Consumer price index remains steady in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overall consumer prices did not rise at all in July, the first time that has happened in more than 13 years, the government said today. The sharp improvement was due almost exclusively to a rapid decline in home-financing costs.

Excluding mortgage costs and housing prices, consumer prices last month increased 0.6 percent, led by a 0.9 percent boost in the food and beverage category, the Labor Department said.

For the first seven months of this year, inflation at the consumer level has accelerated a 12.6 percent compound annual rate, the department said.

July's stable rate followed a 1 percent jump in June, but private economists predicted that last month's increase in food and beverage costs is only the beginning of a dramatic rise in this category.

The Labor Department reported last week that wholesale prices rose 1.7 percent in July, while food prices at this level jumped about 9 percent. It usually takes a month or two for food prices at the producer stage to work their way to the consumer level.

The 1 percent difference in the Consumer Price Index between June and July was "almost unprecedented," said Labor Department economist Patrick Jackman. Not since March 1967 has the CPI remained unchanged, and the index has not declined since August 1965, he said.

Before July, consumer prices had risen at least 0.9 percent for 18 straight months.

The CPI in July stood at 247.8 before seasonal adjustment. That means that goods and services that cost $100 in the 1967 base period cost $247.80 last month. The index was 13.2 percent higher last month than in July 1979.

The Labor Department reported that:

- Housing costs dropped 0.7 percent, after rising 1.5 percent and 1.8 percent in May and June, respectively. The reversal was due to a steep, 5.7-percent plunge in mortgage interest rates and a 0.5-percent decline in housing prices.

- Food and beverage prices, after going up only 0.8 percent in May and June combined, accelerated by 0.9 percent last month. Prices at grocery stores increased 1.2 percent, after rising only 1.5 percent during the first six months of this year.
- Prices for beef, pork and poultry shot up sharply, following three months of decline. Fruits, vegetables and dairy products also registered substantial increases. Restaurant meals, foods at other than grocery outlets and beverages, including alcohol, rose a combined 0.5 percent in July.
- For the third consecutive month, the price of gasoline fell, but not as much as in May and June. Gasoline was down 0.5 percent in July compared with a 1 percent drop the month before.
- Automobile finance charges, which had advanced sharply earlier this year, declined 2.6 percent in July.
- Medical care was up 0.7 percent following increases of 0.5 percent in May and June.
- The price of apparel and its upkeep rose 0.4 percent last month, compared with no change in June.
- Entertainment costs increased 0.8 percent.

All these changes are seasonally adjusted.

The Labor Department also reported virtually no change in July in real spendable earnings, which is take-home pay after deductions for federal income and Social Security taxes.

Private economists cautioned that July's improvement on the inflation front was part illusion.

"Obviously, the increase in food prices is more significant than the decrease in housing costs," said Michael Evans, head of Evans Economics of Washington, D.C. "There's really no comparison."

CONSUMER PRICE INDEX — The Consumer Price Index stood at 247.8 in July, the government announced.

Arrival of loan money, meeting 'coincidental'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators pressed Billy Carter again today to explain why the first installment of his $220,000 payments from Libya was delivered only two weeks after a Libyan official met with President Carter.

"It was just coincidental," the president's brother told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee in his second day of testimony.

Asked if the Libyans might have believed their relations with Billy Carter had led to the meeting with President Carter, the brother replied, "That would be pure speculation."

Billy Carter insisted the full $220,000 was part of a $500,000 loan and insisted it could not be a fee because he did nothing to try to influence U.S. policy for Libya.

But Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Charles Mc Mathias, R-Md., pressed the point that the first $20,000 Libyan payment was made Dec. 27, 1979, only two weeks after Libya's chief Washington diplomat, Ali el-Houdari, had met with President Carter Dec. 6.

Thurmond quoted a memo dictated by President Carter saying he had mentioned improving relations with Libya during that meeting.

"You believe that was just coincidental?" Thurmond asked Carter.

"The loan had been negotiated since August," Carter replied. "It was just coincidental."

But Thurmond did not quote other sections of the Carter memo in which the president said the primary purpose of the meeting was to protest Libya's sacking and burning of the U.S. embassy in Tripoli.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., questioned Billy Carter about the statement by Joel Lisker, a Justice Department official, that the president's brother told him the first $20,000 payment was not a loan but was reimbursement from Libya for Carter's expenses as host of a Libyan delegation in Georgia.

During his first day of testimony Thursday, Carter insisted, "I never tried to change U.S. policy. I may have given Jimmy my opinion, but it was just shooting the bull."

Five new officers joining Big Spring Police Department

With five new officers joining the Big Spring Police Department, the force is only two positions short of full-strength, said City Manager Don Davis in a news release, today.

The latest additions to the department are all certified officers with previous experience.

"Hiring experienced officers means very little down-time needed for training. Most training for these officers consists of learning the city's geographical layout and departmental policies which vary from city to city," stated Davis.

The city expects also to fill the two remaining vacancies soon. Several more certified applicants are on file, and testing is scheduled for early next week.

New policemen hired this month include:

- Mike Arnold, 24, San Angelo, started work Aug. 16 and has a total of two years, three months experience.
- Ira Harrison, 41, Lampasas, started work Aug. 18 and has a total of four years experience.
- Jim Barr, 34, Lampasas, started work Aug. 16 and has nearly a year's experience.
- Ken Hallmark, 34, Copperas Cove, will start work at the end of August and has nearly two year's experience.
- Mike Hillers, 28, former Big Spring Patrolman, will rejoin the force at the end of August with a total of 4.5 years experience.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Cholesterol

Q. One hears so much about cholesterol these days. What is it, anyway? What foods are particularly high in it?

A. Cholesterol is a crystalline alcohol used in many of the body's chemical processes and is required in certain amounts for good health. The body receives cholesterol in two ways — by manufacturing it and by eating various types of plants and animal food. Egg yolks, cream, chocolate, coconut and liver are a few foods high in cholesterol. Some foods with low cholesterol content include poultry, veal, fish, grains, cereal and many fruits and vegetables.

Clayton's rights may have been violated

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge says an FBI informant was apparently "unleashed" during the Brilab investigation, a move that may have violated the due process rights of Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton.

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor, presiding over a pretrial hearing that came after defense attorneys filed motions for dismissal, questioned Thursday the tactics used by key informant Joseph Hauser during the 10-month investigation.

Clayton, Deer Park labor leader L.G. Moore and Austin attorneys Randall B. Wood and Donald W. Ray were all indicted June 12 on federal racketeering, fraud, conspiracy and extortion charges in connection with the investigation.

"It appears to me that what did was kind of unleash Mr. Hauser," O'Connor told FBI agent Michael F. Wacks, who had taken the stand for the government on the fourth day of the hearing.

O'Connor's questions came after Roy Minton, Clayton's attorney, had asked Wacks why the investigation of Clayton continued after Wacks acknowledged that no one had ever indicated Clayton would take a bribe.

"The problem I have," O'Connor said, "is why you have Mr. Hauser continually pushing money at people."

"Did it ever occur to you," he asked, "that perhaps you were violating the speaker's due process rights by going forward with the con.?"

Wacks replied that it did not, and again said "no" after O'Connor asked him "as a lawyer" in retrospect, if the question of possible constitutional violations bothered him.

"That doesn't bother you at all?" O'Connor asked. "The way you went about it (offering the bribe) on a politician — offering a campaign contribution."

"No, your honor," Wacks answered, "it doesn't."

Clayton received $5,000 from Moore Nov. 8 during a meeting in Clayton's office. The money had been supplied by Hauser. Clayton has said the money was a campaign contribution and that he intended to report it.

Ronald Woods, assistant U.S. attorney, noted that Clayton had not reported the gift.

Wacks also testified that "about $100,000" in bribery money had been spent during the investigation in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

During cross-examination, Minton asked Wacks if the bribe money had been marked in any way so that it could later be identified.

Wacks replied that it had not, then added that such a procedure was not deemed necessary by the FBI.

Mike Ramsey, Moore's attorney, also sharply questioned Wacks about Hauser's tactics, at one point saying Hauser "begged" labor official Harold Grubbs to take a $1,000 consideration.

Ramsey pointed out that when Grubbs refused to take the first offer of "consideration," that Hauser then offered $2,000.

"He (Grubbs) absolutely refused it (the first offer)," Ramsey said, noting that Grubbs said he would take the money in the form of a legal contribution made by check.

"Hauser's response to a legal means of payment was 'no, let's do it in cash' so that it would be illegal. Isn't that correct?" asked Ramsey.

"Yes," replied Wacks, who posed as an insurance executive with Hauser during the investigation.

"Grubbs is trying to do what's right and Hauser is doing it with cash. Is that right? That's persuasion, isn't it?" Ramsey again asked.

"Yes," the agent replied.

Later in the hearing, Woods tried to establish that Clayton's due process rights had not been violated by asking Wacks if Moore had not been responsible for arranging the meeting with the speaker.

The question drew a barrage of objections from defense attorneys. When Woods told O'Connor he was only trying to answer the judge's questions, O'Connor smiled and replied, "I'll withdraw my questions."

During his six hours on the stand, Wacks told the court how he and FBI agent Larry Montague were "president" and "vice president" of the Fidelity Financial Consultants, a firm set up to house the Brilab operation.

Hauser, now in the federal witness protection program, was the firm's "financial consultant."

He said Hauser's initial contact in Texas was Bernard Rapoport, a prominent Waco Democrat that Hauser knew. Rapoport in turn suggested Hauser talk to Grubbs and Grubbs steered Hauser to Moore.

Moore and Hauser first met Aug. 30, 1979, according to Wacks, who said he met with Moore Sept. 20 of the same year.

It was then, according to Wacks, that Moore said he could get Clayton "wired in" so the state insurance plan would go to Hauser's Company.

Wacks also said the Hauser lied to Moore in telling him that Blue Cross-Blue Shield representatives said Clayton was "the key" to obtaining the state policy.

"There was no basis for those remarks," Wacks said. "It was part of the con."

Government still negotiating with striking Polish workers

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Government negotiators met with worker committees across Poland's strike-paralyzed Baltic coast today in efforts to end nine days of walkouts by an estimated 130,000 workers.

Polish dissidents dismissed the government offers as "only small concessions" and insisted the strike is pro-democratic, not anti-socialist.

As Communist Party leader Edward Gierek's government sought a way out of the tense impasse, there still was no word on whether authorities would press charges against dissident leader Jacek Kuron and at least 23 other Polish activists detained by police.

The Polish government today denied a report by a London newspaper that Gierek made a quick trip to Moscow to confer with Soviet leaders about the strikes.

Some Western diplomats have expressed concern that Poland's Russian neighbors might use military force to end the walkouts.

Rumors circulated that Warsaw would be hit by a general strike, and worried motorists formed long lines at gas stations in the capital.

Dissident sources reported the strikes in Gdansk, Gdynia and other Baltic coast cities had shut down 420 plants by Thursday night.

A broadcast from Szczecin, on the border with East Germany, said a paper mill in Kozno and the Polmo auto equipment plant were among the new shutdowns.

Dissident sources reported the arrest of eight more of their leaders in Warsaw and one in Krakow, southern Poland. Those rounded up in the capital included Leszek Moczulski, president of the Committee of Independent Poland, and Wieslaw Keciak, a leading member of the Committee for Social Self-Defense.

Kuron, the chief spokesman for the Committee for Social Self-Defense, and 15 other members were arrested in Warsaw Wednesday night, but one of them was released Thursday, the sources said.

Airline industry hurting

MIAMI (AP) — A financial slump in the airlines industry may force Pan American World Airways to lay off up to 1,200 flight attendants this fall, the company says.

The company has not decided whether it will make additional layoffs. Pan Am Vice President Martin Shugrue said Thursday Pan Am employs about 6,000 flight attendants and the laid-off workers would represent about 18 percent of the force. Overall, the airline has 36,100 employees, Shugrue said.

Pan Am lost $141.2 million during the first six months of this year and company officials said they expect the losses to continue.

Anthem to be played again

CHICAGO (AP) — The "Star Spangled Banner" is being played at the theater at the Great Lakes Naval Base again, with officers stationed in the auditorium to keep an eye on the audience, officials say.

Rear Adm. Charles Gurney III, the base commander, decided last month to bar the playing of the national anthem in the theater because some sailors had been booing the song.

But Lt. Cherie Davis, a base spokeswoman, said that an outpouring of public protest had prompted Gurney to change his mind. The song will be played with the lights on and with security personnel on hand "to guarantee proper behavior," Ms. Davis said.

Former HUD exec fired

BOSTON (AP) — Robert C. Wood, a former secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, has been fired as superintendent of Boston public schools.

The Boston School Committee voted 3-1 Thursday to dismiss Wood, charging that he was negligent in working with the budget and inadequately handled vocational education and reading tests.

Wood, 56, walked out of a school committee meeting two weeks ago after the board rejected his candidate for director of the Humphrey Occupational Resource Center. Wood said he was not surprised by his dismissal, but would not comment on the board's charges.

Joggers shouldn't worry

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The mayor's office has been besieged by calls from worried joggers since a sniper shot and killed two runners, but the city police chief says they shouldn't worry.

"I don't want this community to think we have a psychopath shooting at joggers," Chief Bud Willoughby said Thursday.

Willoughby said the gunman who shot David Martin, 18, and Ted Fields, 20, near a park Wednesday probably knew them. The men were jogging with two 15-year-old girls when the shooting broke out. One of the girls was wounded by a bullet fragment. No one has been arrested, Willoughby said.

TESCO reaches agreement on lignite reserve sales

There was speculation the crackdown was related to widespread rumors that a general strike was imminent in the capital, where scattered transport strikes several weeks ago have been the only recent evidence of labor unrest.

An agreement has been reached on the sale of lignite reserves in Bastrop County jointly owned by Texas Electric, Texas Power & Light and Dallas Power & Light to the Lower Colorado River Authority. TESCO announced today.

The approximately 4,800 acres of reserves are south-east of Austin and within three miles of LCRA's Sim Gideon power plant.

TESCO, TPL and DP&L each own one-third of the lignite reserves.

The leases were acquired almost 30 years ago as part of the companies' lignite leasing program to meet long-term fuel needs. They are no longer suitable to the companies' present plans because adjacent lignite reserves have been closed to development by any parties other than government-owned entities, such as LCRA.

The reserves owned by TESCO, TPL and DP&L amount to only a two- to three-year supply for a

LULAC blasts reapportionment bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the League of United Latin American Citizens says a proposal to exclude illegal aliens when congressional seats are reapportioned would cause a "massive discriminatory impact" on Hispanics.

