Photos of Saturn baffle scientists

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 1, speeding away to the edge of the solar system after a dramatic rendezvous with Saturn, has radioed spectacular photographs of the encounter — including some showing narrow braided ringlets that have left scientists baffled.

And in at least one spot, there is what looks like a kink or fold in the ringlets. "We may have to develop a whole new breed of celestial machinations" to account for the newly revealed Saturnian mysteries, said Bradford Smith, head of Voyager's camera team. "In this strange world of Saturn's rings, the bizarre has become commonplace," he said. He said the "braided, kinky ring" really has to be the strangest thing he's ever seen. "With the rendezvous over, scientists looked forward to the delightful

"headache" of interpreting the mass of data. "It all worked — it all worked beautifully," an exhausted Smith said Wednesday night. "I'm just ecstatic, but I'm too punchy to put it into words. It really is almost like being there." President Carter congratulated the Jet Propulsion Laboratory by telephone for "a superb scientific achievement." And Bruce Murray, the lab's director, said, "We have achieved something that earns the admiration of the world." Today, the robot spaceship was passing the moons Rhea and Hyperion. It will head for Iapetus on Friday and then leave Saturn's realm. More than 1 billion miles from home, Voyager 1 passed just 77,000 miles from Saturn on Wednesday afternoon, soared past the moons Tethys, Dione, Mimas and Enceladus and then ducked behind the planet. Voyager reached the climax of its 38-month journey as it cruised beneath Saturn's rings for the closest look ever at the swirling yellow clouds that make up the gassy planet's surface. Beneath a gauzy layer of haze, the clouds show long, ribbon swirls, dark spots and halos where winds and storms buffet the atmosphere. Closeups of the moons now show they consist mostly of water ice with very small rocky cores. Voyager found a canyon 50 miles wide and 500 miles long on Tethys and a gigantic crater covering nearly a fourth of Mimas' face.

Air Force jet crashes in Egypt killing thirteen

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A U.S. Air Force jet transport ferrying equipment to Egypt in the first overseas test of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force crashed and exploded in a "fireball that lit up the night sky" in the desert near Cairo West Airport, killing all 13 Americans aboard, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

why there were so few on board," said the spokesman. The Lockheed C-141 can carry 154 troops.

The spokesman said the transport had taken off from a base in Europe. But a Navy spokesman in Washington said the crew was from McChord and the plane was assigned to a unit stationed at Travis Air Force Base, outside San Francisco.

He said it was unclear whether the fireball was caused by exploding fuel or arms aboard the aircraft, a C-141 Starlifter. Associated Press photographer Bill Foley said the wreckage was spread over an area of less than a mile square. "It looked like it exploded on impact," he said. "There were no big pieces to be seen, but six sets of wheels were intact."

In Washington, defense officials said reports indicated the plane was carrying some unspecified explosives, liquid oxygen equipment, a fuel truck which they believed was empty, a pickup truck and some spare parts. It was the second fatal crash of a U.S. Air Force plane near Cairo in three months. An F-4 Phantom fighter went down southwest of the Egyptian capital on Aug. 16, killing both American crewmen. They were taking part in maneuvers with the Egyptian air force.

The four-engine C-141 Starlifter was coming in on the final leg of its approach to the Egyptian military field 20 miles west of Cairo, when it crashed just before midnight Wednesday among barren dunes about four miles north of the runway, the embassy spokesman said.

"We don't know the cause," he added. Egyptian Ministry of Defense spokesman Gen. Mohsen Hamdi told a news conference that the incident would not affect the military operation. He said that from a military standpoint casualties can occur in such operations. The conference had been arranged before the crash.

The plane carried six crewmen and seven passengers whose bodies were taken to Ramstein Air Force Base in West Germany today for transfer to the United States, Air Force officials there said. The spokesman at Ramstein, 75 miles southwest of Frankfurt, said the bodies were being prepared for transportation to an air base in the United States, probably Dover Air Force Base, Delaware, later in the day.

"It was carrying supplies for the rapid deployment exercise, and that's what we were looking for," he said. "The plane was carrying some unspecified explosives, liquid oxygen equipment, a fuel truck which they believed was empty, a pickup truck and some spare parts."

Gale warnings posted as Jeanne gains speed

MIAMI (AP) — Gale warnings were issued for the Louisiana and upper Texas coasts today as Tropical Storm Jeanne, downgraded earlier from hurricane status, picked up forward speed and headed for land.

National Hurricane Center forecasters in Miami said Jeanne, which lost some strength to the seasonally cooler waters of the northern Gulf of Mexico and now has top winds of 70 mph, was expected to hit the Louisiana coast Friday morning, pushing high tides ahead of it.

At 11 a.m. EST, the rare November storm was centered about 375 miles southwest of New Orleans, near latitude 25.8 north, longitude 94.0 west.

It was moving west-northwest at 15 mph and was forecast to maintain that speed while turning to the north later today and to the northeast by early Friday, said forecaster Gil Clark.

The gale warnings were issued for the stretch of Gulf coast from Port O'Connor, Texas, to the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Tides three to five feet above normal were expected along the Louisiana coast, while tides of two to four feet above normal were projected for the upper Texas coast, Clark said. He said there was a threat of beach erosion along the Texas coast.

Clark said the storm, downgraded from a hurricane late Wednesday, should get even weaker as it moves north.

"We think it's going to weaken, because it's completely surrounded by dry air from a front that's pushed from behind, plus the water temperature is rather cool," Clark said.

Before the storm weakened Wednesday, weather officials said Jeanne was the first Atlantic-area hurricane to form in November in 14 years. The storm also pushed farther north and west than any November tropical storm ever recorded by the National Hurricane Center here.

The Hurricane Center downgraded Jeanne to tropical-storm status when its winds dropped below the 74-mph hurricane threshold.

Judge Tune forced from highway

County Judge Bill Tune called Big Spring police when he was passed too closely by "some guy in a wedding truck," said Police Dispatcher Jeanette Rutherford.

The incident occurred around 9 p.m. Tuesday on IS 20. The driver "passed him and didn't give him enough clearance," said Mrs. Rutherford.

Police contacted Department of Public Safety Trooper Bill Jennings who escorted the man to the police department where he paid for a traffic ticket and left.

Jennings refused to comment on the incident. Tune called police from a location on W. 80.

Rajai, Khomeini meet to discuss reply to terms

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's prime minister met today with revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini while his aides were conferring throughout the day on the U.S. reply to Iranian terms for freeing the 52 American hostages.

Tehran radio monitored here said Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, in charge of handling negotiations on the captives, met with Khomeini to discuss "current events." The radio said they talked about the progress of Iran's 53-day-old war with Iraq and the problem of food hoarding and gave no indication whether the U.S. reply was also part of the agenda.

Rajai's top aides held a day-long meeting and were "probably discussing the American response on the hostages," according to a secretary to one of Rajai's aides reached by telephone from Beirut. He declined to elaborate.

Meanwhile, Israeli radio broadcasting in Arabic quoted a spokesman for Iran's Foreign Ministry as saying the government had studied the response and "it seems hard and long bargaining may precede the release of the American hostages."

However, a Foreign Ministry spokesman who identified himself as Mr. Hashemi told The Associated Press in Beirut "I strongly deny this report."

On Wednesday, a leader of Iran's revolutionary regime indicated the hostage crisis would go back to Iran's Parliament, the Majlis, because the U.S. government could not immediately meet some of the terms for releasing the captives.

Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, the president of Iran's Supreme Court and head of the Islamic Republican Party, Iran's biggest party, said the Majlis "would have to meet if one or two of the conditions set by Iran for the liberation of the American detainees cannot be legally fulfilled by the United States," the Algerian news agency reported from Tehran.

The U.S. response to Iran's four conditions was delivered to the Iranian government earlier Wednesday by Algeria, which handles Iran's relations with the United States. The contents were not made public. But U.S. officials said in addition to the pledge of non-interference in Iranian affairs demanded by Iran, it included an explanation of the legal obstacles to speedy fulfillment of the other three conditions.

The other terms, which were announced in October by Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime, and approved by the Majlis on Nov. 2, are the release of more than $8 billion in frozen Iranian assets in U.S. banks and their foreign subsidiaries, cancellation of all American legal claims against Iran and the return of the fortunes which the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his closest relatives transferred abroad.

An official in Prime Minister Rajai's office in Tehran said a Cabinet meeting was scheduled to discuss the American reply, but he did not know when it would be held.

Reagan's immigration policies

Bloodshed, radicalism feared

By STEVE SNIDER
States News Service

WASHINGTON — There is early agreement from some unlikely quarters in the immigration debate that a new toughness will mark the policies of President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Observers of alien and refugee matters during the Carter presidency — liberal and conservative alike — admit confusion about Reagan's position on key issues, but they uniformly predict stepped-up enforcement of immigration law in the new administration.

"I fear a new radicalism and I can truly envision bloodshed, said Ruben Bonilla, president of the South Texas-based League of United Latin American Citizens. "I can see the administration arming the Border Patrol with an appeal and expanded personnel and budgets."

Like Bonilla, Roger Conner of the Federation for American Immigration Reform predicts expanded policing of the border and an end to the Carter administration moratorium on job-site raids to detect illegal aliens.

"There is reason to hope there will be a more hospitable attitude toward enforcement of immigration policy," said Conner, who labels most Hispanic leaders as opponents of immigration reform. "I think the Reagan administration will take a more positive view of law enforcement."

Bonilla calls the FAIR position on immigration gracefully "the Ku Klux Klan without its robes," but bitter words between special interest group leaders are only one part of the new mood.

The day after Jimmy Carter's defeat, after more than a year in which the Immigration and Naturalization Service had no chief, the General Accounting Office released a report branding the INS as ineffective in enforcing immigration laws.

The GAO said about one million illegal aliens enter the country every year and the INS "does not have the means to identify, apprehend and deport them to the extent of putting an appreciable dent in their number."

Still a day later, the new chairman of the key Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said: "I would not favor the next president, or any other president, to allow people in as has been done under the Carter administration. I think we've got to enforce the immigration laws."

