labor movement community. The President had attended a rally in Tusculum, Ala. earlier Monday which kicked off his 1980 campaign.

Mexico surpasses 1982 production goals for oil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico has increased its proven oil reserves from 50 to 60 billion barrels and has already reached production goals set for 1982, President Jose Lopez Portillo said in his annual state-of-the-nation message.

In a national radio and television speech Monday, the Mexican president also said potential oil reserves have gone from an estimated 200 billion to 250 billion barrels. The reserves, he said, give Mexico a production margin of more than 80 years at the current rate of 2.3 million barrels a day.

"Mexico's oil is ours and for our development," Lopez Portillo said, indicating that the government will only boost daily production at its own discretion, and not because of pressure from other nations.

"Oil itself is not the final objective of the efforts of this regime," he added. "Oil opens before us the road to authentic development balanced with financial self-determination."

The message dealt mostly with Lopez Portillo's efforts to use oil income as a boost to the nation's economy.

In other matters, Lopez Portillo said foreign relations with the United States have grown closer during the past year, but warned that Mexico still wants to maintain as much autonomy as possible.

Since his meeting with President Carter last year, he said, U.S.-Mexican relations reside within the "natural and logical framework of neighborly relations that we both want to keep on a mutually useful, easy and cordial basis," he said.

"There is nothing that cannot be resolved on the basis of mutual respect for our rights," Lopez Portillo said. "We want to stand on our two feet in our proper place in the world and not be given a backseat in a sphere of influence."

The only problem Lopez Portillo mentioned specifically was the detention by the Mexican navy in early July of seven American tuna fishing boats caught fishing within the 200-mile maritime zone claimed by Mexico.

Showers heaviest northeast of town

The showers which visited the area Monday night apparently were heaviest about 20 miles northeast of town, where over two inches of moisture fell in an isolated area.

The fall in Big Spring ranged from a mere sprinkle in the east part of town to 4 of an inch near downtown.

In Elbow, located six miles northwest of the city, the rain measured .35 of an inch.

Polish coal miners still out

Government accepts demands

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist government announced today it had accepted all demands of striking Silesian coal miners and was ready to sign an agreement. But a government source later indicated talks were still under way, without giving any explanation for the apparent snag.

Warsaw Radio reported at mid-day that a government commission led by Deputy Premier Aleksander Kopec had reached agreement in talks with representatives of workers from 10 mines in the Katowice area of Upper Silesia.

But a Westerner traveling in the area said he was told by worker leaders that 17 mines were on strike and as many as 50,000 miners were involved.

"The government commission is comprehensively examining the joint terms of reference for an agreement worked out earlier," the radio reported. "The demands put forward by the workers are acceptable in their entirety. A government commission is ready to sign an agreement with the inter-factory strike committee."

But two hours later, a spokesman for the government information service Interpress said the talks might continue "for hours." He did not elaborate.

Late Monday, the official Polish news agency PAP reported that a tentative agreement had been reached between the government and miners from nine pits. But this morning Warsaw Radio said the strikes were continuing in 10 mines and that Kopec had been sent to join the government negotiating team.

Sources said the miners were holding out for written guarantees of their right to form independent trade unions, go on strike and obtain other benefits granted workers on the Baltic seacoast last weekend.

The miners also were pressing for unspecified safety guarantees and changes in shift schedules, the sources said.

The Warsaw Radio's morning statement was made a few hours after the news agency reported eight miners killed and 18 injured in an accident at a mine near the Upper Silesian city of Katowice. The agency said a string of loaded coal wagons ran out of control in an underground shaft, "devastating the place where the miners were working." The mine was not among those that had been struck.

Mining accidents in the pits of Upper Silesia took 62 lives in the last three months of 1979.

To end the 18-day-old strike that idled some 600,000 workers in more than 20 cities, Communist Party chief Edward Gierek's regime agreed to write a new labor law giving the workers the right to strike and the right to form free and independent trade unions separate from the official unions controlled by the party.

Iran considers Muskie's appeal

By the Associated Press

Mohammad Ali Rejai, Iran's new prime minister, is studying an appeal from Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie for the early, safe release of the 52 American hostages spending their 304th day in captivity today.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, said Rejai would discuss his response to Muskie's letter at his "next public interview." It gave no indication when the interview would be or what Rejai's answer might be.

State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said Muskie sent a letter to "Rejai on the occasion of the new prime minister's appointment... calling his attention to the hostage issue and urging the hostages' early and safe release."

Muskie's note was delivered Sunday afternoon by the Swiss Embassy in Tehran, which has represented the U.S. government in Iran since President Carter broke diplomatic relations with Iran on April 7.

The message appeared to be one of the opening moves in a series of new diplomatic initiatives seeking the release of the American captives. Muskie promised the new campaign in an interview three weeks ago.

A Kuwaiti newspaper reported last week that diplomats from an unnamed Arab country were trying to mediate the hostage dispute.

The Majlis, Iran's new Parliament, received a letter in July from about 200 U.S. congressmen appealing for a speedy end to the hostage crisis, and Tehran Radio said the draft of a reply was read to the Majlis Monday by a spokesman for the foreign relations committee.

The broadcast report said some of the legislators expressed their opinions, and the draft was returned to the committee for revision. The reports gave no inkling of what the draft said.

Tehran Radio also reported that President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Rajai, Majlis Speaker Hashem Rafsanjani and other leaders of the revolutionary regime met Monday night at Bani-Sadr's home to "discuss matters connected with the ministerial appointments and other major domestic issues."

Rajai on Sunday named a Cabinet of hard-liners, and Bani-Sadr was reported opposed to many of his choices. But the Majlis was expected to approve the lineup after a debate expected to start later this week.

Approval of the cabinet will be another step toward the Majlis debate on the fate of the hostages. But there is no indication when that might begin.

Meanwhile, in London, magistrates sentenced three Iranians convicted of offenses stemming from a violent anti-American demonstration outside the U.S. Embassy in the British capital last month.

One man convicted of assaulting a police officer was sentenced to three months in jail and the court recommended that he be deported. Two others were jailed for 14 days for obstructing police.

Student editor fined, ordered to jail over protest photos

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A judge fined student newspaper editor Mark McKinnon $100 and sentenced him to jail today until he turns over three envelopes of negatives taken Jan. 31 when Middle Eastern students allegedly disrupted a speech by a former Iranian official.

County Court-at-Law Jon Wisser said if McKinnon, a Denver, Colo., senior at the University of Texas, would relinquish the negatives, he would inspect them in private to determine if they were the ones named in a subpoena by the prosecution.

McKinnon, editor of the Daily Texan, refused, and Wisser announced the sentence.

However, he allowed McKinnon's attorney, Jim George, three hours to come up with an alternative.

George indicated the time would be used to prepare an immediate appeal to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

The issue of the negatives came up during the trial of 16 students who allegedly booed and heckled Fereydoon Hoveyda, former Iranian ambassador to the United Nations, at a campus speech.

Wisser said the $100 fine would stand even if McKinnon handed over the negatives. The judge held McKinnon in contempt Thursday but postponed the penalty until today.

"I'm in no great hurry to throw anyone in jail," said Wisser, "but at this juncture, I feel I have no alternative. Hopefully, the problem with Mr. McKinnon will resolve itself without coming to this."

He had scheduled closing arguments in the students' case for Tuesday night.

THANKS BUT NO THANKS — Thirteen-month-old Gabe Cowen doesn't seem to enjoy the efforts of his stepfather, April, to cool him at their home in Alexandria, Va., on Labor Day. There's just no pleasing some people, even with a cooling spray when the temperature is 99 degrees.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Words of comfort

Q. What are some appropriate things to say to family members at a funeral when you pass by them in a line that forms after the service at the gravesite? If you have attended out of respect for a family member and didn't even know the deceased, this is especially difficult. Any suggestions?

A. You'd be surprised to know how many times those questions are asked. Knowledgeable people say that you do not have to say anything, that your mere presence at a service indicates that you cared enough to attend. What people must overcome is the mistaken belief that the mourner prefers to be alone. They should understand that pain suffered in solitude is heavier to bear than pain which is shared. Just by being there the relative, friend or neighbor testifies to the reality of death as well as to the support of the living community. Profound words spoken at such times are often meaningless because they are not easily comprehended at the moment of the critical loss or a member of the family. Studies of the mourning show it is therapeutic to talk about the deceased. The visitor may want to briefly recall some valued memories of the person who has died. If you linger, encourage the mourner to tell you how he or she feels, rather than to prescribe how he should feel. If you approach such an obligation with the thought "...every man's death diminishes me" you'll do alright.

