Iraqi bomber shot down near Khomeini quarters

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran said today it shot down a long-range Soviet-built strategic Iraqi bomber near the holy city of Qom, headquarters of Islamic revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The Iranian communique, carried by Tehran Radio, did not say whether the holy city of Qom, Shiite sect was bombed. The communique also claimed another Iraqi Tupolev bomber was shot down near Esfahan, 145 miles south of Qom and deep in central Iran.

"All six crew members of the bombers were burnt in the fire of Allah's punishment," the communique said.

It was the first time that Soviet-made Iraqi warplanes were reported near Qom, 75 miles southwest of Tehran, since the Iran-Iraq war erupted 38 days ago. Khomeini was in a village north of Tehran Tuesday, but his whereabouts today was not known.

Qom is 380 miles east of the nearest Iraqi air base in Baghdad.

Iran said it launched fierce ground and air attacks against Iraq today and claimed its warplanes bombed Iraq's largest oil refineries near Baghdad and the southern port of Basra. Iraq denied that Iran inflicted heavy damage on the Baghdad refinery.

Iraq said fighting continued along its 300-mile invasion front in western and southwestern Iran. Earlier, it had said only 15 Iranian troops and eight Iraqi soldiers were killed in 12 hours of combat.

Iran claimed scores of Iraqi troops killed and 15 tanks destroyed in ground action Tuesday and early today and 330 Iraqis killed in the previous 24 hours in Iran's western provinces.

Tehran Radio claimed Iran's planes inflicted heavy damage on the Doura refinery on the southeastern edge of the Iraqi capital, and the Shuaiba refinery near Basra, Iraq's southern port on the Shatt al-Arab waterway.

None of the claims from either side could be confirmed since Western reporters were barred from the battle zones.

Two zone changes approved

'Horse motel' plans revealed

By JAMES WERRELL

Two zone changes were approved on first reading during the regular meeting of the Big Spring City Council, 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Jon Hillman plans to open a "horse motel" on FM 700 near the city landfill area. In order to do so, he needs permission from the council to keep livestock inside the city limits and a zone change of the property from Agricultural to Heavy Commercial.

"This is about 11-plus acres on East FM 700 south of IS 20. There are no residents there, and most of the area is already Heavy Commercial," said Hillman. "Most of my business is with rodeo hands, and they need a place to keep their horses overnight. I am hoping they'll stay in Big Spring, and I would help other businesses here also," he added.

The council passed the proposal unanimously on first reading.

If a zone change at 2201 Lancaster from Parking to Retail passes on second reading, S&R Investors will open a health center there. In addition to providing exercise areas and equipment, the center will offer clothing, vitamins, racquetball equipment and other fitness-related items.

Councilmen approved a plan to build a railroad spur at the Industrial Park that won't cost the city a thing. The spur will extend 2,673 feet past First Street and the Western Container Company building. The city had an agreement with the Economic Development Ad-

Upcoming bond election ideas will be mulled at Monday meet

All 85 members of the Citizens Advisory Council will be invited to a special meeting with the Big Spring City Council, 6 p.m. Monday, to discuss strategies for an upcoming bond election.

"The members will be briefed Monday on the final decision of the council as to when the election will be held and how much money we will be asking for," said City Manager Don Davis, this morning.

Davis stated that the tentative date for the election is early in December.

The Citizens Advisory Council, which was formed this summer, consists of four committees of 20 members each: Water and Sewer; Streets and Storm Sewer; Parks and Recreation; and Public Facilities Committees.

A fifth, the Financial Committee, is made up of five members who advised the council on which bonds were economically feasible, how they should be financed, and what types of bonds would be sold.

ministration in which the EDA would pay 75 percent of the cost of a portion of the project if the city would

"The initial charge of each committee was to assess the needs of the community now and in the future in terms of their respective areas," said Davis.

When the committees had finalized their proposals, the suggested improvements came with a price tag of $25 million.

"We passed that by more than half," said Davis of his and the council's actions.

During Monday's meeting, some members will be asked to help solicit votes for the bond election.

"We hope to set up a speakers' bureau to address various groups in the city, and another group to write publicity," said Davis. "We'll also have to solicit money for the campaign because no public money can be used to publicize it."

In addition to committee members, anyone interested in attending the meeting is welcome to do so, said Davis.

Carter, Reagan both claim victory in debate

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Carter and Ronald Reagan emerged upbeat from their dramatic debate and charged into the final six days of the 1980 presidential campaign, concentrating on the big-state prizes. Each claimed the edge from his performance in their head-on confrontation.

Reagan was heading for Texas and Carter for Pennsylvania, two of the major states still judged a tossup in most surveys.

With most public opinion polls saying the presidential race is too close to call, Tuesday night's debate was viewed as a potentially decisive event, and each candidate played what he believed were his strongest cards.

Carter lashed out at his Republican challenger as "dangerous and belligerent" on foreign policy. He described Reagan's positions on domestic issues "ridiculous" and "heartless."

Reagan — in quieter, but biting language of his own — blamed Carter for inflation and unemployment and said he couldn't describe his differences with the president on the uses of American military power "because I don't know what Mr. Carter's policies are."

Repeatedly, Reagan said his positions on issues were being distorted by the president.

After the 90-minute debate, the two men shook hands briefly and then joined their wives and supporters in pre-midnight rallies.

Carter said he "felt very good," but he cautioned supporters that "we've got another week to go. Next Tuesday the decision will be not in the hands of debate judges or the League of Women Voters or the press. The decision will be in the hands of millions of Americans like you."

At a similar rally a few blocks away, Reagan said, "I seemed to do all right. I've examined myself and I can't find any wounds...It gave me an opportunity to raise some issues about the failures of this administration."

"We had the offensive; Reagan was on the defensive," said Gerald Ralshoon, the advertising chief for the Carter campaign. It was a reversal of the usual relationship between incumbent and challenger.

The debate played to tens of millions of television viewers — pre-debate estimates ranged from 60 million to 85 million — and many others who tuned into radio broadcasts. The candidates answered questions from four journalists and had the opportunity for rebuttal and counter-rebuttal.

The moderator was commentator Howard K. Smith, who played the same part in the first televised presidential debate between Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy in 1960. The forum was sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Moments after the debate began, Reagan moved to deal with the war and peace issue that has dogged his campaign.

"I believe with all my heart that our first priority must be world peace and that use of force is always and only a last resort when everything else has failed," said Reagan.

Stenholm faces busy time in Big Spring Thursday

U.S. Congressman Charles Stenholm, who represents the Texas 17th District in Congress, faces a busy schedule on a trip to Big Spring Thursday.

The freshman legislator from Stamford will arrive in time for a 7:30 a.m. press conference and general reception tailored especially for business men and women in the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Conference room.

Local cost of living below national average

By RICHARD HORN
According to the quarterly cost of living index released by the American Chamber of Commerce Research Committee, Big Spring stands at 3.8 percent below the national average in cost of living.

Among 11 cities of more than 500,000 population represented in the third quarter of 1980, living costs ranged from 32.3 percent above the national average in New York City to 3.0 percent below the average in San Antonio. Eight of the 11 cities studied showed living costs above the U.S. average, which was based on price per data collected for 229 cities of all sizes throughout the country. Big Spring was one of the cities surveyed.

The eleven representative cities and cost of living indexes, based on the national average of 100 are: New York, N.Y.-132.3; San Jose, Calif.-120.0; Detroit, Mich.-117.4; San Diego, Calif.-114.5; Chicago, Ill.-111.1; Houston, Tex.-104.6;

Columbus, Ohio-103.3; Denver, Col.-103.1; Indianapolis, Ind.-99.2; New Orleans, La.-98.9; San Antonio, Tex.-97.0.

In comparison, the all-items index for Big Spring was 96.2, or 3.8 percent below the national average.

The all-items index is based on six components. Among the 11 largest cities in the report, the grocery items index ranged from 95.2 in San Jose, Calif. to 112.9 in New York City. The housing index displayed considerably greater variation, with a high of 165.0 in San Jose and a low of 96.6 in Columbus, Ohio. Utilities showed the broadest range, running from 62.0 in San Diego to 229.5 in New York City.

For transportation, the range was bracketed by a high of 125.2 in Detroit, and a low of 98.0 in Denver.

Health care was lowest among the large cities in New Orleans, which posted an index reading of 92.8, and highest in New York, where the index was 149.9

Miscellaneous goods and services cost least among the major cities in San Antonio, with a 96.8 index reading, and most in New York, where the figures was 116.5.

In Big Spring, the six component indexes were 99.4 for grocery items, 91.9 for housing, 100.8 for utilities, 92.2 for transportation, 96.1 for health care, and 96.3 for miscellaneous goods and services.

Of the 28 Texas cities included in the survey, Big Spring ranked as the sixth lowest city in cost-of-living, behind Texarkana, Hereford, Temple, Killeen, and Amarillo.

Of the five Permian Basin cities included in the survey, Big Spring had the lowest cost of living index. Midland and Odessa were 7.1 and 5.9 points respectively, above the national average.

Persons wishing more information regarding the survey may contact Leroy Tillery at the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce office.

Ax murder trial goes to jury this afternoon

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) — Nine women and three men pondering the fate of accused ax murderess Candace Montgomery must decide if the petite housewife was defending her life when she hacked her former lover's wife to death last summer.

Mrs. Montgomery described the fatal struggle in brutal detail when she took the stand in her own defense last week, but said she killed her friend in self defense.

Closing arguments were scheduled for 9 a.m. CST today, followed by State District Judge Tom Ryan's charge to jurors, who were expected to begin deliberations this afternoon.

Jurors must decide whether the 30-year-old defendant "knowingly and intentionally" killed the woman who sang with her in a church choir.

Central to their decision is Mrs. Montgomery's testimony that Betty Gore attacked her with a three-foot ax after learning of her 10-month affair with Allan Gore.

In an attack pathologists testified was "a classic case of overkill," Mrs. Gore's arm was broken and her head split open by 28 blows. Describing the mangled body, a medical examiner said the victim's right eye had collapsed into a sinus cavity and one gaping wound left a clear view of brain tissue.

Despite Mrs. Montgomery's surprise

admission to the slaying, Collin County District Attorney Tom O'Connell based his case largely on the affair and circumstantial evidence linking her to the Gore's Wylie home.

O'Connell has pointed out that Mrs. Montgomery did not leave the Gore home after knocking out Mrs. Gore and that she admitted the slaying only after a bloody fingerprint was identified as hers.

He also produced witnesses who portrayed the victim as a calm, quiet woman who had no violent tendencies. Defense witnesses characterized Mrs. Gore as stand-offish, difficult to get along with and subject to depression.

Defense attorneys attribute the savagery of the slaying — in which the 5-foot-6 former schoolteacher was struck 41 times — to a "dissociative reaction" that caused Mrs. Montgomery to become detached from reality.

Flamboyant lead defense attorney Don Crowder maintains his client could not have planned the assault on Mrs. Gore because she told friends where she was going before she went to the Gore home the day of the slaying.

Crowder, who was cited for contempt of court twice during the two-week trial, also points to his client's 5-foot-2 frame and testimony from her husband, Pat, who said she is so opposed to violence she won't allow their children to play with toy guns.

Public centennial meet called Thursday

The first public meeting to discuss plans for the impending centennial celebration of the coming of the railroad will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Howard College Auditorium.

Interested individuals, as well as representatives from the various groups and organizations in the community, are encouraged to attend the meeting and help shape plans for the area-wide celebration to be held May 24 thru May 28, 1981.

John Taylor, chairman of the steering committee for the centennial celebration, said the purpose of the meeting was to receive input from organizations in the area. He said a questionnaire would be given to all those attending the meeting asking what they would like to see during the celebration and ideas or projects they might be willing to undertake in conjunction with the five-day festivities.

In addition, Taylor said that a list of ideas previously submitted to the steering committee for consideration would also be given to participants to study for possible implementation.

Taylor, who stressed the fact that the public meeting would be kept short, said that the deadline for submitting ideas by the various groups would be Dec. 1, and that the guidelines for the clubs and organizations would be mailed to their representatives by Jan. 1, 1981.

Margaret Warren named bursar HC trustees authorize bids for renovation of buildings

The Howard College board of trustees authorized the school's administration to take bids on the renovation of several buildings on the main campus at the regular monthly session held Tuesday.

College president Dr. Charles Hays, said, however, that construction — which could run in the neighborhood of $70,000 — would be delayed until the administration was certain there was enough money in the budget to pay for such an undertaking.

Among other improvements, the plan calls for expansion of administrative office space.

The board approved the hiring of Margaret Warren as the school's bursar, Diane Lynhart as a school counselor at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf and Charles Shumake, who will be assigned to administrative work at SWCID.

A board committee appointed by board president Don McKinney will lend further study to a proposed expansion of the school's telephone system. The board is looking most favorably at the present time on a $96,000 lease agreement with Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, which would allow the school to have as many as 350 stations at Howard College and SWCID.

The school administration was also authorized to ask for bids on the new coliseum sign, money for which has been donated by a friend of the college. The sign can be electrically operated and will contain two moving or stationary lines for advertising events planned for the coliseum.

It was also announced that a sound system purchased recently for the school's use is already operable, although three minor pieces have yet to be shipped. The system has met universal approval, according to Dr. P. W. Malone, board member.

In his monthly report to the trustees, Dr. Hays said the college had earned an extra $1,500 by holding last year's cotton crop grown of College property in Martin County an extra four months.

Hays also revealed that a Del Rio delegation had petitioned Howard College to offer an ADN nursing course in that city. The course would be completely financed by Del Rio money, Hays was told.

McKinney also offered a report on the Oct. 7-11 convention of the Association of Community College Trustees, which was held at the Sheraton Waikiki Hotel in Honolulu.

McKinney attended the convention, as did Dr. Charles Warren, Harold Davis and Dr. P. W. Malone.

Peking blast

PEKING (AP) — An explosion shook the Peking railroad station today and unconfirmed reports said several people were killed.

A steady stream of ambulances leaving the station indicated many casualties, but there was no immediate official confirmation.

One man in the crowd outside said the 6:15 p.m. explosion occurred in an elevator and about 20 people were killed or wounded. Then a soldier touched his arm and he said no more.

Police cordoned off a large area in front of the station, but passengers with tickets continued to come and go through side doors and loudspeakers continued to announce train arrivals and departures.

