Successor named today

Local fire chief retires

By JAMES WERRELL
Big Spring Fire Chief Alvie Harrison, a 32-year veteran of the department, today announced his retirement.
Harrison, chief since 1974, will step aside on Aug. 29. City Manager Don Davis has named Fire Marshall Jim Ryals to succeed Harrison.
"It is with mixed emotions that I accept the retirement of Chief Harrison," said Davis this morning. "It is an understatement to say that I appreciated his support for the year that I have been here. Alvie has been a tremendous asset to me and to the entire city."
Harrison's emotions were mixed also.
"After 35 years with the city, it's time to step aside and let someone else take over," he said. "But I've been used to coming down here (city hall) every morning at eight o'clock, and it will be quite a change," he added.

Both Harrison and Davis expressed complete confidence in Ryals.
"These are large shoes he will have to fill, but we are both confident that Jim can do the job," said Davis.
Harrison joined the city on Jan. 2, 1946, and became a member of the Fire Department the next year. He served the department as a firefighter for five years; as a lieutenant for 11 years; and as a captain for six years, before being named chief.
He and his wife, Dollie, have been Big Spring residents since 1935. The Harrison's have one son, Rayford.
Ryals, began working for the city in 1960, following a four-year stint in the U.S. Air Force. He served as a truck driver and maintainer operator in the street department before joining the fire department in 1961.
As a firefighter, he served as a hoseman and as an equipment operator before reaching the rank of lieutenant in 1970. That same year, he was promoted to his present position as Fire Marshall.

Ryals has received a great deal of training in fire science and technology, including arson investigation, bomb detection and liquid petroleum gas spills.
He and his wife, Shirley Ann, have a 15-month-old daughter, Amanda Shauntele.
Ryals expects to name his own successor early in September. Several department members are still under consideration for the post, he said today.
Ryals also said that he hopes to provide more extensive training for department members, and to allow firefighters to become more involved in fire inspections.
"They will be working very closely with the new fire marshal. I think it's a good idea to let the firemen become acquainted with all aspects of the job," he explained.

$2,866,095 for 1980-81

'Bare bones' budget okayed by Howard College trustees

Wednesday's public hearing on the proposal annual operating budget of Howard College for 1980-81 attracted no one outside members of the news media.
The budget calls for expenditures of $2,866,095, exclusive of money needed for the inaugural year of the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, a Howard College adjunct.
The budget was later approved unanimously by members of the board of trustees after a tax rate of 14 cents per $100 evaluation was okayed by the board.
The budget was described as 'bare bones' by College President Dr. Charles Hays, who said an accountant for one of the school's biggest tax payers had examined the budget and expressed unqualified praise for its architect's austere approach.
The board also approved the purchase of three vehicles which will be used by the school. Bob Brock Ford entered the low bid of $11,888.66 on two pickup trucks, and a 12-passenger van, $9,764.81. In all, four bids from local dealers were received on the pickups, two on the van.

The college is also in the market for a sub-compact sedan. Although five bids were received for such a vehicle, the final decision was put off until a later meeting in order that all bidding firms could clearly understand the specifications for such a car.
The trustees approved a bid of $802 for kitchen utensils from Continental Food Service and Supply, one of two received; gave its blessings to Angelo Refrigeration and Supply for its $1,082.35 bid on kitchen equipment; and opted for Hester Office Supply's $1,312.50 bid on chalkboards.
New personnel approved for employment by the college included Walter Fredrick Roy III, who will work at the SWCID; Carrie Jean Covington, assigned to the ADN staff as an instructor here; and Marianne Simpson RN, who will work with the school's nursing program in San Angelo.

Hays told the trustees he had conferred with members of the Legislative Budget Board in Austin earlier this week, discussing budget needs for the College for the Deaf. He also said that there was still hope that the federal government would approve funds for the SWCID, which begins its first term next month.
Students will be accepted for enrollment in the College for the Deaf until Oct. 15, according to the school's president.

Soviet submarine fire kills nine; radioactive warning out

TOKYO (AP) — A Soviet nuclear submarine caught fire in international waters off Okinawa today and at least nine crewmen were killed and three injured, the Japanese Maritime Safety Agency reported.
It warned ships and aircraft to stay clear of the area because of possible radioactive contamination, but first reports, from a patrol plane dispatched to the scene 84 miles east of Okinawa, said no sign of radiation was found.
The fire occurred just before dawn. The submarine had radioed for help but crewmen apparently were able to get the situation under control fairly quickly.
As the damaged submarine lay virtually dead in the water, in calm seas, a Soviet ship arrived in response to an earlier call for assistance. The vessel, identified as the training ship Meridian, took about 20 crewmen off the sub.

A British tanker, the 46,000 tanker Gari, was first on the scene in response to distress calls from the sub and stood by throughout the day. A Japanese patrol boat also reached the scene but the submarine's captain refused to allow the Japanese aboard his craft.
One of several Japanese air defense helicopters with radiation monitoring gear dispatched to the scene reported about 50 crewmen were on the deck of the sub waving flags.

No promises made to Libya, Billy says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter testified today that he told Libyans from the start of his dealings with them that he had no influence on U.S. policy and said he never asked his brother, the president, to do anything for Libya.
"Furthermore, the Libyans have not asked me to ask anything of the president or of any representative of the U.S. government," Carter told a special Senate Judiciary investigating subcommittee.
"I never asked my brother to do anything for the benefit of Libya," he said. "I also know that he would not do it even if I had been foolish enough to try, which I wasn't."
Billy Carter also testified that the president never passed any inside information to him, and he said he was not tipped off that U.S. intelligence had learned he had received $220,000 from Libya, a radical North African nation.
The president's brother insisted the $220,000 was part of a $500,000 loan from Libya and not a foreign agent's fee.
The Justice Department concluded it was a fee, not a loan, and required Carter to register as a foreign agent for Libya. And Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate panel, said testimony Wednesday raises "a possibility" that the money indeed was a fee.
Billy Carter said there had been much public attention about what he did with that money. "Quite simply, I used the money to pay my bills and to repay other loans," he said.

The Senate investigators still want to know whether Billy asked the White House about the C-130 cargo planes Libya bought but President Carter's administration won't release because Libya supports international terrorists.
The testimony Wednesday came from a financial consultant who said Billy Carter instructed him to press Libya for payment of a $500,000 loan after Carter had already received the $220,000.
The consultant, Ronald C. Sprague, testified that he assumes the $220,000 was part of the $500,000 loan but said, "I don't know if it was this loan or something else."
He told the senators that when he learned of the $220,000 for the first time from a newspaper story, "I was as surprised as you are."
Sprague said he called Billy Carter's associate, Henry "Randy" Coleman, to ask why he had not been told of the $220,000 and Coleman replied, "You weren't supposed to know."
Sprague said he replied "fine" and did not ask why he was not supposed to know. He said Coleman "led me to believe it was part of the loan."
Billy Carter got $20,000 last Dec. 27 and $200,000 last April 7, both from the Libyan diplomatic mission in Washington.
Sprague said Billy instructed him to cable the Libyan National Foreign Bank on April 7 that Carter accepted its terms for the $500,000 loan and to send telexes April 11, April 14 and May 2 pressing for payment.

"If I had known (about the $220,000), the (May 2) telex would not have been sent," Sprague testified. "I sent it on Mr. Carter's instructions."
The Justice Department said in a civil suit filed July 14 that Libya paid Carter the $200,000 in return of his conducting "a propaganda campaign" for that country and for promoting its image in America.

MELON IN A JACKET — Tammy Johnson holds a watermelon which grew inside a can, then grew too big for it. The fruit was planted on a ten-acre tract in the Oasis Addition belonging to C. E. Smith. Tammy is wondering how to remove the melon's unusual jacket without bruising it. Perhaps the protective coating indicates an early winter.

Tops on TV: Circus time

As usual, a return of "Barney Miller" at 8 o'clock on ABC tops a weak, Thursday-night lineup. Weak, that is, unless you can get excited about a rerun of "Circus Of The Stars," at the same time on CBS. Those hungry for some new fare might want to take a chance with NBC's "Drabble," airing at 8:30 p.m. In this one, a team of pro basketball players is less than overjoyed when their coach breaks the news that he has acquired an overpaid, temperamental superstar.

K-car's price going up

DETROIT (AP) — Sticker prices for K-cars, Chrysler's new small high-mileage model, are going up even before the cars go on sale. Chrysler Corp. had told its dealers that the cheapest K-car — being sold as the Dodge Aries and the Plymouth Reliant — would list for $6,065. But on Wednesday, the automaker announced that the least expensive K-car would list for $6,192. The K-car is expected to compete with General Motors' X-cars. On Friday, GM announced that the cheapest 1981 model X-car, a Chevrolet Citation, would list for $6,148 — 9 percent more than the 1980 version and a larger increase than had been expected.

Inmates allowed photos

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A prison rule that prohibited inmates from having pictures of nudes has been overturned, but the convicts still will not be able to hang the pictures on cell walls. The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Wednesday that while inmates had a right to look at the nudes, convicts might infringe on the rights of other prisoners if they posted the pictures. The other inmates, the court said, might not want to look at the nudes. A group of inmates at Powhatan Correctional Center had sued to overturn the regulation on nude pictures. A federal district court threw out the suit and the prisoners appealed.

Propane fire burns out

SUTTON, Neb. (AP) — A propane tank fire burned for more than 30 hours before it died out, allowing 1,000 evacuated residents of this small Nebraska town to return to their homes, officials say. A grain car in a Burlington Northern train derailed Monday and crashed into two 18,000-gallon propane tanks, igniting them. Firefighters decided to let the fire burn itself out, according to Alan Schroedin, chief of the Sutton Fire Department. The fire went out early Wednesday. No one was hurt. A shelter for the evacuees — two-thirds of Sutton's population — was set up at a local school.

Massive workers walkout in eighth day

Polish government drops mediator

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Deputy Premier Tadeusz Pyka was dropped as chairman of a government commission which had been negotiating with workers in an effort to end the crippling strike along Poland's Baltic coast, the state radio reported today.

Informed sources reported, meanwhile, that 16 leading dissidents were rounded up in Warsaw, that the number of workers on strike in the Baltic area had been growing despite the government's mediation efforts, and that some 130,000 had joined the mass walkout, now in its eighth day.

The state radio broadcast said Pyka was replaced by first Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who was dispatched by the government to end a walkout in Lublin last month.

The commission had been seeking to negotiate with individual strike committees rather than a central organization established by militants at the Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk.

Gdansk radio had reported negotiations were under way with committees that had apparently split with the Lenin Shipyards group. But Pyka's removal appeared to indicate the commission's strategy of undermining worker unity was failing.

Meanwhile, in Szczecin, a major port on the East German border where dissident sources reported 20,000 strikers two days ago, the local government radio said steel and papermill workers joined the walkout for higher pay, free trade unions and other political reforms.

Management spokesmen claimed that workers who struck for two hours Tuesday at the showcase steel plant at Nowa Huta, in southern Poland, all returned to work Wednesday. But other reports said many of the 40,000 employed at the plant stayed away.

Police in Warsaw arrested leading dissident Jacek Kuron, head of the underground Committee for Social Defense, and 14 of his associates in Kuron's apartment Wednesday evening, dissident sources reported.

It was the first police action reported since the strike wave began at the V.I. Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk. Kuron and his group had been among Western reporters' chief sources of information on the labor unrest that has been growing since meat prices were raised on July 1, and one purpose of the roundup appeared to be to try to reduce this flow of anti-government information to the outside world.

A group of 62 artists, writers and intellectuals called for a negotiated settlement to avoid a repetition of the 1970 food-price riots in Gdansk in 1970 that left 50 dead and resulted in the overthrow of party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

"We appeal to the political authorities and to the striking workers to enter the road of talks and the road of compromise," they said, adding that "a repetition of the tragedy of 10 years ago" must be avoided.

In Moscow, Western radio officials and Soviet listeners reported the Kremlin has resumed jamming Russian-language broadcasts by the Voice of America, the British Broadcasting Corp. and West Germany's Deutsche Welle, apparently to keep out news about the strike in neighboring Poland.

Polish-born Pope John Paul II made his first public comment on the unrest in his homeland Wednesday, telling a crowd of 20,000 at his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Square: "We here in Rome are united with our fellow Poles."

The pontiff sang what was described as a "patriotic religious" Polish hymn, then read prayers in Polish asking God to let the church in Poland always enjoy liberty and let the country always enjoy peace, liberation from every ill and defense from every peril. Switching from Polish to Italian, he asked the crowd to pray for "my country Poland."

In Chicago, the president of the 110,000-member International Longshoremen's Association, Thomas W. Gleason, told his men to stop handling Polish cargo as a show of support for the strikers. Leaders of member unions But in London, the 11.9-million-member Trades Union Congress, the British equivalent of the AFL-CIO,

Flores jailed

Raul Flores, 22, 304 NE Eighth, is in custody at county jail on parole violation. No bond is set. Flores was arrested Aug. 12 at McMahon Concrete and transferred the same day. He allegedly took a swing at one of the officers who stopped him for a routine traffic check.

COLD THREAT — when the Columbia Glacier calves icebergs from its 300-foot cliffs. The glacier is on the verge of a retreat that could create large numbers of icebergs. Close to shipping lanes for Valdez, terminal of the Trans-Alaska pipeline, Columbia Glacier could pose a threat to tankers headed through Prince William Sound.

Huge glacier threatens Alaska tanker traffic

By DONALD J. FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — Calving season may be a joy to farmers, but it's a menace to mariners.
Massive icebergs sometimes calve, or break away, from sprawling glaciers to threaten shipping in August and September, when the waters warm.
Alaska's Columbia Glacier is particularly ominous because it packs enough potential clout to disrupt the flow of oil from the trans-Alaska pipeline.
Last year tankers hauled more than 1 million barrels of oil a day from Valdez, the pipeline's terminal and storage point.
Looming near shipping lanes leading from Prince William Sound to Valdez, the glacier is an awesome mass of ice that extends 42 miles and is 3,800 feet thick in some places. Washington, D.C., would fit on its surface.

Scientists think the glacier verges on a retreat that could dump 20 to 27 million tons of ice per day into the waters and spawn 10,000-ton icebergs. Peak of this activity is expected from 1982 to 1985, but it could begin earlier.

Columbia Glacier is especially menacing because it has not staged a major retreat in hundreds of years and it is the last one in North America extending over a deep fiord. The front tip of the glacier rises from shallow water, but the bulk of it rests in a deep channel of the fiord 2,000 feet below sea level.

"The immediate danger is that once the front of the glacier retreats from the shoals into the deeper water of the fiord, the rate of breakup and retreat will be increased drastically," said Mark F. Meier, who heads the U.S. Geological Survey's glaciology program.

"Give or take a year, we expect Columbia Glacier to have retreated about 5 miles by 1986. This will release about 10 cubic miles of ice, some of which will be discharged into the narrow Valdez arm of Prince William Sound in sufficient size to be of concern to shipping."

Aware of this chilling prospect, the U.S. Coast Guard has been considering measures to counter the threat.
"But before we do anything drastic, we have to be convinced that shipping really is in peril," said Cmdr. Ian Cruickshank, a Coast Guard traffic specialist. "Southeasterly winds usually keep most icebergs from shipping lanes, although nighttime traffic in and out of Valdez has been shut down on a few occasions."

A massive iceberg calving would force more drastic measures. The Coast Guard is considering a patrol aircraft that would inform tanker captains of berg patterns, tugs that would guide vessels through the most treacherous buildups, or icebreakers that would convoy the ships through the ice.

If those failed, the Coast Guard might place a nylon net across a 3.1-mile-wide passage just west of Valdez to trap the icebergs before they can drift into shipping lanes. The net, strung from one side of the passage to the other, would extend underwater much like the anti-submarine devices used in World War II.

Trapped behind the barrier, the icebergs would either melt and break up in the warm water, or be pushed harmlessly away by the benevolent southeasterlies.

