Iranians receive U.S. reply on terms

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. reply to Iran's terms for freeing the 52 American hostages was delivered to the Iranian government in Tehran today, an aide to Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai reported.

Rajai's office, reached by telephone from Beirut, gave no indication of the initial Iranian reaction. But American officials thought it might be several days before Iran made its next move.

The Iranian Parliament, the Majlis, discussed the hostage issue during its session today, Tehran radio reported, but it gave no indication on whether the deputies had been told the response was received.

One deputy, Fakhreddin Hijazi of Tehran, accused the United States of using delaying tactics to put off a solution to the crisis "in order to have an excuse to harm the Islamic republic of Iran," the radio said.

Meanwhile, in an unprecedented interview with an American radio station, Bruce Laingen, the senior U.S. envoy held hostage at the Foreign Ministry in Tehran, said he was fine and "We're anxious to leave, hopeful."

He told radio station KAYO in Seattle that the hostages were gratified by U.S. public and government support, adding "We have no doubt that that is continuing, and at this particularly crucial time in the discussions going on... support is even more important than ever."

But Laingen said he could not comment on the note's delivery. "I am in no position, as you probably know, to speak to that. We are totally out of touch in terms of the substance of the problem."

The five-man U.S. team that delivered the American reply to the Algerian government for relay to Tehran was returning to Washington from Algiers today. Their U.S. Air Force jet developed mechanical trouble en route, and the group spent the night at Shannon Airport in Ireland.

The two days of discussions that ended Tuesday between the American team, headed by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, and the Algerians were described as "intensive and useful" by John H. Trattner, a State Department spokesman here.

Christopher's group left Algiers on Tuesday despite its original plans to remain up to a week to receive an answer to the U.S. response. There was no word here on whether Christopher's mission was considered a success and Christopher had no comment as he left.

Algeria is acting as an intermediary between Tehran and the United States because the two nations have no official diplomatic relations.

Christopher's group met with Algerian leaders to give a "generally positive reply" to the Iranian demands, U.S. State Department officials said.

The Iranian Parliament outlined four demands, including a pledge of U.S. non-intervention in Iranian affairs, cancellation of American financial claims against Iran, return of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and release of more than $8 billion in frozen Iranian assets.

Christopher's team went to Algiers to try to speed the negotiating process after U.S. officials failed last week to open direct talks with Iran.

STRONG MILITARY STANCE RECOMMENDED — Winston Wrinkle, one of three speakers appearing at the Veterans Day program staged at the VA Medical Center here Tuesday morning, said that America should do everything possible to firm up its military muscle, if it is to remain one of the great powers of the world. John Steward, VAMC director, and Tom Balderach of the hospital's staff also spoke briefly to the people present.

VAMC'S AVENUE OF FLAGS — Scores of people who would honor the memory of those men and women who have fought America's wars gathered in front of the hospital's entrance here Tuesday morning for a Veteran's Day program. American flags donated by various service organizations in the area were placed in appointed places on the thoroughfare in front of the hospital. There is room for 72 flags, whereas 90 were donated. The standards will be rotated for display on special days observed by the government.

Texan Charls Walker discusses U.S Treasury job with Reagan

By STEVE SNIDER

WASHINGTON — Former Nixon administration economic official Charls Walker, mentioned frequently as a candidate for Treasury Secretary to Ronald Reagan, said Tuesday the job has been discussed but not offered by the president-elect.

The Graham, Texas native said he expects decisions on major Cabinet posts to be made by the end of November and he is interested in the Treasury job.

"If you are approached by the President of the United States to consider serving in the Cabinet, you consider it," said Walker, a Washington lobbyist who labored as a senior economics adviser to the Reagan campaign.

"There is a lot of speculation going around and at this point, that's all it is. I haven't been approached by anyone."

According to one senior source involved in the Reagan campaign, there has been resistance to talk of a Cabinet job for Walker because of his recent work as a Washington lobbyist for a variety of big business firms.

For this reason, a more likely candidate for Treasury Secretary is thought to be Alan Greenspan, former economics adviser to President Ford.

"Walker has been such a friend of big business in the past in terms of subsidies and bailouts that the inside track has to go to Greenspan," said the source.

Walker was deputy secretary of Treasury in the first Nixon administration, serving under secretaries John Connally, David Kennedy and George Schultz. His position as a top adviser to Reagan underscores the large role former Nixon and Ford administration personnel have played in the California governor's campaign and may play in the new administration.

In addition to Walker and former President Ford himself, the list of past officials with roles in the Reagan transition includes Walker's old bosses Schultz and Connally; former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, former White House Chief of Staff under Nixon, Alexander Haig; former Ford staff chief and Defense Secretary Ronald Rumsfeld.

As chairman of Reagan's Tax

Policy Task Force, Walker has favored major income tax cuts. The president-elect has said he would support a move by Sen. Bob Dole, the Kansas Republican and their apparent to the Finance Committee chairmanship, to push for an immediate $39 billion tax cut.

He called back to cancel ad

"Assured that people who purchase used automobiles do not make rash decisions, the purchaser of one ad in the Herald recently paid to have his sales pitch in the newspaper for 12 days.

He called back to cancel the ad after the first day, saying that he had made a deal with a buyer on the strength of the ad. The seller also said he had several other calls from interested people.

Naturally, he was glad he used the Herald's want ad section to let the public know about his offer.

For results that invariably are good, consult one of the Herald's friendly sales people about an ad by calling 263-7331.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: What is libel?

Q. What is the meaning of the word "libel?"
A. One of the best definitions we've heard is by Bruce W. Sanford, who wrote "Synopsis of the Law of Libel and the Right of Privacy." Said Sanford: "A false statement printed or broadcast about a person which tends to bring that person into public hatred, contempt or ridicule or to injure him in his business or occupation."

Voyager sails below Saturn's rings on way to view planet

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 1 swooped beneath the rings of Saturn today as it raced to an afternoon rendezvous with the golden planet after its cameras, aimed point-blank at Titan, failed to penetrate the big moon's smoggy orange clouds.

But scientists, though denied a first-ever look at Titan's surface, reported intriguing hints of detail in the cloudy atmosphere and excitedly began processing a wealth of data from Voyager's nine other instruments, which explored the moon from scarcely 2,500 miles late Tuesday.

Mission spokesman Al Hibbs said the ship, 947 million miles from earth as its three-year journey of exploration neared its climax today, was just 12 miles from the pre-planned bull's-eye as it skimmed past Titan.

During the Titan encounter, Voyager's radio signals were received at a tracking station at Madrid, Spain, where five hours of data was lost Saturday because of foul weather.

"There were very heavy rainstorms over the Madrid station last night,

Hibbs said. "But in spite of that, all the data that was planned for was received."

Voyager was looking up through the rings and reaching speeds of more than 50,000 mph today on its way to Saturn, where its cameras will see the planet's swirling, banded clouds from just 77,000 miles above the planet's surface at 5:10 p.m. PST.

The ship also was exploring several of Saturn's frozen moons before leaving Saturn's realm to begin an endless voyage into the deeper reaches of space.

Despite the fact that only hints of Titan's surface detail emerged through the moon's natural smog, computer wizardry was expected to enhance photographs of the features below the haze.

"I don't think there's any evidence we are seeing the surface," said David Morrison of the Voyager camera team. "But we are clearly seeing some cloud structure."

"The streaks and things (vaguely seen in the clouds) aren't showing up very convincingly in the raw images" from Voyager.

Amid the excitement, scientists already were feeling sad that the close encounter with Saturn was so fleeting.

"This near encounter is happening so fast and some of us have worked so long on it that we wish we could slow time down," Deputy Project Manager Esker Davis said.

"We wish we could revel in this excitement and this joy...in learning all these new things. But we can't slow time down, so it will be over all too quickly."

Its equipment also recorded data on the composition and density of Titan's methane atmosphere and its actual size.

Is Baker Hotel a building?

AUSTIN — It may come as a surprise to residents of Colorado City, but the Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday had to write a seven-page opinion to establish that the old Baker Hotel is a building.

The question of the five-story structure's physical and legal status came before the court on James Gary Ellett's appeal of a burglary conviction in Mitchell County.

Ellett and a juvenile were arrested as they descended a fire escape from the roof of the former hotel. Police said the suspects had been loading furniture on a pickup and went to the roof after officers arrived.

After being found guilty of burglary by a jury and placed on probation for five years by Judge Weldon Kirk, Ellett appealed.

He maintained that the old hotel is not a building under the definition but under burglary statutes because: 1. It was not "adaptable for use since it had been closed for four years. 2. It was not an enclosed structure because windows had been knocked out and the door frequently found open.

The Appeals Court ruled, however, that the hotel was a building. It said the structure had been used for storage and that broken windows did not constitute the type of "large permanent openings" required to take the structure out from under burglary statutes.

"We are not prepared to hold that an unoccupied structure in need of repairs cannot be a 'building' within contemplation of the burglary statutes" the court's opinion said.

evacuations, Shell 400, and Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. 350. Texaco said it had moved 70 workers from the gulf and would reassess the situation today.

Jeanne reached hurricane status Tuesday morning when its sustained winds hit 75 mph, 1 mph above the needed minimum.

Gale-force winds extended outward 150 miles to the north and 100 miles to the south as Jeanne and a large high-pressure system over the eastern United States combined to cause very rough seas over the north-central and northeast gulf.

Small craft operators from Brownsville, Texas, to Tarpon Springs, Fla., were advised to remain in port. Marine interests along the northern gulf were advised to monitor the storm.

The last November hurricane to hit land struck Miami on Nov. 4, 1935, public service forecaster Alvin Samet said. One hit the Tampa Bay area on Nov. 30, 1925, and one swept a cross the Florida Keys on Nov. 15, 1916.

All three were minimal hurricanes, Samet said. There have been other November hurricanes that did not reach land.

Tops on TV: 'Survival'

The networks will air several premieres tonight. The detective series "Enos" kicks off on CBS at 7 o'clock. NBC "Diff'rent Strokes" airs at 8 o'clock with Arnold taken hostage by bank robbers. This competes with the premiere of "Soap" on ABC. Jessica's fate is decided. But the best bet might just be PBS's "Survival," also airing at 8 o'clock. Michael Landon narrates a stunning documentary about the grueling annual migration of the caribou from the Yukon Territory to an area north of the Arctic Circle.

Inside: Marooned Haitians

AN EXTENSIVE REPORT "documents how little the government knows" about Alaska's endangered bowhead whales, says a spokesman for the Eskimo whaling community. The whales are threatened by ocean oil exploration. See page 5-A.

POLICEMEN TRYING TO evacuate 102 Haitians stranded on the tiny island of Caoyo Lobos in the Bahamas for 39 days will use armed force if necessary to put the refugees on a boat back to their home country. See page 3-A.

Outside: Warm

Sunny and warm today and fair tonight. Partly cloudy Thursday. High today and Thursday in the mid 70s, low tonight in the mid 40s. Winds will be 15 to 25 mph and gusty today and Thursday, 5 to 15 mph tonight.

Digest

Consumers more optimistic

NEW YORK (AP) — Although still cautious about major purchases, consumers felt slightly more optimistic about the economy and their personal finances in October than in the month before, according to a Conference Board survey.

The Conference Board, a business-funded research group, said Tuesday its Consumer Confidence Index — an assessment of income, jobs and the economy — rose from 76.2 in September to 79.2 in October. It was the fifth consecutive monthly gain in the index, which is measured against a 1969 base of 100.

Chevron raises prices

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chevron U.S.A. Inc. has raised its wholesale price of gasoline and other petroleum products by up to three cents a gallon.

The company, a unit of Standard Oil of California, said Tuesday the increases were due to "continued increasing costs of domestic and foreign crude oil and higher costs for finished petroleum products."

The prices of all grades of gasoline and aviation fuel were increased by three cents a gallon everywhere except on the West Coast, where the increase was a penny. Chevron also boosted the price of No. 1 and No. 2 diesel fuel and heating oil by two cents a gallon in all areas east of the Rocky Mountains.

Eastern to make appeal

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines says it will appeal a jury's decision that the carrier should pay $275,000 because of "malicious" comments about a pilot attributed to an airlines spokesman.

'Hit list' revealed

Conservative group takes aim at Bentsen

WASHINGTON — Texas Democrat Lloyd Bentsen is among 22 senators who are potential targets of a national conservative group aiming to defeat moderates and liberals up for reelection in 1982.

The National Conservative Political Action Committee announced the "hit list" Tuesday, and chairman Terry Dolan said more than $2 million will be spent to defeat those politicians in primaries and general elections.

NCPAC spent some $1.2 million this year on 22 Senate races, and 36 resulted in the defeat of liberals, Dolan said. Incumbents like George McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana and John Dingkin of New Hampshire fell to conservative opponents who were favored by NCPAC and other so-called New Right groups.

Bentsen issued a brief statement in reply, saying his vote "on every issue will continue to be based on what I believe to be best for my state and nation regardless of the threats of any political action group."

