First freed hostage undergoes tests

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Richard Queen, the first American hostage freed from Iran in more than seven months, arrived in Switzerland today and was whisked off to a Zurich hospital for treatment of a reported psychological or neurological problem. Iran's revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ordered the 28-year-old vice consul's release because of his illness. But an official in Tehran said this did not mean any change in Iran's attitude toward the 52 Americans who remained behind, in their 251st day of captivity today. A U.S. Embassy official said doctors at the hospital immediately began putting Queen through a series of tests. "It's very difficult to make an immediate medical prognosis," he said. An embassy spokesman said the freed American would remain at the hospital for an indefinite time for treatment. Queen's parents flew out of New York this morning for London, where they were expected to connect with a flight to Zurich either late tonight or Saturday.

Queen, who grew up in Scarsdale, N.Y., was met by the U.S. ambassador to Switzerland, Richard Vine, when the scheduled Swissair jetliner touched down in Zurich at 11:16 a.m. — 6:16 a.m. EDT — after a six-hour flight from Tehran.

The young man was immediately placed on a stretcher, taken to an ambulance that had been waiting on the tarmac, and driven off to the hospital.

Security guards kept reporters from talking with Queen. Fellow passengers said they had not noticed anything unusual about the plane and did not recognize Queen.

He was accompanied to Zurich by an official of the Swiss Embassy in Tehran, which looks after U.S. interests in Iran.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman, Peter Reuss, said he had no idea about Queen's condition but that U.S.

doctors would be flown to Switzerland from Germany or Austria to join Swiss specialists in examining Queen, reportedly suffering from some sort of psychological problem. Despite the release, Iran's (See Iran's, Col. 3, Page 2-A)

Midland suspect linked to local burglaries

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
A Midland man arrested on three charges involving a theft in the fall City is also being linked to a series of burglaries that occurred in Big Spring about six weeks ago. David Louis Craddock, 21, of 3805 Cobb in Midland was arrested July 8. He was arraigned before Midland County Justice of the Peace John Biggs and charged with theft over $200, theft by exercising control and making a false report. Bond was set at $10,000 by Biggs. According to Midland Police Sgt. Jerry Compton, the 21-year-old Midland man was caught with several stolen guns. During the arrest, police found Craddock in possession of bow cutters and a Big Spring motel key. Compton said he began to contact other police departments in the areas, seeing if burglaries had occurred where bow cutters may have been used. Big Spring returned an affirmative. Compton added Craddock had been under surveillance for well over a month. "I knew where the music equipment was over a month ago," Compton said. But, he added, there was no way he could connect the music instruments and accessories to being stolen. Compton contacted Big Spring police about the music equipment, and local officers answered that four guitars, three amplifiers and other music accessories valued at $4,885 had been reported stolen by Larry Cordes of 1522 E. 17th between May 31 and June 1 from a Triple-A Mini Storage Shed on FM 700.

Big Spring police detective George Quintero said today the music equipment in Craddock's possession had been positively identified as that stolen from Cordes' storage shed.

A member of the Cordes family said the music equipment belonged to a group of men who were a band.

"They were supposed to perform in Amarillo the next weekend," the family member said. The band used the shed to practice in and store their instruments.

Quintero believes Craddock is a prime lead in solving a rash of burglaries that hit the Triple-A Mini Storage Sheds on FM 700. According to police reports, 45 sheds were tampered with between 4:30 p.m. on May 31 and 10:25 a.m. Sunday.

Among those afflicted were then Police Chief Stanley Bogart, who had $1,000 in fishing equipment, electric hand tools and assorted items stolen. Quintero said, "We believe he (Craddock) is involved. We don't know if he was working alone or was part of something bigger."

Officers from the Big Spring Police Department will be in Midland today working on further investigation into the matter.

"We are going to see if we can get a statement," Quintero said.

The detective feels that other items, stolen from the sheds could be recovered.

"We are going to try to recover as much as possible," Quintero added.

Local teachers will receive more money

Trustees approve $9,428,454 budget

By DON WOODS
Big Spring School Board trustees approved a $9,428,454 budget in Thursday's regular meeting, representing a 9.2 percent increase over last year's budget.

Expected revenues total $9,443,836 for an increase of 13.1 percent over the 1979 budget.

Payroll costs represented the highest increase with a $698,635 increase over last year's budget.

A $525 per teacher increase in local increment was partially responsible. Teachers will receive local increments of $1,750 each in addition to the amount given to FICA previously for Social Security.

Teachers will gain 4.433 percent of their pay which was paid last year to Social Security. The increase will begin in January.

Amounts gained as a result in the salary schedule will range from $460 to $810 per teacher's yearly salary.

"This increment should put this district in at least the top 30 percent of this state," said Assistant Superintendent of Business Don Crockett.

The school board eliminated four positions this year and created one for a net decrease of three teachers.

Purchased and contracted services received the second highest increase over last year with a $122,479 increase from $500,097 in 1979 to $622,576 in 1980.

The Senate Bill 621 mandated reappraisal of county properties must claim responsibility for the increase. Big Spring Independent School District pays a cut of the operating costs of the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board which is mandated by SB 621 and executor of the reappraisal.

The amount budgeted for the appraisal board is $97,362, part of which will go for cost of the expensive reappraisal.

Cost of gas was partial reason for increase in materials and supplies. Transportation costs are anticipated $44,613 higher than 1979-1980. Trustees bet on $1.45 a gallon gas in setting the $115,000 amount for transportation next year.

The district shot its budget for gasoline last year when trustees gambled on 75 cent a gallon gas. Average cost per gallon was up 95 cents per gallon. Total allotted for gas last year was $70,387.

Expected cost of utilities also brought the budget higher. Trustees are expecting to spend $34,362 more this year for plant maintenance.

Total materials and supplies budget is $622,576; an increase of $122,479 from the $500,097 budgeted in 1979.

Trustees will spend $72,500 on energy saving measures in 1980-1981. Change to incandescent lighting will cost $15,000. Control devices such as time clocks for boilers and air conditioners will cost $12,500.

A total of $10,000 will be spent for insulation. Window insulation will cost $35,000. Roof work will cost $13,500. Water heaters will be installed at $9,500 and $10,000 will be spent on air conditioning.

On the credit side, total expected increase in revenues is over $1 million.

State revenue is an expected $5,215,602; a $132,169 increase over last year's $5,083,433.

Federal revenue, however, is down $77,500 because the district will this year receive the last $50,000 in federal subsidy paid for losses due to the Webb Air Force Base closing.

Total local revenue is expected to be $4,178,234.

Estimated cash surplus by the end of next year is only $485,765. Over $1 million in surplus funds could be found there in years past, said Crockett.

Trustees did not institute a tax increase at Thursday's meeting, however, because of local expected revenue increase of over three percent. Senate Bill 621 mandates trustees take a "vote for intent to increase taxes," in the words of the senate bill. A public hearing, also mandated by SB 621, was set for public discussion of the increase for July 21, board room of the high school, 5:15 p.m.

The expected increase in local revenue is 35 percent, not because of higher taxes but because of better market values of district mineral holdings.

Trustees based taxes in the past on 75 percent valuation of property value with a tax rate of $1.70 per $100 value.

Trustees lowered the tax rate to $1.275 so that the SB 621 mandated assessment of taxes based on 100 percent of property value would not raise taxes.

Trustees awarded contracts for Blankenship storage and restroom facility, construction and refurbishing of grandstands and paper supplies.

Tusha Buildings, Odessa and Lubbock, received the contract for construction of the storage building at Blankenship for $32,500. They were low bidders.

A total of 1,600 stadium seats will be built or refurbished. Contract for material for the first stage of the project went to Southern Bleacher Construction Company for $8,339.

A new 500-seat section will be built at Blankenship Field and an existing 500-seat section will be refitted with aluminum seating. At Memorial Stadium, 1,100 seats will be redone with aluminum.

The district maintenance men will do the labor after this year's football season. The new seating will be in place by the 1981 football season.

Blankenship was built in 1956 and replacement of lumber has been done at "random," said Crockett. The improvements on the stadium are the beginning of a yearly program to replace all the seating.

An anonymous $100,000 gift to purchase an all-weather track and other Blankenship improvements was not enough to cover cost of seating improvement, so a $3,497.72 budget amendment was approved.

Gospel singing groups to perform at park Sunday

The gospel singing groups from the North Side Church of Christ and the Mt. Bethel Baptist churches will appear at the next summer Starlight Specials programs in the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater on Sunday starting at 8 p.m.

Those who attended the Gospel Sing program presented by the Evangel Temple Assembly of God Church at the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater Sunday, July 6, heard a varied program of Gospel music used in camp meetings, regular church services, revival meetings, and just simple contemporary Gospel music.

"The Kids Under Construction," a junior choir at the Evangel Temple Assembly of God church, performed their fourth concert and their first concert of Gospel music. They will appear at a later date in the Assembly of God Church at El Paso.

The Cultural Affairs Council of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce sponsors the summer Starlight Specials programs at the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater.

Action/reaction: Disasters record

Q. Has any country sent sympathy or condolence messages to the USA after the devastation caused by the Mt. St. Helen's earthquake? This country rallies food, money, workers to help countless areas after natural (or unnatural) disasters.

A. To our knowledge, no such messages were received. It is true the record of this country for reacting to disasters around the world is unmatched. No appeal for food and supplies was ever sent outside the continental limits of the United States by the people in Washington following the eruption. With typical American pluckiness, the Washingtonians were saying, in effect, "we can handle it ourselves."

CRMWD committed to deliver water annually to Sweetwater

Directors Tuesday committed the Colorado River Municipal Water District to deliver 3,000 acre feet of water annually to or near Sweetwater's Oak Creek reservoir in Coke County.

Details of the proposal are being worked out by the CRMWD Rate Committee and officials, who have been in consultation with City of Sweetwater officials. Two factors will govern the final cost figures — one is the cost of water in Lake E.V. Spence based on today's costs of the reservoir and its operation and maintenance; the other is the cost of financing, operating, maintaining and administering a 20-mile pipeline from Lake Spence to Oak Creek Lake.

Another meeting of the CRMWD board is due to be held with about two weeks to firm up the details of the proposal (in advance of an election regarding ratification by Sweetwater voters). Tuesday's action was in response to a request that the District consider furnishing and delivering the water. To expedite matters, in event Sweetwater voters approve contracts between their city and the district in an August 9 referendum, CRMWD directors approved First Southwest Corporation of Dallas as fiscal agent and the employment of Freese & Nichols as consulting engineers on the project.