Planned Parenthood officers announced

Margaret Chappell, outgoing President of Permian Basin Planned Parenthood, announced the results of Planned Parenthood's first major fund raising campaign at its recent annual meeting. The two-month campaign resulted in $35,909 to be used in the 1981 year.

Although the formal termination of the campaign was Oct. 16, Planned Parenthood continues to need funds for equipment such as an autoclave (sterilizer) and educational materials for patient and community education. Contributions will be accepted throughout the year and tours of the different clinics are available by contacting the Executive Offices in Odessa.

Ms. Chappell announced the 1980-81 officers for Planned Parenthood at the annual meeting. They are: President, Munro Shintani Ph.D.; Vice-President, Charlotte Williamson; Secretary, Melissa Hirsch; Treasurer, Bob Dutton. New members on the Board of Directors are: Chris South-Seminole, Velva Tischhauser — McKinney, Larry Turpin — Seminole, Dr. Bernard Zilberg — Big Spring, Carol Owen — Big Spring, Andrea Cohen — Big Spring, Sue Willbanks — Big Spring, Dr. Greg Bortha — Midland, Harris Kerr — Midland, Gary Patterson — Midland, Bertha Jimenez — Midland, Dr. Jay Mendez — Midland and Dr. Bob Hardy — Midland.

Sarah Weddington, Assistant to the President of the United States, was the guest speaker at the event.

The program included the presentation of the Margaret Sanger Award to Ms. Chappell and to Ms. Ruth Bell for their significant contributions to the advancement of voluntary family planning in the Permian Basin area.

The services provided by Planned Parenthood include physical examination, birth control education and provision, cancer screening, pregnancy testing, venereal disease screening, counseling on all areas of family planning and educational materials and programs. Women also receive information on nutrition, dental care and referrals to other services agencies in the local areas.

The examinations are done by local doctors and nurse practitioners.

Planned Parenthood has clinics in Odessa, Midland, Big Spring, Wink, Lamesa, McKinney, Seminole, Ft. Stockton, Andrews, Monahans and Pecos.

Ballot sent to hostage

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — An absentee ballot intended for Marine Lt. Col. Charles W. Scott, one of the American hostages in Iran, is on its way to the Federal Elections Commission.

DeKalb County Elections Supervisor Harry Schmid said he sent the ballot to Washington on Tuesday at the FEC's request. But whether the ballot can be delivered to Scott, a Stone Mountain resident, and returned to be tallied in the vote count of the Nov. 4 election, remained uncertain.

"I would be thrilled to get it back," Schmid said.

—Agreed to pay the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center $5,000 a year for the privilege of using the center facility as a City-County Health Unit.

—Passed on second reading the ordinance updating the Texas Municipal Retirement System for city employees.

—Granted an easement to West-Tex Telephone Company on Moss Creek Lake property.

—Tabled resolutions to execute agreements with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce regarding tourist development, and with the Colorado River Municipal Water District regarding a new contract.

—Scheduled regular council meetings for the first and third Tuesdays in November, Nov. 4 and 18, instead of the second and fourth Tuesdays.

Fewer fresh vegetables to be harvested this fall

AUSTIN — Fewer fresh vegetables will be harvested this fall in Texas, one more lingering effect of the drought which made it "too dry to plant" in some areas of the state this summer.

Harvest of carrots, bell peppers, spinach, lettuce and cabbage will all be down, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Only cucumbers and tomatoes are expected to increase over the 1979 fall harvest.

"It wasn't disease or insects that got these crops," said Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. "It was the hot, dry weather.

In some areas it was too dry to plant."

Prospective harvest figures for the October-December quarter are 3,400 acres of carrots, down 11 percent from 1970; 4,800 acres of bell peppers, down 17 percent; 4,000 acres of cabbage, down 33 percent; 1,700 acres of spinach, down 37 percent, and 900 acres of lettuce, down 47 percent.

Around 4,600 acres of cucumbers, a 35 percent increase over last year, are expected for harvest. Tomatoes will increase from 500 acres in 1979 to 800 this fall.

Rotary District Governor to visit local club Nov. 4

Wayne P. Sturdivant, Amarillo, Rotary District Governor, will visit the Big Spring Rotary Club Tuesday, Nov. 4.

Sturdivant, presently a senior partner in the law firm of Gibson, Ochsenr and Adkins in Amarillo, is one of 381 Rotary governors throughout the world who are representatives of Rotary International in districts composed of member clubs. Each district leader supervises the clubs in his area.

Sturdivant graduated from the University of Texas School of Law in 1954, after which he was immediately licensed to practice law in the State of Texas, and commenced his practice in Amarillo, where he has practiced continuously for 25 years.

Sturdivant graduated with honors from the University of Texas School of Law, and having enrolled in R.O.T.C., after having served in the United States Army as an enlisted man, he was graduated as a distinguished military student.

He is past president of the Amarillo Bar Association; past president of the Texas Association of Defense Counselors; a member of the International Association of Insurance Counselors; and a Fellow of the Texas Bar

Wayne Sturdivant

Foundation. He has also served his community in many civic capacities, including serving as Commander of Amarillo Commandery No. 48, Amarillo, Texas. He is a member of the First Baptist Church of Amarillo.

He is married to Anan Sturdivant, and they reside at 6309 Jameson, Amarillo. They have five children, three of whom have graduated from the University of Texas, one of whom is presently enrolled in college, and one of whom is still attending Amarillo High School.

He is past president of the Amarillo Downtown Rotary Club, and is presently District Governor, District 573, Rotary International.

Carter, Reagan fairly equal

By The Associated Press

President Carter and Ronald Reagan made significant and roughly equal gains in the preferences of registered voters as a result of their campaign debate, an exclusive poll by The Associated Press says.

The poll found that, in a debate-watching audience that leaned to Republican presidential candidate Reagan in the first place, each man gained 6 percentage points, mostly from the ranks of the previously undecided.

The nationwide canvass surveyed 1,062 registered voters who watched the debate on television Tuesday night. It yielded results from which each side could claim "victory" in the long-awaited confrontation.

In addition to the 6-point gains, the chief findings of the poll, taken in the 80 minutes after the debate went off the air, were these:

—More Reagan supporters

debate and 1,062 said they had watched.

That the TV audience leaned more heavily to Reagan than the larger Monday sample is clear from these findings:

Among the group questioned Monday, Reagan got 39 percent, Carter 35 and Anderson 7 — figures roughly in line with the findings of major national polls taken during the last 10 days.

But among the 1,062 who watched, the standing as of Monday was Reagan 43, Carter 33, Anderson 8 and 15 percent undecided.

Among the 1,062 after the debate, the figures stood at 49 percent for Reagan, 39 for Carter, 6 for Anderson and 6 percent still undecided.

Thus both Reagan and Carter achieved identical 6-point gains after the debate.

Reflecting the partisan interpretation of the debate, the registered voters who thought Reagan did the best job said they did so because they said they agreed with what Reagan said. People who liked Carter's performance said the incumbent seemed to know what he was talking about better than Reagan.

Forty percent of those who picked Reagan said they did so because he said things they agreed with. Twenty-four percent said he answered the questions well and 21 percent said he seemed to know what he was talking about. Seven percent said he looked and acted like a president and 5 percent said Carter did a poor job.

Thirty-four percent of those who thought Carter did better said he seemed to know what he was talking about. Twenty-two percent said he answered the questions well and 18 percent said he looked and acted like a president should. Sixteen percent said Carter said things they agreed with and 7 percent felt Reagan did a poor job.

The remainder in each case gave other reasons or were not sure.

The question used to measure debate performance was phrased this way: "Who, in your opinion, did the best job in the debate?"

The interviews were conducted by Chilton Research Services of Radnor, Pa., for The Associated Press.

The results measure not the opinions of all registered voters but only those of registered voters who watched the debate nationally.

As with every sample survey the results of the AP poll could vary from the opinions of all those who watched the debate because of chance variations in the sample.

For results based on interviews with more than 1,062 adults, the results are subject to an error margin of 4 percentage points. That is, if one could have talked to all those registered voters who watched the debate last night, there is only one chance in 20 that the results would vary from the results of this poll by more than 4 percentage points.

BIG SPRING STEER TWIRLERS — Big Spring's four twirlers looking for a win in Saturday's contest are Theresa Alexander, Ann Mullins, Patty Griffin, and Sherri Blalock.

Auxiliary champions will be crowned here

Howard College's Southwest Auxiliary Championships will be Saturday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Big Spring is the only town in the area to hold a competition like SWAC, now in its second year.

The competition was started to meet the needs of the newest portion of the marching band; the auxiliary units. These include anything that does not blow a horn; flag line, rifle line, color guard (flag and rifle), drum line, drill team, drum majors and twirlers.

The number of participants far exceeded the expectations of the contest committee, this year. Contestants numbers doubled those of last year.

The competition is divided into two parts. At 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. will be the preliminaries. The outstanding soloist in each category will be chosen, as well as the outstanding ensemble in each category and the finalists.

The final competition will begin at 7 p.m. The winners of each line competition will be selected. The Grand Sweepstakes winner will be chosen on a point basis from all competitors.

The final event will be the presentation of the trophies preceded by the performance of the Wayland Baptist College Band.

Howard College's SWAC is made possible by Howard College and the local Chamber of Commerce.

Callers to ABC pick Reagan by 2-1 margin

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly 700,000 people paid 50 cents each to take part in an instant ABC News telephone survey following the presidential debate, and by a 2-to-1 margin they said Ronald Reagan had gained more from the encounter than President Carter.

ABC said that of the callers who reached one of two special 900-prefix numbers during the 100 minutes following Tuesday night's debate, 469,412 people or 67 percent dialed the number designated for Reagan and 227,017 or 33 percent dialed the one assigned to Carter.

The network said an especially heavy volume of calls was recorded from "Western states," but had no more precise breakdown immediately.

ABC stressed that the survey was not scientific but merely an attempt to gauge quickly the impact of the debate on viewers.

The tally lacked statistical validity because, unlike the traditional public opinion polls, the sampling was not selected to represent the electorate as a whole. It simply represented the views of those who called.

Callers who reached one of two numbers broadcast by ABC during the debate had their choice recorded by computer and were greeted by a recorded message that said: "This is Frank Reynolds. Thank you for dialing this number and automatically registering your opinion that President Carter (Ronald Reagan) gained the most in this debate."

Carnival to be held Thursday at HC

Howard College Student Government Association will hold an annual Halloween Carnival from 6:30 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 30 in the Student Union Building at Howard College.

There will be a 50 cent fine for not wearing a costume. Children under 12 will get in free.

Also there will be a dance featuring Slip a Disc starting at 9:30 p.m. and ending at 1 a.m.

At the carnival there will be game booths such as kissing booth and fortune telling booth, all manned by students of Howard College organizations.

Getting back to basics of our system

The Associated Press Election Service sends along a primer concerning the general election next Tuesday that should prove invaluable to newspapers, teachers, students of government and that segment of the public which remains forever curious about the American voting process.

For instance, the fact sheet reminds us that incumbent Jimmy Carter, a 56-year-old Democrat, Republican Ronald Reagan, who now is 69; and Independent John Anderson, a 58-year-old who has said he never would desert the Grand Old Party even if he were elected to the top office in the land, aren't the only candidates in the race.

AMONG PRESIDENTIAL hopefuls of various other parties are Libertarian Ed Clark of California, 50, a lawyer by profession; and environmentalist Barry Commoner of Missouri, 63, whose name has been projected by the Citizen's Party or Consumer Party.

It's far more important, the publication reminds us, for the candidates to garner 270 votes than it is to reap 50 or 50 million votes. Why? Because voters still don't directly elect a president. Instead, the nation uses a traditional Electoral College system and the voters cast ballots for presidential electors. Why is Texas so important to both major candidates? Because it is one of the ten most populous states, which contain nearly half the electoral votes.

Polling hours vary widely across the nation. For instance, the booths will be open 12 hours in Texas but will remain open until 11 p.m., in Oregon and until 2 a.m., in Alaska.

All seats in the U.S. House of Representatives are up for election, though people like the Texas 17th District's Charles Stenholm doesn't have to worry. Stenholm is one of several who has no opposition.

Among the state's 50 governors, 31 are Democrats and 19 are Republicans. Most governors serve four-year terms and the balloting in many states (Texas included) is not in the same year that a president is chosen. Among the governors, the seats now occupied by ten Democrats and three Republicans are up for election this year — including contests in the four states where governors serve two-year terms.

There are 34 Senate seats at stake this year, with every race for a full six-year term. Those seats now are held by 24 Democrats and ten Republicans. (None is at stake in Texas). The pre-election political division of the seats shows 58 Democrats, 41 Republicans and one Independent.

The popular vote for the presidency in 1976 in Texas showed 51.1 per cent were of Democratic persuasion, 48 per cent supported the Republican ticket.

TEXAS HAS 9,648,000 people of voting age this year, but not nearly that many will take the trouble of going to the polls Tuesday. The only states with more voters are California, 16,956,000, and New York, with 12,900,000. The Census Bureau estimates there will be more than 160 million Americans of voting age this November, 10.4 million more than at the time in the 1976 elections. Many, however, are ineligible to cast ballots because they didn't even go to the trouble of registering.

How crucial is one vote? Sig Rogers of Big Spring says it can be very important and points to the fact that a single vote gave Oliver Cromwell control of England in 1645, one ballot caused Charles I of England to be executed in 1649, a solitary vote caused America to adopt the English rather than the German language in 1776, one vote elevated Marcus Morton into the governor's chair in Massachusetts in 1939, one vote saved Andrew Johnson from impeachment as president, one vote gave Rutherford B. Hayes the presidency, one vote changed France from a monarchy to a republic, and Adolph Hitler became leader of the Nazi party because of one vote.

Whatever you do Tuesday, devote a little time to going to the polls.

Backing Reagan

Around the rim

Don Woods

I can't believe it. Christians are holding rallies, lobbying Congress, writing letters to editors, manning telephone banks...

I would have never thought the federal government would slip to such a low ebb that Christians would find it necessary to work against it in such large numbers.

I guess I had thought in a kind of a daze that government officials, though outwardly pompous and slippery, had our best interests at the bottom of their hearts.

I CONFESS I was uninformed, but the same thing had begun to happen all over the country. While many Americans became confused about the complexities of the issues of modern life, radical elements waxed articulate and captured headlines and network coverage.

America may fall on rough times but it has muddled through before and will continue to muddle, I thought, naively believing rhetoric filtered down from Capitol Hill.

