Reagan, Carter face-to-face at last

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Carter and Ronald Reagan campaign face-to-face, at last, tonight.

It's 90 minutes, Democratic president versus Republican challenger, for the debating championship of a campaign shadowed at the end as at the outset by the uncertain fate of the American hostages in Iran.

In a close contest for the White House, with just one week to go before Election Day, the nationally televised and broadcast debate could make or break a president.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll showed Reagan narrowly ahead in the current preferences of likely voters — but with 25 percent still undecided, and about as many saying the Cleveland debate will be a major factor in their final decisions.

The survey showed Reagan preferred by 42 percent of likely voters, Carter by 36 percent, independent John B. Anderson by 10 percent, the rest scattered or uncertain. But the poll indicated that millions of Americans have made only tentative decisions on how to cast their ballots. The margin of error was 3 percent.

Anderson, who protested bitterly and futilely when he was dropped from the debate roster, is staging his own rebuttal in Washington. He is to answer the same questions the major party candidates get in a show to be televised by Cable News Network that will include, too, the Carter-Reagan debate.

In a race so close, with the hour of decision so close, the two candidates in the real debate may well prove to be cautious, repeating familiar campaign themes, wary of the slip or the misstatement that could cost votes.

Carter campaigned his way to Cleveland and said he was ready for Reagan. The president was spending the day in his hotel, across the street from the ornate, 900-seat Music Hall debate scene, at his last-minute studies and rehearsals.

Reagan did his studying at home, at his rented estate in Middleburg, Va., before coming to the bunting-draped debate city to appear briefly at a downtown rally, then wait out the final hours until the 9:30 p.m. EST (8:30 p.m. Big Spring time) confrontation.

Four panelists were to question the candidates, whose aides tried to anticipate topics and questions, and put them to the debaters in private rehearsals. Reagan practiced with a stand-in playing Carter's role.

The questioners: Harry Ellis of the Christian Science Monitor; William Hilliard, assistant managing editor of the Portland Oregonian; Marvin Stone, editor of U.S. News & World Report; and Barbara Walters of ABC News.

Television commentator Howard K. Smith serves as moderator — as he did when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met 20 years ago in the first of the televised presidential campaign debates.

"I feel good . . . I'll be ready," Carter said as he arrived in Cleveland on Monday. He came by way of Huntington, W.Va., and a campaign stop at which he accused Reagan of shifting positions. "He has flip-flopped, depending on which audience he's facing," Carter said.

ALMOST AS RARE AS A DAY IN JUNE — Snow in October in the Big Spring area is almost as rare as the proverbial day in June but it came down in surprising volume this morning. One of the persons caught by surprise was pretty Marie Homeyer, who bundles up here to protect against the cold.

Zone changes to be discussed today

Two zone changes will be considered during today's regular meeting of the Big Spring City Council at 8:30 p.m. in City Hall.

S&R Investments Company will request a change from Parking to Retail for property at 2201 Lancaster. The firm hopes to open a health center at that location.

Jon Hillman would like to open a boot and saddle shop at East FM 700 near IS 20. The plan would entail a zone change from Agricultural to Heavy Commercial.

In other business, councilmen will: Consider claims for damages submitted by Mrs. Mark Rollins and Betty Dianne Murphy. Consider providing additional funds for the Juvenile Office.

Examine a resolution to authorize Mayor Clyde Angel to execute an agreement with the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, and to authorize payment for the repair of the boiler at the center. Discuss a contract agreement with the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Consider giving an easement to the West-Tex Telephone Company. Consider a request for a permit to keep livestock within the city limits submitted by Jon Hillman.

Examine a request to abandon Adams Street for public purposes and to convey it to Howard College.

Award bids for fencing at the North Side Park and for city uniforms.

Consider a resolution authorizing the mayor to execute an agreement with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for Tourist Development.

Second and final reading of an ordinance updating the Texas Municipal Retirement System for city employees.

Approve a plan and specifications for the extension of the railroad spur at the Industrial Park, and give authorization to seek bids.

Present five-year pins to Fire Department employees Ike Wasson and Tony Castillo.

Debate on hostages halted; will resume on Wednesday

Absentee voting close to 600

Absentee voting totals amounted to 589 in the office today of County Clerk Margaret Ray.

Deadline for voting absentee is Friday at 5 p.m. Bring registration cards to Mrs. Ray's office to vote if you have a valid reason to vote absentee.

A total of 647 ballots have been sent out in the mail with 239 returned.

A total of 65 ballots were signed in the office Monday.

holiday but is scheduled to resume Wednesday.

Sources in Tehran close to the debate said it was likely to continue for several more days or longer because of conflicting views on the demands that should be made on the United States for the hostages' release and whether all 52 captives should be freed together.

The sources said a large number of deputies still favor taking some of the Americans as spies and have pledged to drag out the debate as long as possible.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John H. Trantner reiterated earlier U.S. government warnings that putting any of the hostages on trial "would have grave consequences for Iran."

Freed prisoners return to U.S.

MIAMI (AP) — Thirty Americans released from Cuban jails — after up to 11½ years of captivity — were home at last today, and even the five who returned to the arms of the law were glad to be back in the United States.

"The U.S. jails will look like a country club, a paradise," compared to Cuban prisons, said Melvin Cale of Detroit, who faces hijacking charges along with three others who arrived Monday to the cheers of a flag-waving crowd. A fifth man was held as a parole violator.

About 200 relatives, friends and supporters — some wearing yellow ribbons — cheered as the chartered Boeing 737 touched down at suburban Tamiami Airport after the flight from Cuba.

"He looks so great to us! He's home! He's home!" shouted Earl Dacus of Jonesboro, Ark., as he and his wife hugged their son, John. "I have his plane ticket right here. We're taking him back to Arkansas. We're going home. We've been partying for two weeks and the biggest party is tonight."

When Walter Clark of North Miami

"Oh, I'm ecstatic! It's the happiest day of my life!" Mrs. Clark said as her husband, who was jailed on an immigration charge, waved.

"It's the greatest country in the world," Tony Bryant, an acknowledged hijacker and former Black Panther Party member who was among the five held by U.S. officials, said of the United States.