Despite these early post-election events the major players in the immigration issue have little information on likely policy in the Reagan administration or who will direct it as INS commissioner.

"My feeling is that immigration will be relegated far down the ladder of importance in the new administration," said San Antonio attorney Matt Garcia, who withdrew his own nomination to head INS in a letter to Carter following the election. "Any increase in effort is going to be in enforcement."

Reagan's statements have generally extended open arms to refugees from communist governments, especially Cuba and Vietnam. But his comments on illegal Mexican immigration (80 percent of the total) have promised only a "comprehensive" policy as opposed to the "stop-gap" measures of the Carter administration.

At a September campaign appearance in Texas, Reagan said the U.S. should "document the undocumented workers and make them legal coming into our country... for whatever length of time they want to stay." But a day later, Reagan appeared to reverse himself by calling for the issuance of temporary work visas for aliens that would last from three to six months, a proposal favored by Gov. William Clements of Texas.

"Reagan's attitudes on immigration are generally vague and unformed," said Conner. "I am hopeful his statements in the campaign were made out of a general feeling of good will to immigrants, not as specific policies."

Search for Poet stopped

NEW YORK (AP) — The Coast Guard says it will suspend its search for the missing 12,000-ton freighter Poet if no clues have turned up by tonight.

Search planes from the Coast Guard, Navy and Air Force have covered more than 200,000 square miles of the Atlantic since the search began Nov. 8.

The vessel and crew of 33 left port Oct. 24 bound for Port Said, Egypt, with 13,500 tons of corn. It radioed its position that night and has not been heard from since. A severe storm rocked the North Atlantic the next day.

Prison guards end strike

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — Guards at Brushy Mountain Penitentiary ended a 16-hour strike when state officials promised to return the officers' wooden clubs and supply better tear gas to quell inmate uprisings.

The walkout at the state's maximum security prison began Tuesday after four security officers were stabbed and two others were injured while trying to subdue an inmate armed with a homemade knife. The next morning, none of 166 guards was on duty.

The clubs had been removed from the prison's arsenal last year.

Watergate scandal returns

BOSTON (AP) — The research firm that analyzed the 18½-minute gap on the Watergate tapes has been fined $706,000 for overcharging the federal government over a six-year period.

Two officers of Bolt, Beranek and Newman also were fined $20,000 each by U.S. District Court Judge Walter J. Skinner on Wednesday and given six-month suspended sentences for their alleged role in juggling books and altering documents to get a higher price from the government.

Salvatore P. Luciano of West Peabody, vice president for corporate services, and Harry R. Kirsch of Newton, vice president of finance, also were put on probation for a year.

New alcohol study out

BOSTON (AP) — A study of doctors who run in marathons gives more credence to evidence that moderate drinking may help prevent heart disease, say researchers who still are reluctant to recommend use of alcohol.

Earlier studies have shown that people who exercise vigorously have higher-than-usual blood levels of certain fats that help protect against heart disease.

In the new study, published in today's New England Journal of Medicine, researchers found that marathon runners who drank six ounces to 18 ounces of alcohol a week had the highest levels of the fat.

Kuwait blames Iran for attack on border post

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Kuwait blamed Iran today for an aerial rocketing of a northern border post, the first reported incident in which the Iran-Iraq war spilled into a neighboring nation. Saudi Arabia pledged to protect Kuwait "against any danger" and Qatar also gave support.

The Kuwaiti government of Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah said it had lodged a formal protest with Iran over the incident Wednesday, when two exploding rockets hit the desert outpost of Abdali but caused no damage or casualties. It said Qatar's pledge of support came in a message from Qatar Sheikh Khalifah bin Hamad al-Thani.

Haitians forced off island by police

CAYO LOBOS, Bahamas (AP) — More than 100 Haitians who swore they'd rather die than return to their impoverished homeland were reported on their way back to Haiti today after Bahamian policemen forced them off this tiny island, where they had been marooned for 40 days.

Yelling "Pack up and get out!" officers chased 102 people onto the gunboat Lady Moore for the 36-hour trip to Port-au-Prince, Haiti's capital.

Some Haitians tried to flee into the brush or run into the ocean, although there is no land within miles. But most had huddled at a decaying lighthouse to await policemen. Officers reportedly beat at least one man with nightsticks, and reporters heard "cracks that sounded like rifle fire."

Bahamian officials said they believed all the Haitians were captured and there had been no injuries.

Cos-Mar plant expansion in Louisiana gains okay

DALLAS — American Petrofina, Inc., and Borg-Warner Corp. have agreed to begin construction of the first phase of an expansion which will ultimately bring the Cos-Mar Styrene Monomer Plant at Carville, La., to a total capacity of 2.2 billion pounds annually. Present capacity is 1.3 billion pounds.

The first phase, which will cost more than $50 million, calls for the replacement of existing ethylbenzene alkylation equipment with a 1.3 billion pound styrene unit. The new unit will enable the plant to more economically utilize raw material and energy with no increase in effect of the environment.

The second phase, not yet approved by the boards of directors of the companies, calls for the expansion of styrene monomer manufacturing capacity by 900 million pounds annually.

Groundbreaking is scheduled for the first quarter in 1981, with completion set for mid 1982.

Process Plants, Inc., will provide the engineering, procurement and construction services. The ethylbenzene unit will utilize the mobil-badger process.

Howard College ACT scores higher than state average

In a group comparison of the American College Test (ACT) scores for students taking the ACT test for admission to Howard College, test results show that entering freshmen at Howard College are above the state average in all five categories, according to Mary Dudley, Director of Counseling and Guidance at Howard College.

"This is a good indication that our freshmen students, most of whom come from Big Spring and the surrounding area, are more academically prepared than others from across the state," said Dudley. "And by being more academically prepared, the transition from high school to college could be easier."

There are five different categories in which students are scored. They are English, mathematics, natural science, and an overall composite.

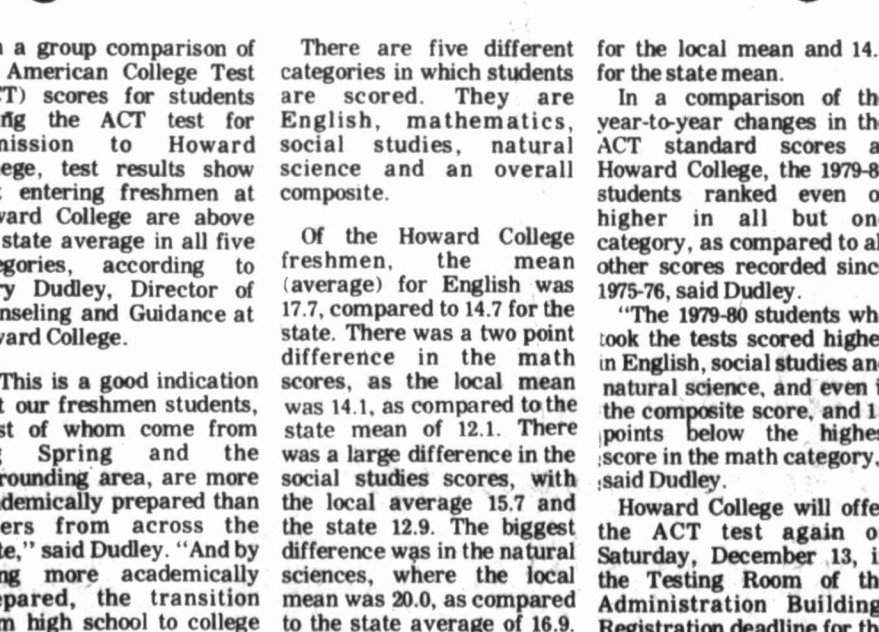

Of the Howard College freshmen, the mean (average) for English was 17.7, compared to 14.7 for the state. There was a two point difference in the math scores, as the local mean was 14.1, as compared to the state mean of 12.1. There was a large difference in the social studies scores, with the local average 15.7 and the state 12.9. The biggest difference was in the natural sciences, where the local mean was 20.0, as compared to the state average of 16.9. The composite score was 17.0 for the local mean and 14.3 for the state mean.

In a comparison of the year-to-year changes in the ACT standard scores at Howard College, the 1979-80 students ranked even or higher in all but one category, as compared to all other scores recorded since 1975-76, said Dudley.

"The 1979-80 students who took the tests scored higher in English, social studies and natural science, and even in the composite score, and 1.2 points below the highest score in the math category," said Dudley.

Howard College will offer the ACT test again on Saturday, December 13, in the Testing Room of the Administration Building. Registration deadline for the test is Nov. 14

It said Qatar's pledge of support came in a message from Qatar Sheikh Khalifah bin Hamad al-Thani.

Meanwhile, Saudi state radio broadcast a text of the message to Kuwait from King Khaled. "Saudi Arabia will come to Kuwait's aid against any danger it is exposed to," it quoted the message as saying.

A Kuwaiti government spokesman said Wednesday that an unidentified warplane fired the rockets at the outpost. Both Iraq and Iran reported air raids on each others' targets "in that general area."

Iraq said its forces shot down three Iranian Phantom jets, and one crashed in flames inside Kuwait near Abdali. The border post is a few miles southwest of the Iraqi naval base at Umm-Qasr and south of an Iraqi air strip at Safwan across the border where Iran said its jets bombed oil installations, military vehicles and a mobile radar.

Oil-rich Kuwait, with a population of 1.4 million, lies southwest of Iran and north of the Saudi oil kingdom. Qatar, also wealthy because of vast oil holdings, is a peninsula projecting into the Persian Gulf from the Saudi mainland with a population of 107,000.

On Wednesday, Iraqi warplanes and artillery hammered Abadan, but Iran claimed it drove the invaders farther back from the northeast side of its besieged refinery city as the Persian Gulf war entered its 53rd day.

The Tehran command said residential areas of Abadan came under renewed attack from Iraq's long-range artillery Wednesday, and that six policemen were killed in an Iraqi air attack.

It said Iraqi troops northeast of Abadan were forced to retreat from the palm groves on the Iraq-held side of the Bahmanshir River. It claimed 50 Iraqi tanks and personnel carriers were seized in the fighting.