But now I think, as do a number of other citizens, that it isn't good (at all) for a nation to "muddle through," though it may get along okay for a time. Eventually this attitude on the part of our leaders takes its toll.

Nations have fallen again and again through history. Bureaucrats "play God," ignoring this fact and spending money like the nation's economy was invincible.

This type of lavish spending is characteristic of nations that founder. Witness the expensive free circus of Rome.

Political involvement by Christians has become necessary to guarantee, at least for a while longer, the freedom to worship the way we want. This is the quality that brought our fathers here in the first place.

Many of us feel that Ronald Reagan is the most likely of the candidates to work toward this end. It is his political philosophy that makes many, but not all of us, feel that way.

CHOOSING A CANDIDATE is a matter of choosing an ideology. You pick the man with the belief system closest to your own. His views on issues are secondary because his stand is subordinate to his belief system. His personal philosophy dictates his stand on the issues. Therefore, the ideology of the candidate is the thing to watch.

We hear people say that Reagan speaks in generalities. But what people are mistaking for obscurity is a statement of convictions. Maybe people have grown so unused to hearing convictions in the mouths of politicians that they don't know what they are hearing. What we usually hear is a plan for action on a specific issue, which is also important, but it's reduced to mere expediency if the action doesn't stem from a consistently applied political philosophy.

This is a flaw that has been attributed often to politicians ... no convictions. But I think Reagan sees the importance of the priority of voicing his convictions.

That's why I'm personally backing Reagan. Because he's just not the kind of guy who will deal lightly with the Soviets and people who hold innocent Americans as hostages.

Vote Reagan.

Hostage captive

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Attempting to penetrate the wall of silence erected by Ronald Reagan around the hostage issue, this message was flashed to Reagan headquarters in Arlington, Va., early last week: Attack President Carter's record on the hostages no matter what the risk.

That advice, from one of the party's respected elder politicians, so far has fallen on deaf ears. Instead of attacking Carter, the consensus of Reagan's divided counselors is to say nothing until the fine print of Carter's hostage deal with Iran is known. That makes Reagan himself a captive of the hostage issue.

Behind the divided counsel rests a most agonizing political problem for Reagan. The question is whether a silent Reagan can possibly avoid defeat on Nov. 4 if the hostages are returned, creating a wave of patriotic fervor that would dwarf other elements of the presidential campaign.

THE CURRENT CONSENSUS in Reagan's headquarters is that Carter's brilliant but cynical exploitation of the hostage issue could backfire, converting free if any anti-Carter or undecided voters to Carter following the party's elder statesman, multiplied a hundred fold by lesser party operatives, derides that view as pie-in-the-sky.

"If the hostages come out," this party leader told us, "Reagan must have laid the base for serious discussion. He must ask the questions now about why Carter let the hostages get taken in the first place and whether his deal with Iran could get the U.S. into a Persian Gulf war."

Reagan briefly lifted his self-imposed silence on the hostage issue Oct. 21 when he blamed Carter for helping create "the entire situation that made their kidnap possible." But as soon as Carter accused him of politicizing the issue, Reagan reimposed silence on himself.

Yet, no less than Vice President Walter F. Mondale could not give an adequate response Friday morning when he was interviewed on NBC's "Today" show. Asked by Richard Valeriani why both presidential candidates did not have a "responsibility" to debate Carter's "accountability" for the seizure of the hostages, Mondale could only reply: "We're willing to discuss that whole issue. But it is uniquely unsuited to politics."

Some of Reagan's advisers feel discussion is long overdue. They see it as a tragic disservice to the country, with political implications stretching at least four years into the future, if an election-eve Carter coup succeeds in bringing the hostages home and blots out the central economic, defense and foreign policy issues of the campaign.

Not the least of these concerns is whether Carter strikes a bargain with Iran that ends American neutrality and puts the U.S. on Iran's side in that Persian Gulf war. This might happen, according to high administration officials, if Carter agrees to send Iran the $400 million in military equipment sold to the shah before seizure of the hostages.

As one administration official told us: "the president simply cannot publicly offer help like that to the ayatollah. All he can do is hint at it, and make the final deal after the election."

"Now, ladies and gentlemen... at long last, the Great Debate!"

Excessive night sweating calls for checkup

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You've heard of blood, sweat, and tears? Well I'm the sweat part of it. I am a 70-year-old woman with a problem that is driving me crazy. I sweat tremendously at night. I have to get up to change my night clothes at least once a night. Is there anything I can do about this? My husband doesn't have this problem, so I don't think it's the house temperature, etc. My only bad habit is smoking. — Mrs. O.K.

I hate to raise ghosts in answering a question that probably has a very simple answer. I should advise you, first of all, to see your doctor to make sure you don't have one of the illnesses associated with excessive sweating. Chronic infections, diseases of the lymph nodes and a rare adrenal tumor should at least be investigated.

If you have no illness causing the excessive sweating, remember that perspiration is produced in an attempt to lower the body's heat. This is a very individual matter, so it would make no difference whether or not your husband has the problem or not. Perhaps as simple a step as adjusting the blankets you use or dialing down your thermostat a bit at night would help. Your husband may grumble.

If you are smoking, quit. Smoking reduces urine production, because nicotine hampers the kidney's work. With less urine being produced by the kidneys, sweating becomes a backup method of getting rid of excess body fluid. Your immediate step should be to have an examination.

Dear Dr. Donohue: In your column you answered a letter asking about ribbed fingernails. You answered this subject fully and explained that paired white bands in the shape of a bow can indicate low blood proteins. What is meant by "blood proteins"? How do you supply this if it is lacking? — J.R.

When red blood cells are removed from drawn whole blood, the remaining fluid is called plasma. Many substances remain in the plasma — for example, the carbohydrates, fats and proteins the blood has absorbed from food. There are also proteins that don't come from food, but which the body makes itself. One class of such proteins is albumin, which is made in the liver. Albumin is carried to other spots in the body to aid in building tissue (nails included), only one of its jobs.

I don't want you to have the impression that paired white bands in the shape of a bow on the fingernail always mean a lack of blood proteins. That is not the case. It is seen sometimes in people whose blood tests out low in proteins. Testing is the only way to know for sure.

If the proteins are low, it usually doesn't mean the person's diet is deficient, unless he is not eating a balanced diet. Such a blood deficiency is most often due to an escape of these proteins in the urine or stool. People with severe kidney disease, a disturbance in the gut's absorption ability or a malfunction of the liver may have low blood proteins. When the cause is corrected, the protein level returns to normal. In selected cases, oral protein supplements may be prescribed as an aid in building up the blood.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you please tell us if any doctors will give hormone injections for breast enlargements? Also, how can we find a physician for facts or advice regarding this? — Mrs. W.S.

Here's the scoop on breast size. It is determined primarily by heredity, and when you are talking about heredity and genes, there is usually precious little to be done medically to alter matters.

If a woman's hormone system is normal, additional female hormones are not needed. The breasts have responded to hormonal stimulation as much as they were intended to. If the hormones were not being produced in sufficient amounts supplements might be needed, but for more serious reasons than small bust size.

You can discuss your situation with your gynecologist. If this matter is causing you emotional problems, he might recommend a plastic surgeon who can produce enlargement by implanting silicone pads over the chest muscle.

If afflicted with problem fingernails or toenails, learn about the practical, medically correct form of treatment. Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Solving Your Nail Problems," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What does the Bible mean when it talks about faith? — C.B.

DEAR C.B.: You have asked a very important question, since the Bible stresses repeatedly the importance of faith. In fact, it is by faith in Christ that we have hope of salvation.

The word "faith" has a very rich and definite meaning in the Bible. In the English language "faith" can be a rather vague term, but that is not the case in the original language of the Bible. The word we translate as "faith" means more than just an acceptance of certain facts as being true. Yes, to have faith in God means that we believe he exists. But in the Bible it means also that we believe in him so completely that we are willing to commit our lives to him. It means that we trust him and believe that what he has done for us in Jesus Christ is worthy of our complete commitment.

There is an old story which I have used many times to illustrate this. According to the story, a man stretched a tightrope across Niagara Falls and began to walk across it with a wheelbarrow full of rocks. A large crowd gathered to watch him go back and forth, impressed with his skill. Finally he approached one of the spectators and asked, "Do you think I can walk across the tightrope with a loaded wheelbarrow?" "Of course," the man replied. "Do you believe I could walk across the falls with a man in the wheelbarrow?" he asked. "Certainly," answered the man. "Fine. Get in and I'll take you across," the tightrope artist said. At that the man fled! You see, he believed in one sense, but in another way he did not really believe — he was not willing to commit himself to the wheelbarrow.

True faith involves our willingness to commit our lives to Jesus Christ, trusting that he has done for us on the cross to forgive us of our sins and give us new life. Have you committed your life to Christ in faith? Give your life to him. He is worthy of your trust, and you can know what it means to walk by faith every day.

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A deadly two-man game has been going on for years in the Middle East — and both players are men who should know better. The participants, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Libyan strongman Muammar Qaddafi, have been trying, by one means or another, to remove the other from the playing field "with extreme prejudice" — by assassination or violent overthrow.

This updated version of "The Most Dangerous Game" has been followed with some nervousness by the American intelligence community. U.S. hopes for peace and stability in the region would blow sky-high if either Sadat or Qaddafi succeeded in rubbing out his rival.

THE SEESAW STRUGGLE between the two leaders is chronicled in U.S. intelligence files. The falling-out began nearly a decade ago. Qaddafi, a young pan-Arab zealot, was an admirer of Sadat's revolutionary colleague and predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser, the charismatic military man who masterminded the ouster of Egypt's playboy King Farouk in the 1950s. Nasser at one point tried to unite Egypt and Libya as a first step in creating one great Arab nation.

Qaddafi — who even lived for a time in Sadat's home — came to believe that Sadat had betrayed the Nasser dream and the pan-Arab cause. Even before Sadat solidified this suspicion by making peace with Israel, the two Arab rivals indulged in what State Department analysts described in their reports as "bizarre adventures" aimed at each other's throats.

In actual numbers, Qaddafi has probably planned more violence against Sadat than the other way around. But Sadat has done his share.

In public, Sadat has childlike and suffering from a Napoleonic complex. In private, he has planned Qaddafi's assassination.

"President Sadat," says one of several top-secret CIA reports, "has ordered the Egyptian intelligence service to draw up plans to overthrow Libyan President Qaddafi... Sadat reportedly stipulated that the coup should appear to originate within Libya, and that care be taken to conceal Egypt's hand... Sadat is apparently going about the planning with some caution."

One of many Qaddafi plots against Sadat is described in a top-secret State Department report. It tells of a meeting between the Libyan dictator and George Habash, a member of one of the Palestinian terrorist groups Qaddafi has bankrolled to the tune of some $70 million a year.

HABASH WAS promised all the money he needed to engineer Sadat's overthrow, according to the report. The plot was to involve leftist Egyptian army officers, Palestinians and communists, and was to include "a plan to assassinate the Egyptian leader, using non-Arab terrorists to avoid damaging the Palestinian position in the Arab world."

One Qaddafi plot against Sadat was discovered by Israeli intelligence and the Egyptian president was tipped off. Sadat angrily ordered a border attack on Libya. Alarmed by this open clash, the United States quietly stepped in. "Our advice to Tripoli and Cairo has been to cool it, including the assassination plots," an intelligence source told my associate Dale Van Atta. But the plots keep coming "every three to six months," including one by Qaddafi to blow up Sadat's plane on his way home from Washington last April. Our intelligence agents learned of the plot and Sadat was routed through England instead.

Qaddafi's latest plot is to build a 187-mile "Chinese Wall" between Libya and Egypt. But it's doubtful that, in this case, a good fence will make good neighbors.

ENERGETIC PROMOTION: Evidently sapped by criticism in the press, the Department of Energy has roused itself to publish its own high-quality newspaper in hopes of getting its self-serving message across to state, county and local governments across the country. It's costing the taxpayers a bundle.

The promotional "news" publication is called Energy Forum, and it is filled with self-congratulatory articles and pictures of Carter administration officials supposedly solving the nation's energy problems. The expensively produced promotional rag costs about $1.25 a copy, not counting overhead and the salaries of government employees who put it out.

Three issues of Energy Forum have been published so far, each edition costing more than $14,000. DOE poobahs claim the newspaper is needed to familiarize local government officials with the department's activities.

What they fail to mention, though, is that much of Energy Forum's information is contained in a less ritzy DOE publication that is sent out to many of the same local governments. Called Energy Insider, the economy version costs only about 12 cents a copy to produce.

DRUG CRIMES: There's new evidence which suggests that desperate heroin addicts — needing $150 a day to support their habits — are responsible for hundreds of thousands of street crimes annually. One recent study in Miami, for example, concluded that 239 heroin addicts were known to be responsible for an incredible total of 80,000 criminal offenses.

Dear Editor: The time now required for appeal in criminal cases is much too slow. It is the major problem of the Texas courts today.

Constitutional Amendment No. 8, to be voted upon on Nov. 4, will greatly speed the finality of criminal appeals.

Now, all appeals of all criminal cases go to one nine-judge court, the Court of Criminal Appeals. That court, however hardworking, cannot handle the load and cannot even reach criminal appeals for at least two years after conviction. The amendment would utilize the 51 judges of our courts of civil appeals to handle this load. It would change the name of that court to the Court of Appeals.

We strongly urge the adoption of Amendment 8. Joe R. Greenhill, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, and Truman Roberts, Judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals

Coast Guard watching foreigners Patrolling the 200-mile limit

MCLELLAN AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The skipper flicks an eye at the big Russian ship wallowing in the Pacific swells below. "Let's go take a look," he says.

In an instant, Coast Guard Lt. Dave Hoover, 27, sends 78 tons of airplane screaming to within feet of the ship's stacks.

Back aft in a hurricane force windstream, an Associated Press reporter and a photographer sit on the plane's open ramp, nothing between them and cold salt water but slim nylon belts hitched to the deck.

Below, so close you can almost make out faces on the bridge, is the 270-foot Soviet fish factory Mark Reshetnikov. Nearby, the ship's American "partner" trolls for hake.

"We don't go below 150 feet," says Hoover apologetically. "Some of the smaller boat people get excited...Some are less than polite on the radio...One guy looked like he was going to shoot at us."

The Mark Reshetnikov is among the 30 sightings we make that day in a 35,000-square-mile area before a propeller malfunction forces our four-engine C-130 Hercules turboprop back to base early.

It was one of the Coast Guard's periodic flights in this region, checking on foreign fleets fishing within 200 miles of American shores and the Canadian border.