Ten federal marshals accompanied the flight from Havana. Bryant and four others were led from the jet in handcuffs and taken to a federal facility in Dade County.

Cuban President Fidel Castro announced Oct. 13 that he was pardoning 33 Americans of alleged offenses ranging from "illegal entry" to drug smuggling to air piracy.

U.S. officials said three of the 33 decided to stay in Cuba. They were identified only as Charles Hill, Jeffrey John Hoban and Lester Perry. Authorities said Hill hijacked a plane to Cuba in 1972 and was later released, but landed back in jail for passing bad checks. No other details about them were available.

Some relatives of the freed prisoners criticized President Carter, the U.S. State Department and other officials, saying they lacked interest in the jailed Americans.

"The State Department had nothing to do with them getting released," said Christopher Contino, whose brother Mark was freed. "Our congressman and Fidel Castro were responsible for bringing them home."

The 30 men looked somewhat gaunt but seemed in relatively good physical shape. They complained of psychological harassment by Cuban authorities, meager diets of "fish scraps and bread" and said they had trouble communicating with relatives while in jail.

William Dawson, a 50-year-old retired Navy captain whose shrimp boat strayed into Cuban waters, said he was jailed after the Cubans said they found marijuana seeds on his boat.

"It was hell in every way," he said of his time in Cuba.

Death penalty unconstitutional

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court ruled today that the state's 1979 death penalty statute is unconstitutional because it offends decency and would be "arbitrarily and discriminatorily applied."

The ruling, according to the court's summary, spared four men awaiting trial for first-degree murder who could have been executed if found guilty.

The opinion on the validity of a 1979 law reinstating capital punishment was sought by Suffolk County District Attorney Newman A. Flanagan.

The state's highest court had found several previous Massachusetts death penalty laws unconstitutional because the statutes imposed "cruel and unusual" punishment.

The latest opinion was written by Chief Justice Edward F. Hennessey. One justice, Francis J. Quirico, dissented.

One of the most coveted awards in the optical society has come to a Big Spring resident, Charles W. Neefe.

Neefe, owner of the Neefe Optical Lab at 811 Scurry Street, is the recipient of the Contact Lens Manufacturers Association 1980 Joseph Dallos Award.

The presentation was made at the awards banquet at the organization's annual meeting held Oct. 22-25 in Seattle, Wash.

Neefe is a past president of the Contact Lens Manufacturers Association and a member of the Contact Lens Society of Texas and the Optical Society of Texas.

The Big Spring resident also holds 42 patents in the ophthalmic area, including bifocal contact lens, and aspheric contact lens, as well as patents involving polymers for contact lens materials.

Author of numerous scientific articles in the field of ophthalmic optics, Neefe has been extensively involved in the development of conventional hard contact lenses, intra-ocular lenses, and new materials and designs for hard contact lenses and spectacle lenses dating from 1943 to the present.

The CLMA Dallos Award is given to one or more individuals selected by the board of directors for "Outstanding Contributions to the Development and Advancement of the Contact Lens Industry and for Service to Humanity."

It has been awarded to only ten other individuals since its inception in 1972.

Action/reaction: Pac 5 blues

Q. Which of the PAC 10 teams are on probation and won't be allowed to play in bowl games?

A. A full half — it's now being called, affectionately, Pac 5. U.C.L.A., Southern Calif., Oregon, Arizona, and Arizona State are the recipients of a conference rap on the knuckles. This has nothing to do with the NCAA, but is strictly a conference sanction, which is why you still see them on television.

As to her dedication to her art, Blair said "I try to paint some every day; sometimes as much as four or five hours. Painting is never a bore to me... it is new every day."

Automaker tries real estate business

DETROIT (AP) — A faded Detroit neighborhood near General Motors Corp. world headquarters is drawing the kind of crowd the automaker would like in its dealer showrooms this fall.

The attractions are restored, decades-old houses like the one which serves as a model for the project.

Built in 1914, the three-story brick house has leaded-glass cabinets, burnished oak beams, four bedrooms and a completely remodeled kitchen.

That house and 124 others represent GM's backyard venture in urban revitalization.

The area four miles north of downtown Detroit earned the moniker "New Center" during its 1920s construction boom. The New Center Community Corp., a GM subsidiary, bought the homes for $20,000 to $28,000 and so far has sold seven at the full asking price: $82,500 to $88,000.

"We had 2,000 people touring the models last Saturday and Sunday although it's hard to tell how many were just curious," said project manager Robert Gregory. "So far the response has been fantastic despite the general condition of the housing market."

Former GM Chairman Thomas Murphy announced the project in September 1978. At that time, Murphy estimated a refurbished home's market price at $40,000 and the total project cost at $20 million. GM declines to say whether the project's price tag had doubled as the homes' prices have.

However, Gregory noted that each house needed at least $35,000 in plumbing, roofing and electrical work and kitchen remodeling. Walls were demolished in some houses to return cramped rental rooms or business offices to the original spacious living areas.

The buildings had been home to 325 people — a mix of the elderly, poor blacks and renters from Wayne State University. Small businesses occupied several homes; Detroit police say dope dealers worked out of at least two others.

At September's end, the city of Detroit had moved all but 17 families with $900,000 in federal aid. Most people received $4,000 to equalize new housing costs with New Center rents, which had averaged $140 monthly, says city housing spokesman Chester Allen.

The crime that induced some former homeowners to sell has decreased, Detroit Police Sgt. Marvin Hyatt says his officers give the area "special attention," and Pinkerton guards watch for vandals. The model home is locked with two deadbolts and guarded by an electronic alarm.

Detroit's much-criticized public schools probably won't concern most new owners, said a New Center appraiser for Calloway Realty Co. "People who buy in that area are able to send their children to any school they like, public or private."

Baby girl settles parents' dispute

CHICAGO (AP) — Three-day-old Kirsten Wilcox has engineered a kind of out-of-court settlement between her feuding parents. She wasn't a boy.

Kirsten's arrival Saturday made moot a suit filed by her father for the right to name the child.

William Earl Wilcox III, of south suburban Oak Forest, filed an emergency petition two weeks ago seeking to force his wife, Tammi, to name their baby William Earl Wilcox IV if the child was a boy.

Last summer, the couple agreed a son would be named after his father, grandfather and great-grandfather.