Dolan said his committee will decide which senators to focus on after it has a chance to analyze polling data and survey its contributors — said to number some 350,000. In addition to Bentsen, the list of potential targets includes Democrats Don Riegle of Michigan, Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, Paul Barbaras of Maryland, Harrison Williams of New Jersey, Henry Jackson of Washington, Quentin Burdick of North Dakota, Raefel P. Moynihan of New York, John Melacher of Montana, Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, William Broxmire of Wisconsin, Robert Byrd of West Virginia, Jim Sasser of Tennessee, Howard Cannon of Nevada, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Lavine Chiles of Florida.

The committee is also taking aim at three Republican incumbents — Robert Stafford of Vermont, John Chafee of Rhode Island and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut.

Dolan defended the inclusion of several senators considered moderates and even conservatives, among them Bentsen, who has favored a broad range of tax breaks for business and a free hand for the CIA.

"They're extremely vulnerable in Democratic primaries. They don't represent their states," said Dolan. "Those people were really selected because on the key issues, they almost always flake off."

Among the issues where Bentsen differed from the conservative money-raisers was his approval of the Panama Canal treaties and federal aid to stave off New York City's bankruptcy.

NCPAC devised a numerical conservative rating for the 22 senators based on rankings issued by two conservative organizations — the American Conservative Union and Americans for Constitutional Action — and two liberal organizations — Americans for Democratic Action and the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education.

Bentsen was given the second highest conservative rating among the targeted 20, a 5.3 percent "right" vote that compares to fellow target Kennedy's 6.5 percent rating.

Last fall when Kennedy was beginning his run for the presidency, NCPAC formed what is called the "Kennedy Truth Squad," a coalition of conservative groups whose mission was to attack the senator on his legislative record as well as his moral standards. Dolan said NCPAC has yet to decide whether to revive the coalition.

EARLY COPY — Gerri Atwell, curator at the Heritage Museum, holds a copy of Joe Pickle's book, 'Gettin' Started,' which will be available to the public at an autograph party scheduled to be held at the Heritage Museum Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Atwell said the publication, authorized by the Howard County Heritage Museum, is the most complete book ever put together on Big Spring and Howard County history.

Joe Pickle's book

'Gettin' Started' engrossing story

Joe Pickle's 436-page book, 'Gettin' Started,' in, in effect, an engrossing story about Howard County's first 25 years.

Pickle will be present for an autograph party scheduled Saturday and Sunday at the Heritage Museum. The hours each day will be 1 to 5 p.m. The book, which will sell for $15 plus tax, is being published by the Howard County Heritage Museum by Nortex Press of Burnet, Tex.

Perhaps no one is as well qualified to write about the subject as Pickle, a native of the area. The Pickle family resided in Nolan, Scurry, Gaines and Dawson counties before moving to Big Spring in 1920.

The Pickles' arrival here coincided with the S.E.J. Cox "oil boom," which suggests — "marked the divide between the pioneer period of ranching, farming and rick-roading and that of the modern era of oil and commerce."

Pickle was a long time member of the Herald editorial staff and for a time during and immediately after WW II served as its publisher. His newspaper career encompassed 43 years. When he retired, he was the Editor of the Herald.

One of his first assignments was to interview several pioneers, for whom the early days were still vivid memories. This created in him an appetite for area history he retains to this day. Over the years, he wrote numerous newspaper and magazine articles about pioneer personalities and episodes. He also contributed to the Permian Basin Historical Society yearbook.

Although he retired from the newspaper in 1975, Pickle's appetite for living didn't wane. He continued his association with the Colorado River Municipal Water District but also found the time to work for the community and his church. In Sothow, he also was able to do additional research in an attempt to sift fact from fiction, truth from legend, concerning the beginnings of Howard and surrounding counties.

The fruits of that labor are included in his book. Joe's eldest son, Tom, did the drawings in the book "as a labor of love." Barry Canning, in Joe's words, "saved the day" by redrawing the maps included in the book.

The book is dedicated to Joe's wife, the late Lucille Rix Pickle, with the notation "who in her life, as did her pioneer parents and grandparents, contributed so much to the town and area in which she, as well as they, took intense pride."

ing the bag. The man who allegedly took the money, Grady Sims, and promised to bring the tickets has disappeared.

The accused man, former candidate for the San Angelo city council and former manager of San Angelo Blood Services, was indicted last week on felony theft charges by a 51st District court jury. The indictment stems from an allegation made by a man who shared a business office with Sims who said he gave Sims $500 to pay the rent. The owner of the property says he never received the money.

Sims, who is 42, may have gone to the Dallas area, police say. He has been missing since Oct. 8. He had resided in San Angelo since 1962.

Ector County will undertake a recount of votes in the 69th District state representative race, which saw Jerry Cockerham edge incumbent Rep. Richard Slack by only 452 votes. Slack forces had petitioned for the recount.

Voters in seven counties cast ballots. In Ector County, election officials experienced difficulty with balloting machines. Cockerham's margin of victory in Ector was 2,289 votes.

John Moore, 71, of Lamesa will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at North Side Baptist Church here with the Rev. Billy Bush, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in a Lamesa Cemetery under direction of Lamesa Funeral Home.

The Robertson County native came to Dawson County in 1916. She was a member of the Nazarene Church.

Survivors include two brothers, Herman of Lamesa and W.G. of San Diego, Calif.

Mrs. Paz Rubio, 81, died in a Laredo hospital Saturday. She was born in Mexico but had been a resident of Laredo all her life.

Hostage reached by phone

SEATTLE (AP) — The senior U.S. diplomatic officer held hostage in Iran, reached in Tehran by telephone, said he and the other captives have been "exceedingly gratified" by the support of the American people during the past year.

But Bruce Laingen, in a phone conversation with KAYO talk-show host Laura Hall on Tuesday night, declined to comment when asked about current negotiations for the release of the 53 Americans.

"You see, Laura, I'm reluctant to speak in any way to the substance of the moment because of the sensitivity and delicacy of where we are," Laingen said. "I join you and all American in hoping it will produce results now."

"I'm in no position to speak to that," he said. "We are totally out of touch as far as the substance of the problem."

Laingen, 57, of Washington, D.C., was reached by phone at the Foreign Ministry in Tehran where he and two other Americans are being held.

Forty-nine other American diplomatic personnel also are being held in Iran since militants seized the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 4, 1979.

The radio station was able to reach Laingen about 9:30 p.m. PST Tuesday after several weeks of effort.

Laingen also said he was aware of the election of Ronald Reagan.

"To some degree, some information is available to us," he said. "We know about the election. We wish the president (Reagan) well, we wish President Carter well."

Laingen said he had no knowledge of the hostages not held at the ministry. Seeming to choose his words carefully, he described his condition as "fine. We're anxious to leave, hopeful."

Afghan unrest threatens birds

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — Unrest in Afghanistan may have doomed a tiny group of endangered birds known as western Siberian cranes, experts fear.

The birds are due to complete their migration shortly at a bird sanctuary in India. Ron Sauey of the International Crane Foundation here is awaiting word whether any survived the month-long, 3,500-mile migration from the Soviet Union.

To return them to homeland

Haitians vow to resist attempts

CAYO LOBOS, Bahamas (AP) - Policemen trying to evacuate 102 Haitians stranded on this tiny island for 39 days will use armed force if necessary to put the refugees on a boat to take them back to their home country, a Bahamian source said today.

Lame-duck Congress likely to be short

WASHINGTON (AP) - House and Senate leaders are predicting the lame-duck session will be brief and unproductive as lawmakers mark time for a new Congress more inclined to increase defense spending, cut taxes, permit prayer in public schools and ban abortions.

The first item on the Senate's agenda as it reconvened today was a $9.57 billion appropriation bill for several federal departments, but key lawmakers said this and other spending measures may be shelved until the new Congress meets in January.

The House Budget Committee chairman, Rep. Robert N. Giaino, D-Conn., said Tuesday the plan is for the 96th Congress to adjourn before Thanksgiving.

And Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, the House majority leader, said he expects "very little action" in the lame-duck session, the first in a presidential election year since Democratic President Harry Truman called the Republican-controlled Congress back for a fruitless one-day meeting in 1946.

Trustees call Thursday meet

Big Spring Independent School District board members will consider the sale of certain school property at their regular meeting Thursday at 5:15 p.m. at the board room of the high school.

Employment and resignation of school employees will be approved. Updates of school board policy will be approved. Student suspensions will also be considered.

Baker said he expects Senate approval next year of sharply increased defense spending, lower taxes and constitutional amendments to permit prayer in public schools and to ban most abortions.

He said the chances of restoring the death penalty for some federal crimes "would be good."

Baker also predicted the Senate will approve a lower minimum wage for teenagers and permit non-union and water that day and the next. Four armed policemen aboard the bouy tender Lady Moore, which was sent from Nassau on Monday to pick up the Haitians and take them back to the Haitian capital of Port-au-Prince, asked for more support when they were met with resistance.

The Haitians, stranded without food or water, were discovered by a U.S. Coast Guard aircraft patrol on Oct. 9. The Bahamian government was told of their plight that day, and the Coast Guard airdropped some food to Cayo Lobos by a television network's helicopter. In Creole, he urged them to insist on being taken to the U.S.

The Haitian leader, Claude Pierre, said they "could not go any place but Miami."

"We sell everything to go to Miami," Pierre said. "We lose everything in Haiti. They will beat us up, kill us, put us in jail."

"It is a decision between life and death." Bahamian officials dispatched a second vessel, carrying nine armed police officers, Tuesday night to "assist with the transfer of the Haitians," said spokesman Joe Edwards of the Bahamas News Bureau.

The Bahamian police will take the Haitians off the island at gunpoint, "if that is what is required. That is what they are instructed to do," Edwards said.

Four armed officers were among the landing party that arrived Tuesday - one day behind schedule due to ship mechanical problems - at this desolate football field-sized island.

"The Haitians reportedly brandished knives, sticks and bottles and refused to be taken aboard the government tender," Edwards said. "They don't want to go back to Haiti - they want the good life of Miami."

Government spokesman Bill Kalis said the reinforcements should convince the Haitians to leave. The Bahamians still plan to take the Haitians to Port-Au-Prince, officials said.

"We believe there will be an orderly evacuation," Kalis said. "We think that the force that's being sent will be enough to persuade them to return." The Haitians were spotted on Cayo Lobos by the U.S. Coast Guard on Oct. 9. As negotiations between the Haitian and Bahamian governments went on, the refugees were supplied with water, C-rations and other food dropped from Coast Guard planes.

Some 25,000 Haitian refugees, fleeing poverty in their native land, have arrived in South Florida in recent years and asked for political asylum. Their status there is still being determined by the federal courts. Thousands more Haitians living in the Bahamas have been told they have until January to return home before they will be deported.

Cowper Clinic and Hospital receives TVE commendation

Truett Thomas, administrator of the Cowper Clinic and Hospital here, has been advised that the hospital's 1980 projected budget is in full compliance with the Texas Voluntary Effort's goals and objectives.

A certificate accompanying the TVE letter focuses attention on the hospital's continued efforts to contain the rate of increase in hospital expenditures and to incur new capital investments at levels that provide for the delivery of quality medical and hospital services commensurate with the needs of the patients served by the hospital.

Each hospital's total commitment to voluntary cost containment is vital to Texas Voluntary Effort's drive to thwart federally imposed limitations and controls. R. William Warren, chairman of the Texas Voluntary Cost Containment Review Committee, reminded Thomas that TVE's effort in the endeavor depends to a large extent on

'Sky's the limit' for deaf college

Those who attended the Open House at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf here last week became acutely aware that there is, indeed, an added dimension to Howard College. As for the school itself, the "sky's the limit."

SWCID (it is now called "Swid" by those closest to it) is off to a modest start — there are less than 30 students enrolled — but its potential for growth is tremendous.

DOUG BURKE, THE school's executive director, thinks the institute could have 100 students for the spring term. Jeff Davis of the school's staff returned from a mission tour covering nine states to report that he had 295 application forms filled out by potential students, people who suddenly became aware that there is a college in West Texas capable of catering to their needs.

Of that number, perhaps 50 will be accepted for enrollment here. The standards for entry into SWCID are a lot more exacting than the average person thinks they might be.

Gallaudet College is perhaps the most famous school in the world for students with hearing impairment. It has an enrollment of between 1,200 and 1,500 and operates on a budget exceeding $74 million. SWCID functions with a modest budget of about $2 million. Because the education of the deaf has been so neglected in the Southwest and there are no others in the area with a curriculum quite like that of SWCID, the school stands to gain quite a bit through federal and state grants during the next few years.

The closing of Webb AFB may have caused a downturn in the community's economy but it proved to be a blessing in disguise for SWCID. After the multi-million dollar hospital was abandoned by the air base, the college found itself with enough space for offices, classrooms and laboratories for all its programs.

FURTHERMORE, THE military left behind the kind of medical equipment that will save the school a tremendous amount of money. Some of that material has been coveted by military teams sent here to take inventories for the purpose of making requisition requests at a later date.

SWCID may never grow to the size of Gallaudet but, in time, it's going to become one of the best known and most appreciated institutions Big Spring has — something to which the entire community, indeed the entire southwest — can point with pride.