Among other duties, the Coast Guard is charged with enforcing the Fishery Management and Conservation Act of 1976, which strictly controls foreign fishing vessels in the 200-mile U.S. zone. Violations can mean heavy fines, seizure, confiscation or jail.

Many of the ships, which pay the United States about $4,000 a year for the privilege, are fishing with huge nets that can trap some 30 tons in one haul. These ships dwarf their American counterparts.

The fishing expert aboard the plane was Peter Chorney Jr., regional senior agent of the National Marine Fisheries Service. He had a list of all foreign vessels which by law had informed the Coast Guard of intentions to fish inside the control zone.

As we cross the coast at Ukiah, Chorney explains that foreign vessels with permits may fish only for hake, a poor relation to the cod. Hake is highly prized in Poland and Russia but, comments Chorney, "You couldn't get a nickel a pound for that fish in this country."

Within an hour after takeoff, about 15 miles off the Oregon coast just north of the California line, the radar is suddenly full of sightings. They're all big fishing trawlers — and all Polish.

Generally, says Chorney, "The Poles, when they're competing with the Russians, outfish them. The Poles' average daily catch rates are always higher."

In a little over two hours, we make 14 sightings and close-in examinations of Polish vessels. Chorney snorts as he eyes the deck of a 450-footer, and asks the pilot to make another pass.

"He looked like he had more than a few rockfish on deck," says Chorney, as Hoover turns for another look.

All we see for our trouble are a few fish flopping in a mostly empty net on deck.

Chorney is irritated. "Boy, he got rid of that fast," he grumps. A foreign vessel would be permitted a few incidental prohibited species, but more than that would mean a Coast Guard boarding party.

Chorney explains the exclusively Polish vessels: "We won't be seeing many Russians fishing because (President) Carter got mad at them for Afghanistan and told the Russians they couldn't fish in our waters."

What the Russians may do in U.S. waters, however, is send in — by prearrangement — factory ships to receive fish caught by Americans under contract to the Marine Resources Co., a U.S. firm half-owned by Russians.

The Russians process the fish at sea, then the MRC pays the Americans and sells the hake around the world. That was what the Mark Reshetnikov was doing with its nearby partner, the American trawler "Corey P." out of Brookings, Ore.

MRC Vice President

Walter Pereya said his is the only American firm in which a Soviet interest, through its Souryflot company, has part ownership. MRC's American interest is owned by Bellingham Cold Storage Co. in Washington, he said.

Five hours after takeoff, we sight windy, wave-battered Cape Flattery at the head of the straits leading to Seattle. Up north, Canada.

"That," says the pilot, "is where the United States ends. I can't get caught harassing anybody in Canadian waters."

'The Little Foxes' booked at Stage 1

ODESSA — Considered by many to be her best play, Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes" is more than a story about a struggling family in the Reconstruction South. In many instances, the play curiously parallels Hellman's own life.

"The Little Foxes," which opened Oct. 24 on Stage 11 at Odessa College, will offer other performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

"Even though Lillian Hellman did not spend the majority of her youth in the South, she spent many summers with her mother in New Orleans," explains Jane Ann Crum, director of drama at OC. "The influence of the time she did spend in the South is obvious in her play because her lines are naturally Southern, not affected."

"In some ways, the character Alexandra in the play is Lillian as a girl," Crum adds. "Alexandra is only child, sees her parents fighting constantly, and is able to use the power of an only child over her parents."

Fletcher faces burglary count

Kerry Don Fletcher, 24, 1501 Kenny, arrested on suspicion of theft and burglary, was transferred to county jail Oct. 20.

The theft was cleared when the management of Wasson Road Texaco found that $55 missing from cash register where Fletcher was working had already been deducted from his paycheck.

The burglary was from the home of Jack Birdwell and Troy Allen, 1207 E. 16. A handgun, 30-30 rifle, stereo equipment and records were taken. The items were allegedly found in Fletcher's house.

Fletcher was charged with burglary in a complaint filed Monday in the office of Justice of the Peace Bobby West.

'Trick or treating' with 'water balloons' is no-no

COLORADO CITY — Juveniles caught with 'water balloons' on Halloween will be picked up and taken to the police station, Colorado City Police Chief Robert Bailey said this week.

"Although some people consider water balloons harmless, they can injure and kill," Bailey said.

"I would like to encourage parents to accompany children who are 'tricking or treating,'" Bailey said.

"Trick or treating" should be completed as early as possible and all persons walking on the streets should carry a light and wear light colored clothing to make themselves highly visible to motorists."

Parents are also being reminded that they are responsible and liable for any damage their children may inflict.

Dear Abby

Good Loving a Matter Of Interest, Not Age

DEAR ABBY: You have stated repeatedly that men can be sexually active at 80, and I wish you would cut it out! You are wrong, but you seem to have an obsession about this subject.

I am an honest 60-year-old man who begs to differ with you. A man is not a stud at 60. In fact, most men are on the decline starting at about 40. Some even before that. I suppose there are a few exceptions, but very darned few. The men who write to you saying they are just as good at 70 as they were at 30 are either lying or kidding themselves.

The next time you consult a gerontologist, please pick an honest one and make sure he's informed on sexology. The cemeteries are full of men who tried to prove they were just as good lovers at 60 as they were at 30. Thank you, SIXTY AND NO STUD

DEAR SIXTY: I did say that men can be sexually active at 80, which is true. Much depends on their attitude, the state of their general health, and whether they have an interesting and interested partner.

I did not say that all men are just as good lovers at 60 as they were at 30. All are not. Some are better!

DEAR ABBY: The letter asking whether marriage between a Republican and Democrat could ever work interested me because my marriage was also "mixed." My husband was a devout Republican and I a dedicated Democrat.

Every election day we'd both go off to the polls and cancel out each other's vote. We talked about it, argued about it and even laughed about it. In spite of our political differences, we had a wonderful 40-year marriage.

He's been dead for three years, and I'm certainly going to miss him this November.

VOTING FOR CARTER

DEAR VOTING: So will Mr. Reagan!

DEAR ABBY: After a miserable marriage and traumatic divorce, I married a woman so wonderful that it made everything that had occurred previously seem like a bad dream from which I had finally awakened. She has given me faith in myself, joy beyond description, inspiration, and the kind of love I thought existed only in romantic novels. My two little ones (I have custody) adore her as she does them.

Paradise, right? Wrong! She has one habit that drives me up a wall. She is NEVER on time for anything. If she says "a few minutes," it can mean an hour. An hour can mean three.

Abby, I cannot count on her to be on time for anything. Nor can anyone else. She is always behind and running late. It is an exasperating fly-in-the-ointment of what would otherwise be a union made in heaven. Can you, or any of your experts, suggest a cure?

BEWILDERED IN BUCKS COUNTY

DEAR BEWILDERED: Not unless the lady wants to be cured. By your own account, she has five virtues and only one fault — exasperating as it may be. Many "unions made in heaven" have worse tradeoffs. Nag her — but count your blessings instead of the minutes.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ARIES IN ASHTABULA, OHIO: It may sound shocking, but I believe it's possible to love several individuals at the same time with nearly equal tenderness, and we need not lie to assure each of our passion.

Responsibility is Forum program

Mrs. Woody Smith, public affairs chairman, presented a program on "The Responsibility of Citizens" to the GFWC Modern Woman's Forum Oct. 23.

Mrs. R. M. Keese, vice-president, presided over the meeting in the home of Mrs. H. M. Rowe. A thank you note was read from Big Spring State Hospital for cookies donated to them.

Mrs. Smith stated, "We can't control the length of our life, but we can control how we use it. It is significant that the solutions of many of the problems of society deal with the structure and not the substance, which is the people."

"Can the habit of turning to government to supply most or all needs be broken? As reliance on government agencies increases, people become less effective in dealing with problems, thereby losing skills and leadership abilities," said the GFWC Clubwoman magazine.

People used to adopt needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas time and enjoyed sharing necessities with them. The attitude now exists that the Welfare Department will take care of them so why bother? This solution is impersonal and expensive.

Mrs. Smith pointed out the importance of witnesses testifying willingly to unlawful acts because no court system can work without them.

Vandalism to coin operated telephones cost customers one million dollars a year, or about $2,600 daily for repairs. About one-fourth of the phones are out of service when needed for emergencies due to this problem.

Members were reminded to bring Christmas gifts to the Nov. 14 meeting to take to the Big Spring State Hospital. The meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. S. R. Nobles.

A CHILD'S IMAGINATION — plus paper, glue and ink are all that's required to create Halloween characters — witch, vampire and friendly goblin. Because there's no pumpkin carving required, it's safe and more fun for kids.

Pumpkin wizardry with paper and ink

That same old face. Squinty eyes. Triangle nose. A mouth with three teeth. Ho-hum.

This year, see how the pen can be mightier than the sword when creating Halloween pumpkins.

Using paper, yarn, ribbon, gift-wrap scraps, markers and other household items instead of a knife, children can make almost any Halloween character," says Angela Orwin of Hallmark Cards.

"Instead of having the children watch Dad carve the pumpkin, they can participate and use their creative talents to bring the pumpkin to life," she says. "And parents will appreciate continuing this age-old custom in a safer manner."

Three ways of decorating pumpkins are described below:

WITCH — Create an enchanting witch. Make her hat out of wrapping paper by twisting a long piece into a cone and securely taping it to a matching piece cut into a donut shape. The hat band is made out of complementary colored gift wrap and taped to the cone. To make locks of hair, curl ribbon and tape to the top of the pumpkin. Cut the nose and mouth out of construction paper and glue into place.

VAMPIRE — "Happy Halloween," says this scary Count Dracula look-alike.

His hair is black gift yarn glued to the top of the pumpkin. The eyes and eyebrows are made of one piece of construction paper colored with marking pens and glued into place. The nose is white construction paper outlined in black. Lift the nose up at the tip for a more life-like appearance. The mouth, ears and fangs are also cut out of construction paper (outlined in black) and glued into place. Place Dracula on a pedestal made from a block of wood encircled with colored paper. His cape is made from folded gift wrap.

FRIENDLY GOBLIN — This happy fellow will especially appeal to the younger children. To make bug-like eyes, glue 7-inch round white paper dessert plates (outlined in black) to the pumpkin. Glue black circles on one edge of each plate to make the pupils. Fashion his mouth from white construction paper outlined in black. For hands, cut white lightweight poster board or use white work gloves attached to sticks.

TWEEN 12 and 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Pulse of teens

Perhaps acknowledging the hard realities of the job market today, nearly three-quarters of teen girls not yet in college plan to attend, says a study in Seventeen. Their main reason for attending college: to prepare for a high-paying job. The overwhelming majority of these girls said they intend to go for a specific major in college rather than a more generalized liberal arts degree.

The survey also found that if the United States went to war, over half of America's teen girls would probably or definitely NOT be willing to serve in the armed forces. If the country became involved in war in which the girls did not believe, only one-third said they would serve the United States in any capacity. A full 42 percent would become conscientious objectors, and 16 percent said they would consider renouncing their citizenship and moving.

Among the other findings in the survey:

— Premarital Sex and Living Together: 43 percent of all girls believe that there is nothing wrong with premarital sex. Indeed, they plan to experience it or have already done so. (This figure jumps to 60 percent among the 18- to 19-year-olds). Not as many girls are willing to live with a man before marriage: 36 percent say there is nothing wrong with it.

— Marriage and Divorce: Nearly all the girls plan to marry, and over three-quarters want families of three children or less. Fifty-seven percent of teens approve of divorce.

— Parents: A generation gap of sorts does exist, but mostly with respect to fathers. While some 41 percent of the girls say they would go to Mother with a problem, only about 7 percent feel Father knows best. Nearly half the girls say Mom has the most influence over their views of life. Dad's influence counts most with just over 20 percent of the girls.

Fantasy Folks: When asked to choose a fantasy mom, the girl's own mom came in first, followed by Carol Burnett, Jaclyn Smith, Olivia Newton-John and Lucille Ball, respectively. Burt Reynolds sweeps away the honors among fantasy fathers, followed by the girl's own dad. Robert Redford came in third, Erik Estrada, fourth and Dick Van Patten, fifth.

— Religion: Teens have by no means abandoned organized religion. Just over half surveyed said they regularly attend some kind of religious service, 34 percent attend on a less regular basis.

The survey was conducted by Gilbert Youth Research Inc., using a national probability sample of 1,002 girls ages 13 to 19.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and want to get my ears pierced but my mother won't let me. She says that if humans were intended to have holes in their ears, God would have placed them there. All my friends have their ears pierced and I will pay to have it done.

Don't you think my mother should relent and let me? After all, they are my ears. — Connie, El Centro, Calif.

Connie: I'm sorry, but I have to agree with mother, but only because of your age. If you still feel the same way when you are 18, get them pierced.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Members to give program

The GFWC Forsan Study Club will have a business meeting, Nov. 3 at 7 p.m. in the Forsan High School Home Economics Department.

The six members who attended the Western District Fall Board Meeting in Big Lake, Oct. 24 and 25, will give their impressions and ideas on how the Forsan Study Club can become more involved in Western District activities.

The members attending were Shirley Summers, Eunice Thixton, Emily Elrod, Donna Parker, Sue V. Holguin, and Brenda White.

The Community Town Hall Meeting originally planned on Nov. 3 has been cancelled by the guest speaker, Larry Don Shaw, the future State Representative for the 63rd District.

Letter arrives in Australia

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — Anni Salo got a lot more mileage than she bargained for out of the 15-cent stamp she placed on a letter to Astoria. The letter wound up in Vienna, Austria.

Mrs. Salo, of Svenson, mailed a newspaper subscription check to "The Daily Astorian, P.O. Box 210, Astoria," about 10 miles from her home. She did not include the state or ZIP code, and forgot to put a return address on the letter. Nearly two months later, she got it back, with markings showing that it had been to Vienna and back.

Astoria postal clerk Lew Kinder said that because of a large volume of mail in Astoria, the letter was sent to Portland for sorting.

"There was probably someone new in distribution (where the letters are sorted) and he read 'Astoria' as 'Austria,'" Kinder said.

"My handwriting isn't very good," Mrs. Salo acknowledged.

While her original letter was going to Vienna and back, Mrs. Salo was billed three times for her subscription.

Finally, she sent another check. It arrived one day after the newspaper got the original check, marked "Retour" (return) and "Anschrift ungenugend" (insufficient address).