"How do you determine in going back whether the brown skin you counted is citizen or non-citizen?" Ruben Bonilla said Thursday. "The administrative problem is obvious; you'd have an administrative nightmare."

He said Hispanics must make their top priority the defeat of an amendment to bar illegal aliens from being counted when congressional seats are reapportioned after the 1980 census.

The amendment sponsored by Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-Pa., was sent to the Senate after it passed the House on Wednesday.

Bonilla, in a telephone interview from Detroit, said LULAC and other Hispanic groups will lobby senators for the amendment's defeat. He also called on the major presidential candidates to denounce the amendment and urge its defeat.

If the amendment passes, Bonilla said, LULAC would file a lawsuit seeking to have it declared unconstitutional.

"It would appear that the (amendment) is an effort to deny the Hispanic community of America equal representation under the law," the Corpus Christi, Texas, attorney said.

The Constitution states that a census shall be taken each decade counting all "persons" in the United States. The Census Bureau did not ask the legal status of the people it counted, apparently meaning a new count would be needed if the amendment becomes law.

Bonilla said the Pennsylvania congressman overestimated in his claim that there are 20 million illegal aliens in the country.

"It's emotional hyperbole, excessive misstatement," he said. "We do not know if it is 200,000, 2 million or more. ... Then its impact on reapportionment becomes quite minimal."

In any event, Bonilla said the federal government has no hesitation in using the taxes that undocumented workers pay.

"Perhaps Mr. McDade would also be willing to devise a formula for a rebate to the undocumented worker so he can have a full return," he said.

Bonilla said the amendment's passage would pose political, moral, administrative and constitutional dilemmas.

"The moral difficulty is that you deny the very existence of human beings in America," he said.

Christians urged to get involved in politics

DALLAS (AP) — Political conservatives and fundamentalist preachers trying to rally their flock at the polls in November urged foot-stomping, hand-clapping Christians to "get a bar of soap, roll up their sleeves and make politics clean as it ought to be again."

An estimated 10,000 yelling, whistling people from at least 45 states packed flag-draped Reunion Arena on Thursday for the opening session of a two-day non-partisan conference aimed at getting Christians involved in politics.

The predominantly white, middle-class crowd shouted chorus after chorus of "amen," "hallelujah," and "Praise the Lord" to a barrage of blasts against the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion, homosexuality and America's deteriorating military might.

"Christians have ignored for too long the lack of leadership in this country," said the Rev. Jerry Falwell, of Lynchburg, Va. "But we can't blame the politicians for the condition of the country because it often reflects the spiritual condition of the church."

"People have got to get saved, get baptized and get registered to vote," said Falwell, founder of the weekly television program "Old Time Gospel Hour."

The conference, billed as the National Affairs Briefing, is sponsored by the Roundtable, a Washington, D.C.-based non-denominational, non-partisan organization that provides information on moral issues to church and business leaders.

Organizers of the conference have declined to publicly endorse any candidate, but have urged Christians to vote for conservative principles that would "turn the nation back to God."

However, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., who delivered the keynote address at the Republican national convention last month, took the chance to urge support for GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan.

He characterized Reagan, who addresses the conference tonight, as a man tough on communism and a candidate who favors pro-family issues.

Vander Jagt also challenged Christians to become involved in government and to take a role in the political process.

"For too long Christians have been led to believe that politics is dirty. If that is the case then they should get a bar of soap, roll up their sleeves and make politics clean as it ought to be again," he said.

"It's time for Christians to move from the churches to the halls of Congress to help change the direction of our country."

The Rev. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the 20,000-member First Baptist Church of Dallas, attacked political party proposals that would give rights to homosexuals and cut off funds for candidates opposing the Equal Rights Amendment.

"Will our country continue to be prosperous or go down ... in shame? Is there a God of humanism, of homosexuality, of promiscuity, of degeneracy, of drug abuse and drunkenness?" Criswell asked.

"It is time for the nation to return to the God of our pilgrim fathers, to the faith of our praying mothers and to the principles that our nation was founded upon."

The Rev. E.V. Hill, pastor of a Baptist church in the Watts section of Los Angeles, brought the crowd roaring to its feet three times Thursday with a ringing call for Christians to speak out against moral decay.

"When a woman who is accused of lesbianism is given an honorable discharge (from the Navy), something should be said. In days when teachers look and smell worse than those they are teaching, something should be said. When we are told by those it's time to get rid of unemployment and then they double it, something should be said," he told the cheering crowd.

Phyllis Schlafly, national chairwoman of Stop ERA, continued the momentum by outlining the "destructive" elements of the proposed "sex amendment."

Mrs. Schlafly claimed that if approved, the ERA would erase the laws that say husbands must support wives and that husbands must be men and wives must be women.

"The devil is using one word, sex, to take away the rights of wives and give them to homosexuals."

Back-to-School Pep Rally scheduled Monday in park

On Monday, the Big Spring High School Cheerleaders will sell back-to-school pep rally ribbons for 50 cents to each student and teacher who attend the Back-to-School Pep Rally at 8 p.m. in the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater. These ribbons will be sold to each parent and patron attending the Rally.

Proceeds from the sale of the ribbons will be used to assist the Big Spring High School cheerleaders to promote greater school spirit at each Big Spring Senior High football, basketball and volleyball games during the year.

Class competition among the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes will be conducted at the rally. The class showing the best-overall attendance, school spirit and originality at the rally will be awarded a cash prize of $50. The Big Spring High School Steer Band, the Golden Stars Drill Team with band, the rifle and flag drill team with band, and the new head coaches of the football and volleyball teams, along with their respective teams, will appear at the rally so that everyone can meet them. Introductions of the 1980 varsity football and volleyball teams along with the new head football coach, Ralph Harris, and the new volleyball coach, Patti Purser, will be made to the audience at the rally. The new high school principal, Bill McQueary, will be introduced to the audience for the first time in Big Spring at the amphitheater.

Pep talks by coaches Ralph Harris and Patti Purser will be made at the rally.

The rally will conclude with the singing of the School Song and the fight song. Craig Fischer, assistant high school principal, will emcee the rally.

This will be the fourth year for the rally, which was initiated as part of the annual Starlight Specials sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Council of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce to help stimulate interest and support of the Big Spring people and the student body of Big Spring Senior High School for the coming football season of each year.

Montgomery Ward will begin to accept two bank cards

Montgomery Ward will begin accepting MasterCard and Visa bank cards locally Aug. 28, according to Ruth Gee, manager of the Big Spring store.

The announcement is part of Ward's gradual program to add the two major bank cards to its own Charg-all credit system throughout the country.

"This will make it simpler than ever for our customers to charge their purchases," Mrs. Gee said. "We have been most pleased with the strong acceptance of bank cards at all of our test locations. As the result of these tests, we have concluded that we can better serve our customers by offering a choice of credit card services."

Mrs. Gee said there was a distinct difference in bank card sales in markets where only one bank card was accepted, compared with those sites where both were honored.

"Our customers' actions clearly indicate that they prefer the convenience and flexibility of both cards to complement their use of Ward's Charg-all card," Mrs. Gee said.

Mrs. Gee noted that Ward's national program was expanded to the eastern third and upper midwestern part of the nation during June. Progressing westward, all Ward retail and catalog locations will honor the bank cards in addition to Ward's Charg-all cards by Nov. 1.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL
 UNLOCK HIDDEN POSSIBILITIES
 A maid was hired to clean an artist's studio each night. Every evening she would come in to sweep up the chips off the floor and clean the room.
 Each evening, she was fascinated by the emerging form of a person out of a chunk of marble. She saw the shape of the head, then the features of a face. Gradually, the head of a man began to take on a familiar form.
 One night she came in just as the artist was ready to leave. For the first time she saw the fully sculptured form. "Why, that's Abraham Lincoln," she exclaimed. "How did you know Mr. Lincoln was in there?"
 We chuckle at her reaction. But there is truth in her statement. For God looks at you and sees far more inside you than you can even imagine. Let Him unlock your hidden possibilities. Set your potential free. He is the sculptor!

These are exciting times at college

These are exciting times at Howard College, which is beginning its 34th year as a Big Spring institution.

An increase in enrollment looms. The school maintains a Lamesa campus and has nursing programs going in both Lamesa and San Angelo. With the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, an adjunct to the college, opening its doors for the first time this fall, one can understand why administrators, the board of trustees and friends of the school think the college is in for its greatest growth period.

JUNIOR COLLEGES everywhere are filling a need in education that wasn't being met before. Not every family can afford to send its high school graduates away to some college or university but almost everyone can attend a community college like HC, where officials believe not only encouraging but helping youngsters continue their schooling — often through student-aid programs.

Whether you want to master the art of strumming on a guitar or learning automobile mechanics, chances are Howard College has a course to suit your needs.

If you want to accumulate enough credits to transfer to a university or simply undertake a course that complements your chosen profession, Howard College's program is designed for you.

The faculty at Howard College is well qualified, mainly because it has been carefully chosen by the administration. All teachers are prepared to lend the student help in finding the courses he needs in preparing him for his vocation in life.

INvariably, FORMER students of the college speak well of the local institution. Most realize they received far more attention from their teachers here than they would have had they entered as freshmen at some university boasting enrollment in five figures. The professors in the larger schools merely throw out what they offer in the way of teaching and the students can either grapple for it or leave it utterly alone. In those situations, the professors simply can't be bothered with the individual.

The college for the deaf here is going to get off to a modest start but it is going to grow by leaps and bounds. Dr. Douglas Burke, the chief administrator in the SWCID, has assembled an outstanding faculty, the kind that attracts students by their teaching skills.

One of the great selling points of Howard College is that students of all ages can enroll. Learning is a lifelong process. When we stop learning, we die emotionally and no one wants to do that. The school's curriculum is a challenging one, the kind that can enrich anybody's life. Why not avail yourself of it?

Roughing up Reagan

Evans, Novak.

NEW YORK — Amidst cheers of delegates, Sen Edward M. Kennedy's masterful political address to the Democratic National Convention reached back more than 14 years to an obscure one-liner in a speech by Ronald Reagan in California's Central Valley to pursue a strategy that generates maximum optimism now but threatens maximum peril later for President Carter's re-election.

Kennedy aroused his first great cheer in the convention's emotional peak by quoting the Republican presidential nominee as saying, "Unemployment insurance is a prepaid vacation for freeloaders." The delegates roared when Kennedy added, "And that nominee is no friend of labor."

STUDENTS OF REAGAN could not remember that as one of his stock one-liners. In fact, Kennedy's researchers found it in a speech to a Fresno, Calif., Republican dinner on April 13, 1966, nearly two months before his nomination for governor of California. There is no record the statement was repeated, and it does not represent Reagan's policy.

The Fresno discovery by Kennedy's researchers began a list of Reagan quotations read by the senator, not so hoary as the unemployment insurance statement but almost equally obscure and startling. Although Kennedy's speech read Carter's economic policy out of the party platform, its most measurable parts for the delegates were six paragraphs of assault on Reagan. That delighted the Carter camp, it fit their own tactics perfectly.

Roughing up Reagan is the beginning, middle and end of Carter's strategy — a situation perilous for the president if Reagan proves as impervious this time as he has to attacks in past campaigns. Since Carter has no economic plan with mass appeal, the only alternative to help from some unpredictable foreign crisis is remorseless attack on Reagan. Thus, Carter's acceptance speech hammered away at his opponent in an unprecedented fashion for an incumbent president.

Buttressing this strategy are Carter pollster Pat Caddell's latest surveys, which lifted the hearts of the president's team this week. While indicating no significant gain in Reagan-Carter trial heats, Caddell's polls show "surprising" public perception of Reagan as a right-wing extremist and rate him significantly lower than Carter when voters are asked of both "Does he care about me?"

This led to near-euphoria in the Carter command trailer among presidential operatives who view Reagan as a helpless target burdened by a lifetime of incessant talking. But less than 100 feet away on the floor of Madison Square Garden, delegates were not so optimistic.

"I'M AFRAID THESE fellows think of Reagan as another Goldwater," one important Midwestern Carter supporter told us. "I think they're badly mistaken." The pessimism over November pervading the delegates stems from doubts about the assault on Reagan as a viable substitute for a driving new idea.

The pitfalls became evident Thursday night when Carter flamed his own acceptance speech by obsessive returns to attacks on Reagan. He did not approach the stridency of Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who called the Republican nominee simply "Reagan" — no Ronald, no mister, no governor — in the convention speech.

THE L.A. TIMES SYNDICATE

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

She want hysterectomy at 24

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 24-year-old woman. I was on the Pill for six years and I got off it because I finally became trustful of my husband's vasectomy. I don't mind being off them because I feel better. But now my periods are really ridiculous. I have had periods last 12 days, and 16 days once. Then I went 9 days a couple of months, and this last one has lasted 13 days. I still get menstrual cramps which I've always had on or off the Pill.

Frankly, doctor, my question is, am I too young to have a hysterectomy? I want one due to the fact that I don't want children and my husband has a vasectomy anyway. But it's mainly because my period is so crazy and the cramps so annoying. What can I do? My doctor is reluctant. If I am too young for a hysterectomy, that's not fair. It's discrimination. — S.W.

The usual result of going off the contraceptive pill is for the woman to have lighter periods for a few months. Some have no menstrual periods at all for three or four months after stopping.

Your problem is quite different. It is important to know whether you were having heavy periods before going on the Pill. Many conditions that cause heavy periods are corrected by use of the Pill. Your discontinuance of the Pill may have caused the old problem to emerge again. I am thinking of things like endometriosis (displaced uterine tissue) and adenomyosis (overgrowth of uterine tissue in the uterine muscle). These conditions can account for cramping. Really, your problem is not so much trying to relate your Pill history to your erratic periods as it is finding out what is making them the way they are now.

No, you are not too young to have a hysterectomy if you need one. The usual reason or reluctance at your age is to preserve childbearing ability. Please find out first, though, just what it amiss. You may not need a hysterectomy at all. Your present problem might respond to hormone therapy. Discuss this with your doctor.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Six years ago, I had my prostate gland removed. At the time the doctor said that tests showed the tissues were not normal. He said I would have to take DES so that cancer would not develop. I have had breast enlargement. I heard that DES could cause cancer. When I mentioned this I was told that this was wrong and that I should continue with the medicine. Now I don't know what to do. Can you comment? — C.R.

