Inflation rate at 12.4 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Propelled by rising food and housing costs, consumer prices in June rose at an annual rate of 12.4 percent, slightly higher than the month before, the government said today.

The Labor Department reported that consumer prices in June increased 1 percent, compared with 0.9 percent rises in both May and April. The annual rate during those two months was about 11 percent.

For the first six months of this year, inflation — as measured by the consumer price index — accelerated at a 14.8 percent seasonally adjusted annual pace, the Labor Department said.

The Labor Department also reported that average take-home pay in June fell 0.4 percent. Over the year, inflation adjusted spendable earnings — which subtract Social Security payments and federal income taxes — were down 7.7 percent.

Despite June's slight increase, the inflation rate is proving more moderate than earlier this year when it stood at more than an 18 percent annual level.

The Labor Department reported that four-fifths of June's 1 percent increase was due to housing prices and mortgage costs. That entire component jumped 1.8 percent, but officials said it should show sharp declines soon.

"Mortgage interest rates have declined, but did not show up in June's figures," said Labor Department economist Patrick Jackman. "We know they will turn around drastically next month, but we aren't quite sure about home prices," he said.

Food prices, meanwhile, rose 0.5 percent in June compared with 0.3 percent in May. Gasoline prices, however, dropped 1 percent last month, the department said.

Gasoline rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 105.7 percent during the first three months of this year but has declined at a 6.2 percent pace in the second quarter.

Jackman predicted "relatively stable" gasoline prices in the current quarter and probably throughout the year.

On the other hand, food prices are a big question mark. "They are the key to where consumer prices go this year," Jackman said.

Food prices, due largely to the heat wave that has struck the Midwest and South, are expected to rise strongly beginning in late summer.

Once this begins, particularly for beef, consumers could expect a period of six months to a year of generally upward prices, Jackman suggested.

Besides housing and food, most other consumer goods continued to show moderate rates of increase — a trend that began in April.

The Labor Department reported this general breakdown for June:

Home financing costs rose 4.6 percent.

Rents jumped 1.2 percent.

Auto finance charges, which rose at a monthly rate of 4 percent during the first five months of 1980, declined 0.8 percent.

Prices for sugar, soft drinks and other prepared foods rose substantially, but meat, poultry, fish and egg prices declined, although not as much as in the previous 2 months.

—Restaurant meals rose 0.9 percent.

—Public transportation was up 1.1 percent, reflecting large increase in airline and intercity train fares.

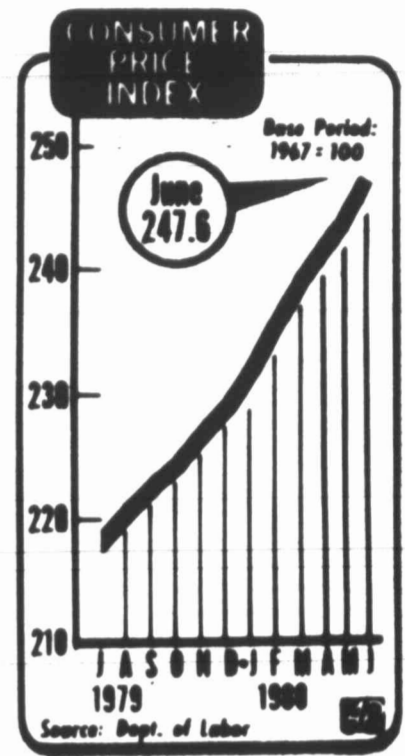

—Apparel and their upkeep was unchanged in price.

—Medical care increased 0.5 percent, the same as in May.

—Entertainment costs rose 0.6 percent, the same as in May.

The Consumer Price Index, based on a figure of 100 in 1967, rose in June to 247.6. This is not seasonally adjusted, and it means that the same goods and services that sold for $100 13 years ago would cost $247.60 today. The index is 14.3 percent higher than the June 1979 level.

At the same time, Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass., predicts that consumer prices will rise at an annual level only slightly above 8 percent through December.

BLAST HITS TEHRAN — Firemen, revolutionary guards and civilians mill about in a downtown Tehran shopping arcade, this morning, after several bombs exploded there. Tehran radio reported at least six persons were killed by the blasts and at least 100 others injured.

Explosion kills six in downtown Tehran

By the Associated Press

Several bombs exploded today in a bustling shopping district in downtown Tehran, killing six persons and injuring nearly 100 others, Tehran Radio reported.

At least one of the bombs exploded on Ferdowsi Avenue, a main street in the center of the city, near the Turkish Embassy and the German Consulate, the radio said.

Ferdowsi Avenue, one of the busiest streets in the capital, is lined with shops selling carpets, antiques and other items. A number of embassies are also located there.

The bombs began exploding about 9:30 a.m. — 2:30 a.m. EDT — at a time when the street usually is crowded with shoppers.

The state radio quoted a revolutionary committee spokesman as saying authorities had "clues" to the identities of the bombers. He did not elaborate.

The official Pars news agency said 10 more drug traffickers were executed this morning on orders of the regime's special anti-narcotics court, headed by Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali. The state radio also reported the executions of four Iraqi "saboteurs" in oil-rich Khuzestan Province.

On Tuesday, Iran reported new Iraqi border attacks as an exile opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime was killed in the United States by an assassin disguised as a mailman.

Pars said Iraqi gunners scored a direct hit on an oil well at Naft-Shahr, setting off a fire that raged for hours. It said a land mine planted in the same area by Iraqi mercenaries blew up under a bus, killing five Iranians and wounding 15.

Several border villages also came under Iraqi artillery fire, and Iranian forces returned the fire, inflicting "heavy casualties" on the Iraqis, Tehran Radio said.

Pars also reported that Kurdish guerrillas fighting for autonomy from Khomeini's regime killed eight revolutionary guards and wounded 13 near the town of Baneh in West Azerbaijan, Pars said. The report claimed scores of the rebels were killed or wounded in a seven-hour battle.

Tehran Radio said "a large number" of guerrillas and three pro-Khomeini men were killed in fighting along the Sanandaj-Marivan road, in the northwestern Kurdish region.

In Bethesda, Md., an assassin posing as a mailman with a special delivery package shot and killed Ali Akbar Tabatabai, former press attaché at the Iranian Embassy in Washington and president of the Iran Freedom Foundation. The foundation has scheduled a rally in Washington Sunday to protest Khomeini's rule and the holding of the 52 U.S. hostages in Iran.

The hostages were spending their 263rd day in captivity.

Ambulance, taxi costs to rise

Northside projects approved

By JAMES WERRELL

Northside residents will soon have a new basketball court and a completed day care center in the neighborhood.

The Big Spring City Council decided during Tuesday night's meeting that both projects would become a reality. The day care center had been undergoing renovation for several months, when the company doing the work suddenly defaulted on the contract in June.

Subsequently, the city has lodged a lawsuit against Association D Contratas, a Pecos firm, for the nearly $6,000 worth of work remaining. Tuesday night, the council voted to accept a bid by Harry Money Enterprises of Big Spring to complete the renovation.

Although the bid, $11,125, was the only one received, it was within the city's guidelines, and was acceptable to council members.

A hard-surface basketball court will be built at the Northside Park at a cost of $6,804. The council accepted a bid from Herrera Masonry Contractors, 209 N.E. 6th, to complete the project.

"This court will be built as a result of public hearings on the north side last year. This is just one of several improvements we have made at the Northside Park, which was listed as one of the big priorities at the public meetings," said Bill Hall, director of community development. His office will provide funds for the projects through Community Development Block Grants.

Both ambulance and taxi cab service will cost Big Springers more as a result of actions by the council Tuesday. Members allowed each service to raise its rates.

In amending the contract with the Shaffer Ambulance Service, the city added a new twist that may prove financially beneficial in the future. The city raised its monthly subsidy to the service from $2,000 to $3,000, but also dealt itself a portion of the company's accounts receivable in the process.

Shaffer has been having trouble collecting its bills, and estimated that it would be successful in gathering only about 20 percent of its delinquent debts. The city volunteers to use its own personnel to collect bills over 60 days old for city coffers.

Of the amount collected by the city, 20 percent will be turned over to Howard County, which recently agreed to raise its subsidy to Shaffer from $1,000 to $1,500 a month.

Council members compared Big Spring's taxi cab rates to those of other area cities before granting an increase. After reviewing the books of Bill Lee, owner of the local service, Tom Ferguson, city finance director, declared that local rates were well below those of Odessa, Midland and Abilene.

Although the cost of the first one-fifth of a mile in a local cab will drop from $1.15 to $1, each additional fifth will rise from 10 cents to 20 cents. The cost of the first mile will rise from $1.55 to $1.80.

"The way I figure it, that's within about a dime, either more or less, of the rates in these other cities," said Councilman Robert Fuller.

Both motions to raise rates passed unanimously.

What may have been the hottest issue of the evening was quashed by the council. Consideration of a second and final reading of an ordinance amending the franchise with Big Spring Cable T.V., Inc. was tabled.

The city manager (Don Davis) is not here, and due to the nature of this issue I think we should wait on it," said Councilmen Jack Y. Smith, with the other members agreeing.

Council members also discussed the recent rash of water leaks in the city. They were told by Assistant City Manager Bill Brown that reports of water problems had slowed to 69 during the last five days; a lot, but considerably fewer than in June and the earlier part of July.

Brown has assigned one city crew to work eight hours, five nights a week, while four crews operate during the day. Crews also rotate weekend work so that leaks are being plugged seven days a week, he said.

A total of 1,470 feet of small-inch pipe has been replaced with new pipe, said Brown, and more replacements are scheduled in the near future.

Ferguson told the council that he and the city manager have met with financial advisers to discuss bond payment schedules for funds needed for water system repairs. Those schedules will be revised and presented to the appointed city financial committee, which will help shape the proposal for a bond election in the fall, Ferguson added.

Two city employees were honored during the meeting. Cruz Puga, who joined the city force as Equipment Operator I on July 12, 1960, received a 20-year pin. He now serves as an Equipment Operator II on the city's street department.

Jerry Edwards, who received his five-year pin, joined the Big Spring Police Department on July 16, 1975 as a patrolman. On Feb. 1, 1976, he was promoted to the position of Patrolman II, and two years later to Senior Patrolman.

In that same year, he was promoted to his present position of Sergeant.

In other business, council members:

—Passed a second and final reading of a resolution authorizing Mayor Clyde Angel to execute a release of lien of city property to Dr. James Mathews and R.L. Heith.

—Approved minutes of the last regular council meeting.

—Appointed Dr. Clyde Thomas as City Health Officer.

FCC repeals last of major limitations on cable television systems, despite protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission is repealing the last major rules limiting what cable television systems can show their subscribers, a decision that came despite protests from the broadcasting and movie industries.

By a 4-3 vote, the FCC decided Tuesday that local TV stations are not adversely affected when a cable system offers subscribers the signals of TV stations from other cities.

"By today's action, the FCC has removed the regulatory debris of a previous decade; we have thus expanded the choices that consumers will have in the future," said FCC Chairman Charles D. Ferris.

"These rules, when subjected to thorough analysis, lack the slightest hint of justification in terms of the overall interest of TV viewers," he said.

"Cable has not and will not destroy broadcasting, as was once feared. In fact, our staff has found that cable has in many cases improved the profitability of broadcast stations by improving the reception of an otherwise weak UHF signal."

The FCC decision means it will junk its distant-signal and syndicated-exclusivity rules. The former limited the number of TV signals from other cities that a cable operator can show. The syndicated-exclusivity rule lets a local TV station which has bought the exclusive rights to a program force a cable system to black out the program should it appear on a distant station.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Cuckoo or Kingbird

Q. We have a yellow breasted pair of birds with darker feathers along the outer edges of their tails nesting in our fruitless mulberry tree. They are about the size of the mockingbird and are quite aggressive toward our family cat. I see them extensively throughout Big Spring. Can you tell me their name?

A. Our expert on birds, Bebe McCasland, says they're either the Yellow-Billed Cuckoo or the Western Kingbird, more likely the latter. The Kingbird, prolific here, has a yellow breast and dark tails, with white stripes running down each side of the tail. They are great fly catchers and do man a great service by controlling the fly population, an insect they often catch in flight. Incidentally, Mrs. McCasland says the baby 'hawk' appearing on the front page of Tuesday's Herald was, in reality, a Mississippi Kite, which is a member of the hawk family.

Calendar: Dance club meets

TODAY

The Spring City Dance Club will meet at 8 p.m. at the Eagle's Lodge. Whitaker's Tumbleweed Band will provide the music.