Candidates not the same

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — This year's politicians are running dull campaigns compared to those of yesteryear, judging from the boring buttons they're handing out, says Lester Bernstein, a collector of political paraphernalia.

"They just use their names now, and the buttons are bigger," said Bernstein, 72, who began gathering up buttons and other campaign memorabilia back in the 1950s. His collection dates back to the 1700s and includes a campaign coin — forerunner of the political button — issued by George Washington's supporters and bearing the first president's likeness.

The collector said Tuesday that his favorite political souvenir is a gray elephant that has "Land on Roosevelt" written on its side. His favorite buttons display the face of 1920s presidential candidate John W. Davis, a fellow West Virginian.

Despite the assortment of political election and convention materials, Bernstein says he's not interested in day-to-day politics.

"I'm listed as a Democrat, but that's just because the missus is a Democrat. Whoever is better I vote for."

Pumpkin thief gives up

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A remorseful thief, remembering how he felt as a child when his own pumpkin was stolen, has returned the pumpkin he took from a Concord family's porch.

Barbara Hanchett said she heard a commotion on her porch during the weekend, and the next morning the pumpkin was gone. Her daughters, aged 5 and 8, tearfully looked for their pumpkin, but it was nowhere to be found.

Then a while later, the pumpkin reappeared on the porch, with this note: "Sorry, I forgot it. It happened to me when I was 3, and I cried my brains out. I'm really sorry. The Night Man."

Ford takes biggest loss this quarter

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. lost $595 million in the third quarter of 1980, a loss that took the industry's worst-quarter-ever title from its top competitor. And Ford officials say their economic future depends greatly on the government.

It was the second in the industry's round of third-quarter reports. Chrysler Corp. will announce results soon and American Motors Corp. is to announce its figures in early November.

Ford's report Tuesday eclipsed the industry record loss of $567 million, reported the day before by General Motors Corp. for the same quarter.

As big as Ford's loss was, it was not a record for a U.S. company.

U.S. Steel Corp. holds that record with a $669 million loss for the fourth quarter of 1979. The loss for the quarter was first reported at $562 million, but the steelmaker revised it earlier this year to reflect accounting changes.

Ford's losses for the year so far set a record for any U.S. company's first nine months — $1.23 billion or $10.20 per share against a profit of $1.21 billion or $10.10 per share for the period last year.

For the third quarter, Ford's $595 million loss amounted to $4.96 per share, compared to profits of $103 million or 85 cents per share in the period last year.

Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell and President Donald Petersen said in a statement that the loss was caused by decreased sales, a smaller market share for Ford and higher interest costs.

Slowing economies in Europe, decreased sales, one-time expenses to trim costs, and the cost of launching new products helped cut into overseas results, they said.

GM would take the record for pre-tax losses for a single quarter with a deficit of $953 million before tax credits in this year's third quarter and $1.53 billion for the nine months.

Reporter Andrea Cohen ill with scarlet fever

Dr. R. Patel, internist at Malone-Hogan Clinic, has diagnosed the illness of Andrea Cohen, Big Spring Herald reporter, as scarlet fever but reassured those who had been with Miss Cohen that there is no need "to push the panic button. It isn't an outbreak of any sort."

Miss Cohen was admitted to the Malone-Hogan Hospital Sunday night.

"This is not an iron-clad diagnosis, but it is my critical diagnosis that it is scarlet fever," Dr. Patel stated. Also consulting in the case is Dr. Peter Littlewood, a family practitioner, who has had considerable experience in dermatology involving the germ streptococcus, identified as the culprit in scarlet fever.

Scarlet fever can be contagious. Its most common symptom is a sore throat, according to Dr.

children could be the aftermath of a strep throat infection.

This particular complication of scarlet fever is not common anymore. "We don't know why, exactly," said Dr. Patel, "it is probably because people in this part of the world get treatment of a sore throat early. This prevents the scarlet fever complications from becoming a problem."

Miss Cohen is responding to treatment. Dr. Patel says that persons having prolonged sore throats should see a doctor, and those who have been in close contact with Miss Cohen should be aware that any sore throat symptoms should be checked.

Good loser, good Democrat

Kennedy works his magic?

By STEVE MCGONIGLE
Harris-Hanks Election Team

SAN ANTONIO — Edward Moore Kennedy, heir to the liberal legacy left by two martyred brothers, is a good loser, and a good Democrat.

When asked to rally his blue-collar, black and Hispanic constituencies behind the man who crushed his own crusade for the presidency, Kennedy's loyalty to party outweighed his differences with Jimmy Carter.

At least that is what the Democratic party desperately wants its most traditional members to believe. It is the message Carter strategists hoped Kennedy would carry with him to Texas this past week.

Fearing vast apathy among liberal voters that might doom Carter's reelection bid, his party called on Kennedy to work his magic with Texans who revere his name the most.

Kennedy complied, and it was decided he would make his pitch in a working-class area of northeast Houston and in Hispanic-heavy McAllen and San Antonio, areas he carried easily in May's Democratic primary vote.

The plan was to turn Kennedy country into Carter country, at least for the second Tuesday in November. All Kennedy had to do was show up and instruct the liberal faithful to vote and vote Democratic.

That much, Kennedy did. "Vote Democratic!" He told an enthusiastic crowd at the Steelworkers Hall in Houston. "Right from the top; right to the bottom; without hesitation; all down the line."

The Democratic Party, Kennedy reminded his Houston audience, still means hope and opportunity for working men and women, the poor, the elderly and racial minorities.

He evoked the names of his brother John and Lyndon Johnson, adding that he was proud to share their Democratic heritage.

Playing on the pride of South Texas, he told the predominantly Hispanic crowds in McAllen and San Antonio that they held the key to a Democratic victory on election day.

"My message to you," he told an evening reception in San Antonio, "is to recognize the importance of the State of Texas; to recognize the importance of the Hispanic community to the future of this country."

But what Kennedy did not do was laud Jimmy Carter or his record. He mentioned Carter less often than he did Republican Ronald Reagan.

Kennedy focused his speeches not on the benefits of the Carter presidency but on the dangers posed by a Reagan administration. Reagan, he said, would not tend to those in need.

He requested that his supporters transfer their energy and enthusiasm to Carter while keeping his own enthusiasm well disguised.

The paradox didn't escape Kennedy's audiences, but neither did it seem to disturb them. They came to see their candidate and were thrilled just at the sight of him.

"Kennedy in '84" signs dotted the crowds at each stop. Adoring fans rushed to touch his hands or capture his signature.

When he gave them the choice, they cheered for a long speech.

Leading the electrified crowd in the McAllen civic center in chants of "Viva Kennedy!" State Sen. Raul Longoria introduced the visitor as the president to be.

And each enthusiastic scene was captured by the cameras, which was precisely what Carter strategists wanted. Their bet was that the verve would be infectious.

Nov. 4 will tell them whether the plan succeeded.

"In 1976, Jimmy Carter said, I'll never lie to you. That was the first one."

BROKEN PROMISES:

Candidate Jimmy Carter said it over and over again: "I will never tell a lie." (Daytona Beach, Fla. 10/19/75) "I will never make a misleading statement." (ibid)

In February of 1976, at Manchester, New Hampshire, he said, "I don't intend to break a single promise. I'm giving you my word of honor."

According to James Fallows, Carter's own speechwriter, writing for the prestigious Atlantic Monthly, Carter lied when he told an Athens, Georgia audience, "I'm an engineer and nuclear physicist." (May, 1974)

In his autobiography "Why not the best?" Carter wrote, "When I left office (as Governor of Georgia) our state surplus was almost $200 million." State records show that is exactly opposite the truth: the fact is that between fiscal 1970, the year in which Carter became governor, and fiscal 1975, the year in which he left office, the state's surplus dropped from $103.4 million to $42.9 million.

Some might consider these harmless campaign lies, had not Carter himself stressed that his "truthfulness" was the main reason voters should elect him! And, unfortunately, after the campaign was over and Jimmy Carter and his Georgia cronies were occupying the oval office, the untruths kept coming. And this time, they were serious.

THE PANAMA CANAL "PAYAWAY"

On October 22, 1977, in Denver, President Carter said: "We are not taking any taxpayer money to pay the Panamanians." Warren Christopher, Deputy Secretary of State, added, "... the treaties will not require any appropriations from the American taxpayer." And on national television, February 1, 1979, President Carter said, "Are we paying Panama to take the Canal? We are not. Under the new treaty, any payments to Panama will come from tolls paid by ships which use the Canal." And again, on television in his famous interview with Barbara Walters, Carter stressed, "We wanted a treaty that did not put a burden on the American taxpayer and we got it." Cyrus Vance, then his Secretary of State, stated, "The treaties require no new appropriations, nor do they add to the burden of the American taxpayer."

Those were the candlelight and champagne promises... here are the morning-after facts:

After the Senate was seduced, lulled and prodded into passing these treaties based on these administration assurances, the House of Representatives received the bill: $4,650,000,000. That's 4 billion, 650 million dollars.

What would happen to inflation and the federal deficit if this money—equivalent to more than 10% of all the gold in Fort Knox—had gone into the U.S. Treasury instead of the coffers of Panama dictator Omar Torrijos?

President Carter has more than once gone before the national television cameras to ask the American taxpayers to fight inflation by (1) working for less money, (2) accepting a higher unemployment rate, and (3) charging less money for their goods. At the same time, he took billions of America's tax dollars and gave them to Panama as payment for accepting a multi-billion-dollar gift, forgiving all debts and guaranteeing to that foreign government an income: something he cannot do for his own domestic tax-paying corporations.

According to Newsweek Magazine, 78% of the American public was opposed to this Panama payaway program—but had no vote. Now, we do. It's Election Day and that's when we tell our legislators "We Remember!"

OF THE MANY PROBLEMS BROUGHT ON BY THE CARTER ADMINISTRATION, INFLATION IS THE MOST DESTRUCTIVE—THE MOST DANGEROUS MENACE FACING HUMANITY TODAY!

It really is! The inflation rate under Gerald Ford reached 4.8. Since Carter took office it has been higher than 18% and even now it sits at an astronomical 12.7. Even that drop was brought about by changes in accounting procedures rather than actual improvements. (All previous Federal budgets listed Government loans, student, SBA, etc., as expenditures, and repayments were listed as income. Carter's budget lists the loans themselves and their interest as income, assuming they will all be paid back!

In one of his campaign speeches in the 1976 race, Carter said, "I will reduce the White House staff by 30 percent—and you can depend on it."

Well—as much as you can depend on any of his promises—the actual cut came to less than 6.8% in personnel. Now, look what happened to salaries: in the Atlantic Monthly, Carter speechwriter James Fallows said, "I was twenty-seven years old when I started working at the White House. The year before, I had made about $20,000 as a magazine writer. On Inauguration Day, my pay rose by 87.5 percent: to $37,500. Two months later with the general pay increase, it went up another $5,000, to $42,500. After two more unpublicized, automatic, 'cost of living' raises, I was earning $47,500."

Fallows, who resigned in 1978, asks the question himself: "Why should the citizen making $20,000 be taxed to provide a raise for someone making $47,500?"

Inflation is destroying our way of life. Senior citizens, living on fixed retirement pay, find they can no longer even pay for the basics in the cost of living, let alone the leisure activities they worked hard for.

Young people entering the working world find they cannot start a modest savings account, let alone buy a home. Unless you can salt away a large amount of money for an extended period of time, inflation is higher than the interest paid by financial institutions. And Carter deliberately slashed the home buying market by forcing higher interest rates because he felt these long-term loans were adding to inflation. Besides, home owners benefit from tax deductions that cut the federal income. He is saying, in effect: "I don't want you to spend money on a home. I want you to give us the money so we can do constructive things—like giving it to a Marxist dictator in Panama."

Jimmy Carter's deliberate destruction of our defense capabilities—and his undermining of our intelligence services to the extent that Iran can successfully kidnap embassy personnel without fear are well-documented—and certainly reason enough not to return him to the oval office—but I'm most concerned with the far-reaching effects, both home and abroad, of the worthless American dollar.

Tell the truth now—do you want a balanced budget? Are you willing to work for it? Can democracy survive without it?

200 years ago, when our young nation was hammering out a new democracy, British historian Alexander Tyler wrote: "A democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of government; it can only exist until the voters discover that they can vote themselves largesse from the public treasury. From that moment on, the majority always votes for the candidates promising the most benefits from the public treasury—with the result that a democracy always collapses over loose fiscal policy, always followed by a dictatorship. The average age of the world's greatest civilization has been two hundred years."

I imagine Ben Franklin and Tom Jefferson laughed when they read Mr. Tyler's comments. "Sour grapes," they probably scoffed. Now—just over two hundred years after our foundation—the "average age" Tyler mentioned—our democracy is foundering because of loose fiscal policy.

Is that an inevitable rule of history? Or can we challenge Mr. Tyler and make America survive?

The American people can stop runaway inflation, restore the productivity that made us the richest nation in the world and protect freedom. I'm convinced of that. We can do it in the marketplace—the first—we must do it at the polls.

REAGAN WILL DECLARE WAR ON INFLATION

Reagan can do it...but he can't do it alone!

Inflation can be conquered—but not by rhetoric. A strong president can declare war on inflation and Ronald Reagan has pledged to do that. He has stated on more than one occasion that he will immediately declare a moratorium on federal hiring. He did this in California and it worked. He has the strength to overcome the weakness that the present administration has saddled the nation with. He has the strength to return our foreign policy to its former position of greatness.

But he needs help. Not just your vote for Ronald Reagan—but your vote for a Congress that will work with him. Just two votes in the Senate gave away the Panama Canal. Twenty six passed the implementation bill in the House that turned the Panama Canal into a 4 billion dollar payaway.

Study the voting records of your congressmen—make them accountable. If you don't know where they stand—ask! Find out! That's the least you can do for your country. That's the easiest way to enlist in the war against inflation while at the same time serving notice to the world that America is awake.

We know what we've done wrong—and on November 4, 1980, we're fixing it!

Reagan brings with him one of the most knowledgeable foreign affairs experts in the world...George Bush.

Jimmy Carter fired George Bush as Director of the CIA—and that's unfortunate. He was the one man America trusted to make sure our foreign intelligence system protected our rights while remaining effective in protecting our security. He spoke up for America as our Ambassador at the U.N. and he went to China to ensure the success of a bold new foreign policy initiative. Whatever the job, he has performed with excellence and earned respect. He has also served well in Congress. His expertise with foreign affairs is a complementary adjunct to Reagan's proven skills in domestic and economic challenges.

