Ax murder testimony

Victim's husband tells of affair

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) — A neighbor of a 30-year-old Wylie housewife testified today he found her blood-spattered residence unlocked and discovered her mutilated corpse in a utility room.

"There was blood everywhere," testified Jerry J. McMahon in the second day of the murder trial of Candace Montgomery.

McMahon and two other neighbors went to the Gore residence after long-distance telephone calls from Allan Gore, who said he was concerned when his wife Betty did not answer the phone.

"There was blood on the floor and traces of blood in the bathroom," testified neighbor Richard Parker, a relative who sold the Gores their home three years ago. McMahon testified that when he walked in the house, he said, "That's either mud or blood."

Both men said the Gores' infant daughter, alone in an adjoining room, was "very distressed."

Gore quietly told the hushed courtroom Tuesday afternoon that Mrs. Montgomery instigated their love affair almost two years before the slaying.

Mrs. Montgomery sat emotionless as Gore told of their noon-time meetings at a nearby motel from December of 1978 to October of 1979, when the affair ended. He said his wife never learned of the liaison.

The brown-haired witness told jurors in a reserved voice that he and Mrs. Montgomery met at church and had sexual relations every two to three weeks during the 11-month affair.

State District Judge Tom Ryan interrupted Tuesday's opening testimony several times to shush an overflow crowd jammed into the 100-year-old Collin County courtroom.

Defense lawyer Don Crowder had already stunned spectators during jury selection Monday when he said Mrs. Montgomery killed Betty Gore with an ax on June 13 in self defense.

"On June 13, Candy Montgomery killed Betty Gore," Crowder announced to the shocked courtroom. "She did so with an ax. She did so in self defense. The homicide was justified."

The two women met in the fall of 1977 at church where they sang together in the choir. Mrs. Montgomery hosted a baby shower for the murdered woman in June 1979 and was babysitting the Gore's 5-year-old daughter the day of the slaying.

Crowder said his client will take the stand in her own behalf.

Gore was on the stand about 2½ hours Tuesday, twisting his hands and answering questions in a monotone while the wood-handled ax sat inches from his elbow.

"In October 1978 I had a private conversation during which she Mrs. Montgomery indicated to me that I was very attractive to her and she wanted to know if I was interested in having an affair."

He said his initial response was negative but that he changed his mind after further conversations.

Gore, the leadoff witness for the prosecution, said he would leave during his lunch hour and "she would make arrangements at a motel and I would meet her there," he testified.

He said the couple did not always have sexual relations during their private meetings before the affair ended gradually and permanently near the end of October in 1979.

Under cross examination Gore said he knew of no reason why Mrs. Montgomery would want to kill his wife.

Gore said he was in St. Paul, Minn., on a business trip, the night of the slaying at the couple's home in Wylie, a small town south of McKinney. He said he could not contact his wife by telephone and later sent neighbors to see if anything was wrong.

He said that his wife was distressed the morning he left the house because she believed she might be pregnant and she did not want another child. When he couldn't reach her that night, he said the thought of suicide entered his mind.

The neighbors found the body of the 30-year-old schoolteacher in a pool of blood in the utility room of the home. An autopsy showed she had been hacked at least 15 times with an ax.

As the spectators in the courtroom craned their necks to see, the state introduced as evidence Tuesday an ax with a three-foot handle, which Gore identified as belonging to him.

Gore said he telephone Mrs. Montgomery after his wife's body was discovered because his daughter was staying with her. He said the defendant was "shocked and surprised ... the normal shock reaction to something like that."

Later, District Attorney Tom O'Connell asked Gore, "Did she tell you she had to kill her, but it was self defense?"

"No," answered Gore.

Crowder had said earlier he would outline the self-defense strategy during his opening remarks to jurors.

However, he did not mention the subject and instead opened his presentation by establishing that Mrs. Gore was physically healthy and bigger in stature than Mrs. Montgomery.

Ryan fined Crowder $100 and sentenced him to a day in jail Tuesday for contempt of court, saying the defense attorney violated his gag order by granting a television interview Monday afternoon. The jail term will be served after the trial, Ryan said.

Mrs. Montgomery surrendered to authorities two weeks after the slaying. Officers said her thumbprint matched a bloody print found on the Gores' refrigerator. Bloody footprints leading from the body to a nearby bathroom led investigators to speculate the killer washed off blood in a shower after the slaying.

Jurors were ushered out of the courtroom during arguments over admission of a June 13 Dallas Morning News story on "The Shining," a horror movie about an ax murderer.

Ryan admitted the newspaper as evidence over strong prosecution objections that defense attorneys could not prove Mrs. Gore read the article.

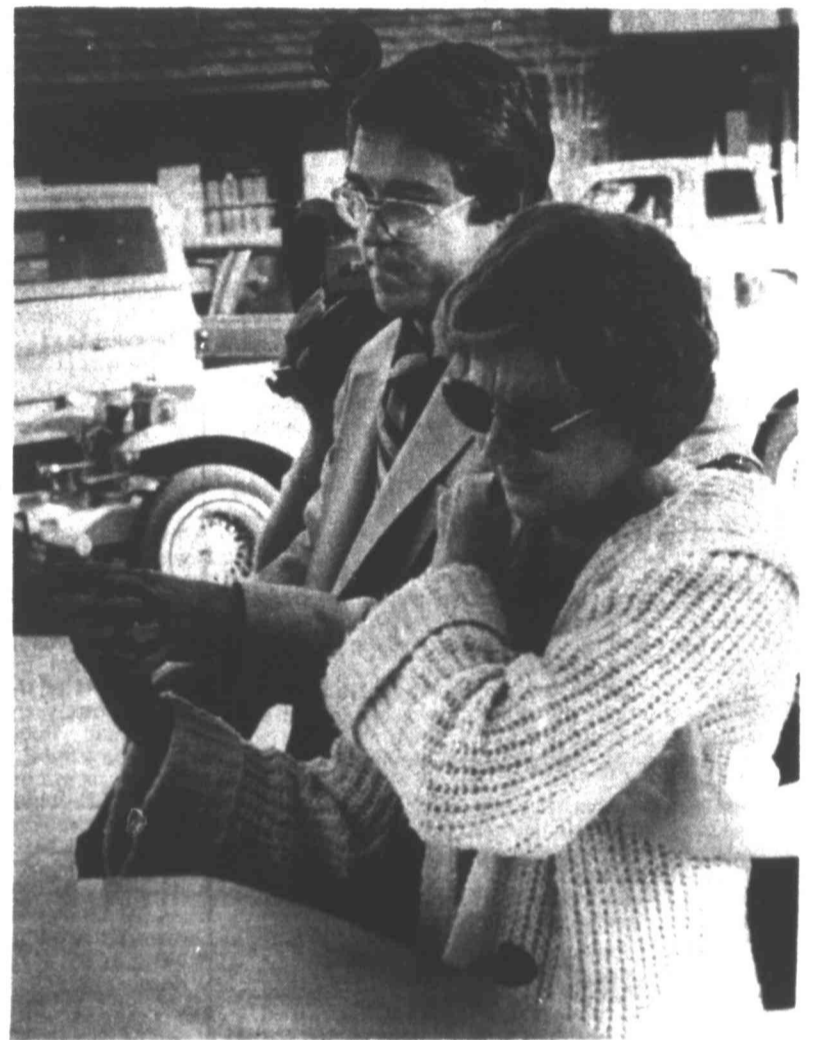

O'Connell said in opening arguments he would introduce about 17 witnesses and would bring out the defendant's relationship with Allan and Betty Gore.

The trial has drawn widespread publicity but Ryan refused a change of venue out of the county. One courtroom clerk said people were calling at 6 a.m. wanting seats and by 8 a.m. there was a line. About 30 spectators were turned away. The courtroom seats about 200.

Two elderly spectators — including a retired Texas peace justice — were slightly injured when they were caught in the crush of curiosity-seekers and fell down some stairs.

Iraqi jets sink ship in gulf

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian jets raided Baghdad, Iraq's warplanes struck back and its gunboats sank an Iranian supply ship at the northern tip of the Persian Gulf as the war entered its second month today, Iraq said.

The Iraqi communique said two Iranian jets bombed the Iraqi capital at mid-morning, wounding eight civilians. One plane was shot down by surface-to-air missiles, the communique added.

The northern Iraqi summer resort of Hajomran was attacked by Iranian warplanes, but the communique did not report the extent of the damage or any casualties.

It said Iraqi jet fighters retaliated, wrecking a railway station on the line leading to Ahvaz, capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province, and military positions on the northern outskirts of Dezful, 150 miles north of the besieged oil refining city of Abadan.

Iran, meanwhile, said its defenders in Abadan shook off fresh Iraqi tank assaults while house-to-house fighting raged into a sixth straight day in the nearby port of Khorramshahr on the Shatt el-Arab waterway.

However, it conceded the fall of Khorramshahr's prison and an adjacent bridge in the middle of the city to the Iraqis and said the invaders had set up positions at both locations.

Iran said Tuesday its troops in Abadan beat back Iraqi tanks trying to take the Bahmanshir River bridge, the gateway to the refinery city, and that its forces in Khorramshahr poured sniper and machine-gun fire at the Iraqis occupying part of the city.

But Iraq said its forces "continued to consolidate their victories in the sectors of their operations," which extend up to 50 miles deep into Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province and 300 miles north from Abadan to Qasr-e-Shirin.

Iraq's first deputy prime minister, Taha Yassin Ramadan, said in an interview with the French newspaper Le Monde that Iraq will hold the Iranian oil fields it has captured "until there is a solution" to Iraq's border demands.

Iraq's chief demand is for full sovereignty and control of the Shatt el-Arab, which forms the southern end of the border between the two countries and which Iraq in 1975 agreed to share with Iran. Ramadan also indicated Iran would have to give up the three small islands at the entrance to the Persian Gulf which Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi seized from the Arab sheikhdom of Sharjah in 1971 to gain control of the oil shipping lanes.

Reagan, Carter to debate in Cleveland next Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of shouting at each other long distance, President Carter and Ronald Reagan have agreed to air their differences face to face in a no-topic-barred televised debate next Tuesday, a week before the election.

With nothing less than the presidency possibly at stake, they'll aim their arguments at the millions of voters, an estimated one-fifth of all those planning to cast their ballots, who are shown by polls to remain undecided.

The 90-minute debate will begin at 9:30 p.m. EST, it was announced Tuesday. It will be held in Cleveland's Convention Center and will be nationally televised.

The contest will be the first time this year that Carter has taken part in a debate. He opted out of a scheduled debate with his Democratic primary rivals before the Iowa caucuses last winter, citing his need for constant attention to the hostage seizure in Iran. Reagan let other Republicans slug it out in the first debate of the political season in Iowa, then took part in all later GOP pre-convention contests. He debated independent candidate John Anderson last month in a nationally televised debate in Baltimore.

To reach their agreement, negotiators for the two candidates met for more than six hours over two days. But afterward they seemed reluctant to talk about what separated them.

"The stakes are big, there was a great deal of detail," said Robert S. Strauss, chairman of Carter's campaign. "It just took a little time. We had a lot of areas of disagreement, but never a lack of cordiality in dealing with them."

James Baker, Reagan's chief negotiator, said each side "gave a little bit of this, a little bit of that." Strauss had said earlier that the format was the major sticking point.

Slagel to speak here Thursday

Bob Slagel, newly elected chairman of the State Democratic Committee, will speak on behalf of the Jimmy Carter presidential campaign at 11 a.m., Thursday on the east side of the Howard County Courthouse.

Cecil Riordan, Howard County Democratic chairman who helped arrange Slagel's visit, said he hoped as many people as possible would show up to hear and meet Slagel.

UW collections reach $57,000

The Howard County-Big Spring United Way campaign collections report shows that as of late Tuesday afternoon the campaign drive has increased two percent over Sunday's report and has now reached $57,071.30, or 23 percent of the campaign's $250,000 objective, according to Russ McEwen, co-campaign chairman.

Leading the divisions with collections is the Pacesetters, with $27,500; next is the Special division, with $13,438; followed by CFC, with $7,255.30; the Out-of-Town Division, with $3,713; the Residential Division, with $2,680; the Metro division, with $1,525; Professional division, with $625; and the Rural division, with $325.

Herald to publish state poll

A statewide presidential election poll conducted by the Department of Political Science at Texas A&M University will be published next Sunday by Harte-Hanks Communications newspapers, including the Big Spring Herald.

Telephone interviews currently are being conducted to obtain a 500-person sample drawn randomly from all Texas telephone numbers. Only respondents 18 years old or older are interviewed.

Harte-Hanks is paying the poll's costs in exchange for exclusive distribution rights for its 14 Texas newspapers.

The poll seeks to establish the voting preferences at this time in the presidential race. Respondents are asked whether, at this time, they would vote for Democrat Jimmy Carter, Republican Ronald Reagan or Independent John Anderson.

They also are asked how they voted in the 1976 presidential race between Carter and Gerald Ford, how likely they are to vote on Nov. 4, whether they have a party loyalty.

Anderson's supporters are asked how they would vote if he were not in the race. This question is designed to determine whether Anderson's presence on the Texas ballot hurts Carter or Reagan.

The polling is under the supervision of James Dyer and David Hill of the Department of Political Science faculty.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Vaccination

Q. If animals can be vaccinated for rabies, why can't people?

A. "There wouldn't be any medical reason not to but it would be impractical," said Dr. William B. Allensworth, M.D. "Out of 230 million people they may have five to 10 cases in a year. The cost plus incidence of reaction...they might kill more people from the vaccine than from the rabies."

Tops on TV: 'Pleasure Palace'

With the World Series being part of history, NBC is back to its regular schedule. "Real People" airs at 7 p.m., followed by a special edition of "Disney's Wonderful World" at 8 o'clock. It's the story of a one-armed gymnast who attempts to overcome her handicap to win a collegiate gymnastics championship. This competes with CBS's premiere movie, "Pleasure Palace." Omar Sharif stars as a high-stakes womanizer and gambler who helps a fellow casino owner (Victoria Principal) fight the syndicate.

Jurors in Brilab trial ask to hear five tapes

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal court jury deliberating the fate of Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and two others in the Texas Brilab trial asked to rehear five government tapes today.

The tapes requested were:

— Oct. 2, 1979, when FBI informant Joseph Hauser made first contact with defendants Donald Ray and Randall Wood, both Austin lawyers.

— Oct. 18, 1979, when Hauser and Houston area labor leader L.G. Moore talked to Wood and Ray in their Austin law office.

— Oct. 18 when Hauser was introduced to Clayton by Moore.

— Nov. 8, 1979, when Hauser gave Clayton $5,000 cash in Clayton's office.

— Nov. 19 when Ray talked to Hauser on the telephone.

Hauser, a convicted swindler, was the prosecution's main witness in the trial. He posed as an insurance executive trying to get Clayton to re-open the contract for the lucrative state employees insurance program. The government alleges Hauser bribed Clayton to do so and that Ray and Wood, friends of Clayton, were to help with their influence.

