SWCID's open house to lure three top educators in U.S.

(Related Stories Page 14-A)

Growing from the small aspirations of a man who wanted more for his hearing impaired child into what will prove to be the most important decade in the history of Howard College and the education of deaf persons, the South West Collegiate Institute for the Deaf at Howard College will open its doors to the public for an open house, from 3-6 p.m., Friday at the Administration Building of the SWCID campus.

"SWCID is the most innovative, creative and biggest growth factor that Howard College has ever known," said Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District. "Because of its uniqueness, as there are only two other colleges for the deaf in the world, SWCID will provide fantastic opportunities for initiating innovative types of educational concepts that would have otherwise been unobtainable without the college being located here.

SWCID's open house will be highlighted by the appearance of three of the top educators for the deaf in the United States.

The public is invited to attend the open house. There will be a general brief presentation at the beginning, with such prestigious guests as Gertrude Galloway, president of the National Association of the Deaf; Jerry Hassell, president of the Texas Association of the Deaf; Gary Curtis, director of Educational Services for the Deaf, Texas Education Agency; Ray Farabee, state senator, 30th District; and Larry D. Shaw, state representative, 63rd District.

The invocation will be given by the Reverend Bernard Gully, Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. Opening remarks will be presented by Dr. Charles Hays, Dr. Doug Burke, and Donald B. McKinney, chairman of the Howard County Junior College District Board of Trustees.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony with Mayor Clyde Angel and the Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors will be conducted at the main entrance to the SWCID Building immediately following the program.

After the ribbon-cutting ceremony, tours of SWCID facilities will be available. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria until 6 p.m., and a media presentation and historical-archive information will be on display adjacent to the cafeteria.

Two men die in grinding crash in Howard County

By DON WOODS

Two men died instantly in an almost head-on automobile accident at 10:45 p.m. Wednesday, 10 miles north on the Snyder Highway.

Dead are Jackie Don Crawford, 32, Route 1 Box 325, and William Fletcher Holt, 31, Midland.

Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Dean Richardson said he believed the two died instantly.

"One of them was completely over on the wrong side of the road," said Richardson. The point of impact was in the outside lane of the southwest side of the blacktop.

The position of the vehicles made it impossible to determine which driver was in the wrong lane, said Richardson. The two deceased were the only ones in their vehicles and there were no other witnesses, he said.

Richardson said the wreck would have been head-on but that the drivers evidently swerved at the last second to avoid the collision. "The drivers' sides got the worst of it," he said.

Holt was working a daylight shift for Rankin Oil Company, Midland, on a job in Snyder. He was driving a brown 1980 Ford pickup owned by the oil company. His employer said he was a respected employee in a supervisory position in the company.

Richardson called Holt's mother in Midland and was told that Holt "should have been coming home from Snyder."

Crawford worked as a plumber for Crawford Plumbing, a firm he owned. He was driving a white 1976 Chevrolet van.

"We won't know until we can talk to some people which way they were going," said Richardson.

The wreck occurred at the top of a hill in a climbing lane near the Howard County feed lot. Holt's pickup came to rest 372 feet from the paved entrance of the feed lot.

Crawford's van was 33 feet from the point of impact and Holt's pickup came to rest 17 feet from the point of impact.

The pickup was resting on the shoulder of the southwest side of the road with the right front tire on the outside white stripe. The van remained on the roadway in the north-west bound lanes.

Howard County Sheriff's office received the call at 10:53 p.m. Richardson arrived on the scene at 11 p.m.

Howard County Sheriff's Deputies Sgt. Robert Puente and Richard Hall assisted Richardson at the scene.

The bodies were taken to Sheppard Funeral Home by the funeral home ambulance after the men were pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

The roadway was dry and the weather cool and clear.

Pleasures, problems beginning for Reagan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The trappings — and responsibilities — of high office already are beginning to descend on President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Among the trappings are beefed-up Secret Service protection, phones to connect him with any part of the world, and other special treatment that not even a Hollywood star can expect.

The responsibilities are more complex, including the naming of the task force that will guide the transfer of power to a Republican administration, the choice of Cabinet officers and other high officials, and the opening of relations with other world leaders.

Reagan scheduled a half-hour nationally televised news conference today with Vice President-elect George Bush to name the transition team. As for those being considered for permanent posts, sources say some well-known officials from past Republican administrations are included, among them Henry Kissinger, William Simon and Alexander Haig.

Expected to be clarified at today's news conference is the status of Richard V. Allen, Reagan's senior campaign adviser on foreign policy who was thought to have an inside track to become national security adviser before his abrupt resignation four days prior to the election.

Allen has denied reports that he sought to use his White House post during the Richard M. Nixon administration for personal financial gain, but his future in a Reagan administration still is uncertain. However, he is expected to head the foreign policy section of the transition team.

And among those reportedly under consideration for permanent posts are:

—Kissinger, a former secretary of state who could get his old job.

—Haig, a former NATO commander and Nixon's chief of staff, also being considered for secretary of state.

—Simon, former secretary of treasury who may return to his old post, too.

Gain of 986 folks over July counts

Latest census figures help ease pain in Howard County

Advocates of growth in Howard County can take small consolation from the fact that the county fared better in the latest figures released than they did when pre-preliminary counts were made public in July.

The county census, as released by the U.S. Census Bureau District Office in Lubbock, shows a gain of 986 people over the July count but a loss of 4,511 from the official head count in 1970.

By actual count, the Howard figures showed a decrease from 37,796 to 33,285. That amounts to 11.94 percent.

Most area counties didn't fare much better, if as well, in the revised totals. The Lubbock office shows Borden County with a loss of 31 people, where in July the figure was 47.

Surprisingly, Mitchell County shows a net gain of nine over its 1970 figures, whereas the preliminary count reflected a loss of 465.

Nolan County's figures are positive, both for those released in July and the ones announced this week. The July figures showed Nolan with a net pickup of 236 whereas the more recent ones reflected an increase of 1,153.

Scurry County's gains are also impressive. In July, the net pickup for Scurry was 1,810 but that figure has now increased to 2,410.

Borden County reportedly has a population now of 857. Mitchell's 10 percent gain means the population there is now 9,082, whereas in July it was reported at only 9,073. Nolan went from 16,220 in July to 17,373 in the latest count. Scurry's gain in the five-month period was dramatic, advancing from 15,760 to 18,176.

The preliminary report also includes statistics for the number of housing units in each county. The July count for Howard County was 12,007, whereas now it is 13,583 — representing a gain of 8.40 percent.

The figures are, of course, subject to further verification, according to a spokesman for the census bureau. Final census figures, due in 1981, could differ radically.

Figures for individual cities, including Big Spring, will be released at a later date.

Focalpoint

Action / reaction: Powerful Texas

Q. What would happen if Texas cut off all of its resources to other states?

A. Texans might have trouble paying their bills. Contrary to some claims, Texans don't 'give' away their resources. It is true that Texas produces a lot of the oil, natural gas, sulphur, cotton, sugar, citrus and other commodities but it is also true that we depend heavily upon outside sources for other resources very necessary to our way of life.

Calendar: SWCID open house

THURSDAY

Merry Mixers Square Dance Club will have its last night of registration for beginning square dance lessons, 7:30 to 9:30, at Eagle's Lodge, 703 W. Third. Instructor will be James Moore. Call 267-5030 or 263-2917 for more information.

American Diabetes Association will hear Dr. J.W. Cowan at 7 p.m. in a Malone-Hogan Hospital classroom.

FRIDAY

Reservations deadline for the District No. 24 Texas Nurse's Association luncheon Monday at VAMC Firehouse Room. Dr. Teddy Langford will speak. Make reservations before 5 p.m. by phoning 267-6331, extension 75, $4 per plate. TNA members are to bring desserts.

The Howard County Library will have Story Hour for pre-school aged children from 10 a.m. until 11 a.m.

FRIDAY

Open house at South West Collegiate Institute for the Deaf at Howard College from 3 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Tops on TV: 'Barney Miller'

The second half of a couple of two-part shows will probably capture the viewers tonight. Those who caught the first half of "Alcatraz: The Whole Shocking Story" last night will want to watch the conclusion at 7 o'clock on NBC. The premiere of "Barney Miller" last week was also a two-parter, and the second half airs on ABC at 8 o'clock. Barney tries to get his men's designation as a specialty murder squad reversed. Finally, CBS will offer a movie based on the award-winning documentary, "Scared Straight," at 7 o'clock. "Scared Straight: Another Story" stars Cliff DeYoung as a probation officer involved with a program run by hard-line convicts.

Outside: Warmer

Fair and a little warmer in the afternoons through Friday. High today near 80, low tonight in the upper 40s. High Friday in the mid 80s. Winds will be from the southwest at 10 to 15 mph today and Friday, except 5 to 10 mph tonight.

MIDDAY FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for Friday predicts rain in the Pacific Northwest and in California and Montana, and rain and snow around the Great Lakes.

Aftershocks just beginning

GOP wins a 'political earthquake'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's political earthquake has shaken the foundations of the Democratic Party's domination of Congress — and the country — and the expected series of aftershocks is just beginning. On Wednesday, the day after Reagan's smashing defeat of President Carter, the focus of partisan politics shifted from campaigning to trying to consolidate power, or merely hold on to it. In the Senate, Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., announced he had gained backing to keep his leadership position as his party took control. And Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, now majority leader, said he would not "play dead" once the Democrats share the minority party. Reagan's side announced it wanted to work with the Carter administration to ensure the release of the U.S. hostages in Iran.

And Carter — despite his past hints that Reagan could get the country into war — said he believed the Republican would try to keep peace and pledged to cooperate even in Reagan's plan to negotiate a new SALT agreement.

Reagan and Vice President-elect George Bush were to announce today the transition team that will work with the Carter administration in an effort to smooth the shift of authority on Inauguration Day next Jan. 20.

Edwin Muj, 50, the Reagan campaign chief of staff, said Wednesday in Los Angeles that the president-elect wanted to cooperate on the hostage issue. "We will work out a way in which to cooperate in any fashion that might help our national interest in helping get the hostages home," he said.

Meese also said the new administration would exercise its prerogative and replace all agency heads appointed during the Carter presidency.

It was learned in Los Angeles that Richard V. Allen, the Reagan foreign policy adviser who left the campaign last month amid controversy, would play a key role in the transition team. Allen has denied newspaper reports he used his position in the Nixon administration to personal advantage, but it remained unclear what permanent post, if any, he might have in the Reagan administration.

Carter flew to Camp David, Md., telling reporters, "I really need to go off by myself and think for a while." He attributed his landslide loss to the hostage situation, the economy and allegations of impropriety against members of his family.

Carter, who in the campaign had derided Reagan's plan to throw out SALT II and negotiate a new arms control treaty, also said he would cooperate with Reagan in regard to SALT negotiations. "I'll help him anyway he asks me to do to consummate the same goals that I'm sure he wants, that is to control nuclear weapons," he said. "And, in fact, if we have to abandon my approach and adopt his, that's a prerogative he'll make. I'll support it. I want to be very constructive."

Asked whether he believes Reagan could lead the nation into war, as the president had suggested during the campaign, Carter replied: "I have a firm belief that Governor Reagan will do his utmost to maintain the peace."

The president said he is preparing a priority agenda for the lame-duck session of the outgoing Congress scheduled to convene next Wednesday.

The lame-duck session could produce the first power clash between the Democrats and Republicans.

Baker, in announcing his plans to become majority leader, made it clear he opposes any effort to have the lame-duck session transact any more business than is absolutely necessary.

Reagan's win may hold up hostage solution

By The Associated Press
The deputy speaker of Iran's Parliament says he expects Ronald Reagan's election to delay U.S. acceptance of Iran's terms for freeing the 52 American hostages. But one of Reagan's chief aides said the president-elect would cooperate with President Carter in the effort to get the hostages released.

"Because Carter was already in office, we would have reached a solution faster if he were re-elected. With Reagan's victory this will need a long time," Hojatoleslam Musavvi khomeini said Wednesday in an interview with Greek television.

Reagan's campaign chief of staff, Edwin Meese, said the president-elect's staff would "work cooperatively with the present administration to provide for a continuity of government policy" and would "work out a way in which to cooperate in any fashion that might help our national interest and help in getting the hostages home."

Asked if Reagan might try to veto Carter's plans concerning the hostages if he found them unacceptable, Meese said he "would have a hard time believing that could happen."

Carter said he would keep Reagan informed but stressed to reporters in Washington that "I'll be the president for the next 2 1/2 months. The full constitutional authority of the office will be mine."

Carter said he doubted Reagan "would materially change the posture we are maintaining" in the effort to get the hostages freed. "I doubt that anyone in my position the last 12 months would have done substantially different from what I did," he added.

The Carter administration has given no indication when it will reply to Iran's four conditions for the release of the hostages, who today were spending their 369th day in captivity.

Algerian Ambassador Redha Malek, who represents Iran in Washington, met for the third consecutive day Wednesday with Deputy Undersecretary of State Warren M. Christopher. The State Department said it was a routine meeting and refused to say whether any messages were delivered.

State Department spokesman John Taltner said the U.S. government was "definitely amenable" to face-to-face negotiations with Iran.

Clements happy about GOP Senate victories

By The Associated Press
Sen. Bill Clements says the GOP's legislative victories definitely tipped the Senate toward the conservative side, and he welcomed the change.

Republicans had net gains of two Senate seats and 10 state representatives.

That means seven of the 31 senators and 36 of the 150 state representatives will be members of the governor's party — help he will need in pushing through a controversial program that includes wiretapping and initiative and referendum.

GOP victories in the Senate were: — James E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson defeated Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz of Galveston by about 1,000 votes out of more than 100,000 cast. Schwartz, with 20 years' service, is leader of Senate liberals and would have been dean of the Senate had he won.

— Mike Richards, a Houston financial consultant, defeated Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, who was under investigation at election time for allegedly using Senate staff and equipment in his campaign.

— Dee Travis of Garland defeated Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs.

— John Leedom, Republican, beat Ron Kessler, Democrat, in the Dallas senatorial district now represented by Republican Sen. Bill Braecklein, who did not seek re-election. "These new members in the Senate will make a difference. It will change that whole general atmosphere in the Senate and it will become more conservative," said Clements, who campaigned for all four successful GOP Senate candidates.

Meanwhile Sen. Bob Herford businessman who used to be on the staff of House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Eight Democratic House members and one GOP representative were defeated: — Jimmy Mankins, D-Kilgore, fell to Michael Martin of Longview.

— Bill Harrison, D-Corpus Christi, was defeated by Ken Riley of Corpus Christi.

— Bill Caraway, D-Houston, lost to Randy Pennington of Houston.

— Bob Hendricks, D-McKinney, was swamped by a heavy Dallas suburban vote and lost to Frank Eikenburg of Plano.

— Mary Jane Bode, D-Austin, was defeated by Terral Smith, an Austin lawyer.

— Al Brown, D-San Antonio, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee, lost to Alan Schoolcraft of San Antonio.

— Tip Hall, D-Denton, fell to Jim Horn of Denton.

— Dan Downey, R-Houston, was defeated by Paul Colbert, a former legislative researcher.

'Infighting in the house of the Lord'

Bible executive runs 'Ads for God'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Blood oozing from a dead friend's ears and the recollection of a poor man singing brought a Lebanese teen-ager to his knees and to God on a sultry Middle Eastern day 33 years ago.

Now president of a huge Bible publishing company, Sam Moore is urging Americans to stand behind President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Moore's company — Thomas Nelson Inc. — is spending $50,000 for a newspaper "advertisement" which will run Friday in the Wall Street Journal and Nashville's two newspapers, The Tennessean and Nashville Banner. Moore said he decided to publish the message — entitled "A Prayer for Our President" — in the Journal to reach the nation's business community.

"Our country is in serious trouble, Lord, trouble from all sides. The problems our President faces here at home are already enormous. The cost of producing food, clothing and other vital necessities has skyrocketed... Millions of our workers — many of them veterans — are being forced on welfare rolls while billions of hard-earned American dollars are flowing overseas to pay for grossly overpriced imports.

"Violence is in the headlines, pornography is on the newsstands and selfish pleasure is the goal... Please God, rekindle a new spirit within us, a new awakening."

Moore said he thought of the prayer because "our nation is suffering from a great malaise right now. As a people we need to open our eyes and see what's happening to us."

When he walked out the tears started dripping down my face."

Born in Lebanon, Moore — then named Sam Ziadi — dreamed of becoming a doctor. He attended the Evangelical High School in Beirut and met an American doctor who the executive said opened his eyes to God.