I'm voting for Reagan and Bush. I think every concerned American who has really looked at the alternatives is doing the same.

NEITHER RONALD REAGAN NOR HIS STAFF KNOWS ABOUT THIS AD...IT IS A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM ME TO YOU!

I think Ronald Reagan is the only presidential candidate who can restore leadership to the White House and greatness to our government. As a private citizen, I have prepared and paid for this advertisement entirely on my own, without the prior consent of, or in consultation with or at the request or suggestion of the candidate, agent, or authorized committee.

My contribution is not to Ronald Reagan—but rather to the nation. I believe four more years of the present administration could literally destroy America and the free enterprise way of life.

ISTA TEACHER OF THE MONTH — Dorothy Humphreys receives a plaque from Joe Dawes, president of the local Texas State Teacher's Association, congratulating her as October's Teacher of the Month.

Mrs. Humphreys named teacher for October

The Local Unit of Texas State Teachers Association is honoring a teacher for each month of the school year. Mrs. Dorothy Ford Humphreys is recognized for the month of October, and Alberto's Crystal Cafe is treating her to a free dinner.

Mrs. Humphreys teaches Special Education at Big Spring High School, and she has taught in Big Spring for 20 years. Her teaching experience totals 24 years.

She has earned Bachelor of Science and Master of Education degrees and has taken post graduate courses. Colleges she has attended include Hardin-Simmons University, University of Texas, Texas Tech University, and Abilene Christian University. She has teaching certifications in elementary, secondary business and English, and special education.

Mrs. Humphreys is active in Texas State Teachers Association, National Education Association, Classroom Teachers Association, and serves as Vice-president of Association of Retarded Citizens. She is also a member of Order of Eastern Stars and East Fourth Baptist Church.

Bowling, houseplants, crafts, travel, football, and politics are her hobbies. She especially likes kids, dogs, books, canning, candy-making and home.

Her philosophy of education is "accept a student whenever he might be academically, move the student forward as fast as possible, loving him every step of the way. When the student goes out in the work world, I hope he has the needed skills he needs and pray each one is a success."

Volunteers needed for HC survey

The Office of the Dean of Students at Howard College is seeking volunteers to participate in a survey which will be used to determine student financial aid next year, according to Cheri Sparks, Dean of Students.

The survey calls for students to keep a record of all expenses during November and will be used to develop a profile of student financial need.

Financial needs of students will be based on the profile developed for the financial aids office.

Some students have already been selected at random to take part in the survey, but others are needed in order to get a large enough sample.

Ann Duncan, assistant financial aids director, said this week all categories of students are needed. This includes dependent students living at home, students living in the dormitories, students at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, and married students, both with and without children.

Students will not be required to put their names on the survey forms and the names will not be used. "This survey is extremely important, as it will be used to determine accurate student budgets and will help students who need financial assistance," Duncan said.

Students interested in volunteering can pick up survey forms from the Dean of Students Office, beginning Oct. 30.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Mexican government has given the go-ahead for two bridges to be built between Mexico and Texas at Los Indios in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and at Presidio.

Bob Krueger, U.S. ambassador-at-large for Mexico, announced the decision Tuesday, hailing it as "kind of a breakthrough."

He noted that trade between the U.S. and Mexico has more than tripled in the past four years.

"It's something I think very important to South Texas," the former Texas congressman said about the two bridges.

Krueger said Mexican foreign ministry officials told him about the decision at a Washington meeting.

The State Department had issued U.S. permits for the bridge at Los Indios in 1974 and for the Presidio bridge in 1976.

U.S. permits also have been issued for bridges at Donna, Pharr and Mission.

Krueger said proposals to expedite procedures for issuing permits were discussed at the meeting.

Representatives of the General Services Administration will meet with Mexican officials in December to discuss federal staffing requirements for the new bridges, he said.

The U.S. staffs each bridge with customs, immigration, public health and agriculture inspectors.

The bridge between Los Indios and the Mexican state of Tamaulipas would be a new route. Cameron County, Texas, has agreed to take care of the American share of construction costs and will be repaid by tolls.

The bridge between Presidio and Ojinaga, Mexico, now is a privately owned toll bridge built in the 1920s.

The operator of the wooden bridge, the Presidio Bridge Co., went as far as the Supreme Court trying to scuttle plans for the new bridge, arguing that it would be put out of business by the publicly owned competitor.

The Mexican government had announced it would close its side of the existing bridge when a new bridge opens.

The Supreme Court turned down the bridge company's bid for an appeal on Oct. 6.

Presidio County would issue revenue bonds to pay the U.S. construction costs, and the bonds would be paid off by charging tolls.

Cris Aldrete, federal co-chairman of the Southwest Border Regional Commission, said the Mexican government had suggested that a new approach was needed for issuing bridge permits.

"The Mexicans came up with a temporary restraining order, you might say," he said. "The Mexicans said in effect these are issued unilaterally — let's have some form of more orderly, bilateral approach."

Aldrete, a native of Del Rio, Texas, said the Mexican government preferred negotiating directly with the State Department to being visited by each border municipality interested in a new international bridge.

Until 1972, congressional action was necessary before any international bridge could be built.

Any new system would not affect permits already issued by the State Department and now awaiting approval by Mexico.

Sharon Gillespie of the border commission said many of the communities along the border have expressed some interest in building, expanding or improving bridges, including El Paso, Del Rio, Eagle Pass and Brownsville.

Brushfires erupting in southern California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fanned by Santa Ana winds gusting to 50 mph, brushfires erupted throughout Southern California, charring nearly 17,000 acres and forcing the evacuation of some homeowners as firefighters battled for control.

The fires were concentrated in Ventura, Orange, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Santa Barbara counties.

The largest blaze, the Owl Fire in Orange County, was 50 percent contained

Tuesday night after raging over 8,500 acres, firefighters said.

But a fire in Ventura County was racing through brushland toward the Pacific Coast Highway after blackening 8,000 acres. It was not immediately known when the fire, in Sycamore Canyon near Point Mugu State Park northwest of Los Angeles, would be contained, according to Colleen Kenyon, spokeswoman for the Ventura County Fire Department.

Dedication of 75 flags will feature ceremony

The Veteran's Administration Medical Center in Big Spring will observe Veterans Day on Tuesday, Nov. 11 with a ceremony to begin at 11 a.m.

The highlight of the ceremony will be the dedication of an avenue of 75 flags, lining both sides of the main avenue at the Center. The flags will be dedicated to those who have lost their lives in battle.

All of the flags have been donated by next of kin, posts, auxiliaries, and others. Commemorative certificates, specifically designed for the ceremony, will be awarded to all flag donors by the Medical Center director.

The general public is invited to participate in the event.

Schmidt rates Dallas Green A- in winning MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — You can tuck it away in the joy of a world championship or hide it in the corner of the trainer's room, but one way or another, sooner or later, the Philadelphia Phillies find the road to controversy.

There was, for example, an rather innocent request made of Mike Schmidt, most valuable player in the World Series, who was honored at a luncheon Tuesday. He was asked to rate Phillies Manager Dallas Green. Schmidt considered the question for a moment.

"A-minus," he decided.

"Hey, that's a pretty grade, you know," said Schmidt. "You can't say too much bad about A-minus."

But A-minus is not A and Schmidt was asked where he felt his manager had fallen short.

"Well, I think there are times when he may say something after a game about a player that he might regret...that he might not have wanted to say," Schmidt said. "It's my own opinion, but I think sometimes he wasn't tactful enough with the press when the subject was his own players."

Green is a blunt, to-the-point man. He preached teamwork to the Phillies this year and sold them on the "We, not I," approach to baseball.

"The manager has to be part of that 'We, though,'" said Schmidt. "If it's 'We, not I,' for the players, then it has to be 'We, not they,' for the manager."

Green thought the Phillies' discovery of teamwork was the most important ingredient in their season's success.

"We, not I," is the simple way to put it," the manager said. "What we did was break down the class distinction between the eight starters and the bench, the starting pitchers and the relievers. We were a team."

Schmidt, of course, was an important part of the homogenization during the regular season as well as the playoffs and World Series.

"Michael Jack Schmidt deserved this," the manager said of his third baseman's Series MVP award. "He was the guy who had to glue us together. If he collapsed, we were in trouble. He stayed tough, got us a couple of game-winning hits, seven runs batted in. You

Astros firing Smith angers most of brass

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros were the laughing stock of baseball in 1975 when they finished 43 1/2 games out of first place in the National League Western Division.

Then Tai Smith took over as general manager and by 1980 the Astros were a very serious topic among other NL teams when they won the divisional title.

But now everyone is laughing again. Why?

Because when there should be one happy Astros family celebrating the high point in the team's 19-year history, General Partner John McMullen stepped in and fired Smith, the man most responsible for the Astros' turnaround.

If similar reasoning overtakes other pro franchises in this town, by week's end the Houston Rockets' Moses Malone may have been traded to the European League and Earl Campbell may be sent packing because the Houston Oilers haven't won the Super Bowl.

McMullen said Tuesday one of his reasons for firing Smith was that "every man has a time limit on his effectiveness. If a man can't do it in five years he can't do it in 10 years."

Which proves it hasn't dawned on McMullen yet that the Astros were one run away from winning the National League and advancing to the World Series instead of the eventual champion Philadelphia Phillies.

Smith took the Astros to within an eyelash of the World Series and yet McMullen, without consulting any of his 25 limited partners, decided Smith never would take the Astros to the top.

McMullen also indicated that Smith's contract, which he inherited from the previous ownership, was a problem. Smith's contract contains a bonus stipulation based on Astros attendance.

When Smith signed his contract there appeared

Landry feels Cowboys have Super Bowl look

DALLAS (AP) — In Thousand Oaks, Calif., during the dog days of their July training camp, a 6-2 start for his Dallas Cowboys was more than Coach Tom Landry could wish.

Featuring a new starting quarterback and a green secondary, Landry could see some hard times until the two units jelled. He was so worried about his defense he spent most of training camp working with that side of the line of scrimmage.

"Our team is where I hoped it would be," said Landry. "I felt our offense could do a lot of things it has done."

"But our defense was almost an impossible question. But we kept working and hustling and doing the things we had to do."

Would he take another 6-2 down the National Football League's back stretch?

"I'd take another 6-2 and not suit up," Landry quickly answered.

He added "the toughest part of our schedule is coming up."

Landry refused to concede the National Conference East to the Philadelphia Eagles, who own a one game lead. He also pointed out the Cowboys and Eagles are in good shape for a wild card berth which goes to runnerup teams with superior records.

"We expect to win the east and won't give it up," said Landry. "Of course, if we're not the champions I'd like to be in the playoffs anyway we can get there."

Landry can even see a possible Super Bowl for his team.

"We have the ingredients...we have a chance to be in the Super Bowl," said Landry. "We definitely have a chance for the East (division) and if we keep improving and playing at the level we have been we could get to the Super Bowl with a few breaks."

The Cowboys play in St. Louis Sunday, travel to the New York Giants, host St. Louis, Washington and Seattle, go to Oakland and Los Angeles, then entertain Philadelphia in the season windup at Texas Stadium Dec. 21.

Landry announced Tuesday that tailback Tony Dorsett will return to the starting lineup against St. Louis and elevated the disgruntled Robert Newhouse to the No. 1 fullback spot, will wear a flak jacket against the Cardinals because of bruised ribs.

Newhouse, miffed because he was used Sunday behind rookie fullback Tim Newsome, will replace Ron Springs, who also will have on a flak jacket because of a similar injury.

"We expect Tony to open up at tailback and will start Newhouse because he is ready to do a good job...he always runs well against Cardinals," said Landry. "Springs has been having some difficulty making adjustments at fullback...he has not reached the consistency he will reach."

Springs played last week as the starting tailback against San Diego.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Eddie Robinson, executive vice president of the Texas Rangers of the American League, has told former Boston Red Sox manager Don Zimmer that he is a strong candidate for the Rangers' managerial job.

"I told him he has a real good chance of getting the job," said Robinson, who played golf with Zimmer in Florida Sunday.

Alborn must feel justice with big win over Aggies

RICE UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL COACH RAY ALBORN probably has the feeling that justice has prevailed following last Saturday's win over the Texas Aggies at Kyle Field by a score of 10-6.

You see, the Rooster, as he affectionately was known by players while serving as an assistant at Rice, felt victimized by the big A&M machine last spring.

First, in the midst of spring training, the offensive coordinator at Rice the past two years, Ted Unbehagen, left the Houston campus to coach the offensive line at A&M. Unbehagen explained his decision as being that the Aggie alumni pump so much money into the athletic program that it was something he couldn't turn down.

So Alborn went to West Virginia U to hire a man named Dick Rader as his offensive coordinator. Rader, who has worked for much of his coaching career with former Texas Tech Coach Jim Carlen, is well versed in the running game. This helped Alborn in deciding to utilize his new offensive coordinator's knowledge and change the long-time pass happy Owls to a ground attack.

But alas, Rader was only on the Rice campus for one month before A&M raided again, this time luring Rader to the College Station campus. To say the least, the Rooster (Alborn) was furious.

It's frustrating when an opposing rival hires two offensive coordinators away in a period of a month, but when it's the Aggies, a likeable, yet most excitable guy such as Alborn has been known say naughty words.

Especially when it happened to be A&M. Alborn, probably the most entertaining coach in the Southwest Conference for writers as far as one-liners go, doesn't like Aggies, or anything associated with them.

A person that knows Alborn as well as I do through my playing experiences under him could probably write a small book detailing his Aggie stories, but the newspaper is no place for such a matter.

All I can say for Alborn is that by beating A&M last Saturday in College Station, it probably gave him more personal satisfaction than beating Alabama would have. Especially after losing his top aides to them last spring.

THIS YEAR'S NFL GAMES are proving to be the wildest in history, as there is absolutely no telling who is going to win, no matter what the bookies say and what previous records would indicate.

DON SHULA, Miami Dolphins coach, credits former NFL czar BERT BELL with keeping the game competitive by giving the worst teams the top picks in the annual draft. Another big factor that Shula cites is the expansion of the number of teams to 25.

"We had fewer teams back in the 60s and more good players could be brought in. It's different now. You have one pick out of the first 25. You can't afford to make a mistake."

FORMER BIG SPRING STEER GREAT JOHN THOMAS SMITH played a big role in the Kansas City Chiefs 20-17 win over the Detroit Lions last Sunday, which gave the KC team four straight wins and put them back into the thick of the AFC West race. Smith had six catches for 87 yards in the game...

