Unemployment down, food prices up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged down to 7.6 percent in August, signaling a slowing of the recession, but wholesale food prices surged upward for a second straight month to forewarn sharply higher supermarket costs, the government reported today.

In companion reports, the Labor Department said significant improvements in manufacturing for the first time this year helped lower the jobless rate from July's 7.8 percent rate.

Department analysts interpreted the unemployment dip as a positive sign that economic activity is improving following a sharp drop in output earlier this year.

At the same time, however, the department said wholesale, or producer, food prices at the finished-goods level spurted 4.4 percent last month, the steepest increase in seven years. That jump followed a 3.8 percent rise in July. Government analysts attributed the large increase to the unusually hot and dry weather that has devastated crops and livestock throughout much of the country.

Overall, wholesale prices jumped 1.5 percent in August, following a 1.7 percent increase in July. Last month's increase, if compounded over 12 months, would equal an annual rate of 20.2 percent. That compares with an actual increase of 14.6 percent increase in wholesale prices for the past year.

Department analysts said the higher food prices would be passed on to consumers at the retail level quite soon.

And further increases may be coming later this year, the department said, because wholesale food prices at an intermediate level of production jumped 9.7 percent in August, the largest rise in nearly six years. That increase will take longer to work its way up to the consumer level.

If there were a good sign in the producer price report, it would be that prices for non-food items continued to moderate, suggesting an easing of inflation outside of the food sector.

Producer prices for non-food goods rose 0.7 percent in August, compared with a 1.1 percent increase in July.

The number of unemployed people in the country dropped by nearly 200,000 in August to 8 million, while non-farm employment as reported by businesses rose by 200,000, the first increase since February.

The jobless rate among workers in manufacturing industries, which were hit hardest by the economic slump, fell a full percentage point to 9.3 percent after rising steadily throughout the year.

In another sign of economic improvement, the government said the average work week in the manufacturing sector rose by 30 minutes, the first increase since January. "As best as we can tell, this is some kind of an indication that things seem to be looking up," said Deborah Klein, a Labor Department employment analyst.

The improvement did not seem to extend across the entire economy, however.

In the construction industry, also in a severe slump, the unemployment rate rose 2.2 percentage points in August to 18.3 percent.

Overall, 97 million people held jobs in August, unchanged from a year ago. The number of unemployed people, however, was up 1.9 million from August 1979, when the jobless rate was 5.9 percent.

The unemployment rate shot up from 6 percent to 7.8 percent between February and May, as the full force of the recession took its toll on the labor force. But joblessness has shown little change since then, confirming other economic indications that the worst of the economic downturn recession may be over.

The Labor Department said that over the past two months, the number of people on layoffs has declined by 425,000, with two-thirds of this reduction occurring in August. About one in five jobless people is on layoff.

STICKY SITUATION — George Bush, Republican candidate for vice president, finds himself in a sticky situation as he arrives at Greater Pittsburgh Airport Thursday afternoon and gets stuck with a campaign button offered him by Lee Zoltak, right, campaign manager for Kathleen Meyer, center, a GOP congressional candidate from the 18th District. Bush recovered and gave Mrs. Meyer a kiss.

Free school for illegal aliens

State educators don't like ruling; will comply

HOUSTON (AP) — State educators voiced concern, disappointment and apprehension over a Supreme Court Justice's ruling that Texas must provide free public education to illegal alien children, but all agreed to comply with the order.

"This is really going to put us in a bind as far as teachers and space are concerned," Brownsville School Superintendent Raul Besteiro said of Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr.'s ruling.

"I have mixed emotions about this. I don't want to hurt the kids, but I don't want to hurt my educational system components either," Besteiro said.

In July, U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals struck down a Texas law prohibiting the use of state funds to educate illegal alien children.

Last month, the 5th U.S. Circuit

Court of Appeals stayed Seals' order but Powell's ruling Thursday set aside the stay and left the original order intact.

Los Angeles attorney Peter Schay, who challenged the Texas law, said the decision "was received by our clients with joy and tears."

"Our long battle in federal court to establish that undocumented children are persons under our Constitution and are entitled to some level of protection ... has finally found acceptance," he said.

Seals' ruling July 21 found a 1975 state law, unique to Texas, violated the equal protection rights of illegal aliens.

The law let them attend public schools if they paid tuition, but the trial court found that the tuitions were too expensive for illegal alien families.

Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, praised the ruling as "brilliant, the only just result."

"It is time for the State of Texas to stop this utter nonsense of denying children an education and we again call on the state legislature to repeal the statute that allows the imposition of outlandish tuition fees on undocumented workers," Bonilla, a Corpus Christi attorney, said.

Texas authorities estimate 120,000 illegal alien children live in the state. Seals rejected the figure, saying 20,000 was a more realistic number.

"We will be enrolling students Friday unless there are circumstances of which we not aware," said Billy Reagan, Houston superintendent.

Civiletti tells Senate panel

Conversation needs no apology

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti told Senate investigators today he raised the Billy Carter affair with President Carter not to give advice but to inform the president that this "was an investigation which I would not discuss with him."

"My conversation with President Carter needs no apology," Civiletti told a special Senate subcommittee investigating the ties between the president's brother and the radical North African nation of Libya.

"I wanted the president to understand that I considered Billy Carter's case different from those about which from time to time I advise him, and that this was one which we should not discuss."

The attorney general said he did tell the president he understood Billy Carter would not be prosecuted if he registered as a foreign agent. But he said he divulged nothing about the Justice Department's investigation of the Billy.

"I did not consider, and the president, I am confident, did not consider this to be a 'deal' or a 'commitment' of any kind and any suggestions to the contrary are unfair and baseless," he testified.

The attorney general said he does not recall telling his investigators six days earlier to wait 10 days before taking any action against the president's brother.

But Civiletti said that if he did make that statement the purpose would have been to give Billy Carter time to register voluntarily.

"I cannot state precisely what I said," Civiletti said, "but I can state that I never directed or suggested that the investigation in any way be delayed or deferred, and it was not."

But Civiletti told the senators he did make a mistake by telling the press last July 24 that he had not discussed the Billy Carter affair with the president when he had.

Civiletti said he thought the question was whether he had discussed the investigation with the president and said he replied truthfully that he had not.

But he said he was wrong because the question had been whether he had discussed the matter with the president at all, which he had.

"I was wrong in attempting to draw such a close, lawyer-like distinction in responding to a general public inquiry," Civiletti said.

On another matter, the attorney general said he withheld U.S. intelligence information on Libyan payments to Billy Carter from his own investigators for two reasons.

One, he said, was that the information could not be used in court without jeopardizing a U.S. intelligence source. The other, he said, was that he believed then and believes now that such information is so sensitive it should not be passed on to anyone unless the need for it is essential.

Civiletti said he did allow his investigators to see the information so that they could confirm information they had received from other sources that Billy Carter had received $220,000 from Libya.

Principal to superintendent

Sands school promotes Smith

ACKERLY — Dave Smith has been named superintendent of schools at Sands, succeeding Bill Everett, who resigned suddenly to become superintendent of the Merkel school system.

Smith, a native of Brown County and a graduate of Howard Payne, has been serving as high school principal here since 1978. He was succeeded in that capacity by Dan Schaefer, formerly junior high school science teacher and tennis coach at Sweetwater.

Smith starts the job not without experience as a school superintendent. He served in that capacity at Talpa-Centennial from 1973 through 1978.

Smith played football at Howard Payne University in Brownwood. He took a job as a coach at Anton after graduating from Howard Payne and remained there for eight years.

He moved from Anton to Gorman as high school principal, remaining there for four years. He then took a job as junior high principal at Brownwood for five years and went from there to Talpa-Centennial.

Smith's contract is for the 1980-81 school year.

Schaefer, in his new position, will double as elementary school principal.

Everett succeeds Ray Etheridge at Merkel, who submitted his resignation at a meeting Tuesday night of the school board.

Etheridge's resignation was to take effect immediately. However, according to Everett, he will remain in the system as a consultant until January. He will continue to draw his regular salary until that time.

Everett is a native of Putnam, Tex., and graduated from high school there. He attended Cisco Junior College and received his bachelor's degree from Hardin-Simmons University. He later took his master's degree from Abilene Christian University and has been working toward his doctorate at North Texas State University.

Everett began his school career at Trent High School near Abilene before leaving for military service during the Korean conflict. In 1965, he coached at Loraine and later joined the Colorado City faculty, where he remained for eight years.

From 1964 until 1972, Everett served schools in Irving as a coach and assistant principal. In 1972, he returned to Colorado City where he was high school principal.

When Sands beckoned in 1978, he took the job as superintendent where he remained until the Merkel job opened.

Everett's wife, Fredalyn, will teach sixth grade at Sweetwater. The Everetts have two married sons and a daughter who is in the seventh grade.

As of Thursday, a total of 273 students were enrolled in the Sands school, up about five over a year ago at the same time.

Action/reaction: 'It looks better now'

Q. I took flowers to Trinity Memorial Park and was appalled to see how it is being kept. I did not expect to see a pretty green yard after our hot, dry summer, but did expect to see a neat one. It was difficult to find the headstones and the names on them, as weeds had grown up over and around them. Can something be done about this?

A. The person who asked this had a legitimate complaint, according to Steve Childress, president and owner of the company. The riding lawnmower broke down and they had trouble getting a part within the state. They also could not find a place in Big Spring to rent a mower. There were a large number of funerals over a two day period and "funerals come first." And they were also short manpower due to illness. "If she would have come to me, I would have explained the problem to her," Childress said. The mower is fixed now and additional weed eaters have been purchased. His men are also working late. "A dissatisfied customer will get his money back and we will move the body to the city cemetery for free," he said. "I was embarrassed with how it looked. It looks better now."

Work barge capsizes; nine survive, one dies

GRAND ISLE, La. (AP) — A work barge that had been sandblasting an oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico capsized today, tossing the crew overboard and killing one man.

Six crewmen scrambled to a nearby Chevron oil production platform, but a search was launched for four others.

Search teams battling heavy seas and high winds rescued three of the men, but the fourth was found dead.

"We have three of them and the body is being picked up now," said Doug Bandos, a Coast Guard spokesman. "They were found 10 miles from the original position."

Newell Schindler, a spokesman for Chevron oil company, said the rescued men appeared to be in good condition.

The crew was thrown overboard in the predawn darkness when the "jackpot" type barge capsized 17 miles southwest of Grand Isle, said Petty Officer Doug Bandos of the Coast Guard's Search and Rescue Center in New Orleans.

The barge, on 90-foot legs, was being used to sandblast a Chevron oil drilling platform beside it when the accident occurred, he said.

After capsizing, the work barge drifted a mile and came to rest against a second Chevron platform with 24 workmen aboard, Schindler said.

That drilling platform was shut down as a precaution, and 22 of the workmen aboard were evacuated.

"Two men stayed behind voluntarily to help get the barge moved," Schindler said. "They feel they are safe aboard the platform."

The barge has hydraulic legs which extend to Gulf floor for support.

