Hand-to-hand combat reported

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi and Iranian troops were reported locked in savage hand-to-hand combat today for Iran's oil port of Khorramshahr, and an Iraqi air attack was said to have heavily damaged a $3 billion Persian Gulf petrochemical complex under construction to the east Meanwhile, Iran's Parliament unanimously rejected any direct or indirect negotiations with the United States on the 52 U.S. hostages captured 334 days ago. And in an offshoot of the 11-day-old war, the Iranian and Iraqi embassies in Beirut, Lebanon, were rocketed and seriously damaged.

Western diplomats here said they believed Iraq's offer of a four-day cease-fire, which Iran immediately rejected, was a ploy to gain in-ternational prestige. The diplomats said they believed the Iraqis also were seeking a period of quiet so their troops could consolidate their gains inside Iran.

Iraq's leading daily newspaper, Al-Thawra, charged the United States with war brinkmanship and playing with fire by continuing to interfere in the war. The paper offered no specifies to support the charge.

Iraq said its shock troops were battling diehards of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary guar in 1 fresh assault to capture Khorramshahr.

A communique carried today by Baghdad Radio claimed the Iranians had suffered "a large number of dead and wounded" Wednesday in the central and southern sectors of the warfront. It listed Iraqi losses as 16

The Iranian command said the Iraqis were "digging their own graves" in Khorramshar and nearby Abadan, major cities of Iran's oil-rich Khuzestan province, and told the inhabitants: "You should fight tooth and nail to destroy these blasphemous enemies and teach them such a lesson that they will never be able to get up

Some 100 miles east of Khorramshahr, facilities of the sprawling Japanese-Iranian petrochemical complex in Bandar Khomeini on the Persian Gulf were heavily damaged by an Iraqi air attack, Mitsui and Co., Iran's major partner in the project,

Mitsui officials told reporters in Tokyo that the attack by several Iraqi fighter-bombers hit the central part of the 85-percent complete project, heavily damaging three of the 13 plants at the complex Tuesday. They said damage from the attack, the second on the petrochemical complex in a week, could seriously delay the project's completion, scheduled for the spring of 1982.

Fred Ligarde testified Wednesday he specifically questioned Clayton and Austin attorney Randall Wood on Feb. 8 about an alleged scheme to the reopen bidding on a $76 million state employees insurance contract. Clayton and co-defendant Wood, both denied any knowledge of a contribution, he said.

When asked about a campaign donation from Deer Park union leader L.G. Moore, Clayton replied, "I kind of doubt it. Maybe he contributed at a fundraiser. He never made any contribution to me personally,' Ligarde said.

Another agent, Gregory Rampton, also quoted Russell "Rusty" Kelly, speaker's administrative assistant, as saying he was unaware Clayton had accepted any contribution from Moore Clayton, Wood and another Austin lawyer, Donald Ray, are being tried before U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor on charges of extortion, bribery, conspiracy and fraud.

Moore, regional director of the International Operating Engineers Union, was indicted June 12 along with the three defendants but is to be tried later.

Secretly-recorded tapes played earlier in the three-week-old trial revealed that FBI informant Joseph Hauser gave $5,000 to Moore during a Nov. 8, 1979, meeting in the speaker's office. Moore then passed the money

Moore had boasted to undercover agents during the 10-month investigation that he was a personal friend of Clayton.

special agent said he believed Clayton had "honestly answered" his 32 prepared questions during the Feb. 8 meeting at the speaker's office "with the exception of accepting money.

When asked by Ligarde about the money, Wood acknowledged he and Moore had discussed payoffs and bribes as a means to secure a lucrative state insurance contract, but both "agreed it wouldn't work,"

Earlier Rampton testified he asked Kelly if the speaker had received any contributions at the Nov. 8 meeting.

Kelly answered, "I am not personally aware of any contribution from Mr. Moore to Speaker Clayton, I am also not aware that any promise was made to the speaker of money that he would receive on a yearly basis." the agent said.

Michael Wacks, one of the agents who worked with Hauser, also testified that Wood once told him that Clayton planned to run for governor and might need money.

Wacks said Wood and Ray talked of a need for $2,000 to $3,000 and he considered this a one-time "flat fee to do business in Texas. I don't think it was a retainer.'

HOUSTON (AP) - Vice President Walter Mondale tried to turn the tables on Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan while nimbly sidestepping questions about President Carter's refusal to debate the GOP nominee and independent candidate John Anderson

"The nation needs a debate between the two people who have a chance of winning," Mondale told a news conference Wednesday night during a

During his 15-minute news conference, the vice president also discussed the importance of the Texas vote, the hostage situation in Iran and the Iran-Iraq dispute.

Mondale said the presidential debates were "the best possible way for the American people to see the candidates in an environment where they really have to show their stuff or to show they don't have it.' He also accused the former California governor of trying to "protect" Anderson.

"But Mr. Anderson has accepted. So that indicates Mr. Reagan is left with one answer, that he refuses to do what the American people want him to do,"

Action/reaction: Credit card law

Q. I'm trying to kick the credit card habit and get my financial house in er, but I received one through the mail the other day without applying for it. What does the law say about that?

A. Are you sure you didn't get a renewal or a substitute card? The law says you can be sent a card under those circumstances. It is, however, illegal for a firm to send out credit cards unless the consumer has specifically requested or applied for one. If a credit card is lost or stolen, it should immediately be reported to the company which issued it. If the card is lost or stolen and the card is used illegally before the consumer reports its loss, the maximum amount for which the consumer is liable is $50. If the credit card is lost or stolen and the card is used after the consumer has reported it lost or stolen, the consumer is not liable for any purchases made by the unauthorized user.

Who is most likely to vote?

What all this means, of course, is that candidates need to appeal not just to the public in general, but to those who vote. And finding out who those folks are isn't hard; it just requires a trip through statistics collected by the Census Bureau.

Who is the American most likely to

Well, there probably isn't any single, typical individual, but here is a rundown of some of the common characteristics based on the 1976 election.

This voter is a white male aged 25 to 64, he is married, has a white-collar job and earns more than $15,000 a year. He lives in a suburb in the North Central states and has at least a high school education If a candidate has to choose which sex to aim his rhetoric at, though, he may have a problem. Men are more likely to vote than women - 59.6 percent to 58.8 percent - but there are more women. That means women cast more total votes than men: 45.6 million to 41 million in Turning to age groups the decision is easier, people between 25 and 64 are the heaviest voters at 63.2 percent and they also vastly outnumber younger and older voters. The median age of voters in 1976 was 45.1 years, while that of non-voters was 35.3.

People over 65 did almost as well, with 62.2 percent voting, while only 42.2 percent of those aged 18 to 24 cast

Using race as a criterion we find that the black and Hispanic minorities are not only outnumbered by whites, they dilute their influence by voting in much smaller numbers.

In 1976, for example, 60.9 percent of eligible whites voted, compared to 48.7 percent for blacks and only 31.8 percent for Hispanics.

The percent voting didn't vary a great deal geographically, but the North Central states - home to independent presidential candidate John Anderson, his running mate Patrick and Democratic vice presidential nominee Walter Mondale managed to lead the way with a 65.1

Former Texas Democratic Gov. Preston Smith, who has many friends in Big Spring, told a news conference in Lubbock Saturday that he's backing the Republican presidential ticket, but he won't switch parties.

"My political and governmental beliefs have not changed," Smith said in a prepared statement. "I am not switching parties, and neither am l switching my governmental philosophy. I am now and always have been a conservative Democrat.

Smith, an executive committee member of Texas Democrats and Independents for Reagan-Bush, said he is supporting GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan because "the federal government is involved in our personal and family lives more than our forefathers ever dreamed."

"It is possible that a change in the leadership of our national government will not ... change the direction our federal government is moving, but it is my belief that we should bring about a change if possible," he said.

The Education Department is charged with the responsibility of providing education resources for patients at BSSH under 21 years of age. Through screening and evaluation, it is determined in which classes to place each eligible individual. These classes range from arts and crafts,

The booth was used to sell ceramic items made by patients in Occupational Therapy and to inform people of the volunteer program at the hospital. Committee to offer $300 for arson info

The Arson Reward Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce decided Wednesday to offer up to $300 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons believed to have set a fire at 204 N.E. 9th last Sunday. The committee, headed by

Big Spring Herald Publisher Tom Watson, met with Arson Investigator Rick Womack to discuss the reward. The committee will decide how much, if any, of the reward will be given.

According to Womack, the fire at 204 N.E. 9th was set in four places: the bedroom, living room, dining room, and around the outside of the house. An unidentified liquid was used to start the fire at approximately 6:20 a.m. The house was vacant and for sale.

The special Senate subcommittee, which began its probe of the Billy Carter-Libyan affair two months ago, was debating the report's conclusions today. It is under Senate mandate to release at least a tentative report by Oct. 4, a month to the day before the November election.

At least six of the nine senators on the panel have written separate views to add to the report, and one of them, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said, "I still have grave reservations and doubts about President Carter's role in this matter."

Several senators tried to restore language deleted from a draft report saying Billy Carter's conduct "merits condemnation" because it "was contrary to the interests of the president and the United States."

In the final version of the interim report, the phrase "merits condemnation" was softened to say "merits severe criticism.'

The draft also criticized the president and several top aides for poor judgment and mishandling of the affair but said Billy Carter received no special treatment as the president's brother.

Dole concluded in his separate views that "there is no way of knowing at this point the extent of the president's involvement. "It strains credibility beyond the breaking point to accept the statements that the president and his brother only discussed the Libvan situation three times from April of 1979 through June of 1980," Dole said.

Many parents are afraid to let people they are not acquainted with care for their children. The offsprings invariably are quick to pick up such signals and become anxious too. If parents fume about their children having to ride the bus, that serves to make their sons and daughters feel uncomfortable, especially if the parents discuss their fears in the presence of their kids.

THE TMA STRONGLY recommends that parents visit schools and talk realistically with teachers whenever possible. Such discussions can familiarize everyone with the child's schedule and upcoming activities. A visit can also give parents an early opportunity to inform the teacher about the child's special abilities, problems or complicating situations such as a recent family divorce that may have shattered and bewildered the child.

