CASUALTY IN IRAQI-IRANI WAR — A Iraqi tank involved in the border war involving Iraq and Iran becomes a casualty after it is hit by enemy fire. The toll in human lives and equipment mounts daily as the war drags on. Iranian paratroopers put this tank out of commission.

Knock out main pipeline to Tehran

Iraq units capture vital port

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq said its tanks and troops captured the vital Iranian port of Khorramshahr and overran "every yard" of the city today in their greatest victory of the 33-day-old Persian Gulf war.

"The Iranian flag was lowered from over the government house in Mohammara (Arabic name of Khorramshahr) and the Iraqi flag was hoisted over the building to declare the return of the city to Arab rule forever," said an Iraqi military communique broadcast by Baghdad radio.

The battle for Khorramshahr has been one of the toughest of the war between the Arab nation of Iraq and its foe, Persian Iran.

There was no immediate confirmation from Iran that the city had fallen, but according to earlier reports the governor of Abadan said Iraqi forces were trying to penetrate Khorramshahr from the east to help hard-driving troops in control of the city's northern sector overrun the entire port.

Iraq made frequent claims in the past that Khorramshahr, Iran's main commercial port on the embattled Shatt el-Arab waterway, had fallen and each time Iran denied the claim.

The Iraqi communique said Iraq's Defense Minister Gen. Adnan Khairalla telephoned the news of Khorramshahr's capture at midday to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein at the operation's room of the Iraqi army, according to the broadcast.

"Our troops and tanks have captured the city's main bridge on the Karun river and all the residential buildings overlooking it," the communique said.

The Iranian command said earlier that at daybreak hand-to-hand combat flared into a seventh straight day in the streets of Khorramshahr, which Iran's Supreme Defense Council recently renamed Khumishahr, or City of Blood, in tribute to its "self-sacrificing Moslem defenders."

Hundreds of diehard Islamic revolutionary guards of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime have been killed in the seven days of house-to-house fighting that preceded the city's final fall, according to the Iraqi communique.

The Iranian news Agency Pars today said helicopter-borne Iranian paratroopers staged new hit and run attacks in the central sector of the front, knocking out 10 Iraqi tanks.

Iraq claimed its air force drove Iraqi bombers away from its huge offshore oil terminal at Kharg island, 150 miles south west of Abadan in the gulf.

An Iraqi communique claimed six Iranian tanks and three rocket launching bases were destroyed in the Abadan-Khorramshahr-Ahvaz area of operations at the southern end of the war front.

The Carter administration reiterated its opposition to the "dismemberment of Iran" by Iraq's invasion, apparently hoping to encourage Iran's Parliament to come up with a formula for the release of the 52 U.S. hostages before election day Nov. 4, the first anniversary of their captivity.

The Iraqi command said Thursday that its forces in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province blew up key sections of the main pipeline connecting the giant Abadan refinery with Tehran, the Iranian capital some 400 miles to the northeast.

The Abadan refinery was one of the world's largest, and prior to the Iraqi invasion Sept. 22 supplied 60 percent of Iran's oil consumption. "Iran is now without refined oil," the official Iraqi News Agency said.

Up 1 percent in September

Rising food costs fueling inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation jumped back into double digits in September as consumer prices, led by rising food costs, jumped a full 1 percent, the government said today in its last inflation report before Election Day.

Last month's rise translates into a 12.7 percent compound annual inflation rate, compared with the 13.3 percent rise in 1979. From January through September, consumer prices have risen 12.1 percent.

The inflation issue has become a central theme of the presidential campaign, with Republican nominee Ronald Reagan sharply attacking President Carter's handling of the economy. At one point, he accused the administration of manipulating economic statistics for political purposes, a charge officials strongly denied.

September's consumer price figures proved worse than August's 0.7 percent increase and the zero movement registered in July. Inflation was at an even 1 percent in June.

The report showed retail food prices once again rising sharply, while housing costs began to accelerate following this summer's decline. Gasoline prices, however, fell for the fifth consecutive month.

September's inflation performance as measured by the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index was far more favorable than the pace last winter when consumer prices were racing at more than an 18 percent annual rate.

However, the 1 percent increase was worse than many economists predicted. Moreover, food prices are expected to accelerate in coming months, say economists, including Carter's chief inflation adviser, Alfred Kahn.

The Labor Department also reported that average weekly earnings after deductions for Social Security and federal income taxes decreased 0.4 percent from August after seasonal adjustments. Over the year, spendable earnings declined 6.7 percent after inflation was taken into account.

Patrick Jackman, a Labor Department economist, said the difference between September's 1 percent jump and August's 0.7 percent rise was due largely to a slowing in the decline of mortgage interest costs.

He said sharply higher costs of pork and beef also played a significant role in last month's price acceleration.

'I hit her and I hit her' with ax

Attorney cited for contempt

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) — State District Judge Tom Ryan found Candace Montgomery's attorney in contempt of court today and ordered him to jail for 72 hours immediately following the afternoon recess.

Don Crowder also was fined $100 for a remark he made during questioning of pathologist Dr. A. Bright.

It was the second time Ryan had held the defense attorney in contempt, citing him the day testimony began for violating a gag order by talking to reporters.

Today, Ryan told Crowder to use a question-and-answer format rather than letting Bright narrate his answers.

Crowder said he wanted the record to show that the judge had interfered with testimony.

He told Ryan to "stay out of it."

"You have interjected your advice continually and no, I won't lay down for you," he told the judge angrily.

"For that remark, I'm going to hold you in contempt of court," Ryan replied.

Bright testified, viewing a photograph of Betty Gore's body, most of the ax blows appeared to have occurred after death.

After hearing Crowder's summary of Mrs. Montgomery's account of the killing, Bright said, "In the instance of overkill, this is not a conscious process ... you become almost dissociated from the reality of what is happening and have little or no recall of it."

Mrs. Montgomery is charged with murder in the ax-killing of Mrs. Gore on June 13, in the Gore house at Wylie. The defendant was on the stand much of the day Thursday, recounting the killing. She said she wrestled a three-foot ax away from Mrs. Gore and "I hit her and I hit her and I hit her and I hit her."

The 30-year-old housewife and mother of two said she hacked her friend to death only in self-defense.

The petite defendant buried her head in her hands often during graphic testimony from a pathologist and a forensic scientist who both said the victim's body received many more blows than were necessary to kill her.

Dallas County Medical Examiner Dr. Vincent DiMaio said Mrs. Gore had been struck 41 times — 28 times in the head and "died as a result of massive head injuries inflicted by chop wounds."

He said there were several "gaping wounds" to the head, including "one you could look right into the brain tissue." He also said Mrs. Gore's right eye had collapsed into what was once a sinus cavity and her left arm was broken.

One of three major blows to the head could have knocked out Mrs. Gore, the pathologist told jurors, and it appeared that "more force than necessary was used."

Dr. Irving Stone, chief of the physical evidence section of the Institute of Forensic Sciences in Dallas, said Mrs. Gore's killer "inflicted ... far more damage or injury than is needed to take the life of that person."

Testimony showed that on June 18, Mrs. Montgomery's fingerprints were matched to a bloody print taken from a refrigerator at the Gore's home.

On June 19, she said, she told Crowder the truth.

Reagan trying to act his way to presidency, Slagle claims

By ANDREA COHEN

Ronald Reagan has been acting all his life and instead of trying for an Oscar, he is now trying to win the presidency, according to State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle.

Speaking to a small crowd of people outside the Howard County Courthouse Thursday he said, "Barry Goldwater was an honest reactionary when he ran in 1964. But Reagan tries to be something he's not. All his adult life, he has practiced being an actor. He's playing a role and instead of trying for an Academy Award, he's trying to win the presidency."

"He's trying to pull the wool over our eyes and it's 50 percent cotton at that," Slagle added.

The Sherman attorney was traveling through several West Texas towns Thursday in an effort to encourage voters in electing Democratic candidates Nov. 4.

"We're a little over a week away from one of the most important elections there is," he said.

"We've tried to solve problems. We've admitted they're there. We have a good man who's president of the United States who has had four years of on-the-job training. Now we have a man from California who doesn't have the job training."

Saying Reagan acts like a macho man when it comes to nuclear arms, he continued, "If we get into a nuclear war, we wouldn't be around the see what happens. If we have one, we won't be standing around the courthouse laughing or hearing the sounds of children laughing. If anybody would be standing here, they would just hear crickets."

"We have to have a strong national defense," he continued. "We can't have Communism. Should we let Communism take over, it will be a dark age."

The 45-year-old chairman, elected Sept. 27 in Houston said he was not sure how Carter will run in the West Texas region.

"We'll carry a bunch of counties," he said, I'm not sure about the Panhandle. Central West Texas will run strong."

He also expects the Democrats to carry East and Central Texas.

County absentee balloting brisk

The office of the County Clerk will open at the Howard County Courthouse Saturday from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. for the purpose of absentee balloting.

According to Margaret Ray, county clerk, 345 absentee ballots have been cast in the office, and 143 of the 594 ballots that were mailed out have been returned.

Absentee balloting ends Oct. 31.

Centennial celebration panel to meet

The first advisory board meeting of the Centennial Committee will be held next Thursday, at 7 p.m. in the Howard College Auditorium. The committee, which is expected to help with plans to celebrate the coming of the railroad 100 years ago, will be comprised of all segments of the community and all interested persons in the area are invited to attend.

John Taylor, chairman of the Centennial Committee, said approximately 500 letters had been mailed to clubs, organizations, and groups in the area asking them to join together for the celebration of this major event in the history of Big Spring and Howard County. At the same time, Taylor also emphasized that the event will be a community-wide effort and that it is an open meeting to anyone who would like to attend.

'Spring forward, fall back' time

You can grab an extra hour's sleep Sunday and not feel guilty about it.

Daylight Savings Time will be leaving at 2 a.m., Sunday, to be replaced by Standard Time. The time will revert to 1 a.m. For the ensuing six months, the nation will be rising and going to bed with Standard Time.

Stand advised: Move your clock back an hour before you go to bed Saturday night. Otherwise, you may show up for church and find no one else there.

"Spring forward, fall back" is a good rule to follow in remembering the change in times. In the spring (the last Sunday in April), you move the hands of the clock forward, in the fall you move them back.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Tall buildings

Q. Will any tall office buildings be built in downtown Big Spring in the future?

A. None has been announced or, as far as is known, contemplated. Our job, some say, is to keep what we've got.

Calendar: Doll show

FRIDAY

Doll Show at Heritage Museum until 5 p.m. Hundreds of dolls, antique, rare and unusual from Allene's Doll House, Austin.

Wesley Methodist Men's annual chili supper, 5 to 7 p.m., church fellowship hall. Tickets are $2.50 each.

The Merry Mixers Square Dance Club will dance at the Westside Community Center. Visitors and spectators are welcome.

Auditions will be held at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf at 7:30 p.m. for the Spring City Theater's production of "The Small One" and "The Christmas Oasis."

SATURDAY

The 4-H Club Turkey Shoot will be held beginning 9 a.m. Saturday at the Windy Hills Gun Club at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

The public is being asked to cooperate with local Lions Club in observance of International Service Day by taking newspaper of any kind to any one of five school campuses from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The schools are Goliad, Washington, Kentwood, Marcy and Parkhill, where containers will be located.

The Howard County Library will show one film from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m. The title of the film "Run, Appaloosa, Run."

The residents of United Christian Center, 8th and Goliad, will hold their annual Halloween Carnival from 6:30-9:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Tops on TV: Body snatchers

It's not Halloween yet, but it's still a good night to watch a scary movie. Check out "Invasion Of The Body Snatchers," airing at 7:30 p.m. on ABC. Strange pods from outer space take over bodies of humans, causing them to become walking zombies. PBS will offer a segment of the most ambitious project of its kind ever shown on TV. Scientist Carl Sagan hosts "Cosmos" at 10 o'clock. Tonight's show, "Heaven And Hell," explores comet bombardment of the Earth and other planets in the solar system.

Inside: Sensitive issue

THERE'S MORE than Ronald Reagan's concern for the 52 American hostages to stop him from talking about the question of the captives in Iran. Sources in the Republican's campaign say they are simply perplexed over how to deal with the sensitive issue. See story page 7-B.

Outside: Warmer

The cold front was short-lived. The forecast calls for clear and warmer weather today and Saturday. High today is expected in the mid-60s, dropping to a low in the mid-30s tonight. High Saturday should be in the mid-70s. Winds are from the northeast at five to 10 miles per hour, becoming light and variable tonight. Winds will come from the southwest, Saturday, at 10 to 15 miles per hour.

JOHN C. STEVENS (R) ACCEPTS CHAIN
Don Hall, Jasper, makes award

Presidential chain presented to Stevens

ABILENE — The Abilene Christian University Alumni Association recently presented President John C. Stevens with a Presidential Chain of Office in recognition of his distinguished service to the university and to inaugurate its 75th year.

Don Hall of Jasper, president of the Alumni Association, made the presentation in the presence of the president's office in Abilene. Funds to purchase the chain were donated by the Jasper Alumni Chapter, Milton Brack, local teacher and coach, is president of the Jasper Chapter. Dr. Paul Durham is chapter representative.

The chain, worn during all formal ceremonies of the university, is encased in a display case with a purple velvet background. Dr. Stevens wore the chain for the Academic Convocation which opened ACU's 75th anniversary celebration. Famed lawyer Leon Jaworski of Houston was keynote speaker, followed by Bill Banowsky, president of Oklahoma University, who spoke at a luncheon for representatives of the many universities and colleges in attendance. Dr. William Johnson, president of Stephen F. Austin University, was also on the program.

In making the presentation on behalf of over 40,000 alumni who have attended Abilene Christian, Mr. Hall noted that this "Celebration of Leadership" was most appropriate and deserving at this time. He further stated that it was intended as a new tradition which the Alumni Association will perpetuate with each president of the university in the future.

The chain, holding a medallion of the university's seal, consists of links bearing the names of ACU's eight presidents and the years in which they served fastened together with white velvet.

The plaque in the case reads: "Presidential Chain of Office, presented to Dr. John C. Stevens, by the Alumni Association of Abilene Christian University in grateful appreciation for his distinguished and continuing administrative leadership at ACU, for his dedication to academic

Report on sewerage plan areas released

The preliminary report on the Sewerage Planning Area to be studied during the current 208 Water Quality Management Planning Study was recently made available to the Colorado River Municipal Water District, the Planning Agency for the 208 study in this area of the Colorado Basin.

The report which was compiled by Freese & Nichols, Inc. of Fort Worth, the consulting engineering firm doing the study under a contract from CRMWD, contains two types of areas requiring study. Those areas are cities having sewerage collection and treatment facilities and communities not presently served by treatment facilities.

Those cities with treatment facilities that are not currently meeting treatment standards or are projected to be unable to meet treatment standards with their present facilities by the Year 1990 are: Ballinger, Colorado City, Seminole, Plains, Coahoma and Lorraine. The next phase of 208 planning for these cities will be the development of some recommended methods of improving their sewerage treatment facilities to either correct present problems or head off potential problems.

The communities not presently served by sewerage treatment facilities that will be studied during the 208 planning will be: West Odessa, Hermleigh, Knott, Vincent, Ira, Rowena, Forsan, Notrees, Ackerly, Luther and Loop. These communities were selected because they have the potential for water pollution and contamination through the concentration of septic tank and disposal fields for sewerage treatment.

The 208 plan for these communities will be recommendations that may vary from centralized collection and treatment facilities to a recommendation that no action be taken at all.

In most of the communities utilizing septic tanks, centralized collection and treatment of sewerage is not economically feasible. For those communities the 208 plan will probably recommend the proper installation of new septic systems and maintenance of existing ones.

Earthquake hits central Mexico; 2 dead, 180 hurt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A severe earthquake struck central Mexico today, killing at least two people in Puebla and rocking buildings in Mexico City for more than a minute.

The Red Cross reported a falling wall killed the two in Puebla, 70 miles east of here, and that at least 180 children were injured there when they panicked at a sports event and ran. The Gulf Coast city of Poza Rica suffered heavy damage. Red Cross officials said, but they had no other details.