Four children die in blaze in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Four children died early today when fire swept through their home, Dallas fire authorities said.
Three other children and the victim's grandmother were able to flee to safety before flames engulfed the brick home in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas, according to Fire Capt. Lewis Epps.
The victims were identified as Latoneal Hodge, 15, Felisha Hodge, 14, Mark Hodge, 11, and Rhonda Hodge, 8. Three of the children were found huddled in a closet and the fourth was found in a bed, firemen said.

All four were believed to have died of smoke inhalation, he said.

Fireman Kenneth Pigg suffered apparently minor burns in a vain attempt to rescue the children, Epps said.

Epps said the grandmother, Lorraine Adkins, was the only adult at the home at the time the fire broke out.

The home was fully engulfed in flames at the time firemen arrived, Epps said. He said it was believed to have been accidental, but said the cause was under investigation.

Battering of grandparents ignored

The incidence of child abuse and wife beating is high and well documented. Another serious family problem, however, is going all but unnoticed. That would be the battering of grandparents.

According to a researcher for the University of Maryland's Center on Aging, Marilyn R. Block, abuse of the elderly may be just as severe as child abuse.

Some children advancing on adulthood can barely tolerate their parents, especially if their mother and/or their father try to discipline them. The elderly, on the other hand, are apt to catch it both from their children and their children's children.

ACCORDING TO MS. BLOCK, who conducted a one-year study on the problems of the elderly, most of the abuse aimed at the older people is psychological rather than physical in nature.

Threats and verbal assaults were the most common kind of abuse reported by the old people. There were numerous cases, however, where the money and property of the senior citizens were stolen or misused by their children and grandchildren.

In other cases denied by Ms. Block, the elderly were denied medication and medical treatment by their younger relatives, who seemed to think that sickness was a way of life for people who had made a mounting number of laps in life.

Most of the physical abuse heaped on senior citizens involved neglect but there was (in Ms. Block's report) a lot of shoving, slapping and shaking reported, too.

THERE WAS FAR more cases where the elderly had been severely beaten, tied to furniture and ended up with fractured skulls and broken bones than one would imagine, too.

The saddest aspect of all was the fact that although the elderly were more likely to seek help than members of other abused groups, they were usually unsuccessful in getting it, or even in getting people to listen to them.

They suffer, not always in silence, but helplessly. It is as if they had been cursed for living too long.

It is a stinging indictment against a race of people that worships youth, that cannot tolerate the thought of growing old.

A bill now pending in the U.S. Congress, sponsored by Sen. Edward Kennedy, could be a tool for government harassment of employers disguised as a "recodification" of criminal code.

I don't know how small businessmen function as it is, what with inflation to deal with and ridiculous quantities of bad checks.

Now I understand that S. 1722 could be still another pressure on these men. Its terminology is loose enough that if interpreted broadly business managers could be in for a rough ride.

bludgeon against business.

Loopholes can be dangerous in the hands of unscrupulous people, especially if those loopholes were built in by those behind the bill for their own purposes. If I seem a little suspicious to you, you're right.

The endangerment section has been deleted by the House Judiciary Committee but it illustrates the measure's vagueness.

Section 402 would hold an organization liable for the conduct of its agent. Like the endangerment section it sounds at the outset like it could hold credence. True, an employer should answer to an extent for the actions of those under his fines. But criminal prosecution with fines up to $250,000?

Let's not be careless with legislation. There are those who would say that Kennedy is not without a careless bone in his unsinkable body.

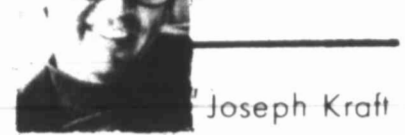

OPPOSITION TO THE bill also claim it could make labor strikes and violence impossible to prosecute, and also increase pornography and rights for homosexuals.

Kennedy himself said in the Washington Post: "I think that in the area of gay rights that there has to be elimination of all discrimination against gay rights in our society. I think any legislation that exists on the books should be struck down."

Some felt, though, that the legislation could force employment of homosexuals against the will of employers. When those opposed to a measure raise an alarm we may dismiss it on the basis that their pre-suppositions cause them to oppose anything the senator does. But when the man himself is quoted in the Washington Post, that's a different story.

The bill ostensibly intending to watch out for the endangerment of the consumer looks to me like a land mine of danger for business.

Kennedy parenthesis

Joseph Kraft

NEW YORK — He got out quickly and cleanly after a singular show of the stiff upper lip. Maybe he achieved moral resurrection and the right to fight another year.

But the passion has been torn to tatters. Events now move in a different direction. The chances are that the Kennedy parenthesis in national affairs has been closed — but this country has lost one more thing that made it not like other countries.

FOR WEEKS SEN. Kennedy bore alone a dreadful punishment. Carterites crowed that he was "inelectable." Other Democrats with ideas about a third man labeled him a "spoiler." Many in the press and television — true themselves custodians of the fancy perception — kept insisting the game was over in tones that implied that by still playing he was, somehow, breaking the rules.

Friends and family went off on vacation, shaking their heads in bewilderment. One relative very close to the senator volunteered the view that his behavior was "metaphysical" — a term that signifies, in the Kennedy lexicon, what passeth understanding.

Pop psychology, to be sure, provides a ready explanation. The senator was a late-born child, 15 years younger than his brother John, 7 years younger than his brother Robert. He couldn't easily compete, but he had an engaging nature and he kept testing his appeal by breaking the family code of achievement. Hence a host of awfuls reaching their apex in Chappaquiddick.

Hence too, a willingness to take punishment as a kind of expiation, and a strong gift for survival. If all that is right, then the senator has done it again. He paid the price for a sorry campaign, but now emerges, Chappaquiddick behind him, as the conscience of his party. The road is cleared for 1984 and beyond. "The dream," as he said in the windup of his speech Tuesday night, "shall never die."

SOBER APPRAISAL, however, yields a different prospect. There is something deeply senescent about Edward Kennedy. In mind, as in looks, he lacks tautness. He is not mean, but neither is he keen. He did not work out a clear strategy when he began his presidential campaign. Nor — though it seems to have worked out all right — did he plot an ending.

His policies reflect his qualities. On inflation he probably comes closer to being right than any other figure in national politics.

But his well-founded concern with the biggest issue has been introduced to any of his other policies? Certainly not to an energy program that depends on rationing gasoline and raising the oil companies. Nor to a jobs program that would spend $12 billion on a federal employment package. Put those together with proposals for unilaterally freezing nuclear development, and ending draft registration, and financing abortions out of federal funds, and there emerges a factional approach, limited ideologically to the purest of liberals. Regionally it finds its confines in the states of the Northeast and California. Most important, there is the age boundary.

Half the Americans eligible to vote in the presidential election — some 75 million people — do not exercise the franchise. Most are under the age of 30. Jimmy Carter does not engage them. Neither does Ronald Reagan. But does Edward Kennedy? The evidence goes against it. During the primaries, the senator won chiefly in the states where there was an old-fashioned Kennedy presence — a large number of Catholic voters, and a strong hold by the labor unions. He barely stirred the torpor of the young voters.

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Blood pressure in young is special

Dear Dr. Donohue: When a doctor puts a person on medicine for high blood pressure is it common to give tests to find out what is causing it? My son is only 24 and has been on the medicine for two years and had no tests. — T.Y.

Tests should be done to find out if there is a correctable cause of high blood pressure. This is particularly true for younger people. In an older person the high blood pressure is most likely to be the kind doctors call essential, the kind in which no correctable cause can be found. These patients do not need the same diagnostic approach that a younger person needs. Control, rather than cure, is the watchword for them.

The correctible forms of high blood pressure are found most commonly in young people; narrowing of the aorta (coarctation) is an example of a cause of high blood pressure in younger people that can be fixed through surgery. Because of such factors, an exhaustive search should be made for causes in someone your son's age. Meanwhile, his control medicine will not harm him, whatever the cause.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could a vitamin deficiency be the cause of ear noises? — M.M.

To my knowledge, vitamin deficiencies would not cause ear noises. Aspirins might, though, and they are a common cause. High blood pressure is another. It should always be considered. For other hints about this problem see the booklet "Ear Noises, Their Causes and Cures." For a copy write to me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Seven years ago I had an abortion and now I am wondering if I could have a baby. We have been trying since we got married three months ago. My husband doesn't know I had an abortion. A doctor told me once that I could come in and he could run tests to see if my tubes were closed. Is this possible? — J.V.

Before you worry yourself into a real snit, calmly try to become pregnant for a full year. Many abortions are done without the loss of fertility. After a year of trying to have a child you can see a doctor about finding the cause of infertility.

Yes, it is possible to examine your tubes. Carbon dioxide, a gas, can be passed through the tubes to see if they are open, or dye can be injected through them and X-rays taken to learn the same thing. The tubes can also be viewed through a tiny telescope-like instrument (a culdoscope). There are many ways to study the tubes.

Unless your doctor has reason to order these tests now, there is no need to investigate infertility after only three months of marriage. And, of course, you husband's fertility status would also have to be evaluated.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Our biology teacher says that blood is blue while it is still in the body. A friend asked a doctor. He said blood in the veins is a darker color. The chemistry teacher says all blood is red, but our biology teacher insists that blood is blue. We need proof. — J.O.

Blood in the arteries (the vessels that carry fresh blood to the body) is bright red. That's because it is carrying oxygen. In the veins (vessels that return used blood to the heart and lungs) it is bluish-red or reddish-blue; it has given up its oxygen while in the arteries. I think that both your chemistry and biology teachers and the doctor can all agree on this.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you please write about what is meant by the term "low grade malignancy?" It is confusing to me and I can't seem to get an explanation. — Mrs. E.J.

The degree of malignancy indicates how fast a tumor grows, how rapidly it spreads to other organs (metastases) and how it lends itself to treatment. A highly-malignant tumor or cancer grows very fast, spreads to many other organs and is not easy to treat. A tumor or cancer of low-grade malignancy grows very slowly, does not spread to other organs, and is relatively easy to treat and cure. Most skin cancers are examples of low-grade malignancy, where total cure can be expected.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I was born with Hirschsprung's disease. Until you mentioned it briefly in a column several months ago, I had never seen the word in print. I am 62, and even doctors don't know much about it. Is it that safe? I was operated on for this at age 21, when I was six months pregnant, and I delivered a nine-pound healthy baby. I had a remarkable doctor. I am writing this at the urging of many friends, who want to know something about it. — E.S.

The most serious form of Hirschsprung's disease makes itself known in early infancy. The abdomen is distended and the infant has no bowel movements. When the symptoms are less severe the diagnosis may not be made until adulthood. This apparently happened to you.

The problem in Hirschsprung's is that a part of the colon lacks nerve cells. That section is like an electrical appliance with no outlet to plug into. In Hirschsprung's, a portion of the colon is not plugged in. The stool cannot get past this defective portion because the colon wall is not producing the required motions. The rest of the colon is OK.

The operation is simply to remove the defective section. When it is taken out the problem usually is resolved. Your admiration for your doctor is well-placed. Hirschsprung's disease is not a common problem and can be difficult to diagnose in an adult.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' answers are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

WASHINGTON — If President Carter should go ahead with his plan to invade Iran in October, he would risk war with the Soviet Union. There have already been ominous rumblings out of the Kremlin, warning of Soviet retaliation if Iran should be attacked.

A Soviet-American clash over Iran, of course, could become the opening skirmish of World War III. This is the awesome danger that Carter is courting for the sake of hyping his political appeal on election eve.

scenario. Intelligence reports claim that the Soviets have their own designs on northern Iran. Working through the communist Tudeh party, they are maneuvering to gain control of the northern provinces. They might condone a limited U.S. invasion, in the south, therefore, if the United States will keep hands off the north. This could result in partitioning Iran into Soviet and American spheres of influence. The analysts, however, say such an under-the-table deal is unlikely.

THE PRESIDENT is not unaware of the danger. He has directed the intelligence community to produce a secret estimate of how the Kremlin will react to a limited invasion of Iran. The first concern, of course, is what the Soviets will do. But there could also be ugly repercussions in the Moslem world.

The Defense Intelligence Agency has been ordered to "study and report on possible Soviet military reactions to various scenarios in which the United States forces have invaded Iran." The assignment of the Central Intelligence Agency is to gauge the political fallout.

Military analysts are confident at least that the Iranians cannot stop a U.S. assault. A three-star general told me that Iran's armed forces are in a "state of chaos." The Soviets, however, have a powerful military juggernaut in the Persian Gulf area.

This includes 10 warships and 16 support ships, with others on the way. Seven airborne divisions and several air mobile brigades can also be rushed to Iran.

But one thing is certain. The president would be foolhardy to go ahead with an October invasion of Iran unless he obtains a back-channel understanding with the Soviets.

Footnote: Half an hour after the U.S. rescue team crossed into Iranian airspace on their abortive April mission to free the hostages, the Soviets were alerted. A U.S. reconnaissance plane detected communist signals "consistent with the Russians being placed on alert." Later, President Carter put through a hot-line call to the Kremlin to explain the mission.

UNDER THE DOME: Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., is not above using his chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee to help him in a tough re-election fight. When a subcommittee chairman proposed hearings on residential insulation in Portland, Ullman OK'd the trip with the "recommendation" that it include a day in Bend, the biggest city in the eastern part of Ullman's district. The testimony was all old stuff, but the hearing showed the home folks Ullman cares about them.

Channel 6 on the House's closed-circuit TV is usually devoted to educational programs for congressional interns and other newcomers. But twice in one recent week, the in-house channel was showing a movie, "Harry's War." It hasn't been released to the public yet, but has drawn a rave notice from one critic already. He's Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, who arranged the showing. "Spectacular entertainment value!" Hansen enthused in a note to his colleagues. The movie exposes underhanded tactics of the Internal Revenue Service.

ANALYSTS HAVE narrowed down the Soviet response to four options: (1) military intervention; (2) diplomatic opposition; (3) official indifference; or (4) clandestine cooperation. My associate Dale Van Atta has sounded out key sources in the intelligence community. Here's how they appraise the Soviet attitude:

The analysts agree that the Soviets would rather deal with Jimmy Carter than the unyielding Ronald Reagan for the next four years. This has already been signaled through their faithful ally, Fidel Castro, who sent word by diplomatic channels that he won't do anything to embarrass Carter before November.

To reduce the danger of a confrontation with the Soviet Union, Carter is expected to sound out the Kremlin in advance about his October plan. There is a distinct possibility that the Soviets would bring heavy pressure on the Iranians to release the American hostages in an attempt to avert a U.S. invasion.

The Kremlin might even be inclined to cooperate behind the scenes to help free the hostages by military means. Sources say that the Soviet KGB knows the location of each hostage and might help a U.S. rescue force secure their release. This would hand Carter a dramatic coup just before Americans go to the polls.

The grateful Carter, in turn, might lift the grain embargo, reactive the SALT II treaty and give the Soviets access to more U.S. technology.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Does the Bible say anywhere that God hates someone? I have had such a hard life that I sometimes wonder if he hates me. — Mrs. B.T.

DEAR MRS. B.T.: What God hates is sin. Yes, there are some places in the Bible where God is said to "hate" a certain person, but in those situations it is clear his anger against them is because of their open rebellion against him and their refusal to obey him. A good example is the story of Jacob and his brother Esau; Esau stubbornly refused to seek God's will, and God said, "I have loved Jacob, but Esau I have hated" (Malachi 1:3). But the Bible constantly tells us that God loves each one of us. He hates our sin, and it grieves him when we turn from him and seek to live without him. But he loves us, and wants us to be his children. The Bible says that "God is love" (I John 4:16).

How do I know God loves us? How can you know God loves you? We can know that God loves us because he sent Jesus Christ into the world to take away our sins and be our savior. The Bible tells us, "This is how God showed his love among us: He sent his one and only Son into the world that we might live through him. This is love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as an atoning sacrifice for our sins" (I John 4:9-10). Like every other human being, you are a sinner in God's eyes and your sins have separated you from God. But Christ died on the cross to take away your sins. By putting your faith and trust in him you can be saved and become a child of God. If you have never taken that step of faith, I urge you to do so right now.

We may not always understand why God allows some of the unpleasant things of life to happen to us. But when you know Christ, you know that God is always with you to help you.