But in August, Mrs. Wilcox filed for divorce and argued she had the right to name the child whatever she chose. The divorce is pending.

Will stigma of trial damage a career?

Some are beginning to wonder if being indicted for an alleged crime isn't more devastating than being convicted of said offense. A few are so bold as to insist that a person who has been convicted of a felony bears less an onus than one who is brought under suspicion — society starts immediately to rehabilitate the person who sinned whereas it tends to waste no sympathy nor patience on the one suspected of malfeasance.

Bill Clayton is a case in point. He recently was found innocent of accepting a bribe. Getting the stigma of the trial he was subjected to erased from the record is something else again, however. His enemies will use it to their advantage wherever possible, as long as he lives.

CLAYTON ISN'T the first Texas politician who has been hamstrung by the hint of scandal. Consider the case of John Connally, who came out of his court ordeal clean as the proverbial hound's tooth. However, the story that he accepted money illegally keeps following him around.

Ben Barnes and Preston Smith are two others who come to mind who have been hurt by innuendo. There have been others.

Clayton will now set about to assess the damage inflicted upon his political career. He knows there are people who would like to have seen him taken a fall, who would have benefitted from his conviction. The question is, will they still benefit merely because the glare reflecting from the case continues to glow?

Tye Yates Holman Jr., foreman of the Clayton jury, was moved to remark following the trial: "After we batted around and listened to some tapes, well, he was acquitted."

Another member of the jury told Clayton: "You should never have been here," after the acquittal verdict was returned.

What this says is that jury members, like other Texans who did not personally know Clayton, had doubts about the very indictment which charged him with accepting a $5,000 bribe.

The FBI is not without shame in this case. Using a convicted con man, the federal agency had maneuvered Clayton into a position of accepting a cash contribution which the House Speaker insisted he planned to return at the first convenient opportunity.

A CONSERVATIVE INTENT on neutralizing organized labor's opposition to a possible campaign for governor, Clayton says he was put on the spot when a labor lobbyist insisted on making the contribution in the presence of a man Clayton thought was a representative of a life insurance company man but who turned out to be the con artist.

Clayton said he didn't want to embarrass the lobbyist in front of a third party.

Clayton concedes he made a mistake in judgment. It is interesting to note that at least one of the jurors and one of the prosecutors were quoted in press releases after the trial as saying they would support him if he offers for governor.

Clayton's neighbors up in Springlake also offered a good testimonial. They insisted they never doubted his innocence from the start.

The jury listened to the tapes a second time, trying to get to the truth, rather than relying solely on the testimony offered by his accusers. One juror was later to say "It was like two worlds fighting, with Clayton in the honest world."

Clayton will be the first to admit he got a fair shake in the trial. Will voters return a vote of confidence in his favor, however?

Who will win?

Around the rim

Richard Horn

The long-awaited debates to be televised tonight are not likely to shed much new light on the participating candidates, but they are certain to be a lot of fun.

Both Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan have placed a great deal of importance on the outcome of this event. Both have stated that the election will ride on how the people who pick 'undecided' in the polls will eventually vote. Both men will be trying to impress that large block of the electorate tonight.

IT IS A testimony to the strangeness of this campaign that each has picked himself to be the underdog. Carter claims that he will probably lose because he has the impossible task of defending an incumbent's record. Reagan has said that he will probably lose because the President has many facts and figures at his disposal that are not available to anyone else. This is done so that whoever is judged the loser can sit back and say, "See? What did I tell you?"

It is difficult to say who is at the greater disadvantage, although it would seem that some of Reagan's fears are unfounded. Facts and figures mean little to most of the electorate, even the part that is undecided; most of those folks don't trust facts and figures anyway. What matter most is persuasive speaking and emotional effect. That is where Governor Reagan has the upper hand.

It is commonly agreed that President Carter is not much of an orator. He reminds me of those old 'Clutch Cargo' cartoon figures. Their faces remained perfectly still and their mouths, instead of moving up and down, just kind of move around. He tends to mumble through his teeth, a little like the way Bob Dylan sings. To people who don't like Carter, it's very irritating. To people who like him, it means he is low key and thoughtful.

Of course Reagan's strongest point is his ability to make a rousing speech. He has incorporated his acting techniques into his speechmaking admirably. When his eyebrows go up, and his head starts to bobble back and forth, that means innocence, sincerity, and goodwill. He probably doesn't know that he's doing it, but it has an effect. It stirs the hearts of people who like him, and knots the stomachs of people who don't.

IT WOULD HAVE been silly for Carter to have debated both Reagan and John Anderson, and I am quite sure that those two men would have declined also if they had been in the same position. Despite an incumbent's successes, it is very easy for one man, not to mention two, to make a President look like a total failure. And even President Carter admits that his administration has not been all that successful.

Instead John Anderson has been forced to answer the same questions on the Cable News Network, like a child who can't play with the other kids because he smells bad or has a funny haircut. I don't blame him for being angry, but in this kind of a debate I feel that two is company and three is a crowd.

Or, if two are not company, they are at least a diversion. However, all cynicism aside (and I know there is a great deal to brush aside here), this debate is going to give us a much clearer view of these candidates' positions than we have had before. The election is getting close, and all three men are probably getting a little worried about the outcome. They are going to be very careful about what they say, and how they say it.

Attack Jimmy?

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — With only 20 days left in the campaign, Ronald Reagan's high command was divided whether to unleash hard-nosed television commercials attacking President Carter's record.

The TV spots, in the same category of toughness as Carter's attacks on Reagan, were produced weeks ago but never put on the air. Republican politicians long have been pleading with the Reagan camp to take off the gloves against the president.

But the "attack" spots fare poorly when screened for panels of undecided voters. These voters complained that they were well aware of Carter's shortcomings but wanted to know what Reagan would do differently. Consequently, the spots would boost morale of the Republican faithful but might not help with crucial swing voters who will decide the election.

DEBATE SECOND THOUGHTS After finally succeeding in luring Ronald Reagan to the debate table, President Carter's men had second thoughts about the wisdom of their tactic.

CARTER AIDES confide they would have been just as happy had Reagan continued to resist a one-on-one confrontation with the president. After release of the Iranian hostages became a strong possibility, the Carter camp came to look at the debate as a potentially dangerous nuisance.