"I thought medicine and the money it would bring would make me happy," he said. "But I was a very unhappy man."

The doctor, Moore said, left his practice in the United States and built a hospital in Bethlehem for the Presbyterian Church.

"He gave it all up to go out to the Middle East and heal the wounds of the broken-hearted and the homeless," he said. "There is a happy man. That was the beginning."

Moore, whose company last year recorded $35.8 million in sales, said he accepted God for good the day his friend was shot.

"I saw him lying there with blood coming out of his ears, and I said to myself, 'What's happening to us all?'"

"And I remembered a man I knew who was poor but went to bed singing and woke up singing. I realized he had the joy of the Lord," Moore said. "I then knew I would rather be happy and poor than rich and miserable."

"I got down on my knees and accepted the Lord. I know the exact place and time. That was the beginning of a new life for me."

As a student at Columbia Bible College in South Carolina, Moore saved $2,500 in the summer of 1950 by selling Bibles and dictionaries. He earned degrees in economics and religious education at the University of South Carolina. A job with the Chase Manhattan Bank followed.

"New York — what a place! You get lost, there's a lot of shoving and no one has time to say 'Good morning,'" he said.

Moore came to Nashville in 1957 and started a Bible and dictionary sales company. In 1961, he founded Royal Publishing Co., which bought Thomas Nelson in 1969.

RELIGIOUS RIGHT STAKES ITS CLAIMS

— TV evangelist Jerry Falwell, head of Moral Majority, one of several conservative political action groups that have sprung out of the nation's fundamentalist Protestant groups, believes that the conservative election sweep will establish a government in Washington more responsive to the groups' interpretation of "moral sanity."

China praises Reagan as a 'pragmatist'

PEKING (AP) — China praised President-elect Ronald Reagan today as a "moderate" and a "pragmatist" who wants friendly relations with Peking, military superiority over the Soviet Union, a more powerful U.S. image abroad and a less restrictive economy at home.

"Last fall Reagan mentioned several times the United States would re-establish official relations with Taiwan, arousing public opposition for his 'slip of the tongue,'" China's leading newspaper, the People's Daily, said.

"But later, in his several speeches about China, he did not repeat the same thing and on the contrary stressed he was trying to develop friendly relations with the People's Republic of China."

The article said Reagan dealt President Carter a "disastrous defeat," and that this "reflected the deep depression and dissatisfaction of the electorate of the United States over the state of their domestic economic crisis and the downgrading of the U.S. international status."

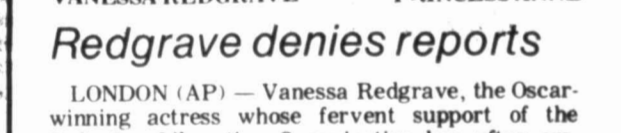

"Reagan is a pragmatist and he is good at adapting and being flexible," the article continued. "During the election campaign he revised many of his conservative stands and has shown that he is actually a moderate."

It said, "Reagan stresses seeking peace with strength. He insists the United States strengthen its defense, establish military superiority over the Soviet Union and abolish Soviet-U.S. nuclear treaties."

Names in the news

Vanessa Redgrave, the Oscar-winning actress whose fervent support of the Palestine Liberation Organization has often embroiled her in controversy, denies reports she ever said "Israel must be wiped out."

"I have always wanted peace for the Palestinians and the Israeli Jews," she said in a statement issued Wednesday by her lawyer, Michael Rubinstein.

"I have never said that I want the state of Israel to be wiped out. If that were even to be attempted it would mean disaster for all in the Middle East, where the need of all is for security and peace," she said.

The statement was issued after news reports in the United States and the Middle East quoted the 43-year-old British actress as advocating Israel's destruction, Rubinstein's office said.

Most recently, the red-haired actress sparked controversy when she played the part of a Jewish survivor of a Nazi death camp in the American television movie "Playing For Time."

Royal family gets new member

LONDON (AP) — A new member of the royal family — the sixth in line to the throne — is due next May.

Princess Anne, 30, is expecting her second child next spring, Buckingham Palace announced Wednesday.

The princess, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, was in "excellent health," and would be carrying out all forthcoming public engagements already arranged, a palace spokesman said.

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, who learned of the news when they returned to Britain from their recent state visit to Italy and North Africa, were "delighted," the palace reported.

Princess Anne's first child, Peter, was born three years ago, one day after the fourth anniversary of her wedding to Mark Phillips. Peter was the queen's first grandchild.

Mrs. Carter returns home

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Lillian Carter, the president's 82-year-old mother, is back home today after a 35-day hospital stay for a broken hip.

Mrs. Carter, who suffered the injury in a fall at her Plains home Oct. 2, left the hospital early Wednesday, according to nursing supervisor Jo Collins. She was taken home by her doctor, daughter Gloria Spann and granddaughter Kim Carter, Ms. Collins said.

Mrs. Carter watched election returns from her hospital bed but retired for the night without commenting publicly on news that her son had lost his bid for a second term in the White House.

Texans with tax woes

sub phone for mail

(Special to The Herald)

AUSTIN — State comptroller Bob Bullock recently said Texans with tax problems and questions are sending the mail in favor of the telephone.

Bullock said his agency recorded 241,052 incoming telephone calls on the agency's toll-free number during the last fiscal year which ended Aug. 31.

"Texas taxpayers seem to feel the convenience and speed of using the telephone makes letter writing as obsolete as the pony express," Bullock said.

Records show that this is an increase of about nine percent in the number of WATS line calls completed through the Comptroller's switchboard over the same time a year ago.

"That's nearly 1,000 telephone calls every workday," Bullock said, adding that the department now maintains 16 incoming lines to handle taxpayer inquiries.

He said 30 percent of last year's calls were routed to the agency's sales tax division. Business tax calls accounted for 17 percent and Revenue Accounting received 15 percent of the calls.

Bullock said the 83,241 calls logged in sales tax resulted in more than 9,300 written follow-ups to questions and the completion of more than 17,000 corrective documents to clear up taxpayer accounts.

PUBLISHER OFFERS PRAYER

— Sam Moore, president of the nation's leading biblical publishing company in Nashville, has paid $50,000 to place a presidential prayer in several newspapers, including Friday's edition of the Wall Street Journal. Moore says the nation must support the newly-elected president Ronald Reagan and return to its spiritual heritage.

"I want to tell people to look at the positive side instead of the negative," he said. "We've only got one president and we can't tear him up without destroying ourselves." Constant tearing down is no good.

"Like my son — I'd been on his back for a long time about all the things he was doing wrong. He was only 14 and one day after I'd been on him a long time, he looked me in the eye and said, 'Dad, can I do anything right?'"

The Baker's A.M.E. Church at N.W. 10th and Lancaster will have a barbecue Saturday, Telephone 7-2940. There will be beef, pork ribs and chicken. Plates will be $3.50 or by the pound $4. Beans, potato salad, pickles and onion included. Serving will be at 11 a.m. until.

Reagan brings back the protests

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Campus activists who watched a rally against President-elect Ronald Reagan dwindle into a sit-in over a hodgepodge of university causes say they'll be back — and hope to build a new nationwide student movement.

Fifty-two people were arrested Wednesday as police dragged protesters out of a University of California administration building. On Tuesday, 3,000 people marched in the streets of Berkeley to protest Reagan's victory. Protesters said they planned another rally today. One demonstration "probably won't do anything. But more and more demonstrations are going to do something," said student Teresa Clarke. Others shouted they hoped to spark a student movement similar to that of 15 years ago. "We're going to be doing this a lot," said satirist Stoney Burke, one of the protest organizers.

Campus police arrested 35 students and 17 others after a 5½-hour protest that moved from Sproul Plaza, site of anti-war rallies of the 1960s and early 1970s, to the campus ROTC building and then to the administration building, where 150 people occupied a stairwell.

All 52 were charged with misdemeanor trespassing and 10 were charged with resisting arrest. They were released on their own recognizance and no arraignment date was set.

The rally was called "to build an educational movement against Reagan... when Reagan reinstates the draft and begins to cut back social programs," said Joe Lambert of the Berkeley Progressive Students Organization.

But the election was only a "catalyst" for a protest encompassing long-standing campus issues, Ms. Clarke explained. Inside the occupied California Hall, dissidents handed out communist leaflets, denounced the campus ROTC — chanting "Hey, hey, ho, ho, ROTC has got to go" — and demanded an end to the university's involvement in nuclear weapons research for the government, support for a campus child care center and increased Third World enrollment.

"I'm doing it (protesting) just to make a point about what's going on," explained one student.

The noisy sit-in between the first and second floors began about 2 p.m. As the protesters walked in, most university administrators walked out and the building was sealed off. Two men arrested then on counts that included disturbing the peace later were released on bail.

Democrats keep control of the House; are hurt badly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats are keeping control of the House but the nationwide voter mutiny against Jimmy Carter slashed sharply into their ranks and likely will insure a receptive forum for the conservative programs of Ronald Reagan.

Several of the House's most prominent — and liberal — Democrats were defeated Tuesday as the mood of the electorate swung sharply to the right, giving Reagan a landslide victory and, in the Senate, ousting Democrats from the control they had held for the last quarter-century.

Republicans won at least 29 additional House seats, surprising even themselves, and were leading in all five remaining races. A 34-seat gain would restore the party to the strength it held before the Watergate scandal ousted Richard Nixon from office and decimated the GOP's ranks.

Democrats held a 276-159 margin in the outgoing House. With five races still too close to call, the lineup was 242 to 188.

The additions, coupled with the scope of Reagan's landslide, are sure to put the House on a more conservative course than has been the case. The House, with its membership up for election every two years, is necessarily sensitive to the mood of the electorate.

Even House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., called the election results a "disaster for the Democrats" and said "the president collapsed in the last few days."

Among the most notable Democratic losers were John Brademas of Indiana, who held the 3rd ranking leadership post among Democrats; Frank Thompson of New Jersey, a top spokesman for labor causes; Thomas Ashley of Ohio, influential in housing legislation; John Murphy of New York, a leader of American shipping interests; and Harold T. Johnson of California, head of the House Public Works Committee.

Only one of the five congressmen indicted in the FBI's Abscam probe won reelection — Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa.

Blacks appeared to pick up two seats, bringing their total to 19.

Launch of space shuttle delayed to investigate technical problems

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The launch of space shuttle Columbia has been delayed four days to provide time for additional tests of the spacecraft, already two years behind the original launch date because of technical problems, NASA officials said Wednesday.

The launch now is scheduled for March 14, said Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, astronaut in charge of orbiter tests for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Slayton said a "rollout review" on Nov. 13 will determine if Columbia should be moved from the orbiter processing facility at Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Nov. 23.

"Everything is looking good at this moment for a rollout on Nov. 23," Slayton told reporters in briefing on the orbital test program.

If the shuttlecraft can be moved from the processing facility, it will be mounted on the solid rocket fuel and propellant tanks that will thrust Columbia into space.

The solid fuel and propellant tanks will be mated at Cape Canaveral on Thursday, Slayton said.

Columbia is scheduled to make four orbital test missions between 54 hours and seven days in length, he said.

"In my opinion, 90 percent of the risks (in test flights) is taken on the first flight," Slayton said.

Berkeley sit in halted

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A sit-in that began as a protest against Ronald Reagan, but drifted into support of several campus causes, was ended Wednesday night when campus police hauled dissidents from the University of California administration building.

About 70 students and non-students had been threatened with arrest if they did not leave voluntarily. When they made no move, campus officers began removing them. Some of the protesters went limp and were dragged down the stairwell they had occupied for five hours.

Even then, the protesters were told they could avoid arrest if they would just walk away. But 52 persons were taken into custody.

Inside the building, the demonstrators chanted defiance, but a reporter said he observed no violence.

Originally about 150 demonstrators, at first reported to be protesting a possible draft and angered by Reagan's presidential election, moved into the campus administration building. But after two earlier arrests, some dissidents started drifting away.

The building occupation began at about 2 p.m. as a campus rally "to build an educational movement" against Reagan, who was elected president Tuesday, according to a rally activist.

The demonstration began when several hundred people marched from Sproul Hall-site of many anti-draft rallies in the late 1960s and early 1970s — to Peoples Park and on to the campus ROTC building and to the administration building.

At Sproul Plaza, speakers had exhorted the crowd to "make sure Reagan can do as little as possible to hinder human rights in the country."

A reporter inside the building with the dissidents said that, among other things, they were protesting the campus ROTC military training office and university support of government-sponsored nuclear weapons research, and were supporting campus child care and Third World studies.

He said some of the demonstrators were passing out Communist literature.

All were demanding that the charges against the two men arrested earlier be dropped, he said.

At times the protesters chanted "Hey hey, ho ho, ROTC has got to go."

Student Theresa Clarke, among three people who spoke with campus vice chancellor Robert Kerley in the building, said the election of Reagan as president was the "catalyst" that started the demonstration.

ON TO CAMP DAVID — President Carter shakes hands with Defense Secretary Harold Brown in Washington as he and Mrs. Carter head for their waiting helicopter that took them to Camp David, Md. Wednesday. Behind Mrs. Carter is advisor Jack Watson.

Carter different person after losing election

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter the incumbent Democrat is quite another person from Jimmy Carter the lame-duck president. He is now declaring his "firm belief" that Ronald Reagan will try to keep peace and pledging to help the victorious Republican administration.

Carter said, in fact, that he planned to cooperate with Reagan on the Republican's plan to throw out SALT II and negotiate with the Soviets another arms control pact, a move that he had decried during the campaign.

"I'll help him anyway he asks me to to consummate the same goals that I'm sure he wants, that is to control nuclear weapons," Carter said. "And, in fact, if we have to abandon my approach and adopt his, that's a prerogative he'll make, I'll support it. I want to be very constructive."

Asked outright whether he believes Reagan "is as much a threat to world peace and a lot of other issues that were part of your campaign rhetoric," the president replied:

"I have a firm belief that Governor Reagan will do his utmost to maintain the peace."

After the meeting with reporters, the president and his wife flew to their Camp David, Md., retreat for the next week to rest and ponder their future.

Court releases two DARS

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court on Wednesday ordered two officers of the Texas Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, released from a contempt charge that resulted from the writing of checks to defend the organization in a lawsuit.

The lawsuit by the Fort Bend chapter and others sought to block the sale of the Freeman Plantation in Marion County, state headquarters for the society.

The Texarkana Court of Civil Appeals held the two women in contempt.

The Supreme Court said, however, "We hold that the expenditure of funds by the society through its officers for the defense of a lawsuit instituted by the minority members was an expenditure for carrying on the ordinary business of the society."

The question before the court was whether the officers' expenditure of chapter funds for legal expenses had violated a 1977 injunction prohibiting them from spending chapter money for anything other than "ordinary business of the society."

Court reverses obscenity case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed a Harris County obscenity conviction on Wednesday because testimony was excluded about the local popularity of "Deep Throat."

After Michael Keller's punishment was assessed at 30 days and a $500 fine, he was placed on probation. He appealed the conviction.

Keller, who was charged with the sale of "Oversexed Secretary," an obscene film, contended the trial court erred in excluding testimony of a defense witness on the contemporary community standards in Harris County.

The defense witness would have testified he had seen "Deep Throat" and "Oversexed Secretary" and that "Deep Throat" was playing in its fourth year in Houston, making it the longest playing movie in Houston motion picture history.

The witness estimated 750,000 persons had seen "Deep Throat" in Harris County.

The court said the testimony must be admitted if Keller is tried on the charge again.

Abortion, ERA

Issues didn't swing election

NEW YORK (AP) — Born-again Christians turned against President Carter and helped give Ronald Reagan his overwhelming victory, but the heated debates over abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment didn't swing the presidential election this year.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll of voters leaving polling places Tuesday also shows that independent candidate John Anderson took votes from groups that should have been fertile ground for Carter. But Reagan's victory was so large that Anderson's impact was not crucial.

The vote of born-again Protestants appeared to swing dramatically. It was unclear, however, whether that stemmed from Reagan's support by the new Christian right, which undertook a massive registration drive on his behalf, or from a general dislike of Carter's policies.

Of the evangelical Christians who voted Tuesday, 50 percent said they had voted in 1976 for Carter, who is "born-again," and 37 percent said they voted for Gerald Ford. But this year, 56 percent voted for Reagan and only 39 percent for Carter.

Among white evangelicals, the swing was even more dramatic: from 46-41 Carter in 1976 to 62-33 for Reagan this year.

The poll showed that nationwide, voters approved of a woman's right to abortion by 70 percent to 23 percent. Even Catholic voters said they favored that right by a 2-1 margin.

