"YE MEN OF LITTLE FAITH" — Just when some people were beginning to say that it "never would rain again in Big Spring," the heavens opened up today with downpours that generally measured more than an inch. The rain came down so hard, most of it taxed the strength of the channels and the gutters built to alleviate the threat of flooding. The scene above is at 21st and Gregg Streets.

Confusion amid national debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — As League of Women Voters officials meet today to decide whether to invite John Anderson to take part in the league's presidential debates, they find themselves mired in the arcane intricacies of national political polls.

At the same time, there seems to be confusion on independent candidate Anderson's part as to whether the White House has shifted position on its insistence that only President Carter and Ronald Reagan participate in the first presidential debate. Word from the White House was "no change."

Carter has said all along he would debate Anderson along with Reagan, but only if he faces Reagan alone first. Anderson wants in on the first match, which is regarded as having the most influence on voters.

The league, in an effort to avoid legal hassles, set what seemed like a simple standard for invitations to third-party candidates: the candidate had to reach the 15-percent level in national polls.

But the fact that the league officials meeting today have invited along a corps of polling experts and academics suggests that the formula may be a good deal more complicated than imagined — and only partly because polls taken over the last three weeks put Anderson's national standing at anywhere from 13 percent to 17 percent.

While the debate question was debated, both Anderson and Carter were stumping in New Jersey today, and Reagan was in Chicago.

The president was taking part in the dedication of a new steel plant in Perth Amboy, N.J., giving him an opportunity to defend his own economic policies and attack those of Reagan.

Carter said at the ceremony that his economic recovery plan would create a million jobs over two years while Republican promises of tax cuts would only bring "massive tax breaks for the wealthy and massive increases in inflation to working people."

In Chicago, Reagan said in a major economic speech he could trim $195 billion or more in federal spending in the next five years by eliminating "waste, extravagance, abuse and outright fraud" in federal agencies.

His advisers said the GOP nominee's goal could be achieved without junking any major federal programs.

Reagan called Carter's economic record "an American tragedy," and pledged to revitalize the economy as president through substantial cuts in income taxes and removal of burdensome government regulations.

Reagan, speaking in Kokomo, Ind., on Monday before heading for Chicago, called Carter's plan "cynical" and "political."

Pars reported medical teams, ambulances and a ton of medical supplies have been airlifted to Kermanshah province to help treat the wounded.

Iranian and Iraqi forces have been skirmishing along their common border since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's fundamentalist Islamic revolution ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in January 1979. Iraq is predominantly Sunni Moslem and socialist, and Iran is mainly Shiite Moslem and theocratic.

LCRA files brief opposing Stacy permit

The Lower Colorado River Authority has filed its brief with the appellate court opposing the permit granted the Colorado River Municipal Water District to build the Stacy reservoir.

Lake Travis, Improvement Association, Garwood Irrigation and Lakeside Irrigation companies joined in the appeal. The City of Austin and Pierce Ranch Company dropped out, however.

The CRMWD has until Oct. 15, 1980 to perfect its brief, and then the appeals court will hear oral arguments in the case Nov. 19 in Austin.

The Texas Water Commission in 1979 granted a permit to CRMWD to impound a 554,000-acre foot lake near Stacy on the Concho-McCulloch county lines. LCRA, the chief opponent, contested the permit in district court but there the verdict upheld the CRMWD's permit.

Application for the permit was filed originally in October 1977.

Iranian warplanes destroyed dozens of Iraqi tanks in the Qasr-e-Shirin border area, where fierce air and land battles flared until early today, the commander of the Iranian armored brigade in the region claimed.

He told the official Pars news agency that Iranian army troops, border police and revolutionary guards inflicted heavy casualties on "agents" of the Iraqi regime in the fighting some 120 miles northeast of the Iraqi capital of Baghdad and 340 miles west of Tehran.

No figures were given for Iraqi losses, but the commander said 20 Iranian soldiers were killed and 20 wounded and that water and power were cut off in Qasr-e-Shirin due to Iraqi shelling.

City, area residents counting blessings for downpours today

Local and area residents are ready to commiserate with those people living down state who are combating flood conditions but they're counting their own blessings for the downpours which hit here shortly after daylight today.

Again, it appeared that Big Spring and the immediate environs soaked up more moisture than most of the rural areas within the county.

A shower which started about 9 a.m., and which came down with concentrated fury about 9:30 a.m., measured up to 1.3 inches in Big Spring. That much was reported by Clay Bedell, who resides at 625 State Street.

Bill McRee, who lives at 1905 Morrison, reported his gauge showed an even inch.

The showers began anew around 11 a.m., with indications that the wet spell might hang on much of the day.

Bill Creegar, principal at Elbow school, located about six miles northwest of town, said his gauge trapped .75 inch before 10:30 this morning. Only ten-tenths of an inch of moisture fell on Ray Walker's place about ten miles north of Big Spring. He said one moisture helped but not nearly as much as a 1.5 inch rain which fell there a couple of weeks ago.

In Ackerly, it was "barely drizzling," according to reports from the Sands schools.

At the H. H. Wilkerson ranch ten miles west of Big Spring, only .2 of an inch had fallen by 10:30 a.m., but residents there were hoping more was on the way.

The runoff was so heavy in some of the gutters near downtown Big Spring it was leaping the retaining walls and going into some yards. No real problems were immediately created, however.

Mr. John Couch, who lives in the Luther community and who is one of the Herald's most reliable weather watchers, said only a light shower fell at the Couch place before 11 a.m. today.

Sand Springs benefited from steady rains on two occasions this morning.

So much for the good news. The bad news is that the infestations of mosquitos will, no doubt, increase because of the presence of water in low-lying areas. The little insects have been a problem as recently as two weeks ago and are probably not tired of 'chewing' on people.

Creeks feeding Lake Spence; rain gauged at 4.27 near Dunn

Officials of the Colorado River Municipal Water District were cautiously optimistic that Lake Spence, the larger of the two reservoirs maintained by the district, might catch enough water from this morning's downpours to bring it up to last year's level for the same period.

Most creeks feeding the lake, located near Robert Lee, were running at 10:30 a.m. Water under the Silver bridge, located ten miles north and west of Spence, was running 18 feet deep in the channel at 10:30 a.m., and rising. That water feeds directly into Spence. The rain around Colorado City was said not to have been as heavy but at Dunn, located above Colorado City, a 4.27 rain was gauged after daylight today, with the result that the Colorado River was flowing at the rate of 26,000 acre feet a day.

Robert Lee itself was said to have been temporarily isolated due to the heavy rains.

A CRMWD gauge at the Spence dam showed 1.2 inches of rain had been trapped at 7 a.m., today but the fall had increased to 5.2 by 10 a.m.

Mideast envoy succeeds in plan postponement

President Carter's Mideast envoy apparently succeeded in getting Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to postpone his controversial plan to move his office to disputed East Jerusalem.

Israeli government sources said Begin bowed to heavy American pressure, brought to bear by Sol Linowitz, Carter's special ambassador, who visited Israel and Egypt last week and came away with agreements for the renewal of Egyptian-Israeli negotiations on Palestinian autonomy and a new Camp David-style summit. Egyptian sources said last week that the decision to resume negotiations, halted by President Anwar Sadat to protest Israel's controversial moves in Jerusalem, was a "tradeoff" for a new Carter-Sadat-Begin summit after the U.S. presidential election.

During Linowitz's visit to Jerusalem, Begin stressed he would make no concessions to Egypt because he blamed Sadat for suspending the deadlocked autonomy talks. "Linowitz talked but Begin just listened. He didn't say yes or no," one official said. But the sources noted that while Begin's new office in the former Arab sector of Jerusalem has been ready for two weeks, the prime minister has made no move to seek his Cabinet's approval for the move, which is intended to underline Israel's determination to retain control of unified Jerusalem. Sources close to Begin said it was unlikely he would seek authorization for the move in the near future since several key Cabinet ministers have expressed opposition to it. But they said it was likely the transfer would take place before the Israeli elections scheduled for November 1981 so Begin would not lose face with his own hardline Herut Party, which favors the move.

Begin's office is now in a building near the Knesset, the Israeli Parliament, in West Jerusalem. His new quarters, complete with beige carpets, wood paneled walls and heavy velvet curtains, overlook the Mount of Olives and the walled Old City in East Jerusalem, which Israel took from Jordan in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

Construction in Big Spring continues to rise in August

Construction continued to shoot up in the city during August.

Construction for the month totaled $578,190, compared to $303,638 for August of 1979. This brings the total for the year-to-date to $4,021,634, compared to only $2,813,262 for the same period last year.

As in other months this year, new residences were primarily responsible for the increase in August. Homes to be built by D.D. Johnston and R.J. Hester at 1602 and 1604 Goliad will total $140,000. A new $50,000 residence will be built by Clay Thompson at 2815 Coronado.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Cook will construct a new home at 3108 Navajo costing $52,000. The Plainsman Corporation will put up new homes at 3301 and 3303 Duke, totaling $69,600.

Although homes were the major items during August, some new commercial projects also contributed to the rise. The city will have a new pizza restaurant, Godfather's Pizza at 501 Birdwell, to choose from. It will cost $70,000 to construct.

At that same shopping area, Zales Jewelers will set up another store costing $30,000. Pat Gray Body Works will construct a new shop at 700 N. Owens at a cost of $55,000, and Bert Sheppard will construct a new commercial enterprise at 1605 E. FM 700, costing $30,000.

