House passes bill for federal funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, accepting Senate compromise wording on public funding for abortion, today gave final passage to a bill to provide emergency funding to keep the federal government running.

The House adopted the Senate language on voice vote without debate, sending the stopgap-spending bill to President Carter for his signature.

The prompt House action averted a continued financial crisis for the federal government, much of which was left without the authority to spend money today when the new fiscal year began with the emergency-spending bill tied up on the abortion issue.

Despite the congressional impasse that technically left most of the federal government without operating funds today, signs of any real difference were hard to find in Washington.

Referring to similar financial crises in the past, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said, "I never did see the government stop."

"The law says you can't operate at a certain day and they (federal officials) always blink at that ... I hope they continue to."

Virtually the entire government's authority to spend money expired on fiscal New Year's Day — Oct. 1 — as the emergency appropriations bill was ensnared in a dispute over new restrictions on payments for poor women's abortions.

The hangup came when the Senate voted early this morning to soften a House proposal — tied to the emergency money bill — that would have sharply limited the number of times Medicaid funds could be used to pay for abortions in cases of rape and incest.

Because the House had quit for the night before the Senate made the change, the bill was delayed at least until the two bodies return later today.

The Office of Personnel Management, meanwhile, instructed the government's 5 million employees to go to work as usual today, but federal agencies hastily made emergency preparations for shutting down a wide array of activities beyond those needed to protect life and property.

With none of the 13 regular appropriations bills enacted as the 1980 fiscal year ended at midnight Tuesday, the stopgap bill was intended to finance the government between then and Dec. 15 to give Congress time to return from an election recess and finish work on the 1981 budget.

MASS CONFUSION — It was the order of the day when the gun sounded to begin the Hawk Club-Big Spring Herald Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon yesterday in Memorial Stadium. Over 140 runners showed up to run for their sponsors, with the monies going to the Howard College Athletic Department. More runners that couldn't make it are expected to run later in the week to help the cause. Howard College Athletic Director Harold Wilkder termed the Tuesday afternoon event a huge success.

CHARGED WITH PROMOTION OF PROSTITUTION — ROTC Maj. Terry L. Todd, an assistant professor of military science at the University of Texas at Arlington, stands outside the Arlington Municipal Building Tuesday shortly after being arraigned on charges of aggravated promotion of prostitution.

ROTC instructor arrested in Dallas prostitution case

DALLAS (AP) — A Reserve Officer Training Corps instructor arrested for allegedly operating a ritzy prostitution ring has very little chance of returning to his job at the University of Texas-Arlington, says his commanding officer.

Lt. Col. Raymond R. Andrae, chief of the military science department at the school, said he would meet with school officials next week to discuss the future of Maj. Terry L. Todd, 36, who was arrested and charged Tuesday.

"He (Todd) is a very hard worker and very dedicated to the students on this campus," Andrae said. "I've been very impressed with him and his loss will be difficult to handle."

Todd was arrested Tuesday afternoon in his campus office by university police. He was arraigned in his uniform before Arlington Municipal Judge Luther Strange on a charge of aggravated promotion of prostitution.

The officer was released from Dallas County jail Tuesday night after posting $1,500 bond.

Changes made in ad section

The Classified section of the Herald has taken on a new look today. Readers, no doubt, will like the changes.

Border on ads under three inches have been eliminated. The section has taken on a cleaner look for that reason and because the smaller, heavier type has been eliminated.

The changes were made with the reader in mind. Classified manager J.O. Sheid Jr. said the changes were initiated after numerous ad purchasers were consulted and requested the change.

Defense attorneys claim FBI had nothing to work on in Brilab

HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI undercover agent testified in the Texas Brilab trial today that labor official L.G. Moore "never introduced us to anyone who wouldn't deal."

Michael Wacks, during his second day on the stand, also said that Moore "gave us a rundown on a lot of people including some members of the Houston city council."

When asked about Austin attorneys Donald Ray and Randall Wood, Wacks said that at one meeting "they coached Moore ... on how to approach the speaker."

Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and the two Austin attorneys are on trial in federal court on charges of extortion, bribery, conspiracy and racketeering. Moore also was indicted.

The agent said he understood from Moore that the two Austin attorneys were to receive "a flat fee of $2,000 to $3,000 to do business in Texas. I don't think it was a retainer."

Runoff from sustained rains being stored in Lake Spence

The news concerning water reserves from the two Colorado River Municipal Water District gets better all the time.

The flow of the Colorado River into Lake Thomas has virtually stopped but Lake Spence, 50 miles downstream, is still benefiting from the runoff from last week's sustained rains.

The elevation at Lake Spence, larger of the two reservoirs which serve Big Spring, Odessa, Snyder and a number of other West Texas communities, was at 1,871.84 feet at 10 a.m., today and should go to 1,874.5 feet. The lake holds a record 212,450 acre feet of water now and could ultimately hold as much as 228,000 acre feet.

For the week, Spence has trapped 63,500 acre feet and for September alone 111,750. Since Jan. 1, 1980, the lake has benefited to the extent of 133,500 acre feet — a huge volume of water.

During the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m., today, Spence had gained 2.13 vertical feet.

The Colorado River is still running 20 feet deep at Silver above the lake. Morgan Creek is still experiencing a strong flow and water is still flowing over the spillway at Lake Colorado City 2½ feet deep.

Lake Thomas gained an additional .28 of a foot during the period ending at 8 a.m., today. The reservoir now holds 65,730 acre feet. It gained 39,000 acre feet as the result of last week's rains, added 42,350 acre feet during the month of September and 64,000 acre feet for the year.

Together, the two reservoirs have already added 195,500 acre feet of water this year and the total will go well beyond the 200,000 mark before the runoff into Spence ceases.

DPS Trooper Lockhart is involved in two-car mishap

Department of Public Safety Trooper Ben Lockhart was shaking glass out of the back of his uniform shirt this morning after being involved in a two-car collision at the intersection of the IS-20 service road north and the Snyder Highway.

Lockhart was turning left from the north bound lane of Snyder Highway onto the IS-20 north access road when a car southbound on Snyder Highway hit him broadside on his passenger side, spun him around and showered him with glass fragments. "I didn't see him until just right then," said Lockhart.

City of Big Spring, County will not fund Civil Defense

Both the city of Big Spring and Howard County have decided not to fund a separate Civil Defense operation during the coming year, said City Manager Don Davis, this morning.

The Civil Defense Department headed by D.W. Berry had formerly been jointly funded by the city and the county. Officials have now decided to incorporate the operation with another existing department to be named shortly.

"We will be in the process of phasing out the Civil Defense Department during the next month," said Davis. "It will be transferred to another department in the city or county; we don't know which yet," he added.

"Tentative plans are to phase this out," said Berry, this morning. "I didn't appreciate it a damn bit," he said.

The close down would include a complete audit and turning over of the property to the federal government.

County Commissioner William Crocker said the county decided last summer during a budget workshop to discontinue funding.

Prosecutors played the last of a score of tapes recorded by an FBI informant and two undercover agents Tuesday.

Then defense attorneys spent several hours in cross-examination of Michael Wacks, a government agent who posed as a representative of Prudential Insurance Co. during the wide-ranging investigation.

Under the questioning of Roy Minton, Clayton's attorney, Wacks admitted he had never heard or seen anything that would link the powerful Texas political figure with any criminal acts.

But, Wacks said, there had been rumors and hints that Clayton, then seeking an unprecedented fourth term as speaker, might be open to political payoffs.

When asked to nail down the rumors, Wacks said a Dallas lawyer had said Clayton once flew 16 black legislators to his family farm in West Texas in an effort to sway them to his side in a speakership battle.

The FBI agent said, however, that he had not checked the accuracy of the report.

Wacks said former state Rep. Joe Allen, now a Baytown banker, had indicated in some conversations that Clayton might accept a payoff.

Minton asked, "Did Joe Allen say the speaker would accept a payoff?"

Wacks answered, "No, but he didn't advise us not to approach Speaker Clayton."

And, the FBI undercover agent said he believed from various conversations that Bob Johnson, a widely known Texas political figure and a member of the Employees Retirement Board, might or might not take money to influence what insurance company would get the rich state health insurance contract.

The retirement board awards the contracts for state employees' insurance coverage.

Clayton, Ray, Wood, and L.G. Moore, regional director of the International Operating Engineers Union, were indicted June 12 by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion, bribery, conspiracy and racketeering, arising from the Brilab investigation of an alleged insurance kickback scheme.

Clayton, Wood and Ray are now in the third week of their trial before a seven-woman, five-man jury in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Jr.

Moore is to be tried later.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: School daze?

Q. Why are high school students allowed to endlessly circle the campus in their cars from 7:45 to 8:30 a.m., Monday through Friday? Am I the only one noticing the traffic hazard that is created? Think how many gallons of gas are wasted in a year's time by the immature thing.

A. The jurisdiction of the schools over the students starts only after the students arrive on campus and ends after they depart the campus. Your appeal then perhaps should be directed at their parents or guardians rather than to school administrators.

Iraq, Iran reporting

Battles raging today

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran and Iraq reported tank and infantry battles raging today after Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini slammed the door to an early cease-fire, vowing to fight to the end.

Iran declared it intends to keep the Strait of Hormuz open to shipping and claimed its ground forces in street-to-street fighting had pushed Iraqi invaders out of a key city in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Khomeini broadcast a message to his people Tuesday night saying Iran "will not compromise" and will not stop the fighting, now 10 days old, until all Iraqis are driven from Iranian soil.

Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai said he had received a letter from Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie on the American hostage issue and will study it, the Iranian news agency Pars reported. The 52 hostages were in their 333rd day of captivity.

The Iraqi news agency said smoke still curling over Baghdad was from the Dora oil natural gas line, a capture that fed the power plant attacked Tuesday by Iranian Phantom jets. It also said reporters for Agence France-Presse, Madrid's Diario 16, and Amsterdam's De Telegraaf were expelled for reporting that there was damage to a nuclear research center hit in the attack. It said they hadn't seen any damage themselves, and relied on accounts by others.

Iraq claimed its infantry had captured all approaches to the strategic army garrison town of Dezful, which controls all land routes linking Khuzestan province with central Iran and Tehran. Dezful is 90 miles north of Khorramshahr, the city where Iran reported fierce street fighting.

The Strait of Hormuz, the narrow channel forming the entrance to the Persian Gulf, is the bottleneck through which much of the West's oil supply was funneled. Iranian officials have threatened to expand the war if other Arab states aid Iraq, and the Pentagon has sent four special radar-equipped planes to Saudi Arabia to provide an early warning system in case of attack.

Noting this, Iran's Pars news agency said that "in the past few days, several governments under the pretext of expressing their concern over the possible closure of the Strait of Hormuz, are considering interfering in the region of the Persian Gulf."

The statement added: "The government of the Islamic Republic of Iran, in full cognizance of its international obligations, wishes to assure the international community that Iran shall not hesitate in any effort to keep this waterway in full operation."

"Despite our current relationship with the hostile government or governments of the area, the government of the Islamic Republic of Iran guarantees to do its share to maintain this waterway open."

Radio Abadan, from the city in western Iran on the southern part of the invasion front, quoted government officials as saying Iranian forces fought the Iraqis in several sectors of Khorramshahr and pushed them back three miles from the city. It said 15 Iraqis were killed or wounded and 39 were taken prisoner. The broadcast also claimed the capture of six Iraqi tanks.

Abadan was under siege and heavy artillery attack but apparently Iran's revolutionary guards were holding on there.

An Iranian military communique claimed Iranian troops destroyed 21 Iraqi tanks and two MiG planes this morning in the southern sector of the battlefield. It was not more specific as to the location.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Powell Jr. ordered districts on Sept. 4 to admit the children pending an appeal of Seals' ruling. Brownsville school officials contend their schools already are overcrowded and they have filed a motion in Washington asking Justice Powell to stay Seals' order.

Officials in that border school district say they have registered 350 alien children and more are waiting to be processed. They said they also expect an influx of 4,500 additional students when migrant workers make their annual trek to the area in the winter.

Brownsville school spokesman Tom Keller said educators had never estimated the number of undocumented students, who would register because Matamoros, Mexico, is just across the border, making estimates meaningless.

"The potential could go up into the thousands," he said. "But as far as how many will actually enroll — your guess is as good as mine."

But officials in heavily Hispanic San Antonio said only 396 undocumented children have been admitted to schools there since Powell's order. In El Paso, school officials report that 550 alien children have enrolled.

Some other administrators also are sticking to their early high estimates. Dallas school spokesman Rodney Davis said his office was "swamped with calls" immediately after the ruling, and he guessed that "5,000 to 6,000" would enroll.