The Coast Guard was alerted to the accident at 3:46 a.m. CST.

Grand Isle is on the southeast Louisiana coast, about 60 miles south of New Orleans.

SATURDAY
Semi-annual rummage sale sponsored by the Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer Services Council concludes at 1407 Lancaster, 9 a.m., to 6 p.m.

CRMWD deliveries of water increase

At the end of June water deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District were running 3.56 per cent behind the previous year. Then came unprecedented municipal demands in July and August, and now the system is 4.82 percent ahead.

During August, CRMWD delivered 1,930,759,000 gallons of water or 16.60 percent more than August 1979. In July it had delivered 2,263,407,000 gallons, a gain of 32.61 percent. For the two months the total was 4,193,000,000 gallons, the best two back-to-back months on record.

Through seven months, CRMWD deliveries stood at 11,892,864,000 gallons.

These gains were effected despite reduced deliveries to oil companies as a conservation measure. Through August oil company demands amounted to 1,223,164,000 gallons, or 792,000,000 gallons less than for the same period a year ago. Back in 1976 when there were no restrictions on oil companies, the district delivered 4,423,000,000 gallons to them during the first seven months.

In August Odessa used 829,724,000 gallons, up 23.03 percent over August 1979; Big Spring 370,511,000 gallons, up 13.25 percent; Snyder 138,809,000, up 46.88 percent; Stanton 14,118,000, up 1.79 percent; Midland 411,390,000, up 4.93 percent. Robert Lee used 8,721,800 gallons and in 1979 it took no water from the district. Municipal deliveries for the year amounted to 10,669,699,000 gallons, or 14.36 percent more than for the same time in 1979.

NEW LIBRARY AIDE AT SWCID Nita Tarbet comes well qualified

Tarbet hired as library assistant for SWCID

Nita Tarbet of Big Spring has been named library assistant for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, according to Executive Director, Doug Burke.

Ms. Tarbet was formerly in charge of the Hawaiian Language Program at the Forsan Independent School District before accepting her job at the institute. She will be working in the Anthony Hunt Library at the Howard College campus.

"I am really excited and proud to be a part of such an outstanding staff," said Tarbet. "Working with the staff at SWCID is an enriching experience."

"The most exciting thing for me is helping other people reach their goals. And in this position, I feel I can accomplish this."

"So many times young deaf people have dreams of reaching goals, but don't know how to go about obtaining them, or how to get the proper type of training. I know how frustrating it is to have a dream and not be able to achieve it because of lack of facilities," she said.

"This is important to me; seeing people reaching their goals and being part of it."

Ms. Tarbet's duties include the organization and administration of the library services for the deaf at both campuses. "I also organize services for faculty in any way that may be of use to them," she said. "Such as getting books for their classes, finding books on specific subjects and being an interpreter for deaf students whenever needed."

Previous to working for the Forsan Independent School District, Ms. Tarbet was a teacher's aide with the Odessa Independent School District's Deaf Program. There she was a supervisor of students who needed individual tutoring. She also taught lip reading and was in charge of the Veritex Program, a frosting method of teaching.

From 1976-1979, Ms. Tarbet was an aide in the Integrated Room of the Big Spring School District. There she worked with the problem children and programs for individual students who were physically handicapped and mentally and emotionally disturbed children. Nita is a recipient of various awards. She has received the Outstanding Person of the Year award in 1978 from Odessa and Midland; the Big Spring's Lions Club Outstanding Citizen of the Year-1980; People Helping People award for outstanding service-1980; Beta Sigma Phi, Midland, for Citizen of the Year-1979; and Senior Citizens, Midland, People Helping People award-1979.

Ms. Tarbet has been on the lecture tour for many years discussing various subjects dealing with overcoming handicaps and deaf awareness. She also has held a three-day seminar for interns at the University of California in Los Angeles, and she has also conducted lecture workshops in Dallas for women on being a whole person.

She has also won awards for art, painting, and drawing in art shows. She drew the March of Dimes Defect Poster in 1973, and helped with posters for other drives. She also draws portraits for private individuals.

Oil recovery experiment excites state official

Harte Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The stuff that adds fizz to soft drinks now brings smiles to state Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong.

Thursday, Armstrong learned that an experimental oil recovery scheme using carbon dioxide gas instead of state land and another 1,280 acres of private land in West Texas.

That scheme, he said, could help producers bring an additional 30 million barrels of oil to the surface and at least $25 million to state coffers over the next 30 years.

The oil lease, owned in part by Cornell Oil Co., is part of what is known as the Wasson Field Yoakum County, southwest of Lubbock.

"The general public doesn't understand that there's a lot of oil there that we haven't recovered because of non-need or technological problems," Armstrong said during a meeting with Cornell officials.

"Take these old oil fields — that's just as good as Arab oil," he added.

Before the price of oil went up and the carbon dioxide recovery method was discovered, as much as 75 percent of the known oil reserves in some fields was too costly or impossible to recover, Armstrong said.

Later, the land commissioner said, "The real significance of it is that it will be one of the first carbon dioxide recovery operations."

"Instead of recovering one-fourth to one-third of the oil reserves like we did in the old days, we could recover one-half to two-thirds."

The carbon dioxide recovery experiment, expected to start in late 1983 and begin showing some results by 1985, is being pushed by the U.S. Department of Energy.

The initial experiment is expected to cost about $55 million, Cornell Oil officials said, with another $186 million needed to pay for the 30-40 year operation.

DOE officials estimate that the new system could increase production in that particular field by as much as 3,000 barrels a day, Cornell Oil officials added.

Armstrong was particularly pleased with the chance for making more money for the state.

The expectation of an additional $25 million in oil and gas royalties to the state from that lease alone is based on the assumption that oil will remain at about $40 a barrel.

Any increase in the price or use of the new technique on other state-owned leases would mean even more money for the state and more oil for the nation.

Cornell Oil Co. President Bob Lyles, represented by former state Attorney General John Hill, brought the proposal to Armstrong for a preview before it goes to the School Land Board later this fall.

Lyles said the 61 wells now on the full 1,920 acres produce about 8,700 barrels of oil a day with the help of a similar technique that uses water.

Water flooding, which began in 1965 in the Wasson Field and is commonly used in the Permian Basin oil fields, involves injection of water into oil-bearing formations to force more petroleum to the surface.

However, to stay with the water flooding system, Lyles said, would mean a 10 percent annual drop in production.

An engineering consultant for Cornell, Bill Cobb, explained the difference between the current water flood technique and the carbon dioxide method: "When you inject water to displace oil, it will move some oil out, but it leaves a significant amount behind because oil and water don't mix."

Up to now, he said, water has been the cheapest substance to inject underground, but pipelines from New Mexico and Colorado will soon bring a fairly cheap supply of natural carbon dioxide gas to the Permian Basin oil fields.

"If you inject carbon dioxide into the ground at a pressure of more than 1,400 pounds (per square inch), it will mix with the oil," Cobb said. "And because it mixes, it will push more oil out."

If the scheme works, Armstrong said, it could dramatically improve the nation's energy outlook and provide millions of dollars for schools in Texas.

New Polish premier promises increased role for unions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's new premier, in his first major public statement since the end of crippling strikes, promised today to "increase the role of the trade unions" as a partner with the communist government.

Appearing before a special session of parliament, Premier Jozef Pinskiowski pledged that his government would raise wages, freeze meat prices and increase consumer goods in hopes of improving living standards.

His remarks came during a two-hour speech before the Sejm, or parliament, in which he outlined the government's plans for implementing the controversial settlements negotiated with striking workers in the Baltic region and the Silesian coalfields. The last of the strikers returned to work today.

The government information agency Interpress said Communist Party leader Edward Gieriek did not attend the session. No explanation was given for his absence.

Pinskiowski said that "for the sake of social and national good" the government would implement agreements made with striking workers ending weeks of labor unrest.

"We expect from the crews of those factories and works (which struck) that they will also keep their promises, particularly, making up production losses," Pinskiowski said. His speech was reported by the official PAP news agency.

Pinskiowski said meat prices — whose doubling last July triggered the labor crisis — would be frozen until next fall, effective immediately. There was no indication at what level the prices would be frozen.

He said Poland would introduce five-day work weeks starting next year, and that the lowest monthly salaries would be raised by $13.50 to $80 by next January.

He also promised that supplies for the domestic market, suffering from shortages of all kinds, would be increased by $1 billion and the revised 1981 economic plan would be presented at the beginning of December.

"The current session of the Sejm takes place in an atmosphere of relaxation," the premier said, two days after the settlement of a six-day walkout by coal miners in the southern region of Silesia.

LAMESA school count down

LAMESA — Enrollment in the Lamesa school system is down almost 300 from last year, according to School Supt. Neal Chastain.

Chastain said enrollment in the high school, less than 800, is the lowest it has been in many years. Middle school has 860 students, down from around 1,400 of a few years ago.

Total enrollment here is 2,785, compared to 2,954 from the first week in 1979.

The two allegedly tried to give the boy to Ialo Patinella, owner of Patinella Auto Sales here, in exchange for a 1977 Corvette when they couldn't raise $8,800 for the car, officials said. Patinella made a report to the state Division of Youth and Family Services.

Six firefighters vindicated

MORAGA, Calif. (AP) — Six firefighters, reprimanded by the state's Occupational Safety and Health Administration last week, have been vindicated for actions they took to save a carpenter.

The state agency had issued two reprimands against the Moraga Fire Department last week, saying the firefighters didn't follow training and procedures when they rescued David Michaels, 38, after a slab of heavy clay collapsed into a 12-foot hole, burying him to the waist.

But Thursday, after Fire Chief Don Skinner wrote letters of commendation to his men and the victim's wife presented the firefighters with a cake, the agency reversed itself and revoked the citations.

Crime bosses want death

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Organized crime bosses have discussed executing reputed crime figure Joseph Bonanno because notes retrieved from his garbage are so incriminating, authorities say.

The notes, gathered by state law enforcement officials over a three-year period in Arizona, helped convict Bonanno in San Jose, Calif., on Tuesday of federal charges of conspiring to obstruct justice.

The crime leaders recently met in the East to discuss killing Bonanno, said Gene Ehmann, assistant director of the Arizona Drug Control District on Wednesday. The notes have developed investigations in five states and one foreign country, he added.

Oil discovery in Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — Two American oil companies say they have discovered oil in Europe's North Sea.

Texaco Inc. reported in White Plains, N.Y., Thursday that its subsidiary, Deutsche Texaco A.G., discovered oil four miles offshore and 60 miles northwest of Hamburg, West Germany. Robert C. McCay, president of Texaco Europe, called test results "very encouraging."

In Los Angeles, Union Oil Co. of California said its Union Oil Co. of the Netherlands struck oil for the fourth time in the Dutch sector of the North Sea, 20 miles offshore and 54 miles northwest of Amsterdam.

He said California was the leading agriculture state with 1979 receipts of $12.5 billion.

"We have been No. 3 for several years now, and I believe that in the near future we will be No. 1," Brown said in a statement.