Too human?

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

It was once again time to take active participation in the weekly ritual expected of all respectable households.

Considering our household respectable, my husband, daughter and I proceeded to take part in the usual activities associated with 'family night out on the town.'

First it was to a good, but not-too-expensive restaurant to re-acquaint our taste buds with the forgotten savor of steak.

Then it was a quick drive around town, going and awing over store window displays, making note of the luxuries we'd like to have, while at the same time, reminding ourselves we had enough bills to deal with for the time being.

FOLLOWING THAT escapade, which left us thoroughly depressed, we ventured to the movie house in hopes of uplifting our spirits and to complete our particular agenda for family night.

After shelling out the specific amount of bucks required to gain entry into the theatre, we made our way past the popcorn and candy and plopped ourselves down (against my better judgment) to see George Burns play God in his second of such flicks, "Oh God, Book II."

I emphasize 'against my better judgment' because I was particularly turned off at the assumption of any movie company thinking it could get away with creating a somewhat flippant show about someone as all-powerful, righteous and holy as God.

It was for that reason I refrained from paying my hard-earned cash to see the first "Oh God" picture.

But, as most of you have experienced on more occasions than you'd care to admit, we humans tend to have a knack for doing things against our better judgment.

So there I sat, trying to brush off any feelings of guilt I was experiencing, to see what I assumed would be a significantly sacreligious picture on the fictional life and times of God.

Two hours later, I walked out totally refreshed with only a few lingering traces of regret for having walked into the theatre in the first place.

Rather than go into a scene by scene description, I'll just say the show, as a whole, produced a positive effect.

In some sort of magical way, it successfully, if only momentarily, awakened inside me the sensitivity, innocence and honesty of a child — characteristics that had been somewhat overshadowed by the callousness that accompanies adulthood.

I WAS IMPRESSED at how well the movie emphasized God's omnipresence — the reality that He is only a thought away.

The movie doesn't get my total blessings, however. In my opinion, George Burns made God seem too human. The Lord's dignity, majesty and holiness was lost in Burn's admittance, on several occasions, that even He (God) wasn't perfect.

I must applaud Burn's co-star though, a young girl identified only as Louanne in the credit lines.

This delightful big brown-eyed cutie stole the show. She has as much charm, talent and magnetism as an updated version of Shirley Temple.

With the end of the show, our family night out on the town was concluded for one more week.

Hostage ploy

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — On the evening of Oct. 10, a long-distance telephone call to Ronald Reagan by a senior adviser warned explicitly that President Carter was plotting an election-eve release of the American hostages and proposed immediate contingency plans to minimize political fallout.

Behind the warning were two sets of facts: first, campaign rhetoric by the president and his surrogates, an objective reading of which hinted at a pre-election breakthrough; second, substantiated reports from European capitals of agreement between Washington and Tehran on removing economic obstacles to the release of the hostages.

A TREASURY TEAM under Deputy Secretary Robert Carswell was putting final touches on the complex issue of unfreezing blocked Iranian assets. Simultaneously, agreement was being worked out for releasing military spare parts paid for by Iran before the shah's fall.

"It was all there for anyone to see," the Reagan adviser told us. If the president had not been assured one month before the election that his hostage ploy would work, there would have been no U.S. tilt toward Iran in the Iran-Iraq war.

The tilt was only one Carter signal that the was ready to deal on the hostage question. The administration's movement toward converting the hostages into a pre-election asset really began with Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie's letter to Iranian Prime Minister Rajai in late August. Rajai quickly interpreted that letter as an "apology," which Muskie immediately denied.

Reagan's advisers began to ask themselves this question: Was that letter a first step in the buildup to a pre-election political coup or simply a welcoming gesture to the recently-formed Iranian "government"? They decided the former. In the opinion of the Reagan camp, the big Carter push for the dreaded "October surprise" had begun.

The memory was strong how Carter had manipulated national opinion when the hostages were seized one year ago, using it to revive his popularity. Carter's celebrated television interview from the White House early on the morning of the crucial Wisconsin primary had left its imprint: When it comes to politics, this president means business.

Carter's maneuver was made possible by the outbreak of war between Iraq and Iran Sept. 22. No longer were the hostages indispensable as a "unifying force" to keep together feuding factions of what passed for an Iranian government. The Iraqi war now substituted for the hostages. The hostages became a bargaining chip in Iran's wartime need for guns and gold.

Reagan's European agents began to pick up the scent of Soviet pressure on Ayatollah Khomeini through his Ghotbzadeh, for speedy release of the hostages. Ghotbzadeh long has been known as one of the Kremlin's key allies in the maelstrom of Iranian politics.

THE REASON FOR Soviet pressure was Moscow's hope that release of the Americans would guarantee Carter's re-election and defeat Reagan, feared as a big-stick warmonger. The importance of this Soviet factor in the poisoned politics of Iran became known when Ghotbzadeh himself made clear that the hostages should be released before Nov. 4 to help Carter.

The lingering problem facing Carter now became a show of good faith to persuade Khomeini that the U.S. would carry out its pre-election commitments: unleashing the spare parts and unfreezing Iranian assets.

Hormone changes cause uterine cramping

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am an 18-year-old girl. I started my period when I was in the sixth grade. For the first few years I never had any pain whatsoever with my periods. But about three years ago I began to develop severe cramps and pain just before menstruation. Sometimes the pain is so severe that I can hardly move about. I feel so sore and nauseated that I just go to bed until the next morning. Then the pain has stopped. Can you suggest anything for this frustrating situation? — T.L.

Menstrual periods should not cause this degree of pain. The uterus is a large muscle. One explanation for pain at or just before menstruation is a cramping of the uterine muscle brought on by the monthly changes in hormone levels — sort of a uterine charleyhorse.

You have to find out if your discomfort (dysmenorrhea) is primary or secondary. The term "secondary" means there is something contributing directly to it, such as infection or endometriosis. Primary dysmenorrhea means the condition exists without any cause evident.

If a cause can be found, it can usually be treated effectively. If no cause is found, then emphasis is on controlling the cramping and pain. A simple drug like aspirin may be all you will need. Aspirin not only is a pain reliever, but also has an effect on the hormone prostaglandin, which, if too high, can cause uterine cramping.

I am not offering aspirin as the total solution to your menstrual cramps anymore than I would for chronic headache. Your doctor will decide whether other drugs — for example female hormones or an anti-inflammatory medicine like anti-prostaglandins — are required.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My wife has severe migraines. Her doctors tell her there is no cure, only ways to alleviate pain and nausea. Is she correct in relying on what the doctors have told her, or am I justified in seeking further help for her? — G.P.

No treatment can assure cure for migraine headaches for life. There is treatment to reduce the severity and frequency of attacks. The drugs you list (in another part of your letter) are among those tried.

on. Foods, especially chocolate and aged cheeses, food preservatives (nitrates and nitrites found in cold cuts and hot dogs), beer and red wines, are prominent possibilities. Anxiety can provoke migraine as can changes in lifestyle. Sigmund Freud used to get migraines on weekends.

A trusting relationship between the migraine patient and the physician is necessary, too. If there is distrust, no help will be forthcoming. To abort a migraine, ergotamines have been the most reliable drugs. To prevent migraines a host of drugs are used: methysergide, Bellergal and, more recently, propranolol. You do not mention the latter. Has your wife been put on propranolol? For some, that provides protection against attacks. It is not a habit-forming drug.

Biofeedback has also been tried. This technique allows the person to control by willpower some of the body's automatic functions involved in such headaches.

Dear Editor: I received a letter recently addressed to Mr. L. "Knows All" Jeffcoat. I read the letter with some interest and a good deal of humor. Mr. Brazel was answering my letter to the Mailbag Oct. 31. I'm not going to have a running feud with anyone. I just felt because of the vicious and punitive blow to my character the letter demanded my rebuttal.

He began by saying I was radical. If having an opinion is radical, then I'm radical. He said I used my own personal and warped viewpoint, and stated he used facts from oil and gas drilling and production records. Also, that it was because of greedy and selfish people like me that caused our inflation and world problems. In response to that, I just feel that when the federal government takes money off the top of my royalty check, then I take exception to that. I don't have to quote anyone, or anything. I see the cold hard facts every month in my hand. In view of the Nov. 4 election, I think it could be safely concluded that the vast majority shares my views.

He also says that "maybe I was a poor business man." That may be true in part. I have never been a big splash in the business world or of high finance. My life to this point has always been low-key, low profile. But he has just about got my back up. I retired in June 1979. Thinking that with my modest oil check (before the windfall profit tax) and working at a cotton gin in the fall to supplement my income would be an adequate amount. After the windfall profit tax, that seems unlikely now.

He said I lied (underlined) about him making a speech. As usual, he put his own interpretation on what he reads. I never said he did. You can attack, heckle and mouth from the floor in an open forum.

He also stated in his letter that he was not going to give me any publicity by answering in the newspaper. I must be publicity hungry, because (if this one is printed) I have written four letters in 25 years.

He quotes my neighbors as indelmining me. (?) I am surrounded by my relatives, and I do not have neighbors, only friends. It seems strange that in his conversations with them that they never mentioned I was female. It would be an insult to their intelligence for them not to know my sex.

(Mrs. L. Jeffcoat Knott, Texas)

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a teenager who has recently accepted Christ into my life. I have tried to share my faith with my friends, but they don't seem to be interested. How can I tell them about Jesus? — I.S.

DEAR I.S.: It is good that you want to share your faith with those around you. They need Christ, and I believe that God wants to use you to reach them.

How can you share your faith in Christ with those around you? First, make sure that your life is a living testimony to Christ. That does not mean you have to be perfect before God can use you, but on the other hand, we cannot expect others to listen to what we have to say if our lives contradict what we are saying. "Abstain from sinful desires, which war against your soul. Live such good lives among the pagans that, though they accuse you of doing wrong, they may see your good deeds and glorify God on the day he visits us" (1 Peter 2:11-12). Ask God to help you to avoid sinful actions and to show love to those around you by what you say and do.

And pray for those around you who do not know Christ. Only God can change a person's heart and open him to the Gospel. Pray that he will direct you also to those he is especially preparing. Also, understand clearly what the Gospel is. Know what Christ has done for you, and be able to explain to others who he is and what he has done for them. Perhaps your pastor or another older Christian can help you here.

Finally, build bridges of friendship to those around you. Ask God to show you practical ways to show his love to others, then ask him to help you share your faith openly and naturally. Perhaps, for example, one of your fellow students is having a personal problem and wants to talk to someone who will listen. You could be that person, and could then share how Christ has helped you when you have faced problems.

WASHINGTON — A system that would allow our nuclear submarines to keep in touch with headquarters without being exposed to prying Soviet eyes has been determinedly opposed by Jimmy Carter because of a campaign pledge he made to Michigan voters four years ago.

It will shock the American public to learn what the Russians discovered long ago: Our submarine missile force could not now effectively communicate with the White House in a national emergency from the safety of the ocean's depths.

LIKE HANSEL AND Gretel leaving a trail of bread crumbs, a sub that needs to send or receive signals from Washington must use a wire antenna towed either on the surface of the ocean or attached to a buoy just below the surface. Either technique makes the sub a sitting duck for enemy ships or aircraft.

The best way a submarine can protect itself is to run silent and deep — but at the cost of not knowing what is going on in the world and what the commander-in-chief wants it to do. To keep in touch, it must now bob up to periscope depth.

What makes the situation truly shocking, though, is that the Navy found a way out of this dilemma 11 years ago. It is a system known as ELF — for Extremely Low Frequency. It originally called for 2,400 miles of antenna to be buried underground in northern Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. The super-antenna would beam messages to subs deep under water.

Its importance was clear to President Ford, who called ELF "absolutely essential to our national security."

And Carter himself agreed — or seemed to agree. In a 1978 interview, the former nuclear submarine officer said, "When a submarine is submerged, it's imperative, in case our nation's security is directly threatened, to have communications with it."

Why wasn't ELF constructed? Fourteen secret and confidential White House, Pentagon and congressional documents, seen by my reporters Dale Van Atta and Gloria Danziger, trace ELF's scuttling to Oct. 25, 1976.

ON THAT DAY, candidate Jimmy Carter, wooing the votes of environmentalists and Michiganders, worried about possible dangers in the underground antenna system, promised that ELF "will not be built in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan against the wishes of its citizens."

As president, Carter was persuaded — briefly — by his military experts that ELF was too vital to be put off. He asked Congress for $20 million in research and development funds. Military leaders, including Defense Secretary Harold Brown, were unanimous in their view that the need for ELF was both "real and urgent."

But Carter soon began to waffle. On Feb. 16, 1978, in a letter to Brown, the president said he had reservations

BOWHEAD WHALE IS ENDANGERED SPECIES — The sun dips into the Arctic Ocean a few minutes after midnight as the last whaling crew watches for the bowhead whale in this 1978 file photo. The government knows little about the bowhead, according to a spokesman for the Eskimo whaling community, because it refuses to listen to the people who know the most about them — the Eskimos who continue the centuries-old practice of hunting whales as part of their subsistence culture.