Moore, who is to be tried later, is portrayed by prosecutors as the contact between Hauser and the defendants.

The jury resumed deliberations today after only two hours of discussion Tuesday afternoon.

Attorneys wrapped up final arguments in the six-week trial Tuesday and the case went to the jury at 3:31 p.m. The seven women and five men decided to go home at 5:31 p.m.

Clayton, a 20-year veteran of the Texas Legislature, declined to comment during deliberations.

"I have no comment now. The jury is still out. I will make a statement when the verdict is in," said the three-term speaker, who had hopes of running for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1982.

Jet fighter crashes

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas Air National Guard jet fighter plane with two men on board faltered and crashed a minute after it took off from Ellington Air Force Base Wednesday morning, a base spokesman said.

The F-101 Voodoo, assigned to the 147th fighter-interceptor group at Ellington, was beginning a routine training mission about 9:30 a.m. when the accident occurred, said base spokesman Sgt. David Jimenez.

Jimenez said the jet went near a Pasadena intersection, but he said "no explosives were on board the jet and there is no danger of further damage to residents in the area."

An eyewitness to the crash said the plane had just cleared the runway when its back end "exploded" in flames.

Jimenez said a pilot and a weapons systems officer were on board when the plane crashed. Officials at the scene said the men had been killed, but the Air Force refused to confirm the report.

London Times may fold

LONDON (AP) — The Times of London and its sister newspaper, the Sunday Times, are up for sale, and both newspapers will close next March if buyers are not found, the owners, Thomson Newspapers, announced today.

The two historic newspapers, generally regarded as the most prestigious in Fleet Street, Britain's newspaper row, have been dogged by years of strikes mainly with print unions, and mounting losses.

Gordon Brunton, managing director of Thomson's British Holdings, told a news conference "The major reason behind this decision is the continuing troubled history of industrial relations which goes back many years."

Brunton said the board of directors of Thomson's British Holdings, which is part of the vast — and otherwise largely profitable business empire headed by Lord Thomson of Fleet — decided the "financial burden" of owning the two newspapers was no longer justified.

The Times foreign editor, Charles Douglas-Home, immediately announced that urgent efforts would be made to set up a consortium to buy the two titles.

Pioneer news executive dies

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Kathleen Howard, vice president of the Wichita Falls Times and Record-News and wife of the publisher, Rhea Howard, died Tuesday at her home. She was 87.

Reagan faintly praised

WASHINGTON Service — Jimmy Carter's main political problems in Texas are in the small towns and farm country that make up the rural part of the state, the president's campaign chairman Robert Strauss said Tuesday.

The comments of the president's chief campaign strategist came on the eve of a campaign swing by Carter into Beaumont, Waco and Texarkana — three of the states smaller cities — and trips to Texas this week by Sen. Edward Kennedy and Strauss himself.

Texas is one of several states considered "too close to call" in voter polls and Strauss blamed a general sentiment against incumbents and the embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union for the president's problems in the countryside.

"The embargo hurt us. Farmers don't like embargoes of any kind," said Strauss, the Texas-born former Democratic Party chairman told reporters at a briefing on the campaign situation in the state.

He added that the sentiment is beginning to change: "They are as patriotic or more so as any other group."

More rigs are making holes

The number of working oil rigs in the state rose slightly this week.

As of Monday, 1,049 rigs were making hole, compared to 1,037 during the previous week. This tops both the 1,019 total for last month, and the 849 total for this time last year.

The national total also rose from 3,126 to 3,164 this week. This also tops the 3,124 total for last month, and the 2,399 total for this time last year.

Unlucky hole-in-one

HOLEY, Colo. (AP) — Seventy-three-year-old hunter Fran Kuboske wants his elk back.

Kuboske said he was hunting near Quay on Mount Hayden's Poughkeepsie Gulch over the weekend when he shot a bull elk that had almost seven points on its antlers. Among hunters, any elk with more than six points is considered to be "royal," he said.

But before Kuboske could claim his booty, the elk slid down the mountain and into a mine shaft. He has hunted on Mount Hayden for years, Kuboske said, and that shaft is the only hole on the mountain.

Kuboske wants the elk back to mount its head. The Colorado Fish and Wildlife Division told him it would recover the elk at the end of the hunting season, but that's not soon enough for Kuboske.

He's offered $500 to anyone who will get the elk out of the mine shaft before then.

Disaffected Democrats cool to Reagan, too

WACO — Late Tuesday, on the eve of President Carter's visit, a matronly woman at party headquarters was busily urging friends by phone to turn out for his appearance. At a nearby table, two Baylor University students grabbed placards for several hundred colleagues to have on Carter's arrival.

Their commotion was gleefully conspiratorial — for this was McLennan County Republican Headquarters.

"Oh sure, there's going to be a bunch of us, rabble-rousers out there," office manager Freda Heine said into the phone to a potential recruit. "I'm going to be carrying a big ol' Reagan-Bush sign."

The students, Robert Sullivan and Rusty Walker, both members of the Baylor GOP and Young Conservatives of Texas, were stacking blue-and-white "Democrats for Reagan and Bush" signs.

Minutes before, they had rejected the signs, Sullivan saying, "I don't want to be thought a Democrat."

He thought again. Wouldn't it look great on national television for Carter to be faced with evidence of party disaffection? For that pleasure, Walker agreed, he could feign being a Democrat.

They told Mrs. Heine how some Baylor band members said they planned to strike up "Hail to the Chief" at Carter's appearance and then change into "California, Here We Come."

Perhaps because of that kind of student welcome, Carter's planners scheduled the president to speak not at Baylor but at Texas State Technical Institute north of Waco. The visit was sandwiched between stops at Beaumont and Texarkana.

Partisan plotting of anti-Carter elements doesn't surprise Bill Conover, president of Baylor's Young Democrats.

"Well, I know the Baylor GOP and the YCT will be there — they're usually disruptive," he said.

Conover and roommate Steve McDonald are among the few active YDs on campus and helped plan the appearance. The student newspaper, The Lariat, made no mention of it Tuesday.

PA certificate is suspended

AUSTIN — With a comment from its executive director that the commuter airline business "looks kind of bleak," the Texas Aeronautics Commission Tuesday approved the indefinite suspension of Permian Airways' operating certificate.

That is less severe than a cancellation of the certificate and leaves the possibility of service being resumed, probably under new management.

"Time may determine that this (cancellation) should have been done," C. Harry Rogers, TAC director of air carrier administration, said after the meeting. "This may come back to haunt me."

But he said he felt an indefinite suspension was in the best interest of West Texas citizens, and the commission agreed with his recommendation.

Kennedy stumps Texas for former political foe

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An emotional Sen. Edward Kennedy today dedicated the first high school in the nation to bear the name of the late President John F. Kennedy.

His voice trembling, Kennedy recalled that his brother visited San Antonio on Nov. 21, 1963, the day before he was assassinated in Dallas.

"President Kennedy came here to San Antonio the day before he died," the senator said. "It was a busy trip, and the visit was all too brief."

"Seventeen years have passed since the president's final visit here. He knew about this school. It had a special affection in his heart.

and he intended to be present for the dedication. He wanted to return, but he did not live to see another year."

A predominantly Mexican-American crowd of more than 2,000 and a closed circuit television audience of 17,000 students in the Edgewood district heard the speech in which Kennedy eulogized his brother.

"It was all so brief. A thousand days are like an evening gone. But they are not forgotten," Kennedy said. "In spite of all the intervening years, President Kennedy endures in the hearts he touched and the lives he changed in this nation and the larger world."

Kennedy made the school his last stop in a 500-mile campaign tour in which he urged hispanic voters who heavily supported him in the Democratic primary to switch their allegiance to President Carter in the Nov. 4 general election.

Kennedy, who garnered 65 percent of the Texas Mexican-American vote to Carter's 27 percent in their bitter Democratic primary campaign, visited Houston, the Rio Grande Valley and San Antonio urging that Democrats close ranks behind Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale.

"Estire la segunda palanca (pull the second lever)," Kennedy said in Spanish on arrival Tuesday night to shouts of "Viva Kennedy" and "Kennedy in '84."

During his Tuesday stops, Kennedy hammered at the theme that the Democrats were preferable to Republicans Ronald Reagan and George Bush. He told a Houston audience the GOP team is linked to "negativism, distortion and misrepresentation."

"This may well be the key state in the national election. What happens in the Valley, Houston and San Antonio will be of enormous importance to this country for foreign policy and domestic policy alike," Kennedy told an invitation-only gathering of 400 South Texas Democrats at a plush hotel here.

He criticized Reagan as being against programs 'Terror Train' booked here

Students have a day off Friday, and they may want to take the opportunity to terrify themselves Thursday night.

A special sneak preview of the movie "Terror Train" will be shown, 10:30 p.m. Thursday at the Ritz Twin Theaters. The film is R-rated; no one under 16 years of age admitted without a parent or guardian.

This is just one in a string of horror films showing now or in the near future here. Local theaters will also feature "When A Stranger Calls," "Prom Night," "The Awakening," "Dressed To Kill," and "Friday The 13th."

benefiting Hispanics and working people in general, saying Reagan opposed bilingual education and unemployment compensation for farmworkers, many of whom populate the predominantly Mexican-American Rio Grande Valley.

And, he said, he has put political differences with Carter, his former foe, aside. "I have had differences with the Carter Administration and I spelled them out," Kennedy told several hundred Democrats in Houston. "We were able to get many of the important points on the platform at the time it was being drafted. And we are committed to that platform."

In McAllen in deep South Texas, Kennedy told a predominantly Mexican-American audience that Carter authorized him to announce that $400,000 in federal funds would be available to help small communities compete for federal grants.

"Under a Ronald Reagan administration, it would be a snowball on a hot summer day before we'd have an announcement like that one," he said. He said later in San Antonio he and Carter agreed that more minorities should be appointed to the judiciary and Justice Department posts.

Kennedy also chided the Republican Party for dropping its support of the Equal Rights Amendment, saying "I believe, as well as Mr. Carter, that there were founding mothers, as well as founding fathers, of this country."

Democrats are hoping for a large turnout of the record 800,000 Hispanics estimated to have registered for the Nov. 4 election.

But Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said at the Kennedy gathering

Tuesday night that he feared Republican Gov. Bill Clements programs might cut into the traditional bloc vote that gave Carter 87 percent of the Hispanic vote in 1976.

Bonilla, who supported Carter prior to the primary, expressed disappointment that Kennedy chose to appear at the invitation-only gathering of the Democratic hierarchy, instead of at a large public rally of Mexican-Americans who revere the Kennedy name.

When he was campaigning in the primary, Kennedy drew an enthusiastic crowd of more than 5,000 that filled an auditorium at market square and spilled outside, blocking two streets.

Drilling mud measure inked

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed a bill suspending proposed drilling mud regulations that the measure's sponsor said could have more than doubled the cost of drilling for oil and gas, the White House announced today.

The measure by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was included in the Solid Waste Disposal Act signed Tuesday by the president.

"We've been watching the price of oil go through the roof, so it is nonsense to contemplate unneeded government regulation of drilling mud that would increase the price even more," Bentsen said after the long-pending measure was approved by Congress earlier this month.

The bill delays for at least two years a proposal by the Environmental Protection Agency to regulate drilling mud as a hazardous waste. It also requires congressional action before any such regulation could be put into effect.

Drilling mud is used at wells to bring up pieces of rock ground up by the drilling bit and to cool the bit. The mud then is dumped into pits for drying after it is used.

The American Petroleum Institute estimated it would cost $10.8 billion a year to comply with the proposed EPA regulations. In 1977, $9.9 billion was spent for oil and gas drilling in the United States.

"Congress has decided that existing state and federal programs should control the disposals of these muds for at least the next two years, while EPA concentrates its regulatory efforts on wastes that represent more significant hazards," Bentsen said.

Some car makers trying to buy time

Some of the American automobile manufacturers are racing to complete retooling jobs in order to mount maximum competition to foreign-made vehicles. Some may not make it.

One which is trying is Ford, a firm that is sensitive to reports it is trying to buy time by appealing to government to restrain competition from Japanese auto makers.

The Ford public relations people recently sent a message to editorial writers, trying to set the record straight on that point.

The message said, in part: "Ford has not — as has been widely reported — abandoned its traditional commitment to free trade concepts."

RATHER, IT EXPLAINED, its petition to the International Trade Union to cut back on imports of Nipponese imports is a 'last ditch effort' to buy time to complete Detroit's $80 billion conversion to production of a fuel-efficient product that the public obviously now wants.

It is, the company insists, a temporary measure resorted to reluctantly to resolve the problem on a free-competition basis.

"The imbalance," the Ford spokesman cautions, "has reached crisis proportions and shows no signs of abating. As a consequence, 40 percent of the auto industries' employees are out of jobs. We must put our people back to work."

The argument becomes potent, especially in a year when Jimmy Carter is trying to win re-election to the nation's highest office and Ronald Reagan is telling everyone he can do better if only the electorate will give him a vote of confidence.

Consider the extent of the imbalance. Japan sent 2.5 million cars to America. The U.S. managed to get 15,000 of its own vehicles through Japanese customs.

The discrepancy, of course, is immense in two-way auto trade. Detroit, however, made some of its own problems.

THE U.S. INDUSTRY has always been content to work the local market, rather than try and win new converts in Japan and elsewhere. Even before Japan got into the automobile business in a big way, the American auto makers didn't push their cars much outside the continental limits of the U.S.

The German Volkswagen, not the Japanese makes, began first to strive for new business in this nation. The success Volkswagen experienced should have told the Americans something but it didn't.

The 5 to 10 percent of the U.S. market committed to small cars was conceded to the foreign cars. There was plenty of business left over for the American giants.

The Americans likely would not have changed their ideas about getting into the manufacture of small vehicles had gasoline remained plentiful. Regretfully, it didn't.

Now, the American auto makers are looking to Washington for help. Some want to restrict foreigners to 15 percent of the market. Others would shut them out altogether.

If they don't get help, the situation can only worsen but just what form the help will take remains to be determined. Two years is a long time to limp along with present equipment.

Unforgettable

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

The foot-stomping, excitement-filled night is no more than a fond memory now, but for many years to come, the unforgettable experience will be remembered as a dream come true.

For an entire month I had known about the event that was soon to take place in my life. But not until our car parked in front of Austin's Super Drum did I fully come to realize what was about to take place.

There I was, live in Austin, Tex., with thousands of others, to witness first hand the phenomenon of an Elton John Concert.

piano as I heard the first few mood-setting notes of "Funeral for a Friend" amplify with perfection from his instrument.

From the very first note of the very first song to the 2 1/2-hour-later final note of his last song, the balladeer kept his fanatical fans on their feet in a continuous state of awe.

Biased? Me? Well, maybe just a little.

For the last eight years, I have been a plainly professed Elton John freak. His musical ability, sensitivity and versatility never ceases to amaze me. The talent of Elton John (alias Captain Fantastic) is incomparable.