Perhaps parents and children do not communicate often enough about school. Mother and dad should sit

Getting frequent updates about the child's progress and attitudes can help parents contribute to a child's peace of mind and make him or her feel what they are doing is really necessary

PERSISTENT PROBLEMS could mean the child has a learning disorder, and it happens far more frequently than parents might suspect. To find out about possible problems quickly, tests can be done to find hearing, sight or learning han-dicaps that can cause the child years of frustration and failure if undetected, TMA says. The teacher often can give recommendations about available testing.

No matter what the cause of poor performance in school, it is important to help the child before the troubles last too long. Help may be something as simple as aiding the child with homework. Or it may involve getting medical attention.

Regardless, TMA urges parents to take action to help keep the child from falling far behind in class

Sunset thoughts

Around the rim

Richard Horn

By Monday afternoon, the rains had ceased, water no longer leaked into my 1970 Pontiac trunk to slosh around everytime I pulled to a stop, and I was happily reassured that the sun had not been snatched off into some kind of orbit around another set of planets.

The air was clear, crips, and cool, and I decided it would be a good time to explore the great sunsets that I had read about in Shine Philips' book about Big Spring. So, when evening grew near, I packed a little food into my waterlogged car and sloshed over to the State Park atop Scenic

ONCE THERE, I quickly noticed that I was alone except for a jackrabbit, a few beetles, and more than a few mosquitoes. This indicated to me that watching the sunset is probably a very newcomer-type thing to do, and most of the long time residents have gotten used to the nightly show.

Well...so be it. You see, I am a refugee from the asphalt swamp called Houston, and anything that has to do with nature, as opposed to crowded streets and broken down buses, is of great interest and delight

Most of the clouds were gone by the time the sun began its descent, so a spectacular color show would have to wait for another day. But the air was clear enough to make the trip worthwhile, so I settled down on the side of the hill to watch.

In his 1942 book, "Big Spring," resident author-philosopher-town druggist Shine Philips devoted almost a whole chapter to West Texas sun-

"It's a real experience to go out here on one of these little hills and watch the sun go down over the prairies," he wrote. It's medicine for the soul and nobody can really hate anybody when he is off looking into a West Texas sunset.

Of course, things have changed since Mr. Philips wrote that, and he himself acknowledged that the coming of tall buildings and busy times had made it more difficult for people to take the time to enjoy the setting sun. He wrote that he longed for the time when one could "just watch the sunset and then squat down on the ground and drink coffee out of an old tomato can and eat some bacon, fried over a prairie fire.

Well, today it's unsafe to drink out of old soup cans, and we're told that fried bacon has too much cholesterol. But, as I can imagine Shine saying, a man's soul needs just as much medicine as it ever did, and probably

Thinking those kinds of thoughts makes this particular sunset even more special. The rain was a problem while it was here, but it blew away any trace of stale, dirty air, at least for the time being. The only cloud that was left when I was there hung gently over the middle of the town, and it seemed to get smaller and smaller as the sun went down

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE and silly to describe a sunset, so I'm not going to try. One thing that is worth mentioning though is that it seemed to last forever. Even after the sun sank below the horizon, light still reflects off the buildings and the hills. It's not a short show; you get your money's worth. You can see for miles up there, so your eye can take in whatever your imagination will allow

I hope you will forgive these rather simple reflections on something that is so familiar and ordinary to so many people. But, having lived in big cities all my life, I'm used to seeing the sun as an orange covered ball covered with haze. Being able to get on top of a hill and enjoy clear air and wide open spaces full of color ... well, that's something to write about

Adviser accused

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON - President Carter has rushed to clear his deputy national security adviser. David L. Aaron, of the charge that he imadvertently compromised a top U.S. spy in the Soviet Union.

The White House has called the accusation "completely unfounded" and "unsubstantiated rumor." Both the FBI and the CIA have dutifully confirmed that there's no substance to the allegation

Certainly Aaron is a sterling fellow. high on the White House totem pole, who would never intentionally unmask an American agent. Indeed, he may be as innocent as the White House insists he is. But my own investigation indicates otherwise.

IN THE SUBTERRANEAN world of half-light where espionage is practiced, the truth is always difficult to discern. Yet my associate, Dale Van Atta, has questioned four intelligence sources who are familiar with the case. They have been scrupulously accurate in the past.

They claim taht Aaron let slip some ultra-secret information at a party. that an intercepted diplomatic dispatch proved he had talked out of turn and that the White House is more anxious to cover up the embarrassment than to uncover the

Aaron's slip allegedly exposed the identity of Anatoly N. Filatov, a Soviet intelligence officer, who worked undercover as an American agent known to the CIA by the code name Trigon. The unfortunate spy disappeared into the Soviet prison system after a secret military trial in

The Soviet press reported he had been executed. Some CIA officials believe he committed suicide. His Moscow lawyer claims he is still alive, serving out a 15-year sentence.

The information that Aaron spilled at the party, sources say, came from "blue line" documents so secret that only a trusted few insiders are allowed to see them. There are several levels of secrecy above topsecret. Some papers are stamped with code words, which themselves are classified. Even more guarded than these are documents with blue lines running down the pages.

ONLY THE MOST sensitive information appears in blue-line documents. Aaron allegedly mentioned to an East European diplomat some facts that had come from a blueline document dealing with Warsaw Pact nuclear weapons.

Apparently, a third-world diplomat happened to overhear Aaron's careless conversation with the East European. The eaves dropper reported the conversation in a cable to his own foreign office.

The cable was intercepted and decoded by America's ultra-secret National Security Agency. The message was such an embarrassment to the White House that, under an private individuals, it was supposed to be destroyed. Yet I understand a copy was kept and might be ferreted out if the FBI looked hard enough

Shortly thereafter, the CIA canceled all blue-line clearances. This was done, sources say, because Aaron had compromised the documents and had rolled up one of our agents.

The nuclear weapons information that Aaron revealed, so the story goes, pointed a finger at Trigon. But other sources, who confirm Aaron's blueline slip, believe Trigon was really compromised because he "lived too high" on the money the CIA paid him.

Footnote: Shortly after I first wrote about the Trigon case, two members of the Senate Intelligence Committee, Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., asked the staff to investigate. This could be awkward, since Aaron was a staff colleague before he moved to the White House.

SECRET WARNING: Long before the Iraqi-Iranian outbreak, the Joint Chiefs laid before President Carter a top-secret warning that a crisis in the Persian Gulf area could erupt "at any time" and that it "could curtail access to the oil required by the United States and its allies.

The military chiefs warned that the 'dramatic worsening of the military balance in the Middle East-Persian Gulf region" exposed the "oilproducing states in that area to much greater potential security threats."

They foresaw the danger of Soviet intervention - not "a bolt-from-theblue nuclear attack on the United States" but limited military action, Afghanistan-style - in the early

"The Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the first major Soviet-American incident of the 1980s, may well be a harbinger of the greater risks of military confrontation which can be foreseen in the decade to come," wrote the Joint Chiefs.

They warned that Soviet forces "could intervene in regional political conflicts and become a threat to U.S. and allied access to oil supplies." And the United States doesn't have the military power to stop them, short of nuclear retaliation.

WATCH ON WASTE: Election-year promises of economy in government never seem to affect the money Congress is willing to spend on itself Recently, for example, the House voted to lay out $3.5 million of the hardpressed taxpayers' money to buy a whole city block on Capitol Hill for future office space. An official of the Capitol Architect's office explained that it was really a bargain — because it would cost a lot more if it were bought 50 to 75 years from now, when it will actually be needed.

WASHINGTON - We almost lost Arkansas a few weeks ago. Some smart aleck threw a wrench into a Titan missile silo. It hit the fuel tank

The only thing that saved the state was that the nuclear warhead, which was sitting on the top of it, didn't blow

The incident raised a lot of questions in the minds of the American people. Q - Why Arkansas?

A- WHEN THE FIRST Titan missiles were built, the experts in charge of selecting sites for them chose Arkansas becuase they were quite sure the Soviets didn't know where it was.

Many people in the Pentagon didn't know where it was either, and that was the reason for the delay by the Air Force in doing anything about it when the accident occurred.

Q - Now that the Soviets know where Arkansas is, will we have to move the Titan silos to another state? A - No. They are too fragile to move, and because of the adverse puoblicity it's doubtful that any other state would take them

Q - What effect will this have on the University of Kansas football team, which is usually in the top 10 at the end of each season? A — It will be very difficult now to recruit out-of-state high school football stars, and the school may have to give up its entire athletic program.

Q - What are we to make of the accident in terms of all the fail-safe

Titan? A — It depends on which side you're on If you're on the military's side, you can claim that the system worked because the nuclear warhead didn't go off. If you live in the area, you may ind it hard to sell your house

Q — What is the Soviet reaction to seeing one of our Titans come flying out of the ground without prior warning?

A - THEY ARE probably frightened silly. They always thought that we needed tremendous amounts of sophisticated electronic gear and computers to launch a Titan. But now they know we can set one off by just throwing a monkey wrench down into the hole, and they have no answer for this. If the SALT II talks ever start up again, the first order of business may be the banning of wrenches anywhere near a missile silo. Q — Do the Soviets have anything comparable to the Titan II?

A - As far as we know they don't. We do know they've been dropping wrenches on their MIRV missiles for 20 years, but they've never been able to breach their fuel tanks with them. When it comes to wrench penetration capability, we're at least 10 years ahead of them.

Q - Then most American people can take pride in the fact that the Titan II missile is our greatest deterrent against the Soviets? A - You could say that. But don't, if you live in Arkansas Q - Did the accident breach any security secrets that might impair our defense posture?

A - Only one. As many people know, there is a man with a black box who follows the president everywhece he goes. The black box is at the president's disposal in case of a nuclear attack. Up until now no one but the president and his national security adviser knew what was in the box. Now the secret is out of the bag.

Q — What is in the black box? A — A three-pound money wrench

Currently, the only effective way, short of that, to prevent herpes infection is to avoid contact with infected skin or secretions. The major infection age group is between 14 and 29. This varies widely with the geographic area. In some areas, the rate of infection is over 50 percent. Penicillin is not used in the treatment of genital herpes infection. WASHINGTON - Without warning, she ghosted onto the printout of the icebreaker's side-scan sonar, two of her three masts apparently draped with sails and rigging.