Titanic search ship coming home today

BOSTON (AP) — Texas millionaire Jack Grimm, who spent $1 million to find the sunken luxury liner Titanic, says he's willing to leave it in its cold grave. But he's also willing to spend another $3 million to get to its safe.

His searchers, aboard the H.J.W. Fay, were heading for dock in Boston today carrying evidence that convinced them they have located the 68-year-old hulk of the proud British ship 350 miles off Newfoundland.

Grimm said Wednesday he was convinced enough by the search party's findings to spend $3 million to reactivate a 51-foot submarine with 9-foot robot arms to cut through the Titanic's hull next May or June.

"We just want to recover the safe in the purser's office," said Grimm, 55, of Abilene. The purser was an officer handling money and valuables aboard ship.

"I don't know what's in the safe. One English magazine reported the safe contained a $125 million shipment of diamonds," he said, adding their worth could be nearly $300 million at current exchange rates.

He said the search already has cost him in excess of $1 million.

"It'll cost approaching $1 million to outfit the submarine Aluminaut and another $2 million to conduct the dive," he said.

"My banker is looking at me very closely."

The American search party aboard the H.J.W. Fay reported Friday that a sonar scanning sled submerged beneath the Atlantic located what appeared to be the sunken ship's outlines at 12,000 feet.

Stormy weather prevented the searchers from lowering a television camera, and the mission was called off Sunday.

"With the sonar images, we can prove this is the right ship," said Grimm. "We had the configuration of the ship, 882 1/2 feet long, 95 feet wide, 175 feet tall from keel to stacks. It was one of a kind."

"I've already laid claim. We will be filing papers in the United States, Canada and England."

Grimm said he planned to be on the Aluminaut when it dives next summer. He said its robot arms will cut a hole with a torch in the starboard hull and lift out the safe and other items.

Even if the safe doesn't contain diamonds, Grimm is sure it will contain the valuables of its passengers, who included some of the day's most prominent society figures.

Search about over

SAMBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Up to their napes in inquiries, city fathers have called off a search for a barber. After combing the hills for 18 months searching for a barber, they say they are a hair away from luring their former barber back.

"I don't want any more barbers calling me," Mayor John Vanclieve said Tuesday. "I have heard from a bunch — probably 40 or 50."

Samburg, a community of 550 on the south shore of Reelfoot Lake in northwestern Tennessee, began its barber search last year after the old barber — whom Vanclieve never could recall by name — moved to Kentucky. For the past year and a half, the town's menfolk were forced to drive 20 miles round trip for haircuts.

Vanclieve and the city commissioners decided to renovate the old city hall for a barber shop to entice a barber to locate there. That was when Samburg's barber search became national news.

Vanclieve said the town's former barber is deaf and cannot speak, so city officials have been talking to the barber's children.

"I hope things will be worked out soon," the mayor said.

Panty-maker thinks big

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Textile workers took a brief departure from their work to stitch what they claim is the world's largest pair of panties — a perfect size, 946.

Twelve workers at Sierra Lingerie Co. spent about 90 minutes piecing together the pair of blue polyester panties, which measured 126 1/2 inches wide and 193 1/2 inches long when finished.

The idea apparently came from an employee in the plant's packaging department, but plant manager Gary Pinkington said "no individual will take responsibility for it."

However, Pinkington said the management liked the idea and ordered an extra wide bolt of fabric from the mill. "So often businesses do nothing but make profit," said David Moss, company owner. "Here we had the opportunity to do something for the fun of it."

Plant employees plan to send the garment's dimensions to the Guinness Book of World Records in England.

Complaints voiced at hearing

Oil spill pact inadequate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A proposed agreement between the state and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on how the state should react to oil spills is inadequate, according to the Sierra Club.

The Sierra Club says the agreement leaves out one important aspect of spills — preventing them.

The agreement was presented at a Wednesday public hearing that attracted only two witnesses. The proposal includes eight project priorities for the coming fiscal year.

The first item in the proposal was handling of oil and hazardous substance spills.

"The importance of this problem is increasing each day as there are more frequent and more serious accidents with industrial growth and changing trends in energy demand and supply," the proposed agreement said.

Under the plan, the Texas Department of Water Resources would be responsible for developing a computer-stored collection of spill data. TDWR would also do a study of the Gulf Coast to determine vulnerable areas.

However, in written testimony, Brandt Mannchen of Houston said the Sierra Club is not satisfied.

"The state and EPA should have an ongoing program of preventative methods which will reduce the possibility of a spill," said Mannchen, head of the club's water committee.

"How many inspections, what kind of rules and regulations and investigations are planned to be implemented and enforced?" Mannchen asked.

Officials from TDWR, EPA and the Texas Department of Health also heard complaints about federal rules concerning the use of underground injection in oil drilling operations.

NEW WAY TO ROAM? — It may have looked at first as if a buffalo were hitching a ride when this picture was taken recently in Burlington, Wis., but in truth it was just a stuffed head being transported in the compact car of Jerry Erickson. Erickson was taking the mounted wall trophy to a friend in New Munster.

Pope approves U.S. venture

Plan favors married priests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Within about a year, married Anglican priests in the United States will be able to remain married, remain priests, and become Roman Catholics.

The U.S. Catholic Conference announced a Vatican-approved plan Wednesday under which Anglicans would be allowed to become Roman Catholics while maintaining some of their own liturgical traditions.

The plan would allow married Anglican priests to become Roman Catholic priests while remaining married.

Catholic priests still could not marry, and the former Anglican priests would not be allowed to remarry if widowed or to become bishops.

There are only a few married Roman Catholic priests in this country now.

most members of Eastern Rite churches. Wednesday's announcement was unusual because it made "such a large group" eligible for the married priesthood, said Robert Wanderly, a conference spokesman.

The Rev. John D. Barker of Los Angeles, the leader of a small Anglican group that has sought union with the Catholic church, said Wednesday he hopes the first members of his group could become Catholic priests in not much more than a year.

Russell Shaw, a spokesman for the Catholic Conference, responded that that seems "a reasonable amount of time."

"It's a hope that we would share, that this is not going to be delayed unnecessarily," Shaw added.

Wednesday's announcement affects only the United States. The Rev. Lawrence Purcell of the Office of the Apostolic Delegate in Washington, the emissary of Pope John Paul II, said the pope's approval came in response to a specific request from the U.S. bishops. He said he was unaware of any similar actions in other countries.

Barker said his Prodiocese of St. Augustin of Canterbury is no longer within the Episcopal Church, although some of its 63 clergy are. Barker said the group recognizes the teachings of the Catholic Church and the primacy of the pope.

The formal announcement came from Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. He said Anglicans in the United States will be able to seek a "common identity" in the Roman Catholic Church.

'Stenholm philosophy'

Do we really need it?

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Do we really need it? Can we afford it? Can the need best be realized at the local level?"

Those three questions have become as close to the "Stenholm philosophy" as anything I can devise. Those are the questions that I believe the people of the 17th District elected me to answer each and every time their money is to be spent through the federal budget. Sometimes the resulting answers aren't easy ones.

I recently proposed an amendment to the Department of Transportation (DOT) Authorization Bill which would have answered those questions in what has appeared to some to be opposition to the transportation needs of the handicapped. That amendment would have created a local option which would allow transit authorities, in consultation with members of the local handicapped community, to establish programs which effectively meet local transportation needs, rather than leaving those needs to the discretion of "Big Brother" in Washington.

At issue are DOT regulations that require that all public transportation systems receiving federal financial assistance become accessible to handicapped persons, including wheelchair users. For the most part, this requires lift-equipped buses and modified rail vehicles and stations. One-half of peak-hour bus service must be accessible by 1982, which could be extended to 1989 in the case of "extraordinarily expensive" compliance. However, beginning July 2, 1979, all new transit buses purchased must be lift-equipped. Rail systems must be made accessible over 30 years.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm

Do we really need it? There is no question about the need for adequate transportation for the handicapped. But we have to look at the results: The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that full-system accessibility would serve only about 7 percent of the handicapped population while special services (such as portal-to-portal van service) would benefit about 30 percent of the handicapped in this country.

Can we afford it? Cost estimates for complying with these regulations range from $6 billion to over $8 billion (current dollars, excluding inflation). Specialized services designated by the local community would cost an estimated $4.4 billion.

Can the need best be realized at the local level? My amendment (which was narrowly defeated) and a similar amendment, the Cleveland Amendment to the Surface Transportation Act which will be debated later this session, would allow communities to pursue alternative approaches for meeting the transportation needs of handicapped persons. Programs created as local options to full system accessibility must be developed in consultation with members of the local handicapped community.

This is a complex and often emotional issue, however, the bottom line remains: Do the benefits really justify the costs?

Brilab moved from California to Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — A Justice Department attorney says the Brilab investigation, which resulted in the indictment of Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton on racketeering charges, was moved from California to Texas after newspaper articles blew an FBI informant's cover.

During the third day of a pre-trial hearing Wednesday for Clayton and three other Brilab defendants, Bruce J. Kelton of Los Angeles testified the investigation was originally planned to center in Southern California, but later crossed state lines.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald Wood called Kelton to the stand in an effort to bolster the government's contention that federal jurisdiction was valid in the Brilab investigation.

Kelton told the court that the Brilab focus was switched after a series of newspaper articles in February of 1979 blew FBI informant Joseph Hauser's cover in Southern California.

At the close of Wednesday's proceedings, Wood also said he planned to call two FBI agents who posed as insurance company executives and accompanied Hauser during the 10-month investigation.

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor was informed of the plan just after defense attorneys asked O'Connor to listen to a taped conversation between Hauser, labor leader L.G. Moore and Austin attorneys Randall B. Wood and Donald W. Ray.

Moore, Ray, and Wood were indicted along with Clayton on June 12 by a federal grand jury here on charges of fraud, conspiracy, extortion and racketeering in connection with an alleged insurance kickback scheme.

After defense attorneys filed motions asking that charges against the four be dismissed, O'Connor has spent three days listening to tape recordings secretly recorded by Hauser.

Under cross-examination by Roy Minton, attorney for Clayton, Jerry Goldstein, attorney for Ray and Wood, and Mike Ramsey, Moore's attorney, Kelton told the court that Hauser was to be paid $65,000 for his work as an informant.

He said the arrangements to pay Hauser came after the informant pleaded guilty Feb. 2, 1979, to three counts of a 10-count indictment that stemmed from a 1977 investigation into bribery and kickbacks.

Reading from a document provided by Wood, Kelton told the court that Hauser received $25,300 from February, 1979, to November, 1979, as "salary" for his work.

Hauser also received $10,000 for moving expenses, a year's prepaid rent on his Beverly Hills home that totaled $11,700 and $1500 a month for his family's living expenses for a 12-month period starting Jan. 1, 1980.

Kelton declined to reveal Hauser's whereabouts, saying only that he had been in the federal witness protection program since May 5 of this year after being sentenced to two and one half years in prison for the three 1978 charges.

But under questioning by Ramsey, Kelton did say that Hauser was a "federal prisoner."

Wood has indicated that Hauser can be called as a witness if needed, but has argued that the informant could add nothing to the information available on the more than 100 tapes that have been made available to defense attorneys.

Kelton also testified that he had little to do with the "day-to-day supervision" of the investigation once it moved to Texas and had never heard of the four defendants until July of last year.

He said Hauser was chosen as an informant "because he basically operated out of" Los Angeles, an area originally targeted for the investigation.

The FBI established a bogus insurance firm known as "Fidelity Financial Consultants" in a Beverly Hills office after the newspaper stories halted Hauser's work in California, Kelton said.

Hauser represented himself as an employee of Prudential Insurance Co. "who works only for the president of the company," but Prudential has claimed they had no connection with the investigation.

Kelton testified that he thought the FBI "had some contact with people at Prudential," about the investigation, but added "I can't be certain."

He said Hauser came to Texas July 9, 1979, after calling Bernard Rappoport, a prominent Texas Democrat from Waco, in early June.

Kelton agreed with Minton's assessment that Hauser was "something else" when it came to money and insurance schemes, saying he was a "knowledgeable — extremely knowledgeable — in life insurance."

After Kelton testified, tapes of Nov. 8 meetings between Hauser, Moore, Clayton and Rusty Kelly, Clayton's top aide, were played.

In the tapes, Hauser and Moore discuss giving Clayton as much as $60,000 for help in obtaining a $76 million state employee insurance contract.

The recordings also show Clayton accepting a $5,000 "campaign contribution" from Moore as the three men sat in the speaker's Austin office.

Hauser told Clayton he would be able to save the state $800,000 in premiums on employee insurance if he got "an inside track" on bidding for the contract.

"It needs to be opened up and give us a shot," Moore told Kelly. "We need some strong leadership from this office. We're gonna come up with the best deal."

Cat venture in Luther area

A wildcat has been scheduled in the Luther area of Howard County.

Ike Lovelady Inc., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Wegner, a 9,400-foot wildcat in Howard County, 3/4-mile east of the Siluro-Devonian oil production and one mile south of the Pennsylvania gas re-opener and lone producer from that pay in the Luther, Southeast field and 2 1/4 mile southeast of Luther.

Location is 1,980 feet from the north and east lines of 33-32-2n-T&P.

The discovery, W.C. Banks, No. 1 Blasingame, former Siluro-Devonian producer, was recompleted in May for a calculated, absolute open flow of 4,153,000 cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-oil ratio of 9,516-1, through perforations at 8,647-650 feet. Original completion was March 6, 1979 for 185 barrels of oil, plus 10 barrels of water, through a 22-664-inch choke and open hole at 9,898-926 feet.

Hobbs census 10,000 shy?

HOBBES, N.M. — City officials here are claiming that the 1980 U.S. census count conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau is at least 10,000 shy.

The bureau listed Hobbs' population at 23,879. In 1970, Hobbs had a population of 28,025. That means Hobbs' population has dropped 8.2 percent in ten years.

The most optimistic city boosters claim there are now 38,000 people living in the Hobbs city limits.

Witness claims he knows who killed federal judge

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An ex-convict says he hired gunmen from San Antonio to shoot and kill U.S. District Judge John H. Wood.

Sony De La Fuente, who appeared Wednesday before a special federal grand jury investigating Wood's assassination, told reporters the grand jury is attempting to verify information given them by Robert F. "Comanche" Riojas, a convicted murderer and heroin dealer.

The special grand jury also continued its inquiry into the harboring of Las Vegas gambler Jimmy Chagra after he had jumped bond following his conviction on drug smuggling charges last year.

Two of Chagra's relatives, his brother, Joe Chagra, and Jimmy Chagra's father-in-law, Leon Nichols, appeared before the grand jury Wednesday.

Both men said they could not see how the harboring of Jimmy Chagra had anything to do with Wood's death May 29, 1979.

Calling the grand jury investigation of his brother "a witch hunt," Chagra said "This grand jury has one job — to indict Jimmy Chagra for Judge Wood's murder."

De La Fuente said he was questioned about information supplied FBI agents by Riojas. De La Fuente said he believes Riojas knows who killed the judge.

Riojas has told federal authorities that the men who shot Wood are from San Antonio, De La Fuente said. He said Riojas also said he talked with them shortly before the attempted assassination of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr Nov. 21, 1978.

He said the subject came up at a party attended by Riojas and the men Riojas claims killed the judge and attempted to kill Kerr.

De La Fuente said, however, that he does not believe Riojas' story and said Riojas "concocted" the story in hopes of getting a special deal from federal authorities.

Riojas is serving 20 years for his state murder and heroin convictions and 25 years on a federal conviction for hiring five Bexar County Jail inmates to kill jail prisoner Hugo Ellis Saenz in 1977. Riojas is under the federal witness protection program and his whereabouts are unknown except to federal authorities.

De La Fuente is on parole after being convicted on a charge of conspiracy to distribute heroin. Judge Wood sentenced him to eight years in prison, he said.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions granted Nichols, 51, immunity from prosecution for his grand jury testimony. Nichols told reporters U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd threatened him with perjury charges three times because he could not tell the grand jury about his son-in-law's travels during the five months he was a federal fugitive.

