IT WASN'T ALL LIKE THIS—Scott Roman, 7, had the right idea when he decided to take a snooze at the amphitheater in Comanche Trail Park today. He was one of approximately 30 children who participated in the three-day 4-H Day Camp which ends today. The bundle of activities combined with the heat made Scott use his ingenuity. Thanks to the counselor, he was back in the swing again within a few minutes.

Energy industry provides strength

Southwest to see slowdown

DALLAS (AP) — The Sunbelt's economic growth will be taken in a notch or two as the nationwide recession pinches the Southwest, a business research group says.

The Conference Board, a non-profit business research group based in New York, predicted Tuesday the recession will slow growth in the Southwest to a level that may be considered a "regional recession."

This slowdown is "every bit as significant as the outright declines traditionally associated with recession and felt in the older industrial regions," the board said.

"Viewed in this way, no region is recession-proof," the board concluded.

Local economists agreed the recession will affect the Southwest, but discounted the board's estimation of the slowdown's significance.

Dr. James Byrd, economist for First International Bancshares, Inc., argued against calling little or no economic growth a recession.

A recession and a slowdown are quite different and "the consequences are entirely different," Byrd said.

"In the one you have an increase in unemployment," he said. "In a slowdown you continue to grow, jobs continue to increase. I don't think they're even close to comparable."

"I don't think we should change the definition of what constitutes a recession," Byrd said. Economists traditionally define a recession as a decline in the nation's real gross national product during two consecutive calendar quarters.

"We feel the effects of a recession," Byrd said, but said it may not be "so explicit you can put your finger on it."

Conference board member George E. Crosby conceded the Southwest will post an "envious performance" during the current recession, and credited the energy industry for much of the region's strength.

But he said the Southwest is "much more than oil and gas. It has evolved as the world's center for energy technology, (involved) in all facets of energy development and research."

Crosby predicted real personal income in the Southwest will grow at a rate of 1.1 percent in 1980, while the rate is expected to fall 0.7 percent nationwide.

Draft registration: It's official now

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter made it official today: American men aged 19 and 20 are being told to sign up later this month so the government will have potential conscripts waiting if the draft is revived.

The president signed a proclamation at a White House ceremony ordering the young men to sign up at post offices between July 21 and Aug. 2.

Draft registration, he said, "is not to threaten war but is to preserve peace."

"It's a precautionary measure," he said. "It is designed to make our country strong."

Carter proposed renewed draft registration in the wake of the Soviet Union's military thrust into Afghanistan, and he used the Cabinet Room ceremony to renew his criticism of that move.

"We are deeply concerned about the unwarranted and vicious invasion of Afghanistan by the Soviet Union," the president said, praising the "freedom fighters" who have opposed the Soviets in Afghanistan as offering the best deterrent to Moscow.

Surrounded by congressional and other supporters of draft registration — all of them well beyond the age of those affected by the proclamation — Carter emphasized that "this is not a draft."

"I am not in favor of a peacetime draft," he said, stating that the United States "will continue to rely on voluntary enlistment" to meet military manpower needs.

The president said that $1 billion was included in the coming federal budget to encourage enlistments and re-enlistments.

Despite its limited scope, registration, the first since 1975, has proven controversial. Congress approved money to run the system only after a Senate filibuster; opponents have threatened demonstrations; and the American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit to block it.

But the director of Selective Service, Bernard Rostker, emphasized Tuesday that only standby registration is involved for now, and that action by Congress would be necessary before conscription could take place.

Registration is necessary, he added, because there would not be enough time in the event of a national emergency to conduct registration. But opponents of registration have noted a Selective Service report, which officials later disavowed, that said the standby program would save only seven days.

Twenty-year-old men, those born in 1960, will register the week of July 21. To avoid crowding, men born in January, February and March are asked to register that Monday, those born April through June on Tuesday, July through September on Wednesday and those born in October, November and December on Thursday.

The week of July 28 will follow the same pattern for men born in 1961.

Officials said these day-by-day schedules are intended only as a guideline and that individuals can register anytime during the period.

People who don't register can be subject to five years in prison or a $10,000 fine and officials say they will enforce the law.

Carter originally proposed registering both men and women, but Congress rejected that idea, limiting it to men. That action formed the basis for the ACLU suit, which contends the program discriminates against men.

While youths aged 19 and 20 will be registered this year, starting in January, men born in 1962 will register, and from then on registration will be required on or near the date men turn 18.

There won't be any draft cards to carry in wallets — or burn in protest. Instead, young men will be asked to go to their nearest post office — not including contract offices in stores — to fill out a form. Those forms will be sent to Selective Service, which will use them to form a master list, eventually intended to include all men aged 18 to 26.

Lamesa Tornado Jubilee starts spinning Friday

LAMESA — The Lamesa Tornado Jubilee, held only once each five years, gets under way Friday and continues through Sunday.

The fourth Jubilee is expected to attract upwards to 10,000 people. The last such event, staged in 1975, lured 5,000 former students of Lamesa High School and their families.

Anyone who has ever enrolled in public schools in Lamesa is eligible to attend. Committees have been at work for months contacting ex-students and informing them where their class meetings will be held.

Music and food will be offered during the three days of fellowship, along with the chance to greet old friends and talk over old times.

Responses have come in from exes who went to school as long ago as 70 years. People now residing in California and New York, and points in between have been responding to invitations.

A band concert is scheduled Friday evening, with everyone who has ever played an instrument invited to take part. Registrations and receptions will start Friday and continue through Saturday.

A Tornado "jam session" is scheduled for 9 p.m. Friday on the downtown square.

Former school athletes, band members, cheerleaders and FFA members will assemble at appointed places. There will also be a reception for all former and present teachers in the Lamesa system.

The fourth presentation of the Golden Tornado Extravaganza will be held in the high school auditorium at 8 p.m. Saturday. The production features the talents of Lamesa products who have gone on to fame in the world of entertainment.

Most Lamesa churches are planning special activities Sunday morning honoring the returning exes.

Carter moving reluctantly

'No question' about tax cut for 1981

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, caught in a congressional frenzy for an election-year tax cut, is moving reluctantly toward supporting a 1981 tax reduction. The biggest question now appears to be when.

"There's no question in all of our minds that there will be a tax cut in 1981," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Tuesday after he and other Democratic leaders conferred with Carter.

O'Neill said the main question is whether to enact the cut before or after the November elections. However, he conceded that Carter "had not committed himself (on a tax cut) at this time."

Political pressure for a tax cut began to build on Democrats last week when Ronald Reagan, the likely GOP presidential nominee, proposed a $36 billion cut effective Jan. 1 and Senate Republicans tried to attach it to pending legislation.

To head off a stampede of jittery Democrats in support of the GOP plan, Senate Democratic leaders promised to propose their own tax cut by Sept. 3.

The pledge caught House Democrats and the White House by surprise and prompted a frantic reassessment of administration economic policies and the impact of a tax cut on inflation and the deepening recession.

At the White House meeting Tuesday, Carter and the Democratic leaders agreed to hold discussions on a tax cut, similar to sessions last March that produced a call for a balanced 1981 budget as a way to combat inflation.

Ironically, the new push for cutting taxes is considered almost certain to doom already fading hopes for balancing the budget for the first time in 12 years.

O'Neill said the House Ways and Means Committee will begin hearings on the tax issue, perhaps as early as during this month's congressional recess.

White House press secretary Jody Powell confirmed Tuesday that Carter is studying the extent and timing of a tax cut, but he said the president remains concerned about "the ability to produce a reasonable and responsible product before the election."

Powell said Carter still prefers to delay action until after the election.

Asked Monday if he had changed his mind on a tax cut this year, Carter replied, "No, I don't think so."

But Powell told reporters Tuesday, "We've obviously been looking at what a 1981 tax cut, if advisable, would look like."

While several reports indicate the administration's mid-year economic and budget review will forecast a possible $25 billion tax cut in 1981, Powell declared that "absolutely no decisions have been made" about the

Action/reaction: Cool thought

Q. Isn't there a lot of salt used by state highway departments every year to de-ice winter roads? (Ice — what a delightful thought during this hot weather).

A. You're right. About 45 percent of all the salt produced in America goes for such purposes. That comes out to about 11 million tons a year. Only 2.3 million tons are dumped on food.

Bentsen bill gives new hope to Mennonites in West Texas

WASHINGTON — Mennonites in West Texas who want to stay on their land got a boost recently when a bill granting them permanent residency passed a House subcommittee.

The private bill, sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., which passed the Senate last year, now goes to the full House Judiciary Committee.

The Mennonites, who refuse to bear arms for the state and live a simple agrarian life, came to this country from Mexico in late 1976 and 1977 to escape difficult economic conditions and the chance their land might be confiscated.

They bought more than 7,000 acres of land about 25 miles southwest of Brownfield, with cash savings, on the understanding they would be able to stay in the United States and avail themselves of underground water supplies to irrigate their crops, said Delton Franz, Washington director of the Mennonite Central Council.

Both understandings proved to be wrong and the 553 Mennonites in West Texas stand to lose their immigration status, if Bentsen's bill fails to clear Congress.

"We're generally optimistic the bill will clear," said a staff aide in Bentsen's office. "We think we cleared the biggest hurdle in subcommittee and we have hopes for action in full committee and the House."

Rep. Sam Hall, D-Marshall, who played a large role in shepherding the bill through the House immigration subcommittee, sent a letter last week to the full committee urging prompt action on the measure.

About 650 private bills have been referred to the immigration committee in this session of Congress. Termed "private" because they affect specific people or groups, most fail to clear the subcommittee.

The Mennonite situation is unusual, Bentsen's aide said, because they appear to have misunderstood the conditions for settling in the United States. Mennonites were also among the nation's first settlers in the 17th century, who have always been noted for their honesty, hard work and thrift.

About 200,000 people nationally are members of Mennonite churches, Franz said, although he was quick to point out that there are differences between conservative and liberal wings of the church.

The Texas Mennonites of northern European origin are conservative, Franz said, and aspire to establish a self-contained community in which higher education and military service are shunned.

Without access to ground water under their property, Franz said the Texas colony had two disastrous crop seasons. Some of the adults have been forced to seek employment in nearby towns, he added.

When the Mennonites moved to their land, they also found they qualified only for 60 day visitor visas. But with bills in Congress on their behalf, they have been allowed to stay on their land until their immigration status is determined. The bill also effects 100 menonites in Oklahoma.

Most Mennonites live in Pennsylvania and the northern Midwest states. Franz said the older people in the Texas colony moved from Manitoba province in Canada to Mexico during the 1920s and that many church members stayed in Mexico.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE — Ronnie Schmidt, 1108 Birdwell, knows from personal experience how bad the water leak dilemma is in the city's system. A water line near his home has broken three times within the last eight months, two of those times during the last week. This leak began at midnight, Tuesday. It is just one of about 550 that occurred in the city within the last month. (PHOTO BY BILL FORSHNER)

Two Big Spring women attain ACBL's Life Master rank

Two Big Spring women have attained Life Master rank, highest awarded by the American Contract Bridge League.