O.H. Ivie, general manager of CRMWD, reported that the U.S. Corps of Engineers had asked for an archaeological survey of the proposed Stacy reservoir site. Before taking any action on this, directors instructed Ivie to consult with Texas Utilities Services Inc., which previously indicated a desire to build a generating plant in the area. He also said that CRMWD is joining with cities in appearing before the Texas Public Utilities Commission regarding a proposed Texas Electric Service rate increase.

CRMWD directors strongly commended operations and maintenance personnel for keeping the system operative during a period of unprecedented demand since the onslaught of an extraordinary heat wave nearly three weeks ago. Paschal Odom, assistant general manager, said that despite one major pipeline break, district crews had been able to maintain storage levels and meet all demands.

Ivie warned, however, if the rate of deliveries on the west end is not abated, it may be necessary to resort to on-peak electric power rates. This could cost $48,000 a year at present rates to supply only 3,000,000 gallons a day more, even for a short period, he said. The revenue from this additional production would be negligible. The district, he said, is prepared to take the step if necessary.

H.S. (Duke) Samson, Odessa, was praised for his distinguished service over the past 13 years by P.C. Harbour, Odessa, District president. Samson is retiring from the board and was honored Tuesday by his fellow townsmen when Duke Samson Day was proclaimed in Odessa.

Texans expected to request fed disaster relief money

WASHINGTON — As Texans continue to seek shelter during the heat wave, federal officials are preparing for what could be an unprecedented deluge of requests for federal disaster relief money.

So far this summer, requests by farmers for federal aid have been slow coming in, according to agency spokesmen in Texas and Washington.

But, as one Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) case worker in Washington put it, "we expect all kinds of requests and we may have to work overtime if it doesn't rain down there in a couple of weeks."

Three programs — one providing outright grants and two others allowing low-income loans — are available for farmers who can prove they've suffered a loss in income because of a disaster such as prolonged heat or drought.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said last week federal disaster funds may be the only help for farmers.

At a press conference Wednesday, Brown said losses from crop damage alone already total about $750 million.

Brown said the hardest hit crops are cotton, sorghum and dry-land corn.

J.P. Jones of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Bryan said only 20 Texas counties have been deemed eligible for the Agriculture Department's emergency feed program so far but, between 50 and 100 counties are expected to seek the aid because of the drought within a month.

"Right now," said Jones, "we have fewer counties participating than we've had in the last three years. The rains in May enabled many farmers to get by without the program but we expect the number to accelerate in the next couple of weeks."

Under the program, the agency pays up to two cents per pound for feed for livestock. But, said Jones, the amount of federal aid can't exceed half of the total cost of the feed.

Farmers who can demonstrate losses due to hot weather are also eligible for low-interest loans from the Farmers Home Administration and the Small Business Administration (SBA), federal officials said.

Both the FmHA and the SBA can provide loans of up to $500,000 per farm operation at a five percent interest rate if the farmer can prove at least a 20 percent crop loss and an inability to get commercial credit.

Walter Scudday of the FmHA said about 60 Texas counties have been declared eligible because of drought conditions and if it doesn't rain soon, another 60 will be eligible.

SBA spokesman Sharon Clark said 25 Texas counties are now eligible for SBA loans and another seven requests are pending in Washington.

Because of a 1978 law authorizing emergency disaster relief, county commissioners throughout the state must request the governor's office declare their counties disaster areas.

Jon Ford, a spokesman for Gov. William P. Clements, said no counties have requested such a designation in the wake of the current heat wave. However, state agriculture officials expect applications to roll in soon, he said, after crops are harvested and income is added up.

"Strangely enough, during this heat wave there've been no requests specially linked to that," Ford said. "Farmers haven't gotten to the point where they can demonstrate that loss."

Iran's position on hostages same

prosecutor general, Avatollah Seyed Karim Mousavi Ardabili, told reporters in Tehran. "In no way it should mean any change in our policy toward America and the hostages, as the Imam (Khomeini) has said the Parliament is the final authority to take any decision concerning the hostages."

A reporter for station KEZY in Anaheim, Calif., said a doctor at the Tehran hospital mentioned paraplegia — paralysis — in a telephone interview.

The hostage's father, Harold Queen, said that in a letter in February his son said he "had some kind of a twisted spine or something like that."

Two months later, a minister who visited Queen said he told him an insensitivity had developed in his fingers.

The elder Queen said he doubted his son had a psychological disorder, judging from the content and spirit of his letters. Harold Queen and his wife talked to reporters during a visit with relatives Thursday in Scarsdale.

Tehran Radio announced Wednesday that Khomeini, the leader of Iran's revolutionary regime, ordered the young American's release after the militant students occupying the U.S. Embassy since last Nov. 4 informed him the vice consul was "confined to bed in one of Tehran's hospitals because of illness" and needed "better medical facilities" in another country.

Khomeini "ordered that, considering humane issues which are seriously observed by Islam, the man should be handed over to his parents, so that they may provide treatment for him wherever they wish," the announcement said.

The Iranian Foreign Ministry said Queen was "transferred to the representative of the Swiss Embassy in Tehran," which has been handling American interests in Iran since President Carter broke diplomatic relations with Khomeini's regime on April 7. The embassy's physician determined that his physical condition permitted his being flown to Europe, the ministry said.

"We're tremendously excited," said Harold Queen, the freed man's father, who was visiting a niece in Scarsdale, N.Y. "We are just waiting to hear. We're standing by the telephone."

"We just pray," said Queen's mother, Jeanne. "We just ask that we all be brothers and that God will help us."

Mrs. Queen was one of four relatives of hostages who went to Europe in April to try to work up pressure for their release. The family moved from Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., to Lincolnville, Maine, in December to get away from reporters.

President Carter told reporters in Anchorage, Alaska, if Queen was "well after adequate treatment, we will be thankful." He added: "The proper thing for the terrorists to do is to release all the hostages."

Relatives of some of the other 52 Americans who today began their 251st day in captivity expressed hope that Queen's release improved chances for the release of the others. But there was no indication from Tehran of any modification in Khomeini's order that their fate would be decided by the new Iranian Parliament.

Queen and 97 other people were taken hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran while Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, ousted by Khomeini's revolution nine months earlier, was undergoing cancer treatment in New York. Three other American diplomats were taken prisoner at the Iranian Foreign Ministry.

The militants holding the embassy soon released all non-American captives and within three weeks freed 13 Americans — five because they were women and eight men because they were black. The other 53 were held in an attempt to force the United States to return the shah and his fortune to Iran.

Khomeini announced several months ago that the disposition of the hostages would be decided by the Iranian Parliament, or Majlis. But since its election in May, it has concerned itself with factional maneuvering, and several leaders have said more pressing domestic matters must be taken care of before the debate on the Americans begins. One Tehran newspaper predicted this week that would not happen before October.

Queen had been in Tehran for four months on his first foreign assignment when he and the other Americans were taken hostage. He was responsible for issuing visas to Iranians wanting to study in the United States.

His brother Alex, 26, told the Westchester-Rockland Newspapers in an interview in April that the family got a letter from Richard before Christmas, "and you could tell he was really scared and didn't know if he would get shot." A second letter seemed to be written by a man suffering more from exhaustion than anxiety, he said.

"He wrote about the boredom and fatigue of being there and that it was getting to be routine and part of his daily life," the brother said. "The tension was way down and that terror and horror wasn't there."

Queen was raised in Scarsdale and graduated from Edgemont High School. A diplomatic career was a second choice — he spent two summers in Army ROTC but was denied admission to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point because he was nearsighted.

He graduated from Hamilton College in 1973 and took a master's degree in Balkan history at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Police beat — Food stamps stolen from parked auto

A Big Spring resident has been having the shirt taken off his back.

Recession will push insurance into debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recession will push the nation's unemployment insurance system $3.5 billion into the red next year as states brace for a record number of jobless benefit claims, federal officials say.

Only three months ago, before the depth of the recession was apparent, the Carter administration was projecting the insurance system would show an $800 million surplus in fiscal 1981, which begins Oct. 1.

Now, with the economy contracting and unemployment rising more than had been expected, the system will have to borrow from the federal treasury for only the second time in its 45-year history, to meet payments to the more than 11 million people expected to file claims during the year, officials confirmed Thursday.

The dramatically changed financial outlook for the unemployment system illustrates how President Carter's much publicized drive to balance the budget this spring has become a forgotten cause this summer.

"There's no way to balance the budget with the kind of recession we've got," said one administration source, who did not want to be named.

Congressional sources estimate the 1981 budget will wind up with at least a $20 billion deficit. However, some private economists say the deficit could top $50 billion.

Carter proposed a balanced budget in March based on an overly optimistic economic outlook. Congress more recently adopted a nominally balanced budget — it's first in 12 years — based on the same outlook.

Now, the administration acknowledges that a deeper recession will mean lower revenues than were anticipated and higher government spending on assistance programs — such as unemployment insurance — that automatically rise with the jobless rate.

The administration is raising its unemployment estimate from a peak of 7.3 percent to 8.5 percent by the end of 1980, with the rate averaging about 8 percent for all of 1981.

By contrast, unemployment during the 1975 recession topped out at 9 percent, the highest level since the Great Depression.

The administration's revised 1981 budget, which is to be released later this month, estimates payments for unemployment benefits at nearly $25 billion and revenues at just over $21 billion. This year, the program is expected to break even with outlays and revenues each totaling $16.5 billion.

Cause sought for mishap

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — Officials say it could be several months before authorities determine what caused an Amtrak commuter train accident that left one person dead and 20 injured.

The accident occurred Wednesday night when a 12-foot-long section of track jutting from a passing work train pierced the first passenger car of a crowded New York-to-Philadelphia train, authorities said. E. Richard Falck, a 48-year-old stockbroker from Rosemont, Pa., was killed in the accident.

Spokeswoman Lois Morasco said Amtrak will conduct a step-by-step investigation of the accident, which could take up to several months.

Chicago to pay 85 women

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago officials have agreed to pay 85 women who filed lawsuits over being subjected to strip searches by police.

Attorney Jennifer Duncan-Brice said the city will pay 16 women who were subjected to body cavity searches $1,000 each and 69 others $250 each. Another 106 women who sued have refused to accept the settlement and their cases will be tried separately.

The American Civil Liberties Union asked for $125,000 for each woman when it filed suit in March 1979.

Stolen money is returned

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — What is purportedly the money robbed from a New Mexico bank in May has been mailed to the FBI "with interest," authorities say.