'Borrowing is in vogue'

Millions follow financial advice

NEW YORK (AP) — Although it might seem so at times, the financial decisions of people aren't always governed by what Washington says or what well-known money men advise or what the stock market is doing.

Some of the most widespread advice being offered today, for example, is to balance your finances in order to ride out the latest recession, and millions seem to follow that advice. Consumer credit is down.

But to the publisher of the Financial Freedom Report, a publication "designed for the highly motivated individual who is seeking to establish his own financial freedom," borrowing is in vogue.

In a "bulletin" in the latest issue, publisher Mark O. Haroldsen, who founded the magazine in Salt Lake City several years ago, advises "You should be borrowing money now from your local bank."

inflation, using other people's money and paying as little income tax as you can. Borrowed money, he says repeatedly, is yours tax-free. And during chronic inflation, he points out, you repay in cheaper dollars.

How widely this advice is followed is hard to say, but Haroldsen and others like him have mailing lists in the thousands, which is evidence that the practices of many people are contrary to conventional wisdom.

Conventional wisdom also promotes the notion that there isn't much you can do to lower your income taxes other than to hope, pray and cajole Congress into granting a tax reduction. Many people don't believe that.

The evidence comes from the popularity of tax avoidance seminars, in which attendees are taught how to take every possible deduction and how to set up businesses in which assets can be quickly depreciated.

Tax avoidance seminars now seem to be sweeping the country. In Mill Valley, Calif., Bill Greene uses his front lawn to tell people how it's done. He says his privately printed book, "Welcome to The Tax Revolt," is selling well, even though most sales are by mail order.

Tax avoidance, of course, is not tax evasion, but it really isn't tax avoidance either. More accurately it is tax deferral because, at least in theory, the taxes eventually are going to come due and collectible.

Even the elderly are doing their own thing. Have you heard of "desaving?" Perhaps not, but you probably have heard of the reverse mortgage, and the two terms mean roughly the same thing.

The reverse mortgage, in which the elderly would mortgage their fully paid home, receiving monthly payments on an annuity basis related to their expected lifespan, have the endorsement even of regulators.

Moral: For good or for bad, many people today seem to be doing their own financial thing, not waiting for someone to give them the official line but, out of necessity, experimenting and sometimes winning.

Pet show protection

Be sure to vaccinate against deadly disease

Families with children who are planning to enter their dogs in the Howard County Fair's Pet Show this year should take precautions to vaccinate their animals against a deadly canine disease known as Parvovirus.

There has been a serious outbreak of Parvovirus in the area this year. Pet owners should consult their veterinarians about the problem.

As in previous fairs, the pet show will be held on the Friday night of the Sept. 15-20 fair. There will be classes for dogs, cats, farm animals and exotic species.

As always, fair requirements require that all domestic animals should be protected against rabies by proper inoculation; all exotic animals must be caged or on leash sufficient to maintain control at all times.

A night of fun and excitement is promised Howard County children and their pets at the pet show. The activity gets under way at 7:30 p.m.

Additional information regarding the pet show can be obtained from Bruce Wright, pet show chairman. He can be reached by dialing 267-8276.

Tropical depression moving toward state

By The Associated Press

A tropical depression was moving slowly westward in the Gulf of Mexico today, threatening to move close to the Texas coast by late today or Saturday.

The depression was located about 200 miles southeast of Galveston before dawn. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center at Miami said gale warnings might be issued of the upper Texas coast later today.

Highest winds were 35 mph and the depression was moving slowly westward, prompting forecasters to warn that the system might reach tropical storm strength before reaching the Texas coast.

Small craft from Biloxi, Miss., to Port Arthur were warned to stay in port and small craft from Port Arthur to Port O'Connor were urged not to venture far from port.

Forecasters warned of the possibility of heavy thunderstorms and rainfall in Southeast Texas by tonight. Some thunderstorm activity was reported along the upper Texas coast early today.

Forecasts for the remainder of the state called for clear to partly cloudy skies and continued warm to hot temperatures. Highs were to remain in the 80s in Southeast Texas and along the remainder of the coast and range upward to near 100 in North Texas and in interior sections of South Texas.

Mineral Wells and Tyler tied for the state's hot spot Thursday with 101. Dallas-Fort Worth and Waco had 100.

A few showers were reported during the night in the mountains of Southwest Texas and along the coast.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s. Extremes ranged from 56 at Marfa to 84 at Fort Worth.

Stadium setting of memorable events

Memorial Stadium here was, of course, built primarily for football. It is ironic that the two most publicized events ever staged within the confines of the field had nothing to do with football.

The first was the celebrated Race of the Century featuring Dave Sime and Bobby Morrow, staged 22 years ago. The second was the recent Willie Nelson Concert.

BOTH EVENTS attracted world-wide attention. Morrow and Sime were coming off great years in the Olympic Games. Morrow didn't want to race at that particular time but he conditionally accepted an offer to run IF the sponsoring organization, the American Business Club, could get Sime, then of Duke University, to enter. What Morrow and his coach, Oliver Jackson, didn't know at the time that Sime had already tentatively accepted an invitation to compete here.

Of course, there was a third man in that race. He was Bill Woodhouse, a fellow student of Morrow's at Abilene Christian College (now ASU). As it turned out he not only beat Morrow but almost beat Sime.

The news of the impending race went around the world and Sports Illustrated Magazine sent Tex Maule here. Numerous newspapers around the nation were represented here, including the Dallas Times-Herald and Morning News, the Houston Post and the Albuquerque paper. Both wire services sent in people. Darrell Royal showed up, as did Wilbur Evans, who later was to arrange all those great Cotton Bowl bookings.

As it turned out, the weather was hideous. The sand blew so hard it stung when it hit you and it hit often. Still, 6,500 people showed up for the race and ABC officials reason they could have sold 10,000 tickets had the weather been good.

The Willie Nelson Concert, staged here last week, by the Big Spring and Snyder Jaycees, attracted the biggest crowd in the history of the stadium, estimated at 10,000.

People who took a stand against Nelson's life style predicted dire things would happen before, during and after the concert but the show came off beautifully.

Nelson was critical of some of the adverse publicity that preceded the show but the flak he and his troupe caught only served to heighten interest in the 'happening.'

Nelson was in top form. The crowd gave him a great ovation when he arrived, as promised, promptly at 8 p.m., and was 'with him' all the way.

When Willie decided to donate his fee to the charity dictated by the Jaycees, his picture and his comments were carried around the world. The concert itself and the anti-Nelson comments were included in an ABC-TV news segment the day after the program. A story about the concert and its side effects made the front page of the Little Rock, Ark., paper. The Associated Press originated six telephone calls about the show and its principals. The UPI got into the act with several stories. The Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau asked for a detailed story. The major newspapers in the state displayed the story 'outside' more often than not, which means it wound up on Page One.

The Jaycees worked long and hard to see that the concert came off without an uncomplimentary incident and their toil paid rich dividends. Even Nelson's band members seemed determined to contribute to a highly moral atmosphere. One of the musicians, when asked if any one of them had smuggled any fire water into the stadium, replied, "...if they're going to raise Holy Ned, we're going to be real good guys."

The Jaycees were trying to do something on a positive note for a community that admittedly has been on a downer recently. They richly deserved the accolades that came their way.

Slightly pagan

Around the rim

James Werrell

Some people think lobsters are big insects.

Actually they are oceanic arthropods of the class Crustacea. But the underwater-bug image still comes on pretty strong.

Lobsters have antennae, beady little eyes, scorpion-like claws, and scaly little tummies that remind you of an armored desert insect that attacks and devours things much larger than itself. When it comes to eating them, however, the analogy goes up in smoke. Lobsters taste much better than chocolate covered ants or fried grasshoppers.

I KNOW THIS not because I recently dined on grasshoppers and ants, but because a good pal returned this week from a trip to New England laden with a colony of live lobsters and their little friends, the clams.

As we walked into my friend's home where the massacre was about to take place, we found his brother (one of the ones who thinks lobsters are insects) sitting before a huge iced tub swarming with the clawed beasts.

"I was just trying to figure out how much further I have evolved than these things," he announced.

"What's the verdict?" I asked.

"About 11 days," he replied.

Very apt, I thought to myself, as I reached down to scratch one of the little fellows on the neck and tell him that we must get together for dinner sometime. Eleven days was apt because a state of de-evolution is very appropriate for the act of eating lobsters.

The experience of being served an elegantly garnished lobster tail at a table swathed in linen, off of which dances the light of shimmering candles, is pretty far removed from plunging a live lobster into boiling water before tearing it apart and eating it with your bare hands.

In essence, true lobster eaters are their own butchers, and they're all slightly pagan.

The first thing you do before digging into your recently deceased lobster is to remove the little rubber bands that had held its claws shut. The rubber bands are there not only to protect the fingers of lobster handlers, but also to keep the mean-spirited crustaceans from eating each other.

People who have tried to raise lobsters in captivity have often had their herd reduced to one; the biggest and hungriest of the cannibals. Back to evolution and survival of the fittest, eh Mr. Darwin?

The second thing you do is rip off the claw itself, and crack it open with anything handy to get to one of the three best places to find meat on a lobster; the other two being the tail and the other claw.

Finishing this feast, finicky fanatics will proceed to pull off each of the lobsters tiny legs and suck the innards out of it. This, of course, is just a form of self-torture induced to make the eating of the tail all the more pleasurable; sort of like banging your head against the wall because it feels so good when you stop.

TO GET TO the tail meat, you pull off the little fan-shaped appendages (some people suck these, too), bend the whole contraption backwards, and yank it off. This brings you eye-to-eye with a green, viscous substance on the inside tip of the tail called the tamale.

It should come as no shock that veteran lobster eaters consider this stuff a delicacy. All I can say is that A) it doesn't come wrapped in a corn husk, and B) it tastes a little better than it looks.

My advice is, skip it and go straight for the tail.

By the time that you finish this incredible epicurean adventure, you will be covered from head to toe in melted butter, lemon juice and lobster drippings. You will also be in a euphoric state unrivaled by any other for which a sea creature is responsible; or, as lobster eaters put it, happy as a clam.

Fumes of defeat

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — On the afternoon of Aug. 25, Republican senators and House members, packed into a room in the Capitol's East Front so crowded that many stood and some sat on each other's laps, felt for the first time that Ronald Reagan will lose the election unless things change quickly.

The congressional "surrogates" who have agreed to travel the country on behalf of the Reagan-Bush ticket were summoned for a campaign briefing. It turned out to be more of what the congressmen described as a "fiasco" or a "disaster." Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, the surrogate in biggest demand, walked out in disgust.

To the lawmakers, the Reagan staff showed itself to be disorganized, pompous and unprepared for the heroic task of defeating a determined incumbent president. By dressing down an important Reagan supporter, William Casey also raised doubts about whether he is equipped to fill the campaign manager's post he has held since Feb. 26.

THIS IS NOT MERELY the traditionally foul temper of Capitol Hill. The same things are being said by worried Reagan insiders. Nor is there much time to lose. One Reagan strategist expects the next crop of national polls will show a stunning Reagan decline. As panic sets in, Reagan will have to get organized.