THURSDAY

Third annual "Texas Style" National Domino Tournament, Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"Oil Well That Ends Well" melodrama presented by the Spring City Theater, Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater, 7:30 p.m.

FRIDAY

"Old Settlers Reunion" for Howard and Glasscock Counties, Old Settlers Pavilion, Comanche Trail Park.

The All Veterans Planning Council will not meet as planned this evening.

FRIDAY

Persons interested in joining the Howard County Young Democrats can attend an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas office building. For any information concerning the organization call Kaye Holland at 267-8910.

Tops on TV: Missile suspense

A misguided patriot seizes control of a nuclear missile base to blackmail the U.S. government. The movie entitled "Twilight's Last Gleaming" stars Burt Lancaster and Richard Widmark. The suspense starts at 7:30 p.m. on CBS.

Inside: Volcano erupts again

AFTER LULLING observers with six weeks of relative serenity, Mount St. Helens explodes in a spectacular series of eruptions, hurling ash nearly 10 miles high into a clear blue sky. Superheated gas pours from the volcano and ash begins to drift over towns more than 50 miles away. See page 4-B.

WHILE HISPANIC leaders voiced enthusiastic approval for a federal judge's order that allows illegal alien children to enter school this fall, Texas officials say they will appeal the ruling. See page 8-A.

Outside: Chance

Partly cloudy through tonight with a slight chance of rain today. Fair Thursday. Continued hot. High today and Thursday in the mid 90s, low tonight near 70. Winds will be from the south at 10 to 15 mph today, 5 to 10 mph tonight. Chance of rain is 20 percent.

Digest

Operation set for twins

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — An operation to separate the Siamese twin daughters of a Piqua, Ohio, couple may be performed in the next three to six months, hospital officials said. The month-old daughters of Randy and Rebecca Wackler remain in critical condition, but are gaining weight, said Phil Stoffan, spokesman at the Children's Medical Center. The combined weight of Valerie and Natalie Wackler is 9 pounds, 3 ounces. When the twins — who are joined at the base of the spine and face away from each other — were born June 17, they weighed 7 pounds, 12 ounces.

Ex-convict arraigned

DETROIT (AP) — A man convicted of assault and battery and recently released from prison has been arraigned on charges stemming from the beating death of his 3-year-old son, police said. Police said Herman Bonner, 27, was arraigned Monday on a charge of first-degree murder and was ordered held without bond. The body of D'andre Parker was found dangling on a fence with a rope around his neck Sunday, police said. The boy died of head injuries inflicted by a brick, authorities said.

Company official dies

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A former W.T. Grant Co. vice president died in an apparent accident in his home on the same day he was indicted on income tax charges for allegedly accepting payoffs, officials say. John A. Christensen, 52, of Madison, was charged Tuesday with income tax evasion and conspiracy for allegedly accepting payoffs in return for opening Grant stores in certain shopping centers, authorities said. But that afternoon, as the federal attorney's office was telephoning word of the indictment to reporters, Christensen was run over and killed by a small bulldozer in his yard as he apparently tried to repair the steel-tracked vehicle, said police.

Truck flip hurts driver

A Quality Transport truck driver was injured slightly when he failed to negotiate a curve three miles south on highway 820 south of Coahoma at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Edward King was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital for possible internal injuries sustained when he was slammed against the steering wheel.

Shaffer Ambulance had difficulty finding the accident site when a Turner Properties personnel gave the wrong highway. King had been taken to Coahoma by his brother by the time the ambulance arrived. King was taken to the hospital by ambulance from Coahoma.

Police beat Mutt's Lounge destroyed

Mutt's Lounge, 602 W. 3rd, was gutted by a fire that may have been started by an arsonist, around midnight, Tuesday.

Local firefighters responded to the blaze, 11:50 p.m. Tuesday, but were unable to save any of the interior of the lounge, said Ricky Womack, local arson investigator. Once the fire had been caused, however, investigators noticed that two pool tables and two cigarette machines inside had been rifled.

"We also found quite a bit of flammable liquid spread around the place," said Womack, this morning. Combining the area, officers picked up a 34-year-old local man near the scene for public intoxication. "He is a suspect, but we have three more people we are investigating," said Womack.

Tower to open office in downtown Lubbock

Sen. John Toer will arrive in Lubbock this weekend for a series of appearances, including the official opening ceremonies for the Senator's West Texas Office in downtown Lubbock. Making his first appearance in Texas since his leading role in the Republican National Convention, Tower also will hold a press conference at 10:45 a.m. Saturday in his West Texas Office, 730 Court Place, 1001 Main Street. Tower served as chairman of the Republican Convention's Platform Committee, where his leadership of the proceedings was credited by many observers with helping to foster the unified mood exhibited throughout the party's meetings. The public is invited to the West Texas Office's official opening, which will include a ribbon cutting ceremony at 11:15 a.m. Saturday, followed by an open house. Following the open house, Tower will address the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's International Trade Seminar luncheon at noon Saturday in the Hilton Inn. The Senator will also appear at a Lubbock County Republican Party fundraiser Friday night that will be held from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the home of a former Lubbock mayor and Texas Republican gubernatorial candidate, Dr. Jim Granberry.

Economic battlefield taking shape for U.S.

George S. Smith Jr., Midland, Pegasus District Production superintendent for Mobil Producing, Texas and New Mexico, warned local Rotarians at their noon luncheon Tuesday that problems existing today in Iran and Afghanistan are setting the stage for an economic battlefield which will deeply involve America.

The next decade will be crucial for the United States, Smith predicted, adding that America is simply buying time in following a policy of conservation, developing synthetic fuels and adopting the windfall profits tax. Those programs will not provide the solution to America's woes, according to the speaker.

Smith said this country will remain dependent upon foreign oil until we develop adequate coal and nuclear power facilities. The windfall profits tax, Smith maintained, is a tax on revenues, not profits. He urged Rotarians to vote for candidates who believe we have energy problems and who offer solutions.

GEORGE S. SMITH JR.

Smith said he is convinced the government needs to encourage oil companies to produce more gas and oil rather than penalize them with the so-called profits tax. "There is a solution outside taxation," Smith concluded. The speaker is available for programs offered by any Big Spring club or organization. Those interested can contact Toni Brewer, Mobil Oil, Midland.

Reagan finds Bush easy to deal with

New Betty, same old Jerry

By WALT FINLEY
Thoughts while tuned to the Republican convention last week, plus more thoughts while viewing President Carter's fund raising visit in Texas.

***
Texas Republican delegates are home from Detroit proud of their role in the presidential nomination. If it hadn't been for them, Ronald Reagan wouldn't have won by more than about 1,850 votes.

***
Texas Democrats are already scoffing at the GOP convention. They're saying that at their convention Jimmy will show us the neat, decisive way to pick a vice presidential nominee.

***
All in all, last week was the worst ever for the Detroit chapter of the Jimmy Carter Fan Club.

***
After negotiating with Jerry Ford, Reagan found George Bush easy to deal with. Ford wanted equal billing, but all Bush asked for was someone to pinch him.

***
If we had Reagan and Ford as "co-presidents," what would they do about the Hot Line to Moscow — give Jerry an extension phone?

***
The press said Gerald Ford gave a "stemwinder" speech but during his remarks, the camera panned in on a woman delegate who was fast asleep in her chair.

***
It is still the Grand Old Party but since Mrs. Ford had a face lift, we had a brand new Betty. The delegates presented him with a gold convention badge.

***
In reaching over to take it, he almost dropped it.

***
Wayne Newton was one of the convention entertainers. I remember when he was a fat kid with a soprano voice. Now he is a fat cat who owns a lot of Las Vegas.

I think a lot of people who get elected delegates to national conventions want to go so they can wear funny hats in public without anyone talking about them.

Commentator Bill Moyers said government reminds him of the young man who went to a fortune teller who told him, "You'll be poor and unhappy until you are 30." "Then what will happen?" he asked. "You'll get used to it," she told him.

One of the planks in the Republican platform is revocation of the 55 miles-per-hour speed limit. But neither the Republicans nor the Democrats have a plan to make it possible for us to pay for the gas.

Meanwhile, back at the White House, President Carter reportedly isn't half as worried about the Russians withdrawing from Afghanistan as he is about Billy withdrawing from Libya.

And it's hard to tell who wants

Carter's job the most — Reagan or Kennedy.

Kennedy is busy printing buttons for the Democratic convention. They will say:

Ted Instead
The GOP convention speech by the mayor of Providence, R.I., was ruined for me when he said, "Our athletes are not participating in the summer Olympics."

And he pronounced it "ath-a-letes." It's not fair to judge Jimmy Carter by all the things the Republicans are throwing at him. Let's wait for the Democrats to meet in New York and hear what Ted Kennedy has to say.

A lot of Republican recruits are people turned off by the Administration. They say what they know about Jimmy Carter is all they need to know about Ronald Reagan.

A Special Thank You

In regards to the passing of my father, George Dukish, I wish to convey my deep gratitude to Tommy Whately and Leonard West and J.O. Hagood of Sheppard's Funeral Home for being my strength in my time of weakness and uncertainty, and my ray of hope in my time of darkness.

In order to express my appreciation for the much-needed moral support and sincere devotion that I and my family were shown, I would have to develop a totally new language, because there are no words that can do this. Please let these suffice.

I will never forget you for helping me realize that death need not be a personal tragedy, but rather, a blessed relief from all human struggles.

You've brought about in me the peace of acceptance and the beauty of final release. I thank God it was you who took care of my father and treated him to the dignity and kindness he'd known so little of in life.

I also wish to extend my thanks to all the staff of the V.A. Hospital, here in Big Spring, for making my father feel and know that he, like every veteran, is someone special. I am certain I shall probably never meet individuals such as these, who make it a practice to display not only dedication, but human warmth, as well.

I thank you also Reverend Rucker, of Wesley United Methodist Church, for the inspiring words of wisdom you so aptly imparted to us, at my father's graveside — words I shall not soon forget.

I mustn't forget to thank Det. Avery Falkner and Judge Lewis Heflin for their professional efficiency.

In closing, let me state that because of the aforementioned people, I have come to understand that through the loss of a loved one, we gain, nonetheless. Not only in friends, but also in a broader comprehension of how we must utilize every opportunity to show each other that we need never feel alone.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 and enjoy hunting and trapping. About six months ago, I got a coon dog. My mom said that I could keep the hound but that I couldn't get a rifle. How can you hunt coon without a rifle? I've got my hunting tag and have gone to hunter's safety school. Do you think that I should be able to hunt? — Sean, Mt. Vernon, Ohio

1. Discover what motivates you to smoke then build an even better motivation to stop. 2. Have a small celebration each week that you are off cigarettes. At the end of three months, go bananas. 3. Change brands, switching to a lower tar and nicotine cigarette but don't increase the usage. 4. Gradually limit yourself to fewer cigarettes a day. If you smoke a pack a day, limit yourself to 15 the first week, 10 the second and taper down to zero. 5. Discover what motivates you to smoke then build an even better motivation to stop.

Dr. Wallace: My parents are divorced and my sister and I live with my mom. My mom claims my sister as a tax dependent and my dad claims me. My question is: How can my dad claim me and not buy my clothes and necessities? I asked him about it but he says that he can't afford it. I don't believe a word of it because he buys himself and his wife junk that they really don't need. Can he do this? — Laura, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Dear Abby Husband Smokes While Wife Burns

DEAR ABBY: I can't stand cigarette smoke, but two years ago I married a three-pack-a-day man. I knew it would be hard for Jim to give up smoking altogether, so I told him I'd appreciate it if he wouldn't smoke in our bedroom. He promised, and for a long time he kept his promise. Then he started to "forget" once in a while, and now he's been smoking in our bedroom regularly. One night his cigarette rolled off the ashtray and burned a big hole in the nightstand. That did it! I finally said, "OK, Buddy, there are going to be some new rules around here. There will be no lovemaking in the same room you smoke in!"

DEAR HUNGRY: You overplayed your hand. Give Jim another chance and remind him of his promise. And insist that he owes it to you to honor that promise. Should he "forget," remind him, and remind him, and remind him. But never withhold marital relations as a means of punishing him.

DEAR ABBY: HEARTSICK PARENTS wrote: "Recently our 25-year-old daughter decided to follow in the ways of the times. She took to living with her boyfriend, and now they have a child. They say that marriage may or may not come later. God knows how upset and brokenhearted we have been, but we thought it best to tell our wonderful friends of many years that we were new grandparents." HEARTSICK PARENTS' complaint was that not one of their friends had written or kept in touch since. They wrote: "How it would have helped to ease our heartsache if they had responded. Do they think that we could see our daughter's lifestyle? We do not, but we're making the best of it." You replied: "Wonderful friends should be supportive, loving and non-judgmental, so perhaps your friends were not so 'wonderful' after all."