An explanation is in order here. DES (diethylstilbestrol) is a female hormone used to shrink the prostate gland or any bits of the gland that remain after surgery. I think your concerns about the medicine are based on problems encountered in females. DES was once given to pregnant women to prevent miscarriage, children born to a small number of these women did develop a rare form of genital cancer. In women, DES is still used to replace dwindling naturally-produced hormones at menopause.

With almost all menopause replacement hormones there is a slight risk of uterine or breast cancer. In animals large doses of DES (much more than would be prescribed for a human) have produced kidney and liver cancer. For you, it's important to know that this has not been reported in males. Men with prostate gland problems have been using DES safely for many years. Breast enlargement can be a side effect. I think that all things considered, your doctor has good reason for having you take the drug. I would go along with him.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't feel that anybody really cares for me. It seems like everyone else always gets the breaks. Sometimes I wonder if life is even worth living. — B.H.

DEAR B.H.: God cares for you, and the most important thing that can happen to you is to understand this great truth and accept his love into your life. When you begin to understand that God loves you, it will make all the difference in the world. You will no longer be so concerned about what happens to you, but will instead want to serve God and grow in your relationship to him.

You see, God created you. You are not here by accident; you are here because he placed you here. And God placed you here so that you would live for him and learn about him. Furthermore, God sent his Son into the world to reconcile you to himself. "Because of his great love for us, God, who is rich in mercy, made us alive with Christ even when we were dead in transgressions" (Ephesians 2:4).

(WPW) syndrome has nothing to do with Parkinson's disease. In WPW there is a particular heart pattern seen on an electrocardiogram. Some people who have his pattern never have problems. Others have a tendency to develop sudden episodes of fast beats. If the episodes are frequent, medicine can control them. In a few people, surgery is done to help. In this syndrome, the heart has two nerve networks conducting beats to the lower parts instead of one. The surgery is to sever one of the cables. It is rarely necessary.

TO THE WOMAN WHO TOOK HER CAT'S MEDICINE — I cannot find that medicine. Are you sure of the spelling? Call a pharmacy or your poison control center and they will be able to give you an answer. I would guess that if there were to be any effects they would have been noticed long before you decided to sit down and write me, but it would satisfy your curiosity to find out.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Risk takers

Around the rim

James Werrell

We hear a lot about the daredevils who risk life and limb for big bucks or just for the sheer thrill of it. But what about the regular guy on the street who faces danger as part of his normal, everyday life?

You may never know it to look at them, but your next door neighbor or even the little old lady down the block may be one of those who scoffs at danger as a way of life. And I, if I may be so bold, put it to you that I am one of those everyday risk takers.

JUST THE OTHER day my nose began to run, my eyes became watery, and I started sneezing every few minutes. I deduced that I was coming down with a cold, and decided to take one of those over-the-counter, time-release capsules to make me feel better.

Then, without regard for my personal safety, I operated a motor vehicle!

Sure, it was a little crazy, but I guess that risk taking it just in my blood. Part of this devil-may-care attitude of mine may stem from the wild crowd that I hang out with.

Take for example my friend Mr. H. I once stood by helplessly while he went swimming less than 20 minutes after eating a full meal. This same zany guy once got his head wet and went outside on a cold day.

Another time, in a bar in Austin, I saw a man strike a match without first closing the cover!

A woman I know, a Mrs. T, confided to me that she once ate mayonnaise that had sat on her kitchen counter for over three hours! That same week, she ate a pint of strawberry yogurt five days after the expiration date on the carton!

An acquaintance I met on a flight to Dallas confessed to me that as a child he had stabbed himself with a pencil and had not told his parents about it. He caught the risk-taking bug early, and to this day cleans his ears with a paper clip.

Although children are naturally exposed to some risks, such as crayon and paste eating, at an early age, I feel it is unfair to subject youngsters to more dangers than necessary. I was shocked to learn that a couple I know allows their daughter to sleep in the same room with a cat.

Rumor has it that this same couple watched, laughing, while their son shared an ice cream cone with a puppy!

I HAVE HEARD an otherwise-sane friend utter phrases such as "Gee, I'm sure lucky to have full use of all my limbs," or "My eyesight hasn't failed me yet," without knocking on wood! This friend also prefaces half of his sentences with "May the Lord strike me dead if..."

There are, of course, thousands of other examples: those who drink Cokes from bottles with a chip in the top; those who walk barefoot into convenience stores; and those who go without breakfast, to name a few.

And I'm sure some of you are saying, Boy, you'd have to be just plain crazy to take risks like that. Well, I guess my only answer to that is, once you've tasted life in the fast lane, there's no turning back.

Threat worth it?

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter studies the polls the way gypsies read tea leaves. The secret soundings of his favorite pollster, Pat Caddell, go directly to the president for his personal scrutiny. These polls show a national crisis would produce a rally-round-the-flag reaction, which would boost his re-election prospects.

This is the real reason, in the opinion of insiders, that Carter has ordered preparations for a limited invasion of Iran in October. There are three steps along the road to invasion where he could pause, reconsider and turn back. He has already passed the first stop; the military forces are now moving into position.

THE BEST EVIDENCE that Carter's motives are political can be found in the polls that guide him. Sources with access to Caddell's polls say they show (1) that international events have a strong impact on the public; (2) that the reaction is almost immediate; (3) that the holding of American hostages in Iran has stirred deeper emotions than any foreign policy issue in recent times and (4) that the hostage issue is so volatile it could explode in the president's face.

Even more to the point, the polls show there's nothing like a grave, protracted, international crisis to lift a president's approval rating.

Jimmy Carter came into the White House in January 1977, with a 71 percent approval rating. This skidded to 51 percent after the Bert Lance scandal, then plummeted to 28 percent by the time he signed the SALT II treaty in June 1979.

But five months later, the Iranian hotheads stormed the U.S. Embassy and seized the hostages. There was disturbing evidence that Carter's mishandling of the shah of Iran had been the direct cause of the hostage capture. Yet the polls registered in 30 similar cases, dating back to 1936.

These statistics had more to do with Carter's decision to attack Iran than any other development, insiders believe.

Footnote: Official White House comment is as follows:

"The suggestion that this or any other administration would start a war for political benefit is grotesque and totally irresponsible. The allegation made by Jack Anderson is absolutely false.

"With respect to the Persian Gulf, the president has said that we consider this region an area of vital interest. Therefore, while it is necessary to have plans for dealing with any external threats to countries of the region, we have no intention whatever of initiating any conflict ourselves, and neither the president nor any other responsible official has expressed any intention to take such an action either in October or at any other time. "Erroneous and totally irresponsible reports such as the Anderson column increase the danger to the American hostages in Iran, impede efforts to obtain their release peacefully and jeopardize American interests in the area generally."

USING A HERO: Simon Wiesenthal is truly a legend in his own lifetime. A survivor of Hitler's concentration camps, the 71-year-old Ukrainian-born Jew has spent the years since the Holocaust tracking down Nazi war criminals. He has been instrumental in bringing more than 1,100 of them to book — including the infamous Adolph Eichmann.

Last November, Congress voted to award Wiesenthal a gold medal in recognition of his services to justice and humanity. It was to be presented at the White House in October. Wiesenthal considered it the greatest of the many honors he has received over the years, and planned to bring his wife, daughter, son-in-law and grandchildren to the ceremony.

But suddenly, in a blatant political ploy that has disgusted many American Jewish leaders, the White House rescheduled the presentation for Aug. 5 — in time to get Jimmy Carter some much-needed favorable publicity before the Democratic convention.

The 10-minute ceremony was so hastily arranged that only a handful of guests from the Jewish community were invited. And though the medal was a congressional gesture, the only members of Congress present were Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., and John Warner, R-Va., with his wife, Elizabeth Taylor.

Wiesenthal, who spends every cent he collects on his documents center in Vienna, had to pay for his own plane tickets and accommodations there. He lacked either the time or the money to bring his family along. Though Wiesenthal never complained publicly, my sources tell me he felt the edge had been taken off his most cherished honor by the crass manipulation of the award for political purposes.

CAMPAIGN INFLATION: "Eat it up, wear it out, and make it do or do without," is an Old Yankee aphorism, and former Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., was its living embodiment as far as political campaigning was concerned. His last time out, in 1968, my sources told me, Aiken spent "$17.09, mostly for postage stamps."

But the cost of politicking has skyrocketed since Aiken's tenure. Republican James Mullen is expected to spend about $300,000 in the six-way primary race, and if he wins that he may shell out about $1 million to unseat Vermont's Democratic Sen. Patrick Leahy.

Dear Editor: Recently, there was an article in the paper about the chicken hawks having a nest and roosting some place around the VA Medical Center.

I have noticed they sail all around about the city, around the parks and every place chasing other birds. I also noticed in the paper a few years ago a story about there being so many kinds of birds we have here.

Know what? Just a lot of the birds are gone now and it's because of those hawks.

I have a martin house out back of our house and those hawks have chased all the martins away. We had some red birds here, and some mockingbirds. They are gone, too.

I believe something should be done about those hawks. There were two of them, now there are four, and the other birds are very few. Yes, there are still lots of sparrows, but they stay hidden a lot.

Don't you think something should be done about those hawks?

You never mistake the meaning of a Church spire. Even to those who are cold to the ideals for which the Church stands, that finger of faith always points to something that is comforting, reassuring, safe.

The very presence of a Church, whether in a crowded city street or on a quiet country road, is a benediction to all, including those who are not conscious of worship.

Such an influence, with what it means to those who open their hearts to truth, is worthy of a second thought. It merits acceptance as a refuge. It commands confidence as a port in time of storm.

The Church deserves your support — your membership — because it affords real protection for the family whose welfare it is your duty to defend and whose proper upbringing is your solemn obligation.

Neighbors fight homes for the poor

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tape-recorded laughter — high-pitched, raucous and maniacal — rips through the hot summer air to a dusty South Philadelphia construction site posted with police guards.

John Senick, 58, sitting shirtless under a torn beach umbrella, directs his small group of laborers from his court-approved post across the street from the Whitman Park lot.

Most of the two-dozen-odd workers wear earmuffs.

"We're doing what we believe in," says Senick.

The city and the federal government, through the Department of Housing and Urban Development, are pushing ahead with plans to build 120 $90,000 townhouses for the poor, a project neighbors have fought for 24 years.

The three-bedroom townhouses originally were figured to cost $33,000 each. Costs escalated to the estimated $90,000 today, which includes security and appliances. Some builders predict the cost will surpass $100,000 before they are finished.

HUD spokesman John Forte says the cost is high "not because they are luxury dwellings but because there was only one bidder that resulted from the fear in that area."

But Richard Van Blunk Jr., 27, a longshoreman who paid $30,000 for his nearby house, said the townhouses will be luxurious compared to his — "Let them take my house and give me one of them."

Resentment is rife in blue-collar Whitman Park — resentment of project's costs, of the people who will be moving in, of what is happening to their neighborhood.

"Why should people be given free housing?" asks Gert Hogan, a 63-year-old mother of three. "And don't we have a say what goes in our neighborhood? We have rights, too."

Joseph Fisher, a 43-year-old longshoreman whose rowhouse faces the gaping site, says, "The federal government takes half my pay, my kids eat hamburger, and they're going to build $90,000 townhouses for poor people with my money? No way, mister."

Ben Lacca operates an electronics store a mile away and joins the pickets now and then, protesting "the outrageous, dictatorial condemnation of this neighborhood."

"The sole purpose of building this project is purely political. The wealthy who forced the poor out of their homes in Society Hill (near Independence Hall National Park) now want to relocate them here free."

"This is a dictatorship controlled by the wealthy. The writers of the Constitution would turn over in their graves if they saw what was happening here."

Whitman Park, not far from the Walt Whitman Bridge that spans the Delaware River between Philadelphia and New Jersey, is a predominantly white neighborhood, largely Italian and Irish Catholic.

But residents deny race is the root of their protest, although blacks stand to be the main beneficiaries of the project housing.

"I've lived on the same block for 22 years," says George Berry, 67. "I don't care if there are 120 white families in there, but they should pay their own way."

The project originated in 1956 when the city Redevelopment Authority razed dozens of homes and businesses with the idea of building a 476-unit high-rise.

That changed to the townhouse concept in 1964, but the project was stalled by demonstrations until eight years ago when a federal judge ordered construction to begin. Continued protests kept 50 percent of its residents black and Hispanic, would be denied millions of dollars in federal aid.

But when William Green succeeded him in City Hall in January that policy went out the window. As mayor, Green said he would abide by the federal court ruling and "no trespassing" signs went up around the site.

The protest carried to the U.S. Supreme Court but failed, and work began last March. Pickets went up and fights broke out when protesters tore down fencing and scuffled with police.

In June, more than 75 pickets were arrested for violating a court order not to interfere with work crews.

Neighbors, now legally limited to one and two at a time, picket the gates where trucks and workers come and go. Their hope is that when carpenters, electricians, plumbers, roofers and bricklayers show up, they'll honor the "don't work" signs.

On the light side

Now there's an honest man

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — When Steve Kennicutt opened the scorched metal lunch box he was shocked to find more than $10,000, most of it in $20 bills.

Kennicutt found the loot when he was gathering the belongings of his tenant and friend, Willard L. Gauld, 52, who died Saturday in a house fire officials have blamed on careless smoking.

Kennicutt said he crammed the cash into a plastic bag and drove straight to Kansas City police headquarters.

"Now that's an honest man," said police Sgt. Robert Kinser.

Kennicutt said the money apparently came from a property settlement or a disability payment. He said it would be turned over to Gauld's relatives when they show up to claim the body.

Kennicutt got the receipt for $10,537.

Thanks Miami, but no thanks

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Miami officials say they will gladly welcome any of Huntington's vagrants with open arms — but only if Huntington accepts some of the thousands of Cubans flocking to Florida recently.

Huntington Mayor Bob Bailey delivered that news to city officials during Wednesday's meeting called to discuss how to solve the problem downtown Huntington has had with vagrants.

He said Miami made the offer to Huntington after city Police Chief Ollie Adkins proposed giving the vagrants one-way tickets to the Sunshine state. Adkins said he made the proposal after a few of Huntington's hard luck cases said they'd rather be in Florida.

But instead, Bailey says, he plans to offer the City Council an ordinance making it illegal to beg or panhandle in the city.

Raw purple sea-urchin what?

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — When David Cavett invites a guest to dinner, meat and potatoes might likely be replaced by grilled octopus or eel casserole.

Cavett, a staff member at the Hampton Mariners Museum in Beaufort, is a believer in new dishes. He helped organize the fourth annual Strange Seafood Spectacular on Thursday in an effort to spread the word.

