a real, live cowboy during Big Spring's Rodeo Week. It stirs up the 'howdy pardner' in all of us.

According to Jonell Smallwood, owner of Smallwood's Western Wear at 112 E. Third, typical rodeo attire is a cowboy hat, western shirt and blue jeans finished off with a personalized western belt and a pair of cowboy boots.
Smallwood explained that boots and blue jeans have become parts of the permanent attire for most people these days.
"People don't come in to buy boots and a hat just for the rodeo as they did some years ago," he said.
Round toe boots are the most popular style now and no cowboy feels complete without his personalized western belt with his name branded across the back.

The personalized belt is the most popular with the younger clientele that frequent Smallwood's store and has been for about six years.
The best way to describe western shirts for 1980 is "colorful." This year's rodeo scene will feature the upper half of the cowboy body clothed with an eye-catching shirt fashioned with flowered yokes and flashy snaps.
A cowboy's attire is important to him right from the tip of his boot toe to the top of the last snap on his western shirt. But when you get right down to it, a cowboy's image is revealed by the hat he wears.
In an Oklahoma newspaper article, cowboy Jim Sayre was quoted saying "One way to make a normally peaceful cowboy mad is to touch his hat."

The feeling a cowboy has for his hat has developed out of more than a century of tradition. A cowboy's hat is a part of his equipment or trade.
"A typical cowboy will spend his last dime on a good hat because a hat is important to his ego," confirmed Smallwood.
For a true cowboy, a hat symbolizes and expresses the spirit of the true west today. The hat remains the strongest link with the past since its style is truly American in origin.
"The better the hat is a cowboy wears," explained the western store owner, "the more people are impressed."
To sum it all up, a cowboy can get by wearing worn jeans and boots, but their hat must be the best.

"Feather hat bands and trim on hats seem to be very popular now," stated Smallwood.
Hat companies that furnish local retailers put out their fall 1980 samples in January and a year's production of felt hats was sold by February, continued Smallwood.
"This demand has increased the price of western hats and the manufacturers have put the dealers on allotment. Western hats are now selling in New York, Chicago, Boston, Cleveland and many other northern and eastern states where they've never been sold before," commented Smallwood.

Since the Houston Oilers and Dallas Cowboys started wearing western hats during interviews during the 1979 playoffs, people who have never owned western hats before are wearing them now.
A little bit of the old west lives inside all of us. And the new movie "Urban Cowboy" starring John Travolta is definite proof.
A run on western boots and hats is expected by western stores because of the hero-type cowboy image portrayed in the movie.
As for Smallwood's 7-year-old son, Sammy, he'll be wearing blue jeans, boots, a western shirt and a straw hat to the 1980 Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion.
What will you wear?

"Fake Wake" Birthday Belongs 6 Feet Under

DEAR ABBY: By the time you receive this the party will be over, but I would like your opinion.
My father-in-law will turn 50 on Sunday, and he's been slightly upset about attaining this milestone. In order to help him through this traumatic birthday party, his daughter decided to give him a surprise birthday party. The theme of this party is a "wake" for her father's youth. She is going to have a regular size coffin on display and have the place decorated like a funeral parlor.

My sister-in-law keeps assuring me and my husband that several of their friends have had similar parties with this theme and they were all great parties. My husband and I find the whole idea very morbid. Are we being stuffy and narrow minded?

I'd be interested in your opinion.

REPULSED IN COLORADO SPRINGS

DEAR REPULSED: This fake wake strikes me as sick, tasteless and strained. But now that it's past, I'd be interested in knowing how the idea went over — or under.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister is being married soon in another state. My husband and I plan to attend her wedding, but here is the problem. We have three children, ages 5, 3 and 14 months old. They are very active, and to say they are a handful is a mild understatement. I want to leave them home so that I can have a little vacation and relax away from home, kids and responsibilities.

My mother has offered to stay with them in my absence, but my husband wants to take them — to show them off. He says it will be "unfair" to his relatives if we don't bring the kids.

HARRISBURG HASSLE

DEAR HASSLE: I think it will be unfair to YOU if your husband insists on taking them. Furthermore, he owes you more than he owes his relatives. Besides, his relatives will look at the kids for two minutes, and you'll have to look after them the rest of the time.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

The worthy matron was presented her gavel by her husband. Other gifts were presented to the worthy matron and worthy patron from the installing officers, chapter officers, past matrons and relatives and friends. Charles Russell presented Barbara Ann Russell with a gavel emblem added to her Eastern Star ring. Jentz Shaughnessy and Jennifer Richardson presented the worthy matron with a Rainbow Bible.