The president's men also wondered about one of their top procedural demands — follow-up questions by reporters — once the Reagan camp accepted it. They worried that the newsmen were so much more familiar with Carter's record than Reagan's that they might be tougher on the president.

MUSKIE'S MISSTEP Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie's surprising warning that Polish workers must not be "insensitive" to the Soviet Union in their battle for free labor unions aroused anguish among Soviet specialists in both the State Department and the White House.

In his otherwise skillful performance on ABC's "Issues and Answers," Muskie seemed to praise Moscow for having been "restrained" in reacting to the dramatic Polish movement to establish free unions. The movement has captured world sympathy, making all the more questionable Muskie's lecture to the Polish workers "not to be insensitive to the pressures" from Moscow and its East European communist empire.

Reflecting White House concern over that phraseology, the official State Department spokesman deflected a series of questions from newsmen the next day. He refused to dignify Soviet feelings, as the secretary had. He would not define "Soviet sensitivities," saying only that Muskie meant that Moscow "is watching the situation carefully."

DEBATING THE DEBATE Robert Strauss, President Carter's campaign chairman, proved unforthcoming to fellow Texan James Baker, representing Ronald Reagan in negotiations on the presidential debate.

STRAUSS BEGAN by claiming that he had not been in personal contact with Carter, and, therefore, was not entirely sure of the president's position. Then, as Baker vainly tried to take coherent note of the Carter demands, Strauss threw out a bewildering array of proposals. Baker could not be sure what Strauss really wanted and what he did not want.

Several steps help avoid airsickness

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have to take an airplane trip. There is no way for me to get out of this. I have no fear of flight, but I am very bothered by plane sickness. I even had to pass up a favorite niece's wedding because I could not bear the thought of the sickness. Is there anything I can do to lessen or prevent this? This trip is a must. — Mrs. R.R.

You must have been quite apprehensive to have missed your favorite niece's big day.

Air sickness, car sickness, sea sickness are all motion ailments. The brain gets conflicting information from the balance organ in the inner ear, from the eyes and from the other senses. This misinformation causes such confusion in the brain that motion sickness symptoms result: sweating, turning pale, nausea, even vomiting. Everyone is at risk of getting motion sickness depending on how violent the motion is. Some are more susceptible to less motion than others.

Here are some tips: Make sure you start out well-rested. A tired brain is all the more likely to become confused. Do not eat a heavy meal before takeoff. Find a place to sit where the sensation of motion is least. In a plane, that is over a wing. You can ask for this at check-in time. Do not take any alcohol while in flight. The lowered oxygen in the cabin will make the effects of alcohol on the brain even greater, adding to its confusion. Try to sleep during your flight, and try to get a seat next to a non-smoker. Keep your eyes focused on things inside the cabin.

There are many over-the-counter motion sickness aids, medicines like medicine, that are helpful. Your doctor may prescribe something a bit stronger for your flight. Happy landings, although for airsick passengers landings are always happy.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please tell me what you know about vitamin intake and its relationship to a woman's ovulating or not ovulating. I wonder if supplementing my diet with vitamins would help me conceive? — N.N. I know of no vitamins that will help promote ovulation. If you do have a problem of vitamin deficiency, the chances are that improper total nourishment is also involved. Correcting that might improve your chances of conception, so long as you are otherwise normal. The booklet "Vitamins: Facts You Need to Know" will be informative on the subject. For a copy, write me care of the Big Spring Herald and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I've been having a problem of water retention and am on a diuretic. What causes this and is it harmful to take a diuretic on a daily basis, which I have been doing? — J.P.

First question first. Fluid retention stems chiefly from two major causes — heart or kidney malfunction. With a heart problem, blood circulation becomes sluggish, and stagnating blood fluid leaks out into surrounding tissue. In kidney malfunction, blood fluid is not efficiently filtered, and backs up into the circulatory system, with the same leaking out. Obviously, the treatment for heart failure is not the same as treatment for renal (kidney) failure.

If no cause is evident, the retention (edema) is called idiopathic, and the problem is attacked directly with medicine (diuretics) to promote maximum excretion of the fluid. Salt intake is restricted, because salt promotes fluid retention.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: There seem to be so many problems on earth that I have decided that hell must be here and now, instead of after death. Do you think this is what Jesus meant when He talked about hell? — A.U.

DEAR A.U.: There are many problems in this life, and our lives can be heavily burdened at times. In fact, the Bible says "Man is born to trouble as surely as sparks fly upward" (Job 5:7).

But that does not mean hell is only confined to this life. In fact, the Bible reminds us clearly of the sobering fact that hell is a reality after death for all who have turned their backs on God and refused to accept his way of salvation in Jesus Christ. Jesus spoke of a time of spiritual harvest at the end of the world, when those who have refused God's way will be separated from those who will go to heaven.

"The Son of Man will send out his angels, and they will weed out of his kingdom everything that causes sin and all who do evil. They will throw them into the fiery furnace, and there will be weeping and gnashing of

Your second question: It is not harmful to take a diuretic on a daily basis so long as it is necessary, it is your doctor's prescription and if the other treatable causes of retention have been investigated. Swimming is an excellent exercise for idiopathic edema. The horizontal posture allows better functioning of the kidneys. Conversely, the upright posture may retard it, so one should get off one's feet during the day when possible.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is a blood pressure of 106 over 60 too low? I am 72 and have had this pressure for years. It varies very slightly. Many of my friends are astounded when I mention it, but my doctor thinks it's great. He should know — right? — E.F.

That blood pressure is not too low. The people of the Russian Caucasus have pressures in your range. They live to be 100 and more. Next time tell your friends you are reaping the harvest of a lifetime of good habits.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)." Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Headed off

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter reacted to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan by announcing a tough embargo on the sale of militarily useful hardware to Russia by American manufacturers.

Not long after, the president's new hardline policy got its first real workout, and for sheer melodrama it surpassed anything in the staid, button-down Commerce Department's recent history. It almost took a last-minute charge by the U.S. Cavalry to rescue a high-technology shipment from the devious, double-dealing Kremlin agents, who had arranged for a freighter to pick up the goods.