After two weeks, 873 aliens had registered for classes in 87 Dallas schools. School administrator Robby Collins said he still expects enrollment to hit 5,000 in Dallas — especially if large numbers of migrants settle in Dallas for the winter.

Houston admissions are running right on schedule, according to spokesman Geri Konisberg. At the time of the Powell ruling, superintendent Billy Reagan estimated that 2,000 to 2,500 pupils would enroll immediately, with 5,000 finally going to school.

Miss Konisberg said Tuesday that about 2,700 undocumented children are taking classes now. Austin Independent School District spokesman H.K. Henley, said as of Sept. 22 a total of 88 illegal alien students had enrolled in the district, which has 55,352 students.

He said he had expected about 75 illegal alien students to enroll in the district.

Police Beat Furniture scam staged

A scam left a local woman without the furniture she thought she had bought and the check she had used to pay for it.

Laura Duke, 504 W. 3rd, thought she was buying used furniture from a man who lived on Lancaster. Apparently, the man had already sold the furniture several times before, and he left town with both the furniture and Ms. Duke's $125 check.

The furniture included a wrought iron table and chairs, a black-and-white television set, an antique dresser, a refrigerator and a stove.

Vandals tossed a rock through the plate glass window at Jo and Irene's Carpet Shop, 3008 W. Highway 80, sometime Monday night. Damage was estimated at $200.

Blanche Becker, 1004 Lancaster, was awakened by a noise in her home, Tuesday afternoon. When she got up to check, she found a male juvenile inside her kitchen. The youth was arrested.

David Upton, 1319 Wright, believes that someone stole his Siberian Husky from his backyard. The dog was valued at $300.

Janis M. Klusman, 3701 W. Highway 80, was traveling along the north side of the Owens Street Overpass, 1:40 a.m. today, when a man in a yellow and white Chevrolet forced her off the road and into a pole. Her Volkswagen Bug sustained $50 worth of damage.

Burglars broke into Ed Fernandez' room at the Howard College Dormitory and stole his .22 caliber rifle, sometime Monday. The gun was valued at $150.

A burglar tore the screen off of the bedroom window at the home of Martha Morales, 1508-B Wood, entered the home, and stole a dollar from her purse. It is unknown whether anything else was taken.

Two mishaps were reported Tuesday. Vehicles driven by Liza Anguiano, 4009 Vicky, and Phillip Mendoza, 901 N. Gregg, collided at Parkway and Alamesa, 2:28 a.m.

Vehicles driven by Gene G. Arellano, 1000 W. 4th, and Linda S. Green, 1511 Main, collided at IS-30 and Highway 87, 2:33 p.m.

Stanton's new school plans Open House

STANTON — Stanton's new elementary school, located atop an underground school built 16 years, will formally be opened here Sunday with an Open House. Hours are from 2 to 5 p.m.

The structure is at 901 West Broadway. Members of the board of trustees will be on hand to greet the public. They are Delbert Dickenson, president; Terry Franklin, vice president; Jeaneene Wheeler, secretary; Chuck Elmore, Mary Sale, Fred Hernandez and Johnny Louder.

The new structure was completed in time for the opening of school in August. The new building includes three classrooms each for the second and third grades as well as a middle school band hall.

Below the new building, the octagonally shaped underground school includes three classrooms for kindergarten, four for first grade and one for elementary music.

Both buildings are connected to the north end of a second octagonal building, which is three times larger than the underground school. Referred to as the Middle School, the larger building houses the fourth and fifth grades in the north wing as well as the sixth, seventh and eighth graders — a total of about 250 students.

Merging ramps connect the underground building to the middle school, while an all-weather, ground-level passageway joins the new building to the Middle School. The cafeteria and Middle School offices also are between the two octagonal buildings.

Hobbs planning to sue U.S. Bureau of Census

HOBBBS, N.M. — The City of Hobbs is planning to sue the U.S. Bureau of the Census, claiming the city has been short-changed in its 1980 head count.

One city official is claiming Hobbs is getting a "complete runaround" in efforts to reconcile a disagreement over what Hobbs claims involves 8,000 persons who went uncounted in the recent census.

Hobbs officials are claiming the city's population is approaching 36,000. The U.S. Regional Census Office at Denver, Colo., has placed the city's population at 28,600 after first reporting the figure at only 23,000.

Murder charges are filed

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Murder charges have been filed against two more inmates in connection with a bus wreck that killed a guard from the men's correctional complex at Hardwick.

The charges were brought Monday against inmates Bobby Marquette Cloud, 16, and Milton Drake, 20, in the death of 32-year-old Frank Scott, said Joe Briley, district attorney for the Ocmulgee Judicial Circuit. Both were inmates of the Youthful Offender Unit at Hardwick.

The bus carrying 21 prisoners overturned Sept. 18 after its brake lines were cut in an apparent sabotage effort. Scott died and six inmates were injured.

Report says agency, committees in Texas have failed mentally ill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Both the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation and Texas communities have failed, so far, to "deinstitutionalize" the care of the mentally ill and retarded.

That was a key finding in a report released Tuesday by the Texas Research League, which was asked to make the study by the state agency.

The privately financed research group said the MHMR board had adopted a goal of a "unified, comprehensive and integrated delivery system of care and treatment that will be community based, wherever feasible and in which the clients will, whenever possible, be treated at the community level in the least restrictive level."

However, the report said "thus far, Texas has fallen far short of that goal. There is no system (of care and treatment) in the usual sense of that term, just a large number of relatively autonomous and independent agencies and institutions doing their own thing in a largely uncoordinated fashion."

"Many patients are inappropriately placed in institutions without proper screening to determine whether or not they could be cared for in 'less restrictive surroundings,'" the report said.

"Many are released from the institutions without coordinated plans for their treatment and supervision in their home communities," MHMR officials, however, have "begun to address the department's problems and needs effectively, and a period of stability in that leadership is needed badly, after long years of rapid turnover," the league said.

The report pointed out that MHMR is the state's largest agency with 28 separate institutions and programs, 30 community MHMR community centers, 200 outreach programs and 30,000-plus employees.

Texas, along with the rest of the nation, is in the process of transition from institutional care to community-based care of the mentally ill and retarded. Since 1970, the report said, the average population of Texas' state hospitals has been cut by more than half and the population of the schools for the retarded has been stabilized.

"But the cost of operating the institutions has not reflected their declining populations," the report said, "and the cost per day, per client has multiplied five or six times in the past decade. If the trends continue ... the cost per client day could hit $350 in the schools and $775 in the hospitals by 1990."

The state agency is not alone in failure to make the transition, said the report. "Most communities in Texas are woefully lacking in 'support facilities' to provide community-based care. The number of alternate residential beds probably will have to be tripled, for example, if a true continuum of services is to be established. Start-up costs could range into the hundreds of millions of dollars, ... and annual operating costs might increase by more than $150 million," the report said.

Also, said the league, "there has been virtually no preparation for readjusting the institutions to new roles and functions fitted to sharply reduced populations of clients, most of whom are apt to be far more difficult to treat."

President Carter bracing for 'October surprise'

By The Associated Press
 Ronald Reagan says Iran's preference for Jimmy Carter and the president's political use of incumbency has him "bracing...for an October surprise" spelling freedom for the American hostages.

Reagan cited his longtime assertion that the United States "should have stood by the shah's government" as a basis for believing that Iran's revolutionary leaders want to help Carter win re-election. And suggested that you" what he would do about the 52 captive Americans if elected. But "I've wondered whether they will be still there in January."

Reagan himself might play a role in a politically timed hostage release. John B. Anderson, meanwhile, is bristling over defections from his own camp and suggestions from Carter's that he fold his independent challenge in light of his failure to move up in the polls.

And Carter, celebrating his 56th birthday, headed for the production lines of Detroit today after asking his political workers in Washington to rediscover the "fervor and spirit" which propelled him to victory four years ago.

Reagan campaigned in Pennsylvania today on the heels of a star-studded fundraiser in New York City which pumped $6 million into GOP coffers. Frank Sinatra crooned "The Best is Yet to Come" and pointed his finger at the Republican nominee.

But the president headlined a $1,000-per-plate function of his own Tuesday night. His serenade was "Happy Birthday," sung by a Washington audience of about 1,000 persons.

Carter's trip to Detroit today was his first return to the city since his visit there on the eve of the Republican National Convention, when he unveiled an emergency aid program for the auto industry. And it follows by one day his announcement of a similar program to help the equally-sagging steel industry. Michigan is among to top five steel-producing states.

A ROSE IS A ROSE — Independent presidential candidate John Anderson holds up a campaign sticker which is an attempt to persuade voters that they are not "wasting their votes" on him. Anderson addressed a group of senior citizens at a Miami Beach hotel Tuesday afternoon then held a press conference following his address.

They didn't just whistle 'Dixie' in Carson City

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Competitors in the Third International Whistle-Off weren't just whistling "Dixie."

Dan Bernstein of Riverside, Calif., whistled, "I'm Going to Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter" and accompanied himself on an electric typewriter. He failed to place in the novelty category.

Then there was Francisco Hernandez, a 21-year-old student from Tequila, Mexico. Unlike most of the other whistlers, Hernandez never puckered. His mouth remained locked in what looked like a casual smile as a whistle emerged.

Social Security System here to stay

The Congress must face up to an unpleasant task sometime soon, that of trying to make the Social Security system fail-proof. It won't be easy.

Rep. Barber Conable, a New York Republican, addressed himself to the problem in a speech made in the House of Representatives recently and, in so many words, said that the magnitude of the retirement system and the problems surrounding it would not permit further delay.

"There is no other government program comparable to Social Security in terms of income, outgo and persons affected," Conable told his peers. "Nothing even comes close."

CONABLE NOTED that while Congress has not increased federal income tax by statute over the past ten years, the maximum Social Security tax has been boosted 20 percent and will go up another 24 percent in January.

It's one thing for Congress to exact a tax from the people to support a program and something else again to guarantee them that their money will be there when they qualify to receive it. There are some indications that it might not be.

Conable said the whopping increases have had — and are continuing to have — an adverse impact on employment, have served to contribute to inflation in that the added costs of unemployment are passed along to consumers through higher prices on goods and services.

Conable also listed these developments in connection with Social Security financing:

—Total income in the system in the fiscal year now ending is estimated at $147.3 billion and will reach $500 billion by 1990, if no changes are made in the law.

—Concerning money going out, payments that stood at $28.7 billion in 1970 will reach $150 billion this year and more than $450 billion at the end of the decade.

—A decade ago, Social Security payments represented one-seventh of total federal expenditures. Today, they represent one-fourth.

—A total of 110 million workers pay taxes to support the system, and that number is increasing, but the number of recipients, now 35 million, is escalating even more rapidly.

"Social Security taxes are too high," Conable told the House, "because system outgo exceeds system income. The only way to deal with these taxes is by dealing honestly and directly with the system and its interaction and well-known demographic facts."

WILLIAM J. DRIVER, the SSA commissioner, says that recipients of Social Security benefits should not worry about benefit cutoffs, that under no circumstances will the president or the Congress allow such benefits to be seriously delayed or go unpaid.

"We have ample time to pass legislation to deal with the worst situations," Driver says. "One reason the Social Security trustees prepare economic forecasts is to provide the executive and legislative branches with a sound basis to consider any changes the program needs, well in advance."

Trustees are predicting that the old-age and survivors' benefit programs will run out of money inside two years unless remedial action is taken on Capitol Hill. The stewards of the program would permit borrowing among three Social Security trust-funds and reallocating payroll taxes from the disability insurance fund to the other two funds.

Let us all hope Congress gets some traction in the near future and squares up to the problem of insuring the permanency of the SS program. The public, young and old alike, should see to it that the issue is never far removed from the legislators' thoughts.

Help needed

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

Due to the lack of response received from clubs and organizations concerning the upcoming Herald tabloid "People With A Purpose," I felt compelled to devote this space to that cause.

Weeks ago, letters and forms were mailed to current or past presidents. We requested that these forms be filled out and returned to us no later than Oct. 10.

I am aware that several days still precede this deadline but undoubtedly some clubs were unintentionally overlooked due to the fact we lack an updated listing.

However, that is the primary purpose of "People With A Purpose" — to provide area citizens with a handy updated guide of clubs and organizations.

After all, the public should be made aware of the many contributing organizations that stand as the backbone of our community.

Is your club one of those which failed to receive an information form? If so, we urge you to drop by the Herald family news desk for a form, or contact us by telephone (263-7331, ext. 52). We'll be more than happy to mail it to you.