Dawson commissioners to open bids for auto

LAMESA — Dawson county commissioners will open bids for an automobile for the sheriff's department, hear from a representative of the Department of Human Resources concerning energy assistance, give an audience to Mike Watson concerning computer service and officially grant Lyntegar Electric Coop permission to cross County Road Section 37-38, Block 357-S-M when they convene in regular session here at 10 a.m. Monday.

Meet to rejuvenate Howard 4-H Horse Club set Tuesday

Howard County 4-H horse enthusiasts are presently rejuvenating the 4-H Horse Club. One doesn't have to own a horse to be in the club, which offers an outstanding opportunity for fun and recreation on horses and horsemanship.

Annual activities include monthly meetings with films and planning activities; country, district and state 4-H horse shows; horsemanship clinics and workshops; playdays, judging contests; rodeos and the privilege of learning while having fun with the whole family.

Parents and youths are being urged to participate. Youths 9 to 19 can join 4-H. Children under 9 and parents can attend and learn.

An organization meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in the Howard County Fairbarns. Those attending can eat but are being advised to bring their own wine and bun. A film, "Ride Cowboy Ride," will be shown. Club officers will be elected.

Those interested in joining the club can call Dottie Carper, 267-2010, Linda Roman 263-4310 or get in touch with the County Extension Office.

MOBILE WEIGHT STATION — Col. Jim Adams, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has announced that 12 new vans with trailers containing semi-portable scales will be used by State Troopers to weigh trucks and other heavy vehicles. The mobile scales will provide more flexibility in administering the License and Weight Laws and will result in a higher percentage of compliance with the statute while preventing additional damage to the state highways from overweight trucks. State License and Weight Sergeants Wesley Johnson of Pecos, left, Harold Kornegay of Garland, center, and Bill Summerlin of Abilene check out one of the new items of equipment. The new equipment, funded through a Federal grant by the Department of Highways and Public Transportation, will make the weight-enforcement program more effective.

Rape victim charged with trying to extort money from attacker

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A 19-year-old rape victim and three others, including an aunt and her father, were charged Thursday with conspiring to obtain $5,000 from the family of the alleged rapist.

In return for the money, prosecutors contend the rape victim was to refuse to testify against the 18-year-old alleged rapist, whose mother was named as an undicted co-conspirator.

Officials said the alleged extortion plot came to light when the alleged victim was present to testify at a preliminary hearing for Stephen Loyd Keele on Wednesday.

Keele's hearing was rescheduled for today when his mother, Jan Keele, reported details of the alleged plan, prosecutors said.

District Attorney S.M. Fallis Jr. said he would pursue the rape case against Keele although "the victim had been named as a co-conspirator and jailed."

Leslie Tyson allegedly was raped at the house of her aunt, Carol Ericson, during a visit to Tulsa in August. She returned from Tulsa, 267-2010, for Keele's hearing.

The two women were arrested and held briefly in the Tulsa County Jail before being released on bail, officials said.

Tulsa County prosecutors allege the conspiracy also involved Miss Tyson's father, Joe Tyson, and an acquaintance, Jim Luman, both inmates at a federal prison in Texarkana, Texas.

Tyson and Luman allegedly made arrangements for the transaction through long-distance calls from telephones inside the medium security facility between Monday and Wednesday, prosecutors said.

Luman, a Jenks resident, is serving sentences for federal theft charges. Tyson reportedly was serving time on a narcotics conviction.

In August, when Miss Tyson reportedly was raped, neighbors replied to her calls for help by trapping Keele in a garage.

He subsequently was charged with first-degree rape and sent to a state hospital for 60 days of mental observation. He was returned to Tulsa County Jail for preliminary hearing.

"I would hope this does not negate the efforts of both the citizens who put out the police to arrest him and the police officers who investigated the case," Fallis said.

Two students accused of sniffing paint

LAMESA — Two students, one a freshman in high school and the other a middle school enrollee, have been expelled here for the remainder of the school year.

The middle school pupil's conduct in class also was a factor in the school board's decision, according to assistant principal Larry Curry.

The high school freshman appeared for the hearings, the middle school student did not. Assistant high school principal Paul Wadell outlined a list of complaints against the high school student. It was noted he had been counseled, reprimanded and suspended from both classes and school, with no apparent effect.

Grapefruit, orange production up despite Hurricane Allen

AUSTIN — Grapefruit and orange production for the 1980-81 season will be up considerably over last year despite some damage by Hurricane Allen, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.

Estimates released by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service anticipate 5,600,000 boxes of oranges and 7,900,000 boxes of grapefruit for the season that began about three weeks ago.

Early and mid-season oranges are forecast at 3,500,000 boxes, up from 2,300,000 in 1979-80. Around 2,100,000 boxes of Valencia's, an increase of 370,000, are expected to be picked. Grapefruit production should increase by more than 1,000,000 boxes.

Brown said damage from the hurricane that hit the Texas coast in August ran around 15 percent. There was also minor fruit scarring and a little root rot to trees.

Ayatollah masks being sold

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Ayatollah Khomeini may be keeping company with Mickey Mouse, Uncle Sam and Jimmy Carter as children parade in their Halloween costumes this year.

Novelty stores throughout New Jersey are reporting sales of rubber Khomeini masks for Halloween. Khomeini is the spiritual leader of Iran, where 52 Americans have been held hostage for nearly a year.

"At first I wasn't going to sell it in my store. I thought it was in bad taste," Gene DeTone, owner of the Magic Wand in Brick, said Thursday. "But now I can't get any more of them. People get a real chuckle out of it."

Police Beat

Weapons, pills seized

Police picked up two Big Springs men who had weapons in their cars, one of whom may also have been carrying drugs.

Clifford B. Woods, 34, 1500 Sycamore, was stopped for a routine traffic violation at West Highway 80 and FM 700, 11:03 p.m. Thursday. When police looked inside his car, they found a large club under the driver's seat.

A further search allegedly uncovered several pills wrapped in foil and an unidentified white powder in plastic bags. Woods faces charges of unlawfully carrying a weapon and possession of controlled substances.

A male juvenile was arrested, 11:35 p.m. Thursday, after driving a car over the front yard of Tom Allen, 3313 Auburn, and demolishing a sapling there. Officers found a large hunting knife under the passenger seat of the car. The youth told them that he had been "using it to skin rabbits."

Diane McGee, Lubbock, had her purse stolen while attending a meeting in a room at the Ramada Inn, between 1:30 and 3 p.m. Thursday. The purse had contained several credit cards, a pocket calculator and an airline ticket. Loss was estimated at $225.

Sometime during the week, thieves stole a wheel and tire from a truck that Bobby Howell, 1306 Lamesa, had left for repairs at the Pollard Chevrolet Dealership. Loss was estimated at $136.

Burglars hit the home of Gretta Yockers, 2408 Runnels, sometime between 11:45 a.m. and 1:45 p.m. Thursday. Stolen were 18 towels, eight washcloths, a bottle of Coca Cola, a dozen eggs, a quart of Miracle Whip, a saucepan and two blouses. Value of the items has not been estimated.

Sometime this month, burglars stole an electric drill, two pipe wrenches and a wrist watch from the home of Larry Don Stephens. Loss was estimated at $280.

Vandals smashed a display sign at the Belton Hearing Aid Service Company, 606 Johnson, with large rocks, Wednesday night. Damage was estimated at $350.

Thieves lifted a wrought-iron hanger and two plants from the front yard at the home of Mrs. Jim Green, Wednesday night. Loss was estimated at $25.

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone, A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

True, all hearing problems are not alike, and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But audiologists report that many can. So, send for this free model now, and wear it in the privacy of your own home. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free.

The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 52938, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

Weather Heavy storms in Hill Country

By the Associated Press
A cold front triggered heavy thunderstorms in the San Antonio and Austin areas as it moved southeastward across Texas early today. Behind the front, temperatures dipped below freezing in the Texas Panhandle and remained near the freezing mark in the South Plains.

Before dawn, the cold front was located along a line from near Texarkana to south of San Antonio.

Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies and scattered thunderstorms in Southeast Texas and South Texas today. The remainder of the state was to have clear skies.

Slightly warmer temperatures were forecast for Northwest Texas and slightly cooler readings were expected over the eastern two-thirds of the state.

Highs were to be mostly in the 60s and 70s, except for the 50s in the Panhandle and the 80s in extreme South Texas.

Skies were cloudy early today over eastern and southern sections of the state and mostly clear over the remainder.

In child slayings case

Policemen fielding many calls in Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Mayor Maynard Jackson's prediction last week that a $100,000 reward would "shake the tree" apparently proved true as police fielded a flood of calls offering help in solving the killings of 10 black children since July 1979.

"It's been a madhouse around here today," said Roger Harris, one of several police public affairs officers helping handle calls Thursday for the special task force investigating the killings.

Harris said, however, there were "no new developments" in the investigation, which has left police baffled. Four other children are missing.

Meanwhile, police accompanied self-professed psychic Dorothy Allison of Nutley, N.J., until late into the night on visits to crime sites and to victims' families.

She had said on a television program she hoped "to have some answers" by Thursday evening, but she could not be reached for comment during the night.

Meanwhile, in Washington, President Carter told a group of black ministers he had asked U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to investigate the Atlanta killings and the slayings of six black men in Buffalo, N.Y.

"I've been deeply disturbed lately at the attacks that have been made by depraved human beings on black citizens in our country," the president said. "Those sorts of persons and the Ku Klux Klan have got to be caught, brought to justice, proved that they violated the law, and put in the jail where they belong."

Atlanta authorities speculated the mayor's promotion of the $100,000 reward being offered in the cases might have contributed to the volume of calls from the public. Jackson was photographed Wednesday standing behind a pile of small bills comprising the fund.

"Anything they see concerning kids, they call it in to us," one officer said of the torrent of phone calls, which has forced investigators to employ a computer to keep track of their leads.

Some callers reported new child abductions, but so far "none have been determined to be valid," Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said.

Mrs. Allison's expenses in Atlanta are being paid by the city, but she is not charging for her services. She claims to have helped police solve 13 slayings and find more than 50 missing persons.

Detective Al Darden of the Baltimore County, Md. police, said Mrs. Allison would return to New Jersey on Sunday but that she was working almost around the clock to gather information about the crimes before then. The detective accompanying the 55-year-old housewife said, however, would not end then. "She does not quit until the perpetrator is caught."

Missouri Pacific posts good financial results

ST. LOUIS — Downing B. Jenks, chairman of the board, has reported that Missouri Pacific Corporation achieved record financial results for the first nine months and the third quarter of 1980.

Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, was $121,303,000, compared to $101,349,000 in 1979. Per share earnings on a fully diluted basis increased to $6.47 in 1979. Consolidated revenues were $1,616,785,000 compared to $1,421,284,000 last year. These results are based on continuing operations and do not include $26,887,000 ($1.71 per share) representing the earnings and extraordinary gain on the sale of River Cement Company, a subsidiary which was divested on July 19, 1979.

Consolidated results for the third quarter of 1980 were as follows: net income, $35,763,000; fully diluted earnings per share, $2.27; revenues, $501,556,000. The comparable figures for the third quarter of 1979 were: income from continuing operations $31,986,000; earnings per share, $2.04 fully diluted; revenues, $457,334,000.

The regular quarterly dividend was paid in September at the rate of 83 cents per share.

Nine month net income of the Missouri Pacific Railroad System was $89,814,000 against $72,967,000 for the same period in 1979 and operating revenues were $1,248,918,000 versus $1,072,120,000.

Three western railroads push for network to link 21 states

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Three western railroads have filed applications with the Interstate Commerce Commission, seeking authorization to create a major new rail network to link shippers, industries and communities in a 21-state area, including Texas, spanning the western two-thirds of the nation.

An ICC decision is expected within 31 months. In their joint applications Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Western Pacific Railroads said the new system would improve competition among railroads and serve the shipping public more efficiently and effectively than each road could individually.

Brought together would be UP and MoPac, already recognized as among the most efficient and profitable transportation companies in the nation. The smaller Western Pacific will be strengthened to link the new system between Salt Lake City and Northern California. Together the three railroads will be able to offer single-system service between most major West Coast ports, the growing Sunbelt markets and the Gulf Coast.

UP president John C. Kenefick said $90 million will be spent to upgrade the Western Pacific track to handle expected traffic increases and improve service. Such a program would not be possible without the financial resources of the new system, according to Robert G. Flannery, Western Pacific president.

The application calls for both Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific Railroads to be owned by Pacific Rail System, Inc., a newly-created rail management subsidiary of Union Pacific Corporation. Western Pacific will become a subsidiary of Union Pacific Railroad.

According to the application, goals of the consolidation are to create a financially strong, highly competitive rail system able to meet objectives of national transportation policy. It will be capable of fast response to shipping needs in a changing transportation environment, providing new and more reliable service, better use of equipment and faster service.

The proposal calls for the three railroads to be joined together end-to-end creating a 22,800-mile route system linking together important industrial and population centers, transportation gateway cities and producing regions in the West, Midwest and South.

Joining of the three roads end-to-end creates little duplication of trackage and the applications do not propose any rail line abandonments. Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific will be joined principally at Kansas City and Omaha while Western Pacific will be linked to Union Pacific at Salt Lake City.

Work force dislocation is expected to be minor with the overall consolidation actually producing a net need for 235 more employees than before.

As part of their ICC application the three railroads studied the energy effects of the consolidation and predict at least 10 million gallons of diesel fuel will be saved annually. Much of these savings will be due to the new system's ability to draw traffic away from less fuel efficient long haul trucks.

Also part of the application were more than 50 statements from a broad range of rail shippers. All endorsed the plan with many citing the built-in advantages of single system service including centralized operating control and common pricing policy as particular benefits.

Competitive pressures facing the three railroads today are outlined in other documents filed with the ICC. At the end of World War II railroads hauled over 60 percent of all intercity freight. Today their share has dropped to 36 percent with most of the loss going to long-haul truck lines.

Recently, two major western rail systems, Burlington Northern and Southern Pacific, have won ICC approval to extend their lines, prompting, at least in part, the UP-MoPac-WP proposal.

Stockholders of both Union Pacific Corporation and Missouri Pacific Corporation approved the rail consolidation at their respective annual meetings in April. The merger agreement between Union Pacific and Western Pacific will be put to a vote of WP shareholders after approval of the consolidation by the ICC. UP has purchased 87 percent of Western Pacific's common stock and has deposited it in an independent voting trust pending the ICC decision.

Union Pacific Railroad, headquartered in Omaha, operates a 9,577-mile system in 13 states and employs 29,000 people. Missouri Pacific Railroad, headquartered in St. Louis, operates an 11,469-mile system in 12 states with 21,700 employees. Western Pacific Railroad operates a 1,719-mile system in California, Nevada and Utah and employs 3,000 people. It is headquartered in San Francisco.

Social Security said financially sound

People who have laid down their tools to enjoy the fruits of their labors plus those who are approaching retirement age are, no doubt, reassured by the results of a study made by a group of public and private panelists.

The panelists, appearing on a weekly public affairs television program produced by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said that the Social Security System will remain financially sound well beyond the year 2000.

THE PANELISTS also agreed that government workers should be brought into the Social Security system. They differed, however, on proposals to hold down the plan's cost-of-living increases.

Robert Myers, former chief actuary of the Social Security Administration, discounted the idea that the system is in financial straits.

"Despite the widespread but quite erroneous view that Social Security is nearly bankrupt, I believe that Social Security will be viable, not only for the next 20 or 30 years, but for much longer than that," Myers stated.

Chamber of Commerce President Richard Leshner expressed confidence in the system but wondered aloud how much it was going to cost to sustain it. Said he:

"The system will be here for the next 20, 40 or 50 years, but the real questions are what will the cost be what will be the level of benefits, and will today's young people get the same rate of return on their investment as people did who are already retired?"

Leshner said that public doubts about Social Security emanated from an awareness that private pension funds provide a better rate of return on investment than the mandatory government plan.

NELSON CRUIKSHANK, chairman of the Federal Council on Aging, however, replied that most private pension plans do not provide cost-of-living adjustments automatically triggered to compensate for inflation, as Social Security does.

Social Security recipients received a 14 per cent increase in benefits last July as the result of a relatively new law linking benefit levels to the Consumer Price Index.