A cardboard box containing $36,000 in $100 bills was received in the mail Thursday, said special agent John Hinchcliff. The package had no return address or postmark, but did have $3.25 postage, he said.

A man who didn't identify himself had called The Arizona Republic newspaper Wednesday and said the money was being sent to the Phoenix FBI office. Hinchcliff said the cash appeared to be from the May 8 robbery of the Western Bank in Gallup, N.M.

Firestone sued by widow

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. knew its multipiece auto rims manufactured since 1959 were defective and dangerous, contends a $21 million damage suit filed by the widow of a man killed when a tire he was inflating exploded.

The tire company conspired with the Pennsylvania-based Budd Co. to cover up the dangerous defect and keep the information from the federal government and public, charges Ida Mae Bridges. Her suit also claims there have been more than 400 serious accidents involving the rim since 1959, including 71 fatalities.

A spokesman for Firestone in Akron, Ohio, declined comment.

PUC head says higher pay needed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman George Cowden of the Texas Public Utility Commission told budget examiners today low salaries and a "two-year rule" make it hard for the agency to compete with major utility companies.

Cowden spoke to examiners from the Legislative Budget Board and the governor's office at a hearing on the PUC's 1982-83 budget request.

"If we are to hire and maintain qualified people for the state agencies and our agency, salaries are going to have to go up," Cowden said. "We've lost some well qualified people because they can go to other places and make a lot more money."

He said major utilities such as Bell Telephone, Houston Lighting & Power and Texas Power & Light seek the same kind of technically skilled employees as the PUC. In addition, he noted, PUC employees often must "compete" in commission hearings with highly paid experts from the utilities.

"If we are going to have people able to compete with the people they can bring, salaries are going to have to go up," Cowden said.

Some major commission job openings have very few applications because of both salaries and the two-year rule, he said.

The PUC is the only agency whose employees are forbidden by law to work for a regulated company for two years after they quit their state jobs. The Legislature wrote the rule into the law creating the PUC to keep employees from getting too close to the utilities

Pioneer gets notice of probable violation

AMARILLO — Pioneer Corporation has received a Notice of Probable Violation dated June 30, 1980, from the Economic Regulatory Administration of the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE).

The Notice of Probable Violation concerns the pricing of natural gas liquids and natural gas liquid products produced by two subsidiary companies, Pioneer Gas Products Company and Amarillo Oil Company, in eight processing plants operating in Texas and Oklahoma and one plant which has discontinued operations.

A Notice of Probable Violation is an initial step in the DOE's administrative hearing procedure and the action against Pioneer Corporation is the result of an audit conducted by the DOE Office of Enforcement's Southwest District headquartered in Dallas.

Where have all the people gone?

By the Associated Press
The early returns from the 1980 census are in, and local officials across the country are crying that the count is too low. Census takers, they say, missed individuals, households — even whole neighborhoods.

"We have 4,000 or 5,000 people that either disappeared or something," said Wally Jahraus, the assessor in Aberdeen, S.D. According to the preliminary figures, Aberdeen has a population of 25,007 — down 5.5 percent from 1970. Jahraus had estimated the population at near 30,500.

The Census Bureau began distributing figures on population and housing units to 39,000 municipalities last week. The figures are not final. Counting is still going on. The bureau says it expected an outcry and wants local authorities to look at the preliminary statistics and help them catch any mistakes.

Billions of dollars hinge on the outcome of the national count. Federal funds often are allocated on the basis of population. Spokesmen in regional census offices estimated that a city can get up to $200 for each resident. A population loss of 1,000 would mean a monetary loss of nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

Critics of the census have complained about its cost and its heavy reliance on the mails. Director Vincent Barabba accused one major critic, Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., of having "reached a verdict on the 1980 census without waiting for it to be finished..."

An Associated Press survey showed no geographical pattern to the accusations of undercounting. Complaints came from the big cities of the Northeast and from smaller, newer communities in the West and South.

The president of the Chamber of Commerce in Newport, Ore., said the preliminary count of 7,153 is too low by 1,000. "When you look at the increase in traffic and the increase in people looking for a place to live, it stands to reason there is an increase in population," said Charles Johnson.

"I'm not getting hysterical," said Mayor Alfred Libous of Binghamton, N.Y., but "we're not willing to accept these figures."

The census tally shows Binghamton with 50,971 residents, down 20 percent from the 1970 total of 64,123. Libous said he quickly found at least one error, responsible for about 4,000 people. "The map they're using is cut off," he said.

Officials in Ithaca, N.Y.,

discovered that a city neighborhood known as West Hill wasn't included in the count. They issued a tongue-in-cheek press release: "Several thousand lost people were discovered late yesterday on West Hill... These people... may have been wandering for days, without shelter or food."

Authorities in Roswell, N.M., however, saw no humor in census figures that showed their city with 38,250 people — almost 9,000 fewer than local people thought.

"We're very unhappy," said Siri Collins, director of development and planning. "To the best of our knowledge, the figures are terribly incorrect."

Marisela Thompson, the head of the census district including Roswell, said census officials welcomed help in counting any missing people. "Those preliminary figures are bound to change — some already have changed," she said.

In Seattle, Kelly Fitzgerald Royce, a regional information coordinator for the Census Bureau, said many local officials point to an increase in the number of housing units and claim that population must have risen by a similar proportion. "They have not realized how the household size has shrunk," she said. "Population growth has not kept even with housing growth."

The situation Ms. Royce described seems to exist in Hastings, Neb., where preliminary figures indicate population dropped from 23,580 in 1970 to 22,776 this year.

"It strikes one as being a bit peculiar because they say we have had a 13.4 percent increase in the number of housing units," said Harold Yungmeyer, the city administrator.

Mayor George Athanson of Hartford, Conn., said the city estimates there are 2.83 people per housing unit. Census officials count was undertaken," said Athanson.

Mayor George Athanson of Hartford, Conn., said the city estimates there are 2.83 people per housing unit. Census officials estimate 2.53. "I don't believe an adequate and complete count was undertaken," said Athanson.

In contrast, Maygures so far" even though "they still show about 5 percent of the people not counted...The federal figures are not absolutely accurate, but are a big improvement over past figures."

The AP survey showed that figures for the nation's biggest cities, like New York and Los Angeles, had not been released by Thursday. Where statistics for major metropolitan areas were available, most local authorities disputed them.

If the preliminary statistics hold up, Mrs. Bradley said, Atlanta could lose more than $18 million in federal aid.

Don't look at us, says customer

A woman named Carol Jung of Milton, N.J., is upset over politicians, consumer "experts" and entertainers who, although they never see a washing machine, point the finger at Americans and accuse them of wasting energy.

"Maybe a few do," says Mrs. Jung, in a letter to the Herald, "but not the middle-class working families I know. We can't afford to. Conservation isn't a game with us; it's a necessity, as I'm sure it is for most people."

MRS. JUNG and her husband operate a small distributing business out of their home. That means they deliver merchandise to local retailers in a van. Milton is a small town with no public transportation and nothing within walking distance. For that reason the Jungs have to drive everywhere, including gymnastics class, kindergarten picnics, pajama parties and all the other activities their nine- and five-year-old daughters take part in. It goes without saying the Jungs do a lot of driving and have, therefore, been hit by escalating gasoline prices. In addition, there are the higher prices the family is paying for electricity, heating and hot water. All and all, like most Americans, the Jungs have become very aware of the cost of energy.

The Jungs have cut gasoline consumption by switching to a smaller car and keeping within speed limits. They wear sweaters indoors during the winter time and keep the thermostat low to save heating oil. They stop the dishwasher before the drying cycle and open it to let the dishes dry in the accumulated heat to save electricity.

There's no way to cut back on the vacuum-cleaner, the deep-freeze unit or the gas powered lawn mower. They need all those appliances because they offer a saving of time which they need to run their business and be attentive parents.

MRS. JUNG SAYS she wishes the self-appointed critics would quit being so self-righteous, or do they want women to go back to beating clothes on a rock (in order to get them clean)? Would they have the distaff side sewing by candlelight? She says she wishes such people would use their influence and positions to help solve our energy problems, instead of sneering at the nation's consumers. She reminds us that Americans have always solved their problems and adds that we can solve our problems, too, with or without these critics.

While talking to an engineer, Mrs. Jung says she learned we can make coal less hazardous and use more of it. We can also take a realistic look at our supply, she says, and reconcile it with our basic needs. We can also improve solar technology to make it economical for heating and cooling. And, Mrs. Jung believes, we can produce more electricity partly by ending the hysteria and political shenanigans surrounding energy.

Those fearful of nuclear energy, says Mrs. Jung, should check the facts. Much more can be said FOR it than AGAINST it, according to Mrs. Jung. It's available now and is relatively clean, cheap and safe. Although there have been a couple of accidents, no one has been hurt or killed by it in more than a score of years.

A doctor says that even if injuries or deaths had occurred through the use of nuclear power it wouldn't be as harmful as things like automobiles, chlorine gas, dams and medical x-rays — which we now use.

Instead of becoming depressed about shortages and reducing our hard-earned standard of living, says Mrs. Jung, what we should do about energy is what we've always done: Get on with the job.

Disturbing fact

Around the rim

Steve Hershberger

Recent statements by a former Secretary of the Interior point to our vulnerability from foreign oil as a chief energy supply.

Stewart Udall said recently the United States' domestic oil production peaked in 1970 at 3.5 billion barrels. Udall went on to say that domestic oil production "will never again exceed that level, whether the price is $21 or $120 a barrel."

"THIS REALIZATION is quite disturbing. Udall's statements become even more distressing when considering that disappearing domestic supplies and heavy foreign dependence leaves our national defense extremely vulnerable.

A Defense Department official said, "By 1990, the military can no longer rely on petroleum products for the conduct of the defense of this nation."

The official added that producing synthetic fuels from coal liquefaction and oil shale conversion are possibly 20 to 30 years in the future.

Paul Burka, writing in Texas Monthly in August, 1979, said that this situation was caused almost totally by ourselves and the unwillingness of our nation's leaders to do "the right thing."

In the story, Burka listed 10 steps that led us to dwindling domestic supplies and vulnerability to foreign imports.

Here are seven of the major ones: (1) The State Department in 1950 gives in effect the direction of foreign policy in the Middle East to the major oil companies. The State Department accomplishes this by allowing the oil companies to have their profits taxed as foreign income and their United States tax burden reduced accordingly. This strategy allows money to be funneled to anti-communist Arabs for development.