Also, presidents who failed to report at the Herald last Monday to have their picture made for the tab will again have the opportunity to have their's made Oct. 9 at the Herald between 11-12 a.m.

This will be your last chance for makeup pictures. However, if you have in your possession a wallet-size studio picture, we can use that. Most snapshots will be unacceptable.

Our main goal is making this year's club tab the most complete ever, but your club's cooperation is a must!

Get the exposure your organization deserves by seeing that it is represented in "People With A Purpose."

Let the public know just exactly what your purpose is.

Anemic strategy

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The Reagan campaign strategy will follow its rearranged pattern Oct. 1 when the soggy television spots celebrating Ronald Reagan's golden days in California are replaced by attacks on Jimmy Carter's gloomy years in Washington — a shift that retains the anemic, safety-first nature of his campaign.

The soft-sell commercials were based on the theory that voter skepticism about Reagan as president could be dispelled by dwelling on his long-ago record as governor. With a month to go, there would still be ample time to rip into Carter's record as president.

THIS HAS MEANT a wasted month for Reagan in which the initiative was handed to President Carter's blood-thirsty offensive. Reagan supporters in Congress and the business community have been distressed by the campaign's passivity and eagerly await the attack phase.

But even after Oct. 1, caution will prevail. The theme will be not what Reagan can do for the country but what Carter has done to it. Reagan's bold program of economic growth through tax reduction is covered up. The dodging of a head-on debate with the president reflects the mood.

The Reagan campaign, thus, represents the triumph of the pollsters, advertising men and political technicians over the creative theorists. His campaign is geared to hope that Reagan, if he avoids risks, can ride Carter's unpopularity into the White House. But Reagan's avoidance of issues as well as risks gives the Carter team a free run with its patented non-issues strategy of personal attack.

All this was predicted seven months ago when, in the wake of the purge of John Sears as campaign manager, Reagan's chief pollster became his chief strategist. The elevation of Dr. Richard Wirthlin, one of the nation's most respected pollsters, stirred fear within the Reagan camp that the campaign would follow Carter's in linking policy to mass opinion.

Sure enough, the Reagan strategy derived from Wirthlin's computer printouts showing (as did Carter pollster Pat Caddell's surveys) a substantial voter doubt whether a superannuated Hollywood actor could handle the presidency. Wirthlin and his fellow triumvir in the Reagan campaign, William Casey and Edwin Meese, decided on using the month of September to show Ronald Reagan without horns — particularly in his role as governor.

The job was entrusted to Los Angeles Advertising Executive Peter Dailey, who produced Richard Nixon's 1972 commercials and, like most in his trade, is allergic to serious discussion of issues. Dailey's nostalgic snapshots of how Reagan handled California's issues of nearly 15 years ago were universally greeted with barnyard adjectives by critical congressmen given a preview.

Nevertheless, the soft-sell Reagan spots of 30 seconds, one minute and five minutes have been shown repeatedly on national television. Nobody could possibly guess from watching them that any issues of substance were involved in this election. This unwittingly complements the Carter strategy of keeping Reagan on the defensive by dodging the president's vulnerable record and stressing personal in-vecive.

Urine tests important in pregnancy

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 24 years old and pregnant with my second child. With the first, my doctor found protein in my urine, and I wound up in the hospital with toxemia of pregnancy. Now I am in my fifth month and the doctor finds a trace of protein in my urine, but doesn't seem disturbed by it. In fact, he tells me to eat plenty of red meat, which contains protein. He wants me to lie down in the afternoon.

I always visit the doctor in the evening. Could this account for the protein showing up in the urine? What are your thoughts? Please reply soon, because I am very worried. — G.R.W.

Just finding protein in the urine does not constitute toxemia of pregnancy. High blood pressure and leg swelling must accompany it.

You've asked or implied many questions in your letter. I'll try to be brief.

The presence of protein in the urine without the other factors I mentioned is called gestational proteinuria. Its significance depends on whether there is any kidney problem and just how much protein is being lost. Usually, it is not a significant problem. Protein in the urine is higher at the end of the day. Thus, an early morning specimen is more helpful in determining the significance of the protein finding. Urine testing is always important in prenatal care.

In any event, whether with gestational proteinuria or the more dangerous toxemia of pregnancy, the amount of protein in the diet of the mother is not restricted. That has no bearing on either condition. The developing baby needs a good supply of protein. And finally, I should tell you that toxemia most commonly occurs in first pregnancies; much less often in subsequent ones. I agree with the suggestion about lying down.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please settle this hot controversial question we secretaries at work are having. If an adult who has never had chickenpox is exposed to them, does he come down with shingles? Are shingles contagious? If chickenpox is contagious, I assume that shingles are as well. — L.H.

Your leading me into deep woods.

1. Chickenpox and shingles are caused by the same organism — the varicella-zoster virus.

2. Regardless of age, the first exposure to this virus causes chickenpox. Few people pass through childhood without this exposure.

3. After the first exposure, the virus lives in the body in a suppressed state. Later on, it may act up. That is shingles.

4. Shingles are not as contagious as chickenpox. Since chickenpox is a generalized illness, it is assumed the virus can be spread from sneezes, etc., as well as from the fluid in the blisters. Shingles can be spread by the fluid from the blisters when they heal. That is not common.

5. To answer your first question specifically: If an adult who has never had chickenpox is exposed to them, he comes down with chickenpox.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please print this. My husband is on a lot of medication for high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. He drinks three quarts of brandy each week and I'm very worried. He is also overweight. Some advice, please. — Worried Wife.

A person who has high blood pressure, who is on medication and who is overweight should not drink that much alcohol. My advice is for him to tell his doctor what he is doing so that the poor guy will at least know why the medicine he's prescribing is not working, which it very probably isn't. If you get him to do that, you can write and have him enshrined in my good patient honor roll. Need I add the possible adverse side-effects of alcohol-drug combinations?

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there anything wrong with masking the taste of my potassium supplements in a soft drink? The stuff tastes like the pits straight. — K.K.

Nothing wrong with that.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My mother recently turned to God during a serious illness, and now that she is well again, she is a different person. She seems to have so much peace and joy. I have always regarded myself as a Christian, but why don't I have the kind of peace she has? — L.O.A.

DEAR L.O.A.: From what you say, I suspect that your mother has come to know Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior in a very personal way. Perhaps she realized during her time of illness that she was not really ready to die and meet God. She may also have realized that life is short, and only what is done for Christ will have any lasting significance. She is undoubtedly grateful to God for his mercy to her, not only in delivering her from her illness and giving her a second chance, but for giving her hope and assurance for the future.

You can have the same peace your mother has if you will trust Jesus Christ and invite him into your life as your Savior and Lord. Christ died on the cross to make forgiveness possible and to reconcile us to God. All we have to do is trust him and turn our lives over to him. Jesus said, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27).

What is the peace that God offers us in Christ? For one thing, he offers us the peace of forgiveness. When you understand that Christ has taken your sins away — all of them — and you are forgiven by faith in him, when you know that you are at peace with God, "Therefore since we have been justified through faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ...we also rejoice in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation" (Romans 5:1, 11).

Then Christ also offers us the peace of his presence — both now and throughout eternity. It is wonderful to know that you are not alone, but Christ is with you every day if you know him. "Never will I leave you; never will I forsake you" (Hebrews 13:5). My prayer is that you know his peace by turning to Him in trust and faith.

Another self-defeat

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The flareup between Iraq and Iran demonstrates once again that good-guysism does not work in foreign affairs. To prove its sterling character to the Ayatollah Khomeini the U.S. proclaimed a strictly neutral attitude.

It thus rendered itself impotent in the vortex of world politics. Now whatever happens works against American interests, and leaves Russia as the dominant power in the area.

The American position surfaced in a quick diplomatic exchange. As soon as the fighting with Iraq began to mount, the Ayatollah Khomeini fingered the U.S. "We are at war with America," he said, "and today the American hand is showing through the sleeve of Iraq."

PRESIDENT CARTER, in Los Angeles, announced that the U.S. was "not taking a position," and then let slip the reason why. He said the conflict might convince the Iranians they needed friends, "and therefore induce them to release the hostages."

Putting the U.S. at the mercy of the Ayatollah yielded the usual non-results with respect to release of the hostages. The hostages unfolded in a way predictably at odds with American interests. First of all, the fighting intensified. While the military action has not been decisive, it has raised a direct threat to the flow of oil from both countries. Once again there is the possibility of a supply crunch.

Secondly, a dark shadow was cast across the monarchial regimes of Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the sheikdoms of the lower Persian Gulf. For those countries — which supply the great bulk of foreign oil consumed in Europe, Japan and the U.S. — are highly vulnerable to the political acids distilled in Tehran and Baghdad.

If the Iraqis emerge top dog in the fighting, the left wing socialists of the Ba'ath Regime there will be in still better position to subvert the dynasties of the gulf. If the Iranians do well, the religious fundamentalism of the Ayatollah will inspire new hostility to the "imperialism" of the oil sheiks.

An adverse impact on the Camp David process is equally assured. Serious hopes for further progress depend on bringing Jordan into the talks between Egypt and Israel. The Jordanians, however, will not come forth unless given at least tacit support by Saudi Arabia.

But the Saudis find themselves living with still more evidence of American weakness. They will have to gauge even more sensitively the relative influence of Iran and Iraq. Whichever way the Saudis turn, they will be advancing toward hard-liners of the Arab-Israeli question.

THE ONE THING President Saddam Hussein of Iraq shares with the Ayatollah is an attitude of the deepest intransigence towards what he calls the "Zionist Entity." So whoever gains the edge in the fighting, the Saudis will be even more pushed to align themselves against settlement with Israel.

Lastly, there are the Soviets. Saddam Hussein, while cracking down hard on the Communists within Iraq, personally engineered a security treaty with the Russians a decade ago, and now depends on Moscow for sophisticated weapons. He sent one of his closest collaborators, Tariq Aziz, to Moscow after the fighting with Iran turned serious. Clearly the Russians will solidify their position in Baghdad by not pulling the string on the Iraq military effort.

At some point, however, opportunity will also beckon to the Russians in Iran. Either they can patronize a settlement that saves the regime of the Ayatollah, or — if the regime cracks — they can pick up the pieces. In either case Russia has become the arbiter of conflict in the Persian Gulf. Apologists for President Carter will no doubt claim the U.S. had no alternative. They will, in that connection, mouth the usual pop sociology about the "inexorable workings of a revolution brought on by the Shah."

But they have a lot to explain. Why did the President and the State Department keep vaporizing about the emergence of a middle of the road, progressive regime in place of the Shah? Why, when the Shah was forced out, did the President pretend that nothing much had happened? How come the Carter Doctrine, proclaimed with such fanfare only eight months ago, turned out to have no application? And how come the U.S. never deployed its weighty assets — the great fund of hostility to the Islamic revolution in Iran; the organized opposition of exiled Iranians; and the strong interest of such states as Egypt and Saudi Arabia in a pro-western regime in Tehran?

To all these questions there is a single answer. The Carter Administration at all times underestimated the strategic importance of Iran. It felt guilty about the American presence in that country. And in the process of trying to purify itself, it became the author of this country's self defeat in the Gulf.

Picasso's 'Guernica' at long last finds a permanent home

One of the most celebrated war refugees of modern times appears at last to have found a permanent home.

Pablo Picasso's "Guernica" is returning to the country that inspired it, Spain, after more than 40 years of asylum in New York's Museum of Modern Art. In doing so, it becomes something of a peace treaty after long having been a symbol of opposition to repression.

The work vividly depicts the bombing of the town of Guernica during the Spanish Civil War. Picasso, who died in 1973, decreed that it should be given to his native country once democracy was fully restored.

All concerned parties — notably Picasso's heirs and the Museum — agree that Spain, which has made a remarkable transition in the less than five years since King Juan Carlos succeeded the authoritarian Francisco Franco, has fulfilled the condition. Later this year, the monumental work will at last come to rest in Madrid's Prado Museum.

May it rest in peace.

Voter registration enters final week

Voter registration continues through Monday in the office of County Tax Assessor-Collector Zirah Bednar for the general election Nov. 4.

Law states registration must be dated 30 days prior to the election but since the deadline falls on Sunday Mrs. Bednar is allowing registration through the next day.

County Clerk Margaret Ray said her office will mail an application to college-going children of local residents if parents will give her office the students' address. She said office personnel will send the student an absentee ballot when they receive the student's application back.

Parents may request the service over the counter through Oct. 15. After that the parents must send the application themselves.

As of Saturday over 15,000 had registered in Howard County. Mrs. Bednar expected 16,000 registered by the time registration closes Monday at 5 p.m.