Bowhead whales threatened

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A 2-inch-thick, 753-page, $1.2 million report "documents how little the government knows" about the endangered bowhead whale, says a spokesman for the Eskimo whaling community.

And, says Jon Buchholdt of the North Slope Borough, the reason the government knows so little about bowhead whales is that it refuses to listen to the people who know the most about them — the Eskimos who continue the centuries-old practice of hunting whales as part of their subsistence culture.

"There seems to be a cultural aversion for attributing any real validity to bowhead hunters' knowledge about bowhead whales," Buchholdt says.

Eskimos are interested in the bowhead because whale hunting is a vital part of their life. The government is interested because the huge marine mammal migrates through the Beaufort Sea, a prime location for oil and gas exploration and drilling.

Scientists estimate that the bowhead, once plentiful in the North Pacific, now numbers only 1,000 to 3,000. The Endangered Species Act forbids government action that jeopardizes the existence of endangered or threatened species or the destruction or modification of their habitat.

To assess the potential impact of oil drilling on the whales, the Bureau of Land Management's Alaska Outer Continental Shelf Office commissioned 15 months of field work, from September 1978 through November 1979.

Connie Wassink, spokeswoman for the Outer Continental Shelf office, differed with Buchholdt's assessment of the study, saying that native whaling captains were indeed consulted for their "intuitive" knowledge of whales, especially where to find them.

But, she said, the government also needs solid scientific research on which to base its decisions. She said there is a need to "meld" the Eskimo whaling wisdom with scientifically obtained data.

The conclusion of the 26-month study is that the whales spend significant time in the disputed lease area.

But the scientists added that more studies are needed. At least a dozen others are planned or under way, said Ms. Wassink, to see if drilling noises disturb whales or whether potential oil spills would harm them or their food supplies.

Bowhead whales, which grow to lengths of 40 feet and more, follow the melting ice pack each spring from the southeastern parts of the Bering Sea, north through the Bering Strait into the Beaufort Sea.

Freeze-up prompts the return trip of more than 1,800 miles.

The lease area stretches about 75 miles east and west, centered roughly on Prudhoe Bay, site of one of the world's richest oil fields.

"Bowhead whales do not migrate through or inhabit the lease area during the spring migration," the scientists say, based on sightings of 249 whales.

"No bowhead whales were seen in or about the lease area during the summer (June-July)... (having) generally completed the eastward migration to the Banks Island area, and it is known that a portion of the population spends the summer in the Canadian Beaufort Sea."

"During the fall migration, a total of six bowhead whales was observed in the lease area and 84 bowhead whales were seen near the lease area," the study says.

Bowheads feed on plankton strained from seawater by hair-like structures in their mouths known as baleen. One of the fears about oil development is that oil spills could damage the whales' ability to feed.

"Slight to extreme fouling with crude oil showed that there was a marked decrease in filtering efficiency to near zero with extreme fouling," the study says.

"The bowhead's lymphoid tissue... may be susceptible to effects of ingestion of pollutants. Injury to lymphoid tissue may likely lead to decreased disease resistance."

The Eskimos, who along with environmental groups have waged state and federal court battles against offshore oil development, have thus far succeeded in delaying but not prohibiting drilling.

State tracts are still tied up in the Alaska Supreme Court. Legislation for federal tracts has just been approved.

The International Whaling Commission sets annual quotas for the number of bowhead whales which Alaskan Eskimos may strike and land.

Officers sex with teen scars Explorers program

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas policeman who led a law enforcement Explorer program for teen-agers has been fired for having sexual relations with a 17-year-old girl enrolled in the program, department officials said.

Two other officers were placed on suspension after the girl said she had sexual encounters with them, said police public information officer Bob Shaw.

After a month-long investigation into the allegations, Police Chief Chancellor, 38, for violating a

TSU president denies charges of vendetta

HOUSTON (AP) — Leonard Spearman, recently-appointed president of Texas Southern University, has denied allegations of a "vendetta" in the demotions of four administrators.

Spearman said he has been given a "mandate" by TSU's Board of Regents to "straighten out" the state-supported school and is trying to put together an administrative team more directly compatible with projections being developed.

"It's not a vendetta. There is no accuser. There is no personal involvement, because I don't know these people well enough," Spearman said Tuesday after demoting four faculty deans.

However, he said, Walter J. McCoy, dean of the public affairs school; Otis King, dean of the law school; J.B. Jones, dean of education; and Tom Freeman, dean of the school's weekend college have been told they may remain as faculty members at the predominantly-black college.

McCoy and King have requested hearings before the regents.

"I have worked very hard since I came to TSU in 1974 and have been responsible for getting $1.4 million for TSU from private and government sources to improve our public affairs program," McCoy said.

King questioned Spearman's authority to remove him as law school dean because "it is my understanding that I serve with the permission of the law faculty."

position of public trust in his role as advisor to the Explorer group by having sexual relations with the girl in off-duty hours, Shaw said.

Two other officers said they engaged in "heavy petting" with the girl when she accompanied them on patrol as an Explorer observer, police said.

Jerry Rhodes, 29, a 7-year veteran of the force was suspended for five days and Brian McGuire, 28, an 18-month member, was suspended for three days.

The actions came to light in departmental orders Monday.

Shaw said the girl admitted the liaisons prior to taking a polygraph test when she applied for appointment as a regular police cadet last month.

Lt. Jack Faulkner, a spokesman for the police internal affairs division, said the encounters started about a month after the girl joined the Explorer's program at the Northeast division.

Chansior admitted taking the girl to his apartment and the apartment of a friend and engaging in oral sex with her, Faulkner said. He said no criminal charges would be filed since the girl is of legal age of consent and refuses to sign a complaint.

However, no decision has been reached on her cadet application, he said.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward ruled Tuesday that the Lubbock Public School policy, adopted in August, meets constitutional requirements.

The new set of standards forbids any school-sponsored religious activity, but allows student-initiated religious events.

Woodward delayed ruling on a portion of the suit filed by the Lubbock Civil Liberties Union that asks for the school's policy prior to August of this year to be declared unconstitutional.

The year-old suit also seeks $115,000 in exemplary damages and an award of $2,000 per student who might have participated unwillingly in a religious exercise.

The judge said the new policy "does not violate any constitutional principals on its face." But he cautioned that the administration and implementation of the policy "is another question. It's another problem for another day."

The LCLU contended that while the school does not now require students to join in religious activities, "peer group pressure" would force them to participate, regardless of their beliefs.

Attorneys for the school argued that prayer was not sanctioned by the school system, pointing out that it is forbidden over loudspeaker systems and at public school events.

Texas tax revolt?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A legislative pioneer in Texas property tax changes says homestead exemptions must be increased to meet the rise in inflation.

Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, commented Tuesday in reply to the report of a researcher for Texas House members who said the 1981 Legislature must change the new property tax laws or a "California-type" tax revolt is likely in Texas.

"I don't know about a revolt but I do think some changes must be made in the law," said Peveto, a sponsor of the Property Tax Code who has been trying to reform property tax laws since 1973.

"Of one thing I'm sure," Peveto said, "I think the Legislature must increase the $5,000 homestead exemption ... I don't have any definite figure yet but we are playing with the idea that it should be a percentage figure rather than a flat figure."

Peveto said inflation had shifted the effect of the property tax changes from other taxpayers to homeowners and must be corrected.

A report of the House Study Group — an unofficial research group supported by some House members but with no connections with any state or legislative body — issued a long report Monday designed to guide House members in their debate during the 1981 session. The report has not been presented to or acted on by any state or legislative body.

The House Study Group is headed by Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, a candidate for speaker in 1981.

"Rising residential property values and taxes may be leading Texas toward a California-type property tax revolt," said the report written by Dan Brody, research director.

"The relief provided by legislation passed by the 1979 Legislature" helped only certain groups and the benefits will diminish over time. Unless economic conditions change drastically or the Legislature takes decisive action, property taxes will continue to rise sharply. How the state's taxpayers will react remains to be seen.

In one part of the report, Brody said many speculators and land developers benefit from the new law taxing land on productivity instead of value.

"In the Dallas metropolitan area, development corporations are seeing their taxes on yet-developed land fall by 90 percent or more," he said.

"In Travis County, the House Study Group found numerous examples of land formerly valued at $1,000 to $4,000 an acre that is now on the rolls at $40 to $150 an acre. ... Similar findings have been reported in Port Arthur, Corpus Christi and Houston."

NCPAC sets sights on liberal senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — One week after helping pick off four of the Senate's leading liberals, the National Conservative Political Action Committee is setting its sights on 20 senators up for re-election two years off. At the top of the list: Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The conservative organization, one of the richest right-wing political action groups and one of the largest with 250,000 members nationwide, also said Tuesday it may broaden its efforts in 1982 to include the House as well as the Senate.

"Liberals ought to be very intimidated by the mood of the American public," said NCPAC Chairman John T. Dolan in assessing last week's election.

The group spent $1.2 million this year, and Dolan said it may spend more than $2 million in the 1982 Senate campaigns. NCPAC, like other independent political action groups, can pour millions of dollars into campaigns as long as it has no contact with the candidates they're backing.

Four of the six Democratic senators targeted by NCPAC in last week's elections were defeated — Frank Church of Idaho, George McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana and John Culver of Iowa. Sens. Alan Cranston of California and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri survived.

In 1982, Dolan said, the group probably will pick more than six Senate races from the list of 20 to actually work for an incumbent's defeat. He said the final choice will be based on the candidates' vulnerability and voting records.

NCPAC has dubbed Kennedy "the most extreme liberal" in the Senate.

A year ago, when Kennedy was running for the Democratic presidential nomination, the conservative group set up a "Kennedy Truth Squad" and ran newspaper advertisements in Boston and Washington to draw public attention to its criticisms of the Massachusetts senator.

Following Kennedy on the list of potential targets in 1982 are Democrats Donald W. Riegle Jr. of Michigan, Howard M. Metzenbaum of Ohio, Paul S. Sarbanes of Maryland, Harrison Williams of New Jersey and Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

The list also includes three Republican senators — Robert T. Stafford of Vermont, John Chafee of Rhode Island and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut.

provision giving each homeowner a $5,000 exemption on property taxes.

"In some school districts, these exemptions have totally removed all houses from the tax rolls," Brody's report said. "In other districts, half or more of all residential value has been exempted. These high exemptions occur because the district have been appraising their property at only a small portion of its true value."

As a result, Brody said, the state paid all of the 1979 property taxes on all the homes in the Motley County Independent School District.

Brody said mistakes also have occurred when school districts asked reimbursement for taxes decreased because productivity valuations were less than the "market" valuations of 1978. He said the Lamar County school district may have received an extra $115,000 in "unjustified reimbursement." An on-site audit is scheduled later this month.

"A Bexar County study found that less expensive homes were overtaxed compared to expensive homes," Brody said. "A Dallas study found no such relationship. An Austin study showed that newer homes were overtaxed, compared to older ones."

Brody said that most of the "reform" in the Property Tax Code is administrative rather than substantive — "the law is intended make the property tax more efficient, but not to shift its burden from one group to another."

On the other hand, he said, the Tax Relief Amendment, approved by the same legislature, "specifically benefits certain groups — homeowners, owners of intangibles, owners of some agricultural land — at the expense of others — businesses and tenants."

HOUSTON (AP) — An inactive well spewed methane gas over a residential area in South Houston, forcing firefighters to evacuate about 1,000 people from a trailer park, authorities said.

Fire department spokesman Bob Kuyin said the well erupted about 3 p.m. Tuesday as workers tried to plug it, but the incident was not reported until 2½ hours later.

Kuyin gave no explanation for the delay or what caused the well to blow out. Efforts continued through the night to cap the well, he said.

Gas well blows, forces evacuation of 1,000

There were no injuries and no fire. However, authorities ordered the evacuation of Kings Row Mobile Home Park as a precaution.

The residents were allowed to return to their homes about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday after the wind shifted, but gas and electricity remained off, Kuyin said.

A. Nelson Carter owner of the well, said workers were trying to plug the well, which had been inactive for about six months, when gas began seeping out.

Job resumes to draw look

Resumes for the job of chief tax appraiser will be considered by the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board at a meeting this afternoon in the Howard County Courtroom.

Bids for an Appraisal Office audit will be reviewed, as well as the office's budget.

NO HOUSE OF ILL REPUTE — Frank and Patti DiNunzio stand in front of the house they rent in an unincorporated area northwest of Chicago that served as a house of prostitution before the DiNunzios moved in. Patrons have continued to show up at the house for the last year despite an array of signs and a Doberman pinscher.

Unwelcome sex seekers still visit former bordello

CHICAGO (AP) — Patti and Frank DiNunzio dismantled the peep-show cubicles in the kitchen, painted over the orange walls, posted two dozen no trespassing signs and moved in. But their home's reputation as a house of ill repute lives on.

"We didn't think it would still be this bad," said Mrs. DiNunzio, 28. "Never a day passes that we don't get at least one caller. We have to keep the door locked or they walk right in."