Richard L. Goldberg of Memphis, Tenn., executive secretary of the American Contract Bridge League, who made the announcement, said the award had been won by only 27,000 among the millions who play bridge. The rank was established in 1935.

West German chancellor believes Russia will negotiate with U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt says his talks with President Leonid Brezhnev gave him "reason to believe" the Soviets will negotiate with the United States to limit medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe. But he got no promise of more withdrawals of Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

"I was always of the opinion that (the missile issue) would come to negotiations, but after these two days of talks here in the Soviet Union our expectations are even greater," Schmidt said Tuesday after two days of meetings with the Kremlin's leaders.

Schmidt said he spelled out West German concerns about the missile buildup in Europe to Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov and his deputy, Nikolai Ogarkov, the Kremlin's top weapons expert, at a two-hour meeting Tuesday.

The Soviet Union is deploying on the territory of its Central European allies SS-20 missiles that can land nuclear warheads anywhere in Western Europe.

To counter this threat, the North Atlantic Alliance decided last December to base 572 U.S. medium-range missiles in Western Europe, but they will not be at their launching sites before 1983. Schmidt is urging the Russians to freeze their missile deployment and join limitation talks with the West before the American weapons are deployed.

Despite his feeling that the Soviets are ready to talk, Schmidt said they again rejected a missile freeze, saying they would not make such a unilateral move without a Western pledge to halt deployment of the U.S. missiles.

East-West relations, the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

The official communique said both sides were "conscious of the importance of a political solution (to the Afghan conflict) as quickly as possible." But Schmidt said he and Brezhnev only repeated their "well-known positions."

The official Communist Party newspaper Pravda published an editorial reiterating the Kremlin line: that the Soviet troops will remain in Afghanistan as long as they are needed to protect the pro-Soviet Afghan government, and that before they are withdrawn, all aid to the rebels fighting the communist Afghan regime must be halted.

Police beat Thugs loot storeroom

Burglars hit a storeroom at the Ramada Inn, sometime between 2 and 6 a.m. Tuesday.

After breaking the lock on the storeroom, the intruders made off with two large rolls of carpet and nearly $1,700 worth of electronic and musical equipment such as drums, microphones and mike stands. Total loss was estimated at $1,905.

Burglars also entered the home of A.C. Parker, 611 Aylford, sometime between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Tuesday. Stolen was a 15-inch color television set valued at $300. Burglars tried unsuccessfully to break into Big Spring Cash Wholesale, Inc., 302 N.W. 3rd, sometime Tuesday night. Although the intruders never got inside the building, they did $125 worth of damage trying.

Vandals shot BBs into the plate glass window at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, 109 E. 3rd, sometime over the weekend. Damage was estimated at $500.

Five fender benders were reported Tuesday.

Vehicles driven by Jay McMahon, 702 Marcy, and Alicia Gamboa, 2525 N. Albrook, collided on the 600 block of W. Third, 10:03 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Maria Foust, 608 Edwards, and Rhessa Wolf, Coahoma, collided on the 2400 block of Gregg, 4:01 p.m.

Electric chair returned

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — The only city in Oklahoma with its own electric chair apparently doesn't want it to be on display.

James Earl Tannehill, owner of the museum that bears his name, said a city crew was quickly dispatched Tuesday to take back the electric chair that once belonged to the nearby state prison and had been lent to him.

He said he wasn't sure why the executioner's chair was whisked away, but he thinks it's because he put it on display last weekend. City officials were unavailable for comment.

Porpoise returns to sea

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) — A porpoise that washed up on a New Jersey beach 3½ months ago has been returned, healthy, to the sea.

The 4-foot-long male harbor porpoise was being pecked by hungry seagulls when it was found near Atlantic City on March 14. After recovering on a steady diet of squid, herring, antibiotics and vitamins, the mammal was flown to Provincetown Tuesday and released.

"He didn't do what we expected, which was circling around," said Dr. Charles Mayo, director of the Cetacean Research Program. "He was dropped in the water and with about two kicks was gone. That's the most positive sign of all."

Sony announces camera

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sony Corporation of America says it has developed a single-unit video camera and cassette recorder that will revolutionize the home movie industry.

Sony demonstrated a prototype of the compact 4.4-pound camera Tuesday. The "Video Movie" records sound and picture on a small magnetic tape cassette which needs no developing and can be played back immediately on a television set.

Akio Morita, Sony's chairman and chief executive officer, said the new handheld system would be on the retail market in 1985, adding he hopes it would cost less than $1,000.

Public, press have right to attend criminal trials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public and press have a constitutional right to attend criminal trials, the Supreme Court ruled today, telling judges nationwide they can conduct trials or portions of trials in secret only as a last resort to insure fairness to a defendant.

By a 7-1 vote, the justices said the Constitution's free-speech guarantees require public trials.

The decision sparked seven separate opinions, and not all seven justices agreed in their approach to the critical constitutional issue.

But the decision, nevertheless, was a victory for public and press access into the nation's courts.

The decision said a Virginia judge, Richard Taylor, was wrong when he closed the two-day murder trial in 1978 of John Paul Stevenson.

Stevenson was charged in the 1978 murder of a Hanover, Va., hotel owner, and had been tried three times previously. At the start of the 1978 trial, Stevenson's lawyer asked Judge Taylor to close the proceedings "because I don't want any information being shuffled back and forth when we have a recess as to what — who testified to what."

Prosecutors voiced no objection to the request, and Taylor approved it. Two of the persons ordered to leave the courtroom were Timothy Wheeler and Kevin McCarthy, reporters for the Richmond Times Dispatch and the Richmond News-Leader.

They and their employer, Richmond Newspapers Inc., sued, challenging Taylor's action. The Virginia Supreme Court upheld the trial closure, but today's decision said the closure was unconstitutional.

Stevenson eventually was acquitted.

The reporters' appeal was supported by numerous news media organizations and the American Civil Liberties Union, which viewed the case as a major constitutional showdown.

China Long named news director for KBST radio

China (Carroll) Long, 42, has been named news director of Radio Station KBST, the first woman to assume the position.

A resident of Big Spring since 1946, Mrs. Long attended Big Spring public schools and graduated from the local high school in 1956. She earned an Associate Degree from Howard College in 1975.

For 17 years, Mrs. Long was a secretary in various sections and served as assistant manager of the Officers Club at Webb AFB. She was also a member of the caretaker force at Webb until 1977, when the base closed.

She returned to the status of a full-time student in January 1978, commuting to the University of Texas at the Permian Basin at Odessa, where in December 1978 she earned a Bachelor of Arts degree, finishing with a 3.8 grade average.

While at UTPB, she was a student of Bob Lewis (Tumbleweed Smith), the Big Spring resident who has a syndicated radio show.

She interned at KBST during the summer of 1978, training under Carl

CHINA LONG McMillen.

More recently, she has been the news director for KHEM-KFNE, from January 1979 until June of this year.

Her awards include Best Newscast, Texas Intercollegiate Press Association, April 1979, and Best Newscast in Texas, 30,000 to 60,000 market, Texas Association of Broadcasters, October 1979.

A.C. Nielsen figures show

Viewers continue to favor reruns

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite a sprinkling of first-run programs like "Tom Snyder's Celebrity Spotlight" on NBC and "Nobody's Perfect" on CBS, viewers continued to favor reruns in greater numbers in the week ending June 29, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

In fact, repeats of four CBS series were the week's most-watched shows, with "M-A-S-H," No. 1, with a rating of 23.2. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 23.2 percent saw at least part of the program.

Thirteen previously broadcast programs were ranked behind "M-A-S-H," and ahead of the first of the original shows, Snyder's 15th-place "Celebrity Spotlight."

CBS was the big beneficiary in the weekly audience survey, listing 10 of the week's 20 most-watched shows to six for ABC and four for NBC.

CBS' rating for the week was 14.1 to 13.4 for ABC and 12.5 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.1 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

It was NBC's second week in a row in third place after a short-lived climb to the runner-up position early in June. NBC now has been No. 3 17 of the last 18 weeks.

In addition to Snyder's show and "Nobody's Perfect," several other new shows were moderately successful. An NBC special, "Debbie Boone: The Same Old Brand New Me," finished in a tie with "Nobody's Perfect" for 19th place, with "Phyl & Mikhy" on CBS 27th and "Willow B. Women in Prison," 28th.

News specials did not do well. "Sadat's Eternal Egypt," a "CBS Reports" presentation, was No. 57 for the week, while an "NBC White Paper," "If Japan Can... Why Can't We?" was 65th.

Both ABC and NBC had two shows among the five least-watched. NBC's "Sanford" was No. 67, followed by "One in a Million" and "Galactica 1980," both on ABC. "Joe's World" on NBC and "The Stockard Channing Show" on CBS.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows: "M-A-S-H," with a rating of 23.2 representing 17.7 million homes, "House Calls," 22 or 16.8 million, "Dallas," 21.4 or 16.3 million, and "Lou Grant," 20.8 or 15.9 million, both ABC; "Taxi" and "Hart to Hart," both 20.3 or 15.5 million, both ABC; "60 Minutes," 19.9 or 15.2 million, CBS; "Quincy, M.E.," 19.7 or 15 million, NBC; "Three's Company," 19.5 or 14.9 million, ABC, and "The Jeffersons," 19.4 or 14.8 million, CBS.

The next 10 programs: "20-20," ABC; "Trapper John, M.D.," "Alice" and "Dukes of Hazzard," all CBS; "Tom Snyder's Celebrity Spotlight," NBC; "Facts of Life," NBC, and "Fantasy Island," ABC, tie; "WKRP in Cincinnati," CBS; and "Debbie Boone: The Same Old Brand New Me," NBC, and "Nobody's Perfect," CBS, tie.

Cisco five walk off jobs

CISCO—Five city employees who walked off their jobs in sympathy for city manager John Boland have submitted their resignations to acting city manager Marilyn Smith. Ms. Smith said their decisions did not come as a surprise.

Those who quit were Fran Davidson, Ginger Parker, Andrea Coleman, Frances Smoot and Sheron Cannistraci.

Those who agreed to comment on their decisions said they were disenchanted with the interference of the mayor and city councilmen.

Ms. Davidson also said Ms. Smith had bypassed Boland when she was city secretary and had gone directly to the mayor and council.

Man's superstitions always with him

Most of us are amused by the superstitions of our great athletic and entertainment heroes. A baseball player will not step on a foul line on his way to and from the dugout. (Ever watch Sparky Anderson when he goes out to talk to a pitcher?) A football player will wear the same pair of socks as long as his team's winning streak endures or as long as he himself catches at least one pass a game.

AN ACTOR WOULD not think of treading the boards without wearing a ring his mother passed on to him. A high wire artist never climbs a ladder before reading his favorite verse from the Bible. People who are very sophisticated in other ways respect and revere old beliefs passed down by one generation to the next, not necessarily because they will suffer great tragedy if they don't but because they "want" to believe.