More than 1,000 sets of daring taste buds showed up to try 43 dishes — from batter-fried sting ray to shark salad — prepared by local residents and the museum staff.

Armed with only a sharp knife, Cavett demonstrated how to prepare the slimy, tentacled octopus. "Folks really do like it," he said.

Some tasters at the Spectacular preferred smaller creatures in dishes, such as Coquina Clam Cocktail or periwinkle in garlic butter. The periwinkle snails are so small they must be coaxed from their shells with a straight pin.

There was also smoked shark, shark chowder, shark salad, shark creole, mullet row, mullet dressing, mullet chowder, left- and right-handed whelk chowder — and the ever-unpopular raw purple sea-urchin eggs.

Destroyed Soviet sub towed from accident site

TOKYO (AP) — A Soviet tug today began towing a powerless Soviet nuclear submarine from the western Pacific off Okinawa where it was disabled by a fire that reportedly killed at least nine sailors, Japan's Maritime Safety Agency said.

Initial reports said the two vessels, accompanied by a Soviet fuel tanker and a training ship, were headed southwest from the scene of the accident about 60 miles east of Okinawa. They were expected to skirt the southern end of the island and then head for the Soviet Siberian port of Vladivostok, the sub's home base, 1,100 miles to the north.

Japan's chief cabinet secretary, Kiichi Niyazawa, said Japanese air and sea monitors found no signs of radiation leakage in the area where the sub was stricken. He said Japanese aircraft and ships would continue surveillance to make sure the towing operation does not violate Japan's territorial waters.

The 6,000-ton "Echo-1" class submarine was crippled by the reported fire about dawn Thursday. It sent out distress calls that were answered first by a passing British tanker, later by Japanese patrol craft, and then by the Soviet training ship Meridian, also out of Vladivostok.

The Maritime Safety Agency, Japan's equivalent of the Coast Guard, said it had intercepted Russian radio traffic reporting that nine crew members were killed and three injured in the fire.

The Soviets volunteered no details of the incident, allowed no foreigners aboard the submarine, and refused all offers of assistance. Lifeboats from the Meridian took aboard about 50 of the sub's crew — about half its normal complement.

U.S. officials in Tokyo remained silent on the incident. But Japan's Kyodo news service said several American reconnaissance planes flew over the area.

UW directors hear human interest stories, reports

United Way Board members, division chairmen and team captains of the Big Spring United Way met with the Big Spring Executive Board Tuesday in the Cactus Room of the Dora Roberts Student Building at Howard College to present information to the public concerning the upcoming campaign.

Each agency sent a representative to give a summary on what their agency does for the community or a human interest story. Each agency was represented by two or more persons.

The agency and its representative speaker were: American Red Cross, Joe Baucham, public relations; Big Spring Boy's Club, Bert Andries, executive director; Boy Scouts, Larry Speck, district director; Dora Roberts Rehab Center, Larry Bristo, executive director; Family Service Center, Lucy Knox, president of board; Girl Scout Council, Peggy Sturrock, district director; Salvation Army, Rick Hamby, board member; West Side Community Center, Madeline Boadle, vice president of board; West Side Day Care Center, Pat Lawlis, executive director; YMCA, Bob Cappel, executive director; and the Detox Center, Ed Bowman, president of board.

In other action board members reviewed pledge cards and report sheets. It was stated by Russ McEwen, vice chairman, that it is very important for all division chairmen and team captains to record on the proper form which cards each worker has so that the office may keep a very accurate record of the pledge cards.

McEwen also told those present that "It is important for us to give every business and individual the opportunity to pledge and donate to the United Way for the goal of $250,000 to be reached. We can do it and we will do it if each one does his or her part."

Division chairmen were also recognized. They are as follows:

Out of town, Doug Warren; Special, Russ McEwen, Earl Archer; Metropolitan, Dean Pittman, Andy Swartz, Dub Moore; CFC, John Allman; Professional, Jimmy Anderson, Drew Mouton; Rural, Wendell Shive-Coahoma area, JoAnne Poyner-Forsan area, Tom Yeats-Ackerly area; and Residential, Troy Fraser.

Trevino receives master degree from Incarnate Word College

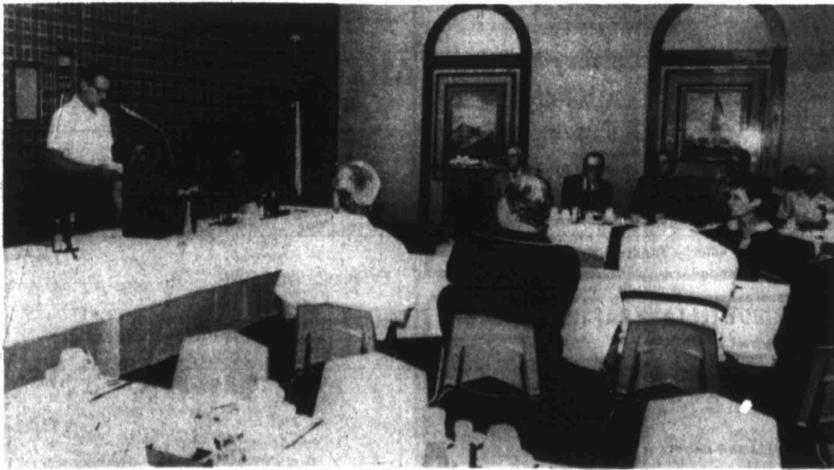

SAN ANTONIO — Despite the howling winds and driving rains of hurricane Allen Arnold Trevino, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Emiliano A. Fierro of 706 N.W. 5th, Big Spring, received his master of arts degree in education along with other graduates Aug. 11 at Incarnate Word College here.

He was a member of the first graduating class in the centennial year of the college, founded in 1881.

A 1970 graduate of Tarleton State University with a B.S. degree in physical education, Arnold is presently teaching government and world history at South San High School in San Antonio. He and his wife, Mary Jane, live at 2802 Lake Arbor, San Antonio.

Incarnate Word College president Sister Margaret Patrice Slattery conferred the degrees, board chairman Dr. Amy Freeman presented the diplomas, and Dr. Robert Connelly, a member of the philosophy faculty and one of ten Piper Outstanding Professors in Texas for 1980, delivered the commencement address.

Sponsors feel sting as consumers gain steam for clean screen thing

Almost half a million concerned citizens from every state in the Union sent a message to sponsors recently, the effects of which may soon be felt throughout the television industry. That message is that they are tired of being offended by immoral television presentations and intend to do something about the problem.

In a news conference held in Nashville and attended by religious leaders and interested members from several states it was announced that the nation-wide "Clean Up Television" Campaign, which began officially March 16, is now shifting into high gear. The highlight of the meeting was the release of three letters addressed to three of the most prominent sponsors on television, General Foods, American Home Products, and Warner-Lambert, informing them that unless their sponsoring policies are changed promptly that hundreds of thousands of participants will refuse to buy any of their products for a period of three months. If action is still not taken this promise will automatically continue to be renewed for additional three-month periods for a minimum of one year.

According to spokesmen for the campaign over 420,000 people from a widely variety of backgrounds have already signed forms agreeing to take part. The forms also let all sponsors know that they are "disgusted and appalled with television program which feature scenes of adultery, sexual perversion or incest, or which treat any form of immorality in a joking or otherwise favorable light." The forms make it clear that unless something is done promptly to correct the problem, signers intend to refuse to buy the products of any company who persists in sponsoring programming which is "an insult to decency and a negative influence on young people."

The "Clean Up Television" Campaign, which was initially developed by the Joelton Church of Christ in Joelton, Tennessee, a suburb of Nashville, "has already spread like wildfire to more than 6,000 other Churches of Christ all across America and has also received enthusiastic interest and inquiries from hundreds of other churches of almost every major religious groups in the country," according to John Hurt, minister of the Joelton Church Spokesmen for the group added that this represents over one-third of all the congregations in the entire brotherhood, and is already, by far, the largest single effort in the 2.5 million member church's history.

In explaining the phenomenal interest which the "Clean Up Television" Campaign has generated, Hurt said that "anyone who has been active in church work realizes that millions of decent people have been upset and disgusted for some time by immoral trends in television programming, but until now, have simply had no way to effectively make their feelings known. The "Clean Up Television" Campaign represents a totally new plan for dealing with this problem which costs virtually nothing to implement and is so obviously workable and effective that morally decent people everywhere are becoming motivated to take part. No separate organization is required and no complex operation is needed. It is simply a matter of explaining the program, passing out the forms, and collecting them again when they are completed. Each participating church simply conducts its own individual, but well-coordinated, local campaign and, like millions of drops of rain, by coordinating our efforts and by moving in the same direction against the same specific sponsors at the same time we can together produce a gigantic nation-wide tidal wave of opposition to immoral broadcasting which cannot be ignored."

It was also pointed out that, although the plan was initially started among Churches of Christ, after such wide-spread public reaction, it now appears almost certain that several other religious groups will also begin separate, but parallel, programs using the same approach.

Diocese gains priests

Two Dominican priests, Father Angel Vizcarra and Father Andrew Kolzow, have been assigned in the Diocese of San Angelo.

Father Vizcarra is pastor of St. Joseph Parish while Father Kolzow serves as associate pastor and will also assist in adult religious education programs for the wide, 34-county diocese of San Angelo.

The Dominicans, the Order of Friars Preachers (O.P.) is one of the oldest religious congregations. The Order came to the United States to found the Dominican Province of St. Joseph in New York in 1806. This is the first assignment of the Dominican Fathers in this area.

Father Angel Vizcarra is a native of Abadino, Spain. He is the youngest of eleven children of which three have become priests and three have entered orders of women religious.

Ordained to the priesthood Dec. 11, 1946, Father Vizcarra had attended the Dominican Minor Seminary in Corias, Spain and the Dominican House of Studies in Salamanca. He attended the Pontifical University of Salamanca.

While on assignment in Mexico in 1961 he was asked to come to the United States where he served pastorates in Alice and Freer, Texas. In 1956 he was appointed Vicar Provincial and spent three years in the Dominican Republic overseeing establishments in the Dominican Republic and in Texas.

The large influx of Cuban refugees to the United States following the rise of Fidel Castro to power brought Father Vizcarra to Miami, Florida in 1959. He remained in Florida except for a three-year assignment in Mexico City until his assignment in San Angelo.

Father Andrew Kolzow is a native of Chicago. He attended St. Joseph School in Downers Grove and Downers Grove Community High School. He attended Cornell College in Mount Vernon, Iowa and graduated from De Paul University in Chicago in 1951.

He studied for the priesthood at the Dominican Novitiate in Winona, Minnesota; the Dominican House of Studies in River Forest, Illinois and at St. Rose Priory, Dubuque, Iowa. He was ordained a priest on May 24, 1958.

Father Kolzow was associated with Penwick High School, Oak Park, Illinois from 1959 to 1975. He taught Spanish and later served as principal and then president of the school.

He was chaplain and assistant director of St. Thomas Moore Newman Center at the University of Arizona from 1975 to 1977. He came to Texas in 1977 as Prior of St. Joseph Priory in Dallas. He also served as administrator of Corpus Christi Mission, Ferris, Texas during which time he taught at Bishop Lynch High School in Dallas and at Holy Trinity Seminary in Irving, Texas.

Married priests allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Catholic Conference spokesman Russell Shaw said the phrase "common identity" indicates that the Anglicans could retain some of their customary liturgy.

In addition, he said, married Anglican priests could become Roman Catholic priests and remain married. They would not be allowed to remarry if widowed and could not become bishops, Shaw noted.

Many details remain to be worked out and the cases of priests will be reviewed on an individual basis, emphasized archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The plan was developed and proposed to the Vatican in response to requests from both individuals and groups of Anglican background who have been members of the Episcopal Church, according to the Catholic Conference.

'Big' soloist scheduled

At first glance you may think "Big" John Hall is a pro-football player. At 6'4" his stature is only the beginning of his bigness. He has a rich bass-baritone voice with unbelievable range and power. Yet, "Big" John considers his voice secondary to his ministry. Sharing Christ and leading a congregation in worship is first in "Big" John's life.

Across America and much of the world, John is considered, by many, the foremost solo vocalist of the evangelical realm.

Many records and tapes of "Big" John may be found in bookstores in the United States as well as other countries. The latest recording, "Celebration of Praise" is perhaps the best reflection of what happens in a John Hall Concert. It was recorded live at Melodyland, with over 3,000 friends rejoicing and singing with him.

A concert with "Big" John Hall is a "Celebration of Praise" — Celebrating the life-changing power of Jesus!

Deaf ministry to begin at College Baptist

A ministry for deaf people has been started at College Baptist Church, located across from Howard College at Eleventh and Birdwell. Included in this new ministry is a Bible study class for the deaf and interpretation of the worship services each Sunday. The Bible study begins at 9:45 a.m. and the worship services are at 11:00 a.m. and at 7:00 p.m. each Sunday.

This work is being led by Glenn Carrigan and Doris Arcand for the purpose of involving deaf people more personally in the life of a local church. With the development of the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, it is also hoped that deaf people coming to Big

Plans are being made with consultants from Midland, Abilene, Lubbock and Dallas for more extensive programs involving deaf people in Big Spring and surrounding communities. If anyone is interested in participating in this effort, they are encouraged to call the church office at 267-7429 for additional information.

Transformation coming

The girls have sung at Berea Baptist Church a Baptist Association Youth Conference meeting, and Airport Baptist Transformation comes highly recommended by local pastors who have invited them to Big Spring.

The girls, who have sung together for over a year, are directed by Charles Coldin of Immanuel Baptist Church, Odessa.

Bullock subpoenaed by grand jury

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock says he will cooperate fully with a grand jury that is investigating former Deputy Comptroller Ralph Wayne. Bullock was subpoenaed Thursday to testify on Sept. 4. Another 11 persons, including Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, were subpoenaed Wednesday.

"I'll comply," said Bullock, adding he furnished grand jurors numerous documents, including airplane flight logs and travel vouchers, two months ago. Bullock said he believed Wayne, who resigned as deputy in August 1979 because of ill health, would survive the investigation "as I think all of us will." "This thing has gotten to be a three-ring circus," Bullock said.

The Travis County grand jury is investigating allegations made by former Bullock publicist Bill Collier that Wayne used state employees and equipment to conduct private business. The investigation started in October 1978 but has been in limbo for over 18 months. District Attorney Ronald Earle said he was awaiting FBI analysis of a carbon ribbon from the typewriter used by Wayne's secretary. But the FBI revealed this summer it made its report to Earle in September 1979.