(2) President Dwight Eisenhower vetoed a bill in 1956 that would take away the Federal Power Commission's authority to set wellhead prices.

For the following years, Congress fought over deregulation without passing a bill. The resulting artificially low prices encouraged extravagant consumption and discouraged exploration.

(3) Congress succumbed to the pressure of small oil producers in 1958 and limited imports of cheaper Middle East oil in order to keep domestic prices stable.

FOR 13 YEARS, we used our own oil, even though Middle East oil was available at a lower price. In 1970, production dropped and we started to import oil that was no longer very cheap. Matter of fact, within time, foreign oil became quite expensive.

(4) A good example of a major oil company acting in the area of foreign policy came in 1960. Exxon was faced with excessive supplies of oil and decided to cut the price on a barrel by 10 cents.

The oil producing countries are offended and alarmed by a loss of revenue. That year, four Middle East countries and Venezuela met and formed the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

(5) Libya's Muammar Qaddafi set a precedent in 1969 by using oil as a political weapon. In 1969, the Libyan leader wanted a larger share of the profits coming from Bunker Hunt's oil concession. Hunt refused. Qaddafi responded by nationalizing the Dallas' billionaires concession.

In 1973, the Libyan leader headed the oil embargo against the United States over American support of Israel.

(6) Nixon Administration did a disservice to this country by keeping oil prices low. This allowed demand for gas to keep rising and reserves to fall. Congress twice during the Nixon years refused to decontrol oil or deregulate natural gas. The controlled low price defeated efforts at conservation.

What did all this mean? More dependence on foreign oil.

(7) Energy Department Secretary James Schlesinger killed in 1978 the Mexican Gas Deal, which would have provided this country with two billion cubic feet of natural gas a day. The reason for the Energy head's veto was the price. Mexico responded by abandoning their plans to complete a pipeline to the Rio Grande and decided to sell the natural gas to other countries—the ones that have a dependable supply as a priority over price.

Jimmy in '84

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — In response to Kennedy-in-'84 talk, well-placed aides in the White House have issued this deadly serious warning: If President Carter loses to Ronald Reagan in 1980, he will be back to run again in 1984.

Key supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy have confided they hope the continuation of his hopeless quest for the Democratic nomination will prevent Carter's election in November, opening the way for Kennedy against a 73-year-old President Reagan four years from now. The White House response: Jimmy will be there to block you.

Whether a non-incumbent Carter could actually stir up enough support to seriously contest the 1984 nomination is questionable. But Carter aides have told us his Southern base is strong enough to exact exquisite revenge in 1984 against Kennedy or any other representative of the party's Kennedy wing; if Carter could not be nominated himself, he could make the nomination valueless against the Republicans.

NON-POPULIST DEMOCRATS Fear by Democratic politicians that Jimmy Carter's White House is losing its populist roots was heightened at a tense session on Capitol Hill between the Senate Democratic tax-cutting task force and the Carter administration's economic team.

THE STERN-FACED Carter policy-makers made manifest their disapproval of the Senate Democratic decision to pass a tax cut this year in response to Ronald Reagan's challenge. The senators asked: What about the horrible state of the economy? They could hardly believe their ears when Treasury Secretary G. William Miller responded that the dollar was sound.

Furthermore, the Carter officials argued that tax reduction is unpopular. Why just that day, said White House domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat, he had heard such an opinion from DuPont chief executive officer Irving Shapiro. One senator responded that Shapiro's opinion would not be worth much when Rep. Jack Kemp went into his blue-collar Buffalo constituency to preach tax reduction.

REAGAN'S NAACP NO-SHOW Rep. Jack Kemp did not let his prospects for the vice presidential nomination prevent him from complaining bitterly to Ronald Reagan's senior staff about their rejection of the NAACP national convention invitation.

THE OFFICIAL excuse that the invitation came too late does not hold water. Reagan's staffers long had been aware of the date of the national black organization's convention in Miami Beach. What's more, it followed the staff's pattern of reluctance to put Reagan before potentially hostile audiences. An invitation to address the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO convention in April was rejected.

Reagan has shown no hesitancy to overrule his own advisers, as in retaining William Brock as Republican national chairman. In the case of the NAACP convention, however, the candidate himself never was even aware of the invitation.

Why some are allergic is mystery

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I wonder if you could explain about allergies. I am puzzled. There are many causes, I know, but the human body does not seem to respond the same to each. I am allergic to alcohol, which causes headaches. My niece is allergic to nuts, which causes swellings, etc. Others react to foods and get hives. I hope you can explain about allergies. —M.H.

I'd like to answer simply and completely. I cannot.

Antigens are substances that evoke protective responses in some individuals. It is strange that not all bodies perceive antigens as trouble-some, that some don't even bother to react. Therein lies the medical mystery.

For allergic individuals, the presence of a harmful substance (antigen) causes their bodies to mount a counterattack by producing antibodies against it. It's like a person smothering the annoying sound of a ringing alarm clock (antigen) with a pillow (antibody). You might fall out of bed and break an arm doing it — overreaction.

The allergic person — the hayfever sufferer, for example — identifies a tree pollen as harmful to him when he inhales it. He makes antibodies against it. When the pollen and the antibody come in contact a chain reaction takes place. Histamine is released from cells. The eyes water, the nose itches and the sneezing begins. It's the same with any allergy.

I cannot explain or even speculate as to why some people make antibodies against common substances and others do not. Heredity plays a role, but that tells us little. About all that can be said is that the allergic person is, in a way, his own enemy. His body's overprotectiveness leaves him prey to "dangers" others dismiss.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My uncle, 77, spits up greenish sputum when he clears his throat. He has been told he has bronchitis. This has been going on for two years and it keeps him worried and depressed. I do hope you know of some medicine or treatment for him. We enjoy your articles. —J.J.A.

Chronic bronchitis is due to irritation of the airways, with cigarette smoking the major cause. There is often an incessant cough with increased sputum production, which can vary from white to yellowish green. Your uncle probably notes most trouble in the morning after overnight production of sputum has pooled in his airways.

The first line of defense is to stop any irritation. Bronchitis often unwisely persist in their devotion to cigarettes. What can your uncle do? Taking a hot shower early in the morning in an enclosed shower stall helps humidify the sputum, making it easier to get rid of. He can follow up the shower with postural drainage. One way to do this is to lean over the edge toward the floor head down. He may need help in this at his age. A respiratory therapist can give him better details.

Antibiotics have been used for certain patients who have frequent flare-ups. Perhaps the simple measures will help your uncle. If he is smoking, he is asking for trouble.

Dear Dr. Donohue: About eight months ago my husband and I started trying to conceive a baby. To date we have had no luck. How often should a couple have intercourse — every 24 or 48 hours, or what? —J.H.

It is not possible for you to conceive on just any day of the month. It has to be during the cycle of the month when you are ovulating (depositing an egg from your ovaries). Some authorities suggest that the couple refrain from excessive intercourse at other times of the month to assure a maximum quantity of sperm for those specific days when the odds of conception are best.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son has an aortic aneurysm. He is 57. He had surgery to have it repaired. What are his chances for survival? —Mrs. F.Z.

The aorta is the largest blood vessel in the body. It is attached to the heart. Blood pumped by the heart rushes through the aorta to the rest of the body. An aneurysm is a weakness in the aorta's wall that causes a bulging outward. If the aneurysm is large, it may leak blood. The surgery to remove the weakened section is safe, much safer than allowing the dangerous bulge to remain. Your son's chances for survival are good.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I heard you say on television that God has the right person for us to marry, if we will only trust Him. I think I probably chose the wrong mate and I'm not really sure we love each other very much. Would you advise me to get a divorce and seek another husband? — Mrs. R.S.M.

DEAR MRS. R.S.M.: No. It would be wrong to do so. You are married in God's eyes. You made a vow and commitment before Him that you would be faithful to each other as long as you both lived.

The important thing is to do all you can to be a good wife. This is the road to happiness in marriage for you, not trying to find another husband. (How do you know you would find someone better the next time around? To leave your present husband would be sin, and there is no basis for saying God would lead you as you sought another one.)

The Bible says: "A wife must not separate from her husband. But if she does, she must remain unmarried or else be reconciled to her husband. And a husband must not divorce his wife" (Corinthians 7:10-11). The Bible also commands: "Each one of you also must love his wife as he loves himself, and the wife must respect her husband" (Ephesians 5:33).

The first step for you is a personal one. You need to come to Christ and commit your life to Him without reserve. You need to confess your sins to Him, and trust Him for cleansing. You need to turn to Him each day to help you to be the loving wife you ought to be.

Then ask God to help you think of practical steps you can take to rebuild your relationship. Seek to please your husband in little ways which show him that you care about him — the way you dress, the meals you prepare, the attention you give to his needs. Then pray that he will also come to Christ and that you will be united together as a family in Christ. God wants to bring joy into your marriage. He can if you will commit yourself to Him.

Policies clouded

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Saudi Arabia's wily King Khalid is aware that his influence isn't rooted in real power, that his country's vast oil wealth is mismatched to a small backward population and that he can achieve his ends only through a foreign policy of bribery and manipulation.

This makes all the more suspicious the sequence of events that I reported yesterday, showing how Jimmy Carter's drive to sell 60 sophisticated F-15 jet fighters to Saudi Arabia appeared to be linked with the tangled trail of a $1 million loan, the first installment of which was given to the Carter family peanut business in 1975.

THE PRESIDENT owed the money to a bank controlled by a Saudi businessman whose father advises King Khalid on how to deal with the United States. This is the first time in history that an American president has been in the position of being financially beholden to foreign interests with a clear stake in U.S. foreign policy decisions.

The dependence of the president's personal financial well-being on a Saudi-controlled bank also adds a disturbing factor to the Carter administration's "tilt" toward the Arab position on the Israeli-Palestinian question.

The final approval of F-15 sales to the Saudis in May of 1978 came only days after Carter's warehouse loan was renegotiated on terms that resulted in a saving of $60,000 for the Carters that year. The Saudi Connection didn't stop then, however. An investigation by my reporters Peter Peckarsky and Peter Grant reveals that:

In January 1980, shortly after the Carter trust posted a $255,000 deficit for 1979 — largely due to warehouse losses — the president's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, visited Riyadh. He learned, among other things, of Saudi Arabia's request that the United States add offensive capability to the F-15s we had sold them. The modifications, which would enable Saudi aircraft to strike Israel, had explicitly been denied to the Saudis in 1978.