Tops on TV: Epic war drama

It's all repeats again on the small screen tonight. Some, however, may want to tune in again on the epic war drama, "Midway," airing at 8 o'clock on NBC. Part one tonight deals with the events that lead up to the air-naval battle during World War II between Japanese and Allied forces for control of Midway Island in the Pacific. This competes with the 1976 made-for-TV flick "Echoes Of A Summer." Airing at the same time on CBS, the movie stars Jodie Foster as a 12-year-old girl with an incurable heart disease.

Inside: Citywide diet

LOOKING TO IMPROVE YOUR sex life? Live longer? Feel better? Think clearer? Save money? C.B. "Lum" Ellis is trying to convert folks in Natchitoches, La., to the odd-tasting Pritikin diet with the claim that it does all those good things for you. But, as Gov. Edwin Edwards noted earlier this year, "A Cajun raised on gumbo and crawfish would just as soon die 10 years earlier as eat that stuff." See page 6-A.

WIDESPREAD INCREASES IN meat prices took a big bite of family grocery budgets last month, and sent supermarket bills soaring, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. See page 5-A.

Outside: Rain?

Partly cloudy with a chance of rain through Wednesday. No important change in temperatures. High today and Wednesday in the mid 90s, low tonight in the low 70s. Winds will be from the south at 15 to 20 today, southeast 5 to 10 mph tonight and southwesterly 10 to 15 mph Tuesday.

Tax rate increase due to gain green light at tonight's meet

The Big Spring City Council will meet in special session, 6:15 p.m. today, at the police department to consider the final step needed to raise the tax rate this year.

The council had planned to wait until its next regular meeting, Sept. 9, to consider the second and final reading of a resolution that would raise taxes by about 22 percent for the next fiscal year.

At the last meeting, however, City Manager Don Davis told members that he had received a request from Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector Zirah Bednar to speed the process.

"She (Bednar) said that the sooner we make a decision, the sooner she can set the roles and program the computers," said Davis.

The council then agreed to meet tonight to finalize the resolution. Since another meeting will be held at the same time in council chambers, the city fathers will gather at the Big Spring police station.

One other item of business will be dealt with during the meeting. Council members have been asked to pass a resolution on an emergency reading that will officially transfer former Webb AFB property to Howard College for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Property owners will pay less tax even if bond issue okayed

COAHOMA — Whether the school bond issue at Coahoma passes or not Oct. 11, property owners will be paying less tax than they did last year.

Increased valuations on the tax rolls will boost revenue to the extent that all property owners will get a break.

For instance, the owner of a residence on the rolls at $20,000 paid $164.25 in school assessments last year.

The figure drops to $121.50 this year. Should the $6 million school bond issue be approved by the voters next month, the tax would be $154.50 on that particular piece of property.

Taxpayers 65 years of age and older also benefit from the decrease in payments. Where they paid $54.75 cents last year, after taking advantage of their exemptions, their payments would amount to only $40.50 this year. Should the bond issue pass, their tax would be $51.50.

Increased oil activity in the Coahoma school district will definitely work to the advantage of the ordinary tax payer this year.

It might be hard for the average person to visualize but there are 20 buildings in the Coahoma School complex. That includes storage and concessions structures as well as classroom space, the field house, gymnasium and the administration building.

The master plan for the proposed construction embraces Phases One and Two. Phase One will include the construction of a new elementary facility, underground storm corridors and parking areas.

Phase Two would include additions to the high school building, the industrial arts shop, trade shop, addition to the junior high building, a bus storage facility, maintenance shops, and a vocational ag shop.

The Andrews architectural firm of Huckabee and Donham, one of the most respected names in school architecture, has drawn up plans for the proposed additions.

Parole violation charge dropped against Flores

Parole violation charges were dismissed against Raul Flores Friday by Hearing Examiner Ted Welch, Odessa.

The hearing was held in 118th District Courtroom Friday to determine if there was grounds to constitute a violation.

Flores was accused of taking a swing at Big Spring Policeman Dean Boyd after a routine traffic stop at NW 4 and Lancaster May 28 at 10:50 p.m. Joe Chavarria, Odessa, had been driving when Boyd stopped him for a traffic infraction.

Boyd said Chavarria had been polite but that Flores had ignored Boyd's request for him to remain in the car. When Flores missed with a swing at Boyd, he had hit him in the face with his flashlight.

Boyd testified that as he attempted to put handcuffs on Flores, he had resisted and Boyd sprayed mace in his face.

Flores ran across the street where he stood rubbing his eyes. An off duty policeman, Brad Miller, who was riding with Boyd, started to chase Flores but Boyd told him they should stay with the car.

Boyd dismissed Chavarria and followed his car, believing Flores would attempt to get back in the car somewhere else.

Meanwhile, Flores had gone into a backyard and run toward Chavarria's car as it passed the corner of NW 6 and Lancaster. Boyd chased Flores on foot and got the car stopped. By that time, he said numerous officers had come on the scene.

Flores was represented by attorney Jack Thompson.

Enrollment reaches 192

ELBOW — Enrollment in Forsan elementary school here, kindergarten through the fifth grade, was 192 at the end of classes Friday.

That is about eight less than was enrolled for the fall class a year ago but Principal Bill Cregar said the student count usually increases after Labor Day.

KKK at center of Reagan remarks

Carter campaign stop rebuked

By the Associated Press. Ronald Reagan has rebuked Jimmy Carter for opening his re-election campaign in the South and "the city that gave birth to the Ku Klux Klan," even on the occasion to denounce the KKK organization. Reagan's complaint came just one day after his national campaign chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, had declared the Republican nominee "incapable" of using any tactic designed to "tink the president, either directly or indirectly, to the Klan."

The president's appearance there was preceded by a peaceful march through the downtown area by about 40 Klansmen. Carter denounced them in his remarks, saying that "as a southerner it makes me angry to see them with a Confederate battle flag."

Pink Puffers to mull woes of coping with lung disease

Most persons suffering with chronic lung disease often become discouraged.

Dr. Francis Graham, psychologist at the VA Medical Center, will deal with that problem tonight as a group of Big Spring citizens known as the Pink Puffers meet to discuss the problems of coping with the disease that may get better but will never go away.

The group will meet at 7 p.m., in Malone-Hogan Hospital's classroom. Approximately 20 persons are involved in the group study, according to Ken Randall, respiratory therapist and chairman of the Pink Puffers.

All interested persons are invited to attend. Randall says that families of lung disease patients may benefit particularly from this session.

"Their understanding of the disease, and the probability of the 'down-in-the-dumps' syndrome of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, makes a difference in how the patient responds and behaves in a situation," Randall said.

This is the fourth meeting for the group since reorganizing the past spring. They have studied treatment alternatives, diet, and problems incurred in traveling.

"I thought you were in Alabama today," Reagan said.

Then he added: "You know, I kind of like the contrast, though, I'm happy to be here, where you're dealing at first hand with the economic problems that have been committed, and he's opening his campaign down in the city that gave birth to and is the parent body of the Ku Klux Klan."

Reagan, who opened his own post-convention campaigning a month ago in a southern city which is no stranger to racial violence, referred to Carter's Labor Day visit to a picnic in Tusculumbia, Ala.

Digest

Swiss giant drops merger

BALTIMORE (AP) — Swiss food and pharmaceutical giant Sandoz Ltd. has agreed to drop attempts to take over McCormick & Co., the nation's largest independent spice maker, the companies say.

In exchange, the Baltimore-based spice company will buy all the stock that Sandoz had purchased in an abortive takeover bid at a cost of just over $13 million. The company also said it would dismiss all pending court challenges against Sandoz.

The two companies said Saturday they "have agreed to explore research agreements, joint venture opportunities and other business arrangements which may be in the mutual interest of both companies."

Malfunction kills mice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An apparent computer malfunction sent temperatures at a University of Southern California lab to 100 degrees, killing almost 1,500 mice involved in $1 million worth of research, officials said.

The mice, which died Friday, had been monitored for as long as 30 months in federally funded research at the Andrus Gerontology Center, a facility for studies of aging. To a mouse, an age of 30 months is equal to an age of 80 years in a human, scientists said.

The research focused on the effects of hormones on aging, bone brittleness, reproduction in animals as a function of aging and birth defects.

Lowland gorilla born

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The first lowland gorilla born as a result of artificial insemination is doing fine and appears to be a male, a Memphis Zoo veterinarian said.

Dr. Michael Douglass said the gorilla, born Sunday to 19-year-old Beta, appeared to weigh about 4 pounds. The mother has been so protective of her infant that officials have not been able to get a close look at the baby.

The father is Ozum, 14, from Yerkes Primate Research Center at Emory University in Atlanta. Sperm from frozen semen taken from Ozum was implanted in Beta during the second week of January.