Abadan is the last Iranian stronghold on the Shatt al-Arab estuary, Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf.

Tax board members reject audit bid

By DON WOODS

Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board received one bid for an audit of the Howard County Tax Appraisal Office and turned it down.

The bid was from John Wilson, CPA, for between $1,500 and $2,400 plus out-of-pocket money, depending on the services rendered.

"I bet you we haven't written a hundred checks, have we?" asked Appraisal Board Member Jack Watkins. Ruth Mitchell, tax office director, said just over 300 had been written.

Billy T. Smith, appraisal board member, pointed out that at the minimum the cost of the audit would average $5 a check.

Board members then discussed asking for an hourly rate. Accountants work for around $50 an hour. "One man could do this and play golf for half a day," said Smith.

Mrs. Mitchell was instructed to call the approximately seven accountants who were originally notified of the bid. She will tell them to resubmit their bids in January when the tax appraisal office will change fiscal year from October-September to January-December.

She was also instructed to ask bidders to mark "bid enclosed" on the outside of the bid envelope, because Watkins had questioned the seals on the bid envelopes.

Senate Bill, 621 which put the Tax Appraisal Board into existence, requires an audit of the appraisal office, which is governed by the tax appraisal board.

The ownership mapping process was discussed by the board.

Watkins and Lila Estes, board member, suggested that the mapping was not necessary for the SB 621 mandated re-appraisal of county parcels.

Mrs. Mitchell pointed out that mapping was crucial to the reappraisal because without it appraisers couldn't determine unequivocally who a parcel belonged to.

The board members moved to purchase four certificates of deposit at $10,000 each. One CD already purchased matures in January.

They also moved to meet with Howard County Commissioners Court to discuss computer services performed for the appraisal board by the county.

Howard County Water District officials met with the appraisal board to discuss the reason their bill from the appraisal board had not been paid.

Clown of renown thrills students

The boys and girls in Room 109 at Moss Elementary School learned more about a local clown of renown today when Quail Dobbs "made-up" two of the youngsters and showed the class a video tape of his escapades.

"This came out of a story in our reading book, 'Clown on Horseback,'" said fourth grader teacher Mildred Buchanan. Chris Mullins' class also attended the presentation.

Dobbs brought clown make up and a miniature replica of his arena outfit.

Dobbs wore his costume and dressed one youngster identically.

"Don't anybody try to do this," Dobbs told the class as they squealed over the flame thrower Dobbs pretends to use to extinguish the flames in his outlandish car on the video tape. The clown was being during a rodeo in Casper, Wyo.

"Do you like to wear those baggy pants?" asked one of the pupils. "Sure I like to wear these baggy pants," boomed the clown who later signed autographs for the group.

Meet to form family service center scheduled tonight

Another meeting as part of an effort to form a family service center for persons visiting residents of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at First Methodist Church.

Marian Froman, temporary chairman, urged everyone interested in a ministry of helping people who come here to visit their husbands or fathers to take part in the meeting. The target is to set up some sort of clearing house where families can get information, perhaps transportation, or to freshen up after a long trip to visit their loved ones who are completing their terms in a voluntary effort.

Weather

Texas has mixed bag of weather

By The Associated Press

A tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico, unseasonably warm temperatures, showers and thunderstorms, a cold front and the possibility of snow in the Panhandle combined to give Texas a mixed bag of weather today.

Tropical Storm Jeanne was located early today about 400 miles southeast of Corpus Christi, moving slowly northward at about 5-10 mph. Tides were two feet above normal along all the Texas coast during the pre-dawn hours today and were expected to rise rapidly as the freakish November storm moved closer to the coast.

At its current speed, the storm would likely not cross the Texas coastline until sometime Friday afternoon or night. No mention was made of where the storm might make landfall.

The National Hurricane Center warned that small craft should remain in port along the entire Texas coast. The National Weather Service offices at Corpus Christi and Victoria warned campers and fishermen to stay off beaches and avoid low lying coastal areas because high tides ahead of the storm could swamp the beaches and cut off escape routes from the low lying immediate coastal area.

A cold front was expected to move into the Panhandle tonight. Forecasters said temperatures in the Panhandle would dip into the low 30s tonight and said the front would likely be accompanied by showers and thunderstorms. Some snow might be mixed with the rainfall by early Friday in northern sections of the Panhandle, forecasters said.

The cold front was expected to cross the entire state by late Friday, bringing with it some scattered showers and thunderstorms and cooler temperatures, bringing to an end the unseasonably warm statewide temperatures of the past week.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy and warm today except increasing cloudiness and cooler with a chance of showers or thunderstorms Panhandle. Chance of rain central and north tonight and most sections Friday. Rain, possibly mixed with snow northern half of Panhandle late tonight and Friday. Widely scattered thunderstorms central and southeast tonight. Colder most sections Friday. Highs 60 Panhandle to low 80s Big Bend. Lows low 30s Panhandle to near 50 extreme south. Highs Friday upper 30s Panhandle to low 70s Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Temperatures near seasonal averages with a chance of rain most sections Saturday. Highs near 60 north to 70s south. Lows 30s north to 40s south.

FORECAST — Rain forecast Friday over much of the eastern half of the nation, excluding the Atlantic coast and Maine, according to the National Weather Service. Snow is predicted on portions of the western edge of the rain area and showers are predicted in the Pacific Northwest.

By blocking pre-Reagan tax cut

Congress begins lame-duck session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lame-duck Democrats in Congress, firing a parting shot at victorious Republicans, are blocking GOP efforts to enact a Ronald Reagan-style tax cut before the president-elect moves into the White House.

Carter doubts accuracy of budget cut figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, hitting anew at the economic policies of his successor, says the only way Ronald Reagan's advisers could find 6 percent of the 1981 federal budget to cut would be to devastate programs to aid the nation's disadvantaged.

"It's easy to say you can eliminate 6 percent, but you can't eliminate 6 percent of veterans' benefits, 6 percent of Social Security payments, 6 percent of defense capability," Carter said Wednesday during a surprise appearance in the White House press room. "If you talk about 6 percent of the total, you are talking about 35 to 40 percent of things that can be cut and that's an extraordinary reduction on things like Head Start."

Democrats on the House Budget Committee challenged Reagan to honor his promise of a 2 percent cut by voting Tuesday to set a budget ceiling that would force the president-elect to slash spending by $17 billion, or about 2.5 percent, from the current budget drafted by the committee's staff.

Edwin Meese III, head of Reagan's transition team, said earlier Wednesday the president-elect's advisers have drawn a list of possible government cutbacks totaling almost 6 percent of the 1981 budget. Meese said a spending-control task force drew up the list so that Reagan could fulfill a campaign pledge to cut the budget by 2 percent.

Reagan will "sift and choose from among the recommendations... and then we'll announce what revisions he feels are warranted," he said.

At his impromptu news conference, Carter said a 2 percent overall cut is "within the realm of feasibility," but he added: "Whether it's practical, I don't know."

The outgoing president said he hopes that despite the conservative wave that swept him out of office, Reagan will not abandon compassion for the disadvantaged.

tax-cut bill if it reached him in his remaining nine weeks in office. And at an impromptu White House news conference, Carter said, "To try to hammer out a major tax cut would be inappropriate and I would do everything I could to discourage it."

Senate Democrats decided earlier in the day against even considering the tax cut during the lame-duck session, leaving the issue for the Reagan administration and the new 97th Congress.

While Republicans were still expected to press for enactment of a tax cut this year, the action by Senate Democrats seemed to make their quest a moot issue.

Byrd and O'Neill, meanwhile, met privately Wednesday and decided to make the lame-duck session as brief as possible, handling only essential money bills and some issues already well on their way to passage.

Republicans were no more eager than Democrats for a prolonged session.

The lame-duck session is a last stand for 17 senators and 65 House members, many of them Democrats swept out of office in the Reagan landslide.

Republicans will hold a 53-47 majority in the new Senate, reversing 25 years of Democratic rule. Democrats will retain control of the House, but by a sharply reduced 243-192 margin.

O'Neill will be his party's highest-ranking elected official once Carter leaves the White House, and he said he hopes to have a major role in picking a Democratic national chairman to rebuild the party.

"I don't intend to be speaker of the House and allow my party to go down the drain," the Massachusetts Democrat said.

Pipelines... make good neighbors

America has over 220,000 miles of petroleum pipelines carrying crude oil and products to refineries and storage terminals across the United States. Each day, more than 1.5 billion ton/miles of crude oil and products move through this network. These pipelines have a safety record second to none in the transportation industry... and we want you to help us keep it that way.

- liquids on or a mist above the ground in the area of a pipeline.
- Flames originating from an opening in the ground.
- If you become aware of a pipeline leak...
- LEAVE THE LEAK AREA IMMEDIATELY.
- Avoid driving into vapor clouds.
- Avoid direct contact with the escaping liquids.

When you see signs like those shown above, they tell you that there's a pipeline nearby. If it's underground, you can't see it, of course. But it's there, working quietly to provide energy for you and other consumers throughout this nation.

- Some of these signs list the commodity transported in the pipeline, the name of the operator, and a telephone number where the operator's representative can be reached at all times.
- Although pipelines have an exceptionally good safety record, once in a while a leak can occur. Indications of a leak might include:
 - A strange or unusual odor in the vicinity of a pipeline.
 - A hissing or roaring sound (caused by petroleum or product escaping from a pipeline).
 - A dense white cloud or fog.
 - A spot of dead or discolored vegetation.
 - An accumulation of petroleum

- Avoid creating sparks or sources of heat which could cause the liquids or vapor to ignite and burn. If you find yourself in a suspected vapor area, do not light a match, start an engine or even switch on an electric light.
- Notify the pipeline operator as soon as you reach a safe area. Call collect. Give your name, a description of the leak and its location. If you do not know who the pipeline operator is, call your local fire, police or sheriff's department, or the state police. Advise them of the nature and location of the emergency.
- If you see someone digging near a pipeline or doing other construction work... or if you plan to do such work near a pipeline yourself... please call the telephone number shown on the sign and let the pipeline company know so damage can be avoided. It's in your interest... and the nation's.