Quotables

GEORGE STEINBRENNER visited the Yankee clubhouse during a game in September and sat in front of GRAIG NETTLES' locker chatting with newsmen. Nettles came along, looked at his boss, looked up at the name above the locker, and straight-faced: "You know, they're right. That Nettles is overweight."

THE SAN ANTONIO SPURS are playing something new to them this year in the NBA defense. And Golden State's scoring ace BERNARD KING can attest to that. "They were very tough on defense tonight, very tough," said King. "I can't say too much more, my jaw is killing me."

GENE TENACE, who helped Oakland win three consecutive World Series back in the 70s, had a poor season with the San Diego Padres in 1980. And he's not used to it, as he stated.

"It's not easy to play when you're booed," said Tenace. "But I've created the situation. If I were a fan, I'd boo me too."

LANCE MCLHENNY came in to direct SMU to an upset win over Texas last week, but in an earlier game had thrown 22-yard pass to his older brother, Lott. The completion reminded the brothers' father of a past occasion.

"The SMU coaches have a fancy name for that pass pattern," said father Don. "But I've seen it many times before. We used to call it 'go to the pecan tree and cut left towards the fence.'"

THE SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE race is so totally unpredictable this year, with seemingly more upsets than not. The always quotable LOU HOLTZ, the coach at Arkansas, responded: "Our conference is like nuclear warfare. There are no winners, only survivors."

Then Holz, whose team suffered their second loss of the SWC slate to Houston last Saturday night, stated, "We're not very consistent. Of course, the only people who are consistent all the time are dead people."

Jam expected back for UT-Tech game

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas Longhorn fan asked Coach Fred Akers if he had "any surprises" for Texas Tech on Saturday, and Akers replied, "I hope we surprise them and play well."

Last Saturday Southern Methodist used good field position and two big plays — a 53-yard touchdown run by Craig James and a 22-yard interception for a score by James Mobley — to upset Texas, 20-6.

The loss, which Akers described as a "nightmare," dropped Texas to No. 12 in the Associated Press poll with a 5-1 record.

Akers said the Longhorns were "disgusted" and "embarrassed" by the defeat, but he told the

Longhorn Club on Tuesday:

"They are determined to come on back, and I think you will see that this week. It will have to be a great effort. ... I don't think attitude is a problem at all."

He disclosed that halfback A.J. "Jam" Jones of Texas, one of the nation's top runners when he was hurt Oct. 11, has received medical clearance to work out for the Tech game at Lubbock.

Jones suffered a pinched nerve in his neck in the first half of the Oklahoma game, and was on the sidelines Saturday as Southern Methodist held Texas to a season low of 90 yards rushing.

Easy Jet syndicated for 30 mill

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Easy Jet, the all-time leading sire of quarter horse racers, has been syndicated for a record $30 million, the agent who negotiated the transaction said.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press from his office in Oklahoma City, agent Don Tyner announced the syndication of action here Tuesday night.

The Steer varsity kept their slim second half title hopes alive with a 15-7, 15-9 win over the OHS fems. The win gives the BSHS girls a second half record of 5-1, and allows them to stay one game behind San Angelo in this half. They will have a chance to tie the second half standings tomorrow when the two teams battle in the regular season finale in Big Spring.

But a Steer win tomorrow night might not be enough, as San Angelo and Abilene Cooper tied for the first half title. Cooper is also 5-1 in the second half.

Big Spring was paced in the scoring department by Shell Rutledge, who had 10. Bea Magers added six, with

Heisman Trophy race wide open this year

By The Associated Press

Is this the year someone other than a quarterback or a running back wins the Heisman Trophy?

Probably not, but not since 1971, when Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan won out over Cornell tailback Ed Marinaro, has the race been as wide-open as it seems to be this year. The candidates even include a defensive end and a freshman running back.

The selections of Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers in 1972, Penn State's John Cappelletti in 1973, Ohio State's Archie Griffin in 1974 and 1975, Pitt's Tony Dorsett in 1976, Texas' Earl Campbell in 1977, Oklahoma's Billy Sims in 1978 and Southern Cal's Charles White last year were pretty much cut and dried.

But this year's race appears to have seven major contenders — quarterbacks Art Schlichter of Ohio State and Mark Herrmann of Purdue; running backs George Rogers of South Carolina, Jarvis Redwine of Nebraska, Freeman McNeil of UCLA and Herschel Walker of Georgia, and defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh.

The preseason contenders also included quarterback Rich Campbell of California and nose guard Ron Simmons of Florida State. But Campbell has the misfortune to play on a losing team, even though his statistics are impressive, while Simmons missed a couple of early games with an injury.

Alabama has never had a Heisman Trophy winner and this year is no exception, since the Crimson Tide runs in scores of players every week. UCLA considers All-American safety Kenny Easley a candidate, along with McNeil, which may split the West Coast vote. McNeil also sat out one game with an injury.

For a change, Notre Dame isn't pushing anyone. North Carolina's Amos Lawrence has had to share the tailback position with super soph Kelvin Bryant and Southern Cal tailback Marcus Allen hasn't made as much noise as some of his predecessors. Nebraska's Redwine probably was the early season leader when he paced the nation in rushing, but he missed two games with an injury and was forced out of last Saturday's contest with a recurrence of the ailment.

Schlichter hasn't piled up glowing statistics and Ohio State's 17-0 loss to UCLA probably hurt his chances. Herrmann missed Purdue's opening game with an injury and was almost benched a few games later, although he re-entered the picture by smashing the all-time NCAA pass yardage record last weekend.

Rogers, great as he is, has two strikes against him because South Carolina has virtually no football reputation to speak of, never having won more than eight games in a season. Walker was subpar in one game with a sore ankle and Green, after all, is a defensive lineman. Only two linemen have ever won the Heisman — two-way ends Larry Kelley of Yale in 1936 and Leon Hart of Notre Dame in 1949.

Baylor linebacker Mike Singletary gets little ink outside the Southwest and Brigham Young quarterback Jim McMahon suffers from much the same syndrome as South Carolina's Rogers.

Winfield affair becoming sticky

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Winfield, who declared a week ago that he would join the free agent draft, continues to keep the baseball spotlight although the pick list for major league teams grows day-by-day.

Ron LeFlore, who stole 97 bases for the Montreal Expos in 1980, was one of three players to declare for free agency Tuesday, along with catcher Marc Hill of Seattle and outfielder Vic Harris of Milwaukee.

Other players who have declared free agency in the past few days include pitcher Dan Spillner of Cleveland; infielder Dave Chalk of Kansas City; pitcher Luis Tiant of the New York Yankees and pitcher Ray Burris of the New York Mets.

That makes 38 players who have announced they will participate in the Nov. 13 re-entry draft in New York.

Winfield, the San Diego Padres' star outfielder, declared his free agency last Wednesday, the first day permitted under the rules. Since then, there has been much fanfare over the Padres' efforts to trade Winfield and get something in return besides the amateur draft pick they would get if he is signed as a free agent.

Major league owners were asked Tuesday by Ray Grebey, director of the Borg wins in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden crushed Japan's Tsuyoshi Fukui 6-2, 6-2 and Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl whipped Puerto Rico's Francisco Gonzalez 6-3, 7-6 to advance into the second round of the $300,000 World Super Tennis Tournament.

In other matches, Brian Teacher outlasted Rod Frawley 7-6, 6-7, 6-4; Buster Mottram of Britain beat Terry Moor 7-5, 2-6, 6-3; fifth-seeded Eliot Teltscher whipped countryman Mel Purcell 2-6, 6-4, 6-4; Bill Scanlon downed Peter Rennart 7-6, 3-6, 7-5; No. 7 Roscoe Tanner beat Bruce Manson 6-3, 7-6 and eighth-seeded Victor Amaya eliminated Louk Sanders, of The Netherlands, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

owners' Player Relations Committee, if they would object if the Padres signed Winfield with the understanding that he would be assigned to another club. Grebey said earlier that such a prior arrangement was not possible.

The result of the poll has not been announced.

Most prominent in the speculation over a trade for Winfield are the New York Yankees, who reportedly are willing to send outfielder Joe Lefebvre and two other players to San Diego.

Before such a trade could happen, San Diego would first have to sign Winfield to a contract, and if the owners object to the Padres' acting as negotiator for another club, then Winfield's lawyer, Dick Moss, said there could be no deal between the Padres and Yankees.

"I've told (San Diego President) Ballard Smith that if he gets the appropriate assurances that we could talk to the Padres about negotiating a contract that could be assigned to the Yankees, or another club, then we could sit down and talk to him (Smith)," Moss said.

"He (Winfield) has to get something in his contract that says he has to be traded to a certain team by a certain date or he would be a free agent," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association. "He has to have protection."

Under current regulations, Winfield could sign a deal with the Padres that has a clause restricting a trade to any team except the Yankees. But this wouldn't prevent the Padres from keeping him, which is unacceptable to Winfield.

The Yankees have the 26th and last choice in the Nov. 13 draft and if 13 teams, plus the Padres, select Winfield's negotiating rights, no other team can draft him.

However, only one player in the four-year history of the draft has been selected by 13 teams in the first round — pitcher Dave Goltz in last year's draft. In addition, Winfield could do what Nolan Ryan did before the 1980 draft and tell several clubs not to waste a choice on him; he isn't interested.

can't ask for much more."

Schmidt batted .381 in the Series, had two home runs and two game-winning hits. He scored six runs and drove in seven. That earned him the MVP award which carried with it a $9,000 watch and a $5,000 scholarship to his alma mater, Ohio University.

The slugging third baseman sees a bright future for the Phillies.

"I hope they keep our team intact," he said. "We have better pitching than anybody in baseball, arm-wise, bodywise and record-wise. That's a luxury we've never had... 10 or 12 frontline pitchers, not two or three."

And if Green decides to return — a decision he says will be made within a week — they also will have the Aminu manager.

Jazz using Griffith for better music

By The Associated Press
Adrian Dantley was the whole show for the Utah Jazz last year when they had the worst team in the National Basketball Association. This season, they have Darrell Griffith to make it a two-man team, so the Jazz shouldn't be singing the blues so often.

Griffith scored 33 points and Dantley 28 in Utah's 104-96 victory over the expansion Dallas Mavericks Tuesday night, raising the Jazz's early-season record to 4-5.

"Griffith and Dantley were a two-man team. They beat us. There was just no way to stop them," Dallas Coach Dick Motta said. "Dantley is the league's leading scorer, and after tonight he still is."

In other NBA games, the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 119-101, the San Antonio Spurs won their eighth straight game with a 120-112 decision over the Portland Trail Blazers, the Atlanta Hawks beat the Kansas City Kings 119-109, the Milwaukee Bucks won their seventh in a row by defeating the Chicago Bulls 106-99, the Los Angeles Lakers rolled to a 131-101 victory over the San Diego Clippers and the Seattle SuperSonics swamped the Golden State Warriors 119-102.

Griffith was the key player at the turning point of the game, when the Jazz tallied 16 straight points in a 2½-minute span of the third quarter. During that spurt, Griffith scored nine points as a 57-48 Dallas lead was turned into a 64-57 Utah advantage.

Geoff Huston was the Mavericks' leading scorer with 26 points.

Lakers 131, Clippers 101
Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored 21 of his game-high 29 points in the first half as Los Angeles coasted to victory after taking a 73-45 halftime lead.

Johnson also had eight rebounds and 10 assists in just 31 minutes of playing time. Rookie Michael Brooks made his first start for San Diego and scored 24 points to lead his team although he sat out the final quarter.

Spurs 120, Blazers 112
George Gervin scored 30 points and Mark Olberding 23 as San Antonio tied a team record with its eighth straight victory. The Spurs' 9-1 record is the best in the NBA.

Bucks 106, Bulls 99
Milwaukee, which joins the Lakers with 8-2 marks, survived a 14-0 surge in the third quarter by Chicago by coming back with a 19-4 flurry to take a 79-69 lead in the final period.

Marques Johnson led the Bucks with 18 points and Reggie Theus paced all scorers with 25.

76ers 119, Cavaliers 101
Julius Erving and Bobby Jones led a 29-7 point explosion in the final 7½ minutes of the third quarter to lead Philadelphia over Cleveland.

The 76ers outshot the Cavs 58 percent to 30 percent in the period and outrebounded them 14-5.

Erving led all scorers with 25 points and Jones had 22. Mike Mitchell was Cleveland's top point-producer with 23.

Sonics 119, Warriors 102
Fred Brown, starting his second straight game in place of injured regular Paul Westphal, scored 27 points to lead Seattle over Golden State.

Brown, who scored 28 in a Sonics victory Sunday, hit his last 11 shots, including a three-pointer, as Seattle pulled away from a seven-point lead with 6:35 left in the third period to margins as high as 19 in the final quarter.

Hawks 119, Kings 109
John Drew scored 32 points, including 11 of Atlanta's last 13, as the Hawks broke a three-game losing streak.

Kansas City trailed only 113-107 with 2:31 left in the game, but Drew took over and scored his team's last six points to salt the victory.

Craig James happy with SMU decision

DALLAS (AP) — When Craig James was a growing boy, he used to watch Texas and Arkansas meet on television and wonder if someday he would be good enough to play collegiate football.

Then the dream took several dramatic twists. He became a schoolboy All-American at Houston Stratford High School and decided he wanted to go to a school where he could play AGAINST the heroes of his childhood.

As Horatio Alger would have it, sophomore James was the catalyst in Southern Methodist's 20-6 upset of the Texas Longhorns Saturday.

James' 146 yards rushing on 19 carries, including a 53-yard touchdown run, earned him The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week award.

"I've never regretted going to SMU one bit," said James. "The victory over Texas made it all that much sweeter. It just made my decision that much more happy."

"SMU becomes more of a home every week. I just love it. It's a small school and has the environment and atmosphere of a large high school. You get to know everybody."

James' touchdown came on a perfectly timed pitchout from freshman quarterback Lance McIlhenny, a play Coach Ron Meyer put into the game for the Longhorns.

"In fact, we hadn't used it all year," said James. "We put it in special for Texas and ran it just like you would draw it on the board."

James received excellent clearing blocks then outran the Longhorn safety for the score. He CAN run.

James ran a 9.7 in the high school 100-yard dash and has been timed at 4.47 in the 40-yard dash.

He said it was a wonderful bus ride from Austin.