Reagan's backers on Capitol Hill did not really understand the disarray in the Reagan campaign until that Aug. 25 briefing. "I thought it was just the usual liberal media gang trying to zing Reagan," one Southern lawmaker confided to us. "Boy, was I wrong. The press aren't telling half of it."

The sloppy physical arrangements were the tip-off. Room EF100 was not nearly big enough to accommodate the surrogates and their aides. To make matters worse, Reagan headquarters sent a platoon-sized briefing team ("It seemed like a hundred of them, but there must of been around 20," one congressman remembered.)

Casey and Dr. Richard Wirthlin, Reagan's research chief, were present. But the briefing was done by two of Reagan's young right-wing staffers, Rich Williamson (who began the campaign of '80 managing Rep. Philip Crane's ill-fated presidential bid) and Terry Dolan. The surrogates had expected to be told exactly how they would fit into the Reagan campaign. They got nothing of the sort.

Instead, using flip charts, Williamson and Dolan dealt with "peripheral" issues, to use the word invoked most often by the listeners. Much time was spent describing the "vindictive" personality of Jimmy Carter, documenting how he was so terribly nasty to the late Hubert Humphrey. It was at this point that Kemp walked out.

REP. BOB BAUMAN of Maryland, a rising conservative force in the House, took the floor (as we reported earlier) to plead for congressional consultation on decisions such as George Bush's dismal trip to China. What we did not report was Casey's reaction. When the meeting broke up, Casey sought out Bauman to upbraid him for speaking up.

"You're perfect, aren't you?" the tall, lanky Casey, a 67-year-old New York lawyer, snarled to the short, stocky 43-year-old congressman. "I suppose you never made a mistake."

Tips offered for elderly traveler

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 72 years old, in good health, and am contemplating my annual trip to California in a month (bus). Could you tell me, please, how to keep my feet and ankles from swelling during the trip? — V.E.A.

There's no reason why you should put up with this annoyance. If your health is good, as you say it is, a few simple tricks can help prevent your ankle and foot swelling.

The stationary, more or less vertical posture of the body on such trips causes the flow of blood in the leg veins to slow down. This causes the fluid part of the blood to leak out into the surrounding tissue and that causes the swelling.

The best way to keep the blood flow brisk is to elevate the legs, but that might attract unwanted attention in a bus. Your alternative is to rise and walk around a bit at stops. Mention this to your driver at the outset. Make a practice of tightening your leg muscles frequently. Seated with your heels resting on the floor, alternately arch your feet downward, then relax them. Don't cross your legs. That will shut off blood flow. Wear loose-fitting undergarments and snug-fitting elastic hose. Cut down on your salt intake before your trip. Every little bit helps in reducing the fluid problem.

I hope this helps you have a pleasant trip this year, minus the swollen ankles and feet. Write me from California to tell me how you made out.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 13-year-old son is a bedwetter. At age 8 we put him on a bell-alert system, which worked. He did not wet for four years. Then at age 12, while away at camp, he started again and has continued for a year. A urologist suggests a complete urological workup. He is able to hold his urine for long periods during the day. He is very difficult to awaken at night and when he arises to go to the bathroom he is as in a sleepwalk. Can you comment? — Mrs. K.G.B.

You may have put the finger on the underlying problem, deep sleeping. Some doctors have suggested that some enuresis (bed-wetting) can be brought about by particularly heavy sleep. Since the bell alert worked and since you say that he can hold his urine during the day, one might suspect the sleeping problem even more. Psychological factors do not seem to be involved in your son's case. A thorough urological examination is always helpful to rule out structural causes. Was he using the bell-alert system at camp?

I don't know what to suggest, except that you have him examined, continue to let him use the alarm system and hope that time will bring a greater degree of normal bladder control. Yes, in answer to another question in your letter, allergic response has been suggested as another possible factor in bed-wetting.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Who determines the sex of a child, the man or the woman? I heard that if the man has more male hormones the child will be a boy. — S.F.

It has nothing to do with hormones. It has to do with a genetic game in which the male throws the dice.

The woman's ovum (egg) contains two X genes. If that was all there was to it, all babies would be girls, because two X genes always produce females. However, the male's sperm cells

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am in high school, and some of my friends say I need Jesus Christ in my life. But I don't have any big problems, so why do I need God? — M.N.

DEAR M.N.: I knew a man once who had a small sore on his lip. Some of his friends mentioned it to him because it never seemed to heal, and they suggested that he see a doctor about it. He refused, however, scoffing at the idea anything was really wrong with him, although slowly it began to get bigger and bigger. Only when it was too late did he finally seek medical help, and in a few months he was dead of cancer.

The Bible tells us that we each have a deadly disease — a disease called sin. The Bible says, "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 2:32). It also warns us, "For the wages of sin is death" (Romans 6:23). Like the man with cancer, you may not believe you have anything wrong with you, or that you need God. But I would be neglecting my responsibility as a Christian if I did not warn you that you do need contain both an X gene and a Y gene. This makes all the difference.

If the male's fertilizing sperm cell contributes its X gene to the egg, the baby will have two X genes and be a girl. If his sperm cell contributes its Y gene, the baby will have one X and one Y gene and be a boy. Males seem pretty fair about it all, and contribute about as many X genes as Y genes, resulting in a 50-50 distribution of sexes.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When we were kids our mom gave us bald hair cuts during the summer, only the boys, obviously. She said it was to keep us cool and keep our heads clean. I guess kids are more fortunate today, because I never see this being done anymore. Anyway, my question is, would this by chance have promoted my premature baldness — at 50? — N.N.

Not a chance.

Bed-wetting can be a frustrating problem but it can be controlled. To learn how, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Bed-Wetting: Ways To Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

God. You need his forgiveness, and you need his salvation. One of Satan's oldest tricks is to convince us that we do not need God.

You need Christ as you face life. You are young, and you most likely have most of your life before you. In the next few years you will make many decisions — decisions that are very important and will change the direction of your life. God loves you, and because he loves you he does not want you to make the wrong decisions about your career, or your marriage, or your goals in life. He has a perfect will for you and without him you will miss the joy and certainty of knowing you are fulfilling God's purpose in your life.

You also need God as you face death. You may not think about death very much right now, and yet you know that some day your life will be over and you will go into eternity. Christ gave his life for you, that you could be saved and go to heaven with him. Don't miss the salvation he offers you, but open your heart to him by faith.

Missing microfilm

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The intelligence community has been in an uproar for months over a spy story that involves former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and the CIA's best undercover agent in Moscow during the past decade.

It also involves some top-secret microfilm that mysteriously disappeared from CIA vaults and an apparent attempt by the White House to keep a lid on the scandal.

The tale begins in Moscow, in the early 1970s. The agency's man was a Russian named Anatoly Filatov, who had been recruited while serving as a Soviet diplomat abroad. Code-named "Trigon," the CIA spy had been transferred to the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow, and he soon began passing along fantastic information to his American handlers.

BUT ABOUT 1975, the quality of Trigon's dispatches turned into very thin gruel indeed. The CIA suspected that Trigon had been unmasked by the KGB, and was being used to send false information. But the agency maintained its contact with him.

Then, in the spring of 1977, Trigon passed along an intelligence blockbuster. It purported to be a microfilm copy of a cable Dobrynin sent to the Politburo describing his breakfast meeting with Kissinger on April 11, 1977.

Intelligence sources who have read the translation of the six-page cable paraphrased its contents for my associate Dale Van Atta. What Dobrynin reported to the Kremlin — or supposedly reported — was embarrassing in the extreme to the former secretary of state.

The two friendly antagonists, Dobrynin and Kissinger, had acquired a mutual respect during the protracted negotiations over the SALT I disarmament pact.

They discussed SALT II and, specifically, the first ambitious proposal Jimmy Carter had put forth just a month before. Instead of merely limiting the growth of nuclear weapons, the new president's proposal called for an actual reduction. The Russians turned it down quickly and emphatically.

KISSINGER HAD been out of office for less than three months. If the Dobrynin cable was accurate, Kissinger clearly had little respect for the new men in the White House — and even less compunction about undercutting them to the Soviet ambassador.

The cable reportedly quoted Kissinger as saying approximately this:

"Jimmy Carter is a prisoner of his own illusions on human rights. Zbigniew Brzezinski is an ideological dogmatist. The two are crazy. Only I know what is acceptable to the Soviets. I was not consulted about the March proposals. I would have been against them."

In short, the former secretary of state was paraphrased as telling the Russians that the new administration's proposals were nonsense, and should not be taken seriously.

The cable was immediately suspect at the CIA, which thought it might be a fake. Electronics experts at the National Security Agency were asked to check the cable traffic from the Soviet Embassy in Washington during that period. They did, and pronounced the cable authentic, sources said.

Kissinger quite naturally denies the statements attributed to him by Dobrynin in the cable. It would be grossly improper for a private American citizen, especially one of his stature, to sabotage an administration's policy by popping off in such fashion to a foreign official.

It is, of course, possible that the Soviet cable deliberately distorted what Kissinger said, for reasons as murky as the half-world of espionage itself. The whole thing might have been an elaborate set-up designed to re-establish Trigon as a supposedly reliable CIA source.

The cable copy had a curious subsequent history. It had come from Trigon on microfilm, and at least one paper copy was made. Then, incredibly, the microfilm itself disappeared — apparently a CIA "first." According to high-level sources, a White House directive forbade anyone who had not already seen the cable to look at the copy.

As for Trigon, he was officially compromised and arrested. Two sources have said he committed suicide, but Soviet press accounts say he was tried and executed.

NEW HOPE: In the seven years since the Paris peace accords between North Vietnam and the United States, the Pentagon pretty well gave up trying to trace the fate of the 2,546 American servicemen still officially listed as "Missing in Action."

However, new reports from Vietnamese refugees claiming to have seen Americans alive in various parts of Indochina have caused a quiet turnaround in government policy.

Over the years, the Defense Department has tried to have all MIAs declared "presumed dead." This not only would close the door to further investigation, but would also permit payment of death and pension benefits — instead of full salaries — to the missing GIs' families.

But in the past few months, the Defense Intelligence Agency has doubted its POW-MIA staff, and interview teams have been dispatched to refugee camps in Southeast Asia. More importantly, my reporter Lisa Krieger was told, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have recommended a change in the official statement on the POW-MIA situation.

The statement now reads: "We have no credible evidence to indicate that any U.S. servicemen are alive in captivity and being held against their will in Southeast Asia." The Pentagon is considering changing the statement to say: "We have an increasing number of reports to indicate that there may be Americans alive in Indochina."

The government — like the families of the missing men who have never given up hope — now thinks it at least possible that some of those husbands, sons and fathers may still be clinging to life.

The monkeys are back

SEATTLE (AP) — A hug from a holdout ended the great monkey hunt at Woodland Park Zoo.

Eight lion-tailed macaques scampered off "Monkey Island" Wednesday evening by leaping onto cattail reeds in the moat around the island. Four were recaptured almost immediately and three others were brought back without injury or incident Thursday morning.