Despite the irrepresible sex-seekers who pound on the door of the DiNunzios' rented home at all hours, the couple plans to stay in the one-time bordello.

"We've done a lot of work here, the rent is low and the house is roomy. We can save enough in a couple of years to buy our own home," Mrs. DiNunzio said.

She and her husband, a 27-year-old self-employed carpenter, got a low rental deal from a real estate company in exchange for remodeling the house's interior. Located in an unincorporated part of the northwestern Chicago area, it previously had been rented by an "artist" who advertised it as "The Professionals."

"Before we moved in last January, Frank would be working in the house at night and there would be knocks on the door as soon as the lights went on," she said. "In the first month after we had moved in, we would get an average of 10 cars a day and as many as two dozen on Sundays."

"They still come, paying no attention to the 24 signs we have posted in the front yard, on the garage, on trees down the long driveway and on the front door, showing it is now a private residence," she said.

"Our daughter, Catrina Marie, is only 6 months old and I remember getting up at night with her and seeing cars parked with guys staring at the house," said Mrs. DiNunzio. "They would still be there at sunrise. They couldn't believe the signs my husband put up."

Inside, DiNunzio painted most of the four-bedroom, ranch-type house white and built scores of shelves for his wife's 200 house plants. Mrs. DiNunzio loves the house and is philosophical about the callers, "especially since it's finally dying down some."

"A lot of guys must take awful long lunch hours. Mostly the older ones — all well-dressed — show up about then. The younger ones, some in their teens, arrive at night. Sunday mornings are our busiest times. The older men make their calls then. They must be dropping their wives off at church first," she said.

If she is taking it in stride, her husband "has a temper and sometimes he lets loose," his wife said. Recently, DiNunzio was walking the family dog in front of the house as Mrs. DiNunzio watched from the doorway.

"A young man came up and refused to believe the prostitutes were gone. He looked past my husband and saw me. 'What about her?' he asked. My husband let go the dog and hit the guy several times."

DiNunzio has a court date Monday to face battery charges, she added.

DALLAS (AP) — Television evangelist James Robison says he is preparing a list of potential cabinet appointees for President-elect Ronald Reagan.

He declined to reveal the names on his list, but indicated that former Texas governor and U.S. Treasury secretary John B. Connally is on the list.

"Connally has something to offer this nation that people need. ... He has great character and such strong principles that his abilities are desperately needed in this country at this time," said Robison.

Pets can be source of family infection

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Pets bring an added pleasure and depth of enjoyment to family life, but pets also are a source of potential infection for the family, according to Charlene S. Hardy, R.N., a nurse epidemiologist.

Addressing "The Second World Congress on Antisepsis," Ms. Hardy stated that "ownership of a pet implies inherent responsibility for its welfare." This involves immunization against diseases such as rabies, which is transmissible to man through a bite of an infected dog or cat. The family canary or parakeet can be a source of psittacosis and the pet turtle presents a potential source of salmonellosis. A cat and her kittens are potential sources of toxoplasmosis and of tinea capitis (ringworm of the scalp) and tinea corporis (ringworm of the body). Other infections have been associated with hamsters which are rodents, and fish tanks harbor still other bacteria (atypical mycobacterium).

Ms. Hardy discussed methods of preventing and controlling a number of potential infections including staphylococcal and streptococcal infections in the home environment. At the Congress she stressed the importance of personal and home environment hygiene.

She said that frequent and efficient handwashing after handling the pet, particularly with an effective antibacterial soap such as Betadine Skin Cleanser, is the most important means of preventing the possible transmission of infections.

The two and a half day Congress was held at Alumni Hall, New York University Medical Center and was supported by a grant-in-aid from The Purdue Frederick Company and its international affiliates.

Ms. Hardy is nurse epidemiologist at Audie L. Murphy Memorial Veterans Hospital in San Antonio, Texas.

Hydro-culture is explained

The After Five Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Adelle Smith on Nov. 4. The program was given by Mrs. Robert McHaney on hydro-culture.

Hydro-culture is a means of growing plants in special clay pebbles, plus water and a special nutrient.

She explained that this method originated in Switzerland. Special pots are used made of plastic or ceramic. There is a water indicator in each pot which gives a visible means of moisture control.

Tips for the sleepless

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I have a very difficult time getting to sleep some nights. I'm active in school and don't seem to have any big problems. Can you help me? — Beth, London, Ontario, Canada

Beth: I receive many letters from teens who share the same problem. I'd like to devote this entire column to you and all your sleepless peers.

Even the most well-adjusted person can expect a night of tossing and turning once in a while. Occasional difficulties in falling asleep are nothing to stay up nights and worry about. Here are some tips that should work.

1. Try to turn in at the same time every night. Set a regular bedtime routine of precise but mundane tasks — such as pulling the shades, laying out the next day's clothes — and perform them in exactly the same order every night. Once it becomes a habit it will automatically trigger a sleep response.

2. Never read, write or eat in bed. Any activity other than sleep that you associate with being in bed will aggravate insomnia.

3. If you like a fast game of racquetball, play it in the morning or afternoon. Overstimulation may sabotage your slumber. On the other hand, a good workout early in the day will help you feel tired enough to fall asleep at night.

4. Say no to coffee, tea, chocolate and cola drinks after dinner. A good soporific "midnight snack" — a cup of warm milk or some cheese.

5. Unless it's absolutely impossible, sleep in a dark, quiet room. Earplugs, masks, even the hum of an air conditioner, are all safe ways to block out unwanted light and noise.

6. Try "progressive muscle relaxation" at bedtime. This is a technique developed by Dr. Edmund Jacobson, a Chicago psychologist, in which you first tense and then relax the muscles in various parts of your body until you're totally relaxed and ready to drift off.

7. If you wake up during the night and can't go back to sleep, don't reward yourself by raiding the refrigerator or watching the late-late show. Such rewards will serve as an incentive to make a habit of waking — pleasant dreams.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 16 and my mother only allows me 45 minutes each night on the phone. I asked for an hour and a half but to no avail. I've got a girlfriend and lots of other friends and most of our talking takes place after 10 p.m.

My mom has relented and says that she will allow me to talk on the phone as long as you say. — Bob, Tacoma, Wash.

Bob: Things aren't as bad as they seem. Actually, 45 minutes on the telephone a night is longer than I would allow you.

Civitan's benefit afflicted

The Civitan Club met for a dinner meeting at Furr's Cafeteria Nov. 5 at 5:30 p.m. Micki Potter, president, presided. Guests included Patricia Wilson and Jim Smith, director of Big Spring High School Drama Department.

Accompanying Smith were three members of the cast of "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds" who presented a scene from the play.

The play will be presented in its entirety Dec. 5-6 at BSHS.

Business discussed was the sale of Claxton Fruit-cakes by club members and Furr's Cafeteria. These cakes sell for $2.50 a pound or may be purchased by the three-pound box for gifts.

Profits from cake sales will benefit retarded and physically handicapped citizens.

A report on the District Bowling Tournament for Retarded Citizens stated that those who placed will be invited to the State Tournament. The Civitans will help with their expenses.

Dear Abby

Law's Long Arm Can Slap Lady's Butterfingers

DEAR ABBY: My whole family is so frustrated and upset we don't know what to do, so we're writing to you. My sister, who is a cheerleader, was told to come to school prepared to have her picture taken with the other cheerleaders.

Mom gave Sis her 14-karat gold necklace to wear because she thought it would look nice for the picture. She gave Sis orders not to take it off. The necklace was a Christmas gift from Dad and cost $80.

Well, just before the picture was taken, the woman in charge of the cheerleaders' pictures told Sis she wasn't allowed to wear the necklace for the picture. Sis said she wasn't allowed to take it off, so this woman took it off her and held it while the pictures were being taken.

After the pictures were taken the woman couldn't find the necklace. She said she must have dropped it. All the cheerleaders helped Sis look. The lady also looked, and so did the photographer. Nobody could find it.

When Mom found out about it she was heartbroken and she went to the field, got on her hands and knees, searched for 2 1/2 hours and couldn't find it. Then she called the lady in charge. She just said she was sorry, all she could give Mom was $15 toward replacing the necklace.

Who is responsible for the necklace? We are totally lost. Can we sue this lady in small claims court?
FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: The woman who took the necklace for safekeeping is morally responsible for its return or replacement. You could threaten to sue her. (A threat sometimes produces results.) But I suggest that you talk to a lawyer first.

...

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked if a hostess should ask her guests if they want refreshments, or should she go ahead and serve something.

While your response was adequate, I think a more appropriate response would have been one my momma used to use:

"Ah gezunte goebt min. Ah kranke fregt min." I may not have spelled it right, but I think you will understand what it means.
MILTON SCHMERZLER, SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.

DEAR MILTON: I understand it perfectly. Your momma and my momma must have gone to the same school. And for those who require a translation, it means: "A healthy person you give. A sick one, you ask."

...

DEAR ABBY: NEEDS A BREAK, the wife and mother who wanted a week's vacation alone at the beach, is doing things backward.

Instead of going to the beach by herself, and then having to spend three weeks cleaning up the mess at home made by her husband and children in her absence, she should send them to the beach and have a glorious, restful week at home.

For my birthday present one year, my husband took my children camping for three days. I had a great time, doing exactly what I wanted to, when I felt like it, and I was as glad to see them come home as they were to see me again.

We were all revitalized and appreciated each other more after that.

NBC's journalism may indeed make difference

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's election-eve newspaper promotion was meant to suggest quiet confidence and competence, a bit of understated hypemanship in the intense ratings competition between the network news departments.

"NBC News. Journalism That Makes A Difference." Trouble was, NBC's election-night journalism may have indeed made a difference. In its drive to be first on election night, NBC declared Ronald Reagan the winner of the presidential contest with voting booths still open in nearly half the 50 states.

NBC scored a remarkable beat on its two competitors, ABC and CBS, but in so doing stirred the wrath of citizens who felt their votes had been muted. When NBC's Tom Brokaw pronounced, "It's all over, as far as NBC sees it," it was 8:15 p.m. in New York. It was 5:15 in Los Angeles, 2:15 in Nome, Alaska.

Afternoon and evening voters in the West, who awoke last Tuesday believing their votes would count in what was expected to be a close presidential race, were suddenly faced with the prospect of casting redundant votes.

Many, according to California Secretary of State March Fong Eu, simply passed on the opportunity.

Mrs. Eu canvassed the state's 58 counties at mid-day Nov. 4, leading her to conclude that California voters were turning out in numbers expected to exceed her pre-election prediction. Mrs. Eu had called for 79.3 percent of registered voters, but mid-day data suggested the turnout would be more like 81 percent.

"If things turn out normally," Mrs. Eu says, "the evening hours bring out a heavier vote than the daytime hours. But instead, it was lighter." After 6 p.m., the voting dropped considerably, resulting in a 76.3 percent turnout.

NBC News chief Bill Small discounts the influence of his network's early projection, claiming "You hear this whenever there's a landslide." Of Mrs. Eu's data, he says, "I'm not a statistician, but I'd just say that of those who were going to vote, more did so during the day and therefore there were less left to vote in the evening."

Besides, Small points out, while California's real voting percentage declined from 1976, the decline was smaller than the national average.

Mrs. Eu will not be swayed. Convinced that network projections discourage voters and therefore have an effect on local elections in the West, she is pressing for federal and state legislation that will close the nation's polling booths at the same time.

That seems to be the popular answer to the perceived problem of TV's intervention in the electoral process. Sen. S.I. Hayakawa of California, who says the process "was certainly injured" by the early call, plans to introduce a bill in the U.S. Senate mandating staggered voting hours across the country with the aim of simultaneous poll closing.

Young hero in hospital after risking his life

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Erik Raymond didn't know Donna Altieri when he threw himself in the path of a 40-pound tire hurtling up at her. Now the mother of four fights back tears as she sits at his bedside.

Raymond has been unconscious since the tire, knocked free in a race car collision and speeding at an estimated 70 mph, hit him in the head Saturday.

"He was willing to give his life for mine. I can't pick words out of my heart to describe what this boy has done," said the still shaken 33-year-old Mrs. Altieri after visiting him at the hospital Monday.

The teen-ager's mother, Mrs. Earl Raymond, said she wasn't surprised by her only child's act.

"We've tried to raise him that way — to think first of other people, not of himself," she said as she waited for word from doctors on tests done on her son.

"I'm very proud and very heartbroken, too," said Mrs. Raymond, her voice cracking. "My God is taking care of this. I have the utmost faith in him."

Mrs. Altieri, whose own 18-year-old son drives at the track, was sitting beside Raymond on the top row of bleachers at the Sunshine Speedway when two cars collided, jarring loose a wheel. The tire was hurled 30 feet into the air and spun over a 15-foot protective fence toward the spectators. Witnesses estimated it was traveling at 70 mph.

"I froze. I saw the tire coming at me," Mrs. Altieri said. "I said to myself, 'This is it. This is your ticket out. It's the end.' Then, Erik was there. He covered me like a blanket."