Myers supported the use of the formula, while noting the index has been widely criticized for exaggerating the inflation rate for the retired. "If the CPI isn't proper, then it should be revised," he said. Critics point out, for example, that the CPI assumes the purchase of a new home every month while a very small percentage of the retired are homebuyers.

Myers reasons that benefit increases should be indexed on the basis of wage increases for the working population while the CPI gains exceed the pay gains.

Surefire plot

Around the rim

James Werrell

Memo: To head of production, United Artists.

Re: Idea for new horror pic. It looks like this scare-picture thing hasn't peaked yet. They're still paying cold cash for someone to give them cardiac arrest. The way I look at it, there's plenty of time for us to put together a little something with blood, intestines, helpless virgins and ugly animals in it.

Picture this for the ad campaign: "What if, instead of scurrying away to hide under the refrigerator, they decide to stand and fight?" Scary, huh?

So here's the idea. This bank clerk robs all the money in her bank, shoves it into the trunk of her car, and drives off in the country somewhere. After a while, she gets tired and decides to stop at this motel.

She's a little freaked out at first because the place looks just like one of those Roach Motels they advertise on TV. But she's really tired so she figures what the hell, it's just for one night.

The clerk is also a little on the weird side, and it's obvious to everyone that he's wearing this rubber Halloween mask over his head. He helps her to her room, all the time talking about how bad the roaches are in this place.

By this time, our knockout blond bank clerk is definitely getting a little worried. So she figures, first I'll fondle my money for awhile and then relax with a nice hot shower.

The audience, of course, has come to the conclusion that this bank clerk got shortchanged in the grey matter department. Otherwise she would have been hotfooting it to a Holiday Inn instead of spending the night in this creepy place.

But back to the shower. She slips into this sheer little bathrobe, and goes to open the door to the bathroom.

When the door opens, sitting there is this giant cockroach reading a magazine and smoking a cigarette.

Our blond says, "Excuse me, and shuts the door. Like I said, not too bright. But then she thinks, hey what's a giant cockroach doing in my bathroom. She takes off one of her high-heeled bedroom slippers (artistic license, OK?) and heads back into the bathroom to destroy this roach.

Unfortunately, the roach grabs the shoe out of her hand, and stabs her to death with the spiked heel. All the time during this scene we have crazy, screechy violin music playing in the background.

After he kills her, the roach tries on the shoe, which fits, so he puts the other one on and then wraps the body up in the shower curtain. Just to show how heartless this roach is, he eats the scraps from her sack lunch before he carries the body out to throw it in a lake.

Later on, this bug exterminator comes to the motel after he hears it is full of roaches. Victim number two! The giant roach pushes him down some stairs.

Just before the roach gets rid of the exterminator's body, he eats the rest of a Snickers Bar that's sticking out of the guy's coat pocket.

A bunch of other scary stuff happens, and a couple of other people almost get killed. But in the climactic scene, now get this, we find out that the guy who runs the motel with the Halloween mask on is really the giant roach!

The ending is sort of open. This roach is sentenced to spend his life doing hard labor on an ant farm. But everyone in the audience figures that he'll get out on good behavior or escape or something in a couple of years to strike again. We could do a sequel.

Ransoming hostages

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration has embarked on an all-out effort to win release of the American hostages in Iran. While nobody can favor their indefinite captivity, the present scheme bears all the marks of a mad electoral maneuver. It would solidify Russia's position, and cause the U.S., as ransom for the hostages, to weaken its standing in both the Near East and the Persian Gulf.

The projected deal with the Iranians would include lifting economic sanctions, unfreezing assets, and supplying munitions for the war against Iraq. In effect, the U.S. would legitimize the regime in Iran.

BUT THE IRANIAN regime is a main force for destabilization in the world today. It is dominated by a band of religious fanatics bent on pushing their brand of Shi-ite Islam throughout the Moslem world.

To that end they have engaged the support of most of the wildest cards in the international deck. A notable example is the Shi-ite leadership in Syria. The Syrian leaders have just signed a security treaty with Russia, and affiliated themselves with Libya, while also serving as the main patron of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The Shi-ite offensive threatens all the Arab countries headed by leaders of the rival sect — the Sunni Moslems. Especially Iraq, where a Sunni leader — Saddam Hussein — rules over a Shi-ite majority. Saddam Hussein has moved to bolster his position by alliances with Sunni Moslem leaders in the rest of the Arab world. He has particularly cultivated the monarchs ruling the states of the Arabian Peninsula — notably Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Kuwait, and the United Arab Emirates.

Thus the Iraqis have gone into partnership with the Saudis in giving of aid to King Hussein of Jordan. Most important of all, they have staked a claim to replace Iran as the dominant force in the Persian — or, as they call it, the Arab — Gulf. It was to assert the preeminence of the Sunni Arabs in the Gulf that Iraq launched the war against Iran.

With so much at stake, Iraq is bound to continue that effort, even if the U.S. backs Iran. Only in that case, Iraq, which depends on Moscow for military supplies, would draw even closer to the Russians.

THE IRAQIS WOULD also thicken the anti-American content of their drive to influence the Arab states of the Gulf. They would move to sever American connections with Jordan and Saudi Arabia and the other oil-rich countries of the Gulf. Those countries, having seen the U.S. switch from a neutral posture to alliance with their rivals in Iran, would be all the more prone to rally to the Iraqis.

The American response to that squeeze would be the response the Carter administration has always made. Carter would try to curry favor with the Arab oil countries by pushing for a Palestinian homeland, and Arab rights in Jerusalem. The Israelis would then put up their backs, thus jeopardizing anew the peace talks with Egypt.

But the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty is the one thing the U.S. has going for it in the Near East. The war in the Gulf has not spread precisely because the only two countries in the area with a real capacity to fight — Egypt and Israel — are in the process of negotiating peace. The peace treaty, in other words, is the stopper for the whole area — the one factor now limiting conflict.

The U.S., in these conditions, ought to be very careful about pushing for quick release of the hostages.

Steroids may cause TB recurrence

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband has been using an over-the-counter hydrocortisone skin cream for a rash. I would not be concerned, except for the fact that he had a far-advanced case of tuberculosis of the lungs, which is now arrested. I have heard that hydrocortisone can cause a TB problem to emerge again. Is this true, and will his skin absorb enough of it from the cream to cause problems? — Mrs. T.L.

Your interesting question requires a bit of background. Yes, there is a danger that people who have arrested TB may have a flare-up when given steroids, such as hydrocortisone. But the most pressing concern is with steroids given by mouth or injection. It is true that tiny amounts of steroids in skin creams will be absorbed into the blood stream. In the newly-available, over-the-counter concentration (the cream you mention) it wouldn't be in sufficient quantity to cause problems. Bear in mind that amounts absorbed depend on how often such creams are applied and how much of the cream is used with each application.

The fact that hydrocortisone cream now can be purchased without a prescription is another indication of its safety. Of course, it is best to use the lowest concentration steroid that will produce the desired results in combating the rash. If your husband can switch to a lower-strength cream or reduce applications and get results, it should do so. It might be something to discuss with his doctor, who may have thoughts of his own about the rash and its treatment.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Are there any tests to determine the likelihood of a person getting arthritis? If there is, why doesn't everyone get it done, since arthritis is such a widespread disease? — N.N.

If you mean are there blood tests that may indicate a predisposition to rheumatoid arthritis, the answer is yes. There are a few blood tests that can indicate the likelihood of the person developing RA. These tests are not 100 percent accurate by any means. If they were, your testing idea might be a good one were there any medicine or therapy to prevent the onset of arthritis. There are none, so such screening tests would be pointless today but perhaps not tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have heard both ways — that rubella vaccine provides lifelong immunity, and that it doesn't, so boosters are needed. Would you please check the most recent information on it? — B.B.

The official policy for rubella (German measles) immunization calls for the single vaccine injection. However, any woman can be examined for current immunity status. The amount of antibody to the rubella virus in the blood can be measured. This is particularly important to girls who have doubts as to their immunity because of undocumented immunization. Others may be uncertain as to whether they ever contracted the actual disease in earlier life. If the blood test shows that a girl does not have sufficient protection against rubella, then she can be given an opportunity to receive the vaccine at a time when there is no suspicion of her being pregnant.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. T.O. — Your consumption of coffee is very high and it can be contributing to your annoying ear sounds. Take your doctor's advice and use a caffeine-free brand or quit altogether. If this matter of ear noises is as troublesome as you tell me, I can't understand why you won't make this sacrifice.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been on extended use of antibiotics and have recently noted a loss of hearing. It isn't that I cannot hear at all, just that I seem to have to strain at times. Can this be a result of the antibiotics I'm taking, and should I lower my dose? — Mrs. R.P.

I cannot say for sure, of course, but some antibiotics can produce this symptom. Yes, you should report it. If the antibiotic is at fault, the dose can be altered by your physician or another tried.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could a shot for measles be a cure for shingles? — J.L.

I can't think of why. Both are caused by viruses, but different kinds.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Just answer yes or no. Does smoking irritate ulcers and could stopping bring improvement? — Mrs. T.T.

A most emphatic yes to both questions.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: After 35 years, I finally kicked the cigarette habit. I want to know if there is anything to take to clear up the phlegm and congestion in my lungs? — A.W.B.

Good work. Undoubtedly your 35 years of smoking has produced chronic bronchitis. Even though you are still producing phlegm, the amount you produce will be less as time goes on. The irritation to your breathing passages has been eliminated.

How long excessive phlegm will be made is hard to say. If you continue to produce large amounts, there may be an infection present that needs treatment with antibiotics. There are medicines to dry up mucus produced in the air ways, but first see if time is the only medicine you need.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Is there any sin that God won't forgive? I wonder sometimes if God would really forgive me for all the things I have done. — L.L.V.

DEAR L.L.V.: There is only one sin that God will not forgive — and that is your refusal to accept his forgiveness, which He offers you in Jesus Christ.

It is important for you to understand why Jesus Christ came to earth and what he did. The Bible tells us that our greatest problem is sin — and our rebellion against God. It tells us that all of us — without exception — are guilty of sin and stand under God's perfect judgment as a result. "There is no one righteous, not even one; there is no difference, for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:10, 22, 23). But the Bible also tells us something else which is of crucial importance: God still loves us. Try to imagine that, if you can't in spite of the way we treat God — indifference, rebellion, disobedience — he still loves us.

And that is why Christ, God's only Son, came to earth. He came to make forgiveness possible. How did he do this? He did it by dying on the cross and taking upon himself the punishment and judgment we deserve. Jesus said, "The Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many" (Matthew 20:28). The Bible also says, "He was delivered over to death for our sins and was raised to life for our justification" (Romans 4:25).

Yes, God will forgive you for every sin you have ever committed. What must you do? First, you must acknowledge and confess your sin to God. Then you must invite Jesus Christ to come into your life, trusting Him to save you, and resolving to follow Him as your Lord and Master. If you will do that, you have God's promise of forgiveness. "Everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name" (Acts 10:43).

WARRANTLESS BREAK-INS — Former FBI high officials W. Mark Felt, left, and Edward S. Miller arrive for another day of their trial in U.S. District Court in Washington Thursday. They are charged with violating individuals' civil rights when they allegedly approved break-ins and searches without warrants at five residences of friends and relatives of fugitive members of the Weather Underground in 1972 and 1973.

KKK guerrilla warfare groups may pose threat

DALLAS (AP)—Guerrilla warfare training by paramilitary units associated with the Ku Klux Klan could lead to an outbreak of terrorism if ignored by the federal government, according to a report by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. "A clear danger of new Klan violence is more serious than ever before," said Nathan Perlmutter, director of the ADL. The ADL contended, in a study commissioned by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, that the paramilitary units were training at clandestine camps in five states. ADL officials said they sent a copy of the report to U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, and urged him to provide regular FBI surveillance of the Klan "to protect American citizens from further terrorism and violence."

FBI surveillance of the Klan was curtailed in 1976 by guidelines that require evidence of actual or imminent violence before investigating the actions of domestic groups. Perlmutter, in a statement released to the press Thursday afternoon, described members of the paramilitary units as "armed racists and pathological haters of blacks, Jews and other minority groups." Texas, Alabama, Connecticut, Illinois and North Carolina were named in the report as locations for hidden training camps. California was listed as the site of a Klan distribution center for instructional manuals on weapons and guerrilla warfare.

The "Texas Emergency Reserve," an arm of the Klan, conducts tactical exercises two weekends of each month in rural East Texas, the ADL said in its report.

AARP forum set Saturday

The American Association of Retired Persons with the Permian Basin Area Agency on Aging and the National Retired Teachers Association are sponsoring an Area Community Forum on Aging to be held at the Ector County Senior Center, 13th and Adams, Odessa, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday. The Forum is being held in connection with the White House Conference on Aging, 1981. The keynote speaker for the opening general session will be State Rep. Jay Gibson. There will be both morning and afternoon group discussions open to the public, and all persons concerned with the problems of older Americans are invited to attend and participate.

Coffee and donuts will be served by Odessa Chapter 1009, AARP. Also a light lunch will be served at noon for a small donation. Anyone wishing further information about the Forum or the White House Conference may call Edward Jones 362-1775 or the Senior Center 337-5281.

Will answer same questions

Anderson to hold own debate

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—John B. Anderson said today his own televised debate appearance next week is designed to demonstrate "to the American people that I have better answers than" either President Carter or Ronald Reagan. At a news conference, the independent presidential candidate said he would appear on the Cable News Network Tuesday night and answer the same questions posed to Reagan and Carter during their debate in Cleveland. "It is an effort to try to get — it isn't an equal time because we will never be equal to the networks — but it is the best we can do," Anderson said. He said the two-hour program made available to Cable News subscribers is an effort to show he is "a full-fledged national candidate." While the president and Republican Reagan are debating in Cleveland on the three major television networks, Anderson will be in Constitution Hall in Washington to give his answers. Aides to Anderson said the idea is to give him some broad public exposure on a night some political observers believe will be the climactic event of the 1980 presidential campaign. "After all, he's been part of this debate question from the start," said campaign press secretary Tom Mathews.

Mitchell Rogovin, Anderson's campaign lawyer, said Thursday, "It's not a perfect world. Obviously we would rather be in Cleveland." Anderson was excluded from the one-on-one debate between Carter and Reagan because of his falling position in the public opinion polls. But under a format announced Thursday, Anderson could be seen by as many as 3.5 million CNN subscribers. In addition, the network has also said that it will make its telecast available to any local television station which chooses to carry it instead of the debate broadcast from Cleveland by NBC, ABC or CBS. CNN will broadcast the Cleveland debate, then switch to Washington, where correspondent Daniel Schorr will ask Anderson the identical questions posed to Reagan and Carter. As Anderson finishes each answer, then the network will switch back to a taped-delayed telecast from Cleveland, then again switch back to Constitution Hall, where Anderson will continue to answer the same questions. The cable network show will last two hours, between 9:30 and 11:30 p.m. EST, compared to the 90-minute live Cleveland version. Constitution Hall will be filled by members of the public invited to attend and reporters covering Anderson's end of debate night.

Reagan says undecided voters are 'smoking gun' in election

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP)—It is a campaign of unlikely alliances, waged at a leisurely pace that belies the political season and blends instead with the temper of the gentle, Deep South autumn. Even now, the themes are not quite fixed and the message varies. "Sure, it's a tough job," says Ronald Reagan. "The whole election is a tough job." Perhaps. But by the standards of campaigns gone by the Reagan roadshow is a relaxed affair.

Or Wednesday, for example, the Republican presidential nominee spent a long campaign afternoon at a Mississippi home for needy, wayward children, wrapped it up for a speech for townspeople at a twilight barbecue and then flew to St. Petersburg, Fla., to spend the night.

His public appearances Thursday began at noon, with three stops on the way north to Middleburg, Va., for a four-day break in campaigning while he studies and practices for his debate with President Carter. The debate has to some extent put things on hold. It is the event that counts now, and Reagan intends to be well rested and rehearsed for the confrontation with Carter in Cleveland next Tuesday night. Reagan calls the race a close one, says undecided voters are "the smoking gun" that could spell victory in the big swing states.

Customarily, the challenger facing such a contest heads straight to those big states for a campaign sprint. Not Reagan. There has been no evident quickening of his pace in the final phase of the race.