Those who have moved since the primaries may jeopardize their right to vote if they don't transfer their registration to their new address. If anyone has moved up to 30 days before the election they must transfer their registration, said Mrs. Bednar.

If registration applications are mailed in, they must be postmarked before Monday. Mrs. Bednar's office will have 30 days to return their voter registration card.

The card is white, for those who aren't sure if they have registered or not. The tax collector's office mailed the cards in December. The cards will be used through March 1, 1982, but new cards will be mailed earlier, in Dec. 1981 or Jan. 1982, said Mrs. Bednar.

Rhetoric slowing crime solutions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The president of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency says solutions to a rising crime rates are being bogged down by "law and order" political rhetoric.

Prison reformers have a "great opportunity" for passing new laws in Texas, but prison and police officials are withholding information that citizens could use in making those decisions, Milton Rector said at a Tuesday news conference.

"Your people of Texas are as humane and concerned about other people as people anywhere in the United States," he said.

Reducing the amount of crime and dealing intelligently with criminals are issues that do not lend themselves to political solutions, Rector said.

"We've got to stop the political rhetoric and stop looking at the issue as conservative or liberal. It is rational or irrational," Rector said.

In some states, he said, businessmen, industrialists and political conservatives are taking the lead by providing such alternatives to prison as probation, work-release and job training. The alternatives are in use, he said, because those people have learned imprisonment is costly and often leads to still more crime.

Rector criticized the Texas Department of Corrections' plan to build a 3,000-bed prison farm, saying it would offer little of the job training that inmates from urban areas need.

Texas has more than 28,000 prison inmates, some of whom sleep on floors.

"You are the last state in the United States to pretend you have a self-supporting prison system," he said of the TDC's agricultural orientation.

Meanwhile, he said, "the more cells that are available, the more people who are incarcerated."

A non-violent criminal "could be on probation, paying restitution to his victims instead of running up $40 to $50-a-day board bills in prison," Rector said.

Many Texas inmates don't have enough to do with their time, he said, and this was part of the problem that led to the New Mexico

State Prison riot last year.

Rector also said Texas cities need high-ranked officials with authority to find ways to make police more efficient and the power to put those methods into action.

In Seattle, he said, a deputy mayor was able to reduce the jail population by 50 percent by implementing a program to send drunks to detoxification centers and mental cases to the hospital.

A county executive in St. Louis caused a 60 percent increase in the number of police man-hours available for patrol by opening detoxification centers in various parts of the city, he said.

Repeal of anti-gay law could cause solon battle

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Democratic party should not advocate repealing a law that prohibits homosexual activity, according to a newspaper survey of 10 Democratic state representative candidates.

Six of candidates surveyed said they disagree with their party's resolution seeking repeal of the law, according to a poll published in Tuesday's editions of the San Antonio News.

Representative candidates Matt Garcia, Frank Madia, Al Brown, Thomas Adkisson, George Pierce and Paul Elizondo said they would vote against repealing the law, which in effect, makes homosexual acts illegal. Frank Tejada, Lou Nelle Sutton, Joyce Dorycott and Joe Hernandez said they would support taking the law off the books.

The candidates were asked to react to a vote at the Democratic state convention in Houston favoring repeal of the law that forbids deviate sexual acts in private between consenting adults of the same sex.

The platform will be presented to the legislature in January as the official policy of the State Democratic Party.

"As of now I see no reason to change the law as it stands unless consideration is given to all areas of sexual conduct," said Garcia, who won renomination to his state representative post and also is being considered to head the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Garcia said he favored the revised Texas penal code which includes the controversial statute. But, he added, such laws "should not be on the books at all."

"I am concerned that the party's consideration for emotional or political matters like this are not in the best interest of the country," Garcia said.

The candidates favoring repeal said that legislatures should stay out of an individual's private life.

"If those people (homosexuals) are born like that, we have no right to ostracize them from society," Mrs. Sutton said.

She said she felt that state legislature should not have the right "to walk into a person's home and determine how they should live."

Mrs. Dorycott said, "I could never support a law regulating people's sexual preferences."

Hernandez said he expects the U.S. Supreme Court to decree sometime in the near future that homosexual activities cannot be prohibited by state or federal laws.

Women farm workers get suit settlement

TOPPENISH, Wash. (AP) — Six women have received a settlement totaling $6,000 in what attorneys say is the first sex discrimination suit ever filed by farm workers.

The women had accused Virgil Gamache Farms Inc. of discrimination for refusing to hire them to harvest hops in 1975, 1976 and 1977. Washington state law prohibits employers from discriminating on the basis of sex.

The settlement compensates the six farm workers for wages lost because of the alleged discrimination.

Virgil Gamache declined to comment on the settlement or the discrimination charges, but his attorney, Walter Dauber of Yakima, said the case was settled out of court for "nuisance value."

Evergreen Legal Services of Sunnyside filed suit in 1978 in Yakima County Superior Court on behalf of Gregoria Deleon, Maria Flores, Genevieve Garza, Alicia Flores, Leonila Pachoco and Sanjuanita Hernandez.

Michael J. Fox of Evergreen's Seattle office said the case was the first such suit involving farm workers.

"It's fairly unusual for women's rights to be exerted in an agricultural setting," Fox said.

A key to the case, he said, was whether the women were physically able to do the work. All the women had previously worked harvesting hops for Gamache Farms in the early 1970s.

"I think there is no question that women as workers are discriminated against in many crops," Fox said. "Sex discrimination in agriculture is present."

American bishop clarifies stance on Catholic idea on contraception

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco said today he had not challenged the Roman Catholic Church doctrine on contraception in a speech to the synod of bishops but had suggested possible ways of making the teaching better understood and more readily accepted.

"Because of confusing reports about the American bishops and about the substance and intent of my speech to the synod of bishops on Monday, I find it necessary to make some clarifications," Quinn said in a statement released by the Vatican press office and the synod.

"In the first place, neither I nor the American bishops conference rejects or challenges the doctrine of the Catholic Church on contraception," said Quinn, chairman of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops of the United States.

"I stated this in my speech and I repeat it now: Neither I nor the American bishops conference are calling for a change in the doctrine of the Catholic Church on contraception."

dealing in a constructive way with the personal and demographic problems of the modern world which must be recognized if they are to be dealt with. The intent of my speech was to suggest possible ways of making the church's teaching on contraception better understood and more readily accepted."

In his speech, Quinn suggested the Vatican initiate a study on the birth control issue. He said he accepted "Humanae Vitae," Pope Paul VI's encyclical which reiterated the church's opposition to all forms of birth control except the rhythm method of sexual abstinence. But he said it is possible there are "nuances and clarifications" and "greater pastoral insights" which will help remove "the impasse which is so harmful to the church."

Quinn told the synod that a study made at Princeton University said nearly 71 percent of American Catholic women used birth control methods condemned by their church, only 29 percent of American priests believed artificial contraception was intrinsically immoral, and 26 percent would deny absolute to those using it.

Quinn's speech was interpreted by some observers as an attempt to put pressure on Pope John Paul II to change the church's stand on birth control.

Italian Cardinal Pericle Felici, a ranking conservative in the Vatican Curia, told the worldwide assembly of bishops Tuesday the last word was said on the subject by Pope Paul VI in his encyclical and added: "There is no need of re-discussing it, no need to pay attention to statistics because statistics don't signify anything."

Cardinal Basil Hume, England's first-ranking Catholic prelate, supported the Americans on Tuesday. He told the synod Catholics who use contraceptives "are often good, conscientious and faithful sons and daughters of the church" and cannot be dismissed as having succumbed to human frailty.

A spokesman for the U.S. delegation to the synod, Russell Shaw, said after Quinn's speech Monday that the Americans did not expect the ban on contraception to be changed. Instead, he said, they hoped the dialogue they sought would bring Pope John Paul II to a more moderate attitude toward those who feel they must limit the size of their families by using mechanical or chemical methods of birth control.

Shaw amended this further on Tuesday. He said the American bishops feel that "further discussions involving theologians might help Catholics better understand the doctrine and accept it more readily."

Asked about Felici's comments, Shaw said: "The purpose of the synod is that bishops talk to each other and to the pope. It's the nature of the synod."

The synod of more than 200 bishops opened Friday and will meet for a month discussing the role of the Christian family in the modern world. It has no power to reach decisions binding on the pope, but its discussions and findings are supposed to provide him with information on the problems of the church in the various countries of the world and advice on what to do about them.

Lone woman keeps peace in Clint

CLINT, Texas (AP) — In some parts of Texas, people might scoff at the idea of a 5-foot-5, 130-pound woman serving as the only law officer in town.

But no one is scoffing in Clint these days. At least not to the face of Chief of Police Mariann Parthemore, 26, the lone cop in this town in far West Texas.

"I have had to prove to the citizens of Clint that I can maintain myself in a physical situation, that I don't back off from arrests because I'm female," the tough-talking redhead says. "I can defend myself on a hand to hand basis."

She made believers out of many of the 1,250 residents of this town 20 miles from El Paso when a young football player she was trying to arrest sized her up and decided to run for it.

She said she tried to be nice, but "niceness only goes so far. I had to go after him. I just had to grab him around the back. He started to fight. I just threw him to the ground and put the handcuffs on him."

"To be honest, I was winded," she now concedes. Since she was hired in July, "the town has accepted me surprisingly well," said Mrs. Parthemore, who studied police administration and criminology at Sul Ross State University before she quit to get married. She is divorced and has two sons, Eugene, 5, and Daniel, 1.

"I've found that a man proves himself once and he's in. A female officer has to prove herself over and over again," she said.

She has drawn her .38-caliber Special Colt Viper twice in the course of her duties "but thank God I've never had to fire it."

Her jurisdiction includes this city's 16 square miles, and she starts her day by patrolling the school area. "Crime prevention is nine-tenths of my job. When people see me, they slow down."

The pay is $666 a month, and the job is a temporary position funded by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. But if Mrs. Parthemore can pass a 10-week course at the Sheriff's Academy beginning in January, she thinks the City Council will allocate funds to pay her salary and give her the chief's badge on a permanent basis.

VOWS TO DIE WEARING BADGE—Chief of Police Mariann Parthemore, 26, is also the lone cop in Clint, a small West Texas town. Though her 5-foot-5, 130-pound build may not appear too intimidating, anyone who doubts that she means business should ask the football player she ran down, threw to the ground and handcuffed.

Major Crime Task Force funding to be discussed

Continued funding of the Big Spring Police Department's Major Crime Task Force will be one of the issues discussed by the board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

The meeting will be held Wednesday, Oct. 8 in the Conference Room of the PBRPC office building at the Midland Air Terminal.

County Judge Bill Tune and City Councilman Jack Y. Smith will attend the meeting as voting board members.

The Big Spring City Council has submitted an application for the continued funding of the Task Force to the Criminal Justice Division of the Governor's Office.

A total of $25,811 is being requested from the Criminal Justice Division to allow the City to continue the program which concentrates on major crimes in the area, such as burglaries and narcotics sales and possession. The funding, plus $17,207 budgeted by Big Spring for the force, will be used primarily to pay the salaries of two task force officers and one secretary.

The program has been in effect for two years in Big Spring, and has been found to be successful.

Goals for the third year of operation, according to a summary released by the Planning Commission, include increasing the clearing rate for burglaries to 41 percent (as opposed to 17 percent in 1976) and achieving a 30 percent arrests increase in narcotics sales and possession.

In the two years of the Task Force's operation, crimes have been reduced 23 percent for burglary, and 12 percent for larceny. The starting date for continuation of the grant is Nov. 1, 1980 and the project would be funded for one year.

The Planning Commission also plans to discuss an application from the City of Lamesa to the Criminal Justice Division for a Juvenile Division.

The Division would direct all of its efforts toward the solving of Juvenile Crime. A total of $22,227 is being requested from the Governor's Office, to be used to pay the salaries of one officer and one secretary.

The City of Lamesa at the present time has no one officer to handle juvenile crime. Increase in the number of juveniles handled by the City has been from 28 juveniles reported in 1978, to 185 in 1979.

Funding for the project would be for one year.

In other business, the Commission plans to:

—Consider the appointment of W.H. Booher of Big Spring to the Permian Basin Area Agency Advisory Council.

—Consider appointing a chairman, vice-chairman and secretary-treasurer of the board of directors of the Permian Basin Planning Commission.

—Consider the nominating committee's report to fill a vacancy on the board of directors, representing cities of less than 50,000.

Garcia's INS nomination snagged until after Nov. 4

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas State Rep. Matt V. Garcia will have to wait until after Nov. 4 to see if the U.S. Senate will confirm him as the new director of the troubled Immigration and Naturalization Service.