The Past Matrons Club served as hostesses for the reception which followed. The table was covered in green and held an arrangement of pink roses. Silver appointments were used. The cake was adorned with a large Eastern Star emblem.

Petty crimes of youth prevent U.S. citizenship

NEW YORK (AP) — Still haunted by the petty crimes of his youth, a 56-year-old man has apparently lost his fight for U.S. citizenship because he stole olives and some tree bark to feed and warm his family in war-torn Sicily.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday told Michele Chiaramonte it sympathized with him but could not overrule the Immigration and Naturalization Service's denial of his citizenship application.

"We are not unmindful of the seeming harshness in turning the petitioner away because of two minor criminal escapades committed in his youth," wrote Judge Thomas J. Meskill.

"The regulation of immigration is a matter entrusted to Congress and we are not free to substitute our judgment for that of the national legislature merely because the statutory scheme dictates a severe or unfortunate result in a particular case."

It was not immediately clear whether Chiaramonte, who has been seeking U.S.

citizenship for nine years, could be deported. That would mean saying goodbye to his sprawling family, bidding farewell to his brand new granddaughter.

"His family is all here," Tony Chiaramonte said for his cousin, who speaks no English. "I don't feel like this is right."

Chiaramonte said in his court papers that he was convicted by a court in Partinco, Sicily, of stealing 60 pounds of olives in late 1943. He was jailed for 15 days and fined. He said he stole the olives because his family needed food.

Four months later, he was caught stealing tree bark from private property to produce fuel for his family's oven. He confessed and received a suspended sentence.

The convictions thwarted his first attempt to come to the U.S. in 1970, 20 years after his father and two brothers had emigrated. In 1971, he managed to gain permission to visit his ailing father, now 88.

His application for citizenship was later rejected, but he was undaunted. According to the legal papers, he overstayed his visa and arranged for his wife and two sons to be smuggled into the United States through Canada.

As his case dragged on, he got a job as a porter and settled in the Astoria section of Queens. Down the street was Tony Chiaramonte; nearby were Michele's brothers, father, and two sisters.

Tony Chiaramonte said he agreed with a part of the court decision that said the government's denials in his cousin's case "may seem somewhat quixotic" when compared to the "veritable floodtide of immigration, legal and illegal, which this nation has experienced of late" from Cuba and Indochina.

"There's a lot of people who are coming in," Tony said. "I could understand why they're letting them in, but you look at the news of those who are convicted of crimes and were prostitutes..."

"Here's a man who's got a job," the cousin continued. "He's not on welfare... In fact he's giving his taxes and the government doesn't want to let him stay here. I think it's very unfair."

Onion pickers air grievances

HEREFORD, Texas (AP) — About 200 onion pickers have walked off the job at a field near here, demanding higher wages, a union contract, portable toilets and clean drinking water as conditions for their return.

The workers, some waving the black and red banner of the Texas Farm Workers Union, refused Tuesday to harvest onions in a field near Hereford for the Howard Gault Co.

Texas Farm Workers Union spokesman Jesus Moya said the workers are demanding 80 cents, instead of the current rate of 45 cents, per 53 pound bag of onions.

Cameron Gault, part owner of the packing company, said negotiations were underway with the union, but he declined to detail the company's offer.

He said if a compromise could not be reached with the union, he and other farmers might be forced to purchase expensive machinery to pick the onions.

Gault's 20-acre onion field was the first ready for harvest in the Hereford area. Moya said the strike would spread to other packers if it is determined they are not paying the minimum hourly wage.

"The growers have got to pay the workers a decent wage," he said. "We're going to hit any growers not paying the minimum wage."

Farmworkers contend the 45 cent rate per bag is below the $3.10 an hour minimum wage.

Bill Beardall, an attorney for the Texas Rural Legal Aid which is representing the farm workers, said most of the workers were only getting a dollar to a $1.00 to $1.50 per hour.

"All they are seeking is to get minimum wages, and they want some type of portable toilet and clean drinking water," said Beardall.