Joe Chagra, who was the federal court house here Wednesday representing Nichols, was subpoenaed while Nichols was testifying.

He told reporters he told the grand jury that their focus on his brother, who is now in federal prison, is "unfair."

"Wood wasn't murdered, he started committing suicide years ago," Joe Chagra told reporters.

Stop using chemicals first step

The executive who downs large amounts of scotch before bedtime and the high school drop-out sniffing glue in a drainage ditch have something in common — they both abuse chemicals.

The chemicals in alcohol, glue or other substances are different but they all can cause the body's central nervous system to function badly. This problem can show up as a driving-while-intoxicated charge, prolonged depression or a large number of other symptoms, says a physician who works with patients who abuse alcohol or other drugs.

Physical effects vary with different drugs but ultimately they all cause problems in relating to people, making decisions and acting appropriately in a variety of situations, according to an article by Stuart Nemir, M.D., and Shirley Skaggs, Ph.D., of Austin, in the August issue of the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal.

Losing control of the amount of drugs used follows closely behind inappropriate words and actions as early signs of abuse problems. Then personal relationships suffer because abusers cannot communicate feelings and thoughts properly. Having a distorted view of physical surroundings adds to the difficulties and can result in danger to abusers themselves.

The first step in recovery is to stop using the chemicals that are causing mental and physical difficulties. Then the abusers need to learn proper actions that tear down excessive emotional defenses, build up ways of coping besides using drugs and restore relationships with people. Professional help and a support group is very important to help the abuser and family members handle all these changes and maintain a changed lifestyle, Dr. Nemir says.

Record number of rigs used

The number of oil rigs making hole in the state broke the 1,000-mark this week.

As of Monday, 1,007 rigs were making hole, compared to 990 for the previous week. This represents a rise over both the 987 total of a month ago, and the 775 total for this time last year.

The nationwide total also rose slightly. As of Monday, 3,050 rigs were making hole across the country, compared to 3,020 for the previous week.

This also tops the 2,987 total for last month, and the 2,236 total for this time last year.

Relief officials say half claims are fraudulent

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Almost half of the 9,000 South Texans who have sought disaster aid for damages caused by Hurricane Allen apparently are giving false information to relief workers, federal officials say.

The disturbing pattern was noticed Wednesday morning during a meeting of directors of the six federal aid centers. "In at least two of the six federal aid centers ... interviewers are being besieged by alleged victims who all claim they lost exactly $200 worth of food while electrical power was out," federal coordinating officer Dale Milford said.

Federal officials refused to specify the two centers.

"We have indications that as many as half of those visiting the disaster assistance centers are telling something less than the truth about their disaster-related losses," Milford said.

In some cases, federal employees sent to verify property damage have found home addresses turned out to be vacant lots, he said.

Suspected fraud cases will be turned over to the FBI and state officials for investigation and prosecution.

As of Wednesday morning, more than 9,000 South Texans had registered with centers operated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The aid offices in Corpus Christi, Alice, Brownsville, Harlingen, Edinburg and Port Isabel are "one-stop" centers with representatives of federal, state and local agencies involved in relief efforts.

An office in Port Aransas operated a week but was closed to move workers to Lower Rio Grande Valley locations.

Jack Simpson, director of FEMA centers, said federal interviewers are skilled at detecting fraud cases but must process them anyway.

Misrepresentation cannot be documented until a verifier visits the site, he said.

Bill McAda of FEMA said fraud cases always turn up after a disaster but not in the numbers found in South Texas this time.

"Maybe we're naive, but we've never encountered this kind of situation," said McAda.

"From the American taxpayer's point of view, he's not going to lose anything because nothing will be given out without the verification," he added.

Lions hear program on guide dogs

Ada belongs to Hattie Belle Boland — but not really.

Mrs. Boland told the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday how it works. She obtained Ada from Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., and Ada will be hers for life. Still, Guide Dogs maintains title so that if any dog were to be mistreated, not cared for, or abandoned, the foundation would reclaim the animal. In fact, Guide Dogs pays for two physical check-ups annually for the dogs and sends inspectors to check on how well the dogs are cared for.

The club financed Hattie Belle in her first visit to Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael, Calif. in 1956-57, and there she was matched with her beloved Topsy. After Topsy's death, grief-stricken Hattie Belle returned to San Rafael and was trained with Susie. So Ada is her third dog — her eyes, so to speak.

She told the Lions that Guide Dogs spends about $5,000 training dogs which are specially bred by FFA youths as a club project. These go to blind people without charge. Other agencies sponsor expenses of the blind to the school. Mrs. Boland projected a film, "Miracle of San Rafael," as part of the program. Dr. Marshall Cauley was program chairman.

Hurricane Allen boosts Texas shrimping industry

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Hurricane Allen blessed local shrimpers with catches up to six times greater than before the storm and the windfall has come at a time when they need it the most.

"It came when we needed it because prices of diesel fuel and the imports from Mexico were about to bankrupt the industry down here," said shrimper Carl Gayman.

The hurricane stirred up Gulf shrimp on the ocean bottom two weeks ago and the heavy catches should last another week or two, he said.

"It will be a shot in the arm for everybody, depending on how long it lasts. It will sure salvage the year for us," Gayman said.

One of the largest shrimp fleets in the world operates out of Brownsville and Port Isabel, with 500 to 700 boats.

The large harvests are welcome news in South Texas where many shrimpers last season applied for Small Business Administration loans because of a dismal catch.

Shrimpers blamed the poor year on heavy rains that killed young shrimp, high diesel prices and the closing of Mexican shrimp grounds to U.S. boats.

"It was shaping up to be a bad season two years in a row. I think we were looking at a lot of bankruptcies," said Melvin Power of the WPB Shrimp Producers Inc. of Port Isabel.

Gayman said his boats were hauling in only 200 pounds a night before the storm. However, he said trawlers now are taking in up to 1,200 pounds in a day's work.

A check with other shrimp fishermen in Brownsville and Port Isabel shows similar catch increases following the storm.

"It happens after every hurricane," said Power. "It activates the ocean bottom waters and puts the shrimp closer to the surface. It probably won't last more than a week or two."

After the seas calmed from Hurricane Allen, shrimpers headed out to see if the storm would have the same result as past ones.

"Some went out Aug. 11 and on the 12th, they started getting real good catches," said Carlos Villarreal of Trans-Gulf Trawlers Inc. in Brownsville.

Villarreal said his company's seven boats have been averaging between 1,000 to 1,500 a day per trawler.

"The shrimp are out in the daytime. Usually they're just out at night. And that helps the crew. They can see more of what they're doing," he said.

Guy Pete, a longtime Brownsville shrimper, said every storm he's been through since the 1933 hurricane has been a boon to the industry.

"You know you get the good with the bad. The hurricane does a lot of bad things. But with every hurricane the shrimp show up and they show up good," Pete said. "It'll make it a fair season."

Pete said some of his boats also have pulled up file cabinets, window frames, furniture and other debris that the storm washed to sea.

The heavy rains from Allen also will help the bays and estuaries where young shrimp mature, Gayman said.

"It flushes out all the bays. They get a build-up of pesticides and insecticides and it collects in the bottom sediment. This will clean them out," he said. "That will be good for I guess three years."

Afghan family flees torture; now in Plano

PLANO, Texas (AP) — An Afghan airline official who said he had been tortured by Soviet secret police led his family across 150 miles of rugged mountains toward freedom and political asylum in the United States.

Aziz Hamid, 47, his wife, five children and elderly mother escaped Afghanistan on foot, fleeing from the Soviet invaders he said accused him of spying for the United States.

"In this country there is freedom," said Hamid, whose dramatic escape began more than a year ago in Kabul.

"I wanted to come here because it is a land of opportunity," he said.

Hamid and his family are the first Afghan refugees to seek political asylum in the Dallas area.

Hamid said the Russian secret police tortured him for two hours each night after his January 1979 arrest by sending electrical charges through wires to his toes and legs.

"They were asking if I was connected with the CIA," Hamid said. "It was nonsense... the actual reason was my grandfather, on my mother's side, was related to the former king of Afghanistan, Mohammed Zahirshah."

After two weeks of interrogations, the secret police released him with orders that he was to stay home and not work for any government or foreign agency, Hamid said.

He said the Russians also confiscated his family's large land holdings.

"We had 700 acres of land in the eastern part of Afghanistan, a mill, tractors, a farm house," he said. "We didn't have any income to live on. At that time we decided to leave the country. My life was in danger. Secret police were watching me."

The family decided to escape, and late one night walked to a bus stop one by one — since the Soviets do not allow more than two people to walk together on Kabul streets — and traveled to Gaiwalabad.

They hid two days and three nights in a house they owned before leaving with Afghan guides who were to take them through the mountains to the Pakistani border, Hamid said.

"We hired a bus to take us near a town close to the boundary," Hamid said, "but it broke down. So we started walking."

Aided only by two donkeys — one for Hamid's 75-year-old mother and for him because his leg wounds had not healed — the family trudged over the mountains with little food and no extra clothes, he said.

The reached the border on May 4, 1979 and stayed in Peshawar two months while recovering from the journey. Then they went to Islamabad to seek visas and political asylum from the American consulate.

The family spent three and a half months in Islamabad and five and a half months in Frankfurt, West Germany, before receiving permission to enter the United States.

Hamid said he came to Plano because he had heard of the low unemployment rates in the area. They live with their sixth son, his wife and child.

The family, now penniless, has found no jobs despite three weeks of searching, he said.

County tax appraisal board reviving past?

Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board members have revived part of America's past — taxation without representation — by failing to show for their regular August meeting for two weeks in a row.

All but two members, that is, chairman Roy Watkins and board member Jack Watkins find out what it's like to call a meeting and have nobody come. "Who shot J.R.?" became a phrase when the new cry arose. "What happens to Lila Estes, Billy T. S... and Don McKinney?"

Roy Watkins said he has given up on gaveling to order a July meeting and will wait until the second week in September, when the next regular meeting is scheduled, to call for another meeting.

ONE, TWO AND YOU'RE OUT — St. Louis Cardinals catcher Ted Simmons applies a right fist to the chin of Cincinnati Reds base runner Ray Knight, as well as tagging him in the back with the ball, for the third out in the tenth inning of a game in Cincinnati Wednesday. Steer season ticket holders must act soon

Season ticket holders for Big Spring Steer football games that have not renewed their options and wish to do so are running out of time, according to Athletic Director Ron Logback.

Deadline for renewing their season tickets in the choice locations is Friday, August 22, according to Logback.

"If you (previous season ticket holders) want the same tickets as last year," Logback stated, "you need to pick those tickets up at the business office or send money for them immediately into the Big Spring school business office located across from the high school."

Logback also said that all season tickets for the Steers five home games this fall not claimed by Friday will be sold on a first come basis.

The Steers, under new head coach Ralph Harris, will have a home schedule featuring non-district opponent Sweetwater on September 12, then face District 5-AAAAA foes Abilene on October 3, Midland on October 10, Midland Lee on October 24, and San Angelo on November 14.

All games will begin at 8:00 p.m.

Fifth and sixth grade football sign-up today

The Pee-Wee League football program for youngsters in the fifth and sixth grades in Big Spring, Coahoma, Forsan and surrounding areas is having their annual sign-up this afternoon and Friday afternoon from five to eight o'clock.

The site of the registration for this age group is the Howard College SUB, and those youngsters wishing to play should bring either a parent or guardian, as well as a birth certificate.

The fifth and sixth grade league is hoping for a seven team field this year. Thus far, sponsors are Cosden, Elks Lodge, the Optimist Club and Tomco.

Clubs or civic organizations wishing to sponsor a team are reminded that the fee is 300 dollars. Those wishing to sponsor a group in the league should contact Leo Williams at 3-1084.

Wrestling returns here Monday

Southwest Championship Wrestling returns to Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on Monday, August 25, with the legendary Wahoo McDaniel the main attraction.

McDaniel, a former pro-football star, will meet Tully Blanchard for the Southwest heavyweight title, while there will also be a tag team match and two other individual wrestling matches.

Tickets will be on sale at the gate, and the action is slated to begin at 8:30 p.m.

Red Sox visit Ozona Tourney

The Big Spring Red Sox will return to action this weekend in the Ozona Tournament, hoping to increase on their 20-4 record.

The Red Sox were scheduled to play in the Ozona Tourney last weekend and to meet Snyder on Thursday, but all of the action was postponed for various reasons.

the advice of his Pittsburgh attorney Steve Sokol.

"If suggested ... it would have to be weighed," Dorsett said.

Mike Trope, Dorsett's original contract negotiator, met with the Heisman Trophy winner at camp Tuesday and announced he had been asked to co-manage the star player with attorney Sokol.

Trope voiced support for Dorsett's contract demands, but added, "I've never, never given a player advice to sit out a camp."

"I've always found when you sit down with management and show a sincere desire to negotiate in good faith, most teams will. That (Sokol's advice) is one helluva way to ruin a career," he said.

After meeting with Dorsett Tuesday, Trope said the running back had "changed his posture and will not walk out of camp even if the negotiations are protracted."

Sokol revealed Monday Dorsett's salary in 1980 was $230,000 with $130,000 deferred through 2004. Dorsett said he wants a "lifetime contract" with a higher base salary on the remaining two years of his original contract, plus an extension of five years at a salary competitive with the NFL's elite running backs.

Dorsett said he is "sad this has become a public issue."

"I'd been negotiating since camp began when the question came to me about whether I would walk out. I've worked too hard not to play. Mentally I'm in even better shape than physically, so I didn't come here to take a walk," he said.

"I came to contribute to the Cowboys and those are my intentions as of today," Dorsett quickly added he believes he is not receiving "a fair shake."

NFLPA suing player agents

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Football League Players Association filed suit against Mike Trope and 24 other player agents, accusing them of conspiring to cause problems for the association.

Gene Upshaw, president of the NFLPA, and 10 players along with the association itself filed the suit against Trope, Ernie Wright, Jerry Argovitz and others in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

The 27-page suit charges that the agents have conspired in violation of antitrust law to corner the market on the players.

Sixth straight win keeps Houston in first place

Morgan leads as Astros walk by Bucs

HOUSTON (AP) — Professor Joe Morgan of the Houston Astros recently gave a lesson on the art of taking pitches and he practiced his sermon well on Pittsburgh ace Jim Bibby Wednesday night en route to a 5-1 victory.

Morgan tied a club record with four walks off Bibby, who lost for only the third time this season. Noting Bibby's wildness, Morgan encouraged his teammates to force Bibby to throw strikes.

"A lot of guys want to hit and I do too, but we are in the process of trying to win a pennant and anything that will help us win, that's what we want to do," Morgan said. "The guys are seeing that a walk will help get us on base."

Houston trailed the Pirates 1-0 on Dave Parker's first inning single until the sixth inning when the Astros started flooding the bases. Danny Heep singled and Alan Ashby doubled before Bibby intentionally walked pinchhitter Dave Bergman to load the bases.

Bibby then walked pinchhitter Denny Walling to force home the tying run and signal his exit from the game. Relief pitcher Grant Jackson then walked Morgan to force home the winning run.

Enos Cabell then came up with a two-run single and Houston got one more run in the eighth when Enrique Romo loaded the bases and then walked Cabell to force home the Astros' fifth run.

"He struggled the whole way, we were fortunate to get out of some of those innings," Pirates shortstop Tim Lincecum said of Bibby. "He was throwing good. He just couldn't get the ball over the plate."

Bibby walked the bases loaded in the third inning with one out but escaped without yielding a run when Jose Cruz and Cesar Cedeno popped out. The Astros left two more runners stranded in the fourth inning with two out when Morgan grounded out unassisted to first base. "It's a morale lifter to beat a guy like Bibby because he's one of the best in the major leagues," Morgan said. "But we can't get caught up in something like that. We've got to win our games no matter who's pitching."

The victory was Houston's sixth in a row and kept the Astros in first place in the National League Western Division. Pittsburgh remained two games ahead of Montreal in the NL East following Los Angeles second straight victory over the Expos.