Consider these signs of impending rain, as passed on from one father to his son, thence to his grandson:

—When the leaves of trees turn their backs to the west, a storm is just around the corner.

—When the bees leave the flower patch, the rain's a-coming.

—When the birds stop singing and shutters start swinging, a storm is near. —When two flies bite, rain is in sight. —When the noon sky turns dark and the wind ceases to whisper, head for the cyclone cellar.

WHEN JULIUS CAESAR met an untimely end one March 15, the belief that the Ides of March was a bad time to undertake any mission or risk any adventure gained credence and the superstition has endured to this day.

Some people will not get out of bed on the 13th day of the month. Others reason Lady Luck smiles on them only on that appointed day.

There are farmers who will not plant because one planet has crossed the path of another. The lives of no tribe was ruled more by superstition than the American Indian. The white men learned to prey on them because of their penchant to respect their beliefs. If the squirrels put away an abundance of nuts too early in the fall, that, to the Indian, meant the winter was going to be long and cold.

No matter how advanced man's thinking becomes, no matter what heights he scales, he likely will never abandon his faith in the occult sciences, perhaps because he will be forever flawed in some way, or maybe because he wants desperately to leave some things to chance.

Special day

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

We got up that morning, as usual. We were running late again, as usual. The alarm clock still wasn't working.

I rushed to the kitchen to prepare a haphazard breakfast we could all gulp down quick as we watched precious seconds tick away on channel 10.

And finally, as-usual, my husband kissed me and our daughter bye, then zoomed away on his motorcycle to work.

There I stood, as usual, at a quarter till eight, electric rollers in my hair, toothbrush in my mouth, trying to get my daughter to sit still so I could get her long, brown curls combed.

YES, IN MOST WAYS, it was just a typical routine morning for the Crow family—except for one thing—it was the day my baby began nursery school.

As we traveled to the destination where Shannon would soon begin spending the better part of each day, I felt a lump form in my throat. But I wasn't the only one affected by the slight change in our routine. Somehow my just-turned-two-year-old sensed that something was different too. The misconstrued look on her face as we passed by her used-to-be babysitter's house, was a definite clue.

When we pulled up to the strange new place, her expression grew even more bewildered.

"Mommy, what's zat?" she questioned, pointing at the large, unfamiliar building.

"This is where you'll be going to nursery school from now on like a big girl," I explained brightly.

"The kid was still confused."

"Uh, Oh," I thought to myself. I just knew I was going to have a hard time getting her to stay. I was sure we'd have a not-so-unusual crying and screaming scene most children display on their first day at nursery school.

Slowly we got out of the car. I took her tiny hand and we walked together up to the door.

As we entered, her big brown eyes grew even larger as she observed the new surroundings. She pointed and jabbered about each new thing she saw.

The nursery school teacher greeted us with a big warm smile. After only a few seconds of shyness and timidity, Shannon went into the nice lady's arms.

The exchange was made so much easier than I had anticipated. No crying, no screaming. She was a big girl now and determined to act like one.

MY EYES WERE glazed with tears as I walked back to my car. Needless to say, I couldn't wait until quitting time so I could go and pick her up.

Why was I more anxious than usual this time. I had left her hundreds of times before and had never felt that way?

I was anxious, not because I was worried, and not because I didn't want to leave her. I think it is important for children to be exposed to other children at a young age in a learning atmosphere.

I was anxious because my daughter had passed a milestone in her young life—her very first day at nursery school.

No, June 24 was not a usual routine day. It was the beginning of a whole new way of life for my little girl.

Tax cut fever

Evans, Novak,

WASHINGTON — President Carter's political advisers, though publicly nonchalant, are worried privately that Democratic members of Congress will catch tax cut fever during the forthcoming congressional recess and return to Capitol Hill susceptible to Ronald Reagan's tax schemes.

These advisers confide that Reagan's call for immediate tax action is a political masterstroke. Democratic ranks are sure to hold firm for now. But Carterites fear what a few weeks back home while tax cut rhetoric blares out of the Republican convention in Detroit does to that resolve.

Consequently, drafting a tax-cutting alternative ready for action when Congress comes back is a first order of priority at the White House. The impediments are less Carter's caution than anti-tax cut stubbornness by economic adviser Charles Schultze and slower-than-slow staff work by the Economic Policy Group. The EPG staffers have had tax cut policy under consideration for some six weeks with no discernible progress.

HOSTAGE PROBING Behind the public posture of the Carter administration that the hostage issue should be quieted down for a while, intense negotiations are going on behind the scenes to free the 53 Americans by early October.

HIGHLY SECRET negotiations conducted several weeks ago by then White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan are continuing in Paris, Tehran and other world capitals. U.S. negotiators are mainly private citizens—in effect, unpaid, undercover workers for President Carter. They include lawyers from the U.S., France and other countries.

Carter's fondest hope is to bring the hostages home before he faces American voters on Nov. 4, the first anniversary of captivity for the hostages. Skeptics in the administration believe the odds are heavily against success.

PRO-LIFE ZEALOTRY Ronald Reagan's operatives finally gave up in disgust when New York state's Right-To-Life Party kept raising the ante for giving its presidential nomination this year to Reagan instead of pro-life activist Ellen McCormack.

The New York Lifers first demanded only that Reagan, who is anti-abortion, name a like-minded vice president. But the asking price kept going up. Reagan would have to endorse conservative Alphonse D'Amato against liberal Sen. Jacob Javits in the New York Republican primary. Finally, they insisted that Reagan endorse for election throughout the country only Republicans who support an anti-abortion constitutional amendment.

Those last impossible conditions convinced Reagan's agents that Mrs. McCormack wanted to run so badly that she never would give way for Reagan. As a result, he will have to win New York without the 130,000 or more voters likely to vote for Mrs. McCormack.

NUKE COMPROMISE At the height of controversy over the nuclear power issue in the Platform Committee, Democratic National Chairman John White quietly telephoned Robert Strauss, President Carter's campaign chairman, with this word: We can compromise the nuke plank and avoid a bloody, perhaps losing fight on the floor at Madison Square Garden.

Strauss at once saw the value of this. Even though aides from Carter's White House believed they had 79 sure votes (out of 117) to carry Carter's preferred language on the hot issue, it was decided to compromise.

Eye's 'shutter' can get stuck

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: For the past year I have been treated for iritis. I can't seem to get rid of the problem. It is mostly in my left eye, but has also flared up in the right. I have been treated with eye drops. Can you explain this problem and what can be done? — M.C.

Look at your eyes in a mirror. That large disc that has a hole in the center is the iris. It's the structure which, if blue, makes you blue-eyed. The iris is not stationary. It contracts and expands depending on the amount of light centering the eye pupil (the tiny hole in the center). When light is too bright the iris contracts, making the pupil area exposed smaller. If there is less light the iris opens up leaving a greater area of the pupil exposed so more light strikes the lens behind it. It is not at all unlike the way a camera works.

The ability to expand and contract is impaired when there is iritis. The iris stays expanded. An inflamed iris sticks to the lens of the eye. Permanent little scars can "glue" the iris to the lens. The purpose of your drops is to keep your iris dilated (expanded) to prevent these scars from forming. The drops also help suppress the iris inflammation itself.

Sometimes iris inflammation is due to an ulcer on the thin outer covering of the eye (the cornea). Treatment for corneal ulcer is the same as for iritis.

Iritis may disappear or may last a long time. Sad to say, it may also recur. I do not think there is any more you can do. I know my answer is no more satisfying to you than your treatment to date. Your doctors seem to be doing all that is possible to identify the cause of your iritis and to prevent any complications. I sincerely hope your inflammation goes away shortly and for good.

NOTE FOR J.S. — Sphincter muscles are ones that close passages. There are two anal sphincter muscles, an internal and an external. Together they give us control over emptying the rectum. When they are damaged, then rectal contents may leak out; that's called "incontinence." Either the muscles or the nerves controlling the muscle action can be at fault. If muscles are torn it is possible to try to sew them up in a procedure called "sphincteroplasty." If all else fails and if the incontinence is most troublesome, then a colostomy may have to be used. That involves making an opening to the intestine via the surface of the abdomen. Yes, why not seek a second opinion as to whether surgery is possible to correct the sphincter problem?

Mailbag

Dear Editor: I have just returned from attending the 43rd National Convention of the American Gold Star Mothers in San Diego, Calif. I am serving my third term of office on the National Executive Board. Each year in September and February I fly to Washington, D.C. for executive board meetings. It is disturbing as I travel on each occasion that I am questioned about my Gold Star pin. Very few people seem to know what the unique Gold Star pin represents. Some even wish to purchase one until I tell them that the only persons entitled to own and wear the pin are those mothers and fathers whose sons or daughters have made the supreme sacrifice with their lives in the line of duty for their country's freedom—a way of life that they believed was right for all men.

No publicity was given to this convention by any news media in San Diego. Are these men and women forgotten for the price they paid and love they had and expressed for their America? These are mothers of sons and daughters of all wars—World I, World II, Korean, and even the 57,661

Major Roberto d'Abuisson, leader of an unsuccessful rightist coup in May, visited Washington recently, as did Salvadoran businessman Alfredo Mena Lagos. The two men head the Broad National Front, a supposedly "respectable" right-oriented party that claims growing support in the U.S. Congress. They were shown around Capitol Hill by officials of the Legion and the American Security Council, a conservative group that lobbies for greater defense spending.

Thus congressional conservatives and the American Legion have given their blessings to extremists who are constantly condemning and undermining U.S. policy in El Salvador. At one point, d'Abuisson made a veiled threat against the U.S. charge d'affaires on nationwide television.

And Mena Lagos, with undiplomatic arrogance no doubt bolstered by his warm reception on Capitol Hill, accused the State Department of "railroading socialism into El Salvador" by supporting the shaky junta.

While the right-wing Salvadorans have been lobbying our Congress with disturbing success, the Defense Intelligence Agency was adding fuel to the fire by detailing Castro's behind-the-scenes involvement in behalf of the Salvadoran leftists.

THE INTELLIGENCE analysts reported behind closed doors that Castro has deliberately maintained a low profile, apparently for fear of provoking a countermove from the United States. Cuba's aid to the Salvadoran leftists takes the form of training and munitions supplies.

The intelligence experts conceded that the Salvadoran leftists are determined not to accept Cuban leadership as a price for Castro's help. "They neither seek nor will accept any leadership other than their own," the DIA analysts told a House committee, headed by Rep. Gus Yatron, D-Pa.

Furthermore, the DIA said, "the threat of anarchy and a total collapse of the economy is as great a danger as that posed by the growing strength of the guerrillas."

The intelligence experts did not mention the U.S. stake in the area's political stability: The massive oil fields in nearby Mexico could reduce, perhaps eliminate, our dependence

Playing cautiously

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is tiptoeing gingerly around the edge of the fabulous Mexican oil discoveries. In nearby El Salvador, for instance, President Carter has given quiet support to the middle-of-the-road junta that has managed to cling to power under siege from both left and right.