GLOWING — The San Antonio River Walk, in front of the La Mansion del Rio hotel, is illuminated for the annual Fiesta de las Luminarias. The Festival of Lights each December follows a tradition of the 1500s, representing the lighting of the Holy Family's way to Bethlehem.

San Antonio light fiesta Dec. 14-16

SAN ANTONIO — This Texas city is America's domestic destination with a foreign flavor. At no time of the year does San Antonio's Spanish-Mexican heritage sparkle more brightly than at Christmas.

The tall trees along the picturesque Paseo del Rio twinkle with thousands of colored lights. The graceful bridges are outlined with additional lights that reflect in the water.

On Dec. 14 the banks of the stream will be lined with luminarias. The paper sacks weighted with sand and centered with candles add a soft glow to the area. High school choirs float down the river on water taxis, providing concerts featuring holiday music.

Fiesta de las Luminarias will be climaxed after dusk on Dec. 16 with the reenactment of the Holy Family's search for shelter. The event is sponsored by the San Antonio Conservation Society and begins at historic La Mansion. Hundreds of people carrying lighted candles follow children in costumes representing Mary and Joseph. They knock on doors along the route and are refused entrance.

Hymns and carols are sung as the solemn parade winds through the area. At La Villita, the little village that was the original San

British wallow through red tape

HOUSTON (AP) — A British family that sold its home in England and journeyed to Houston to follow an "American adventure" now finds bureaucratic roadblocks turning its trek into a bad dream.

David and Christine White said governmental red tape has prevented their two children from attending free public schools.

"We're being treated as if we were illegal," Mrs. White said. "If you're here legally, you should be entitled to a free education."

"I defy you to find us," White said. "We're in some kind of gray zone with immigration. And I thought British bureaucracy was bad."

The Whites said they arrived in June with proper immigration papers, but Houston-area school districts have refused to honor the documents.

White has a written job offer as a computer consultant with a Houston company, but has been told he must wait for labor certification from the Texas Employment Commission before he can apply for permanent resident status.

"In the meantime, two children are dying to go to school," Mrs. White said. "They have nothing to do all day around this apartment. They were at the top of their class in London."

But the attendance chief of the Houston Independent School District offered no apologies for the White's problems.

"We've gone as far as we can with foreigners," Lon Wheeler said. "Nobody is approved until they have labor certification. If we extend the rules for this family, then somebody else would come up with another reason."

Although Wheeler said Houston schools have admitted thousands of refugees, he added that "England is not a war-torn country."

Crew delays runaway well

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — Workers held off boarding the twisted wreckage of an offshore runaway gas well for fear the natural plug that choked the flow of gas could fail and trigger another fiery eruption.

Three workers are still missing following the early Saturday morning explosion that killed two, injured seven and turned the rig, located 18 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico, into an inferno.

For more than 24 hours flames spouted as high as 100 feet into the air, hindering search efforts with the intense heat. The blaze was extinguished Sunday when the well bore collapsed — "bridged over" — shutting off the flow of natural gas.

Kent Young, a spokesman for Tulsa-based Cities Service Co., said Sunday that the "bridging" was holding.

"Every once in a while there's a little burp of bubbling water, every two hours or so. But there's no gas coming from the well," said Young.

However, he said efforts to inspect the burned rig "Ocean King" and search for the missing crewmen would be delayed by the threat of another blowout.

"The potential is there," he said. "That's why we're not having anybody go board the 'Ocean King' until several days have passed. There's no sign of the missing men."

WILLIAM HOLDEN CHERYL PREWITT

Holden seeks foreign help

NEW YORK (AP) — William Holden, the veteran actor of "Bridge on the River Kwai" and scores of other films, is expected to fly to West Germany later this month for consultations with a doctor recognized as a cancer expert, according to the New York Daily News.

But the doctor, Hans Nieper, told the News, "I don't think he's seriously ill."

Miss America stays busy

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Cheryl Prewitt, nearing the end of her reign as Miss America 1980, says she's too busy with her evangelical and singing careers to consider marriage.

"My career is too full for anybody of anything else right now. It's my fault, but I'm happy with it," Miss Prewitt said Monday as the Miss America Pageant got under way.

Miss Prewitt, 23, of Ackerman, Miss., gives up her title Saturday night after earning a $20,000 scholarship and more than $80,000 in personal appearance fees in her year-long reign.

Even when another beauty wins the crown, Miss Prewitt is booked for personal appearances into next summer and plans to finish a book about her comeback from a crippling car accident.

Miss Prewitt said she has donated 10 percent of her earnings to various Christian church and missionary groups while the rest was "sent straight home to my Daddy," she said.

But the job sometimes got her down, she admits. "It turns out that when you live it, it's not so glamorous after all," she said. "Washing out your laundry out back and blowing it dry with a hair dryer is not so glamorous."

"It was the shortest year of my life. But it wasn't the ultimate. Now I realize it was just the beginning."

Stray bullet hits old star

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A policeman's stray bullet put a veteran Grand Old Opry performer in the hospital when officers fired at a young burglary suspect, authorities say.

Hubert Gregory, 71, a member of the Fruit Jar Drinkers, one of the original performing groups on WSM radio's country-music show, was in satisfactory condition Monday with a bullet wound in the leg.

He was returning to his home Sunday after taking his wife to church when he got caught in the middle of a police chase. Two officers were responding to a burglary call at a home when a youth pulled out the back door of the house, said assistant chief Paul Usselson.

The officers "hollered at him to stop" before each fired once as the youth turned into Gregory's yard.

'Man's world' not so great

Company promotes men's rights

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — According to the old saying, it's a man's world.

But what's so great about that if a man's life expectancy is seven years less than a woman's? Or if men pay more for car insurance because the industry assumes they're "reckless" or if few divorced fathers get custody of their children?

Is a "man's world" so great if men, and not women, are subject to a military draft? Or if men always are expected to make the first move, accept a dare, be a success, and never seem "unmanly"?

Those are the sort of questions Fredric Hayward raises as he fights what he sees as sexism against men.

His job, as the founder of Men's Rights Inc., is to fight laws that discriminate against men and stereotypes that belittle them.

Since the advent of the women's movement, people have learned to recognize ways that women are discriminated against, but they fail to see discrimination against men, Hayward says.

Hayward, 33, a New York native, founded his non-profit corporation in 1977. Once a teacher and a State Department employee in Thailand, he now subsists by working two nights a week at a hotel.

Hayward has testified at hearings that helped make it unlawful in Massachusetts for young men to pay higher auto insurance rates than women, regardless of individual

Grocery prices jump sharply during August

By The Associated Press
Widespread increase in meat prices took a big bite of family grocery budgets last month and sent supermarket bills soaring, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The increase in grocery prices during August was the second sharpest this year and was more than four times the July rise.

The AP drew up a random list of commonly purchased food and non-food items and checked the price on March 1, 1978 at one supermarket in each of 13 cities. Prices have been rechecked on, or about the start of each succeeding month. The list originally included 15 items, but chocolate chip cookies were dropped after the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The latest AP check showed that the price increases which were predicted because of the drought have arrived at the supermarket. The marketbasket bill increased last month at the checklist store in every city, rising an average of 2.9 percent.

Until last month, grocery prices had remained relatively stable in 1980, except during June, when the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores increased by an average of 3.1 percent. During July, the marketbasket bill rose an average of only seven-tenths of a percent.

The August price rises hit hardest at the meat counter. The price of center cut pork chops went up at the checklist store in nine cities; frankfurters rose in 11 cities; chopped chuck was up in six cities. Meat accounted for 21 percent of the items on the AP checklist, but was responsible for 39 percent of the increases last month.

The increases at retail stores generally reflect increases at the wholesale level. The Department of Agriculture said, for example, that prices for livestock — particularly hogs — rose sharply in July and early August. Prices paid for hogs at Omaha, Neb., went from $43 per hundred pounds in early July to almost $50 per hundred pounds in mid-August.

Consumers trying to cut down on meat without cutting out protein can find some bargains at the dairy counter. The price of eggs, which rose in seven cities during July as a result of the drought, dropped somewhat during August, with decreases reported at the checklist stores in six of the cities surveyed by the AP.

No attempt was made to weigh the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

Estes Mansion on auction block

PECOS, Texas (AP) — The three-level mansion Billie Sol Estes built here during the early 1950s while the convicted swindler was amassing a personal fortune goes on the auction block today.

The proceeds will go to pay off back taxes, but officials said they feared the once-magnificent homestead — now occupied by a home for women in trouble — would not bring enough money to pay all the taxes owed.

Both federal and local taxing authorities claimed first privilege at the money. The Internal Revenue Service claims $185,000 in back income taxes against the house. The city and county say $30,000 is due in back property taxes.