DEAR NEVADA: Thanks for a single I failed to see. But "wonderful friends" can help "upset and heartbroken" parents understand and endure the unconventional lifestyles of their children. That's when "wonderful friends" are really needed.

DEAR ABBY: An acquaintance of mine sent me an invitation to her daughter's wedding. I have never met the daughter and do not plan to attend the wedding. Neither do I plan to send a wedding gift. I feel that to ignore the invitation would be rude, so I thought I'd just send the bride and groom a nice card of congratulations. I have asked the opinions of others about this, and have been told that sending a card with no gift would be worse than ignoring the invitation altogether. Is this true?

DEAR ACQUAINTANCE: Not in my book of etiquette.

The day MacArthur got his come-uppance

Things are decent now between the United States and the People's Republic of China. There are those who wonder, however, what would have happened 30 years ago had Gen. Douglas MacArthur had his way when he demanded (not requested) powers to block the China coast bomb bases in Manchuria and send Chinese National troops from Taiwan against the Communists.

Gen. MacArthur might have prevailed had a lesser man than Harry Truman been in the White House. MacArthur was for pressing the war into Northern Korea and he was angry.

COOLER HEADS prevailed in Washington, however. Not only was Truman against the idea but the United Nations couldn't see matters being helped by an all-out war.

President Truman specifically forbade the actions MacArthur recommended on the grounds that they would increase the risk of an other world-wide conflagration.

Remember that we were only five years removed from WW II at the time. Quite likely, a confrontation with Red China would have promoted the use of nuclear weapons.

MacArthur persisted. He made several statements that conflicted with the policies of the United Nations and his own government. In short, it was his will against that of his commander-in-chief. On April 11, 1951, Truman tied the can to MacArthur.

MacArthur, a proud man with an air for the theatrical, tried for the presidency himself in 1952 but failed to get the nomination. That effectively ended the public career of a brilliant military commander who was fatally flawed by egomania and a passion for self-dramatization.

MacArthur obviously had little use for Truman. Perhaps the die was cast in his case for all time in October 1950 when Truman and MacArthur met face-to-face on Wake Island.

The account of this meeting was given by Truman in his memoirs

(which were ghost-written). Wrote he: "The general seemed genuinely pleased at his opportunity to talk to me, and I found him a most stimulating and interesting person. Our conversation was very friendly—I might say much more than I expected."

The author of that account could be turning out pap today for some company selling soap or insurance. Anyone who knew Harry Truman, or went through the general climate of the time, knew for sure there was nothing friendly about any meeting at Wake Island between MacArthur and Truman.

THE SALTY PRESIDENT from Independence, Mo., later was to offer a true version of what happened. Truman said MacArthur was "just like a little puppy at that meeting. I don't know which is worse, the way he acted in public or the way he kissed my ass at that meeting."

At the Wake meeting, there was a struggle behind the scenes about who would come first to await who on the airstrip.

Truman recalled, "The SOB (MacArthur) walked out of one of the buildings near the runway there. I took one look at him and I said, 'Now you look here, I've come halfway across the world to meet you, but don't worry about that.'

"I just want you to know I don't give a good—what you do or think of Harry Truman—but don't you ever keep your commander-in-chief waiting. Is that clear?" His face got as red as a beet, but he said... he indicated that he understood what I was talking about, and we went on from there."

When MacArthur made a grandiose proposal for American policing of the entire Pacific, Truman said he decided "there were times when he... well, I'm afraid, when he wasn't right in the head."

If MacArthur ever gave his side of the incident, he played it down. There was no doubt but that, in against Truman, he was overmatched.

Robbi Crow

As we pulled up in the hospital parking lot, it was a funny site watching the numbers of pregnant women waddle up to the hospital door.

Besides the carefully packaged babies they were carrying, each clutched a pillow and blanket as they excitedly ventured into their next natural child birth class.

Accompanying each mother-to-be was her husband and/or coach, a particular someone who would provide her with encouragement, motivation and moral support through the hours of labor she would eventually experience.

UNLIKE TWO YEARS ago when I myself waddled to and from natural child birth class with my husband, this particular time I was attending as a stand-in coach for my very pregnant friend, Debbie Burton. Her husband, Gary, had to work that night.

As we entered the classroom, my eyes gazed around the setting, looking at women who seemed to be harboring basketballs underneath their blouses. Most, who were to be first-time mothers, were smiling radiantly. Obviously they weren't aware of the hours of agony that awaited them around the corner. And those smiling that already had children must have been experiencing a temporary lapse of memory.

A feeling of terror swept through me as I began to re-live in my mind's eye an experience I hoped I had forgotten—a 20-hour experience to be exact.

My recollection of fear was reconfirmed as we watched a detailed film on actual labor and delivery.

My eyes were glued to the screen in pity for the poor woman shown on the film. Believe me, I felt each and every pain right along with her. You could see the terror mount on each woman's face around the room.

By then, my friend (the one I had gone with to encourage, motivate and provide with moral support) kept glancing over at me, each time looking at me with a "what-have-I-gotten-myself-into" expression.

A BIG HELP I was. I was just thankful it was going to be her going through that in a few weeks and not me.

Several moments after the showing of the film, I finally came back to reality. Debbie assured me she'd never ask me to go with her again. I think I scared her to death.

And now that I've probably scared the majority of you half to death who were contemplating having children, let me continue.

As far as I'm concerned, the birth of a baby is the most beautiful and meaningful experience a woman can have on this earth. It should be treasured as a gift from God.

And besides, a few hours of discomfort is a small price to pay for the gift one receives. (Even so, Debbie, I'm still glad it's you this time and not me.)

Reagan sobers up

Joseph Kraft

DETROIT—Ronald Reagan came to the Republican convention here as an actor trying out for the part of Mr. President. He left with a grave sense of the deadly serious business he was getting into.

So while the failure to win President Ford to the ticket looks bad, the effort served the candidate and the country. Especially since George Bush makes a good running mate.

Two factors gained the presidential nomination for Reagan. First there was the tide of history—the gathering of the overwhelming majority of the Republican Party, and a considerable fraction of the country, around the conservative banner taken over by Reagan after 1964.

JOINED TO THAT was a warm, unthreatening personality that resisted, and even turned to account, the bogeyman charges usually leveled against conservatives. It is typical that Gov. Reagan forged to the fore in the primaries when he made a firm, but humorous, response to a harsh question about ethnic jokes in the first New Hampshire debate.

Along with those qualities came weaknesses so abundant as to make every bone in Reagan's body seem a glass jaw. Apart from age and inexperience in national and international affairs, there was the sophomoric approach of right-wing populism.

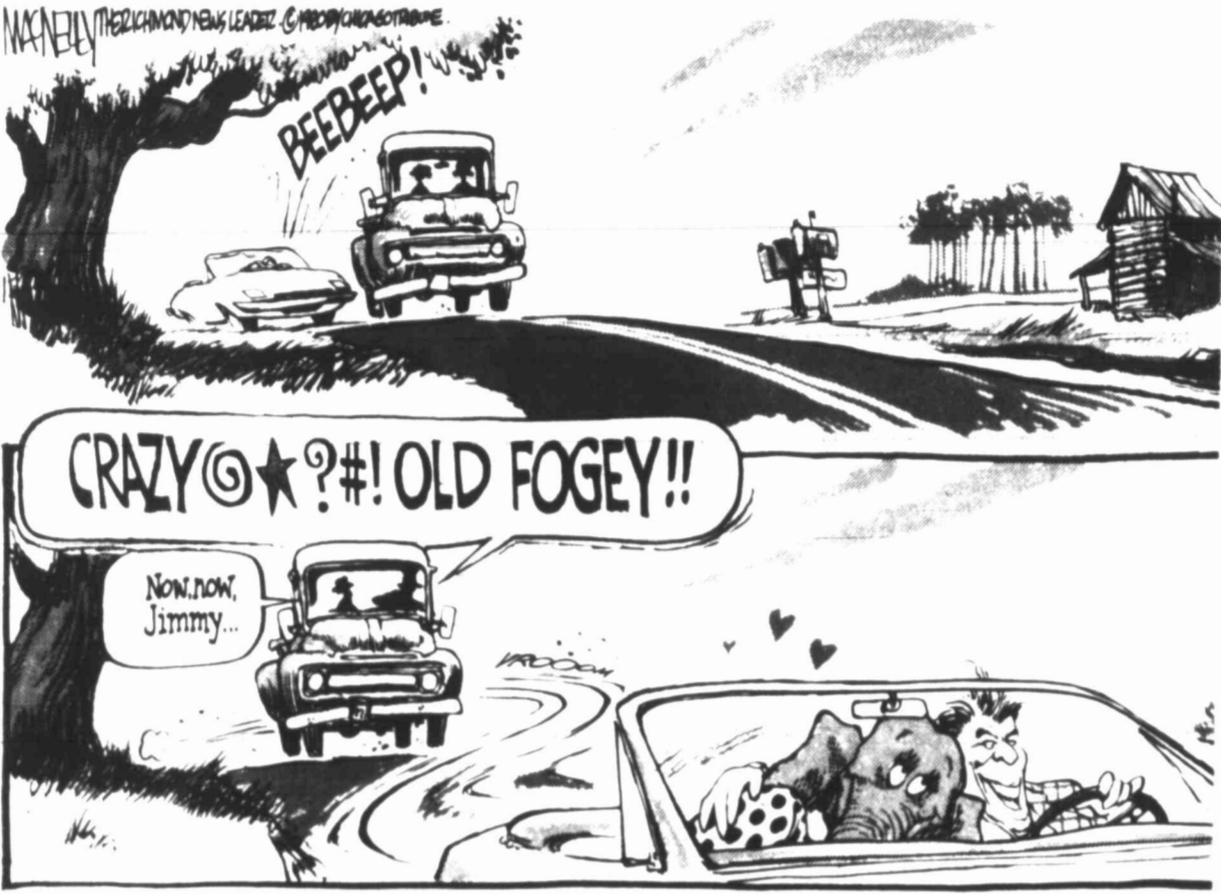

Reagan spoke of the most baffling problems in the language of T-shirts and bumper stickers. He tossed big numbers around like Frisbees. Ignorance regarding such common counters of public business as agricultural parity or United Nations Resolution No. 242 bothered him not at all. He talked of being president, in the laid-back California style, as if it were truly possible to serve in the White House as "chairman of the board."

The choice of a running mate, because of these weaknesses, was crucial for Reagan. He needed someone who would strike the country immediately as presidential. That indicated a well-known figure with experience in national and international affairs, and an appeal to moderate Republicans and middle-of-the-road Democrats in the "battleground" states of the Northeast and Middle West.

MR. FORD WAS ideal. He had been president. He united all factions of the Republican Party. He was especially strong in such states as Michigan, Illinois and New Jersey.

So Reagan's decision to go for Ford, despite differences of position and an unhappy history in personal relations, speaks well for his judgment in general, and his willingness to be pragmatic in particular. Had the negotiations borne fruit, Reagan and his people would have been hailed for political genius.

As I understand it, the effort to parcel out presidential authority proceeded reasonably smoothly. What went wrong was the personal chemistry. Ford came to feel that he was under pressure, and reacted by blabbing all over town—in his usual inadvertent, on-purpose way—about his insistence on a "meaningful role" in a "co-presidency." Reagan resented the talk, and began pressing for an immediate answer. Ford balked at what he considered an ultimatum. Reagan then called off the negotiations and turned to Bush.

She fears a second miscarriage

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When I was in my fifth month of pregnancy my baby was born. Sadly, she was too small to survive. She weighed just under two pounds. The doctor explained to us that she was a pre-viable infant. We don't really know what that means.

This was our first child, and needless to say we were devastated. We are both in our mid-20s. The doctor said this will probably never happen again. How can we be sure? Or is it just a chance we will have to take? How long should I "take it easy"? There were no complications and as far as I know I am fine. I know you will be helping a lot of women by answering this.—Mrs. D.C.

"Pre-viable" means that the baby was delivered before it had time to develop enough to survive outside the womb. Babies born before the 27th week or with a birth weight less than 2.2 pounds have much less chance of survival.

I can appreciate your great anxiety, but neither your doctor nor I can give you 100 percent assurance this will not happen again. In your case there seems to be no particular reason to think it will. The likelihood of having another miscarriage depends on whether some underlying problem caused the first one. You seem to have your doctor's assurance that no such condition existed. Therefore, the threat of another miscarriage would be no greater than if you had never had the first one. I think that's the attitude you should adopt.