His next to last week as a candidate took him to Illinois with 27 electoral votes and to Florida, with 17, but for one appearance in each of those battleground states. It also sent him to a cattle ranch outside Kansas City to appear before 250 enrolled and invited Republicans, which amounts to preaching to the choir. Then he spent half a day at a ranch home for needy children in northeastern Mississippi, talking and finally addressing a twilight barbecue. That week Reagan gained the endorsement of black Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., and of former Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams.

The endorsements were not notable for their enthusiasm.

HIDING IN THE LEAVES

One of the adventures of Autumn is hiding in a pile of leaves. Not really hiding, though. The fun is in poking your head out and surprising someone!

When we're growing up, every season brings its adventures. Our days are full of opportunities for having fun.

Hopefully those days will also be marked by adventures that help build character. With each passing season the soul as well as the body needs to grow.

The opportunity for youngsters whose families are concerned for their spiritual development is in religious education.

We don't belong under the debris of Fall — our convictions are the heralds of a new Spring.

Pontiff accused of stepping into Dark Ages

Don't lust, even at your wife, pope advises

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II has whipped up a storm by bidding men not to look lustfully at women, not even their wives.

Italian feminists and writers are calling him a male chauvinist because of his latest declaration on sex.

"Every day he (the pope) is taking a step backward to the Dark Ages," author Lucia Druli Dembi told the Rome daily Il Messaggero.

"This pope is turning the Catholic faith into a punitive faith," said another writer, Edith Bruck.

At his weekly general audience recently, the Polish-born pontiff offered a sweeping analysis of Christ's words on adultery, "lustful desires and adultery committed in one's heart."

He said: "Adultery in your heart is committed not only when you look with concupiscence (strong or excessive sexual desire) at a woman who is not your wife, but also if you look in the same manner at your wife."

"The husband must not use his wife, her femininity, to fulfill his instinctive desire," the pope said.

"Concupiscence... diminishes the richness of the perennial attraction of persons for interpersonal communion. Through such a reduction, the other person becomes the mere object for satisfying a sexual need and touches the dignity of the person (wife)."

Anna Eminent, a spokeswoman for a feminist group called "Universal Womanhood," said John Paul's remarks "confirm the pope is a male chauvinist."

"He talks about looking at women with lustful desires but not a word about women doing the same," she said.

Many Italian newspapers carried critical analyses of the pope's statements under such headlines as "The Sin of Looking" and "Do Not Desire Your Wife."

Marco Politi, a Il Messaggero religion writer, said the pope is pushing a "medieval point of view which we thought had disappeared after the Second Vatican Council (1962-65)."

But a Vatican-based U.S. Prelate defended John Paul's view, calling it "a legitimate interpretation which can be justified in the sense that you shouldn't treat a person as an object."

"If anything, his statement should be seen as his support for women's rights," said the prelate, who asked not to be identified. "The pope did not say the wives should wear chastity belts or anything like that."

Pia Candida, a feminist, said the pope emphasizes the negative over the positive "all the time."

"He's against the ordination of women as priests, against abortion, against contraception and now he says he is for women's dignity. I assure you we can take care of ourselves on this one," she said.

For nearly a year, Pope John Paul has used the Wednesday audiences to deliver mini-sermons on the virtues of marital fidelity, fruitful love and other problems related to marriage.

His remarks ranged from his analysis of the Book of Genesis on the mystery of creation, which appeared to be more like a celebration of sexuality, to Wednesday's interpretation of Christ's Sermon on the Mount dealing with purity of heart.

The pope repeatedly has praised loving sexuality within marriage, saying sexual relations between husband and wife are a manifestation of their union as blessed by God. In his latest declaration, however, he condemns lustful desire, which he holds can transform one partner into an object dominated by the other.

Baptists to consider world missions budget

Texas Baptists are gearing up for a record breaking number of messengers at the annual Convention in Houston Oct. 29-30 to consider a $37.4 million world missions budget and other key items.

"An 'On to Houston' campaign is being conducted to assemble 6,000 messengers," said Convention President Carlos McLeod, pastor of First Baptist Church, Plainview. The largest number of messengers ever registered was 3,777 in Fort Worth in 1964.

Increased attendance at this year's Convention is sparked also by the possibility of debate over control of institutions, according to the Baptist Standard, weekly news-magazine of Southern Baptists in Texas. The Convention owns and operates 23 children's homes, hospitals and colleges.

The Standard said in its Oct. 15 issue that "Strong statements, recently made by Houston layman Paul Pressler aimed at trustees of Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) institutions, coupled with his suggestions of an organized chain of communications, have raised the concern of some Texas Baptists as to what Pressler and his group will attempt, if anything, in the Houston Convention."

Pressler and Paige Patterson, president of Criswell Center for Biblical Studies, Dallas, have charged that some professors in Baptist seminaries and colleges do not present the Bible as the "inerrant" word of God.

In a telephone interview, Pressler vehemently denied the charges he is heading an organized effort to bring "instructed" messengers.

Declaring that the only attendance effort he's supporting is the Convention's "On to Houston" campaign, he said, "I've never brought anybody and I'm not going to bring anybody."

He also said he doesn't plan to introduce anything at the Convention.

The Convention will focus on Bold Mission Thrust, an SBC campaign to present the gospel of Jesus Christ to every person on earth by the year 2000.

Messengers are expected to accept their support of the effort through consideration of a proposed $37.4 million Cooperative Program budget for 1981. They will also elect more than 300 trustees for Convention institutions and boards and adopt resolutions on key social and moral issues.

McLeod is expected to be elected for a second term as president of the 2.2-million-member Convention.

Convention speakers will include John Bisagno, pastor of First Baptist, Houston; James Draper, pastor of First Baptist, Euless; Dr. Ray Summers, retired chairman of the religion department at Baylor University; Dr. Jesse Fletcher, president of Hardin-Simmons University; Adrian Rogers, immediate past president of the SBC and pastor of Bellevue Baptist, Memphis, Tenn.

Church women meet Friday

The Board of Church Women United will have a luncheon at 11:45 a.m., next Friday at the Canterbury Retirement Center.

The meal will cost $2.25 per person. A meeting will be held following the meal. Mrs. Ben Boadle will preside.

All board members and officers, and the presidents and representatives of the churches, are being urged to be in attendance.

The programs and meetings for 1980-81 will be discussed.

Gospel sayings are due study

DENVER (AP) — A team of New Testament scholars is starting an unusual, five-year project called the National Seminar on the Historical Jesus to determine exactly what Jesus said.

After a first meeting held this month at the Iliff School of Theology, the 14 participating scholars are to meet three times annually over the next five years to examine each of the Gospel sayings.

The Rev. Helmut Koester of Harvard Divinity School terms the project "the most prestigious and canonically sound ever." The scholars are to determine which sayings are accurate by majority vote.

Whoever will say come Rev. 22:17

Christian truth said distorted

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Speaking out against the formation of religious power blocs that have arisen in the current political campaign, the Episcopal Church's House of Bishops says "power" was the Devil's final word, not God's.

The bishops at their annual meeting said that to use "religious radio and TV and local pulpits in support of particular candidates in the name of God distorts Christian truth and threatens American religious freedom."

Church weekly backs GOPs

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Wanderer, a conservative national Catholic weekly, says the Republican party platform reflects papal teachings on social issues "much more" than does the Democratic platform.

The situation has pushed many Catholics into the "warm embrace of the Republican party," adds the independent, lav-edited publication.

Ministers' pay is at $15,726

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Church of Christ reports that the median salary of its ministers rose 7.1 percent between 1979 and 1980 from $14,690 to $15,726.

First black moderator to be seated Oct. 30

FORT WORTH — James O. Griffin, an active Disciples layman and educator, will be installed Oct. 30 as the first black moderator of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in the Southwest.

He will take office at the end of the regional (Texas and New Mexico) church's biennial assembly Oct. 27-30 at the Austin Municipal Auditorium and Convention Center. A member of Romine Avenue Christian Church of Dallas and principal of Hamilton Park Elementary School of Richardson, he has served two years as moderator-elect.

Martin Pike of Kingsville, present moderator, will speak at the assembly's opening session on "Called of God." He is the first of several speakers and Bible lecturers who will develop the assembly theme.

"Disciples Witnessing to the Kingdom."

Other major speakers will be:

- Millard Fuller of Americus, Ga., executive director of Habitat for Humanity, a non-profit organization which helps provide housing for deprived people.
- William E. Tucker, chancellor of Texas Christian University and co-author of "Journey in Faith: A History of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ)."
- John R. Foulkes Sr. of Indianapolis, director of special congregational services and new congregational establishment with the Christian Church's Division of Homeland Ministries.
- James C. Suggs of Austin, executive director of the Texas Conference of Churches.

Women's group pushes proposal

GREEN LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Church Women United, a national organization of Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox women, has issued a "Proclamation for Peace," calling on the U.S. government to limit its arms sales.

A meeting of the organization's executive council also urged the United States to work for a "nuclear arms freeze" with the Soviet Union.

NOW IN LARGE PRINT — For thousands of people, the Scriptures are a lost joy because failing eyesight has rendered them too difficult to read. Now, however, the American Bible Society has published a large-print, complete Good News Bible as part of its ongoing ministry to the visually handicapped. The new Bible promises hope and comfort to thousands of elderly readers and those with visual problems.

African bishop rues decision

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Two days after the American Lutheran Church convention decided to sell church stock in companies doing business in white-minority ruled South Africa, a black South African bishop told the convention he regretted the action.

"The very people you are intending to help and liberate will be hit hard by your decision," said Bishop I.E. Dlamini of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Southern Africa.

Coeds make bids for Miss HC title

Two beauties making bids for Miss Howard College this year are 19-year-olds Carol Morehead and Beth Boeker.

Carol, a sophomore business management major at HC, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Morehead of Big Spring. She plans to attend Texas Tech University after graduation from the local college.

This 1979 Miss Diamondback likes to play golf, swim and sew.

Miss Boeker is a business administration major at HC, with a minor in music. Her future plans will transfer her to Angelo State University upon graduation.

Beth, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Boeker of Forsan, is a piano teacher for 10 students. She lists her hobbies as reading, writing letters and participating in church activities.

The Miss Howard College Pageant, which is being sponsored by the Student Government Association, will get underway at 8 p.m. Oct. 28 at the HC Auditorium.

The theme for this year's event is "Xanadu."

Dear Abby

These Wedding Bells Will Toll, Not Ring

DEAR ABBY: Our mother recently announced her intention to marry a very fine 70-year-old gentleman who insists that he is very much in love with her. Mom, who is 66, has been a widow for three years. The gentleman (I'll call him Claude) would make an ideal companion for Mother, but here's the problem:

Claude's wife was killed instantly two years ago by a hit-and-run driver. It was a terrible shock to Claude, and he talks about his dead wife constantly. We admire him for respecting her memory, but he seems to think of very little else. As soon as Mom introduces Claude to one of her friends, he brings out several pictures of his late wife, which he always carries, and starts talking about her tragic death. Sometimes he gets emotional and cries.

Naturally, Mom is hurt by all this, but she tries to be understanding. She said when she and Claude were out last Sunday, he drove out to the cemetery to visit his dead wife's grave. (Mom had no idea where they were going until they got there.) She said he cried and carried on so bad she had to drive home.

Do you think Mom should marry Claude in December as planned?

CONCERNED CHILDREN

DEAR CHILDREN: You are wise to be concerned. Urge your mom not to rush into marriage with Claude. It is apparent that he has not yet recovered from the shock of his wife's tragic death, nor has he stopped grieving for her. And until he has, he should not remarry.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 8-year-old girl who has had a bed-wetting problem all my life. I'm smart in school and have tried to stop wetting, but nothing helped.

My mother saw a letter in your column concerning a "Wee Alert Buzzer" and she showed it to me. Then she bought one and it has helped me tremendously. Thank you very much. Don't use my real name, but it's OK to say I live in San Rafael, Calif.

DRY BED

DEAR DRY: Your letter is proof that you are indeed a smart girl. Your penmanship is excellent and your spelling flawless. But equally important are the good manners you showed by writing to thank me. P.S. Bed-wetting alarms can be purchased through the catalogs of Wards, Sears, etc.

Life in Saudi Arabia is 1948 Hyperion program topic

The 1948 Hyperion Club met Oct. 16 in the home of Mrs. Robert Stripling with Mrs. Kelly Lawrence as co-hostess.

Mrs. Merle Stewart, president, presided over the brief business meeting during which the proposed budget for the year was adopted. Twenty members were present including three new members, Mrs. Jack Alexander, Mrs. Clayton Bettie and Mrs. Ed Shives.

The theme for the year, "Let Us Take Time to Live, Learn and Have Fun," was introduced with a program presented by Mrs. Bobby Nobles. "Living With Others," Mr. and Mrs. Nobles have recently returned after living several years in Saudi Arabia.

Mrs. Nobles expressed her feelings about living with others in the Arab country by saying that "in spite of many inconveniences like the great contrast in life styles and the frequent 125 degree weather with no air-conditioning, I would love to live there again."

The Nobles lived in an oil company compound about 70 miles from the Iranian border. Though they were granted a great deal of freedom, there were limitations that had to be observed. No Christian churches existed in Saudi Arabia and Christians were told that they would be arrested if they conducted church services. Mrs. Nobles said that they did have Christmas services though, which she feels were ignored by the Saudis.

She was aware of the heavy restrictions placed on Arab women. Few were on the streets, faces were covered, they wore long garments, and never ate at the table with men and boys even though there might be guests.

Girls may go to school through the sixth grade, but not with boys. Wealthy people sometimes send their daughters out of the country for further education.

Young people never meet before marriage. "Girls are kept under lock and key," she said, "and brides bring about a thousand dollars."

The next meeting will be Nov. 20 in the home of Mrs. Stewart with Mrs. Alexander as co-hostess.

Eagle Forum will show humanism documentary

"Let Their Eyes Be Opened" is a documentary about humanism and its influences in the schools.

The film will be presented by the Eagle Forum Oct. 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

This documentary explains what humanism is, how it is antithetical to Judeo-Christian principles, and how it is influencing school curricula and young peoples' attitudes and behavior.

Appearing in the film are Dr. Paul Kurtz, author of "Humanist Manifesto II," Dr. Murray Norris, educator and author of "Weep For Your Children," Jacqueline Lawrence, researcher for the book, "Change Agents in the Schools," Dr. Onalee McGraw, author of "Secular Humanism and the Schools," Bill Robison, psychologist; Dr. Norman Dohm, gynecologist; Mel and Norma Gabler, subjects of the book, "Textbooks on Trial." Rev. David Anderson, Presbyterian minister; and Carol Trotman, teacher.

Also appearing is the writer, director, and producer, Dr. Larry T. Quisenberry, former college sociology professor and television producer.

This document has recently been shown on the 700 Club. It is a 30-minute film.

"Humanists insist since no master-mind created the universe, and that there is no personal God who gives meaning to existence," said Mrs. Nelda Reagan, president of Eagle Forum.

Mrs. Janet Wolf of Big Spring who works closely with textbooks will be on hand for an open discussion. The public is encouraged to attend.

Halloween celebration is planned by Rebekahs

The Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 met Tuesday for its regular session at 7:30 p.m.

Lillian Rhyne, noble grand, presided over the 24 members present, 14 of which were past noble grands. Thirty-seven visits to the sick were reported.

Plans were discussed for a Halloween celebration to be held at 7 p.m. Nov. 1 in the lodge hall. A covered dish dinner will be held in the office with entertainment by lodge members to follow.

The Ladies Auxiliary Patriarch Militant and the I.F.A. will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at the lodge hall.

Past Noble Grand Club meetings is set for Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Jewel Thompson, 604 W. 18th St.

Rebekahs will meet again Oct. 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the lodge hall.

Many know-it-alls don't

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 15-year-old girl who physically matured at an early age. Let's say that I'm a 15-year-old with the face and body of a 19-year-old.

At high school I don't go out with any of the guys. I'm just their buddy — a friend. Well, a few minutes from my house is Northern Illinois University. I usually hang around there after school and on the weekends. I have become very friendly with some of the football players. I know what they want from me but I don't care. I feel accepted.