"Nobody out there is making minimum wage," said Ed Tuddenham, another legal aid attorney.

Exam of shoeprints fails to identify killer

WYLIE, Texas (AP) — A comparison of bloody shoeprints and a suspect's shoes has failed to positively identify the ax murderer of a 30-year-old woman, medical examiners say.

Dr. Irving Stone of the Institute of Forensic Science in Dallas said he examined the bloody shoeprints found near the mutilated remains of Betty Gore, who was hacked to death June 13.

"Nothing I've done positively associates a particular person with the crime," Stone said Tuesday. "But that is not to say that the evidence may not tend to identify someone."

The prints were compared to shoes belonging to a suspect, a woman friend of the Gore family whose thumbprint was found on the blood-smeared refrigerator.

Investigators reported that four other latent prints — not the suspect's — have been found in the house, as well as hair and blood in the bathtub where officers believe the murderer may have showered.

Wylie Police Chief Royce Abbott said Monday he was conferring with the district attorney, and that he did "not expect to make any arrests any time soon."

The current grand jury convenes for the last time Thursday, but will not hear the case, said a spokeswoman for the district attorney's office.

Dan Mendell succeeds Byrd at Exxon post

Dan Mendell III has been named manager of Exxon Company, U.S.A.'s Mid-continent Production Division in Midland, replacing recently retired L. H. Byrd. He was formerly operations manager in the company's Southeastern Production Division in New Orleans.

Mendell joined Exxon in 1961 and subsequently held engineering assignments in Louisiana, Houston and Baytown. In 1973, he was transferred from an assignment in Public Affairs to engineering manager in the East Texas Production Division. He was named operations manager for the Southeastern Division in 1977.

A native of Wichita Falls, Mendell received a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from the University of Texas in 1961. He is a member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers, the American Institute of Mechanical Engineers and the American Petroleum Institute.

Byrd retired after 43 years of service with the company. Byrd joined Exxon in 1937 at Talco, Texas, and served in various field assignments in East Texas prior to a transfer to the petroleum engineering group in the company's Houston headquarters. He held several engineering positions in Houston and Corpus Christi before entering military service in 1942.

Byrd subsequently rejoined Exxon and held various engineering assignments in East Texas and management positions in California and Dallas. He was transferred to Midland as manager of the Mid-continent Production Division in 1965.

During his career with Exxon, he has been active in community and civic affairs. In Midland, Byrd served as a director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the Midland Chamber of Commerce, the Better Business Bureau, the Midland Memorial Hospital and Junior Achievement. He served as president of the Permian Basin Oil Show in 1978.

A native of Jacksonville, Texas, Byrd received a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from Texas A&M University in 1937.

Membership drive will start with breakfast

The local American G.I. Forum chapter will have a membership drive party to recruit new members and to bring back old ones.

The drive will be held June 28 at Talito's Hall. The party will start at 9 p.m. with music provided by La Sombra Band. A breakfast will then be served.

Anyone wishing to join may contact membership chairman Raymond Gonzales. The state chairman, Manuela Casanova, Laredo; and vice chairman, Jose Trevino, Killeen, will be visiting.

The forum is a veterans and non-veteran family organization. It was founded March 26, 1946, by Dr. Hector F. Garcia, a physician and surgeon from Corpus Christi, in spite of protective legislation guaranteeing veterans certain rights and privileges.

Returning veterans, especially those of Mexican-American heritage, were being discriminated against in the areas of education, employment, medical attention, housing and welfare.

Within a year's time, over 100 Texas chapters flourished. The American G.I. Forum is not limited to Mexican Americans only, but is open to any veteran wishing to work for the aims and objectives of the organization.

Non-veterans have the same voting rights within the organization. The forum is a non-political organization, but encourages its members to participate in politics as individuals.

No political parties or candidates are endorsed by the forum, though many chapters invite candidates for elective offices to appear at their meeting.

Orioles use McGregor to peck past Blue Jays

By the Associated Press
Weaver saw some pretty good pitching Tuesday night. Weaver did some pretty good pitching, too.

"The kid can pitch, that's all I can say," Earl Weaver, Baltimore's manager, said after 26-year-old left-hander Scott McGregor baffled Toronto with a four-hitter, facing just two more than the minimum of 27 batters in the Orioles' 1-0 victory over the Blue Jays.