THE SENSITIVE material consisted of spray guns, drying ovens and other items needed to coat jet engines with a protective ceramic layer. The process prolongs the life of the treated jets, and is essential for long-range aircraft.

The manufacturer, Sermel Inc. of Limerick, Pa., a subsidiary of Teleflex, Inc., had struck a deal with the Soviet Union to provide the technology, the assembly line components and quality-control training that would enable the Russians to set up their own high-speed engine treatment complex. The contract was worth $6 million to $8 million for the American company.

Sermel got the necessary licenses from the Commerce Department in June 1978, despite Defense Department objections and a CIA recommendation against the sale. By the time the Afghanistan eye-opener changed the picture early this year, Sermel had already delivered 56 volumes of technical data to the Soviets.

But the assembly line components were still in this country, and in early February the Pentagon asked the Commerce Department to revoke Sermel's export license. Commerce sent two field agents to inform Sermel its license was being re-evaluated.

At the time, the company was scheduled to turn the assembly line material over to Amtorg, the Soviet government trade organization, in New York by June. But after the Commerce Department visit, Sermel executives, presumably fearing the loss of their lucrative contract, moved the delivery date up to April.

MEANWHILE, UNBEKNOWNST to Sermel, a top-level inter-agency group in Washington decided late in February that the export license should be revoked. For some reason, Commerce never acted on the decision.

On March 24 — a Monday — Defense Secretary Harold Brown sent a hand-delivered message to Commerce Secretary Philip Klutznick, ordering him to stop the shipment. Klutznick ignored the message.

Four days later — on Friday, March 28 — the FBI notified the Pentagon that the Russians were diverting a freighter to pick up the shipment.

Dear Editor:

All America is aware of the dispute between Ronald Reagan and his running mate George Bush over the China vs. Taiwan policy of the United States. Bush, on a trip to China told the Chinese that the U.S. had no intention of changing their relations with Mainland China and that preference would be given them over Taiwan. Reagan followed Mr. Bush's remarks with a direct contradiction of Bush's remarks re China and Taiwan. Reagan went on to criticize President Carter for his recognition of Mainland China and its vast trade benefits to the U.S.; he stated that the U.S. had doublecrossed Taiwan. It appears as though a Bush-Reagan debate might be appropriate.

We all know from watching the T.V. reports of the Republican Convention that Bush was Reagan's 2nd choice and that the Convention was held up for 2 days while Reagan's staff tried to persuade Gerald Ford to run as Vice-President. It is also a matter that should be greatly considered by the voting public that Ford said that he would not consider being Vice-President because in his opinion it would be a violation of the U.S. Constitution. Ford said it was his understanding of the U.S. Constitution that the President and Vice-President could not come from the same state and he and Reagan were each bonafide residents of California. Reagan's staff members then advised Ford that he could call Aspen, Colo.

his home since he owned a home there. Ford advised these people that they may be technically correct but all the U.S. knew he was a bonafide California resident and he could not do that. Reagan staffers argued with Mr. Ford for 2 days trying to get him to be on the ticket as Vice-President after he had said this on TV networks. Reagan apparently is one who would try to use our Constitution to suit himself, regardless of its most sacred intent. A man who would do this is dangerous for America.

Further in regard to the China-Taiwan matter, on Oct. 12, 1980, in the Fort Worth Star Telegram, "Personally Parade" Section appeared this remark: "Two of Ronald Reagan's Public Relations men, Mike Deaver and Peter Hanneford, are registered lobbyists for Taiwan. How much does Taiwan pay these two men?" How can a man expect the American public to trust him as President when he has this type of people on his public relations staff? No wonder Mr. Bush was embarrassed on his visit to China Mainland. China in all probability knew where Mr. Reagan stood on the issue and could not be expected to trust the United States ever again if Mr. Reagan should be permitted to get by with the under the table operation while he is only a candidate. Reagan's staff has muzzled him on this matter since then but he still has those Taiwan lobbyists.

Dear Abby

Fed Up With Spoiled Hams

DEAR ABBY: In response to ACTRESS, who criticized those in the audience for rushing out of the theater the minute the performance is over instead of sticking around for all the curtain calls:

I go to the ticket window, lay down my hard-earned money hoping to get my money's worth in entertainment. I sit through the performance, then down comes the curtain. End of show. Then I get up and leave.

Why should I either remain in my seat or stand up and keep applauding those egomaniacs and shouting "Bravo!" like a nincompoop? I paid THEM to perform for ME. I should be applauded for buying the ticket. Without me, and others like me, they would be in the unemployment line because those ego-loaded showoffs would rather starve to death than do menial work.

Why should entertainers be treated like gods? Have you ever heard of three curtain calls for a neurosurgeon?

JOE S. IN SALEM, N.Y.

DEAR JOE: No. But it could be "curtains" for the patient of a neurosurgeon who turns in a poor performance!

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago my husband started acting nervous and preoccupied. He also started working late at his office and on weekends—something he rarely did.

We've been married 16 years, have a nice family, and have often said that ours was one of the few really "good" marriages we knew of.

A week ago, I received a phone call in the middle of the afternoon from a woman who refused to identify herself, but said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman who works in his office. Then she mentioned the woman's name. I recalled my husband telling me that he had employed a young, unmarried woman by that name about a year ago. I fell apart.

When my husband came home, I told him about the call and knew from his reaction it was true. I cried, he cried, too, and then confessed that he had had an affair with her, but broke it off two weeks ago, telling her it was a regrettable mistake, and he would get her a job elsewhere. He said she seemed to accept his decision. Then he asked me to listen in on the telephone extension while he called someone. I did. I recognized the voice at once as the woman who had phoned me! She called, hoping I would throw my husband out and give her a clear field.

I've forgiven my husband, but I'm still hurting some. I'm glad I didn't act foolishly in haste. Perhaps some other wife will be wiser for my experience.

If you print this, please don't use my name.

GETTING OVER IT

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to LONGING FOR MOTHERHOOD was the worst! She wanted a baby but had no husband or boyfriend, so she was considering asking a fellow to do her a favor and father her child. You told her "scrap the idea!" Why?

If a woman wants a baby, why should she have to marry a man she may not love just to have one? If she's longing for motherhood, married or not, that's the time to do something about it.