Evidently Jimmy Carter learned a lesson from his ignominious role in the Nicaraguan revolution. So far, he has resisted the siren songs of both the intelligence community and arch-conservatives in Congress.

RESISTING THIS pressure has not been easy. The Salvadoran left wing has Fidel Castro in its corner; the right wing has Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md. The rightists also seem to have the American Legion, the American Security Council and the CIA.

Major Roberto d'Abuisson, leader of an unsuccessful rightist coup in May, visited Washington recently, as did Salvadoran businessman Alfredo Mena Lagos. The two men head the Broad National Front, a supposedly "respectable" right-oriented party that claims growing support in the U.S. Congress. They were shown around Capitol Hill by officials of the Legion and the American Security Council, a conservative group that lobbies for greater defense spending.

The intelligence experts did not mention the U.S. stake in the area's political stability: The massive oil fields in nearby Mexico could reduce, perhaps eliminate, our dependence upon Persian Gulf oil. BUREAUCRATIC BULLIES: For 14 years a retired Hoosier schoolmaster and his widowed sister-in-law have been fighting the federal government's seizure of a seven-acre plot of family property. The government's heavy-handed response has been to threaten them with jail terms for contempt of court.

The uneven battle began in 1966, when the feds condemned property owned by Dottie Cole and her husband, Berney, for construction of a dam on a tributary of the Ohio River. Cole refused the government's $2,100 check, arguing that the government had appraised the property as farmland rather than its more valuable potential as commercial or marina property.

The Coles also argued that the land grab violated an 1877 Indiana law, which permitted federal condemnation proceedings only if state and local authorities handled the case. The federal government won its case—in federal court. But the deed remained in the Coles' name, and they continued to pay taxes on it.

In May, the now widowed Mrs. Cole and her late husband's brother, James, sought an injunction to bar the confiscation. Assistant U.S. Attorney Bradley Williams responded by asking that they be charged with contempt.

The Coles' attorney, Charles Gleason, charged the government with intimidation. "We jabbed the government with a poker and they responded by threatening to send the Coles to jail," he told my associate Sam Fogg. The case is still before the courts.

MUSKIE'S MINIONS: The plain-talking political aides Secretary of State Ed Muskie brought with him from Capitol Hill have rattled the teacups at Foggy Bottom by their refusal to engage in the kind of diplomatic doubletalk favored by the striped-pants set. Accustomed to blunt, no-nonsense expression of opinion as practiced in Capitol cloakrooms, the Muskie men have shocked State Department aides grown used to subtler forms of communications.

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: When Ronald Reagan offered to subject himself to periodic testing, after he is in the White House, to determine if he were becoming senile, Rep. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., wondered aloud, "Do you suppose we could talk him into taking the test before the election?"

Taking the historic view, South Carolina Gov. Richard Riley commented on the bitter fighting over the Democratic platform by quoting a Republican, — Abe Lincoln: "Democrats are like alley cats — always fighting and quarreling. But in the end, they're always making more cats."

WATCH ON WASTE: Medicaid is a federal-state program, with Uncle Sam providing the money the states hand out. A recent federal audit found that some states do a lousy job recouping millions of dollars in overpayments. The five states studied — California, New York, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina — have let some $22.6 million in overpayments go uncollected for several years.

DAY IN THE SUN — A mother counsels her son while other youngsters test the waters of the wading pool in Comanche Trail Park. In the recent hot weather, the wading pool has been a popular place with the small fry who, all things considered, had probably rather be there than Philadelphia. The child nearest the camera evidently forgot something.

New York suffers same ills

Detroit workers still out

By the Associated Press

Detroit struggled into its second day of a city workers strike with bus mechanics joining the walkout today and leaving more than 200,000 people without their usual means of transportation.

At the same time, negotiators in New York City worked around-the-clock to avert a strike that 44,000 uniformed workers have overwhelmingly authorized for Thursday.

And the strike involving 39,000 workers in the nation's copper industry spread to a seventh company in the two-day-old dispute.

The decision by the 200 Detroit bus mechanics forced officials to pull the city's 1,600 buses off the roads early this morning. Officials say approximately 220,000 ride the buses daily.

Mayor Coleman Young called on the strikers to end their "attempt to bring the city to its knees" on the eve of the Republican National Convention, which begins July 14.

The city was to go into federal court today, seeking a back-to-work order against 500 striking workers at Detroit's sewage treatment plant. No other court action was planned against the strikers, said city negotiator Mark Ulciny on Tuesday.

In New York, the coalition representing the police, firefighters, sanitation workers, correction officers and other uniformed workers remained steadfast in its demand for a 10 percent raise and a 2 percent "essential services" increment in each year of a two-year contract.

Union leaders were to appear in state Supreme Court today to show why the strike should be allowed to occur Thursday if they are without a contract. A restraining order against such a walkout was issued Tuesday.

In the copper strike, both sides say a quick settlement is unlikely.

Picketing was reported at dozens of mines, smelters and refineries throughout nine states Tuesday. No serious incidents were reported.

The latest to join the strike were 5,100 Magma Co. workers in Arizona.

Saturday mail escapes ax by budget-cutting solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saturday mail, once considered a prime target of congressional budget-cutters, appears to have escaped the ax and may end up even more secure than before.

The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee refused Tuesday to comply with a House Budget Committee plan to scrap money for Saturday mail as a way to save the government $500 million.

The Post Office Committee then went even further, voting to require the U.S. Postal Service, a quasi-independent agency, to continue six-day-a-week deliveries.

That order was attached to a $947 million savings bill the committee approved in response to a congressional mandate that it cut programs under its jurisdiction by $1 billion.

The $1 billion was the Post Office Committee's share of $6.4 billion in spending cuts that Congress directed congressional committees to make as part of the now-faltering drive to balance the fiscal 1981 federal budget.

Although the Post Office Committee's refusal to halt Saturday mail could be challenged by House budget-writers when the savings bill reaches the floor late this month, key Budget Committee members said continuation of six-day deliveries was not likely to be contested.

Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., a member of the Budget Committee, praised the Post Office Committee and other House panels for coming within $100 million of the $6.4 billion that the budget resolution instructed them to save.

"We ought to be satisfied with what the committees have done," Panetta said.

The Post Office Committee has staunchly opposed curtailing mail deliveries and in its savings bill agreed to trim only $250 million from the Postal Service's $736 million government subsidy.

The committee's chairman, Rep. James M. Hanley, D-N.Y., said that size cut would require no significant reduction in postal operations.

However, to make certain the Postal Service did not eliminate Saturday deliveries anyway, the committee added specific wording requiring that six-day-a-week deliveries be continued.

The Post Office Committee approved other cuts to largely make up for the money that would have been saved by eliminating Saturday mail. However, the panel still fell $53 million short of its instructions to save $1 billion in programs under its jurisdiction.

Pryor to undergo more skin graft surgery

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor was to undergo more skin graft surgery today in what doctors say could be the last operation he will need to recover from the near-fatal burns suffered three weeks ago.

"He might not need any more operations. It depends on what happens and if these skin grafts are accepted," Gary Swaye, assistant executive director of the Sherman Oaks Community Hospital, said Tuesday. "But he probably will need at least one more operation."

Swaye said Pryor was likely to spend most of the day sleeping after the operation but said he would immediately begin hyperbaric treatments inside a high-pressure oxygen chamber to help the skin heal.

All of the burned portions of Pryor's body were covered in that operation, but only about 75 percent of the skin grafts took hold, Swaye said. During this second skin graft operation doctors would cover the areas not successfully covered before.

Pryor suffered third-degree burns when an explosion and fire melted his polyester shirt over the upper half of his body June 9.

Rains help control blaze in Colorado

By the Associated Press

Hundreds of firefighters, exhausted from a week-long battle with the largest fire on record in Colorado, controlled the blaze with the help of heavy rains that drenched the charred White River National Forest, officials said.

The 10,060-acre Emerald Lake fire was declared under control Tuesday night, said U.S. Forest Service dispatcher Bob Steffens.

Meanwhile, in Arizona, lightning touched off 25 new brush fires, but most of them were small and firefighters were being allowed to return home from lines in national forests.

And in California, where federal officials closed some forests due to fire danger, officials Tuesday reported an increase in arson.

A ban on open campfires in Colorado national forest lands remains in effect through the July 4th weekend.

About 480 firefighters worked on the flames that burst out of insect-killed trees near Emerald Lake week. Steffens said fire officials would start giving crews a rest and cutting the size of shifts.

Two fires elsewhere in the state were reported under control. Mop-up operations were under way for a 540-acre blaze in Arapaho-Roosevelt National Forest north of here and an 850-acre fire 30 miles north of Gunnison in southern Colorado.

Rain, humidity and hundreds of firefighters appeared to be winning the battle against fires that have claimed 30,000 acres in Arizona. However, lightning from storms lit about 25 new brush fires, most of them small and in the state's six national forests.

Mann, Rains honor students

Cecelia A. Mann and Susan Elaine Rains, both of Big Spring, and Danella Souter, Coahoma, were among the more than 90 students named recently to the Dean's Honor List at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin in Odessa.

All three are students in the College of Arts and Education.

What is a Girl Scout?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles concerning the largest girl organization in the world, the Girl Scouts.)

A Girl Scout is a registered member of the largest girl organization in the world; she has "sisters" in one hundred countries of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts.

She shares an ethical code with all Girl Guides and Girl Scouts. The words differ but the meaning is the same in every language for the Girl Scout Promise and the Girl Scout Laws.

THE GIRL SCOUT PROMISE

On my honor, I will try:
To serve God,
My country and mankind,
and to live by the Girl Scout Law.

THE GIRL SCOUT LAWS

I will do my best:
to be honest
to be fair to help where I am needed to be cheerful to be friendly and considerate to be a sister to every Girl Scout to respect authority to use resources wisely to protect and improve the world around me to show respect for myself and others through my words and actions.

The Girl Scout movement in the United States of America was begun March 12, 1912 in Savannah, Ga. by Juliette Gordon Low. Since then it has grown from one small group to a National organization of four million members.

For membership dues of $3 a year, a Big Spring Girl Scout belongs to a troop (a small group of girls and volunteer leaders) within an area administered by the West Texas Girl Scout Council, and is registered with the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

Within the United States, Girl Scouting is offered to girls 6 to 17 years, grades first through the twelfth, in four program levels — Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior.

Girl Scouting is a progressive educational program that helps girls become well adjusted productive people. The program is based on activities in five worlds of Girl Scouting — The World of Art, the World of the Out-of-doors, and the World of People, the World of Well Being and the World of Today and Tomorrow.

In the Big Spring area there are 368 Girl Scouts and 86 volunteers giving of their time and talents to vitalize the program. All work together in Calendar Sale, Cookie Sale, the Girl Scout Week program in the Mall: giving service to the less fortunate at home.