The eight-bedroom, six-bathroom estate — not counting a bathroom by the former pool — sits on an acre and a half of land and is appraised by local officials at $42,115.

Estes, 55, is now a prisoner in the federal prison in Big Spring.

Atomic blast witnesses shown to have higher cancer rates

DALLAS (AP) — A cancer specialist says his research raises the possibility that radiation from atomic bomb tests may have caused an increase in the incidence of leukemia among soldiers who witnessed the blast.

Dr. Glyn Caldwell, chief of the cancer branch at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, told the Dallas Morning News that soldiers who participated in an 1957 atomic bomb test in Nevada have contracted leukemia at a rate three times higher than normal.

In a copyright article in Sunday's newspaper, Caldwell told the news that nine of the 3,223 men who witnessed the blast later contracted leukemia.

"This certainly shows an increased risk (of leukemia) in this group of people compared to the U.S. average. Now this doesn't mean that these nine people got cancer because of the radiation, but something caused the increased rate," Caldwell told the newspaper.

He said three is the expected number of leukemia cases for a group that size.

Caldwell also said that 120 of the men contracted other forms of cancer, a figure he said was 20 percent above the expected rate.

"The increase in other cancers wasn't what you would call significant, but the leukemias are statistically significant," he said.

The scientist said another study is necessary before anything definite can be determined on the relationship between the radiation and cancer.

He said if a recently begun National Academy of Sciences' study reflects the same increased leukemia rate, then the government probably should grant more disability claims to veterans exposed to radiation.

The "Smoky" test was conducted on Aug. 31, 1957. Troops from the Army's 82nd Airborne Division lay in open trenches at distances of 4,500 yards, 5,500 yards and 6,500 yards from the 750-foot tower where a 44-kiloton atomic warhead was detonated.

More than 800 of the men who participated in the test have applied for Veterans Administration disability payments, only 12 were granted partial or full payments. And Caldwell said just two of the nine leukemia patients received VA benefits.

Eight of the nine leukemia patients have died and the identity of the ninth patient has not been revealed.

Stratton Appleman, a VA spokesman, told the newspaper that Caldwell is considered one of the nation's top scientists and his research "will definitely have an influence on the VA."

However, Appleman said he has not seen a copy of the report and therefore could not comment on it.

Traffic accidents claim 466 lives

By The Associated Press
Traffic accidents across the nation during the three-day holiday weekend claimed at least 466 lives.

The tally is based on figures being compiled by The Associated Press from all 50 states.

The National Safety Council estimated before the three-day holiday began that between 450 and 550 people could die on streets and highways between 6 p.m. Friday local time and midnight Monday local time.

Last year, 602 people were killed during the Labor Day weekend. The highest traffic toll for the holiday was 888 in 1968.

Cockateel foils burglary

SANDPOINT, Idaho (AP) — Bunky is a cockateel, not a stool pigeon, but he blew the whistle on a birdnapper who grabbed him from a parked car.

Detective Andy Anderson says the gray, yellow and orange Australian parrot with soulful brown eyes let it be known in no uncertain terms that he wanted freedom.

Anderson says officers received a tip that the parrot, taken from a grocery store parking lot, was inside a house on the north side of this northern Idaho town.

"We went up and knocked on the door and the bird started yelling," Anderson said. The bird's vocabulary includes "Come out, come out" and "Give me a kiss," said owner Luella Lynch.

Police said a California man was booked on a charge of possession of stolen property in the incident last week.

Town banking on bluff

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — Residents who have tried guns, water and noise in their efforts to get rid of their unwelcome summer visitors are hoping the starlings won't be able to tell a plastic hawk from the real thing.

A kite with the shape and image of a hawk was being unveiled today in the latest attempt to scare away this screeching, crow-like birds that have plagued this North Shore town for five summers.

Muskets fired by a Bicentennial marching unit failed to scare away the invaders. Water hoses dampened their feathers but didn't shake them from their roosts. Amplified records of hostile bird calls were treated as serenades.

Officials don't know if the kite, which will be attached to a helium balloon and floated over the nesting area, will work either.

"We wanted to try something short of shooting them. We got the idea from Oregon, where we heard it's helped with starlings in the vineyards," Fire Chief Edward Creighton said Monday.

"Of course, if it does scare them off, who knows where they'll go? Maybe they'll land right back down close somewhere."

Policies distract public attention

NEW YORK (AP) — It is difficult to determine how many new economic programs President Carter has introduced in the past 3½ years — the maximum seems to be seven — but that isn't the important point.

Of more significance is what the effect and perhaps the intention has been, which is to take the public's mind off the precarious state of the economy, and to delay dealing with its numerous crises.

You will recall that just weeks ago, in response to public outcries over inflation and big spending programs, the public was given the "balance budget" program, and so was appeased for the time being.

Spending wasn't cut, however. It was raised instead, and now, five months later, the 1981 budget seems headed for a $50 billion deficit, a deficit of the sort we were told was a threat to economic security.

Times change, we are told by Stuart Eizenstat, the president's chief economic aide. But three times in less than a year: A reversal of basic economic policy every few months! Economics doesn't change that fast.

Minds do change, as we know, and sometimes politics changes swiftly too. And politics now calls for measures that will take the public's mind off the economic mess and project it into the land of daydreams.

Everything moves forward in this futureland, exactly opposite to the stagnation of the present which erodes incomes, saddles the public with taxes but produces no solutions, and undercuts the standard of living.

What an awful existence people must have had way back there in the present! Somebody must have fouled things up terribly, because most of our programs here in futureland are designed to correct past errors.

The avowed and almost single-minded goal of futureland, in fact, is to revitalize the economy that had deteriorated so badly. Futureland is a happy land of great beginnings. Everyone feels reborn, as in a dream.

What is so wonderful in futureland is that we don't look back in anger. We don't blame anyone for the mess that was. We don't even wish who created our dream had also created the earlier nightmare.

Futurelands of the sort now proposed by all the political candidates might be effective political ploys but they often die once the need is passed, forcing everyone back onto the rough rocks of reality.

Judging from the record, the latest economic policy would seem to have a lifespan of a few months before being supplanted by another. Perhaps not, but there is plenty of suspicion.

The problems have dual political parentage, with both Republicans and Democrats contributing theories and practices that didn't work, often because winning politics interfered with sound economics.

But the immediate issues involve the present candidates, all of whom have their political visions. And while visions are necessary, candidates have to be assessed on how their visions relate to reality.

Cometary science in Earth orbit

Scientist to gather comet dust

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A golden trap for tiny particles of cosmic dust hurtling through space at speeds exceeding 10 miles a second may help a Johnson Space Center scientist examine the nature of comets.

Comets, which travel the solar system in elliptical orbits, are thought to contain material that originated at the time that the planets were forming.

And Fredrich Horz, a space center petrologist, wants to gather pristine samples of comet dust for his experiment on the chemistry of such micrometeorites.

Horz plans to gather the microscopic particles with plates fashioned from solid gold and inserted into Earth orbit by a space shuttle crew.

"What we are doing is cometary science in Earth orbit," said Horz. "Scientifically, the experiment could be very important because no one knows anything about cometary solids."

Project manager Richard T. Walter, a space center engineer, designed a clam-like device that will capture the comet dust on its golden plates and return it in as near its original condition as possible.

Microscopic specks of comet dust, traveling at tremendous velocity, make minute craters when they strike spacecraft windows. Scientists also have collected cometary particles with devices on ultra-high flying spy planes.

But Horz, who specializes in impact craters, said the particles were not protected against contaminating material. After spending considerable time examining the contaminated craters, Horz devised a project for gathering the particles in space.

His experiment, along with more than 80 other scientific and engineering experiments, will be aboard a satellite called the Long Duration Exposure Facility.

A space shuttle crew will drop the satellite into orbit in about three years and another will retrieve it about a year later.

Horz anticipates that after a year, the golden trap will contain about 30 craters that can be protected from contamination during re-entry.

The satellite will carry two trays containing six 3-by-4-foot 99.9 percent pure gold plates, 132 of an inch thick and weighing 17.8 pounds apiece. It also will carry two trays of six 99.9 percent pure aluminum plates that will not be protected during launch or recovery.

Horz said the gold will be borrowed from the federal government. If all goes as planned, he will collect the craters he needs on about one ounce of the precious metal and return the remainder to the government.

He said the micrometeorites will make craters in the metals less than one-thousandth of an inch in diameter that will take an electro-scanning microscope to find.

Horz said scientists dealing in orbital mechanics can fairly well determine if the particles come from comets, the moon or the asteroid belt.

Natchitoches would rather stay fat

NATCHITOCHEs, La. (AP) — Want to improve your sex life? Live longer? Feel better? Think clearer? Save money?