Today a woman has the right to have an abortion if she wants one, so why shouldn't she have the right to have a baby if that's what she wants?

FREEDOM FOR ALL

DEAR FREEDOM: I'm all for a woman's right to have a baby if she wants one. But I could not in good conscience go along with her idea of "asking a fellow to do her a favor" to achieve motherhood.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Laaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Cindy Mann, of Austin, is one of 19 coeds vying for the Miss Howard College title in the Miss Howard College Pageant, being held in Big Spring.

Miss Mann, a 4'10" brown-eyed blonde, is a student at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf of Howard College in Big Spring. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Mann of Austin.

Cindy plans to major in social work with a minor in fashion design.

Before coming to SWCID, she was a student at Eastfield College in Dallas, where she took yoga and ballet classes. She was also a member of the Baptist Student Union Association.

She lists her interests and hobbies as ballet, piano, roller skating, water and snow skiing and hunting.

"I am planning to help deaf people with family, drugs and personal problems," said Miss Mann. She is also planning to travel all over the country to visit different deaf schools.

The Miss Howard College Pageant, which is being sponsored by the Student Government Association, will be held at 8 p.m., tonight, in the Howard College Auditorium.

The theme for this year's pageant is "Xanadu."

Special Ed students win District trophies

Special Education students of Big Spring brought home three trophies from the District Bowling Olympics at Midland Oct. 25. Five handicapped citizens attended the contest at Delwood Lanes from 1-3 p.m.

Two mixed divisions with three levels in each division competed.

Jackie McAlister won the first place trophy in Senior Division first level. Jackie's average was 101.

Carrie Parker won the second place trophy in Senior Division, level two. Carrie's average was 51.

Marty Thurston won the third place trophy in Junior Division with an average of 30. Marty doubled her average at practice.

D'Lene Wylie, with an average of 82 and George Luma, with an average of 51 also attended.

Fifty participants bowled from Midland, Odessa and Big Spring. All competitors in the District Bowling Olympics were given T-shirts. The Golden Life Spa and All-American Trophies of Midland donated T-shirts and trophies to the event.

Sponsors attending the Olympics were Mike Maas, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wylie and Mike Cowper Maas and Mrs. Wylie were scorekeepers.

Want your kids to be sports stars?

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Says racing car driver Janet Guthrie, "I wouldn't recommend racing to anybody. It's mentally, physically and financially draining, and it makes a mess of your personal life. You must love it as much as I do before it's worthwhile."

"I think it's great being a superstar," admits Tommy John, baseball pitcher for the New York Yankees. "What would Tommy John, from Terre Haute, Ind., be doing now, if not for baseball? I get to travel and meet people whom I never would otherwise. I'd want that for my kids — if it's what they want."

Another baseball star, Johnny Bench, admits he'd like his children to find a niche in sports. "But I'd prepare them for being in the public eye dealing with the press by making sure they were well-educated and worldly. Being recognized is nice, but everyone's naive at first about how nasty the press can be."

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper.

Class conquers fear on nerve-racking flight

DALLAS (AP) — Marianne Vilbig boarded a charter flight to Oklahoma City, her hands ice-cold, her face a twisted portrait of sheer terror.

"Feel my hands," she said holding out her trembling fingers. "I'm not afraid of major surgery. But this, I'm afraid of."

"This is flight. And until this weekend, flying was something Marianne absolutely could not do."

This weekend, Marianne and about 40 other terrified passengers — aviaphobics — completed a course designed to conquer their fears. Graduation was a trip to Oklahoma City and back.

For $250, they took a six-lesson course that included the flight and were awarded diplomas that proclaimed they had "reluctantly, but courageously, left the Planet Earth for a flight."

A couple of people didn't exactly pass with flying colors. One man didn't get on the plane in the first place and one woman almost didn't get back on in Oklahoma City.

Capt. Truman W. "Slim" Cummings, a retired airline pilot who has taught the fear of flying seminars for five years, said that wasn't a bad average.

The flight was not what you would call ordinary. Just before takeoff, Gloria Sadafsz announced she was going to throw up.

Cummings knelt beside her in the aisle, patting her hand in a fatherly way.

"Now, Gloria," he said, "There's a part of you that wants very much to stay on the flight."

Yes, Gloria said, but that didn't quell her nausea.

"No, you're not going to throw up," Cummings said, quietly handing her a bag. "If you throw up, I'll throw up with you."

The issue did not come up again. Boarding the plane, several of the students wanted to sit near the bathroom. Others wanted to sit backwards to ignore the fact that they were moving forward.

"I want everyone to sit up front together," Cummings said. "I don't want anybody isolated. I want everybody to have a buddy. We want to share strength."

The Southwest Airlines jet took off. A few people lit cigarettes. Others shook their hands, their toes, their hips — practicing the desensitization exercises they had learned in class.

"I'm scared, but it's OK," they yelled in unison. Mrs. Sadafsz clutched her sickness bag. Dierk McWilliams wept. Mrs. Vilbig clenched her teeth and squeezed her purse, admitting she was "apprehensive."

As they practiced breathing exercises, the cabin began to resemble a Lamaze childbirth class. Amid the pants, Cummings spoke in a soft voice:

"I want to paint a quick scene. It's opportunity day. It's the day to call on the courage that's just waiting to be tapped. It's a day to create a miracle."

Halfway to Oklahoma, the tension eased. McWilliams happily raised his arms and roared. Another man hugged everyone on the plane.

"There are two types of fearful flyers," explained Jim Wilson of the phobia clinic. "There are the aviaphobics who are afraid the plane is going to crash and the claustrophobics who hope it will crash so they can get off."

When the plane landed in Oklahoma City, Marianne Vilbig was ready to keep her feet on the ground.

"This hasn't done any good," she said. "If I had any courage, I'd take the bus back."

But she got back on the plane. Ruth Norwood had a little more trouble.

"You want to feel good about yourself, don't you," Cummings said, leading her step-by-step into the jet.

On the return flight, stewardesses poured champagne and Ms. Norwood accepted hers with congratulations.

"I'm better," she said. "I'm really better going back."

Mrs. Vilbig said the return flight made her a new woman. She was ready, she said, to fly anywhere.

Not everyone was quite so happy.