But the whereabouts of the last escapee remained a mystery until it was spotted sitting forlornly on top of the zoo's south gate.

When the monkey saw the familiar face of senior keeper, Laurie Gledhill, it jumped into his arms, said Helen Freeman, zoo spokeswoman.

Now that the monkeys are back, "There will be no lockdown. They've got all their privileges back. Actually, they're our guests, not inmates," Ms. Freeman said.

Police declined to become involved in the hunt.

This is really air mail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Figuring that a bird in the boardroom is worth more than a letter in the mail, a Century City cultural group tried a unique experiment in return mail — self-addressed pigeons.

The Century City Cultural Commission was getting no response to mailed pleas for appointments with local executives to discuss ways of bringing culture and art in to the area's daily life, said Margaret Willard, administrative director.

So self-addressed return racing pigeons were being delivered to 12 executives Thursday.

Renting a bird costs $5, and while it's not exactly direct — the pigeons return to the home of their owner, William F. Rice, in Sepulveda — Ms. Willard thinks a feathered messenger will get more attention than a letter and get there faster, besides.

Meets with Jewish group

Carter defends policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has told America's Jews that the seeds of trust sown by his administration upon the deserts of the Mideast already have flowered into the only peace ever known by Israel, and "We will stay the course, no matter how difficult."

"I cannot assure you we will always agree with every position taken by the government of Israel," the president said Thursday night in an address to B'nai B'rith. "But whatever differences arise, they will never affect our commitment to a secure Israel."

Carter was received warmly but without jubilation by the Jewish service organization, as he defended policies which Ronald Reagan and John B. Anderson had attacked before the same audience.

Reagan, the Republican candidate, had said a night earlier that Carter put Israel in danger with weak and confusing policies. Anderson, who appeared just hours before the president, said

Carter was using the Mideast for political purposes.

Reagan, campaigning in the South on Thursday, also accused the Carter administration of playing fast and loose with national security for political gain.

In Jacksonville, Fla., Reagan said the president's political operatives had engineered leaks about the "Stealth" project to thwart enemy radar, thereby breaching one of the biggest military secrets "since the Manhattan Project."

Anderson, meanwhile, received financial news which could boost his bid to become a major contender this fall. The Federal Election Commission ruled 5 to 1 that the independent challenger is entitled, retroactively, to a share of public funds if he gets at least 5 percent of the vote Nov. 4. Presumably, that at least will help him borrow between now and then.

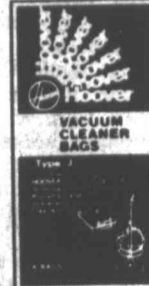

The president told the B'nai B'rith convention Jerusalem should remain undivided with free access to the holy places for all.

"I was there searching for peace in the city of peace. My prayers were answered in the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty," he said. "We will make certain that the future of Jerusalem can only be determined through agreement — with the full concurrence of Israel."

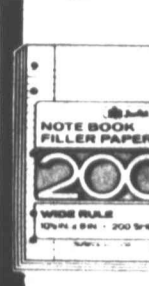

Israel's insistence that Jerusalem is its permanent capital caused the Israeli-Egyptian peace talks to founder. The agreement to resume them was reached

Reagan may make swing through West Texas

GOP presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan will likely make a swing through West Texas prior to the general election in November, according to Robert Monaghan, Region V chairman of the Reagan-Bush campaign.

Monaghan officially helped Midland County Republicans open their headquarters earlier this week.

Monaghan also said the West Texas area is "very important" to the Reagan forces and that he expected former Gov. John Connally, Sen. John Tower and Gov. Bill Clements all to stop in Midland prior to the Nov. 4 election.

In the primaries, Reagan carried all but three counties in District 25.

The new GOP headquarters here, located at 700-B Andrews Highway, will work in 44 counties wooing voters.

Campaign tours in West Texas will begin Sept. 10 in Fort Stockton. One caravan will stop in Big Spring Sept. 23.

West Texas excels in wind potential

States News Service

WASHINGTON — A $100 million wind energy bill awaiting President Carter's signature could help make air-generated power competitive with oil-fired generation in the future, according to the Department of Energy.

The areas of the country with the greatest potential for wind energy production include parts of Texas. The best of these is the Panhandle, where a DOE-sponsored wind experiment is underway, followed by north and west Texas and the seacoast.

"That whole area is just prime for wind energy," said Jay Vavari, a wind energy spokesman for DOE. "It's not that their peak wind speeds are so terribly high. It's that their average wind speeds are high."

The Bushland, Texas project is one of seven current wind experiments sponsored by DOE, but the only one to use a wind device engineered by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The 37-foot tall, 55-foot wide "Darricus Wind Turbine" uses blades shaped in the form of an eggbeater to pump up to 300 gallons of water per minute out of a 280-foot deep irrigation well.

The most ambitious DOE wind project to date is under construction in the Goodnow Hills near Goldendale, Wash. There, three conventional-style windmills, each 350-feet tall with 300-foot long blades, are expected to be in operation by the end of 1981.

"If we could set up an assembly line a la Henry Ford to produce these things and reduce the unit costs, it would produce electricity at a cost comparable with conventional sources, such as oil," said Vavari, explaining the goals of the program that include helping the young wind energy industry to its feet.

One of the major obstacles in the development and use of wind machines has been the tremendous initial cost of purchase and installation. Vavari said. The least expensive wind turbine costs about $4,000, while a moderate-sized generator used for running a farm or a ranch might run to $27,000, he said.

The congressional legislation, which Carter is expected to sign, provides for grants and, in some cases, loans for up to 75 percent of the cost of wind energy generators.

Wind power information from the federal government has been compiled in a booklet entitled "The Wind Energy Information Directory." It is available free of charge from the Solar Energy Research Institute (a DOE branch), 1617 Cole Blvd., Golden, CO, 80401.

MR. AND MRS. ROY HENDERSON

50th anniversary celebration Sunday

Roy and Attie Mae Henderson will be honored at an informal open house to celebrate their 50th Sunday.

Their children, Bobbie Nix and Stuart Henderson will be hosts. Friends of the couple are invited to visit between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m. at the ranch home located on Highway 2183, 28 1/2 miles southwest of Colorado City, or 28 1/2 miles southeast of Big Spring.

Roy Henderson and Attie Mae Beaty were married Sept. 5, 1930, in the Methodist Parsonage, Coleman. Roy had started to work for Largent and Stevens in 1929 and on a ranch south of Brownwood. In 1938, the Hendersons moved to Merkel, along with Largent and Stevens, helping with the care of the show cattle and as farm manager. Later he assumed the job of herdsman which involved the fitting and showing of Hereford cattle.

After residing in Merkel for six years, the Hendersons were assisted in achieving their goal of obtaining a ranch of their own by the Roy Largent family. A Hereford partnership was formed and they moved to the Hyman community in 1945 where they are still living and raising Hereford cattle.

Henderson is president of the Sweetwater Area Hereford Association. Both Roy and Attie Mae Henderson have been active in Texas Hereford circles.

Bridal shower given

Shirley Shanks, bride-elect of Kevin Murphy, was honored with a bridal shower, Aug. 29 in the fellowship hall of East Fourth St. Baptist Church.

Special guests in attendance were mothers of the couple, Mrs. Wade Shanks and Mrs. Rudy Claveran; and grandmother of the honoree, Mrs. Edna Christian.

A cake, in the shape of wedding bells, decorated with the bride-elect's chosen colors of baby blue and light gray, was served with punch, nuts and mints, from a table covered with a white lace cloth over blue linen.

The table was centered with an arrangement of white love birds, silver wedding rings, and silver hearts, nestled in blue net, blue roses and Bells of Ireland, all in a milk glass compote, flanked by blue candles in milk glass holders with candle rings of blue and white flowers.

The register table was covered with a floor-length blue polyester cloth edged in gray lace upon which was a gray silk rose in a milk glass bud vase.

Hostesses were Mrs. M.L. Kirby, Mrs. Daryl Wood, Mrs. Dick Davis, Mrs. D.C. Boren, Mrs. John D. King, Mrs. L.D. Grice, Mrs. Reuben Hill, Mrs. Kenneth Orr, Mrs. J.D. Curry, Mrs. Garland Sanders, Mrs. Ben Hitt, Mrs. Claude Morris, and Mrs. Muriel Denton.

Others included Mrs. A.W. Page, Jeanette Mansfield, Mrs. Mary Morgan, Mrs. Jerry Oliphant and Mrs. Billy Fenley. The hostess gift was a vacuum cleaner.

Miss Shanks and Murphy will be married Sept. 12 at Baptist Temple Church with Rev. Allen McHam, pastor, and Rev. Guy White officiating.

TWEEN 12 and 20 — How to blow a job interview

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens: Want to make sure that you get the door slammed in your face instead of a foot in the door at your next job interview? Seventeen magazine tells you what blows a job interview, and keeps the door closed when opportunity knocks.

Try the following tips for failure:

— Slight a former employer. Blame, complain or criticize. Take responsibility for your own actions. Employers question the professionalism of moaners, and assumed that if you slight others, you'll slight them.

— Fidget. Pull at your stockings, bite your nails, play with desk objects. Some nervousness is expected, but it's how you handle it that counts.

— Be vague. Use the what-do-you-have-I'll-do-anything routine. You're bound to be told, "Don't call us, we'll call you." Employers are impressed with people who know what they want.

— Don't read company literature. Research a company, and have a good reason for seeking employment with them.

— Frown. A smile on your face is one of your best assets.

— Discuss salary benefits first. Employers want you to be primarily interested in the work. They'll talk salary at the appropriate time.

— Dwell on your faults. Employers want to know what you can do. Tell them.

— Dress informally. Making a good appearance is a must.

— Offer a limp handshake. Be impolite or forget to thank the employer for his or her time. Show vitality by giving the employer a firm handshake. Employers also appreciate receiving a typed thank-you note — it makes a lasting impression.

Of course, if you do want the job, simply reverse these techniques.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Abby

Mama's Boy May Remain Just That

DEAR ABBY: I know you advise women to pay careful attention to how a man treats his mother if you want to know how he will treat his wife. But how about this?

I am a 34-year-old woman who is dating a man who is 36. He is twice divorced (no children) and lives with his 70-year-old widowed mother. This is my first big romance.

I can understand his feeling of obligation to his mother, but he can't be away from her for more than 30 minutes without phoning to tell her where he is and when he'll be back. We seldom go anywhere without her, but when we do, he's constantly phoning to keep in touch. Incidentally, she is not an invalid. She's in good health but has never tried to make a life of her own. Her son is her whole life.

I have deep feelings about this man, but his attachment to his mother bothers me. He says he loves me, but I can't cope with this mother-son relationship.

Does he have a problem, or do I?

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: You both have. But unless he realizes that his attachment to his mother is hampering his relationship with you, and he wants to overcome it, don't plan on a future with him. His only hope is to get into therapy and learn how to be a loving and caring son without allowing his devotion to his mother to consume him.

DEAR ABBY: The letters from people who are hard of hearing interested me because my mother has had that problem for years.