Children's food stamp programs now with feds

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas child care workers blamed Gov. Bill Clements on Monday for a decision by the State Board of Human Resources to turn over two children's food programs to a federal agency.

The June 11 decision to shift the Child Care Food Program and Summer Feeding Program to the U.S. Department of Agriculture would reduce the state payroll by 17 persons.

Payroll reduction was one of the key pledges in the governor's 1978 campaign.

Even H.H. Pullium of the USDA testified the state could handle the food programs better than his agency.

"I have learned that the first tenet of Texas government is that Texans look after themselves. They look after each other," said Pullium, regional administrator at Dallas of Food and Nutrition Services.

"I know this move is to go along with Gov. Clements' proposal to cut down on the number of state employees," said Carol King, director of Tullia's Community Nursery. She said the reduction is "deceptive," however, because the state is reimbursed for the salaries.

Also, she said, the proposal "is contrary to the governor's campaign promises that he would work for state administration" — rather than federal — of child care programs.

The food programs serve more than 95,000 low-income youngsters in Texas. The child care program pays for meals served to children in day care centers while the summer program provides meals and snacks to children who normally would receive free or low-cost lunches at school.

"If the programs are returned to USDA, people can say that's my problem — no, it's the problem of the children we're trying to serve," said Pullium.

M.J. Raymond Jr., associate commissioner for services to families and children, noted the state had taken over the food programs in October 1977, and he said, "Times have changed. We just don't have the staff to continue the current level of programs."

Betty Dickson, administrator of Hereford Day Care, Inc., said dealing with USDA "is like you were stuffing it down a deep, dark hole, in my book. ... Why go from an efficient operation back to the dark ages of the USDA?"

"If Gov. Clements has to have cuts, I urge that they not be in the child care field," said Joyce Duke, administrator of a Borger day care center. "Remember, children are the state of Texas' most precious resource."

Norma Plascencia Almanza of the Community Nutrition Institute, which has offices in Austin and San Antonio, urged the board "to go on record as not complying with the governor's request. Children's meals are our ultimate concern."

Raymond said the board might consider returning only one of the programs to USDA and asked witnesses to indicate their preference.

Pullium said both programs are so closely related and the state "has done such a beautiful job" that he could not choose.

Others also said it was a difficult choice.

Weather Hill Country reeling from flood waters

LLANO, Texas (AP) — Flood advisories remained in effect for the Texas Hill Country today after surging waters roared into a docking area near Lake Lyndon B. Johnson, washed into homes and businesses near Menard and covered highways near Junction and Uvalde.

A wall of water from the Llano River destroyed docks and heavily damaged at least 20 pleasure boats near Kingsland late Monday night, a Llano County sheriff's spokesman said.

No injuries were reported when high waters, spawned by rainfall from the remnants of Tropical Storm Danielle, roared through the popular fishing resort area.

Earlier Monday, occupants of several mobile homes west of Llano were forced to run for safety after the river rose 30 feet above normal, said sheriff's spokesman Rod Decker.

Authorities expected another surge of high water along the river today, the spokesman said.

But Llano's 2,600 residents were not immediately endangered by the rising river, which cuts through the middle of the Texas Hill Country town, the spokesman said.

"If the river is wide enough and it would have to get real high before it would actually threaten the town," Decker said.

But some residents of Menard, on the western side of the Hill Country, saw their homes and businesses flooded when the San Saba River became a raging wall of water a half mile wide Monday.

Electricity was out in the West Texas community Monday afternoon, and the resulting loss of pumping power and water pressure forced officials to ask the town's 2,000 residents to cut back on water usage.

"The flood in '38 was the only one worse than this one," said Jack Wenard, vice president of Menard State Bank. "But there was more water then and it stayed longer."

The National Weather Service issued flash flood advisories for the second consecutive day Monday in the Hill Country after heavy rains fell on saturated ground.

The Walter Pfluger ranch north of Junction reported 25 inches of rain during the period from 6 a.m. Sunday to 9 a.m. Monday.

State troopers closed several roads in the Junction and Uvalde areas after rising streams flooded low water crossings, the Department of Public Safety said.

But authorities reopened the highways after waters receded late Monday, a Kimble County Sheriff's Department dispatcher said.

The river crested at 36 feet near Junction, about 80 miles west of Llano, said dispatcher Edwina Daharsh, and damage was reported to several mobile homes hit by high water.

Flash flood warnings were in effect early today for much of the area between Abilene and San Angelo. Flash flood watches covered the southeast part of West Texas, the southwest part of North Texas and the Hill Country.

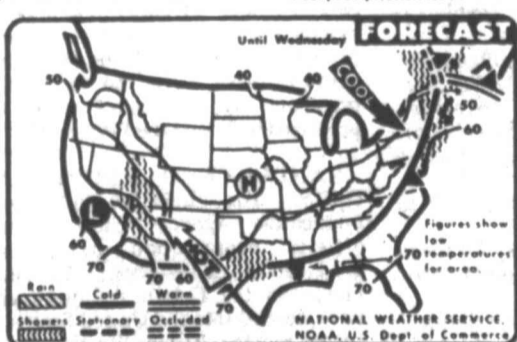

A cold front moved into the Panhandle during the night and was expected to trigger more shower activity in Northwest Texas and North Central Texas. The front moved through Amarillo before dawn and was expected to cross all of Northwest Texas and North Central Texas by tonight.

We live and die by the numbers

Learning to read is important but if you fail to master your numbers you're in for a heap o' trouble in this world. You live and die by them.

You get a social security number the first day you go to work. If you drive, you are assigned a driver license number. Your vehicle isn't allowed on the thoroughfares until it has a license tag, which has a set of number unlike any other in the state.

IF YOU SUBSCRIBE to a credit card, you're identified with a number by a company which issued it to you. If you do banking in a financial institution, your checks won't be accepted unless you include on them the proper sequence of numbers assigned by the bank.

It's been almost 40 years since WW II ended but most everyone who served in it remembers his or her serial number, assigned him or her by the military's records department. Chances are you had 'dog tags,' which you wore around your neck and which not only identified you by name but included your serial number and other pertinent data (like your blood type).

If you don't include your zip code on any mail you send out, the postal service gets unhappy. You're lucky if you have to use only five numbers on most of your telephone calls. If the person or the firm you're calling uses an area code number other than your own, chances are you have to spend a good part of the day getting the party on the other end to answer, especially if you use Direct Distance Dialing.

If you have library privileges, you are assigned a number. If you get sick, getting checked in to a hospital and getting your insurance firm to cover your stay in sick bay requires the use of more numbers.

YOU LIVE IN a numbered house, if you live in suburbia. If you have pets that are registered with the municipality in which they live, they have numbers, too.

Few people know the names of the Americans being held hostage in Iran but almost everyone knows there are 52 of them and they have been held captive for an X number of days.

A sure way to get identified with a number is to steal for a living and then get caught. If you start doing time in some rock college, you get a number so you can be distinguished from every one individual doing time there.

Would we all like to be free and rid of the numbers? We're afraid not. Most people would be lost without them and feeling lost is a lot more terrifying experience than having a hat box full of identifying numerals.

Dramatic change

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

I had always heard how much a way of life changes when a baby enters the scene. The same can be said for when pets enter the scene.

After two and a half years here, my way of life had become pretty routine. And, for the most part, uneventful and uncomplicated. But after my vacation, things changed.

As I mentioned in an earlier column, I had been in the market for a dog for some time. I had a fancy for the Lhasa Apso breed, but all the advertisements for them had been out of my price range. I then decided to buy a Cocker Spaniel. But while looking through the advertisements in the Tulsa paper, I came across the small listing for Lhasa Apsos at a much cheaper price than I had seen anywhere else. I decided to check it out.

I CAME AWAY with my 10-week-old male puppy. He was cute as he could be and the best natured dog I had ever encountered. On the trip back to my future in-laws house, the name of H.C. Hammerschmidt was decided upon, Schmidt for short.

The first morning I got a taste of what life was going to be like for a while. At 6:30 a.m. he woke me up. He was all rested and wanted to play. I took him outside and finally he gave out and so did I. We both went back to sleep for a while.

Schmidty made the long journey home great. He slept most of the way and for the rest he was content to play with a rawhide stick. We had no "accidents" and he didn't get car sick.

He cried for a few nights when I had to pen him up in the kitchen. But he soon was trained enough where I could leave him out at night without fear of waking up with a mess to clean.

Schmidty still likes to awaken early in the morning. And he lets me know he's ready to play. Usually, after taking him outside for a while, I put him and one of his toys in bed with me and he plays while I sleep.

AND, EVEN THOUGH he doesn't get anything, he likes to beg while I'm eating. Sometimes, he barks his little head off when I won't give him something to eat.

His least favorite thing is a bath. The first time he got a bath, he wouldn't let me dry him off. He just kept running away. When I got him half-way dried and started brushing him, he would roll up in a ball and pout. I had to take him for a walk around the apartment complex to get his mind off of his bath. The second time he acted almost in the same manner. This time he didn't pout. He just kept running around the apartment shaking his wet hair. When it came time for his brushing, he thought I was playing with him and tried to bite the brush as he always does when I brush him, wet or dry.

Although my living habits have changed a great deal, Schmidty is part of those living habits now and he's great to have around. Pets are great company.

Strange tactics

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The FBI insists that it never sought to entrap members of Congress into taking bribes during the celebrated Abescam investigation.