The wheel smashed into Raymond's head and slammed him face-down into the bleachers. He stopped breathing, Mrs. Altieri said, but two men from the crowd revived him with heart massage and artificial resuscitation.

No one was injured in the car collision.

Raymond sustained a concussion and severe head injuries and was in serious condition Monday night. There were no early signs of brain damage, but doctors weren't sure if he would be permanently impaired.

"Today, everything you hear is blood and guts, rapes and murders, what people — teen-agers — do wrong, not what they do right," Mrs. Altieri said. "Then you see something like this — what this boy has given up. It doesn't seem fair."

"My heart is broken for this boy. I owe him my life and I know there's no way to pay him back."

Interest rates take toll

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Americans on an economic treadmill and purchasing power at a virtual standstill, rising interest rates and persistent double-digit inflation are taking a new toll on sales of houses and retail goods.

The Commerce Department reported Monday that new-home sales fell 14 percent in September, while October retail sales edged down for the first time in five months.

This overall downturn was attributed heavily to the recent upsurge in interest rates, a trend that was underlined Monday when 13-week Treasury bill rates rose to 13.54 percent, the highest level since early April.

Six-month Treasury bills dipped slightly, but they still stood at 13.231 percent. As a result, starting Thursday, banks will pay savers as much as 13.481 percent on popular six-month money market certificates.

That rate forces banks and thrifts to charge steeper interest rates for consumer loans.

"Rising interest rates are hurting retail sales," said Robert Gough, vice president of Data Resources Inc., the Massachusetts economic forecasting firm. "If rates continue to go up, we can expect further softening in sales...during the pre-Christmas season."

His department said new-home sales during September stood at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 554,000, compared with a 643,000 pace in August. The drop was most pronounced in the South and Midwest.

Consumer prices are rising at a 12.7 percent annual rate. Moreover, food prices are moving up with particular force, and this is one family expense that cannot easily be avoided.

AIRBORNE PRESS. Howard College Hawk Ron Akins (32) flies high to block as many passing lanes as possible while his teammates apply full court pressure during second half of the Cisco-Howard game last night. Howard put on a frantic rally, but the Cisco team held on for a pulsating 87-85 win here Tuesday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The Cisco player trying to pass downcourt is Danny Priest (42).

Cisco hangs on for exciting 87-85 win

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Cisco College Wranglers held off a furious rally by the Howard College Hawks here Tuesday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, escaping with an exciting 87-85 win in the non-conference tilt.

And although there were many different variables in the hard played battle, it was the paradox of the benches that proved to be the biggest difference in the outcome. Howard played a total of 10 players, while Cisco only played seven people.

But the Cisco reserves that did play outscored the Howard College subs by a count of 26-8, and it was vital in allowing Tommy Collins team to come out on top.

Collins, the former popular Big Spring High School basketball and baseball coach, had lost six top players since school started for various reasons, and seemed both happy and relieved with the win.

"This is the first time in three tries back here that I've won," said the excitable Collins. "We played like a bunch of rag-tag football players at times, which a couple of our guys are, but still had some guys that came out and played better than they had this year."

One of those football players Collins spoke of was Will McKammy, a 6'0" guard who scored all 16 of his points in the second half when the Wranglers needed it the most to help keep the visitors ahead.

"You can tell he's a football player by the way he dribbles," said Collins, about half facetiously. "And he knew he had to hit those shots in the second half! If he misses, he knows we're taking his scholarship away."

Meanwhile, Howard College Coach Harold Wilder was both pleased and disappointed with the way his team played.

"We hustled as much as possible," said Wilder. "I can't be unhappy with our hustle. But we didn't have any depth at all. Bobby Word came in and played well, but other than that, they really hurt us in that department."

Cisco, behind the early shooting of Danny Priest and Lamont Robinson, exploded in the initial stages of the contest, taking a 20-10 lead with just over six minutes gone.

But Wilder called time out and regrouped his Howard College team, with the Hawks putting on a rally of their own, finally taking a 28-27 lead with 7:48 to go in the first half on a pair of free throws by Ron Akins.

But it didn't last too long, as Cisco came back to get the lead, with a final unanswered six-point outburst in the last minute of the half for a 46-40 Wrangler lead at intermission.

"I think that their little outburst in that last minute of the first half played the biggest part in our losing," a disconsolate Wilder stated in his office after the game. "We just lost our concentration for a minute and it cost us."

Holding a 50-45 lead just two minutes into the second half, the football playing McKammy came to life in the Cisco offense, reeling off eight straight points to boost the visitors into a comfortable 58-45 lead with just over 15 minutes to play.

But the contest was far from over, as Cisco, playing the denial defense that Collins preaches, was in foul trouble due to their physical style under the Howard College buckets, and the Hawks took advantage.

In both halves, the Hawks were able to hit the one-and-one bonus situations early, and it spearheaded a drive in the second half that put them back into the contest.

The fouls also hurt Cisco in other ways, as their already limited amount of players began fouling out.

The first to do so was reserve Steve Martin, who exited with eight minutes left and Cisco leading 71-63. Martin, at 6'8", was missed under the boards by the Wranglers.

The Hawks then narrowed the margin to 77-75 on a three-point play by freshman Randy Corker, and in the process fouled out Danny Priest, Cisco's agile 6'5" center who led his team with 19 points in the game. 5:19 remained in the game.

The momentum in Garrett Coliseum was definitely in favor of the Hawks at this point, as it appeared that the rapidly depleting Cisco team was ready to fold.

But it did not, with Robinson and McKammy hitting two key field goals in the next minute to increase the Cisco lead to 81-75.

Howard's Jeff Faubion came back with a pair of free throws, but Robinson answered with a short jumper.

The two teams then began trading baskets, and after three each the score stood at 87-81 with just under two minutes to play.

At this point, Howard's hustling sophomore, Kenneth Jones, scored once on a tip-in to narrow the margin to 87-83, then lifted the roof of the coliseum on a slam dunk off a Howard College steal to put the Hawks within two at 87-85.

With a frantic full court press on, the Hawks fouled Robinson with only 15 seconds remaining, hoping for a miss and a subsequent rebound.

Their wish was fulfilled as Robinson missed the attempt, and the Hawks quickly grabbed the rebound and brought the ball up the court.

But Akins delivered a flat shot from 18 feet out with five seconds to play. The ball bounced off the rim, and Cisco's Troy Woods grabbed the rebound to ice the Wrangler win.

"We wanted Kenneth (Jones) to take that last shot," preferable driving to the basket and drawing a foul," Wilder explained. "But he was covered and passed the ball to Ron."

The HC loss overshadowed another excellent offensive night from Corker, the massive 6'5" freshman from Trenton, New Jersey. He scored 27 points, with 17 coming in the big second half rally. Jones added 23, both from inside and with his patented shot from the corner.

Cisco's Priest had 19 points, but even more impressive was the overall balance of the Wrangler attack. Six of the seven players in the contest for Collins' squad hit in double figures.

The Hawks, now 1-1 on the year, hit the road today for Altus, Oklahoma, and the Great Plains Classic. Their first round opponent will be Wallace State of Alabama. That game is slated for Thursday at 5:00 p.m.

Cisco is now 2-1 on the year.

Hawk Queens continue success in rout

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawk Queens turned what was intended to be a tough battle into a laughter here Tuesday evening in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, doing nearly whatever they wanted in taking a 71-48 decision over the Cisco Lady Wranglers in a non-conference tussle.

Kelly Lyons spearheaded the Hawk Queens, who came out and established control early in taking a 34-19 half-time lead.

Lyons scored 14 of their 15 points in the opening half, and was the leading rebounder in the contest with 12. The 6'3" All-Conference star also had two blocked shots, and created frustrations for any hopes that Cisco had inside with their ace, Mitzi Henderson.

"Kelly did just a great job inside on Henderson and the rest of the Cisco team," said Howard College Coach Don Stevens. "Henderson (6'2") is an excellent player, and she was having to shoot her shots a little different because of Kelly's defense."

The Queens dominated all aspects of the game, and as usual, had a balanced attack. A total of nine players scored in the contest, with Lyons and freshman Cynthia Robinson of Slaton sharing high point honors with 15 each. Melissa Luna, a 6'2" freshman from El Paso, added 10 points.

The leading Hawk Queen rebounders, other than Lyons, were Luna and Jill Floyd, with seven each.

Peggy Taylor had 16 for Cisco, with Henderson adding 10.

The Cisco team outscored the Hawk Queens by 18-7 at the charity stripe, but it was the field goal shooting of the host team that proved to be devastating. Howard College hit 32 of 73 for a 43 percent mark, while the Cisco team connected on less than 30 percent of their shots from the field.

The win boosted the Hawk Queens record to 5-1, but it was difficult for Stevens to evaluate the performance.

"It's hard to tell how we played, because of the way Cisco played. They did not play well, obviously," said the Hawk Queen mentor.

"But it's still a good win," he continued, "because Cisco is a highly respectable team."

The Queens return to action next Monday at seven, at which time they host Howard Payne. But their next contest will be one weekend from now, when they are the host team in the newly prestigious Hawk Queen Classic. That tournament, also slated for Garrett Coliseum, brings in some of the top fem juco teams from around the state.

Steer boss sees San Angelo game as most vital

Although this Friday night's District 5-AAAAA football contest in Memorial Stadium between cellar dwellers Big Spring and San Angelo will have no great impact on the final league race like a contest some 60 miles west, BSHS Steer Coach Ralph Harris is feeling that it is just as important.

The contest 60 miles west of Big Spring is the battle between Odessa High and Odessa Permian, with the winner receiving a berth in the state playoffs.

"This game is just as important to us as it is to those people over in Odessa," Harris said yesterday. "I know some may not believe me, but it's very important for our program. But then again, it is also very important for theirs (San Angelo), too."

STEER COACH RALPH HARRIS

Both Big Spring and San Angelo will enter the contest Friday night with 0-6 records in 5-AAAAA play. The Bobcats also lost all three of their non-district games, while the Steers won two of three. Their wins came over Snyder and Sweetwater.

"This game, if we win, could serve as a great springboard for our team and our program," said Harris, who in his first year is attempting to pull a major overhaul on the BSHS grid fortunes.

"San Angelo is bigger than us inside, but not that much," he explained. "We do have an advantage in speed, however, and I hope we can utilize that."

"They (San Angelo) are not a bad football team," Harris continued. "In a lot of AAAAA districts around the state, they would be a very competitive football team. They are extremely sound in that they are well coached. They're just like us, they don't really know how to win consistently yet."

Meanwhile, Harris rates Permian as a favorite to defeat Odessa for the district championship.

"Permian has a far superior defense to Odessa High," he philosophized. "And they always say, in a championship game, go with the defense."

Logback will serve as master of ceremonies, with Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the church, being the guest speaker.

Stone edges Norris for AL Cy Young

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore's Steve Stone, the majors' top winner in 1980, won the American League Cy Young Award today in a close battle with Mike Norris of Oakland.

Each pitcher received 13 first-place votes from the 28-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America, but the Orioles' 25-game winner piled up more second- and third-place votes to emerge the winner by nine points, 100 to 91.

Rich Gossage of the New York Yankees was third with 37 1/2 points while teammate Tommy John finished a distant fourth with 14. Dan Quisenberry of Kansas City was fifth with 7 1/2 points, and Kansas City's Larry Gura and Baltimore's Scott McGregor tied for fifth with one point apiece.

Under the BBWA voting system, five points are awarded for first place, three for second and one for third.

"All along I thought I deserved it and I'm sure that Mike Norris thought he did," said Stone. "This decision in no way diminishes the type of year he had."

In his 10th major league season, the 33-year-old Stone posted a 25-7 record with a 3.23 earned run average. Norris was 22-9 with the A's and had a 2.54 ERA, second in the AL to New York's Rudy May, who led the league with 27.

Stone had two spectacular hot streaks during the season. From May 9 until July 26, he won 14 games in a row and from May 9 until August 23, he took 19 of 20 decisions.

"There was no pressure during the (14-game streak) because it kind of snuck up on me," said Stone. "I won a few and then had three no-decisions. Before I knew it, it was 8, 9 and 10 in a row and then came the All-Star break when I didn't think about the streak."

The right-hander tipped his cap to his bullpen.

"Tim (Stoddard) and Tippy (Martinez) did an exceptional job," said Stone. "Without them, there's no way I would have won the award. When I get the trophy, I expect to see all three names engraved on it. I'm not the kind of guy who can go out and complete 25 games."

Despite his mountainous victory total, Stone posted only nine complete games in 1980.

The season was by far the best for Stone in a checkered career.

Eligibility ruling in El Paso has UIL upset over "spirit"

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tom Jordan of El Paso says he moved to another school district because he wanted a better neighborhood, and he would have done so even if his son — a high school football star — had not wanted to change schools.

A University Interscholastic League official said Tuesday he thought Jim Jordan's parents had violated the "spirit of the law" in transferring from the Burges to the Eastwood district but a UIL committee agreed there was no evidence to rule Jordan ineligible.

kid moving in and that would cause dissension. I wanted to talk to him (Roberts) about that."