But those who favored abortion voted for Reagan by 49 percent to 41 percent, even though the Republican Party platform includes support of a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortion and a stipulation that as president its candidate would appoint only judges who oppose it.

The poll said the ERA had a bit more impact on the vote than abortion.

Daley's son wins office

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard M. Daley's election as state's attorney may give him a political springboard in a possible battle against Mayor Jane Byrne once held, says defeated State's Attorney Bernard Carey.

Carey conceded defeat Wednesday in his battle against the Democratic state senator, saying that although 140 precincts were out he did not see enough important districts left to help him overcome Daley's 21,906-vote edge.

Daley had 50.53 percent of the vote in the 5,520-precinct area.

Carey told reporters that he, like Mrs. Byrne, believes Daley will use the office as a political stepping-stone to run for the mayor's office in 1983.

Daley is the eldest son of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley, the Democrat who ruled Chicago politics for two decades. Mrs. Byrne withdrew her endorsement of Daley shortly before the election.

GOOD NEWS-BAD NEWS — Billy Carter, younger brother of President Carter, reads a story telling of his brother's defeat in Americus Wednesday. News was not all bad for Billy, however. His daughter presented him with his first grandchild, and named him after Billy.

Like Democrats, third party candidates had bad night

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a bad year for the third parties, too. Like the Democrats, the also rans also limped.

But both the Libertarian Party, which thinks that government ought to limit its role to protecting the nation and fighting crime, and the Citizens Party, which thinks corporations have too much power, said 1980 established them as permanent fixtures on the political landscape.

The Libertarian Party spent $3.2 million on its campaign for nominee Ed Clark, and had hoped to finish with "double digit" figures — at least 10 percent of the vote.

Clark always told reporters he would not win but he would get "millions of votes." He had to settle for about 880,000 votes, 1 percent of the total. He went back to his job Wednesday as a lawyer for the Atlantic Richfield Co. in Los Angeles.

Environmentalist Barry Commoner, candidate of the new Citizens Party, had hoped to win 5 percent of the vote, qualifying the Citizens Party for federal financing. But Commoner won only about 220,000 votes. He left Wednesday on a Caribbean vacation.

"We all thought we'd do a little better, but no one I've talked to is crushed," said Citizens Party spokesman Steve Dombrosk.

The Citizens Party's big moment in the campaign came when it ran a network radio commercial describing the campaigns of its big league competition — the Democrats and the Republicans — as "bullshit."

An uproar ensued, and the party flickered into the public eye, for a moment.

The Citizens Party represented a coalition of the remnants of the peace and environment movements. Commoner advocated ending "corporate control of the economy" and told followers Tuesday night the party now must become the

Get-away car may be found

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Police say the get-away car of escaped drug dealer Dale White may have been located in Arkansas.

White, 43, escaped from the Shreveport jail where he was held temporarily on a federal conviction of smuggling marijuana into the United States.

He broke out of jail in DeSoto Parish two years ago and faced trial on escape charges there.

Authorities say White, an experienced pilot, may have left the country, but they located the suspected get-away car in Arkansas on Wednesday.

White's lawyer, Jimmie Brumfield, 33, and his wife Arax Brumfield, 29, have been arrested and booked with helping the drug dealer escape.

The Brumfields, both of whom are lawyers, have been released from jail on $10,000 and $5,000 bonds, authorities say.

rallying point for "progressive forces."

Both parties said they would be back with candidates for Congress in 1982. The Libertarians intend to nominate a candidate in every House and Senate race — something the Republicans and Democrats don't do.

"Our big accomplishment was building local organizations," said Libertarian spokesman Tom Palmer. "We knocked on eight million doors."

The Libertarians also managed to get on every ballot in America — the first third party since 1916 to achieve that. The Citizens Party was on the ballots of 29 states and the District of Columbia.

The Libertarians said they elected Mary Shell as mayor of Bakersfield, Calif., and two state legislators in Alaska.

But they had hoped to finish second in Alaska, behind Ronald Reagan and ahead of Jimmy Carter, a most unpopular figure in Alaska. They didn't.

Clark wound up with 12 percent of Alaska's vote — more than independent John Anderson's 7 percent, but less than Jimmy Carter's 31 percent or Ronald Reagan's 55 percent.

Reagan children independent-minded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The incoming first family includes four independent-minded children and a president's brother who promises to stay out of the spotlight.

Ronald Reagan will be the nation's first divorced president. His first marriage, to actress Jane Wyman, ended in divorce in 1948 after two children — Maureen, now 39, and Michael, now 34, an adopted child. Reagan married his second wife, the former Nancy Davis, also an actress, in 1952. They have two children — Patricia Ann, 28, and Ronald Prescott, 22.

It is the older Reagan children who more closely resemble their conservative father, but even they are not in step with him on every issue.

Maureen, a magazine editor in Los Angeles, is more conservative than her father on some issues, but she differs from him on two emotional issues.

She is a strong supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution and an advocate of the pro-choice view on abortion. Her father opposes both positions.

Michael, a boat salesman for many years, is now involved in a gasohol project and has been active in the background of Reagan's successful campaign. He and his wife, Colleen, have a son, Reagan's only grandchild.

The Reagans' younger children went out on their own, abandoning their parents' conservative lifestyle.

Patricia, a college dropout, goes by her mother's maiden name of Davis and is an actress and songwriter who lives with her boyfriend, a member of The Eagles rock band.

Ronald Prescott, who is not a "junior" since his father's middle name is Wilson, also dropped out of college. He lives in New York and is a member of the Joffrey II Dancers, a training group for the Joffrey Ballet.

In addition, Reagan has a brother.

But this sibling has said he has no intention of embarrassing his famous brother when he enters the White House. Neil Reagan, 71, a retired advertising executive from Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., said he has no plans to attract attention to himself.

"If I said something like Billy Carter did, I would get my brains beaten out by Ron," he said in reference to President Carter's brother's controversial ties with the Libyan government.

"And if he ever embarrassed me, he'd get his brains beaten out," Neil added. "We were raised by parents who valued honesty, no matter how much it added. "We were raised by

GOLDWATER SPEAKS — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., appeared at a press conference Wednesday afternoon at his Scottsdale, Ariz., home after he won reelection to a fifth term in the U.S. Senate. Goldwater defeated Democratic challenger William R. Schulz, owner of numerous Phoenix-area apartment houses.

Carter was 'so weakened that he could not stand'

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the end, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and the anonymous senators who urged him on were right all along, Jimmy Carter was a president so weakened politically that he could not stand.

That belief, coupled with Kennedy's own ambition, helped propel the Massachusetts senator into challenging a president of his own party in the first place.

Ironically, the Ronald Reagan-inspired landslide that defeated Carter also pulled down many of Kennedy's liberal Democratic colleagues in the Senate and House of Representatives, some of whom privately urged the senator to run for president a year ago.

Many of them never endorsed him publicly, preferring not to take sides in what became a long intra-party quarrel.

But on election night, Carter was unpopular enough to lose 42 states to Republican Ronald Reagan. And in the Senate, some of the Democratic incumbents who went down with Carter were his severest critics — John Durkin in New Hampshire and George McGovern in South Dakota among them.

Republicans also picked up more than 30 seats in the House of Representatives.

The magnitude of the Republican gains certainly was unexpected. But there were signs all along that some Democratic politicians feared running on a ticket with Carter at its head.

—Shortly before the Democratic nominating convention last summer, the president told House members he would keep his campaign distance from them if they wanted.

—Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd set up a leisurely schedule last year, giving incumbent Democrats who feared for their future ample time to campaign.

—Senate Republicans complained publicly that the Democrats kept controversial measures off the floor to minimize danger to their vulnerable brethren.

—Only a few weeks before the Democratic National Convention last August, when the president had the delegates he needed but faced a fight over an "open convention," Byrd went public with an opinion that Carter didn't yet have the nomination locked up.

—And even as Democrats went to New York, some of their most prominent politicians were arguing for a third candidate to prevent the November debacle they feared. Their own choices included Carter's vice president, Walter F. Mondale, and his secretary of state, Edmund S. Muskie.

It is another irony of Carter's loss that both men are out of work, effective with Inauguration Day on Jan. 20.

Certainly, Kennedy contributed to Carter's weakness with his long, determined campaign. He railed incessantly at the president's foreign and economic policies, and his words were quoted gleefully by Republicans at their convention.

Although he later endorsed the president and campaigned for him, Kennedy once taunted Carter as a "clone of Ronald Reagan."

Texas voters wanted firmness in leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas voters were looking for firmness when they cast their ballots for President-elect Ronald Reagan, according to an Associated Press-NBC News poll.

The campaign trail warnings from President Carter about the potential danger posed by Reagan went largely ignored by the state's voters-looking for a boost in national defense and concerned about the U.S. position in the world.

Reagan's supporters selected "firm and decisive" more frequently than any other possibility among the personal characteristics that prompted them to vote the way they did.

That description was given by almost half of the Reagan voters in Texas, far ahead of the next most popular choice — "a true conservative."

Carter's supporters listed "honesty" as the most important characteristic influencing their votes.

The president's performance during four years in the White House played a key part in placing Texas' 26 electoral vote in line with the national landslide for Reagan.

Almost two-thirds of Texans who voted for Reagan said the president's "bad job" was a reason for their decision.

Many of the voters went to the polls with their minds made up long before, not influenced by the Carter campaign that tried to stir up uncertainty about Reagan.

The two candidates split the votes of the 7 percent of Texans who said they made up their minds the day of the election.

More than half, however, said they had decided which way to vote on or before the Texas primary last May. And a decisive majority of that group had settled on Reagan.

The AP-NBC News poll indicated that Reagan came out ahead on the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion issues.

Forty-five percent of Texas voters said they favored the ERA and 38 percent opposed it, but Reagan made a stronger showing among ERA opponents than Carter did among his supporters.

The same pattern held when voters were asked if they agreed that the decision about an abortion should be left to the woman and her doctor.

Seventy-two percent agreed and 21 percent did not. Reagan took a majority from both groups, but his strongest support was among abortion foes.

The results of an AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those who voted in Texas on Tuesday because of chance variations in the sample.

Such chance variations subject results to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way in the poll based on more than 2,000 interviews.

That is, if one could have talked to all those who voted in Texas on Tuesday, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of such a survey would vary from the results of a poll such as this by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results can vary from other polls for a number of other reasons. Differences in the method of interviewing and the exact wording of the questions also can cause variations.

Dick Slack hints recount

ODESSA — A late surge among voters in Ector County proved enough to turn the tide in favor of Jerry Cockerham of Monahans in his race to unseat the veteran Dick Slack in the 69th District Legislative race here Tuesday.

Cockerham was declared the winner Wednesday. The final vote totals stood at 14,686 for Cockerham and 14,234 for Slack.

Slack indicated he might seek a recount. Slack has been in the state legislature for 28 years.

Cockerham is an ordained Baptist minister.

Building lags in Lamesa

LAMESA — Local building activity during the month of October was practically nil in Lamesa.

Only one building permit, that one for $4,500, was issued during the month. That was for a small storage building.

The permit brings the year's total for Lamesa to $2,228,500.

Oral histories help offset decline in letters, diaries

Historians and archivists are concerned: Americans are writing fewer letters these days and for the most part no longer keeping diaries, once invaluable research sources for piecing together the past. To help counter this loss, however, many professionals are turning on their tape recorders to capture the recollections of the nation's decision-makers and pace-setters.

Pioneered at Columbia University in the late-1940s, the first so-called oral history interviews recorded the memoirs of political and military leaders who had participated in World War II, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Omar N. Bradley among others.

Since then, the technique has become a valuable resource for such organizations as the Smithsonian's Archives of American Art, where millions of original research materials deeded by artists, collectors, critics and others document U.S. cultural history. The Archives' collection of talks-on-tape, for example, helps chart how New York City became the world capital of contemporary art in the 1950s. And now thousands of families and local history buffs also are finding tape cassettes useful tools for puzzling together their own heritage.

The principles and benefits — not to mention potential pitfalls — involved in taping the histories apply to both the professional researcher and the amateur genealogical sleuth. "At its best," says Garnett McCoy, senior curator of the Archives, "the method stimulates spontaneity which, under informal probing, produces un-studied and revealing recollections."

The secret of the successful interview, one veteran of the technique maintains, is "an abiding interest in people, an interest which puts them at ease and encourages a good flow of conversation."

But things can and do go wrong. In a recent interview in the Archives collection with the American realist painter Edward Hopper produced little more than a series of blunt "yes" and "no" replies to questions about the theme of his work — loneliness and alienation in America. At last, when Hopper, eager to talk about prices his paintings were commanding, began to open up a bit, Mrs. Hopper cut in, "Edward! Don't you discuss that."

Besides this sort of interruption, faulty memories and lack of objectivity also can flaw an interview. Then, too, some subjects may insist on their own self-serving version of the past; still others wander through a maze of irrelevant trivia.

While written and printed material remains the "bread and butter" of research for most historians, the taped interview, McCoy believes, offers one quality often missing in a collection of papers — "the vivid detail, the graphic phrase, the element of color expressed in spontaneous conversation." Ideally, he adds, the interviews are supplementary research tools, one record among others in an individual's personal papers. In taping the interview, Archives' staff members recommend that the subject be questioned in a relaxed, unstructured manner. At the same time, the interviewer must know exactly what type of information is needed in order to guide the conversation along.

Reagan's farm policy unclear

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan's agriculture policy is still unclear but if his actions follow his campaign rhetoric, the partial embargo on U.S. grain exports to the Soviet Union will end under the new administration taking office Jan. 20.

Meanwhile, there is an initial indication of the direction farm matters will take in the new Republican-controlled Senate.

Conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the current ranking Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee, said Wednesday he expects to become chairman of the panel when the new Congress convenes in January.

Helms said in Raleigh, N.C., that he would make trimming the federal food-stamp program one of his top priorities.

The Agriculture Committee handles the food-stamp program, and Helms said he believed it "has got to be changed so you won't have so many freeloaders on it."

"The future, as far as I'm concerned, is to reduce it (the food-stamp program) to those who are truly needy," he said.

Helms said he believed as much as 40 percent of food-stamp assistance goes to those who do not need it.

He said the only thing that could prevent him from taking the agriculture post would be Illinois Sen. Charles Percy's refusal to accept the chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, leaving Helms in line to take over that slot.

"It would be a real dilemma," Helms said.

Helms said he believed the government is currently "dishing out these food stamps to people who don't deserve them."

Helms said his goal would be to "continue to help the truly needy but limit it (the program) to the truly needy."

Asked how much of the program was being wasted on those who don't need it, Helms said, "I've heard estimates ranging up to 40 percent... I believe them to be valid."

Helms also said as chairman of the Agriculture Committee he would seek an immediate end to the imports of so-called "scrap" tobacco, which farmers contend is actually higher-grade leaf slipping through at reduced tariffs because of improper classification. The growers contend the imports are displacing sales of domestic leaf.

"I believe we'll get that resolved expeditiously," Helms said.

During the presidential campaign, there was limited controversy over farm policy and Reagan's proposals for agriculture have not been well defined.

It is also unclear who the president-elect will pick to be secretary of agriculture.

Sen. Roger W. Jepsen, R-Iowa was designated as Reagan's senior farm policy adviser during the presidential campaign. Prior to the election, however, Jepsen said he was not interested in leaving the Senate to head the Agriculture Department.

Earl Butz, controversial agriculture secretary in the Nixon and Ford administrations, also served as a Reagan campaign adviser. However, he has said he has no interest in returning to Washington.

Reagan had accused the Carter administration of undermining farm income by falling to control inflation.

But the prime campaign farm issue was the grain embargo.

President Carter blocked the sale of 17 million tons of wheat and corn to the Soviet Union in response to the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan. The administration sought to minimize the domestic impact of the embargo on farmers by spending $2 billion to $3 billion to ease the burden of the sales suspension.

Reagan, though, has declared the embargo.

On July 3, Reagan said: "I will, when elected, fully assess our national security, foreign policy and agricultural trade needs to determine how best to terminate yet another of the inequitable and ineffective policies of the Carter administration."

The platform adopted last summer at the Republican National Convention in Detroit stated flatly, "The Carter grain embargo should be terminated immediately."

Reagan and the new lineup in Congress — Republicans took control of the Senate for the first time in 26 years and cut the Democrats' lead in a House by 33 votes — will come at a critical time for farmers.

The Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, the basis for major agriculture programs, expires in 1981.

During the campaign, Republican sources who asked to remain anonymous agreed that Reagan would favor a moderate approach to federal farm programs and not support a massive cut in them.