But videotapes secretly filmed by the FBI show that the undercover operatives — who were posing as barmen for a fictional Arab sheik — were willing to use questionable tactics to build their case.

Although the videotapes are still under court seal, my associate Gary Cohn has managed to review them. They reveal, for example, that the undercover G-men were willing to buy Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., with liquor to make him susceptible to offers of cash.

HERE'S HOW IT worked: Philadelphia attorney Howard Criden — a defendant in the Abescam case — was persuaded by the FBI agents to bring Thompson to a meeting at which the congressman, according to the FBI script, was supposed to accept a $50,000 bribe.

But the best-laid plans of the G-men went astray. Thompson refused to accept the cash. Instead, he made vague suggestions about deposits in New Jersey banks which had done favors for him. This nebulous videotaped evidence frustrated the FBI operatives, Anthony Amoroso and Mel Weinberg.

"Go back and talk to him," said Amoroso. "See what his position is." "He told me he won't discuss money," said Criden. Amoroso persevered: He wanted to give Thompson cash — on camera.

Criden: "Listen, this (explicative deleted) needs money worse than anybody in this (explicative deleted) room."

Amoroso: "Well, if he needs (explicative deleted) money worse than anybody in this room, let him (explicative deleted) take a chance. Let him, let him get into the (explicative deleted) water with us."

Criden pointed out that Thompson didn't want to ruin his political career. He then added: "This (explicative deleted) guy is an alky (alcoholic). What do you want from the (explicative deleted) guy?"

Hard-nosed

PHILADELPHIA — While opening his 1980 campaign with familiar hard-nosed tactics, Jimmy Carter visited this city where past admirers have been few to find his status magically elevated by the 17 days of Ronald Reagan's ordeal.

Those same Philadelphia Democrats who had buried President Carter are now rushing to embrace his resurrected person. It is not that they have any greater love for him or any greater respect for his ability. It is merely that they now consider Carter a winner, thanks to Ronald Reagan's blunder-a-day indiscretion.

Carter himself has remorselessly sought to hasten Reagan's decline. Addressing a predominantly black audience at the Zion Baptist Church here, he contented himself with one blast at Reagan, attacking him for "suggesting" that the Social Security system be made "voluntary." Although the charge is dubious, it pales before what the president did a day earlier in Independence, Mo.; he branded Reagan an enemy of peace, the working man and the South, incorrectly claiming that he had announced a "massive" nuclear arms race.

THIS ALL ADDS UP to a resurgent Carter who is remarkably similar to the Carter who beat down Carl Sanders in 1970 and Teddy Kennedy in 1980. While avoiding clear ideological identification, the president engages in hyperbole when attacking his opponent that has been his political trademark.

Carter's Philadelphia trip was supposed to be an off-day from pummeling Reagan. But the one blow gives a good idea of the president's technique. Reagan's most recent clear statement that Social Security ought to be "voluntary" was made by him in the mid-1960s. His February 1976 implication that he would consider the change was immediately regarded by his advisers as a blunder and has not been repeated.

At Independence, Carter reached into his bag of gothic Southern hyperbole and said of Reagan: "He has announced that if he's elected president, that he will initiate a massive nuclear and race against the Soviet Union." Of course, no such announcement was made. Carter presumably was enlarging on the Republican Party's pledge of "military superiority."

This is an old political tactic, particularly identified with Carter: caricature of the opponent's position comes to be the common perception if repeated often enough. While attacking his foe, Carter deflects any issue where a firm, unequivocal position would hurt him.

Thus, at the Independence "town meeting," Carter dodged when asked about school prayer — a vital matter for millions of born-again Christians.

"The thing that I'm against, as president and as a Baptist, coincidentally," he said, "is the government telling people they have to worship at a certain time and in a certain way." But that is not the issue. The Supreme Court has prohibited voluntary, non-denominational prayer which Carter says he approves of. As with abortion in 1976, Carter straddles the school prayer question.

The Carter method left the Independence "town meeting" participants less than inspired. Although the black audience in Philadelphia was spirited, the president's mid-day visit to the Italian Market here generated a small, unresponsive crowd.

NOR ARE DEMOCRATIC politicians here truly enthusiastic. "In all seriousness," one prominent Democrat, who reluctantly supports the president, confided to us, "I can think of 100 men and women right here in Philadelphia better equipped to be president."

Night chest pain could be angina

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please clarify my doctor's diagnosis, which was "A.S.H.D. and angina decubitus." — M.M.

ASHD stands for arteriosclerotic heart disease. That means arteries to the heart are thickened (sclerotic) with fatty deposits, reducing blood flow to the heart muscle.

Any angina (chest pain) is due to a temporary insufficiency of blood supply to the heart muscle. We usually think of this occurring during sudden physical exertion or emotional stress. For example, when we walk fast our leg muscles need more blood than when we are standing still. The sudden exertion steals blood from the rest of the body, the heart muscle included. If there is already insufficient blood supply to the heart, the result is pain in the chest area.

That is ordinary angina. Angina decubitus is the chest pain that develops when lying down. That's what decubitus (dee-KEW-bih-tus) means in Latin — "lying down." The explanation is a bit more complicated. When we lie down, any excess fluid in the body tissue tends to be reabsorbed back into the blood vessels so the heart has a greater volume of blood to pump. Yet, the heart muscle gets no additional blood to it to accommodate the extra work. Again, pain results.

Another theory explains the angina that awakens people from sleep. In this it is thought that dreams bring about an increase in the heart rate. Again, extra work without extra blood supply adds up to heart pain. For a further discussion, see the booklet "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." For a copy, write me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 29. My problem is that when I get my periods I have some rectal bleeding at the same time. Can you tell me why? — S.H.

There are many causes for rectal bleeding. However, when it comes with menstruation it suggests endometriosis. Bits of the uterine tissue sloughed off during menstruation sometimes migrate to other places (including the rectal area) and get implanted there. This tissue responds to the monthly hormone changes just as does the regular outer uterine tissue (endometrium). It bleeds during the period. Certainly, you ought to make your gynecologist aware of this. He can investigate the problem. Hemorrhoids could be the cause. There is no way, short of an examination, to find out.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

The following is a true story of the trouble I have had because of the Big Spring Water Department.

While driving down Lancaster, I hit a hole in the street caused by water leaking. The rear view mirror fell off and broke! Seven years bad luck.

Next day I was told at Auto Parts Shop, to have mirror replaced as it would be cheaper than buying a new one. At glass and mirror shop I was told to go to auto junk yard as they no longer replaced those mirrors. At the auto junk yard, I was told they did not have one to fit my little car but one from a larger car would do as well.

The fact the mirror reached from one side of the car to the other would only improve my rear view vision (?)!

After paying for my new-used mirror, next question was how to get it to stick. Back to auto parts place for special type of glue. I returned home only to find out I also needed an Allen wrench, a straight edge razor blade and a felt tip marker. After searching two tool boxes I went to a service station and borrowed an Allen wrench. Back home I found out my kid needed the car to go to work.

Next day I set forth with determination to fix that mirror. Even after following instructions on the glue package, the bracket would not stick. Now don't get upset I told myself. Use that super glue they say will hold up a tractor. After 30 minutes of searching the house again I finally found it. Wow! It worked!

Returned Allen wrench to station. Next day, the mirror fell off.

I drove for two weeks without a mirror. Had a sore neck and nearly had two wrecks. Back to auto parts place for another package of glue. By trial and error I found out not to wait five minutes as packages says but wait only one minute. It stuck! Returned Allen wrench again.

Next day it fell off again! With tears in my eyes and holding the mirror as if it were dead, I went to the glass and mirror shop where a nice man stuck it back on.

Total cost:
Mirror $7.50
2 pkg. glue 5.00
Nice man labor 2.50
Gas 3.05
Stamp-paper .30
Total $18.35

If the mirror falls off again I am going to drill a hole in the glass and bolt it back on!

Big Spring please fix your water holes.

Thank you,
Ester Overby

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a Christian, and I have fallen in love with a young man who is wonderful in every way except he is deeply involved in a cult which is not really Christian. I don't feel it would be right for us to marry unless he becomes a Christian, but how can I witness to him? He seems to be so closed to Jesus Christ. — J.J.

DEAR J.J.: You are correct when you say it would not be right for you to marry this young man, and I pray that you will stick to your commitment to obey God's will, in spite of your feelings. The Bible commands us, "Do not be yoked together with unbelievers...What does a believer have in common with an unbeliever?" (2 Corinthians 6:14, 15). Every day my mail brings many, many letters from those who have willfully disobeyed this command of God's Word, and have had to bear the bitter fruit of unhappiness and conflict in later life.

A person who has become deeply involved in a non-Christian cult often is closed to the Gospel because he has been told repeatedly that the way he is following is the only true way. But that should not deter you from sharing Christ with your friend. First of all, therefore, pray for your friend. Only God can open his eyes to the truth of the gospel, and only God can give him spiritual hunger for the things of Christ.

Then remember that the most compelling witness to someone like this is often your personal testimony about Christ's work in your life. If he can see the reality of Christ in your life, it will do much to make him face up to his own lack of assurance. Often persons who are involved in religious cults have a deep spiritual hunger, and yet they do not (if they are honest with themselves) really have the deep peace and assurance they seek.

Make sure your friend understands what the Gospel is and what is demanded of a person who becomes Christ's disciple. But avoid arguing with him, as this seldom wins anyone to Christ. Instead, point him to Jesus Christ, who alone is "the way and the truth and the life" (John 14:6).