Bullock challenged Earle in July to move forward with the investigation or shut it down and end the suspense for Wayne.

Assistant District Attorney Phil Nelson said Bullock himself is not under investigation.

Laney succeeded Wayne as state representative from the Plainview area in 1973 and reportedly has had business dealings with him.

Laney, chairman of the House Administration Committee, is considered Speaker Bill Clayton's closest confidant in the House.

Goodman's subpoena instructs him to bring records and letters about a loan to Wayne and Laney in connection with Central Plains Savings.

Campbell, Wimberly and Lovell were told to bring their 1978 correspondence with Wayne concerning Ralph Wayne Communications, Panhandle Broadcasting Inc., Big Country Broadcasting Inc., Central Texas Communications Inc., KKYN of Plainview, KKYR of Marshall, KYYX of Odessa and KXYL of Brownwood.

Lewis was told to bring records concerning Wayne's broadcasting and savings and loan interests as well as Savings Life Insurance Co. of Texas.

Alexander and Kidd were instructed to bring copies of their correspondence with Wayne about Central Plains Savings.

Collier said in magazine articles that he took the typewriter ribbons to Earle after resigning from the comptroller's staff.

In December 1978, a grand jury turned in a report on Bullock's department and complained he hindered its investigation.

Bullock recently obtained a court order removing the report from the public record.

Everyone's for reindustrialization

NEW YORK (AP) — Few concepts have won such instant understanding and support as reindustrialization. The word is not even in the dictionary, but every politician knows what it means. And they support it, too.

What it means, simply, is that we must start rebuilding the country's production capacity. We must make railroads run, steel companies competitive, automotive companies profitable. We must stimulate research, promote technology, get people back to work.

That is what political leadership is saying now — now that the economy is on its knees and no more money can be extracted to support big spending projects that often lower the nation's competitiveness.

Republicans and Democrats are shouting the word, but none of them seem to accept any blame for weakening what used to be the economic wonder of the entire world, the U.S. economy. But they helped do it.

They helped with burdensome taxes, economic mismanagement, officious bureaucracies, ridiculous regulations. At times, it seemed, Washington had declared war on production and the producers.

It had plenty of help, of course, from mismanagement in the private sector, and from a growing attitude among Americans that consumption was the most important function of any good American.

The consumer movement had sound beginnings, because something had to be done about the dangers from increasingly complex products and, as always, from shoddy products. And those dangers still exist today.

Somewhere back there, however, there developed the idea that the consumer was put on earth to be served, that he had a right to all the materially good things of life.

Politicians, who spelled consumer v-o-t-e-r, proclaimed it. Companies with products to sell promoted it. Advertising depicted what a consumer could not live without. Banks provided easy credit.

In the process, the country forgot that it could consume only to the extent that it produced. It often hobbled its production facilities with regulations and taxes of one sort or another. Increasingly, more funds went to non-productive government activities.

Nobody can correctly distribute all the blame, because a tremendous amount of it is there to be spread around. But the net effect is that productivity in the nation's economy has almost ceased to grow.

And, since growth is needed to raise living standards, the consumer finds his living standards going down. What a shock! How un-American! Weren't American living standards to rise forever? Wasn't it a right?

As we now find out, it is not a right. It was an expectation, to be sure, and it was portrayed in almost every magazine and history book.

Now, it seems, is the time to get back to work. The money has run out of many industries and they do not have the funds to rebuild.

Now everyone wants to rebuild the machinery, because they are finding out that without it they cannot continue to consume.

Adventurer dreamed he found luxury ship on ocean bottom

BOSTON (AP) — He explored Mexico looking for Pancho Villa's secret treasure. He searched for Noah's ark in Turkey. And now he has probed the ocean depths off Newfoundland for the Titanic.

Michael Harris, 44, a soft-spoken filmmaker from Tampa, Fla., is an adventurer extraordinaire. "I know it sounds kind of corny, but I had a dream several years ago that I was on the ocean bottom and I found the Titanic," he said sheepishly Thursday after bringing to Boston his expedition, which he says may have located the sunken British luxury liner.

Harris, leader of the American crew of the H.J.W. Fay, said sonar scans taken in a 500-square mile area show images that appear to be the ship, which struck an iceberg and sank 68 years ago with 2,200 people aboard. Seven hundred survived.

Next spring or summer, Harris and his crew will return to the area accompanied by the deep-diving submarine Alviner to determine if the shadowy images are the Titanic — or rock formations.

If the presence of the Titanic is confirmed, the submarine will attempt to reach through open areas of the ship to locate the purser's safe, the ship's logs and its furnishings, Harris said.

The safe reportedly holds a shipment of diamonds. It may also contain the valuables of some of the Titanic's wealthy passengers.

Jokingly rubbing his hands with anticipation and greed, Harris said he'd be delighted to find the diamonds, but he said it was more realistic to expect to recover the log or other artifacts.

Harris, a slightly built man with sandy hair flecked with gray, wasn't always so adventurous. He said he was about to make a movie about a compulsive gambler several years ago when it fell through and he was left with nothing to do.

Then he met the late writer-producer Rod Serling, creator of "Twilight Zone," and made what he says is the first film about the effects of U.S. atom bomb experiments on the Marshall Islands.

Later, he filmed his hunt for the treasure reportedly hidden by Mexican revolutionary Pancho Villa. But when he reached the cave where the riches supposedly were hidden, "there were rotten boxes with metal linings and rattlesnakes, but somebody else had ripped off the loot."

His search for Noah's ark also ended in disappointment. The image that some researchers speculated was the biblical vessel turned out to be a rock.

Asked if he feared the Titanic search might also fail, Harris said, "We think we're in good shape on this one."

Details of the research conducted by the 39-member crew, including pictures of the sonar scans, will be released within two weeks, according to Jack Grimm, 55, the Texas oilman who is financing the expedition. Grimm said the search already has cost "in excess of $1 million" and he estimated it will require an additional $3 million.

"It still has some strange fascination for man — I just can't fully describe it," said Grimm.

VFW chief launches attack

CHICAGO (AP) — The Veterans of Foreign Wars' new commander in chief has attacked President Carter, the Congress, SALT II and U.S. immigration policies and called for resumption of the draft.

During his acceptance speech Thursday night, T.C. Selman told delegates to the VFW national convention that Carter's performance is one of "flutter, stutter, mumble and fumble." He accused the Carter administration of waging a "constant attack" on veterans programs.

The VFW has endorsed Republican Ronald Reagan for president.

Selman, of Freeport, Texas, criticized the Congress for allegedly following the "White House party line" on veterans legislation. He said lawmakers should "vote their conscience instead of their political beliefs."

"The SALT II treaty as written is a thinly veiled strategic surrender," Selman said. "It deserves to be killed and it will be killed."

Selman called for a resumption of conscription, saying it should be "loophole-free."

"I say to all the thumb-sucking, poll-watching politicians: To heck with whether or not a loophole-free male draft is popular," he said.

Selman made his remarks on the final day of the four-day VFW convention.

Bill aimed at employers of illegal aliens 'stuck'

States News Services
WASHINGTON — A one-year jail sentence or a $1,000 fine for employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens could nearly solve the nation's unemployment problems, a Kentucky senator says, but the argument leaves Texans and most of the Congress unimpressed.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, a Democrat, proposed the penalties as an amendment to a bill scheduled for floor action later this month in the Senate.

 "My amendment would restore fairness to hiring by requiring employers to hire Americans and legal residents," he said. "As long as some employers can make a little more profit from hiring illegal aliens, they will continue to do so."

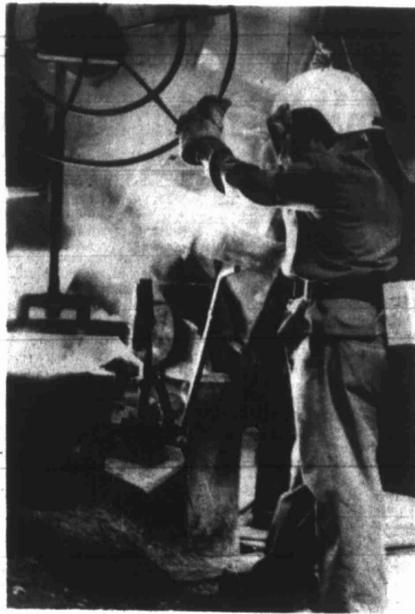

But the tight legislative calendar and a general sensitivity in Congress towards matters dealing with the largely Mexican illegal workforce appear to give Huddleston's measure little chance of passage.

 Both Texas senators, Republican John Tower and Democrat Lloyd Bentsen are against the proposal, Bentsen called it "unworkable and ineffective."

Tower said it would create an "unfair burden" for employers and a potential for "general discrimination against Mexican-Americans."

In the past 10 years, at least three proposals similar to Huddleston's, two from the House Judiciary Committee and one from President Carter, failed to come to a vote in Congress.

So far, only two senators, Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., and Wendell Ford, D-Ry., have added their names as co-sponsors to the Huddleston amendment. Some senate aides have acknowledged that their bosses are keeping hands off the issue of un-commented workers until at least early next year when the report of the presidential Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy is due to be completed.

MOLTEN METERS — A foundry worker at Rockwell International's Uniontown, Pa., plant pours molten bronze from an electric furnace into a ladle. The molten bronze reaches a temperature of 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit and is used to make castings for the company's water meters. Rockwell is the leading manufacturer of water meters in the United States and has been making them for more than 100 years. The respirator the worker is wearing provides clean air to the face mask area.

Public offering of $35 million Har-te-Hanks debentures

NEW YORK — Goldman, Sachs & Co., as manager of the underwriting group, announced the public offering Aug. 15 of $35 million Har-te-Hanks Communications, Inc. 8 percent convertible subordinated debentures due July 15, 2005, at a price of 100 percent.

Proceeds from the sale of the debentures will be applied to the reduction of the company's indebtedness under a revolving credit agreement with a bank.

The debentures are convertible prior to maturity, unless previously redeemed, at the rate of 28.17 shares of common stock for each $1,000 principal amount (equivalent to a conversion price of approximately $35.50 per share of common stock), subject to adjustment under certain conditions. Otherwise, the debentures are redeemable at an initial price of 108 percent until July 15, 1981, declining annually thereafter to 100 percent on and after July 15, 2000, together in each case with accrued interest. The debentures are also redeemable through operation of a sinking fund commencing July 15, 1991 in an annual amount of not less than $1,750,000 nor more than $3,500,000.

Har-te-Hanks Communications, Inc. owns and operates daily newspapers in 22 markets in eight states and weekly newspapers in 24 markets in 11 states. Also owned and operated by the New York Stock Exchange company (symbol: HHH) are four VHF network affiliated television stations and five AM and six FM radio stations, trade publications, alternate distribution companies, CATV systems and market research firms.

"Basements in Washington are full of commission reports, but the point the senator's trying to make is that the need is to act now," said a Huddleston aide. "The issue is especially touchy for some people and they want to hide behind the commission report."

Huddleston said Congress has so far failed to act on illegal immigration, an estimated 60 percent of it from Mexico.

Wish to see child realized in court

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — For five years, Don Kieffer has been fighting to see his daughter. His wish came true in U.S. District Court here — but she was testifying against him in a $1-million suit he filed against the Unification Church.

Kieffer's civil suit contends the church recruited his adopted daughter, now 21, when she was a minor, exercised "mind control methods" over her and "wrongfully deprived him of his natural parental right."

Jana Kieffer's court appearance Tuesday and Wednesday satisfied one of his goals: "to bring her into court and see if she's all right."

But she disputed his claims. "I don't think brainwashing goes on. ... You can't control somebody's mind. That's ridiculous," she told Judge Shane Devine.

She said she still is a member of the church founded by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, a Korean industrialist and evangelist, and its affiliate, Collegiate Association for the Research of Principals.

Miss Kieffer left her New Hampshire home in June 1975, joining her divorced mother at the Unification Church seminary in Barrytown, N.Y.

Gloria Kieffer had joined the church after she was divorced in 1973 from Kieffer, who won custody of their four children, including Jana and another child from her previous marriage whom he had adopted in 1962.

Miss Kieffer said her mother introduced her to the church and she joined because "I just felt very insecure living where I was. I just didn't see anything happening to my life that I could look forward to."

Kieffer refused his daughter permission to join the church, but he was "totally unaware of how to retrieve her. I tried to keep it as a family matter, tried to resolve it by writing to her and phoning her. But she seemed to be quite hostile to me."

When he tried to visit her in August 1975, he was told she wasn't there.

"In early 1977, I met my first ex-Moonie and she just stood my hair on end with the story of what had happened to her," Kieffer said.

Legal action began that year after his ex-wife, then remarried, moved to Manchester and tried to contact his two younger children, Kieffer said.

Fearing she would try to bring the other children into the church, Kieffer sought to cancel his ex-wife's visitation rights and have his daughter produced in court.

The visitation rights were canceled in late 1977, but the Hillsboro County Superior Court said it could not compel the church to produce Miss Kieffer.

After amending his suit to seek damages against the church, the trial opened here this summer.

So far, ex-members of the church, a psychiatrist, and Kieffer's ex-wife have testified, and the trial is expected to last through the week.

Asked about seeing her relatives for the first time in five years, Miss Kieffer said, "The whole thing is just very upsetting."

Glasscock prices for lunch, breakfast, milk disclosed

The Glasscock Independent School District serves lunch at 30 cents for elementary students, 50 cents for secondary students, breakfast for 30 cents and extra milk for 10 cents.

Children from families with income at or below levels mandated by poverty guidelines are eligible for free or reduced-price meals. If children are eligible for free meals they are also eligible for free extra milk.

The reduced price for lunch or breakfast is 10 cents. If family income is higher than guidelines allow but has high medical bills, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, or disaster or casualty losses, your children may still be eligible.

The school children of parents or guardians who became unemployed are eligible for free or reduced-price meals and 'free' milk during the period of unemployment, provided that the loss of income causes the family income during the period of unemployment to be at or below the levels shown on the scale.

Principals offices contain applications for free meals, free milk or reduced price meals. The information is confidential and will not be used for any other purpose.

Foster children are eligible for these benefits in some cases. Contact your principals.

Local scouts prepare for annual fete

Fresh from a fun field day, Cub Scouts of Big Spring are pointing toward the annual Roundup to enlist new members.

Date for the Roundup in Big Spring elementary schools is the evening of Sept. 11. All 8-9-10-year-old boys who want to be Cubs are asked to attend with their parents.