Nuclear remark confirmed by blossoming Amy Carter

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amy Carter, who advised President Carter "that nuclear weaponry was the most important issue of the campaign, officially became a teen-ager last month and is showing signs of becoming an attractive young woman.

Amy's parents have seen to it that she maintains a low profile, even in an election year, and so her 13th birthday Oct. 19 went unnoticed.

Equally unnoticed are many changes that have occurred in Carter's child since she moved to Washington against her will four years ago.

"Have you seen her lately?" one White House aide asked a reporter. "She's really getting pretty."

Amy has changed from a boyish daughter in jeans with oversized eyeglasses into a developing young woman who is seen more and more often in skirts. She has obtained contact lenses as well as braces on her teeth and takes a definite interest in her appearance.

Amy has a new passion for vegetable quiche, which she shares with her mother after Rosalynn Carter returns from the campaign trail.

In addition, Amy now is using Eleanor Roosevelt's desk in her bedroom, presumably for her schoolwork.

Whereas once she seemed to disdain all the hoopla surrounding the pursuit of the presidency, this time around Amy has accompanied her parents in receiving lines, shaking hands like a pro, and also attends other public functions with more self-confidence.

She has roller-skated through a press mob to her father's waiting helicopter to bid goodbye to her parents who were off to Camp David. And she has posed in full view of reporters at a state dinner when her girlfriend refused to dance with her.

Although Amy is known as a very bright child, she has not yet gained a reputation as a political confidante of her father. And so it was puzzling to some hear Carter comment during his televised debate with Ronald Reagan last week that Amy had told him that "nuclear weaponry" was the most important issue of the campaign.

Although Amy does have a reputation for not speaking to reporters, she talked after the debate about how she had come to discuss the issue with the president.

"I asked him what a megaton was," Amy said, adding that she told her father that she thought nuclear weapons were the most important issue because they "could destroy the world."

Dallas council wanted election on Cable-TV

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas City Council has been asked to order an election on whether Warner Amex should win the city's cable television franchise.

Mrs. Cherré Felton and her husband, Scott Felton, presented petitions asking for an election on the franchise award to city secretary Bob Sloan a few minutes after the council adopted ordinances awarding the lucrative franchise to Warner Amex.

A state law, enacted in 1913, says that signatures from 500 registered voters can force a franchise election to overturn the award of a franchise. A similar petition was presented to Arlington city officials earlier this year, but no election was called. City officials questioned some of the signatures and awarded the franchise.

Sloan said such a franchise election, if called, would be held next April when city voters will be called upon to elect a mayor and city council members.

Anne Hall, franchise director for Warner Amex, said the company has decided to begin building the cable system despite the petition.

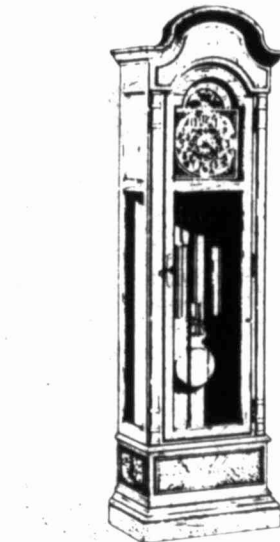

Mrs. Felton had earlier urged the city council to grant the franchise to Sammons Communications, a Dallas-based firm. She said that would allow the profits to remain in Dallas.

Sammons officials were not available for comment following the action Wednesday.

Ernest Blank, president of the parent company of Sammons Communications, said Tuesday that Sammons officials were urging persons who contacted them to sign petitions to take the franchise away from Warner Amex.

HOST PARTY FOR FRIDAY'S OPEN HOUSE — Pictured here are members of the Southwest College Institute for the Deaf College's official party, who will serve as hosts for a big Open House, scheduled for 3 to 6 p.m., Friday. SWCID is taking shape on the site of the old Webb AFB. Its touring will be observed in the administration building. Chief executive officer of SWCID is Dr. Douglass Burke, who is in the checkered suit in the middle of the second row in the above picture.

SW College for Deaf here boasts 5 major divisions

Eleven members of the Lubbock and Abilene Texas Rehabilitation Commission met with the Executive Director and division heads of the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf recently to present a progress report on the main divisions at SWCID.

Dr. Doug Burke, Executive Director of SWCID, explained to Regional Director Jackson King that there are five major divisions at SWCID: the Preparatory Program, Campus Life, Communications, Learning Development and College Programs.

Bernhart Jones, head of the Communications division, told TRC members that his division is currently developing objectives for the divisions, which includes the sign language programs—interpreter training. This section is currently developing the curriculum for the two-year Associate Degree program in interpreter training.

Eventual enrollment may reach 1,200 at SWCID

A unique educational opportunity became available for deaf persons in Texas and the Southwest with the opening in August of the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf (SWCID) in Big Spring.

The institute, part of the Howard County Community College District, offers a wide variety of technical, vocational, and academic programs in an atmosphere designed specifically for deaf students.

SWCID, The National Technical Institute for the Deaf in Rochester, N.Y., and Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., are the only colleges in the world with self-contained programs for the deaf.

The Texas Education Agency appropriated $1.9 million in the Spring of 1980 to start SWCID. Bills have also been introduced in the U.S. Congress to provide

For deaf students Varied programs provided

The Southwest College for the Deaf, Howard College, was established to provide an experience in higher education that is uniquely comprehensive and conducive to both the psycho-social and educational development of deaf persons. Although the new college has its own campus, by being a part of the Howard College program, a wide range of opportunities for self-contained and two-way integrated experiences in both educational and non-curricular programs can be provided for deaf and hearing students on either campus.

Aside from its unique psycho-social design, the educational program is being designed to provide students with vocational, technical, technological and liberal arts programs. The new student begins with an in-depth exploration of career interests and aptitudes, proceeds to receive whatever preparatory training that is needed and then is enrolled in programs designed to assist the students to implement their career objectives.

Southwest College for the Deaf is located on 67 acres of land formerly utilized by the United States Air Force and since has been deeded to Howard College. The property is adjacent to a 350-acre state park on the west side of Big Spring. The remainder of the air force property is being converted into a large business and industrial complex, which includes a commercial airport. The airport enables students to receive airline service to the industrial park and be within walking distance to Southwest College campus.

The rationale for establishing Southwest College for the Deaf include the following objectives:

- To provide a well rounded psycho-social and higher education program that will enable deaf students to become successfully employed in positions commensurate with their interests, aptitudes and abilities.

- To provide opportunities for deaf students to thoroughly explore career alternatives relative to their own interests and aptitudes.

- To provide vocational, classroom interpreting. This does not include extra-curricular interpreting, such as non-academic subjects, like phone calls, going to cattle shows, or any other extra-curricular activity the students may want to attend.

The audiology department of the Communications Division has completed its assessment of the existing audiological equipment and are now repairing and recommending new instruments when necessary, said Jones.

"In the electronic department, we are working on TTY services, getting beepers for our interpreters in cases of emergency. We plan to eventually have a closed-circuit TV system installed," added Jones.

"We are currently developing a manual communication evaluation board that will evaluate the staff in manual communication skills," said Jones.

"As our paramount goal of SWCID as a whole is to make sure deaf students have the most qualified instructors and staff who are fluent in sign language, both receptively and expressively. And I believe we are meeting that goal."

Bea Burke, head of the tutorial program, heads a program which will enable students to develop study skills and receive academic reinforcement. "Currently, 22 of the 29 students enrolled at SWCID have requested services in the program, some voluntarily, while others were referred by their instructors," said Mrs. Burke.

"In the three weeks we have had our program in operation, we have offered 95 hours of tutorial services, mostly in the math area. Many of the students need help studying and we are helping them develop study skills."

Fred Roy, College Programs Development Specialist, reported the philosophy of this division at SWCID is that students can be enrolled in a self-contained college program and — or integrated into Howard College programs.

"The development of college programs and the College Programs Division of SWCID is focused on the need to develop and maintain effective collegiate studies that reinforce and use each student's special learning skills," said Roy.

- To develop and implement short and long term training programs for Howard College personnel and students, for deaf students, for the surrounding community, and for interested parents and professionals associated with hearing impaired persons in non-college and pre-college programs.

- To establish stations at major cities throughout the Southwest to provide support services to deaf students during work-study experiences, on the job follow-up periods, and continuing education. (Some of the services needed will be tutorial, counseling, interpreting, instruction and employer training.)

Study launched in 1979

During the summer of 1979, with the financial and professional encouragement of the Texas State Commissioner of Education,

Howard College of Big Spring, undertook a study to examine the post-secondary education needs of deaf persons throughout the United States, with the primary focus being on Texas and eight surrounding states. The eight states focused upon were New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Essentially, the study, which was based upon statistics obtained from the Office of Demographic Studies, Gallaudet College, revealed that there was an extremely serious need for a self-contained post-secondary campus program. The need was particularly noticeable in regard to the post-secondary deaf population that was not enrolling at Gallaudet College, N.T.I.D., and existing integrated post-secondary education programs.

This underserved and underserved population, not including the 30 percent considered to be functionally illiterate, outnumber the enrolled population by about 6-1. In addition, for the decade beginning with 1963, the so called "Rubella" epidemic revealed that there was a self-contained post-secondary campus program, which will drastically increase the demand for special training programs.

Since most of the underserved population in need of services have severe language problems, possess lower achievement levels, and require staff with a superior level of communication skills, their chances for success at existing self-contained and integrated post-secondary programs are very slim indeed. However, outside of Gallaudet College and N.T.I.D. there are no opportunities for post-secondary education in a self-contained college program which these students so desperately need.

The abovementioned extreme need, and the need being brought about by the Rubella epidemic of the mid-sixties, warranted and led to the decision to establish Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring. The new college, located on a self-contained campus, is three miles from Howard College, a college for hearing students. Both colleges co-operate within the Howard County Junior College District and operate under the districts' board of trustees. By operating as an integral part of Howard College, the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf was able to implement Public Law 94-142 in its fullest sense, through providing deaf students with the complete range of least restrictive educational and extra curricular environments.

The arrangements for establishing and funding Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf promises to be one of the most unique in the annals of education for the deaf, since there may be four levels of government participating in a partnership effort to provide this opportunity for deaf students. The city of Big Spring, for example, became the first prime mover when its city council unanimously voted to donate approximately 75 acres of land and facilities that some estimate is worth over $15 million, wherein which the new college could commence its operations. This property was part of the abandoned U.S. Webb AFB. In addition, the city has been attracting new businesses and industries to the remaining part of the base, which can be an excellent site for on-the-job training and employment opportunities for deaf graduates.

The Howard County Junior College District also decided to become a partner and assume, through its college Board of Trustees and the president of Howard College, the leadership role for the new college. Students that require self-contained programs will enroll at Southwest Collegiate Institute but students who can matriculate successfully in the mainstream will be encouraged to do so in the Howard College program.

Another participant in this joint effort has been the state of Texas.

Reagan taps 'a great, silent, conservative majority' for win

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — U.S. Sen. Elect Don Nickles will be the youngest Republican ever to serve in the Senate, and he also could be the most conservative one.

The 31-year-old Republican was an obscure freshman state senator from Ponca City when he decided to run for the Senate seat being vacated by the retirement of fellow Republican Henry Bellmon.

Now, following his surprisingly easy victory over Democrat Andy Coats in Tuesday's general election, he is the state's new conservative political star.

Nickles said his election was part of a national reawakening of the conservative cause — noting the defeat of several liberal Democratic senators that allowed the Republicans to take control of the Senate, he said. "There is now a conservative voice in the U.S. Senate."

"Ronald Reagan will make an outstanding president," Nickles said. "This country has taken a big step in the right direction."

Nickles leaves no doubt that he will be right in step with the new conservative wave in the Senate.

"I repeat the unfair grand profit tax and eliminate the inheritance tax. They both are unfair confiscations of property and are contrary to the principles of the free enterprise system."

Asked which senators he feels he is most closely attuned to philosophically, Nickles mentioned Bob Dole of Kansas, Fohn Tower of Texas, Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. He said he also has a good opinion of Howard Baker of Tennessee. "but I don't agree with him on everything."

He said he won't make a decision on whether to support Baker or some more conservative Republican senator for majority leader until he has time to talk to all the candidates.

Nickles said he believes he is "very closely attuned to the conservative philosophy of Dewey Bartlett," a former Oklahoma senator and governor who died last year.

When newsmen noted that Bartlett favored the ERA and the Arkansas River Navigation Project, two issues that Nickles opposes, he said he would have some differences with any other politician, but said he generally feels "very comfortably with Dewey Bartlett's philosophy."

He also said he is going to have to find a new political speech. "I kept talking about Church and Bayh and McGovern and the liberals running this country. They're gone now and it's a wonderful change, the 21st year momentum change since the '90s with Roosevelt and the New Deal.

"But this is a change back to the conservative way, back to free enterprise, less government — an strong national defense."

With strong backing from the "new Christian right," as exemplified by the support of the Moral Majority leadership in Oklahoma, Nickles campaigned with an almost evangelical fervor about the need to "change directions in this country."

Some politicians scoffed at him for going to western Oklahoma where railroad line abandonment was big hit with wheat farmers who need the lines to get their crops to market, and campaigning by saying he opposes use of Federal funds to bail out financially ailing railroads.

"The right to succeed is also the right to fail," he said, adding that people are better off in the long run if they get along without federal assistance.

The snickers grew louder when he came out against farm subsidies, saying farmers would "fare better if the government gets completely out of their business."

But the snickers faded when he defeated two millionaire opponents for the Republican nomination when most insiders were picking him to run third, and they disappeared altogether when he beat Coats by almost 100,000 votes out of more than 1 million cast.

Much of his victory margin came from western Oklahoma, where he had bucked the general opinion by going against federal railroad subsidies and farm subsidies.

LOSES CHAIRMANSHIP — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., prepares to read a statement at the Capitol Wednesday. (AP LASERPHOTO)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's Secretary of State says she may seek nationwide simultaneous poll closings to keep quickly announced presidential victories from cutting voter turnout in the West.

March Fond Eu, a Democrat, said there was "a dramatic falloff in voter participation" Tuesday after television networks began projecting the victory of Ronald Reagan as president.

Normally, about 15 percent of California's voters cast their ballots between 5 p.m. and the 8 p.m. close. The network projections began between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m., PST.

When President Carter conceded, it was only about 7 p.m. in California, and Mrs. Eu said many voters chose to stay away from the polls.

"I am strongly inclined to pursue legislation at the federal level to require a universal closing time for polling places throughout the nation. Failing that, I can pursue legislation in California," Ms. Eu said in a statement.

She said Carter's "early concession of defeat, combined with the even earlier projections of winners by the major networks, resulted in a twin depressant effect on late-in-the-day voter turnout in California and doubtless other states in the West.

"I have never heard of a presidential candidate for a major party conceding defeat prior to the close of polls in the West," she said. "Presidential candidates know, or should know, full well the deleterious effects the timing of such a concession can have on the ultimate turnout of voters and the possible impact of a diminished turnout on races other than their own."

Eu says polls should close simultaneously concession of defeat, combined with the even earlier projections of winners by the major networks, resulted in a twin depressant effect on late-in-the-day voter turnout in California and doubtless other states in the West.

Soviets say landslide due to dissatisfaction

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet media said today that Ronald Reagan's landslide election victory reflected a widespread dissatisfaction among Americans with President Carter's policies — including his hostility toward the Soviet Union and his boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

"As for the U.S.S.R.," the radio said, "our country has always stood for the normalization and development of Soviet-American relations on the basis of the principles of peaceful coexistence."

Commentaries over the Soviet radio and the official news agency Tass explained the election results exclusively as a rebuff to Carter and gave no assessment of Reagan or his policies.

Soviet radio said American voters had demonstrated a desire "for a change from the profound political and economic crisis" in the United States. Alexander Druzhinin, Soviet radio's correspondent in Washington, said Carter's drubbing was explainable "by the unhappiness of millions of Americans" with the president's internal and external policies.

Among the policies Americans were said to have rejected, the radio listed the "arms race and Carter's renewed hostility towards the Soviet Union."

Though it took no position, the Kremlin was thought to favor Carter slightly because of his support for the SALT II treaty.

Several Russians questioned on Moscow streets early today said both candidates were "basically the same," and unanimously added that they hoped Reagan would come out in favor of ratifying the SALT II treaty. The Republican candidate has called for renegotiating the pact.