YOU DON'T have to take my word for it, though. In 1975, history was made as he became the first performer to be permitted to play at Dodger Stadium since the Beatles appeared in 1966.

In two separate "evening" concerts, Elton shared his soulful, rhythm flamboyant stage style with over 110,000 ecstatic fans from ages 8 to 80.

Four years have whisked by since the explosive peak of his illustrious 11-year career in America, but the sun isn't about to go down on his long-held position as one of rock's most successful superstars.

There will always be fans like me who never tire of his easy-listening ballads.

...there will always be the fans who will never forget where they were or what they were doing the first time their ears heard the heartstring-pulling lyrics and instrumentals of "Your Song."

...and there will always be those of us who rate "Bennie and the Jets," "Goodbye Yellow Brick Road" and "Tiny Dancer" as good as or better than any of the most-remembered classics.

No, I don't think fans will ever forget rock's Captain Fantastic. At least this one won't.

I could go on and on, but Tommy Hart told me to leave a little room for Jack Anderson, so enough said.

(P.S. Just one more thing...if your piano ever breaks Elton, you can play mine.)

UP UNTIL that moment, such an escape had been an unattainable goal for this long-time devoted fan of the world-famous rock star and keyboard wizard. A few years back, he had given up the concert-touring scene. Now, to my unexpressible delight, he had taken it up again.

As inconceivable as it was for me to comprehend, I held with a death grip the ticket that was to be my passport to a performance I'd never forget.

Carly Simon only thought she knew the meaning of "Anticipation" when she released that hit of several years back. She should have been in my shoes last Wednesday night as I awaited the concert's start with my husband, brother, aunt and friends.

Seated not too far from the stage, I had perfect view of the glistening white baby grand piano which set atop a crystal clear stand. It was still having a hard time believing this was for real.

Was I actually only minutes away from hearing my English-born rock idol master the keyboard and sing his sold gold hits live? Or was I at home sitting in my living room listening to one of his albums, only fantasizing my presence at one of his concerts?

Suddenly without warning, the illumination created from the auditorium lights ceased to be and a mysterious gray fog slowly proceeded to ooze from the center stage floor.

Still able to see nothing but blackness intermingled with gray haze, I knew Elton John had silently and secretly made his way to the

Knew of school

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — It's possible the Central Intelligence Agency knew about, perhaps even condoned, the activities of U.S. mercenaries who ran a school for terrorists in an abandoned palace in Libya.

The Americans were trained in undercover work, including the finer points of assassination, by the CIA and U.S. Special Forces. They continued to draw on their contacts in the U.S. intelligence community while they rigged booby traps and taught paramilitary tactics for Libya's reckless, radical ruler Muammar Qaddafi.

HE HAS turned Tripoli into the terrorist capital of the world, a place seething with desperadoes and revolutionaries of every imaginable cause, color and costume. They come to Libya for refuge, money and weapons.

The two headmasters of the terrorist school, Frank Terpil and Edwin Wilson — both former CIA agents, both wanted by the United States on gun-running charges — are familiar figures in Tripoli. Wilson is reported hiding out there in a hotel room down the hall from the notorious terrorist and assassin Carlos the Jackal. Terpil was photographed with President Carter's brother, Billy, in Tripoli.

There is evidence in top-secret Justice Department files that the CIA may have been aware of the mercenaries' undercover work for Qaddafi. The files, reviewed by my associate Dale Van Atta, disclose that several leads indicated CIA connivance but could never be followed up. The agency cooperated with the investigators on some questions, but stonewalled inquiries that threatened to hit too close to home.

"WE WERE getting onto very hot stuff," one investigator said. "It was my clear impression that we had gotten too close to some very secret CIA shenanigans." Here are some of the suspicious leads from the files:

—Two men, who "had been involved in the development and design of Special Forces-type devices," were recruited to work for Qaddafi. According to the files, "They were highly skilled technicians from China Lake, Calif." This is the site in the Mojave Desert of a super-secret Navy center where lethal James Bond devices are perfected. Both men were "working on classified CIA concealed weapons systems" when they were hired to impart their expertise to the Libyans. After their stint in Libya, incredibly, they returned to work at China Lake, though the CIA knew of their association with Qaddafi.

—Terpil and Wilson made a startling proposition to three CIA contract agents in September 1976. They were asked to kill a Libyan "traitor" whom Qaddafi wanted eliminated and to train the dictator's own assassins. When Terpil and Wilson cited their CIA credentials, the three men flew to London and Geneva to discuss the deal. They declined a $100,000-per-year offer after learning that they would be working for Qaddafi and wouldn't have the "protection" of the CIA.

—A retired veteran of the Army Special Forces received a telephone offer of $50,000 a year to put together a five-man team "with expertise in intelligence operations, weapons and demolition." The offer came from someone he apparently believed was a clandestine U.S. official recalling him to action. Obediently, he recruited four Special Forces men who, by prearrangement, turned over their birth certificates and passports to an unidentified woman at the Arlington Quality Inn in the Washington outskirts. Two hours later, she returned with Libyan visas. Once in Libya, they discovered that their secret mission was to train Qaddafi's security forces. The leader returned to the United States and informed the FBI. Not long afterward, he received an anonymous threat to "forget everything he knew about the operation in Libya or else..."

—Another team was recruited by a captain who, according to the files, was "in charge of the hazardous devices division, Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala."

Many CIA operatives merely have an "understanding" with the agency, but no formal connection to avoid possible embarrassment. Other former specialists in the dark arts, known in intelligence circles as "knuckle-draggers," have been turned loose since the CIA was reformed and may be looking for new employment. In the intelligence game, it's an easy transformation from spook to mercenary.

SUPERBUCKS FOR SUPER-PORT: The trend supposedly is away from importing oil, but Texas doesn't seem to have gotten the message.

The City of Galveston is planning to dredge a channel into a planned $500-million superport and then ask Congress for reimbursement. What Congress hasn't been told, though, is that to cover expenses, the superport needs a commitment of 750,000 barrels of oil per day. Yet Exxon, Amoco, Mobil, Texaco and 19 other oil companies have declined to sign up.

The Environmental Protection Agency initially advised against the project. But later the agency ruled it "adequate." A biologist in the Fish and Wildlife Service disclosed that he was ordered to "cease and desist" requiring backers of the superport to submit an environmental impact statement. Draft copies of such a statement were never completed as required by law. Instead, the Army Corps of Engineers relied on a 14-volume environmental "assessment" from the corporation that's building the superport.

Defense choice

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Sublimely unaware of the rich vein to be mined on the defense issue, Ronald Reagan's political high command overruled his national security advisers last week and again vetoed an attack on this Achilles' heel of President Carter's four-year record as commander-in-chief.

"Put it down to overcaution because of the warmonger nonsense," one disappointed Reagan defense consultant told us. "The politicians around the governor are afraid it will only fuel the charge that he wants an arms race." A better explanation: campaignmania.

The insiders' struggle over putting the defense issue on the firing line against Carter is by no means over. As polling evidence piles up showing that Carter's warmonger campaign is hitting home (despite disgust among some voters), Reagan has this choice: pretend it isn't happening or counterattack.

HAVING FAILED last week to bring Reagan out of the trenches for counterattack, his defense advisers are now putting final touches on a devastating critique of Carter's management of the nation's defenses while the Soviet Union rolls up one country after another in Africa, Asia and the Middle East. The heart of this critique is that Carter has deceived the American people about the true balance of military power — that, in the phrase of one Reagan defense consultant, he has engaged in "perfidy on the defense commitment."

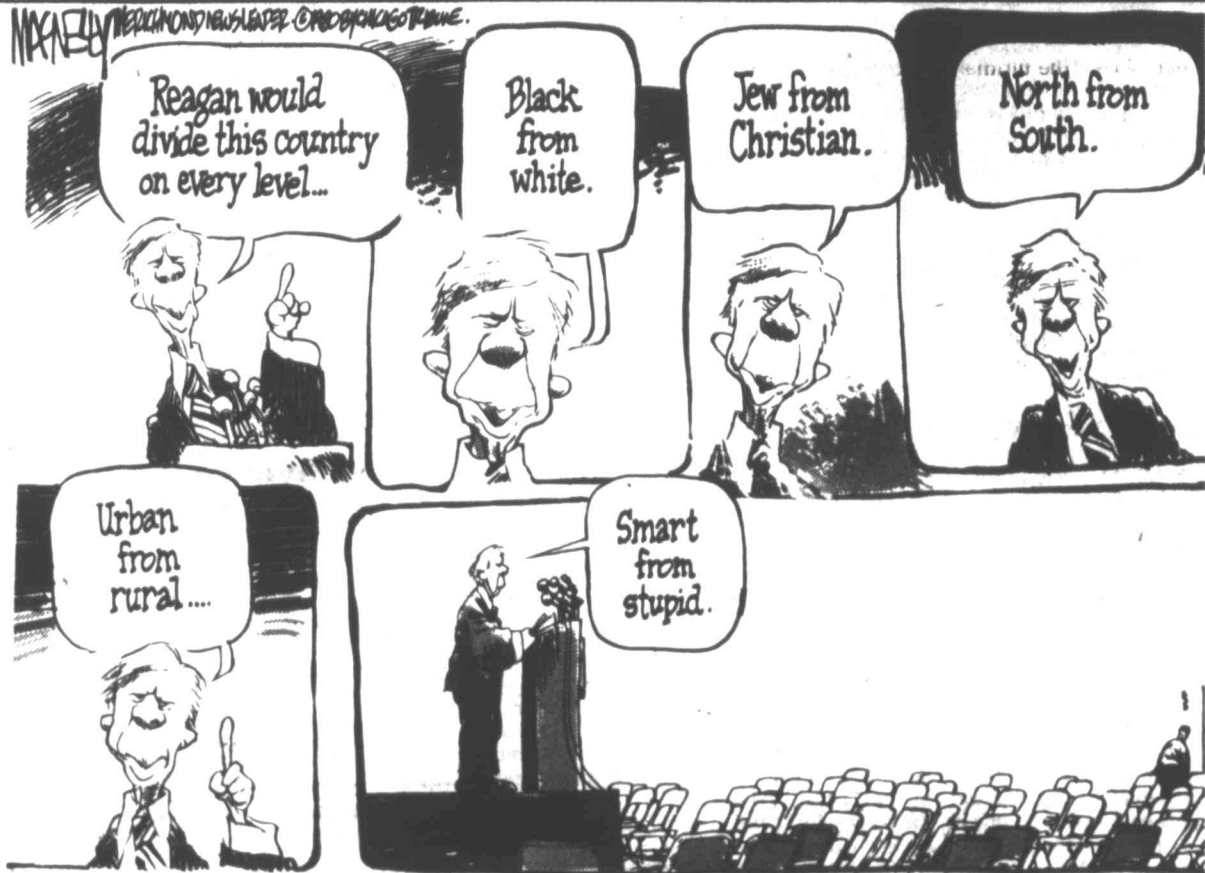

An April 8 memorandum to Secretary of Defense Harold Brown from Assistant Secretary John R. Quesch, the Pentagon comptroller, lays the foundation for Reagan's line of attack. Reporting to Brown that the White House wants to "show a 3.1 percent real growth" in defense spending for 1981, Quesch said that "to accomplish this requires a further lowering of 1980 outlays of $83 million." Translated, that puts Carter on record as ordering a reduction in 1980 defense spending already voted by Congress so as to make 1981 spending appear that much greater. Quesch continued: "Alternatively, we would have to claim inflation of only 8.91 percent rather than 9.05 percent in order to arrive at the 3.1 percent real growth."

Quesch's transmittal of this extraordinary message to Brown followed by four days a confidential memorandum to Carter from Budget Director James T. McIntyre Jr. Since inflation was higher than expected, McIntyre reported, the new costs of weapons "will be absorbed" by the Pentagon, reducing Carter's public pledge from a 5 percent real growth to 4 percent real growth for the next five years.

Armed with these and similar internal administration revelations, Reagan's defense advisers see them as bedrock for a multi-pronged attack on the candidate who campaigned in 1976 on a pledge to cut defense spending by $5 to $7 billion.

THE POLITICAL message that these advisers want to send voters is that war cannot be prevented by weakness, but only by strength. "It is simply not acceptable that a president who has allowed our military strength to be weakened compared to our adversary can call Reagan a warmonger for trying to correct the balance," a senior aide told us.

Reagan's own imprecision has played into Carter's hands, but his defense team believes his inept and careless handling of the SALT II treaty is salvageable.

Surgery may be answer

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: For years I have had to urinate frequently at night. A urologist examined me (including an intravenous pyelogram) and I am enclosing a copy of his report. My only problem is the nighttime one. I don't have trouble starting a stream in the day. I have to get up every two hours. The doctor assures me it is not diabetes. Should I have prostate surgery, which has been recommended? To me, a layman, it does not seem that I have any obstruction bad enough to cause my problem. Mine seems to be excessive production of urine at night. Please advise. — A.M.L.

A person has to urinate at night when the capacity of his urinary bladder has been exceeded. The bladder can hold about a pint of urine at a given time; about all that is produced during a nighttime. If an excessive amount of urine is being made, day or night, that is called polyuria, which can indicate an underlying disease — diabetes mellitus or diabetes insipidus, for examples. You've been told this is not your problem. You are not making too much urine. The medical report notes that you are urinating less than three quarts of urine in 24 hours, with polyuria, more than three quarts are made.

Your diagnosis was made on the basis of the pyelogram, which detected a benign enlargement of your prostate gland with "significant residual urine." That means your enlarged prostate gland is blocking the urethra, preventing complete emptying of the bladder. Even though you do not have other symptoms of prostate enlargement — difficulty in stream production, for example, or reduced flow — you have X-ray evidence that you cannot completely empty the bladder because of the blockage. Urine is always present in your bladder, so it takes only a little more at any given time to fill it and produce the urge to urinate.

I would think that prostate surgery would benefit you, since your symptoms do seem traceable to obstruction, not to any illness causing excessive urine production. You can have a second opinion, however, prior to deciding on surgery. Dear Dr. Donohue: I thought an EKG was to discover heart disease. I have angina and am 54. My EKG did not show anything wrong. Yet later a diagnosis was made (after other tests) that I had advanced hardening of the heart arteries. — M.V.

The electrocardiogram won't always detect heart disease. The reading can be normal, even in people who report angina attacks. An EKG taken while a person is exercising may show problems that won't appear when taken while the person is at rest. Other tests, like the one to scan the heart with radioactive material, will tell if the heart is getting the proper supply of blood. Another test (coronary arteriography) tells if there is a block preventing adequate supply to the heart muscle (angina).

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you tell me what euthyroid is and what can be done to confirm it, and, if necessary, treat it? — T.H.

Euthyroid means that the thyroid function is normal. The letters "eu" mean "well" in Greek.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to spread recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor:

I want to express my thanks for the people who help make the Marcy Elementary School's Fall Festival a success.