Hard to get lost

LEXINGTON, Ga. (AP) — In Lexington, all roads point to Lexington.

Lexington, S.C., is only 287 miles away, Lexington, Ore., is 2,655 miles distant, and Lexington, Mass., is 1,038 miles north-northeast, according to the sign on the Oglethorpe County courthouse grounds here. The sign welcomes visitors to Lexington, then proceeds to tick off 18 other Lexingtons across the country and the mileage to each.

If it was a Bicentennial project of the local Women's Club, and Dorothy Murray, who was president of the project, said the sign has gotten little attention since it was erected.

"I was so downcast after they put it up, I asked my husband, 'Did you see our sign?' and he said, 'Where? I think they must have already taken it down already,'" she said.

But Mary Smith said the sign has been "kind of a conversation piece. We are pleased that the traffic slows down enough to see it."

For the record, there are Lexingtons in South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Indiana, Virginia, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Oklahoma, Missouri, New York, Texas, Massachusetts, Nebraska and Oregon.

Panel lowers boom

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Whoever he is, Aqua Sleep Man won't be on the November ballot as an independent candidate for the U.S. Senate.

A special panel of elected state officials Monday disqualified the man as a candidate after he appeared at a hearing dressed in a top hat, tights and cape and announced he was "Aqua Sleep Man." The man refused to identify himself in any other way.

"We agree this candidate's identity is not that of Aqua Sleep Man and further agree that the oath of candidacy is falsely executed," said the unanimous ruling by Secretary of State Melvin Synhorst, Attorney General Tom Miller and State Auditor Richard Johnson.

The panel was convened to rule on the qualifications of Aqua Sleep Man as one of six candidates who had filed for the post now held by Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa.

Judge considers motion to halt Oswald exhumation

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The tedious legal struggle to unearth the body in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave continues here amid confusion over ownership of the cemetery plot and allegations that the accused presidential assassin may actually have been a Russian spy.

State District Judge James E. Wright indicated at the conclusion of a civil hearing Monday he will decide next week on a request to temporarily halt exhumation of the body.

Oswald's brother, Robert, has filed suit to keep the grave closed, claiming an exhumation would cause him great "mental anguish."

Wright also extended a temporary restraining order, preventing any exhumation until he decides on the lawsuit. If he grants the temporary injunction, another hearing would be required to make the action permanent.

Michael Eddowes, a British author, says he has received permission to exhume the body from Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter. Eddowes, author of "The Oswald File," claims a Russian spy was substituted for Oswald and the impostor — not Oswald — assassinated President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas.

Eddowes has tried for more than two years to unearth the body to prove his claims that a shorter, slighter Soviet spy named Alek James Hidell "became" Oswald after the "real" Oswald visited the Soviet Union in 1959.

The portly, white-haired author sat on the front row of the courtroom Monday, a few feet from Oswald, a silver-haired Wichita Falls businessman who bears a strong resemblance to his infamous brother.

At issue in this hearing is ownership of a grave bearing a simple marker that reads "Oswald" at Rose Hill Burial Park.

Robert Oswald says he paid for the plot, and Eddowes has no legal right to attempt to dig up the body there.

Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, said she granted permission to exhume the body to prove once and for all that her husband was buried in the plot.

But in a surprising twist last week, Mrs. Porter told Wright she had heard rumors that led her to believe the grave may already be empty.

Cemetery manager Neil Wretberg provided copies of burial records he said bore handwritten notations showing the Oswald plot was deeded to the Oswalds' mother, Marguerite Aug. 14, 1961.

Oswald's attorneys challenged the validity of the records, intimating the deed transfer could have been back-dated.

The records showed Marguerite Oswald as the purchaser of the plot, Wretberg said.

"But the purchaser is not necessarily the person to whom the body is deeded," he said.

Mrs. Oswald has refused to comment on her son's lawsuit.

Eddowes' attorney, John Collins, briefly questioned Tarrant County clerk Charles Bratcher, who said he searched county records back to August 14, 1961, and found no evidence of a cemetery plot deeded either to Marguerite or Robert Oswald.

Cue Lipscomb, another attorney for Eddowes, told Wright he had been unable to subpoena Marguerite Oswald, a Fort Worth resident.

Assistant Dallas County Medical Examiner Dr. Linda Norton testified briefly on Oswald's military dental and chest X-rays. She said the X-rays were of "excellent" quality and it would not be difficult to compare them with X-rays of the body in Oswald's grave to provide an "absolute" identification.

A forensic pathologist, Ms. Norton said she was acting as an individual, and the Dallas County Medical Examiner's Office no longer was associated with the exhumation effort.

Eddowes contends Oswald's Marine physicals list his height as 5-foot-11, while an autopsy performed after Oswald was killed Nov. 24, 1963, listed his height as 5-foot-9. The author also says there are several discrepancies in the location of scars between the Marine physical and the autopsy.

Texas cattle sold to Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inc., told a House subcommittee that South Americans visiting Soviet Georgia identified the cattle by their Texan and Cuban brands.

He said the King Ranch had 1,500 head of purebred Santa Gertrudis breeding cattle in Cuba, multiplied from 834 animals sent from Texas starting in 1952. The takeover of the ranch's Cuban property started in 1959.

"The Castro government has been instrumental in placing an efficient protein producer, the first breed of beef cattle to be developed in the United States, in the hands of the world's most powerful Communist state," Cypher said in a recently published report.

He spoke at a House Inter-American affairs subcommittee hearing on claims outstanding against Cuba.

King Ranch Inc., which Cypher said held a half interest in a 40,000-acre ranch on Cuba, is one of 58 companies belonging to a Joint Committee on Cuban Claims.

Cypher said the agrarian reform program established after Castro came to power set up a production center for Santa Gertrudis cattle on the island of Turiguan.

"Our 1,500 head of purebreds were loaded at the ranch and the locals were told they were bound for the center; they never reached their destination," the ranch official said. "Instead they were diverted to a nearby port where they ere loaded and transported to southern Russia."

Cypher said the total value of King Ranch property confiscated in Cuba was certified as $3.2 million.

He said the Cuban operation that started in 1952 was one of the ranch's first foreign ventures.

Tween 12 and 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.
Copley News Service

About three weeks ago we had a kickoff for our third annual pen pal fair. As usual we have had more girls respond than boys. So gentlemen I'm asking for your cooperation.

There is an abundance of young ladies from age 12 to 20 in Canada and the United States who want to be your pen pal. It's simple! Just write to me in care of this newspaper, and tell me where you would like your pen pal to live. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents in coin (we hire three teen girls to assist) and we will see that you have a charming pen pal.

Girls, if you are reading this (I know you are), you, too, can get a pen pal by following the same directions. Oh, yes, before I forget, make sure you tell me your age.

Teens, if you don't have the 50 cents, I'll see that you get a pen pal anyhow. Don't delay. Write to me today. I guarantee that it will be an exciting, enjoyable experience.

Dr. Wallace: My mother's boyfriend, my mother, and I went on a vacation a week ago and I got to meet his daughter.

After a couple of days, I realized that I was in love with her and told her how I felt. She told me that she would be in love with me, too, if I was older (I'm 14 and she is 18). She told me that I would only be able to continue to love her and that it was only "puppy love."

Personally, I think she loves me, too. She kissed me with feeling. Please tell me what to do. Should I give up on her or should I continue to love her? I can't stop dreaming about her. — Greg, Bartlesville, Okla.

Greg: Not too many 19-year-old girls love 14-year-old boys and if they did, the social pressures on the girl would be enormous. Consider this girl as a friend, but "put the brakes" on the romance.

Alpha Kappa Omicron presents new officers

The Alpha Kappa Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi began the new sorority year Aug. 24 in the home of Dene Anderson.

Linda Miracle presided and called the business meeting to order.

Officers for the new year were presented, including Mrs. Miracle, president; Dene Anderson, vice president; Doris Arcand, recording secretary; Pat Tallant, corresponding secretary; and Ceil Bedell, treasurer.

Reports were given by the various committees that met through the summer and plans for the new year were discussed. Yearbooks were distributed by Barbara Richardson, chairman of the Yearbook Committee.

Represented on the cover of the yearbooks was the theme for the year "Share Golden Treasures."

At the close of the meeting Phi Pal gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served.

Council plans salad supper

The Big Spring Beta Sigma Phi City Council held their first meeting of the year Sept. 4 in the home of Connie Edgemon. All three Beta Sigma Phi chapters were represented.

The council voted to hostess a city-wide salad supper to kick off the Fall rushing season followed by entertainment with a game of crazy bridge. This supper will be held in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 2.

Members of Beta Sigma Phi and their invited guests will be attending.

It was also determined that city-wide pledge rituals will be reinstated with that function to be held in November.

The annual charity Valentine Ball was discussed and further plans for this event which will be on Feb. 14 will be made at future meetings.

Food club to meet Thursday

Big Spring School Food Club will have its first meeting for this new school year at Marcy Cafeteria Thursday, at 5:30 p.m.

All new employees are invited to attend and join. All returning employed personnel are urged to come and pay their dues.

Cross-Dressing Could Cause Indecent Exposure

DEAR ABBY: About the letter from the married couple who were very self-conscious because she was about six inches taller than her husband, so they started going to restaurants together — she dressed as the man, and he the woman: They asked you if it was against the law, and you wisely suggested that they check their local laws.

Abby, they clearly have a legal right to dress as they wish as a part of their constitutional right to privacy.