Another "kid," 25-year-old right-handed reliever Roger Weaver of Detroit, silenced Cleveland for 31-3 innings to pick up his first major league victory as the Tigers stretched their winning streak to six games by belting the Indians 9-4.

McGregor, who has pitched nine innings of major league ball since being called up from the minors and has yet to allow a run, replaced Detroit starter Dan Petry in the third inning. "At first I was a little cold," he said. "I was a little concerned, but when Dan got in trouble early, I was hoping it would be me. I was afraid I was going to get stale from not working. You never like to go into the game so early, because it means the starting pitcher is in trouble."

Yankees 10, Red Sox 5
Reggie Jackson is supposed to hit mammoth home runs and he did, a three-run shot in the eighth inning deep into the right-center field stands in cavernous Yankee Stadium.

Rick Cerone is not supposed to hit home runs — of any kind — but he put one in the stands, too. And it was the big shot of the night, a third-inning "clout" that erased Boston's 5-3 lead.

Twins 2-2, Royals 1-4
Roy Smalley's RBI single in the ninth inning gave Minnesota its first game triumph, then Amos Otis drove in two runs with a pair of singles in the Royals' nightcap victory that made it a split.

SHOWING THE PROOF — Pittsburgh Pirates catcher Ed Ott holds up the ball to umpire Lanny Harris after Ott tagged out St. Louis' Ted Simmons at the plate in the sixth inning of a game in St. Louis last night, trying to score from second on a liner by Reds batter Dave Concepcion.

The Citizens Federal Credit Union Stars used a 15-hit attack in taking a 21-15 win over the Caldwell Electric Talons and throwing the International League race into a three-way tie with only two nights of play remaining.

The win gives the Stars a second-half record of 6-2 and a season mark of 10-7. Both the Comets and the Rockets are also 10-7 on the year. Each team has one game remaining.

The loss dropped the Talons to a 1-7 record and a season mark of 4-13.

Winning pitcher Paul Decker, in his mound debut, hurled a no-hitter and struck out 11. John Rodriguez was the losing hurler.

The Stars, who scored all of the runs in three big innings, were led by Mark Sate and Rob... Riddell, who had three hits each. Contributing two hits apiece were Juice Jones, Johnny Sanders, David Henson and Allan Sutton. Victor Pruitt added a single to the Stars' cause.

Of the hits, Jones and Riddell each had a two-bagger.

Cromartie led Expos increase lead in NL East

Someone asked Warren Cromartie how many game-winning hits he had had this season. Quite a few, right? "I don't count them," said Cromartie. "Maybe (Pete) Rose does. I don't keep tabs on that stuff. I just go out and play baseball."

Cromartie, who has hit in eight straight games and is batting .317, singled home the winning Montreal run in the 10th inning Tuesday night, giving the Expos a 7-6 victory over Philadelphia and a 2 1/2-game lead over the Phils in the National League East.

Ron LeFlore started the 10th for Montreal with a single and advanced to second on an infield out. With first base open and lefty reliever Tug McGraw, 0-3, on the mound, Philadelphia Manager Dallas Green ordered the right-handed swinging Gary Carter to be walked. That brought Cromartie, a lefty, to bat.

Carter's line single in the eighth had given the Expos a short-lived 6-5 lead, but the Phils tied it with two out in the ninth on an RBI single by Garry Maddox.

Mets 6, Cubs 5
New York got home runs from Claudell Washington, his fourth in two days, Mike Jorgensen, and Elliott Maddox to outgun the Cubs. Washington's was a three-run blast in the fifth that capped a four-run inning.

Mark Bomback, 5-1, earned the victory in relief of Ray Burris, who yielded all five of Chicago's runs in four innings.

Reds 8, Braves 2
Dave Concepcion drove in a pair of runs, one with a solo homer in the first inning, and Charlie Leibrandt tossed a three-hitter to help Cincinnati continue its domination this season of the Braves.

The Reds, who have won eight of nine games this season with Atlanta, erupted for four runs in the eighth, capped by Concepcion's RBI-single. His homer in the first inning was his first in more than two months.

Cards 3, Pirates 2
Bobby Bonds bounced back from an 0-for-27 hitting slump with a double and a home run to pace St. Louis over the sliding Pirates, who have lost eight of their past nine.

Bonds doubled and scored in the first inning and homered in the third to break a 2-2 deadlock.