You have my sincerest wishes for a pregnancy soon and my greatest expectations that nothing untoward will happen during it. The exact time you should wait before you try to conceive again should be discussed with your doctor.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I read about an eye operation for nearsightedness. I would love to throw away my glasses and I can't stand contact lenses. Do you know anything about this operation and can you refer me to someone?—B.E.T.

The procedure is called "radial keratotomy." Very tiny incisions are made in the cornea (the transparent tissue over the eyeball). This causes the cornea to expand and that corrects the defect of nearsighted focusing error.

Although the operation has been done successfully for some time in Russia, only a few ophthalmologists in North America have experience with the procedure. It is not for everyone. A careful examination is done on every potential candidate to see if he would benefit from the procedure.

The American Academy of Ophthalmology is studying the idea and is currently reserving judgment before it gives its endorsement. When that body has reached a conclusion, more definite guidelines can be given to you about the procedure.

Unless you happen to know one of the eye doctors who does this operation, you will have to wait. I'm sorry I can't refer you. Often, years must pass before such final decisions are made. Some ideas get shot down midway and never pass into general use.

Dear Dr. Donohue: We are told our five-year-old has coarctation of his aorta. Can you give me some information on this? What about surgery for this, which has been recommended?—Mrs. F.V.

Coarctation of the aorta is just the opposite of an aneurysm. An aneurysm is a bulging out of a section like a weak spot in a balloon. The coarctation, is instead, a narrowing of a portion. It is almost always the result of a defect before birth. The narrowing usually develops where the blood vessels to the upper part of the body have branched off from the aorta, the large artery leaving the heart.

This gives the peculiar development of high blood pressure in the arms and low blood pressure in the legs. In one sense, coarctation is a mixed blessing. It is one of the few correctible forms of high blood pressure. Removing the narrowed section and replacing it usually corrects the blood pressure problem.

Coarctation of the aorta is one of the more common congenital heart defects. The surgery is safe, the narrowing will not recur and chances for complete recovery are excellent, especially at your child's age. Surgery for this is often done between the ages of four and eight.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble—symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery—read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I committed a very great sin several months ago, and the memory constantly haunts me. I have asked God for forgiveness many, many times, but has He really forgiven me?—M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Under what condition does God forgive sin? This is the key to your problem. Does He do it one way sometimes, and another way another time? No! God does not change, and in His Word, the Bible, we find the basis for true forgiveness.

Sin, the Bible tells us, is the greatest problem of the human race. It is universal, for "There is no one righteous, not even one" (Romans 3:10). And it has devastating effects on us. It creates broken relationships, and it has brought death into the world. But most of all, it has made us guilty before God and broken our relationship with Him. Your problem is not just the one sin you committed, serious as that might have been. It is a larger problem—all the sins you ever have committed, both great and small.

But the Bible tells us that God loves us, in spite of our sin. He loves us so much that He was willing for His Beloved son, Jesus Christ, to come into the world and die as a sacrifice for our sins. The Bible says, "You see, at just the right time, when we were still powerless, Christ died for the ungodly... God demonstrates His own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:6, 8). All your sins were laid on Christ, and when He died, He took the punishment that you deserved for your sins—including the one you mention.

Are you trusting Jesus Christ for your salvation? Do you believe that He died for you, and that your only hope of salvation is in Him? If so, know that God has forgiven you. The Bible promises, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9). Trust that promise and thank God for the forgiveness He has given you if you have trusted Christ.

Major scandal

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—Some of the good ol' boys around Jimmy Carter have demonstrated an overpowering attraction for Libya's Muammar Qaddafi, the darling of world terrorists. This is developing into a major scandal which has already produced some incriminating conversations, secretly recorded and erased in a Watergate.

The real lure, of course, is Qaddafi's abundant petrodollars, which he has handed out to terrorist gangs and President Carter's brother Billy alike. The fiery Qaddafi has been characterized best by the Central Intelligence Agency, which has called him "the world's most unabashed proponent of revolutionary violence."

BILLY CARTER made his first excursion to Libya in September 1978. He brought along an entourage of Georgians who were eager, I was told, to relieve Qaddafi of some of his petrobucks. So I flew to Libya to find out what the president's brother had been up to.

It didn't take long to discover what Qaddafi wanted out of the Carter administration. He was furious over Washington's refusal to deliver some airliners and transport planes which he had purchased from the United States.

Qaddafi positively fumed when he spoke to me about it. "The United States is behaving as a thief," he bristled. "They didn't give us planes. They didn't give us even our money back."

I saw classified diplomatic dispatches and spoke to confidential sources. Afterward, I reported that the Libyans hoped to use the president's brother to get their planes released and that Billy Carter "talked to the Libyans about lifting the freeze..." Billy Carter has now admitted accepting a $220,000 advance on a $500,000 "loan," which the Libyans granted him for no more than a handshake. He also accepted expensive gifts and two all-expenses-paid trips to Libya, and he could collect enormous commissions for representing Libya on commercial deals.

Two months after Billy Carter returned from Libya, his brother in the White House released two Boeing 727 airliners to the Libyans. This was opposed, according to State Department sources, by then-Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

VANCE FEARED Qaddafi might use the planes for military purposes, which apparently is exactly what happened. A few months later, two 727s were spotted at the Nairobi airport in Kenya. U.S. intelligence experts believe the planes were being used to ferry military supplies from Libya to Uganda to support the bloody dictatorship of Idi Amin who later fled to Libya.

About the same time that Billy Carter was wheeling and dealing in Libya, fugitive financier Robert Vesco was also trying to secure the release of the controversial planes. He was in a unique bargaining position. Emissaries, claiming to speak for the White House, had urged him to keep his mouth shut about his efforts to buy influence inside the Carter administration. Vesco asked for the release of the planes as evidences of good faith.

He told Senate Judiciary Committee investigators earlier this month that the Libyan government credited him for the release of the two 727s and paid him "a substantial sum of money." He also let the investigators listen to part of a startling conversation he had secretly recorded.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The government has enlisted Henry "The Fonz" Winkler to encourage 19- and 20-year-olds to register for the draft. Opponents of registration have countered with a bumper sticker that says: "Draft Army." Caution is the rule at Foggy Bottom.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor:

Yesterday, a family of 9 arrived in Big Spring from one of our neighboring states seeking medical care for a seriously ill father. The family exhausted all of their funds in traveling to Big Spring for medical help. After their arrival the family was advised to immediately seek housing and food stamp assistance from HUD and DHR respectively. The family applied at the two government agencies explaining their unfortunate flight to Big Spring and were told that it would take the agencies at least a week in processing their applications prior to receiving any assistance.

At this point the family faced a serious dilemma to put it mildly: no money, no home, no food, and the bread winner lay seriously ill in a local hospital not expecting to live.

"What shall we do?" was the cry of the mother to her 7 little children, as heard by one of our citizens who told her of a good friend, The Salvation Army. The mother and her children arrived at our Center at about 5:15 p.m. and were met by our Caseworker who listened to this lady's tragic story and counseled her in regard to the problem and how the Army could be of help. Following the interview the Caseworker made several inquiries with the hospital, the doctor and several other sources to verify the authenticity of the claim.

At 6:00 p.m. the family was enjoying a hot meal in our dining room and by 6:30 p.m. they were on their way to a furnished apartment rented by the Army and with a check in their hand to a local store for food.

Tommy, I often wonder what might happen to families like this one, and the other 13,338 persons served since the beginning of this year, if we did not have sufficient resources to help during a time of crisis. Wouldn't it be tragic, if we too, said to a person in despair: "It will be a week before we can be of help." Fortunately, we currently have sufficient funds to meet such needs and this is why I wish to express again my wholehearted thanks to you and the Herald for inspiring the giving of our citizens during our recent Special Appeal. To date we have raised $14,626 or 47 percent of the funds needed to supplement our budget and United Way grant of $17,000.00. We appreciate the generous gifts received thus far and trust the remaining 53 percent will be forthcoming in the next few weeks, so that we may remain prepared to serve.

Thank you again and may the God whom we serve bless you richly. With every good wish, I remain,

Fans in museum exhibit

NEW YORK (AP) — Two ostrich-feather fans that once shielded burlesque dancer Sally Rand have become part of a museum exhibit dedicated to "feather arts."

The feathers, on loan from the Chicago Historical Society, were put on exhibit at the Museum of Natural History here Tuesday with a bit of fanfare. Dana Moore, a member of the cast of the Broadway musical "Sugar Babies," did a dance with them.

Miss Rand became a national sensation with her appearance at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933. Despite sporadic charges of indecent exposure, she continued fan dancing into her 70s and died last year at the age of 75.

Orlando helps retarded

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (AP) — Singer Tony Orlando has given his sister's name and $10,000 to a home for retarded people and persuaded a Boardwalk casino hotel to contribute another $15,000 to the cause.

The name of Orlando's late half-sister, Rhonda Marie Schroeder, will be used for a new home for retarded people to be operated by the Atlantic County Association for Retarded Citizens.

Miss Schroeder, a victim of mental retardation and cerebral palsy, died three years ago at the age of 21.

Ali having physical exam

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali has entered the Mayo Clinic for a complete physical, a clinic spokesman said.

Ali, who signed into the clinic Tuesday afternoon after flying into Rochester from Allentown, Pa., has said he would get an OK from his doctor before launching his try for a fourth championship.

Ali is coming out of retirement to meet World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes on Oct. 2 in Las Vegas, Nev. Ali's last fight was Sept. 15, 1978 when he recaptured the World Boxing Association title by defeating Leon Spinks in New Orleans.

'Peter Pan' gets married

NEW YORK (AP) — Taking advantage of a day off from the Broadway revival of "Peter Pan," actress Sandy Duncan married Don Correia, the man with whom she dances in a current television commercial.

The wedding ceremony was performed Monday on the terrace of the petite actress' upper East Side penthouse. A small group of family and friends attended.

It was the third marriage for the 34-year-old Miss Duncan and the first for the 29-year-old Correia.

Proposal allowing increased tax revenues given go sign

Big Spring School Board members passed a proposal allowing increased tax revenue to the district at a special meeting and public hearing Monday evening.

The public hearing is mandated when tax revenues are increased by over three percent from the year before.

A total of four school board members were present and all voted for the proposal. No taxpayers showed for an explanation or discussion of the tax revenue increase.

Three school board members were absent.

Trustees meet again July 31 to vote on a proposed change in the tax rate to balance an increase in rate of assessment.

Legislators passed the Peveto Bill (SB 621) in the last session which mandates all taxing entities assess taxes at 100 percent of property value. The tax rate will be adjusted so the increased rate of assessment will not raise taxes.

White, accused of hitting man in mouth with brick, posts bail

James Earl White, 17, 901 NW 5th, is free on $2,500 bond set by City Judge John Coffee. White was arrested Sunday on suspicion of aggravated assault of Gary Hamilton.

White allegedly hit Hamilton in the mouth with a brick and cut him on the back with a bottle. White said Hamilton struck first in a fight at 809 Wyoming.

White was transferred to county jail Monday and released on bail.

Mississippi man is guilty of hindering secured creditor

Jimmy Claude Magarity, Florence, Miss., entered a plea of guilty in 118th District Court Monday to hindering a secured creditor.

He received a six-year probation sentence for contracting or purchase of a car then taking it across state lines. He is also ordered to pay restitution to the Howard County Sheriff's Office.

Magarity will pay $100 per month until Oct. 1, 1980.

Magarity was arrested July 13 in Brandon, Miss. He was transferred to Howard county jail the next day by Deputy Sheriff William Shankles.

Moore freed on personal bond following fuss with landlord

Bobby Lee Moore, 37, 1511-A Sycamore, is free on $10,000 personal recognition bond after his arrest on a criminal mischief warrant.

The warrant arose on a dispute with Moore's landlord, Lloyd Davidson, IS 20 trailer park.

Moore was arrested at the courthouse Monday and released on bond.

GOP convention not heavily viewed

NEW YORK (AP) — The networks devoted more than half of last week's prime time to coverage of the Republican National Convention, but it was non-political programming that attracted the most viewers, according to figures from the A. C. Nielsen Co.

"The Jeffersons," a consistent hit on CBS, was the highest-rated show for the week ending July 20, followed by five other CBS shows, including "60 Minutes" in second place and "Alice" in third.

CBS beat the opposition by a narrow margin in the three-way competition for convention viewers, and with help from the half-dozen non-political programs, finished first in the weekly ratings race.