However, should they use the public restrooms, they might run into trouble. A man caught in a women's restroom, even if he's dressed as a woman, risks being charged with violating laws against peeping toms and indecent exposure. Similarly, a woman caught dressed as a man in a women's restroom, or a man caught dressed as a woman in a men's room, may be detained to prove correct sexual identity.

Also, a man who is jailed dressed as a woman may have to fight off indecent assaults from other inmates.

So perhaps they should consider these risks when weighing whether to do something they have a legal right to do.

ARLINGTON, VA., ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: You make several good points. Even though cross-dressing in restaurants may be legal, it's not advisable.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Economy, taxes and balanced budget

Campaign '76 not experiencing much success

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1976, Jimmy Carter said that if elected president, he would work to cut unemployment and inflation to 4 percent, overhaul the tax system and balance the federal budget — all by the end of his first term.

Those economic commitments formed the cornerstone of his campaign attacks on Republican predecessors whose policies Carter blamed for a sluggish, inflation-prone economy.

Today, unemployment is nearly double 4 percent.

Inflation is more than triple.

The tax burden on the average American is heavier than it was four years ago.

And despite a recent attempt at fiscal balance, budget deficits are certain this year and next, one result of the recession that has settled over the nation's economy.

Since Carter took office, spendable income — adjusted to take inflation into account — has dropped 3 percent.

The median price of a house has risen from $44,000 in 1977 to $60,400 in April 1980; mortgage rates have increased from 9 percent in December of 1976 to about 12 percent.

During the 1976 campaign, Carter pledged that he would "never increase taxes for the working people of our country and the lower and middle-income groups." Carter proposed sweeping changes in the tax system in 1978, but most of his ideas were rejected by Congress which chose instead to enact selected tax cuts.

The average family of four is paying $1,399 more in federal taxes in 1980 than it did in 1976, according to Congress's Joint Committee on Taxation. The family will pay $3,580 in combined federal income and Social Security taxes in 1980 — 16.6 percent of gross income. That compares to $2,181 or 14.6 percent of gross income in 1976.

Carter economists cite these achievements:

—A Social Security system kept solvent by higher payroll taxes that the administration pushed through Congress.

—Deregulation of the airline industry that led to greater competition and reduced fares. Trucking deregulation, designed to lower freight rates, and eventually consumer prices, became law in early July and rail deregulation is pending in Congress.

—The most sweeping bank deregulation bill in 50 years, enacted in a rare example of White House and congressional cooperation. It phases out ceilings on the interest paid to savers and opens the door for greater competition between thrift institutions and banks.

—Creation of 9 million new jobs since Carter took office, with total employment rising from 88 million in the last quarter of 1976 to 97 million in the second quarter of 1980.

Carter's recently unveiled economic "revitalization" program includes proposals to give individuals and businesses $27.6 billion in tax reductions next year. It is also designed to promote business investments and create 1 million new jobs over the next two years.

Carter said, however, he did not want Congress to act until after Nov. 4. "I will not accept a pre-election bill to cut taxes," he said. The president's advisers foresee high inflation, big budget deficits and rising unemployment through Election Day.

Carter inherited a 7.4 percent unemployment rate. In the 1976 campaign, he declared that the nation's No. 1 economic priority "has got to be jobs," and once in office he proposed a $50 tax rebate to stimulate the economy.

He later declared the rebate "a mistake" and withdrew it from Congress. Even without the rebate, however, the jobless rate declined in 1978 and 1979, settling at a low of 5.7 percent.

In 1978, Carter declared inflation had replaced unemployment as the nation's No. 1 economic enemy.

Four anti-inflation programs, including voluntary wage and price guidelines, failed to stop consumer prices from rising from 4.8 percent when Carter took office to a 12.6 percent pace in the first seven months of this year.

The Carter administration blamed much of the jump on soaring energy prices — generally unaffected by the voluntary guidelines. Republicans say budget deficits also boosted inflation.

The recession that hit this year increased unemployment, which rose to 7.8 percent in July.

And Carter's most recent anti-inflation strategy, based on tightening credit, prompted charges that the president had broken his campaign pledge not to sacrifice jobs to combat inflation.

Administration officials deny the charge.

The government's tax collections are expected to grow $246.3 billion, or 69 percent, during Carter's four years in office. The major portion of those increased tax receipts comes from taxpayers who have been pushed into higher tax brackets by inflation or who are paying the higher Social Security taxes.

But despite the additional tax revenues, Carter has failed to balance the budget. The deficit in the fiscal 1977 budget, the last one passed by the Ford administration, was $44.9 billion. The expected deficit for fiscal 1980 is near $50 billion. And the latest economic forecasts, taking into account the president's most recent tax and job proposals, project a 1981 deficit of $35 billion.

Congress rejected most of Carter's 1978 Tax Reform Act, the president's effort to overhaul the U.S. tax code which he once described as "a disgrace to the human race."

Among the provisions which were turned down were the president's plans for limiting business deductions for entertainment — including the so-called "three martini lunch," repealing a tax break for exports, and raising taxes on capital gains. Less than one-third of the 33 recommendations which Carter made were accepted.

DICK GREGORY MICHELLE MARVIN

Activist returns from Iran

PARIS (AP) — Activist Dick Gregory, just returned from fasting for 4½ months in Tehran, Iran, says he plans to continue his "fast for peace" with a march from New York to the White House starting Friday — if his health permits.

When he arrived here Monday, Gregory said he began his protest to show the Carter administration how close the world is to war.

"I think World War III could start at any minute," he said. "There is much more than the hostages involved."

Gregory, who looked fit but slightly gaunt, told reporters at Charles de Gaulle airport he went to Iran as a private citizen and was never asked to serve as a go-between in negotiations to release the 52 American hostages, who completed their 310th day of captivity Monday. He said he did not see the hostages.

Last of Sellers' fears gone

LONDON (AP) — If Peter Sellers ever harbored a needless fear, it was that no one would show up at his memorial service.

An estimated 500 mourners, many of them entertainers, did show up Monday at St. Martin-in-the-Field to pay tribute to their friend who died of a heart attack here July 24. Monday would have been Sellers' 55th birthday.

Prince Charles, a special fan of Sellers, was represented by British comedian Michael Bentine. Lord Snowdon, ex-husband of Princess Margaret, read the 23rd Psalm, and friend, fellow jester and singer Harry Secombe sang "Bread of Heaven."

Actor David Niven recalled that he and Sellers attended a memorial service for Noel Coward several years ago. As they left the church, Sellers said he hoped there would be no such service for him "because I don't think anyone will show up."

Niven added: "I just hope that he knows that Laurence Olivier described him as a genius."

Shoplifting charge lodged

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Michelle Triola Marvin, whose "palimony" property suit against actor Lee Marvin gave new meaning to the term "living together," has been arrested for investigation of shoplifting.

Police Lt. Russ Olson said Monday that Ms. Marvin, 47, was arrested Friday by private security officers at Robinson's Department Store in Beverly Hills and accused of trying to shoplift three sweaters and two bras valued at $208.

She was ordered to appear in court on Sept. 30 for arraignment. Olson said the case probably would be prosecuted as a misdemeanor.

Ms. Marvin, who sued Marvin for half his fortune after their six-year love affair ended, was awarded $104,000 in April 1979, but an appeal is still pending and she has not received any money.

Last April, Ms. Marvin said she has been supporting herself with fees from lectures and a large advance she received on her autobiography, which is to be published next year.

Big Spring will be spotlighted in 'Permian Journeys' at fair

The travel-log, sponsored and produced by El Paso Products Company of Odessa, a major petrochemical producer, will be shown in the company's booth. President J. Virgil Waggoner stated, "We began this project to assist our own employees in planning family oriented, fuel saving recreational trips within easy drive of home. We found the area offers so much that we decided to share our discoveries with all the Fair visitors."

Attractions included are Heritage Museum and Big Spring State Park. Stanton, in Martin County, will also be mentioned.

The fifth annual fair is an area wide event, attracting over 70,000 visitors each year. Events include a chili cook-off, beard growing contest, carnival rides, beauty pageant, plus displays of judged entries in arts & crafts, livestock, pies & pastries and canned competition.

Chrissie makes pitch for No. 1 female rating

NEW YORK (AP) — For once, she was the crowd favorite. It seemed nearly everyone was rooting for the queen to return to her throne.

And that is just what Chris Evert Lloyd did as she won the U.S. Open for the fifth time.

"I feel sorry for the people who make the rankings," said Lloyd after her 5-7, 6-1, 6-1 victory over Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia in Saturday's women's singles final. "But I think I have the best record of all the players as far as the majors go, and that should play a large part in determining who is No. 1."

Lloyd certainly was tops in the hearts of the record crowds at the Open. For each of her matches, she received loud ovations, especially in her semifinal defeat of top seed Tracy Austin. It was that win that really gave Lloyd the biggest thrill.

"I knew I had to beat her to be No. 1," said Lloyd, who had lost five straight times to Austin before her 4-6, 6-1, 6-1 demolition of the 17-year-old defending champion. "She's been my nemesis this year. It takes me a step closer to being No. 1. I knew if I won here and didn't beat Tracy, I still might be No. 1."

There can be little doubt that Lloyd belongs atop the rankings, a pedestal she stood on for five years before Martina Navratilova, then Austin, assumed the lead. Since she returned from a three-month vacation from competitive tennis, Lloyd has lost just one match: the Wimbledon final to Evonne Goolagong, who missed the Open with an injury. Lloyd has won the Italian, French and U.S. opens this year and has beaten Navratilova and Austin this summer.