Padres 5, Giants 3
Aurelio Rodriguez cracked a two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the eighth off Giants starter Bob Knepper to snap a 3-3 tie and give the Padres their win over San Francisco. The homer was the first for San Diego since June 9.

John D'Acquisto, 1-1, picked up the victory in relief of Eric Rasmussen. He worked the last five innings without giving up a hit.

Draft registration expected to get final okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearing the end of a long and heated battle over peacetime draft registration, Congress is preparing to give President Carter enough money to sign up an estimated 4 million young men in the weeks ahead.

The House was expected to give final congressional approval today to a measure appropriating $13.3 million to take the Selective Service System out of "deep standby" and conduct registration for the first time since 1975.

Even opponents conceded it would be passed and sent to the White House for Carter's signature. The only remaining step then would be for Carter to issue an executive order directing born in 1960 and 1961 to register, and telling them when to report, perhaps as early as late July.

Selective Service officials have said they will start the program four to five weeks after the money is received.

Young men will be required to go to a local post office to sign a registration form. The program will be spread out over two weeks, with young men born in 1960 registering the first week and teen-agers born in 1961 registering the second week.

Failure to register is a felony carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

While the president has authority to order registration, he would have to win approval from Congress to bring back an actual draft.

Women are not required to register. Despite Carter's initial request to include women in the program, Congress made it clear it would not go along with that and the administration did not push the matter.

The American Civil Liberties Union has promised to file suit challenging the constitutionality of an all-male program.

Registration opponents vowed to conduct nationwide demonstrations that could tie up the post offices during the program, and also to protest at the Republican and Democratic national conventions this summer.

Opponents, led by the Committee Against Registration and the Draft, said they would distribute gummed labels to attach to registration forms, saying, "I am registering under protest."

They also are organizing a campaign to "register against the draft" — inviting Americans to print the words "I am registering against the draft" on a post card and to send it to the organization in Washington.

Carter and his allies argued registration would save 90 to 100 days in mobilizing recruits in an emergency.

But critics of the plan noted that a Selective Service report said registration would save only seven days. Selective Service officials disavowed the report's conclusions after Carter endorsed registration.

The House vote, coming on the heels of Senate approval June 12, marks the end of a chain of events that began Jan. 23 when Carter told a joint session of Congress the United States must renew registration as a signal to the Soviet Union of U.S. resolve in the aftermath of the Russian occupation of Afghanistan.

Pakistan calls on U.N. to stop annexation plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Pakistan, on behalf of the 40-nation Islamic Conference, called on the U.N. Security Council to impose sanctions against Israel if it annexes Arab East Jerusalem. But Israel told the council to turn a deaf ear to Pakistan's "shrill voice of incitement, hatred and fanaticism."

Pakistani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi, opening Tuesday's four-hour debate, said firm and immediate action was needed from the council to block annexation of the eastern sector of the ancient holy

UW officials in workshop

Three members of the Big Spring United Way Executive Board attended a United Way Campaign Workshop held in Lubbock, Tuesday, according to David Partlow, United Way Public Relations chairman.

Ron Medley, United Way campaign chairman, Dr. Charles Hays, United Way President, and Partlow, attended the all-day event, held at the Hilton Inn in Lubbock.

The workshop was held to assist United Way officials in finding ways to make the United Way job easier and more productive, said Medley.

"This workshop was very helpful," said Medley, "as many communities report it helping them raise as much as 20 percent more money over the prior year."

The workshop's directives suggested how to set up time schedules, campaign dates, and other pertinent information needed to set up a successful campaign, said Hays.

"The workshop proved to be very productive," said Hays. "As the information presented at the meeting solidified our thoughts on the actions that we have already taken in our campaign."

The United Way Executive Board will hold its next meeting at 5:15 p.m., July 17, in the Howard College Tumbleweed Room.

Hispanics gather in Washington

WASHINGTON — More than 2,000 persons are expected here today for opening ceremonies of the 51st annual convention of the League of National Latin American Citizens (LULAC).

The convention, to be held at Washington's Shoreham Hotel, will feature symposiums on issues important to the Mexican-American community and speeches by a number of senators and congressmen with large Hispanic constituencies.

The theme of this year's convention is "Hispanics: At the Threshold of Economic Development and Political Power."