The presence of members of the Police and Fire Departments was gratifying. A special thanks to the Girl Scouts, who displayed in posters and picture a sampling of what Girl Scout offers.

A carnival would not be a carnival without Coke and hot dogs. The Coca-Cola Bottling Co., and others donated drink and food.

The children at Marcy drew posters to help advertise the carnival. Many people would not have known about the carnival without the posters.

We also thank the parents and children of Marcy. Without them, there would have been no character. The cakes were beautiful and the booths were inviting to look at and fun to participate in.

Our carnival is a small sample of what parents and children and the community can do when we participate as a whole. Truly, this is what the PTA is all about.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have just read your book "How to Be Born Again" and have received Christ as my Savior as a result. But I am afraid to tell others about my decision, for fear how they will react to it. Do you think this is wrong? — T.R.

DEAR T.R.: I suspect there are many, many Christians who have sincerely committed their lives to Christ and want to live for him, yet never share their faith with others. One reason may be because they do not understand how important it is for others to come to Christ, or perhaps they feel they cannot share Christ very well and that only ministers and evangelists should do it. Or they may fear people's reaction, as you do.

But whatever the reason, it is wrong for us to keep Christ to ourselves. In fact, Christ specifically commands us to witness for him, by our lives and our lips. And when you read the New Testament carefully, you discover that the early Christians took the responsibility to share their faith very seriously and joyfully. Paul could say about Christians in Rome, "Your faith is being reported all over the world" (Romans 1:8). To the Christians in Thessalonica he said, "The Lord's message rang out from you, your faith in God has become known everywhere" (I Thessalonians 1:8).

How can you be an effective witness for Christ? First, understand clearly what Christ has done for you. Learn from your Bible study and from other Christians. Sometimes Christians are afraid to talk about Christ with others because they are unsure what the Gospel really is. Also, think through your own testimony of what Christ has done for you personally since you came to know him, so you can present it simply but sincerely to another person. Then pray that God will help you overcome your concern about other people and how they will react. You may be surprised just how open many people are, and how hungry they are to learn about God. And pray too that God will lead you to people around you whom he has prepared. God wants to use you — and he will if you let him.

Clements is net loss

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — In an upstairs room of an until-recently vacant building in this capital city, a New Yorker named Bob Beckel is talking often these days about Democratic traditions of Texas voters.

On the walls of the otherwise dull office are huge maps with colored areas indicating various demographic and political realities of this complex state.

Few of the dots indicate areas that Beckel knows first hand; but he knows their populations, their racial makeup, their historical political profiles.

He also knows their importance to the re-election campaign of President Jimmy Carter. Earning Carter another four years in the White House, with the help of Texas' 26 electoral votes, is Beckel's consuming passion.

In the parlance of politics, Beckel is the Carter-Mondale campaign's hired gun — the political pro who pulls the party's strengths together and minimizes its weaknesses in order to win one for the president.

He doesn't wear a black hat, and there's nothing sinister about his presence in Texas. Republican counterparts work in a state campaign headquarters a few blocks away to help Ronald Reagan become president.

Beckel says he thinks they will be disappointed. Like a coach preparing an underdog team for a big game, Beckel, who looks more like a mild-mannered young librarian, is quick to point out the other side's advantages.

"They are going to outspend us four-to-one," he says. "In terms of money, it's like putting a speedboat up against the (aircraft carrier) Nimitz."

But Beckel, a former member of the White House staff, says he and the Texas Democratic party have plans for torpedoing the big and well-financed Republican effort. The Democratic traditions of most Texans are too strong to swing the state to Reagan, he hopes.

"This is not a state in transition (from Democratic to Republican patterns)," Beckel says. "What happened in 1978 is not a sign of things to come."

That was the year Dallas millionaire Bill Clements was elected governor — the first Republican governor in 104 years.

Clements now is using all his influence and a big hunk of his time in an effort to win Texas for Reagan. Beckel says that's fine with him — that the governor's brash manner and shoot-from-the hip style is an asset to the Democrats.

"We want to link Clements to Reagan as much as we can," he says. "We think that is a net loss for Reagan."

Clements' victory was a fluke, Beckel says. For a Republican victory, Beckel says, there had to be a combination of a bitter Democratic primary, a typical anti-administration mid-year backlash and a very low voter turnout.

Only 2.3 million Texans voted two years ago, compared with 4.1 million when Carter carried the state two years earlier.

That 1978 vote was 65 percent of the eligible voters, and the Carter-Mondale leaders are shooting for that same level for Nov. 4.

"If he can equal that vote turnout of 1978, we'll beat Ronald Reagan," Beckel says.

The Democrats are working through their usual channels to reach that target turnout, plus using some new wrinkles.

They don't have the funds to operate anything like the huge phone bank operation of the Republicans, Beckel says. But they have other resources.

Organized labor, for example, has its own operations to turn out blue-collar workers. Mexican-American groups are being counted on to turnout their traditionally Democratic constituencies.

U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy's visit to South Texas this week is supposed to help inspire some enthusiasm there for Carter, who is considered to be a far second to Kennedy in popularity among many Mexican-Americans.

Beckel stresses the importance of the South Texas voter turnout because of acknowledged problems in other areas.

"We won't do nearly as well in West Texas as last time. We've got problems out there and in the Panhandle, in farming communities."

He says that frustrates him because "Ronald Reagan can wreck the farming business and wreck it fast."

He also acknowledges the growth of suburban areas that probably will go Republican. The answer, he says, is to increase turnout in other areas.

To accomplish that, the state party itself has conducted a massive computerized voter registration drive targeted at Democratic areas. Program director Garry Mauro says the effort has been highly successful.

Former state party chairman Calvin Guest of Bryan is heading an effort to get out the rural Texas vote. Beckel says all these efforts will produce a victory for Carter on election day, but probably a close one.

He said Democratic polls showed Carter uncomfotably behind Reagan a few weeks ago but constantly closing the gap. Last week, Beckel said, the president passed Reagan in the latest poll.

Republican-sponsored polls show Reagan ahead by about 12 or 13 percentage points, Clements told reporters last week.

Beckel says the visits by Carter and Kennedy this week and at least one more visit to Texas by Carter before the election will help make the difference.

U.S. to return

Shah's wealth

LONDON (AP) — Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai said today the United States now appears ready to meet Iran's conditions for release of the U.S. hostages, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported.

The BBC said Rajai was reported as telling a news conference in Tehran that the United States is prepared to return the wealth of the late Shah, free Iranian assets, drop legal claims against Iran and promise not to interfere in Iran's internal affairs.

But Rajai emphasized that the ultimate decision on the hostages' fate will be decided by the Iranian parliament, the broadcast said.

The BBC reported that a parliamentary debate on the issue had been expected today but that a parliament spokesman said there had been no time. He said the debate was tentatively scheduled for Sunday.

Search continues for brutal rapist

FIFE, Wash. (AP)—Residents of this small community are laying out tear gas and loading their guns as the search continues for a brutal rapist described by police as "an animal" following attacks on nine women.

Authorities say the rapes were committed by a man who becomes extremely violent and uses physical force indiscriminately. And police are convinced the attacks will continue unless the man is caught.

On Monday, the man sexually brutalized a Kent woman with a wrench and raped her daughter in the fifth such attack in eight days.

In all, nine women have been raped, beaten and brutalized — five in this town of 2,000, two in Federal Way and the two Kent women. The first attack occurred Oct. 13.

Police are convinced one man is responsible for all the attacks because of similarities in method. He has been described as about 5-foot-9, 165-175 pounds and stocky, with great upper-body strength. One officer described him Monday as "an animal."

Defectives from King County Police, the Pierce County sheriff's office and the Tacoma, Fife and Kent police departments are coordinating their investigations. Trish Berg, spokeswoman for the King County sheriff's office, said the case is a "high priority investigation."

"They have a suspect in mind," she said Tuesday. "Apparently he is an escapee from Arizona."

However, many residents believe the assailant is someone who lives in the Fife area and knows which women are vulnerable.

Auditions set for Thursday

Auditions will be held Thursday and Friday for the Spring City Theater's Production of "The Small One" and "The Christmas Oasis."

"The Small One" is a musical performed with people and puppets. The group will give several performances at towns and churches in the area. They will also be giving a performance, Dec. 1, for the general public. Based on a story by Charles Tazewell, it is a story about a boy and his donkey. Lyrics were written by Grace Hawthorne and music is by John F. Wilson.

"The Christmas Oasis" which will also be shown to the general public Dec. 1, was written by Steve Baldwin, who is an instructor at SWCID. The show, partially spoken and partially in sign language, will include parts for the deaf.

Children are being sought for auditions along with adults of all ages.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN AMERICA PUTS LEADED GAS WHERE UNLEADED BELONGS.

The following, based upon data supplied by the United States Environmental Protection Agency, is provided by American Petrofina to call to your attention the adverse effects of the unlawful use of leaded gasoline, known as "fuel switching."

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has determined that many drivers are using leaded gasoline in vehicles requiring unleaded gasoline. Such fuel switching can significantly increase automotive emissions primarily through the deactivation of lead-sensitive emission control systems. Here are the answers to the most commonly asked questions about fuel switching and comments on some current misconceptions concerning the "benefits" of switching.

What Is Fuel Switching?

Fuel switching is the use of leaded gasoline in any vehicle which is required to use unleaded gasoline. Beginning with the 1975 model year most cars have been designed to use only unleaded gasoline in order to keep the emission control systems operating effectively and emissions within acceptable limits. The great majority of cars requiring unleaded gasoline use catalytic converters to control emissions. These catalytic converters are deactivated by the use of a few "kicks" of leaded gasoline. Some vehicles without catalytic converters also require unleaded gasoline in order to meet emission standards. EPA observations of refuelings around the country have shown that approximately 8 percent of the motorists are switching.

What Is the Impact on Air Quality?

A car equipped with a catalytic converter is designed to have emissions almost 90 percent less than an uncontrolled car. When the catalyst is deactivated with leaded gasoline, hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide emissions can be expected to increase to essentially uncontrolled levels. If 8 percent of the cars in the catalyst fleet are improperly refueled, there would be an increase of 25 to 60 percent in emissions from the fleet. Therefore, even a low switching rate can produce a substantial adverse impact on the ability to reduce pollution from cars.

Carbon monoxide (CO) combines with red blood cells and prevents them from absorbing oxygen. In low levels this can lead to mental dullness and poorer vision. In higher exposures, CO can put a strain on the heart. Smokers and persons with heart disease are particularly susceptible to CO. Heavy concentrations of CO can be fatal. Cars account for 75 percent of CO emissions.

Hydrocarbons (HC) combine with nitrogen oxides in the presence of sunlight to form smog. Smog causes lung and eye irritation which leads to headaches, eye discomfort, visual problems, coughing, chest discomfort, and fatigue. Persons with asthma and other lung diseases are particularly susceptible to smog. Cars account for 35 percent of total HC emissions, and 29 percent of emissions of nitrogen oxides.

Why Do Motorists Switch?

It is suspected that people believe that fuel switching will save them money or improve car performance. The first reason seems more likely, because the great majority of switches are to lower priced, regular gasoline.

Will a Driver Save Money By Switching?

Not in the long run. There would be an initial saving since leaded regular gasoline costs an average of 4-5 cents per gallon less than unleaded. However, leaded gasoline shortens the life of spark plugs, exhaust systems, and carburetors. Tests by a major refiner on a fleet of vehicles in 1972 showed that maintenance costs, averaged over the car's lifetime, were 4.5 cents per gallon higher for leaded fuel than for unleaded fuel. This would be about 8 cents per gallon in today's dollars. And this doesn't consider the inconvenience of extra trips to the repair shop.

Will Fuel Switching Reduce Engine Knocking?

If the motorist switches to a higher octane gasoline, either leaded or unleaded, knocking (a ping noise which is heard if the fuel pre-ignites in the cylinder) may be reduced. Any improvement, however, would depend upon the octane of the gasoline and not upon whether it contains lead. If a higher octane gasoline is needed to prevent or reduce knocking, higher octane unleaded gasoline is generally available.

What Is Octane, and What Octane Does My Car Need?

Octane is an indication of the ability of gasoline to resist knock. It is not particularly related to any other quality of the gasoline. There are several methods of measuring octane, each of which can produce its own value. The most commonly used octane designators are the research octane number (R) and the motor octane number (M). The anti-knock quality of gasoline is expressed as R+M/2. Thus, if an automobile will run satisfactorily on 91 R gasoline, then fuel from a pump labeled 87 R+M/2 should be adequate.

According to automobile manufacturers, most cars built since 1971 have been designed to run on 91 R gasoline, without serious knocking. However, because of variations in production, design, and use, cars have wide variations in octane requirements. Therefore, some cars will require higher octane gasoline than others in order to avoid knocking. Once the octane is high enough to prevent knocking, there is no advantage in using a still higher octane gasoline.

How Would Switching Affect the Fuel Economy of My Car?

It would be unlikely to have much effect. Fuel economy depends on the amount of energy released when gasoline is burned. This is called its heat of combustion. On the average, unleaded gasoline has a slightly higher heat of combustion than leaded gasoline. Fuel economy tests by a major refiner using eight major brands of gasoline gave an average of 14.7 miles per gallon using leaded gasoline, and 14.9 miles per gallon using unleaded.

Can Fuel Switching Void a Car's Warranty?

Fuel switching can affect your ability to recover under the warranty. Under the Clean Air Act, car manufacturers are required to provide a 5-year or 50,000 mile warranty, whichever comes first, that each car is free from defects which would cause the car to exceed emissions standards.

When leaded gas is used in cars requiring unleaded, the emission controls (particularly the catalyst) will be deactivated. In addition, lead deposits will form inside the engine and, under certain circumstances, may contribute to the failure of an engine part. The use of leaded gasoline can increase the difficulty of an owner who attempts to recover under the warranty.

Why Does Unleaded Gasoline Cost More?

Refiners add lead to gasoline in order to boost the octane to a level of marketable quality. In producing unleaded gasoline, refiners must further process the gasoline in order to boost the octane. This additional processing is more costly than just adding lead. Additional costs are also incurred because unleaded gasoline must be protected in the distribution system in order to prevent contamination by leaded gasoline. This necessity for more careful handling extends from the refinery to the retail outlet. The cost for refining and distribution of unleaded is about 1 to 2 cents per gallon more than leaded. Wholesale and retail pricing practices account for the additional difference between unleaded and leaded at the retail pump.

Is It Illegal to Put Leaded Fuel Into a Car Requiring Unleaded?

Yes. EPA regulations prohibit putting leaded fuel into a car designed for unleaded by any retailer and his employees and agents or any fleet operator and his employees and agents. Federal regulations also prohibit causing or allowing this to happen. Private individuals are not included in these Federal regulations, but are prohibited in many states from taking any action which could render inoperative any part of the emission control system. This prohibition includes self-service stations, as long as the attendant could reasonably be expected to be aware of the improper fueling. Violators are subject to a fine of up to $10,000 per violation.