CBS' rating for the week was 11.3 to 8.7 for both NBC and ABC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 11.3 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

Poor, though not necessarily unexpected, ratings for the convention contributed heavily to the extraordinarily low marks for the week.

More than half the viewers during the four nights of the convention, Monday through Thursday, chose alternate programming on independent or public stations.

CBS' coverage of the convention finale Thursday night was the highest-rated of the programs from the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit — 24th in the ratings.

The three networks carried 13 hours of simultaneous convention coverage in prime time, and CBS had the highest rating, 7.7 to 7.6 for NBC and 6.5 for ABC. That means in an average minute during the convention, 7.7 percent of the country's homes with television were watching CBS.

A special Monday night edition of CBS' "60 Minutes," featuring an interview with the eventual

Trio charged for possession

Charges were filed Monday against three arrested July 15 on suspicion of possession of methamphetamine at the home of Larry Glen James.

James, his wife, Danya Jeannie and Mark Lewis Nairn were charged in a complaint filed by Major Crime Task Force Member Mike Eggleston in the office of Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

The three were arrested in a raid on the James home at 510 Donley

GOP presidential nominee, Ronald Reagan, scored in the ratings — 17th place — as did two convention-oriented editions of ABC's "20-20." A Tuesday night installment was 23rd for the week, while a Monday night program finished 25th.

In a non-prime time sidelight, ABC's "World News Tonight" finished No. 1 in the weekly evening news sweepstakes for the first time ever. Twice in the week, however, CBS began its convention coverage at 7 p.m., bypassing the regular "Evening News" broadcast. Here are the week's highest-rated programs: "The Jeffersons," with a rating of 20.7 representing 15.8 million homes, "60 Minutes," 19.6 or 15 million, "Alice," 19.4 or 14.8 million,

"Trapper John, M.D.," 19.1 or 14.6 million, "Dallas," 18.6 or 14.2 million, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 17.7 or 13.5 million, all CBS, "CHiPs" 16.2 or 12.4 million, NBC, "Love Boat," 15.9 or 12.1 million, and "Fantasy Island," 15.4 or 11.8 million, both ABC, and "The Awakening Land," Part I, NBC, and "Archie Bunker's Place" and "One Day at a Time," both CBS, all 14.2 or 10.8 million.

The rest of the Top 20: "Moonrunners," ABC; "The Islander," CBS; "Ed Clark for President," spot, and "240 Robert," both ABC; "60 Minutes," Monday edition, and "The Incredible Hulk," both CBS, and "Different Strokes," Friday edition, and "Me & Maxx," both NBC.

American Thermo enters plea for bankruptcy

American Thermo Products Inc., a Fort Worth based firm which announced plans to expand to Big Spring about eight months ago but which was never able to get its local plant in operation, has entered a plea for bankruptcy in the northern (Fort Worth) district of the United States Bankruptcy Court.

The company manufactures Styrofoam covers. A meeting with creditors of American Thermo has been scheduled for 1 p.m. in Room 519 of the U.S. Courthouse in Fort Worth next Tuesday. St. Clair Newbern III of Fort Worth will be the presiding officer at the meeting.

Oscar Holt is owner and manager of American Thermo Products. Holt rented space at the old Howard County Airport here for his local operation but shortly thereafter ran into money problems when he over-extended his credit.

Last day for filing claims against American Thermo Products is Jan. 29, 1981.

Flowers planted on grounds of Big Spring State Hospital

A total of 35 shrubs and 20 flowers were planted on Big Spring State Hospital grounds Tuesday morning by the Howard County Extension Office staff and the local 4-H Club Council, composed of the two officers of each of the five local clubs.

Services Council through his business, Mr. G's, 2301 Gregg, for use in the project. Crooker surveyed the grounds a few weeks ago for the 4-H Council to determine what kind of plants would grow best.

The Adolescent Section of the hospital will care for the greenery and plant other flowers when the ones planted bloom.

Weather

Brief rain no help in breaking heat

By the Associated Press. Showers and thunderstorms were forecast for South Texas and the mountains of Southwest Texas today but the general rainfall needed to break the lengthy heat wave was nowhere in sight.

The remainder of the state was to have clear to partly cloudy skies and continued hot temperatures. Highs were to be around and slightly above 100.

It was expected to be the 31st consecutive day for the mercury to rise above 100 at Wichita Falls and in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. It was 102 at Dallas-Fort Worth Tuesday.

Clear skies and mild temperatures were reported around the state early today.

A few thundershowers were reported during the night in northern sections of the Panhandle, in far West Texas and along the coast. Most of the activity had ended long before dawn. A few showers were reported in the Panhandle during the pre-dawn hours.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s. Extremes ranged from 68 at Amarillo to 80 at Galveston.

WEATHER FORECAST — Hot weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Thursday morning, from the Southwest into the central Plains. Cooler weather is forecast for the Northeast. Much of the nation will be warm. Showers are forecast from the eastern Gulf to the mid-Atlantic regions.

Low prices, high costs put squeeze on fishermen

GLoucester, Mass. (AP) — For as long as most of them can remember, New England fishermen had the same complaint: too few fish.

Three years ago, the United States imposed a 200-mile fishing limit and eliminated competition from the Soviets and Europeans whose voracious fleets swept the seas clean.

Now New England fishermen have a new complaint: too many fish.

Prices have crashed during the past few months, and the dream of a profitable rebirth for their ancient industry has been wrecked by the forces of supply and demand.

At 4 a.m. every day, Charles Frontiero and his son and a mate churn out of Gloucester Harbor aboard the old wooden Madrugador. And at 4 p.m., they return with their day's catch of flounder.

At the end of a week, each man took home $188. "A hundred and eighty-eight dollars," Frontiero repeated with disgust. "A week's pay. What can you do with that?"

For hundreds of other fishermen in Gloucester, a city that has lived on fishing for 357 years, the story is the same. It is the same at other big and little fishing ports along the New England coast.

The United States assumed jurisdiction over all fishing within 200 miles of its shores in 1977. Virtually all foreigners who had dominated these fishing grounds for decades were banned.

For the first time in memory, the crusty, antiquated New England fishing fleet began to grow. Backed by federal loans, shipyards turned out big, gleaming steel ships that cost $1 million or more. The number of fishing boats based in the region increased 30 percent to almost 800. New fishermen joined old fishermen on the seas.

But while the catches of fresh fish have steadily increased, demand has not. So when the recession struck, fish prices abruptly fell. Around February, the price of fish on the docks dropped from about 40 cents a pound to about 10 cents.

"The fish prices go up and down, but mostly down," said Frontiero, who has been fishing for 47 of his 60 years. "We're having a third of what we should be making. There's too damned many boats. That's the cause of all our problems. The more boats there are, the worse it's going to be."

Jeff Tutein, 24, stood on the wharf sewing new nets for the Stella G. Like most New England fishermen, he works for a share of the catch, not an hourly wage.

Until recently, he and his mates were getting 30 cents a pound for whiting, enough to make a decent living. "But then the price went to eight cents, just like that," he said.

So they were outfitting the boat to catch bottom-feeding fish — mostly cod, flounder and haddock. The price of these fish is depressed, too, and in recent weeks they have been scarce.

"You have to do something," he complained. "The ground fish haven't been around either, but you have to try it. You can't stay home."

Nearby, skipper Salvador Albano was getting the Annie Marie ready to sail for Georges Bank.

"We're working for nothing," he lamented. "We stay out eight, 10 days. Then we come back to Gloucester and get 10 cents a pound."

As on all boats, the Annie Marie's mortgage and insurance payments and other expenses must be met before the crew is paid. And the price of diesel fuel, ice and food have risen steadily.

"I don't know what's going on in America," Albano said. "Everything else is up, and the price of fish is down. It's futile."

Last month, 50 scallopers and 130 druggers in New Bedford stopped fishing for a month to protest the low prices. But there was still so much fish available that their catches were not missed. And the low prices never budged.

Because the dockside cost of fish is such a small part of the retail price, the cost of fish in markets and restaurants has not dropped correspondingly.

During better times a couple of years ago, fishermen on large trawlers were earning $35,000 a year; the pay for scallopers reached $50,000.

But Joseph Mueller, an economist with the National Marine Fisheries Service, says fishermen's earnings have been declining since 1978. And this year, things have gotten decidedly worse.

Besides the recession, demand for New England's fresh fish is being dampened by competition from imported frozen fish and relatively cheap chicken and pork.

"All of these factors were resulting in pressure at the vessel level to drive prices down," he said. "Combined with that, fishermen were experiencing considerable cost increases. They are getting caught in a real cost-price squeeze. There isn't any single culprit, but certainly the big expansion of the fleet has played a large role."

And Mueller sees no rise in prices anytime soon. Any recovery will be slowed by the large catches of the growing fishing fleet.

Klansmen free; violence erupts

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A rash of suspected firebombings, brick-throwing and looting broke out overnight in a predominantly black section of Chattanooga after a jury acquitted two of three Ku Klux Klansmen charged with shooting four black women.

A third Klansman was found guilty of reduced assault charges in the verdict returned by an all-white jury Tuesday.

No one was seriously hurt in the disturbances. Police, increasing their patrols in the city's Alton Park section, arrested six persons for looting during the night.

Police spokesman Doug Fisher said at least six blazes were reported during the night, with five believed ignited by firebombs. The most extensive damage was reported at an industrial warehouse.

More than half a dozen brick-throwing incidents were reported. Police sealed off part of the Alton Park area.

Asked whether police thought the violence was related to the Klan trial verdict, Fisher said, "Quite obviously everybody is going to draw their own conclusions, but we have no firm evidence that this is related."

The incidents were, however, "totally out of the norm," Fisher said. Shortly after the verdict was returned Tuesday, Harry Hill of the Youth Coalition, a black community organization, praised the state's prosecution of the Klansmen for the April 19 shootings. But "as far as the verdict, it's a joke," he said.

Hill said he did not think the blacks in this city of 170,000 would be satisfied with the jury's findings.

"There'll be a backlash," he predicted. "I hope it'll be on the positive side."

Defense lawyers, who had urged jurors to decide the defendants' guilt or innocence without considering the verdict's effect on racial relations, said they were pleased with the outcome.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated for nearly six hours over two days before reaching a decision Tuesday.

But Viola Ellison, 64, one of the four black women who was wounded, said, "I don't feel good about it."

The women were struck by shotgun blasts fired from a car as they walked from a tavern in the city's Ninth Street area.

William Church, 23, who calls himself imperial wizard of the Justice Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and member Larry Payne, 26, were acquitted of four counts each of assault with intent to commit murder which resulted in bodily injury.

Marshall Thrash, 30, also a member of Church's group, testified he fired the shotgun from a red Mustang that Church was driving. Thrash was convicted of three reduced counts of assault and battery and another reduced charge, simple assault.

He was fined a total of $225 and given three workhouse sentences, two of nine months each and one of two months.

Hispanics enthusiastic about ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — While Hispanic leaders voiced enthusiastic approval for a federal judge's order that allows illegal alien children to enter school this fall, Texas officials say they will appeal the ruling.

"The decision by (U.S. District Judge) Woodrow Seals is a landmark decision bringing Texas back in line with the concept of equal opportunity," Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said Tuesday.

Bonilla said he would ask the state to support Seals' ruling Monday that struck down a 1975 Texas law barring undocumented children from public schools because "an appeal would reflect an attitude of indifference."

Mark White, Texas Attorney General, said Tuesday the state will appeal the ruling and is researching the possibilities of filing a lawsuit against the federal government for not enforcing federal immigration laws.

"Now we're being told to pay for the failures of the Justice Department," White said, adding that the federal government "caused the problem and they're the ones who should pay for it."

"They're calling upon the taxpayers in the state to pay for undocumented workers' children who are unlawfully in the country," White said.

Seals ordered the state to stop enforcing the law and said Texas schools must begin admitting the students

Sept. 1. Texas officials estimate there are about 110,000 illegal alien children in the state, but the plaintiffs during the trial said the figure is closer to 20,000.

Robert Byrd, executive director of the Gulf Coast Legal Foundation, said Tuesday the Houston Independent School District may enroll no more than 1,000 undocumented children this fall, instead of the 7,000 estimated by HISD officials.

White said the appeal would attack the extension of certain constitutional rights to illegal alien children.

"It's a very broad issue and we think our position is backed by the facts we presented," White said.

Seals' ruling upheld the plaintiffs' contention that they were entitled to an equal educational opportunity under rights guaranteed in the fourteenth amendment.