LULAC, which began with 12 original councils in 1929, has grown to a membership of more than 100,000 persons in 38 states.

One measure of the respect the organization has built can be seen in the list of politicians who have agreed to address the convention. Speeches by Vice President Walter Mondale, independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson, Republican Party chairman Bill Brock and Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti are scheduled to appear before the convention ends Sunday.

President Carter was invited to the convention, according to spokesman city which Israel seized from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war.

In an obvious reference to the United States, Shahi declared, "The countries which support Israel bear a special responsibility to contain rampant Israeli aggression and not to encourage Israeli intransigence under the shelter of veto, but instead to impress upon their ally a modicum of respect for the norms of international behavior."

Israel's U.N. Ambassador Yehuda Blum said he would present his main speech at a later time but spoke briefly to counter what he called the "shrill voice of incitement, hatred and fanaticism" coming from Pakistan. He suggested the issue of Jerusalem was being used to hide the Islamic countries' concern over the six-month Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. "Is Jerusalem being abused here for the sake of concerns connected with Kabul?" Blum asked. Kabul is the Afghan capital.

Israel made West Jerusalem its capital when the Jewish state was founded in 1948 and since the war 13 years ago, has treated the whole city as its capital. The status has not been confirmed by written law, but a number of government offices are in East Jerusalem and on Sunday it was announced that Prime Minister Menachem Begin was moving his office to the eastern sector.

The council debate was requested following an earlier Israeli government announcement in May that it would back an opposition bill introduced in the Knesset, or Parliament, declaring all of Jerusalem the capital.

The move infuriated Begin's partner in peace, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, and led to his suspension of year-long negotiations on Palestinian self-rule on the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip. Sadat had also sought autonomy for Arabs in East Jerusalem.

Dennis Garza of Corpus Christi, but informed the group last week that Mondale would represent Carter instead. Ronald Reagan, the likely Republican nominee for president, also was invited but agreed to send a stand-in, Garza said. It appeared late Monday that Indiana Sen. Richard Lugar or New York Rep. Jack Kemp, both of whom have been mentioned as possible Reagan running mates, would take Reagan's place on the podium.

On Sunday, delegates from the organization's regional councils will select a new national president. As the convention opened, Corpus Christi attorney Ruben Bonilla Jr., the current president, was the only announced candidate.

But Garza said it is likely there will be at least one challenger for the president's post.

Only 750 elected delegates will participate in the selection of the organization's officers, Garza said. That includes more than 30 from the South Texas-Gulf Coast area, he said.

During the meeting, the delegates will discuss immigration, health, energy, employment, housing, education and Hispanic-black coalitions.

Hospice gives dignity for dying patients

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Jacqueline Johnson can't predict the day or the hour she will die, but she knows it will be soon. And she is ready.

"It's not that I've given up. I just decided I would use what time I had," said the 65-year-old Martinsburg woman, terminally ill with cancer.

As one of four patients involved in a recently created hospice program at City Hospital in Martinsburg, Mrs. Johnson has been given medical care along with the psychological support to choose how she will live her final few months.

Hospice programs, designed to ease the mental and physical pain accompanying terminal illness, stress home care with support from trained and volunteer medical teams. The first step is acceptance of death.

For Mrs. Johnson, that acceptance came last fall when a doctor confirmed her suspicions with his diagnosis of cancer.

"I knew what was wrong with me before I went to the doctor," explained Mrs. Johnson, a microbiologist who worked in hospitals for 44 years. "I have a tumor in my esophagus. I'm going to die of starvation eventually."

Her physician, Dr. Timothy Bowers, describes Mrs. Johnson as a "remarkable woman."

"Not every patient can accept this kind of program. Some persons cannot accept the fact that they have a terminal disease and are going to die," he said.

"The essence of the hospice program is to make that remaining time as useful as it possibly can be, to concentrate on living, not dying."

Mrs. Johnson said she is putting her remaining time to good use.

"Some people have heart attacks and strokes and don't get a chance to say goodbye," she said. "I've made a will now and I'm working on a little bit of the family history."

While there is life, she said, neither she nor her son, who lives nearby, will mourn death.

"I think I made as a good a choice as there is," she said. "There's no really good solution, and I've made my turn in the road. It's no use looking back, I'm too far gone."

Mrs. Johnson looks "rather bony, now." She said she's not in pain, but feels "rather blah."