Hawks open season tonight against McMurry

The Howard College Hawks open the 1980-81 season with many question marks, and they'll get their first chance to answer those tonight when they play host to the McMurry JVs in an 8:00 p.m. encounter in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Gone is last year's Western Conference scoring champion, Mike Wallace, who was also All-Conference, All-Region and ranked high in the national scoring list for junior college performers. Wallace is now with Lamar University.

But numerous players return, with the most notable being in the form of Ron Akins, Kenneth Jones and Jeff Faubion.

All of these three will start tonight in the season opener, with Akins returning with the most impressive credentials. He averaged 20 points per game in his freshman campaign, and also was among the league leaders in rebounding.

Jones can also score, and is a good rebounder who plays hard in all aspects of the game. Faubion is the Hawks long range scoring threat from an outside position.

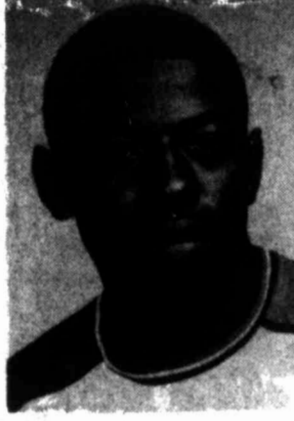

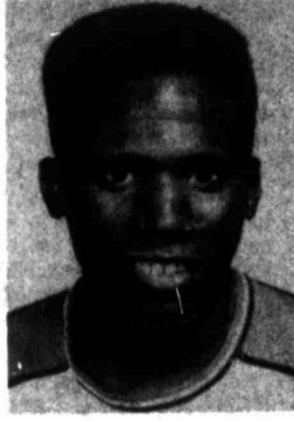

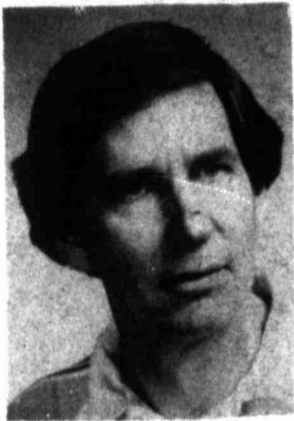

Two freshmen will start in tonight's contest, and Howard College Coach Harold Wilder has high hopes for 6'5" Randy Corker of Trenton, New Jersey, and 6'2" Crushon Loving of Chicago, Illinois.

Corker is a massive specimen who Wilder hopes can help Jones and Akins with the inside game, while Loving will be in control of the offense.

Many others are slated to see plenty of action in tonight's opener, as the positions are far from being decided yet.

Others expected to see playing time tonight include sophomores Walter Hall, Sean Mound and Bobby Word, along with freshmen Jerome Johnson, Andre Wallace, David Adams, Miles Chatfield, Bill Wigington and Les Hirsch.

There will be a special promotion at halftime. A drawing will be held, with the person with the winning number getting to come to center court. At this time, up to 1,000 one dollar bills will be placed in a small area, and the person will be able to pick up and keep as many as he or she can in a 10-second span.

In McLennan Classic opener

Hawk Queens blast Hill

WACO — The Howard College Hawk Queens put together their best game of the young season here in the first round of the McLennan Classic, taking a lopsided 91-49 win over the Hill County women here Wednesday afternoon.

The Howard College women of Coach Don Stevens won advance into this afternoon's semifinal round against Panola Junior College. Panola toppled South Plains in the first round.

In the other semifinal game today, Odessa College squares off against McLennan.

The Hawk Queens were never threatened in the contest, as a total of five players hit in double figures, with sophomores Jill Floyd and Kelly Lyons leading the way with 16 points each.

The Howard College team jumped out to a 45-20 game, and continued with their dominating ways in the second half.

Other Hawk Queens scoring in double figures included Cynthia Robinson and Melissa Luna with 12 points, and Kellie Mull with 11.

The win was the third without a defeat for the Howard College women, who are the defending Western Conference champions.

HOWARD COLLEGE — Westford 2-0; White 1-0; Floyd 8-0; Luftrick 3-2; Wasserman 3-0; Lyons 7-1; Luna 5-2; Hill 1-1; Robinson 5-2; Mull 3-0; TOTALS 91-49.

HILL COUNTY — T. Brooks 4-1; Wiggins 5-0; Buyer 3-2; Rhoads 1-0; J. Brooks 4-0; Taylor 1-0; Smith 3-0; TOTALS 23-49. Halftime score: Howard College 45, Hill County 20.

Give the devil its due

NFL doesn't like it, but gambling helps

The National Football League just doesn't give the devil its due. Gambling on pro football is not bigger than the game itself. But the countless office pools, gambling sheets and bookie bets — all illegal — have helped make televised football a religious habit on Sundays.

The NFL is opposed to legalized gambling on football and is not happy with the turn its pre-game football programs are taking in the area of point spreads and odds, so-called gambling information.

When The Greek, a noted oddsmaker, joined the "NFL Today" in 1976, the NFL hierarchy was quietly opposed. NBC has tried to match The Greek with a silly robot named Stanz for a while and even a kid called Jamie the Greek last year.

Now NBC has gone to Axthelm, a sports columnist for Newsweek who writes a gambling column for Inside Sports — a subject with which he's quite familiar.

The NFL policy, according to Val Pinchbeck, the league's director of broadcasting, is that "legalized gambling would put additional pressure to bear in an area that has always been great concern to the league, maintaining the integrity of the sport."

The league feels legalized gambling would change the emphasis from who wins to by how much, something that the NFL thinks is happening when point spreads are given on "NFL '80." Although the league won't tell the networks how to run their shows, there is the subtle pressure that if NBC or CBS go too far, the NFL can hurt them in future schedules or on the next round of contract talks.

Bear fined for hit on Jaworski

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears defensive end Mike Hartenstein has been fined $1,000 by the National Football League for his tackle of Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski last month.

Hartenstein learned of the fine Wednesday. He avoided commenting on it, though, saying, "It doesn't matter what I think. I got the fine."

He said he would discuss with his attorney whether to appeal the fine. Under NFL rules, a fined player is entitled to a hearing, but the league's court of appeals is Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who also levies the fines.

The fine was levied for Hartenstein's helmet-first tackle of Jaworski in the Oct. 26 Bears-Eagles game. Hartenstein hit Jaworski between the shoulder blades with his helmet and hands.

"They claimed I used my helmet and my hands too vigorously," Hartenstein said.

Late free throws key to Clipper win

HOUSTON (AP) — San Diego Coach Paul Silas says defense was the key to the Clippers' 111-104 victory over the Rockets, but figured a week's rest hurt Houston more than it helped.

"I think the week off that Houston had hurt them," Silas said after the National Basketball Association game here. "We had a week off earlier in the season and it made a difference in the way we played."

Houston Coach Dell Harris had other ideas.

"We didn't make that many bad shots tonight, but we had a lot of fouls called on us late in the game," he said.

Houston took only two free throws in the last quarter, while San Diego made 14 of 20, including the last six tallies in the game.

The Rockets fell down in the third quarter after opening with a 58-51 lead. But the Clippers hit 13 of 23 field goal attempts and took an 81-78 margin into the fourth quarter.

"We have been working on this and practicing not to foul, but it seems like we are still getting the fouls called against us," Harris said.

"Matter of fact, the last two or three games they have called a lot of fouls on us."

The win was the third straight for San Diego, now 5-7 in the NBA Pacific Division. Houston fell to 4-6 in the Midwest Division.

"I thought we played pretty sharp basketball tonight," said Phil Smith, who led San Diego scoring with 24. "They liked to get the ball low on Moses (Malone) and we stopped that when we had to."

Malone led the Rockets with 34 points and pulled down 15 rebounds.

The score was tied twice in the final quarter, but San Diego pulled ahead with 1:16 on the clock when Swen Nater connected on a hook shot to make it 105-104.

"We came to play tonight," Silas said. "We played with poise and intelligence."

Spurs have more than one guard

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — James Silas, obviously buoyed by passing the 10,000-points mark in his eight years of professional basketball, declared that he and George Gervin were the best guard tandem in the NBA.

"On any given night, any team can have the best backcourt in the league. We hear all the talk, but George and I have proven ourselves over the years, and we think we're the best," said Silas, the Spurs' perpetual captain.

He emphasized the point earlier Wednesday night by breaking loose for a season-high 30 points that helped propel the Spurs to a 114-84 triumph over the Phoenix Suns who came to town with the best record in the NBA.

"It was a tremendous game," added Gervin who added 14 points. "We really blew them out. Silas is a great threat. He can score any time. Tonight he did it. They were double-teaming me and my job was to get the ball to Si. He had to score and he did."

At 3:07 in the first quarter, Silas dropped in a 15-foot jump shot that ran his career scoring to 10,001 points. He promptly scooped up the game ball and tossed it to his wife, Hazel, who bounded to courtside while the 12,358 fans gave him a standing ovation.

The loss snapped an eight-game Phoenix winning streak in a period in which the Suns have played 10 of 15 games on the road. The result still left the Pacific Division-leading Suns with an 11-2 record, best in the league.

"We were going against a team everybody in the league said was playing the best," said Silas. "They have people that can make things happen. They've been beating people on the road. We weren't going to let that happen."

"That's by far the best we've played, offensively and defensively," said San Antonio coach Stan Albeck. "For us to hold them in the 80s, that's a terrific job. Of course them having to travel today helped us. The ball always seemed to wind up in our hands. That's from physical aggressive defense."

ONE MORE YEAR — Phillies manager Dallas Green answers questions this morning at a news conference at the team offices in Philadelphia. Green formally announced that he had signed a one-year contract to remain as manager of the World Champions in 1981.

"At this point there was no other choice" McGraw declares free agency on final day

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's 1980 free agent class is complete.

Relief pitcher Tug McGraw, whose hairbreadth late inning adventures punctuated Philadelphia's mad dash to the world championship last month, filed for the re-entry draft on the final day of eligibility Wednesday along with outfielder Steve Braun of the Toronto Blue Jays.

That brought the total number of players eligible for the draft to 51 and the list includes such stars as outfielders Dave Winfield of the San Diego Padres, Ron LeFlore of the Montreal Expos, and Dusty Baker of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Those three, along with McGraw and pitcher Don Sutton of the Dodgers should generate the most interest when the bidding begins.

McGraw, one of Philadelphia's postseason heroes and pinch hitting specialist Del Unser, who had a couple of big hits in the World Series, were the only Phillies to file. Kansas City signed infielder Dave Chalk Wednesday to retrieve him from the pool, leaving the American League champion Royals with four players on the list — catcher Darrell Porter, first baseman Peter LaCock, outfielder Jose Cardenal and pitcher Marty Pattin.

McGraw, who finished the season with a 5-4 record, 20 saves and a 1.47 earned run average, outlined his position in a statement in which he charged that the Phillies are not willing to pay him at the same level as the team's other top players.

"I have entered the free agent draft as of this afternoon, No. 5," it said. "My contribution to the Phillies was this: My contribution to the first world championship in 97 years was equal to that of any person or player on the team. I want to be in the norm with the salaries of these players. To date, the Phillies have declined to make me a proposal of salary comparable to those same levels of the other key players of the team. I didn't want this, but at this point there was no other choice."

McGraw is not exactly anxious to leave Philadelphia. With that in mind, he and his financial advisor, Phil McLaughlin, will sit down to talk to Phillies officials again today.

All clubs have until Monday to sign their potential free agents. After that, each team could still retain negotiation rights to their players, but only after the draft when up to 13 other teams could select and bid for them.

The only compensation awarded to teams losing players in next Thursday's draft are amateur draft choices. That remains a serious problem between the Players Association and the owners, who would like something more substantial. The conflict nearly resulted in a player strike last May.

A four-man committee composed of Frank Cashen of the New York Mets and Harry Dalton of the Milwaukee Brewers, representing management, and Sal Bando of the Brewers and Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies, is studying the issue, hoping to prevent a possible strike over it next spring.

"Sure I'm frustrated," says The Greek, who was the first to lay numbers on the NFL in 1940. "There's no question I'd rather do it up front instead of looking for ways to say a number without saying it, just so I can please the CBS executives."

The result is that the "NFL Today" sneaks around and ends up tying The Greek's hands and clouding his selections. Are his checkmarks against the spread or head-to-head picks? It's hard to tell.

As 7 teams still have shot at Cotton Bowl

Saturday important in SWC

DALLAS (AP) — When it comes to the unpredictable, last Saturday in the South-Western Conference would be tough to top. But nobody's making anymore predictions, certainly not with the four matchups slated for this Saturday.

The key games, as far as the conference race is concerned, are at Austin and Waco. With the right combination, Baylor could clinch a tie for the championship this Saturday. That would come about with a Bear win over Arkansas in a regionally televised (ABC-TV) game from Baylor Stadium, and a Texas win over Houston at Memorial Stadium. Such would give Baylor a two-game lead with two to play.

But history shows that neither of those events will come easy. Baylor hasn't beaten Arkansas in Waco since 1963 (14-10), but has in second place behind Baylor. But the Cougars need to win their final three games and for Baylor to lose two out of its last three in order to make a third straight trip to the Cotton Bowl.

A Baylor-Houston co-championship would send the Bears to the Cotton Bowl, by virtue of Baylor's 24-12 win over Houston.

Lists three main loves as drama, politics and sports

Reagan another sporting prexy

The new President-elect of the United States has a strong affinity for sports but you can forget about a putting green on the back lawn and a tennis court alongside the rose garden of the White House.

After all, he has to have a place to tether the horses. And be sure to keep the water warm in the indoor pool for a man who captained his college swim team.

"I loved three things," Ronald Reagan wrote in his biography, "drama, politics and sports."

Reagan never was as good an athlete as he was movie cowboy and politician but he has had enough association with sports — as a minor competitor and sportscaster — to carry on the long tradition of a keen White House interest in the nation's fun and games.

Reagan swam and played some football — not as prominently as Gerald Ford at Michigan — for little, obscure Eureka College, 20 miles from Peoria, Ill., where he graduated with a degree in economics and sociology.

But the sports world knows him best for his role as George Gipp in the movie, "Knute Rockne," with Pat O'Brien playing the famed Notre Dame football coach. Gipp was a colorful, gifted player of the post-World War I era who was fatally stricken in midseason with a throat infection.

Legend has it that, on his deathbed, Gipp beseeched Rockne, some day when the team was in peril, to exhort the Irish to "win one for the Gipper."

Allegedly, the opportunity came when the Irish met a stronger and heavily favored Army at Yankee Stadium in 1928. Rockne delivered his appeal, Notre Dame won. The Irish have been "winning for the Gipper" ever since.

After college, Reagan announced University of Iowa football games on the radio in Davenport, Iowa, starting at $5 per game, and later broadcast Chicago Cubs baseball games from a Western Union ticker. This job carried him to the West Coast where he took a screen test and launched a movie career.

The President-elect played in 51 movies, many of them B-Westerns in which he was a left-handed gunslinger. He also played General Custer in "Sante Fe Trail" and baseball star Grover Cleveland Alexander in "Winning Team." Once he co-starred with a chimpanzee.

He hasn't shown the proclivities for golf, touch football and tennis that have afforded relaxation for such predecessors as Ike Eisenhower, Jack Kennedy, Richard Nixon and Jimmy Carter.

Area teams won three, lost three and tied two in football action last week, with both Stanton and Klondike remaining in first place in their respective races.

Two weeks remain for most of the area teams, and whether their respective teams were playing to stay in the district race, or simply for pride, there were some notable performances worth mention in this week's Area Grid Honor Roll.

The Stanton Buffaloes remained undefeated and tied with Plains for the District 5-AA lead with a convincing win over O'Donnell, and two key reasons were the play of the versatile CURTIS WILLIAMS and receiver DAVID McREYNOLDS.

Williams started the year as a wingback, but moved most effectively to the quarterback slot when an injury forced regular Craig Eiland out. Eiland returned, but last week regular tailback Kevin Newman was injured. Stanton Coach Steve Park thereby inserted the fleet 140-pounder at tailback, and he responded by carrying 22 times for 134 yards. He also excelled at his strong safety position.

McReynolds played both ways at end-free safety, but it was his receiving that earned him his honor. He latched on to four passes for 65 yards and a touchdown.

Klondike continued to play the role of the zone bully in clinching a spot in the district championship next week with their 40-13 triumph over Meadow, and it was the passing combo of MIKE ARISMENDEZ and KEVIN COONEY that helped out tremendously.

Arismendez completed nine of 13 passes for 288 yards in the contest, with Cooney on the receiving end of many of these tosses. Three of Cooney's receptions were long range touchdowns of 70, 61 and 68 yards.