In March 1980, the Carter administration, in a supposed communications foul-up, voted in the United Nations to condemn Israeli settlements on the West Bank. Faced with an uproar in the Jewish community shortly before the primary in heavily Jewish New York, Carter disavowed the vote two days later.

Also in March 1980, Charles Kirbo, the old Carter friend who is trustee of Carter's business interests, traveled to Saudi Arabia and spent five days conferring with Saudi leaders. What they discussed has never been made public.

In June 1980, the Carter administration considered providing the Saudis with the additional equipment that would give their F-15s offensive capability. After another furor, the administration decided to shelve the idea — at least until after the election.

Also in June, the Carter administration abstained, instead of vetoing an Arab-backed U.N. resolution condemning Israel's plans to make Jerusalem — including the once-Arab Old City — the Israeli capital.

MEANWHILE, JIMMY Carter's family business is in hock to a bank controlled by a Saudi Arabian. The debt is now believed to be about $600,000, but the Saudi can demand payment once each year.

BENDING THE RULE: Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn., a former newspaper publisher with an honorary law degree, has found a creative — and legal — way to get around House Rule 7, which limits the annual outside income of congressmen to 15 percent of their $60,662.50 salaries.

Before the rule took effect on Dec. 31, 1978, Quillen drew generous salaries from two companies in Tennessee, well above the new 15 percent limit. So Quillen took a pay cut from the two firms to get within the legal limit. It was only what might be expected of a one-time member of the House Ethics Committee.

But Quillen has since arranged to rent two computers to the Tennessee companies — for at least $50,000 a year. Under House Rule 47, the computer-rental income is classified as "unearned" income, and thus exempt from the 15 percent limitation.

Dear Editor:

We want to thank our friends, and friends of our families for their prayers, food, blood donations, cash donations, cards and letters, flowers, phone calls and so many other favors that we are not even aware of. A special thanks to Coeden, Turner Properties, and Price Construction for their air service in emergencies, and the attendants and pilots who were so comforting and patient.

A special thanks also to the Chicago Golf Association, fellow employees of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad and to the Big Spring State Hospital and to the officers and employees of Security State Bank for their aid with the Jo Ann Fletcher Fund. We are so fortunate to have you friends in health, but in times of emergency, the fortune simply cannot be weighed.

After Amin wrecking Ugandan Bible Society comes back stronger

NEW YORK — The Bible Society in Uganda has surmounted incredible obstacles and greatly increased Scripture distribution in that strife-torn country, according to a recent report by the American Bible Society.

Scripture distribution in Uganda nearly doubled in 1979 compared to 1978, the UBS figures indicate.

In 1978, 560,708 Scriptures were distributed among the nearly 12 million people of Uganda. At the end of 1979, that figure had ballooned to 1,066,793, an increase of 90.3 percent.

The need for Scriptures in Uganda is extremely acute. One visitor to the Kampala Bible House reported that many people in the outlying areas of the country were suffering spiritually as a result of the political turmoil in recent years.

"The Bible Society must do something for the people of the North," the visitor reported. "They need something to read which will give them confidence that life has meaning."

Scripture distribution, however, is a severe problem for the country. The takeover of Uganda's capital city, Kampala, by Tanzanian and exiled Ugandan troops also resulted in a widespread — if short lived — breakdown in public order. The Bible Society staff of 13 closed its doors when the fighting between Tanzanian troops and President Amin's forces made the city unsafe.

When the Bible Society doors were reopened April 12, 1979, local officials returned to find Bible House a "complete shambles."

"Most of what had not been stolen was smashed," officials reported. "Typewriters had disappeared, as had telephones, staplers, tables, chairs, tea cups, waste baskets, calculators — virtually everything that could be carried out had been taken away."

Nevertheless, Ugandan Bible Society officials have embarked on an ambitious Scripture distribution program for 1980.

Lutheran TV wins three Emmies

An unprecedented three National Emmy Awards were won by Lutheran Television, the television ministry of the International Lutheran Laymen's League.

Two Emmys were won for episodes of Lutheran Television's weekly dramatic series, "This Is The Life," and one for its half-hour dramatic Christmas special "The Stableboy's Christmas."

Winners of the Emmy Awards for "Outstanding Achievement in Religious Programming" were actor Dean Jagger for his performance in "This Is The Life" episode "Independence and '76"; writer Richard F. Morean, for his script for "This Is The Life" episode "If No Birds Sang"; and director Thomas E. Azzari for his set and art design for "The Stableboy's Christmas."

to do anything I can to further the cause of good television, and I feel that what Lutheran Television produces is good television; and I hope it continues."

This is the second Emmy Award for Azzari who previously won an Emmy for his art direction of the ABC series, "Fish." Azzari has also directed several "This Is The Life" episodes, including "Cell of Hope" which won a silver award at the International Film and Television Festival of New York in 1979.

Lutheran Television has been the recipient of three previous Emmy Awards and more than 70 other international awards. Its syndicated weekly dramatic series "This Is The Life," currently seen on more than 150 stations throughout the United States and Canada, has been aired weekly since 1952. In 1979, Lutheran Television's half-hour dramatic Christmas special, "The Stableboy's Christmas," premiered in prime and access time over more than 500 stations throughout North America.

Lutheran Television is the television ministry of the International Lutheran Laymen's League, an auxiliary of The Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo. This league also sponsors an international radio ministry, The Lutheran Hour, and a print ministry, "Preaching Through the Press."

Judge extends order barring book contracts

CHICAGO (AP) — An order that bars a Texas author from signing book contracts with convicted mass murderer John W. Gacy Jr. has been extended by a Circuit Court judge.

The extension granted Thursday by Judge George A. Higgins was the fourth issued. It was sought by the parents of Robert Fiest, one of Gacy's 33 victims. It expires July 22.

Author Clyde Burleson of Houston, Texas, and the Lewis Goldfarb Agency of California have approached Gacy to acquire the rights to his life story.

The court order resulted from a $10 million wrongful death suit filed after Gacy was convicted in March. Gacy is awaiting automatic appeal of his death sentence for conviction of killing the young men and boys.

A state law requires that any story income related to the crimes of a convicted felon must be placed in escrow to be used to pay claims made by relatives of victims.

Digby-Harper reunion is attended by 175 relatives

The third annual Digby-Harper reunion was attended by approximately 175 family members when they gathered June 21-22 at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

As is tradition at the reunion, sisters-in-law Lula Harper, 94, and Lillian Digby, 87, were presented yellow orchid corsages.

Mrs. Harper, a resident of Mountain View Lodge, had four children present, including Jim Harper and Inus Bradley, Big Spring; Robert Harper, Kemp; and Paul Harper, Odessa.

Also, in addition to a number of grandchildren in attendance, her sister, Mrs.

Jettie Hughes and her brother, Earl Digby, were also there.

Mrs. Digby was present with her six children and 21 grandchildren. Her children are Irene Myrick and Nollie Teague, Big Spring; Elliott Digby and Ollie Stallcup, Odessa; Eddie Digby, Riviera; and Raynell Patterson, Goshen, Calif.

Both Mrs. Digby's and Mrs. Harper's fifth generations were present.

Representing seven families at this year's get-together were Ed Digby, John Digby, Earl Digby, Mrs. Jettie Hughes, Grover Griffice Sr., Will Harper and Mrs. Alice Hanson.

Registration began at 9:30 a.m. June 21, followed by lunch. A domino tournament was the highlight of the afternoon. Winners were Robert Harper and Ducky Robertson Sr.

Other activities of the reunion included a bazaar, Bingo and auction. The sale of family cookbooks will provide funds for next year's reunion.

A devotional period, followed by singing and a business meeting concluded the event.

Family members attended from as far away as California and Kansas.

She makes the most of her chest size

By Robert Wallace, Ed D

Dr. Wallace: I am responding to a letter from the girl in Dubuque, Iowa, who was the butt of Dolly Parton jokes because she has a very large chest. I am 19 and have a super large bust and I, too, have heard every joke about having a large chest.

I used to get mad but I learned to laugh at the jokes and now they don't bother me anymore.

I'm proud to have a large chest and would hate to be flat-chested. In fact, I wear tight-fitting shirts because I enjoy the stares. — Jenny, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Jenny: Everyone must do the best they can with what they have. It appears that you have.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 and my boyfriend is 14. I'd like to break up with him but everytime that I tell him "I just want to be friends," he gets mad and won't take no for an answer.

He keeps calling on the phone and pestering me. What should I do? — Pam, Joliet, Ill.

Pam: It will take a week or two to get your "boyfriend" straightened out so follow these suggestions.

Tell him that you are no longer going with him. Inform him that you are allowed only one call per caller a day and let your mother answer the phone.

Finally, if he continues to pester you, drop him even as a friend until he "gets his act together." As I mentioned, it will take about two weeks.

Dr. Wallace: I need your advice about going steady with a guy. I just started going with a guy from a nearby town but before I was seeing him, I was dating a guy from my hometown.

I really like the guy from my town better but he doesn't want to go steady. He just wants to date me.

My question is: Should I continue going steady with my new boyfriend or should I pray that the guy I really like will go steady with me? — M.U., Covington, Ohio.

M.U.: Why is it so important for you to go steady? If you like the boy from your town and he wants to date you, do it. Unload the guy from out of town.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, Copy News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Abby

"Do Not Disturb" Son Denies Best Gift for Mom

DEAR ABBY: Now that Mother's Day and Father's Day are gone, and lots of June weddings have taken place, please say something about children who get married and never ask their parents to their apartment or home.

Most parents would appreciate an invitation to visit their kids, and if the kids don't want to bother preparing dinner, they could take their parents out. It would mean so much more than flowers, cards or a fancy gift.

Our son has been married for two and a half years, and we have never been asked to his place. I have hinted plenty. Is it OK to just drop in?

BEWILDERED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If after "hinting plenty" for two and a half years, you haven't been invited, you can assume that there's still a "DO NOT DISTURB" sign hanging on their door. And I agree, most parents would consider an invitation the best gift their kids could give them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband never did any work around the house, primarily because he was never home. He was always involved in running his own place of business. Consequently, the painting (inside and out), window washing, carpet cleaning, housekeeping, cooking, plus all the yard work and gardening, were done by me all our married years. The children helped me when they could, but they have their own homes now, so I have to do everything myself.

We are building a new house, and I just finished painting the interior. (I laid all the brick for the patio.)

We live on a ranch, so feeding and looking after the cattle is my job.

Now my husband wants me to start going to the office with him every day and be a steady office hand. As it is, I take care of all his bookkeeping and do the taxes.