I wonder how many of your readers know that there's a small piece of equipment that can be attached to the telephone receiver to amplify the sound? We put one on my mother's phone three years ago, and it has been a godsend.

She can push a little button with her thumb and raise the volume of the caller's voice. There is a small installation charge plus a small charge added to her telephone bill each month.

I can't understand why the telephone company doesn't advertise this item, as it would be a tremendous help to so many. Perhaps if you print this, others will inquire. It would be a kindness.

HELPFUL HELEN

DEAR HELEN: Thank you. Now if Ma Bell would just come up with a gadget that would signal those non-stop talkers to say goodbye.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married, and I did not receive a gift from my godmother, who attended my wedding.

I'm afraid I might have lost the card. Should I call her and ask her if she sent a gift or not? I'm in the process of writing thank-you notes now and don't know what to do.

UNSURE

DEAR UNSURE: Don't ask her unless you have more presents than you have cards.

Funds to aid handicapped

The Elks Wives are having a bake sale in Highland Mall Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Donations will also be taken on a drawing for an original oil painting of the hill country and a queen-sized, hand crocheted afghan to be given away Dec. 24. All Elks wives are encouraged to participate in the bake sale by contributing pastries, candies or home made jellies. Call 267-8164 before 10 a.m. Saturday morning to have contributions picked up.

All proceeds are to be donated to the Texas Elks Foundation for Handicapped Children at Ottine.

Garden Club begins year

The Big Spring Garden Club opened the year 1980-81 at the home of Mrs. Jack Cunningham recently. Mrs. John Balch and Mrs. L.B. Edwards were co-hostesses.

One of the projects discussed was the salad luncheon, a project of the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs. The luncheon will be held in Garrett Hall in the First United Methodist Church, at noon Sept. 13. In addition to a style show, Mrs. Clyde Angel will entertain the guests with amusing stories collected from Erma Brombeck. Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Balch, p.m.

Another item of interest is the horticulture display to be held at the Howard County Fair. The specimens for display must be brought to the Howard County Barn between the hours of 8 and 11 a.m. Sept. 5. The judging will be at 1 p.m.

The next meeting of the Big Spring Garden Club will be Oct. 1 at Dora Roberts Community Center. Carl Johansen will bring a program entitled "Conservation Through Drip Irrigation."

AARP hears Gospelaire

The American Association of Retired Persons was given a musical treat by the Sunset Gospelaire from the Federal Camp at their meeting Tuesday.

The group consisted of Richard Tomlinson, tenor; Maurice Robinson, baritone; Robert Koehems, piano; Lonnie Bartlett, lead; Robert Bradsley, bass; and J.D. Gregory who accompanied the group to the center. Favorite hymns and popular songs were enjoyed by the members.

Marion B. Irland, president, presided through the business meeting. A covered dish luncheon and table games followed. Thirty-six were in attendance.

The next regular meeting will be held on Oct. 7.

Members will play table games and serve bananas on the second and fourth Thursdays at Mountain View Lodge.

Ralph Harris makes debut as BSHS coach

Steers open season in Snyder tonight

SNYDER — All of the pre-season buildup will be past history tonight when the Snyder Tigers host the Big Spring Steers, with many questions concerning the strengths of the two teams being answered when kickoff time arrives at 8:00 p.m.

The contest matches teams with contrasting pasts.

Snyder, a member of Class AAAA, has been very tough in recent years, piling up a succession of winning seasons.

Big Spring, meanwhile, has found the road to winning to be a frustrating one, but hopes that a new head football coach and a new system can turn things around.

That new head football coach is Ralph Harris, who has a history of turning around sagging programs. He did so at Dublin and Sealy, and is confident that the same can be achieved at Big Spring.

Harris felt that the biggest need for improvement for his Big Spring crew upon his arrival is some much needed self-confidence in their abilities, and the first year Steer mentor feels that that has been accomplished thus far. The big question now is if the young Big Spring team can carry that mental spirit onto the field.

The Steers are still in the learning stage of the new system, Harris believes, and their offensive and defensive looks will be somewhat similar tonight.

"We don't have a lot in yet," Harris said Thursday, "but we have confidence in what we do. Going into the game, we feel confident that if we execute our package in all phases of what has been installed, we should have a very good chance at winning."

The Steer offensive package deals with a split backfield, option type attack. Harris is happy thus far with the way the running game has progressed, but feels that the passing game of the Big Spring team must improve.

"Our passing game is very unsophisticated right now," he explained. "We'll work it all in as the season progresses."

Most of the offensive positions are decided, but Harris admits that the all important quarterback slot has not been. Both junior Tracy Spence and senior Chuck Gibbs have been running almost even throughout spring training and in two-a-days, and both will see considerable action tonight. "A starter should come to the front," Harris stated, "especially after some heated conditions in a real game."

Two juniors will open at the running back positions for the Steers in Bobby Earl Williams and Richard Evans, with excellent backups in senior Bill Brown and sophomore Danny Stephens. Both Williams and Evans have excellent speed.

Defensively, the Steers strength at present appears to be the defensive tackles, where Gregg Jones and Lupe Ontiveros will start. Tony Molina will also see plenty of playing time, at one of the tackle positions, as both Jones and Ontiveros are starters offensively.

The Steer linebackers are very young, with sophomores Stephens and George Bancroft slated for starting duty, as well as junior Mike Sauls. For this reason, Harris explained that the Snyder team would probably not see many stunts, just simple defensive football.

Harris and his staff, realizing that a kicking game could possibly be their best weapon for field position until the offense gets untracked, spent extra hours this week to alleviate possible difficulties.

Greg Scarbro, a 185-pound two-way starter at offensive tackle-defensive end, will handle the punting and kickoff chores, while Gibbs will boot extra points and field goals.

But like many other facets of the Steers game in his inauguration, Harris isn't sure what to expect. "The kicking game is totally unpredictable right now. We need the game night exposure to find out where we stand."

Snyder has some answers to find, but they do have the luxury of a well-known system and some quality returners from last year's 6-4 team that scored a 28-0 win over Big Spring.

This marks the fifth year on the job for Coach Mike

Jenkins, and the Snyder gridders are most familiar with what he and his staff teaches. Harris feels this is an obvious advantage for the Tigers.

"They have very few returners," Harris, "but they have a good, solid program from the seventh grade on up, and the returners they have are quality ones."

One big returnee is huge Tony Degrate, a 255-pound defensive tackle that was All-District last fall. Jenkins feels Degrate has All-State potential.

The only other defensive returner is Matt Taggart, which could present problems for the host Snyder team. Jenkins feels the biggest weaknesses of his team entering the 1980 season are experience in the vacated defensive line and secondary positions.

Offensively, the Tigers don't have that much returning experience in the line, but the backfield is a different story.

Quarterback Mike Roemisch is back, and he no doubt will pose problems to enemy teams. "He's a good runner, and makes good decisions on running the option," Harris mentioned. "He's also a good thrower, and passes well when he is scrambling."

Tailback Keith McClain, who rushed for over 100 yards last year against Big Spring, is also back. He has good strength for a 175-pounder, and is the Tigers home run threat.

"They have a very blanced attack," Harris noted, "both offensively and defensively. Of course, their defense has been exceptional through the past few years, and it will no doubt be good again this year."

Harris expects the Tigers to try to strike quickly in tonight's game. "I'm thinking they'll try to intimidate us up front," he philosophized. "They know

STEERS GROUND ATTACK — When the Big Spring Steers open the 1980 season on the road against Snyder tonight, these five performers will be called upon to handle the bulk of the Bovine ground game. The running backs pictured are: Bottom row—Edward Vela (34) and Richard Evans (33). Back row—Bill Brown (44), Bobby Earl Williams (35) and Danny Stephens (31). Evans and Williams are listed as the starters.

BSGA holds last regular season tournament Sunday

The Big Spring Golf Association will be holding their final tournament of the year on Sunday afternoon.

This is the final tournament of the year for BSGA members. They are reminded that they must compete in four of the regular season affairs in order to be eligible for the Grand Tournament, which begins on Monday.

The Grand Tournament will be divided into flights according to each player's handicap. It will be a match play tourney, with one week allowed for each round of play. The Grand Tournament will last a total of four weeks.

In Sunday's tourney, the deadline for entering and being paid is 12:30. Any late entries will not be accepted.

Prior to Sunday's action, the election of officers for the 1981 season will be held.

No pretenders left in US Open

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors each took catnaps during their quarterfinal matches at the U.S. Open Thursday but both woke up in time to dispose of their opponents and march on to a semifinal battle against each other.

McEnroe, the defending champion and No. 2 seed, had difficulties in the first set with Ivan Lendl before

Motivation no problem for Purdue, Irish

By the Associated Press
No easy opener for ninth-ranked Purdue or 11th-rated Notre Dame. They go head-to-head in one of the more intriguing matchups scheduled for the first Saturday of the 1980 college football season.

The two Midwestern behemoths were not slated to meet until later in the season, but the game at South Bend, Ind., was moved ahead for a national television appearance.

"It should be a great early-season matchup," says Dan Devine, the lame duck coach of Notre Dame's Fighting Irish. "These two teams usually get excited about playing each other anyway. But the fact that this is the season opener for both teams makes it much more interesting."

"I don't think motivation will be a problem for either team."

Left unsaid by Devine, who announced several weeks ago that this will be his last season at Notre Dame, was the fact that his Irish will likely be motivated by the embarrassment — for them — of not finishing among the top twenty in last year's polls.

subduing the No. 10 seed from Czechoslovakia, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5 in a night match. Earlier in the day, No. 3 seed Connors took a hike in the second set but recovered for a 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0 triumph over unseeded Eliot Teltscher.

Now the two American stars can look ahead to their match Saturday. The other men's semifinal will feature top-seed Bjorn Borg and unseeded Johan Kriek of South Africa.

No men's singles matches were scheduled for today but the women's semifinals and men's doubles final held center stage. Teenagers Hana Mandlikova, the ninth-seed from Czechoslovakia, and Andrea Jaeger advanced with victories Thursday and faced each other after top-seeded Tracy Austin, the defending champion, and No. 3 Chris Evert Lloyd opened the day's schedule.

The top two seeded men's doubles teams made it to the final. Top-seeds Peter Fleming and John McEnroe, the defenders, took on No. 2 Stan Smith and Bob Lutz, three-time Open doubles titlists.

Mandlikova scored a 6-2, 6-2 triumph in the quarterfinals over Barbara Hallquist while Jaeger became the Open's youngest semifinalist ever at 15 when she defeated No. 14 Ivanna Madruga of Argentina 6-1, 6-3.

"It was a combination of the lights and how hard he hits," said McEnroe of his slow start. "It was my first night match. It was cool and all my other matches were played when it was real hot."

"I was able to hang in with my serve and eventually get it turned around."

That turnaround occurred in the second set, when McEnroe began blasting wicked serves past the helpless Czech.

Area high school teams open seasons tonight

Forsan at Bronte

BRONTE — The Forsan Buffaloes will be hoping for some early success that Coach Ronny Taylor feels could be a springboard later wins tonight when his team opens their 1980 season against always tough Bronte.