"Winning didn't mean as much to me when I was younger," said Lloyd. "I feel more emotion now. Before, winning was a habit."

It's the kind of habit anybody would like to fall into. John McEnroe, for instance, wouldn't mind winning the Open every year.

McEnroe became the first repeat champion in the Open since Neale Fraser in 1959-60 by upending top seed Bjorn Borg of Sweden 7-6, 6-1, 6-7, 5-7, 6-4 Sunday.

In doing so, McEnroe reversed his five-set Wimbledon final defeat to Borg; ended the Swede's hopes for the Grand Slam — he'd already won the French and Wimbledon this year and needed the U.S. and Australian titles to complete the feat — and snapped Borg's streak of 13 consecutive victories in five-set matches.

"I don't think Bjorn or I have reached our potential," said McEnroe. "He's No. 1, so he's the most satisfying guy to beat. We have a rivalry because we don't play often, so when we do play, it's usually in major tournaments. It's good for tennis."

Borg has come to the Open three straight years with the Grand Slam on the line and failed. He's still looking for his first Open title.

"I will be back. I will keep trying," said Borg. "As long as I still have goals and can give all I can into tennis, winning the U.S. Open will be my biggest goal."

Cowboys dominate Redskins in 17-3 win

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I had butterflies and was really jittery in the locker room," he continued. "I even made them move the clock from behind a blackboard so I could see the second hand go around, waiting to go out on the field."

White, a five-year veteran who spent one year in the World Football League, said the nervousness began to leave him during the warm-ups and he settled down to normal after the opening Dallas drive.

"After that first drive, I was excited to get back into the game," he said with a smile.

Much of the Cowboys fortunes rest on White who is taking over from Staubach, who is working in a television broadcast booth this season.

"I have a lot to prove, not only to myself, but to everybody," admitted White, who completed 10 of 18 passes for 107 yards, but threw two interceptions. "I'm not a proven quarterback, yet. If I could have those two interceptions back, I would be very happy with the game."

The Cowboys had a relative easy time in handling Washington, shutting the Redskins out until Mark Moseley hit a 45-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Tony Dorsett scored on a 6-yard touchdown run and Ron Springs bulled over from the 4, to culminate two long drives by the Cowboys.

Cowboys defensive end Harvey Martin, a leader of the gang that held the Redskins to 58 yards rushing, said, "I'm not taking anything away from the Redskins. We just wanted it more than they did. We just stuck it in their face."

Both White and Martin said a key play was the goal line interception by veteran Charlie Waters midway through the third quarter on the first play after the Redskins had intercepted White.

"That play was vital to us," said White. "They had good field position and didn't get any points."

Martin: "Charlie was the leader. He was talking to all the young guys. He was teaching in every huddle."

Waters merely joked: "If I had two good knees, I might have gone all the way."

White said he was unaware that Staubach was shown on national television, watching the contest from his home.

Sims earns praise of LA defense

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Generally, the winning club provides the accolades for the star, but this time the Los Angeles Rams had a lot of good things to say about Detroit rookie running back Billy Sims.

He had just scored three touchdowns and set up a fourth as the Lions upset the Rams 41-20 and ruined the regular National Football League debut of the erstwhile Los Angeles Coliseum-based club in their new stadium.

Sims, the 210-pound Heisman Trophy winner from Oklahoma, had tallied on runs of 10, 11 and 41 yards. He gained 153 yards rushing and 64 on passes.

"He is as good as any back in the league," commented Jack Reynolds, the veteran middle linebacker of the Rams.

"That man can do some running, spinning and turning and breaking tackles," said linebacker Bob Brudzinski.

"He has good speed, excellent balance and is a strong, all-around back," commented free safety Nolan Cromwell.

All of those commenting were members of the stellar Los Angeles defense that has been among the best in the National Football League in past seasons.

"He gets to the hole real quick," added Mike Fanning, the Rams' defensive left tackle. "He's a pretty good back."

That was the understatement of opening day.

Sims rattled the Rams' defense regardless of the fact that four members of the alignment had been holdouts during a good part of the preseason.

Detroit Coach Monte Clark said, "Sims adds a whole new dimension to the offense."

Dexter Bussey, who gained 111 yards rushing. You have to go back to the Lions' inaugural NFL season of 1934 to find a game where two of their running backs went over 100 yards each.

Refreshing memories, it was Dutch Clark with 110 yards and Ernie Caddel with 132 against Pittsburgh on Nov. 4, 1934, who did it before.

The Fall League Slow-Pitch games scheduled for tonight at the Johnny Stone Park have been cancelled. No make-up dates have been announced.

Games cancelled.

Buckeyes keep No. 1 grid rank

By The Associated Press

Ohio State and Alabama have maintained the top two positions in The Associated Press college football poll as two traditional powerhouses — Texas and Notre Dame — edged closer to the summit.

The Buckeyes retained the No. 1 ranking, collecting 33 first-place votes and 1,140 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of 59 sport writers and broadcasters.

But their lead over Alabama, seeking an unprecedented third straight national championship, dwindled.

Alabama, a 26-3 victor over Georgia Tech last Saturday, was tabbed No. 1 on 22 ballots and got 1,121 points. In the preseason poll, Ohio State led the Tide 36-24 in first-place votes and 1,253-1,217 in points.

The major upward movements in the first regular-season poll, which contains the same 20 teams as the preseason poll, came from Texas and Notre Dame.

The Longhorns jumped from 10th to sixth following a 23-17 victory over then sixth-ranked Arkansas eight days ago. The Irish, led by a senior quarterback — Mike Courey — who had never started a game, whipped then ninth-ranked Purdue 31-10 last Saturday.

ALL IN THE FAMILY — Pittsburgh Steeler Terry Bradshaw (12) walks off the field with his brother Craig, a Houston Oiler, on Sunday after the Steelers beat the Oilers, 31-17, in Pittsburgh. Craig, a rookie quarterback, saw no action, but brother Terry passed for 254 yards and two touchdowns.

For recent drug bust Kuhn suspends Fergie Jenkins

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Texas Ranger pitcher Fergie Jenkins says he's not angry about having his uniform jerked, but he is "in limbo" because of the suspension by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"I can't say anything about it," Jenkins told a Dallas Times Herald reporter here before leaving for Texas Monday night. "I'm just in limbo."

Kuhn suspended Jenkins with pay Monday until the veteran pitcher cooperates with baseball security personnel who want to conduct a private investigation into his narcotics possession arrest in Canada.

"I can't pitch, so I'm not doing anybody any good here," Jenkins said Monday night in Oakland, where the Rangers beat the Oakland A's, 6-2.

"I guess I'll fly back to Arlington (Texas), spend a few days packing, then drive to my farm in Canada. There's plenty I can do up there."

Jenkins said he was unable to reach Marvin Miller with the players' association, but talked with Miller's assistant Donald Fehr in New York.

"He (Fehr) told me I'll just have to go along with it for now," Jenkins told the Times Herald. "He (Kuhn) is right, I guess. He's the commissioner. He just put down some of his authority."

Fehr said Monday afternoon, "We could possibly file a grievance, but the only problem is the season would be over before it would be heard."

Jenkins was scheduled to start Monday night against the A's, but Ranger Manager Pat Corrales inserted 23-year-old rookie John Butcher, just called up from the minor leagues last week.

Butcher responded in great fashion, allowing the A's only six singles. He struck out five and walked three as he went the distance.

Kuhn sent a letter to Jenkins in Oakland and to the Ranger organization in Arlington.

"I didn't know about it until I got to the ballpark," Corrales said Monday night.

When asked if he expected Jenkins to be available at all the rest of this season, the manager replied, "I have no idea about that."

Jenkins could miss five to six starts if he remains suspended.

Arrested in Toronto Aug. 25 after his luggage was searched, Jenkins later was charged with possession of small amounts of marijuana, cocaine and hashish. His trial is set for December 18 in Ontario.

Portions of Kuhn's letter to Jenkins read: "While I am, of course, disturbed by pendency of drug charges against you, I am prepared to defer further proceedings by this office in that regard until they have been concluded."

"However, since you have also declined to cooperate with this office's investigation and thus, perhaps to exonerate yourself, I think it is also fair that you should not be in uniform again until this matter has been disposed of."

The letter added "Consistent with that view I am asking the Texas club to continue your salary and benefits during your absence which should make clear that my action is no sense intended to be punitive. I would obviously reconsider your status if you were to agree at any time to resume the interview and respond fully to interrogation."

Rangers Executive Vice President Eddie Robinson said "We made our thoughts clear to the Commissioner and we certainly don't want to prejudge Fergie. The Commissioner, however, decided to take this action and we have no alternative but to abide by it."

Jenkins' attorney, Ed Greenspan, said from Toronto Monday he thinks Kuhn is "too powerful."

"It appears the baseball commissioner can get away with anything," Greenspan said. "He's too powerful, in my view. One of the basic lessons any lawyer is taught is the right of a client to remain silent, particularly when in front of such a board or tribunal (the baseball security people)."

Phillies stop slumping Bucs

By The Associated Press
Tug McGraw, never a shrinking violet, has decided to take his first victory in nearly a year as an owner that the Philadelphia Phillies are going to be the next champions of baseball.

McGraw, who also has 17 saves, earned his first win in five decisions this season — and his first triumph since last Sept. 18 in St. Louis — Monday night with 22-3 innings of scoreless, two-hit relief as the Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2.