A spokesman for the Senate Judiciary Committee, which must first act on high-level Presidential appointments before they are sent along to the full Senate, said today action on Garcia's nomination will be delayed until after the election.

The 96th Congress officially expires Thursday, but Congress will be called back Nov. 12 for a lame-duck session.

Garcia's nomination came nearly a year after the departure of the previous director and has been surrounded by controversy. After an initial hearing in late August, Republicans on the judiciary committee said they wanted another hearing to further probe embarrassing allegations that came to light about Garcia.

Since then, the nomination has been on hold and it was unclear if the nomination would come up before the adjournment.

One source on the committee said the Carter administration, clearly seeking the Mexican-American vote in Texas and the Southwest, wanted to have the nomination cleared by the Senate before the election.

But after the first hearing, where it was revealed that Garcia paid his income taxes late for four years and had about 40 complaints filed against him with the Texas State Bar by disgruntled clients of his law firm, the administration and Democrats on the committee didn't push for a swift confirmation, the source said.

Garcia has said he will withdraw his name from nomination if Republican Ronald Reagan wins the general election and then indicates he wants his own man as director of the agency.

Apparently, nobody is pushing for a quick confirmation now.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., who appeared at the first hearing and praised Garcia, has heard nothing about the nomination lately, said press aide Jack Devore. "It (the nomination) is just hanging there," he said.

Bentsen didn't recommend Garcia for the post, Devore said. The state's Democratic senator asked the White House to appoint San Antonio attorney Ruben Montemayor, but Carter instead chose Garcia, also a San Antonio attorney.

Duke Short, an investigator for the Republican members on the committee, said his probe of Garcia is still continuing. He also said the Republicans will get the hearing they've requested.

MEXICO'S OFFICIAL FOLKLORICO BALLET

Official Mexican ballet to perform January 31

The annual membership drive for the Big Spring Community Concert continues throughout this week only. Three concerts are scheduled to be performed at the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium this year, and members are invited to attend performances of the Midland Concert Association.

Concerts scheduled for Big Spring area are duo pianists, Rostall and Schaefer on Nov. 3; Ballet Folclorico Nacional on Jan. 31 and the Eastern Brass Quintet, Feb. 19.

Silvia Lozano's Ballet Folclorico Nacional de Mexico was hailed with rave reviews and audiences' standing ovations on its last U.S. tour. More than 3,000 persons watched performances of the National Folk Ballet of Mexico. A cast of 50 singers, dancers and musicians. Considered the most authentic exponent of Mexico's folk dance and musical heritage, this company is the Mexican Government's official representative folkloristic troupe at home and abroad.

Silvia Lozano, director of the Ballet Folclorico and one of Mexico's most distinguished artists, is recognized internationally as a leading proponent of authentic Mexican folkloric dance. Lozano began her dance studies at the Mexican Academy of Dance where she received degrees in modern dance, ballet and Mexican regional dances from the National Institute of Fine Arts and from the Conservatory of Plastic Arts of the San Carlos Academy, a branch of the State University of Mexico.

She spent the next seven years devoted to a intensive research into the history of Mexican regional dances, traveling throughout the country, studying and cataloguing the customs, costumes, music and dances of the people. She is dedicated to preserving the purity of the regional artistry of Mexico, presenting performances which retain the originality and vitality of centuries-old traditions.

The Ballet Folclorico Nacional received the greatest honor of its nearly two-decade existence in 1977 when it was designated as the official folkloristic company in Mexico. It now represents the Government of Mexico at home and abroad under the sponsorship of the Federal District's Social Service Department.

Persons interested in obtaining more information about membership in the Big Spring Community Concert may purchase memberships at 2608 Rebecca or by calling 263-3948.

Membership fees are $12 for adults; $6 for a full-time student; $16 for reserve adult and $8 for reserve student. Family memberships may be purchased for $30.

Membership identity is promoted by forum

The Modern Woman's Forum held the first meeting of the year Sept. 26 at 9:30 a.m. coffee in the home of Mrs. C.R. Moad.

Coffee and spiced tea were served from silver service along with sausage quiche, coffee cake, banana bread, fruit and nuts.

Mrs. Cass Hill, president, presided. Theme for the year is "Decade for Decision: Time for Action." Yearbooks were distributed.

Mrs. Fred Whitaker, Federation Counselor, gave as her report some projections given the clubs by Mrs. B.M. Sims, state president of The Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. F.C. Tibbs was inducted into the club as a new member.

The fall board meeting of Texas Federation is being held in Austin on Sept. 30-Oct. 2. Mrs. Hill, who is first vice president of Western District, will be attending, along with other officers of the Western District.

Mrs. B.M. Keese, membership chairman of the club, presented the program on how to promote membership identity.

These thoughts were taken from the General Federation Clubwoman Magazine and the Handbook on Membership.

She said that membership is like the weather:

everybody talks about it, but they don't do much. Membership is GFWC has been declining since 1955.

"Unity in Diversity" is the National Club theme, and it is often felt there is too much diversity in the club's programming and not enough unity. At a recent workshop, the recommendation was made to streamline programs to the needs of today's woman, for it was felt that members were being burned out because too much was demanded of them, and were overwhelmed with the vast array of programs and projects.

"A loss of membership occurs when an adequate orientation is not provided for new members, and some drop out after a short time when they discover the club is not purely a social club, and they are not told they are expected to participate in service and community programs and projects.

"Members need to feel needed, and it should be impressed on each member that if she has a special talent she can make a real contribution," Mrs. Keese revealed.

Each member needs to be fully informed about the organization in order to sell it to others.

The next meeting will be Oct. 10 in the home of Mrs. T.G. Adams.

AKO meets and plans

The Alpha Kappa Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Sept. 23, in the home of Kay Roberts. Linda Mircle, called the meeting to order and welcomed Cindy Marshall as guest.

Pat Tallant reported that AKO will have a refreshments booth at the Arts and Crafts Festival Oct. 18-19. The Ways and Means committee has chosen to sell lemonade, barbecue sandwiches, brownies, and packaged chips.

The members were reminded about the City Council Salad Supper which will be October 4. The supper will begin at 7 p.m. in the Flame Room at Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

The chairman of the social committee, Cheri Shoup, reminded the members of the upcoming couple's party the night of Oct. 4. Everyone attending the party will participate in a treasure hunt.

The program for the evening was "The Beautiful You" presented by Judy Anderson, an independent beauty consultant. She offered everyone present a Mary Kay facial and many helpful ideas on improving their appearance with the proper makeup and skin care products.

Dear Abby

A Rose by Any Other Color . . .

DEAR ABBY: A reader wrote in to say that a co-worker had planned to carry a bridal bouquet of black roses. She asked, "Is this proper? And don't black roses symbolize death?"

You replied, "Black roses? You're putting me on!" Abby, just because you've never seen black roses doesn't mean there aren't any.

The Tidings, a Catholic publication, recently carried an article titled, "A Priest Who Grew Roses." The priest, the Rev. George Schoener, also was a botanist who gained a national reputation for having developed numerous new strains of roses, of which the beautiful coal-black rose was one.

The Salem, Ore., Journal conferred the title of "El Padre de las Rosas" on Father Schoener in 1936.

Thought you should know. Adios.

CARLOS G.

DEAR CARLOS: Gracias. And all along I thought with Gertrude Stein that a rose was a rose was a rose. Unfortunately I limited my research to California rose-growers, none of whom had ever heard of a black rose. I should have called Gerry Frank, my friend in Salem. He knows all there is to know about Oregon products.

Ten whacks for Abby with a long-stemmed American beauty — thorns and all.

DEAR ABBY: We invited a family of six to spend Labor Day weekend at our summer place. The children ranged from 7 to 17 years old. (We have no children.)

The children helped themselves to whatever they found in the fridge at all hours of the day and night. The first day they ate nearly everything we had planned to serve for the entire weekend.

On Sunday we invited some neighbors in for Sunday buffet. The visiting children got into line first, loaded their plates up, ate fast, and came back for seconds before some of the adults even had a first helping! Their parents either didn't see or didn't care what was going on.

After these weekend guests left, I could have kicked myself for not having found some way to control the situation.

Needless to say, this family will never be invited back. How would you have handled it?

MAD AT MYSELF

DEAR MAD: Probably much the same way you did — or didn't — handle it. It's awkward to discipline young guests when their parents are present and look out the window.

Since 20-20 hindsight is always useless, your decision never to invite them back is understandable.

MR. AND MRS. J.W. BENNETT

Former residents celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Bennett, formerly of Big Spring, will celebrate 50 years of marriage with a reception Sunday in Eastland.

Daughters of the couple will serve as hostesses for the occasion to be held at the Texas Electric Community Room there from 2-5 p.m.

J.W. Bennett married Maudie Jordan Oct. 7, 1930. The couple raised three daughters, including Jimmie Joan Wilson, New York; Maudene (Dene) Anderson, Big Spring; and Barbara Eberhardt, Austin.

They have seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The Bennetts moved from Gorman, Tex., to Big Spring in 1942. Upon their retirement in 1971, they became residents of Lake Leon near Eastland.

While in Big Spring, Bennett was employed by Cosden. His wife worked at Malone-Hogan Clinic for Dr. Woodall. They were charter members of Baptist Temple Church here where Bennett served as a deacon.

They now attend the First Baptist Church in Eastland where Bennett is currently serving as a deacon there.

He is also a member of the Cosden 25-Year Club. The couple enjoy gardening and playing dominoes.

Shower honors Mrs. Lamb

A baby shower honoring Mrs. Jerry Lamb was held recently in the home of Markay Brashears. Elaine Delvinger and Alice Ewing were co-hostesses.

The refreshment table was covered with blue cloth overlaid with a crocheted cloth. A pink floral arrangement and blue candles centered the setting. A stork completed the scene.

Special guests were prospective grandmothers, Mrs. Marvin Lamb and Mrs. Peggy Allen and great-grandmother Myrtle Morris.

The hostesses presented the honoree with a nursing gown.

Baby Lamb is due around mid-October and will be the couple's first child.

TYC members said they knew what they were doing

'Closed door' option leaves room for question

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Youth Council last week willingly did a cartwheel into any area of the Texas Open Meetings Law.

For two hours, the six-member board that runs the state's multi-million dollar juvenile detention facilities met behind closed doors to discuss some problems.

The required public notice in the Texas Register told the meeting's topics: "Litigation, Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act and Unionization of State Employees." And TYC officials answered some questions after the meeting, but we'll never know exactly what was said behind closed doors.

After the notice was published in the Texas Register, several news organizations called the TYC to find out why closed discussion of the three topics was legal under the Texas Open Meetings Law.

Litigation clearly is a legal reason for a closed meeting if consultation with an attorney is involved. Less clear is the legality or propriety of talking about a federal law, while private discussion of public employee unions hardly seems legal at all.

The Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau sent a reporter with a copy of the law to the short open part of the meeting to make sure the TYC members knew what they were doing.

They said they did. Their lawyer said the items to be discussed possibly could lead to lawsuits.

The institutionalized persons act allows suits against agencies that fail to meet federal requirements for carrying for persons in institutions. Something might be said in the meeting that could admit potential liability, the TYC lawyer said.

On the unionization item, he said that open discussion might bring a suit by an employee union.

The Open Meetings Law allows closed sessions in certain instances, including consultation with attorneys on "pending or contemplated litigation." That sounds like a reasonable exemption, but there are problems in interpreting the word "contemplated." Our office dictionary lists "consider as the synonym of contemplate. Those who interpret the Open Meetings Law with a stress on openness maintain that a lawsuit must have been filed or be under active consideration before that exemption of the law can be used.

By arguing, as the TYC lawyer did, that even the possibility of a lawsuit could justify a closed session, governmental agencies greatly expand their possibilities for meeting in private to discuss public business.

Governmental agencies frequently face tough decisions on controversial subjects that could lead to lawsuits by unhappy parties.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission recently placed certain restrictions on coastal commercial fishermen because the commissioners feared that some gamefish were being over-harvested. A group of commercial fishermen filed suit against the restrictions.

The commissioners approved the restrictions after numerous hours of public testimony and discussion on the subject. But, according to the TYC-advanced theory, they could have met in private because it was clear from the start that someone might file suit.

The Texas Open Meetings Law is designed to protect the public's right to know what government is doing. It has exceptions that allow closed meetings for discussing particular employees or land dealings where secrecy is necessary for the public good.

When its wording is not interpreted too broadly, the law works fairly well.

It could be written better, but defenders of open meetings fear that legislative tinkering could produce even more problems of interpretation.

The law is easily violated or circumvented because it basically is a self-enforced regulation for public bodies. If public officials want to discuss things in private, they can find a way.