White emphasized that the state was acting on the children's behalf during the five-week trial, saying "I think people should be aware that the Justice Department is taking a position supporting illegal alien children when they (the government) are the cause of the problem in the first place."

Attorneys for the plaintiffs called a press conference Tuesday to dispute what they called "gross exaggerations" and inflammatory statements made by state and school officials after the ruling was announced Monday.

Several of the attorneys said the remarks had "racial overtones" and charged that the reaction to the ruling may keep undocumented children from attending school.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, in Waco Tuesday to address a National Guard gathering, voiced his disapproval of the ruling by saying, "the main issue we must solve is the problem of undocumented aliens, not education."

"There is a contradiction of terms," Clements said, "in that illegal alien children can get our free education."

He added he felt the problem of illegal aliens could be handled by temporary work visas.

White said he was not against educating illegal alien children, but added "the big problem is who is going to pay."

"There are two losers in this," he said. "First, the children of Mexican-Americans who are trying to use the bilingual program. It is going to spread too thin. There are not enough teachers."

"Second, the taxpayer who is going to be required to pay for the expenses of these children, who should be paid for by the nation as a whole."

School officials across the state, particularly those from cities along the U.S.-Mexican border, have said the ruling will trigger a flood of undocumented children that will cause the schools severe economic problems.

Billy Reagan, HISD superintendent, said he will ask HISD board members to push for federal impact funding to help schools defray the cost of admitting the students.

While some schools in Texas admit undocumented children but charge them tuition — HISD charges $163 a month — most have simply refused to allow the students admission under the umbrella provided by the statute.

Some illegal aliens see the ruling as beneficial.

But Mario, another undocumented worker, was more apprehensive.

House panel agrees with Carter on tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee appears to agree with President Carter that no tax-cut bill should be passed this year. Now the president must convince the Senate Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee, under instructions from the Senate Democratic Caucus to produce a tax-reduction plan by Sept. 3, was opening hearings today with testimony from Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

Miller testified Tuesday before the Ways and Means Committee. To a man, Democratic members agreed with the Carter administration position that action on a tax cut should be delayed until early next year, after the fall elections.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the committee chairman, said Americans are far more concerned about halting inflation than cutting taxes.

But some House Democrats reminded Miller that it isn't easy to oppose tax cuts in an election year, especially when unemployment is rising.

"We are out on a limb for the president," said Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y. "He has to be strong, firm and unequivocal" against any tax cut this year. "If he's not," added Downey, "you're going to have a lot of angry Democrats."

"And an angry secretary of the treasury as well," offered Miller.

The pressure is on congressional Democrats because Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan and many GOP members of the House and Senate are demanding an immediate vote on a $36 billion tax cut that would take effect next Jan. 1.

The administration contends any such action now would worsen inflation and bring even more uncertainty to a troubled economy. Carter's advisers agree a tax cut probably will be necessary early next year, but they insist it would be smart to wait until then before passing it.

Nevertheless, Senate Democrats were so alarmed last month when Reagan and congressional Republicans seized the tax-cut issue that they immediately promised to come up with a plan of their own.

The Finance Committee has arranged two weeks of public hearings on tax cuts. A recess for the Democratic National Convention will leave little time for the committee then to write a tax bill before the Sept. 3 deadline.

Administration officials say that passing a tax cut now might signal the financial markets that the government is weakening in its fight against inflation. Any tax cut — at least in the short run — would worsen the federal budget deficit and require the government to borrow more.

But beyond that concern, the president's advisers say that considering a tax cut in the heat of presidential and congressional elections would tempt lawmakers to fatten the tax reduction and vote relief for all sorts of special interests.

Liquor stores conspired to fix prices, judge says

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded nearly $1 million in damages to patrons of some Lubbock County liquor stores that jurors said conspired to fix prices.

Jurors ruled Tuesday that the eight defendants in the four-year-old lawsuit must pay $927,000 in overcharges to customers who patronized the stores between 1970 and 1974.

Those individual patrons, however, will be paid if and when they prove the overcharges in a separate court hearing.

Defendants listed in the suit included Pinkie's Inc., Cecil's Inc., The All Star Co., Cross Keys Package Store Inc., the Lubbock County Beverage Association, Bob Grimes, Hubert Odum and Kenneth Odum.

The lawsuit, filed by then Texas Tech University law student David Greenhaw, contended that several liquor store owners and operators had conspired to set and maintain county-wide liquor prices and alleviate competitive marketing.

The decision marks the third time a federal jury has found the eight defendants guilty of conspiring to set prices along "the strip," a portion of county road lined with liquor stores outside of Lubbock.

Greenhaw, now a Stanton attorney, alleged in his suit that the four liquor store corporations and three individuals connected with two of the businesses, along with the now-defunct Lubbock County Beverage Association conspired to set and maintain county-wide liquor prices.

The eight defendants previously pleaded guilty to criminal price fixing charges and were assessed fines and probated jail sentences.

The Justice Department also filed a civil anti-trust suit against same defendants and a federal judge issued an injunction prohibiting them from participating in price fixing.

Thunderstorms ease heat wave, drench East Coast

By the Associated Press
Sun-scorched land from Florida to Texas soaked up some rain as thunderstorms lowered the heat wave's record-breaking temperatures a little, and violent storms in the East left thousands without electrical power.

Renewed flash flood warnings were issued in Mississippi, where several hundred people stayed away from their flooded homes for a second day after an 11-inch rainfall.

"In some places there was water coming up the windows," said Humphreys County Sheriff John Jones.

Tornado warnings were posted in New Jersey, where more than 75,000 utility customers were without power, and the mercury dropped 16 degrees to a refreshing 75 degrees in New York during a furious downpour.

Brief but welcome rain fell throughout Texas, parts of Georgia and the Gulf Coast, Arkansas and elsewhere in the nation's midsection. Agriculturists said, however, it would take more rain to offset the effects of drought and the heat wave that has claimed an unofficial 1,226 lives since June 22.

The rain skipped Wichita Falls, Texas, where the mercury surged above 100 degrees for the 30th consecutive day. Dallas and Fort Worth hit 102 degrees, also the 30th straight day of 100-plus readings.

Falling on hot, cracked land, much of the rainfall evaporated quickly. Some soaked into the ground, but there was little runoff to replenish abnormally low lakes, said Virgil Helms of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service in Dallas.

In Arkansas, the federal Farmers Home Administration declared the state a disaster area because of the drought and heat.

The declaration will enable farmers who have suffered losses to get low-interest loans. Estimates of damage to crops range from $500 million to $600 million.

Missouri temperatures were in the 80s and 90s for a second day after three weeks of 100-plus readings, and forecasters said the high pressure system that caused the heat wave had moved east.

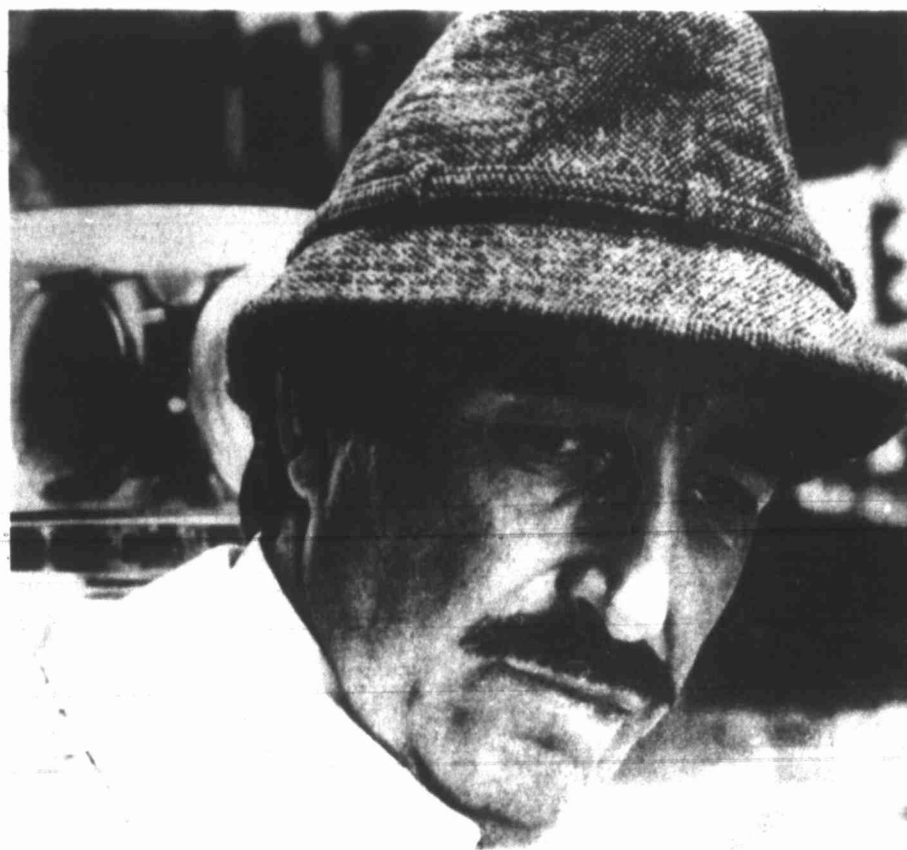

The National Weather Service in Kansas City said that while the country can expect more hot weather this summer, there probably won't be any more two- to three-week stretches to match the recent heat wave.

And the new, cooler temperatures and rain in the nation's farmbelt may be the turning point in the heat wave, according to the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility of the departments of Commerce and Agriculture.

In Mississippi, National Guardsmen patrolled flooded neighborhoods in Belzoni today as hundreds of residents waited for water — up to 4 feet in some homes — to recede.

More than 350 people stayed overnight in an emergency shelter at an elementary school.

Tuesday's 1-inch rainfall did not significantly add to the flooding, which was unleashed the day before when 11 inches of rain fell in parts of the delta. Water swirled up to 4 feet in some homes in Humphreys, Sharkey, Washington and Sunflower counties.

White House acknowledgement

Billy used as mediator

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's national security adviser capitalized on Billy Carter's controversial relations with the Libyan government by using him as a go-between in seeking Libya's assistance in an effort to gain release of the American hostages in Iran, White House officials say.

The revelation marks the first acknowledgment by White House officials that the president's gregarious, plain-spoken younger brother, who reluctantly registered with the Justice Department last week as an agent of the Libyan government, played any role in U.S. foreign policy.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell, in a lengthy briefing Tuesday on the controversy swirling about Billy Carter, said national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski asked him to set up a meeting on Nov. 27, 1979, with Ali el Houderi, Libya's chief Washington representative.

A written statement released by Powell's office noted that the meeting between Brzezinski, Houderi and Billy Carter took place "three weeks after the seizure of the hostages (in Iran), and the United States was exploring every possible avenue of contact with the Iranian leaders."

Powell said he didn't know whether the president was aware of the meeting. But he also insisted, "There can hardly be any serious thought that the president's brother is in a position to advise the president on foreign policy matters."

While the meeting was unsuccessful in winning the hostages' freedom, Powell said Brzezinski was informed a few weeks later that Col. Moammar Khadafi, leader of Libya's leftist Arab government, had sent a message to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in Iran calling for their release.

President Carter, in a two-paragraph statement on the controversy, said it was not "appropriate for a close relative of the president to undertake any assignment on behalf of a foreign government," and he called for a full public disclosure of "the existence of any such relationship."

The president did not mention his brother's receipt of $220,000 from the Libyans, which Billy Carter and the Libyans have characterized as part of a $500,000 loan.

Billy Carter was surrounded by reporters as he left a restaurant at a New York hotel, where he was staying Tuesday night. When a reporter held up a newspaper with the headline, "White House Says: Asked Billy Aid on Hostages," the president's brother said: "Paper's right." He refused further comment.

SET UP MEETING — Billy Carter, brother of President Carter, speaks to reporters in New York Tuesday, while he was in town for a couple of television appearances. White House officials reported Tuesday that Billy Carter set up a meeting last November between national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi in an attempt to get Libyan support for the release of the Americans being held hostage in Iran.

Contamination?

Officials test for Agent Orange in water supply

POINT, Texas (AP) — Dallas and Longview have turned off their water pumps at Lake Tawakoni while federal and state officials test for possible contamination from a chemical dump near the lake.

At the Texas Department of Water Resources in Kilgore, federal and Sabine River Authority officials began testing topsoil and water from the lake for traces of Agent Orange, a powerful herbicide that may have leaked from chemical canisters buried nearby.

"We don't even know in fact if that's (Agent Orange) what it is. We're talking about a very limited amount. This has gotten blown all out of proportion," said Jack Tatum, SRA technical services manager.

City spokesmen for Dallas and Longview said they expected no problems, but were shutting down pumps as a precaution.