C.B. "Lum" Ellis is trying to convert this middle Louisiana city of 16,000 to the odd-tasting Pritikin diet with the claim that it does all those good things for you.

"If those five things won't fly, nothing will," he said.

But thus far, "Project Life" — a state-supported program — has done more fizzling than flying.

Too many folks here are like Lonnie Casey, a supermarket manager who is astounded when anybody buys either of the two Pritikin diet items he stocks — bread and a smelly cheese.

"If I got to eat something that chokes me, I'd just as soon stay fat," he said, slapping his ample paunch.

The food they like in these parts is totally immoral — jambalaya, spicy meat pies, fried chicken, thick steaks, gravy, dumplings, dirty rice, cornbread, chitlins, strawberry shortcake, Cane River pie adrip with whipped cream and chocolate.

Ellis says that stuff clogs the arteries with cholesterol, fills the blood with triglycerides and sooner or later — zap!

He started preaching the Pritikin gospel seven months ago, when Natchitoches — pronounced Naka-tush — became an experiment in the controversial Pritikin diet.

At the time, Ellis was fresh from a losing, and expensive, campaign for state superintendent of education and his main interest was $40,000 put up by then-governor Edwin Edwards to start a Pritikin program.

Now he's a true believer, with his beloved mayonnaise and bologna sandwiches far behind him.

On the diet, which Californian Nathan Pritikin claims can reverse heart disease or diabetes, you get no fats, no oils, no salt, no sugar, no caffeine or alcohol, no egg yolks, no more than 3½ ounces of lean meat a day.

At the "Pritikin Longevity Center" in Santa Monica, the well-heeled but unhealthy pay $4,300 for 26 days of long walks and austere meals heavy on vegetables, grains and fruits.

"If it is good enough for corporation executives and movie stars, you would think anybody would be interested," says Ellis. "But the hardest people to convince are the poor and uneducated."

The stubborn — rich or poor — say Pritikin food tastes, uh, different. They don't like it. Ellis contends it's all in their mind.

"You are not born liking anything," he argues. "You learned to like whatever you like. Food properly cooked on this diet is delicious."

"Project Life" came about because Edwards was impressed by what the diet did for a friend. Natchitoches was deemed a good test, since it has an annual death rate of 9.8 per 1,000 compared to the overall state rate of 8.9.

The kickoff banquet last Jan. 21 drew about 250 people to a Northwestern State University dining hall, where Ellis used to be director of special projects.

Though he dutifully cleared his plate, the governor later said, "A Cajun raised on gumbo and crawfish would just as soon die 10 years early as eat that stuff."

Ellis looks back on the banquet as a bad move.

Unaccustomed to the recipes, the university food service scorched the first dish prepared, a broccoli bisque. An aghast gourmand said it tasted like boiled cigarettes.

"That dadgummed 'boiled cigarettes' cracked must have got into every newspaper in the country," mourns Ellis.

Edwards first described the project as an effort to put the entire city on the diet. Ellis has backed off that ambitious goal. Nobody knows how many people are actually on the diet. Estimates range from 100 to 2,000.

Ellis says the diet stomps on a lot of financial toes because tremendous amounts of food money are at stake.

"I lost some friends over this," he says. "But I am tired of the economics of this society deciding what you eat, though I can understand how it is for the guy who has 1,000 head of beef cattle."

Wood chiseled into works of art at former brothel in Nuevo Laredo

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — Surrounded by pieces of his half-finished fantasies and the work that has become his dream, Rafael Costilla passes his days in the old brothel that is his home and his workshop.

Hallways in the huge house lead to hidden nooks and crannies crammed with more of Costilla's hand-carved furniture, sculptures, metal figures, ceramics and glass doodads.

Marking the entrance to his furniture building business is an intricate glass replica of the Arche de Triomphe. Three-dimensional paintings of women saints grace the whitewashed walls where ladies of the evening once leaned to entice their customers.

Secret courtyards lie throughout the building, some accessible only through the windows of tiny bedrooms.

Rafael and his brother, Manuel, rented the building nine years ago when it was the Miranda — a popular brothel and bar a mere skip across the Rio Grande from Laredo, Texas.

The former occupants had been moved to La Zona de Tolerancia, the legal prostitution district known as Boys' Town.

When the Costillas took over the Miranda, all that existed was a bar, the main courtyard and tiny rooms above the first story.

"We changed all that," Rafael said with a sweep of his hand. "We took out the little rooms. We painted. We expanded."

HAND MADE FURNITURE — Juan Mirelas hand-chisels an oak panel that will be used in a folding screen. This is part of the complex managed by Rafael Costilla and brother Manuel that will someday become a bustling active business center. At one time this was The Miranda, a well known brothel in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, but the Costilla brothers hope better days are ahead.

Slowly, the business, Raphael de Mexico, began to grow within the sprawling house. And Costilla's dreams began to take shape.

"The wood in that credenza is 79 years old," he said, pointing to a carved piece in his front showroom. "I bought it in a house in San Antonio. We use the old wood and rework it to make pieces that look like antiques."

In an un-airconditioned shop next to the showroom, six woodworkers stand stripped to the waist, carving and polishing and rubbing their handwork.

Behind them, unfinished chairs are stacked to the ceiling. "We make a sample here," Costilla said. "Then we take the sample to our workers in Guadalajara. We cannot get the workmen to come up here. They don't like the weather.

"Our furniture is made with half Mexican lumber and half American lumber," he explained. "We only use one nail to start the wood to hold. All the rest of our pieces are fitted and grooved with American glue."

"I do nothing," Costilla said, shrugging his lean shoulders. "The people, they do the work, and they bring the things to me. Here, they work the wood. If I couldn't watch them, I would sit all day on the patio."

In the heart of that very patio stands the skeleton of Costilla's true obsession — a windmill. It sits atop a small adobe building surrounded by bushes and potted plants.

One day, Costilla muses, the windmill will have blades that turn constantly and customers will sit below it in his bar.

"It will be a never-ending windmill," he said, looking toward the staircase that curves up the half-finished structure. "We have a 6-meter well that has three meters of water in it there from an underground river. When we get the windmill done, water will power the windmill rather than wind. The blades will always turn and we will have the bar...below."

On a slow afternoon, waves of heat shimmer above the partial structure. Sitting on a wrought-iron chair, Costilla leans on a cool marble table, glancing at the tiny windmill painted on his watch, then at the incomplete fantasy nearby.

"We will get it done when things are good," he said. "Right now, we have to buy our lumber and make our furniture better here before we can do anything else."

Dear Abby

Girl's Past Is Not Prologue

DEAR ABBY: As the parents of a recently married boy, do you think we have the right to ask questions about the girl's past? (I'll call her Lisa.)

We tried to get some dialogue going with Lisa's mother several months before the wedding, but she told us practically nothing. We have heard a lot of stories about Lisa and don't know what to believe.

Even though our son is 24, he has led a rather sheltered life, and is very naive, immature, unsophisticated and glib.

We suspect that Lisa has caused her mother a lot of grief, and now she is only too happy to wash her hands of her daughter and pass the problems on to our son and his family. Your opinion is needed.

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your son at 24 is a man, not a boy, regardless of how sheltered his life has been. Lisa's past concerns no one but her, and those with whom she chooses to share it. Don't pry. If you love your son, concern yourself only with his happiness. And a good place to begin is in accepting Lisa without doubts or reservations.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the advice you gave a reader who observed her co-worker in a retail store put a $15 item in her pocket; she didn't know what to do about it.

You advised her to confront the co-worker and encourage her to either pay for the item or return it. That was not bad advice. However, you didn't go far enough. If the individual did not return the item or pay for it, she should be reported to her immediate supervisor and/or the security department immediately!

Abby, according to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, each year retail employees steal between $5 and $10 billion from their employers! This form of theft is the single largest threat to retailers.

Naturally, this loss is passed on to the consumer—that's you and me, and all of your readers.

You will do all retailers a tremendous favor if you consider this important enough to publish.

DIRECTOR OF SECURITY,
NAME OF STORE WITHHELD, NEW ORLEANS, LA.

DEAR DIRECTOR: I do and I will.

DEAR ABBY: What is a diplomatic way to ask guests to please go home when they have overstayed their welcome in the evening?

NAMELESS, OF COURSE

DEAR NAMELESS: For maximum effectiveness, I recommend the direct approach and less concern about diplomacy—unless you're running for office. Simply say, "Well, it's been a lovely evening, but I have to be up early tomorrow morning, so let's call it a night." And stand up—and smile—when you say it.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Crusader Liz Carpenter to stay in Washington for only a year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Liz Carpenter — the brassy drummer for countless causes from Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty to the Equal Rights Amendment — took drastic steps to make sure she doesn't renege on her pledge to stay here only one year.