America's Petroleum Pipelines

Handguns and school just don't mix

Handgun Control Inc., a Washington-based organization dedicated to the proposition that handguns promote trouble, continues to apply pressure to members of the Congress to pass tougher handgun control laws. Handgun Control points to an ominous statistic — that September's death toll due to hand guns was 613, that 5,995 persons died in the country during the first eight months of the year from bullets fired by Saturday Night Specials and other small firearms.

(Of that group, 67 perished in Texas alone during the 30-day period).

SEPTEMBER, SAYS the spokesman for handgun control, is a particular bad month for shootings. People start back to class that month and many are threatened, harmed or killed during that period — students and teachers alike.

In Jacksonville, Fla., a 35-year-old teacher named Jim Scherney was shot in the wrist by someone among a group of three students in the school parking lot.

In Baltimore, Md., Michael Clark, 16, was robbed at gunpoint of a camera in his high school.

In Mobile, Ala., Marian Green, 46, a physical education teacher at Shaw High School, was gunned down by another teacher.

In New Brunswick, N.J., a Rutgers University teaching assistant was held up at gunpoint and robbed of cash he had made from selling theater tickets.

In Brooklyn, N.Y., Charles Guica,

17, was shot and killed in the schoolyard of John Jay High School his first day in class. He had come to school for a program designed to bring dropouts back to the classroom.

In Havre de Grace, Md., a youth who preferred to remain anonymous said he was threatened by two gunmen who had entered the high school gym.

In Miami, Fla., Glenn Jackson, 15, was shot in the back by a classmate at MacArthur High School. The two youths were walking to a classroom together when the suspect shot Jackson with a .22-caliber revolver.

In Washington, D.C., Adrian Precia, 17, was killed in an assembly at Spingarn High School. Several students were passing around a .25-caliber pistol that another youth had brought to school when Precia was accidentally shot and killed.

COMMENTING ON THE death of Adrian Precia, D.C. school superintendent Vincent Reed said "A person brought a concealed weapon to school in his pocket. Security couldn't have prevented that."

D.C. Mayor Marion Barry said he was "deeply upset by this senseless and unnecessary tragedy — a young life gone because a way has not been found to prevent our children from carrying guns around."

Reported singularly as they are in the nation's newspapers, the deaths caused by handguns may not promote national mourning. When studied collectively, the reports are staggering.

Bachelorhood

Around the rim

Don Woods

Bachelors live on a day-to-day basis, managing and making do with the responsibilities of two people, working during the day and taking care of a household in the evening.

Maybe this is why unmarried males commit more crime than any segment of American society. They're just used to getting everything themselves.

I speak with some authority on this since I have been one since the day I was born; an unmarried male, that is — not a criminal.

Various kinds of bachelors exist but one kind is summed up in a line from Shakespeare's play "Much Ado About Nothing."

Benedick: I will live a bachelor. That completely and simply epitomizes the attitude of the confirmed bachelor. He will assuredly be married within the year.

Don Pedro prognosticates this fact in his challenging response to the freedom-lover.

Don Pedro: I shall see thee, ere I die, look pale with love. But Benedick manfully stands his ground, holds his guns and sticks to the fort.

Benedick: With anger, with sickness, or with hunger, my lord, but not with love. (I don't know who this Benedick guy is, but he is just asking for the assured results of what shrinks call "reverse psychology.")

WASHINGTON — It is all too common in government to cover up a scandal by silence. When a bold denial turns out to have timid foundations, our political paladins have the habit of disappearing into an impenetrable stillness. This escape into the void has now been attempted by President Carter in the Robert Vesco matter.

He was loud in his disavowals and denunciations back in September 1978, when I first reported Vesco's multimillion-dollar plot to bribe White House insiders. But last month, a key figure in the conspiracy, White House aide Richard Harden, had a chance to clear up the charges and air his grievances against me before the U.S. Senate. Yet the president invoked executive privilege to prevent his aide from testifying.

SENATE INVESTIGATORS had put together a damning case against Harden from his own telephone logs and appointment records. Sens. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, were prepared to ask a series of devastating questions that would have implicated the president himself in the scandal. But the mute Harden, who had put on such a show of injured innocence two years ago, was kept off the witness stand.

In 1978, I reported that Vesco, a financial flincher on the lam from the law, had delivered $12 million worth of stolen stock to Georgia cronies of the Carter administration. A $10,000 advance was paid to Spencer Lee IV, a close friend of presidential aides Hamilton Jordan and Richard Harden, to arrange access to the White House for Vesco.

The fugitive wanted to stop extradition proceedings and settle his legal difficulties in Washington. In return, he promised to help the Georgia group cash in the stolen stock, which wasn't negotiable on the legal market. He also offered to use his influence with Costa Rica's President Daniel Oduber and Panama's President Omar Torrijos to arrange a favorable Panama Canal treaty that would make Carter look good.

HARDEN HAS admitted to a federal grand jury that Lee informed him of the Vesco scheme on Feb. 8, 1977. But Harden swore that he persuaded his good ol' Georgia buddy to pull out of the conspiracy and have nothing more to do with the notorious Vesco. That put an end to the plot, Harden claimed, before it could go any further. A week later, he routinely advised the president of the incident, he said.

But this account doesn't square with the evidence that has now been assembled by Senate investigators. The records, reviewed by my associate Indy Badwar, show that Lee huddled with Vesco and Costa Rican officials in Costa Rica, then formed a corporation in the Bahamas for laundering the proceeds from the stolen stock. This was completed in January 1977.

On Feb. 8, Lee turned up at the White House for a 3 p.m. appointment with Harden. The two had dinner together that evening and then met with R.L. Herring, a convicted embezzler, who had recruited Lee into the Vesco plot. At 9:50 the next morning, Lee telephoned Harden.

According to Senate investigators, Lee and Harden decided to ask the president to arrange a meeting for them with then-Attorney General Griffin Bell to discuss the Vesco case. Both Harden and Lee denied this under oath before the grand jury. But Lee agreed to take a lie detector test, which showed he lied about this. The two men also denied that they had ever mentioned the Vesco deal to their mutual friend, Hamilton Jordan. Yet suspiciously, Harden's appointment diary shows that Jordan dropped by Harden's office for a visit at 11:45 a.m. on Feb. 9, two hours after Harden had conferred with Lee on the telephone. It was a rare occasion: in the next nine months, Jordan made only one other recorded visit to Harden's office.

But here's the most curious entry: At 4:47 p.m. on Feb. 9, President Carter telephoned Oduber in Costa Rica. This was an unlikely person for the president to be calling only 20 days after taking office. The call was placed the day after Lee admittedly told Harden about the scheme to involve Oduber in the Vesco caper.

On Feb. 15, Harden conferred in the oval office with the president who penned a note the same day to his attorney general asking Bell to see Spencer Lee "when he requests an appointment."

Harden's telephone logs show that he had at least 10 phone conversations with Lee between Feb. 9 and March 11. The two friends also met in the White House on Feb. 24 and April 18. Lee also called upon Jordan in the White House on Feb. 24, Feb. 25, March 3 and April 18.

All these contacts occurred during a period when Lee was in frequent contact with the fugitive Vesco. For the Senate investigators have proof that Lee, contrary to his sworn statement, did not cut off all contact with Vesco on Feb. 8. The Justice Department, meanwhile, dropped extradition proceedings against Vesco, although there is no record that Lee ever kept the appointment that the president arranged for him with Bell.

The Carter administration has blocked both Harden and Vesco from testifying about these suspicious events before the Senate.

WATCH ON WASTE: Jumping on the solar energy bandwagon at long last, Department of Energy bureaucrats have lavished federal grants on "demonstration projects" around the country — more than $45 million worth. But an internal DOE report admits that many of the 200 projects are not operational, while some of them actually use more energy than they produce. One dim-bulb demonstration in Disney World, Fla., was justified on grounds of its "public accessibility" — but it's in the theme park's service area, where the public is not allowed.

Indeed, he is soon married to a perfectly lovely filly who unknowingly coins the name of a famous meal when she calls to him from the kitchen, "Eggs, Benedick?" after their first night together between the nuptial sheets.

Yes, though Benedick thought he was as a rock in his determination to be calibrate, he was actually, like the rest of us, between a rock and a hard place. Bachelorhood being the rock and marriage being the hard place.

Notice the comparative pettiness of Benedick's conservation after his marriage when he later speaks.

Benedick: I have a toothache. He should have stuck to his fort. Bachelor life is not always the easiest I admit, but I keep getting these hints that the grass is greener on my side of the fence.

This is illustrated well by a conversation I had with Janet and Spence over dinner the other night, when I explained that a certain acquaintance did not object to a new beard I am sporting because she is not the kind of girl who tries to mold a guy's looks as far as his clothing and facial hair, but rather accepts him the way he is.

Janet just looked at Spence and said with a smile,

"Don't tell him."

There is one thing, maybe two, I am looking forward to in marriage: someone to make the bed while the other cooks breakfast so I don't burn the bacon while I run upstairs to make the bed in the morning.

De-aligning election

Joseph Kraft

LOS ANGELES — President-elect Reagan won by a bare majority of the popular vote. But President Carter, with only 41 percent, lost big. So disappointment with his poor record and tapoca style had to count a lot in the outcome.

A weak foreign policy also mattered. Pat Caddell, Carter's pollster, told the Cabinet election day that the last-minute flurry about the hostages in Iran, and the impasse which then developed, cost the president five points. That could be merely the alibi of the losing pollster. But Americans did resent the holding of the hostages, and did find in that drama a sign of waning influence around the world.

STILL, THERE WAS at work a deeper spirit of resentment, a sense of having had it, of being fed up. That spirit worked in the North and the South, and in the East and in the West. It worked on men and on women, and on blue collars and on white collars. It worked against Carter, but also against candidates unconnected with him or his foreign policy. It worked against Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas and Sen. Bob Morgan of North Carolina, and Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon. It worked, in other words, across the board.

Inflation produced the pervasive negative spirit, that will have done at any cost. It has been Public Enemy Number One for years, and it was the big issue in the campaign. If the election afforded any single mandate, the message said: "Stop inflation."