Former rookie of the year among NFL cuts

By the Associated Press

It's a long jump between rookie of the year and all-pro. But Steve Niehaus discovered something else — it's a longer fall if you miss.

Niehaus, the second player selected in the National Football League's draft in 1976, was one of 15 players released as Minnesota cut its roster to 50 players, one man below the maximum. The Vikings announced the cuts Wednesday although the moves were required to be made by Tuesday afternoon.

Niehaus, an All-American at Notre Dame in 1975, was the NFL's defensive rookie of the year with Seattle in 1976. But he never lived up to his potential although he was hampered by knee injuries.

The 6-foot-4 defensive tackle was acquired by the Vikings last season in a trade with Seattle for veteran Carl Eller and a draft choice. He spent most of the season on the injured reserve list.

Vikings Coach Bud Grant was willing to question Niehaus' ability.

"I am not so sure he had that great a year as a rookie," Grant said. "He played as a rookie and had some success with a team just starting out."

"But the jump between rookie of the year and all-pro is quite a bit."

The jump is tougher when you're out of shape, and Niehaus was fighting a losing battle with his weight this season.

The Vikings also released running back Dennis Moseley, who led the Big Ten Conference in rushing while at Iowa last season. Minnesota added one player to its roster, punter Skip Johnston of Auburn, who had been released by Seattle.

In other transactions, the Cleveland Browns picked up quarterback Pete Woods, who had been released by Denver Tuesday, and waived 12th-round draft choice Mike Wright.

Miami signed veteran linebacker Larry Gordon to a four-year contract. The Dolphins also waived seven players including center Doug Lantz of Miami (Ohio), and linebacker Ben Long of South Dakota, a pair of 10th-round draft choices.

St. Louis negated a trade with Los Angeles, returning Walter White to the Rams after the tight end failed his physical. The Cardinals also waived wide receiver Jeff Lee, who spent the 1977 season on the St. Louis' injured reserve list.

New Orleans said that veteran quarterback Bill Musson, who retired last year after a 12-year NFL career, will be given a one-day tryout today. The Saints

Navratilova rallies to win

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — Martina Navratilova struggled to a 2-6, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Lele Forood and advanced to the third round of a $100,000 Women's Cup tennis tournament.

In other matches, Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, the No. 5 seed, earned a 6-2, 7-5 victory over Claudia Casabianca of Argentina.

Weaver ignores suspension

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The surging Baltimore Orioles, attempting to overtake the first-place New York Yankees in the American League East, might have to play three games in the near future without Manager Earl Weaver. But according to the fiery Weaver, he's not going anywhere.

Weaver was suspended for three days and fined an unspecified amount by AL President Lee MacPhail Wednesday as the result of a run-in with the umpires during a game against the Yankees last Saturday. The suspension was to begin this Friday, but has been stayed pending an appeal of the ruling.

Baltimore General Manager Hank Peters announced the ruling would be appealed, but at Anaheim Stadium shortly before the Orioles' game against the California Angels Wednesday night, Weaver was all smiles and said he "didn't know what I'd be appealing."

While fines and suspensions are considered serious business by most, Weaver was anything but serious while making out a lineup card in his office.

"I'm going to manage the team all year," said Weaver, who only Tuesday signed a contract to manage the Orioles through the 1982 season. "I don't believe in fines or suspensions. My plans are to manage, why not?"

"I don't pay any attention to this stuff. This is juvenile. As far as I'm concerned, I laugh at it."

The 50-year-old veteran skipper whose teams have won four AL pennants, six Eastern Division titles and one World Series crown since he took over as manager on July 11, 1968, allegedly hit umpire Rich Garcia in the eye with his cap during an argument in the Yankees-Orioles game last Saturday night in Baltimore.

"I couldn't get to my car after the game, there were a thousand people waiting there," said a grinning Weaver. "I'll get those 50,000 people at Baltimore to go (to a hearing). They witnessed what happened."

"I don't have a reaction (to MacPhail's ruling) because there is nothing to react to. A lot of people have been asking me silly questions. I'm afraid the media is overreacting to this, it doesn't mean much."

The Orioles, shooting for their second straight championship in the tough AL East, have been red-hot since June 15, compiling a 42-18 record. Their latest victor was a 6-5, 10-inning triumph over the Angels Wednesday night.

"We'll just have to do our best if he goes out," said slugging Baltimore outfielder Ken Singleton. "It'll be like a player is hurt for a couple of days."

MacPhail made the decision to take action against the Orioles manager after reviewing written reports from the umpires, talking with Weaver, and watching stop-action television tape of the incident.

Weaver was ejected from the game for throwing equipment on the field in protest of a called strike, but remained in the dugout, and the confrontation with Garcia occurred later in the game.

WEAVER GETS THE POINT — Plate umpire John Shulock points to within a hair's breadth of Baltimore manager Earl Weaver's nose during a controversy at home plate in the fifth inning Wednesday at Anaheim Stadium. Shulock called a bunt attempt by Al Bumbry a strike; Weaver disagreed. Weaver is appealing a three-game suspension for an incident with umpires last Saturday at New York. Coach Frank Robinson is at rear.

Watson dislikes format for World Series of Golf

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson thinks there are too many players in the World Series of Golf. "The format is not to my liking. This is an important tournament and it's hard to be something special when you have 32 players," said the year's leading money winner before today's first round in the $421,900 tournament.

"You should have to win at least one tournament," said the 30-year-old Watson. "You should have the winners of the four majors, multiple winners, the top five on the money list from January to now and the leading Order of Merit players in each foreign country."

Does NBA have drug problem?

NEW YORK (AP) — The use of drugs among professional athletes is in the opinion of many more or less prevalent than the frequency with which the remainder of society seeks mind-altering escapes.

One official representing professional basketball players when asked about marijuana use said he's "not very concerned about that."

"That would make about 10 players. That's what it should be. That would make it truly a World Series of Golf."

But Larry Fleisher, legal counsel to the NBA Players Association, joins league officials in being concerned about the use of cocaine among players. While he is unwilling to accept at face value a story by the Los Angeles Times that 40 to 75 percent of the league's players have tried cocaine, he is disturbed by the report.

"I think most of them recognize the danger of it (cocaine), but some apparently do not," said Fleisher in discussing what some have said is the widespread use of cocaine by NBA players. "The description of the term 'widespread' varies. But it is being used. I'm sure it is."

Watson calls the $100,000 first prize an incentive to win for the seventh time this year and boost his 1980 earnings past an unprecedented $500,000.

No one, including NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien, has denied that players use drugs. That, both in the words of O'Brien and Fleisher, is a commentary of sports on society, circa 1980.

"I've never seen anybody turn down cash, but in a way, it's a little out of reason. If it was truly a World Series, which I don't think it is, $100,000 might be justified," he said.

Since then, at least 19 players have qualified each year, with a record high of 37 in the 1979 tournament, which was won by Lon Hinkle at Firestone Country Club. The field this year is the second highest, with 32 players.

There is not a team in the league you can confidently say does not have a drug problem," said Frank Layden, general manager of the Utah Jazz.

Watson agreed with the final threesome today matching him with Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino. "I think it's good," he said of the pairing dictated by PGA Tour official Clyde Mangum.

"I don't think we all have played together in a tournament. I like it. I always get up a little extra for Jack and Lee," he said.

The NBA is planning an expanded drug education program, but at least one of its teams — the Golden State Warriors — has already gone beyond that. Owner Franklin Mieuli said the Warriors have a drug surveillance program because Coach Al Attles is so anti-drug that "if our stickest player was found to be into drugs he'd throw him off the team."

Mieuli, in what was perhaps his own brand of modern commentary on the social habits of athletes who for decades were pictured in many adoring American minds as being real-life Jack Armstrongs, summed up the dilemma best:

"It's determined by your whole year, not what you do in one particular tournament. You have to add up the whole year," he said.

"You've got to be a straight arrow to play on our team," he said.

AL Roundup Spillner comes so close

George Brett resumed hitting after a one-game "slump" and the New York Yankees remained 2½ games ahead of the Baltimore Orioles in the American League East but both events were overshadowed by Dan Spillner's near no-hitter Wednesday night.

Spillner, a Cleveland right-hander with a 5.45 earned run average, came within two outs of a no-hitter before rookie Leo Sutherland singled for Chicago's only hit — an opposite-field grounder between third and short — as the Indians downed the White Sox 3-0.

Spillner quickly got those outs to preserve his first AL shutout. He had two with San Diego in the National League, including a one-hitter against — who else? — the Chicago Cubs.

Royals 5, Rangers 3
One night after his 30-game hitting streak was snapped, Brett rapped his 15th homer and two singles in three at-bats, boosting his average to .406, but Willie Aikens' sacrifice fly in the 12th inning drove in the winning run as the Royals stretched their winning streak to eight games.

Hal McRae opened the 12th with a double and Brett was intentionally walked for the second time. Darrell Porter also walked, loading the bases, and Aikens followed with his sacrifice fly. Brett later scored on a wild pitch.

Yankees 6, Mariners 4
Bobby Murcer drove in three runs with a single and double and Tommy John picked up his 17th victory. The Yankees took a 3-2 lead with two runs in the third inning on RBI-singles by Murcer and Reggie Jackson. New York's Bob Watson homered in the second inning and Murcer added a two-run double in the seventh. Tom Paciorek and Juan Beniquez homered for Seattle.

Orioles 6, Angels 5
Doug DeCinces' two-out single in the top of the 10th scored John Lowenstein with the winning run after the Orioles blew a three-run lead in the ninth. Lowenstein started the 10th with a walk and stole second. Lowenstein went to third on Dan Graham's long fly and DeCinces followed with his game-winning hit.

Home runs by Ken Singleton and Benny Ayala in the sixth inning helped Baltimore take a 5-2 lead but the Angels tied it with three runs in the ninth on Rick Miller's RBI-double and a two-run single by Bert Campaneris.

A's 2, Red Sox 1
Mario Guerrero's eighth-inning homer, the second and last hit off Dennis Eckersley, gave Mike Norris his 17th victory. Eckersley didn't allow a hit until Mitchell Page opened the Oakland seventh with a single. He stole second as Dave Revering struck out and continued to third base when catcher Carlton Fisk's throw went into center field.

After a long argument, with Fisk and Manager Don Zimmer contending that Revering interfered as Fisk threw to second, Wayne Gross tied the score with a sacrifice fly.

Tigers 6, Brewers 6
John Wockenbus slammed a three-run homer, Tom Brookens added a two-run shot and Lance Parrish homered with the bases empty to help Gerry Ujdur pick up his first major league victory. Sixto Lezcano, Sal Bando and Ben Oglivie homered for Milwaukee.

However, Bando grounded into a triple play after the Brewers cut an 8-2 lead to 8-5 in the eighth. Third baseman Brookens, who had a perfect 5-for-5 night at bat, also started Detroit's first triple play in 11 years.

Blue Jays 10, Twins 4
Ernie Whitford drove in three runs with a double and triple and Jackson Todd posted his first major league victory in almost three years. Whitford tripled a run across in the fifth inning as the Blue Jays took a 3-1 lead and then capped a four-run eighth with his two-run double to back Todd, who scattered 10 hits, including home runs by Ron Jackson and Mike Cubbage.

Yankees hope staff gels behind Gaylord

BALTIMORE — Not a bad deal the Yankees made; getting Gaylord Perry and a year's supply of K-Y Jelly for Ken Clay and the always-tradeable Tobie N. Later, N. as in Nemed.

K-Y Jelly is the stuff that Gaylord Perry is said to use to make his sinker sink better. It is a legal substance when used in the purpose for which it is manufactured. It is an illegal substance when used by baseball pitchers, but nobody is known to have gone to jail for it yet.

Every so often there is a flurry of excitement over Gaylord's greaseball, or splitter, or whatever, usually when he changes address, so it can be expected to flare up again now that he has moved to The Big Apple, where people have been known to get away with anything.

Some years back, when Gaylord came over to the American League from the Giants, he was required to take a purity test. It was unique. Perry welcomed it. He said he would prove, once and for all, that he is able to make a baseball dance just through the sheer remarkability of his natural talent.

HIS TEAM, THE Cleveland Indians, were visiting Boston. Lee MacPhail, president of the league, dispatched two hawk-eyes to the scene and, together with Gaylord Perry and a catcher, they marched out to the Fenway bullpen where Gaylord proceeded to throw sinker after sinker after sinker, apparently without the assistance of a foreign substance, while inspectors Dick Butler and Nestor Chylak stood nearby and nodded. What this proved was the Gaylord could make a ball drop without the use of K-Y Jelly. What it did not prove is that Gaylord Perry can make a ball drop better WITH the use of K-Y Jelly.

One club announced it was not convinced. That club, ironically, was the Yankees. They would conduct their own investigation, they announced to the world. They would set up a few cameras in Yankee Stadium and catch Gaylord in a cross-fire. They would photograph him from every angle while he pitched against them, and he would be exposed, irrefutably, as the scheming culprit he is.

YOUNG IDEAS

As Gabe Paul now recalls it, seven years after the act, only one camera was used. It was Gabe's idea. He was the Yankee press at the time. Years before he had pulled the same trick on Lew Burdette, infamous in the National League for loading up the baseball to gain an unfair advantage.

"ALL WE FOUND OUT," Gabe Paul now says, "is that Lew Burdette was a helluva pitcher, and the same went for Gaylord Perry. There wasn't anything you could prove."

Gabe Paul tosses a posey at his former boss. "This is a good move George has made," he said. "How can they get hurt? Ken Clay was frozen on a minor-league roster, so they were going to lose him anyway. They got a veteran campaigner, a great competitor. All Gaylord has to do is win three or four for them, and he has done the job. They want him for right now, not for the future."

Grabbing an old experienced hand for a pennant drive is an old Yankee tradition. Mostly, they would raid the National League for pennant protection, offering money to a team out of the race that was looking to unload a big salary. Offhand, I can remember Johnny Mize, Johnny Sain, Enos Slaughter, even Ed Macfie, an NL institution.

Gaylord has been shuttling back and forth between the leagues. He is the only man to have won the Cy Young Award in the AL (Cleveland, 1972) and the NL (San Diego, 1976). He was 40 when he did it with the Padres, and he will be 42 next month. He is an amazing man, even if he does use women's products in his craft.

Every so often, Gaylord announces he is going on the dry, giving up the greaseball. I tried to find out if the Yankee scouts, in turning over their report that set up the deal, had signified that Gaylord is still throwing it.

"THEY SAID HE IS throwing a funny pitch," said Gene Michael, "but they don't know if it was a stinker or a splitter." The GM smiled, of course, when he said it.

Whenever a club pulls off a coup such as this, questions are asked.

"Why didn't the Orioles put in a claim for Perry to block the deal?" is a reasonable question. After all, in order for them to move Perry, waivers were needed from all teams presently beneath the Yankees in the standings, which means all teams, including the Orioles.

The answer is that the Texas Rangers have had waivers on Gaylord since mid-June, and were free to deal him to whomever they pleased. They certainly pleased the Yankees, who got him cheap. Perry's salary is $300,000 a season, so that the Yankees need pay the remaining $65,000 or so. His contract runs out at the end of the year, but the Yankees are inclined to think Perry will sign with them for '81.

"He needs only 15 wins for 300," says George Steinbrenner. "I think he'd like to get them here."

And so, in betting Baltimore for the pennant, the Yankees will use, in this young man's game, Gaylord Perry, 42; Luis Tiant, who says he is 40; Tommy John, who is 37 and who wore out one arm. In order to make room in the starting rotation for Gaylord Perry, the Yankees are moving to the bullpen the kid, Rudy May, 33.

It's birthday party time!

BIRTHDAY TREATS — Youngsters delight in the special treats that go with a birthday party. The cake and a pitcherful of delicious thirst-quenching beverage make birthday time a fun time.

Summertime is fun time for youngsters who enjoy the carefree freedom that comes with the season. For the lucky girl or boy who has a birthday to share with special friends, it's an ideal time for a supervised trip to the beach or pool — then back home for the party treats.