Jordan said Roberts told him "if Jimmy wanted to play, he would be given an opportunity but they didn't need him — they had a good football team."

Jordan admitted, however, that the two men had discussed "what constituted a bona fide residence." He said Roberts gave him a "copy of the rules."

Jordan said he signed a rental agreement for a house in the Eastwood area, which is part of the Ysleta ISD, on Aug. 14 and put his house in the Burges district up for sale. Fall football workouts had begun the previous day, and Jordan said he thought his son had worked out from the beginning at Eastwood.

Such a ruling would have forced El Paso Eastwood to forfeit every game in which Jordan played.

Jordan, a 6-foot-3, 225-pound senior, plays fullback and linebacker and punts. Tom Jordan said his son had been contacted by all the Southwest Conference schools about a possible scholarship.

Burges and Eastwood are in different districts in Class 5A but have been rivals for several decades.

UIL Executive Director Bailey Marshall said the Ysleta District Executive committee ruled Aug. 28 that Jordan was eligible even though Principal Tom Chavez of Burges had not signed the form approving his transfer.

The El Paso ISD contended the Jordans move was temporary, that the Jordans had placed such a high price on their house no one would buy it and they had rented a place only so their son could play for Eastwood.

Jordan was asked if he would have moved if his son were not a football player, and he replied, "Yes sir... It was just moving to a newer, nicer area."

"Jimmy was very unhappy. He just wasn't getting along well (at Burges)," said Jordan. "The kid needed to make a change, football or no football."

Assistant Superintendent Armando Gutierrez of the El Paso Independent School District described Jordan to the UIL State Executive Committee as "a tremendous prospect."

Jordan started at Burges as a sophomore and junior, and Gutierrez said he thought Jordan also had the potential to be a national champion in the discus.

Tom Jordan admitted he had asked Eastwood assistant coach John Roberts, a former Burges coach, to visit the Jordan home prior to the start of school.

Asked the purpose of the visit, Jordan said, "I was concerned that he was a new landlord and that he would be back in national title picture

Devine, Bear Bryant agree on Saturday's game

CHICAGO (AP) — Bear Bryant of Alabama and Dan Devine of Notre Dame long to be No.1 again but both realize it will be next to impossible for the loser of Saturday's game to nail down the national football championship.

Both coaches revealed Tuesday in separate telephone interviews with the Chicago Football Writers that top-ranked and undefeated Georgia is the main target.

"No.1 is still possible, yes," Bryant said "but our only chance would be for Georgia to go to the Sugar Bowl and for us to play them there."

Alabama, the defending national champion, had been No.1 before losing to Mississippi State two weeks ago.

Devine, whose Irish had taken over the No.1 spot from Alabama only to lose it to Georgia this week following last Saturday's 3-3 tie with Georgia Tech, also envisioned a possible bowl game against Georgia.

"Our destiny in the polls will be determined by what we do against Alabama and Southern Cal and whomever we play if we play in a bowl game," said Devine.

"If Georgia were No.1 and we had a chance to play them, we'd put on the moleskins or the uniforms and jump at the chance to play them," added Devine.

Out first there is Saturday's game between No.5 Alabama and No.6 Notre Dame and Bryant's chance for his first victory over the Irish who defeated the Crimson Tide 24-23 in the Sugar Bowl in 1973, 13-11 in the Orange Bowl in 1974 and 21-18 in South Bend in 1976.

"I've never beaten anyone," said Bryant, "my teams have. In the games we lost to Notre Dame, we might have won if I had stayed home. Notre Dame is a big name and it would be nice and I'd be happy if we could beat them."

Bryant said "I would have liked to have them beat Georgia Tech because it would have been to our advantage. But that alerted them."

About this Saturday's game, Bryant said "you have to keep from losing before you can win. You need good defense and a good kicking game and keep the mistakes down."

"My biggest worry Saturday is that one of their big linemen might run out of bounds and run over me," said Bryant. "Heck, I want to be around for a while. They do have an awesome defense."

Would Bryant like to meet Notre Dame in a postseason game?

"If they beat us this Saturday I'd go anywhere to play them, even Elkhart, Indiana," said the Bear, "but if we win, no, I wouldn't want to play them again."

Asked what he thought of Devine's assessment which was that Alabama would stick to about three or four basic plays this week, Bryant chuckled and said "I'm not planning on telling all the writers in the Midwest what we're going to do. What we hope to do is to do what they are not expecting us to do."

Neither coach would reveal his starting quarterback although Bryant said it would have to be one of his freshmen because of injuries and Devine's choice probably will be between senior Mike Courey or freshman Blair Kiel.

Split end Tony Hunter and tight end Dean Masztek both have been out with ankle injuries but Devine said he is listing them both as starters although "I may be optimistic but that's the way I'm going to do it."

New role for Murphy pays off for Rockets in win over Mavs

DALLAS (AP) — Calvin Murphy doesn't let a little "pine time" bother his shooting eye.

When Houston Coach Del Harris decided to alter his starting lineup against the expansion Dallas Mavericks Tuesday night, he moved Robert Reid from forward to guard, put Calvin Garret in Reid's normal forward spot, and sent Murphy to the bench.

But he had a hunch on what might happen.

The 5-foot-10 Murphy got his first bucket with five seconds to play in the first quarter, then finished with a game-high 23 points as the Rockets knocked off the Mavericks 105-94.

It was the 10th consecutive loss for Dallas, which still has a ways to go to menace the all-time National Basketball Association losing streak of 21.

"Calvin can really give a lift to the offense when he comes off the bench like that," Harris said. "I think he likes it."

Murphy, the 29th all-time scorer in the NBA, said: "Well, I did what I normally do. I just started a little later, that's all."

Murphy gunned home 9 of 18 field goal tries and was 5 for 5 from the free throw line.

Houston entered the game having lost four out of its last five games in a disastrous homestand.

The Rockets got 22 points and 18 rebounds from Moses Malone, 20 points from Rudy Tomjanovich, and 12 points each from Reid and guard Tom Henderson.

Tomjanovich scored 14 of his points in the third quarter when the Rockets put the game out of reach after Dallas had enjoyed a 47-45 halftime edge.

"Tomjanovich really got hot and Murphy did too," Dallas Coach Dick Motta said.

"They hit some tough shots with people hanging on them. We had a hard time with Moses, but everyone does."

The Rockets pressed the slower Mavericks, a strategy that has become a familiar sight during the Dallas losing streak.

Landry says NFL pass defense a victim of rules

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry says National Football League coaches are going to have to build a better quarterback trap to aid bomb-weary secondaries.

"Pass defense seems passe," said the coach of the Dallas Cowboys after another high-scoring week in the NFL which saw one of his teams as a victim to the lowly New York Giants.

"With the rules like they are, it's very difficult to play good pass defense," he said Tuesday, referring to liberal offensive line blocking rules and the receiver no-bump law on the NFL books.

Landry said "there will be a reluctance for the NFL to go back the other way (toward stronger defense). We don't need any more rules. The game is a coaching, innovation game."

"I just don't believe in changing rules. Where we were the defense was taking advantage of the offense. You would see Dave Casper go down the field and three guys would be hanging on him. Now you can't bump and the coaches are just going to have to make some changes."

He said the NFL was rapidly changing from the run to the pass.

"The pass is becoming the predominant thing," said Landry.

"It's the easiest way to get there. You still have to run to keep fear in the other team. But it's going to be tough on the defenses every week. There just aren't many easy teams any more. Most can pass and catch."

Landry said Tuesday his passer, Danny White, would be able to practice this week although his left shoulder is still bruised.

White only took three practice snaps last week then threw five interceptions in his worst performance since Roger Staubach retired in a 38-35 upset by the lowly Giants.

"White is still hurting but Dr. (Marvin) Knight tells us he is much better so Danny will get his practice time starting Wednesday," said Landry.

"White is hurt when he doesn't practice. Usually this late in the season, it doesn't bother a quarterback as much not to practice."

"But Danny was just not as mentally alert as he usually is in the Giant game."

White's status before the New York game was a well kept secret. Backup quarterback Glenn Carano worked hard with the No. 1 unit all week but Landry never used him in the wild-scoring game.

Dallas has surrendered 93 points in its last three games.

Landry took the Giant loss in relatively good humor, saying "This is a good week to regain your humility—if you have any."

Dallas is now two games behind Philadelphia in the National Conference Eastern Division with six games to play.

"Philadelphia is in the driver's seat," said Landry. "But the Eagles have got to watch complacency... they could get fat and happy."

"If we want to catch them, we'd better not drop too many more."

Landry said "there will be a reluctance for the NFL to go back the other way (toward stronger defense). We don't need any more rules. The game is a coaching, innovation game."

SMU appears headed to Holiday Bowl

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Southern Methodist will end its long quest for a post-season appearance Saturday night when it accepts a promised bid to the Dec. 19 Holiday Bowl in San Diego, according to a published report.

In a copyright story in today's editions, The Fort Worth Star-Telegram quoted "a high-ranking" official with a competing bid as saying SMU was "locked in" with the Holiday Bowl — regardless of the outcome its Saturday game with Texas Tech.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said the information came from highly placed sources in both Dallas and San Diego, the Star-Telegram reported.

SMU Athletic Director Russ Potts, who decides which post-season game the Mustangs will play in, said he could not confirm the report.

But Potts told the Star-Telegram that Holiday Bowl officials had met all requirements he set forth for an SMU appearance.

An unnamed source close to SMU told the newspaper: "it looks like you've done your homework."

Holiday Bowl Selection Chairman John Reid also said he could not confirm the report.

"I really can't say anything," Reid said. "The NCAA regulations are very restrictive about discussing anything before next Saturday."

Reid did say his committee expected to extend an invitation next Saturday and that the main objective was to get "the highest-ranked team with the best possible following."

Reid said the committee's top three choices were "SMU, LSU (Louisiana State) and Navy."

Of those teams, only SMU is ranked in the latest top 20 poll by The Associated Press.

Knight scores 52 in Pacer

win over Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — To Indiana's Billy Knight, the HemisFair Arena basketball hoops looked as big as wagon wheels so he proceeded to fill them up with a career-high 52 points.

"I like the hoops here in San Antonio. They are big; they are soft and I've always liked shooting here," Knight said.

He poured in 19 of 30 floor shots and 14 of 16 free throws to spark the Pacers to a 119-113 victory that snapped the San Antonio Spurs' 11-game homecourt winning streak Tuesday night.

Knight's outburst was just one point short of the arena record set by the Spurs' George Gervin last year.

"It's been a very tough road trip and this one eases the pain," said Knight, whose team dropped their first four games on a five-game tour.

Indiana coach Jack McKinney was extremely pleased his team won, despite playing without Johnny Davis who had a pulled groin muscle and George McGinnis, who injured a knee a may have to undergo surgery.

"We could have very well have made excuses about McGinnis and Davis being out tonight, but I told these guys that's a crock — go out and play tough and go out and play intelligent, and they did it."

"Indiana outworked and outplayed us tonight," admitted San Antonio coach Stan Albeck.

Zimmer could be Ranger boss

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Don Zimmer was to be named as new manager of the Texas Rangers today, according to reports in the Dallas and Fort Worth newspapers.

The Dallas Morning News quoted Rangers majority owner Eddie Chiles as saying late Tuesday that Eddie Robinson, the Rangers' vice president in charge of baseball operations, would have a "major" announcement to make at a news conference today.

The Dallas Times Herald and Fort Worth Star-Telegram offered similar speculation.

MR. TWINKIE — James Dewar prepares to unload a fresh shipment of Hostess Twinkies at his River Forest, Ill. home. UAW president will ask Carter to drop limit

DETROIT (AP) — A bitterly disappointed United Auto Workers president says the union will ask President Carter to override a federal decision to limit auto imports — a decision he says could cost more than 100,000 American jobs.

Though conceding such predictions were "awfully hazy," Douglas Fraser said, "You're talking about well over 100,000, minimal" lost jobs.

The International Trade Commission announced Monday it would not propose a tariff increase or quotas on imports of foreign cars or trucks.

Commissioners agreed the rising tide of imports, particularly from Japan, has seriously damaged U.S. automakers, but by a 3-2 vote it ruled that imports were not the sole cause of the domestic auto industry's woes and did not justify the protections sought by the UAW and Ford Motor Co.

Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell criticized the ITC decision, saying, "This country cannot afford the continuing exploitation of our automotive market by the Japanese."

Imports currently have a 26 percent share of the U.S. market, up from about 15 percent in 1975, according to industry figures. Four out of five imports are Japanese-made.

Ford and the UAW asked the ITC to recommend country-by-country quotas on imports at about the 1977-

78 level — roughly 1.7 million cars and trucks a year — for three years, with small increases in the following two years. The UAW also asked an increase in the tariff on cars from 2.9 percent to 20 percent.

In its decision, the ITC held that the domestic auto industry had been harmed in part by its own "inefficiency" in converting to smaller cars.

"I certainly can't agree with that," Caldwell said. "The United States has been hurt by a combined unwillingness to face the realities."