One of the N.I.U. football players has become my favorite. He is always calling me, but I don't tell my mom that he is in college. She would blow her mind if she ever found out. She is always nagging me about sex, but I know a lot about birth control. Dr. Wallace, can you hear me? — T.T. Dekalb, III. T.T.: I hear you but I don't like what you are saying. Many teen girls thought they knew a lot about birth control but now they are called Mother. Stay away from the University and get involved in clubs and activities at your high school. This is a much better way to gain acceptance.

Alpha Tau Rho votes on prospective members

The Alpha Tau Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday at 7 p.m. in the home of Jayne Titsworth, Jo Anne Fzell, president, presided.

Patti Jonke read an article to the chapter in "Golden Moments" from the international office on duties of pledge training by the vice president. New prospects for membership were discussed and voted on. Final schedules were distributed for the Halloween Carnival to be held Saturday.

Mrs. Titsworth presented a program on literature and prose.

The next meeting will be in the home of Sherry Lepard, Nov. 3 at 7:30 p.m. The social committee will meet at 7 p.m.

FHA members to pick up funds for UNICEF

Young men and women of the Big Spring High School Future Homemakers of America class will be placing collection boxes in various businesses and going door to door Monday and Tuesday evenings, collecting funds for UNICEF.

Next Friday is National UNICEF Day, a day to remember the United Nations Children's Fund and the work it does on behalf of the world's neediest children and mothers. This year, UNICEF is celebrating 30 years of "Trick or Treat for UNICEF," young people helping children at Halloween.

Since the program began in 1950, nearly $60 million has been raised to bring food, medicine, clean water and education to children in over 100 of the poorest countries assisted by UNICEF. That need continues. UNICEF-assisted projects concentrate on providing basic human services to children and mothers, the two most vulnerable populations. Far from being exclusive, however, these projects offer a comprehensive attack on poverty, malnutrition and disease, so that the whole family and population benefit.

UNICEF works side-by-side with the local government and community in fighting these interwoven chronic problems. The basic services approach combats the problem of hunger by confronting the root causes: Unsafe water, poor sanitation, unsuitable environment, lack of education and absence of health care.

Charles Hamilton is the local FHA advisor.

Clements outlines opposition to four more years of Carter

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he has opposed President Carter since 1977 when he learned Carter was making decisions of the "utmost importance" without consulting members of the National Security Council.

"That's when I decided that he was bad for this country and he was making decisions that I could not live with and did not agree with," said Clements.

The Republican governor was asked if his opposition to Carter over national security issues had contributed to Clements' decision to run for governor in 1978, and he replied "Absolutely."

Clements, Texas campaign chairman for Ronald Reagan, was interviewed for the radio-television program "Capital Eye," which will be broadcast Sunday.

Carter to October 1977, not to 1976, when the president was elected.

A member of the interview panel, Winston Bode, said Clements stated that he had learned through sources that Carter made his decision to cancel development of the B-1 bomber without consulting the secretary of defense, secretary of state or chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Clements left his job as deputy secretary of defense in January 1977 but said he continued to go to Washington "on a fairly regular basis like once a month" to meet with Secretary Harold Brown and Deputy Secretary Charles Duncan at their invitation.

Clements was on the National Security Council in 1973-77.

Soviet dissident claims no Russia, China conflict

CANYON, Texas (AP) — Soviet dissident Aleksander Ginzburg says Russia and China have "duped" Americans into believing there is a conflict between the two countries, but if a world war erupted China would side with the Soviets.

Ginzburg told a news conference here Wednesday that neither communist country wants to fight the other because the victor could not even feed the people in the occupied country.

The Soviet human rights activist traveled to Canyon to speak to students attending a college lecture series at West Texas State University.

Speaking through an interpreter, Ginzburg said the Sino-Soviet conflict is simulated, but since the world believes the aggression is real the two countries are allowed to expand their military preparedness.

And Ginzburg, who was exiled from Russia in 1979, said that preparedness and the belief that the United States would be unwilling to fight could entice the Soviets into making a "pre-emptory strike" against the Western world in the next few years.

He said the West could win such a war if Americans had the desire to win, but he said he senses that the American people do not have the will to be victorious.

Ginzburg said if the United States had strength and power, and if people would support the president, President Carter could pursue a stronger foreign policy.

He said with the current mood in the United States if Carter involved the United States in a Middle East war "Americans themselves would eat him alive."

Ginzburg contended that Western nations cannot disarm the Soviets militarily, but said people in free countries should strive for "moral disarmament" of Russia.

President Carter's policy of supporting human rights is doing this, he added.

The dissident movement in Russia is tolerated only because the Soviets don't want to lose ground with the West, "especially in trade," Ginzburg said.

Of inflation

Reagan promises beginning of end

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan promises that if he is elected he will accomplish "the beginning of the end of inflation" by balancing the federal budget by 1983.

The Republican presidential candidate plans to explain his program in greater detail than before and condemn the economic policies of President Carter in a half-hour paid television address tonight.

Reagan returned to his home at Middleburg, Va., following a nine-state campaign tour and planned to spend the next four days preparing for next Tuesday's crucial campaign debate with Carter.

He believes Carter is most vulnerable on the economic issue and he hammered away at the president's record on the economy in appearances in Florida, South Carolina and Tennessee on Thursday. He declared to a shopping center audience at Greenville, S.C., that Carter "has given us an economic record of misery and despair unparalleled in recent history."

He said Carter has tried in recent months to cover up the seriousness of the nation's inflation by "jimmying" the statistics on wholesale prices last month. He said, too, that the president might attempt the same thing on the Consumer Price Index, which was scheduled for release later today.

Labor Department statisticians, who prepare the price indexes, have denied any improprieties in the wholesale price report.

Reagan had considerable difficulty, however, in making his point to the shopping center audience as he misspoke several times in what he was intending to say and ended his remarks on inflation by saying Carter is wrong if he claims that inflation is "turning a corner or going up" when Reagan actually meant to say going down.

Reagan refused any new comments on the American hostages in Iran, saying he didn't want to do anything to endanger their lives. Carter had strongly criticized Reagan's remarks earlier in the week when he blamed the hostage situation on Carter's policies.

Reagan said the centerpiece of his economic program will be a 30-percent reduction in taxes for Americans over a three-year period, combined with an inflation-adjusted decrease in federal spending of at least 7 percent by 1985.

He said economists who have seen the program have "given us their word" that it will succeed both in providing for increased defense spending and balancing the budget by 1983, "which should mark the beginning of the end of inflation."

Reagan had an unusually leisurely schedule during the past two days as he made only two campaign appearances on Wednesday, in Louisiana and Mississippi, and only three on Thursday.

On both days he did not do any campaigning in the morning, although aides said he was busy giving interviews.

"It's the quality of the appearance that counts, not the number of appearances he makes," said one aide.

Humor on the campaign trail

Stumping is no barrel of fun

WASHINGTON (AP) — The story you are about to read is about campaign humor. It is a short story.

It begins with Jimmy Carter worrying about the "Hollywoodizing" of Washington, should a certain ex-actor become president.

"I see every bill signing ceremony on the South Lawn taking place at night with huge spotlights," says Carter.

"I see Pennsylvania Avenue turning into the Avenue of the Stars.

"I see visiting foreign dignitaries putting their boot prints into cement on the South Lawn.

"I see the most important news-personality in America is Rona Barrett.

"And then I wake up and I realize immediately it's only a bad dream."

Then there's Ronald Reagan's way of not making personal attacks:

"You know, it's something to have a brother who is obviously a bumbler and a buffoon and yet I have to give him credit. Billy Carter hasn't complained once."

And when Carter asks Americans to trust him, Reagan tells "the spoon joke." He is reminded, Reagan says, of the Ralph Waldo Emerson line: "The more he talked about his honor, the faster we counted the spoons."

Franklin Roosevelt gave us the New Deal, Reagan says. "Harry Truman gave us the Fair Deal. Now Jimmy Carter has given us a misdeal."

That's about as funny as it gets on the 1980 campaign trail, presidential version. John Anderson, by his own staff's admission, is a poor contributor to campaign humor. Anderson is so single-minded that he once failed to notice that 40 reporters were wearing lobster bibs while covering a campaign speech.

The best campaigner of the lot — by comedic standards — is Vice President Walter Mondale.

Ronald Reagan, he says, bears the same relation to the American working man as Colonel Sanders does to the American chicken.

He describes Reagan changes in long-held positions as "a strategy of selective political amnesia" and criticizes Reagan's admiring references to Franklin Delano Roosevelt with: "If Reagan wants to emerge from his cocoon, let him emerge as a hero of his own party — Coolidge, Harding and Nixon."

Mondale also thinks Republicans "are spending so much they are helping the economy" and lists the groups backing Reagan's election as "the Flat Earth Society, the Committee to Stamp Out Dancing, and Americans United Against Charles Darwin."

Along that line, the vice president comments Reagan for airing doubts about Darwin's Theory of Evolution, "thereby picking up a hot potato last dropped by William Jennings Bryan."

At times he comments "This wouldn't have happened if Reagan were alive."

Mercifully there are few examples of George Bush's attempts at campaign humor, but Reagan has a well-used (some think well-aged) supply of bons mots.

At a $100-a-plate lunch he said that "if our side doesn't win, that's going to be the regular price of lunch." And he told one audience, "I'm sure you ladies think when you go to the market it would be cheaper to eat money."

After Carter criticized Reagan for saying the country is in a depression, Reagan accused the president of hiding behind a dictionary.

"If he wants a definition, I'll give him one," said Reagan. "A recession is when your neighbor loses his job. A depression is when you lose your job. And recovery is when Jimmy Carter loses his."

Carter retorted that he has observed Reagan, muzzle in place, being led around by a group of senior advisers. "I must say they're all doing a good job," said Carter. "When he speaks you can hardly see their lips move."

Professional gag writers, such as they are, were at their best when Carter and Reagan appeared together last week, in white tie, at the head table of the annual Al Smith dinner in New York.

Carter, referring to Reagan's newly announced support of federal aid to New York City, said he had advised Mayor Edward Koch not to get too close to the Californian.

Said Carter: "The paint is still wet on his 'I love New York' button."

Reagan, in turn, said he got a telephone call recently and the voice was familiar. Imitating Carter's Georgia accent, Reagan said he was asked: "Ron, how come you look younger every day when I see you riding horseback?"

Reagan said he replied: "Jimmy, that's easy. I keep riding older horses."

Clues of ancient teeth may show where early Americans come from

By ROBERT C. RADCLIFFE
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — A man who judges people by their teeth believes he knows how Americans got where they are today.

By Americans, Dr. Christy G. Turner II means the Indians and Eskimos of the New World who already had been on hand for thousands of years when the first Europeans arrived.

Dr. Turner, whose investigations have been supported extensively by the National Geographic Society, also believes:

— That he is on the track of finding out where these earliest Americans came from — roughly somewhere in central Siberia and north China.

— That they moved from Asia to Alaska across the Bering Land Bridge by following the animals they hunted, the Eskimos with harpoons seeking whales, seals, and other marine mammals along the shore, and the Indians with spears tracking mammoth, bison, and horses inland.

— That a third group of immigrants, armed with bows and arrows, also crossed the bridge, just before the Ice Age glaciers melted enough to drown the bridge beneath rising oceans about 10,000 to 12,000 years ago.

And all of this he surmises from teeth, by painstakingly examining thousands of ancient and modern teeth from the New World and Asia.

Dr. Turner is a professor at Arizona State University at Tempe and, in the small fraternity of dental anthropologists, is one of the world's foremost explorers of this kind of history.

Dr. Turner says teeth provide about 250 clues of independent characteristics that have been passed through the generations by genes. He has concentrated on 28 major characteristics to watch for as he examines and categorizes the teeth of prehistoric and modern men alike.

Among his 28 clues are: — Shovel teeth — Insides of the front teeth or incisors are markedly scooped out or "shoveled" in the mouths of Indians and moderately so with Eskimos. Europeans' teeth never are.

"This clearly shows that all the people of the New World had to come from north Asia, where shoveled teeth are also characteristic," Dr. Turner says. "It rules out south Asia entirely and Europe entirely."

— Peg teeth — A large percentage of people from the Amur River area in northern Asia and, on the other side of the Bering Sea, Eskimos in Alaska and arctic America have third upper molars that are peg-shaped. Nobody else has teeth like this.

— Five cusps — Asians and American Indians always have five cusps (the little bumps or knobs on back grinding teeth) on their lower second molars. Most Europeans and people from southeast Asia have only four cusps.

Dr. Turner says he doesn't know of any adaptive value or purpose of these teeth differences or what triggered these gene mutations.

He is convinced these traits are "quite stable evolutionarily. As an example, he cites another trait: a tendency for some people — typical of northern Asians, but unknown among people of European background — to have lower first molars with three roots, instead of two.

His extensive research shows that 5 percent of all Indians also have this trait, those living today as well as those buried many thousands of years ago.

The three-root clue shows the Indians' ancestors came from Asia, he says, adding that he'll know where more specifically when he finds people somewhere in Asia with the same trait at the same 5 percent frequency.

In the same way, he hopes to find the original Asian homeland of Eskimos, who have a 40 percent frequency of this trait.

Dr. Turner has just finished examining thousands of skulls and teeth of early Americans in collections at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington and museums in Mexico City. Within the next year he plans to visit the Soviet Union to make comparisons with collections and data anthropologists have gathered in Siberia.

On the basis of what is known so far, Dr. Turner has come up with the following ideas of how the earliest Americans found their way to Alaska:

With the top of the world still gripped by the Ice Age, a large ice-free corridor existed, running northeast from the Lake Baykal region of Siberia along the Lena River basin and eventually to the grass-covered Bering Land Bridge.

Dr. Turner speculates that Asian ancestors of the Indians wandered through this natural corridor hunting the large grass-grazing animals like bison, horses, and mammoths that were their natural prey, crossing the center of the bridge, which was many hundreds of miles wide.

Another migration to the New World probably began in Mongolia's Amur River valley, which also remained ice-free during the Ice Ages. According to Dr. Turner's theory, ancestors of Eskimos — Amur River valley people today — crossed the bridge, moved down the valley to the sea north of Japan.

There they found millions of sea animals, all kinds of whales and seals, using the pack ice on the Sea of Okhotsk for breeding grounds. Gradually, Dr. Turner says, the Eskimos' ancestors crossed the land bridge, keeping close to the frozen shoreline and their food supply.

Dr. Turner also theorizes there was a third group migration, by a different people — hunting moose and other forest animals — who crossed just before the land bridge disappeared.

At that time, Dr. Turner believes, the climate was moderating and getting wetter, causing the spread of forests across the grasslands of Alaska and providing a corridor south through the melting ice sheet.

The third group's descendants today may be the Na-Dene peoples, Indians such as the Athabaskans who live in the forests from British Columbia north into Alaska and the Yukon Territory.

Terri Jo Cook installed as prexy of OEA chapter

COAHOMA — Terri Jo Cook was installed as president of the Coahoma chapter of Office Education Association at the regular monthly meeting held in the High School OE Lab.

Other officers seated included Karen Spears, vice president; Andrea Fowler, secretary-treasurer; Cliff Snell, reporter; Carmen Holman, historian. Each of the members lit a candle signifying the 11 purposes of OEA.

Neal Barbee and Lisa Bowen lit candles representing the first purpose, to encourage the development of occupational skills, knowledge and abilities to a high level of proficiency. Karen Boyett and Lynn Brockman went through the ritual, representing the second purpose, to develop a sense of individual responsibility. Randy Clanton and Tracy Dykes lit candles representing the third purpose, to develop leadership in the field of office education. Pam Hodnett and Kellie Kuykendall lit candles representing the fourth purpose, to provide opportunities for intelligent career choice in office occupations.

Diane Lopez and Sharon Phermeton lit candles representing the fifth purpose: to encourage the use of ethical practices in business. Sharie Shaw and Cynthia Valencia represented the sixth purpose, to allow opportunity to appreciate and implement the enforceable obligations of citizenship. Melinda White and Clint Elliott represented the seventh purpose, to provide for mental and physical health through satisfactory social and recreational activities. Darla Henry and Dalton Kerby lit candles representing the eighth purpose, to develop a healthy respect for education.