She was the H.M.S. Breadalbane, drowned these 127 years beneath the floating ice of the Canadian Arctic. At last she had been found, waiting on the bottom 300 feet down.

"It was like Christmas morning when you were a little boy," said Dr. Joseph MacInnis, leader of the search for the Breadalbane. "I can tell you that after three years searching suddenly there was a lot of cheering when we finally found her.

MacInnis, head of Undersea Research Ltd., was supported by the National Geographic Society in the search. The Canadian Coast Guard provided the icebreaker Sir John A. Mac-was the sunken souvenir of a search, one of the 19th century's longest, most dramatic - and tragic manhunts. She was crushed in the ice while searching for Sir John Franklin and his 128 shipmates, all starved or frozen to death on their own quest for the elusive Northwest Passage across the top of the New World.

Now the Breadalbane has a new claim to fame: She is the world's northernmost known shipwreck, 600 miles north of the Arctic Circle and about 125 miles from the magnetic North Pole.

The sunken British barque displaced 428 tons, stretched 120 feet stem to stern, and carried 100-foot masts. She was built in Glasgow, Scotland, as steam power began to replace sails on the high seas, and she was just 10 years old when she went

That was 10 minutes after 4 on Sunday morning, Aug. 21, 1853. Shifting ice crushed her, the ship's bow proud with a bare-breasted figure-

> She was gone in 15 minutes, the Breadalbane's 21 crewmen escaping to the ice and the companion search ship, the steamship Phoenix, which withstood the ice thanks to an iron hull.

> > Edward H. Hills, second mate of the Phoenix, watched the Breadalbane sink, writing in his log: "She went in deep water with her yards all a-quake and certainly making a very beautiful spectacle though not a very pleasant one, particularly for the poor fellows belonging to her who all lost a great part of their clothes and some the whole.'

The Breadalbane was the search expedition's supply ship and, as Hills recalled, 'about 160 casks and packages went down in the safely landed and stowed on the level ground at the foot of the cliff of Cape Riley" a short while before. Some 130 tons of coal for the Phoenix

Fifteen sheep, which could have been aboard according to unclear cargo records, would have been the only victims to lose their lives in the wreck

"The ship is really a time capsule of this particular part of the last century, MacInnis said. "Everything the crew used to make the ship work, plus all their personal gear are still on board."

The discovery, made Aug. 13, could become a "biologi-cal benchmark," he said.

'Because of the temperature of the water, either just below or close to freezing, there is a very good chance that all the organic material from the sails to the rigging to the food on board will be in a very excellent state of vessel, the rest having been preservation, providing excellent information about decaying in these extreme

MacInnis, a 43-year-old physician-turned-diver and head of Undersea Research Ltd. of Toronto, also hopes to collect new information on the human performances of divers under the arctic ice.

The divers also will check out huge nearby gouges made across the ocean floor by the bottoms of dragging icebergs. Some of these scourge marks, as geologists call them, measure 50 feet wide and hundreds of yards long. Scientists are uncertain whether they are leftovers from the ice ages, or also are being made by today's icebergs.

How about raising the Breadalbane? "That's a dream for tomorrow," MacInnis says, pointing out that it would be extremely expensive to try. More immediate objectives are making a detailed photo survey of the wreck and mining her for historical information and artifacts.

Historians doubt that the wreck will reveal any clues to the fate of the Franklin expedition. The Breadalbane went down within a mile or two of Beechey Island where later searchers found that Franklin and his men had spent their first winter.

The first bodies were found there - and piles of spoiled canned meat, a large part of their supplies.

Many parents are afraid to let people they are not acquainted with care for their children. The offsprings invariably are quick to pick up such signals and become anxious too. If parents fume about their children having to ride the bus, that serves to make their sons and daughters feel uncomfortable, especially if the parents discuss their fears in the presence of their kids.

THE TMA STRONGLY recommends that parents visit schools and talk realistically with teachers whenever possible. Such discussions can familiarize everyone with the child's schedule and upcoming activities. A visit can also give parents an early opportunity to inform the teacher about the child's special abilities, problems or complicating situations such as a recent family divorce that may have shattered and bewildered the child.

Perhaps parents and children do not communicate often enough about school. Mother and dad should sit down with the child and discuss the child's involvement in school. It can help to reassure the child that he or she can handle new circumstances just as in the past. Getting frequent updates about the child's progress and attitudes can help parents contribute to a child's peace of mind and make him or her feel what they are doing is really necessary.

PERSISTENT PROBLEMS could mean the child has a learning disorder, and it happens far more frequently than parents might suspect. To find out about possible problems quickly, tests can be done to find hearing, sight or learning handicaps that can cause the child years of frustration and failure if undetected, TMA says. The teacher often can give recommendations about available testing.

No matter what the cause of poor performance in school, it is important to help the child before the troubles last too long. Help may be something as simple as aiding the child with homework. Or it may involve getting medical attention.

Regardless, TMA urges parents to take action to help keep the child from falling far behind in class.

Sunset thoughts

Around the rim

By Monday afternoon, the rains had ceased, water no longer leaked into my 1970 Pontiac trunk to slosh around everytime I pulled to a stop, and I was happily reassured that the sun had not been snatched off into some kind of orbit around another set of planets.

The air was clear, crips, and cool, and I decided it would be a good time to explore the great sunsets that I had read about in Shine Philips' book about Big Spring. So, when evening grew near, I packed a little food into my waterlogged car and sloshed over to the State Park atop Scenic Mountain

ONCE THERE, I quickly noticed that I was alone except for a jackrabbit, a few beetles, and more than a few mosquitoes. This indicated to me that watching the sunset is probably a very newcomer-type thing to do, and most of the long time residents have gotten used to the nightly show.

Well...so be it. You see, I am a refugee from the asphalt swamp called Houston, and anything that has to do with nature, as opposed to crowded streets and broken down buses, is of great interest and delight

Most of the clouds were gone by the time the sun began its descent, so a spectacular color show would have to wait for another day. But the air was clear enough to make the trip worthwhile, so I settled down on the side of the hill to watch.

In his 1942 book, "Big Spring," resident author-philosopher-town druggist Shine Philips devoted almost a whole chapter to West Texas sun-

"It's a real experience to go out here on one of these little hills and watch the sun go down over the prairies," he wrote. It's medicine for the soul and nobody can really hate anybody when he is off looking into a since Mr. Philips wrote that, and he himself acknowledged that the coming of tall buildings and busy times had made it more difficult for people to take the time to enjoy the setting sun. He wrote that he longed for the time when one could "just watch the sunset and then squat down on the ground and drink coffee out of an old tomato can and eat some bacon, fried over a prairie fire.'

man's soul needs just as much medicine as it ever did, and probably makes this particular sunset even more special. The rain was a problem while it was here, but it blew away any trace of stale, dirty air, at least for the time being. The only cloud that was left when I was there hung gently over the middle of the town, and it seemed to get smaller and smaller as the sun went down.

describe a sunset, so I'm not going to try. One thing that is worth mentioning though is that it seemed to last forever. Even after the sun sank below the horizon, light still reflects off the buildings and the hills. It's not a short show; you get your money's worth. You can see for miles up there, so your eye can take in whatever your imagination will allow.

Adviser accused

WASHINGTON - President Carter has rushed to clear his deputy national security adviser, David L. Aaron, of the charge that he madvertently compromised a top U.S. spy in the Soviet Union.

Certainly Aaron is a sterling fellow, high on the White House totem pole, who would never intentionally unmask an American agent. Indeed, he may be as innocent as the White House insists he is. But my own in-

They claim taht Aaron let slip some ultra-secret information at a party, that an intercepted diplomatic dispatch proved he had talked out of turn and that the White House is more anxious to cover up the embarrassment than to uncover the intelligence officer, who worked undercover as an American agent known to the CIA by the code name Trigon. The unfortunate spy disappeared into the Soviet prison system after a secret military trial in believe he committed suicide. His Moscow lawyer claims he is still alive, serving out a 15-year sentence.

The information that Aaron spilled at the party, sources say, came from "blue line" documents so secret that only a trusted few insiders are allowed to see them. There are several levels of secrecy above topsecret. Some papers are stamped with code words, which themselves are classified. Even more guarded than these are documents with blue lines

ONLY THE MOST sensitive information appears in blue-line documents. Aaron allegedly mentioned to an East European diplomat some facts that had come from a blueline document dealing with Warsaw Pact nuclear weapons.

Apparently, a third-world diplomat happened to overhear Aaron's careless conversation with the East European. The eaves dropper reported the conversation in a cable to his own foreign office.

message was such an embarrassment to the White House that, under an private individuals, it was supposed to be destroyed. Yet I understand a copy was kept and might be ferreted out if the FBI looked hard enough.

Shortly thereafter, the CIA canceled all blue-line clearances. This was done, sources say, because Aaron had compromised the documents and had

The nuclear weapons information that Aaron revealed, so the story goes, pointed a finger at Trigon. But other sources, who confirm Aaron's blueline slip, believe Trigon was really compromised because he "lived too high" on the money the CIA paid him.

Footnote: Shortly after I first wrote about the Trigon case, two members of the Senate Intelligence Committee, Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., asked the staff to investigate. This could be awkward, since Aaron was a staff colleague before he moved to the White House.

SECRET WARNING: Long before the Iraqi-Iranian outbreak, the Joint Chiefs laid before President Carter a top-secret warning that a crisis in the Persian Gulf area could erupt "at any time" and that it "could curtail access to the oil required by the United States and its allies.

The military chiefs warned that the "dramatic worsening of the military balance in the Middle East-Persian Gulf region" exposed the "oilproducing states in that area to much greater potential security threats."

They foresaw the danger of Soviet intervention — not "a bolt-from-theblue nuclear attack on the United States" but limited military action, Afghanistan-style - in the early

"The Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the first major Soviet-American incident of the 1980s, may well be a harbinger of the greater risks of military confrontation which can be foreseen in the decade to come," wrote the Joint Chiefs.

They warned that Soviet forces "could intervene in regional political conflicts and become a threat to U.S. and allied access to oil supplies." And the United States doesn't have the military power to stop them, short of nuclear retaliation.