At least the TYC was open in going behind closed doors. Asked about the TYC case, Assistant Attorney General Susan Garrison said the discussion of the institutionalized persons act probably was okay because it is connected with an earlier suit involving the agency. She said that unionization discussion legal question and definitely was in a gray area.

"Since the Open Meetings Act... says it's better to error on the side of being open," she said, "it might have been better to start in open session and then close it only when the board wanted advice from its attorney."

The TYC members are honorable individuals and leaders of their communities. They believe they acted legally and properly in meeting behind closed doors.

But it is not difficult to see how their view on potential lawsuits could lead to a serious undercutting of openness of government.

That could cause the officials more problems than strict and narrow enforcement of the Open Meetings Law. We can only wonder, for example, what liabilities the TYC members discussed behind closed doors. Or what kind of plot they might have hatched to oppose public employee unions.

Probably the discussion was not nearly as bad as could be imagined.

We can only hope that in the future the TYC and all other public officials will realize that the Open Meetings Law works for everyone.

Relief in grocery bills: But it's only temporary

By The Associated Press

Supermarket shoppers got a break from rising prices last month, but an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows grocery bills during the first three-quarters of 1980 went up much faster than they did in the same period of 1979.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, meanwhile, predicts that food prices will jump sharply during the rest of this year and will rise at a double-digit rate next year.

The AP purchased a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

- The marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in eight cities last month, up an average of 1.4 percent. The bill decreased at the checklist store in five cities, down an average of 2.2 percent. The increases and decreases cancelled each other out, leaving the overall, average bill unchanged during the month. During August, the overall bill was up by 2.9 percent.

- Comparing prices today with those at the start of the year, the AP found the average marketbasket bill at the checklist store rose an average of 10.1 percent in nine months. During the same period last year, the marketbasket bill was up an average of 6.1 percent.
- The September moderation in grocery prices was due mainly to a drop in the price of coffee. When coffee was removed from the marketbasket totals, the AP found the average bill at the checklist stores went up a little more than half a percent during September.
- The price of sugar rose at the checklist store in eight cities last month. Prices have been going up all year, reflecting the fact that worldwide demand is expected to exceed production. The average price of a five-pound sack of sugar at the start of October was 80 percent higher than it was at the start of the year.
- The USDA says that prices during the last quarter of the year will rise at an annual rate of 13 percent to 15 percent. Next year's increase, the USDA says, will be about 10 percent to 15 percent.

Lending money in Japan: Loan sharks are legal TOKYO (AP) — One thing stood between Yasuo Tanoue and his dreams of a better life — $13,000 — so he borrowed the money. He didn't know what he was getting into.

Unable to get a bank loan because of a poor credit rating, Tanoue approached a neighborhood loan company that was only too willing to provide funds for him to put his children through school and buy a few luxuries.

By year's end, Tanoue's dreams had turned to nightmares: interest payments had soared to several hundred percent annually and his earnings from his construction job, equivalent to $200 a week, left him far behind in payments.

Then, in what is known in Japan's loan sharking business as "giving the run around," the company forced Tanoue to take out four more loans to cover his original debt.

Finally, after months of being hounded for payment, the family disappeared without a trace — owing $27,000, more than twice the original amount borrowed.

Two months later, police found the remains of Tanoue, 35, and his wife Haruko, 29, hanging from a tree in a remote forest. The couple's son, Yoshiyuki, 6, and daughter, Miho, 5, were found nearby, dead from an overdose of sleeping pills.

The only money found with the family was a one yen coin — less than half a cent.

Last year, police say, 180 people killed themselves in Japan because they owed money to a "sarakin," a breed of money lenders who are legal but who can be as intimidating in retrieving money as they are gracious in handing it out.

An additional 2,203 persons disappeared, police say, all apparent victims of a tight credit squeeze by Japan's loan sharks who operate without fear of the law.

"That's because there are few restrictions on setting up a money lending business," explained a finance ministry official. "All one has to do to set up shop is to first notify the prefectural (state) governor. That's all there is to do."

The loan business in Japan didn't really get going until the early 1960s, when the country was experiencing an economic boom and people's expectations rose with new-found affluence, officials say.

Since then, the sarakin — short for "salaryman loan" because they generally lend money to salaried workers — have continued to prey on low-income people with poor credit ratings who are pinched for money.

There are now 184,202 money lenders registered in Japan, up from just 89,742 just 10 years ago. But their true numbers are impossible to verify because of almost nonexistent government licensing regulations.

Sarkin offices abound in the neon-lit streets and byways of Japanese cities. Garishly-painted signs offer "cheap, convenient, safe loans — quickly!" But there's always the catch — cash for a price.

The lending agencies often ask few or no questions, and demand exorbitant interest rates that have been known to rise as much as 520 percent a year.

Japan's money lenders can legally charge a dizzying 109.5 percent interest. Most small neighborhood loan companies keep within the legal ceiling, but even larger, more reputable companies charge rates of around 72 percent, enough to put an indiscreet borrower on the road to ruin.

In November 1978, the last year for which figures are available, police arrested 814 loan sharks for usury, extortion and violence, 688 of whom were charged with demanding illegal rates on loans.

There also have been well-publicized cases of loan companies forcing housewives into prostitution to pay back debts.

"They will literally force some women to work for a toruko (Turkish bath) until they have sufficient funds to cancel out their debts — and that can take years," says Shunsuke Funase, of the Consumers Union of Japan.

"We've had a lot of complaints, but there's not much we can do about it," Funase said, explaining that many have links with the Yakuza, Japan's gangster underworld.

Methods used by some less reputable loan companies make headlines almost daily. "It usually starts with a midnight call at home," Funase said. "Then, over the next few weeks they will harass the person at work until he is thoroughly humiliated. Literally they devour their debtors."

Loan companies have also found a bonanza in student loans. A student's identification card usually is all that is required to borrow thousands of dollars to pay off gambling debts, and the loan companies know most fathers will bail their children out if they get into trouble. In one case, officials say, a parent paid $460,000 to square a son's debts.

The situation has become so intolerable that the finance ministry is actively encouraging American and European finance companies to set up credit businesses here in hopes of discrediting the sharks.

Lawrence Roessel, president of Citicorp Credit, a major U.S. investment house, claims his company is stripping interest rates to the bone by charging 18 percent interest on loans below $4,500 and 15 percent on sums above this amount.

Still, the conditions for obtaining credit at Citicorp's Tokyo branch — an employed person, over 26 and earning at least $14,000 — means many people less well off still are forced to turn to the ubiquitous sarakin for money.

BILLY STATES HIS CASE — Billy Carter, brother of the President, gestures during an interview Wednesday on NBC's Today program. The U.S. Senate subcommittee investigating Carter is slated to officially release its report Thursday.

Officials optimistic cholera was isolated

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Health officials say they're taking no chances but are optimistic Galveston County's first confirmed case of cholera was an isolated illness.

"There are a number of different kinds. One type can be associated with outbreaks, but most of the others are not. We are left in the position of not knowing what strain we are dealing with here," Dr. W.W. Kemmerer, health district director, said Tuesday.

A 3-month-old League City girl became ill Sept. 15. A feces sample was sent to the Houston laboratory by the child's physician, but officials said they did not receive confirmation the illness was cholera until Sunday night, Kemmerer said.

Cholera incubation requires two to five days and no other cases have been reported, he said.

"The organism was diagnosed as cholera but then, unfortunately, the analysis was not carried further by the commercial laboratory and the sample was destroyed," Kemmerer said.

By that time, he said, the child had responded to antibiotics and was cured.

As a result of the situation, Kemmerer said, he would favor a state statute requiring laboratories to report such cases to health authorities immediately. He said he knows of no such statutory requirements except in cases of venereal disease.

Kemmerer said technicians were checking sewer and water facilities along the Clear Creek basin from Friendswood to Kemah, seeking the source of the illness.

First chance against Abilene

Have Steers improved enough for 5-5A win

By NATHAN POSS

When the Big Spring Steers open their 1980 District 5-AAAAAA slate at home on Friday night against Abilene High, they'll be hoping that their presence is one that will have a say in what transpires in the final standings when mid-November rolls around.

That's something that hasn't happened lately, as the Big Spring gridders haven't won a district game since 1974, some three head coaches before first year mentor Ralph Harris arrived.

But that could change this year, as the Steer gridders look very much improved over last season, when they were 1-9 and scored only four touchdowns while yielding over 35 points per game. The Steers opened with a pair of wins over Snyder and Sweetwater, but then lost a chance to enter 5-AAAAAA play with a perfect 3-0 mark when they were upset by Levelland.

Winning that first 5-AAAAAA game in six years won't be an easy task for Harris' crew, as it appears that the league will be as tough as always. Three teams (Odessa, Odessa Permian and Abilene Cooper) all are unbeaten, while Midland, Midland Lee and Abilene join Big Spring with one loss each.

Harris presently feels that the two Odessa schools look the best right now, but that of course could change as the 5-AAAAAA race unfolds. Defending champ Cooper has displayed an excellent passing game off the arm of Larry Dycus, and will be double tough if their running game can match up.

And both Midland schools are good teams," noted Harris. "They have been unspectacular, but have the ability to beat anyone. Both have very big teams."

Harris rates six teams (both schools in Odessa, Midland and Abilene) as being very good presently, with Big Spring and San Angelo struggling to make their presence felt in the race.

But the Steers will have a chance to change that Friday night when they host a tough Abilene team which is coming off a 34-21 loss to the defending state champion, Temple. Temple who is still rated number one in the state.

Abilene is very sound and physical," Harris stated. "They're not extremely large, but about our size. They do have more team speed, and are well established in what they do," school quarterback," Harris said.

One reason for their establishment is the play of quarterback Loyal Proffitt, a starter since his sophomore year. "He's a good runner and a good passer, just a very good high school quarterback."

Abilene won their first two games in shutout fashion, and then surprised Temple, leading 21-0 before the state champs exploded for 34 second half points.

But even with the impressiveness of the War Birds, Harris feels that his Steer team has progressed to point that they could pull off an upset in the opening week of district play.

"We're a lot better than we were at the start," he explained, "but still not where we need to be. But we have learned a lot, especially in that Levelland game as to what it takes to prepare for each and every opponent."

After the loss to Levelland, the Steers used the first few days of their open week to regroup and work on some of the fundamentals necessary to win, and then began full scale preparations for Abilene.

"We've improved our conditioning, which I feel will be very important as the season wears on," Harris explained. "We feel like we're going to be a factor, someone that teams can't take lightly any longer."

The Steers appear to be healthy entering District 5-AAAAAA play, with the biggest change being the return of two-way starter and punter Greg Scarbro, who was missed in the Levelland contest.

The Big Spring coaching staff has made some changes in the look of the team since the Levelland loss, moving Edward Vela from linebacker to defensive tackle, and also moving up junior Tony Kennedy from the JV squad. Kennedy will take Vela's place as a reserve middle linebacker, and will also see some action at tight end.

Vela's move to defensive tackle was made to give the Bovines more movement and pursuit in the interior. But all changes aside, it's still going to take some excellent performances for the Steers to win their share of the games in league play in 1980.

AVOIDING THE BLOCK — Big Spring's Bea Magers (1) follows through on a soft shot over the net that eluded the block of an unidentified Cooper player. But the point was not enough, as the Cooper girls managed a three-set win over Big Spring to take sole command of the first half District 5-AAAAAA volleyball race. Other Big Spring girls in the picture are Dawn Estes and Elise Wheat (24).

Cooper outlasts BSHS for 5-5A first half lead

The Abilene Cooper Cougars girls volleyball team took a giant step toward the first half title in District 5-AAAAAA here Tuesday night in Steer Gym, taking a hard earned 15-1, 12-15, 15-11 win over the Big Spring Steers.

The win gives the Cooper girls a first half record of 5-0, while the setback was the first for Big Spring in five games. Both teams have two games remaining in first half play.

The Big Spring girls got off to an extremely slow start in the opening set, but rallied to even up the match in the second set.

Hollie Peurifoy had 11 points serving for the Big Spring girls, with Pam Caudill adding nine. Elise Wheat added three and Linda Magers, and Dawn Estes one each.

Big Spring got an excellent performance in the setting department from Caudill and Magers, but did not take advantage of it often enough, as Coach Patti Purser acknowledged. "We could not capitalize on our offensive moves and get the spikes in court."

Purser praised the all around hustle of Peurifoy in the contest, and the Steer girls for their comeback. Big Spring travelled to Dumasville, a suburb of Dallas, over the weekend, and the effects of the drive might have been a cause for the slow start. But probably the most critical loss was that of Shell Rutledge, a sterling sophomore performer who sprained her ankle at the end of Monday's practice.