What to serve depends entirely on Mom's busy schedule, but simple refreshments, a few prizes and favors will always capture the sense of excitement and surprise that children love. Keeping a ready supply of favorite flavors of Kool-Aid unsweetened or sugar-sweetened soft drink mix is one way of assuring quick and easy remedies for summertime thirsts. Youngsters like their fruit flavors and mothers appreciate the economical value of these vitamin C-enriched soft drink mixes, along with their versatility. They mix-and-match with a host of other beverages, as is the case here.

Party Punch combines strawberry flavor sugar-sweetened soft drink mix with orange juice and ginger ale. Served with lots of ice, it's both refreshing and appealing. And, Happy Day Shake made with strawberry flavor sugar-sweetened soft drink mix, milk and vanilla ice cream is a very special favorite with the birthday party set.

Birthday cake is a "must," and for any child, what is more natural than a 3-layer cake frosted in two shades of pink. Carousel-Cake uses different levels of Kool-Aid strawberry flavor unsweetened soft drink mix in the frosting, and animal crackers provide a strategic march around the candles. Serve ice cream with the cake to round out the party's refreshments.

Party-wise moms will save the empty 10-qt. canisters of Kool-Aid sugar-sweetened soft drink mix since they can become part of the entertainment at the party. Guests can fashion their own Fun Drum or a Birdie Hang-out with very little effort.

Make your own fun drum!

For the Fun Drum you'll need an empty Kool-Aid can and two plastic lids, eight brass paper fasteners (No. 4), six feet of metallic cord or yarn, two pencils, two small corks, scissors, glue and a punch. Here's how to make it:

1. Cut bottom out of can. Paint can or cover with bright paper.

2. Punch 4 holes around end of can about 1/2-inch from edge and with equal space between. Do the same at the other edge but space holes so they are centered halfway between the others.

3. Insert paper fasteners but do not spread the tabs. Take silver cord, tie around one fastener. Loop cord around other fasteners, from top to bottom, all around the can. When you reach the fastener you started from, loop cord once around and then tie the end of the cord to the opposite fastener. This will give you about a 3-foot neck cord.

4. Now bend back tabs on inside of can. Place 1 lid at each end.

5. To make drumsticks, make hole in top of cork large enough to insert unsharpened pencil. Glue in place. Paint corks a bright color.

Birdie Hang-outs are great fun to make and just as simple. For this project you'll need Kool-Aid can with lid, pencil or 1/4-inch dowel 7-1/2 inches long, paper clip, 2 feet of string, scissors, cutting knife and punch. Here's how to make it:

1. Cut a semi-circle in one-half the lid. Punch a hole, large enough for the pencil or dowel, centered below the cutout.

2. Paint lid and can, let dry.

3. Punch a small hole in side of can about 1/2-inch from bottom and another 1/2-inch from top. Holes should be in line with one another.

4. Tie a knot in the string at one end. Run the open end through one side hole from inside the can and then through the second hole. Knot the end, pull string upward from outside the can.

5. On the side of the can opposite the string, punch 2 holes side by side and about 1/4-inch apart. Holes should be only large enough to take the paper clip wire. Form clip into "U" shape and slide through the 2 holes from inside the can, bend ends back on outside about 1/4 inch.

6. Push pencil or dowel through hole in lid and through the "U." Slip lid onto can.

Happy Day Shake

- 1/4 cup strawberry flavor sugar-sweetened soft drink mix
- 3 cups milk
- 1 cup (1/2 pt.) vanilla ice cream

Combine all ingredients in electric blender container. Blend about 1 minute or until smooth and frothy. Makes about 5 cups or 6 to 8 servings.

Note: Recipe may be halved.

Party Punch

- 2 scoops strawberry flavor sugar-sweetened soft drink mix
- 1 quart water with ice cubes
- 1-1/2 cups orange juice
- 1 bottle (12 fl. oz.) ginger ale, chilled

Dissolve soft drink mix in water with ice in non-metal bowl or pitcher. Add orange juice and chill. Just before serving, add ginger ale. Add lemon and lime slices or strawberries, if desired. Makes 7 cups or 6 to 8 servings.

Carousel Birthday Cake

- 1 package (2-layer size) yellow cake mix or pudding-included cake mix
- 3/4 cup butter or margarine
- 2 boxes (16 oz. each) confectioners sugar
- 9 tablespoons (about) hot water
- 1 envelope strawberry flavor unsweetened soft drink mix
- Animal crackers and small candles

Prepare cake mix as directed on package, baking in 3 greased and floured 8-inch layer pans at 350° for 25 minutes. Cool.

Cream butter. Gradually beat in sugar alternately with water, beating well after each addition until frosting is of spreading consistency. Measure 1 cup frosting; blend in 1 teaspoon of the soft drink mix. Blend remaining soft drink mix into remaining frosting. Fill and frost cake layers with pale pink frosting, reserving 1/2 cup and leaving top smooth. Mark top of cake into 6 equal wedges. Spread reserved frostings in these areas, alternating colors and extending frosting about 2 inches down side of cake for scalloped edge. Using pastry bag with plain tip, decorate cake with remaining dark pink frosting. Place animal crackers and candles on cake.

In high altitude areas, follow cake mix package directions for cakes.

TWEEN 12 and 20

It's Carter, but barely

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

If you were given the chance to vote for president of the United States and the candidates were Mr. Carter, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Reagan or Mr. Bush, who would you vote for and why?

This question brought 2,620 responses (one of our smaller numbers for survey questions) from American teen-agers. Of the 2,620 responses, 1,575 (59 percent) were girls and 1,045 (41 percent) were boys.

The Democratic candidates — Mr. Carter and Kennedy — outpolled the Republican candidates 1,482 (56.5 percent) to 1,138 (43.5 percent). The candidate who polled the most votes was Mr. Carter with 1,020 votes (38.5 percent of all the votes cast), followed by Reagan 864 (32.5 percent), Kennedy 462 (18 percent) and Bush 274 (11 percent).

The comments were very interesting and varied so let's hear a few from individual teens.

From Leah Harris, 12, Lake Charles, La.: I'd vote for Mr. Kennedy because I like his speeches best. His brother was a good president and good things usually run in the same family.

From John Sallot, 17, Santa Ana, Calif.: President Carter would get my vote. He receives much criticism but remember he was responsible for bringing peace to the Middle East. Remember, he is only human.

From Lori Heddleson, 13, Columbus, Ohio: I like President Carter. I think he has been a good president and he is honest.

From Shannon Johnson, 14, Jefferson, Texas: I would vote for Mr. Bush. Mr. Carter has blundered his way through his entire term. Mr. Kennedy only wants power. Mr. Reagan is a good man but he is too old. Mr. Bush is bright and very capable of leading our country back to world leadership.

From Tami Kesler, 15, Fullerton, Calif.: I would vote for Ronald Reagan because I feel he is the only one who can get us out of the mess we are in.

I am awarding a TWEEN 12 and 20 T-shirt to Ed Winters, 16, Florence, Ala., who said it best: "Many times during presidential elections, we hear all the bad things about our candidates. Actually, all four men are good Americans and would make a good, honest, hardworking president."

"Right now I'm torn between voting for President Carter or George Bush. If I had to vote this very minute, I would cast my vote for President Carter."

"What I would like to see is a Carter-Kennedy ticket fight it out fairly and squarely with a Reagan-Bush ticket, winner take all. That way I could really have time and make the best choice."

Our next survey question comes from Becky White, 16, from Nashua, N.H., who asks, "Do you think that it is permissible for girls to ask boys out on a date, and why?" This should bring some interesting comments — so let me hear from all you guys and gals out there. I'll give a TWEEN 12 and 20 button to all teens who write and a TWEEN 12 and 20 T-shirt to the teen who says it best.

Please write to me, in care of this newspaper, stating your sex and age. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Abby

'Sleep-Over' Dates Cause Parents Restless Nights

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old daughter is living at home again after three unsuccessful attempts at apartment living. She works, but pays no rent. She's been dating a young man for a short period of time and goes out with him once a week. She stays all night at his apartment, come home in the morning, changes her clothes and goes to work.

This is upsetting my husband and me. We've told her so, but she says she is doing no wrong because she "loves" him. She also says she has to live her own life, and if we don't get off her back she will move out and we'll never see her again.

We are afraid that this direction she has taken will hurt her. How can we love her if she sees her only once a week, and then just for a sleep-over date? If this relationship doesn't lead to marriage, and she thinks she "loves" another one, and another one, and still another, what kind of person will she become?

Abby, it's so hard for us to accept this and be quiet, yet we don't want to lose our daughter. What should we do?

UPSET PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Tell her that as long as she lives under your roof, she'll have to abide by your rules, which do not include sleeping out. If she wants to move, you can't stop her, but I doubt if she will because she's not financially able to hack it alone.

DEAR ABBY: Recently the director of the ballet company of which presidential candidate Ronald Reagan's son is a member felt compelled to issue a statement to the press that the younger Reagan and all the other male members of the troupe were "straight" and had "nice girlfriends." It is a sad commentary on our society's attitude toward human sexuality that such a statement was made at all.

Implicit in that announcement were the following erroneous assumptions: 1) That male participation in ballet requires lengthy justification lest it threaten our traditional view of masculinity and femininity; 2) that all male ballet dancers are suspect and therefore proof of their masculinity is required — i.e., having girlfriends; 3) that without proof of their manliness, people might think they were gay; and 4) that being gay is bad.

Do you have any additional observations on the above?

Choose safest route to and from school

Parents can lessen the dangers their children face by involving them in the selection of the safest routes to and from school, says Leslie Earnst, president of the Big Spring City Council of the Parent-Teacher Association.

National figures show that traffic accidents are the leading cause of death for children through age 14. Another sobering fact — nearly half of all pedestrian accidents involve children under 15.

Parents should help their children choose the safest route to and from school, then test walk it with them, emphasizes Mrs. Earnst.

She suggests that Big Spring parents can reduce traffic hazards for their children by encouraging them to use the following guides from the American Automobile Association:

- Choose the route with fewest streets to cross.
- Go directly to and from school.
- Cross at corners.
- Cooperate with police, school safety patrols and adult crossing guards.

- Look in all directions before crossing any street.
- Obey all traffic signals.
- WALK across streets. Allow yourself plenty of time.
- Watch for vehicles that might make a turn.
- Face traffic when walking on roads without sidewalks.
- Be extra alert in bad weather.
- Wear something white or reflective and/or carry a light if you must walk near traffic when it is foggy, raining or dark.

The single person does have family-life needs

COLLEGE STATION — Single people do have families — and needs. They're interesting and important for everyone to understand, according to Dr. Betty Jo Smith, a family life education specialist.

Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

"Family" is one of the most important "support systems," the specialist says.

"Persons who live in what we might call 'traditional families' are supported by other family members in the home — we call this system the 'nuclear family.'"

"When nuclear-family members are not available for support and a giving, caring exchange of family life, single people often search out these relationships among friends and colleagues," Dr. Smith continues.

Networks of long-standing friendships and associations sustain and support the single person, the specialist says.

And such relationships call for a great investment of time and energy — an investment very similar to the time and energy required of nuclear family members toward each other, she adds.

In addition, it takes patience and perseverance to seek out compatible friends and to develop strong emotional ties, Dr. Smith points out.

"Single people make continual investments of time, energy and money in the development and sustaining of relationships — after all, they can't simply go home to a family," she stresses.

So, moving for a single person usually means leaving behind the "significant others" in his life.

He will suffer some degree of grief due to that separation, Dr. Smith says.

As soon as the single person reaches his new destination, he must again begin to establish new friends and new support systems.

He needs time for creating a new home environment where he feels accepted and needed — and this can be a long, slow process, the specialist stresses.

For a single person who travels or moves often, those new relationships may never be formed, and the healthy environment necessary for human growth may not be present.

Institutions, organizations, communities and individuals — can do much to assist the single person entering into a new environment, Dr. Smith says.

It's important to remember that single people do not live in a vacuum — they, too, need significant, caring relationships, she adds.

Generally, it's assumed that a single person is "free" to move and be uprooted because "they don't have the ties that bind them to a place."

Not true, Dr. Smith says.

In fact, at times it may be more difficult for a single person to move and leave family and friends — simply because he cannot take his "support system" with him to the new home, she explains.

Dr. Smith is on the home economics staff of the Texas

Florida billboard: White collar workers wanted

By the Associated Press
A bold billboard towers over a busy Miami intersection in Florida: "White Collar Workers Needed." This is no plea for briefcase-toting business types — the ad recruits priests.

Roman Catholic authorities in Florida say the state is in "desperate need" of holy men — with many fewer priests per person than the national average.

The priest shortage is not confined to Florida, however, according to the Rev. Caesar Russo, vocational director of the Diocese of St. Augustine. He said it's a national and worldwide problem.

"There is no doubt that there is a (U.S.) shortage," concurred Bob Wonderly, spokesman for the U.S. Catholic Conference in Washington, D.C., "but the situation is turning around."

Wonderly said there were 59,192 Roman Catholic priests in the United States in 1970, the most ever. By 1979, the figure had declined to 58,430, but this year the total number has risen to 58,621.

He declined to estimate the number of priests needed within the U.S. church: "There are never really enough."

Wonderly also declined to connect the shortage of priests with Tuesday's announcement by the Catholic Conference that married Episcopal priests will be permitted to become Roman Catholic priests and remain married, under a plan approved by the Vatican.

The two matters are "completely unrelated," he said.

The U.S. average of priests per persons of the Roman Catholic faith, while still indicating a need for more priests, is far better than that in some areas of the world, notably Latin America and Africa.

According to Vatican statistics, America has roughly 120 priests for every 100,000 Catholics. The numbers of priests for Latin America and southern Africa, respectively, are 16 and 33 per 100,000 worshippers.

Last month, the Vatican's Congregation for the Clergy appealed to dioceses in America and Europe (where the rate is 93 priests per 100,000 people) to send more men to countries which sorely need priests. But the appeal comes at a time when bishops, even in priest-rich regions, feel they can barely cover their own parish needs.

Reasons for the lack of priests are hard to define, priests say.

Wonderly noted the steady level of resignations from the priesthood that followed the controversial decisions of Vatican II in the mid-1960s and said interest in the priesthood is only now picking up again.

"It's not anything against the church," said the Rev. Thomas O'Dwyer, dean of students at the Archdiocese of Miami. "It's really an accumulation of things." Materialism and a lack of some sense of commitment by many men could be blamed in part, he said.

"The problem points out the instability in our own culture. There is a certain amount of narcissism" and life-long commitments aren't often made or demanded, said Russo.

The shortage in Florida is putting a strain on those already in parishes.

Russo said 75 priests serve 65,000 to 80,000 Roman Catholics in the St. Augustine diocese. That leaves roughly one priest per 1,000 Catholics to counsel, teach, administer sacraments and visit the sick, as well as study scriptures and carry out other ministerial duties.

"This deprives them of giving their full time in certain situations and creates some tensions," Russo said. "Many priests feel guilty that they are not doing enough."

When counseling or other services are requested, priests now must "be selective as to the time you give to a response," and some people are left feeling cheated, he added.

O'Dwyer said many priests are alone in large parishes and are "confined to dispensing the sacraments." He said some must depend on help from lay people in the churches.

"If the priest had to give communion alone in a big parish, by the time he finished, the people would be falling asleep," he said.

But there are signs of change. O'Dwyer said enrollment in Florida's two diocesan seminaries — St. John Vianney in Miami and St. Vincent de Paul in Boynton Beach Vianney this year, O'Dwyer said, up from 12 five years ago. And 35 new students at St. Vincent De Paul represented a "very good" increase, he said.

But the Rev. Robert Lynch, rector at the Miami archdiocese education department, says that's because other seminaries around the country have been forced to close for lack of students.

Florida's seminaries have another advantage over those in other states: they are the only ones which teach in both English and Spanish, which will help prepare priests for work in both the heavily Cuban areas of southern Florida and in South American and Caribbean countries, Russo said.

In addition to the billboard campaign, the priesthood is being advertised in pamphlets and even on bumper stickers, O'Dwyer said.

And, as could be expected from priests in need, he added, "We keep praying hard we're going to get more young fellows in here."