"When we got into the city limits of Dallas we just started going wild again like we did at the end of the game," said the 6-foot-1, 200-pound James, who obviously has recovered from a sprained ankle which limited his mobility earlier in the year.

Albom: "If he's not All-SWC, my fanny's a microwave"

Rice LB Williamson earns SWC weekly honor

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University Coach Ray Albom has a new crusade.

Last year Albom preached the praises of running back Earl Cooper and was incensed when Cooper did not make first team All-Southwest Conference.

Now Albom is rewriting all his old speeches and inserting the name of linebacker Robert Williamson, a key defensive factor in the Owls' surprising resurgence.

Williamson, who is playing his first injury-free season since his freshman year, got one vote of confidence today when he was named The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week following last week's 10-6 upset of Texas A&M.

The talented senior contributed to 16 tackles, batted down a pass and had one tackle for a loss in the Owls' defensive effort.

"If that guy is not All-SWC then my fanny is a microwave oven," Albom said. "Before the year started, we felt his ability to stay well would be the key to our defense."

Albom said Williamson has lived up to pre-season expectations.

"I wouldn't say the A&M game was his best game of the season but he hasn't played a bad one yet," Albom said. "He worked so hard in the off season to get his knees ready and he lifted weights to improve his upper body strength."

One of the most outstanding attributes about Williamson, however, is not coachable, Albom said.

"He makes so many plays by instinct and that's something you don't coach," Albom said.

The best example of Williamson's nose for the football was in Rice's upset of Louisiana State when Williamson ignored his inside assignment, swung wide instead and stopped an end around play for a loss.

"I don't know what it is, just something happens during the play that makes me react," Williamson said. "It all comes with experience. I've seen a lot of different flows."

Williamson also has seen a lot of the doctor's office. Williamson underwent knee surgery at the end of his

Weather It's just plain cold out today

By The Associated Press
The blustery cold front that moved through the coastal plains brought brisk winds and cloudiness to the area, while the mercury plunged in the Panhandle. It was just plain cold early Wednesday in Dalhart, which posted a 23 degree reading. Amarillo had a shivery 24, and it was 25 in Lubbock. Abilene and Wink were slightly warmer at 30 degrees. Even South Texas was cool, with readings mainly in the low 50s. McAllen had the early morning high of 53, but it was 48 in Victoria and 49 in Brownsville. There was some light rain early in the day. The upper coastal cities got a taste of fall, with temperatures in the 40s and northerly winds of 15 to 25 mph. The forecast calls for more cloudy skies in the east and south, but sun for the west and northwest.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Fair through Thursday except in the extreme south. Warmer Thursday. Low tonight mid 20s north and mountains to near 30 southwest. Highs Thursday mostly in the 60s.
EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Mostly fair Friday through Sunday. Warmer Friday. Low 30s north and mountains to 50s extreme south. Highs 70s mountains and north to 80s extreme south.

WEATHER FORECAST — Sunny skies and warm weather are expected in the forecast period, today until Thursday morning, for most of the nation. Colder weather is forecast for New England. Showers are expected for the Carolinas.

Freeloaders vs. poor in utility battle

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — To consumer groups that proposed the rules, the idea is to protect poor, defenseless Texans from powerful utility companies that arbitrarily dole out power.
To the companies, the only thing the rules would do is protect a few customers who might be looking for free electricity. Consumers who pay their bills would wind up also paying for the freeloaders, according to the companies.
"Utilities have been given a dangerous freedom. Essentially, a freedom to kill," said Willo Hardin of Austin, representing the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN).
Ms. Hardin told Public Utility Commission Hearing Examiner Mark Zeppa at a Tuesday hearing that "utility terminations kill people in Texas every year."
"The funny thing is a utility customer has no rights. Convicted murderers have rights," she said.
ACORN and Consumers Union want the PUC to adopt a series of rules controlling utility service termination, including:
— No cut-offs when it might endanger a customer's health.
— Annual statements to customers of their rights.
— Deferred payment plans for delinquent residential accounts.

— Bilingual termination notices.
— A formal hearing process before termination.
Company officials who testified Tuesday echoed the same arguments — the proposed rules would be costly and that cost would be passed on to paying customers.
The rules are not needed, they said, because company policies protect well-intentioned customers.
Tom Curlee of Central Power and Light Co. said, "There are a lot of people who tamper with their meters. This is the group that will benefit most from rules like these."
James Steinhilper of Southwestern Electric Power Co., said it would cost $55,000 a year for his company to send annual notices about customers' rights.
"Just because you give a customer a statement of his rights doesn't mean he is going to read it," said Job Loveless of Texas Power & Light Co.
Steinhilper said the disconnection policy would allow customers to go 110 days without paying bills, at an annual cost of $500,000 a year to the company.
Nancy Rice of Houston Lighting & Power Co. said: "It is unfair to customers who do pay their bills on time to continue to bear the expense of those who don't."

Several spokesmen said the termination rules would bar them from ever cutting off service.
Al Engelland of Dallas Power & Light Co. said the proposed rules actually would affect two-fifths of 1 percent of the company's customers.

He rebutted claims about utility-related deaths.
"There were some deaths in Dallas this summer," Engelland said. "In each instance electric service was available. It was hooked up and connected... These rules would not have stopped one death."

Heart-cutting trial Mom pleads insanity in bizarre slaying

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A lawyer for Patricia Ann Frazier described the defendant as a "very sick mother afflicted with a disease" when she stabbed her 4-year-old daughter to death, then cut out her heart with a butcher knife.
Ms. Frazier, 25, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity Monday as jury selection began in her murder trial here.
Wichita Falls police found the body of Khunji Wilson in the front seat of an automobile Feb. 22. The child had been stabbed about seven times and her heart had been cut out and was wrapped in a bloody washrag nearby, authorities said.
"We will admit Pat Frazier caused the death of Khunji by cutting and stabbing her with a knife. We will not admit she did it intentionally and knowingly," defense attorney

Harold Lerew told the panel. "She was a loving mother who cared about her child... and a very sick mother afflicted with a disease," Lerew said.
Ms. Frazier smiled as Lerew described her as "a hard-working mother and a good worker."
But Assistant Director Attorney Bob Brotherton said the state would prove that "the victim died as a result of her heart being cut out of her body," and that Ms. Frazier "knowingly had intentionally cut and stabbed the child."
As Brotherton spoke, he pointed to Ms. Frazier, who held her clasped hands in front of her mouth.
Later, when Brotherton said the defendant was sane at the time the child died, Ms. Frazier shook her head.
Sixteen of 66 prospective jurors were dismissed Monday.

High incidence of brain tumor deaths at refineries studied

NEW YORK (AP) — An expanded study of cancer deaths among workers at three Texas oil refineries continues to show a higher-than-average frequency of brain tumors, a National Cancer Institute scientist says.
The study, by the institute's Terry Thomas and Dr. Richard Waxweiler of the National Institute's Terry Thomas and Dr. Richard Waxweiler of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, confirms a report published by Ms. Thomas earlier this year which identified as apparent high incidence of brain tumor deaths at the refineries.
Ms. Thomas was to present her data today at a conference on brain tumors in the chemical industry sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences.

two Texas chemical plants.
The findings are controversial. Several scientists, both from industry and academia, said Monday they believe the apparent increase could be just a statistical fluke.
Ms. Thomas' earlier study, published in the Journal of Occupational Medicine, was limited to active members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union employed at five southeast Texas refineries. It found possible elevated brain tumor deaths at three of the refineries, she said.
The new study focuses on those three plants — run by Texaco, Gulf and Mobil — and includes data for retired as well as active workers.
While the retirees had a lower frequency of brain tumors than the active union members, overall figures since 1943 still showed union refinery workers were about twice as likely to die of a brain tumor than other Americans, Ms. Thomas said.

Little Debate verdict comes in Tuesday out utility-related ths in Dallas this

id. "In each inwas available. It ected... These
ped one death."

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Carter played the fiery prosecutor, Ronald Reagan portrayed the unjustly accused defendant. The jury returns its verdict next Tuesday.

And the winner gets the White House. In 90 minutes of televised, confrontation politics Tuesday night, Carter was the candidate on the attack, Reagan frequently the defender, saying with a philosophical smile that he really couldn't recognize some of the positions the president claimed were his.

Neither candidate ventured any new proposals, neither blundered. They'd done their homework, and they remembered the political price Gerald R. Ford paid for asserting four years ago that the Soviet Union did not dominate eastern Europe and never would while he was president.

So they argued familiar positions, often in familiar words, in their one campaign debate, with Election Day one week ahead. Now six days ahead.

Carter said afterwards that he had succeeded in drawing sharply the differences between his views and Reagan's. There was more to it than that: the debate etched even more sharply the difference in their styles. "There you go again," Reagan said to the president at one point, a weary, long-suffering smile creasing his face as he denied Carter's statement that he (Reagan) opposed the idea of medical benefits for the aged.

As he has in scores of campaign speeches, Carter sought to depict Reagan as a potentially dangerous president, although he added his standard disclaimer, saying he didn't mean to suggest the Republican candidate would want war.

For his part, Reagan tried to keep the focus on matters economic, accusing Carter of leading the country downhill. Reagan delights in statistics, and he had one handy for the debate: if every jobless American stood in an unemployment line, two feet apart, it would stretch from New York to Los Angeles.

To Carter's advantage, his stress on the threat of war and of nuclear weaponry made for more dramatic debating than Reagan's emphasis on economics. Whenever he could, the president turned back to his chosen subject.

"Inflation, unemployment, the cities, all very important issues," he said. "But they pale into insignificance in the life and duties of a president when compared with the control of nuclear weapons."

On that, and on the potential use of U.S. forces abroad, Carter said Reagan's attitudes are dangerous, disturbing, belligerent, careless, radical.

Not so, said Reagan. He said he wants to negotiate a better strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, regards the use of American forces as "always and only a last resort" when the national security is at stake.

"I know the president is supposed to be replying to me," Reagan said at one point, "but sometimes I have a hard time in connecting what he's saying with what I have said or what my positions are."

"I sometimes think it's like a witch doctor who gets mad when a good doctor comes along with a cure that will work."

That didn't divert the Carter offensive. He said Reagan was insensitive to the needs of deprived Americans, called his tax cut proposal ridiculous, his criticism of the minimum wage heartless.

Reagan steered away from that kind of harsh language. He'd clearly decided that if soft words wouldn't turn away Carter's attack, they might turn on voters. Carter took note of that style as he criticized Reagan for advocating withdrawal of the pending strategic arms limitation treaty.

"This attitude is extremely dangerous and belligerent in its tone, even though it's said with a quiet voice," Carter said.

Reagan was, indeed, the quiet voice in the debate. Given the last word, he said in effect that people who are satisfied with the past four years probably should vote for Carter next Tuesday — while to those who are not, "I could suggest another choice."

That soft sell was in itself part of Reagan's answer to the Carter charge that he is a hard-liner, a radical in his own Republican party.

Reagan said he didn't feel he had been overly defensive. He said Carter never had answered his charges about administration economic failures. Nor, Reagan added, was he intimidated by the fact that he was on stage with the president of the United States.

"I've been on the same stage with John Wayne," he said.

Names in the news

LARRY NEWMAN BEN ABRUZZO

Balloonists at it again

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Crossing the Atlantic in a balloon made Ben Abruzzo and Larry Newman hungry for adventure. Now they've come up with a new one: a balloon crossing of the Pacific Ocean.

Abruzzo and Newman were among three Albuquerque balloonists who made a historic trans-Atlantic crossing in 1978. They said Monday they will attempt a similar crossing of the Pacific next spring.

The 6,000-mile flight is to originate in Japan and end on the California coast. Joining the team will be Albuquerque real estate man Ronald Clark and Japanese businessman Rocky Aoki.

Abruzzo, Newman and Maxie Anderson, in the Double Eagle II, were the first to pilot a balloon across the Atlantic. The three set out from Maine and landed near Paris in August 1978.

Rock star improving

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paul Kantner, the 39-year-old lead guitarist of the Jefferson Starship band, "seems to be improving," after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage and won't need surgery, doctors and officials of Cedars-Sinai Medical Center say.

Kantner was reported in stable condition at the hospital on Tuesday. Hospital spokeswoman Tess Griffin said he was in intensive care, but conscious and talking.

"He seems to be improving," she said, adding that he would remain in intensive care "for a day or two" and would be hospitalized for a couple of weeks.

Kantner's surgeon, Dr. Elliott Blinderman, said the rock musician would not need surgery since there was no blood clot, Mrs. Griffin said.

Actress starts at top

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes it pays to go right to the top. Ask Shirley MacLaine.

The actress last week noticed an unpleasant odor had permeated her East 52nd Street apartment building. Rather than calling the building superintendent, said the Daily News, she contacted Manhattan Borough President Andrew Stein, a longtime friend.

Stein aide David Chiel got city Health Department inspectors to check out the building for garbage or rodents. When nothing turned up, the city told Chiel it was a waste problem because, as Miss MacLaine had suggested, the smell seemed to be coming from a fish market in the building.

The state Department of Agriculture and Markets sent an inspector over the next day to investigate and apparently the problem was solved.

Chiel said there was no special treatment for the actress. "We do it for everyone who calls," he told the Daily News, while conceding that the immediacy of the inspectors' response "isn't always as successful as this one. Maybe they felt we meant business."

Woman's hot checking ends in jail sentence

Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin levied six fines last week, averaging $50 a fine, for hot check writers.

One female was jailed when she was fined $203.50 and unable to pay. She will remain until she earns jail time at $5 a day to pay off the fine or until someone pays the fine, said Heflin.

The same woman has written eight more hot checks. Heflin said they will be filed separately. Possibly the eight checks can be filed as a felony under a law providing prosecution for a "check writing spree," said Heflin.

The woman wrote the checks to pay for clothes for herself, her husband and children. Her husband is in the federal prison camp here.

Heflin has eight more warrants ready for serving.

Law Enforcement Academy graduation booked Friday

The Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy has announced completion of the 22nd session of basic law enforcement training. Regional departments represented in this session were: Andrews Police Department, Stanton Police Department, Odessa Police Department, Odessa Fire Department, Ector County Sheriff's Department, Sul Ross Police Department, Midland County Sheriff's Department, and Midland Police Department.

The school was funded by a Criminal Justice Devision grant through the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission and followed standards set by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education. Classes began Sept. 8, and graduation will be Friday.

Moss Lake will be closed during month of November

The city follows this policy each year. The lake is kept open seven days a week for the other 11 months of the year.