"I was hoping I'd feel really good. I suppose that's expecting too much. But it's not as bleak as it sounds."

The hospice concept is spreading throughout the country, and citizen groups in Charleston, Beckley, Oak Hill and Parkersburg are looking into such programs, according to a West Virginia health agency.

The West Virginia Health Systems Agency is expected to adopt guidelines for hospice programs in the next few months.

Mrs. Johnson said she hopes hospice programs will change people's attitudes toward death:

"It's only natural for people to like a happy ending to the story. Most doctors are trained to fight illness and hope to win. They feel much better if their patients get well. Doctors are a little embarrassed when they don't — they feel as if they're on the losing side.

"And it's interesting how other people treat you. When you get ill they shout at you. Everything must be impaired, they think, including your hearing."

A few months ago, Mrs. Johnson helped train some of the hospice program volunteers. "To give them the patient's view," she explained with a laugh. "I tell them the patients just want to manage to die as comfortably as they can."

Bowers said all patients must be referred to the program by a physician. They are given pain killers when they say they need it, and counseling is available for family members after the death, he said.

Mrs. Johnson plans to stay at her home alone "and be independent for as long as possible."

"In some ways it makes it easier when you know it's almost hopeless," Mrs. Johnson said. "You take what you have and make the most of it."

Vietnamese widen Cambodian attack

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Estimates of civilian casualties rose to between 600 and 1,000 wounded as Vietnamese forces widened their military operations along the Thai-Cambodian border today.

The International Red Cross reported 223 wounded Cambodian refugees at the vast Khao I Dang camp, "several hundred" at the border encampment of Nong Chan, and 350 wounded Thais in Aranyaprathet, 140 miles east of Bangkok.

The Red Cross and the U.N. Children's Fund rushed medical teams and food to several large groups of Cambodians uprooted in the fighting, including 10,000 at Kok Sung, 5,000 at Nong Chan and up to 15,000 in Nong Samet.

Tens of thousands of others were believed to have fled into forested areas or were under Vietnamese control.

The Thai command said more reinforcements were being moved in to sweep away remaining Vietnamese positions inside Thai territory in a 35-mile stretch north of Aranyaprathet.

Most of the Vietnamese troops who struck into Thailand three days ago were back inside Cambodia but apparently dug in along the border and capable of raking Thai positions with small arms fire and artillery.

The Thai command estimated that up to 10,000 Vietnamese troops were deployed along the border inside Cambodia to the north and south of Aranyaprathet.

The command reported fighting between "Free Khmer" anti-communist guerrillas and Vietnamese troops in the northern Cambodian province of Oddar Mean Chey and said the guerrillas sought temporary refuge in Thailand's Surin province.

The command also said Vietnamese troop movements were detected to the south of Aranyaprathet where the guerrillas of ousted Premier Pol Pot are concentrated and that fighting had broken out between the Vietnamese and Pol Pot troops at Nimit, a key village 10 miles inside Cambodia on the major highway leading from the Thai border to the provincial city of Battambang.

A command spokesman said more elements of the Thai air force had been put on alert and that jet fighter-bombers were used to support Thai ground forces in fighting along the border.

The three-day old border fighting has been concentrated along a stretch of frontier north of Aranyaprathet, but the Thai command said more Vietnamese forces appear to be heading southward inside Cambodia, possibly to strike at guerrillas who have been battling them since the Vietnamese invaded Cambodia 18 months ago, ousted Pol Pot and installed a pro-Hanoi regime.

The Vietnamese struck across the Thai border Monday, apparently to punish the pro-Western Thai government for allowing the Free Khmers to stage raids against the Vietnamese in Cambodia from Thai territory.

But the official Vietnam News Agency said this was a "slandorous allegation" aimed at diverting public opinion from U.S. and Chinese support for "Khmer reactionaries" bent on disrupting the security of Cambodia.

Daingerfield residents pay tribute to four slain

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — A grieving town paid final tribute to four slain worshippers cutdown by a withering volley of gunfire during Daingerfield's bloodiest day.

Hundreds of mourners traveled to nearby De Kalb on Tuesday to bury 7-year-old Gina Linam, the youngest of five killed in the Sunday morning attack at the First Baptist Church of Daingerfield.