With Rutledge's absence, Purser had to shuffle the Steers line-up, and it showed at first.

The loss was the sixth in 16 games for the Big Spring girls, who will try to regroup and get back on the winning track Thursday when they host Odessa High. That game will be played at seven, with both a freshman and ninth grade match preceding it.

The Big Spring JVs did win their contest last night, taking a 13-11, 15-7 win over the Cooper JVs.

Leslie Overman had nine points serving for Big Spring, with Amy Ragan contributing four.

JV Coach Brown praised her Big Spring squad for a total team effort in the triumph.

Runnels splits with C-City

COLORADO CITY — Two Runnels Junior High girls volleyball teams split a pair of contests here Tuesday evening, with the victorious Runnels White team registering their fifth straight win of the season.

The White team scored a 15-12, 15-4 triumph in a well balanced effort paced by Tonya Tompkins, Tonya Gilstrap, Theresa Martinez and Lisa Subia.

The Runnels Red team was not as fortunate, losing a 12-15, 2-15 decision to another Colorado City team. The loss dropped the Red record to 2-3 for the season. Stars for the Red squad in last night's action included Theresa Adamson, Debbie Holguin, Adrienne Allen, and Trish Clemons.

The Red team will be in action again this Saturday when they travel to play in the Denver City Tournament.

Goliad girls sweep pair

COLORADO CITY — Big Spring's Goliad Junior High volleyball teams scored a pair of wins from the Colorado City seventh graders in action here Tuesday evening.

The White team completely dominated play in taking a 15-0, 15-2 win over their foes. Sherry Keller had 11 service points to pace the White squad, with Suzanne Bowers adding six. Lana Fletcher was praised for her court coverage, while Lisa Phillips excelled on defense.

The Black team also took a big win in a 17-15, 15-4 triumph. Millie Correa and Clara Hamilton paced the win in serving, scoring 12 and 11, respectively. Tammie Green and Monique Jones drew plaids for their defensive play.

Both teams are now 2-0 on the year. They will resume play next week in Andrews.

NL Roundup

Expos, Astros enjoying front running roles

By The Associated Press
For more seasons than they can remember, the Montreal Expos and Houston Astros have been playing the roles of spoilers.

This season, though, they're learning how the other half lives — and loving every minute of it, despite the mounting pressure of a pennant race.

"We're loose and we know the championship is within our grasp," Andre Dawson said after the front-running Expos defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 Tuesday night and hung tough in the National League East.

Cubs. The Astros, meanwhile, beat the Atlanta Braves 7-3 and maintained a two-game advantage in the West over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who beat the San Francisco Giants 6-3 in 10 innings.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Diego edged Cincinnati 3-2 and New York beat Pittsburgh 3-2.

Triples by Rodney Scott and Dawson ignited a five-run, sixth-inning rally for the Expos.

With the Expos trailing 2-1 and Cardinal starter Bob Forsch, 11-10, rolling along with a four-hitter, Scott blooped a hit into left field with one out in the sixth and wound up on third when the ball caromed from charging Leon Durham. Rowland Office brought Scott home with the tying run on an infield out.

Both Cardinal runs were unearned off Montreal starter Bill Gullickson, 10-5.

Astros 7, Braves 3
Jose Cruz hit a three-run double and Nolan Ryan shut out Atlanta for 5-1 innings before needing relief help as the Astros defeated the Braves.

Ryan, 11-9, scattered eight hits and struck out eight to give him a career total of 3,100 strikeouts, fourth best in the major leagues. Ryan left in the sixth after yielding four hits and three runs.

Cruz's blow came in the fifth after Doyle Alexander, 14-10, had loaded the bases on walks to Joe Morgan and Puhl and a single by Enos Cabell.

Phillies 14, Cubs 2
Unbeaten rookie Marty Bystron won his fifth game since coming to the NL on Sept. 1 as Philadelphia

Baylor defender earns SWC award

By The Associated Press
The Baylor University media guide says Charles Benson could be the surprise of the Bear defense in 1980. He was Saturday night.

The sophomore from Houston Aldine was a backup middle linebacker last year but was shuttled to defensive end in spring training. It was a move with a golden touch by head Coach Grant Teaff and defensive coordinator Corky Nelson.

Benson sacked Texas Tech quarterback Ron Reeves six times in Baylor's 11-3 victory over the Red Raiders to earn The Associated Press Southwestern Conference Defensive Player of the Week award in a close race with Rice linebacker Robert Williamson, who swarmed all over Louisiana State with 18 tackles.

The 6-foot-3, 237-pound Benson made a total of 14 tackles, 10 of them unassisted. He had seven tackles behind the line of scrimmage for 30 yards in losses as Baylor set a school record by branding Tech with a minus 36 yards rushing.

Landry unconcerned about White's injury

DALLAS (AP) — When Danny White fell on a fumble in Sunday's 28-7 victory over Green Bay, it was Coach Tom Landry's good fortune that his quarterback is right-handed.

White fractured the middle digit of his left hand and it will be protected with a splint for at least the next six weeks.

The catalyst of the Dallas Cowboys offense will have to take center snaps, some from the Shotgun Formation, and punt with the nuisance.

The leading quarterback in the National Football Conference began that chore today as the Cowboys put in their offense for Sunday's National Football League meeting with the New York Giants.

Landry said veteran Robert Newhouse would likely open on the No. 1 unit to give Springs more healing time for his sprained ankle.

"I'm not sure how he'll handle the ball but I think he will be OK," said Landry. "The snap when we are in punt formations might be difficult to take but there shouldn't be much trouble."

White, the current No. 1 rated quarterback in the National Conference, also punts for the Cowboys.

Henderson sets AL base theft record

CHICAGO (AP) — Rickey Henderson of the Oakland A's stole his 97th base of the season against the Chicago White Sox, eclipsing the American League record of 96 set by Ty Cobb in 1915.

Cobb's mark of 96 steals in 134 attempts was set in a 156-game season. Henderson, who's been caught 26 times, did it in 154 games.

Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals holds the all-time major league record with 118 steals in 1974.

waloped Chicago.

Bystrom, 22, worked seven innings and gave up just four hits while striking out six and walking four. He was relieved by Dickie Noles, who pitched the final two innings.

The Phillies started their 15-hit attack on four Chicago pitchers, including starter Lynn McGlothen, 11-14, with a four-run first inning that featured Mike Schmidt's 115th RBI of the season on a sacrifice fly.

Dodgers 6, Giants 3

Pedro Guerrero belted a three-run homer in the top of the 10th to lead Los Angeles over San Francisco. It was the Dodgers' 35th come-from-behind victory of the year, and the 22nd game they have won in their final at bat.

The Dodger comeback began in the ninth, when they scored twice on RBI singles by Guerrero and Steve Garvey to tie the game at 3-3.

Padres 3, Reds 2

Gene Tenace drilled a tie-breaking solo homer in the sixth inning as San Diego edged Cincinnati behind John Curtis's eight-hitter.

Curtis, 10-8, recorded his sixth straight victory and seventh in his last eight games. Charlie Leibrandt, 10-9, victim of Tenace's homer, was the loser.

Corrales' job with Rangers in doubt

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Manager Pat Corrales has a bigger mountain to leap before he sends his Texas Rangers against the Minnesota Twins in a doubleheader today.

The doubleheader — necessitated by muddy grounds that scrapped Tuesday's game — begins at 5:30 p.m.

But before he could keep his date on the playing field at Arlington Stadium, he was faced with a 3 p.m. meeting on the press box level — where he was faced with trying to persuade part of the team's six-man board of directors they should re-hire him instead of giving him the ax.

Is it fair, someone asked him, for a team to fire the manager when a team does poorly in a season in which it was expected to contend for the pennant?

"I don't know whether it's fair or not, but I'm in charge. That's just the way it is," Corrales said.

"It's been happening this way for over a hundred years in baseball. That's just part of the business. When a team doesn't do well, you can't point a finger at all 25 players, so you point it at the manager, which I happen to be."

Going into today's doubleheader, with six games left in the season, Texas was 19 games out of first place and 10 games below .500.

Eddie Chiles, board chairman and majority stockholder, has made it clear he plans to recommend that both Corrales and club president Eddie Robinson be given another chance. But some of the directors say the Rangers' nosedive the past month — eight straight losses and 14 out of 16 — make a change mandatory.

"There is something very wrong about that," said Texas third baseman Buddy Bell.

"You hate to see anybody lose their job, especially when it's up to us whether he stays or not. We let him (Corrales) down this season. If they fire Pat, his blood's on our hands."

Left fielder Al Oliver said it was right to fire Texas manager Billy Hunter at the end of the 1978 season, but he doesn't feel Corrales should be held accountable for the collapse of the 1980 Rangers.

"It was different a couple of years ago, when Hunter was here. The players had lost all respect for him by the end of the season. He had to go," Oliver said.

"But that's not the case now. I don't think there's a man on this team who doesn't respect Pat. We just never jelled as a team, but that's not Pat's fault," Oliver said.

Utility outfielder Jim Norris said Corrales "can't drive in runs. He can't drive in runs. He can't strike anybody out or make the big plays. ... We're the reason we're where we are, and I think it's unfair to take it all out on him."

Chiles and the other stockholders need to make changes, but not in managers, Bell said.

"What you need to get rid of are the people on this team who don't fit in, who don't know how to win," Bell said.

In 1980 presidential campaign

Dirt-diggers having field day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marty Franks is 29 years old and went to Princeton. At Carter-Mondale headquarters, he is in charge of digging up dirt on Ronald Reagan.

Tony Dolan is 32 years old and went to Yale. At Reagan-Bush headquarters, he is in charge of digging up dirt on Jimmy Carter.

From the evidence at hand so far in this presidential campaign, it is clear that both are having a field day.

Part of the business of running for president is tearing down the other fellow. Franks and Dolan provide the crowbars.

It is nothing they're ashamed of doing, but it isn't something candidates brag about, either.

Franks' job is to find materials in Reagan's past that can be used to portray the Republican candidate as a trigger-happy radical: a man who would get America involved in war and destroy the Social Security system.

Dolan's job is to make President Carter look un-presidential. The White House is a bully platform from which to run for president, and Dolan is trying to pull the platform out from under Carter.

When candidate Carter says the choice between Carter and Reagan is a choice between peace and war, he backs it up with a fistful of old news clippings that Marty Franks has dug up.

They show, Franks claims, that over the years Reagan has called for committing U.S. forces to eight world hot spots, from North Korea to Panama.

And how does the Reagan campaign respond? With Tony Dolan's research: he comes up with five old Carter quotes on the use of troops, the use of atomic weapons, even "pre-emptive strikes."

In this line of work, there is no statute of limitations. A candidate's words can be brought back to haunt him 20 years or more after they were spoken.

Dolan has dug into Carter's "record of personal attacks, innuendo and outright smears" that goes back to his first campaign for governor of Georgia in 1966.

And Franks' shop is still quoting something Reagan said on Oct. 27, 1964 — five presidential election campaigns ago — to prove that Reagan thinks Social Security ought to be made voluntary (a step some experts think would destroy it).

On the surface, it would seem that Franks has the easier job. Whether or not you like Jimmy Carter, you know what kind of a president he will make. You can't be as sure about what kind of president Reagan would make.

Dolan says Carter's attempts to portray Reagan as a racist and a warmonger are backfiring. He says they have made Carter's own tactics an issue. He calls it "the meanness issue."

"It may be one of the greatest blunders in Carter's life," Dolan says. "You just should never underestimate the decency of the American people."

COUPLE STRANDED — During the rain last week, an elderly couple Mr. and Mrs. William A. Johnson, Old San Angelo Highway, were "trapped" inside their home. Commissioner Precinct 3 Bill Crooker said arrangements were made 10 days ago with landowner Tim Blackshear, who lives next door to the couple, to install a culvert to allow drainage. The culvert has been ordered and will be installed at a cost of $1,000 to $1,500 to the county. (Photo by Bill Forshaw)

Polish unions to strike again

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent union leaders say they are going ahead with one-hour nationwide strike for higher wages Friday despite the government's claim that their demands exceed increases promised in the Gdansk agreement.

Deputy Premier Kazmierz Barcikowski accused the labor leaders Tuesday of breaking the Aug. 31 agreement that ended the massive wave of strikes for political reforms as well as higher pay.

Andrzej Kolodziej, vice chairman of the independent Solidarity union federation, said his organization would not cancel its call for a 60-minute walkout at noon Friday to support demands for more pay increases than the government is willing to grant.