Faron Phinney and Phillip Ritchey signified the ninth purpose, to create and nurture an understanding of our free competitive, enterprise system. Janie Wallace and Karen Wolliverton lit candles representing the tenth purpose, to develop an appreciation of civic and social obligations of those engaged in office occupations. Brent Zitterkopf lit a candle representing the eleventh and final purpose of OEA, to recognize that the focus of attention is on the youth of today and their prospects for tomorrow.

There are four important committees that make up OEA — Professional, Civic-Service, Financial, and Social.

The Professional committee consists of Karen Boyett, chairman; Sharie Shaw, Phillip Ritchey, Kellie Kuykendall, and Faron Phinney. The job of the Professional committee is to plan activities that contribute to the professional improvement of the students. Such activities include guest speakers, demonstrations, panel discussions, films and field trips.

The Financial committee consists of Melinda White, chairman; Lisa Bowen, Janie Wallace, Clint Elliott, and Cynthia Valencia. The responsibility of the Financial committee is to plan activities for raising funds to support the financial obligations of the chapter. They are also responsible for planning the yearly budget.

The Civic-Service committee consists of Pam Hodnett, chairman; Brent Zitterkopf, Lynn Brockman, Sharon Phermeton, Dalton Kerby and Neal Barbee. The responsibility of the Civic-Service plan all service and civic activities which will serve the school and community, and emphasize the need for sharing with others.

The Social committee includes Karen Wolliverton, chairman; Darla Henry, Randy Clanton, Diane Lopez and Tracy Dykes. This committee plans social activities such as parties, open house, and entertainment, which are important finishing touches to professional meetings.

The officers received charms signifying their offices: Long stem carnations in green and gold were also presented to the new officers by Mrs. Ethridge. The officers also served the refreshments. The next meeting will be held Nov. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

WINNER IN STATE FAIR — A proud Lance Robinson shows off his Hereford steer, declared a junior champion in the 1980 State Fair of Texas at Dallas. ## Water shortage expected

From the parched farmlands of central Pennsylvania to the depleted reservoirs of northern New Jersey, the specter of water shortages has risen again in the heavily populated Northeast.

A dry summer and fall, combined with steady heat that drove up water consumption, have destroyed crops valued at more than $100 million and forced mandatory water conservation in some areas, officials say.

In northern New Jersey, residents have been told to cut water use. Pennsylvania's governor has called for voluntary conservation and threatened sterner steps. New York City issued a "drought watch."

Spokesmen for the National Weather Service and for New York City's water department said the situation is the worst since a prolonged drought in the Northeast in 1964 and 1965.

In most areas, the taps are still running. But water supplies for an estimated 7.5 million New Yorkers, 2.5 million New Jerseyites and 200,000 Pennsylvanians are low, officials said.

In Pennsylvania, the dryness is most critical in rural areas, said Kirk Wilson of the governor's office. Some spots are short 10 inches of rain from what they normally would expect this time of year.

Water supplies are lowest in northeastern New Jersey, dependent primarily on reservoirs rather than ground water, Nickelsberg said.

New York City on Wednesday began selling up to 2 million gallons a day to parched northern New Jersey. But the city said it will shut off the faucet Nov. 1 because New Yorkers may need the water for themselves.

A New Jersey water company official says rationing there may be needed for years if the drought imitates the one 15 years ago.

"The last drought we had, during the 1960s, lasted 2 1/2 years," said John F. Devlin of Hackensack Water Co. If current rainfall patterns continue, he said, the area will receive about 29 inches for 1980, compared with 43 inches the previous year.

The Weather Service predicted rain for the weekend, but the long range forecast foresaw less than average rainfall for 10 days. The shortage is due to a freak weather pattern, Nickelsberg said.

New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne has ordered residents of 114 north Jersey communities to cut water use to 50 gallons a day each.

New York's drought watch was issued after low rainfall and a forecast calling for little precipitation, said John Cunningham of the municipal Department of Environmental Protection.

By Thursday, New York City's water supply was down to 46 percent of its 550 billion-gallon capacity, and the city already is looking for water main leaks to prevent waste.

Howard County 4-H'er winner at state fair

Howard County 4-H'er Lance Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Robinson of Knott, exhibited the first place, 1186 lb. heavy weight Hereford steer which was later chosen as the champion Hereford steer of the Junior Steer show during the State Fair at Dallas.

Lance, along with D'Ann Hall of Ackerly, Jamie Phillips, Blair Richardson, Kevin and Duncan Hamlin, all of Big Spring, represented Howard County 4-H Clubs well in the State Fair Sheep Swine and Steer Show divisions.

The Howard County Junior Livestock Show is slated for Jan. 23-24. Lambs have to be on feed by Nov. 1 and will be validated at the Howard County Fair barns on Nov. 1. All lambs must be at the fair barns that day. Steers were validated last June.

California Supreme Court upholds death penalty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court on Thursday upheld the death penalty conviction of Earl Lloyd Jackson, in a ruling that could signal the resumption of executions in California for the first time in 13 years.

In a 4-3 decision written by Justice Frank Richardson, the court also reaffirmed the "presumed" constitutionality of the state's 1977 death penalty law and rejected various claims Jackson made concerning his attorneys and the jury.

Jackson, 22, was convicted of murdering two elderly women in Long Beach. One of the convictions was with special circumstances and led to a jury verdict of death.

The last man to be executed by the state was Aaron Mitchell, who died in San Quentin's gas chamber in 1967. He was convicted of the slaying of a Sacramento policeman.

In 5-A AAAA game at Memorial Stadium tonight Steer past meets present as big Lee Rebels invade

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

A part of Big Spring's gridiron past meets the present version tonight when the young Steer team plays host to the Midland Lee Rebels in a District 5-AAAAA encounter at Memorial Stadium, with the 1980 version of the BSHS football team being a definite underdog as the battle unfolds.

Lee will bring no players that were ex-Steers, which has not been the case twice in district action this year, but brings an ample supply of coaches that are linked to Big Spring's past.

The much larger Lee team is tutored by former Big Spring Head Coach Spike

Dykes, the last man to direct a BSHS team to a winning record. That happened in 1969. Dykes' last year on the local campus.

On the staff at Lee are such ex-Steer players and coaches as Jack Tayrien, Gary Griffin, and Van Tom Whatley.

And while that makes the teams look similar, another aspect linking the two teams is Big Spring football mentor Ralph Harris. The first year BSHS boss found his first job out of Sul Ross as coach at Runnels Junior High. It was Dykes that gave him that job and started him on what has been a successful road in the coaching field.

But the biggest similarity to most fans tonight will be the style of the teams, as they both have shown a strong liking to the ground game.

Lee boasts the top rushing team in 5-AAAAA action and the leading rusher in 210-pound junior Calvin Riggs.

The Rebels run an option type attack that is very similar to the Steers, except for the fact that they have shown more of a proficiency for playing ball control with Riggs, as well as quarterback Barry Corley and halfback Rodney Hemphill.

The Steers, meanwhile, have the second leading rusher in the district in Bobby Earl Williams, a 6'2", 185-pound junior. But while Lee plays ball control utilizing Riggs and a massive front wall, the Steers have depended more on the breakaway ability of Williams and another junior, 170-pound Richard Evans.

But for Big Spring, who the Harris Rating System has pegged as a 21-point underdog, to pull off an upset, it will take more ball control from Williams, Evans, and quarterback Tracy Spence.

And that will rest with the Steer front line, which is much smaller than the rugged Lee front, which averages around 215 pounds per man.

"We've got to make some more first downs than we've been doing," Harris said yesterday in discussing the contest. "We've got to keep the ball away from Lee and give our defense a rest, as well as winning the battle in the kicking game."

And the defense will no doubt need some rest, especially the front seven. "Lee is primarily an inside running team," Harris explained. "You know it's coming, and they know it's coming, it's just a matter of stopping them."

"And like us," Harris continued, "they haven't shown much of a passing game. Their quarterback (Corley) is an outstanding runner, but not much of a passing threat yet."

The Lee defense will give both the 4-3 and the 4-4 look, with the latter being the basic Big Spring defense when Dykes was here.

"They defend the inside run well, which is because they're so big," Harris explained. "But even with being big, they're also quick, and their linebackers are also a good crew."

The only suspect part of the Lee team appears to be in the defensive secondary, but that could be misleading.

Abilene Cooper's Lanny Dycus completed 21 of 31 passes for 260 yards in the Cougars 21-21 tie with the Rebels last week. But Dycus is making more than just the Rebel secondary look weak this year.

"Their secondary does not have the great speed, but they are very sound," said Harris. "They just make you nibble away, hoping that you can't complete the short passes the length of the field on a drive."

Harris will continue to start an extremely young team as the Steers are no

Cooper at Permian spotlights 5-AAAAA

The district championship in 5-AAAAA is no doubt taking a heavy step toward its final decision on a state playoff representative tonight in Odessa where the Permian Panthers play host to the Abilene Cooper Cougars.

Permian, unbeaten, on the season and 3-0 in district play, is the state's fourth ranked team in the AP and third in the Harris Rating System. Cooper, meanwhile, has only a 21-21 tie to Midland Lee blemishing its record. The Cougars are the defending 5-AAAAA champions.

The contest features the rugged Permian defense, which has shut out five of their six opponents, versus the rifle arm of Cougar quarterback Lanny Dycus.

In other 5-AAAAA games, Midland Lee is at Big Spring, San Angelo visits Midland, and Abilene entertains Odessa.

McIlhenny draws SMU

DALLAS — Freshman Lance McIlhenny will start at quarterback when Southern Methodist plays No. 2-ranked Texas this weekend, Coach Ron Meyer said Thursday.

McIlhenny has played in three games this season, completing four of 11 passes for 60 yards.

"All of our three quarterbacks have competed on an equal level and we just feel like we have gone with the one that has been showing the most during the past week," Meyer said.

"We feel like it is a change that will help our offense get more of a spark into the attack," he added.

McIlhenny replaces junior Mike Ford, who underwent knee surgery last season and hasn't regained his former momentum.

On the season, Ford has completed 71 of 152 passes, for 887 yards and six touchdowns. But he has been plagued with interceptions.

"I've been working hard all year and I feel like I'm ready to come in and do the job," McIlhenny said. "Austin is a terrible place to play your first game, but I think I'm prepared and I'll do the best I possibly can."

Recently, I accompanied my mother to a small town near Houston to visit relatives who were mostly born in the late 1890's. The main topic of conversation for two days was, "who died of what & who had what ailment"...it got so bad, I developed a kidney infection!...They got a good laugh when I told them & even changed the topic...for a few minutes.*** One thing they all had in common, besides age, was their valium.

My dear aunt Jenny, who is 80 yrs. young & my biggest fan, remarked that when she read "The Light Touch" that had the mid-bender, "what 50 coins total $1.00", she immediately called an "elderly" friend & asked him, "What 50 pieces of money make a $1.00?" He said dryly, "Jenny, I ain't never had an extra dollar to cut up & find out!"

It really was a wonderful trip, plus, it gave me the inspiration for this column.***

I'd like to give you the inspiration to go to BIG SPRING SEED & CHEMICAL, 602 N.E. 2nd. If your centrifugal hydrolic or roller spray pump needs repairing...bring it over...we'll service it for you. ## Spike Dykes returns with full respect

The situation is much different and he can in no way be mistaken for either Jon Voight or Bruce Dern, but when Spike Dykes brings his Midland Lee Rebels into Memorial Stadium to face the Big Spring Steers tonight, it will be a sort of "Coming Home" for the well respected football mentor.

Dykes was the last coach at Big Spring to field a winning record, that coming in the final campaign here in 1969.

Since that time, he has been a coach that has taken his skills on to what most would consider higher grounds. Leaving Big Spring for the South Texas city of Alice, he directed that school to the state quarterfinals in his second year.

That helped Dykes land an assistant coaching job on the staff of the legendary Darrell-Royal, where he stayed until DKR retired from the profession after the 1976 season.

From there, Dykes served as an assistant on the staffs at both the University of New Mexico and Mississippi State before coming back to West Texas this year to take over the reins at Lee High School.

And even though he hasn't been around Big Spring for the past 10 years, he is still popular with many of the local people.

That's what gives tonight's game a special ring for Big Spring fans, as well as Dykes.

"I have some good memories of coaching at Big Spring," he admitted with a soft part in my heart." Dykes "I love Big Spring, and it will always have a soft part of my heart," Dykes continued. "I enjoy the city and love the people there."

But it's not the people of Big Spring that will concern Dykes and his Lee Rebel football team tonight, but the Steer football team. And although the Steers have been far from world beaters this fall, they are still one of the most improved Class AAAAA teams around, as first year Head Coach Ralph Harris and his staff have worked long and hard at turning the program around.

"I'm expecting a dadgum tough football game," said Dykes, whose team tied unbeaten Abilene Cooper last week. "They play hard, and are extremely well coached. I can't say enough for the job that Ralph Harris has done. He's as fine a young high school football coach as there is around."

As a matter of fact, Dykes and Harris are no strangers. As a rookie coach fresh out of Sul Ross, Dykes gave Harris his first job. That was as a coach here at Runnels Junior High back in 1968.

Many people wonder why Dykes would want to leave the prestigious collegiate level for a return to the high school ranks, but the likeable native of West Texas explained his feelings in what could be considered the coaching theory of relativity.

"I just got a yearning to get back into West Texas and into high school coaching, and felt that Lee was an excellent job," he explained, while also admitting that the vigorous chores of college recruiting did play a role in his decision.

"It (college football) ceases to get as exciting one you've been around," said Dykes. "I did enjoy it, though."

Dykes and his big Lee team are 1-1-1 in district play, and 3-2-1 on the year. In both the tie with Cooper and a loss to Odessa High, the Rebels enjoyed 14 point leads in the early goings.

So the potential is definitely there on the Lee campus, which is probably the main reason that the Harris Rating System has the Rebels pegged as three-touchdown favorites tonight. But Dykes assured me that his team will not take the improving, but young and rebuilding Steers, lightly.

"You bet our players take Big Spring seriously," he responded to the question. "All they have to do is look at the film."

Area grid roundup 5-AA title on line as Stanton at Plains

PLAINS — The Stanton Buffaloes can take a giant step toward the District 5-AA championship here tonight when they visit the Plains Cowboys in a battle of two unbeaten powers in league play.

The Stanton team has won three contests without a loss in district play, while Plains is unbeaten in two 5-AA outings. But Plains has their backs to the walls, as they must also face Seagraves on down the road, while Stanton toppled the powerful Eagles in their league opener.

Tonight's battle appears to match the quickness of the Stanton team against the larger Plains team that has two excellent backfield returnees in quarterback James McElroy and fullback David Huerta.

They spearheaded a Plains team that defeated Stanton by a narrow 10-9 margin in 1979.

Statistically, Stanton has a slight advantage, although both teams' offense and defense are ranked in the All-South Plains top ten. Stanton has the second best defense, yielding an average of only 132 yards per game, while Plains' defense gives up 210 yards per outing.

But Plains has a slightly better offense from the statistics, averaging 311 yards per outing, compared to Stanton 283.

Plains is described by Stanton as "much bigger than us." Besides Huerta and McElroy, another stud in the Cowboys game plan is linebacker Kenneth Ruthard, who was an All-District selection at guard last fall.

Stanton will continue to operate with the elusive Curtis Williams at the quarterback position, although returning All-South Plains signal caller Craig Eiland is back after recovering from a broken bone in his leg.

"Curtis got us here," said Park. "He's done a very good job. Craig's leg is still not as quick as it was, but he'll continue to do the kicking chores."

Eiland is a proficient passer, which gives the Stanton team an advantage of using either the quick running Williams or the aerial game.

A Stanton win tonight would give the Buffaloes only two remaining regular season contests, and they would have to come away victorious in only one of those to clinch a state playoff berth.

Rugged Seagraves at Forsan

FORSAN — The Forsan Buffaloes are back in the role of the heavy underdogs as the Seagraves Eagles come to town, and coach Ron Taylor hopes his host team plays like it did the last time they were in the same situation.

That was two weeks ago when the Buffs hosted Stanton. Forsan played excellent football, trailing by only 7-0 at intermission before the depth of the Stanton team simply proved to be too much.