HEAD INJURY — Brain-crushing blow dented the skull of this Indian found buried in a desert tomb in Chile. The head of the star-shaped mace, the warclub, and the stone-throwing sling were found with the mummified warrior. Dr. Marvin Allison, a Virginia pathologist, has uncovered hundreds of mummified Indians buried centuries before Europeans arrived in the New World. Healing showed many head-injury victims recovered after crude surgery.

South American mummies reveal 'modern' diseases

By ROBERT C. RADCLIFFE
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — "Montezuma's revenge" was a South American ailment thousands of years before the first tourist ever came down with this notorious gastrointestinal complaint. This is part of a profile of the health and life of the people who lived as much as 2,500 years ago in what is now South America. It is being detailed by Dr. Marvin Allison of the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

He and a team of pathologists, supported by the National Geographic Society, have filled in their picture of these Indians, many living and dying long before Columbus and the Spanish conquest. They have performed autopsies on hundreds of mummies buried in the desert coastal valleys of Chile and Peru.

As a result of six years' work, they have also found that:

—Tuberculosis threatened the peoples of the New World long before the arrival of the white man, contrary to previous belief.

—Pneumonia and respiratory diseases were the main cause of death in Latin America 3,000 years ago, just as they are there today.

—Drugs were part of the scene before Columbus, some peoples using narcotics not for pleasure but apparently for religious reasons.

—One of every two warfare victims with fractured skulls survived head operations, though the surgeons had only obsidian knives and no anesthetic.

Dr. Allison — not a physician, but a Ph.D. and professor of clinical pathology — has 30 years' experience working in Latin America, speaks Spanish fluently, and discourses in detail on the region's history and culture.

The National Geographic Society has helped support Dr. Allison's work with $63,000 in grants, including a planned project of excavating 2,500-year-old mass burial mounds in Chile's Arica Valley.

He and his co-workers frequently acted like medical detectives as they reconstructed violent deaths and accidents of hundreds of thousands of years ago. They found abundant evidence because the victims' bodies were mummified, dried quickly by the sun as it baked the graves — small chambers in the ground roofed over and sealed with sticks and dirt.

Theoretically, by adding water the entire body could be restored to about the way it looked when buried, Dr. Allison says, "and you could perform an autopsy on them just like you could on a modern person."

In practice, he says, "we have rehydrated a hand, an arm, some internal organs," using a technique developed with Egyptian mummies.

Examination of some mummies' gastrointestinal tracts revealed amoebas and bacteria that are causes of common intestinal illness — the GI complaint that tourists today often call "Montezuma's revenge" in memory of the Aztec and Inca emperors double-crossed and slaughtered by the Spanish conquistadors.

"As long as people were wandering around fishing and hunting and shepherding animals, the gastrointestinal diseases did not seem to be very common," Dr. Allison said.

"But once they settled into a village environment, the health problems that arose from the contamination of the water supply and the close contact from living in a village probably gave rise to the start of today's epidemic-type gastrointestinal diseases."

Tuberculosis was a problem, too. The "great white plague" of the Industrial Revolution in Europe killed Indians in great numbers when it was introduced into the United States. But, despite belief, TB already was present in the New World.

"Tuberculosis was definitely a disease native to the Americans before Columbus and the Vikings," said Dr. Allison, who has found at least 10 cases, the victims dying as long as 2,500 years ago.

The first case found, a 7-year-old boy with generalized TB that also had severely crippled his spine, was seated in a custom-made, comfortably padded orthopedic stool, evidence that "shows somebody loved him" at a time when cripples and the chronically ill often were harshly treated.

Dr. Allison says he suspects tuberculosis in all forms probably was one of the most common diseases of the time and a leading cause of death.

Examination of the mummies' lungs showed they were the main target of lethal disease. As a result, Dr. Allison says it is safe to say: "In rural Latin America today the cause of death has not changed in the last 3,000 years. It is still pneumonia and respiratory disease in general."

Evidence of drugs, no strangers to primitive peoples, was found buried in the graves with some of the mummies. Kits perhaps included an inhaler — a bird's hollow leg bone — to sniff a narcotic powder into the nose, where it would be absorbed quickly through the mucus membrane.

Drugs were not used for pleasure, Dr. Allison says, but as part of "a religious-type ceremony probably associated with some form of worship." Pre-Columbian

Indians, he says, may have used drugs as they are used in some parts of Peru today: witches making psychological evaluation of patients while in a drug-induced trance.

"Of all operations for head injuries in the entire prehistoric world, perhaps 90 percent were carried out in the region of Ica in Peru — with a success rate of about 50 percent," Dr. Allison said. Survivors of this surgery to remove bone fragments and relieve pressure on the brain were identified by new bone growth and other signs of healing in the mummies' skulls.

In at least two cases, the scientist says, surgeons patched holes in the skull with rounded caps carved from gourds. Once a head plate was fashioned of gold.

Among the mummies were warriors who had recovered from remarkable injuries.

Sul Ross band looking at changes this year

ALPINE — The Sul Ross State University Band will be taking some new directions this year under the direction of Dr. Alfred N. (Buzzy) Green, new band director at the university.

Green, also an assistant professor of music, said he was planning many "exciting activities and style changes. The first new look will be the use of 'corps style' marching techniques," Green said. "This marching style features custom arrangements and unique drills, an overall effect which is exciting for the expert and the novice alike." He also said this style of marching results in much less "wear and tear" on the marchers.

Many of the traditional elements will still be there, he said, but with added showmanship. "The single most important element in this new style is an uncompromising quality of performance which is the foundation for excellence in band performance. The band heritage which is so much a part of West Texas will continue at Sul Ross as it does in so many public school band programs in this area."

Green, a native of Pampa and former Berger teacher, plans to increase the visibility of the Sul Ross band through an intensified performance schedule. In addition to performances at football games and the traditional spring concert schedule, he said part of the university band will perform at home basketball games, and the entire band will present additional concerts throughout the year.

"Preparations are also being made to provide a band for the Sul Ross rodeos," Green said. Two four-day rodeos are scheduled next year with one fall rodeo in Alpine and the spring rodeo in Fort Stockton.

"The goal of the band in its performances at the basketball games and rodeos will be to provide the spirited atmosphere which is an important part of such events and to offer additional musical and recreational activities for the band members."

Green said that all students enrolled at the university who have had band experience are invited to play in the band. For more information, contact Dr. Green at 915-837-8215 or write him in care of the Music Department at Sul Ross in Alpine.

County court cases increase

Hospital employee awarded damages

A Malone-Hogan kitchen employee was awarded $10,000 in damages Tuesday by a 118th District Court jury for injuries she received from an auto accident June 30, 1979.

Jessie Little collided with Henry L. Roberson on her way to work at 7 a.m. at the intersection of Gregg and 18th. Mrs. Little claimed she had a green light. Roberson, in a counter suit asking $23,000, claimed he had the green.

Testimony and final arguments were completed Monday. Attorney Dick Milstead represented Roberson and attorney Gary C. Riley represented Mrs. Little.

Mrs. Little was asking for no less than $3,700 from the accident. She claims that the front fender of her 1973 Chevrolet Caprice was struck by Roberson's 1969 Chevrolet pickup as it traveled south on Gregg.

Mrs. Little was going west on 18th.

Multi-area plan for brucellosis control outlined

A new multi-area plan for brucellosis control in Texas is now in effect with new regulations for moving cattle, explains Don Richardson, Howard County Agent.

Richardson said the new program divides the state in two sections. The Class A area includes about 130 counties in the western part of the state, which is relatively free of brucellosis. The Class B area — which lies east of Class A consists of counties which have historically had more problems with the disease.

Brucellosis, or Bangs disease, is a highly contagious disease which affects cattle and other animals, as well as humans. In people, it is called undulant fever.

Richardson said that in cattle the disease may cause abortions, weaker calves, lower milk production and sterility. Failure to control the disease could result in more restrictions concerning interstate movement of Texas cattle.

Under the new regulations, Richardson explained, all breeding cattle — male and female — 18 months or older will be eligible for testing. Female dairy cattle officially calftooth vaccinated between three and six months of age would not be tested until they are 20 months old. Female beef cattle vaccinated between three and 10 months of age would not be tested until they reach 24 months of age.

Richardson noted one exception to this is that officially calftooth vaccinated females under the ages listed above but which are six or more months pregnant or have a calf by their side would be tested.

Steers and sprayed heifers do not require tests.

CLASS A CONTROL AREA (INCLUDES HOWARD COUNTY)

The following regulations apply for movement of cattle in Texas.

Persons with test eligible cattle in the Class A control area who want to move them within that area will need a negative test within 30 days prior to movement from a premise to slaughter, quarantined feedlot, quarantined pasture, or to another premise. Cattle may move to market untested but must be tested prior to sale if they have not been tested negative within the previous 30 days.

For ranches with cattle in Class A Area who want to move them to Class 3 Area, these regulations apply:

From farm or ranch in Area A to farm, ranch or feedlot in Area B: cattle must be tested negative within 30 days prior to movement and must have a E permit issued by the Texas Animal Health Commission. Retest at destination is not required.

From Area A farm or ranch to livestock market in Area B: cattle may enter without test or E permit but must be tested prior to sale if cattle are to return to the country, or must be S branded prior to sale if consigned to slaughter or quarantined feedlot.

From farm or ranch in Area A directly to slaughter or quarantined feedlot or quarantined pasture: cattle may enter without test or E permit but all exposed or affected cattle will be identified and accompanied by an S or B permit, whichever is applicable.

CLASS B CONTROL AREA

Persons with cattle in Area B who want to move them within Area B, should observe these regulations:

Cattle on a farm or ranch may move to a farm, ranch or feedlot provided they have been tested negative within the previous 30 days.

Cattle on a farm or ranch may move directly to a quarantined feedlot, quarantined pasture or to slaughter without test. Such cattle will be S branded prior to entering a quarantined feedlot or quarantined pasture. Affected cattle are required to be either B or S branded and accompanied by a B or S permit.

Cattle on a farm or ranch may be consigned to a livestock market without test but they must be tested prior to sale if returned to the country or to the sale if they are to be sold for movement to quarantined feedlot, quarantined pasture or slaughter.

Persons with cattle in Area

B who want to move them to Area A, should observe these regulations:

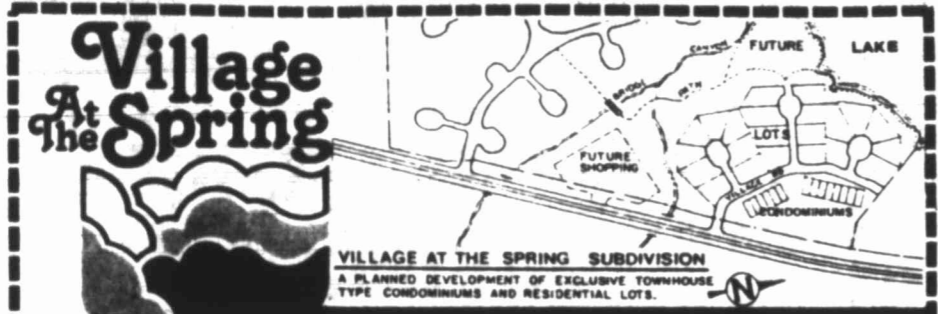

From farm or ranch in Area B to farm, ranch or feedlot in Area A: cattle must be tested negative within 30 days prior to movement and accompanied by an E permit. The herd must be held together at the destination site until retested negative from 45 to 120 days later.

From farm or ranch in Area B direct to slaughter, quarantined feedlot or quarantined pasture in Area A: cattle may enter without a test or E permit, but all exposed or affected cattle will be identified and accompanied by the S or B permit, whichever is applicable.

Cattle coming from a livestock market from Area B to Area A have the same regulations as those from a farm or ranch.

Year's total: $742,957

City gets two tax rebates

In what State Comptroller Bob Bullock deems a "one-time, multi-million sales tax rebate bonus" Texas cities will receive an extra check for the month of August.

Big Spring's share of the one percent rebate came in the form of two checks for $121,765.28 and $78,056.35. This brings the city's total rebate for the year-to-date to $242,957.59, compared to $209,600.36 for the same period in 1979.

Other area cities also fared well in the bonus month. Coahoma received checks for $2,486.35 and $2,561.60; Colorado City, $11,368.65 and $19,618.44; Lamesa, $31,728.36 and $41,608.35; and Stanton, $2,189.68 and $5,817.56.

Bullock, Thursday, said continued improvements in the tax processing system in his office will result this month in the one-time, multi-million sales tax rebate bonus to cities and quicker tax reimbursements in the future.

He said this month's "extra" check will include a large amount of money from second quarter returns filed in the Comptroller's office on the July 31 deadline and normally would have been included in the September payment.

He said one check represents taxes being returned from last month's rebate cutoff through the end of July. The other check is the result of allowing an extra week of tax allocations for cities during the first week of August.

Statewide, Texas cities will share $39.8 million for the normal end-of-July allocation formula and an additional $61.1 million as a one-time bonus payment under the revised accounting system.

That's well over $100 million that will be returned to cities as a result of improvements in our accounting system," he said.

Bullock said city sales tax rebates will now be allowed to accrue through the first week of each month and be paid about the 15th of the month. The previous allocation period ran from the end of one month to the first of the following month and cities were reimbursed sometime after the middle of the month.

Bullock said improvements in the state's deposit and tax posting system will allow his office to keep the rebate pipeline open into the first week of each month and still get out city checks by mid-month.

He said a single-step remittance processing system adopted last spring has reduced tax deposit time from six days to about 72 hours.

Houston's rebate for August includes $6.5 million and $12.6 million, bringing that city's 1980 total to $82.3 million.

Dallas will receive checks for $4.3 million and $7.3 million, pushing the city's yearly total to $46.3 million.

Fort Worth payments include a $1.5 million rebate and a $2.4 million payment bringing the city's 1980 reimbursements to $15.4 million.

San Antonio will receive checks for $2.1 million and $3.4 million. The Alamo City's refunds this year now total $21.8 million.

Soccer begins at YMCA for area school kids

Questions can be directed to the physical director at 267-8234. Cost is $12.50 for members and $25 for non-members. Registration will be limited to grades one through six.

Emphasis is placed on skill development, participation (everyone plays at least half of every game), fun and family togetherness.

The fee includes cost of program supervision, equipment, a certificate of award, and a YMCA Youth Soccer team t-shirt.

Youngsters in area enjoy reading books

Recently, awards were given during a film festival at the Howard County Library. A picnic was held at Comanche Trail Park for all participants in the program.

SHAWNTE BRYANT

Who says youngsters don't like to read?

Three Big Spring youngsters were among many that defied the notion that today's children can not read and do not want to in the first place.

Jason Dwayne Porter of Elbow Elementary School, Shawnte Fae Bryant of Coahoma Elementary and Robert Scott Ferguson of Goliad Elementary finished one-two-three in the Outstanding Reading Achievement Program held this summer under the auspices of the Howard County Library.

The program, which began in June, was a contest for reading the most books at reading-level or above during the summer.

Last Saturday, awards were given during a film festival at the Howard County Library. A picnic was held at Comanche Trails Park for all participants in the program.

For his efforts, Jason won a trophy. Shawnte and Robert both were awarded gift certificates.

Each child in the program was required to give a book report on each book. The report had to be approved by personnel at the library. For each eight books read, a participant received a free paperback book from the library. For every 40, a participant was given a free hardback.

Two city employees seized Grady students sign up Friday

A theft by two bogus policemen didn't yield much cash to divvy up, Wednesday night.

Shawn Cowart, Columbus, Texas, was walking along Northwest Third near Bollinger's Grocery, when two men jumped out of an official-looking pickup claiming to be policemen. The two "cops" then proceeded to search Cowart, and relieve him of the only money he had, 85 cents in change.

They then hopped into the pickup and sped away. Unfortunately for them, they had chosen a pickup with the official seal of the city printed on the doors in which to pull the heist.

Investigators traced the truck, and through a "process of elimination" came up with the suspects, said Detective George Quintero. Arrested were two city utility maintenance men, Wendell Campbell, 19, 1104 N.W. 8th, and Melvitt Gene Ford, 23, 1101 N. Bell.