For her return to Washington, Mrs. Carpenter said she pared her wardrobe down drastically — bringing only seven suitcases, or enough to get her through a year in her new job as assistant secretary of education.

With five months left before her self-imposed deadline for returning to Texas, she says, "I'm eager to get back to my Jacuzzi on the hill."

But then Mrs. Carpenter never intended to come back to Washington from that Austin hilltop home with the "spectacular view" in the first place, until Education Secretary Shirley Hufstедler sounded the call for her to head the new cabinet department's public affairs office.

"Secretary Hufstедler called me with persuasion I haven't heard since Lyndon Johnson used to occasionally pick me up by the ears and say, 'America needs you, I need you, and I thought she was overdoing it but then, who am I to argue with a cabinet member,'" Mrs. Carpenter, 60, said in an interview.

The former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson said she was enjoying her life in Austin too much to want to return to Washington, a city she first visited in 1942 and lived in for 32 years.

Most of them were as a reporter watching the Texas congressional delegation, but she wound them up as a vice president at Hill & Knowlton, Inc., a large public relations firm.

Back in Austin since 1976, the widowed Washington veteran was working part-time at the LBJ Library and writing.

She wore a bright, red dress to her Senate confirmation hearing and cheerily told reporters: "When this meeting was originally set for Valentine's Day, I went out and bought a red dress so I could ask you all to be my Valentines."

Mrs. Carpenter was no less repressible than during the Johnson years when she said, "I taught LBJ how to pick up dogs" or told reporters she knew about the White House dogs because, "I'm in the doghouse most of the time."

At the confirmation hearing, she treated her nomination lightly by comparing her surprise to Franklin Pierce's when he learned he was nominated for president on the 49th ballot.

"Indeed, he only learned of it when his manservant happened into the town of Concord, N.H., and heard the news," Mrs. Carpenter said. "He rushed back to his master at Hillsborough and said, 'Ridiculous as it may seem, Mr. Pierce, you have just been nominated President of the United States.'"

She said she felt just the same.

Mrs. Carpenter joked then, and jokes still, about her unfamiliarity with the bureaucracy and its standard use of acronyms like FICE and BEOGS.

"I had never met an organizational chart face to face," the new bureaucrat said. "Indeed, I had never known anyone over 10 years of age who drew squares and lines and shaded little boxes in crayons with the primary colors."

Joking aside, Mrs. Carpenter says she is deadly serious about the role she can play giving a human touch to the new department's image.

"I think that what I bring to these circles of young people is a sense of history and purpose and a reminder," she said. "It's as Lyndon Johnson said — education is the only valid passport out of poverty."

The assistant secretary does not want her staff or the department to speak about "post-secondary education" instead of "college." She prefers to hear a program described by what it does rather than with a woman's numerical title or an acronym.

"I'm not a management type. I'm from a more creative world," Mrs. Carpenter admitted.

"Sometimes the danger is they think it's all management, and they get very swept up in the large phrases and they don't realize that what the whole government is about is people."

She said she tried to hire people with that purpose in mind, people who have some talent at explaining programs to the public.

"I think we are still struggling with it but I think we've made a lot of strides," she said. "You're always in reorganization it seems to me but we're about to get it all in place."

Plans for the fall include campaigning, mostly on weekends in Texas and elsewhere, as a "total immersion Democrat" for President Carter. "I hope to add some humor now and then. That's my fun and, my God, some of the things they do are laughable and yet also I think it's just a healthy thing to have in politics," she said.

Mrs. Carpenter reserved her most scathing remarks about Republicans to this year's exclusion of a platform plank supporting the Equal Rights Amendment.

"I plan to have a lot to say about that in the months ahead," she said. "I think it was a total betrayal!"

Her plans for the future include spending more time writing after her return to Austin and, if possible, helping to form a Texas writers' center or workshop.

Mrs. Carpenter said her decision to go back to Texas does not stem from any displeasure with Washington, although politics and the capital itself have changed from her first days here.

"I was nurtured in this town by a warmer world of politics," she said. "It's more of a free-for-all now."

Medic Alert provides link

TURLOCK, Calif. — Recently, a New York City businessman who was in Miami for a company sales meeting sustained severe injuries to his head, neck, abdomen and right leg in an automobile accident.

He was unconscious when paramedics arrived on the scene. They assessed his injuries, applied dressings, bandages, began oxygen therapy and intravenous fluids — but did not inject penicillin, thanks to his Medic Alert emblem which was engraved, "Allergic to Penicillin."

"Once at the hospital," according to Dr. William T. Haeck, "a call to Medic Alert's emergency information center quickly provided additional data which saved valuable time."

"Thanks to Medic Alert, we were provided with his name, address, home and business phone, blood type, nearest relative, insurance policy, plus a tranquilizer medicament he took regularly, and the name and phone number of his family physician.

"Quick access to this type of information can be a key in emergencies, and in many cases, such as this one, it can assist in fast and appropriate medical attention plus saving a life," Haeck says.

Haeck urges anyone who is allergic to penicillin to wear a Medic Alert identification emblem on their neck or wrist.

If penicillin is administered to someone who is allergic to it, a severe reaction called anaphylactic shock can occur and may be fatal. Reaction can take place in minutes or within a couple of hours.

Dr. Haeck, who is a past President of the American College of Emergency Physicians, sees Medic Alert as an important link between patient and physician.

"In the last couple of decades we have seen significant progress in medicine," he says. "Within this growth, we have witnessed a more intense concentration on emergency medicine as a total specialization. Medic Alert and the comprehensive system it provides is entirely supportive of that specialization," Haeck adds.

When an unconscious individual is admitted into an emergency room, one of the first things the emergency team does is try and determine the patient's name, age, significant medical problems, medicines being taken and drug allergies.

"You'd be surprised how little medical information even a close relative is aware of," Haeck says, adding, "That there is no way the emergency physician can determine if the patient has an allergy to a particular medication. In a 'Stat' emergency, there simply isn't enough time."

This chill can kill

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed. D.
Copley News Service

Teens: Summer is in full bloom and many of you are spending time in or near water.

— Moonlight swims, morning dips, and breezy sailboat rides are fun. But before you take the plunge, learn about hypothermia, the third leading cause of accidental death in the United States and Canada.

Hypothermia can strike swimmers and boaters who have fallen overboard. It is, Dr. Katherine Shaw, anesthesiologist at Greenwich (Conn.) Hospital, explains, "a lowering of the basal metabolic rate that causes the body temperature to drop far below the normal 98.6 degrees." If the water is cold enough, more body heat is lost than produced, and the inner core of the body begins to cool. Even 70-degree water can chill someone — body heat is lost 20 times faster in water than in air.

The first sign of hypothermia — when body temperature drops two degrees — is uncontrollable shivering. More serious signs of hypothermia are sluggish thinking and a loss of muscular coordination. When body temperature falls below 85 degrees, the victim may lose consciousness.

To prevent hypothermia, don't swim or boat when overcast, and stay close to shore. While boating — or well before swimming — keep your energy level up by eating snacks, like raisins and drinking fruit juices. If you're out in a boat in cool waters, wear your own life preserver. If the boat capsizes, try to keep your head above water, since 50 percent of the body's heat can be lost through the head.

If a rescued victim shows signs of hypothermia but has remained conscious, get her into dry clothes, and give her warm liquids to drink. Frequently, though, the victim is unconscious, and her pulse rate abnormally slow. Get her to the hospital immediately. With prompt medical attention, she'll be fine.

Be alert to the dangers of hypothermia — and be a lifesaver!

BSHS Sports Booster barbecue tonight

The Big Spring Sports Booster Club is holding a delicious barbecue at the Howard County Fair Barn tonight beginning at 6:00, with the program being entitled "Meet the Coaches Night."

Coaches in the system will be presented for the public to meet after the barbecue is served. Tickets for the affair are $3.50 for adults and two dollars for children under 10.

The Sports Booster Club was organized for the purpose of promoting all of the sports at BSHS, and for helping boost spirit and fund for athletic banquets.

At the start of the school year, there were no funds. Dinners such as the one tonight, as well as their sales from caps and jackets, aid in establishing the club.

The Big Spring Steers girls volleyball team will host the Andrews Mustangs in their home opener tonight at Poverty Pavilion on the campus of Howard College.

The Steer volleyballers defeated Andrews in their season opener on the road last week, and then split two games in the Snyder Tournament.

There will be a freshmen game at 5:00, with a junior varsity game slated at 6:00. The BSHS varsity then hits the hardwood at 7:00 p.m. for their encounter.