Seagraves entered the game with a 5-1 season mark and a District 5-AA record of 1-1, while the young Buffalo squad is 0-2 in district play and 1-6 on the year.

Forsan's opponent is always tough, and their size concerns Coach Taylor. "They are by far the biggest team we will play this year. They must be bigger than they've been in years, but not nearly as quick," Taylor noted.

"It will take just a super effort on the part of our kids to stay in the game," the Forsan coach stated. "But if we can play like we did against Stanton, we'll make it a game."

Crazy Sands hosts New Home

FACHERLY — A pair of teams that struggled for survival in the District 3-A (West Zone) race continue that fight tonight when the Sands Mustangs play host to the New Home Leopards.

Both squads lost their initial district contests two weeks ago, but bounced back in impressive fashion last Friday night. The Sands crew defeated Meadow by 34-6, and New Home blanketed Wilsons by 14-0.

New Home comes in with a season record of 3-2-2, and Sands Coach Jim White offers this description. "They are a big team with pretty good speed. But if we play like we did last week, I know we can win."

A big plus for New Home, literally, is 200-pound fullback Robert Estrada, as well as 6'2", 180-pound quarterback Mickey McClintock.

"We must stop Estrada if we are to win," White added.

The teams have one common opponent, Smyer. Sands lost by 21-8, while New Home tied Smyer.

Garden City tests Meadow

MEADOW — The Garden City Bearkats will be hoping that their wounds from a lopsided loss to powerful Klondike have healed when they travel to face the Meadow Mustangs tonight at 8:00 p.m.

The Garden City team is one that has displayed dramatic improvement over the past year when they were 0-10. They are 1-1 in District 3-A (West Zone) play and sport a season mark of 2-4-1. Meadow, meanwhile, is winless in two league starts and 2-2-2 on the year.

Both teams are relatively young, which should provide for an interesting game. At least that's the way Bearkat Coach Stu Cooper sees it.

"They're young and more our size than Klondike," said Cooper. "For us, it's just a matter of being ready. We've got the ability to beat anyone left on our schedule. In fact, after Klondike, it's going to be pretty wide open."

C-City wants rebound win

CLYDE — The Colorado City Wolves, still smarting from a 7-6 upset loss suffered at the hands of Abilene Wylie, will be trying to regroup as they travel to face a surprisingly tough Clyde team.

The loss to Wylie was the District 7-AAA opener for the Wolves, who enter the contest with a season mark of 3-3-1.

Clyde, meanwhile, went through their non-district slate with a record of 4-2. This is their league opener.

In the other 7-AAA game, Stamford plays host to Wylie.

Klondike continues zone quest

KLONDIKE — The Klondike Cougars face probably their biggest test of the competition in the West Zone of District 3-A tonight when the Wilson Mustangs arrive in this West Texas farming community.

Klondike is the lone unbeaten West Zone team after two rounds of warfare, while Wilson was upset by New Home last week. But pre-season predictors pegged the Wilson team as Klondike's biggest obstacle at repeating as the zone champions.

The Cougars of Coach Mickey Finley are a massive team for a Class A school, and they have begun to roll after a slow start. Their latest victim was Garden City, whom Klondike routed by a 48-0 score.

Grady goes for second straight

MCAULEY — The Grady Wildcats, fresh from an upset win over Borden County, go for their second straight District 2-A (six-man) triumph tonight when they visit McCauley. Kickoff is set at 7:00 p.m.

The Wildcats evened both their season and district record last week in a 35-16 romp over favored Borden County. McCauley, meanwhile, suffered a 59-6 loss at the hands of Trent.

Grady comes into the battle with a 1-1 district record and a season mark of 3-3. McCauley, located between Snyder and Roby, is winless on the season.

Hercules Weaver loose as title bout nears

SUN CITY, 30p-hut-swana (AP) — A clowning Mike Weaver and a stolid Gerrie Coetzee have passed perfunctory medical examinations for their World Boxing Association heavyweight title fight Saturday.

Coetzee, the 25-year-old South African challenger, and Weaver, 28, the WBA champion, were examined Thursday in front of reporters, photographers and several hundred giggling guests at the Sun City resort hotel in the African bush land.

The event took place in a 650-seat theater normally used for Las Vegas-type musical shows featuring chorus girls dressed only in feathers and smiles.

An unsmiling Coetzee wore yellow and brown warmup clothes provided by the South African hotel chain which owns Sun City and which is sponsoring the scheduled 15-round fight slated to start at 4:30 p.m. local time (11:30 a.m. EDT.)

Weaver, wearing sports clothes loaded with company endorsements, wasn't his usual aloof self during his examination. The rippling muscles that brought him the nickname "Hercules" caused a stir among many in the audience, including whistles from women.

Weaver, an ex-Marine from Los Angeles, smiled, stuck out his tongue, struck fighting poses and listened to his heartbeat through the stethoscope.

Rodrigo Sanchez, the Panamanian president of the WBA, announced that the referee for bout will be Jesus Celis of Venezuela, a veteran of 42 world title fights.

The judges will be Har-modio Cedeno of Panama and Ove Ovesen of Denmark. The fighters will use 10-ounce gloves and the scoring will be on the WBA's 10-point must system.

A hotel spokesman announced that it was almost certain that the new 16,000-seat stadium erected on the hotel grounds for the fight will be sold out.

The bout will be televised on a tape-delay basis in the United States by CBS, and in England. Promoter Bob Arum said television rights had been sold to other countries as well.

Weaver will get a purse of $2.2 million plus 40 percent of the television rights. Coetzee gets a $200,000.

Most of the spectators will be South Africans, who are long accustomed to having their sporting events shunned by most of the world.

South African athletes are denied participation in many international events because of their nation's white minority rule and system of racial segregation.

Forsan JHS takes 8-0 win over GC

FORSAN — The Forsan Junior High Buffaloes increased their season record to 5-2 here Thursday evening by taking an 8-0 win over Garden City JHS.

It was a defensive struggle, with the only points resulting in the third period. Shane Forrest hit paydirt on a two-yard run for the Forsan team, with Gary Little running for the two-point conversion.

Forsan returns to action next week in their finale when they play host to Robert Lee.

doubting looking to next year in regards to having a chance at the 5-A AAA title chase. A total of four seniors will start defensively, with the same amount drawing starting nods offensively.

There are some minor changes in the Bovine lineup tonight, but the most noticeable one will be with Williams. A regular two-way starter that was held out of part of the Permian game for disciplinary reasons, he will be back in his regular role, as well as having the added chores of returning all punts and kickoffs.

"We just want to give Bobby Earl a change to get out in the open field and do what he does best," Harris added.

For those of you that have missed the Steers this year, Williams in the open field undoubtedly causes a few gray hairs for opposing coaches.

While Lee comes into the game fresh from a surprising, yet disappointing tie with Cooper, the Steers will be trying to regroup from a 42-0 shellacking from the state's number four ranked team, Odessa Permian.

The Big Spring team had played very much improved over last year in their first five games, but the Permian team simply dominated play.

Harris feels that the Steers have overcome the mental strain that in many cases ruins a team after such a lopsided loss, but that he himself has been slow to recover.

"The kids, as well as the coaching staff, really came back and worked hard this week. But I didn't come back with a great attitude. In fact, I didn't do the type of job that I should be doing," he admitted. "But the coaching staff and the kids have picked me back up, and I'm ready for Friday night."

There is no doubt that the Lee team has much more physical prowess than the young Steer team, but that doesn't mean that it's an automatic W for the Rebels.

"There are three things that I see as very important for any game, but especially against Lee," Harris stated. "First, we've got to make some first downs and keep the ball away from their running game. Second, we must avoid turnovers in our own territory. And third, we must win the kicking game."

"If we execute these three things, we'll have a good chance against Lee," Harris philosophized. "But if not, it will be a tough night."

SWC Roundup

DALLAS (AP) — A little national prestige and a lot of regional pride will be at stake Saturday in four Southwest Conference football games.

Saturday's schedule in order of CDT starting times with full-season and SWC won-lost-tied records in parenthesis:

SMU (4-2, 1-2 in SWC) at TEXAS (5-0, 2-0 in SWC), 1 p.m. — Longhorns going for 6-0 start — last four times they've done that, they finished with perfect regular seasons, winning national championships in '63 and '69 ... Texas currently ranked second in AP poll ... teams meeting for 60th time with Texas holding a 36-19-4 series lead, winning the last 13 ... Mustangs' last win over Horns was their 1966 championship year ... Texas has won 20 of last 21 at Memorial Stadium, has lost only five at home since Mustangs did it 14 years ago.

RICE (2-4, 1-2 in SWC) at TEXAS A&M (2-4, 1-2 in SWC), 7:30 p.m. — Teams renew rivalry for 65th time as Owls make first visit to expanded Kyle Field where record crowd is expected ... Aggies trying to rebound from 46-7 loss to 11th ranked Baylor last week ... Rice lost close one at home at Tech, 10-3 ... A&M leads series 35-26-3 with a six-game series winning string to protect ... Last Rice win was 1973.

BAYLOR (6-0, 4-0 in SWC) at TCU (0-6, 0-3 in SWC), 2 p.m. — Bears seek to become first Baylor team in history to win first seven games after tying record of six straight shared by five other Baylor teams ... Bears ranked 11th in Associated Press writers poll — which is nothing new for TCU: Baylor is Frogs' fifth foe to be ranked at some point this season ... Bears led SWC and fourth nationally in total offense (459.2 yards per game), also lead SWC in total defense (247.7), rushing offense (184.7) ... Baylor has won last six against Frogs' longest streak for Bears in series that began in 1899 ... TCU has all-time lead at 42-37-7 and leads in SWC series by 30-20-3.

ARKANSAS (4-1, 1-1 in SWC) at HOUSTON (3-3, 2-1 in SWC), 7:30 p.m. — Last year's Southwest Conference co-champions meet for seventh time, looking to break 3-3 series deadlock ... both teams trying to avoid fatal second loss, which history shows eliminates a team from championship hopes ... Cougars appear recovered from 1-3 start with back-to-back SWC wins over A&M and SMU ... Arkansas riding four-game win streak after Sept. 1 loss to Texas on national television ... Razorbacks ranked 15th in AP writers poll ... and third in SWC ... Cougars have won two straight from Arkansas after Arkansas won first two SWC meetings.

QUIET MOMENT — Philadelphia Phillies leftfielder Greg Luzinski undresses quietly with his son Ryan in the Phillies clubhouse after Tuesday night's World Series clincher. Luzinski, a slugger, was used sparingly, often only as a designated hitter.

Winfield to NY?

By the Associated Press

Amid reports that Dave Winfield will not remove his name from the baseball free agent list, the slugging San Diego outfielder admitted Thursday that he had dinner last week with New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

"Yeah, we met," Winfield said. He confirmed that they got together last Friday in a Minneapolis restaurant "because he (Steinbrenner) wanted to meet me as a person."

And while that report was circulating on the East Coast, baseball's most coveted free agent was quoted on the West Coast as saying he would not change his free agency status.

"It's not a matter of killing the deal (a proposed New York-San Diego trade), it's just that there are a lot of persuasive people (club owners) out there, and I want to hear what they have to offer," Winfield was reported as saying in San Diego.

The New York Yankees apparently have encountered some difficulty in their attempt to make a trade for Winfield, and their failure to do so could result in his being included in the talent pool for the Nov. 13 re-entry draft.

If the Yankees are unable to reach an agreement with San Diego, the slugging Padre outfielder would remain as one of 27 players who have opted for free agency.

This could eliminate the Yankees from contention for Winfield's services because a player in the pool can be drafted by only 13 teams.

Last minute score boosts Runnels to 6-0 triumph over Coahoma JHS

COAHOMA — The Runnels Yearlings wasted some scoring opportunities in the contest, but not when it counted the most in taking a 6-0 win over the Coahoma eighth graders in grid action here Thursday evening.

Runnels had the ball five times inside the Coahoma 30-yard line in the game, but it was not until quarterback Jay Pirkle passed 15 yards to Tommy Gartman with 11 seconds remaining that the Yearlings scored.

That scoring play was set up when the Coahoma punter simply missed the pignisk late in the contest, with Runnels recovering on the Bullpup 25.

Three plays later Pirkle connected with Gartman for the game winner.

The win allowed the Yearlings to remain unbeaten at 4-0, while the loss was the first for the Coahoma bunch after five victories. Runnels returns to action in Sweetwater next Thursday.

A big credit for the Runnels win goes to the Yearling defense, which limited their Coahoma foes to only 17 yards rushing and 47 total yards.

That defense consists of ends Ruben Gonzales and J.D. Williams, tackles Randy Rawls and Saiz, linebackers Chris Lamb, Larry Rodriguez and Gartman, cornerbacks Mike Padron and Chris Harwood, and safeties Derek Logback and Jay Pirkle.

The Runnels team was playing without the services of ace lineman Doug Walker, who broke his toe in a street game of football earlier in the week.

The Coahoma coaches praised the offensive play of Shawn Justice and Junior Yanez, while defenders Gary Anderson, Steve Hector, Mark Bennett and Billy Brant received praise.

Greenville loses 5 games in one minute

PLANO, Texas (AP) — The previously undefeated Greenville Lions lost five high school football games in one minute.

Berkner and Richardson Pearce high schools.

The 6-0 record is now 1-5 for the season and 1-2 in district play.

Only its stunning 10-7 upset victory over heavily favored Plano remains in the win column. A season of winning was erased in a moment by a University Interscholastic League district committee ruling.

The committee said the school must forfeit five games because one player was older than UIL rules allow.

"We were expecting it, so it was no surprise," said Lion Coach Pittman Keen. "From the very start it was the only thing that could be done. The minimum penalty was forfeit from the very start. We knew that it was going to happen, there couldn't be any other plea because we did have an ineligible player."

The player, senior offensive tackle John Byrd, did not play in the game against powerhouse Plano, a win that had given Greenville sole possession of first place in District 13-5A.

But that was before the seven-member committee, in a closed-door meeting at the Plano Independent School District building, decided that Greenville must forfeit victories over McKinney, Tyler Lee, Denison, Richardson

Knicks return to glory play; Spurs show new look in win

By the Associated Press

The glory years of the New York Knicks are well documented in the annals of the National Basketball Association, and if those championship teams of 1969-70 and 1972-73 are to be remembered for nothing else it will be for their ability to make the big play.

The stars of that era — Willis Reed, Dave DeBusschere, Walt Frazier et al — have departed, but the young Knicks ripped a page from the book of their predecessors in a 109-107 overtime victory Thursday night against Boston. And their reward was undisputed possession of first place in the NBA's Atlantic Division.

First the Knicks, 4-1, got a 3-point goal from guard Ray Williams with 11 seconds remaining to force the overtime. Then forward Campy Russell tossed in the winning basket with 18 seconds remaining in overtime.

But it took still one more clutch effort, center Bill Cartwright's rejection of a layup by Boston's Chris Ford with three seconds remaining in the game played at Hartford, Conn.

In the only other NBA action Thursday night, San Antonio increased its lead to 2 1/2 games in the Midwest Division with a 128-109 victory over Golden State, and Kansas City turned back Houston 105-96.

Spurs 128, Warriors 109

"The Spurs are now a big team and play a big man's type of game," said Golden State Coach Al Attles after his Warriors became San Antonio's fifth straight victim.

Attles said the San Antonio defense played a key role in the game, and the statistics were illustrative of that. The Spurs forced the Warriors into some poor shots in the second period, and rolled up a 34-21 advantage to break the game open.

George Gervin led the way for the Spurs, now 6-1, with a game-high 25 points. James Silas chipped in with 16 points and Reggie Johnson had 15 for San Antonio.

Kings 105, Rockets 96

Kansas City had too much offense for Houston, which couldn't cope with Otis Birdsong, who pumped in a game-high 37 points. The Kings spotted the Rockets a first-period lead but forced them into nine second-period turnovers to reverse the tide.

Birdsong got help from Jo Jo White, who scored all 12 of his points in the decisive second period, and Phil Ford, who added 16.

Moses Malone led the Rockets with 30 points

Cooper deals serious blow to Steer volleyball team

ABILENE — The Abilene Cooper Cougars girls volleyball team dealt a big blow to the Big Spring Steers second half title chances here Thursday night, taking a 15-10, 15-5 triumph.