"Boy, am I proud of you," Southwest Airlines executive

Camille Keith said to a grim-faced woman.

"We didn't have a choice, once they shut those doors," the woman replied.

Worst may be over for U.S. automakers

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., the world's biggest automaker, bottomed out into the record books with a $567 million loss for the third quarter, the largest three-month loss in U.S. corporate history, but analysts and GM officials say the worst may be over.

And with quarterly reports from Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. still to come, Wall Street analysts say GM's July-September loss, announced Monday, is not likely to stand as the U.S. corporate record. Some analysts predict a Ford loss of $700 million.

The third quarter is always the worst for automakers, coming at a time when buyer interest is low and the companies are retooling for new cars.

But 1980 is still exceptional. The four U.S. automakers are on their way to their worst year ever, with losses exceeding $4 billion. GM will show its first losing year since 1921.

The former quarterly loss record was $562 million by U.S. Steel in the last three months of 1979. GM's operating losses were far worse than U.S. Steel's however, because U.S. Steel's figures included a charge for major plant closings.

GM Chairman Thomas Murphy and President Elliott Estes said in a statement that GM was hurt by recession and inflation, the shift to smaller cars which yield lower profits, and an inability to recover cost increases. They said rebates also cut into profits, as did retooling costs.

They said GM's profits would be held down as long as the recession lasts, adding they saw "many reassuring signs" of economic recovery.

"We have weathered the worst. Recovery, although gradual, has begun," they said, noting GM has recalled 38,000 laid-off employees and more will be coming back to work.

GM's loss from operations was $953 million in the quarter, but that was reduced by an income tax credit of $386 million. Federal tax laws allow companies with losses to apply them against profits earned in the previous three years, so GM is in effect getting a partial refund on 1977 taxes.

The $567 million loss works out to $1.96 a share. The comparable 1979 figure was a profit of $21.4 million or 6 cents a share.

BREAKING AWAY... Big Spring's exciting junior running back-cornerback, Bobby Earl Williams (35), breaks into the Lee secondary during third quarter action of the Steers loss to the Midland Lee Rebels. Williams eluded the remaining Rebel defenders and galloped 70 yards to paydirt. The explosive 185-pounder now has four touchdowns runs in four District 5-AAAAA contests of over 58 yards. The Steers travel to face state ranked Abilene Cooper this weekend.

In AP college poll

Longhorns fall to 12th

By The Associated Press
Texas dropped out of the national championship picture after suffering its first defeat of the season while UCLA, Notre Dame and Georgia moved up to contest Alabama's bid for an unprecedented third consecutive college football crown in today's Associated Press poll.

The Crimson Tide of Alabama led the rest of the pack for the seventh week in a row with 57 of 65 first-place votes and 1,289 of a possible 1,300 points - by defeating Southern Mississippi 42-7 and knocking the Golden Eagles out of The AP Top Twenty after their first appearance ever in the ratings.

However, Texas was upset

20-6 by Southern Methodist and skidded from second place all the way to 12th.

UCLA, Notre Dame, Georgia, Florida State, North Carolina, Southern California, Nebraska and Ohio State all moved up one position along with Baylor, which jumped from 11th place to 10th.

UCLA, a 32-9 winner over California, received the other eight first-place votes and 1,222 points. Last week, Alabama led Texas 57-2 in first-place ballots and 1,250-1,147 in points with 63 panelists participating while UCLA was third with four first-place votes and 1,108 points.

Third-place Notre Dame defeated Arizona 20-3 and received 1,141 points while Georgia earned 1,105 for blanking Kentucky 27-0. Then came Florida State with 965 points after downing Memphis State 24-7.

North Carolina received 940 points for trouncing East Carolina 31-3, idle Southern Cal pulled down 859 points, Nebraska crushed Colorado 45-7 and totaled 852 points, Ohio State shut out Wisconsin 21-0 and earned 771 points and Baylor turned back Texas Christian 21-6 and received 719.

The nation's six remaining unbeaten-untied teams are Alabama, UCLA, Notre Dame, Georgia, North Carolina and Baylor.

Akers finds positive note in loss to SMU

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Coach Fred Akers says the "brightest part" of the 20-6 loss to Southern Methodist was that even though several Longhorns were injured and SMU played well "we still had an opportunity to win."

"It would have been really dismal if we hadn't had any chance at all," Akers told his news conference Monday.

Akers said he was "not blind to the fact" that five Texas offensive starters were sidelined with injuries Saturday, but he added, "We've made it a habit of not accepting any excuses or giving any, and I believe that's the way to do it."

"SMU played a very good football game," he said.

Asked if the loss made the upcoming game against Texas Tech crucial, Akers said, "They're all crucial."

After a loss, I believe they're even more so. . . we've got a chance, but it's going to be tougher."

Texas' first loss of the season dropped No. 2 Texas to 2-1 in the Southwest Conference. Baylor and Houston lead the SWC race for the host spot in the Cotton Bowl but both must still play Texas Tech.

Akers said Longhorn coaches had selected defensive tackle Kenneth Sims as the most valuable player on defense against Southern Methodist and center Mike Babb as the MVP on offense.

IN THE HERALD'S SPORT PAGES

Controversy has arisen in the Houston Oilers locker room considering women reporters. It reportedly has upset Bum Phillips, some players and even more wives. But linebacker Gregg Bingham says "fair is fair", and if that's the case, then he wants access to the dressing room of the Derrick Dolls. See story later in the week in the Herald Sports Section.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 29, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Considerable confusion and muddled thinking exists later in the day, so make a point to make important decisions earlier. You begin to see more clearly after relaxing in the evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Go to the right sources for the data you need. Don't take advice from those who are not cognizant of all the facts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Obtain important information about a project you are interested in before you go ahead with definite plans. Use your wisdom.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you handle routine duties in a more up-to-date way, you get more benefits. Study a new plan before making any changes.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't neglect important work early in the day. Try to cooperate more with co-workers. Strive for more harmony.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take care you don't take on any heavy expenditures of money in the evening. Allow time to engage in creative activity.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Postpone going ahead with a new interest you have in mind and wait until a better time. Evening is fine for recreation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Improve the foundation of your life so you can have added abundance in the days ahead. Get rid of annoying conditions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Iron out any problems with others in a quiet and tactful manner. Seek the company of congenials in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have to use careful thought in handling monetary affairs today. Use your intuitive faculties for best results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use a different attitude in handling a puzzling situation and you get better results. Relax in the company of good friends tonight.