Abby, I'm 59 and would love to take it a little easier now, and just stay home and sew for the grandchildren. Don't you think I have earned a little rest?

PUSHING 60

DEAR PUSHING: Earned it? I'd say you require it! I'm exhausted from just reading your letter, lady.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SIOUX CITY SUE: "Mutual orgasm" is when both parties reach a climax during sex relations. It is not an insurance company in Omaha.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Engaged couple are feted at reception

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Choate were hosts for a reception the night of July 5 honoring their son, Mark (Putt) Choate and his fiancée, Amy Arrington of Stone Mt., Ga.

Guests were received by the hosts and the honorees in the Fannie Eaker Parlor of the First United Methodist Church from 8 to 10 p.m.

The refreshment table was laid with an eggshell imported lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of blue mixed flowers and baby's breath placed in a crystal prism bowl. A matching candelabrum with blue tapers accented the setting. Appointments were of crystal and silver.

The focal point was a miniature fountain flowing with blue water and embellished with blue and white flowers and greenery. The fountain was flanked by white bisque turtle-doves and blue satin streamers with the names of the couple imprinted in gold.

Miss Arrington was presented a white cymbidium orchid corsage. Laurie Choate registered guests from a polished table accented with a nosegay of white flowers and blue streamers.

Members of the house party included Mr. and Mrs. Winston Kilpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Choate, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Dusty Choate, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Burchett, Mary Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sheppard, Laurie Choate, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Gee and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crenshaw.

Choate and Miss Arrington will be united in marriage Sept. 8 in the St. Michael's and All Saints Episcopal Church in Stone Mountain.

Sign Language Club forms; officers elected

Officers were elected Tuesday night and the Sign Language Club was chosen as the official name for this newly formed organization.

John Marshall, president, was in charge of the meeting following the election.

Committee chairmen named were Ozella Long, socials; Doris Arcand, performance; Pam Tingle and Mary Williams, studies.

Other positions filled included Yvonne Kimble, secretary-treasurer; and Ramona Herbert, reporter.

Mrs. Tingle led the group in a game of expressive and receptive signing.

Carla Warrington is teaching the club how to sign "Annie's Song", a John Denver recording. The song will be used in performance at a later date.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Yvonne Qualls and her children, Melody and Brandon Rushin.

The next meeting will be held July 22 at the College Baptist Church Adult I classroom beginning at 7 p.m. A pot luck supper has been planned and interested persons are invited to attend.

Heat wave causes change in scout camp schedule

In view of the current heat wave, the hours of operation for next week's Girl Scout Day Camp have been changed.

According to Eunice Thixton, camp director, the schedule has been changed from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to 8 a.m. until noon.

"We feel the girls will have a meaningful day camp experience and yet not be outdoors during the hot afternoon," commented Mrs. Thixton.

Day camp begins Monday at the Boy Scout Camp Grounds in Silver Heels. Late registrations will be accepted at that time. Parent's signature and fee of $7.50 will be required.

Approximately 70 campers have registered.

Participants are reminded to bring a sit-upon, an unbreakable cup, a sack lunch and a hat or cap. Socks and closed-toe shoes should be worn.

Activities will include hiking and outdoor cooking, as well as swimming, arts and crafts and the teaching of camping skills.

Juniors will have the opportunity to earn several badges during the week.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Jackie Hancock, 3-1364 or Mrs. Thixton, 3-4874.

Suicidal driver kills 3, injures himself

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Fri., July 11, 1980 9-A

Want Ads Will Get RESULTS!

WANTAGH, N.Y. (AP) — "My kids are in there, my kids are in there," cried Maureen Murphy as a young man sped away in her car. Before the car came to a halt, three people were dead and 20 were injured. The driver, who police said was trying to commit suicide, was badly hurt but survived.

Robert Kabolowsky, a 20-year-old Long Island man whom a neighbor called "a beautiful young man, always with a smile on his face," was in critical condition after the incident Thursday. Police said he would be charged with murder, assault and grand larceny if he lived.

Police said the rampage started when Kabolowsky, dependent over losing his job at an automotive repair shop last week, got into an argument with his father, Murray, 50.

After smashing his head against a plate-glass sliding door, the younger Kabolowsky apparently went into the kitchen, ripped out a drawer full of knives and tried to kill himself with them. When his parents tried to stop him he cut his father and bit his mother, Lillian, officials said.

Police and neighbors reported that Kabolowsky then raced into the street, wearing only his underwear, and stole a car from Stephen Masurkewicz, who was loading his boat onto the car's trailer.

"I had the rope from the electric winch in my hand when I heard someone yell, 'Bob, don't take that car, it's not yours,'" Masurkewicz said.

According to officials, Kabolowsky drove on and collided with a car driven by Frances Mastrelli, 29, of Wantagh. With her were her 4-year-old son and Jane Donahue of Wantagh and her two sons.

All five were in serious condition, police said. Maureen Murphy, of Massapequa, was driving by when she saw the crash. She stopped, and Kabolowsky allegedly pulled her from the driver's seat and sped off with her two children, Dennis Jr., 4, and Jennifer, 8, and another child, Jennifer Laprae, 8, in the back seat.

David Briggs, another bystander, gave chase in his car, and Mrs. Murphy went with him. "All she kept saying was, 'My kids are in there, my kids are in there,'" said Briggs.

At speeds police estimated from 70 to 80 miles an hour, the Chrysler careened around curves in Wantagh Park, jumped a curb, crashed through a fence and plowed into a one-story concession stand where patrons were waiting for hot dogs and soft drinks, officials said.

One child at the stand, Michael Grimes, 10, of Wantagh, was killed instantly, police said. Another, William Lewis, 7, of Wantagh, was dead on arrival at a hospital.

Marvin Blumberg, 51, of Levittown, who sitting at a nearby picnic table, was slammed some 200 feet across a patio and crushed to death against a cigarette machine, police said.

"There was a body over there, another body there, two kids' bodies, there was an old man's body. The car was wrapped around this pole and there was a body in the car... it was unbelievable. I've never seen anything like that in my life," said John Gordon.

Arlene Cawley, 42, of West Farmingdale, who sustained multiple fractures of her leg, was reported in good condition. At least seven others were injured but refused treatment, according to police. Masurkewicz raced to the scene with police and went to the wreckage where Kabolowsky was lying.

"He was a bloody mess. His jaw and mouth were turned open. The guy wanted to kill himself. I wish he would have been able to do it and not hurt anybody else," Masurkewicz said.

The two Murphy children were admitted to a hospital with cuts and bruises and were in fair condition Thursday. The Laprae girl was released from the hospital.

Police said Kabolowsky would be charged with three counts of second-degree murder, two counts of assault and two counts of grand larceny.

Rosemary Maniet, a neighbor of the Kabolowskys for 10 years, said the family was the kind "you say you like to live next door to." "The boy was delightful, respectful to young children and old people. I don't know what went on with him," said Mrs. Maniet.

Weather

Forecasters sing same old song

By the Associated Press

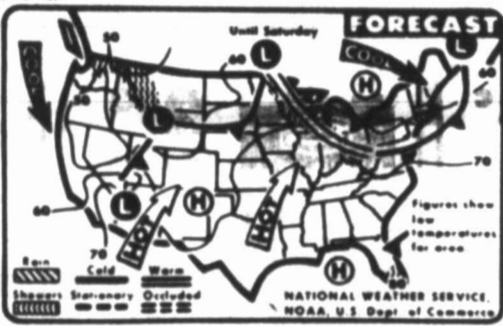

Another day of scorching heat was in store for all of Texas today and forecasts indicated there would be no relief during the weekend.

Skies were to be clear and temperatures hot.

Highs were to be mostly around and slightly above the 100-degree mark. Extremes were to range from the lower 90s along the coast and in the mountains of Southwest Texas to near 106 in WEST TEXAS — Fair and hot through Saturday. Isolated thunderstorms, southwestern mountains. Highs, lower 90s; mountains to near 106 Big Bend. Lows lower 60s to near 80.

EXTENDED
WEST TEXAS — Sunny hot days fair and warm nights except partly cloudy with a chance of nighttime thunderstorms mainly in the Panhandle first of the week. Highs mid 90s to near 106. Lows upper 60s and 70s except near 60 mountains.

WEATHER FORECAST — Continuing hot weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Saturday morning, across the southern half of the nation and extending into the central Plains. Cooler weather is forecast for the Pacific coast, the Northwest and the Northeast. Showers are forecast for the northern Rockies and upper Great Lakes.

portions of North Central Texas. A few widely scattered thunderstorms were forecast for Southwest Texas, but no significant rainfall was expected.

Highs Thursday included 106 at Wichita Falls and 104 at Dallas-Fort Worth. It was the 18th day of 100-plus heat at Dallas-Fort Worth as the area closed in on the old record of 26 straight days set almost 30 years ago.

Skies were clear early today except for a few scattered clouds over South Texas.

Early morning temperatures remained quite warm, mostly in the 70s and 80s. Extremes ranged from 65 at Marfa to 82 at several locations across Central Texas.

Death toll from heat wave nearing 30

By the Associated Press

A sizzling heat wave that has baked much of the Southwest and Plains for 20 days apparently has claimed almost 300 lives, officials say.

Health officials say elderly people living in poorly ventilated houses are the most frequent victims of the triple-digit temperatures, which also have taken a heavy toll of crops and livestock.

Through Thursday, unofficial reports of heat-related deaths numbered 87 in Texas, 83 in Arkansas, 33 in Oklahoma, 27 in Tennessee, 16 in Missouri, 12 in Mississippi, 10 each in Georgia and Kansas, six in Illinois, four each in Louisiana and Alabama and one each in Indiana and Nebraska.

Some state officials contended the latest death figures were exaggerated. Arkansas' state medical examiner, Dr. Fahmy Malak, said in most cases other health factors were more significant in the deaths. But other medical officials argued the heat could not be discounted as a factor in the deaths.

James Hankins, coroner of Leflore County in Mississippi, said six elderly people who died in his area since Sunday had various illnesses, but "the heat had to be a contributing cause." Meanwhile, health authorities warned blacks with sickle cell anemia to cut back on activities and drink plenty of fluids during the hot weather.

"Dehydration is bad or even worse for those with sickle cell," said the Rev. Leo Gray of Memphis, executive director of the Sickle Cell Council.

Continued high temperatures were forecast today with the mercury expected to range from the mid-90s to more than 100 across the southern half of both the Plateau and Rockies, a large portion of the Plains and from the mid- and lower Mississippi Valley to the south Atlantic coast.