WATCH ON WASTE: Election-year promises of economy in government never seem to affect the money Congress is willing to spend on itself. Recently, for example, the House voted to lay out $3.5 million of the hardpressed taxpayers' money to buy a whole city block on Capitol Hill for future office space. An official of the Capitol Architect's office explained that it was really a bargain — because it would cost a lot more if it were ight 50 to 75 years from now, when it will actually be needed.

WASHINGTON - Without warning, she ghosted onto the printout of the icebreaker's side-scan sonar. two of her three masts apparently draped with sails and rigging.

She was the H.M.S. Breadalbane, drowned these 127 years beneath the floating ice of the Canadian Arctic. At last she had been found, waiting on the bottom 300 feet down.

"It was like Christmas morning when you were a little boy," said Dr. Joseph MacInnis, leader of the search for the Breadalbane. I can tell you that after three years searching suddenly there was a lot of cheering when we finally was the sunken souvenir of a century's longest, most dramatic - and tragic manhunts. She was crushed in the ice while searching for Sir John Franklin and his 128 shipmates, all starved or frozen to death on their own quest for the elusive Northwest Passage across the top of the New World.

a new claim to fame: She is the world's northernmost known shipwreck, 600 miles about 125 miles from the magnetic North Pole.

displaced 428 tons, stretched 120 feet stem to stern, and carried 100-foot masts. She was built in Glasgow, Scotland, as steam power began to replace sails on the high seas, and she was just 10 years old when she went

That was 10 minutes after 4 on Sunday morning, Aug. 21, 1853. Shifting ice crushed her, the ship's bow proud with a bare-breasted figureprotected by any rein- sailors.

She was gone in 15 minutes, the Breadalbane's 21 crewmen escaping to the ice and the companion search ship, the steamship Phoenix, which withstood the ice thanks to an iron hull.

mate of the Phoenix, watch-Now the Breadalbane has ed the Breadalbane sink, writing in his log: "She went in deep water with her yards all a-quake and certainly north of the Arctic Circle and making a very beautiful spectacle though not a very pleasant one, particularly for the poor fellows The sunken British barque belonging to her who all lost a great part of their clothes and some the whole.'

> The Breadalbane was the search expedition's supply ship and, as Hills recalled, "about 160 casks and packages went down in the vessel, the rest having been safely landed and stowed on the level ground at the foot of the cliff of Cape Riley" a short while before. Some 130 tons of coal for the Phoenix

had also been carried ashore

Fifteen sheep, which could have been aboard according to unclear cargo records, would have been the only victims to lose their lives in

"The ship is really a time capsule of this particular Edward H. Hills, second part of the last century," MacInnis said. "Everything the crew used to make the ship work, plus all their personal gear are still on

> The discovery, made Aug. 13, could become a "biologi-cal benchmark," he said.

'Because of the temperature of the water, either just below or close to freezing, there is a very good chance that all the organic material from the sails to the rigging to the food on board will be in a very excellent state of preservation, providing excellent information about decaying in these extreme

In the spring, according to his plans, a hole will be cut

The Breadalbane herself head but otherwise unfrom the Breadalbane by the through the 6-foot-solid ice and a diver in an articulated, armored suit will be lowered to the bottom for more pictures and to retrieve what he can from the wreck and any nearby sea life in the frigid surroundings.

> MacInnis, a 43-year-old physician-turned-diver and ad of Undersea Research Ltd. of Toronto, also hopes to collect new information on the human performances of divers under the arctic ice.

The divers also will check out huge nearby gouges made across the ocean floor by the bottoms of dragging icebergs. Some of these scourge marks, as geologists call them, measure 50 feet wide and hundreds of yards long. Scientists are uncertain whether they are leftovers from the ice ages, or also are being made by today's icebergs.

How about raising the Breadalbane? "That's a Breadalbane? dream for tomorrow. MacInnis says, pointing out that it would be extremely expensive to try. More immediate objectives are making a detailed photo survey of the wreck and mining her for historical information and artifacts.

Historians doubt that the wreck will reveal any clues to the fate of the Franklin expedition. The Breadalbane went down within a mile or two of Beechey Island where later searchers found that Franklin and his men had spent their first winter.

The first bodies were found there — and piles of spoiled canned meat, a large part of their supplies

Later searchers pieced together more details:

FOUND ON THE BOTTOM — The H.M.S. Breadalbane is reported well-preserved 300 feet down in freezing waters of the Canadian Arctic 127 years after being sunk by crushing ice. All 21 crewmen scrambled for their lives, as a sister ship's officer recorded in this eyewitness sketch. The National Geographic Society helped find the Breadalbane, located 600 feet above the Arctic Circle and east of the Magnetic North Pole — the northernmost shipwreck known.

It was this linkup of stranded searchers from the East meeting another expedition arriving from the West that accomplished what Franklin and his men searchers, too. At least five had lost their lives trying to do - transit a northwest in the ice, and one ex- passage of North America.

Local, state governments will be reimbursed

- After months of delays and WASHINGTON procedural hassles, Congress voted Wednesday to reimburse local and state governments for the costs of educational and social services provided to thousands of Cuban and Haitian immigrants in the past year.

The bill, which split the Texas delegation's vote nearly in half, now goes to President Carter, who is expected to sign it into law

By an overwhelming 303-94 vote, the House approved the package just hours after a floor debate found several Republicans expressing displeasure with Carter's overall handling of the refugee problem.

All four Texas GOP congressmen voted against the bill, along with seven of the remaining 19 Democrats from the

One of those Texas opponents was Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Marlin. "Obviously we need to have empathy with states like Florida that have a refugee problem forced on

"But that notwithstanding, if we didn't run into Florida with a bag of money, maybe people would put pressure on their representatives to do something about letting the refugees in in the first place."

Leath and other Texans called unfair a recent court ruling that requires Texas localities to provide free education to illegal aliens, but at the same time providing the refugee aid. 'It seems to be all right to take tax money for these people and educate them, but it's not all right to help border states like Texas with their legitimate problem with illegal aliens,'' said Leath.

Under the bill, local and state governments — which up to now have been footing the cost of social services to Cubans and Haitians — will get a $100 million boost from the federal government. In addition, a mechanism is provided by which future reimbursements can be paid, even if the Cubans and Haitians are not officially

strained foods

classified as refugees. This only applies to those persons entering the United States between November, 1979 and July, 1980.

Another portion of the bill authorizes money to local school districts affected by the influx. Over each of the next three years, this includes a basic grant of $450 per child to help cover the costs of educating Cuban and Haitian children; and from $350 to $750 per child to each school district showing substantial increases in refugee students. However, money for this portion of the bill, estimated at around $120 million, has yet to be appropriated.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., said the Carter administration's support during the past few weeks was helpful in expediting the measure. "They recognized that this was a federal responsibility, and that state and local taxpayers shouldn't have to bear the burden." But he added: "We could have done it without them. Said Rep. Claude Pepper (D-Fla.): "We are just delighted. It's been a long, painful struggle. It was just government caught in one of those legislative jams." The bill is expected to be signed within the next few days, and there is speculation Carter might travel to Florida and present the package himself. "It's a nice political present. He might make the most of it," said a House staff member.

Voting for the bill were Democratic Reps. Sam Hall of Marshall, Charles Wilson of Eufkin, Jim Mattox of Dallas, Bob Eckhardt of Houston, Jack Brooks of Beaumont, J.J. Pickle of Austin, Jim Wright of Dallas, Jack Hightower of Vernon, Joe Wyatt of Bloomington, Micky Leland of Houston, Kent Hance of Lubbock, and Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio

Voting against the bill were Democratic Reps. Eligio "Kika" de la Garza of Mission, Martin Frost of Dallas, Phil Gramm of College Station, Abraham "Chick" Kazen of Laredo, Marvin Leath of Marlin, Charles Stenholm of Stamford, and Richard White of El Paso.

Convicted arsonist at it again

COFFEYVILLE, Kan. (AP) — A 29-year-old janitor who had pleaded guilty to an arson charge in Texas seven years ago has been charged with setting fires that damaged Coffeyville's city auditorium and an elementary school in Caney, Kan. during the summer.

Robert Carty was charged with arson and aggravated arson in connection with the two fires, which occurred less than a month apart in the two southeast Kansas towns. He was being held in the Montgomery County Jail on $50.000

Coffeyville's Memorial Hall, a downtown landmark for more than 50 years, burned July 18, causing $1.2 million damage. Authorities at first thought the fire was accidental

Then on Sept. 10, a fire broke out at Caney's Lincoln Memorial Elementary School. Some 500 children teachers and staff members were evacuated safely, and the school's gymnasium was heavily damaged.

Authorities later learned that Carty had been working in both buildings as a janitor when the fires broke out. Both fires started in areas where janitorial materials were stored.

of Mod check with Texas authorities revealed that Carty was wanted there on a parole violation. He had been Scotch Buy Light Meat paroled in 1977 on a sentence for a 1975 Dallas burglary conviction. Local authorities Canned Milk

Texas records also showed he had pleaded guilty in 1973 to arson in connection with a fire at an Odessa, Texas, warehouse

A preliminary hearing on the two latest arson charges has been set for Oct. 6.

WASHINGTON (AP) - From the center of the nation's auto industry to the poisonous Love Canal, it wasn't always easy to tell where candidate Carter picked up and

President Carter left off. It looked presidential when a military jet flew emergency funding legislation for the federal government to Flint, Mich., on Wednesday so Carter could sign it, five

And it looked presidential when he sat at a polished table in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and used green-and-silver pens with "Jimmy Carter" inscriptions to sign a second bill, as well as an agreement providing $15 million in grants and loans to homeowners in the Love Canal part of

Asked to comment on the Republican's statement that he would withdraw the pending SALT II arms limitation treaty from Senate consideration without a vote and call for new negotiations with the Soviet Union instead, Carter told a Detroit Free Press interviewer he was "deeply concerned." Lions get sample of projects

Don't be surprised if you see a three-stage rocket streaking upward, or a strange electronic antennae scanning the heavens for sounds from Jupiter, or a girl staring intently at a bowl

These are but three Big Spring High School students preparing their projects for the Permian Basin Science Fair next March. Patricia Jones told the Downtown Lions about her project Wednesday - one to determine what fins and in what sequence fish use them for movement. Brent Crenweldge let the Lions in on his apparatus to expose slides to the atmosphere at three stages of a rocket ascent, and then check them for levels of high altitude contamination; Shawn Graves explained his radio-telescope project to beam in on Jupiter and see what effect solar emissions have on it.