Barcikowski in a TV appearance Tuesday accused the unofficial unions of "dragging out" wage negotiations with excessive demands. He said the government was honoring its end of the Gdansk agreement but the unions were demanding increases "exceeding greatly the levels agreed upon in the settlements."

"We cannot meet such pay rises," he said.

His statement was the first mention in the government-controlled media of the walkout Friday.

Solidarity is led by Lech Walesa, the leader of the Gdansk shipyard strike that touched off the labor upheaval in August. It called the brief work stoppage as a show of strength to support demands for bigger pay increases and more access to the media.

Some independent labor leaders claim that, although progress has been made generally in the wage talks, some local Communist Party officials and plant managers refuse to meet with leaders of the new union movement.

In an attempt to wear away support of the strike, the government on Monday announced 8 million workers would get pay raises this month. On Tuesday, the Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said the increases promised in the Gdansk agreement "is on the way to realization. It will be accomplished in January 1981."

Sporadic strikes for higher pay began in July after the government increased the price of meat by cutting off the subsidies that kept it down. For some weeks, they were settled quickly by grants of 15-percent wage increases. But the Gdansk strikers demanded a 40 percent hike, to increase the average wage of $170 a month to $237, as well as the right to form independent labor unions, the right to strike and other political reforms.

The Gdansk agreement granted the strikers' political demands, but the strikers moderated their wage demands and the government promised pay raises pegged to the cost of living.

Army team on secret training mission winds up in Brownfield farmer's barn

BROWNFIELD, Texas (AP) — A six-man commando team trying to slip secretly across the South Plains apparently lost its bearings and wound up cold, damp and hungry in a farmer's seed barn several miles east of their destination.

They had been instructed "to get in and out without notice." Instead they were detained by sheriff's deputies and had their pictures displayed on the front page of the local newspaper.

Team members were dressed in camouflage fatigues without rank or unit insignia and armed with automatic weapons, pistols and knives.

A congressman's aide said the men may have been participating in a series of training maneuvers on orders from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"I've been working on this all day. An Army liaison major told me today (Tuesday) it's definitely tied in to the Joint Chiefs of Staff," said Don Richards, an aide to U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock. "It was part of training exercises in California, Texas and Kansas."

The team was dropped at a Brownfield airport Friday with orders to get to an auxiliary Air Force base nine miles north of town "without notice," said Army Maj. Tony Caggeiano at the Pentagon Tuesday.

But early Friday morning, Ruben Martinez said he noticed the men on his isolated farm and "it got me and my wife and kids kind of scared."

"These two Army boys showed up at my door in ponchos asking if they could use the phone," Martinez said. "They shouldn't be down here in the country and I didn't know who they were and nowadays you can't trust anybody, so I said no."

Martinez said the "secretive" men made him nervous but he told them they could change clothes in his cotton seed barn.

"They wouldn't go away," said his wife, Rachel, 36. "They were standing outside trying to look in and we were looking out at them. We locked our doors and everything, but they just kept knocking on our door and saying 'Open the door, we'll show you our I.D.'"

"I said don't open the door, they don't look like Army guys to me. And they didn't have any business out here in the country."

Martinez said the men stayed in the barn several hours "just walking back and forth in the pasture and back to the chicken house."

So he called the Terry County Sheriff's office. Brownfield News editor Don Arnwine heard the call on the police monitor and went to investigate.

Arnwine met the sheriff's squad car returning from the farm and noticed some military personnel in the car. He followed them back to the sheriff's office and photographed the men.

At that point, Arnwine said, a sheriff's deputy told him, "I want that film." Arnwine refused.

He said he was told it was a matter of "national security."

"Your boss will hang if the pictures are printed in the paper," the deputy said.

Arnwine ran the story Sunday after getting little, if any, information out of the various military branches.

Sheriff Homer Parker would not talk about the incident.

"You talk to the Army. They told me not to say anything and I don't intend to. I didn't ask why," he said.

The men were released to the custody of an Army officer a few hours later.

Martinez said he was a little worried about calling the sheriff, but the weapons scared him.

"They had six machine guns and seven guns, all loaded," he said. "The sheriff's (deputy) made them get all the shells out. They were big bullets, too. I know what machine guns look like, because I've seen them in movies and television. And they had these big knives, and I saw one grenade ... you know, a little bitty round thing like you see in a movie when they throw a grenade."

ARMED INVASION — The two men shown above were part of an Army exercise that included a half-dozen men and stretched across much of the western United States. They were discovered when they wandered up to a farmworker's house Friday morning. The men were armed with machine guns, hand grenades and knives. No branch of the military was willing to claim them.

Weary Texans battle contamination threat

ROSCOE, Texas (AP) — Wet, weary volunteer workers — including two busloads of Air Force personnel — are staying "just about even" with floodwaters endangering a sewage dike in this rain-soaked West Texas town.

"We're tired, we're hot and we're exhausted," said Jackie Woner, who has been helping Red Cross workers in a make-shift kitchen set up to feed the volunteers.

"We're staying just about even," she said late Tuesday night. "The water is still rising and we've managed to pump off about five inches. We're just waiting for the big pump."

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers officials halted efforts about 11 p.m. Tuesday night to hook up an 18-inch pipeline that will drain a flooded lake that is cascading water into the already soggy town of 1,400.

Corps officials said work on the pipeline, which is being supplied by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, would resume today.

Mrs. Woner said about 600 persons were packing sandbags around the endangered sewer pond while welders and other laborers helped piece the pipeline together.

Mayor Bedford P. "Beep" Cain said Tuesday that clearing weather helped workers in their efforts to shore up the dike after the weekend's heavy rains.

"The good thing is the sun is still shining," he said. "The bad thing is, the water is still rising." Cain said most of the floodwater was the result of runoff from the heavy rains, rather than creeks or rivers running out of their banks.

Forecasters called for clearing skies across the state today.

Cain said two busloads of volunteers from nearby Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene arrived Tuesday to help residents put sandbags in place around the sewer pond. Officials fear the pond may rupture, sending contaminated water surging into the town.

Four other pipelines are being used to move the floodwater from the lake and surrounding areas, easing the pressure on the sewer holding pond.

FEMA official Glenda Watson-Natale said Tuesday about 25 house trailers will be provided for Roscoe residents who have been driven out of their homes by high water, although the agency has not yet decided if a rental fee will be charged.

Cain said he estimated that at least 170 homes had been damaged by floodwater since Sept. 9, when a 10-inch downpour from Tropical Storm Danielle knocked out the town's water supply and damaged the sewer system.

Tuesday marked the 22nd day that residents of Roscoe have been without sewer facilities. They have been sharing about 40 portable toilets.

"We're just going to be optimistic Texans," Cain said, "and hope that the sun shines and the skies stay clear ... and everybody can think of other things."

Head lice in Kansas City, Big Spring schools reported

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Authorities say at least 25 cases of head lice have been reported in the Kansas City School District since school opened last month and district officials expect a widespread outbreak similar to one last year.

Future Jackson, district director of health services, said today the 25 cases at various elementary schools almost equaled the number reported during the same period last year. The 1979 outbreak later developed into the worst in area schools in recent history.

Dr. Gerald Hoff, epidemiologist with the Kansas City Health Department, said he does not know what started last year's epidemic but said lice epidemics occur in 15-year cycles.

Locally, the head lice problem shows up every year but is not as bad as this year than it usually is, according to Kentwood Nurse Doris Konocke.

Help for camp families to be discussed here

Efforts to round out the organization of a local council to assist families visiting relatives in the Federal Prison Camp here will be made at a meeting set for Oct. 21. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Pioneer Gas Flame room, and everyone is invited.

Transportation, child care, sometimes housing, etc. are problems faced by many families who come, mainly on weekends, to see a member in the minimum security facility here. Also, there are instances when families move into the area and need help in locating employment, housing, etc. There is no agency equipped to handle these problems at present.

Two previous exploratory sessions have been held, and Marion Froman (7-608) has been named temporary secretary pending the formal organization, and perhaps incorporation, of the clearing-house group. Representatives from a number of churches have expressed interest in taking part as a local missions effort, and the support of all groups and individuals will be welcomed.

The Camp has a program for visitation and sponsorship of inmates, but there is a void in concerns families. Frequently they need transportation from the bus station, a place to clean up and rest, or to leave the children, or perhaps stay overnight. Also needed is a referral service concerning possible employment, health, food, housing possibilities.

Chaplain Jerry Kelly said that there is a pressing need for a group to lend a compassionate hand to these visitors or new residents.

ON THE LIGHT SIDE

It's a dog's life

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — It's a sort of "muternity" suit.

Ivan Kohn says the 3-foot-tall Great Dane is his and its name is Jazz. Lawrence and Bev Ross say the dog is theirs and its name is Duke.

Both parties have veterinary records and photographs to back up their cases and Whatcom County Superior Court will have to decide the Solomon-like dilemma.

It started a year ago when Kohn heard the dog bark at the Rosses' Birch Bay home. Believing it was his runaway Jazz, he took it.

"I knew it was my dog," Kohn said. "I'd had him four years, and I know what my dog sounds like. It's just like with a kid."

The Rosses' theft charge against Kohn was dismissed because Kohn had no criminal intent, a judge ruled, although Kohn was ordered to return the dog.

SOME REFUND!

SYMERTON, Ill. (AP) — When she received a check for $4,577.76 from the state, the clerk-treasurer of this tiny northeast Illinois village was pleasantly surprised.

Rita Parkinson said the check, intended to cover Symerton's share of state income taxes collected from its 125 residents during the month, was 15 or 20 times the usual amount.

"We're just a tiny village," Mrs. Parkinson said. "It usually averages $200, or maybe $300 at the most. But I received this check for $4,000. It has to be a computer error."

Mrs. Parkinson said the village, 23 miles southeast of Joliet, received just $2,990 during the entire previous year as its share of income taxes.

The windfall may not last. The check apparently resulted from a mistaken mailing, said a spokeswoman with the state Revenue Department.

Helen Adorjan said a review of department records indicated that the Will County town of Shorewood, about three miles west of Joliet, was supposed to get a check for $4,577.76.

The check might have been put into the wrong mailing envelope and further investigation was needed, she said.

But the check, which arrived in a windowed envelope, was made to the order of the clerk-treasurer of Symerton, Mrs. Parkinson said.

Mrs. Adorjan said it was unclear what steps would have to be taken to correct the mistake.

NATIONAL POLITICAL FIGURE

will speak Oct. 7 at HSU

ABILENE — Senator Mark Hatfield (R-Oregon), a national political figure for more than 20 years, will speak at Hardin-Simmons University at 8 p.m. on Oct. 7 in HSU's Behrens Auditorium.

The public is invited and there will be no admission charge.

Hatfield's appearance at HSU is being made possible by the Cullen Faculty Enrichment Fund which underwrites the expense of bringing major figures to campus as part of the educational experience.

Hatfield served as governor of Oregon for two terms (1960-67) where his opposition to the Vietnam War catapulted him into national prominence (in both 1965 and 1966 his was the only negative vote on the Vietnam issue at the Governor's Conference).

In 1964, the senator was the keynote speaker and temporary chairman of the National Republican Convention.

PROPERTY TAX COLLECTIONS

under way in Howard County

Today is the first day of property tax collections, advised County Tax Collector Assessor Zirah Bednar.

Tax bills were mailed Tuesday for the 1980 taxes. The bills are due Jan. 1 but the tax collectors are able to start collecting Oct. 1. Mrs. Bednar is collecting for Forsan, city of Big Spring, Howard College, Howard County, and Coahoma. The tax rolls for Coahoma have not been completed by Pritchard and Abbot yet. When the tax rolls for Coahoma are completed, residents may pay any other taxes due when they pay Coahoma taxes, said Mrs. Bednar.

REALTORS' SALES TRAINING

seminar booked in Abilene

The Oct. 9 Realtors' sales training seminar at the Briarstone Manor in Abilene will feature two nationally known speakers, reported Barbara Willis, president of the Abilene Women's Council of Realtors. WCR is the sponsor.

"We're emphasizing that all Realtors can benefit from hearing Peggy Lee Heineman of Phoenix, AR., and Arlyne E. Geschwender of Omaha, NE," Willis explained. "Each woman has been in real estate for over 20 years, so will be able to give her individual reasons as to why this topic, 'The Nuts and Bolts of Personal Development,' is so very important for sales success."

"The day will be divided into sessions on decision-making, body language, coping with personal and business pressures, and long range objectives. In recognizing and coming to grips with any problems which we might have in these areas, we know that we can then give our clients even better service."

A strong advocate of education, Heineman has traveled throughout Arizona presenting seminars to boards as the Arizona Association of Realtors' education chairman. Geschwender, the founder of a real estate school which prepares