Certainly the message comes in season. The core rate of inflation — that is, the rate by which prices rise independent of outside shocks from such variables as food and energy shortages — is now over nine percent annually. With the country emerging from recession, moreover, inflation is rising again.

Ronald Reagan and his associates, however, are poorly positioned to apply the brakes. The president-elect ran on a prosperity theme, promising "jobs, jobs, jobs." He also pledged higher defense spending. He will have to eat a lot of rhetoric if he is to avoid a big tax cut next year, and a hike in the military outlays. So it will be hard for him to achieve the balanced budget that is a condition of a tight fiscal policy.

A TIGHT MONETARY policy will come much more easily. Reagan and all his economic advisers believe in squeezing credit as a check on inflation. Their theory is that a tough stance on the money supply communicates to business and labor the need for restraint in raising prices and wages.

But experience shows that business and labor get that message very slowly. Long before they do, the present recovery will self-destruct. Business activity will slump, and unemployment hold high. With capacity idle, companies will be loath to invest. Productivity — or output per manhour — will stay flat.

In those conditions, the economy becomes a sitting duck for outside inflationary forces. Two are already in the wings again. The conflict in the Persian Gulf foreshadows an oil shortage and new rise in energy costs. Bad harvests prefigure increasing food prices.

Those shocks could be cushioned by government actions to limit price and wage increases. But Reagan and his advisors regard such intentions as heresy. So the prospect ahead is for a long period of slow growth and high inflation. Maybe Reagan can govern effectively in that atmosphere. The Democratic opposition has been picked to pieces. Liberalism, the quintessential party faith, is a passion torn to tatters. Practically every constituent group strayed from the famous coalition this year and ended up for grabs.

Horseshoe kidneys fairly common

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My kidneys are joined together on the right side. In the last four years I have had a lot of pain in my right lower back and I cannot sleep on my right side anymore. If I do, I have severe pain and can hardly move to get out of bed. Three years ago, I had all kinds of kidney tests and everything came out OK. I am 36 years old. What is the future in this kind of condition? — Mrs. C.W.

When the two kidneys are joined together, like Siamese twins, that is a "horseshoe kidney." It happens in about one out of 1,000 births. That's quite a number of horseshoe kidneys around if you figure it into the total world population.

The horseshoe kidney usually causes no problems, but there is a slightly greater chance of obstruction to urine flow from a horseshoe kidney. When urine flow is blocked, the chance of infection increases.

You are having pain now, so must be re-examined. Even though everything was fine three years ago, with the symptoms you now report you have to make sure the obstruction-infection process has not now emerged. Get that done right away. If the obstruction is relieved and any infection taken care of, the outlook is good. Anyone who has a horseshoe kidney should be alert to signs of flank or back pain and be examined promptly.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a desperate five-foot, 102-pound 13-year-old looking for a simple way to lose 12 pounds. I try crash diets, skipping meals, etc., but after each diet I pig out on sweets. Can you please write me a sensible way to lose weight? — I need help! Miss J.S.

You should have convinced yourself by now that your previous weight loss methods were not wise choices. In fact, there probably is no safe way for you to lose weight, and for the simple reason that you don't need to lose weight. You're just about right according to my charts. You are not overweight. Why the desperation?

I might add a few words here for other desperate young girls who might want to lose weight. They should not use crash diets or skip meals, especially during puberty or pre-puberty years. They need sensible, well-planned diets that allow them to get all the necessary nutrients on their growing bodies without starting up unnecessary fat.

They have to learn good nutrition if they expect to keep extra weight off during their lives. I would like to give them details on how to do this, but my answers have to be somewhat short. I am glad to find nutrition courses popping up in most high school curriculums. Proper nutrition is the important answer to weight control. There are sensible weight-control tips in the booklet "Lost Secrets of Reducing." For a copy, write me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Donohue: We have a 21-year-old son who is in really good health. But for the last three or four years he has had boils, mostly on his neck. He has to have them lanced and they are painful. Is there anything he needs in his diet, or could his skin oil be the problem? — Mrs. T.W.

There is nothing for him to change specifically in his diet to solve his problem. If he is overweight, dieting to lose weight might help. Obesity is associated with recurring boils. He should also be sure there is no underlying illness, such as diabetes, involved. The oiliness of his skin might contribute to his problem. Boils appear on areas of friction, like the neck and in areas of increased heat, sweat and oil. Frequent washing is an integral part of treatment.

Because boils are caused by the staph bacterium, all efforts must be made to keep that organism under control. Careful hygiene and frequent washing of bed clothing at high temperatures helps, as will daily changes of them. A draining boil should be covered to prevent spread of the staph.

If all these measures don't help, your son may have to use an antibacterial ointment (bacitracin or Neomycin) applied to the inner part of his nose. Staph may lurk there after having been eliminated from the skin. Perhaps the use of disposable tissues would be a wise idea for him. The staph can be transferred from the nose back to the skin.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I caught a football wrong and it was coming very fast. My hand still hurts two weeks later. I had an X-ray at the time, but nothing showed wrong with my hand. It hurts mostly right elbow my thumb. I thought it was just a bruise, but I don't think that would last this long. Do you think so? — N.S.

You should have another examination of the hand. A break of a small bone at the base of the thumb, the navicular, may not show on the first X-ray. The break may not be seen for some time after the injury. A simple bruise should not give pain this long.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble" — it could be dangerous. Read the booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need to Know About Them." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Something is lacking in my life but I don't know what it is. How can I have the peace of God that you talk about? — Mrs. S.S.W.

DEAR MRS. W.: The Bible tells us that God created us and that we were meant to live in perfect harmony and fellowship with him. He was to be the center of our lives, and we were to follow him in love and obedience. In that way we would be truly happy.

"But something went wrong, and that 'something' was sin. The human race turned its back on God — and has been suffering the consequences ever since. Today, men frantically try to find happiness and peace of mind and heart in countless ways — pleasure, money, power, even false religions. But there is only one way for us to have lasting peace, and that is for us to return to God. We must let him become our Lord once again, seeking to follow him in love and obedience. God is the missing ingredient in your life, and my prayer for you is that you will turn to him and let him fill your life.

How can you come to know God's peace in your heart? First, you must acknowledge that you need God. You need his forgiveness for your sins, and you need his direction in your life. Don't let your pride get in the way about this point. Your pride may tell you that you do not really need God because you are not such a bad person, but do not listen. You need God, and the sooner you are honest about your need of him, the sooner you can discover the joy of being his child.

You must come to realize what God has done for you. He loves you, and the proof of his love is that he sent his son, Jesus Christ, into the world to bring you salvation. Through Christ's death on the cross and his resurrection, he opened the way to heaven for you. All you must do is turn from your old way of living — living without God in your life — and trust him. "Since we have been justified through faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" (Romans 5:1). Live with him each day, learning to entrust every situation to him, and you will learn more and more the reality of God's peace in your life.

Dear Editor: Commuting each day to my job in Big Spring, I, too, want to say the water leak problem has taken a complete turn.

Your city should be proud that Bud Moore initiated to reduce the leakage problem. Sometimes it only takes knowledge and a little common sense to get the job done.

My opinion is that your city manager, Don Davis, should have a place in City Hall for Mr. Moore to help better the situation from the total standpoint of the overall problem.

LUMBERVILLE STORE — Gerald Gordon is a happy fellow as he stands in front of the Lumberville, Pa. village store recently.

Mob hit man testifies

Chasing 'La Cosa Nostra'

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly two decades ago, a stubby minor mobster named Joe Valachi sent a chill up American spines with his sensational behind-the-scenes exposure of the organized crime syndicate. He was the first to identify the mobby by the name of La Cosa Nostra, "Our Thing."

Now, in a Mahattan federal courtroom, a latter-day snitch, Aladena "Jimmy the Weasel" Fratianno, is updating the legend of La

Cosa Nostra. "The Weasel is singing like a canary and his tune is carrying us to thresholds far beyond those reached when Valachi ripped the veil of secrecy from the Cosa Nostra," a government source said recently, asking not to be quoted by name.

Fratianno, a confessed hit man, is the star government witness at the ongoing racketeering trial of Frank "Funzi" Tieri, 76, called "the senior member of the national commission" by the prosecution — in short, the top dog of organized crime. The New York trial should go to the jury in a week. In Los Angeles, another jury is already deliberating a verdict following a trial in which the star witness was, again, Fratianno. Five reputed California Mafia members are charged with various crimes connected with the 1977 gangland execution of mobster-turned-informer Frank "The Bomp" Bompensiero. The jury has been deliberating six days.

At both trials, the prosecution asked Fratianno how a member gets out of the Mafia. "You come in alive and go out dead," he testified each time. "There's no way out of the organization."

Fratianno, a dapper, silver-haired 67, has admitted participating in 11 gangland murders. He pleaded guilty to two rubeouts and became a government witness in 1974 in return for a five-year sentence.

Sinatra never made a deal. He performed at the theater but was not linked to its fraudulent operation. At the Tieri trial, Fratianno testified that La Cosa Nostra operates in 20 U.S. cities with one family in each city except New York, which has five. He identified Tieri as boss of New York's Genovese family.

Said Assistant U.S. Attorney Nathaniel Akerman: "This is the first time anyone has ever been charged with being the boss of a crime family."

As Valachi had before him, Fratianno said each boss presides over an underboss and a senior counselor, known as a "consigliere." Capos, or captains, supervise lower echelon members, known as soldiers.

News helicopter reportedly crashes, killing five

MIAMI (AP) — A helicopter carrying four network TV technicians and a pilot crashed while returning from the Bahamas to Miami, and all five persons aboard were killed, according to reports received today by officials of a helicopter company.

The U.S. Coast Guard, which had launched an air-sea search after the craft was reported overdue Wednesday night, said it could not confirm the crash.

The helicopter, the Bell Jet Ranger, carried two-man technical crews from NBC and ABC news who had been covering the story of a group of Haitians marooned on an island in the Bahamas.

The pilot was tentatively identified as George Snow, an independent pilot from Miami.