They are served directly by Jackie Hancock, West Texas Girl Scout Council Executive staff, whose office is in Big Spring at 2005 Gregg.

Jackie is adviser to the West Texas Council Program Services Committee. She is responsible for the growth of Girl Scouting in all of Area IV which includes Sterling City, Coahoma, Forsan, Stanton, Lamesa, Ackerly, and Garden City.

WHAT IS A VOLUNTEER GIRL SCOUT?

A volunteer Girl Scout is an adult member who supports the Girl Scout organization by dedicated service on behalf of Girl Scouting. Big Spring has many who serve as troop leaders, consultants, Board and Committee members.

Jane Doane, Debbie Burrow, Donna Fish, Mary Finch, Shirley Reed, and Linda Smelley were all Cookie Chairmen for the area Service Units.

Guy Burrows was the Director for the third Annual Big Spring Girl Scouts Track and Field Meet, April 19 for grades 1-8 from Area IV. 208 girls from 45 troops participated.

Volunteers help in Day Camp, and some serve as Day Camp Directors, (Judy Staggs and Donna Fish). Eunice Thixton took Day Camp Director Training March 14-16, 1980 at Camp Boothe Oaks.

Special Events need chairman — Debbie Burrow volunteered twice to help chair the Junior Badge Workshop in the fall of 1979, and again as chairman, spring 1980.

Volunteers are role models for the girls, sponsors for troops, trainers for leaders, recipients of awards for services given freely.

Dean Abby

Girl of His Dreams Gives Rude Awakening

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago I married a beautiful woman. She had the kind of beauty that most men can only dream about. She was cuddly and loving before we were married and until about a month after; then Bobby, her 9-year-old son, took over.

She prepares only Bobby's favorite food (mainly hamburgers) and never asks me what I want. When I suggest something, I'm told, "We aren't used to eating that!"

She speaks of her rights and Bobby's rights. Never mine. She buys him any toy he wants. He already has more than 100 in cartons and tires of them quickly.

She allows Bobby to hold and touch her, but I am told it's not "proper" for a husband and wife to show physical affection in front of children. She's 43, I'm 46, but a 9-year-old rules our house. We have to watch his favorite TV shows, and when we eat out, we go where Bobby wants to go.

Abby, I was willing to accept her son; he's part of her. But I feel like an outsider looking in. Until he was 7, he slept with her. (He had no bed of his own.)

How can I get Bobby to share his mother with me? I'm not even allowed to correct him. If I try, she jumps all over me, so I just pay their bills and get nothing out of our marriage. What is your advice?

OUTSIDER IN CHICAGO

DEAR OUTSIDER: Tell your bride that you are dissatisfied with your marriage and will need her cooperation (and Bobby's) to improve it. Family counseling, involving all members of the family, will be required. If she refuses to cooperate, you can either dissolve the marriage or hang around while the lady "with the kind of beauty most men dream about" continues to use you.

DEAR ABBY: About three weeks ago I met a real neat kid. We hit it off swell together. He asked me for my telephone number and I gave it to him.

The next day he called and we made a date for that Friday night. He never showed up and never called. Yesterday I bumped into him by accident, and he said he was sorry about what happened last Friday, but something unexpected came up and he couldn't make it.

He asked if he could see me that night and I said yes. Well, he didn't show up and didn't call. Next Saturday night my girlfriend is having a party, and she told me to bring my own guy. Do you think I should give this kid another chance? I still like him.

HOLES IN MY HEAD

DEAR HOLES: If you do, you should borrow the rocks in his head to fill up the holes in yours.

Just say you don't kiss and tell

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 13-year-old girl and I've never been kissed. It really doesn't bother me, but all my friends have been kissed and when they ask me if I've been kissed, I say no and they laugh and make fun of me and say that I'm a goodie-goodie. I feel miserable when they do this.

I'm not a goodie-goodie, it's just that I haven't found a guy that I like well enough to kiss. I'm waiting for the right guy at the right time. Is this so odd? Is there something wrong with me? — Nancy, San Antonio, Texas

Nancy: There is nothing wrong with you. In fact, it's just the opposite. Everything is right with you. The next time they ask you this question, tell them you are sorry but you don't kiss and tell.

Your answer will give them a lot to think about.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old girl who was dating a guy 32. He was constantly telling me how much he loved me and how beautiful I was, especially during romantic moments.

I don't see him anymore and he refuses to return my calls. The reason being that I'm pregnant. I don't want an abortion but I don't have the money to have the baby.

My parents don't know about my situation and I'm afraid to tell them. Please help. — Jenny, San Mateo, Calif.

Jenny: Your parents will find out sooner or later that you are pregnant so have the courage to tell them. After the first moment of hurt, your mother will know exactly what to do and she will be your best friend.

You cannot handle your problem by yourself. There are so many things to discuss and things to do that the sooner you start, the better for everyone, including your yet to be born baby.

Dr. Wallace: About a year ago, I moved in with my father and my stepmother. After I come home from school my father expects me

Dockreys announce first child

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Dockrey, Colorado City, announce the birth of their first child, Tabitha Kay, born June 2 at 9:30 a.m. in the Root Memorial Hospital. The infant made her debut weighing 8 pounds 4 ounces. She measured 20 inches in length.

Maternal grandparents of Tabitha are Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rorick, Big Spring. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dockrey, Colorado City. H. A. Woods is the new arrival's great-grandfather.

Doris Guy to lead Altrusa through 1980-81 club year

Altrusa Club of Big Spring met June 26, in the Patio Room of Holiday Inn for the installation banquet of 1980-81 officers.

Thirty-six members and guests were introduced and welcomed by Mamie Roberts, president, who presided. Mrs. Leona Ebersole, Mrs. Callie Jo Mason, Paul Guy, Mr. and Mrs. Hersh Dyche, Mrs. Wanda Lee, Glen Albert, Willard Hendrick, Mrs. Ida Bledsoe, Jim Baum and Mr. Jim Baum and Mr. and Mrs. Dewayn Crow were honored guests.

Pat Highley, Altrusa information chairman, initiated Deloris Albert, sponsored by Ruby Billings and Johnnie Lou Avery, sponsored by Mamie Roberts. Membership kits and pins were presented to them.

Guest speaker, Jim Baum, president and owner of KBYG Radio, was introduced by Johnnie Lou Avery. Baum used "Patriotism" as his subject, taken from the Altrusa motto, Patriotism, efficiency, service. Baum reminded members of the freedom that Americans enjoy and take for granted and noted how we should love and protect our heritage.

Baum spoke of some of his experiences while running for Congress, including friends he made and "The Story He Had To Tell." A lack of money and team work from the beginning does make a difference in an election outcome. He expressed his appreciation for the civic participation of the Altrusa Club of Big Spring and offered his assistance in the future planning of Altrusa. Baum was presented a gift from the club by the president.

The Treasure Chest with precious stones was displayed on the head table and was used by Margarette Wooten as she installed the officers of 1980-81.

Mrs. Wooten expressed congratulations to 1979-80 officers for a Year of Service and presented, individually, the duty and a precious stone to Mamie Roberts, immediate past president; Marianne Gilbert, director one year, and Dori Mitchell, 2 years director; Pat Highley, treasurer; Debra Mitchell, corresponding secretary; Jane Watson, recording secretary; Gertrude McCann, vice president and to Doris Guy, president, a stone representing a diamond.

Mrs. Wooten called for unity and participation by each member in the closing remarks. Mrs. Guy gave the president's theme for the year, T.A.P., "True Altrusa Principals," and stated that her committees were named and programs planned. President's awards were presented to seven for perfect attendance. Ruby Billings, Doris Guy, Pat Highley, Frances Hendrick, Beth Kay, Mamie Roberts and Johnnie Winham. Ten new members were named who joined during 1979-80.

Debra Mitchell, Edith Foster, Myrtle Tatum, Jane Watson, Camille Paterson, Aurora Etheridge, Reba Baker, Johnnie Lou Avery, Mollie Smith, and Deloris Albert.

Mrs. Roberts was presented the club gift, "The Beautiful Blue Jay," by Margarette Wooten and Ruby Billings, who surprised the president with a complete scrap book of the year's activities.

The gavel was passed to Doris Guy by outgoing president Mamie Roberts. Altrusa Charter members participating in the banquet were Tot Sullivan who registered guests and members, Jessie Nalley, who gave the invocation; Margarette Wooten, installing officer and Olive Ruth Cowden, who gave the benediction.

OPEN FRIDAY July 4th

SNOW DIES — C.P. Lord Snow of Leicester, better known as novelist, scientist and government administrator C.P. Snow, died at his home in London's fashionable Chelsea district Tuesday, his family announced. He was 74.

Coal rates, utilities must be counted.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White said he notified the Carter administration that support for rail deregulation can cost it votes unless Texas utilities and their fight with the railroads over coal rates are taken into account.

He said he told Vice President Walter Mondale that the rising cost of electricity in Texas will be a key issue at the polls this fall.

White was a member of a Texas government and industry delegation that visited Mondale on Tuesday asking support for extra protection of "captive shippers" — dependent on one railroad without competition — in the railroad deregulation bill up for House consideration.

The delegation — including Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, several Texas congressmen and Railroad Commissioner John Poerner — expressed the fear that deregulation would allow railroads to raise rates too high for hauling coal from western states to the Southwest.

Utilities would be able to pass any increases along to consumers.

Twenty-two of the 24 Texas congressmen have endorsed an amendment by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, a Democrat from Houston, that would allow the Interstate Commerce Commission to review a railroad freight rate at a lower trigger price than allowed by the deregulation bill.

The amendment applies the ICC review only for "captive shippers."

Rep. Jim Collins, a Dallas Republican, and Rep. Ron Paul, a Republican from Lake Jackson, have not endorsed the amendment.

White said the vice president did not commit the administration to supporting the amendment, but Mondale encouraged Eckhardt to meet with the House bill's sponsor to try and work out a compromise.

"I think for the first time the administration understands fully the impact deregulation would have on electric consumers in our state," the Texas attorney general said.

Eckhardt said that deregulation as a solution to bureaucracy is an idea whose time has come politically.

He said railroads should be able to lower prices and make quicker economic decisions after deregulation, but it will only work on routes where there is competition.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., has said that amendments are being offered to preserve the regulatory status quo. He said the bill offers sufficient safeguards for the "captive shippers."

In a memo to the Texas congressional delegation, White said the issue is not limited to one region.

"It is a mistake ... to assume that the problems created by that bill would be limited to Texas or even the Southwest. This is a national problem," he wrote.

DECEPTIVE ISLAND PARADISE — Young men overlook Port Louis, capital of the troubled Indian Ocean island paradise of Mauritius. There is much confusion and contrast in this island, barely 40 miles long and 30 miles wide. The law is French, the culture is Creole, the government institutions are British, the bureaucrats are Indians and most shopowners are Chinese. The greatest problem appears to be finding enough work for everyone in a stagnant economy.