Fraser said he would ask Carter to act, but the president's spokesmen have said Carter cannot negotiate a limitation agreement without a recommendation from the ITC. Fraser and Caldwell both said they thought he could, adding Congress could give him the authority if Carter did not have it.

Congress also could approve tariffs or import restrictions. However, Fraser said he saw little hope of action in the post-election Congress, and said he did not know how the new Congress would react to limits on imports.

Fraser said the union would "intensify our efforts to try to convince American consumers before they buy a car that they owe it to the laid-off American autoworker to examine an American car."

Howard County Historical Commission members to help

Over ten families responded last Sunday to the invitation extended by the Howard County Historical Commission to help with their biographies, which will be printed in the book, Howard County History, in 1982.

Members of the commission will be available again next Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m., in the First Baptist Church Chapel to lend their services to those who would like help. Annie Matt Angel will be the chairman for the commission.

Everyone now residing in the county is eligible to submit up to 500 words and one picture, without charge. The commission is seeking to have information on at least a thousand families in the book. An estimated 500 families have already responded with the desired information.

Site needed for new main post office at Andrews

ANDREWS — The U.S. Postal Service is seeking a suitable site upon which to build a new main post office at Andrews, Postmaster J.C. Eades said here.

The "preferred area" for site consideration is bounded on the north by NW-NE Avenue "K," on the east by NE-SE 3rd Street, on the south by SW-SE Avenue "E," and on the west by NW-SE 4th Street plus the area between NW-SE 4th Street to NW-SE 11th Street.

Minimum site size needed is 60,000 sq. ft., or a lot with dimensions of 193 ft. by 309 ft.

Property owners are asked to submit their site offers no later than November 18, 1980 to: Bill Wright, reality management and acquisition specialist, Field Real Estate and Buildings Office, U.S. Postal Service, P.O. Drawer 239, Dallas, Tex., 75221.

After a suitable site has been located and the Postal Service has accepted an offer, an architect will be hired to design the building.

The proposed new post-occupied building will have 8,243 sq. ft. of interior floor space.

Newsman stuck in traffic

CHICAGO (AP) — CBS newsman Dan Rather has "been in and out of Chicago taxicabs" plenty of times, but this time he says he had some trouble getting out.

Rather than take the veteran reporter where he wanted to go, a cabbie allegedly refused to let him out and raced south on Lake Shore Drive at speeds up to 75 mph until an off-duty corrections officer forced him to the curb.

The driver, identified as Eugene Phillips, 38, of Chicago, was charged Monday with disorderly conduct and refusing to let a passenger out. He was released on $35 bond, police said.

Phillips said later he hadn't recognized Rather, who will succeed Walter Cronkite as CBS News anchorman next year, and refused to let the newsman out because Rather wouldn't pay his fare. In a television interview, he said keeping a non-paying customer in the cab was "standard procedure."

But it looked out of the ordinary to the off-duty Cook County Corrections Department officer who saw Rather "screaming and waving" and pursued the speeding cab.

Rather called the incident "a very minor thing."

"I've been in and out of Chicago taxicabs seemingly most of my life. Most of the time it's not a problem," he said in an interview with WBBM-TV, a CBS-owned station.

The incident began when Rather caught a cab at O'Hare International Airport and asked to go to the home of author Studs Terkel near Lake Shore Drive. Rather was to interview Terkel for a segment of the "60 Minutes" news program, said Jack Smith, Midwest bureau chief for CBS News.

Smith quoted Rather as saying the driver became "verbally abusive" during the ride and refused to turn off Lake Shore Drive when Rather pointed out his destination.

Corrections officer Marthile Lee was driving to work at the Cook County jail complex when she saw the taxi racing south.

"The passenger seemed extremely agitated," said Miss Lee, 30. At first she thought it was "probably just another tipsy passenger" until she noticed he was "screaming and waving" at every car.

The cabbie allegedly failed to stop when Miss Lee flashed her badge, so she and an unidentified driver began chasing the cab, forcing it to the curb several minutes later, six miles south of Rather's intended destination.

"The taxi driver was ranting and raving and cussing us out" and complaining his passenger had not paid the fare, said Miss Lee.

Phillips said he and his passenger began arguing because Phillips was having trouble getting to the address.

When they finally arrived, Phillips said Rather refused to pay the fare until he saw Phillips' license. But the driver said he couldn't produce the license because he had surrendered it pending a traffic court appearance. He was permitted to drive "on a ticket," or temporary license, until the hearing.

After trying unsuccessfully to collect the fare again, Phillips said he sped toward his garage.

Mystery witness may solve model's death

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men, Nathaniel Ivery, 26, and Patrick Steen, 21, both of Riverside, Calif., have been charged with attempted murder.

The owner of a 1980 Cadillac allegedly used by the accused gunmen also was questioned by police and released. He has refused to testify before the grand jury, prosecutors said.

Miss Piotrowski was admitted to a Houston hospital, where she is recuperating under an assumed name. She now is able to move around in a wheelchair but remains partially paralyzed from the waist down, said her attorney, Dick Degeurin.

The petite model lived with Minns, a 51-year-old advertising tycoon and founder of a health spa chain, until their three-year romance ended last March.

Several months ago, Minns filed theft charges against her for allegedly stealing several valuable items from his townhouse.

ON HAND FOR ONE-DAY WORKSHOP — Thirty radiologic technologists from throughout the area, including the four men pictured here, attended a one-day workshop at Malone-Hogan Hospital the past weekend.

From the left here are Walter Florio, El Paso; Ron Stvartak, an Eastman Kodak regional representative; Tom Brennan, Houston; and the local host, Dr. Buerk Williams.

X-ray examinations workshop gains praise

A one-day workshop of factors controlling the quality of X-ray examinations for patients was presented Saturday, Nov. 8, at Malone-Hogan Hospital, for 30 area radiologic technologists. The technologists came from 25 hospitals in the area, ranging from Artesia, N.M., to Amarillo, Tex.

Sponsored by the hospital's Continuing Medical Education Division (CMED), the Malone-Hogan Foundation of Big Spring, and Eastman Kodak Company of Rochester, N.Y., the format followed a combination of lectures followed by laboratory "hands-on" experiences.

Results of the presentation will be visible immediately in the area, according to Dr. Buerk Williams, radiologist and Chairman of the Radiology Department at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

"I have never seen such a complex subject so scientifically dissected and so lucidly presented as was this," he said.

Up until now, this course was taught only in New York at the Eastman Kodak Educational Center, and was a five-day course, said Dr. Bernard Zilberg, Chairman of the CMED. "Our need for the refresher course in this area, and our request for it, resulted in the film company's development of this concentrated presentation on problems controlling consistent quality X-rays that will not have to be retaken," the Chairman said.

The pilot program, conceived by the local group last spring, and spearheaded by Dr. Williams, was developed by Eastman Kodak's regional representative, Ron Stvartak. It posed a serious technical problem, since the only course available in the country was the five-day course taught at Eastman Kodak's Education Center in New York City.

Faculty expertise and the expense of cross-country travel for area technologists, were major problems identified by the local educational solver, supplied the answer to both.

Representative Stvartak, District Manager Tom Brennan of Houston, and Technical Representative Walter Florio of El Paso, top men in the company's western division, served as classroom faculty.

"It was tremendous," Dr. P.W. Malone, Foundation Chairman, described the quality control presentation. Limited to 30 participants to accommodate an afternoon laboratory session to allow technologist to experiment with instructors lecture suggestions, the class was full.

Participants rated the seminar highly, commenting that the opportunity to personally experience instrumentation and measurements pertinent to controlling image visibility of an X-ray film, under supervision of the highly qualified Eastman Kodak faculty, was outstanding.

The CMED group plans another radiological seminar for the fall of 1981.

Judge takes allocation suit under advisement

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge says he will decide later if the U.S. Department of Energy exceeded its authority when it ruled that Oasis Petroleum Corp. did not have all the allocation rights to gasoline supply contracts purchased from a Houston oil company.

Oasis attorney Tariq Kadri called the allegations "ridiculous" and said the charges were a tactic of desperation by a failed company.

Attorneys for Los Angeles-based Oasis argued Monday that the DOE retroactively applied regulations in an "arrogant and capricious" manner, interfering with contractual rights to the company's gasoline supply.

However, DOE lawyer Gary Conrad told U.S. District Judge Robert W. Porter that the agency properly followed clearly defined regulations that controlled the flow of gasoline during the critical shortage of 1979.

Attorneys for both sides asked Porter for a summary judgment in a suit filed by Oasis against the DOE and Research Fuels Inc. of Houston. But the judge delayed his decision until an unspecified date.

A ruling in the case could clear the way for RFI to pursue a $33 million cross-action against Oasis, which had been stayed.

The controversy surrounds Oasis' October of 1978 purchase of 84 RFI gasoline stations and two supply contracts, and the allocations tied to those contracts following adoptions of a new DOE base period just over four months later.

RFI, in its pleadings, contends Oasis drove it into financial ruin during the shortage of 1979 by bribery, conspiracy, back-room deals and a disregard of federal regulations controlling the flow of gasoline.

Oasis maintained earlier that Oasis was unaware of any investigations and that Oasis had done "nothing illegal unethical or anything else in regard to the acquisition of the RFI stations."

Monday's arguments centered around the sale of two supply contracts, RFI and the DOE maintained that the two suppliers still had an allocation obligation to the Houston company.

But Oasis insisted that RFI lost that allocation when it sold the supply contracts and the 84 stations.

Oasis argued that the DOE action was "another example of bureaucratic arrogance" and that it was a clear case of retroactive action by the agency and therefore null and void.

Will Reagan make Congress feel the Voters' heat?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan always said that if he got to the White House and couldn't make balking members of Congress see the light, he'd go over their heads to the voters and make them feel the heat. As president-elect, he is taking a more conciliatory tone.

There are sure to be controversies, and there are likely to be conflicts, between the Reagan White House and the 97th Congress, even with a Republican-controlled Senate. It goes with the territory.

But Reagan and his people aren't about to invite trouble.

President Carter came to office after saying he would go public to put pressure on a Congress dominated by his own Democratic Party, if that is what it took to get his programs adopted. His liaison people did not do their homework, and some of the first appointments he made unnecessarily irked House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., which hardly was the way to begin.

Reagan is organizing his forces to avoid mistakes like that. His campaign chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, is in charge of a congressional advisory committee to look after relations with the Senate and House right from the start.

Then too, the Republican president-elect does not have to talk tough to Congress the way Carter did — election returns speak louder than words. Reagan was elected by a landslide that helped Republicans gain a dozen seats in the Senate and enlarge their House minority by 33.

That not only leaves a good many Republicans in his debt, it sends a message to members of Congress in both parties: the voters opted for the conservative Reagan philosophy.

Carter had no such cushion. He was elected by the narrowest of margins, and coalitions didn't count for much. In most districts, it was the congressional candidates who led the Democratic ticket, not the president. And the candidates who went to Congress figured they didn't owe the White House anything.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

DENNIS THE MENACE

"If I forgot what I did, and you forgot what I did, what's the use of me sayin' I'm sorry I did it?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Mommy! How old do you hafta be before they can send you to jail?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOV. 13, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can solve a difficult problem when you are fresh and thinking clearly early in the day. Take constructive steps to overcome obstacles in your path of progress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to experts for advice you need. Take time to concentrate on making your life more harmonious with close ties.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on how you can be more productive in the days ahead. Sidestep one who likes to waste your time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to improve conditions at home. Use your own excellent taste where clothing and furnishings are concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can get your points across to others easily in the morning and get ahead in career activities.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle matters of credit intelligently in the morning and later you can join congenials for recreation. Be happy.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Going after your personal aims will see you gaining them quickly. Try to meet the expectations of family members.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning should be spent taking care of personal matters, then go after what means the most to you financially.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Close friends can be helpful in a new project you have in mind. An intuitive prompting could be wrong so forget it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Let others know that you are a good citizen. Study a new outlet that looks promising. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) New ideas you have can be put in operation quickly with good results following. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle your duties wisely, then engage in more pleasurable activities. Avoid the expenditure of too much money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make better arrangements with those you wish to be associated with in the future. Be practical in making your plans.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the knack for getting others to join in some worthy cause, and should have sufficient education in order to make the most of the ability. One who can easily gain the cooperation of others in almost any endeavor.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

History of Howard County You should be included in the centennial book

Whether you're an old timer or a newcomer to the area, the Howard County Historical Commission says you should be included in the centennial book, A History of Howard County, which is being prepared for publication in 1982. The book will offer the family history of anyone residing in the county who wants to be included in the book but such data should be supplied in the near future.

Up to 500 words and one photograph will be accepted without charge to the family. A typical offering is one prepared by the Oscar Gaskins family. The following information was prepared by Nora Gaskins and forwarded to the historical commission: On Jan. 1, 1920, a freight train from Broken Bow, Okla., rolled into Big Spring loaded with horses, cows and household furnishings belonging to John Smith. A car and pickup followed, carrying Dad, Mother and six kids; Clarence, Nora, Leonard, Alice, David and Lonnie. All were born in Bowie County in East Texas but had lived in Oklahoma for the previous two years.