At the field day last weekend, more than 60 people participated. Roger Stafford, Greg Parrish and Bob Henry of Troop 8 from Coahoma were in charge of the flag ceremonies. An Indian theme was followed, and most Cubs wore some sort of Indian costume. Kenneth Lawhon taught boys some basic Indian dance routines.

After the September Roundup, a training session will be held Sept. 27 at the First United Methodist Church for leaders, said Nancy Dooling, Cubbing commissioner. She urged adults to call her (at 3-4308) if they can serve as den or pack leaders, or for Webelos (10-year-old boys).

Shah's son may drop out

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — The son of the late shah of Iran may drop out of Williams College, a family spokesman says.

Prince Reza Pahlavi, who will assume his father's title in October, has been attending Williams since last September.

"The possibility exists that he will return, but he doesn't know yet, and we don't either," said Non Ferrari of the Armao Agency of New York, which handles public relations for the family.

The prince, 19, is in Egypt for the extensive period of mourning mandated by Moslem religious law. Ferrari said the deposed shah died July 27 in Cairo.

Ferrari said a decision on whether the prince will return to school will be made later this month or early next month.

Daredevil's house sold

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — A sprawling ranch-style house belonging to daredevil Evel Knievel has been sold at a mortgage foreclosure sale for $214,460, officials say.

The sale price was $5 more than the minimum asking price, a spokesman for Summit Valley Title Co. said Thursday. The house, situated on nine acres adjacent to a country club, was sold to Don Robinson, a Butte attorney, for a client he refused to identify.

A notice filed in court in April by the title insurance company said Knievel was behind on mortgage payments, which Knievel said in June were $4,000 a month.

Knievel said the house and land were assessed at $300,000.

Mae West enters hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The entertainment newspaper Variety says actress Mae West spent her 88th birthday in the hospital, but hospital officials said they treated no such patient.

Two sources at Good Samaritan Hospital confirmed the Variety report, saying Miss West, the witty, curly blonde star of dozens of films, was admitted last week under a pseudonym for treatment of a mild stroke. The sources said Miss West was in a tightly guarded celebrity suite and that strict orders had been given to keep her presence a secret.

However, Variety columnist Army Archerd said Miss West had suffered a mild concussion in a fall from her bed.

Betty Scheller, director of community relations for the hospital, said Thursday, "I have no information on any such person."

Jimmy Stewart doing well

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor James Stewart is "up and walking" in his hospital room and is doing "extremely well," according to a hospital spokeswoman.

"He's in a regular private room and is expected to be released in the near future," Sandy Gimpelson, a spokeswoman at St. John's Hospital, said Thursday.

Stewart, 72, was admitted to the hospital Friday, complaining of an irregular pulse, and was placed in the coronary care unit.

Record municipal deliveries brighten CRMWD picture

Record municipal deliveries contributed to a record monthly revenue figure for July, according to the Colorado River Municipal Water District revenue statement.

During July the District took in $961,647, which was $194,556 more than the same month a year ago. Part of the increase was due to the big volume of water sales in July, and part was due to rate adjustments made earlier in the year. This brought to $4,623,200 the total through seven months, or $77,829 ahead of the budget projections through July.

During July the electric energy bill for pumping, etc. was $317,353, making $1,307,490 for the year. This is about $70,000 less than for the budget estimates due to much lighter pumping demands earlier this year.

Southwest Airlines had 12 near misses, newspaper reports today

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines has had 12 "near mid-air collisions" in the Dallas-Fort Worth area this year, The Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The newspaper said the "near misses" included instances when Boeing 737 jettliners came within 50, 100 and 200 feet of colliding with private planes.

On April 9, the FAA said, a Southwest jet came within 50 feet of a private plane. On May 30, a jettliner came within 200 feet of a small plane, according to the FAA. In another incident July 10 a Southwest jet came within 100 feet of a small plane.

Seven of the incidents are included in Federal Aviation Administration records and 6 incidents are discussed in a confidential memorandum written by the Chief of Facilities at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, the newspaper said. Only one was reported in writing to the FAA, the report said.

A Southwest Airlines spokesman said the airline did not consider the other incidents serious enough to require written reports to the FAA.

Don Ogden, vice president of flight operations for Southwest, said, "We didn't report them because our pilots didn't have to make violent maneuvers, didn't have to take evasive action, to get away."

FAA records, the newspaper said, do show that Southwest reported such incidents when the pilots did take "evasive action."

Ogden added that only one of the "near misses" took place recently.

"It's no different here than it is elsewhere in the country. Every now and then you do, sometimes, I suppose, get radar not picking up all targets and we oc-asionally get close to one," Ogden said.

Don Keneram, chief of facilities for the FAA at D-FW Airport, treated the incident as "serious" in the confidential memorandum obtained by the newspaper.

"Within the last two or three months we have had a number of near midair collision reports by Southwest Airlines which occurred in the east portion of our airspace at fairly low altitudes," Keneram wrote in the memorandum.

He said four of them were between 16 and 35 miles southeast of Love Field at 3,000 feet. "This has caused quite a bit of concern to ourselves and Southwest Airlines," he said.

Keneram said about half of the near in-flight collisions came after controllers at D-FW allowed Southwest jets to drop from 5,000 feet to 3,000 feet as they began their approaches to Love Field.

A traffic controller said pilots request such drops in altitude in order to land more quickly.

Charles Josey, an official with the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Association, said the pilots ask for a lower altitude to speed up the arrival.

"There's no one actually breaking the rules. The pilots just want to speed things up," Josey said.

Ogden said the airline has stopped making the lower altitude requests "several months ago."

"We fly schedule the best we can. That's our job," Ogden said.

Several of the incidents came over populated sections of the Dallas area, including two within the "airport traffic area" of Love Field, according to Hollis Walker of the FAA.

Steers don pads in scrimmage today

The Big Spring Steer coaching staff will get a much better idea of what lies in the future of this season when the BSHS gridders put on the pads for the first time this afternoon, with a full scale scrimmage slated.

The Steers have toiled twice-a-day in shorts since Monday, and today is the first chance the 5-A-A-A-A gridders could don the pads under UIL rule.

Head Coach Ralph Harris and his staff, many new to the system, have been pleased for the most part with the workouts in shorts, as the Steers seemed to be in shape and mentally ready to prepare for the rugged 5-

AAAAA wars ahead. But with pads, the results could be different, as the extra load carried and the all-important aspect of hitting will give the coaches a better idea of those ready to play.

After a picture session this morning in game uniforms, the Steers are scheduled to begin their scrimmage at Memorial Stadium at 5:00 p.m. Both the varsity and junior varsity will battle in today's action.

No practice is scheduled for Saturday, but Harris has indicated that there will be work for some of the athletes.

BSHS volleyball squad in Lubbock for practice tilts

The Big Spring High School girls volleyball team will be traveling to Lubbock tomorrow to meet with various other teams in a day of practice matches to prepare for next week's season opener with Andrews.

The volleyball team, under the direction of Patti Purser, have been working out twice-a-day during the past two weeks, and the new Steer girls coach is happy thus far with the response of the athletes involved.

School has not started, so Purser is expecting even a few more girls to join the program next Monday.

Presently, 38 girls have been going through the strenuous workouts. They will be divided into a varsity, junior varsity and freshmen squad when the regular season activities get underway.

Although the list is somewhat tentative on all levels, the varsity team now appears to have seniors Dee Earhart, Bea Magers, Shawn Koger, Holly Peurifoy and Mary Ann Paredes, with juniors Pam Caudill, Sissy Doss, Dawn Estes, Janie Phillips, Sandy Puga, Elise Wheat and sophomore Shell Rutledge.

The present junior varsity, list has Amy Ragan, Leslie Overman, Melody Choate, Melissa Blessingame, Lisa Myers, Stacey Bott, Sharon McAllister, Laura Baum, Monette Wise and Tracey Williams.

The current Freshmen-C team consists of Debbie Donelson, Linda Eddington, Sherry Graham, Tina Hillyer, Vickie Halfman, Celeste Jones, Deborah Lewis, Monica Lewis, Denise Minter, Jana Matthews, Natalie Ryan, Paula Spiers, Sandra Tercero, Beverly Tubb, and Tammy Yancey.

District 5-A-A-A-A action is not too far away, as the Steer girls will travel to Abilene on September 6.

Area gridders set for early scrimmages

With the start of the high school football season only two weeks away, many area teams will get their first real test against outside competition tonight in controlled scrimmages.

The Coahoma Bulldogs will travel to play Ozona this evening, with a scrimmage next week set against Alpine.

Area teams Klondike and Forsan will meet on the Cougars home turf tonight. Klondike is a Class A powerhouse with pre-season state ranking, while Forsan competes in Class AA.

Class AA Stanton travelled last night to face Colorado City, which competes in Class AAA. No results of the scrimmage were available at press time.

In Garden City, the Bearkats will host Robert Lee in a scrimmage. Both of the teams are District 3-A foes, but compete in different zones.

The Big Spring Steers, due to UIL ruling on Class AAAAA schools, puts on their pads for an intra-squad scrimmage this afternoon. The Steers first action against outside competition will be next week when they visit the Lamesa Golden Tors for a scrimmage tilt.

Selective Drive Tourney Sunday

The Big Spring Golf Association will have a Selective Drive Tournament on Sunday beginning at 1:30 p.m.

This will be the next to last tournament of the season for the association. People are reminded that they must be in at least four tournaments in order to be eligible for the Grand Tournament.

Entry deadline is 1:00 p.m. Gift certificates will be awarded to the winning team, with a five dollar per person entry fee.

Fifth and sixth grade football sign-up today

The Pee-Wee League football program for youngsters in the fifth and sixth grades in Big Spring, Coahoma, Forsan and surrounding areas is having their annual sign-up this afternoon from five to eight o'clock.

The site of the registration for this age group is the Howard College SUB, and those youngsters wishing to play should bring either a parent or guardian, as well as a birth certificate.

The fifth and sixth grade league is hoping for a seven team field this year. Thus far, sponsors are Cosden, Elks Lodge, the Optimist Club and Tomco.

Clubs or civic organizations wishing to sponsor a team are reminded that the fee is 300 dollars. Those wishing to sponsor a group in the league should contact Leo Williams at 3-1084.

Wrestling returns here Monday

Southwest Championship Wrestling returns to Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on Monday, August 25, with the legendary Wahoo McDaniel the main attraction.

McDaniel, a former pro-football star, will meet Tully Blanchard for the Southwest heavyweight title, while there will also be a tag team match and two other individual wrestling matches.

Tickets will be on sale at the gate, and the action is slated to begin at 8:30 p.m.

Cowboys to see new Oiler look in tomorrow's bout

HOUSTON (AP) — The start of most Houston Oiler offensive drives last season was completely predictable — one or two runs by Earl Campbell and a bomb from Dan Pastorini to Ken Burrough on third down. No more.

Dorsett inks new pact

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Tony Dorsett now can turn his attention to Saturday's exhibition game against the Houston Oilers. The Dallas Cowboy running back has ended his contract dispute by signing a new multi-year pact.

Dorsett accepted the renegotiated contract Thursday afternoon, but details of the agreement were not released, said spokesman Greg Aiello.

What Dorsett said he wanted was a "lifetime contract." Demands included a higher base salary than the present $230,000 yearly the remaining two years of his original contract, plus a five-year extension at a salary competitive with the NFL's running back elite.

Whether the new contract — negotiated by Dorsett's original agent Mike Trope — met those demands was unclear, Aiello said.

"You'll have to ask him (Dorsett) that. But I doubt he would have signed if he hadn't been pleased with what he got," Aiello said.

Dorsett had threatened to walk out of training camp if his demands were not met on the advice of his Pittsburg attorney Steve Sokol, pressing for renegotiation of Dorsett's original contract.

"Then on Tuesday, Trope showed up and signed an agreement to represent Tony in this thing (contract negotiations)," Aiello said.

"He (Trope) renegotiated the contract with Gil Brandt (Cowboys vice president), and apparently Tony liked it and signed it."

reputation as an equal opportunity passer — he used 13 receivers in Houston's National Football League preseason opener against Tampa Bay.

The acquisition of Stabler and a desire by Oiler Coach Bum Phillips to lighten Campbell's load has brought on some changes in the Oiler offense, as the Dallas Cowboys will note in Saturday's NFL exhibition game in Texas Stadium.

Campbell, who caught only 16 passes last season, already has six receptions in two exhibition games this season. It's no accident, according to Oiler backs coach Andy Bourgeois.

"We'll try to get him the ball in the air more," Bourgeois said. "Can you imagine him catching the ball all alone on an outlet pass? I wonder which 180-pound cornerbacks will want to tackle him."

One example came in Sunday's 20-17 victory over New Orleans in the AstroDome. Campbell went to his left near the sideline, where he met and upended Saints defensive back Ricky Ray.

Stabler completed 18 of 28 passes against the Saints and threw completions to eight receivers, which obviously makes him popular with the receiving corps.

"Last year, I played in all 16 games and ended up with just 18 receptions," said tight end Rich Caster, who caught two touchdowns passes against the Saints. "It was a little frustrating and disheartening."

"Last year, people thought (Dan) Pastorini tried to work too much to Kenny Burrough Stabler throws to whoever is open. He doesn't sit back there and wait like Dan did last year."

The Oilers break camp at San Angelo's Angelo State University today and return home. Following Saturday's game against the Cowboys, the Oilers will close out exhibition play in the AstroDome next Thursday against Buffalo.

I asked her if she understood what a drought was. She said, "That's the period between dry spells when it doesn't rain."

Astros beat Pirates again

HOUSTON (AP) — Pitching and defense have been the Houston Astros watchwords this season, and the team has been plagued with inconsistent hitting much of the season.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, on the other hand, have rarely been at a loss for offense.

A rare reversal of roles took place Thursday night as the Astros erupted for a season high 18 hits for a 12-5 victory and a sweep of the three-game series matching the leaders of the National League divisions.

"It was just a case of beating Pittsburgh at its own game," said Astros outfielder Terry Puhl, who went 4-for-5 with two RBI and four runs.

"They can swing the bats, so it's nice when you can go out and score 12 runs against them."

"We've been hitting better since about Sunday," said Astros manager Bill Virdon.

"I wish I knew the answer, I could solve it all," Virdon said.

Houston was able to raise its National League West lead to one and a half games over idle Cincinnati, although Los Angeles defeated Montreal, 5-4, to stay two games back.