As a safeguard against inadvertently using leaded gasoline, cars requiring unleaded gasoline have restricted fuel filler inlets which will accept the 2 1/2 inch diameter spouts dispensing unleaded gasoline, but will not accept the larger diameter spouts dispensing leaded gasoline. Federal law prohibits fleet owners, commercial repair facilities, dealers and automobile manufacturers from altering the restricted fuel filler inlet or removing the unleaded gasoline labels from cars, but it does not prohibit such acts by an individual with his own car. However, a majority of the states have laws which do prohibit individuals from removing or disabling emission control parts and/or operating cars with emission control parts removed.

What Is EPA Doing to Eliminate or Reduce Fuel Switching?

There are several ways in which EPA is attacking this problem. The most important of these are: (a) working with states in their adoption and enforcement of fuels and tampering laws; (b) informing the public, refining industry, and automobile service industry about fuels and tampering laws; (c) increasing EPA enforcement activities; and (d) working with other Federal agencies to find alternatives to controlling the problem.

What Can I Do?

The emission controls are there to reduce the pollution and thus protect public health. Over a billion dollars a year are spent in the United States for emission control systems, the heart of which is the catalytic converter. The removal or disabling of these devices defeats a vital portion of the nation's program to clean up the air. You can help clean the air by not putting or allowing anyone else to put leaded gasoline into your car if it requires unleaded.

If you should learn of auto service or repair facilities that remove restricted filler inlets on unleaded cars or of service stations which permit illegal fueling, or if you have further questions, contact the nearest Regional Office of the Environmental Protection Agency or EPA's Field Operations and Support Division (EN-397), Office of Mobile Source and Noise Enforcement, Washington, D.C. 20460, Telephone: (202) 472-9367.

Energy Secretary says GOP to blame for oil controls

DALLAS (AP) — Republican presidents are to blame for oil price controls, Energy Secretary Charles Duncan has told the nation's independent oil operators.

Duncan received only polite applause following his speech. The greatest applause by the near 1,700 oilmen attending the concluding session of the annual meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America came when Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan told the oilmen by telegram he would sponsor legislation "to get the federal government out of the energy price-fixing business."

Reagan said he will do his best "to fulfill Jimmy Carter's broken promise of 1976."

The former California governor reminded the independents that at their 1976 meeting in New Orleans they received a Carter telegram which read, "I will work with the Congress as the Ford administration has been unable to do to deregulate natural gas."

"Contrary to these campaign assurances, President Carter signed into law legislation expanding regulation to the previously unregulated intrastate natural gas market and worked for even more onerous legislation than that which was enacted," Reagan said.

The oilmen had invited both Carter and Reagan to speak before the association but Carter designated Duncan and Reagan sent U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-New Mexico.

Carter has developed the framework for a sound energy policy with domestic oil and gas explorations at their highest level in history, with coal production at an all-time high, and with oil imports being reduced, Duncan said.

"We are seeing now for the first time ever, the announcement for synthetic fuel plants," he said.

"And we have seen a degree of international cooperation between consumer and producer nations that didn't exist. The United States has emerged into a leadership roll in the international community of energy. And keep in mind the indisputable fact that it was Republican presidents that signed oil price control legislation and the bills that cut oil depletion tax allowance."

In his telegram, Reagan said that government must get out of the price-fixing business because "I believe federal regulatory meddling has been one of the root causes of our energy problems."

"The Reagan administration will fight for true deregulation of natural gas without onerous taxes which would defeat the purpose of deregulation," he said.

The Carter administration has engaged in three years of attack on those who produce energy, Domenici said.

Medical care's 'more' decade said under way

This year marks the start of the "more" decade for medical care with more scientific advances, more governmental regulations, more patients and more doctors, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) executive director told area doctors Tuesday in a talk at the Big Spring Country Club.

Phenomenal improvements in medical care are helping control many medical problems including some childhood diseases and heart disease. This progress has led the United States surgeon general to announce that the nation's health is better than ever.

Scientific advances will be especially helpful in handling the increased patient load predicted when Texas' and the nation's population, especially the aged population, increases rapidly in the next 10 years.

C. Lincoln Williston of Austin, TMA executive director, told doctors from Howard, Glasscock and Martin counties.

This predicted population growth indicates the need for increased emphasis on long-term care, preventive medicine and taking care of basic medical needs, Williston told the Permian Basin County Medical Society.

Another challenge is balancing the current need for doctors with predictions that show the era of the physician shortage is passing and there could be an over-supply by 1990. Estimates show that in the next 10 years the number of Texas doctors may double. About 25,000 will be licensed in Texas alone. These and other doctors may mean a national surplus of 70,000 physicians.

To meet these challenges, TMA has adopted several priorities to help make sure change is constructive, Williston said.

The first priority is review of the state's Medical Practice Act when the Texas Legislature revises it starting in January. One of TMA's major emphases in the Sunset legislative process is to keep a good law that defines who can practice medicine and what practitioners can do. This is vitally important to make sure patients receive only high quality care from qualified persons.

Heroic feats of former BS resident recalled

Heroic achievements during World War II of a former resident of Big Spring, Homer L. Sanders, are recounted in a recently-issued book "Tenth Air Force Story" by Kent C. Rust. Sanders' parents were Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Sanders.

During his days in the China-India-Burma area, Sanders was a colonel. Now he is a retired major general and lives with his wife Jean in Albuquerque, N.M.

On Oct. 24, 1942, Col. Sanders, the Group C.O., and Capt. Charles Dunning, group engineering officer, flew into northern Burma to locate "traitor forces" — forces composed of Japanese and Burmese traitors reported by British Intelligence. "Bad weather in the mountains and rain thwarted the search north of Sumprabum. Next morning the two tried again but found the weather east of the Naga Hills impossible. They returned to base and over lunch decided to make one more try."

"Accordingly the pair took off at 1345 and had just cleared the ground and made their turn when they ran smack into 97 Japanese bombers and fighters coming in to raid the airfields at Dinjan and Chabua in full strength and to work over the airfields at Mohan-hari and Sookerating.

"Unseen the two P-40s climbed up along the mountains, came into position and went for the top covers of 15 Oscars. Col. Sanders took the leader of the right element while Capt. Dunning took his right wing man. As Col. Sanders blasted the leader, the left wing man chandelled, got onto Capt. Dunning as he came in slightly behind Sanders, and shot the Captain through the head as he passed by. Sanders then took on the rest singlehanded.

"Sanders annoyed them for 40 minutes but did not know the results. Every time Sanders made a pass at one, at least seven of the Japs would jump him. He worked on eight Zeroes, withdrawing and trying to run them out of gas. He chased them awhile and then they chased him — a mutual chasing society."

"Afterward, although Col. Sanders did not make any claims, British AA gunners confirmed two Oscars for him. They, however, had not seen what went on in the chases over the Naga Hills, but five Oscars later were found in the jungle."

"Throughout the first months of 1943, the 51st Group had only one meeting with Japanese planes in the air. Col. Sanders received warning that about 48 Japanese planes were headed for the Digboi Oil Refinery. He positioned his group's planes on both sides of the enemy's projected line of flight and practically annihilated them."

Police say seven dead, flames under control

NEW CASTLE, Del. (AP) — Firemen early today gained control of an inferno at a chemical plant, 11 hours after an explosion that shook buildings miles away killed at least five people and injured 29.

State Police Cpl. Barry Beck, who reported that the fire was brought under control at 5:40 a.m., said police believed seven had been killed in the blast, but only five deaths had been confirmed by hospitals and the state medical examiner.

Beck could not explain the discrepancy.

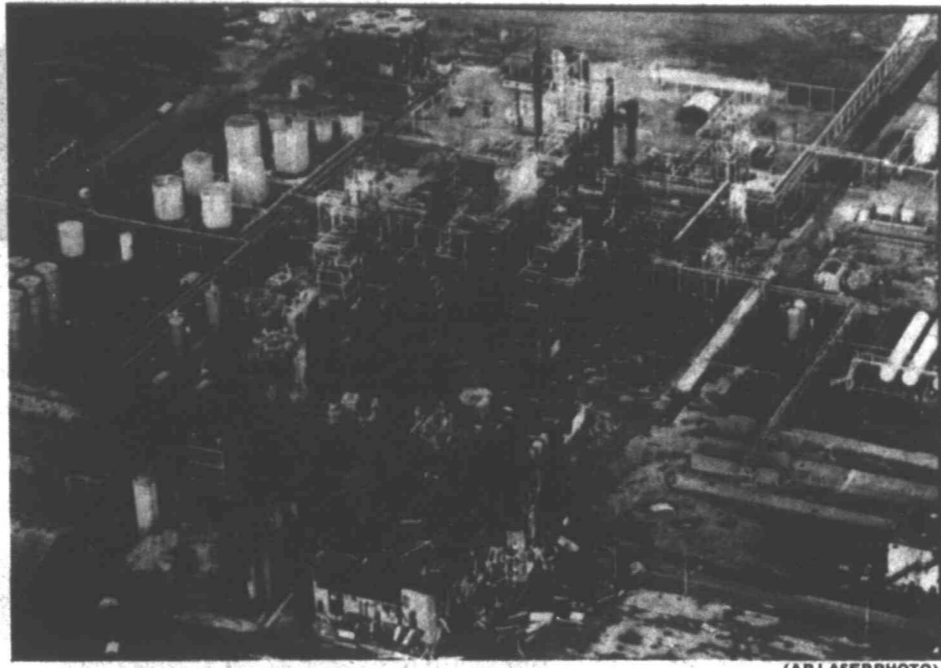

Officials said 500 to 1,000 residents were evacuated following the explosion at the Amoco Chemical Corp. plastics plant. They were allowed to return to their homes about 7 a.m. today.

The blast destroyed one building, gutted an adjacent building, damaged a third and mangled pipelines running through the complex.

Buildings 12 miles away were rocked by the explosion. Doors were wrenched off nearby buildings, telephone service was disrupted and hundreds of windows were shattered in the explosion.

Beck and others said they feared that the death toll might rise once investigators and officials were able to search through the wreckage. He said several workers had not yet been accounted for.

"I was sitting on the couch and it blew me off," said 25-year-old Jake Walker of the Dobbinsville section of New Castle.

EXPLOSION SITE — This is the Amoco Chemical Corp. plastics plant, New Castle, Del., where an explosion early today killed five people and injured 29. Almost 600 nearby residents were evacuated after the blast which was heard for miles around.

Wichita Falls oilmen back Reagan with cash

WASHINGTON — Thanks to the generosity — and political motivation — of some oilmen from Wichita Falls, a mere 115 Texans contributed almost one-third of the $663,659 in campaign finance money raised by one of Ronald Reagan's chief backers for the presidency.

According to campaign finance records filed last week with the Federal Election Commission here, Texans contributed $200,975 to the Reagan campaign — almost double the amount raised from residents of the next-most generous state, California.

More than half the money raised in Texas by the Reagan political committee, Americans for an Effective Presidency, came from Wichita Falls, where 32 oilmen and other businessmen contributed $105,100, the record shows.

Those 32 Wichita Falls businessmen and women gave an average of $3,294 each, helping to raise the average statewide contribution to $1,747 per person. The average Wichita Falls and statewide contributors are both higher than in any other American city or state with 10 more financial supporters of Reagan, the record shows.

In Reagan's home state of California, where Americans for an Effective Presidency raised $112,065 from 105 mostly corporate leaders, the average contribution was $1,057, according to the record.

W.L. Lindemann ($5,000); Bryant Medders ($3,500); Marilyn Medders ($3,500); John M. Bawley ($2,500); Millburn Nutt ($2,500); B.M. Hester ($2,500); F.T. Johnson ($2,500) and V.A. Lofton ($2,500).

Among other large contributors from Wichita Falls were: Charles N. Prothro ($10,000); Arvin Ryan Dillard ($10,000); Robert T. Priddy ($5,000); Roger Edgar Swanner ($5,000); John L. Swanner ($5,000); Gerald L. Vinson ($5,000); Earl A. Baldon ($2,500); Frances Ann Dickinson ($2,500); R.J. Moran ($3,000); R.G. Holcomb ($2,000); and Alfred B. Gufen ($2,000).

More Texans who made large contributions: John G. Hurd of San Antonio ($5,000); oilman Frank Nell Caboon of Midland ($5,000); developer Max E. Barks of Amarillo ($5,000); Mrs. Trammell Crow of Dallas ($5,000); Dresser Industries Chairman John E. James ($5,000); Earl T. Smith of Amarillo ($5,000); furniture and gift shop owner Susanne Smith of Amarillo ($5,000); James P. Jenkins of Amarillo ($5,000) and Bevina grain dealer Gabe P. Anderson ($2,500).

Texas attained this latest in its long list of firsts and largest thanks mostly to oil money. In Wichita Falls, for instance, the Reagan backers were able to collect $52,100 from oilmen, including $22,000 from Medders Oil Co. executive Tom E. Medders Jr., his father, Tom Sr., and other Medders family members or company officials.

Young Medders' $10,000 contribution was matched by two other Wichita Falls businessmen and, in a list of more than 483 contributors nationwide, only two more men — Dallas millionaire Robert A. Venable and Johnson, Rast and Hays Co. executive Thomas E. Rast of Birmingham, Ala. New York City investment banker John L. Loer contributed $9,700.

It took 107 8x10 pages for Americans for an Effective Presidency to list all its contributors, and the names of Texans appeared on 76 of those pages.

The group, which bills itself as a committee of Republicans, Democrats and independents, is conceived by Peter M. Flanigan, a Republican lawyer from New York City, and Elmo Zumwalt, a retired admiral and conservative Democrat who lost in a primary bid for a senate seat from Virginia four years ago.

Other Wichita Falls oilmen making large contributions were: Medders' father, Tom B. Medders Sr. ($5,000); Netum A. Steed ($5,000); Leo Douglas Burns ($5,000); John M. Hamilton ($5,000);

"I'm hoping to become a lab technician in a hospital," she revealed.

Favorite pastimes of the Miss HC hopeful are photography, water skiing and racquetball.

Also adding excitement to the competition will be Laura Caudill. She is the daughter of Mrs. Carolee Caudill of Big Spring and Don Caudill, Abilene.

Looking to the future, the HC sophomore plans to transfer to Angelo State University after graduation from the local college.

Swimming, racquetball and bike riding occupy her spare time.

The pageant is being sponsored by the Student Government Association.

Dear Abby

'Little Guest' Causes Big Resentment

DEAR ABBY: The first day of school, Amy, my 8-year-old, brought a classmate home from school. (I'll call her Beth.) Beth asked if she could stay here until her mother got home from work at 6 p.m. She said her mother had told her to either play outside or go to a friend's house, as their house would be locked.

I said it would be all right, then I fixed snacks for Amy and her little guest.

Well, the "little guest" has been coming to my house after school with my child every day, and she stays here until she hears her mother's horn outside at 6 p.m.