Joe Reid, who sponsors the school science fair here - it spans from first through the 12th grade - said the purpose of the fair was to stimulate student interest in and understanding of research, science and analysis. The Permian Basin Fair started here two years ago may draw over 250 students this year with over 20 schools participating. Top two winners get to go to the international fair at Milwaukee. Last year, the second fair, doubled in participants over the year before. he said. This fair is one of 15 in Texas and 250 in the

Water samples testing still on for cholera

LEAGUE CITY, Texas (AP) — Health officials hope water samples taken from three area sewage treatments plants will determine the source of Galveston County's first recorded case

Samples were taken this week from sewage treatment plants in League City, Friendswood and Nassau Bay. Officials said potable water supplies in the three communities have not been contaminated. "With the tests, we should know Thursday if there is a form of cholera in any of the three sewer plants," said Dr W.W. Kemmerer.

Meanwhile, signs warning residents not to use Clear Creek water were posted along the stream that cuts across the mainland section of this coastal community after officials reported Monday that a 3-month-old League City girl had contracted the sickness. The child became ill Sept

15 but recovered without being hospitalized, Kemmerer said.

He said he was unaware until Sunday night that a private laboratory in Houston had found cholera bacteria in a feces sample taken from the youngster. The sample was destroyed before officials determined if an epidemic form of cholora or a less dangerous type

"We must find out where it came from," Kemmerer said. "We want to preclude it from going anywhere else."

Nassau Bay City Manager Howard Ward said the child's father had worked about four years in the sewage plant operated by the predominantly-residential

All-Spanish talk show taps huge market

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A fourth-generation American named Val De La $\rm O$ is building a reputation as the "Spanish Johnny Carson," each week putting together an hour of music, comedy and talk show chit-chat, all in

The "Val De La O Show" is the only syndicated television variety show produced in Spanish in the United States. De La O is a very big fish in a very small pond, but he says he would welcome competition.

"I'm opening the door," he said the day after his show went on the air in Miami, a city with a 52 percent Hispanic population. "It's important to Spanish people to have role models. I want younger guys to start their own shows."

People who count people, such as the Census Bureau and Immigration and Naturalization Service, estimate the nation's Spanish-speaking population at between 17 million and 24 million people, or roughly 10 percent of all Americans. Hispanics are expected soon to become the country's largest minority

De La O's show is syndicated to 32 markets, including New York, Miami, Chicago, Milwaukee, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Although on most shows everything is in Spanish, English is occasionally spoken, as when Kirk Douglas, Muhammad Ali and Don Knotts were guests. And when it is, "We don't apologize," De La O said. "After all, we are in America.

That's the point of his show: it's made in the United States.

Most Spanish programming seen here is part of the Spanish International Network, and made in Mexico. But De La O contends that Mexican shows do not relate to the American Hispanic. For example, programs originating in Mexico City often mention cities in Mexico.

"But I can't relate to that. Now, if they're talking about Kansas City, Chicago, Wichita Falls, that I can relate to,'

He also feels Mexican programming is too formal for American tastes, but conversely, his "casual levity" has made his show popular even in Ecuador. In the United States, his audience of Spanish-speaking adults includes Cubans in Miami, Puerto Ricans in New York and Mexicans in Texas.

He acknowledged his fans' diversity, "but music tends to rise above differences," he explained. "Jose Feliciano is a Cuban, but Puerto Ricans like him also; Colombians

'If we were getting into issues, we'd have to consider the differences. But when you use stars, it doesn't matter if they're Cuban or Puerto Rican. (Mexican entertainer) Tony Aguilar, for example, fills coliseums in Miami, New York, L.A., Albuquerque.

De La O, 44, is energetic and aggressive. On camera, he is charming, cordial and flashily dressed. He obviously enjoys what he does.

As a student at the University of New Mexico, he worked at a local Spanish-language radio station translating the news into Spanish, then announcing, singing and performing.

"I got the bug," he said.

De La O noticed the lack of Spanish-language TV programming and decided he had what it took to fill the void. He approached station after station, trying to sell his concept and himself, but "they wouldn't have me," he said, admitting that a 22-year-old with no television experience was asking a lot. In 1959, an Albuquerque station took a chance on him, and he began producing the "Val De La O Show." It was locally popular, and De La O began thinking about ex-

In 1976, his efforts paid off. That year, the show branched from its flagship station in Albuquerque to three stations, to seven by 1978, to 20 in 1979 and now 32.

"It was an untapped market," he said. "The Spanish population is like a sleeping giant. Advertisers are finally realizing this.

De La O's headquarters in Albuquerque, where he also used to sell insurance, are small but he says his studio facilities are "just as good as some in New York and Los Angeles." He remains in Albuquerque because it's cheaper to produce the show here - and "this is where I

De La O says he has no plans to seek a spot on a major network's roster. He says he's also content to avoid prime time slots: "I'd rather be on the fringe."

Big Spring gearing up for arts, crafts festival

The fourth annual Big Spring Arts and founder and co-chairman of the festival Crafts Festival, which will be held Oct. 18-19 in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, will be one of the largest shows of its kind to be held in the state. All 140 booths in the local festival have been sold out for more than four months and will feature exhibitors from throughout the states of Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma, as well as representatives from Arkansas, Colorado, Washington and Alabama

The Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival has achieved a high national ranking over a relatively short period of time. Reasons for this popularity include the fact that artists enjoy both the show and the community, the show is supported by local and area citizens, sales are usually high, and no commercial entries are allowed in the Big Spring festival.

In a recent ranking of shows throughout the United States, The Sunshine Artist ranked the local festival as an eight on a ten point scale. Talking about the ranking, Marianne Caroselli, an artist from San Marcos who has participated in the last ' wo festivals, said "the ranking is too low. I gave it a ten. It's my best show.

While other artists tended to agree with Caroselli, George Boutwell, a poular watercolorist from Austin who has exhibited in the first three shows, felt the eight was a very good ranking. "There are no tens in the United States," Boutwell explained, "and there are only two nines. One is in California and the other one is in Florida, I believe. And there are only a very few eights. Most of the shows rank between four and five," he said.

Donna Lee, another exhibitor from Portland, TX, writes for The Sunshine Artist. and prepared one of the articles on the local show. During a recent discussion, Lee said "I knew about the ranking in our national publication, but I was surprised to find that the Big Spring Festival was listed in The National Audit. Being listed in the National Audit is an honor in itself," she said, "because it means that you have artists in the show that have been to nationals."

As for the ranking in The National Audit, the Big Spring Festival received a six out of a possible ten. Discussing the ranking, Lee said "a six is exceptional. Most artists who have been to nationals rank shows conservatively. A six is a very high ranking for that publication.

The local festival has also been ranked highly in numerous other regional, state, and national publications. One of the highlights of the ranking is the way the artists are treated during their stay in Big Soring and the fact that the local show is one of the few remaining in the nation that does not accept any commercial artists.

When asked why the local show refused to along with Louis Tallent, said "it's not fair to the local artists. Commercial artists can buy cheap oil paintings from Korea or Taiwan and sell them as originals for a much higher price. This not only hurts the competition, but is also unfair to the buyers who think they're buying an original that could increase in value over the years. Very few of these commercial productions increase in price and are not good investments," Prather said.

As to the affect of the national rankings have had on the local show, Prather said "it's been very good in attracting many new highly rated artists and craftsmen. This year we sold out of booths before we even announced our show in Where It's At - a state publication that goes to 6,000 people in Texas who are interested in art. The response was so good that we had to return 56 checks in one week alone. In addition, Prather continued, "we have a very long waiting list for the 1981 Festival and it is very doubtful where more than a third of those on that list will be able to get a booth in the local festival."

While the response has been very good for the Big Spring Festival, some local artists have complained about the difficulty of getting a booth in the local show. Many have said that it's easier to get a booth in a show in another city rather than getting a booth in the one held in Big Spring. Asked if this problem of more demand than supply could be solved, Prather said "we could jury the show. This means that all artists and craftsmen would have to send three slides of their recent works. We would then review the slides and decide which entries we would accept. This is a practice that other large successful shows in the state have undertaken," he said, "but I still feel the best jury of an individual's work is the buying public. If they like the work, they'll buy it and the artist or craftsman will be back. If they don't like the work and the individual doesn't sell very well, then they'll probably stop making the show. When this happens, it provides us with space for new entries. I feel this has been a good practice for the local show and we will be getting many new entries this year as a result of this practice," Prather said. When asked about the number of new entries that might be expected to participate in the 1980 Festival, Prather said "we have around 50 new exhibits that have not shown in previous shows. And the quality and craftsmanship of these new entries will certainly help the popularity of the local festival."

Prather said the new entries were also due to the fact that the Big Spring Festival was also enlarged this year to accommodate more artists and that all available exhibit accept commercial artists, Mel Prather, festival.

Erwin, 60, was a patient in John Sealy Hospital, teaching hospital of the UT Medical Branch, when he died.

"We understand it was cardiac arrest. He had been there three or four days. We understood he was doing well, then it hit him," said Bob Hardesty, spokesman for the UT system.

Erwin is survived by his mother, Mrs. Frank C. Erwin Sr., and his son, Frank Erwin III. His wife, June, died several years ago and Erwin never remarried.

Erwin was a friend of President Lyndon Johnson and former Gov. John Connally, who put him on the UT Board of Regents in 1963. He was chairman from 1966 to 1971 and served on the board until January 1975.

"Frank Erwin was the best friend the University of Texas ever had. He was the best friend I ever had. His death leaves an aching void in us all, but more, he leaves a heritage of academic excellence that will live on for generations to come," said UT Chancellor E.D. Walker.