The Big Spring Steers didn't have a great deal to be pleased with in a 42-13 loss to Abilene Cooper, but there were some bright spots offensively for the Bovines.

The Steers rushed for 266 yards in the contest, with much of the credit being given to junior quarterback TRACY SPENCE. Spence rushed for a personal high of 62 yards, but it were other aspects of his performance that pleased Big Spring Coach Ralph Harris.

"Spence executed well, made the good decisions and ran hard," said Harris. "He is not a big kid, but he got knocked down hard on a few occasions and jumped right up. He really showed some toughness."

The Coahoma Bulldogs fumbled away their District 6-AAA opener to the Crane Golden Cranes, but it was not a totally lost effort.

Coahoma Coach Roy Winters honored four players in this week's section, with offensive honors going to MANUEL MARTINEZ, defensive honors to JAY HALL and TOMMY JOE SHIRLEY, and AUSTIN HALE drawing special praise for his play on the all important special teams.

Martinez was the leading ground gainer for the Bulldogs, as well as catching two passes for 34 yards. Hall and Shirley were both honored for being the leading Coahoma tacklers, but it was the effort of Hale that Winters talked the most about.

"Austin just did an outstanding job of containing and getting down the field quickly," said Winters. "A lot of people don't pay that much attention to the kicking game, but it's very important, and he really plays like it."

The Sands Mustangs held on for an exciting 8-6 win over Wilson last Friday night, and Coach Jim White gave a special praise of attitude for his bench.

"I really think it's only appropriate that we salute the hombres on the bench," he said. "Most of them don't play that much, but they always do a great job of patting the starters on the back and encouraging them on when things are tough, and that's hard to do sometimes."

The Grady Wildcats ran into a fast Ira team in succumbing by a wild score of 52-38, but two excellent performances were turned in by seniors LARRY KEY and LEANDRO GONZALES.

Key did it all offensively in the six-man game, rushing 11 times for 124 yards, completing nine passes and catching three more for 67 yards.

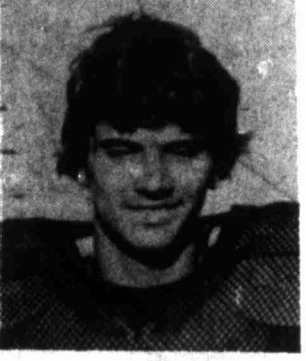

Gonzales caught eight passes for 114 yards, but it was his defensive play that most pleased Coach Richard Gibson. He had nine tackles, intercepted three passes and blocked one punt to keep the score from being worse.

The Garden City Bearkats were manhandled by the larger and more experienced New Home Leopards in a District 3-A contest, but it wasn't without a fight from Coach Stu Cooper's injury riddled troups.

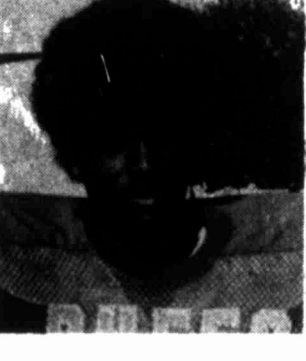

A leader of the fight was junior VICTOR MEDRANO, who had 16 tackles from his defensive halfback position, as well as intercepting a pass that led to the Bearkats touchdown. Medrano caught three passes for 36 yards offensively.

High Broncos for a Saturday night encounter in W.T. Barrett Stadium. The reason it is the highlight of district play is that the OHS team is the only squad with a realistic chance at catching the high flying Odessa Permian Panthers.

The Broncos come into Saturday night's game with a league mark of 4-1, and are 7-1 on the season. Permian is 5-0 in league play and 8-0 on the year.

Permian gets a nearly sure win on Friday night when they visit San Angelo, but a loss really won't make any difference to the Mojo if OHS defeats the Steers, as it would still boil down to the season ending battle between the two Odessa schools to decide who will represent 5-AAAAA in the state playoffs.

But a Big Spring win in Saturday night's contest, coupled with a Permian win on Friday night, would clinch the title for the Panthers of Coach John Wilkins.

So the improved Steers, despite a frustrating 5-AAAAA mark, could gain a measure of revenge by proving to be the spoilers of the race.

Both Odessa and Permian are on top of the team statistics in district action. Odessa High is the team leader in total offense.

THAT COMPLEMENT BUSY SCHEDULES

Marbled Cheesecake

2 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
 1 cup sugar, divided
 2 tablespoons corn starch
 2 eggs, slightly beaten
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1-3rd cup unsweetened cocoa
 1 (9-inch) graham cracker crust
 In large bowl with mixer at medium speed beat together cream cheese,  $\frac{3}{4}$  cup of the sugar and corn starch until smooth. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Reserve 1-3rd batter (1 cup). Stir together cocoa and remaining  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup sugar. Beat cocoa mixture into remaining 2-3rd batter until well blended. Pour dark and light batters alternately into crust. Swirl with spatula. Bake in 350 degrees F. over 30 to 35 minutes or until center is firm. Cool completely on wire rack. Refrigerate 4 hours or overnight. Makes 12 servings.

bowl with mixer at high speed beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Fold into batter until well blended. Spoon 1 teaspoon batter into bottom of each paper-lined (1- $\frac{3}{4}$  x 1-inch) miniature cupcake cup. Press 1 well-drained cherry to bottom of batter. Top each cherry with another teaspoon batter. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven 20 to 25 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched. Remove, cool on wire rack. Frost with Buttercream Frosting. Makes about 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  dozen.

Cocoa Sheetcake

1 & 1-3rd cups unsifted flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup unsweetened cocoa
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup corn starch
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup corn oil margarine
 1 $\frac{1}{4}$  cups sugar
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 2 eggs
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cups milk
 Chocolate Mint Frosting (recipe follows)

Grease and lightly flour bottom of 1 (15- $\frac{1}{2}$  x 10 x 1-inch) jelly roll pan. In small bowl stir together flour, cocoa, corn starch, baking powder and salt. In large bowl with mixer at medium speed beat together margarine, sugar and vanilla until well blended. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until well mixed. Add cocoa mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour mixture mixing just until smooth. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven 30 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool cake 10 minutes in pan. Remove and cool completely on rack. Frost with Chocolate Mint Frosting. Cut into squares. Makes 35 (about 2 x 2 inch) squares.

Almond Meringue Cookies

$\frac{3}{4}$  cup sugar, divided
 1-3rd cup blanched almonds, finely ground
 2 tablespoons sifted corn starch
 3 tablespoons sifted unsweetened cocoa
 3 egg whites
 $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon cream of tartar
 Pinch salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon vanilla
 Line cookie sheets with wax paper or foil. In small bowl stir together  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup of the sugar, almonds, corn starch and cocoa. In large bowl with mixer at high speed beat egg whites until foamy. Add cream of tartar and salt. Continue beating until soft peaks form. Gradually add remaining  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sugar; beat until stiff peaks form. Add vanilla. Fold in almond mixture. Fill large pastry bag fitted with large rosette tip half full. Starting at outside edge and ending in center, use a circular motion to pipe meringue onto cookie sheet to form a 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch round. Or drop by tablespoonfuls onto cookie sheets. Bake in 325 degrees F. oven 20 minutes or until dry. Remove and cool on wire racks. Makes about 3 dozen.

Cocoa Cherry Cupcakes

1-3rd cup brandy, optional
 1 can (16- $\frac{1}{2}$  oz.) dark sweet pitted cherries, well-drained
 1 cup unsifted flour
 1-3rd cup unsweetened cocoa
 3 tablespoons corn starch
 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoons baking powder
 $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup corn oil margarine
 2-3rds cups sugar
 2 eggs, separated
 2-3rds cup milk
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 Buttercream Frosting (recipe follows)
 In small bowl pour brandy over cherries. Cover; refrigerate 1 week. (If desired, eliminate this step.) In small bowl stir together flour, cocoa, corn starch, baking powder and salt. In large bowl with mixer at medium speed beat together margarine, sugar and egg yolks until well mixed. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour mixture, mixing just until smooth. Stir in vanilla. In small

Chocolate Mint Frosting

1 cup sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup unsweetened cocoa
 3 tablespoons corn starch
 Dash salt
 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  cups boiling water
 6 tablespoons corn oil margarine
 $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon mint extract
 2 tablespoons crushed mint candy

In 2-quart saucepan stir together sugar, cocoa, corn starch and salt. Gradually stir in water until smooth. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in margarine, mint extract and mint candy. Cover; refrigerate until cooled. Makes 2 cups.

Chocolate: A practical approach to parties

After the informality of summer, fall signals a return to indoor entertaining. Work and school schedules, however, can make this a hectic time. So one practical approach is to plan party themes around a single type of food — desserts, for example.

Since chocolate is nearly everyone's favorite flavor, the following recipes are variations on the theme of chocolate desserts. Unsweetened cocoa, chocolate in a very concentrated form, is called for in all recipes since it makes such treats as Marbled Cheesecake and Chocolate Cream Pie taste extra "chocolatey." Corn starch, another versatile baking ingredient, is often mixed with flour when making cakes and cookies to provide finer textures. When used to thicken fillings such as the one used in Chocolate Cream Pie, corn starch creates a satiny smoothness without adding any flavor of its own.

Either the cheesecake or pie would make a perfect ending for a progressive dinner party, a theme that lends itself to share cooking responsibilities. Everyone prepares a course on the menu, then hosts a portion of the meal. The cheesecake can be made ahead and frozen and, with a supply of ready-to-go pie crusts on hand in your freezer, the pies can be completed several hours in advance.

A lazy Sunday afternoon is a perfect time for a dessert party. Invite neighbors in for an impromptu coffee klatch featuring Cocoa Cherry Cupcakes or Almond Meringue Cookies. The cookies, piped through a pastry tube, have meringue texture. Because they're made with egg whites and cocoa, they're also low in cholesterol.

Since fall means the start of another season of school and club activities, desserts for a crowd come in handy.

Cocoa helps you economize in two ways: it costs less per ounce than baking chocolate and, 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  ounces of cocoa goes as far as 8-ounces of baking chocolate — so when you make a sheetcake calling for a significant amount, you'll save even more.

As commitments on your time and energy pile up like leaves in the backyard, consider these desserts developed and tested in the Argo and Kingsford's corn starch and Hershey's Cocoa kitchens.

Dear Abby

Geographical Ignorance
A Passport to Confusion

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to the letter from Hawaii. Your Hawaiian correspondent was put out by the number of people who didn't know that Hawaii was part of the United States.

We who live in NEW Mexico are constantly running into the same situation. Let me give you a few examples:

New Mexico was the only state in the union whose license plates were stamped with "USA" in the lower right-hand corner of the plate.

I have also seen maps in which New Mexico was completely omitted!

As a counselor who assists students in applying for financial aid to further their education, we have been asked why they did not seek aid from their own country! (Meaning Mexico.) And this from so-called educated administrative assistants and executive secretaries!

Many people visiting New Mexico comment on how surprised they were that they didn't have to go through customs or present a passport. They actually thought New Mexico was a part of Mexico.

FROM MEXICO (THE NEW ONE)

DEAR FROM: Move over. Many from West Virginia wrote to say that their state is sometimes considered the western part of the state of Virginia.

And while we're on the subject of geographical ignorance, many wrote to say that they wish people would quit getting Australia confused with New Zealand.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 28, recently married to a man who is 51. OK, so there is a rather "ugly" (to some people) story behind this. I went to work for him two years ago. We fell in love. He was married, but I did not break up his marriage. It was a marriage in name only for several years, but he saw no reason to get a divorce until after he met me. I will give him credit for being honest. He didn't ask me to sneak around and see him for an hour in hotel rooms. He simply told his wife he wanted his freedom, paid her off, and that was it. The day his divorce was final we were married.

So what's my problem? He has a 24-year-old daughter who hates my guts. This little snip calls me "Mom" every chance she gets when others are present. Abby, I am only four years older than she, and she calls me "Mom" just to make me seem older. I find this very irritating.

I'd like your opinion.

IRKED

DEAR IRKED: If I were you, I'd settle for "Mom."

Sorority donates carnival funds to Cystic Fibrosis

The Alpha Tau Rho chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday night in the home of Sheri Lepard. Jo Anne Ezell, president, presided.

Ann Bohannon was introduced to the chapter as a guest. Tommie Perez was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. Lepard, social committee chairman, announced that a Thanksgiving dinner will be held Nov. 22 in the home of Jayne Titsworth beginning at 7 p.m.

Corrections and changes were made in the yearbooks by each member.

Tracy Fadel reported on the success of the Halloween Carnival sponsored by the chapter. A total of $400 will be donated to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Mrs. Lepard presented a program on child psychology entitled "Talking with Children, Not To Them."

The next meeting will be held Nov. 17, 7:30 p.m. in the home of Patti Jonke, at which time the Pledge Ritual will be observed.

Avenue of Flags program Nov. 11

The Captain Elisha Mack Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met in the home of Dr. and Mrs. William A. Riley, Monday at 7:30 p.m. for a business meeting. Mrs. Lola Kilman was co-hostess. Mrs. C.G. Barnett, regent, presided.

Mrs. Bill Early, volunteer service representative for the DAR at the Veterans Administration Medical Center expressed a need for volunteers. She announced the "Avenue of Flags" program to be held at the VAMC Nov. 11, at 11 a.m. Seventy-five flags are to be flown along the avenue beginning at the Gregg Street entrance and continuing to the 700 Highway entrance. Each flag represents a departed comrade.

Mrs. Jack Alexander reported plans for the Christmas party. Each member is to bring a gift for a patient at the nursing home and a dish of her favorite Christmas goodies. Christmas decorations for a tree to be placed in the nursing home will be a project at the party.

The annual pecan sale is now in progress.

Auxiliary discusses district convention

Big Spring American Legion Auxiliary had a called meeting Monday at 7:00 p.m. at 422 Ryon St. Members discussed the 19th district convention in Plainview, on Nov. 15-16.

Delegates will be Annie Branson and Ann Cooper; alternates were Lillian Rhyne and Lila Holland.

Saturday will be poppy day. American Legion and auxiliary representative will be at several locations in town. Headquarters will be in Highland Shopping Center. Poppy day is for the Rehabilitation program for Veterans and their families.

The Christmas gift shop at the Veterans Administration Medical Center will be held on Dec. 14. This program will be for the hospitalized patients. The patients choose Christmas gifts for their families, then they are wrapped and mailed to the family free of charge. This program is held in the 10 VAMC's of Texas and one contract hospital in El Paso.

Poppy donation's make this program possible and others throughout the year. Chairman for the program is Mrs. Rhyne. The Christmas gift shop will be Veterans Auxiliary Volunteer Service under the representative, Mrs. Branson and deputy representative Mrs. Holland.

Mrs. Branson and Mrs. Holland attended the annual representative and deputy workshop in Austin, Oct. 25.

The next auxiliary meeting will be on Nov. 14 at 422 Ryon at 7 p.m.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Liz Taylor had problems

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I read in your column about beautiful girls finding it difficult many times to get a date. Please allow me to share a true story with your readers.

One of my close friends lived in Hollywood where she was a teen and was a good friend of Elizabeth Taylor. One night at a pajama party, Liz and my friend were doing the dishes when Liz asked, "Why don't boys like me? I never have a date."

My friend said that when Liz was a teen-ager she was indeed the most beautiful girl my friend had ever seen. I accept your response that most males feel overwhelmed by such beauty. Too bad Liz Taylor couldn't have read your column 30 years ago. — Barbara, Alliance, Ohio

Barbara: I'm sure your letter made a lot of beautiful teen girls feel a little better. Liz may not have had many dates as a teen, but she more than made up for it once she did start seeing boys.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 20 and have a most unusual problem. I have many dates but the guys always act like they are trying to hide me from the public. The only place they take me is to a drive-in movie and then they don't want to see the movie, they want to make out. I'm not that kind of a girl and when they find out, they take me straight home and never ask me out again. Please help me. — Kay, Gadsden, Ala.

Kay: Don't you have any say as to where the date will take place? If not, make sure you do on your next one. You set the place and if the boy doesn't like it, don't go out. Somehow you seem to have acquired a "drive-in" reputation undeservedly and it needs to be changed for the better immediately.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Holmes will fight Ali, but he must earn chance

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Heavyweight champion Larry Holmes says he may fight Muhammad Ali again, but only if Ali earns a shot at the title by beating the top contenders.

"The only way I would give Ali a rematch is if he would get back into the No. 1 contention," said Holmes, who was here Wednesday to help promote the Nov. 25 Roberto Duran-Sugar Ray Leonard World Boxing Council $35terweight title rematch at the Superdome.