I wonder what would happen if I had to take Amy somewhere after school and couldn't take Beth? Or if the girls had a fuss, as children sometimes do?

I resent being saddled with the responsibility of looking after someone else's child — especially without having been asked.

What should I do? I have never even met the woman. IMPOSED UPON

DEAR IMPOSED: Introduce yourself. Tell her you don't mind having Beth occasionally, or even frequently, but she shouldn't assume that you will look after her child until 6 p.m. daily, so she had better make some other arrangements.

DEAR ABBY: Am I unreasonable to ask my husband to please refrain from intentionally striking up long, friendly conversations with waitresses? I don't mean brief remarks on the weather or food. He actually encourages waitresses (especially the young pretty ones) to stay and visit with us while we are eating. This spoils the whole meal for me. It makes me feel as though I am a "dum dum" and my husband needs someone to talk to while I'm sitting right there.

Don't advise me to tell him how I feel. I have, and it hasn't done any good. He says he is just being "friendly." He is a very good-looking man, and I have noticed some of the waitresses take his friendliness to be encouragement of a sort.

What makes him do this? He says it is harmless. Please reply. I want to show him your answer. HURT

DEAR HURT: A gentleman does not engage a waitress in friendly conversation any more than a lady would do the same with a waiter. Your husband's actions are not "harmless" if they hurt you, and you may quote me.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Lou), has this thing about age. I don't think he can face the fact that he's getting older. (He'll be 48 his next birthday.)

Lately when we are in the company of new acquaintances, Lou will ask, "How old are you?" If they're reluctant to tell, he keeps after them until they do. Then regardless of whether they look their age or not, he'll say, "Is that all? You look much older."

If someone happens to forget something, Lou will say, "That's a sign of old age, you know. Ha ha!" And if someone in the company happens to be getting bald, gray or fat, Lou comments on it. Such remarks are embarrassing and no one enjoys hearing them.

I've told him privately not to bring up age, weight or things like that, but he does anyway.

Please say something in your column about such tactlessness, and if you have any ideas on how to get through to him, I'd sure appreciate them. LOU'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Too bad there's no such thing as a "tact transference." Lou could use one. Good judgment, discretion and sensitivity are not easily taught — but try anyway. He may improve when he loses some valued friends because of his tactlessness.

PTA celebrates 71st anniversary

A 71st birthday can bring a lot of reminiscing, and it's no different when an organization like PTA celebrates that milestone like it does this week.

With more than 7,000 members in Big Spring, PTA began as the Texas Congress of Mothers in 1909. As a branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, Texas PTA has more than half a million members. It joins a network of more than eight million other members making up the largest organization of volunteers in America.

Texas PTA has come a long way in its work to improve the quality of education since exhibiting the first sanitary drinking fountain at the 1910 Texas State Fair.

According to the Big Spring Council of the Parent-Teacher Association, some of the outstanding measures initiated or promoted by Texas PTA over the years include public kindergarten, compulsory school attendance, free textbooks, the school lunch program and bilingual education.

Not content to rock and reminisce, Texas PTA moves into the '80s with an active legislative program.

When the 67th session of the Texas Legislature convenes in January, Texas PTA will be there working for better teacher salaries in Texas, programs for gifted and talented students, and legislation to improve attendance in public schools.

With 2,110 members, Big Spring PTAs have slots for 40 voting delegates at the state convention. Above that number, other PTA members are welcome as non-voting delegates.

For more information about the state PTA convention, contact PTA council president Leslie Earnst (7-1736) or local school PTA presidents.

'Sleeping sickness' outbreak

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials here say they have confirmed another case of St. Louis encephalitis and report two new suspected cases, including one Houston man who died.

City health authorities say that brings the total to 41 confirmed cases of encephalitis, including one death, during the "sleeping sickness" outbreak that has plagued Texas' largest city this summer. There are an additional 24 suspected cases, including three deaths.

But Bob Barnett, director of the Harris County Mosquito Control District, said the encephalitis outbreak is "about over."

He added that special spraying efforts to control the disease-carrying mosquitoes are being discontinued.

The latest victim of the disease was a 79-year-old Houston man who died Sept. 22. The latest confirmed case was a 56-year-old woman who was hospitalized with fever, nausea and vomiting Sept. 1. She later recovered.

The other suspected case was a 78-year-old woman hospitalized August 30. She also recovered.

Midland woman is jailed here

Carol Johnne Morris, Midland, was transferred to county jail today after her arrest on a forgery charge.

She is accused of passing a forged check. Charges were filed Oct. 17 by Detective C.P. Ward in the office of Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Lions plan paper drive

Mayor Clyde Angel has proclaimed Saturday World Lions Service Day in Big Spring, focusing attention on a paper drive scheduled by the Downtown Lions Club.

People are being encouraged to take paper in any form to any one of five school campuses between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. The paper can be left in containers parked on the Goliad, Kentwood, Marcy, Parkhill and Washington schools.

Saturday, 1.3 million Lions all over the world will unite for the purpose of serving the needy and the lonely. Over 33,000 Lions Clubs will mass in their home communities to perform special acts of service to the citizens of their locales.

If possible, newspapers donated in the drive should be bundled and tied with string. All paper should be taken to the campuses in some type of containers such as paper sacks or cardboard boxes.

Funds realized from this drive will be used to pay for eye examinations, eye glasses, hearing aids and etc., for the needy children of Big Spring and Howard County. Also, a special contribution will be sent to the Crippled Children's Camp at Kerrville.

Cab driver faces charge of murder

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County grand jury has indicted a cab driver on a reduced charge of murder in connection with the shooting death of a Houston police officer.

Grand jurors returned the murder indictment Monday after the district attorney said there was not enough evidence to support capital murder charges.

District Attorney Jim Moseley said there was not enough evidence to show robbery investigator Victor Wells was "in lawful discharge of his duties" when he was shot once in the chest on Oct. 2.

Witnesses told police Wells had pulled Washington over after the cab driver had followed the detective, honking his horn.

Harris County medical examiner Joseph Jachimczyk said an autopsy showed that Wells was intoxicated at the time he was killed.

But Moseley said the grand jury action had nothing to do with the autopsy report.

Defense attorney Leonard Kahn said his client claims Wells was belligerent and threatening and that he shot the officer in self defense. Washington is free on $40,000 bond.

CHANGING TIMES — Once the chief means of crossing the Saudi Arabian desert, camels now might hitch a ride with their motorized successors. As the nomads accept government incentives to settle in the cities, pickup-truck mobility links many with their traditional grazing lands and herds of sheep, camels, and goats. Nearly 20,000 Toyota, Datsun, and Mazda cars and trucks are sold each month in oil-rich Saudi Arabia, a country fascinated by machines.

Saudi oil billions gush into Islamic tradition

National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — Saudi Arabia Since the oil boom, its name says it all: the biggest and best that billions can buy.
 Three brand-new multibillion-dollar airport projects, each claiming it will be the world's biggest. Tremendous tents of Teflon-coated fiberglass — the largest covered space in the world — to shelter millions of jet-age pilgrims to Islam's sacred Mecca.
 A billion-dollar causeway. A $5-billion university. A $15-billion-plus gas-gathering system. And a $236-billion five-year-plan budget that officials are trying to find ways to spend.

Interviewed by photojournalist Robert Azzi for an article in the September issue of National Geographic, the prince explained: "We are trying to compress into a generation or two the gains that have been made in the West since the Industrial Revolution."
 Minister of Planning Hisham Nazer, along with other government officials, has the task of spending $236 billion (excluding defense) in five years. "The people receive roads, schools, free health care," he said. "Domestic telephone, electricity, water, gasoline, and domestic air travel are subsidized."
 Saudis also get free land to build on, and can get construction loans of up to $90,000 at no interest. And they have to pay back only 80 percent. But construction costs 2½ times what it does in the United States. Almost all building materials must be imported.

 "Nearly everyone who has electricity has a washing machine, air conditioner, television, radio, and in the big cities, video recorders," said Azzi's Saudi driver, whose wife was home recording the weekly soccer game for him. "We are in love with machines."
 Saudi officials do not believe that Islam and technology are incompatible. Telephones are being installed all over the country, "but not without respect to the old Islamic values," Azzi writes. "When a village in the Asir got its first telephone service recently, the traditional sacrifice of a lamb was made as a gesture of thanksgiving."

 In weaving Western ways into the Islamic tradition, the Saudis do not want to make the same mistakes as some of their neighbors.
 "In Iran feudal interests were opposed to modernization, and the cohesive effects of Islam were ignored to bring about development. It didn't work in Saudi Arabia, Islam permeates every aspect of life, in a way not familiar in the West. Islam is based on individual rights and liberties. ### Seminar for nurses is scheduled here Monday

A seminar for head nurses and staff nurses, sponsored by the University of Texas at El Paso College of Nursing, will be held at the Veterans Administration Medical Center here from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday.
 Following the registration period, which extends through 8:30 a.m., the workshop will examine the traditional roles of the head nurse and staff nurse.
 Recent movements in nursing and health care delivery which are changing these roles will be examined. The adaptation of these changes, required of all nurses, will be discussed.
 The instructor will be Marta L. Reeder, RN, MSN, assistant professor, UTEP College of Nursing.
 Mrs. Reeder has had extensive clinical and administrative experience. She has been a staff nurse, head nurse, instructor and director of nursing services in both small and large hospitals. She was twice elected president of the Ohio Nurses Association, formulated and executed scheduling and staffing workshops in Ohio and other states, and participated in an analysis of the nursing needs in Ohio.

 UTEP will award 0.6 continuing education units to each participant successfully completing this total unit of instruction. Approval for 6 CEARP points have been requested from the Texas Nurses Association.
 Registration fee for this one-day program is $20 per person. Registration fee at the door will be $25.

Wounded man recalls shooting spree in Big D

DALLAS (AP) — Roy Clark lies in a hospital bed, recovering from three gunshot wounds and wondering if the boyhood friend who shot him will come back to kill him.
 The man tried once, Clark said, describing how two men gunned down two of Clark's friends then turned on him.
 Shot in the abdomen, side and leg by his childhood buddy, Clark said he lay helpless on a kitchen floor as the gunman put a pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.
 "God, yes, I was scared. I figured it was all over," Clark recalled from his hospital bed for The Dallas Morning News. "But when he pulled the trigger, it just clicked."

 "He was out of bullets."
 The 31-year-old Wilmer man was in fair condition Tuesday, recovering from surgery for his wounds. His accounts of the Sunday night shooting that left two of his friends dead led police to issue a capital murder arrest warrant for a West Dallas man who remained at large Tuesday.
 "The first thing I thought when I walked in was, 'Where are the guards,' said Don Anderson, a longtime friend who came to visit

Clark Monday. "Anybody could come in here and just blow him—and us—away."
 But a police spokesman said hospital security was adequate for Clark and policemen do not normally guard hospitalized witnesses.
 "Hospital security is on the job," the spokesman said.
 Police issued a capital murder arrest warrant for Robert Lee Brown — known in West Dallas as "Little Dukes" — Monday night. Peace Justice Cleophus Steele set bond at $100,000.
 Shortly before noon Tuesday, Obie Shackelford,

22, surrendered to police, telling homicide investigators, "I heard you think I killed somebody. I didn't shoot anyone and I need to talk to you about it," officers said.
 After two hours of questioning, police booked Shackelford in connection with another case.
 Clark said he was having dinner with David Owens and his family when two pistol-wielding men burst into the Owens home.
 "We were just sitting there," Clark said. "They came in and wanted to borrow some money."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They came from ignominy, this rag-tag bunch of malcontents, molded into world champions by guts, desire and the iron will of a man named Dallas Green.

The Philadelphia Phillies reign today over baseball's world of grownup kids, supreme in their own very special realm of make-believe. They rule it for the first time in the history of a club that has been baseball's lost child for so many summers.

Mike Schmidt, the Peter Pan of this "Never-Never Land," could not express his feelings.

"I can't muster the right words to describe how I feel," he said. "We're world champions, and I've barely had two sips of champagne. I just feel so good there's no batting practice tomorrow."

Schmidt, who led the major leagues with 48 home runs during the season, leant his bat to this fairy tale with decisiveness. His two-run single in the third inning started the 1980 Philadelphia Phillies on their way to baseball immortality. He was chosen Most Valuable Player of the Series with seven RBI, six runs scored and a .381 batting average.

The Phillies defeated the Kansas City Royals 4-1 in the sixth game of the World Series to wrap it up by four games to two, and Steve Carlton tied a big bow around it for the two million inhabitants of this town. The town took the gift joyously.

The Phillies left-hander, who almost certainly will win his third Cy Young for his 24-9 season, went seven strong innings and didn't give up a run until the eighth. He struck out seven and walked three to win his second game of the Series, and he left to a standing ovation from the crowd of 65,838, the largest ever to witness a baseball game at Veteran's Stadium and largest to watch a Series game in 16 years.

"It's a monumental feeling," said Tug McGraw, who finished up for Carlton. "I've been through a lot. It goes back to a club that's been able to put everything aside when we get on the field and learn how to win."

The Phillies won the first two games of the Series at home, then lost the first two in Kansas City. They came back to win Game 5 in Kansas City and send the Series back home for the clinching game, the game that gave the Phillies their only world championship since the franchise was moved from Worcester, Mass., 96 years ago.

It began with a third inning error by perhaps the best defensive second baseman in the American League, Kansas City's Frank White. Royals right-hander Rich Gale issued a walk to Phils catcher Bob Boone. Fleet-foot Lonnie Smith then bounced a grounder to White's right. White fielded the ball cleanly, but his throw pulled shortstop U.L. Washington off the bag. Royals Manager Jim Frey came out to argue, but everybody was safe.

Pete Rose loaded the bases with a bunt single, and Schmidt strode to the plate, holding that tiny stick of wood in his Popeye arms. Schmidt worked the count to 1-1, then looped a single toward right field, scoring Boone and Smith.

That brought Frey out of the dugout again, and Gale was through for the season. Reliever Renie Martin got the side out, and the Phils were quiet until the fifth.

Smith led off that inning with a liner to center that he stretched into a double. When Rose flew to center, Smith was on third. Martin then walked Schmidt, and he was through. Left-hander Paul Splittorff made his first appearance of the Series, yielding Bake McBride's run-scoring grounder, and he was in almost immediate trouble again in the sixth.

Garry Maddox led off the Phils sixth with a single but was doubled up on Manny Trillo's grounder back to the mound. Lary Bowa then doubled and scored Philadelphia's last run of the 1980 season on a single by Boone.

By then the crowd was cheering at nearly every pitch, roaring as each Phillies batter came to the plate.

Carlton, meanwhile, cruised along with some fielding help and an overpowering fastball. He walked two men with one out but escaped on a double play initiated by Bowa at shortstop. He yielded his first hit of the game to Washington, who led off the fourth with an infield single, but Washington was cut down in a double play, again started by Bowa.

Bowa wound up initiating a record seven double plays in the Series.