In Texas, farmers have lost at least $750 million worth of crop and livestock from the heat wave and dry spell, said state Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown. He said greater losses could occur if no rain falls by Aug. 1.

In Arkansas, Gov. Bill Clinton said more than 8 million chickens and breeder hens have died since the heat wave began.

Water rationing was in effect for at least 30 Oklahoma communities, and Tulsa city commissioners opposed a $100 fine for violators.

Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh said the state has arranged to spend $180,000 from last winter's emergency energy program to aid those suffering from the heat. He said fans could be bought with the money.

Demand for electricity Thursday set a record across Georgia, Alabama, southern Mississippi and northeastern Florida, surpassing Wednesday's record by 218,000 kilowatts.

Meanwhile, a string of thunderstorms moved across South Carolina late Thursday, killing two people playing baseball. In both instances — one at Shaw Air Force Base in Sumter and at Surfside Beach — high winds caused a dugout to collapse on the victims.

U.S. sponsors sought for 38 held in El Paso

Lack of evidence will lead to Cubans' release

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The remaining Cuban refugees among those brought here from last month's riots in Fort Chaffee, Ark., will be released for lack of evidence against them, immigration officials say.

Pete Reyes, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Thursday the 38 remaining refugees at a federal detention center here would be freed one at a time as U.S. sponsors are found for them.

The releases could begin as early as next week, a U.S. Catholic Conference representative said.

The Cubans were among a group of 60 refugees transferred here from Fort Chaffee after riots broke out last month when Cubans at the Arkansas processing center became impatient with the ordeal and stormed the main gate.

Since they were brought here, 22 have been tagged as troublemakers and sent to more secure facilities elsewhere.

But Reyes said there was no evidence that the remaining 38 were involved in the riots. He said there were no charges against them and therefore no reason to hold them.

"We don't know who arrested them," Reyes said. "We have no arrest records, no convictions."

The 60 Cubans were originally brought here to await exclusion hearings that could have led to deportation. At that time, Reyes said all 60 were "involved to some extent" in the riots. But Thursday he said that information was apparently wrong.

"We got a mixed group, we found out," he said. "We have no official documentation that could support an exclusion at this level."

Among the original 60, 11 were transferred to a federal penitentiary in Atlanta June 30, six were moved to a federal jail near Tacoma, Wash., June 23, and earlier this week another five were sent to the Reeves County Jail in Pecos, about 200 miles east of here. Reyes said those 22 refugees still face exclusion hearings that could lead to their deportation.

He said the hearings would take place "at the different detention facilities" where they are being held.

Reyes said the local U.S. Catholic Conference was trying to find sponsors for the remaining 38 refugees, and as soon as sponsors are found, he said they will be released.

She said the Catholic Conference representative at Fort Chaffee had been summoned to El Paso with files on all the refugees.

Catching cagey critters of island rugged task

SAN CLEMENTE ISLAND, Calif. (AP) — If you hanker to swing a machete, scale treacherous 1,000-foot canyon walls and sidestep unexploded Navy artillery shells, trapper Jim Clapp has a job for you.

But if that sounds somewhat romantic, be advised that Clapp thinks the job ranks among the world's worst.

Clapp and his invaders are running the Great Goat Roundup.

"We don't want anyone out here who is married. We're risking lives to catch them dang goats," said Clapp, a Colorado-reared cowboy whose credentials for the job include capturing thousands of wild horses over the past decade.

Hired by the Navy to rid rocky San Clemente Island of a troublesome herd of 2,500 wild goats, Clapp — after a month on the job — is having second thoughts.

"When the Navy said it was darn near impossible to get all the goats out of here, they aren't too far wrong," Clapp said.

"It takes a while to get an individual crazy enough to stick with this job because they damn sure don't get enough pay," he said. "How many jobs do you know of where you're holding a machete in one hand, and hanging on a rock with the other?"

The goats, presumably descendants of those left behind by Spanish explorers, threaten seven endangered species: four plants — larkspur, brush mallow, Indian paint brush and San Clemente Island broom — and three birds — San Clemente Island house wren, San Clemente Island sage sparrow and San Clemente Island loggerhead shrike.

A federal court order late last year saved the goats. The Navy had scheduled a slaughter by helicopter-borne hunters.

Now the roundup project has turned into a nightmare of close calls and squabbles. Under the $148,000 contract, Clapp and his 10-member crew will have until the end of the year to catch the goats.

"We can do it, but it's one of the roughest animal removal."

British Open nears

Glamour revived

LONDON (AP) — The British pitch tents for their 109th Open golf championship in Muirfield, Scotland next week with the old geezer full of vim and vinegar and up to his flagsticks in prestige.

It didn't look so good for the great-grandpa of the game nearly a half century ago.

Bob Jones had retired from competition after his fabulous Grand Slam. American pros got so busy building up their own developing tour that they had neither the time nor inclination to cross the Atlantic in boats to play.

The result was that in the next three decades the British Open lost a great deal of its glitter and glamour. Byron Nelson, one of America's legends, never played in it. Ben Hogan made a single stab — at Carnoustie in 1953 — where he won. Sam Snead also snubbed the event but was persuaded to make a foray in 1946 when he also won at St. Andrews.

Thus the British Open, despite its rich tradition, deteriorated over the span, becoming a secondary event confined largely to players of the Commonwealth plus a few of the lesser-known Yanks and a handful of other overseas competitors.

That's when Arnold Palmer came in — Arnie and an eminent British doctor, merchant and patron of British sports.

The latter was Dr. Leonard Simpson, internationally renowned endocrinologist and chairman of the family's mercantile empire, Daks-Simpson's Piccadilly.

The late Fred Corcoran, the man credited with building the U.S. tour into a multi-million-dollar enterprise, contacted Dr. Simpson with the idea of establishing a trophy to be given annually to the personality contributing most to U.S.-British golf relations.

AWARDING BRITISH-AMERICAN GOLF RELATIONS — Dr. Leonard Simpson of England, left, presents the first Hagen Trophy to Walter Hagen in Chicago in 1961. Lou Strong, president of the Professional Golfers Association, center, looks on. The award has been given annually since in recognition of United States-British golf relations.

London's crown jewelers, Garrard's, were consigned the task of designing a unique silver trophy. It was to be called the Hagen Award, named for the great American professional, Walter Hagen.

Hagen himself was the first winner in 1961. After the Haig came Bob Jones and then a list of some of the most distinguished personalities in golf.

Meanwhile, Palmer had become America's golfing idol, winning the first of his four Masters in 1958 and the U.S. Open in 1960. Palmer became the first premier American golfer in years to put the British-Open on his annual agenda. What Palmer did, others followed as a natural course.

Jack Nicklaus, the game's greatest all-time winner, picked up the tradition and now all of Uncle Sam's golfing elite yearly flock to those old seaside links which rocked the cradle.

Ten-run first inning kayoes Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Three runs were already in. Trying to escape further damage, Texas Ranger pitcher Ferguson Jenkins walked dangerous Ruppert Jones intentionally to load the bases for New York catcher Rick Cerone in the first inning Thursday night.

"It didn't insult me," said Cerone, the No. 8 batter, who has seen opposing pitchers intentionally walk the batter 10 times this season to get to him.

Cerone fouled off a few pitches, worked the count to 3-and-2 and finally walked to force in another run, and the next four batters drove in six more runs as the Yankees exploded for 10 first-inning runs and coasted to a 13-5 victory over Texas.

It was the 13th RBI for the Yankee catcher this year after pitchers had walked a teammate to get to him.

"It's a matter of percentages. It's been against a right-handed pitcher every time with a left-handed batter in front of me. I've been successful in situations like that, and I just try to concentrate and do the best I can. I wasn't trying to walk. I wanted a hit if I could get it," Cerone said.

Jenkins faced the entire Yankee lineup the first inning and got only one of them out. After Cerone walked, shortstop Bucky Dent singled to left for two more runs for a 6-0 lead, and that was all for the veteran righthander.

Jenkins, 7-7, gave up two other walks and five hits, including a bases-loaded double by cleanup hitter Reggie Jackson, who usually is putty in Jenkins' hands.

"A good night for me against Fergie is usually 0-for-2 with two walks. He didn't look the same tonight. He looked like something was bothering him. I don't know if it was the umpires or what," said Jackson, who went 3-for-5 and drove in four runs, the other two coming in the third inning on his 21st homer.

The only other time New York has scored 10 runs in an inning was in the fifth inning of a 12-4 victory over Oakland on July 21, 1979.

It was the most runs the Rangers have yielded in an inning since the California Angels scored 13 in the ninth inning here in 1978.

Sparky Lyle and four other pitchers mopped up after Jenkins' departure. Lyle gave up a two-run homer to third baseman Graig Nettles for the final two runs of the first inning and Jackson's two-run smash in the third.

The Yankees were held to just two hits in the last six innings — Dent's fourth-inning single and Jim Spencer's ninth-inning solo homer.

The Rangers got four runs off winner Ron Guidry, 10-4, before the Yankee pitcher yielded to reliever Tim Lollar in the seventh. Buddy Bell doubled, extending his hitting string to 14 games, and scored the first two runs. Mickey Rivers hit safely for the 19th straight game and scored in the fifth.

HEADS UP — New York Yankees' right fielder Reggie Jackson over runs a fly ball hit by Texas Rangers' John Ellis during fourth inning action at Arlington, Tex., Thursday. Jackson was charged with an error on the play. The final score was 13-5, Yankees winning the first game of the series. Yankees scored 10 runs in the first inning.

Heat is deterrent in Open

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Despite turning in a 1-under-par 70 to share the first-round lead in the U.S. Women's Open with Barbara Moxness, Amy Alcott says the sweltering heat hurt her feelings — literally.

She made the comment to reporters Thursday afternoon, minutes after carding an 18-hole score that included three bogeys, two on the back nine.

The 150-player field began competition Thursday at the Richland Country Club to determine the winner of the 72-hole, $140,000 event.

Hot, humid weather with temperatures in the mid-90s followed the women as they made their way around the par-71, 6,229-yard golf course.

Alcott, 24, currently the No. 2 money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour with more than $130,000 for the year, said a 35-foot birdie on the second hole built her confidence and gave her some momentum for the round.

"I feel I played a good short game today," the personable brunette from Santa Monica, Calif., said. "I'd be satisfied if I played as well tomorrow."

But Alcott admitted the heat gave her some problems.

"I have a problem with the heat; my hands swell up and I lose some of the feeling," she said. "Then I hit some of the squirreliest shots you've ever seen."