The situation presented Astros relief ace Joe Sambito with unfamiliar circumstances. Sambito, who retired all 10 batters he faced in collecting his eighth win in 11 decisions, is not used to pitching with a seven-run lead.

Orioles gain on Yankees

If the New York Yankees aren't hearing footsteps behind them, they certainly must be aware of the flapping of Oriole wings in the immediate vicinity of first place.

Playing more like the Bad News Bears, the Yankees handed Seattle four unearned runs in the first inning, then failed to score after loading the bases with none out in the ninth and dropped a 6-4 decision to the lowly Mariners.

Meanwhile, the high-flying Baltimore Orioles trounced California 7-1, giving them 11 consecutive regular-season victories over the Angels — 8-0 this year — plus a 3-1 edge in the 1979 AL playoffs.

New York's lead — on July 19 it was 9½ over Milwaukee, 10 over Baltimore — is down to a scant 1½ games for the first time since May 21 and George Steinbrenner's blood pressure must be boiling over.

In other action, the Cleveland Indians nipped the Kansas City Royals 4-3 — George Brett homered in four at-bats and is hitting .404 — the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2 on Jack Morris' one-hitter after the Twins took the doubleheader opener 5-3, the Boston Red Sox downed the Oakland A's 5-1 and the Chicago White Sox defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3. Milwaukee and Texas were not scheduled.

Seattle's Bruce Bochte, who singled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth inning — Julio Cruz homered in the seventh for an insurance run — helped settle reliever Shane Rawley down after the Yankees loaded the bases in the ninth on a walk and two singles, one a bunt.

Rawley then struck out Eric Soderholm and Aurelio Rodriguez and retired Bucky Dent on a fly ball.

Orioles 7, Angels 1
Rich Dauer collected four hits, including a pair of doubles, and John Lowenstein added a home run while Scott McGregor pitched a tidy seven-inning for his 15th victory and the Orioles' fifth consecutive triumph.

California scored first on a double by Dan Ford and Don Baylor's single in the fourth inning but Dauer erased that lead with a two-run double in the fifth. Al Bumbry's sacrifice fly made it 3-1, Lowenstein homered in the sixth and the Orioles tacked on three more runs in the seventh, two on a double by Rick Dempsey.

The Angels, who have lost six in a row, get a crack at the fading Yankees this weekend while the Orioles are in Oakland.

"Maybe the Angels can knock off the Yankees," said Dauer. "We won six of eight from New York to close the gap, but now we need some help. When we do catch them in the loss column, I think our pitching staff will carry us right past them."

GOOD NATURED ADVICE — Lee Trevino slaps Jack Nicklaus on the arm and laughs as Nicklaus studies a putt on the fifth hole of the first round of the World Series of Golf in Akron, Ohio, Thursday. Trevino's shot had nearly matched Nicklaus', with Trevino facing much the same putt for a birdie. Neither man made his birdie on the hole, however.

Watson's 65 good for first round lead in World Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Golf's $8 million threesome played like it.

Tom Watson, Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, going head to head for the first time in their careers, combined for one eagle, 12 birdies and a best-ball score of 11-under-par 59 Thursday in the first round of the $421,900 World Series of Golf.

"We inspire each other," said Watson. His six-birdie 65, five under par over Firestone South's muddy, soggy 7,713 yards, gave him a 2-shot lead.

Larry Nelson, Craig Stadler and Ben Crenshaw were second with 67s. Nicklaus was among four players at 68. Trevino matched three others at 69.

"My round was a lot better than theirs, guys," Trevino told the media afterward. "If they had to play the ball from where I did, I don't know if they could have shot my score."

Nicklaus, the sport's all-time money champion with nearly $3.6 million, said, "I enjoyed it. We had a good day. We all got it under par, which are good scores here."

Trevino ranks second on the all-time money list with $2.39 million and Watson is third with $2 million.

The select international field of 32 complained of the playing conditions under which they were forced to hit mud-covered balls from the soft fairways.

More of the same was in store today after an electrical storm, accompanied by heavy rain and 50 mph winds, raked the course moments after the "Big Three" finished.

Defending champion Lon Hinkle, one of the sport's long hitters, said he was at a disadvantage in the conditions.

"Every time I was in the fairway, I had a quarter-to-a-half-inch of mud on my ball. The harder you hit your irons, the more spin the ball has and the more off line it goes with the mud. I was hitting the ball everywhere."

"I had better luck out of the rough than the fairway," said Hinkle, tied at 68 with Mike Reid, Hale Irwin and Nicklaus.

Watson took a big step toward the $100,000 first prize that would push his earnings for the year past an unprecedented $510,000. His second Series victory would all but lock up the PGA Player of the Year Award, the money title and the Vardon Trophy for low stroke average for a record fourth straight season.

Hirata's best previous finish was at Orlando, Fla., last April, when she tied for seventh after having her best prior score, a 71, in the opening round.

"I made a lot of long putts — I only had 27 putts altogether — and that helps," said Hirata, who has won just $11,348 on the tour this season. She sank a 60-foot birdie putt on the 207-yard seventh hole and dropped two other birdie putts in the 20-foot range.

Bradley's steady round featured four birdies and the rest pars.

Hiratti stunned with LPGA lead

DENVER (AP) — Tour newcomer Gail Hirata was stunned. Her 4-under-par 68 was the best competitive round of her brief pro career, and it put her in a three-way tie for the lead.

"Right now I'm kind of numb," admitted Hirata, after joining veterans Pat Bradley and Mary Dwyer for a 2-stroke lead over the field in Thursday's opening round of the 72-hole, $150,000 Denver PGA tournament at Columbine Country Club.

"I had a difficult chip shot off a mound at 18, and I was really shaking at that point," said the 24-year-old Los Angeles native who joined the tour late last season. "That was a critical shot I wanted so badly to save a good round."

After backing off the shot to allow a sudden gust of wind to subside, Hirata knocked the ball just two feet from the cup to salvage par.

"I'm very anxious to go out and play again tomorrow (Friday)," she said. "I know I can shoot a 68, and I want to try it again."

"It might be a little hard to sleep tonight. I've never been in the lead before."

NL Roundup

Dodgers 5, Expos 4

Steve Garvey's fourth hit of the game, a solo homer leading off the 10th, led Los Angeles over Montreal. Garvey, who had stroked three straight singles, belted the first pitch in the 10th from reliever Stan Bahnsen, 7-5, for his 22nd homer.

Steve Howe, 6-5, the third Dodger reliever, allowed one hit over three innings to earn the victory.

Phillies 9, Padres 8

Bake McBride's second triple of the game drove in the tie-breaking run in the 17th inning as Philadelphia defeated San Diego despite 91-3 strong innings of relief pitching from the Padres' Dennis Kinney.

Mike Schmidt singled with one out in the 17th and McBride followed with his game-winning hit, a drive to the right-center field fence at Veterans Stadium.

Kinney, who had never pitched more than 41-3 innings in his brief major league tenure covering 39 appearances, lost his fifth game in nine decisions. Kevin Saucier, 6-3, was the winner.

Braves 6, Cubs 4

Dale Murphy drove in four runs, including three with his 21st homer of the season, as Atlanta defeated Chicago. Murphy put the Braves ahead with a run-scoring grounder in the second inning and sent a drive over the left field fence at Atlanta Stadium with two men on base in the fourth, leading the Braves to their fourth straight victory and 11th in 14 games.

Phil Niekro, 11-14, picked up his second triumph in three days, having won in relief for the first time this season in the series opener Tuesday. Niekro struck out four before leaving the game in the sixth, pulling him into a tie with Tim Lincecum for 14th place on the all-time major league list with 2,538 strikeouts.

Mets 5, Giants 1

Jerry Morales's two-run double keyed a four-run rally in the fifth as New York broke a seven-game losing streak by beating San Francisco. Left-hander Vida Blue, 11-7, was the victim of the Mets' rally.

Lee Mazzilli singled home the first run of the inning before Morales' key hit. Claudell Washington drove in the final run of the inning with a single that chased Blue.

Chargers early choice in rugged AFC West

By the Associated Press

The American Football Conference's West Division had a new champion in 1979, and the title could be the first of many for the pass-crazy San Diego Chargers.

The division, however, is anything but San Diego's for the taking. Denver would appear much improved with the acquisition of quarterback Matt Robinson, and the surging Seattle Seahawks could finally make it to the top.

The Oakland Raiders might make a run at the title they owned for so long if newly arrived quarterback Dan Pastorini has a good season. Kansas City, also improving, was last in the AFC West in 1979, but had a 7-9 record and can't completely be counted out of the race.

The Chargers' potent air attack, with Dan Fouts emerging as one of the finest passers in the NFL, and a good defense took them to a 12-4 record last season. In the playoffs, however, San Diego stumbled and lost a 17-14 decision to Houston.

Fouts made the Chargers the league's top passing team, as he broke Joe Namath's NFL passing yardage mark by throwing for 4,082 yards. Fouts completed 332 of 530 attempts and hit 24 touchdown passes.

Veteran Charlie Joiner

and third-year man John Jefferson give Fouts a pair of extremely gifted receivers.

Defensively, San Diego has three outstanding tackles in Wilbur Young, Louis Kelcher and Gary Johnson. Young played well after replacing the injured Kelcher last year. Cornerback is also a Charger strong suit, with Mike Williams and Willie Buchanan.

San Diego's weak spot again figures to be its rushing game, a category in which the Chargers finished next-to-last in the league in 1979. Newcomer John Cappelletti, a fullback acquired from the Los Angeles Rams, could help the ground attack, however.

At Denver, 10-6 last year, they're hoping Robinson can add spark to the team's plodding offense. Robinson, previously Richard Todd's backup with the New York Jets, will have Rick Upchurch and Haven Moses to throw to, as well as talented tight end Riley Odoms.

Defensively, the Broncos feature one of the league's best linebacking corps — Randy Gradishar, Tom Jackson, Joe Rizzo and Bob Swenson. All-Pro cornerback Louis Wright is the best of a good group in the secondary, which includes former Big Spring great Charlie West.

Seattle, which won five of its last six games to finish 9-7 in 1979, resembles San Diego in its ability to generate offensive fireworks. But, unlike the Chargers, the Seahawks don't have a proven defense to go with it.

Quarterback Jim Zorn, coming off his best season, will again give defenses fits with his scrambling in the Seahawks' imaginative offense. He threw for 3,661 yards and 20 touchdowns last year.

The Raiders, playing what could be their last season in Oakland before a possible move to Los Angeles, won't have quarterback Ken Stabler performing his late-game heroics this season, but they will have one of the NFL's better long passers, Pastorini, who came in the one-for-one trade that sent Stabler to Houston.

Kansas City has been a changing team under Coach Mary Levy, and the change has been for the better. The Chiefs' defense was particularly effective last season and figures to be just as good this time around.

The Chiefs' passing attack should improve with the maturation of Steve Fuller at quarterback.

Kansas City returns one of the top punt returns in the NFL in Big Spring native John Thomas Smith, who doubles as a wide receiver.

Colts 1-2 punch together again

BALTIMORE (AP) — The "internal problem" between Baltimore Colts Coach Mike McCormack and wide receiver Roger Carr appears to have been resolved.

And that could mean a stronger Colts offense when they meet the New York Giants in a National Football League exhibition game tonight.

Also boosting the Baltimore offense is the presence of a healthy Bert Jones, who has been sidelined for most of the last two seasons because of a shoulder injury. Carr was Jones' favorite target as the Colts won the AFC East for three consecutive years before fading last season.

Jones and Carr, who has also been sidelined by injuries, have both looked strong in recent practices.

The Giants-Colts game starts a full weekend of exhibition games, including 12 Saturday night.

The Green Bay Packers are at the Buffalo Bulls, New York Jets at Pittsburgh Steelers, Cincinnati Bengals at Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Cleveland Browns at Chicago Bears, Kansas City Chiefs at St. Louis Cardinals and Oakland Raiders at Washington Redskins.

Also, the Minnesota Vikings play at the Miami Dolphins, the New Orleans Saints at Detroit Lions, the Atlanta Falcons at San Diego Chargers, the Houston Oilers at Dallas Cowboys, the Los Angeles Rams at the Denver Broncos and the Seattle Seahawks at the San Francisco 49ers.

Houston explodes

Niekro and reliever Bert Roberts.

Houston scored four runs in the third to take the lead for good. Cesar Cedeno belting a two-run double to make it 4-2, and Danny Heep and Alan Ashby following with run-scoring hits.

The teams traded two runs each in the fourth, and Pittsburgh trimmed the Astros lead to three with a fifth inning run. A four-run Astros spurge in the sixth put the game out of reach.

In the sixth, Cedeno had another RBI double. Heep hit a sacrifice fly and Ashby got a run scoring single and crossed the plate when his hit got past center fielder Omar Moreno for a three base error.

Mom bans car dates

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Jennifer, 13, from Springfield, Ohio, isn't allowed to go driving in a car with her boyfriend, and she is afraid of losing him. She asks for advice from our teen guest writers. Larry McWilliams, 15, from deep in the heart of Dixie, Gadsden, Ala., and Betsy Rochelle, 14, who lives in sunny Santa Ana, Calif., will do the honors.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 and my boyfriend is 16. In a few weeks he will have his driver's license but my mother will not allow me to ride in the car with him driving.

I'm afraid to tell my boyfriend about my predicament because I know that he will break up with me. Please tell me what to do. I'd also appreciate hearing from the teen writers.

Just to make things worse, my girlfriend really likes my boyfriend and she told me that her mother will allow her to ride in his car when he is driving. — Jennifer, Springfield, Ohio

Jennifer: Most 16-year-old boys don't have the freedom or the finances to wheel around in a car anytime they want. The request by your mother is reasonable so your best bet is to tell your boyfriend that you will not be allowed to ride in a car when he is the driver.

If he chooses to take your girlfriend riding, show no emotion. If he is that fickle, you would not be losing much anyway.

But, I'll wager that he will not break up with you.

P.S. I think your girlfriend wouldn't be allowed to ride in this boy's car either. I think she is a wee bit envious. — Dr. Wallace

Hello Jennifer: Obey your parents.

If this boy drops you because you are not permitted to ride in his car then you did not lose much.

Let's face it. Most 16-year-old guys who are driving for the first time show off behind the wheel. They want people to notice them and they will speed or drive recklessly to gain attention. It could be that he will be a courteous, safe driver, but wait and see.

If you care for your girlfriend, please show her my answer. — Larry, Gadsden, Ala.