"I didn't even know it until they flashed it on the scoreboard," Bowa said. "This is the greatest feeling in the world," added Bowa, a target of fan derision earlier in the season after he criticized their lack of support. "We went down the tubes in three playoffs 1976-77-78, and we carried around the label of chokers. There wasn't a guy on this team who choked. We've proven we're a good baseball team."

Carlton had given up only three hits through seven innings, but he started the eighth by walking John Wathan. Jose Cardenal then lined a single to left, and Green stalked to the mound.

"I knew from the first pitch that Steve had it (Continued page 4-B "Phillies end frustration")"

Steer recovery from Mojo vital vs. Lee

In 1979, a Big Spring 42-0 loss to the state's fourth rated football team would have been considered normal. But this is 1980, and the shattering that the Steers received at the hands of Odessa Permian undoubtedly has first year Big Spring mentor Ralph Harris concerned.

"If we keep playing like that, the people here need to get rid of ol' Ralph Harris," the BSHS coach said, obviously speaking in the first person.

"We didn't play at all twice this year," he continued. "The first time cost us a win against Levelland, the second time cost us a total embarrassment against Permian."

"And in both cases, it was obvious that we just weren't ready to play," Harris philosophized. "Against Levelland, I tried to convince the kids that we had to get with it and play well in order to win, even though everyone knew we were favored. And against Permian, it was my responsibility to get our players believing that we had a bonafide chance to win."

"But," he added, "we never performed at all against Permian. It looked like a total lack of self-confidence."

"But it's a two-way street, and in that sense, it's my responsibility that we didn't play well."

Asked if he could see the poor performance coming prior to the Permian game, Harris said no.

"I was real excited going into the game," he explained. "I felt that we had gotten ourselves ready to play, and I think we had a good plan of attack. They (Permian) are not a complex team, but they do the fundamentals so well."

"We didn't play well, and got no breaks early, and it just seemed to snowball on us. And there was a point in the game," Harris admitted, "that most of our team seemed to quit carrying the fight to them."

The Mojo mystique was seemingly a negative factor in the minds of the Steers, as Permian is not that much better than Abilene or Midland, teams the Steers led going into the final stanzas, only to lose by slim margins.

Harris admitted that maybe some of the Steers were in awe of the Permian tradition. "I can't think it's the fear of injuries, but that we fear ourselves and our abilities to compete with those people."

"When we play people like Permian and are a big underdog," the Steer coach stated, "we've got to go in with the attitude that we've got nothing to lose. We simply need to strap it on, but we didn't!"

"Things really aren't going to get much easier for the young Steer team, which no doubt is a year away from being rated as a factor in the tough District 5-A AAAA. This week they play host to Midland Lee, and next week it's Abilene Cooper, then Odessa High.

The Lee Rebel-Steer match-up will be quite interesting for the local fans, as the Midland school is coached by former BSHS boss Spike Dykes, and has many former Steer assistants on the staff.

Dykes, the last coach to have a winning record at Big Spring, (in 1969), has been to Alice, the University of Texas, the University of New Mexico and Mississippi State between his BSHS and Lee stints.

He's also the coach that gave Ralph Harris his first coaching job after the present Steer mentor graduated from Sul Ross, assigning him to Runnels Junior High back in 1968.

Whether the familiarity there has anything to do with it or not, 1980 versions of both Big Spring and Lee are most similar.

Both run an option attack, and both have made the bulk of their offensive yardage on the ground.

Lee sports the top rusher in 5-A AAAA in fullback Calvin Riggs, while Big Spring's exciting junior, Bobby Earl Williams, is the number two rusher in the district.

"They have big backs and a very big line," Harris noted. "I'm sure they'll try to hammer it down our throats, because that's what they've done to everyone else. It will simply be our strength against their strength."

The big problem with that concerns the injury situation in the Steer camp right now, where the local gridders are still very beat up from the Permian game.

Both defensive tackle Tony Molina and defensive end Greg Scarbro are listed as doubtful, and Harris stated that a total of five different players will be tried at the two defensive tackle positions in the first quarter of the Lee game.

"We don't have the size of Lee up front," he explained, "so it's just a matter of playing several kids early and seeing who can do the best job."

It's not going to be an easy task for the Steers to defeat the favored Lee team, but nothing would please Harris more.

"When I got this job, I felt very good because I knew it would be a chance to beat some of the very best high school coaches around," Harris explained.

"I called Coach Dykes, and he asked me (Continued on page 2-B "Spike Dykes")"

Steer fems stay on unbeaten path

The Big Spring Steers girls volleyball team continued to maintain their perfect record in District 5-AAAAA second half action here Tuesday night, taking a 15-4, 15-0 triumph over Midland Lee.

The lopsided win was the fourth straight without a loss in second half play, and allowed the Big Spring girls to remain tied with San Angelo for the second half lead. San Angelo and Abilene Cooper shared the first half title.

PAM CAUDILL Steer Junior

The next match for the Big Spring girls will be extremely important, as they travel tomorrow night to face Cooper.

"We finally beat somebody bad that we should have," said a happy Big Spring Coach Patti Pursler. "We played very well, and I hope we can meet the challenge tomorrow night."

"We have been showing improvement every game this half," Pursler continued. "Instead of being up and down, we are maintaining our consistency."

Leading server point wise for the Steers in the win over Lee was Shell Rutledge with eight, while Sissy Doss chipped in with seven. Pam Caudill added six, Elise Wheat four, Bea Magers three and Janie Phillip two.

Wheat also performed well at the net.

The Big Spring JV team also took a triumph in a rout, by scores of 15-4, 15-2 over the Lee JVs. Leslie Overman had 10 service points for the Shorthors.

While both the Steer varsity and JVs are on the road tomorrow night, the BSHS freshmen will play host to Snyder at 5:30 p.m.

DRENCHED — Philadelphia Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt is drenched with champagne as he answers reporters' questions in the clubhouse after Philadelphia's World Series win Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

Schmidt atones for NL playoff with MVP role in World Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The most important hit for Mike Schmidt in the Philadelphia Phillies' march to their first World Series championship was the one he didn't get.

"It was in the final game of the National League playoffs at Houston," said the reluctant Series hero. "I failed to get the hit that I wanted more than any hit in my life."

It was the eighth inning of the fifth and decisive playoff game, the Phillies trailing the Astros 5-4 with runners at first and third. Schmidt, the league's top home run hitter with 48, strode to the plate.

"I struck out three straight pitches, looking at the last one," he added. "I went back to the dugout saying, 'Good Lord, what am I trying to do?' I went 0-for-6 in that final game."

"I was trying too hard. I was carrying too much on my shoulders. It was as if I was getting a message from God."

"Del Unser, who was next up, got a hit and we finally won in 10 innings 8-7. I was really humbled."

Schmidt was wearing his blanket of newly found humility when he came to the plate in the third inning Tuesday with the bases loaded.

"I kept saying to myself, 'Keep it in the park, just keep it in the park,'" he said. "I wasn't trying to knock it out of sight."

The slugging third baseman drilled a single to right center, scoring the first two runs in the 4-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals that gave the Phillies their first World Series pennant ever.

Schmidt was a solid choice for the coveted Most Valuable Player award, finishing the Series with eight hits in 21 at bats for a .381 average. He hit two homers and batted in eight runs.

The 6-foot-2, 203-pound powerhouse accepted the award with the cloak of humility he had gained 10 days before.

"I am ecstatic," he said when he received the news at the post-game press conference. "I wish I could chop it up into 25 pieces and spread it around."

"This is not a one-man team or a two-man team. At least six or seven could have been voted MVP justifiably. I am honored it happened to me."

Schmidt said one of his big disappointments was that his grandmother did not live to see him in his finest hour.

"Her name was Viola Schmidt. The first ball I ever had, she threw it with me. She died on my birthday—last September 27 in Dayton, Ohio."

OFF TO ONE SIDE — Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Steve Carlton stands off to one side in the trainer's room as others celebrate after the Phillies won the Series Tuesday night in Philadelphia. Carlton, the winning pitcher in Tuesday's game, sought refuge in the room during the celebration. Carlton has not spoken to the press in six years, and also rarely talks to teammates. Some members of the Phillies say he has never spoken to them.

Brett: "We don't have anything to be ashamed of"

Royals remain proud in final defeat

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Losing the World Series to the Philadelphia Phillies was not as depressing to the Kansas City Royals as their fans would think.

After Willie Wilson struck out, setting a dubious World Series record in the fatal Game 6, the Royals were quicker to reflect on what they had done rather than what they failed to do.

"We're proud to get in a World Series," said Dennis Leonard, who would have started tonight had there been a seventh game.

"We're one of the two best teams in baseball. To come in second out of 26 teams — that's not bad."

Only Wilson, who had a miserable series and put his name in the record book with 12 strikeouts, was uncooperative with the media after the game.

"I haven't struck out 12 times in six games in I don't know how long," he said. "All that is irrelevant. We lost, if you want to say I lost it, you can say it."

The bitter weeping that followed three championship series losses to the Yankees was not in evidence, sweeping the Yankees in three straight games this year may have brought as much satisfaction to the Royals as beating the Phillies would have.

"I think everybody is a little shocked at what happened," said Darrell Porter. "We still feel we have a better team."

"Sure, we wanted to be World Champions, but we didn't do it," said John Wathan. "We have nothing to be ashamed of. There are 24 teams who wish they could have been here."

"We played a good series," said pitcher Paul Splittorff, one of five hurlers Manager Jim Frey used to try and stop the Phillies Tuesday night.

"The thing that will stick out in my mind about the 1980 World Series is that you start two competitive, strong-willed teams that didn't expect to lose. There was no giving up."

Frank White, the defensive star of the entire series. We're one of the two best clubs in baseball. We have to be happy because we had a great year. Why should I be crushed?"

"You get crushed in playoffs because then everything you've done seems like it doesn't matter," said Hal McRae. "We made a lot of people happy. We didn't do it. But we almost did it all."

"That's the good part. You learn by doing, that's how you grow. It's going to make us a better team next year."

"We don't have anything to be ashamed of," said third baseman George Brett. "They took advantage of their situations and we didn't."

But Sugar Bowl happy with prospects

Bowl picture clouded

By The Associated Press

The bowl bids go out three weeks from Saturday and, as usual, the picture is muddled.

Also, as usual, it starts with the Sugar Bowl, which last year sweated out the possibility that Georgia rather than No. 1 ranked Alabama might be the host team.

The same situation exists again, except that this time, Georgia, with super freshman Herschel Walker running loose, would not be as undesirable a commodity as the 1979 club.

"I sure like our situation better than last year," says Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl. "There's a world of differences between 6-0, which Georgia is now, and 3-3, which they were last year. The two biggest differences are that Georgia has an offense and can play defense."

Last year, Georgia won its first five Southeastern Conference games while losing its first four non-league contests. All the Bulldogs had to do to represent the SEC in New Orleans was beat Auburn, a possibility that frightened the Sugar Bowl half out of its wits. Fortunately, Auburn prevailed.

Once again, Georgia can make it to New Orleans by winning its remaining conference games against Kentucky, Florida and Auburn, no matter what Alabama does. The fifth-ranked Bulldogs and No. 1 rated Bama could both wind up 11-0 overall and 6-0 in league play since they don't face each other.

In that case, why not match them in the Sugar Bowl? The thought has crossed Holmes' mind.

"Obviously we'd be very interested," he says. "There's nothing within our contractual agreement to prevent it."

And precedent exists since Big Eight rivals Oklahoma and Nebraska not only played in the Orange Bowl two years ago, but also met during the regular season.

However, Holmes considers an Alabama-Georgia meeting "an extreme longshot" because "two things are going to be very prominent — first, Bear Bryant's past statements that he wants to play the top-ranked team available and, second, the fact that Alabama has been here three years in a row."

While several possibilities exist between now and Bowl Day, second-ranked Texas must be considered the favorite for the host role in the Cotton Bowl. "I don't see Texas getting beat between now and Nov. 15," says Holmes.

If Alabama and Texas make it through Nov. 15 without a blemish — and Alabama meets Notre Dame that day, don't forget — look for the Cotton Bowl to secure a match between the nation's No. 1-2 teams. But that could all blow up on Nov. 22, when Texas travels to Waco to meet Baylor, which currently sports a 6-0 record and is ranked No. 11.

The official in-fighting will begin in earnest a week from Saturday under a new NCAA regulation that permits bowl committees to talk to prospective invitees between Nov. 1-15. They can do just about everything except issue a formal invitation. "The courtesy visits are over," says Holmes.

Akers won't look by tough SWC schedule

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas fan, apparently excited over Texas' new No. 2 ranking in the college football poll, questioned Coach Fred Akers on Tuesday about the possibility of meeting top-ranked Alabama in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas on Jan. 1.

"I haven't given it nearly as much thought as you have," replied Akers, whose squad has played less than half of its 11-game season.

"We have to play our Southwest Conference schedule, and that's a big, big difference in what those people (Alabama) have to play," Akers told the Longhorn Club.

He said Southern Methodist on Saturday "will be the first of six tough opponents."

Texas, 5-0 for the season and 2-0 in the SWC, plays Southern Methodist, Texas Tech, Houston, Texas Christian, No. 11 and unbeaten Baylor and Texas A&M.

Abercrombie named SWC Player of the week

DALLAS (AP) — It was only a 15-yard run with a screen pass but it was suitable for framing — all 15 yards of it.

Walter Abercrombie took a short pass Saturday from quarterback Jay Jeffrey and was promptly cut off at the pass by a gang of maroon-shirted Texas A&M tacklers.

Abercrombie cut across the field and began breaking tackles...one...then two...then three...then four to score standing up for a touchdown.

"It was an absolutely great run," said Baylor backfield Coach Wade Turner.

The "great" run and another one for 71 yards earned Abercrombie, a junior The Associated Press Southwest Conference offensive player of the week for the second time this year.

if I really wanted this job," Harris explained. "And I said, 'You dang right I do.'"

"And then I told him that I wanted to beat his butt worse than anybody," Harris said, before coming a bit facetious. "I want to beat him 42-0, and you can print that."

"And what did Coach Dykes say about that," I inquired.

"Aw, he just kind of laughed," Harris said, laughing himself.

It's going to be interesting here Friday night, as a bit of Big Spring's gridiron past meets the present edition.

But one thing's for sure. If the Steers don't improve their play from last Friday night, there will be only one head coach laughing at the conclusion of this Friday night's contest.

NBA Roundup

Lakers take 1st setback

By The Associated Press
The Los Angeles Lakers may be champions of the world, but apparently that world doesn't include Portland, Ore.

The Lakers have been on the short end against the Portland Trail Blazers of late, having beaten them only once in the last nine games. The latest loss came Tuesday night, when the Blazers beat the defending National Basketball Association champions, 107-103.

"I don't have an explanation," said Los Angeles Coach Paul Westhead about the Blazers' uncanny domination over his team. "When we're here in Portland, they play an exciting, enthusiastic game. They just do a very good job when they play us. That's to their credit."