The loss was the first in five second half starts for the Steer girls. It allowed the Cooper team to up their mark to 4-1. Both Big Spring and Cooper still trail San Angelo, who has a 5-0 second half mark.

Big Spring had a big loss in the first set when Bea Magers sprained her ankle and was out for the remainder of the night. But Steer Coach Patti Purser made no excuses.

"We just couldn't play offense," she said. "We got our serves in fine, but did not play well otherwise on of-

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make new acquaintances who can help to enrich your life in many ways. Attend a group meeting that is worthwhile.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take part in new activities that are fine for you but first know all the facts concerning them. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your mate may have a change of attitude, so go along with new ideas for best results. Take it easy tonight and express happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show more interest in civic affairs and gain the respect of others. Make this a most productive day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Improve your environment so that it is more inspiring and brings you greater comfort. Come to a better understanding with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to what a good friend has to suggest for greater pleasure ahead. Take health treatments and improve your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get rid of whatever is causing disharmony at home and be happier in the future. Put your talents to work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to study a new project well before you put it in operation. Don't take any risks that could prove costly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make long-range plans that could give you added income in the future. Come to a better understanding with family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are likely to be upset about matters you can't change, so concentrate on whatever brings you inner peace.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can understand both sides of a situation, so teach to stand up for what is right and success and happiness will follow. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Relatives sue funeral home

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The relatives of two women buried in Orange Grove in Jim Wells County have sued a funeral home, alleging negligence for exhuming the bodies and moving them to Okmulgee, Okla.

Marvella Dodson, Virginia Hines and Emma Jane McLane filed the suit in state district court and named Holmgreen Mortuary in Alice as defendant.

The women claim their grandmother and aunt, Virginia Sanders and Pauline Stovall, specified in their wills to be buried in Orange Grove.

According to the suit, on June 27, 1979, the bodies were removed after a son of Mrs. Sanders requested that they be reburied in Oklahoma.

In response to the suit that the woman's son was next-of-kin and had legal jurisdiction to order the bodies be moved.

Cranes arrive at home

AUSTWELL, Texas (AP) — Whooping cranes are arriving back in their winter home at the Aransas National Wildlife refuge near Corpus Christi.

Refuge biologist Steve Labuda said 20 adults and one juvenile have migrated from Canada, where they spend the summer. Eleven cranes flew in Saturday just ahead of a cold front that pushed into South Texas, he said.

"If all the birds and all the chicks make it, that is at least 83 birds," he said. "We will be expecting them until the first part of December."

Three winters ago, the refuge had 70 birds and their numbers have increased every year. The graceful creatures are protected by law and were once close to extinction.

Castro falls off truck

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fidel Castro had an accident here Wednesday.

Castro was sitting on the back of a flatbed truck eating chips and drinking a soda when he fell off at an Interstate 35 access ramp and hit his head.

Castro, 16, was listed in fair condition at Brackenridge Hospital with cuts.

Neighbor sues Willie Nelson

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The cats and dogs are fighting and the BBs are flying. Chaos has set in since Willie Nelson bought the Pedernales Country Club, according to an upset neighbor.

Allie Peyton, 72, has filed a $250,000 lawsuit to stop Nelson and the manager of his golf course from bothering Peyton and his wife. The retired lawyer's suit claims "peace and tranquility" ended when Nelson bought 10 of the 15 condominiums in the Briarcliff community in July.

Peyton said Larry Trader — the golf course manager — moved into the apartment next to his. Trader and "live-in companion" Barbara Smith regularly have caused disturbances, according to the suit. Miss Smith's dogs have kept the Peytons' cats from eating on the Peytons' patio.

Mrs. Peyton used a BB gun to try to keep the dogs away. That brought a heated note from Nelson:

"To whom it may concern. Next time I here (sic) of you or anybody shoots at my dog or anything else on this property (sic) you will answer to the law or me. Sincerley, (sic) Willie Nelson."

Illegally restrained?

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for William Starr Jordan, charged in three Oklahoma slayings and three Texas robberies, asked a district court here to release him from jail because he "is being illegally restrained."

The petition for a writ of habeas corpus says Jordan has not received extradition papers from Gov. Bill Clements' office. Failure to provide the documents is a violation of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure, the petition said.

Jordan was arrested in San Bernardino, Calif., in July and brought to Texas.

As campaign rolls on Hostage issue is a problem

By The Associated Press

Reagan's concern for the 52 American hostages to stop him from talking about the question of the captives in Iran. Sources in the Republican's campaign say they are simply perplexed over how to deal with the sensitive issue.

The Reagan camp knows — or at least believes — the release of the Americans before the Nov. 4 election would help President Carter and hurt the Republican nominee. But GOP campaign officials can hardly make that a campaign issue.

The answer, thus, is silence. But the Republicans have not succeeded in keeping everyone in their camp quiet.

One Reagan adviser, Benjamin Fernandez, said at an Atlanta news conference Thursday that he thinks it would be better "for the Republic as a whole" if the hostages were released after the election.

Fernandez, an unsuccessful presidential candidate in the Republican primaries and now an adviser to Reagan on minorities, also said: "Somewhat belatedly, Carter is doing everything possible today to secure the release of the hostages prior to November 4, hoping to create an emotional high leading to four more years in the White House."

Independent candidate John Anderson also discussed the hostages Wednesday, calling on Carter to disclose all details of his efforts to free the 52 Americans who — incidentally — will have been in captivity exactly one year on Election Day.

As for Reagan, he attacked Carter mostly on the economy Thursday and planned to do the same tonight in a paid television speech, spending the rest of the day readying for his debate with Carter next Tuesday.

Carter was campaigning today in New Jersey and Michigan, and Anderson was touring a steel plant in Buffalo, N.Y., before campaign stops in Massachusetts.

The independent candidate, cut out of the debate by the sponsoring League of Women Voters, has in effect been put back in it, at least for some television viewers, by the Cable News Network. The fledgling cable network plans to use a tape-delay technique to allow Anderson to answer questions along with Carter and Reagan, and broadcast the results to the 3 1/2 million homes it serves. It also said it would offer its two-hour program to local stations who want to carry it.

On Thursday, Anderson said in Detroit that Carter has pulled a "veil of presidential secrecy" over the hostage issue.

The Republican congressman challenged the president to immediately disclose all that he has done or plans to do to free the hostages. "It is incumbent upon the president to tell us what his plan is," Anderson said.

"I don't think that we want to feel that we have decided this election on the basis of some sleight of hand that has gone on, where moves have been made and decisions taken and concessions made that we don't know about when we go into the polling booths on the fourth of November," he said.

Anderson had earlier handled the hostage issue gently, saying he would not criticize Carter for fear of jeopardizing any negotiations.

Now Reagan is being quiet — that is, after earlier in the week Carter accused him of playing politics with the issue, he accused Carter of the same and said he wouldn't talk about the hostages with the lives of 52 human beings at stake.

Privately, Reagan's aides say the hostages are simply a no-win topic.

One aide, speaking of the hostages' possible release, said: "I don't know exactly how it would cut, but I know in my gut it wouldn't be good for us."

Reagan has said that he, like all Americans, would welcome the hostages' release as soon as possible, and the aide said the best the Republicans could do if they were freed is to applaud — they change the subject.

The Republican hit at Carter's record on the economy in Florida, South Carolina and Tennessee on Thursday. He told a crowd at a Greenville, S.C., shopping center that Carter "has given us an economic record of misery and despair unparalleled in recent history."

Trudeau's plan clears first hurdle

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's constitutional package cleared its first hurdle in the House of Commons early today after opposition Conservatives rushed the Speaker's chair and sang the national anthem to protest Trudeau's cutoff of debate.

Most New Democrats, who had voted with the Conservatives against limiting debate, joined with Trudeau's Liberal majority to pass by a vote of 156 to 83 a motion to send the constitutional proposals to a committee of 15 members of Parliament and 10 senators for study and possible amendment.

The Liberals want the British Parliament to add a charter of human and language rights and a controversial two-part amending formula to the 113-year-old British North America Act before sending it to Canada.

The British North America Act is currently Canada's constitution and Trudeau wants Canadian control of it. But most of Canada's 10 provinces fear Trudeau's package will sap them of political clout.

The vote came shortly before 2 a.m. EDT after the entire conservative caucus joined in singing the Canadian national anthem, "O Canada," and about six Conservatives protesting closure, or suspension of debate, rushed the Speaker's chair to demand a chance to speak.

The efforts of Deputy Speaker Lloyd Francis to restore order were drowned out by shouts of "Totalitarianism" and "We have the right to be heard."

One Conservative began making a speech and another crossed the floor to ask Trudeau to call off the closure motion and let the opposition speak.

Relative calm returned only when the traditional division bells began ringing through the halls of Parliament to summon members for voting.

The entire Conservative caucus left, then returned. Trudeau and opposition leader Joe Clark, who sat in the Commons most of the day, got loud ovations from their colleagues.

The first vote — on a Tory amendment to extend the Dec. 9 deadline for the completion of the committee's work by two months — was defeated 134 to 113 as the New Democratic Party sided with the Conservatives.

Away with political niceties

Election is close; candidates getting nasty

With the race seemingly getting closer as the Nov. 4 election draws nearer, President Carter and Ronald Reagan are more and more doing away with political niceties. Reagan is calling Carter "incompetent" and the president is saying the Republicans are spreading around "horse manure."

The comments came Monday as a New York Times-CBS poll was released showing the president 1 percentage point ahead of Reagan. CBS said the race was still too close to call, but it was the first major poll putting Carter ahead.

Carter made his "horse manure" remark to a crowd in Waco, Texas, as he displayed a pair of cowboy boots he said had been given him by Democratic Rep. Jack Brooks of Texas.

"I grew up on a farm and I know you need boots for things besides stomping Republicans," Carter said. "Republicans have a habit of spreading a lot of horse manure around right before an election, and lately, as you also know, it's been getting pretty deep all over this country."

Reagan, speaking at Centenary College in Louisiana, said of Carter: "The man who is asking four more years is incompetent to do the job."

Carter and Reagan also traded more jabs over the hostage issue, while independent candidate John Anderson said in Washington he hopes the hostages can be released "immediately" and added:

"To whose political advantage that injures is of little consequence as far as I'm concerned."

Anderson also said in an interview with The Associated Press that he may run for president again in 1984 as head of a third political party.

At the same time, he continued to insist he can win this year, but he also said the two-party system could have such a strong grip on voters they may not accept his bipartisan concepts.

The independent candidate was campaigning in Michigan and New York today, while Reagan was again trying to gain votes in Carter's native South. The president was back in the White House for the day.

Carter's showing in the Times-CBS poll was 39 percent, with 38 percent going to Reagan and 9 percent to Anderson.

In a similar poll late last month, Reagan led 40 percent to 35 percent for Carter, with Anderson at 9 percent. CBS noted that the poll has a 3 percent margin of error, making the race too close to call.

Carter, in Texarkana, Ark., on the Texas border, chided Reagan for claiming to have a "secret plan" to get the 52 American hostages out of Iran, comparing this to Richard Nixon campaigning for president in 1968 saying he had a plan to end the Vietnam War.

"Well, here it is 12 years later, and we still don't know what Mr. Nixon's secret plan was to win the Vietnam War. Now, how many of you Texans with sound judgment familiar with history believe that Ronald Reagan has a secret plan to get the hostages back?" Carter asked.

Reagan, in his comments Tuesday, did not actually say he had a "secret plan" but did say he had some ideas on how to free the hostages.

On Wednesday in Shreveport, La., Reagan blamed administration policies for the plight of the hostages but said he wasn't going to talk about the issue any more "with 52 human beings at stake."

"I'm not going to comment on this any more," he said, adding it was "obvious" that the Carter camp "tried to make a political issue of this."

Reagan said Carter was using "reprehensible and unthinkable tactics" but conceded that the president's efforts to paint him as war-like were hurting the Republican campaign for the White House.

"It's been effective in creating a stereotype of me," he said. "It is a stereotype. I don't think anyone in this country is more in favor of peace than I am."

Look at the World Series

Do baseball broadcasters babble?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Somewhere, hidden beneath thick layers of specious babble, pseudo-analysis and shameless promotional exploitation, there was a World Series on NBC recently. Wasn't there?

Announcing the games for NBC were two former ballplayers, Tony Kubek and Joe Garagiola, and a former umpire, Ron Luciano. Helping them was another ballplayer, pitcher Tom Seaver. Helping him was another ballplayer, pitcher Paul Moskau.

Helping viewers was the nearest radio, on which Vin Scully — not a former ballplayer, or even a current ballplayer, but a genuine, honest-to-goodness sportscaster — was calling the game for CBS Radio.

Oh, Vinny, thank you for that clear voice, for that removed-yet-interested style. Thank you for that God-granted inflection that separates the standard baseball occurrence from the good, the good from the rare. Thank you, Mr. Scully, for sparing the superlatives.

The average fan in the bleachers has a better built-in gauge of baseball than any former ballplayer. Through shrunk vocabulary or chronic fraternalism, Kubek, Garagiola & Co. are incapable of allowing a routine play its mediocrity.

In last Sunday's fifth game, Kubek slipped over the edge. Kansas City second baseman Frank White, who by grace of the announcers' poverty of imagination had made a series of "great" plays, tried and failed to nab a Philly runner. The effort sent Kubek skyward.

"The amazing thing is," Tony gushed, "Frank White almost made ANOTHER great play!"

It was Tony, too, who told us that George Brett has been just "outstanding with men on base." Unfortunately, NBC's director chose just that moment to slip a graphic on the screen indicating that Brett was hitting a meager 167 with men on base. Indeed, George proceeded to ground out.

Garagiola is the company shill. It is his job to pretend that he can't wait to see some of that garbage that he's constantly interrupting the game to promote. In Game 5, with the tying run in scoring position with two outs, Joe reckoned it was a good time to talk about NBC's third rerun of "The Outlaw Josey Wales."

Tom Seaver ("Tommy," as he was called by his broadcasting buddies) has earned the reputation as one of the best ballplayers, "color-men," perhaps because he can speak without shouting. But Tom, so terrific a ballplayer, is as bad as the others. It was Tom who uttered the first "There's no tomorrow" during the final game. When Philly catcher Bob Boone singled in a run off a good Paul Splittorff pitch, Tom knee-jerked. "Another mistake by Paul Splittorff."

Soviet attempts to get in committees a high risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Large payments allegedly made by the KGB to a former CIA agent indicate the Soviet Union was playing for "very high stakes" and expected big returns from its attempt to infiltrate U.S. intelligence watchdog committees, retired U.S. intelligence officials say.

Law enforcement officials say the agent, David Barnett, has been under investigation by the FBI and Justice Department for more than a year for a wide range of activities allegedly inspired by the Soviet intelligence agency in an effort to obtain U.S. secrets.

It was understood that the government has worked out an agreement with Barnett's lawyer under which he would plead guilty or no contest to charges expected to be brought Friday by a federal grand jury in Baltimore.

Several sources, who declined to be identified, said Barnett reportedly in his early 40s, had received a substantial sum of money from the Soviets. One source put the figure at $120,000, but the New York Times said Barnett was paid $100,000 and columnist Jack Anderson said he was paid $80,000.

"Obviously, the Soviets were playing very high stakes if those dollar figures are correct. That is an indicator of their great expectations," said one senior retired intelligence officer.

Government officials and law enforcement sources said Barnett had been an undercover agent for the CIA overseas most of the years between 1958 and 1970 and had worked part time for them on a contract thereafter, particularly in 1979.

The sources said Barnett's part-time contract work for the CIA had occurred after he was under Soviet control.

A combination of officials and sources disclosed that beginning in late 1976 Barnett had tried unsuccessfully to obtain staff positions on the Senate Intelligence Committee, the House Intelligence Committee and the three-member Intelligence Oversight Board, an executive branch panel set up during the Ford administration to hear allegations of wrongdoing by U.S. intelligence agencies.

Cord Meyer, Jr., who served as the CIA's chief of station in London from 1973 to 1977 and held high positions at CIA headquarters at Langley, Va., said of the reports about Barnett, "those are very high sums of money to pay up front."