Tom Taylor, director of Dallas Water Utilities, said the shutdown would be only for "a few days" and would not affect the city's overall water supply.

"We have four other water supplies we will use until the chemical is identified," Taylor said. "In a very few days, a decision will be made (on reopening Tawakoni)."

In Longview, city manager Ray Jackson said pumps were being shut down because "it's better to be safe than sorry."

However, officials in Greenville, a city which receives its entire water supply from Lake Tawakoni, refused to shut down pumps, saying that the reports of possible contamination were "just rumors."

Maynard Nelson, director of the Iron Bridge Division of the Sabine River Authority, the site of the chemical dump, said several chemical containers were buried about 150 yards from the lake in 1978 "just to get them out of the way."

The pit is about 24 feet long, 10 feet wide and six to eight feet deep, said Phillip Payne, SRA maintenance and operations supervisor.

The chemicals had been stored in a barn since 1968.

"A lot of the barrels were rusting, and the stuff was leaking out," Payne said. "We were told to get rid of it and we did."

Several of the containers' labels were unreadable and officials were unable to identify some of the chemicals they buried at the site, Nelson said.

Will Terrell, director of public works for the city of Greenville, said officials at the SRA had "assured" him no hazardous chemicals had leaked into the lake, and that daily tests of the water were conducted by the SRA.

However, Terrell said he didn't know what chemicals officials were testing for.

The tests will show whether the chemicals or their byproducts, such as dioxins, have seeped from the pit into the lake.

The Sabine River Authority supplies about 20 percent of Dallas' water, as well as supplying 10 million gallons of water per day for Longview, and more than 6 million gallons a day for Greenville.

Rising college education costs: New squeeze on family budgets

NEW YORK (AP) — The cost of a four-year college education at a private school is now higher than the median income of all U.S. families, and the worst is yet to come.

A student who attends a four-year, private college or university and lives on campus will face a bill of over $6,000 for the coming academic year, up from about $5,500 last fall, according to a new study.

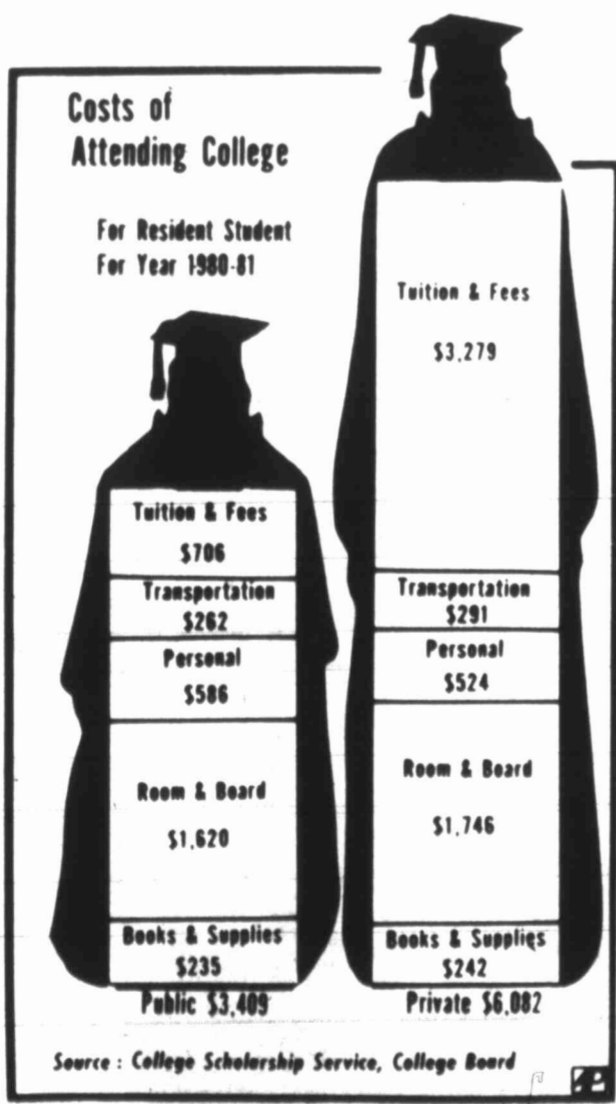

Joe Paul Case, director of program administration for the College Scholarship Service, says the $20,000-a-year college education is approaching.

The College Board on Tuesday released its annual estimate of college costs for the 1980-81 academic year, based on a survey of 3,200 schools. Case said the increase from last year's figures was lower than the boost in the preceding year and lower than expected "considering the way inflation has escalated." But he painted a gloomy picture for students and parents struggling to pay the bills.

He said Congress is unlikely to increase federal aid for college students this year. "Without increased appropriations," he said, "more students will have to share the same financial-aid pie."

Case said college costs have gone up about 90 percent since 1970. If the rate of increase continues, he said, "we'll see college expenses approach $20,000 a year at high-cost colleges by the end of the decade."

Students and their parents now pay 56 percent of the college bill, according to the College Board. The rest private, four-year colleges and universities. At that rate, a four-year education would cost $24,328. The Conference Board, a non-profit, business research organization in New York City, calculates that the median family income for 1980 is $21,350. (The median is the exact midpoint; half of all families have a higher income; half have a lower income.)

According to the survey, the 1980-81 cost of a year at a private, four-year college for a resident student will be 10.3 percent higher than it was last year. From 1978 to 1979, the cost rose 10.6 percent.

Costs for resident students at public, four-year colleges will be an average of 8.1 percent higher this fall — $3,409 for the year — than they were last fall. During the preceding year, costs at the four-year, public institutions went up 8.5 percent.

able to pay...and the rising cost of college will widen," he said.

The board survey indicated that total annual costs — tuition, room and board, transportation, books and personal expenses — during the 1980-81 academic year will average $6,082 at

Yugoslavs hope to replace US in Olympic basketball

MOSCOW (AP) — In the absence of the boycotting Americans, Olympic basketball fans are looking to Yugoslavia for the most creative, U.S.-style play in the men's tournament.

beat Senegal 104-67. "In Montreal we played the Americans in the finals and learned much from their play," said Yugoslav Coach Ranko Zeravica, recalling the 1976 contest that the U.S. won 95-74 en route to a gold medal.

competition. The tournament includes three groups of four teams each. In group A, the heavily-favored Soviet Union plays Czechoslovakia Wednesday to qualify and challenge for Olympic gold...

Boasting such players as center Kresimir Cosic, a former star at Brigham Young University, and silky smooth Drazen Dalipagic and Dragan Kicanovic, Yugoslavia is already through to the semifinals after an impressive 129-91 victory Tuesday over Poland. Earlier, Yugoslavia beat Senegal 104-67.

Poland's loss meant that Spain, looking for its first Olympic medal in basketball and inspired by Minnesota-born forward Wayne Brabender, now a Spanish citizen, also went through to the semifinals. Spain beat Senegal Tuesday 94-65.

Meanwhile, the Soviet women's team cruised to a 122-83 win over Bulgaria Tuesday and appeared invincible in their defense of their Olympic title of 1976, the first year the event was included in the Games. Their 122 points was an Olympic record for most points scored in a women's game.

State insurance advertising rules among toughest in United States

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Insurance Board has adopted new truth-in-advertising rules that one member says are among the nation's toughest.

The rules, which take effect in six months, require insurers to disclose policy loopholes in their advertising and prohibit deception in advertising of "Medi-Gap" policies for the elderly.

Board staffers began work on the new rules more than three years ago at the direction of former board Chairman Joe Christie, who said existing guidelines allowed too much deceptive advertising to go unchecked.

Board members Bill Daves, Lyndon Olson Jr. and Durwood Manford voted unanimously for the rules.

"These are some of the toughest and probably the strongest advertising rules in the country. They are fair to the consumer and fair to the industry. ... The rules provide the kind of strength we as regulators need to make sure consumers are not misled in any form or fashion," Olson said.

A committee of insurance men worked with board staffers Linda Borsheim, Jim Norman and Woody Pogue to put the regulations in final form.

A company that disobeys the rules could, at minimum, receive a cease and desist order from the board and could be fined or placed under direct board supervision.

While most advertising complaints stem from promotion of hospitalization insurance, the rules also cover life and property and casualty insurance ads.

Old persons complained at hearings in November and December of widespread deception in marketing "Medi-Gap" policies, advertised as covering "everything that Medicare doesn't pay."

Previous guidelines allowed health insurance advertisers to gloss over the fact that their policies contained major limitations and exclusions.

For the first time, the board will regulate advertising for health maintenance organizations and prepaid legal service plans.

The new rules include these requirements or prohibitions: — An advertisement may not say "no medical examination required" if, in fact, the policy does not cover pre-existing ailments. If a medical examination is required, the advertisement must say so if it includes an application form.

— Medi-Gap and other advertisements may not be printed or packaged in such a way that a person might be tricked into thinking it came from a city, state or federal government.

— Applications attached to health insurance advertisements must include a place for the customer to say he or she understands that benefits will not be paid for a certain period of time for pre-existing ailments.

— A Medi-Gap advertisement headed "Important Notice" will be presumed automatically to be deceptive.

— If the cost of a policy is higher because premiums are collected in person at the policyholder's home, an advertisement must say so. This rule, directed at so-called industrial insurance that is sold mainly to the poor, was requested by the Association of Community Organizations for Reform now ACORN.

Nothing sleepy about Queen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Queen emerged from Iran with a medical problem, but spiritually with his head held high.

He may feel like Rip Van Winkle, but there is nothing sleepy about him. Queen is acutely aware of the 52 Americans left behind in Iran. He is doing nothing to risk their safety.

He refuses to yield to temptation by publicly scolding his captors. He describes them, for the most part, as devout Moslem students who made no real effort to turn him against the United States.

Indeed, Queen says there were "a few S.O.B.s," but he doesn't think they were communists, and once they decided his work as vice consul wasn't terribly sensitive, they left him alone.

Early in the crisis, some administration officials suggested darkly that hard-core communists, members of the Iranian Tudeh Party, were prominent among the militants, even if they were not the dominant force.

But Queen rejects this notion. He also says "there was no brainwashing," that he was left alone to read scores of books from the embassy library, to play penny-poker with two roommates and to teach himself French.

"Living in that basement was pretty grim," Queen admits. But with tact that belies his brief career as a diplomat, the bearded young man is not about to hurl thunderbolts at the Iranians.

He remembers in each of his public appearances to focus on the 52 left behind. In fact, he says he feels a little guilty about coming home ahead of them.

Because of their continuing imprisonment, Queen probably is measuring his remarks carefully.

One result may be a bit of a public relations triumph for Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and the Iranian revolutionaries.

Queen's release was a humanitarian gesture in the first place. He evidently got good medical treatment while he was in Tehran, and apparently was not abused physically or mentally as a hostage.

Therefore, as he tells his story, he is unintentionally dispelling some of the monster image attached to Khomeini and the militants.

Relief and gratitude over Queen's liberation could serve to diffuse some of the anger Americans feel over what remains an inhumane act: the holding of hostages.

Queen is the first to be liberated since November when 14 blacks and women were set free. His release, therefore, is a welcome opportunity for U.S. officials to gain fresh insights into their situation.

It is not clear, though, how much useful information Queen has provided to his debriefers. Except for the two roommates, he was isolated from the other hostages.

Six from Big Spring distinguished Aggies

COLLEGE STATION—Six students from Big Spring have earned "Distinguished Student" ranking at Texas A&M University.

The undergraduate honor is awarded to students who excel academically at Texas A&M, the state's land-grant and sea-grant institution responsible for providing not only excellence in academic programs but extension and research in agriculture, engineering and other practical needs throughout the state.

Recipients of the Distinguished Student honor must earn at least a 3.25 grade point ratio, out of a possible 4.0, during the most recent grading period.

Students from Big Spring who earned the honor were Alan M. Bristol, sophomore, biomedical science; Angela K. Fulgham, sophomore, pre-medicine; Larry K. Knight, junior, accounting; Rogan D. Tindol, sophomore, animal science; Catherine E. Wilder, senior, educational curriculum and instructions and Brenda K. Willbanks, senior, civil engineering.

Dorland well recorded as flowing discovery

D.L. Dorland No. 1 M.M. Edwards "G," a wildcat 12 miles southeast of Coahoma in Howard County, has been completed as a flowing discovery through perforations from 8,821 to 8,832 feet.

The operator reported a daily potential of 150 barrels of 48-gravity oil and 15 barrels of water, through a 1/4-inch choke. The gas-oil ratio is too small to measure. The total depth is 8,950 feet, and 4.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom.