The Buffs have looked improved in two scrimmages against tough Class A teams, and Taylor hopes this will pay off tonight against Bronte, who also plays in a Class A district.

"They've (Bronte) got a good team, but not as strong as last year," said Taylor. "And we've got a better ball club than last year. We feel real good about the way we've looked."

Bronte won last year, 30-7, en route to an 8-1 record. Forsan's offense will feature center Randall McDonald, guards Jerry Price and Raymond Miranda, tackles Ricky Bedwell and Troy Croft, ends Kelly Long and James Bristo, quarterback Ernie Strickland, fullback D.F. Stanley, and halfbacks Brent Nichols and Preston Daniels.

Defensive starters for the Buffs include ends Bedwell and Steve Wright, tackles McDonald and Miranda, linebacks Lewis Boeker, Stanley and Daniels, cornerbacks Bristo and Nichols, and safeties Strickland and Daniel Bristo.

Daniel Bristo is replacing the ill David Harrell in the secondary, while Long is his replacement on offense. Strickland has bruised ribs, Taylor reported, but is expected to play.

Stanton visits Tahoka

TAHOKA — The Tahoka Bulldogs will be looking for a measure of revenge tonight when they play host to the Stanton Buffaloes in the season opener for both schools.

Stanton won last year, 28-14, but Buff Coach Steve Park mentioned earlier in the week that the Tahoka team was pointing to reverse that outcome.

Tahoka is led by senior running back Tracey White and guard-linebacker Jack Jolly. White rushed for over 1,100 yards in 1979, and is expected to be the workhorse of the Bulldog attack.

Tahoka Coach A.D. Shavers feels like his defense is the strong point of his team, as six starters return from last year's unit that tied for the district championship.

Jolly is the defensive leader, and Shaver praised him earlier this year. "Jolly may be one of the best linebackers in the country. He does a heck of a job," said the Tahoka mentor.

Park describes the Tahoka team as having a great deal of speed. "They are a big play type team," said Park. "They run the power sweep til the world looks level."

Quarterback Craig Eiland, a returning All-South Plains selection, heads the Stanton offense. Other starters include center Fabian Villa, guards Mark Luna and George Lewis, tackles Greg Douglass and Danny Hernandez, ends Lee Byrd and David McReynolds, fullback Arthur Ruiz, tailback Kevin Newman and wingback Curtis Williams.

The Stanton defense will feature Tommy Ramos and Douglas, Johnny Christon and Luna at the linebacking positions, Roscoe Thomas and Rusty Allred at cornerbacks, and Williams and Newman at the safeties.

Coahoma at Wall

WALL — Two very familiar non-district foes will once again battle tonight in a season opener when the Coahoma Bulldogs invade the Wall Hawks.

The two teams always have a close contest, and Coahoma mentor Roy Winters sees no reason that this year should be any different. The Bulldog won last year by a score of 20-14.

Wall has a large but inexperienced offensive line, but their backfield returns intact. This includes quarterback Bret Hann, and running backs Gus Hinojosa, Casey Smith and Wes Theirs.

Overall, Wall returns five offensive and five defensive regulars from last season. The Bulldogs don't return all that many starters, but do have the luxury of a squad that boasts 21 seniors.

"Wall's always tough," said Winters. "I don't see any reason that it shouldn't be another close, tough football game."

The Bulldogs will line up offensively with Bobby Joe Tucker at center, Faron Phinney and Lynn Hinsley at guards, Reagan Brooks and Tracy Van Ness at tackles, Randy Clanton at tight end, Phillip Ritchey at quarterback, Jay Hall at fullback, Rodney Whitworth at tailback, and Tommy Vaughn and Manuel Martinez at the wide receiver positions.

Defensively, Coahoma will start Chubby Abrego and Tommy Joe Shirley at tackles, Jeff Thompson at nose guard, Bart Griffith and Derrell Douglass at ends, Mike Rupard and Terry Russell at linebacks, Bruce Walker and Tony Uranga at cornerbacks, Greg Herrington at safety and Clint Elliot at halfback.

Sands hosts Robert Lee

ACKERLY — The Robert Lee Steers invade Ackerly tonight to battle the Sands Mustangs, and the contest will match a pair of head coaches that will be making their debut at the respective schools.

Jim White, who moved up from the assistant ranks during the off-season, leads the Sands team, while Robert Lee is coached by Jerald Epperson.

A big factor going for Robert Lee is their outstanding tradition, as they are coming off a 7-4 year in which they won their zone. But Epperson has installed the Wishbone attack into his team's inexperienced outlook, and this could work to the advantage of the Sands club.

White feels his Mustangs are much improved over the crew that went 1-9 last year, and is hoping his team is as capable as he believes.

Both schools play in District 3-A, but in different zones.

Sands will start an offensive lineup featuring center Chris Wigginton, guards Steve Blagrave and Scott Robinson, tackles Ronnie Long and David Calvio, ends Dennis Martin and Russ Shortes, quarterback Shayne Wigginton, fullback Perry Washington, and halfbacks Kelly Shortes and Albert Ybarra, Tommy Staggas is also expected to see some offensive duty as an end position.

Nose guard Scott Zant will head the defense, joined by tackles Long and Calvio, ends Martin and Perry Wigginton, linebacks Blagrave and Robinson, cornerbacks Cole Hunt and Shortes, and safeties Shayne Wigginton and Ybarra.

Garden City at Mertzton

MERTZTON — The Garden City Bearkats will be trying to give first year coach Stu Cooper a victory in his initial game at the helm when they open their season against Mertzton here tonight at 8:00 p.m.

The Bearkats are coming off an 0-10 season, but Cooper has been encouraged with the improvement of his troops thus far in the pre-season workouts.

"We had a good scrimmage last week against Sterling City, who is a tough team," Cooper said. "If we can play like that tonight, we'll definitely be in the game."

Starting offensively for the Bearkats in their opener will be center Bryan Stringer, guards Duane Hirt and Roy Flournoy, tackles Wesley Williams and Chris Halfmann, ends Randy Lister and Victor DeHoyas, quarterback Alan Jansa, fullback Billy Kelso, tailback Scottie Hilliger and flanker Victor Medrano.

Defensively, Garden City will start Hirt at nose guard, Williams and Halfmann at tackles, Hilliger and Flournoy at ends, Kelso, Lister and Rosendo Ybarra at linebacks, DeHoyas and Medrano at halfbacks, and Jansa at safety.

Slaton at Colorado City

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City Wolves will play host to the always tough Slaton Tigers in the season opener for both schools in a non-district contest.

Colorado City should be an improved ball club, with Coach Tom Ramsey beginning his second season at the helm. The Wolves were 4-5-1 last season.

One reason for the hoped improvement of the Wolves outfit this year is the experience of the offensive unit in dealing with the explosive, yet dangerous, Houston Veer in which they run. Eight starters are back, including quarterback Mark Carter and running backs Doug Johnson and Jay Green.

Slaton, which competes in District 4-AAA this year, has been the co-champion of their league for the past three years.

They are led by Jesse Titus, a 207-pound running back who has All-State potential, as well as seven offensive returners and four defensive regulars from the 1979 season.

Loop meets Grady

LENORAH — It will be the experience of Grady when the two six-man football teams battle here tonight in the season opener for both schools at Tunnell Field.

The two foes are no strangers to each other, as they have met in previous seasons. Last year, the Grady Wildcats emerged with a 50-45 win.

Grady Coach Richard Gibson's biggest fear going into tonight's game is the opposition's excellent speed.

"They have a great deal of speed, something we're not blessed with," he said. "We must play tough enough defense, especially in open field tackling, and generate a little offense ourselves in order to win."

The Grady offense will have Ron Deatherage at center, Leandro Gonzales at tight end, Joe Rodriguez at split end, Alfonso Cortez at quarterback, and running backs Larry Key and Lynn Key.

Klondike visits Wink in battle of toughies

WINK — Two Class A football teams with plenty of power battle here tonight in their season opener when the Wink Wildcats host the Klondike Cougars.

The Klondike crew is one of the higher ranked teams in Class A in the state entering the season, and Coach Mickey Finley hopes his team can live up to their expectations.

They will not enter the game at full strength, however, as some of their returning stars have been nursing injuries during pre-season workouts. But this has apparently been a blessing in disguise, as Finley and his staff have found some suitable replacements that should provide excellent depth when the injured return to full form.

Wink is coming off their best record since the early 60s, finishing at 7-3 last year. To make that more impressive, the Wildcats were starting eight sophomores during the 1979 campaign.

Klondike, which returns nearly everyone from last season, was 9-1 in 79, winning their zone but losing in the battle for the district championship to Sterling City by a score of 7-0.

Wink plays in District 6-A, while Klondike participates in the West Zone of District 3-A.

Harris makes Steer debut

we have a new coach, a new system and a young team. They'll probably try a lot of quick pressure on our middle early and try to get the upper hand quickly."

If the Steers can meet that challenge, it could make for a very interesting contest, and possibly a big victory to begin the 1980 decade.

We can't miss them — these signs along the intersections of our streets. They protect our school children from physical harm. We see the sign . . . and slow down.

Most of us are deeply concerned about the safety of our youngsters . . . and these signs can be a reminder of a further obligation our society has to its youth. There are dangers in life for which only religious training and faith can prepare us.

Boys and girls approaching maturity deserve the spiritual protection which Christian education provides.

Whenever you approach a school crossing, slow down! But, just don't think safety — think CHRISTIANITY.

Deaths influence former chaplain

OAK HILL, W.Va. (AP) — As chief chaplain for the 7th Army during World War II, the Rev. C. Shirley Donnelly saw death in Africa, Europe and the Middle East.

"I drove a bargain with the Lord," the 85-year-old preacher recalled recently. "I said, 'I'll let you work me to death if you'll let me live 100 years.'"

So far, Donnelly said, he's kept his end of the bargain. In his civilian life, he said, he has performed 2,305 funerals and 1,333 marriages. He has several weddings waiting.

"I've got a three-pronged program: bury the dead, marry the silly and cope with the unreasonable," said Donnelly, with a grin as lively as the pink rose he wears on his lapel.

After his 12 years of active military service, Donnelly returned to West Virginia with a Bronze Star, the Legion of Merit and a Purple Heart, to take the reins of the Crab Orchard Baptist Church in Raleigh County. He retired in 1971, but remains much in demand for weddings and funerals all over Raleigh and Fayette counties.

According to Donnelly, he has averaged a funeral a week since 1920, discounting his 12 years in the Army. But many of his services are for veterans.

"These old vets have the idea in their head that when they die they want someone who's been through the fire to see them off," he said. "That's why they call on me."

Donnelly said he knows precisely how many funerals and marriages he has performed because he keeps exacting records. In his library — a small stone building located on the grounds of "Upson Downs," his Fayette County home — he has a card file on each funeral and marriage. The cards are cross-indexed with scrap books filled with newspaper clippings of obituaries and wedding notices.