Maurice Johnson, operator of Crescent Charters in Miami, identified Snow as a veteran pilot who served as secretary-treasurer of the Helicopter Association of Florida.

"The word we have from (other pilots) in the Bahamas is that they're all gone. They were all killed in the crash," Johnson said.

He said the helicopter reportedly crashed west of Andros Island, about 170 miles southeast of Miami.

Coast Guard spokesman Greg Robinson quoted a Bahamian spokesman as saying that the helicopter had two-man crews from both ABC and NBC. Robinson said Coast Guard aircraft and cutters were searching the Florida Straits, between Miami and the Bahamas, and the shallow waters on Grand Bahama Bank.

Fratianno said each boss presides over an underboss and a senior counselor, known as a "consigliere." Capos, or captains, supervise lower echelon members, known as soldiers.

The "national commission," he said, is composed of the New York bosses and the Chicago boss, who "more or less handle disputes with other families."

A highlight of Fratianno's testimony here was his account of his 1948 initiation into the Los Angeles Cosa Nostra.

"You are more or less proposed by somebody. Sometimes you do something significant. Sometimes you have a brother or father in it. They took me in a room by myself. There was a long table where all of the members were sitting. There was a gun and a sword crossing one another in the middle of the table.

"They all stood up. We held hands. The boss said something in Italian... Then they prick your finger with a needle or a sword until blood draws. Then you go around and meet each member of the family. You kiss them in the cheek and you're a member."

"They tell you that you come in alive and go out dead. There's no way out of the organization."

Valachi had none of Fratianno's mob prestige when he turned government informer in 1963 before the Senate rackets subcommittee.

Valachi, then 59, had been initiated into the late Vito Genovese's New York family at the age of 27 and worked as a sort of sergeant, above a soldier but below a capo.

During the investigation, FBI agent James Flynn asked Valachi about the crime syndicate: "What's the name? Is it the Mafia?"

"No, it's not Mafia," Valachi replied.

"We know a lot more than you think," Flynn persisted. "Now I'll give you the first part. You give me the rest. It's Cosa..."

Valachi paled, then replied: "Cosa Nostra! So you know about it."

Valachi went on to testify extensively against the Cosa Nostra, describing it then as a nationwide network consisting of 27 families and more than 5,000 members.

Pennsylvania store offers perspective

LUMBERVILLE, Pa. (AP) — In a world of turmoil and hurry, the place to draw a deep breath of perspective and restore your soul is the Lumberville Store.

The date chiseled above the store is 1770.

The store was opened for business then and is open for business now, but at a pace that matches the soft ripple of the Delaware River, flowing in its patient journey to the sea.

At the store, sitting around the stove, as the villagers have done for two centuries, it seems improbable that tomorrow will bring any surprises to Lumberville.

The villagers seem to sense that reassuring fact, just as they know, with calming certainty, that the red oak out back, older than the store, will add another growth ring next spring just as surely as it shed its brown leaves this fall.

"The common bond of the 500 residents of Lumberville," said the store's proprietor, Gerald Gordon, "is the area itself. We love the peace and the solitude. We're not looking for headlines. We're not looking for change."

Not that great events have entirely passed the area by. Walk across the street from the store and drop a stick in the Delaware River. When it floats eight miles it will arrive at the spot where George Washington crossed.

The store was six years old then and probably didn't look much different than it does now.

The ageless stone for its outside walls was quarried locally. The quarry is still in operation. Its wide planks and timbers were sawed locally, at George Wall's lumber mill.

A PLACE THAT GIVES ONE PERSPECTIVE — Lumberville, Pennsylvania, located on map, is a town of 500 residents which has a general store that dates back to 1770. The store was opened for business then and is open for business now.

George Wall founded the town; his business named it. A lumber mill still thrives in Lumberville. It has been in the same family since 1869. Continuity.

Each morning, Gerald Gordon's first act is to hang a flag from the porch roof of the store.

Gordon is not only the store's owner but also the town postmaster. The jobs have gone together since 1835, when the flag had 24 stars and the storekeeper didn't have to fuss with postage stamps. They hadn't been invented yet.

Gordon's next duty every morning is to light the stove and put on a pot of coffee.

When the store was put up for sale 10 years after Heed's death, Gordon, who is 34, leaped at the opportunity.

To My Love,

Dessie

*I have valued your companionship the thirty years past.
May God bless in the next,

I pass on to you
Because all these years you have been sweet and true.*

as naught. But a curse.
But I'll tell the world,
I could have done worse.*

Representative leadership provided by 4-H councils

Youth involvement at all levels of program development is an essential ingredient for a successful 4-H youth program. 4-H councils at various levels provide representative leadership and insure two-way communication between volunteer leaders, Extension personnel and young people, points out Andy Vestal, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The Extension Service is the parent organization of 4-H.

At the county level, 4-H's, usually 12 years and older, elected to the county 4-H council assist in making decisions about county programs which affect them. Through their linkage to local 4-H clubs, the youth help develop programs of interest to young people. They also stimulate junior and teen leadership by actually developing and helping with planned countywide events and activities. Elected representatives to the district 4-H council work closely with the Extension staff in recommending and planning large-scale youth programs. Activities might include planning junior leader training, youth fairs, career development programs or special activities, notes Vestal. The Texas 4-H Council allows youth between 15 and 19 years of age to interpret the 4-H program to the public through statewide activities. Representing 150,000 4-H boys and girls in Texas, state council members make public appearances at fairs, shows, regional meetings and workshops to tell about 4-H in Texas. They also plan and take part in state events, serving as a working staff.

4-H councils provide an important learning experience in democratic principles. By identifying the needs and interests of 4-H youth, exploring action programs, and determining future 4-H efforts, council members are acquiring skills for effective adult living, said Vestal.

The Howard County 4-H Council includes: Scott Robinson, chairman; Jamie Phillips, vice chairman and Robin Ethridge, secretary-treasurer.

Other members are: Cole Hunt, D'Ann Hall, Jamie Phillips, Laurie Daniels, Joie Brummett, Scott Underwood, Lorri Roman, Kevin Buhkuhl, Paula Allen, and Reagon Brooks.

Dear Abby

Aloof Husband Needs A Kick in the Ego

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 20 years. He leaves me alone a lot, refuses to even try to communicate with me, says he is not affectionate, doesn't really need me, and is his own best company. He states that he needs attention from other women to boost his ego, and he thinks I should develop my own interests to keep myself occupied.

ROOMMATE
DEAR ROOMMATE: I would tell him I am leaving anyway, because in order for me to be happy, I need someone who needs me, enjoys my company and is affectionate. I would state that I do not need a man who requires attention from other women to boost his ego, nor one who thinks I should develop my own interests to keep myself occupied. And since he refuses to communicate with me, I would tell him if he really doesn't want me to leave him permanently, he should communicate with my lawyer, and perhaps we can work it out.

DEAR ABBY: In your confidential to RETIRED AND BORED, you left out one of the great avenues for relief to boredom: Volunteering in schools, especially elementary schools.

As you said, "The older citizen possesses the wisdom and patience of age" — the wonderful qualities schools are looking for. Our children love their voluntary grandmas and grandpas.

In Tacoma, we have a PROJECT RAISE (Retirees Active In Student Education) that welcomes the help of our older citizens. Most schools and school districts have some kind of program or way to use volunteers of all ages. The opportunity is as close as your neighborhood school.

STEVE MONDAU, PRINCIPAL, BRYANT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL, TACOMA, WASH.
DEAR STEVE: Thanks for tipping me off on Tacoma. Readers elsewhere need only to call their local schools and offer their services.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Blackwell nominated for highest FFA degree

James Blackwell of Stephenville has been nominated to receive the American Farmer Degree, highest degree presented by the National Future Farmers of America (FFA) Organization. Blackwell was nominated for the degree by the Texas FFA Association. The nomination was approved at a recent meeting of the National FFA Board of Directors in Alexandria, Va., virtually assuring the awarding of the degree. One of 782 FFA members nominated for the American Farmer Degree, Blackwell will receive the degree in a special ceremony today, pending a final vote of 121 student delegates representing nearly half a million FFA members.

Travel awards will be presented to American Farmer Degree recipients to offset their travel expenses to the National FFA Convention in Kansas City. At the convention each American Farmer Degree recipient will be presented a gold key and certificate by the National FFA Organization.

Couple announce birth
Mr. and Mrs. Ronny Klaus, 1408 Sheppard Lane, announce the birth of a daughter, Amanda Kristen, at 3:39 p.m., Oct. 30, in Malone-Hogan Hospital. Amanda weighed 7 pounds 8 1/2 ounces and measured 20 inches in length.

Amanda's maternal grandparents are Leo Ashinhurst, Jacksboro, and Mrs. John Ross, Jerome, Ariz. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Klaus, 1309 Mulberry. Great-grandparents are Ora Ashinhurst, Big Spring and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Newsom, Big Lake.

The American Farmer Degree is much sought after because it is only presented to approximately one member in 700 of the 481,676 member organization. It is presented only by the National FFA Organization to members who have demonstrated exceptional agricultural and leadership achievements.

Blackwell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Blackwell of Coahoma and is currently a sophomore student at Tarleton State University majoring in animal science.

He earned the American Farmer Degree on the basis of project program in beef, cattle, breeding swine, show barrows, breeding horses and Spanish goats. He was active on leadership teams, judging teams and other school activities. Blackwell served as Area IV FFA president and was state winner in diversified livestock award.

His high school vocational agriculture instructors and FFA advisors were Charles Allcorn and Stanley Blackwell of Winters.

ALL THE TRIMMINGS that go with a holiday turkey dinner need not be "off-limits" to those on low-cholesterol or weight-reducing diets this year. Replace butter with Butter Buds 100 percent Natural Butter Flavored Granules when preparing such dishes as creamed onions, candied yams and turkey dressings, and watch the calorie count drop and the cholesterol virtually disappear!

How to stay trim with all the trimmings

Roasted turkey, generously ladled with gravy and stuffed with savory herbed dressing, tangy orange-glazed yams, onions in cream sauce... all the traditional delights of holiday dining await you.