Natives leave as tourists come

Mauritius: A troubled paradise

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP) — As with the dodo bird behind the glass case in the Port Louis museum, appearances can be deceiving on this lush tropical island in the Indian Ocean.

The dodo — this nonflying, distant cousin of the swan, was hounded to extinction in the 1600s by early settlers — is only a replica covered by feathers suspiciously similar to those of a chicken.

Likewise, the beauty of Mauritius — thick green carpets of sugar cane fields, craggy peaks of black basalt, jungles populated by deer, white sand beaches and swaying palm trees — masks serious problems.

There is much confusion and contrast in this island, barely 40 miles long and 30 miles wide. The law is French. The culture is Creole. The government institutions are British. The bureaucrats are Indians. Most shopowners are Chinese.

An average of 160,000 sun-seeking tourists wing in to Mauritius every year aboard jumbo jets from Europe and Africa. But an estimated 60,000 of the 759,000 Mauritians have applied to foreign consulates to leave their homeland.

"It's very sad," said a local newspaper editor, whose own parents and other relatives emigrated to Australia several years ago. "Our bodies are here but our minds drift elsewhere."

The stagnant economy, dependent on exports of sugar to world markets, cannot offer ample opportunities to all. So many leave.

Mauritius, with 1,000 people per square mile, is one of the most densely populated countries in the world, in part due to a baby boom sparked by elimination of malaria epidemics after World War II. On a bright note, an aggressive birth control campaign begun in the 1960s has staved off Malthusian disaster.

Resistance was at first strong among the Hindu-Muslim majority but the campaign reached a turning point in 1971, said Nanda Ramenah, director of the Mauritius Family Planning Association.

"That was the year we distributed posters showing people falling into the ocean off the edges of the island," Ramenah said. "The point got across."

The birth rate is down to 1.8 percent, but the government is still hard pressed to find 10,000 new jobs a year for young people. Thanks to free secondary and university education, new job seekers are also better educated and less eager to accept unskilled employment in the labor-intensive sugar industry, the island's No. 1 industry.

The unemployment rate is officially 9 percent. Unofficial estimates put it as high as 12 percent.

The trade deficit last year was 1 billion rupees, about $125 million. There is enough foreign currency for just two weeks of imports. The cost of living is growing by 10 percent a year and the average monthly salary is 800 rupees, about $100 American.

The labor government of Prime Minister Sir Seewoosagur Ramgoolam called in the International Monetary Fund last year for first aid.

The country finds itself caught between rising expenditures on imports and declining income from sugar exports, partly due to four damaging cyclones at the end of 1979 and the beginning of this year.

The IMF advised a 30 percent devaluation last October and is now helping with an austerity budget for 1980 and 1981.

The leftist opposition, the Mauritian Militant Movement, says the country's malaise is basically caused by an indolent government.

The Labor Party, which has 29 seats in the 70-member Parliament, rules in coalition with the small, eight-seat Social Democrat Party, a conservative group. The MMM has 30 seats and the other three seats belong to a tiny socialist party which split from Labor and generally sides with the opposition. The government edge is 37-33.

"The economic situation is very bad," said MMM president Aneerood Jugnauth in an interview. "Even people already in jobs are losing them. The government isn't governing. It's just patching things up here and there."

Jugnauth is the official opposition spokesman but the real leader of the MMM is Paul Berenger, 35, a Franco-Mauritian who launched the party with young friends in 1969.

Yankees, Colts, Red Sox and Rangers Field narrowed to four in LL City Playoffs

The field has been narrowed to four in the Big Spring Little League City Playoffs, with semifinal action slated in two parks tonight at eight o'clock.

Survivors of last night's contests slated to meet tonight include the American League Colts playing at the National League Yankees, and the National League Rangers traveling to play the Texas League Red Sox.

After some very wild scoring tilts on the opening night on Monday, the games took on more of a playoff look in Tuesday night's action.

The Colts, champions of the American League, tamed the International League Rockets by a score of 6-2.

Winning pitcher for the Colts was Jimmy Rogers, but it was the hitless relief of Randy Hayworth that squelched the Rockets bats in the final three innings.

Losing pitcher for the Rockets was Gilbert Garcia, who pitched well but was the victim of some untimely errors.

Sam Ross, Harry Marquez and David Shortes led the Colts attack.

The Yankees used the three-hit, 12-strikeout performance of Sammy Watson in subduing the American League Falcons by a score of 5-1.

Watson helped his own cause by belting a double and a triple. Others sparking the Yankee hitting attack were Jason Donahue with a triple and a single, Rocky Sharpnack with two singles, LIGHTNING-FAST — Britain's Steve Ovett speeds down the Bislett Stadium track to a world record in the mile during an international track and field meet in Oslo Tuesday. Ovett covered the distance in 3 minutes, 48.8 seconds — two tenths of a second faster than the mark set by his fellow countryman Sebastian Coe on the same track last year.

Borg breaks Laver's Wimbledon record of 31

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Wojtek Fibak advanced to the quarterfinals at Wimbledon for the first time in his life and was as surprised as anybody by his success.

Bjorn Borg did nothing surprising in making the quarterfinals by defeating Balazs Taroczy 6-1, 7-5, 6-2 Tuesday for a record 32nd straight singles triumph. The victory broke the mark of 31 straight set by Australian Rod Laver.

"It's satisfying for me to break Laver's record," Borg said. "That was my practical aim when I came here. I decided I would first go for the record and after that think about winning the title again."

Winning the title wasn't even on Fibak's mind after the first two sets against Vitas Gerulaitis.

The Polish doubles expert staged a remarkable recovery to upset fourth-seeded Gerulaitis 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 8-6 before rain interrupted the day's program.

Zealander Onny Parun 6-3, 6-2, 6-7, 7-6.

Borg plays sixth-seeded American Gene Mayer, who is in the last eight for the first time, while last year's beaten finalist Roscoe Tanner meets either Connors or Pfister.

Three of the four women's quarterfinals had been completed but defending champion Martina Navratilova had just won the first set tiebreaker against Billie Jean King when rain halted play.

Andrea Jaeger, 15-year-old darling of the Wimbledon fans, was abruptly stopped in her tracks. Chris Evert Lloyd beat her 6-1, 6-1. But the pony-tailed teenager from Lincoln, Ill., gave her a good fight and went to defeat in five of the games she lost.

Tracy Austin won 6-3, 6-3 against Greer Stevens, a South African.

Eyonna Goolagong defeated Australian Wendy Turnbull, 6-3, 6-2.

Red Sox sweep doubleheader

The Big Spring Red Sox increased their record to 11-6 by taking a sweep of the Snyder Red Legs in a double-header Sunday afternoon.

The Red Sox used the six-hit pitching of Frankie Rubio in the opener, as they scored a 9-1 triumph. Ernie Garcia, Adam Yanez and Rubio each had two hits for the Red Sox in the contest.

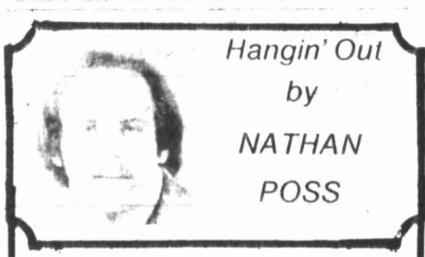

John Morelon toed the mound in the second game in his first pitching appearance of the season, and the Red Sox responded quickly by scoring eight runs in the third inning to stake him to an early lead.

Morelon was the winning pitcher in the 9-8 win, with Tommy Olague and Rubio providing some much needed relief in the late innings.

Ernie Paredes and Adam Yanez each had three hits for the Red Sox in the contest.

The Red Sox return to action in Midland on July 13.

Big Spring Herald SPORTS Wednesday BIG SPRING, TEXAS, JULY 2, 1980

Hangin' Out by
NATHAN POSS

The new all-weather surface at Blankenship Field is scheduled to be ready for action in late July, according to Big Spring Athletic Director RON LOGBACK. Many people wonder why the surface was not installed at the more spacious Memorial Stadium, in order to utilize the seating facilities for track meets. Logback explained that the reason for using Blankenship (on the HSHS campus) is that the physical education classes and off-season programs could have much better access to the facility, which is currently under construction.

Logback has indicated that there are also plans in the future to expand the seating at Blankenship.

At 11 a.m., from seventh grade through the senior year at Big Spring, Coahoma and Sands, are reminded that physicals will be administered on August 7 at both the Malone-Hogan Clinic and Cowper Clinic from one to four in the afternoon. Coaches are reminded to be there.

Former Big Spring Steer all-around great CHARLIE WEST, who will be beginning his 13th NFL season when the Denver Broncos go to camp in mid-July, recently explained the pension plan that applies to him during a telephone interview from his off-season home in Princeton, Minnesota.

West said that after completing 12 NFL seasons, his monthly pension beginning at age 55 will be $1255 per month. Charlie's would go to $1360 if he plays through the end of the 1980 season. But, as West says, "$15,000 a year or so pension pay 20 years from now might not be much, the way things are going."

The Midland Cubs are having three promotional nights during the Independence Weekend that will no doubt increase the waistlines and smiles of those that attend the games to watch the Class AA baseball.

On Friday night, July 4, the Cubs will have their traditional TWO-BIT BEER night, with cups of Coors, Bud and Miller-Lite at 25 cents. Saturday night will have an unlimited supply of hot dogs for a quarter each, while Sunday night's prize will be a 1980 All-Star poster for every youngster entering the park. Incidentally, the Cubs will be playing San Antonio, for those of you that can get past the main course.

Also on July 4, the Twelfth Annual Firecracker Run will be held in Brownfield. A one-mile race for youngsters will be held, as well as three and 10 mile jaunts for the more experienced runners. Action starts at 8:45 a.m. at the Colonial Heights School in Brownfield.

Word out of Dallas is that TONY DORSETT personally feels field leadership now that ROGER STAUBACH has announced his retirement, and is working out very strenuously for the first time in his career in the off-season. DON COLEMAN, at 29 years of age, will be the youngest rookie trying to make it in the NFL when camps open later this month. He'll be with Denver. He spent four years in the Army, then played regularly at the University of Oregon.

BASEBALL'S BIGGEST IRONY are the St. Louis Cardinals. Recently the Cards had five of the top six hitters in the league batting race, and as of Sunday, they still led the league as a team in the hitting department. Nevertheless, they are still in last place in the NL East. Some say baseball is 90 percent pitching, and the Cardinals may be trying to prove that. Speaking of hitting, the average designated hitter's average is up in the American League this year. Best previous combined DH was .264. This year it is .276.

QUOTABLE

When the very big (240-pound BILLY HORTON) slid head first into third during a recent game in Seattle, Yankees ace third sacker and one-liner GRAIG NETTLES turned to Mariners Coach BILL MAZEROSKI and said: "People around here will think Mt. St. Helens has erupted again."

Carew, Stone earn AL June honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Carew, who hit .389 with 16 runs batted in for the California Angels in June, was named AL Player of the Month while Baltimore right-hander Steve Stone, who extended his personal winning streak to nine games, was named AL Pitcher of the Month.