"History is only good if it's exact," said Donnelly, surveying the thousands of books lining the shelves. After preaching, Donnelly's says his love is history. Donnelly has done his best to live a full life, but for all his enjoyment, he has begun to look toward death. He has little fear of it, however.

"To me, death's an adventure. I believe in the hereafter, and I'd like to believe in reincarnation. I think if I was reincarnated, I'd likely be a talking horse." Even if his plans for reincarnation don't work out, Donnelly doesn't think he'll be missing much he hasn't already seen.

"I feel like I've drunk the cup of life down to the bottom — and all the sugar's in the bottom of the cup."

Local church gains Okie pastor

First Church of God announces installation services for their new pastor, the Rev. Robert E. McCray, at the church, 21st and Main, Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Presiding will be the Rev. Charles Harrington, Odessa. The charge to the congregation will be given by David C. Stephenson, Lubbock. He is the chairman of the General Assembly of the Church of God in Texas.

Response to the charge will be by the Chairman of the Pulpit Committee Darrell Reagan. The charge to the pastor will be given by the Rev. Carter N. Prine, San Angelo.

McCray was born July 10,

REV. R.F. McCRAY
 1929 in Seminole, Okla. His wife is the Rev. Jean M. DeGrasse McCray of Portland, Maine. They were married June 9, 1951 in San Francisco, Calif. They have five children; two at home.

Henry, 28, is associate pastor and minister of music at First Church of God, North Webster, Ind. John, 25, is living at home. He is presently a licensed minister in the field of youth. He is planning to complete his studies during 1981.

Kimberly J. Clemence, 23, resides in Amarillo where her husband is a student at Amarillo College.

Suzanne M. McCray, 17, is presently a freshman at Gulf Coast Bible College in Houston, a music major and recipient of Carl Barnett Memorial Scholarship for outstanding young musicians in Oklahoma. She is a graduate of Will Rogers High School in Tulsa, Okla.

Ann, 16, is a senior at Big Spring High School. She also lives at home.

McCray has had pastorates in six towns: New York City; Hobbs, N.M.; Liberal, Ks.; Waynoka, Okla.; and Tulsa, Okla.

His son, John enjoys sports, reading and working with young people. Ann is a tennis player. Jean enjoys painting and writing and Rev. McCray fishes, hunts, and enjoys sports and photography.

There will be a reception following the ceremony.

B'nai B'rith credits U.S. with better Jewish-Christian relationships

NEW YORK — Bridge building between Jews and Christians in Western Europe is far less advanced than in the United States, according to the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Rabbi Ronald B. Sobel, chairman of ADL's Program Committee, said this "disturbing picture" emerges from a survey of Jewish-Christian relations in eight European countries, published in the latest issue of the League's interreligious bulletin, "Face to Face." The publication is distributed predominantly to Christian theologians, clergymen and lay persons.

Included in the issue is a special section on Passion Plays containing an article on their history by Dr. Cynthia Bourgeault, an Episcopal priest; an analysis of this year's Oberammergau, West Germany, Passion Play, by Theodore Freedman, Director of ADL's Program Division, and guidelines for viewing the Oberammergau and other Passion Plays by Dr. Leonard Swidler, professor of Catholic Thought and Intergroup Dialogue at Temple University. Mr. Freedman and Dr. Swidler were at a special preview performance of the Oberammergau Passion Play this year at the invitation of the Mayor and other town officials.

The survey reveals that earnest efforts are being made by Western European Christian leaders to remove centuries-old prejudices transmitted through church teachings and liturgy, but with no urgency or sense of priority. Jewish-Christian contacts are mainly being carried out between the Catholic Church and the Jewish community, although in Spain, Belgium and Italy — all predominantly Catholic countries — there is insufficient progress in implementing Vatican II directives to remove anti-Jewish references from the liturgy.

In an overview of the situation in German-speaking countries — West Germany, Switzerland and Austria — Dr. Clemens Thoma, professor of Bible and Judaic studies at the Theological Faculty of Lucerne, said that "multa sed non multa" ("a lot but not much") is happening — despite idealistic motives and a great amount of publicity.

In Great Britain, Jewish-Christian contacts were said to be "ambivalent." In Italy,

Former pastor, director to speak at ceremony

Two officials of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, and who have previous ties with the First Baptist Church, will figure in dedication services for new facilities today.

Dr. Robert F. Polk, former pastor who led the church in a building program 15 years ago, and Dr. E. Edward Schmeltekopf, who directed the church's Together-We-Build campaign, will be speakers at the 10:50 a.m. and 6 p.m. worship services.

Dr. Polk is secretary of the church stewardship department of BGCT, having joined the section as assistant in 1975 after six years as pastor of First Baptist Church in Ponca City, Okla. He pastored here from 1961-69, and also served churches in Rockwall, Hawkins, Robstown and Bryan.

He is a graduate of Baylor University and Southwestern despite a general apathy about Jews and Judaism, there has been a recent increase in contacts between Catholic and Jewish intellectuals and community leaders.

Baptist Theological Seminary, and did graduate work at Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries. He also served as member of the BGCT executive board and of its Christian Life and church loan divisions, also Oklahoma Baptist University trustees.

Dr. Schmeltekopf came to his present position from an adjunct professorship at Southwestern Seminary in 1976. Prior to that he pastored First Baptist Church in Burleson, where was "Citizen of the Year" in 1975. A native of Kyle, he graduated from Southwest State University at San Marcos, and from Southwestern Seminary. In college he served as vice president of the Texas State Baptist Student Union and was on the BSU state choir, did summer missionary work in Alaska.

Dedication services at First Baptist set

Sunday marks the opening of new facilities at the First Baptist Church, 705 Marcy Drive, designed to minister to the whole person and to the entire family.

Open house, marked by a brief ceremony at 2 p.m. in the main foyer of the church, will continue to 5 p.m. with guided small-group tours with church members as hosts.

"The key element is the beautiful new chapel," said Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, "and second only to the sanctuary this will become a worship center. The Family Life Center, with its many special functions, is designed to provide positive Christian recreational opportunities for children and young people, as well as activities for elder citizens regardless of weather. It is our hope that it will serve the entire family, and that people of Big Spring will make use of it."

Dr. Robert F. Polk, Dallas, who was pastor when the first phase of the church plant was constructed 15 years ago, will preach at the 11 a.m. service. Dr. Edward Schmeltekopf, Dallas, assistant executive director of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, will speak at the 6 p.m. worship.

All during the month there will be special speakers and services connected with the dedication.

Dr. Charles Warren and Clem Jones have served as chairmen of the Building Committee. They explained that in addition to the chapel, there is an adjacent parlor with serving kitchen. On the upstairs level also are men's and women's locker rooms, an equipped exercise room, the recreational director's office, plus the entry to the overhead track for walkers and joggers. The family life center contains a snack room, activities centers with ceramic kilns, equipment storage and checkout, the gymnasium and fellowship hall, main kitchen and storage. In the south wing there are new educational spaces for departments and classes, and one room suitable for small dining purposes.

Rally Day planned at St. Paul Lutheran

St. Paul Lutheran Church will host a picnic lunch Sunday in Birdwell Park in honor of Rally Day (promotional day for Sunday School).

Entertainment is planned for adults as well as children in the afternoon.

During the Sunday School period, attendance awards will be presented to the children who have maintained a good attendance record.

Sunday School Superintendent Rob Haney and Chairman of the Board of Education Terry Wegman are in charge of activities.

Church Round-Up starts

"You count!" is the theme for Sunday's Fall round-up for First United Methodist Church, with activities to begin at 3 p.m. at the YMCA.

Events for all ages and all talents will take place, including volleyball, bridge, dominoes, swimming, "nerf" ball games, free throw basketball, parent-child activities, a real "round-up" of athletic prowess and mental skills.

Taking part in the special "you count!" afternoon will be members from all the Sunday School classes, as well as members of the church staff.

Special explanations of why each church member counts will be given by Bob Crowell, chairman of the worship committee; Charles Parham, director of music ministry at First Methodist; Ralph Anderson, chairman of Christian Education; Charles Beil, finance chairman; Ted Hatfield, Missions Chairman, and Jack Abendschan, chairman of Evangelism and Visitation.

Following the games and events, those in attendance will eat fried chicken and potato salad, followed by a humorous program featuring Dr. Edwin Chappell, minister, First United Methodist Church, and Doug Baum.

Class for deaf started

Another Young Adult Sunday School Class will begin at the First United Methodist Church Sunday, at 9:45 a.m. The class will be held in Garrett Hall located at the corner of Fifth and Scurry.

Jim Fisher, Professor at

Howard College, and Bob Cappell, Director of the YMCA, will jointly teach the class. Mr. Fisher will also serve as interpreter for the hearing impaired.

All single adults from the College and Big Spring are invited to take part in this class.

"I was told all kinds of lies"

Bubba Hill leaves A&M for OU

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — When Texas speedster Bubba Hill signed to play football for the Oklahoma Sooners Thursday, Barry Switzer let it be known Hill wasn't just any old halfback joining the team.
 "I saw him play and I thought he was the best wishbone halfback I'd ever seen in high school," the Oklahoma coach said of the star who left Texas A&M a week ago. He officially enrolled at OU Thursday.
 Hill was one of the most sought after recruits from the Texas prep ranks a year ago. The all-state and prep All-American rushed for 2,053 yards and scored 24 touchdowns his senior year at La Porte High School in La Porte, Texas.
 Hill will have to sit out this fall and will become eligible to play next year as a sophomore. He was placed on athletic scholarship.

"I've been running the wishbone for six years. I don't know why I ever decided to change from that to the veer. I couldn't realize this (OU) was the place for me," he said.
 Hill was said to be unhappy with his prospects for playing at Texas A&M as a freshman and left the team.
 "I was blindsided. I was told all kinds of lies — not exactly lies — but just stuff they told me that never came true," Hill added he had been told he could play with the A&M varsity right away, but that it hadn't worked out in early practices.
 Oklahoma uses a lot of backs in its wishbone attack and is thinner on halfbacks than usual this year.
 Hill was the target of an intense recruiting battle between Oklahoma, Nebraska, Texas and Texas A&M.

Ex-Bosox slugger challenges in Jimmy Fund Golf Classic

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — As a collegian he was a prominent golfer — the 1978 U.S. Amateur champion, a three-time All-American at Ohio State and winner of the prestigious Northeast Amateur Invitational two years in a row in neighboring Rhode Island.
 However, rookie pro John Cook literally had to come out of nowhere Thursday to the veteran tour players Gibby Gilbert and Bob Eastwood for a share of the opening-round lead in the $300,000 Jimmy Fund Classic at Pleasant Valley Country Club.
 Among a group of 12 that finished two shots off the pace at 68 was Ken Harrelson, former major league baseball player with Kansas City, Boston and Cleveland and currently a television broadcaster for the Red Sox.
 "I've always dreamed of playing well and coming into the press tent," said Harrelson, who unsuccessfully tried during 1971-73 to make the pro tour after he retired from baseball.
 Proceeds from the tournament will go to the Jimmy Fund, the money-raising arm for the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute at the Children's Medical Center.