Holmes stopped Ali in the 11th round in Las Vegas on Oct. 2 as the 38-year-old former champion tried unsuccessfully to regain the WBC heavyweight crown.

Ali later said that he was taking medicine which drained his strength. But Holmes said medication didn't change the outcome of the fight.

"If he had fought harder, he would have been hurt more because the harder he would have fought, the harder I would have fought."

"I was just ready to go. I don't think anything could have happened to me that night."

The best seats for the Duran-Leonard fight go for $1,000, but promoter Don King says they'll be worth it.

"That's a small price for such an incredible fight," King said following a news conference with Holmes at his side.

In hyping the fight, King predicted that it would be better than the first meeting when Duran took Leonard's 1/2 BC welterweight title.

He said that Leonard, of Palmer Park, Md., won't have to prove this time that he can stand and trade punches with Duran.

Duran took Leonard's title

Cal boxing brass upset

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Announcement of plans to conduct a coroner's inquest into the death of British bantamweight champion Johnny Owen brought angry reaction from the local boxing community.

The 24-year-old Welsh boxer died at California Hospital Medical Center Monday more than seven weeks after he was knocked unconscious during a fight for the world bantamweight championship at the Olympic Auditorium.

County Coroner Thomas T. Noguichi's announcement Wednesday sparked criticism by boxing leaders saying there is apparently no local precedence for an official probe into the circumstances and responsibilities for a boxer's ring-related death.

severely of Ike's slice. His hero was Arnold Palmer. Kennedy, a good athlete with a bad back, was a devotee of touch football. Nixon was the inveterate "jock." Carter played patball tennis and jogged.

The late General Douglas MacArthur recalled that Theodore Roosevelt once said: "I would rather be in the Harvard backfield than the Whafohouse" and William Taft remarking he wished he could solve his problems "with the same gallantry Yale and Harvard settled their differences on the gridiron."

Rejuvenated Rice will be going to tie its most wins in a season since 1963, when the Owls finished 6-4. A win over SMU would be Rice's fifth victory of the year. The Owls won five in 1973 and 1970.

SMU has already tied its most wins since 1972. A win Saturday would be the Mustangs' seventh and their most wins since the 1966 championship season.

In Fort Worth, Texas Tech comes from its win over Texas, visiting TCU. The Frogs are looking to break into the win column. They haven't beaten Tech at home in the last four tries but the Frogs still own a 13-6 edge over the Raiders in games at Amon Carter.

in a 15-round decision, and critics said Leonard may have made a mistake in trying to stand toe-to-toe with the tough Panamanian.

"I think this fight is going to be even better," King said. "The monkey is going to be off Leonard's back."

"He will deal with it as he has to deal with it rather than trying to prove to the world that he can stay in there with one of the best fighters of all time." King predicted that the fight will be "a knockdown brawl."

The earlier Duran-Leonard meeting was hailed by fight enthusiasts as one of the best welterweight fights of all time.

Holmes said it was too early to predict a winner because he has not seen the two fighters preparing for the bout.

But he agreed that Leonard, an Olympic gold medal winner, will have to move more than he did in the first fight with Duran.

The heavyweight champion had high praise for both fighters, but said in a championship bout the winning athlete often has just a little something extra on the night of the fight.

"Duran had it last time," he said.

Colorful Abilene native Tex Cobb faces Norton Friday

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Former World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Ken Norton comes out of retirement Friday night for an expected slugfest with undefeated Randall "Tex" Cobb, a colorful character who has knocked out 16 of his 17 professional opponents.

"Randy is a very good fighter. He's young. He's tough. He's hard. He comes to fight. I'm in very good shape for the first time in three to four years. I'm ready to fight. I feel I have a lot to prove," Norton declared.

"I'm here to fight. Ken's here to fight. I expect a (bleep) good fight," said Cobb, at age 23 and the WBC's 9th ranked heavyweight who enjoys shocking audiences with his salty language.

Both fighters boast a strong knockout punch going into the match billed as "The Battle of the Jawbreakers."

Norton, 32, who registered 33 knockouts en route to a 41-

6-1 record, broke Muhammad Ali's jaw in 1973 in the first of three meetings with the ex-champion. Cobb broke Ernie Shavers' jaw in two places in his last fight on Aug. 2.

The main event is part of a boxing card assembled for the HemisFair Arena Friday night by Muhammad Ali Professional Sports which also will feature a 12-round match between San Antonio boxer Mike Ayala, the North American Boxing Federation featherweight champion, and Javier Flores.

Two former Grambling football players, NABF heavyweight champion Leroy Jones and Lynn Ball, also will stage a 12-round title fight.

Also on the undercard are Olympian Tony Tubbs versus Ron Draper in a heavyweight match; Dandido Tellez of Mexico City against Candy Ivesias of Houston in a flyweight match, and Rocky Burke of Las Cruces, N.M., meets Billy Sanchez of San Antonio in a flyweight fight.

Norton said he retired from the ring 16 months ago "because I wasn't training properly and my performances were showing it. Each fight was getting increasingly worse. It was only a matter of time before I got hurt. Boxing has been very good to me so I wanted to get before I get killed."

Cobb, a 6-3, 225-pound karate expert hopes to fight for the world championship next year, but he is best known for his appearance in the movie "The Champ," in which he plays the role of a young contender who loses to washed-up ex-champion played by John Voight. He also is known as the "resident flake" at the Joe Frazier Gym in Philadelphia where he trains.

Cobb makes light of Norton's age, saying he watched Norton fight on television while growing up in Abilene, Texas, where he made all-state in high school and played football for Abilene Christian University before being kicked out of school.

"I really like to tie up with a man of his (Norton's) experience, his power and his age," Cobb grinned at a pre-fight news conference.

"I'm glad I caught him now when he's still 32 for the last six years."

Cobb's remarks to local newspapers while preparing for the fight have been replete with "bleeps" in quotes of his one-liners, and he laughed at the questions sportswriters asked.

"Y'all always ask such great idiot questions. That's where I get all my material, from listenin' to y'all!" he grinned. "Should I curse for ya'll? Y'all like four-letter words, then you can write what a (bleep) I am in the paper."

"He's so colorful, bleep, bleep, bleep."

Tahoka runner in state picture

By the Associated Press

Calallen quarterback Mike Rhyne took what the Rockport defense gave him in last week's 62-37 victory — and that was plenty.

Rhyne, slow of foot but quick of arm, completed 13 of 14 passes for 364 yards, the top production in the state this year, and rushed 74 more yards on nine carries. He scored on a one-yard run and completed TD passes of 43, 13 and 32 yards.

While Rhyne was filling the airways, Cooper was suffering another fate against Tahoka, who turned Tracy White loose for 428 yards rushing on 23 carries and six touchdowns.

White's effort was not only the top effort in the state this year but it ranks fifth on the all-time list.

The runner and passer earn mention in this week's Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

"He's got a natural delivery, throws a perfect spiral and is very accurate when he has time to throw," Calallen Coach Bobby Davis said. "If he can improve his speed, he can be a very good quarterback. That's all that's holding him back now."

Davis said Rockport failed to cover a particular throw back pattern that allowed Rhyne to complete many of his passes. "They were giving us something and we were taking it," Davis said.

White's touchdown runs went 48, 79, 74, 54, 37 and 19 yards.

"He's got 4.4 speed in the 40 yard dash but he's got plenty of moves to go with it," Tahoka Coach A.D. Shaver said. "He can change gears, twist, stop and start again and he has such good balance."

One of the best examples of White's ability came two weeks ago in a 95-yard touchdown run against Frenship.

"He hit in the middle of the line and the hole wasn't there so he bounced outside and ran all the way," Shaver said. "He slides to the outside real good. We just put a blocker in front of him and let him run for daylight. That's all you do with a natural runner like him."

White gained 349 yards rushing against Frenship giving him 777 yards rushing for two week's work and 1,481 for the season.

Permian, who has shut out seven of their eight opponents, is far and away the leading defensive team in the district. The Mojo is averaging limiting their foes to only 127 yards per game, while second ranked Midland Lee is yielding 216 per tilt.

From the local scene, Big Spring's Bobby Earl Williams appears to be the only Steer to have a shot at an individual district leader for the season. The Steer junior has rushed 112 times for 730 yards, and trails Lee's Calvin Riggs by only 29 yards in that department.

Other 5-A leaders include Cooper's Brad Morrison in the receiving department, Cooper's Lanny Dycus in the passing race, Cooper's Oscar Riggins in the scoring department, and Permian's Mike Williams in punting.

Business elated with GOP wins

NEW YORK (AP)—From shoeshine stands to the Big Board, business was soaring as an elated Wall Street greeted Ronald Reagan's landslide victory with a record-breaking trading spree that left stock market computers buzzing.

A total of 84.08 million shares was traded Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange, the largest number ever. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished the day up 15.96 at 953.16.

"The market wanted Reagan," said Frederick Sullivan, a floor trader at the NYSE. "What they're hoping is that he will bring inflation under control."

Traders also thought Reagan will be good for military contractors and oil companies. Stocks of both groups rose sharply, reflecting the victor's promises to boost defense spending and encourage oil exploration.

"I can tell everyone who voted for Reagan," said Monroe Brown, who runs a shoeshine stand outside Trinity Church at the head of Wall Street. "They come up smiling," he said, adding his own trade was brisk.

But by the end of the day, many stock prices were falling. The Dow Jones average was up more than 27 points at its mid-day high.

Computers at the NYSE found it almost impossible to cope with record trading. The ticker tape ran more than 40 minutes late most of the day, making it difficult to learn current prices. And at the end of the day, it took more than two hours to calculate the final volume figure, usually a 15-minute job.

The previous record volume day on the New York Stock Exchange was Oct. 10, 1979, when 81.62 million shares changed hands. That was the only other time that volume topped 68 million shares.

The surge in the financial markets also helped the dollar, which rose sharply against other currencies, and sent interest rates down in early bond market trading.

But interest rates began rising by noon, and finished the day higher than they started.

Four prisoners charged with murder in connection with riot

SANTA FE (AP) — Four inmates at the New Mexico State Penitentiary have been indicted with deliberately murdering a fifth prisoner who died in Cellblock 4 of head and skull injuries during the February prison riot.

The indictment, the first returned in connection with the riot, was handed down Wednesday by a Santa Fe County grand jury.

It charged that the four inmates killed Larry Wayne Smith "with malice aforethought; and it was a willful, deliberate and premeditated killing; or done by means of torture or from a deliberate and premeditated design..."

Smith, of Kirtland, was found dead at the front entrance of Cellblock 4 with head and skull injuries, said an attorney general's report on the riot Feb. 2-3 that cost the lives of 33 inmates.

District Attorney Eloy F. Martinez of Santa Fe announced Wednesday that charged with first-degree murder by premeditation or by torture are Michael Colby, 24; Richard Chapman, 27; James Humiston, 29; and Richard Buzbee, 34.

The four will be arraigned Nov. 13 before District Judge Lorenzo F. Garcea.

If convicted as indicted, under the New Mexico first-degree murder statute the four men could face either the death penalty or life in prison.

Chapman and Colby are among nine state prison inmates charged with escaping from the state prison Dec. 9, 1979.

Humiston was stabbed in a state prison recreation area adjoining Cellblock 3 on Oct. 22. Corrections officials said he suffered three stab wounds in the chest and one in the back.

Buzbee is serving a life sentence for being a habitual offender for sentences of forgery, issuing worthless checks, escaping from jail and failure to appear for trial. His crimes were committed in Curry and Chaves counties. He was born in Coolidge, Texas.

Humiston, born in Nebraska, was serving a life sentence for first degree murder in Bernalillo County.

Colby was serving a life sentence for the murder of another prisoner at the state penitentiary. Colby, from Canada, initially was sentenced to the prison for aggravated battery and robbery in Bernalillo County.

Chapman, of Roswell, was serving life for felony murder and robbery.

Grant presented watch by Atlantic Richfield

David E. Grant of South Route, Coahoma, was presented with a wrist watch recently, honoring his 30 years of service to Atlantic Richfield Co.

The presentation was made at the monthly safety meeting by James R. Davis, production supervisor for Atlantic Richfield. Grant has completed three decades of service to the company without losing any time due to an accident.

Grant joined the firm Nov. 1, 1950, as a roustabout in the Coahoma area. He pumped oil for eight years in the Spraberry area during the area's oil boom. He spent six weeks pumping in the Peagau field. Because of gas flaring, the Railroad Commission shut down the field. At the end of that tour, Grant opted for a roustabout's job in the Coahoma area. Presently assigned as a pumper, he has been in the Coahoma area since that time.

Grant is married to the former Norma Turner. They observed their 35th wedding anniversary Oct. 4, 1980.

They have two sons, Maj. Thomas A. Grant, now in Anchorage, Alaska, and David Earl Grant, Dallas, and a daughter, Judy Lynn Mills of San Antonio. There are also eight grandchildren.

In Tuesday's vote Turnout lowest in years

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly half the nation's eligible voters did not cast ballots Tuesday, marking the fourth straight decline in turnout for a presidential election and the lowest turnout in 32 years.

An Associated Press projection, based on the turnout with 95 percent of all precincts reporting, put the estimated total vote Tuesday at approximately 84.9 million of the 160.5 million persons of voting age in the country.

That figures out to a 52.9 percent turnout of those of voting age, the lowest in a majority of eligible American votes stay home on a national Election Day.

There were 10.3 million more persons of voting age in the nation this year than in 1976, a 7 percent increase.

The last time the turnout increased was the Kennedy-Nixon race in 1960, to 62.8 percent from 59.3 percent for the Eisenhower-Stevenson rematch in 1956.

If the trend of reduced voter participation continues, 1984 could mark the first time in 60 years that a

Soviet grain embargo may be first casualty

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President-elect Ronald Reagan's actions follow his campaign rhetoric, Jimmy Carter's embargo on Soviet grain exports will be an early casualty of the new administration.

While many of Reagan's agriculture proposals have been only vaguely defined, his opposition to the embargo is clear.

"I will, when elected, fully assess our national security, foreign policy and agricultural trade needs to determine how best to terminate yet another of the inequitable and ineffective policies of the Carter administration," he said of the grain embargo on July 3.

And the platform adopted by the Republican National Convention also stated its flat opposition: "The Carter grain embargo should be terminated immediately," the document said.

While the direction of the new administration remains somewhat murky when it comes to agriculture, there are clearer indications of the direction farm matters will take in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who stands to become Agriculture Committee chairman, said Wednesday in Raleigh, N.C., that he would make trimming the federal food-stamp program one of his top priorities.

Helms said he believes the Agriculture Department program, which is dependent on the committee's approval, "has got to be changed so you won't have so many freeloaders on it."

"The future, as far as I'm concerned, is to reduce it to those who are truly needy," he said, adding that he thinks as much as 40 percent of food-stamp assistance is mis-allotted.

The only factor that could prevent him from taking the agriculture post would be Illinois Sen. Charles Percy's refusal to accept the chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, leaving Helms in line to take over that slot.

The new congressional lineup — Republicans took control of the Senate for the first time in 26 years and cut the Democrats' lead in the House by 33 votes — will come at a critical time for

Texas Nurse Week declared

Gov. Bill Clements has declared Nov. 9-15 as Texas Nurse Week, recognizing the contributions of registered nurses toward better health care.

In the official memorandum, Clements recognized the profession's commitment to maintaining the health of all Texans by preventing disease and alleviating suffering and pain.

"The highest goal of the registered nurse is to preserve the dignity of the individual and to respond to his needs and those of his family with excellence in nursing practice," the Texas head of state said.

Clements noted that the RN "is an integral part of the health team" delivering comprehensive and quality care.

Harts-Hanks Election Team

AUSTIN — Although most Democratic supporters in Carter's Texas campaign headquarters were despondent as they quietly watched television returns, some were angry that the election was being called on projections alone.

Bob Slagle, Democratic Party Chairman, said he thought Carter lost the election because of inflation, the Iranian crisis and a lack of consensus among American voters.

"I think we're in a time of change with our allies, with our enemies, socially, economically, militarily and also with ourselves," consequently there is a consensus in the country. "The American people don't have a consensus on any issues and a consequence it makes it difficult to govern."

Slagle also said we thought the election was decided on style rather than the issues. "The lines Reagan recited were written by his staff and he (Reagan) just delivered them," Slagle said. "I believe Reagan was doing the talking as much as I believe that Charlie McCarthy was doing the talking when sitting on Edgar Berger's lap," Slagle added.