Manuel Dominguez was the brunt of the Comets attack, collecting three hits. Gilbert Aguilar and David Ovalle each had singles. Aguilar was the losing hurler.

National League Rangers at Texas League Red Sox (8:00).

John highlights unproven AL All-Star pitching staff

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy John, no stranger to the crowds at Dodger Stadium, heads an eight-man All-Star pitching staff named by American League executives Wednesday after weekend consultations with Baltimore Orioles and AL All-Star Manager Earl Weaver.

John, the bionic arm left-hander who helped the Dodgers to pennants in 1977 and 1978, is the only pitcher to be named to the All-Star staff following the 1978 season, as the only repeater from last year's squad.

And he'll probably be the most well-known on the AL staff for next Tuesday's mid-season classic in Los Angeles.

Navratilova ousts King

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Defending champion Martina Navratilova clawed her way back from the brink of defeat to beat veteran Billie Jean King 7-6, 1-6, 10-8 in the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis championships today.

Navratilova, bidding for her third successive Wimbledon title, seldom approached her peak, and King, 35, gave one of the bravest performances of her long career.

King, winner of a record 20 Wimbledon titles including six singles, trailed by one set to love when play resumed this morning, but dropped only seven points in taking the second set 6-1 in just 17 minutes.

Navratilova was unable to get her first serve working and missed a number of volleys. She hit back to lead 2-0 in the third set but King came back again to tie, then had her big chance when serving for the match at 6-5.

Navratilova broke back to love, however, and King then saved eight match points in three different games before the 23-year-old champion finally took the match.

The Czech-born left hander now meets Chris Evert Lloyd in the semifinals. That match will be a repeat of last year's final.

In other matches Jimmy Connors, a round behind because of the rain that has disrupted the program, overcame Hank Pfister 6-4, 6-7, 6-1, 7-6.

Brian Gottfried, who was unseeded, upset Wojtek Fibak of Poland, the 13th seed, 6-4, 7-6, 6-2 and was the first man to reach the semifinals. Gottfried has not dropped a set in the whole tournament.

Beckmann takes Seattle Tourney

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Beckmann began the final game with six straight strikes and held on to defeat top-seeded Tommy Hudson 234-220 in the $775,000 Seattle Open bowling tournament.

The win qualified Beckmann for the 1981 Firestone Tournament of Champions.

Englishmen shatter marks in Oslo meet

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Sebastian Coe won one and lost one — much to the delight of Steve Ovett.

The two Britons turned an international track and field meet into something more memorable Tuesday as Coe shattered the world record in the 1,000-meter race and then stood by helplessly as Ovett broke Coe's year-old standard in the mile.

"It tastes terrific," said Ovett after covering the mile on the lightning fast Bislett track in 3 minutes, 48.8 seconds — two tenths of a second faster than the mark Coe set on this same track last year. "One of the big goals this year was to take the record from Coe," Ovett added.

Coe wasn't thinking the same thing about Rick Wohlhuter or the record the American set in 1976.

"I had no plans of trying to beat the world record," said Coe. "My aim was to beat (Willie) Wohlbeck."

But those thoughts changed about 200 meters from the finish line.

"When I passed the 800-meter mark in 1:44.4 (2.4 seconds ahead of Wohlhuter's pace in 1976) I realized I could do it," the 22-year-old student exclaimed.

And he did, crossing the finish line in 2:13.40 to better Wohlhuter's standard of 2:13.90.

Wohlbeck of West Germany finished second in 2:14.53, a national record, while Olympic 1,500-meter champion John Walker of New Zealand was third in 2:16.57, also a national standard.

As the crowd of 22,500 stood to applaud Coe, Ovett began his quest in the mile.

The 24-year-old native of Brighton passed the 800-meter mark in 1:52.8, the 1,000-meter mark in 2:22.8 and turned the 1,500 in 3:32.7.

The victory in the 1.2.3 British sweep was Ovett's 42nd straight. Stephen Cram finished second in 3:53.8 and Graham Williamson was third in 3:56.4.

Coe and Ovett are not considered the best of friends, and have consciously avoided facing each other before the Moscow Olympic Games, which are just three weeks away.

Their meeting in Moscow may well have been worth the wait.

In other major events, Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan captured the 3,000-meter event in 7:37.6. American Renato Nehemiah edged countryman Rod Milburn in the 110-meter hurdles and Mac Wilkins of the United States won the discus with a toss of 220 feet.

Navratilova ousted King

With the exception of John and Gossage, the AL staff has no All-Star experience.

But in John and Farmer they have the makings of an incredible comeback story. Both men have undergone arm surgery with John's truly amazing.

In 1974, he ruptured a ligament in his pitching arm and underwent a delicate tendon transplant to reconstruct his elbow.

In the following four seasons he was 68-36 and this year is 11-3, leading the AL in strikeouts with four and tied with Stone for the league lead in victories.

Farmer, who underwent surgery in 1977, has a league-leading 17 saves for the White Sox and has won five of eight decisions.

"I heard about it today and I think it's just great," Farmer said. "This is a second career for me after my arm surgery. This is something you dream about and look forward to. You don't think they'll start me, do you?"

No, Weaver will probably select his starter from among the five chosen to the team — John, Stone, 11-3, Gura, 10-3, and Honeycutt and Stieb, both 7-5. The Baltimore manager added the selection would probably not come until Monday morning at the media press conference.

The National League pitching staff will be announced later today with reserves for both teams to be named Thursday.

Beckmann takes Seattle Tourney

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Beckmann began the final game with six straight strikes and held on to defeat top-seeded Tommy Hudson 234-220 in the $775,000 Seattle Open bowling tournament.

The win qualified Beckmann for the 1981 Firestone Tournament of Champions.

EARLY MORNING WORKOUT — Heavyweight champion Larry Holmes, left, with his younger brother Mark at his side, did his roadwork early Tuesday morning in preparation for his July 7 title fight against Minnesota native Scott LeDoux. Mark Holmes will make his professional debut as a middleweight on the same card.

Red Sox sweep doubleheader

The Big Spring Red Sox increased their record to 11-6 by taking a sweep of the Snyder Red Legs in a double-header Sunday afternoon.

The Red Sox used the six-hit pitching of Frankie Rubio in the opener, as they scored a 9-1 triumph. Ernie Garcia, Adam Yanez and Rubio each had two hits for the Red Sox in the contest.

John Morelon toed the mound in the second game in his first pitching appearance of the season, and the Red Sox responded quickly by scoring eight runs in the third inning to stake him to an early lead.

Morelon was the winning pitcher in the 9-8 win, with Tommy Olague and Rubio providing some much needed relief in the late innings.

Ernie Paredes and Adam Yanez each had three hits for the Red Sox in the contest.

The Red Sox return to action in Midland on July 13.

Lions Club slates weekend fast-pitch tournament

The fifth annual Evening Lions Club Fast-Pitch Softball Tournament will get under way at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Johnny Stone Park, located just off the IS 20 bypass north of town.

Upwards to 15 teams from all over West Texas and New Mexico are scheduled to take part in the double elimination event. Play will be around the clock Friday night and Saturday morning. The winner likely will be determined sometime Sunday afternoon.

A concessions stand operated by Lions Club personnel will be open throughout the tournament. Lions members will keep the grounds in condition.

Proceeds from the tournament go for such Lion projects as sight conservation, summer camps for kids and etc.

Cotton Mize will be the tournament director.

Deadline for entering city golf tournament nearing

Time is running out to enter this weekend's Big Spring City Golf Championship, which will be held July 4-6 at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The tournament will consist of 54 holes of medal play. The number of flights will be determined by the amount of players entered, with flights broken down by scores after the first day of play.

Entry fee for the affair is 15 dollars per person. Winners in each flight will be awarded merchandise for their efforts.

The defending champion in the tournament is Jimmy Welch.

Industrial playoff games cancelled

The Big Spring Industrial Slow-Pitch Softball League has canceled all of the playoff games scheduled for this week, according to circuit spokesman John Weeks.

There is an important managers meeting tomorrow night at the Johnny Stone Park at seven o'clock.

Russell continues costly ways for Reuss

By the Associated Press
Last week, Bill Russell's error cost Jerry Reuss a perfect game. Last night, it cost the Dodgers a victory.

Russell, voted the National League's starting shortstop for the July 8 All-Star Game, committed a throwing error to account for the only baserunner in Reuss' 8-0 no-hitter against San Francisco last Friday.

Reuss was on the mound again Tuesday night, and this time Russell's throwing error led to three unearned runs that helped the San Diego Padres beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1.

Reuss pitched seven innings and allowed just four hits, and all four San Diego runs were unearned.

An error by Pedro Guerrero helped San Diego score in the first inning without benefit of a hit. Russell's error with two out in the third led in the second run, and Dave Winfield followed it up with a two-run homer.

That was more than enough to beat the Dodgers, whose only scoring came on Jose Ferguson's home run in the ninth.

"Jerry pitched a good game," said Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda.

"That error (by Russell) cost us three runs and we gave them all four. Outside of the home run, it looked like he had good stuff."

"My stuff was all right," said Reuss, who was well aware that only one other player in baseball history had pitched consecutive no-hitters — Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati in 1938. Reuss said he wanted to put it out of his mind, but it was a futile task.

"I tried to downplay it," said Reuss. "It had no bearing. Still, I thought about it, only because I was reminded of it so much.

When I was out there pitching, no, I didn't think about anything but the next batter."

Phillies 5, Expos 4
Philadelphia pulled within one game of first-place Montreal in the National League East by beating the Expos with a pair of runs in the top of the 11th inning. Pete Rose drove in Greg Boone with a single and Bob Boone also scored on the play when third baseman Larry Parrish could not handle a throw.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 2
Phil Garner singled in the 10th, went to third on Steve Nicosia's single and came around to score when Mike Easler beat the throw to first as St. Louis tried to turn his grounder into a double play.

The victory moved Pittsburgh to within 1½ games of front-running Montreal.

Braves 13, Astros 4
Bob Horner hit a two-run single and Jeff Burroughs belted a three-run homer in the fifth inning, then the Braves put together seven hits for six more runs in the sixth in routing the Astros.

The 13 runs, all scored after two were out, were the most by the Braves this season and also the most scored against the Astros.

Cubs 4, Mets 3
Lenny Randle hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning to give the Cubs the victory. Dennis Lamp, 8-6, was the winner with relief help from Bill Caudill and Bruce Sutter, who came on in the seventh and recorded his 18th save.

Giants 4, Reds 1
Ed Whitson pitched a six-hitter for his fifth straight victory and rookie Rich Murray broke an 0-for-29 slump with a two-run homer in the fifth inning for the Giants.

Ranger relievers spell defeat AGAIN

SEATTLE (AP) — The way Shane Rawley talked, a person might think he was a losing pitcher.

"I felt sorry for Floyd," Rawley said of teammate Floyd Bannister. "I made one bad pitch to Richie Zisk. I'm going to have to stop giving up other people's runs."