Kenneth Ashworth, state commissioner of higher education and an Erwin foe on numerous issues, said:

'In a hard fight, Frank Erwin was the best ally or the best adversary anybody could have, and he never left any doubt - he was one or the other. No future controversy in higher education will ever be as much fun

Ashworth said Erwin's successful lobbying with the Legislature for more money for UT had a domino effect that "helped every college and university in Texas.'

The end of the Big Spring Community Concert Association's membership drive is drawing near.

If you haven't purchased your membership yet, you have only until the end of this week to do

The Eastern Brass Quintet is only one of three concerts to round out the year's performances. They will make their appearance at the Municipal Auditorium Feb. 19 beginning at 8:15

The Eastern Brass Quintet will perform the kind of concert program which has brought these artists increasingly wide popularity in this country since the Quintet first banded together in 1970.

An outstanding attraction on any concert series, the quintet has been considered the best of its kind now appearing before concertgoers. The group consists of Richard Green and William Wich, trumpets, Robert Fanning, trombone, Charles Baxter, horn and Tucker Jolly, tuba.

Versatility is an important factor in the artists' consistent success wherever they play. the works they perform are stylistically varied and from the range Renaissance to the Contemporary eras of music history

The concerts they offer been called have 'musical banquets' which reflect their keen sense of programming and their painstaking scholarship.

Although composers of different periods have created many works for brass quintet, these young artists have supplemented availability with their own special arrangements of works

originally composed for other instrumental combinations

The results have been programs of exceptional

Perhaps it is their conscious divergence away from music that contributes the freshness to their every performance. The citement one feels when listening to the beautiful sound of this ensemble has brought the Eastern Brass Quintet its welldeserved success.

Suicide Attempt Likely To Be Repeated

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks ago our 18-year-old daughter (I'll call her Nancy) tried to commit suicide. She took a handful of sleeping pills, but thank God we found her in time to save her. Now that she is back to normal, she says she realizes how foolish she was, and she has promised that she will never try anything like that again.

Nancy has always been a rather shy and quiet girl who never dated much until she met a young man who gave her a big rush. They were seeing each other every night until he suddenly broke it off, saying he thought they were getting too serious. That's when Nancy took the pills.

Abby, how can we be sure she won't try it again? Is there something we can do to help her? She is putting on a brave show, but we can tell that she is brokenhearted. LOS ANGELES MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: According to Dr. Katherina Marmor of the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Center, one who has attempted suicide is 10 times more likely to try it again.

Nancy should phone the L.A. Suicide Prevention Center (213-473-1217). The center welcomes anyone who has attempted suicide (or even considered it) to come in for individual or group counseling. The caring, competent staff will adjust the fee to one's

DEAR ABBY: I'm a sophomore at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. My problem is my roommate. She's a swell kid, but she doesn't go out much because she's so quiet. The guys say it's like pulling teeth to get a word out of her. Any suggestions?

Mayor easing way back

CLEVELAND (AP) — Former Mayor Carl B. Stokes, in his first week back in Cleveland after an eight-year stint as a New York newsman, is easing his way back into political life.

Stokes, 53, who in 1967 became one of America's first black urban mayors, moved into an East Side apartment last Sunday. Since then, he has been setting up a law practice and helping run a voter registration drive in black neighborhoods for the Democratic National Committee.

Stokes announced in August that he would not stay with WNBC-TV in New York, where he has been an anchorman, reporter and commentator since 1972. His contract expires on Oct. 28.

LONDON (AP) — From the royal box and the balcony, the bids rained down. And on the stage of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, the items came and went - including a rhinestone-studded bicycle that belonged to singer Elton John and wine sent by the royal family

Bus strike forces commuters to take to their cars in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — More than 40,000 stranded commuters have cranked up their cars and slipped on their walking shoes following a walkout by transit workers that has virtually shut down the city's only mass transportation

"I'm a little inconvenienced, but I'm hard to make mad," said Virgil Moore, a country club employee who hitch-hiked to work Wednesday morning after about 600 transit workers walked off their jobs.

"Only 50 drivers showed up this morning (Wednesday)," said Dallas Transit System spokesman Jerry Johnson. "That's a drop in the bucket."

Drivers, mechanics and bus cleaners walked off their jobs after DTS officials declined to grant pay increase request that employees say would match an increase given to DTS supervisors.

Cliff Franklin, DTS general manager, called the strike an "illegal work stoppage," and said the company would consider "disciplinary action" against strikers. Although he set no deadline for the workers to return, he said DTS might seek an injunction ordering employees back to work if the strike continued

He said the company would "stand firm" on the 7 percent raise that went into effect Wednesday - a $1.23 million increase. The Amalgamated Transit Union has asked for an additional $850,000, a figure Franklin said could only be met by a fare increase, tax hike or layoff.

"I want one thing, one thing, and that's to be treated like a man," said veteran driver walking a picket line outside the DTS office. The man, who asked not to be identified, echoed the sentiments of other drivers, who complained of "split shifts" — working two four-hour blocks a day — and driving special buses to sporting events on their days off. One commuter, Charlotte Williams, 29, said she wanted DTS officials to grant the pay increase so things could get

"I think this is the biggest mess in the world," she said, especially when people depend on the buses.

Tammy Watkins said she waited three hours for a bus to Parkland Hospital and another three hours for the bus

"I think the whole thing is terrible," she said. "I've never seen anything like this in my life. They should have given some notice before they went on strike.

While the strike worked a hardship on commuters, downtown parking lots enjoyed a booming business.

"I don't know exactly how many parking spaces we have," said Curtis Olson, a parking lot manager, "but there are not enough today (Wednesday)." The extra cars that flooded into the downtown area created few traffic problems, according to Sam Wilson, assistant director of Traffic Operations for the Department of Streets and Sanitation.

"On Mondays and Fridays, we have heavy congestion, then in mid-week, the volume seems to drop," he said. "Today looked more like a Monday or a Friday."

R.L. Bright, a manager for the Terminal Cab. Co., said calls for taxis were heavier than he had seen in his 33 years with the company.

Three major downtown employers — Dallas Power & Light, First National Bank and Republic National Bank said most employees arrived at work on time.

Joan Hunter, DP&L spokeswoman, said about a third of the company's 1,000 employees use the bus system and another third carpool.

Downtown workers got to the office with little trouble, but the folks who depend on buses for regular hospital treatment were out of luck.

"It' almost scary, it's so empty," said Barbara Emmett, associate director of community relations at Parkland Memorial Hospital as she surveyed an empty

"It's normally wall-to-wall with people by this time (9 a.m.), but not today," she added.

All of the fuss over idle buses was a bit confusing to Kathy Scott, who recently moved to Dallas from Boston.

"I worked in Boston and they had strikes all the time," she said. "You had to get used to it.

"I find it hard to believe that buses are all the tran-

BOSTON (AP) - For the sixth time in 15 years, the Boston Red Sox are in the market for a new manager after making Don Zimmer the latest victim in a game of musical chairs.

Alarmed by the club's failure on the field and a drop of more than 300,000 in home attendance this year, the Red Sox bowed to fan pressure Wednesday, firing

"I don't think we're going to find a better baseball man than Don Zimmer," General Manager Haywood Sullivan admitted in announcing the move with the ousted manager at his side.

Sullivan said he hoped to name the new manager "by World Series time," but he firmly refused comment when asked about possible candidates.

Many names were bandied about, but a few close observers agreed that two were top possibilities, big Frank Howard, one-time home run slugger now a coach with the Milwaukee Brewers, and Gene Mauch, who resigned this season as manager of the Minnesota

There was also speculation that the Red Sox might turn to a darkhorse, such as Hall of Famer Ted Williams, Joe Morgan, developer of many Boston players as manager of the Pawtucket Red Sox, and 41year-old Carl Yastrzemski.

Cowens, worthy successor to the Bill Russell era of the Boston Celtics, has ended a decade of accomplishment with the stunning announcement of rétirement.

"Throughout his career, the 6-foot-8 center had been plagued by back, leg and foot problems. In dropping his bombshell Wednesday, he said those injuries had taken their toll.

"Cowens came to the Celtics one year after the retirement of Russell, who led the team to 11 National Basketball Association titles in 13 seasons, had left a gap at center.

for his defensive per-formance, as he was credited with 17 tackles in playing a key role in stifling the Reagan County attack.

The Coahoma Bulldogs suffered their third straight loss, but it was not without some excellent effort from the Big Red Machine in a 14-0 setback to powerful Sonora.

Coahoma Coach Roy Winters had a hard time finding any one particular player, but decided the performance of tailback CLINT ELLIOT and safety GREG HERRINGTON should be mentioned.

"We had several players that performed real well," Winters said. "It was just a good team effort."

Elliot "did a super job of blocking and carrying the football" and Herrington was in on tackles all over the field, with some outstanding stops on the goal line.

The Sands offense couldn't generate any kind of attack in Friday night's 20-0 loss to Loraine, but the defense tried to take up the slack. Two key performers in that Sands defense were nose guard SCOTT ZANT and tackle RONNIE LONG.

'I told you so' doesn't help

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The 96th Session of Congress is expected to adjourn Thursday. Until the beginning of the 97th Session sometime in January, we will be discontinuing Congressional Comments.)

Washington, D.C. - There are times when being right about an issue carries no real satisfaction. And saying "I told you so" doesn't help to solve the problem.

A year ago, when Congress was deliberating the International Sugar Agreement. I warned that without a price-support program to balance out boom or bust prices for domestic producers, we would be throwing sugar users to the whim of a wildly fluctuating world market. That legislation would have set a base price of the commodity at 15 cents a pound, a price that sugar users and other opposing groups thought was too high. Producers estimated that it cost them some 14-17 cents per pound just to grow sugar from cane and sugarbeets. This week, wholesale sugar prices on the New York spot market hit 37.11 cents a pound, an increase caused by declining world production due to poor weather and disease, an increase in world demand and sugar speculation on the futures market

just under 10 cents a pound last year and no one but the hard-pressed producers were complaining

Congress began to hear from some of the same sugar users who opposed passage of the sugar bill last fall. With sugar the second largest commodity used in plies bakery products, bakers are hurting.

Representatives of two of the largest industry groups, the Independent Bakers Association and the Retail Bakers of America, told members of the House Subcommittee on Special Small Business Problems that the rapid increase in world raw cane sugar prices had had a dramatic effect on the entire industry.