Only problem is, for the millions of Americans who must watch their cholesterol count, or who want to shed pounds, turkey with "all the trimmings" may turn out to be less than a trimming experience.

But, wait! This year you can enjoy your holiday feast with virtually no cholesterol, and with fewer calories, too.

How? By replacing that fatty trouble-maker, butter, with Butter Buds 100 percent Natural Butter Flavored Granules from Cumberland Packing Corp. Butter Buds is made from real butter, yet contains 99 percent less cholesterol than butter and 94 percent fewer calories than either butter or margarine.

Butter Buds also costs far less than either of these high fat spreads. To use Butter Buds, mix the contents of one packet with one-half cup warm tap water, and the granules dissolve instantly to yield melted butter flavor and consistency.

The following recipes give guidelines for preparing a festive feast that's free of high-cholesterol foods and is holiday for weight-watchers, too.

And, no one but you will ever know it isn't the same rich meal you served last year!

YUM-YUM ORANGE YAMS
(Makes about 8 servings)
3 pounds cooked yams or sweet potatoes, peeled (about 3 1/2-4 pounds raw)
1 packet Butter Buds
1 cup orange juice
3 packets Sweet 'N Low
Grated rind of 1 orange (approximately 1/4 cup)
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Cut potatoes into pieces and arrange in a baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients, and spoon over yams. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees F. for 20-30 minutes, basting once or twice with the liquid.

Hand ficked friend an ultimatum

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: My best friend and I are really close, that is when she doesn't have a boyfriend. When she has a boyfriend, she doesn't even know that I exist.

I'm really fed up with this kind of treatment. I expect her to be my best friend regardless of her love life. Why does she do this and what should I do about it? — Sissy, San Diego, Calif.

Sissy: Many girls expect their girlfriends to understand when their time is being monopolized by a boy. This isn't right and you have good cause to be upset.

Every time she was between boys, good old Sissy has been there waiting for her, but the next time should be the last. Inform her (if she isn't tied up with a boy) that her girlfriends may come and go but that you have always been her friend. But if she shuns you again, your friendship is over and mean it!

Dr. Wallace: Janet and I have been best friends for the last nine years and we are both 16. Janet is going steady with Mitch and she really likes him.

Last week Janet wasn't around so Mitch gave me a ride home, but we didn't go straight home. While we were parked, he told me that he doesn't like Janet and he really likes me. His kisses told me it was true.

Ever since that night, I haven't been able to sleep because I think that I love Mitch. Should I tell Janet how I feel? — Faye, Florence, Ala.

Faye: If you haven't been able to sleep at night it shouldn't be because you love Mitch. It should be your conscience telling you that you suffer from a "Brutus" complex. (I'm sure you've read "Julius Caesar").

Don't tell Janet anything and stay away from Mitch.

In Caribbean politics

Moderates make strong gains

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Prime Minister Michael Manley's defeat in the Jamaican election was the latest in a string of political victories for moderates that have slowed the spread of Cuban President Fidel Castro's influence in the Caribbean.

One reason for the swing to moderate and conservative politicians, West Indians say, is a growing realization that the West, with its financial resources, its markets and its tourists, offers perhaps the only practical key to solving the Caribbean's paralyzing economic problems.

Manley's open friendship with Castro frightened off foreign and local investors and he could not meet the International Monetary Fund's terms for continued loans. Production dropped, unemployment soared, and professionals left the country. The crisis forced the socialist prime minister to call early elections on Oct. 30.

Edward Seaga won the election by linking Manley to Castro's communism and blaming him for Jamaica's economic crisis. That left Cuba with only one sure friend in the Caribbean — Grenada, a 133-square-mile island run by a revolutionary government that seized power in a 1979 coup.

After the coup, Grenada's new government suspended all elections, shut down the independent press and began building up the tiny army. Some West Indians say that hurr leftists running for office in St. Vincent and Dominica.

An increase in Western aid in the past year was another factor in the shift away from the left.

But even the most Western-oriented leaders stress that if West Indian voters have turned away from leftist politicians, they don't want to join in a power struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union or its Cuban ally.

Government leaders throughout the area speak of themselves as brothers within the Caribbean and members of the Third World, not as ideological allies of the West.

Seaga declared that Jamaica is "neither a communist nor a capitalist country" but a country with economic problems that have to be solved.

FUNERAL FOR WRONG WOMAN — Cathy Storey, 21, right, was unconscious in a hospital for three days identified as Alana Klingebiel, 18, left. Both women were in a car crash in which four persons were killed on Nov. 8. The relatives of Miss Klingebiel kept a vigil at the bedside of Miss Storey in a Fairfax, Va., hospital. The relatives of Miss Storey had the remains of Miss Klingebiel cremated in preparation for a funeral.

Identities of two car crash victims mistaken

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — "My name is Cathy," said the young woman in the hospital bed. The policeman trying to interview her about the traffic accident that left her face disfigured and killed four other people was stunned.

In a tragic mixup, Cathy had been identified as one of the dead.

For three days, Cathy Storey had been listed at the hospital as Alana Klingebiel. Alana Klingebiel's body had been identified as that of Cathy Storey. Cathy's family had Alana Klingebiel's body cremated.

Cathy was so disfigured in the Sunday morning accident that the Klingebiel family could not tell she was not Alana. And Alana's body was unrecognizable and was misidentified by the Storey family.

The mistake came to light on Tuesday when Fairfax County police officer Timothy Bender went to question the patient, whom he thought was 18-year-old Alana of Falls Church, Va., a Washington, D.C., suburb. The woman had been unconscious since the two-car collision in which four people died and three others were seriously hurt.

"Alana, I'm Officer Bender. I'm here to interview you about the accident you were involved in," said Bender.

"But the woman replied, 'My name is Cathy.'"

"Aren't you Alana Klingebiel?"

"My name is Cathy Storey," she said.

A shocked Bender immediately called the Klingebiel family, which confirmed the mistake after arriving at the hospital.

"For the first time they noticed the patient's ears were pierced," said police spokeswoman Carolyn Burns. "This is an incredible and terrible thing."

"I had a sixth sense that she wasn't my sister," said Rick Klingebiel, 26, who visited Fairfax Hospital on Monday night, but also was unable to recognize the woman identified as Alana.

The family of Miss Storey, 21, already had made funeral arrangements and the body, which they thought was that of their daughter, was cremated on Tuesday — about two hours before the error was discovered.

They had planned on Thursday to bury her ashes inside the casket of Miss Storey's fiancée, Lawrence W. O'Brien, who also died in the crash. He was the driver of one of the cars.

"We had both decided they should stay together forever. That was their wish," said O'Brien's father, Edward R. O'Brien.

Once the mixup involving the two young women was uncovered, police fingerprinted O'Brien's body, the young man's father said.

He said the Storey family was on "Cloud 12" after discovering that it was not Cathy who had been cremated, but that she was the survivor in the hospital. "I know it was hard, but there must be some better way of confirming identity than looking at mutilated bodies," O'Brien said.

A close friend of the Klingebiel family who asked not to be identified, said: "These are not bitter people. However, the mixup was enough to make anybody a bit angry. They are not blaming anybody."

ALL ABOARD THE LAST TIME — Harold J. McGraw, 76, waves as he makes his last train run as conductor from Chicago to Bloomington, Ill., Wednesday. McGraw, the nation's oldest Amtrak conductor, retired Wednesday after having travelled some 6 million miles during his 60 years as a railroader.

Oldest Amtrak conductor retires

One last toot

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — There was a cake shaped like a locomotive and a big sign that said: "No More Whistle Stops, Just One Last Toot. Congratulations Harold McGraw."

After 60 years and 6 million miles, the nation's oldest Amtrak conductor made his last run Wednesday.

McGraw, 76, who began his career in the era of steam locomotives, made his farewell Chicago-to-Bloomington run behind a sleek diesel engine that brought him to the same yards where he started in 1920.

"Hate to say goodbye to everybody, but the time has come," McGraw told a crowd of well-wishers. "Railroads are in my blood, but I just didn't want to work another winter. I'm retiring today a happy warrior."

For the past half-century, McGraw has worked the Chicago-to-St. Louis run, a 282-mile stretch of track owned over the years by the Chicago & Alton, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio and the Illinois Central.

McGraw signed on with the railroad here at 16 as an office boy for the C&A, following the family tradition. There has been a McGraw in railroading as long as there have been railroads in America.

His father was a railroad's chief accountant, and his grandfather and great-grandfather, an Irish immigrant, also were conductors. Two of his three brothers were railroaders, now both retired, and his sister was a ticket clerk.

Deaf students to make giant impact locally

Within a few years you may wish that you had learned sign language today. Shannon K. Gilley, community awareness director for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, told Downtown Lions at their Wednesday meeting that as one of the three colleges for the deaf in the United States and the only one with an international flavor, SWCID may well grow to a student body of 2,000. And even if it shouldn't hit that total, there will be enough here to make a profound impact on the population.

For instance, the college in Washington, D.C. has an enrollment of one million; the other at Rochester, N.Y. has 1,000 students in a population of 800,000. SWCID might have 2,000 in a population of 30,000.

Her prime assignment, said Ms. Gilley is to help local and area people to be able to communicate with the deaf students. Already several classes have been set up for the public, also for with McGraw, a widower with no children. His nephew John was the engineer on the farewell trip Wednesday.

As conductor, McGraw saw a famous character or two. "I remember old Dizzy Dean," the legendary St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher, he said.

"He'd get out his old guitar and play hillbilly songs and keep everybody in the car amused. He played many a tune on that train."

And then there was the late Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, Pearl Bailey and Tennessee Ernie Ford.

As a freight conductor about 30 years ago, McGraw suffered a broken back when two trains collided, but none of his passenger trains has ever had a wreck.

The passenger run record is astounding, he made the trip every other day, every week, every year after year.

"Going up (to Chicago) I'd count the white horses, and coming down (to St. Louis) I'd count the cows," said McGraw.

On Wednesday, he cheerfully but uncharacteristically broke a company rule at a retirement party in the conductors' room of the old depot.

City strike in Los Angeles may cause health hazards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Significant, impact," predicted Keith Comrie, the city's chief administrative officer.