Stewart-Cox capture Chicano Golf Tourney

Present and past golfing coaches gave a lesson here Monday afternoon at the Comanche Trail Golf Course, as the duo of Howard Stewart-Royce Cox, scored a two-round total of 138 to win the Chicano Golf Association's Labor Day Tournament.

Stewart is currently the BSHS boys golf coach, while Cox held that position a few years back.

Their total was one stroke better than second place George Murphy — Joe Sharpnack, who had a 139. Finishing in third at 140 were Warren Ortega-Ben Garcia, Jr.

Jimmy Roger-Jerry Barron combined for a two-day total of 141 to win the first flight honors, with the father-son duo of Gene and Craig Gross finishing second at 144. Max Coffee-Ansel Finley had a 145.

The pair of Felix Martinez-Mike Sanchez fired a total of 152 to claim top honors in the second flight, with Luven Flores-Joe Montez just one strike back at 153. Finishing third in the second flight were the pair of Albert Gonzales-Nat Nunez, who had a 157.

A "Little" trick sends Hogs back to the farm

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 10th-ranked Texas Longhorns beat the 6th-ranked Arkansas Razorback 23-17 Monday night on a play the team knew about and another one it didn't.

It was Texas Coach Fred Akers who decided to gamble in the second quarter and pass up a chip shot field goal to try for a touchdown from the Arkansas two on fourth down with the Longhorns trailing 7-3.

Akers called for tailback A.J. "Jam" Jones to circle right end. The Longhorn blockers swept the Razorbacks away from the line of scrimmage and Jones scored untouched and standing up that gave Texas a lead it never relinquished.

However, there was yet another vital decision to be made.

Arkansas had rallied late in the game and Texas was faced with 3rd and 15 from its own 32-yard line. If Texas could make a first down, the Longhorns could run the clock out.

This time quarterback Donnie Little had a suggestion: I'll keep the ball, he told Akers after a fake to the halfback, but we won't tell the blockers or Arkansas.

Little dashed 17 yards on the bootleg and the Razorbacks were dead.

The nationally televised matchup of Southwest Conference teams had a little bit of everything for the 70,000 fans in Memorial Stadium.

Arkansas hoodwinked the Longhorns in the second quarter when sophomore Gary Anderson faked a reverse. While he traveled 39 yards untouched for a touchdown, the Texas team chased wide receiver Gary Stiggers, who should win an Academy Award the way he carried out the fake handoff.

Texas narrowed the count to 7-3 on a 52-yard field goal by John Goodson and then charged to the Arkansas goal where Akers had to make his critical decision.

"We wanted a touchdown awful bad," said Akers. "I considered a field goal. But it (Continued from page 2-B "UT ground")

George Brett's brother likes Vegas odds

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Cab drivers, magazine salesmen, your Aunt Sally — it seems everybody has an opinion on George Brett's chances of hitting .400.

So perhaps it's not too surprising that the Kansas City Royals third baseman's brother, pitcher Ken Brett, also has a thought or two on the subject.

"Vegas says it's 3 to 1 against it," smiles the 31-year-old left-hander. "You get the impression that Ken, long one of baseball's exponents of life in the fast lane, would like a piece of that action. "We're not allowed to bet. The commiss (Commissioner Bowie Kuhn) wouldn't like it," he said regretfully.

"But if it was 10 to 1...well, I might put my career on the line for that...I think he's got a chance."

Ken, whose father has always regarded him as the best of the Brett athletes, was one of baseball's most promising pitchers before arm problems relegated him to journeyman status. Now he's a member of the Kansas City Royals — his 10th major league team — and the hand-lettered sign above his locker reads "George Brett's Older Brother."

Ken, who the Royals hope can provide the left-handed relief help they've been missing, says George's personality may be the key to his pursuit of the .400 mark.

"I think the talent is always the most important,"

he said. "But I think the ability to handle the media is going to be more and more important down the stretch."

It's hard to argue with him. Never mind that stuff about the effect of night baseball, air travel or the specialized relief pitcher.

Brett's biggest hurdle in becoming the first .400 hitter since Ted Williams did it in 1941 is the voracious attention of the print and electronic media.

In 1941, the press was simply not as omnipresent. Except for The Sporting News, there were no national sports publications of note, and the broadcast media consisted of little more than a couple of radio networks.

Brett, batting .401 after Monday's game, finds a microphone or a reporter's notebook under his nose virtually every moment he is not between the white lines.

When the Royals are on the road, the telephone in his hotel room rings at all hours. When the team is at home, reporters want to make house calls.

"To tell you what my lifestyle has been like," said the Kansas City third baseman, "I haven't been out with a girl in three weeks."

Navratilova, Vilas ousted in US Open

NEW YORK (AP) — During the first week of the U.S. Open, Martina Navratilova said she would "avoid this tournament at all costs if I could."

Since the Open is one of the world's two most prestigious tennis events, Navratilova has been unable to skip it. Instead, she finds ways to miss out on the Open finals.

This year, it was a fourth-round 7-6, 6-4 loss to 18-year-old Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia. Navratilova's native land. Once more, Martina couldn't find happiness at the National Tennis Center.

"I finally felt I played better than I had been," said the second seed, who was the biggest name of the four women's seeds to fall Monday. No. 6 Dianne Fromholtz of Australia was eliminated by No. 13 Pam Shriver, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1; Tracy Austin, the top seed, booted No. 10 Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-4, 6-0, and No. 11 Kathy Jordan was beaten by Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 7-5, 6-3. No. 3

Chris Evert Lloyd blasted JoAnne Russell 6-2, 6-1. "But I still was out of it on some volleys."

"I feel good about my game for the rest of the year. I still don't think I've reached my potential." The men also got into the upset act as Wojtek Fibak of Poland, seeded 14th, ousted No. 4 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3. Top seed Bjorn Borg of Sweden blew out No. 15 Yannick Noah of France, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 and Roscoe Tanner, No. 11, outlasted Brian Teacher 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

Hoping to stave off the upset bug today were No. 2 John McEnroe, who played Pascal Porteus of France; No. 3 Jimmy Connors, who will face Bernie Mitton of South Africa at night; No. 7 Harold Solomon, who figured to have a tough match with No. 10 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia; and No. 13 Brian Gottfried battled Eliot Teltscher.

Among the women, No. 8 Andrea Jaeger faced Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia; No. 14 Ivanna Madruga of Argentina played Candy Reynolds, and the unseeded Barbara Hallquist and Lucia Romanov of Romania squared off.

Mandlikova's victory was her second over her idol in two weeks. She beat Navratilova at Mahwah, N.J. prior to the Open, then topped Jaeger in the finals. "I beat her last week and thought this would be harder," said the No. 9 seed. "Sometimes Martina gives you the ball, misses shots. She's not like Tracy or Chris, where you must win every point."

"I was nervous the other time but not this."

Navratilova lost to Shriver in the 1978 semifinals here, then to Austin in the semis last year.

Shriver, 18, was slow getting started before assuming command against Fromholtz, who has been sidelined much of this year with assorted injuries. A finalist here in 1978, Shriver next faces Austin, whom she hasn't played in 21 months.

dropped quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, who cost Bud Wilkinson his job as St. Louis' head coach last year. Wilkinson was fired by Cards owner Bill Bidwill after he refused to play the former No. 1 draft pick from Missouri. Besides Pisarkiewicz, the Cardinals asked waivers on veteran place-kicker Roy Gerela and three other players, including 11-year veteran defensive end Ron Yankowski. Veteran wide receiver Dwight Scales was among four players cut by the New York Giants.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers waived wide receiver Danny Buggs and running back Tony Davis, bringing their roster to only 44 players, one under the regular-season minimum. That spot will be filled by a place-kicker since the bucs cut their only one, Neil O'Donoghue, over the weekend.

Among other veterans placed on waivers were: linebacker Greg Westbrook by Los Angeles; offensive lineman Bob Van Dyne, Baltimore; cornerback Gerard Williams, San Francisco; center Jim Pietrzak, New Orleans; center Ted Fritsch and running back Bobby Hammond, Washington; safety Doug Beaudoin and linebacker Sam Hunt, New England; running back Haskel Stanback, Atlanta; wide receiver Larry Brunson, Oakland; safety Marvin Cobb and wide receiver Billy Brooks, Cincinnati; tight end Conrad Rucker, Houston; offensive tackle Cleveland Elam and punter Larry Swider, Detroit; and fullback Jimmy DuBoise, Miami.

Reserve quarterbacks Cliff Olander, who has thrown just 24 passes in three years with San Diego, and Mark Miller were traded to the New York Giants for an undisclosed future draft choice while Miller was dealt by the Cleveland Browns to Green Bay.