I have no argument that those bakers are suffering and that American consumers will also pay both in

Congress leaves much unfinished business as it recesses for election

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, after doling out enough money to keep the government going for about 21/2 months, is calling it quits until after the November elections, leaving behind a full agenda of unfinished business.

The Senate recessed early today and the House was to do the same later in the day, having broken a deadlock Wednesday on a stopgap government-wide financing bill

The controversy, over financing abortions for poor women, had brought the government into the new fiscal year Wednesday without the legal authority to do business, meet payrolls or pay bills. But agreement on the spending bill came in time to avert any noticeable slowdown in government activities.

The measure that kept Senators on Capitol Hill until the early morning hours was a proposed 10-week extension of jobless benefits — one of the elements in President Carter's economic revitalization program. The bill was passed, but not until five hours of negotiations between Democratic and Republican leaders had added language tightening eligibility requirements for unemployment compensation.

That sent the measure back to the House, which passed the benefits extension alone.

When lawmakers come back on Nov. 12, it will be to the first lame-duck session in a presidential election year since 1948.

The major chores will be completion of the federal budget for fiscal 1981 and approval of the necessary appropriations bills to allow govern-ment agencies to operate beyond the Dec. 15 cutoff in the stopgap bill passed Wednesday.

The outgoing 96th Congress seems certain to complete work on these "must" economic items before the 97th Congress convenes Jan. 3, 1981.

But many other major bills were left hanging as members closed up shop until after the election - and how many of those bills would be revived in the lame-duck session remained an open question.

Among the key pending bus are measures to revive federal revenue-sharing programs that expired Oct. 1, to protect Alaska park and wilderness lands, to revise the federal criminal code and to establish a billion-dollar fund to pay for oil spills and chemical waste site cleanups. And a Republican-backed plan for a big cut in personal income tax rates, which the Senate Finance Committee has approved in modified form, was also on the waiting list. Whether that will be dealt with when Congress returns may depend on who wins the presidential and congressional elections Republicans have accused the congressional Democratic majority of scheduling the lameduck session to avoid the political repurcussions of having to deal with a budget that is not

In fact, a GOP attempt Wednesday to keep Congress in town until work on the budget wound up was rejected on a 231-161 House vote that split along party lines.

The abortion financing deadlock was broken when the Senate agreed to a softened House provision prohibiting Medicaid payment for abortions in cases of rape unless the victim reports the rape to authorities within 72 hours. The law had required only that a rape be reported "promptly" for any operation to be covered by Medicaid.

Following the abortion compromise, the House: -Concurring with earlier Senate action. passed and sent to the White House a bill to provide up to $127 million over three years to help educate Haitian and Cuban refugee children

-Approved a program to provide $65 million in federal funds for shelters and other related assistance to victims of domestic violence. Final Senate approval is expected after Congress

-Passed a bill, earlier approved by the Senate, designed to prevent surprise searches of newsrooms and writers' offices by requiring that police obtain a subpoena, which could be fought in court. President Carter has said he will sign

Secret clown fantasy bridge over troubled water for northern lady

UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP) - From the time she was a girl, Midge Donovan had a fantasy that she shared with no one because no one else would understand.

In her secret heart, she always wanted to be a clown. "It was a defense mechanism, I guess," she said.
"When things get heavy, you smile to hide the hurt."
Midge's mother died when she was 12. The family was not well off. She went to work at 17, married at 19. Heavy. "When things were tough I smiled a lot on the outside she said, "and I always had my clown fantasy to cling to. I never even told my husband about it. I never told my best friend. I never told a soul. But just thinking about clowns made me all tingly.' The hardest times were yet to come. Three years ago, Midge's husband, Bill, became totally disabled with

Warsaw court gives legal status to six trade unions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A Warsaw court gave legal approval to Poland's first six independent trade unions. Applications

The court on Wednesday approved independent union charters for the pilots and staff of the Polish national airline, LOT, transport workers in Warsaw, forestry workers in Wichorwo, tire plant employees in Olsztyn, a Warsaw regional group and Polish physicians, the official PAP news agency said. The court action stemmed from demands by tens of thousands of workers who paralyzed Poland with strikes in August. The government agreed as part of the strike settlement to allow unions independent of Communist Party control, a move unprecedented in the Soviet bloc. The Warsaw court has yet to decide on 15 pending independent union charters, including one for Solidarity, a labor confederation representing 5.5 million workers headed by Lech Walesa, who spearheaded the strikes in the Baltic port of Gdansk.

Meanwhile, Poland's Communist government announced that higher wages had been put into effect for 8 million workers. Officials said the government was honoring the labor agreements but charged union leaders with reneging on their side of the bargain by calling a nationwide one-hour strike Friday. The strike is to press wage demands and obtain better access to the news media by labor groups.

Deputy Premier Kazimierz Barcikowski said the agreements stipulated that the workers could only strike as a last resort, and said some workers' wage demands "exceeded greatly" the sums outlined in the strike settlement.

Leaders of the Solidarity federation said they would go ahead with the strike anyway. Officials said the government, in an effort to avert further strikes, was considering giving workers extra disability benefits and abolishing the practice of making them work three Saturdays a month. Opponents to the plan argue that ending Saturday workdays will further strain an economy suf-fering from productivity losses caused by

The mass walkouts in August were sparked by skyrocketing meat prices caused by the government's decision July 1 to end meat price subsidies. The strikers initially demanded average monthly pay be raised from $170 to $237. The Gdansk agreement that ended the walkouts granted the workers' political demands, the strikers moderated their wage demands, and the government promised pay raises pegged to the cost of living.

Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania

Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania sent a telegram Wednesday to Soviet leaders thanking them for food aid during the upheaval and reiterating Poland's unswerving support for communism.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Kania's telegram included his promise "to unswervingly lead the Polish people along the road of socialist development and...strengthen the unshakable gains of socialism in our country (Poland)."

Bryan rancher, deep in debt, flees to Canada

By JANN SNELL
The Bryan Eagle, a Marte-Hanks Newspaper
BRYAN—A prominent Bryan rancher, with millions of dollars in debts to at least 14 lending institutions statewide, has become the subject of several lawsuits and an FBI investigation involving the use of cettle as least an FBI investigation involving the use of cattle as loan

The creditor, Republic National Bank of Dallas, said in a suit filed last week that the rancher, Marvin M. Porter Jr., 37, has gone to Canada to flee U.S. court jurisdiction. But Porter's wife, Patti, said she doesn't know her husband's whereabouts and denied any knowledge of financial problems.

In a district court hearing in nearby Caldwell Tuesday, Judge John Placke appointed Walter Kellogg of Amarillo as permanent receiver for disputed parts in the case.

non-existent cattle, or cattle pledged for other loans, as collateral. Either case could constitute a felony, said Bryan FBI agent Bob Hiatt, who confirmed the FBI's investigation.

At Tuesday's hearing there were 16 creditors claiming $4.4 million owed by Porter. There are a total of 33 creditors, including 14 financial institutions, so the total claimed could go much higher

Republic's $1.48 million suit, one of three filed last week, describes Porter's financial holdings as being in "utter

In a sworn affidavit, Republic Vice President Kenneth L. Tap said he visited Porter's property in Brazos and Burleson counties and could not find the 2,150 head of belonging to \bar{P} orter, which actually are owned by Porter's

The Republic suit says Porter is in Vancouver, Canada, and has contacted his wife about efforts to raise $1 million

Mrs. Porter denies this. Republic filed suit last Thursday in Burleson County's district court against Porter, his wife and Venado Industries, a Porter corporation, and was granted receivership over Venado lands.

Also last week, First Bank and Trust of Bryan sued Wednesday in Brazos County's district court for $382,799 from Porter and Porter Cattle Co. Tide Products, Inc., of Edinburg filed a $19,908 suit for equipment not paid for.

Tuesday, Porter's cousin, Jarvis Porter, filed suit against him in Burleson County, seeking $32,326 owed on Association, because Bryan PCR had taken possession of the same 509 cattle the bank seeks as collateral on its six-

Cattle are also the collateral on loans to Porter, all for unspecified amounts, from Mercantile Bank of Dallas, Fort Worth National Bank and Texas Commerce Bank of Houston, court records show.

The records show outstanding debts to 14 financial institutions - six in Brazos County, three each in Dallas and Hosuton, and one each in Fort Worth and Austin, and to seven farm and ranch equipment companies and three individuals

Water reigns supreme in the parched West

WASHINGTON - Water management means life to the West, and people out there don't take kindly to Easterners who label efforts to corral the liquid, "pork barrel projects

Aware that their homes, farms, and cities simply would not exist without it, Westerners unabashedly manipulated water on a scale never before seen on earth.

The Colorado River is a good example. Though it carries only as much volume as the 306-mile Hudson River, the Colorado not only sustains burgeoning Sunbelt cities, but irrigates 3 million acres of desert on its 1,450mile course through the arid West to Mexico.

So far the river still delivers the watery goods. but this could change in about 10 years, reports Thomas Y. Canby in the National August Geographic. Then the vast Central Arizona Project will begin pumping 90 tons of water a second 815 feet high.

HOUSTON (AP) former police lieutenant received instruction on the use of throw-down guns while attending the Houston Police Academy in 1964. according to a federal court deposition

Randall Webster was killed in a high-speed chase with Houston police in 1978 A gun found next to the body subsequently was traced to the police property room.

The existence of throw down weapons "is kind of something that everybody knows about but nothing is ever really said about it. I was actually instructed about the use of throw downs Dillon said

'It would just be casually nentioned by the instructors that if you shot a man and it was learned later that there was no justification for it. something to lay down to

Many treaties mention Indian water rights, and federal courts grant them legal priority. A mammoth government project new under way will bring more than 110,000 acres of the Navajo Reservation in New Mexico under irrigation. The venture could suddenly transform a largely pastoral people into farming entrepreneurs.

The Colorado's bounty has its limitations, however. In Utah the Dolores River joins the Colorado, bringing a dubious dowry. On its way to the meeting point, the Dolores flows over the Paradox Valley salt beds. Each day they feed the equivalent of 11 railroad cars of salt into the Dolores.