"It especially affects your 'feel' shots, the short ones. But I put some ice on my hands and I feel that helped my short game today."

Co-leader Moxness, from San Diego, Calif., said an early morning tee-off time helped her game.

"I was fortunate to tee off early," the 27-year-old blonde said. "I ran out of gas on the last four or five holes...I think my score indicates that."

One of the early surprises of the four-day tournament was Nancy Lopez-Melton, a pre-tournament favorite who carded a 36-38-74.

On Oakland club

Firemen needing work

It may not be long before the members of Oakland's bullpen staff start wearing "Work Wanted" signs. A's starters have pitched complete games in 11 of the last 14 games, including both ends of Thursday night's doubleheader split with the California Angels.

Matt Keough went the distance in the opener, giving up four eighth-inning runs and losing a 5-1 decision to Frank Tanana but extending his American League-leading complete game total to 14.

Rick Langford went the route in the nightcap, holding on for a 5-4 triumph that gave him 13 complete games this season and 10 straight, tying the club record he set last season.

The one-run victory helped somewhat in reversing the hard luck Langford has endured this season. During his complete-game streak, the A's have won only three times and suffered six consecutive losses — three of them by one run.

"It may even out in the end, but it hasn't evened out yet," said Langford, now 6-9. "After I lost the shutout (in California's three-run seventh), I was just determined that the tougher they got, the tougher I got."

Oakland Manager Bill Martin says Langford has been tough all season.

"I have a lot of confidence in him," Martin said. "His record should be a lot better. It's a shame we don't get him some runs."

They got him some runs in the nightcap, building a 5-0 lead through five innings and leaving it to Langford to hold on from there.

"I was just trying not to let them score," said Langford, who saw the Angels pull within 5-4 on an eighth-inning run. "Billy has a lot of confidence in me and I don't want to disappoint him."

Right now, the Oakland starting staff is pleasing the manager, but making it awfully difficult for the relief staff to get into a game.

In the other American League games Thursday night, the Boston Red Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-0 after suffering a 2-1 loss in the opener of their twin-night doubleheader; the New York Yankees ripped the Texas Rangers 13-5, the Minnesota Twins thrashed the Seattle Mariners 12-4, the Baltimore Orioles bombed the Chicago White Sox 9-2, the Kansas City Royals edged the Detroit Tigers 3-2.

Things rough all over, Johnny Miller laments

MILWAUKEE (AP) — From 1973, when he spectacularly won the U.S. Open, through 1976, Johnny Miller was a master on the Professional Golfer's Association tour.

He won eight tournaments in 1974, four the next year, and three in 1976, including the British Open.

Then came the slump. It appeared in 1977 and deepened in 1978 to $17,440 and 111th place on the money list.

When he won at Inverrary last March, he walked the final hole to the cheers of thousands of spectators, and his smile returned. It had been missing a longtime.

Was Johnny Miller back at last? Not quite. A tie for 25th was his best in his next three tournaments. Then he had a tenth finish, a tie for 23rd, and finally failed to make the cut in the U.S. Open.

It looked as if he were snapping back with an eighth place finish in the Canadian Open, but his putting started to haunt him again.

"I made only four putts over six feet in the Canadian Open," said Miller, whose four-under-par 68 put him in a pack of par-busters in the first round of the $200,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Thursday.

Miller, though, found himself sharing 18th place with nine other players after par-shattering frolic.

Of 143 starters, 88 broke par 72 on the hilly 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course, whose rough is like a backyard that hasn't been mowed in a week.

Leading the hot-shooting board into Friday's second round was Ron Streck, the 1978 Texas Open titlist, whose 65 included a streak of five birdies.

Breathing down his neck with 66 were Miller Barber, Fred Marti, Barney Thompson, George Cadle, and defending champion Calvin Peete.

Marti fashioned the most spectacular shot of the first round — a double-eagle two with a 226-yard 4-wood.

Eleven players tied at 67. Scott Simpson, fresh from his Western Open victory and trying for a $100,000 bonus if he can win this tournament, which pays a $36,000 first prize, was lost in the pack with 71.

Miller, who missed only one green Thursday, had been so troubled about his putting that he started stroking the ball cross-handed.

This is nothing new among the touring pros. Bruce Litzke is having good luck with it and Mark Lye is following the practice.

We're back from Montana & the trip was worth every potato chip, Coke, & pit stop.

Jana, the oldest daughter, spent her allowance on books & magazines. Billy & Toni on food — crafts. You couldn't tell if the van was a traveling library, mobile snack shop or a craft wagon.

Just as it got good & hot, the air-conditioner went out...the kids still argued over the one blanket we had.

Parts of Wyoming were so desolate, the highway patrol stopped cars & passed out brochures on survival instead of traffic tickets. One friendly town had a population of 5. The people were so lonesome they looked forward to a robbery.

God must have had Texans in mind when he created Montana, cause it has the biggest mountains & prettiest rivers you ever saw.

If you can't go see Montana, go over to BIG SPRING SEED & CHEMICAL, 602 N.E. 2nd, and see what all they have. You might want to stock up on dog food, Fertilome, spray parts, Roundup or whatever you need for your farm, garden or yard. Call 267-1310, or come by for coffee.

U.S. is relying on family theme

STUTT GART, West Germany (AP) — The U.S. Olympic track and field team, unable to go to the Moscow Games, inaugurates the first phase of its European swing tonight with a meet against some 30 nations at 80,000-seat Neckar stadium.

The American team has a family theme, with the following family relationships: sisters Sherri and Denean Howard, both in the women's 400-meter dash; Carl and Carol Lewis, both long jumpers, and Colin Anderson, a shot putter, and his wife, Lynne Winbigger-Anderson, a discus thrower.

The Howards are perhaps the most unique among the team's family groups. They are the first sisters ever to make the United States Olympic team in the same event.

Denean, only 15, is the youngest member of this year's track and field contingent.

And there are two other Howard sisters almost equally as talented. They are Tina, 17, going into her senior year at Kennedy High School in Granada Hills, Calif., where Denean will be entering her junior year, and Artra, 19, who will be starting at UCLA in September after a year at Pierce Junior College.

At present, the four sisters are hoping to compete as a unit in the 1,600-meter relay in the 1984 games at Los Angeles.

"If all goes well, we'll do it," said Sherri, 18, who also will be a UCLA freshman in the fall. "The way competition has been, with so many young people winning, we could do it. It gives everyone something to look out for in 1984."

"Maybe in 1984, the 1,600-meter relay team could be us," said Denean, who plans to enter UCLA next year, along with Tina.

Last year, the Howards set a national high school record for the mile relay. This season, without Artra, the other three sisters and Kelley Cook, a senior at Granada Hills who lives with the Howards, established a national scholastic 1,600-meter relay record of 3 minutes, 37.96 seconds.

Also in 1980, the sisters, without Artra, but with Cheryl Thompson, who recently graduated from Granada Hills and is going to Bakersfield Junior College, broke the scholastic 440-yard relay mark with a clocking of 45.8.

Dodgers stage belated rally to tip Astros

By the Associated Press

Nolan Ryan is almost impossible to beat with a lead in the late innings.

But Thursday night, the Los Angeles Dodgers found a way — even if it wasn't very artistic.

Bill Russell doubled home the tying run, then Davey Lopes got the winner in with a weak tapper in front of the plate as the Dodgers rallied to beat Houston's hard-throwing right-hander 4-3.

"I have to say that's the toughest loss for me this year," said Ryan. "I had a one-run lead in the ninth and I just let the game get away."

Before Thursday night, Ryan had posted a phenomenal 111-2 record in games where he held a lead going into the eighth inning. "He was throwing well," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon of Ryan, "as good as he has all year. It's a shame."

In other National League games, San Francisco walloped San Diego 9-2; New York blanked Pittsburgh 2-0; Montreal trimmed St. Louis 4-3; Philadelphia defeated Chicago 5-3 and Cincinnati whipped Atlanta 8-6.

Russell had doubled home two runs in the seventh before knocking in the tying run in the ninth with a one-out, two-base shot. Steve Garvey launched the Dodgers' winning rally with a leadoff single and one out later. Ron Cey singled to center. Russell followed with his ground-rule double that scored pinch-runner Derral Thomas with the tying run.

Dave Smith replaced Ryan and after walking Mike Scioscia intentionally to fill the bases, struck out pinch-hitter Pedro Guerrero, but front of Lopez' tapper in front of the plate that Smith fielded and threw home late.

Giants 9, Padres 2
Left-hander Bob Knepper continued his mastery in Candlestick Park as San Francisco erupted for 14 hits to beat San Diego. Knepper, 8-9, pitched an eight-hitter as he improved his record at home to 7-1 this year.

Bright Answer

All this glory from one tiny seed! The sunflower towers taller than a man, its huge golden head filled with thousands of seeds... and every seed contains the mystery of life and growth that science cannot explain.

We are surrounded by miracles that man did not create. Who created them? Who created us? By the reasoning powers of our own marvelous minds we can be guided to see that God the Creator has made all things according to His plan, and that we can only achieve our highest development by living in harmony with it.

How can we know God's will for us? We need only a small seed of faith, for He will lead us in His way if we ask Him... and that seed will grow and flourish under His loving care.

FILL 'EM AND FORGET 'EM

Look at how far you can go in a Datsun between fill ups:

	EPA EST MPG/RANGE	HWY EST MPG/RANGE
Datsun 210 Hatchback (Standard 5-speed)	31/409	43/567
Datsun 310 GX Coupe (Standard 5-speed)	31/409	43/567
Datsun 510 4-door Hatchback (Standard 5-speed)	31/409	43/567

Based on EPA estimates. Use these estimates for comparison. Your mileage and range may differ depending on speed, distance and weather. Highway mileage will probably be lower than EPA estimate.

Come on down and see our entire line. We have fourteen different models that get over 30 MPG. Test drive 'em all. We're driven to empty in a long way to empty in a Datsun.

Search on for possible presidential assassin
DALLAS (AP) — A self-proclaimed officer in the Palestine Liberation Army, claiming to be under orders to kill the president, is the object of a Secret Service manhunt, federal agents said.

The man, described by assistant U.S. attorney Mark Ellison as "believed to be armed and dangerous," told witnesses he was a captain in the PLO with 100 murders to his credit, and was under orders to kill "Carter or (Sen. Edward) Kennedy or whoever is elected president." Secret Service agent Gerald Kluber filed an affidavit Thursday alleging the man made the statement on June 28, and later took the witnesses to an apartment in Irving, Texas, where he displayed a cache of weapons.