Other veteran signal callers who were waived Monday include Gary Huff by the San Francisco 49ers, Jerry Golsteyn by the Baltimore Colts, Norris Weese by the Denver Broncos, Kim McQuilken by the Washington Redskins, Mike Kirkland by the San Diego Chargers and Ed Burns by the New Orleans Saints.

Rookie quarterbacks cut were Steve Ensminger of Louisiana State by the Saints; Jimmy Jordan of Florida State by the New England Patriots and Jeff Knappie of Colorado by the Broncos.

Little Football deadline

The Little Football League is holding its final day of registration for the upcoming season this afternoon at the BSHS gymnasium from five to seven o'clock.

Competition in the league is for third and fourth graders. The league has had good response from Big Spring youths, but needs more from the surrounding areas, which includes Forsan and Coahoma.

Cowboys reduce roster

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran's Preston Pearson and Aaron Kyle went on the injured reserve list Monday as the Dallas Cowboys trimmed their roster to the National Football League maximum of 45 players.

Pearson, a 14-year running back from Illinois, and Kyle, a fifth-year cornerback from Wyoming, will not be eligible to play for the team the rest of the 1980 season unless they clear no-recall waivers.

Other changes announced by the team saw second-year cornerback Wade Manning, from Ohio State, traded to Buffalo for an undisclosed 1981 draft choice while fourth-year running back Larry Brunson, from Florida, and rookie free agent cornerback Eric Hurt of San Diego St. were given their outright releases.

UT ground game rolls by Arkansas

(Continued from page 1-B) was awful quiet down there. I knew my staff and the team wanted to go for the touch-down. That's what we needed. I voted to go for it since my vote counts the most. It was a big momentum play for us."

Texas owned a 17-7 half time lead after Jones, who had 165 yards on 29 carries for his evening's work, scored on a one-yard dive over the middle.

Enraged Arkansas narrowed the count to 17-10 with a 19-yard field goal in the third quarter by Ish Ordonez. Little countered with a 10-yard scoring run for a 23-10 Longhorn lead.

Then Arkansas made things real sticky. Darryl Bowles ran two-yards for a touchdown with 3:11 to play.

Which brings us to the play 10 Texas players didn't know about.

"I called the play and Coach Akers went along with it," said Little. "I just didn't tell the team. I faked the ball to Carl Robinson and everybody went one way. I went the other."

Nobody was surprised any more than offensive tackle Terry Tausch, a human road clearing machine in this collegiate football opener.

"We all thought it was a sweep to the left and everybody blocked that way," said Tausch. "Surprised — I'd say. My heart was in my throat."

Robinson was dumbfounded. "I thought the play was a bust," he said. "Dennie just wouldn't give me the ball. Now, I know why!"

Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz also knew why his team lost. He was like Robinson: The Razorbacks just couldn't get the ball.

Lopez-Melton sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole in rallying to a 1-stroke win Monday over JoAnne Carner.

Carner sank a 12-foot putt for par on the 18th before

33-question quiz designed to help workers

Houston psychologist develops stress quotient test

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston psychologist says he has developed a test that helps a worker measure his ability to manage aggression, anxiety, endurance and other stress factors that lead to hardship on the job and trouble at home.

Michael S. Haro, an associate professor in the School of Education at the University of Houston at Clear Lake City, calls his test the "Tension Quotient."

He has given the 33-question quiz to 500 oil company workers who volunteered to take the TQ test during the last year.

"I think the TQ could be of help to just about anybody holding a job," Haro said. "It points out areas where someone might be particularly vulnerable to problems and yet might not be aware of them."

He said the scores belong to individual employees and will never be used for or against employees.

"They can discuss the tests with others if they wish but no one but the employee and I know the scores," he said.

Haro said most people have no major tension-related problems until something extraordinary is added, such as divorce, death of a loved one, a too-demanding boss or a serious disease.

"Just because someone has a high-stress job, though, doesn't mean he or she cannot handle the tension," he said. "In fact, lots of people seem to thrive on their stresses."

The TQ test is divided into six categories and includes an assessment by the employee of his personality type.

Many individuals are "completely unaware of just how stressful their jobs may be," Haro said.

"And then if they have serious stresses in their families or even on the freeways they can get into trouble," he said.

Haro added that many companies lose considerable money when workers are absent due to stressful situations.

"I think employers could intervene to help those who are excessively absent," Haro said. "Then they should watch for accidents caused by carelessness or inattention, followed sometimes by employees' increasing dependence on alcohol."

Foreign ownership of Texas land debated

AUSTIN — A recommendation that Texas prohibit foreign ownership of agricultural land received tentative approval Tuesday from the House Committee on Agricultural and Livestock.

Most members, however, said so me form of exemption for citizens of Mexico and Canada should be made, since they are neighbors and Texans are allowed to own land in those countries.

Without such a provision, members of the Mexican-American legislative delegation would be opposed to any bill incorporating the committee's recommendation, several members said.

Rep. Susan Gurley McBe

of Del Rio said a number of Texans along the border own interests in Mexican land, upto 49 percent legally, and that ownership might be threatened if Mexican citizens could not own Texas land.

"I definitely think we ought to make an exception for Mexico and Canada," Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale said.

The committee asked Rep. L. P. "Pete" Patterson of Brookston to rewrite the recommendation to include an exemption for Mexico and Canada and bring it back for final approval.

After Patterson's revised recommendation is accepted by the committee, it will go to the full House when the legislature convenes in January.

Some members also expressed fears that foreign-owned petroleum companies would be hampered by such a law.

Patterson said, however, that if a foreign company wants to buy agricultural land for a refinery, for example, that such ownership can be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Vision Screening Act attempt to aid children

Effective Monday, the Texas Children's Vision Screening Act of 1979 requires that all children enrolling in any public, private, parochial, or denominational school for the first time, shall have either been examined by a physical or an optometrist licensed to practice in the United States, or have undergone a vision screening test approved by the Texas Board of Health.

According to the Texas Department of Health; the purpose of this Act is to identify children who are in need of a professional eye examination to determine whether they are visually handicapped.

Louis E. Love, O.D., president of the Texas Optometric Association, stated: "Texas teachers, Texas administrators are concerned about the physical and mental well-being of their pupils. They are aware of the relation of vision to learning — efficient reading, the understanding of math, participation in sports, personal safety, even emotional problems. However, there has been no Texas legislative mandate to provide vision screening for all children.

"This new law," Dr. Love said, "is a good beginning."

Surveys conducted by the Texas Commission for the Blind, by Volunteers for Vision and others have found that — despite the programs conducted by many schools, PTAs, and other volunteer groups — nearly one-third public school children have not had any type of vision screening, Love said. National and numerous state studies indicate that 5 percent of all preschool children and 8 percent to 10 percent of children entering first grade have some degree of vision problems.

The Vision Screening Act, effective Sept. 1, 1980, is Texas's first statewide, formal attempt to find these children. The primary target group this year, according to the Texas Department of Health, includes young children entering kindergarten or first grade, and students transferring into Texas schools from another state.

"There is another positive aspect about this new Vision Screening Act," Dr. Love stated. "That is the legislature's intent that it not involve added costs for local governments, and that it not involve costs to the parents to obtain the screening for their children.

"The way it is hoped the program will work is that the screening will be done by volunteer groups such as Volunteers for Vision, Society to Prevent Blindness, Delta Gamma sororities, and by school personnel already in place. Concerned parents may also contact education service centers for the Texas Education Agency, regional offices of the Texas Department of Health, or their local health departments."

Borden County trustees map swim pool plans
 GAIL — The Borden County school board has drawn up plans for a swimming pool.

The pool would be 30X50 feet, with encircling concrete decking, diving boards, separate dressing facilities, heater, filters and etc. The pool would be protected by a six-foot fence.

The Borden County commissioners court has agreed to pay the operating costs during the summer months when the public would be using the facility.

Preliminary cost of the pool is $81,950. Because three cents of each $100 valuation had been set aside in the 1979-80 budget, no increase in the 1980-81 budget is anticipated.

On the contrary, because of the increased oil activity in Borden County, school taxpayers will be paying six cents less per $100 valuation than they did last year.

Routine check leads to arrest

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two persons are in custody today after a Department of Public Safety trooper making a routine driver's license check found a blanket-wrapped body in their car, a DPS spokesmann said.

A 38-year-old man and a 23-year-old woman were taken arrested about 5 p.m. Monday after the trooper found the body of Eula Jean Lewis, 18, in the back seat of a car driven by the man, a DPS spokesman said.

Both suspects and the victim were from Lubbock, the DPS spokesman said.

The victim, clad only in red jogging shorts, had been dead about six hours, according to the spokesman.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ordered an autopsy.

The man and woman were held in Lubbock County jail pending possible arraignment on murder charges, according to a spokesman for the Lubbock County Sheriff's department.