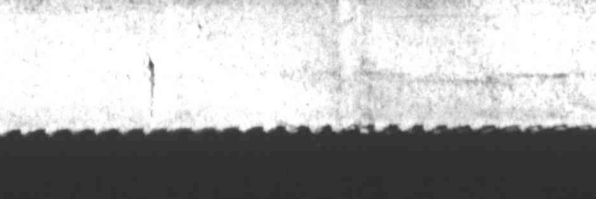

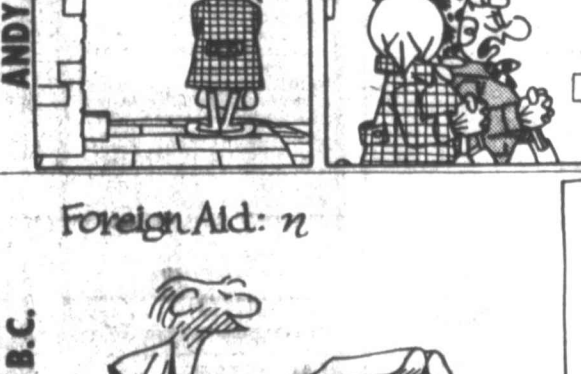

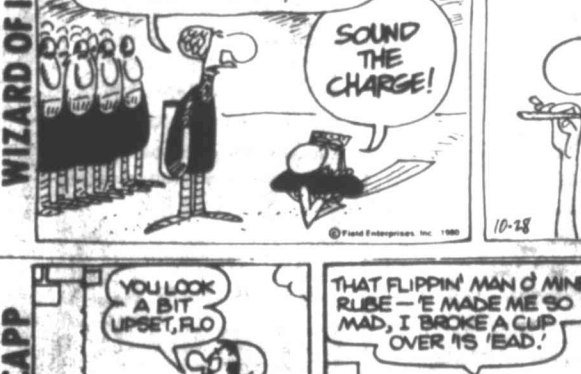

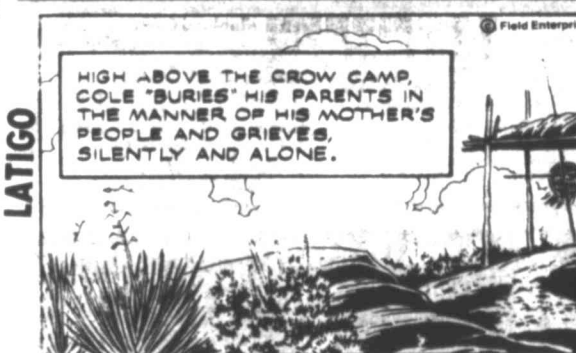

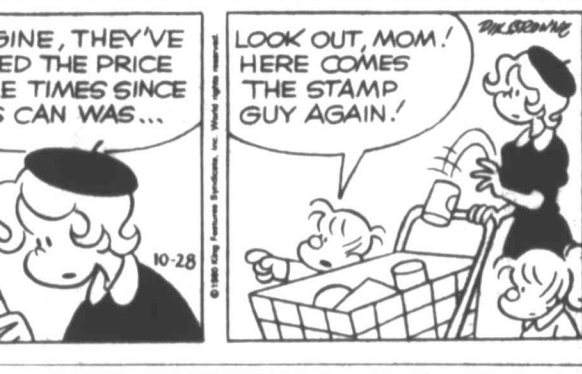

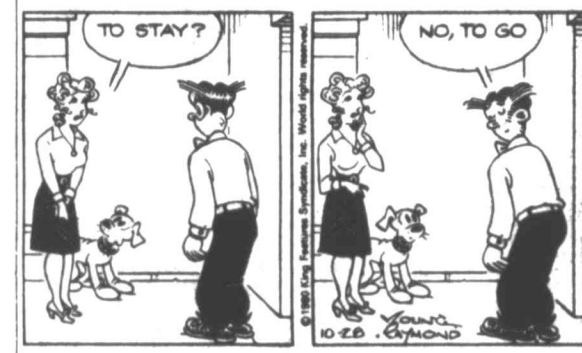

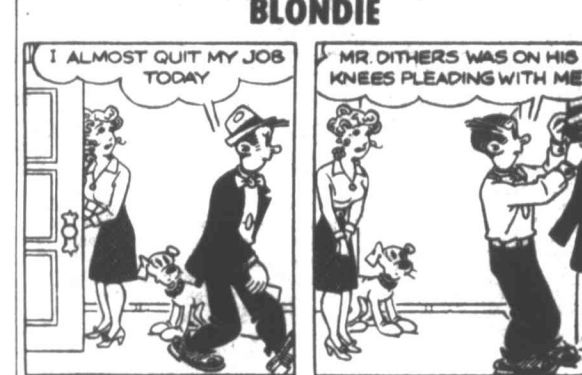

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have hidden desires that need more study before you pursue them. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some of your friends may have problems so be sure to give a helping hand. Show others you have practical wisdom.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who comprehends the problems of others and knows instinctively how to solve them. Be sure to give your gifted progeny the right education to bring out this ability. A busy life in this chart.

Ma Bell big winner in Brilab case Clayton innocent, system is not

By JIM DAVIS Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN - "Billy Wayne Clayton is innocent!" With those blaring words, this column seven months ago tried to emphasize that accusations and charges do not make a person guilty automatically - that we must assume innocence until guilt is declared in a court of law. That a standard must be applied even in the case of public officials, perhaps especially in the case of public officials. A huge amount of publicity necessarily accompanies any charge or indictment against a high public official. The public deserves to know any facts available in the case. But because this is true, we all need to keep strongly in mind the familiar "innocent until proven guilty." At the time I wrote the earlier column with the blaring lead, I feared that some people - many people - had forgotten this truism in the case of Clayton and his troubles with the FBI Brilab investigation. Now a jury has declared Clayton innocent of any illegality. Several jurors even walked out singing his praises. He just reminded people too much of Lyndon Johnson to be acceptable anywhere but Texas.