Another wallet was reported stolen Tuesday. While she was inside the Seven Eleven Store at 11th and Settles, 1 a.m. Saturday, someone stole a wallet belonging to Susan Brashears, 1311 Princeton.

The billfold had contained a checkbook, a credit card, and $10 in cash.

A truck driver promised to pay for a radar detector at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop as soon as he had gassed up his vehicle, 9 p.m. Tuesday. Instead, he drove off without paying for either the detector or the 158.2 gallons of diesel fuel.

Loss was estimated at $487.96.

Georgia Finley, 1507-A Wood, believes she knows the driver of the car that rammed her in the parking lot of the T-Club, 12:15 p.m. Tuesday. Police will investigate further today.

While a car belonging to Scott Campbell, 2609 Clanton, was parked in the lot of Denny's Restaurant, Monday night, thieves stole a wire-spoke hubcap from one of its tires. Loss was estimated at $83.75.

Thieves also lifted two cases of Coca-Cola from a delivery truck at Furr's Supermarket, Tuesday. The Coke was valued at $12.90.

Six mishaps were reported Tuesday.

Vehicles driven by Jefferson D. Murphree, Route 1, and Sandra Jean Searfoss, Gall Route, collided at FM 700 and the South Service Road of IS 20, 9:59 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Jonathan Horton, 2714 Ann, and Vivian Colson, 1905 E. 25th, collided on the 1900 block of S. Birdwell, 5:08 p.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Rosemarie S. Sitton, 1111 Ridgeroad, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene at the parking lot of Cowper's Clinic, 5:19 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Jerri Rockwell, 2605 Alamesa, and Charleen Phillips, Sterling City Route, collided at Alamesa and La Junta, 7:29 a.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Catherine Williams, 906 Birdwell, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene at 602 Steakley, 9:41 a.m.

A vehicle driven by Jesse Saiz, 829 W. 8th, swerved across oncoming traffic lanes, and struck a home at 1206 E. 11th, 10:06 a.m.

Registration for high school students (grades 9 through 12) in the Grady Independent School District will be Friday, Aug. 22 from 8 a.m. until 12 p.m.

Classes will begin at 8:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 25. Buses will run as usual and breakfast will be served as usual. There will be a full day of classes on Monday.

Big Springer returns

Carrigan accepts position as audiologist at SWCID

James Glen Carrigan, 36, a former Big Spring resident, has returned to the city to take a position as audiologist at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, Executive Director Doug Burke has announced.

Carrigan, who worked as an audiologist at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center from 1975 to 1978, will evaluate the hearing of SWCID students, and help with corrective measures for students who need them.

"I am excited about coming back to Big Spring. To be part of this staff is an honor, because there are many top-notch people," Carrigan said.

After receiving his associates degree from Ranger Junior College in 1964, Carrigan attended the University of Texas in Austin, where he studied education and audiology. He received his bachelor of arts degree in Bible from Rockmont College in Denver, Colo., and then finished his masters degree in audiology with a second specialization in guidance and counseling at the University of Texas at El Paso.

Carrigan comes to SWCID from the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex where he was in private practice as an audiologist and office manager for Professional Hearing Aid Center in Fort Worth.

In addition to his work at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, Carrigan has served as an audiologist at Rusk State Hospital and the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center in Odessa.

He has also served as a counselor for the deaf at the Texas Rehabilitation Center in El Paso and has worked as an interpreter for churches in Texas and Colorado.

"I am excited about being in on the ground floor," Carrigan said of his work at SWCID. "We already have training programs not offered elsewhere and we will expand into other areas of training previously unavailable to the deaf."

Carrigan is currently a member of the Texas Speech and Hearing Association and the Texas Society of Interpreters for the Deaf. He is a former member of Texas Rehabilitation Association and the National Rehabilitation Association.

Carrigan also holds a Texas license for fitting and dispensing hearing aids.

First indoor frisbe contest will be held in Big Spring

The First International Indoor Frisbe Contest will get under way Saturday at 10 a.m. at Citizens Federal Credit Union here. The contest, first such recorded contest of its kind to be held anywhere, is being sponsored by the credit union and will feature frisbes designed specifically for indoor competition.

The idea of a frisbe contest is not a new one. Frisbe contests have been popular since the first outdoor frisbes were introduced on the market and on college campuses more than ten years ago. However, the idea of holding an indoor frisbe contest — spelled with an "e" — is a new one. As a result, many records could be set this weekend with the competition being held in Big Spring.

In addition to having the opportunity of being recorded in the record books, contestants will also be competing for cash prizes in four different age groups.

The 15 to 18 and 11 to 14 age groups will receive $50 for first place, $25 for second place, and $10 for third place. Winners in the 7 to 10 and 3 to 6 age groups will receive $25 for first place, $10 for second place, and $5 for third place.

Each contestant will be allowed to make a total of three throws. The three throws will be measured and added together for a total score. The top three total scores in each age category will determine the winners of the contest. There is no entry fee for the Frisbe Contest and all contestants will be allowed to keep the frisbe they use in competition.

They will also receive a coupon for a free hamburger from McDonald's for competing in the area contest. Individuals who have not registered to compete in the Aug. 24 competition are

Hay comment on editorial

In response to an editorial appearing in Monday's edition of The Herald, entitled "Tax entities have grave responsibility," Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, said, in effect, that Howard College is empowered to tax rolling stock whereas the college does not.

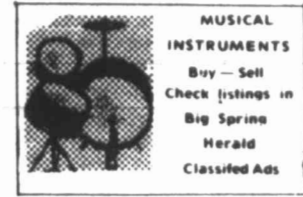

The Herald had addressed itself to what appeared to be some inconsistencies in the tax assessments this year, stating:

"The Howard County tax office, for instance, has assessed values of $1,027,328,884, whereas Howard College assessments are down for $1,023,673,804. Where does the difference come in? They both use the same base in their assessments."

Dear Abby

No Room for Girl In Men's Locker Room

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old man. Yesterday I went swimming at a local pool, and while I was in the locker room changing into my swimming trunks, I turned around to find a little girl who appeared to be 4 or 5 years old staring at me! I later learned that she had been brought there by her father, who was calmly drying himself after showering.

The locker room was crowded with men in various stages of undress. Some were completely naked. All were unaware that they were being observed by a wide-eyed girl.

I found the pool manager and complained. He got hold of the father and asked him not to bring the child into the men's locker room again. The father blew up and said he had no one to leave his little girl with, and he wasn't about to let her wait for him outside alone. When the father was informed that the other men in the locker room might not appreciate being observed by a young girl, he said, "Any man who is embarrassed to be seen naked in front of a 4-year-old girl must have something wrong with him!"

Abby, I'd like your opinion. Who has something "wrong with him"? Me? Or a man who would bring his daughter into a men's locker room?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: The father used poor judgment in bringing his daughter into the men's locker room because in doing so he violated the privacy of others who may not have felt comfortable under the circumstances. If he had no one to leave the child with, he could have skipped the swim. He was obviously all wet to begin with.

DEAR ABBY: You suggested that "older people" should mark the backs of family pictures while they can still remember who's who, and where the pictures were taken and the approximate dates. But why only "older people"? That's something everybody should do as soon as a snapshot or picture is developed.

For years I was too busy (or lazy) to do it, and now that I'm retired and have plenty of time, I can't remember who half the people are!

My parents can't help me because my father has been dead for 25 years, and my mother is in a rest home unable to remember much of anything.

So here I sit with a big box of family pictures, beating my brains out trying to recall names, dates and places. What a mess!

Abby, please remind your readers often to label their pictures. Then their grandchildren won't have to go through what I'm going through now.

KICKING MYSELF IN ASBURY PARK

DEAR KICKING: Not only should family pictures be labeled, but accounts of historical events and the newspaper clippings of births, graduations, marriages and deaths in your family should be dated and kept in a sturdy scrapbook. Fascinating family histories could be preserved if younger members interviewed older relatives at family gatherings. A tape recorder would be ideal for this purpose. Succeeding generations will love it!

FARM FORUM

By RONNIE WOOD

Farmers may be leaving $50 million dollars out in the field. That's the amazing figure some scientists have come up with during a special study on energy alternatives. First, some basics. All oil products come from cellulose materials. Plants, especially plant stalks, are largely cellulose. There are a lot of stalks left in the field. Testing the fuel efficiency of this farm residue was the industrial giant, General Motors. Their engineers used a mixture of 10 percent cornstalks for boiler fuel and said the results indicated successful applications of as high as 80 percent cornstalks could be used to fire the boilers. Economic determinations made on the basis of the current value of coal indicate that those stalks particularly high in cellulose content could be worth as much as 20 dollars a ton. Ag officials say the amount of stalks available each year would total as high as 450-million tons.

FATAL ACCIDENT — Toni Jo Clark, 16, Sterling City Route was mortally injured when her Datsun B-210 flipped and rolled on the South Service Road of IS 20, 1 a.m. today. Here, Officers Lonnie Smith (left) and Roy Osborne (right) examine the death car.

Ray Price might sing along with Willie in Big Spring

By JAMES WERRELL
Barring an act of God, Willie Nelson will come to Big Spring, and fellow Country and Western star Ray Price may come with him.

Lynn Smith, state president of the Texas Jaycees, held a news conference, Tuesday afternoon, to reassure Big Springers that all systems are "go" for the Aug. 31 appearance by Nelson here. The concert, which will be held in Memorial Stadium, is co-sponsored by the Big Spring and Snyder Jaycees.

Officials are also hopeful that C&W star Ray Price, who appeared earlier

Big Spring woman dies in car mishap

A 16-year-old Big Spring woman was killed when her car went out of control on the South Service Road of IS 20, 1 a.m. today.

The one-car accident claimed the life of Toni Jo Clark, Sterling City Route.

According to reports, her Datsun B-210 had been eastbound on the service road when it went out of control, striking a curb on the opposite side of the road, and rolling three times. The auto came to a stop on its roof near DeVore's Texaco Service Station, 801 IS 20.

The victim was transported by Shaffer Ambulance Service to Malone-Hogan Hospital, where she died minutes after arrival.

this year in Big Spring, may also pay a visit. Price is scheduled to appear in Ruidoso, N.M. on Aug. 29, and might be persuaded to join Nelson, with whom he recently cut a record.

Proceeds from the concert will go to the Texas Jaycee Campus for the physically handicapped at Victoria College. According to experts, this is the finest facility of its kind in the country.

During the news conference, Smith noted a Willie Nelson concert in Sacramento, Calif. that attested to the singer's immense popularity there. Over 25,000 fans attended the concert in Sacramento Memorial Stadium, and all tickets were snapped up the first day they went on sale at $13 apiece.

Big Springers have proved a bit more reluctant. So far, only about 2,000 tickets have been sold locally.

Tickets are also being sold in Snyder, Midland, Odessa, Lubbock, Abilene and San Angelo. About 400 tickets have been sold in Snyder, said Smith.

According to the head Jaycee, every concert Nelson gives on the road requires an investment of over $20,000 for lights and sound, food and lodging for Nelson and his band and travel costs.

"For this concert, all he plans to do is break even," said Smith. "All the money after expenses will go to the Texas Campus."

Tickets are available at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce at $8 apiece.

Gridders reported ready to play

Harris pleased with Steers workouts

After the first five workouts of the rugged two-day workouts, Big Spring

Coach Ralph Harris is most happy with the progress that the Steer gridders have displayed.

"I'm very pleased with how things are progressing," Harris said at noon today. "We're not at the point that we want to get to yet, but we're going to get there."

Harris had expressed concern before workouts began on Monday morning that much of the team might not report in the desired shape, but the gridders came ready to play.

"They are in better shape than I thought they would be," said a happy Harris, who is trying with his staff to help turn the program around after a drought in the win columns in past seasons.

"They have taken better care of bodies than they did for spring practice, and are very alert mentally and ready physically."

"Of course," Harris added, "we won't really know how good shape that they're in until we put on the pads Friday. The weather has been somewhat cool, and that may have disguised the fatigue somewhat."

The Steers are working out twice daily through tomorrow, with a full scale scrimmage set for Friday afternoon, the first day in pads.

"We're working hard in shorts on foot reaction, body control, and all types of quickness. Not in the form of sprints, but in various drills that will be useful to us," said the new Steer head mentor.

"We're making progress physically, but we still have a long way to go," he added. Harris also praised his coaching staff, with much of this year's football mentors being new to Big Spring.

"The coaching staff has done an excellent job so far. They are well prepared and organized on the field, and have really done their homework."

Another aspect of the Steer football program for the 1980 season that has really pleased Harris to this point is the amount the gridders have retained since spring training.

"We're really delighted with the amount of carry over from spring training," Harris stated. "This was my first spring training as a head coach, and the kids have retained so much mentally."

The attitude of the players has picked up since spring training, too, Harris related, and this no doubt has something to do with the knowledge the players are displaying.

"There were times when things kind of dragged in spring training," Harris said. "But I think they can see the war coming."

That first war will be just over two weeks from now, when the Steers travel to Snyder on Friday night, September 5.

Steer season ticket holders must act soon

Season ticket holders for Big Spring Steer football games that have not renewed their options and wish to do so are running out of time, according to Athletic Director Ron Logback.

Deadline for renewing their season tickets in the choice locations is Friday, August 22, according to Logback.

"If you (previous season ticket holders) want the same tickets as last year," Logback stated, "you need to pick those tickets up at the business office or send money for them immediately into the Big Spring school business office located across from the high school."

Logback also said that all season tickets for the Steers five home games this fall not claimed by Friday will be sold on a first come basis.

The Steers, under new head coach Ralph Harris, will have a home schedule featuring non-district opponent Sweetwater on September 12, then face District 5-AAAAA foes Abilene on October 3, Midland on October 10, Midland Lee on October 24, and San Angelo on November 14.

All games will begin at 8:00 p.m.

Pee Wees in signup

Big Spring Pee Wee (Tackle) Football sign-up will begin Thursday afternoon at the Howard College Student Union Building at 5:00 p.m., lasting until 8:00 p.m.

This football program is for all 5th and 6th grade boys in the Big Spring, Coahoma, and Forsan areas. Each participant must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian, and must bring a copy of his birth certificate.

The organization had six teams in its league last year, and plans are for as many as seven to form the 1980 season. All games will be played upon Blankenship Field, commencing at 1:00 p.m. each Saturday. The season will start either Sept. 13 or Sept. 20, depending upon how many teams form, and will culminate with an All-Star game between the two divisions on Nov. 1.

Sponsors and co-sponsors lined up thus far are Cosden Oil & Chemical Co., B.P.O. Elks Lodge, Tomco, The Optimist Club, The Downtown Lions Club, First National Bank, Security State Bank, Fraser Industries, and Harding Well Service of Coahoma.

The official sign-up will continue Friday, 5:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. and the following week of August, on Tuesday, August 26, and Thursday, August 28, from 5:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. both dates. The player fee this year will be $10.

White Shoes to start

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The Houston Oilers are getting one wide receiver back just as another is going to the sidelines for three weeks.

Ken Burroughs suffered stretched ligaments in Sunday's 20-17 exhibition victory over New Orleans in a game that also included a 15-yard touchdown catch by Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, returning for the second year from knee surgery.

Johnson will move into the starting lineup Saturday night when the Oilers play the Dallas Cowboys in Texas Stadium.

Quarterback Gifford Nielsen also will miss the Dallas game with a shoulder injury suffered in the preseason opener against Tampa Bay.

Rookie linebacker Tim Campbell, brother of Oiler running back Earl Campbell, was the most recognizable name among seven players cut Tuesday as the Oilers got down to the National Football League 60-player limit.

Campbell, a 5-10, 200-pounder from the University of Texas, was cut along with Texas A&M running back Alvin Bowers; Cal State-Fullerton kicker John Choukair; defensive backs Rickie Harr of Colorado State and Richard Moore of Angelo State; Texas-El Paso defensive end Ralph Rushing and Nevada-Las Vegas linebacker Doug Smith.