Other tributaries pour in more salts, and so does man. Water irrigating desert fields dissolves about two tons an acre a year and bears it back to the river.

Federal government blamed

Cost of power in Big Spring will continue to increase

By JAMES WERRELL The cost of electricity in Big Spring has risen, and will continue to do so. But don't blame the Texas Electric Service Company, said Bill Marquardt, its president, blame the federal government.

of shots nsmitted grade' system

1t...

Marquardt visited Big Spring' Wednesday to help honor members of the company's Quarter Century Club.

TESCO's request for a large rate hike, and to paint the federal government as the villain in the piece.

"Overregulation is a large part of what is running the price of electricity up," he stated. "Reason seems not to prevail. These (legislators) are strongminded people who have the upper hand. There is not a balance be-

DPS Trooper Lockhart is involved in two-car mishap

Department of Public Safety Trooper Ben Lockhart was shaking glass out of the back of his uniform shirt this morning after being involved in a two-car collision at the intersection of the IS-20 service road north and the Snyder Highway.

Lockhart was turning left from the north bound lane of Snyder Highway onto the IS-20 north access road when a car southbound on Snyder Highway hit him broadside on his passenger side, spun him around and showered him with glass fragments. "I didn't see him until just right then," said

His estimation of damage to his patrol car was "a bunch." An unofficial estimate placed the cost at $1,500 to $2,000.

The driver of the other car, George Roland Mulvihill, Box 137A, mechanic, told Lockhart he stopped at the stop sign controlling the in-tersection. Lockhart's view of the 1964 Ford Fairlane was blocked by a bobtail truck traveling parallel to Mulvihill's car on the inside lane. Damage to his car will probably be $300. The car is owned by Don Deflick, 1510 Kentucky Way.

Lockhart's 79 Chrysler black-andwhite is a state owned vehicle.

tween what is good for the people and what is mandated by the federal government."

Marquardt said that just a few years ago power could be produced for $5 a kilowatt, but that "environmental costs" have pushed that figure to $40 a kilowatt as of January

"The federal bureaucracy requires that everyone in the country have scrubbers to remove sulphur from lignite coal plants whether we need them or not," he said. "We have monitored our plants at metering stations, and the sulphur content in the air is very low for several miles around the plants. There should be a limit on how far we have to go when it is unnecessary; when it doesn't protect people's health," he added.

Marguardt also tells customers not to expect any new nuclear-powered plants in the near future.

"Under the present way of thinking, nuclear power is not an alternative any more. This is not the way we'd like it to be, but we just can't recommend building new nuclear plants until we can find out what will be required of us by the federal government," he said.

The Comanche Peak Plant, however, is a nuclear plant that is already near completion. Will it be opened for operation?

"Unit one at Comanche Peak will go on line in 1982, unit two in 1984," said Marquardt. "Barring unforseen regulations that might be required that we don't know about now," he added.

Marquardt stated that gas and oil have become too costly to burn in the production of electricity, and that the federal government won't let us burn gas and oil after 1990." So, with nuclear and petroleum sources out of the picture, that leaves coal as the main source of power during the next

The Texas Utilities System presently operates eight lignite coal powered plants, with two more under construction. Marquardt predicts that, under the technology available Texas will soon deplete its supply of lignite, and the companies will have to turn to western coal as a source of

'That is unless nuclear power can be used. And it should be. Other countries safely operate nuclear plants, why can't we?" he said.

No matter what source of power is used, it will cost TESCO customers money. How much money will be determined by the Texas Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday.

TESCO had originally requested a hike of $123 million. The staff of the PUC recommended paring that figure to $69 million, while the hearing examiner at the PUC hearing recommended $66 million.

The last rate increase by the company went into effect on Nov. 1, 1979. Less than a year later, customers face another one. Will rates go up this time next year?

'That all depends on what happens next Tuesday," said Marquardt. "It is the responsibility of the company to provide electricity at the lowest possible cost. And to do that, we must be financially strong, and able to develop more economical fuels such as lignite and nuclear power. So nuclear power is not completely out of the picture? "I think a change will come about; a change in the federal approach. They will come to their senses and realize that nuclear power is needed just as they have in other aspects of energy. he replied. "But the best way I can describe it now is that it's like a

Chinese baseball game. The rules are changed while the ball is in the air.'

City of Big Spring, County will not fund Civil Defense

Both the city of Big Spring and Howard County have decided not to fund a separate Civil Defense operation during the coming year, said City Manager Don Davis, this morning.

The Civil Defense Department headed by D.W. Berry had formerly been jointly funded by the city and the county. Officials have now decided to incorporate the operation with another existing department to be named shortly.

"We will be in the process of phasing out the Civil Defense Department during the next month," said Davis. "It will be transferred to another department in the city or county; we don't know which yet," he

"Tentative plans are to phase this out," said Berry, this morning. "I didn't appreciate it a damn bit,'

The close down would include a complete audit and turning over of the property to the federal government. County Commissioner William Crooker said the county decided last summer during a budget workshop to discontinue funding

Clements joins Herald as Ad Dept., Director

Publisher Tom Watson announced this morning that Cliff Clements had joined the Herald as Director of Advertising.

Clements said he would devote much of the coming week to getting acquainted with the people around town and to finding a place for his family to live. He and his wife, the former Jane Stalnaker, have two daughters. Tracy, 11, a sixth grader, and Melanie, 7, who is in the first grade.

Clements comes here from Houston, where he was Director of Promotion and Sales for the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

His responsibilities there included promoting the concept of the newspaper to local, regional and national advertisers with 'Texas Update,' a sales presentation which he wrote and produced from a market study conducted by Belden Associates of Dallas.

He also arranged area sales training seminars for advertising sales personnel and circulation personnel, as well as conducting in-house training programs for both advertising and circulation. In addition, he wrote and produced an every-othermonth publication, 'Newspapers '80.' which was sent to advertisers throughout the United States and produced a monthly lineage report for most daily newspapers in Texas.

From June 1977 until December 1978 he was director of marketing for Greenspoint Mall, where he was responsible for planning and coordinating advertising and sales promotion for 120 tenants in the center. He also bought television and radio time and newspaper space. He was with the Houston Chronicle as first a sales representative and then a Zone Manager from 1972 into 1977. In the latter capacity, he was responsible for all part-run and shopping center advertising. While he was Zone Manager, the Chronical maintained better than 60 percent share-of-market for part-run and shopping center lineage.

In 1973, he received the Chronicle's Salesman of the Year award, presented by the Houston chapter of the Sales and Marketing Executives Association.

From 1969 until 1972, he worked as a sales representative for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Clements of Childress, Texas. Cliff grew up there. Later, he attended and graduated from Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Mrs. Clements is a native of Stillwater, Okla.

Help for camp families to be discussed here

Efforts to round out the organization of a local council to assist families visiting relatives in the Federal Prison Camp here will be made at a meeting set for Oct. 21. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Pioneer Gas Flame room, and everyone is invited.

Transportation, child care, sometimes housing, etc. are problems faced by many families who come, mainly on weekends, to see a member in the minimum security facility here. Also, there are instances when families move into the area and need help in locating employment, housing, etc. There is no agency equipped to handle these problems at present.

Two previous exploratory sessions have been held, and Marion Froman (7-603) has been named temporary secretary pending the mal organization, and perhaps incorporation, of the clearing-house group. Representatives from a number of churches have expressed interest in taking part as a local missions effort, and the support of all groups and individuals will be welcomed.

The Camp has a program for visitation and sponsorship of inmates, but there is a void as concerns families. Frequently they need transportation from the bus station, a place to clean up and rest, or to leave the children, or perhaps stay overnight. Also needed is a referral service concerning possible employment, food, housing health. possibilities.

Chaplain Jerry Kelly said that there is a pressing need for a group to lend a compassionate hand to these visitors or new residents

Have Steers improved enough

By NATHAN POSS

When the Big Spring Steers open their 1980 District 5-AAAAA slate at home on Friday night against Abilene High, they'll be hoping that their presence is one that will have a say in what transpires in the final standings when mid-November rolls around.

That's something that hasn't happened lately, as the Big Spring gridders haven't won a district game since 1974, some three head coaches before first year Ralph Harris mentor arrived

But that could change this year, as the Steer gridders look very much improved over last season, when they were 1-9 and scored only four touchdowns while yielding over 35 points per game.

Vegas has Ali 3-2 underdog

LAS VEGAS (AP) - The magic of Muhammad Ali is spinning a web over this gambling capital and the high rollers are beginning to believe the man can work another miracle

Ali is now a 3-2 underdog for Thursday night's heavyweight championship fight against Larry Holmes. Those are remarkably short odds against a guy who's 38 years old and hasn't thrown a punch in anger in two years. Especially when you consider that Holmes is the undefeated champion with seven straight knockouts over the 24 months since Ali's last

A Rose by Any Other Color . . .

DEAR ABBY: A reader wrote in to say that a co-worker had planned to carry a bridal bouquet of black roses. She asked, "Is this proper? And don't black roses symbolize

You replied, "Black roses? You're putting me on!" Abby, just because you've never seen black roses doesn't

The Tidings, a Catholic publication, recently carried an article titled, "A Priest Who Grew Roses." The priest, the Rev. George Schoener, also was a botanist who gained a national reputation for having developed numerous new strains of roses, of which the beautiful coal-black rose was

The Salem, Ore., Journal conferred the title of "El Padre de las Rosas" on Father Schoener in 1936.

Thought you should know. Adios.

DEAR CARLOS: Gracias. And all along I thought with Gertrude Stein that a rose was a rose was a rose. Unfortunately I limited my research to California rose-growers, none of whom had ever heard of a black rose. I should have called Gerry Frank, my friend in Salem. He knows all there is to know about Oregon products.

DEAR ABBY: We invited a family of six to spend Labor Day weekend at our summer place. The children ranged from 7 to 17 years old. (We have no children.)

The children helped themselves to whatever they found in the fridge at all hours of the day and night. The first day they ate nearly everything we had planned to serve for the On Sunday we invited some neighbors in for Sunday

After these weekend guests left, I could have kicked myself for not having found some way to control the

Since 20-20 hindsight is always useless, your decision never to invite them back is understandable.