Grieving friends and family honored Kenneth Truitt, Thelma Richardson, and Gene Gandy at the same sanctuary where the heavily-armed gunman directed his lethal fusillade.

Laverne McDaniel, one of 10 parishioners wounded in the attack, was expected to be temporarily released from a Texarkana hospital today to attend the 2 p.m. funeral for her husband, James Y. "Red" McDaniel, who died trying to subdue the gunman.

The Rev. Virgil Fielden, associate pastor of the 900-member Daingerfield church, wept as he eulogized the Linam girl before the crowd of 400 to 500 at the 35-minute service in De Kalb.

"I feel hope... Death is not the end," he said. "This precious one whom I loved so much has been taken home to Jesus."

The service was the first of three funerals Fielden conducted Tuesday. The funeral for Mrs. Richardson, a 78-year-old widow, was held in Daingerfield concurrently with the Linam service.

During the Gandy and Truitt funerals, there was little evidence to remind mourners that such an attack had occurred. The door had been repaired and the bloody carpet removed.

"There are no easy answers to what possesses a man to do something like this," said the Rev. Jim Powell, a former minister of the First Baptist Church who returned to officiate the funerals.

Police estimated a third of the town's 2,800 residents turned out to pay their last respects to Truitt, 49.

"He was a genuine martyr just like any martyr of the New Testament," said Powell.

"Sunday he had the courage to use his body like a shield to protect hundreds of people," said Fielden.

About 500 persons attended the Gandy funeral Tuesday afternoon in the sweltering 98-degree heat.

Powell said at the Gandy funeral that the only way he made it through three grilling funerals in one day was that "Gene Gandy, like the others, had accepted the Lord. If he hadn't, this would be a very dark time."

The man charged in the killings, Alvin Lee King III, was listed in critical condition at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston. King underwent several hours of surgery, Monday to repair the frontal lobes of his brain, a spokesman said.

Dr. Howard Eisenberg, chief of neurosurgery said no prediction could be made regarding King's prognosis but said he had every reason to believe King would recover.

King suffered the self-inflicted gunshot wound after grappling with several men who forced him out of the sanctuary after the shooting erupted.

In FCIC probe
Hance remained aloof
By JOE TAYLOR
Special News Service
WASHINGTON - Rep. Kent Hance knew about allegations of wrongdoing in the West Texas office of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. more than a year ago but refused to get personally involved in investigating them and turned the matter over to federal agriculture officials.
A Hance aide said the congressman's office was contacted by two employees from the federal agency's Lubbock headquarters about one year ago and the two made "very serious accusations with significant legal ramifications."
Two weeks ago, Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Nebr., said four federal agencies had quietly launched a major, nationwide probe into allegations about employees of the FCIC, a part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.
The agency is responsible for distributing about $2 billion per year to farmers whose crops fall victim to weather damage.
According to Zorinsky, the allegations - made by employees and former employees of FCIC offices in Texas, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Washington state - include charges of sexual favors provided for certain agency employees, illegal slush funds, corruption, and illegal personal activities.
Zorinsky said he had information that the Justice Department had been investigating some employees of the West Texas office in Lubbock and that some indictments might be forthcoming.
Contacted again Monday, Zorinsky's press secretary Mike Nerud said the senator understands the Justice Department is still looking into the matter and that there had been no new developments.
Hance aide Murray Hensley said two employees from the Lubbock office came forward with allegations about certain practices in the Lubbock office. However, he refused to detail the allegations.
But, said Hensley, Hance considers it standard procedure "to try to work within the agency."
Thus, the congressman forwarded the allegations to the Office of the Inspector General "and since then has had nothing to do with it."
Hance press aide Don Richards said the West Texas congressman "has been keeping abreast" of the investigation.
In Washington, the charges of wrongdoing already are being labeled "Agri-gate."
So far, two FCIC officials have been placed on administrative leave by Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland for the duration of the investigation.
A USDA official declined comment on the investigation, but did confirm that the Lubbock regional office is under scrutiny.
According to Zorinsky, some FCIC officials put mistresses on federal payrolls, punished some employees by placing them in unwanted jobs, maintained illegal slush funds to entertain women and used government funds for hunting trips.
Like Hance, Zorinsky said he was contacted by employees of an FCIC office in his state. Zorinsky said he had personally been investigating the charges for three years.
Zorinsky said the allegations involve "violations of federal law and illegal movement of personnel."