The pay was topped at 8,820 feet on kelly busing elevation of 2,372 feet.

The pay was acidized with 250 gallons.

Location is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 30, block 30, T-1-S, T&P survey.

The wellsite is at the west edge of the shallow Snyder field.

Mount St. Helens erupts again!

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — After lulling observers with six weeks of relative serenity, Mount St. Helens exploded in a spectacular series of eruptions, hurling ash 11 miles high into a clear blue sky. Ash reached Canada and air traffic was restricted in parts of the Northwest.

Residents of some cities in eastern Washington were warned they may have to haul out their ash masks again following the mountain's display Tuesday, which could be seen for more than 100 miles.

The U.S. Geological Survey said a pyroclastic flow — a superheated avalanche of ash, gas and rock — poured down the north slope of the mountain almost to Spirit Lake. The mountain resort area six miles away became a volcanic wasteland after the mountain's first eruption May 18, which had a force as great as an atomic bomb.

There were no reports of injury late Tuesday and the only evacuation was carried out in the town of Cougar as a precaution. Many of the town's residents had not returned after the volcano's previous eruptions May 18, May 25 and June 12, and some of the 20 to 25 people who did were not fleeing the town again, authorities said.

The eruption came as a surprise to scientists and federal disaster officials who were winding down ac-ivities. Scientists had said that a recent lull in volcanic activity indicated that pressure was being released rather than building within the volcano. That theory was blown as the first blast ripped a hole in the lava dome building in the volcano's gaping crater.

"Yesterday, we did not expect anything like this to happen," said USGS geologist Tim Hait. "Today, probably this morning, we did not expect anything like this."

The eruptions began at 5:14 p.m. PDT, shortly after a flurry of earthquakes. Six quakes were picked up between 6 a.m. and 11 a.m. and by 3 p.m., they had increased in frequency to about one every five minutes, scientists said.

A series of four or five small earthquakes ended at 5:13 p.m. One minute later came a mushroom-shaped eruption of steam. Subsequent blasts contained ash that darkened the sky and could be seen as far north as Seattle and south as Corvallis, Ore.

The National Weather Service charted ash plumes that moved north-northeast, following the same path as the ash-laden cloud that caked eastern Washington and northern Idaho with the grit May 18.

A second eruption at about 6:26 p.m. towered to 60,000 feet, said Carl Burgess of the U.S. Forest Service. A third shot of ash rose to about 50,000 feet shortly after 7 p.m. and pulsations followed at 7:20, and at 8:30 p.m. The pulsations were first thought to be separate eruptions, but scientists later said that examination of earthquake recordings on seismographs indicated they were continuations of the third eruption.

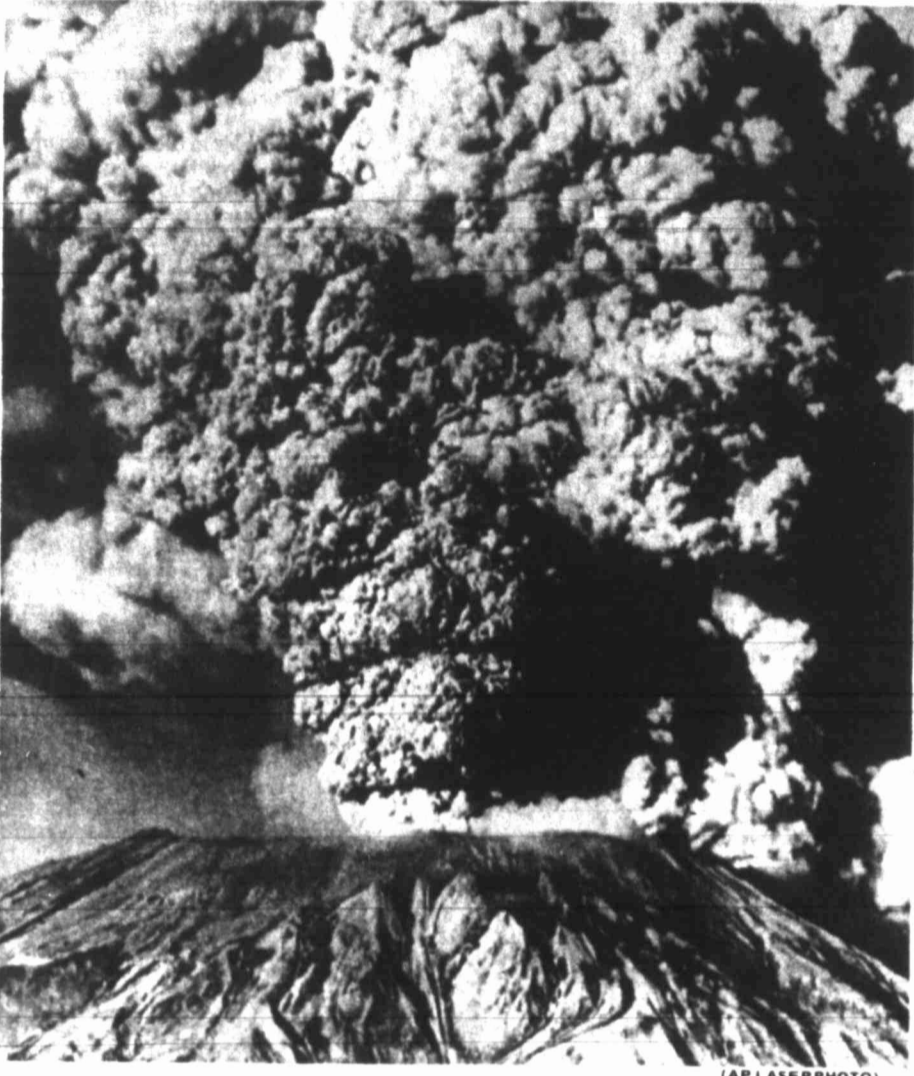

The eruptions could be seen by hundreds of thousands of people. "There's a distinct reddish-gray line looking southerly, and it got dark earlier than usual, while the rest of the sky was blue," said Lanelle Schultz of radio station KCVL in Colville, 250 miles northeast. "The moon is fading away to nothing."

Eastern Washington residents braced themselves as fine ash — described as gritty like table salt — began falling. However, the amounts were smaller than on May 18, observers said.

The leading edge of the ash and steam plume reached the Canadian border near Washington state's Okanogan Valley a little before 9 p.m. PDT, according to the Weather Service.

In Spokane, about 250 miles northeast of the volcano, Mayor Ron Bair told residents in an emergency radio statement to expect ash fallout. In Ellensburg, about 100 miles northeast of the peak, ash fell in a fine dust and law enforcement officials were prepared to shut down roads if the fallout got heavier.

THE MOUNTAIN ERUPTS — Mount St. Helens erupts sending steam and ash skyward Tuesday afternoon. The active volcano, located 45 miles northeast of Portland in Washington, has been quiet for six weeks.

Unemployment same as now

Britons haunted by 1930s

LONDON (AP) — The ghost of the Great Depression of the 1930s is haunting Britain. There are now as many unemployed Britons as in 1936. And a secret government document reportedly says there could be a third more by 1983.

In the northwest port city of Liverpool the government-run careers office has just five jobs to offer 6,097 job seekers, most of them young school dropouts, one of the worst hit groups in the country.

Nationally, school dropouts have less than a 10 percent chance of getting a job. A third of the country's unemployed are under 24.

In Northern Ireland, worst hit of the British regions, 14.4 percent of all working-age men are without jobs.

The Conservative government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher refuses to spend public money to create more jobs, contending this will create more inflation.

But the opposition Labor Party wants to use public money to create more jobs and says the Conservatives are deliberately creating unemployment to keep wages down.

The government spelled out the unemployment figures Tuesday as Laborites roared "Resign! Resign!" at Mrs. Thatcher in the House of Commons.

The Department of Employment said the number of jobless in Britain now stands at 1,896,634. That represents 7.8 percent of the British work force of 24.3 million and an increase of 236,960 from the previous month — the biggest monthly hike on record.

"The total level is back to the 1936 level," said 68-year-old Labor Party leader James Callaghan. "I never thought that I would see this again."

Unemployment in the United States now stands at 8 million, or 7.7 percent of the work force.

Recent weather change benefits stressed crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent cooler temperatures and rain in sun-baked areas of the nation's midsection may be signaling a turning point in nation's massive heat wave, according to federal weather and crop watchers.

The rain and cooler temperatures benefited corn and soybeans under stress in major growing areas that had had no rain for two or three weeks, the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility of the departments of Commerce and Agriculture said Tuesday.

With corn now in the important pollination stage, weather over the next week to 10 days will be critical. The showers and cooler temperatures suggest a change in the hot, dry pattern of the past four to six weeks may be at hand.

Meanwhile, the report included further evidence that the hot weather already has taken a toll. Pastures were rated "poor to mostly fair" in most regions and still declining in areas hit hardest by drought and heat.

"Poor conditions were reported in much of the Great Plains and Southwest, where supplemental feeding was still necessary," the agency said. "Pastures have turned brown and new growth is non-existent."

Although the siege has caused extensive crop damage in the hard-hit southern areas, including Texas and Arkansas, and in many other states, the extent of loss due to the heat will not be known definitely until corn, soybeans, cotton and other spring-planted crops are harvested.

The Agriculture Department's next crop production report on Aug. 11 will help provide an important part of the picture, particularly for corn.

Earlier this month, based on July 1 indications, the U.S. corn harvest was estimated — assuming normal weather conditions the remainder of the season — at 7.28 billion bushels, only 6 percent below the 1979 record of 7.76 billion bushels.

The heat wave since July 1, however, spread far beyond its initial base in the Southwest, and earlier drought and heat in the northern Plains has diminished prospects for spring-planted wheat and other grain crops.

In its weekly analysis, the weather facility said that in the July 14-20 period corn was rated in "fair to good" condition in the major production areas.

"However, the condition of the crop continued to decline due to the hot, dry weather in some areas," the report said. "In the Corn Belt (of the Midwest), rain and relief from the hot weather is needed as the crop is in the critical silking stage. Pollination is a concern in many areas."

The soybean crop was described as slow and uneven in the southern Plains. Dry weather "has hindered plant and pod development (and) yields are expected to reflect the stressed condition."

Plenty of limes around to help quench thirsts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says plenty of limes are on hand to help quench thirsts this summer.

In fact, there are so many limes the department is advising consumers in a special "food marketing alert" that prices paid to growers are low and that everyone could help by using more of the fruit.

Most of the U.S. limes are grown in Florida, and this year's harvest is a record of about 12 million 10-pound boxes, up from last year's crop of 11 million, officials said Tuesday.

Malvin McGaha of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service said growers' lime prices delivered to shipping points as of mid-month were about $1.75 a box. A year ago, prices averaged $1.75 to $2.25 a box.

Lime prices vary widely on a seasonal basis, averaging around $8.50 to $9.50 a box in April, just as the new harvest was getting under way.

Year-round lime users normally see retail prices soar during the winter months. Until a few weeks ago, for example, supermarkets in the Washington area were selling them four for a dollar. Lately, they have been six for 29 cents.

McGaha said one reason so many limes are glutting the market right now is that American consumers and institutional users "haven't yet discovered the great potential" that limes offer.

"The French, who are famous for their culinary arts, on the other hand, make extensive use of limes for complementing the flavor of seafoods, salads and a variety of other dishes," he said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It could be easy to get involved in a confrontation with an associate over a petty matter so make a point to avoid all such likelihood by maintaining a pleasant attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Daytime is likely to be difficult except for late afternoon when an interesting person relieves tensions. Express happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure not to react bitterly to remarks made by a careless person. Take steps to improve your health and appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't become involved in an altercation between two associates and it will soon blow over. Use care in motion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use extra care in whatever work you are involved in today and get excellent results. Sidestep a spendthrift.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Keep busy at important business matters and gain benefits. Your mate may be in difficult mood but take this in stride.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more concerned with home duties than outside affairs today. Follow all rules and regulations that apply to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put your fine ideas to work and gain the support of associates. Take no risks in travel when it gets dark. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle monetary matters wisely now and postpone less important affairs until later in the week. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study long-range plans and be patient, since they do not come to fruition quickly. Improve your appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to obtain the data you need from the right sources. The planets are now favorable for getting ahead in career matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to be your gregarious self. Try to understand the problems of others. Avoid one who is too talkative.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Carry through with outside chores in an efficient manner and gain added benefits. Plan the future wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be endowed with many talents, so be sure to give a good education that could lead to a most successful life. Teach to be patient since your progeny is likely to be impulsive. Don't neglect religious training.