The victory moved the Phillies within one-half game of the idle National Expos in the National League East Division race. In other NL games Monday night, the Cincinnati Reds beat the Atlanta Braves 6-1 and the Chicago Cubs topped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2.

McGraw recalled that in 1973, when his outstanding relief pitching helped the New York Mets win the National League pennant, he didn't get his first triumph until August.

"This year I didn't get it until September," McGraw said. "In '73 we lost the World Series. Maybe there's an omen there somewhere, even if I have to make it up. It means we'll win the

Bum sets receiving practice for Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have an extra day of practice this week to prepare for a Monday night game against the Cleveland Browns and Coach Bum Phillips already has that workout planned.

"We're going to spend it catching passes," Phillips said Monday in reviewing Sunday's disheartening 31-17 loss to Pittsburgh in a game that was supposed to prove the Oilers had caught up with the defending Super Bowl champions.

Houston's entire receiving corps suffered a severe case of iron hands in the first half when they dropped five catchable passes and the Steelers took a 17-0 lead.

"I don't know how to explain it," Phillips said. "We dropped some passes and we tipped some that they intercepted."

The epidemic started with Earl Campbell, who dropped one of Ken Stabler's first passes, and quickly spread to the rest of the Oiler receivers.

"I was about the last guy to drop one," wide receiver Mike Renfro said. "Then I dropped two. I couldn't figure out what was wrong. I couldn't understand why my teammates were dropping them, and then it happened to me."

The loss did not deter Phillips from his contention that the Oilers have closed the gap against the Steelers.

"After playing the ball game, I still feel that we are as good as they are and we're capable of beating them," Phillips said. "We are better than we were last year on offense and defense and they aren't any better than they were last year."

Sunday's loss was similar to a 38-7 dunking the Oilers suffered a year ago in the first meeting between the two teams. But Phillips is not ready to quit after one game.

"Yesterday we didn't do the things that we are capable of doing and yet we still were in the game," Phillips said. "We were down 17-0 and came back and tied the game and had a chance to win it. It's a tribute to our team that we were able to come back."

The Oilers, unable to run against the Steelers in three meetings last season, attempted 44 passes Sunday compared to only 15 running plays, 13 by Earl Campbell.

Houston's pass-oriented attack doesn't mean Phillips has junked the Oilers' running game and Campbell, the NFL rushing champion the past two seasons.

"We will try to run the football on teams that we can run on," Phillips said. "Your plan changes from week to week and from opponent to opponent."

It may be awhile, however, before the Oilers score another touchdown on a pass by Campbell. The Oilers' first touchdown Sunday was a 57-yard halfback pass to Billy "White Shoes" Johnson.

"We put it in last week and worked on it," Phillips said. "I didn't call the play. It came from the press box. I don't think he ever completed it during practice but he sure did in the game."

The best news Phillips could muster about the game was the Oilers escaped with no injuries.

"That's the first time we ever played them and didn't have to go to the hospital," he said.

Temple back in No. 1 position in AAAAA Big Spring Team stats

By The Associated Press
 Temple, which won 15 straight games en route to the state Class 5A football championship last season, continues to thrive off of Lewisville's misfortune.

Lewisville was bounced from the playoffs last season in a 3-0 loss to Temple and when Lewisville was tied by Duncanville 21-21 in its season opener last week, Temple was ready for a return to the No. 1 position in The Associated Press Schoolboy football poll.

Temple, ranked No. 3 in The AP's pre-season poll of Texas sports writers and sports casters, leap-frogged over runnerup Port Arthur Jefferson into first place this week receiving 10 of the 19 first place votes.

Port Arthur Jefferson, which blasted LaPorte 41-14, remained in second place and Lewisville dropped to No. 6 on this week's Class 5A list.

Meanwhile, Bay City in 4A, Breckenridge in 3A and Pilot Point in 2A held onto their top ranks.

Houston Yates, ranked No. 6 in the pre-season, was the only other 5A casualty, suffering a 6-6 tie with Houston Washington to drop out of the poll.

Lubbock Estacado, a state semifinalist in Class 4A last season, dropped from No. 2 to eighth this week after a 21-12 loss to 5A Plainview.

Brownwood, a No. 5 preseason choice, also dropped to seventh after losing to 5A Abilene Cooper 13-12.

San Augustine, the 3A runnerup in preseason balloting, lost its opener to Groveton, rated sixth in Class 2A, and dropped into a 10th place tie with newcomer Littlefield.

Port Isabel replaced Wylie as the No. 10 team following Wylie's 15-14 loss to Lancaster.

Brackettville was shut out by Charlotte 23-0 and dropped out of the 2A top 10 after being ranked sixth last week. Shiner moved in as the No. 10 team.

STEEERS TAKE THE LEAD — Big Spring running back Bobby Earl Williams (left) gives his signal to the Steer fans as he comes off the field after he and his teammates took the lead over Snyder 14-13 in last Friday night's game. Williams had just scored on a 49-yard pass reception from Tracy Spence. Registering his approval of the rally is Big Spring Head Football Coach Ralph Harris (fist clenched). Big Spring returns to Memorial Stadium for their home opener Friday against Sweetwater.

A RESURRECTION SURE... Many people today doubt the resurrection of our Lord Jesus. Mostly due to the fact that they reject Him! However, there are some who have been deemed "liberals," and rightly so, who "accept" Jesus as Lord, but believe that the resurrection was an additional teaching with the intention of creating a HERO FIGURE. But I am here to affirm that the existence of Jesus Christ is a historical fact, and that his resurrection was cut of that same cloth! The Jewish historian, Flavius Josephus, gives testimony to the existence of Jesus Christ and to his mighty works (JOSEPHUS COMPLETE WORKS, "ANTIQUITIES OF THE JEWS, Book XVIII, Chapter Three.) That gives external evidence to the existence of Jesus. Of course we have internal evidence from within the scriptures themselves. This past week an article was submitted to me for our weekly bulletin. It concerned the evidences for the resurrection of Christ. Let me briefly state them, and if I may, add a few of my own. In Halley's Bible Handbook the following are the evidences for the resurrection. 1) What became of His body if he was not raised? Did His enemies steal it? Why? They were waiting for the chance to prove Him wrong! Did the disciples steal it? Why would they do so? If they did they would show they were believing a lie! Why give your life for a lie? 2) There were witnesses. It is recorded that He appeared after His death at least 10 times. Not only to singles, but in groups of two, seven, ten, eleven, and five hundred. 3) Did they hallucinate? How could 500 people all have the same hallucination at the same time. Anyway, they were not expecting him to be raised (Luke 24:11.) Did he just "swoon" as some teach? 4) How could he have just "swooned" and come back to Himself enough to remove the heavy stone before the tomb? 5) Were there additional stories added to the Bible to bring forth a new hero for the centuries? The people called "Christians" in that day were called so because of their belief in Jesus Christ having been raised from the dead. The resurrection message was not a story that followed their initial faith; it was the cause of their faith! Let me add a few of my thoughts at this time. Look at John 19 and see how the burial garments and cloth are neatly folded. A body snatcher would be in more of a hurry than that! As to Jesus "swooning" on the cross — a Roman soldier said he was dead. Was anyone more qualified than a Roman soldier to recognize death? Would the Roman soldiers steal the body? Why? They could care less. Besides, it had Caesar's seal upon it. If they or anyone else broke it they would suffer terrible punishment. What importance does this article have toward you? Read 1 Corinthians 15 and see the consequences of no resurrection!

BITING AT THE BIT — Kansas City Royals premier hitter George Brett bites on the thumb of his injured hand as he watches his teammates take batting practice prior to their game with the California Angels Monday night in Anaheim. Brett injured his right hand Saturday in a game with Cleveland and has been sidelined until Wednesday or Thursday according to Brett. X-rays revealed no cracks or fractures, says Brett, but the soreness is similar to conditions that are being treated as such.

To be inducted September 27 HSU announces Hall of Famers

ABILENE — Two of the most unlikely football players to earn All-America honors, the coach who first guided Cowboy grid fortunes to national prominence, and the key to HSU's last NCAA basketball tournament team will be inducted into the Hardin-Simmons University Athletic Hall of Fame on September 27.

Wilton Davis, Burns McKinney, Frank Kimbrough and Bob Tremaine will be honored as HSU installs the second group of athletes into the Hall. The banquet in the Mabey Complex on the HSU campus will be open to the public. Kimbrough will be honored posthumously while the other three men will be on hand to accept the award.

Davis, now a real estate developer in Dallas, arrived at HSU in 1947 and took over the halfback spot just vacated by R.H. "Doc" Mobley who led the nation in rushing the two seasons before. He weighed 160 pounds, was just 5-10 and had 30 take his false teeth out before he played.

Despite not looking the part, he definitely filled the bill. As a freshman he returned the first kickoff of his collegiate career for 90 yards and a touchdown and gave HSU its third consecutive rushing champion when he gained 1,173 yards rushing during the regular season and added another 236 against San Diego State in the Harbor Bowl.

The Tech Red Raiders of the Southwest Conference and the Tar Heels of the Atlantic Coast Conference each won their openers last weekend.

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The intersectional football game between Texas Tech and North Carolina Saturday has been moved from 7:30 p.m. to 12:50 p.m. at Jones Stadium so it can be televised by ABC regionally, a Southwest Conference spokesman said Monday.

The Tech Red Raiders of the Southwest Conference and the Tar Heels of the Atlantic Coast Conference each won their openers last weekend.