Bob Beckel, Texas Carter-Mondale state campaign director, said he thought Carter was hurt because he couldn't defend his record. "I think he (Carter) didn't do a good job of selling his record." "It helps if the president has enough charisma to sell his record to the American people."

"I feel that we as Democrats need very much to organize so we can talk to the people about issues and help them develop viewpoints. "We as a parties are going to have to help the voters decide on issues or American democracy is going to be in trouble."

Beckel added, he believed Clements had no effect on the outcome of the election. "If he was important at all he probably was as a negative influence. You don't go around to the media and engage in blasphemy." "I don't think Clements had any effect at all," Beckel said.

Beckel refused to concede the election as late as 9:45 when the three major networks and other Austin media had predicted a Carter victory. Thirty minutes earlier Carter himself had conceded.

Beckel said Carter led the nation through four years of "difficult times with sincere dedication and personal sacrifice."

Land Commissioners Bob Armstrong offered congratulations to Reagan and praised Democrats for putting up a strong fight in Texas.

"There's only one real loss in a political campaign and that occurs when you don't give it your best shot." "This time we did our best and it went the other way, but the main thing is we continue to fight for what is right." "We supported the right person for the right reasons." Jim Hightower, President of the Texas Consumer Association, attributed the Republican victory to their sophisticated techniques in getting out the vote and their overwhelming financial resources.

But he added, "I think the Carter camp made a good effort, but choosing Reagan was to do with the desire for change."

Bond election gains green light

By JAMES WERRELL
The Big Spring City Council, during its regular meeting, 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, gave its initial stamp of approval to a bond election slated for Dec. 13.

The official ballot for the election will list nine different proposals for improvements in the city, the most expensive of which are the two for street and water system improvements. Those two proposals total $9,075,000 of the $13-million package.

Voters will have the opportunity to vote for each proposal separately. Once the decision has been made, bonds will be issued for the various projects on a staggered basis over a five year schedule.

According to the schedule, even if proposals are approved now, the project may not begin for several years. If, for example, improvements to the police department building are sanctioned, bonds for that project would not be sold until 1983.

"Wouldn't it be more feasible to do that work now? Costs on that type of project could double in three years," said Councilman Larry Miller. "What if the project is passed and three years from now we don't have the money to pay for it?"

"Obviously we would have to refinance," said Joe Smith, financial consultant for the city. "But there is also the question of over-indebting the city. We don't want to be in the position, as bad as the bond market is, of having to sell six, eight, ten million dollars worth of bonds all at once," he added.

Smith also assured Miller that the situation regarding the bonds would be reassessed each year. Taxes levied for the projects will remain in a sinking fund, and can not be transferred to any other city fund, said Smith.

In preparation for the bond sale, the council voted on first reading to hire the legal firm of McCall, Parkhurst and Horton of Dallas to serve as bond counsel.

"We have used this firm before when the city issued some certificates of obligation," said City Manager Don Davis.

In addition, the council voted on first reading to use the First Southwest Company, of which Smith is an employee, as financial consultants.

In order to sell the idea of the bond election to Big Springers, the council named Joe Pickle, employee of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, and Russ McEwen, local insurance agent, to serve as co-chairmen on a publicity committee. That committee will handle all advertising and publicity for the election.

The council officially agreed to pay the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce $30,000 a year for tourist development. The money will come from the local motel occupancy tax.

Chamber officials had originally requested $42,000 for tourist development. The council balked, but agreed that if the receipts from the occupancy tax exceeded $90,000, all excess funds up to $12,000 would be turned over to the chamber.

One damage claim was denied and another put on hold by the council, Tuesday. Kathy Johnson, manager of Pat Walker's Figure Salon, placed a mirror on the ground behind the salon while she went to open the front door, Oct. 22. While she was gone, local trash collectors carted off the mirror.

Ms. Johnson wanted $89 from the city to pay for it. City Attorney Elliott Mitchell claimed that the mirror had been in the trash collection area, and the collectors assumed it had been thrown out.

"It is not the collectors' fault that they picked up what appeared to them to be trash. I recommend that this claim be denied," said Mitchell.

The council unanimously concurred.

A second claim by Robert Patterson, 4102 Bilger, involved a collision between his car and a city sanitation truck resulting in $734.66 worth of damage to the car. Mitchell and council members agreed that the city was at fault, but asked that the city staff have a chance to look at the car before they approve the claim.

The council agreed to call a public hearing in the near future to discuss what portion, if any, of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 will apply to the city.

"Texas was brought into this by mistake. Since the state delegates initial rate review for utilities to political subdivisions, the regulations don't necessarily apply," said Davis. "We will have to hold a public hearing to get input on the standards proposed by PURPA," he added.

The council also approved a contract with the Colorado River Municipal Water District to rent Hangar Nine at the Big Spring Industrial Park. CRMWD hopes to use the facility to house planes used in weather modification projects.

The Western Container Company also has an option to rent the same hangar, and if the company exercises that option, the city will be obligated to provide space elsewhere for CRMWD.

"With the money CRMWD would be paying us and the extra money from Western Container, we could build a new hangar. After 10 years, we would receive the assets," explained Davis.

In other business, councilmen:

- Agreed to advertise for bids for the purchase of turkeys for city employees at Christmas.
- Agreed to advertise for bids for the sale of street lights that had formerly been erected at the Benton Street Overpass in 1929.
- Gave final approval for a zone change requested by Jon Hillman for the construction of a "horse motel" near the city landfill area.
- Gave final approval for a zone change requested by S&R Investment Company for the construction of a health center on Lancaster.
- Agreed to raise the charge for bad checks written to the city from $2 to $5.
- Gave final approval for an easement to Wes-Tex Telephone Co-op to lay lines over Moss Creek Lake property.
- Gave final approval of a contract with the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.
- Approved a resolution favoring the continuation of general revenue sharing.

Demos rehash defeat

Local Democratic leaders were disappointed at the defeat of President Jimmy Carter by Ronald Reagan Tuesday night, but most were encouraged by the voter turnout.

"I'm pleased with the high voter turnout," said State Rep.-elect Larry Don Shaw. Shaw also served as campaign coordinator in the Panhandle-West Texas Re-election Committee.

"If our society is to be successful, they'll have to turn out at the polls. They're saying this is the direction the nation wants to go."

"This is the thing the American people wanted," said Kay Burns, who served as an alternate delegate at the state Democratic Convention.

"The Carter policies just weren't what the people wanted and thank God we live in a country where we can change. Even though I feel like Carter is a part of my own family, I feel good about the election because it's definitely what the people wanted."

Kaye Holland, an organizer of the Young Democrats organization is pleased with the voter turnout.

"I am glad we had a high voter turnout," she said. "That's what you're after. I think things turned out the way they should have in that respect. But don't get me wrong, I would have like to have seen Carter win."

Cecil Riordon, Howard County Democratic chairman was displeased with the voter turnout.

"I was hoping for a little under 13,000 this year he said, "because the registration was higher this year than it was in 1976."

"The trend throughout the nation is the same as in Howard County," he continued. "We're Democrats. We have young people voting now who don't remember the Great Depression. Anyone who is under 40 years old has only known good times. In the last 48 years we've had 32 years of Democratic presidents and 16 years of Republican presidents, Eisenhower and Nixon-Ford. Nixon's record speaks for itself. We had a Depression under Eisenhower, but he coined a new phrase for it, recession."

Good movies few and far between

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 16-year-old girl who has been dating about six months. My problem is my father will not allow me to go to the movies because he says that it's no place for a girl to be. I would agree if the movie was rated R but I see no harm in a good movie and dinner for a date. I'd like to hear what you think. — Mary, Florence, Ala.

Mary: I don't claim to be a prude, but for every good film at the movies there are many that are pure trash. Whatever happened to films that left the audience in a joyful, happy mood? I, too, see no harm in a good movie and dinner. It just might be hard to find a good movie.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 14 years old and this summer my parents want my sister and me to visit our cousins in Kentucky, but I don't want to go. First of all, I'm a cheerleader in high school and also play in the band and both require summer practice.

Next, I'm in love with my boyfriend and I don't want to leave him and he doesn't want me to go.

I like my cousins and my dad will feel bad if I don't go. What should I do? — Kristi, Syracuse, Ind.

Kristi: If your father gives you a choice, stay at home, but if he insists that you go, do it cheerfully!

When I was a high school administrator, I frowned on summer practices. They place undue pressure on teens and their families.

Dr. Wallace: My older sister wears my clothes without my permission. When I'm not around, she goes into my room and helps herself and I'm getting tired of it.

I've talked to my parents and they can't do anything about it. Help! — Rhonda, Oroville, Calif.

Rhonda: It appears your parents do not consider this to be a major family problem. For the last time ask your parents to help you. If they don't, put a lock on your bedroom door and give a key to your mother. This will keep sister out!

Special Olympics workshop held

Three local people attended the Area 18 Special Olympics workshop in Midland Nov. 1 at the Carver Development Center. Carol Green, special education teacher; Mike Maas, an employee of the State National Bank and Mike Cowley, educational diagnostician, were among 20 participants from Pecos, Barstow, Andrews, Kermit, Midland, Odessa and Big Spring Independent School Districts attending.

Susan Randolph, program director for Texas Special Olympics, led the all-day training session which resulted in two-year certification for those attending. Ms. Randolph emphasized the importance of following the rules and guidelines when entering athletes in various athletic events. Several recommendations were given to special education teachers on developing a successful physical and recreation program in addition to an individualized educational plan for each handicapped student.

Three junior high students from Midland presented a soccer demonstration. Basic soccer skills will be added to the 1981 Area meet. Athletes will be rated on dribbling, passing, juggling and shooting.

The popularity of Special Olympics has grown, attracting more than 16,000 mentally retarded citizens in various competitions throughout the State.

Railroad celebration committee hears idea

Members of the steering committee to celebrate the coming of the railroad met Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the chamber of commerce conference room to hear a proposal from a firm wishing to assist in plans for the area-wide celebration. The company, which is out of Pittsburgh, Pa., worked with area leaders in 1949 to help insure the success of the city's 50th birthday festivities.

John Taylor, overall chairman of the steering committee, said the purpose of the meeting was to check out the company and to hear an initial proposal concerning what role the company would play in the celebration of the coming of the railroad. Taylor said "they have a good track record and they could enhance our celebration." The professional staging by the company in staging the festivities was one of the main points in their favor. The Rogers Company of Pittsburgh has worked with more than 5,000 counties and cities in the United States and Canada in assisting them with civic celebrations. Prior to undertaking any such task, however, the company first prepares a formal proposal to be considered by a committee of leaders for their acceptance. In the proposal, the Rogers Company breaks down what events they feel would help make the celebration a memorable occasion and the budget necessary to stage the festivities.

Using mainly big outdoor spectacles, the Rogers Company likes to combine live acting with a background slide system accompanied by narration. During the pageant, events outlining the history of the local area would be highlighted with such things as the discovery of the "big spring" and oil in Howard County" being possible highlights. In addition, the pageant would also include events that are common in most celebrations.

The company suggested that the centennial steering committee be set up as a nonprofit entity and that the celebration be considered a community event and not as a function of either the city or chamber of commerce. In addition, it was also recommended that an organizational chart be drawn up with six different general chairmen to head up approximately 65 different committees to be listed under the six general categories.

Committee chairmen would receive, should the proposal be accepted, seven manuals to use as guidelines. All totaled, the local steering committee would have 737 pages of instruction to be used in deciding the program and schedule of events.

In addition to the instructions, the company would also provide the contacts and subsidiary companies that could be used by the local committee to assist them in staging many of the highlights of the pageant. The Rogers

Company would also assign one of their resident directors to the Big Spring celebration for nine weeks and an assistant director for four weeks. While in the city, they would work to insure that plans are as scheduled and that the week-long celebration meets with the professional standards they have set for themselves.

Following the discussion and presentation, the centennial steering committee asked the Rogers Company to prepare the final proposal and report back to the committee. The company said such plans could be finalized and presented to the steering committee around the middle of December.

FIGURES REVISED — Russ McEwen, co-campaign chairman for the Big Spring-Howard County United Way, looks over the figures for this year's campaign drive during a regular weekly meeting of all workers, campaign captains and division chairmen. As the drive nears its end, a revised total of $116,395.96 has been collected, for a total of 46.5 percent of the campaign goal. According to acting executive director Sherrie Bordsoske, there is still room for optimism, as there are still 20 to 30 of the larger firms in Big Spring that have not returned their employees' pledges.

EFFICIENT — The ballot boxes were brought to Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray's office where the final results were tabulated by 10:30 p.m. Checking final figures at the end of the evening were (from left) Gayle Worthan, deputy clerk, Margaret Ray, county clerk, Eulene Jones, deputy clerk, Gail Earls, special canvassing judge and Debra Mitchem, deputy clerk.

Wright re-elected after tough race

House Majority Leader Jim Wright won re-election Tuesday night in his toughest election challenge in 26 years, but three other incumbents continued to run neck-and-neck with their opponents in hotly contested races.

Wright, who needed a solid win to strengthen his leadership position in the House, collected more than 60 percent of the vote in defeating Republican challenger Jim Bradshaw.

With more than half the votes counted, Wright led Bradshaw 62 percent to 38 percent.

Democratic incumbent Bob Eckhardt led by a slight margin in the historically Democratic 8th District Tuesday night in his bid to fight off a determined challenge by Republican Jack Fields.

Republican incumbent Ron Fields clung to a narrow 2 percent edge over Democratic and political newcomer Mike Andrews.

With half the vote counted, Jim Mattox trailed by a narrow 2 percent margin in his bitter re-election battle with Republican Tom Pauken.

Former State Sen. Ralph Hall, a Democrat from Rockwall, held a slight edge over Republican John Wright of Tyler in the campaign to take the 4th District seat of retiring U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts.

Four unopposed Democratic incumbents won easy re-election including U.S. Reps. Sam Hall of Marshall, Jack Brooks of Beaumont, Marvin Leath of Marlin and Charles Stenholm of Stamford.

Democratic incumbents Charles White of El Paso and Kent Hance of Lubbock earned lopsided wins over Libertarian candidates.

E. "kika" de la Garza, a Democrat from Mission, won a ninth term and Democrat Henry B. Gonzales of San Antonio rolled to a victory to earn a full 20 years in the House.

Young GOPs enjoy victory

By ANDREA COHEN
Several members of the Howard County Young Republicans, too young to vote, joined other Ronald Reagan supporters Tuesday night at the local Republican headquarters to cheer in their candidate's victory.

David Phillips, a 17-year-old senior at Big Spring High School joined the Young Republicans because of the organization and the stand of the Republican party.

"I can appreciate the conservative views the Republican party takes," he said.

"I liked Reagan's record of stability he created when he was governor of California," he added.

He felt Reagan's selection of George Bush as a running mate was a good move "because he brought in the moderates and helped get some conservative Democrats to switch to the Republican party."

Some of his duties as a volunteer included distributing campaign literature and selling T-shirts.

"The best thing the Young Republicans did this year was to convince, to show high school students that we can have an opinion," he said. "Too many students think Republicans are old conservatives. They have something to offer young people, an alternative to liberal government, a hope for the future."

"I think the best thing the Young Republicans did this year was to convince young people to have some sort of political philosophy, whether it be Republican or Democrat."

Misty Johnson, also a 17-year-old senior at BSHS, said she started looking into the views of the Republican party because her father is a Republican.

"I like Reagan's stand against bureaucracy. I like his stand on windfall profits," she added. "It's not only unbeneficial to oilmen, but to ranchers and farmers. The money doesn't go back into energy."

"Conservatism is for free enterprise, getting the government back into the state and local governments," she said.

Police Beat Child abuse probed

Police will investigate an incident in which a two-year-old local girl was admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital covered with bruises.

The child was taken to the Malone-Hogan emergency room, 9:15 p.m. Tuesday. The local 118th District Attorney's office immediately requested an investigation into whether the child had been the victim of parental abuse.

Burglars broke into the Cotton Machinery Company at the Big Spring Industrial Park, sometime Monday night. Once inside, they jimmied open a filing cabinet and stole eight rolls of dimes, four rolls of quarters, about $120 in petty cash and a man's coat. Loss was estimated at $350.

Andy Melendez 614 N.E. 9th, let his brother drive his 1980 Honda motorcycle, Saturday night. The brother, in turn, let a friend take the bike for what was supposed to be a short ride. The friend hasn't been seen since.

Wayne Paul, Route 1, told police that a man he knows pointed a rifle at him in the lot of the Shaffer Exxon Station, 1500 E. 4th, 8 p.m. Tuesday. Police will investigate further.