Zisk did belt a two-run double to cap a five-run Texas Rangers' seventh inning and give Texas a 5-4 lead, but Bruce Bochte answered with a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth to provide a 6-5 victory for Rawley and the Seattle Mariners.

Rawley, 4-2, feels his relief job is to shut out opposing teams. He worked the final 23 innings after Bannister needed help, allowing three hits and one run.

Bochte's game-winning hit came on a 1-2 count from the fourth Texas pitcher, Sparky Lyle. Lyle had Bochte in a 0-2 hole.

"I'm a better hitter with two strikes on me," Bochte explained. "So sometimes that works to my advantage."

With one out in the ninth inning, pinch-hitter Bob Stinson was walked by Ranger reliever Jim Kern. Julio Cruz followed with a single and Texas Manager Pat Corrales brought in Danny Darwin, who walked Juan Beniquez to load the bases.

Bochte's sharp single to right easily scored pinch-runner Joe Simpson from third and Cruz slid into home ahead of the throw from the outfield.

"All I was trying to do was get a ground ball," said Lyle.

Rangers' starter Jon Matlack gave up the first four Seattle runs on eight hits before being replaced by Kern, 2-10.

"Those bases on balls will beat you," Corrales said. "Kern threw well in spots, but he has had some elbow problems this season."

Kern has managed just three saves this season compared to 29 during 1979.

New prime minister for Iran soon?

By the Associated Press

The head of the Islamic party which dominates Iran's Parliament predicted today that the assembly will choose a new prime minister within two weeks, clearing one of the major hurdles prior to debating the fate of the 53 American hostages.

"Within two weeks a prime minister will be appointed and the new government will be formed, so the supreme authority now, the Revolutionary Council, will whither away. ... The legal body of the government will rule," said Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, leader of the Islamic Republican Party which has a majority in the Parliament, or Majlis.

Beheshti is also a member of the council and head of Iran's Supreme Court.

In his remarks today, Beheshti did not say whether a debate on the hostages would immediately follow selection of a prime minister. However, Iranian officials have said the hostage issue is one of the more important facing Iran and that it "would follow selection of a prime minister."

Beheshti did mention the Americans in connection with deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi recuperating at a Cairo military hospital from surgery to remove fluid from lungs as a result of chemotherapy for his lymph cancer.

Even if the shah were to die, Beheshti said, the Americans would not automatically be released.

"The fate of the hostages does not depend on the shah's life, the main problem is the United States crimes in the last 25 years in Iran and making sure they will not interfere in our affairs again," he said.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader, has ordered Parliament to decide what Iran should do with the Americans, held in captivity 242 days today. Some members of Beheshti's party favor trying the Americans as spies.

BARBARA BUCKLEY
... Miss Universe pageant

ASU grad represents Texas at pageant

Miss Texas USA 1980, Barbara Buckley, who recently competed in the nationally televised Miss USA pageant, has left for Seoul, Korea, to represent Texas at the Miss Universe Pageant.

Miss Buckley departed this morning, accompanied by most of the other 50 contestants in the past Miss USA contest. They have been invited as guests of the Korean sponsors of the pageant, the Hankook Ilbo, publishers of the Korean Times.

In addition to the rare opportunity of seeing the sites of the historic Korean capitol, Miss Buckley and the rest of the Miss USA delegates will be shown on the live international telecast, which will be aired over the CBS television network from 8 to 10 p.m. on July 7th.

Miss Buckley, who resides in Midland, is also doing a number of radio and television appearances to promote the Miss Universe pageant—and Texas, as well.

Miss Buckley is a graduate of Midland High School and holds a Bachelor's degree in Drama from Angelo State University. She has performed at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., cast in the national playwriting award winner of the American College Theatre Festival in 1978. Supplementing these honors was a trip to Dundalk, Ireland, for the International Amateur Theatre Association's competition. She currently is in the cast of Midland Community Theatre's "Summer Mommers" production as actress, singer and dancer.

Miss Buckley plans to live in Dallas and continue her acting career. "I want to do comedy and musical productions, but I am also interested in doing some television and modeling," says Barbara.

Senate votes to begin work on bomber for '87

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, unwilling to wait on the Carter administration, voted today to order development of a new strategic bomber to be in the air by 1987.

Earlier, as it worked past midnight on a $51.9 billion weapons authorization bill, the Senate scrapped a quality-over-quantity proposal to cut the all-volunteer Army's manpower by 25,000.

The Senate hoped to complete work on the bill today.

The provision appropriating $91 million for initial development of the new bomber also would instruct the secretary of defense to report to Congress by Feb. 15 on comparisons between the B-1, which was canceled by President Carter in 1977, a stretch FB-111 and an advanced bomber still on the drawing boards.

When he canceled the B-1 bomber, Carter ordered development instead of a workhorse plane to carry and deliver cruise missiles in the future. But as a hedge, he ordered continued study of the B-1, a stretch version of the FB-111 and other alternatives in case the military finds it needs a new manned bomber after all to replace aging B-52s.

But the Senate, led by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California, voted to order a bomber developed quickly.

"These actions forcefully demonstrate that Congress wants a follow-on bomber and will wait no longer for the executive branch to request that new bomber," Cranston said.

The House has voted to resurrect the B-1 as a cruise missile carrier.

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, opposed the bomber development as "a very serious and a very costly mistake." He said a new bomber developed so fast would cost $7 billion to $8 billion would probably be shot down by the Soviets by 1988.

"To throw money at a manned penetrating bomber that won't penetrate is the height of irresponsibility," Culver said.

The proposal passed on a voice vote.

The Senate approved 89-0 a compromise scrapping the proposed Army manpower cut and allowing more recruits of low mental ability.

Backers of the manpower cut said it would bring quality — much like the Marine Corps' "a few good men" policy — but they dropped the idea when defeat became certain.

The Senate Armed Services Committee had proposed that the Army's request for 775,300 men as of Sept. 30, 1981, be cut to 750,300 unless 72 percent of the male recruits next year were high school graduates.

'Bill of Rights' in Texas would combat utilities

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans need a "Bill of Rights" to protect them from companies that try to cut off electric service when it's too hot, too cold, or would endanger health, according to two consumer organizations.

The Texas Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now and Consumers Union asked Tuesday that the Public Utility Commission adopt rules restricting utility cutoffs.

The groups are asking PUC to ban all service disconnections for non-payment when the temperature is below 55 or extremely hot. They also asked that service shutoffs be banned at all times to customers with health problems.

"We stand firmly against the utility companies' arbitrary power over the life and death of its customers," ACORN spokeswoman Willo Hardin said outside the PUC offices. "In times of extreme weather — the current heat wave is a perfect example — the need for a strict policy on shutoffs is an urgent one."

Attorneys for the two groups filed a petition asking PUC to convene hearings on the proposed rules.

Carole Barger, attorney for Consumers Union, said service cutoffs could endanger some Texans during heat waves. However, she said no Texans have died as a result of service cutoffs during the current hot spell.

Steve Gardner, an attorney representing ACORN, said the group had not set a maximum temperature at which electricity could be disconnected, but he said 90-95 degrees "would be reasonable."

"Honest to God," he said, "we are trying to be fair to the utilities."

He said many Texas utility companies have decided not to cut off service for non-payment during the heat wave. However, he said that decision should not be left up to the companies. "The utilities know it would be bad public relations for them to do otherwise," he said.

The consumer groups offered several other suggestions, including: —No cutoffs without 10-day advance notice, in English and Spanish.

Gardner said utility companies now give five-day notice. Customers should be entitled to a hearing before the service is terminated, he said. —A deferred payment plan must be offered if a customer cannot meet monthly bills. Gardner said some companies now offer such plans.

—Customers should not have to pay disputed bills until after a hearing before an impartial examiner.

Gardner said the commission must now decide if it will convene hearings on the request. The Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates gas utilities, conducted such hearings in January, but has announced no decision.

Names in the news

ERIC ESTRADA PRINCE CHARLES

Estrada, wife separate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After seven months of marriage, television star Erik Estrada and his wife, Joyce, are in the process of getting a divorce. "We were convinced that our marriage would survive, but it just didn't work out," said Estrada, who plays a California highway patrolman on TV's "CHiPs."

He cited tensions stemming from life in the public eye as contributing to the breakup.

Prince now lift driver

CUMBERNAULD, Scotland (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles is a pilot, polo player, skier and sailor, and now he's added another skill — hydraulic cradle-lift driver.

The latest exploit of the heir to the British throne came Tuesday at the American-owned Capital Development Corp. factory in Cumbernauld, where the prince took the controls of the huge crane-like construction vehicle, sending its 60-foot extending arm through maneuvers.

A company spokesman said later: "He is a born lift driver. With all his experience with helicopters, what else can you expect?"

DUKE OF WINDSOR DAVID NIVEN

Duke wanted job for home

LONDON (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, who abdicated the British throne in the name of love more than 40 years ago, spoke on his deathbed of "the waste, the waste" and said he had longed for a job serving his country, his former nurse says.

In an intimate account of the duke's last hours before his death in Paris on May 28, 1972, nurse Oonagh Shanley was quoted in Woman Magazine Tuesday as saying the duke became semi-delirious, his eyes brimming with tears.

"In all the conversations he had with me in the previous deteriorating days, he'd said several times how much he'd longed to be given a worthwhile job for his own country."

Publicity for lack of it

NEW YORK (AP) — Oscar-winning actor David Niven is getting some publicity over not getting enough publicity for his latest movie.

The 70-year-old Niven has filed a breach-of-contract suit against producer David Merrick and Paramount Pictures, Inc., claiming he was short-changed on salary and publicity in the movie "Rough Cut."

Niven, in asking for $1,791,667, charges that as distributor of "Rough Cut" Paramount failed to live up to an agreement to give Niven as much space as Burt Reynolds in the movie's advertisements.

VA grant of $3,800 available for some vets to purchase car

A Veterans Administration grant of up to $3,800 is available for some seriously disabled veterans to purchase an automobile or other conveyance.

VA will also pay for specially-adapted equipment required for the disabled veteran to safely operate a car or other vehicle, such as a van.

This word came from Administrator of Veterans Affairs Max Cleland, who has already taken advantage of this benefit necessitated by the loss of both legs and an arm during the Vietnam conflict.

Cleland said that the program allows VA to make a one-time payment of not more than $3,800 toward the purchase of an automobile for veterans or active duty personnel with service-connected loss, or permanent loss of use of one or both hands or feet, or permanent impairment of vision of both eyes to a prescribed degree.

In addition to the vehicle and the adapted equipment, the agency will pay for the repair, replacement of or reinstallation of such equipment in subsequent vehicles, he said.

In fiscal year 1979, some 1,300 veterans used this benefit at a cost to VA of nearly $5 million for a vehicle or purchase or repair of specially-adapted equipment.

Cleland urges any veteran who thinks he or she may be eligible for this grant to contact the nearest VA office.