Hi Jennifer: I'm in the same boat that you are in. My boyfriend, 18, has a van and my parents will not allow me to ride in it.

We overcome it by spending a lot of time at my house. My parents allow him to visit me on Friday and Saturday nights.

Be creative and you won't lose him. (When you invite him over to your house, don't forget to feed him Mom's finest.)

Oh, yes, I forgot, tell him the truth and use it to your advantage. Tell him now that he is driving, he can see more of you! — Betsy, Santa Ana, Calif.

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me, in care of this newspaper, stating your sex and age.

Try classics with a twist

Forget fads this fall

NEW YORK, N.Y. — With the recent concern over the economy, it's no surprise that teen girls are investing in classic, longer-lasting fashions rather than fads for the fall.

Traditional plaid kilts, blazers, cardigans and loafers soon will be heading back to school. But there's nothing traditional about the way these classic pieces can be put together, says the August issue of Seventeen Magazine.

Take plaid kilts, for instance. For the traditional Ivy League look, you can team the kilt with a school-girl blazer and oxford shirt. But for a new twist, try topping the kilt with a chambray western shirt and bolo tie, overlaid with a denim jacket and (surprise!) a bright red quilted down vest on top of that. Add a cowboy belt, thick socks and the new shorter cowboy boots, and you have a very untraditional, outdoorsy outfit.

Classic menswear, too, can be given an entirely new look all your own. Start with tweedy pleated trousers and a trench coat, then add a very pretty patterned sweater or vest over a soft bow-tied shirt. You get a dash of dapper menswear with a feminine accent. Or wear a pretty ruffle-yoked blouse under a corduroy blazer for the same effect.

Don't be shy about mixing patterns, either. A checked blouse or one of the new patterned sweaters can go with a plaid skirt if the pieces are tied together with a color.

Here's another classic twist: Take a bright red Shetland cardigan, turn it around so it buttons up the back, and wear it with black velvet knickers. Or button the cardigan up the front and top it with a sweater vest. You can even wear it like a shirt, buttoned up, tucked into a plaid circle skirt and topped with a tweed blazer.

Shoes and accessories can brighten up a traditional wardrobe, too. Penny loafers, oxfords and other classic shoes are turning up in navy blue, fire engine red and creamy buff tones. Cowboy boots and hiking boots are being worn with skirts and dresses, as well as pants. Argyle knee socks come alive, streaked with bright reds, blues and rusts. And soft plaid wool scarves tied around the neck are great as untraditional accents.

The beauty of classics is that they stay in style year after year. Changing your look becomes a matter of putting your classic pieces together with imagination and taste, or adding a few inexpensive accessories. A smart investment — and a smart way of dressing!

TAKE A CLASSIC KILT, swap the tops, and just watch your options multiply, suggests August's Seventeen Magazine. Here's a very unclassic put-together: With your plaid kilt, layer on a chambray western shirt, a denim jacket, and a bright red blaze of a vest. Then add on some western props: bolo tie, cowboy belt, and dude boots.

Immunizations important!

Protect your child

COLLEGE STATION — Children's immunizations are important, and now's the time for "all good parents" to review their records and update their children's protection from diseases, says a health education specialist.

Immunizations are "tedious business" to many people, but they don't have to be — especially if you know what's needed and keep updated records, Mary Ann Shirer stresses.

Dr. Shirer is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

First, know what your children should be protected against, and then be sure to keep immunization records in a safe, organized file — make photocopies before sending the record to school or to a child-care facility, the specialist advises.

Here's what children need to enter first grade or kindergarten:

- at least three doses of diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis — (DPT) — with one dose received after the fourth birthday
- or tetanus-diphtheria (TD) vaccines — with one dose received after the fourth birthday
- three doses of polio vaccine (one dose must be received after the fourth birthday)
- one dose of measles vaccine (must be received after the first birthday)
- one dose of mumps vaccine
- one dose of rubella vaccine

Remember, all public school children in Texas must show a validated record of their immunizations upon entering school.

Last year, mumps immunization was required for first graders only, but each year the grade requirement will increase.

Here's how that will work: For the 1980-81 school year, all first and second graders must have mumps immunization.

For the 1981-82 year, all first, second and third graders must have mumps immunization.

This age progression in requirements for mumps immunization will continue through the next 11 years, so that, finally, mumps immunization will be required of all students grades one through 12.

However, remember, once a child age 15 months or over has received the mumps vaccine, he is thought to be immunized for life — so just the one dose of mumps vaccine is required in most cases.

Also, measles immunization will eventually be required for all public school students in Texas, grades one through 12.

For the 1979-80 school year, measles immunization was required for children in grades one through six.

This year, grade seven will be added to the requirement, and each year another grade will be added until the progressions reach grade 12.

Rubella immunization is required for students up to their 12th birthday.

Property between 16th and 17th Streets on Lancaster has already been purchased and paid for on which to construct Canterbury II, which is expected to be about ten stories high and hopefully will be ready for occupancy within three years.

After a brief business meeting, the group adjourned to meet again on Sept. 15 at Howard College. Dr. Charles Hays, HC president, will speak.

World War I Barracks 1474 and its Auxiliary met in regular session, Wednesday at Kentwood Center. Separate business meetings were held.

There were 8 men in attendance, and a discussion on the monthly news bulletin was held concerning hospitalization of WWI Veterans.

In the Auxiliary meeting, Mrs. Mical reported on the VAVS meeting held at the Veterans Medical Center. The VAVS bus for the patients will soon be a reality and the Avenue of Flags should be completed by Nov.

Jim Janeway, chief of social Work Service, asked that memberships be checked for those who might want to take an ambulatory veteran into their homes, subject to approval by the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Orders from Department President Mrs. Betty Foss were read by the secretary.

The Auxiliary made plans for a garage sale on Sept. 13, at 1313 Settles. All members are urged to give of their time and merchandise for the sale. Twenty-eight ladies were present.

DAY AND NIGHT DESIGNS — New hat fashions for fall go around the clock. For cold weather, Frank Olive offers a version of the Bolivian Indian bowler hat, top left, with a felt crown and ear flaps and a hand crocheted, rolled brim. Albrizo has styled, for a sleek evening look, a forward thrust cap of black satin, top right, with bow and feather trim at the back. Irene of New York has designed a tailored velour derby, bottom left. Frank Olive offers after dark fashion excitement with a pouff of wispy maribou feathers, bottom right.

New officers are elected for Genealogical Society

The Genealogical Society of Big Spring met Aug. 14 in the Howard County Library, with Mrs. Sue Ann Damron, president, presiding.

During the business session, Mrs. Damron told about her trip in July to Fredericksburg, Va. where she saw some stone etchings.

Other officers for the coming year are Albert B. Watkins, president; Mamie J. Roberts, vice president;

Margaret Barnett, treasurer; Kaye Wylie, secretary; Helen Early, editor; Beth Kay, reporter; and Mrs. Damron, librarian.

Installation of these officers was conducted by Stella Arnold. The members discussed having a membership drive and combined the idea with the probability of getting members at a booth at the Howard County Fair. They will share it with the Daughters of the American Revolution Chapter of Big Spring, sponsored by Richard Atkins.

The dates of the fair are Sept. 15-20. The discussion for the theme and decorations for the booth were in detail and assignments made to various members.

A meeting to finalize the responsibilities and the work will be held.

The librarian reported several new books added to the library since the July meeting including "Naturalization of Foreign Protestants," by Guiseppi; "Passengers to America," by Tepper; "U.S. 1820 Census of Alabama," and "Pioneers and Cavaliers, Vol. II," by Hugent.

Other research information included "Strickland Research Inc., Riverside, Ga.; "Peoria County's History, 1880," reprinted by Peoria Genealogical Society, 1980; and lists of books on marriages, obituaries, etc., and other books and their prices from Cecil McDonald, Seattle, Wash.

DAR members meet at Alexander home

The Captain Elisha Mack Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met in the home of Mrs. Jack Alexander on Tuesday, 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. C.G. Barnett, regent, presided. The budget for the coming year was worked out and accepted.

The yearbooks will be distributed at the next meeting which will be held at the Howard County Fair in September to be sponsored by the Big Spring Hardware Company.

Former state GOP exec amid hot political suit

By LAURA BERNSTEIN
States News Service
WASHINGTON — With little more than two months to go before the Presidential election, Texas Brad O'Leary now finds himself in the middle of one of the hottest political controversies in the nation's capital.

O'Leary, the 44-year-old former Texas Republican Party executive director who raised money for Sen. John Tower's last two campaigns, is vice chairman of an organization called Americans for Change and the outcome of two lawsuits his group is involved in could change the way Presidential campaigns are financed for years to come.

Americans for Change is one of about 10 committees, some with vague-sounding names, that have registered with the Federal Election Commission as independent SPS groups hoping to raise money to support the candidacy of Republican Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

O'Leary, a stocky, intense man who grew up in Austin, says his group is the largest, and has raised about $250,000 since mid-July — and expects to gather up to $25 million before the November election.

Both Reagan and President Carter have received $29.4 million in federal funds to run their campaigns, but O'Leary hopes to provide Reagan with an extra financial punch.

It's all legal, O'Leary claims, since Americans for Change hasn't formally or informally communicated with the Reagan committee.

But the problem is that the Carter-Mondale committee and Common Cause don't think it's legal. They've filed suits in Washington challenging the committees' right to raise campaign money.

"If the existence of these independent expenditure groups is upheld," says Carter-Mondale committee counsel Tim Smith, "there will be a big disadvantage."

Those words don't bother O'Leary, who is quick to admit 95 percent of the money will be spent on Reagan — a campaign brochures, media and radio spots. He adds that he is "more than confident" his group will win the suits.

"If we don't win the suits," he says, "I might wonder if we can exist as a Republic. That's what I think might be at stake here."

The Reagan campaign, meanwhile, denies it has anything at all to do with Americans for Change.

"We know nothing at all of these committees except what we read in the paper," says Joe Holmes, national communications director for Reagan-Bush. "And we don't even keep a file on it."

The Carter campaign has charged in its suit that there has, in fact, been communication between the independent Reagan groups and the authorized campaign. The Carter suit asked that all or part of Reagan's $29.4 million in federal funds be denied because of the groups' activities on Reagan's behalf.

The Carter campaign has also tried to gain some political points out of the matter, claiming it hasn't encouraged independent committees because it supports public financing and spending limits.

But that doesn't matter either, says O'Leary, who raised $3.7 million in 1972 and then $6.5 million in 1978 on Tower's behalf.

Asked if he thinks the committees are questionable, if not illegal, O'Leary replied abruptly. "You have suspicious brought on by lies of the past administration and by this administration."

To raise the money, Americans for Change plans fundraising parties in at least 175 cities. Many of those parties, O'Leary says, will be in Texas where money for Reagan is expected to be plentiful.

He says he hopes Texans interested in Reagan — conservative businessmen, mostly — will chip in about $1.5 million for the cause. Already, more than $175,000 has come from Texas, he says.

For 1974, Congress made available the federal funding partly in response to charges that ambassadors could be bought for large contributions.

But O'Leary says he "can't believe that a man who is capable of making $100,000 contributions can have influence beyond what he should have. I cannot believe that a person wanting to contribute $100 should be denied their rights."

Apartment owner sued

A mother is suing the owner of Sandra Gail Apartments for not installing a safety rail that the mother says caused her three-year-old daughter to fall from the top of a stairway — the concrete one story below.

Donna Jean Bedford did not specify damage amounts in the suit filed Wednesday in 118th District Court implicating Randall Merrill going business as Sandra Gail Apartments.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Bedford and her daughter, Linda Jean, were leaving the apartment of Donald Bedford, her husband, on May 17. As the girl started down the stairs she fell.

Reports of impending doom are unfounded, Braniff head explains

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — When it comes to Braniff Airways' financial straits, says Harding Lawrence, don't believe everything you read.

The airline's chief executive officer spent an entire workday closed with reporters at Braniff's world headquarters here Wednesday, trying to "clear the air" of reports the company is on the verge of collapse.

"Braniff is not in financial trouble," Lawrence said emphatically. "We're not wrapping ourselves in glory but we are doing all the right things to adjust to the economic environment."

In the past few months, Braniff's financial maneuvers have come under close scrutiny by the financial community, including local business reporters.

"I read them and I cringe," Lawrence said of the reports.

The company recently sold 15 of its Boeing 727 jetliners, a move interpreted as a desperate effort to acquire cash.

Braniff also delayed taking delivery on a Boeing 747 Jumbo jet it ordered, closed three domestic stations since the year began and reported a loss of nearly $48 million in the second quarter of this year.

Lawrence told the gathered reporters, in a session he admitted was "unusual," that all the company's maneuvers were planned well in advance and were management responses to changing economic conditions.

He said selling the airplanes — "There's an implication we were selling the

'Sweetheart arrangement'

Beer overcharging 'secret'

WASHINGTON — An agreement by the Army and Air Force not to tell the Navy and Marines about beer overcharging in the military exchange system is only a small part of the abuses and mismanagement in the system, according to congressional watchdogs.

The House Armed Services subcommittee in charge of the exchanges reported that the Army and Air Force Exchange System failed for more than a year to notify the other services about overpricing of beer sold to AAFES by the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company.

"This type of sweetheart arrangement does not serve well the interests of our service personnel or the American taxpayers," said Rep. Dan Daniel, D-Va., chairman of the subcommittee. "This, along with other more serious infractions, have come to light in recent weeks."

According to the subcommittee, AAFES became curious about possible overcharging by Schlitz in the spring of 1979 and later proved the combined exchange service was owed $200,000 under the contract with the beer firm.

Following lengthy negotiations, the two sides signed an agreement for repayment Nov. 29, 1979. (As of the end of July 1980), Schlitz still owed $16,000 on the deal.

But part of that agreement provided that neither AAFES or Schlitz would notify the Navy or Marine Corps of the situation. The subcommittee said "AAFES relied upon Schlitz to tell the other exchanges and Schlitz failed to do so for reasons not clear at this time."

The senior management of the Navy and Marine exchanges were not "fully informed" of the overcharging until last month, the panel said.

Daniel said the subcommittee will be investigating the case, adding still another matter to the list of federal investigations focused on military exchanges.

Foremost among the investigations is two and one-half month old probe of the Navy Exchange system, a group of 149 tax-subsidized stores worldwide for sailors and their families.

Subcommittee spokesmen declined comment on the investigation, but a series of articles in the Los Angeles Times last December reported that "wrongdoing," theft, kickbacks and mismanagement in the exchanges had cost more than $100 million in the last decade.