The loss was the first for the Lakers this season after five victories. The NBA's other last unbeaten team, the Atlanta Hawks, also went down with a 122-116 defeat by Indiana.

Elsewhere, Phoenix beat Dallas 111-99; Houston stopped Denver 119-117; Milwaukee whipped Cleveland 115-95; Golden State stopped Kansas City 116-111; New York turned back Chicago 105-97 and San Antonio beat San Diego 123-120.

Pacers 121, Hawks 116
Johnny Davis collected 14 of his game-high 30 points in the fourth quarter as Indiana knocked injury-riddled Atlanta from the unbeaten ranks.

Sam Pellom again started at center for Atlanta, which has its top two centers, Wayne Rollins and Tom Burleson, on the injured reserve list and No. 3 Steve Hawes sidelined with a back injury. Forward Tom McMillen also played part of the game at the pivot.

Suns 111, Mavericks 99
Dennis Johnson scored 21 points while forward Len "Truck" Robinson and center Alvan Adams combined for 30 more to pace Phoenix over Dallas.

Robinson, the NBA's third-leading scorer, finished with 13 points and 17 rebounds. His 11 rebounds in the third period tied a Suns record. Adams added 17 points while guard Johnny High had 12.

Jim Spanarkel scored 20 points for Dallas.

Rockets 119, Nuggets 117
Moses Malone collected 41 points and 26 rebounds and led Houston back from a 13-point deficit as the Rockets defeated Denver.

Malone came alive in the third period after he was assessed his fourth personal foul, racking up 17 points and 10 rebounds in that stanza.

Alex English scored 30 points to pace Denver.

Bucks 115, Cavaliers 95
Marques Johnson poured in 28 points to lead Milwaukee over Cleveland. Quinn Buckner scored 18 points while leading a devastating Bucks' running game.

Mike Mitchell paced the Cavaliers with 24 points.

Warriors 116, Kings 111
Guards John Lucas and Lloyd Free combined for 48 points to power Golden State past Kansas City. Free, acquired by the Warriors in an off-season trade with San Diego, scored a game-high 28 points and Lucas added 20.

Otis Birdsong led the Kings with 25 points.

Knicks 105, Bulls 97
Ray Williams scored 27 points to pace New York past Chicago. The sharpshooting New York guard and forward Sly Williams shared 18 of the Knicks' 28 first-quarter points and Williams added 10 more in the third quarter.

The Bulls were led by Reggie Theus's 19 points.

Spurs 123, Clippers 120
George Gervin's 31 points triggered San Antonio past San Diego. Mark Olberding hit a season-high 23 points to lead a group of five other Spurs in double figures.

Although the Spurs led all the way, the Clippers got within a point five times in the final period before successive field goals by San Antonio captain James Silas put the game away for the Spurs.

Phillies end century of frustration

(Continued from page 1) tonight," Boone said. "He was outstanding. He had a good slider, but we went mostly with his power game, his fastball. I think he got tired a little at the end, but overall, he pitched real well."

Carlton left to a standing ovation. He held his head down and didn't even acknowledge the cheering until he touched the bill of his cap before stepping into the dugout.

Enter Tug McGraw. McGraw, who had 20 saves and a 1.47 ERA this year, got White on a popup but loaded the bases by walking Willie Wilson. Washington drove in a run with a sacrifice fly, and the bases were loaded again after George Brett beat out an infield single. McGraw worked the count to 3-2 on Hal McRae, who then fouled off two pitches before grounding out to end the inning.

The drama had not quite run its course, however, for these harum-scarum Phillies. McGraw struck out Amos Otis to lead off the ninth, and the crowd went wild, breaking into several different chants in unison. But McGraw walked Willie Aikens, who was replaced by pinch runner Onix Concepcion, and gave up consecutive singles by Wathan and Carlenal to load the bases. White then hit a high popup toward the Phillies dugout on the first base side, Pete Rose charging from first and Boone from behind the plate. The ball hit Boone's glove and bounced toward the dugout, where Rose snared it for out No. 2.

"Pete grabbed it so fast, I didn't quite know what to think," Boone said. "I thought Pete had the ball all the way. I was waiting for him to call me off. I was waiting to crash into him and go flying into the dugout. I guess I was using that metal glove again."

Up strode Wilson, who had had a dismal Series. With only four hits in 24 at-bats before the final game, he already had struck out twice. McGraw had him 1-2, and Wilson swung feebly at a low fastball. It was his 12th strikeout of the Series, a record, and by far his most embarrassing moment.

Green took over for Danny Ozark in August, 1979 and guided the Phillies to their first pennant since 1950 and third in their existence. He inherited a club torn by dissension and player unrest. When he instituted his disciplinary ways, some players resented him. "When you change managers, there will always be some guys who don't get along," said Garry Maddox. "I was taken out of games in some situations, and he never even talked to me about it, but I think when two people don't see eye-to-eye, the person who gives in is the one who benefits."

"If I was wrong, I would try to admit it, but Dallas won the world championships, and I have to respect him for that. You've got to make adjustments along the way." It was testimony to the man who inherited the family name of Dallas and a team that was anything but family.

"We've worked so hard to get here," Green said, "and we've put some ghosts away. The enormity has not gotten to most of us yet. I'm just sort of drained right now."

HEART STOPPER — Philadelphia Phillies relief pitcher Tug McGraw pats his heart as he heads for the dugout after Kansas City Royals batter Hal McRae (11) was caught at first base to end the eighth inning with the bases loaded in Tuesday's World Series game in Philadelphia.

Steelers hurt, but won't quit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steeler fans still are wearing T-shirts proclaiming "One for the Tumb," a rallying cry in the team's bid for a fifth Super Bowl.

But these are tough times for the defending champions, losers of two in a row, and Terry Bradshaw couldn't squeeze a fifth ring onto his jammed right thumb if he tried.

"I'm hurting, like a lot of other guys on this team, but we've just got to keep working," said the Steeler quarterback, who also sustained a pinched nerve in his left shoulder in Monday night's 45-34 loss to the Oakland Raiders.

"We're a little bit down right now. We needed a win. And I'm sure a lot of the guys are probably just as confused as I am," said Bradshaw.

"But we're going to play some good football. I don't know when I hope it's soon." X-rays on Bradshaw's thumb were negative Tuesday, but he was listed as questionable for next Sunday's road game with the Cleveland Browns.

Pittsburgh, 4-3 after losses to Cincinnati and Oakland, is tied with Cleveland and the Houston Oilers atop the American Conference Central Division.

The Steelers also said Tuesday that middle linebacker Jack Lambert would be sidelined two weeks with strained ligaments in his right knee. He also was hurt against Oakland.

The playing status of defensive end L.C. Greenwood and offensive lineman Ray Pinney will be determined later in the week. Greenwood suffered a pinched nerve in his neck and Pinney a bruised hip against Oakland.

Going into Monday night's game, seven of the Pittsburgh's 11 offensive starters in the last Super Bowl were unable to play, including All Pros Franco Harris, Lynn Swann and John Stallworth.

"I'll keep ice on it for three or four days, but I hope to practice by Friday," said Bradshaw.

Lambert's knee buckled when he leaped trying to deflect a first-quarter pass.

"If it was anything but the knee I would play," Lambert said. "I wanted to go in during the second half. But I couldn't."

Harris has inflamed knee ligaments; Swann's cracked ribs are still healing; Stallworth remains on injured reserve with a cracked bone in his leg; guard Steve Courson will be shelved for at least three more weeks with a sprained ankle; and running back Sidney Thornton has a sore shoulder.

But the Steelers aren't known for throwing in the towel.

"Terry Bradshaw and the Steelers don't know the meaning of the word 'quit,'" said Raider guard Gene Upshaw.

"That's why I respect them so much."

To catch a thief Shoplifting 'nightmare'
By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer
A $16 million-a-year problem turned into a 25-minute nightmare for Joan Fletcher last week.
The nightmare came when Joan Fletcher was accused of stealing.
She was innocent. "They let me go with the words, 'It was an honest mistake,'" she said.
Joan Fletcher is not the shopper's real name. She asked that her identity be concealed. But her experience was real, and it highlights the crime of shoplifting, and the difficulty of prosecuting people who are guilty and protecting people who are not.
Mrs. Fletcher was shopping at a New Jersey department store when a young woman stopped her and flashed a badge.
"I'm from security," the woman said. "Will you come with me. We think you've stolen something."
Mrs. Fletcher started to protest.
"Come along with me anyway," the woman said. "We'll determine that."
The determination was that Mrs. Fletcher was innocent, but the incident brought "overwhelming fear" to her.
State laws on the problem vary widely and often are vaguely worded. Where do the retailer's rights begin and the customer's end? How can you catch the guilty and protect the innocent?
The National Coalition to Prevent Shoplifting in Atlanta, Ga., estimates that retailers lose a nickel of every dollar in sales as a result of thefts like the one of which Mrs. Fletcher was accused.
Judi Rogers, director of the federally-funded coalition, said retailers actually may be over-cautious.
"The retailer is put on the defensive," she said, reluctant to prosecute for fear of harming the store's image or of lawsuits for false arrest. Mrs. Fletcher is consulting a lawyer about filing just such a suit.
Mrs. Rogers said it is "impossible to know how many people are apprehended" for shoplifting, but she estimated that less than half are turned over to the police for further action. There is no way of knowing, she said, how many of those who go free are victims of "honest mistakes" and how many are guilty.
Mrs. Fletcher, 40, was one of the victims.
Chance took her into the department store where she was accused of stealing an eyeshadow stick. She was taking a short cut to another store, spotted a cosmetic display and bought some makeup, paying for it with a personal check for $28.76.
Mrs. Fletcher had left the store and was already in another shop when the security officer stopped her. She returned to the first store, where her bag and packages were searched.
When she asked if she could phone her office, she said, store personnel told her: "If we let you go, you can call from a pay phone."
Mrs. Fletcher said she was "shaking from head to toe." But the worst part of her experience, she said, was that "I did not know my rights and that's a terribly fearful situation."
If Mrs. Fletcher had been arrested by a police officer and accused of a crime, she would have had the right to call a lawyer, the right to remain silent. Did she have the same rights when she was stopped by a store security officer?
Maybe and maybe not. Less than half the 50 states have laws covering an offense specifically called shoplifting, said Luis Granados, one of two Washington, D.C., attorneys trying to develop a model law on the subject.
Some laws permit no telephone calls, Granados said. Most permit a retailer to hold someone for "a reasonable time" and in a reasonable manner." But the laws usually do not define reasonable.
Granados said he and his colleagues, Sheldon London, are working on a model law which will include "a clear statement to merchants of what you can do and you can't do."
It will specify penalties for repeat offenders, list the rights of people accused of shoplifting and define the crime more clearly, he said.
One of the most common misconceptions about shoplifting is that the suspect must leave the store before he or she can be stopped. That's only true in some states, said Granados.
As a general rule, Mrs. Rogers said, a retailer must prove intent; the customer must have passed the point where the item could reasonably be purchased. That point may be the front door or a cash register in the appliance department.
Mrs. Fletcher said she believes she may have been stopped because she fit somebody's idea of a shoplifter - middle-aged, well-dressed, "hanging around a store in the middle of the day."
Mrs. Rogers noted that shoplifters are more likely to be women than men, partly because more shoppers are women.
She said, however, that a recent study done for the coalition indicated teen-age boys are just as apt to steal as teen-age girls. "But the girls are being watched more closely and that's who they're apprehending more," she added.
Mrs. Rogers said the public does not understand the seriousness of the problem.

Bank holdup man goes bananas
SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) - A man charged with an attempted robbery of a savings and loan apparently threatened a teller with a banana that he held like a gun in his pocket, police say.
The incident occurred Monday at the downtown branch of California Savings and Loan. According to police, Stephen Weiner, 30 of Carmel said he wanted to make a withdrawal and then allegedly told the teller to empty her cash drawer.
He allegedly fled with $726 in cash and tried to hide in a nearby bar but was thrown out by the bartender, police said. Weiner was arrested about five minutes later as he tried to make a call from a pay phone.
Police said they found the cash in one of his pockets and a ripe banana in the other. He was booked and the banana was filed as evidence.

Strauss says Carter needs Texas, Florida to score win

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Strauss, chairman of President Carter's re-election campaign, says a Democratic victory will be "awfully tough" without Florida and Texas.

He predicted Tuesday, however, that the southern base that helped Carter win four years ago would hold.

The Dallas Democrat rated Texas as a tossup state where the margin of victory will be less than 100,000 votes for whoever comes out on top.

Carter defeated former President Gerald Ford four years ago in Texas by 129,000 votes of more than 4 million cast.

Strauss said the president currently is trailing Republican candidate Ronald Reagan in Florida.

He said the election overall is "up for grabs" at this point.

At a briefing for reporters on Texas, Strauss said he has seen polls in the last few days that show Carter ranging from a couple of points ahead to a couple of points behind Reagan in the state.

The campaign chairman said the visits of the president and of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to Texas this week hopefully will give a boost to the Carter-Mondale ticket.

Strauss said he planned to visit Houston, Dallas and Austin later this week before returning to Washington for an appearance Sunday on "Meet the Press."

"I suspect we're doing better than we had hoped to do in some of the metropolitan areas of Texas," he said. "On balance, we're better off than anyone dreamed at this stage of the game."

Strauss said farmers' dislike of the partial grain embargo is the main reason for Carter's problems in the rural areas.

The biggest problem in Texas will be getting out the Democratic vote in light of the money Republicans have available to spend in the state, Strauss said.

He called the Republican phone bank system that helped Texas Gov. Bill Clements win his 1978 race "a vicious thing" to combat.

"I'm well aware of the wealth and power that Clements and his phone banks have done to us," Strauss said. "We've got to remind people in Texas what the Democratic party has stood for."

Among other key states, he rated Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey and Ohio as tossups.

Strauss said he has heard some concern expressed in the past few days about the Moral Majority's efforts against Carter in Texas.

"I think it hurts some, but I just don't think it's going to be the cutting issue," he said. "I think that people know there are a lot of ways of being a good Christian and of being a good Jew."

Space to be crucial in wars of future

BOSTON (AP) — In wars of the future, generals will use orbiting command posts and killer satellites in fighting their battles and will rely on surveillance from the skies, the Air Force says.

"We're working on the development of an anti-satellite system that will employ a highly technical hit-to-kill system," said Col. Donald Henderson, deputy for space defense systems.

Future satellites will be equipped with computers that will allow them "to take action without ground command" in case Earth stations are destroyed, Henderson said.

Henderson and Col. Norman Lee, both from the Air Force's Space Division, outlined the space age future of warfare Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Astronautical Society.

Lee, assistant deputy for space transportation systems, envisioned orbiting space stations that will serve as military command headquarters. Such stations also would serve as observation posts to monitor battlefield operations, spot submarines and look for enemy rocket launchings, he said.

Satellites will become more important in surveillance, weather forecasting, navigation and communications for the military, Henderson said.