AL Roundup John wins 20th; Birds sweep pair

By The Associated Press
 The New York Yankees have been beating teams left and right this September, thanks to Tommy John and Rich Gossage.

Especially thanks to Gossage.

New York's strong-arm reliever put the Arm again on the opposition Monday night as the Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-4 for their eighth straight victory.

"I didn't want to have to pitch him (Gossage) tonight," said Yankees Manager Dick Howser. "He had pitched the last three nights and I wanted to give him a rest. But when you get that far to the end, you've got to go to your best and he's the best relief pitcher there is in baseball."

The Yankees were losing 4-3 going into the ninth inning before rallying for four runs. Then, when John, New York's illustrious southpaw, loaded the bases with two out. Howser brought in Gossage and the power-throwing right-hander struck out Ernie Whitton on three pitches.

"I had never faced him before," said Whit. "He threw three fastballs. They (the Blue Jays staff armed with a radar gun) told me the first was 96 miles per hour, the second one 96 and the third 98."

That was good enough to earn John his 20th victory of the season and Gossage his 25th save.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore took a doubleheader from Detroit 2-2, 8-6; Boston trimmed Seattle 10-4; Chicago edged California 3-2 in 12 innings; Seattle defeated Kansas City 7-4 and Texas turned back Oakland 6-2.

John, 20-7, registered his second consecutive 20-victory season since coming to New York as a free agent. He allowed seven hits, struck out three and walked one in 82-3 innings before Gossage came on.

DOUBLE-DECKER PARKING — John Casteel holds his grandson, 20-month-old John Sweet, after the child's actions in an auto behind him caused the resulting mishap Friday behind them in Beckley, West Virginia. Young John, sitting in a parked car with his grandmother, Marjorie Casteel, put the car into gear as the engine was running. The vehicle pushed a car ahead of it through a porch railing and onto the patio below, and then jumped the car's truck and rolled down its roof to the ground. Little John needed just a few stitches in his lip, but his grandmother sustained a broken wrist, bumped nose and bruises around the eyes.

Dagwood didn't take day off

Amusing, confusing couple celebrate 50th anniversary

1930 — 50 YEARS OF BLONDIE — 1980

The most amusing married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Dagwood Bumstead, celebrated a golden anniversary Monday. Dagwood didn't take the day off.

The 50th anniversary of 'Blondie,' the world famous comic strip which appears regularly in the Herald, fell on a Monday for Dagwood, too.

At 7:30 a.m., he snuggled under the covers, only his twin crows pecking out, until Blondie came up from the kitchen to wake him up and send him off to work. And Daisy, the family dog, watched the familiar scene with knowing eyes.

Life wasn't always that way for the Bumsteads — particularly not a half-century ago, on Sept. 8, 1930.

That day, a cartoonist named Chic Young saw his first "Blondie" comic strip published, thanks to King Features. Those daily adventures would become necessities to the readers of 1,632 newspapers in 60 countries by the time Chic died, in 1973.

Currently written by his son, Dean Young, "Blondie" now appears daily in 1,800 newspapers and is read by over 150 million people who have come to relish the Bumstead way of life. Dagwood would never dream it.

Back in 1930, Dagwood was a callow playboy, heir to the fortune of his railroad tycoon father, J. Bolling Bumstead. Trouble, as they say, brewed. Dagwood fell in love with a vivacious flapper, Blondie Boopadoop. He proposed, she accepted. Pater and Mater Bumstead protested.

Who was this scatter-brained gold-digger with her claws in Dagwood's hide and her eyes fastened on his wallet? This high-skirted young thing had come out of nowhere, as far as the Bumsteads were concerned. She was not their class, surely.

And right they were. Of course, she had gone to college. Miss Boopadoop assured J. Bolling. Only she couldn't remember to which one, except it wasn't Yale. Wait, it was coming to her, she said, perched on the corner of the tycoon's desk. Oh yes — she'd sent for a college catalogue. Somehow, though, she never did get to college, she admitted. J. Bolling glowered.

The Bumsteads put their collective foot down. Marriage was out of the question. J. Bolling swore he'd disinherit Dagwood if he married Blondie. But Dagwood also was a Bumstead. He went on a hunger strike.

Exactly 28 days, seven hours, eight minutes and 22 seconds later, on February 13, 1933, the marriage took place. True to his stodgy word, J. Bolling wrote his headstrong son out of his will.

It was just as well. Unknown to Dagwood and Blondie, their lifestyles were close to being changed dramatically. America was deep in Depression. Flappers couldn't afford to resale their dancing shoes; playboys went on the dole. Tycoons, agog, watched their investments dwindle to boxes of apples to be sold on streetcorners.

BLONDIE BOOPADOOP started out as a gold-digging flapper and was not embraced by Dagwood Bumstead's wealthy parents.

Also unknown to the newlyweds was the intercession of the hand of fate, in the form of Joseph V. Connolly, then general manager of King Features, for whom Murat Bernard "Chic" Young had worked since 1923. Connolly advised the cartoonist to move with the times. Because of Connolly, Dagwood and Blondie were married; because of him, they were to become the cartoon personifications of every real-life, hard pressed married couple in America.

Young worked hard to keep "Blondie" simple, to deal with situations so many others were facing, but he warped it just a bit to elicit the humorous side.

Dean, like his father, keeps the strip contemporary. The Bumsteads don't change, really, although the actual and the cartoon worlds around them do. They have never owned a car and, though the Bumsteads live in some undisclosed suburb, every country in which they appear has taken them to heart as real people in a real world.

They are concerned with making ends meet and raising a family; with eating and sleeping. Of the latter two, Dagwood never gets enough.

The cartoonist's art mirrored life in millions of families. The Bumsteads, in their little two-story house got a dog and named her Daisy.

"She was a funny-looking thing, nothing like Daisy today," says Dean Young. "She's smart. She doesn't talk or think like a human. She reacts to what goes on, adding a little extra, I think, to the situations."

Which flows on. Dagwood and Blondie had their first child on April 15, 1934. They named him Baby Dumpling — more formally, Alexander. Later that year, the Dionne Quintuplets were born. The world was taken with the five little girls and so were the Bumsteads. It wasn't coincidental that Daisy soon gave birth to five puppies, each named after a Dionne quint except for the sole male pup. The Bumsteads called him Elmer.

Although Alexander now is 46 years old chronologically, he is just a teenager in the strip. So is his baby sister, Cookie. Cookie was born on April 11, 1941: in time for Dagwood to wheel her in her carriage followed by Blondie, Alexander, Daisy and the puppies, into the local draft board to plead exemption from military service. His family needed him.

Cookie's birth had been anxiously awaited. The Bumsteads didn't name her. King Features ran a national contest offering $100.00 to anyone who thought up the best name for the new Bumstead baby. In pored 431,275 letters. Mrs. Beatrice Barken's of Cleveland took the prize.

"Alexander and Cookie will always remain teenagers," promises Dean Young.

Life went on. Dagwood got a job with the J.C. Dithers Co. as office manager. He's still there. The firm's business is never mentioned. "It's purposely not specified," explains Dean. "I want people to relate to it as if it were their company. They can relate to the offices, the boss and the situation."

Mr. Dithers, a grumpy tyrant with a heart of heavily-alloyed fool's gold, and his wife Cora are an integral part of the strip. So, too, are the next-door neighbors. Herb and Tootsie Woodley. Herb is Dagwood's best friend, Tootsie is Blondie's.

Sensitive? Considerate? Progressive?

All are answered "yes". At Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home, we find that people who prearrange their funerals are, indeed, all of the above.

They are sensitive and considerate of their survivors, sparing them the stress of making discomfoting decisions at a time when clear thinking is more difficult.

Prearrangement is an idea in its time—a progressive concept that benefits everyone involved.

New and safer rabies vaccine available to high risk patients

HOUSTON — A new and safer vaccine to treat persons exposed to rabies is now available on a limited basis, a state health official reported at a special seminar at the School of Public Health at The University of Texas Health Science Center here.

Dr. Jerome H. Greenberg, the Texas Health Department's deputy commissioner for preventable diseases, said the new human diploid vaccine was licensed for use in the United States in June by the Food and Drug Administration, and the National Center for Disease Control has recommended that it be used whenever possible.

However, because of limited supplies, the vaccine will be available only to "certain risk" patients. It is now manufactured only in France.

The new vaccine is more expensive than the traditionally used duck embryo vaccine, but has definite advantages, Greenberg said. Only five shots are required as opposed to the 23 doses of the duck embryo vaccine, and these are usually given in the shoulder or other large muscle rather than in the abdomen. He said there are rarely any serious reactions with the human diploid vaccine. When the other vaccine is used, there is a greater chance of an adverse reaction since the vaccine is prepared in animal rather than human tissue.

Specific criteria have been drawn by the state health department to determine who will receive the vaccine, he said. Those people receiving the vaccine must show a documented hypersensitivity to chicken products or previous hypersensitivity to flu, yellow fever or duck embryo vaccines.

Others who will be given the vaccine are children, people bitten by bats or other wild animals presumed to be rabid and individuals who fail to respond to the duck embryo vaccine.

Greenberg said that the health department hopes to establish regional panels consisting of two physicians and a veterinarian to decide which patients will receive the vaccine.

In the past, this decision has often fallen to the patient's personal physician. He estimates that fewer than 20 percent of these treatments are actually necessary. Greenberg said the high cost and limited availability of the new vaccine are its only disadvantages. However, the vaccine should become less expensive when U.S. companies begin manufacturing the substance.