City Attorney Burt Pines predicted the walkout could pose "serious health hazards."

The dispute is over a 1-percent difference between a pay raise granted to one union and the pay raises offered to three other unions.

Among those set to ignore a Superior Court restraining order against the strike — and possible fines of $500 a day per worker — were garbage collectors, sewage treatment workers, mechanics, traffic controllers, jailers and supervisors in most city departments.

World grain stocks declining

WASHINGTON (AP) — World grain stocks are declining rapidly, including huge bites out of reserves in the United States and the Soviet Union, says the Agriculture Department.

Hot weather and drought slashed the U.S. harvest of corn and many other crops dramatically this year. And the Soviet Union had another year of poor weather and sharply reduced yields.

The department's World Agricultural Outlook and Situation Board said Wednesday the short grain harvest in the Soviet Union could trigger a greater slaughter of animals to conserve feed.

Earlier this week, the department estimated the Soviet grain harvest at 185 million metric tons, far below Moscow's 1980 goal of 235 million but more than the 181 million-ton harvest the Soviets estimated last month.

In 1979, Soviet grain output dropped to 179 million metric tons from the record crop of 237 million harvested in 1978. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and, for example, is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

The board's latest report said: "A short harvest for the second consecutive year will mean that livestock production plans might have to be cut sharply since grain stocks were likely drawn down heavily last year, alternative feed stuffs are not readily available, and import levels are unlikely to be much different than last season."

It said the Soviet Union probably will have 10 to 15 percent less grain to feed livestock in 1980-81 than it did a year ago.

"Over the next several months, depending on adjustments in feeding practices, this could mean increased slaughter and meat availability but in the longer-run, reduced livestock numbers and lower levels of meat availability for Soviet citizens," the report said.

Experts said most of the higher slaughter could involve hogs.

Looking at the U.S. situation, the report included figures showing a sharp decline in grain stockpiles in 1980-81, a trend that became apparent with last summer's shriveling of fall-harvested crops. Most of the decline will involve corn.

By the end of the current season — roughly when the 1981 crops will be about ready for harvest — the U.S. total grain stockpile is expected to be about 46.2 million metric tons, down from 77.7 million at the beginning of 1980-81, the report said.

That would be the least grain carried over from one year to the next since the stocks totaled about 37.1 million metric tons at the end of the 1975-76 year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — By early November, about 94 percent of the corn in the major producing states had been harvested, says the government.

That was well ahead of the slow progress of a year ago, when only 67 percent of the corn crop had been harvested. But the 1979 corn harvest was a record and this year's is down sharply because of summer heat and drought.

The harvesting figures were included in a weekly report issued Wednesday by the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility operated by the departments of Commerce and Agriculture.

The "harvest was only a few (percentage) points remove their names if they want," Tucker said. "I've talked to lots of people who told me they signed because they thought they would be able to vote for the cable company they wanted."

The petitions seek to nullify the contract awarded to Warner Amex Cable Communications last month — the largest single franchise award in the nation.

A certified documents expert told The Dallas Morning News that many of the petitions' 2,500 signatures were penned by one person.

"There are multiple signatures made by the same author," James Leroy Lewis said in the newspaper's Wednesday edition. Lewis examined 91 of the signatures submitted to the council last week.

The Dallas Times Herald also reported that many voters denied signing the petition.

"I don't know what our legal options are, but the more I think about it, the more I believe we should contest the petitions and ask the district attorney to assign somebody to look at the signatures," councilman Roland Tucker said Wednesday.

Tucker and fellow councilman Steve Bartlett said they would talk to City Attorney Lee Holt before acting on Lewis' findings.

"If there have been violations of the law, we ought to take the matter to the district attorney," Bartlett said.

The petitions were submitted to the council last week by Cherre and Scott Felton, who are seeking a referendum on the council's award.

The North Dallas couple refused to comment on the forgery allegations Wednesday.

Only 500 valid voters' signatures are required to force a franchise election. The election would not give voters the chance to pick a cable company, but allow them to nullify the city's choice.

"I also think we should give people an opportunity to struggle for the Dallas contract, often referred to as the "Super Bowl" of cable franchises.

Sloan said that anyone who believes his or her name was placed on the petition without authorization can have it removed.

DALLAS (AP) — A tissue analysis from a mutilated bull found near Harlingen last month indicates the animal was cut with a sharp instrument, not burned by a laser, as some ranchers had speculated, a researcher says.

"The cut appears to have been made with a sharp instrument," said Tommy Blann of Lewisville. "And it definitely was not cut with a laser."

The resurgence of animal mutilations in the Lower Rio Grande Valley caused at least one cattleman to speculate that a bizarre religious cult — or even UFOs — were responsible for the deaths.

The cattle usually are found with the eyes, heart, tongue and sexual organs removed.

In the most recent mutilation, a Cameron County rancher found his 1,110-pound bull with a circular incision in its shoulder and its heart removed. The rancher said the wound looked as if something had burned a hole into the animal.

But Tommy Blann of Lewisville says an analysis of the bull's shoulder shows no evidence of burning or radiation.

"I want to dispel some rumors," said Blann, who works out of a private laboratory here. "The animal was not burned with a laser. It was not burned at all ... The dark, coagulated area may give that effect, however."

on completion in all states except Colorado, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin," during the week of Nov. 3-9, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An activist group has asked the Agriculture Department not to approve a change in federal rules that would allow meat packers to withhold water from cattle for 24 hours before they are slaughtered.

The group, People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, said it delivered a petition signed by 1,700 people to department officials on Wednesday.

"Relieving the thirst and general distress of great numbers of animals is far more important than the minor inconveniences the regulation allegedly causes the meat companies," the group said.

A year ago the department adopted tighter regulations on humane slaughter of livestock, including a provision that requires meat packers to provide water to animals in holding pens.

However, Iowa Beef Processors Inc., Dakota City, Neb., and the American Association of Meat Processors, Elizabethtown, Pa., petitioned the department some months ago to change that provision.

They cited "mechanical problems" of getting water to holding pens and problems of determining accurate weights of animals going to slaughter.

A proposal to eliminate the provision was announced on Sept. 11, including a period for public comment until Nov. 12.

Councilman says DA should check cable TV petitions

DALLAS (AP) — A city councilman says the hint of forgery on petitions challenging the city's lucrative cable television franchise award may give officials a chance to contest the petitions.

The petitions seek to nullify the contract awarded to Warner Amex Cable Communications last month — the largest single franchise award in the nation.

A certified documents expert told The Dallas Morning News that many of the petitions' 2,500 signatures were penned by one person.

Sharp object, not laser used to mutilate cattle

DALLAS (AP) — A tissue analysis from a mutilated bull found near Harlingen last month indicates the animal was cut with a sharp instrument, not burned by a laser, as some ranchers had speculated, a researcher says.

"The cut appears to have been made with a sharp instrument," said Tommy Blann of Lewisville. "And it definitely was not cut with a laser."

The resurgence of animal mutilations in the Lower Rio Grande Valley caused at least one cattleman to speculate that a bizarre religious cult — or even UFOs — were responsible for the deaths.

The cattle usually are found with the eyes, heart, tongue and sexual organs removed.

In the most recent mutilation, a Cameron County rancher found his 1,110-pound bull with a circular incision in its shoulder and its heart removed. The rancher said the wound looked as if something had burned a hole into the animal.

But Tommy Blann of Lewisville says an analysis of the bull's shoulder shows no evidence of burning or radiation.

"I want to dispel some rumors," said Blann, who works out of a private laboratory here. "The animal was not burned with a laser. It was not burned at all ... The dark, coagulated area may give that effect, however."

'GOP can't govern the way they campaigned'

Democratic chairman sees eventual comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic National Committee chairman John White says last week's Republican victories may be the biggest help to a comeback for the Democrats two years down the road.

The former longtime Texas commissioner of agriculture said the Republicans historically have been more successful as an opposition party than as the party in power.

White said President Carter's loss and Democratic losses in the Senate and House largely were caused by a desire to return to safer times than the approaching 1980s.

"The '50s weren't that good ... but we remember them favorably," White said in an interview. "We face a future that has many unknowns."

He said Carter based his campaign on the reality of the 1980s and the need to face it.

The Republicans ran a comforting, polished campaign that held out the promise of a return to a more certain period, and that may offer the Democrats their best hope for making gains in 1982 congressional elections running against the new party in power, White said.

The Republicans took over the Senate and made substantial gains in the House, although Democrats remain in the majority there.

"They can't govern the way they campaigned," White said. "The country won't go back to the '50s."

He said the GOP takeover of the White House and the congressional gains did not signal the start of a new Republican era.

"I think we've got a chance to reverse this trend but we've got to work at it," White said. "We did well in the gubernatorial races and the statehouse races."

White may have a gubernatorial race of his own to run in 1982 in Texas, but he said he won't know for awhile whether to be a candidate.

"It's too early," he said when asked if the decision had been made yet. "I have not discussed it in depth with enough people to see if there's any real support there."

He said the decision "obviously has to be made in the next few months."

White, 55, was Texas commissioner of agriculture for 26 years before coming to Washington in 1977 to take a post in the Carter administration. Later the same year the president selected him to head the DNC.

The Texan said he had not planned to continue as DNC chairman whatever the outcome of the November election had been, but he would stay if the Democrats could not reach a consensus about a successor.

"We're going through the ritual dance now," he said about the maneuvering for the party's chairmanship.

He said the election would be sometime between now and March, with the February committee meeting the most likely time for the decision to be made.

"Nellie and I are anxious to go home, and we'd planned to be home in the spring," White said.

Their home is Austin.

White was associated closely with Carter's candidacy for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination.

Some complaints have emerged from supporters of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., that White should not continue as chairman. White insisted, however, he had the votes to stay if that were his decision.

He said the top priorities at the DNC in the next year should be broadening the party's financial base to include many small contributors, a project the Republicans have carried out successfully, and sponsoring issue conferences in each state to take a look at where Democrats stand.

Major bowl picture anxiously waiting

Many ifs and buts to be decided this week

By The Associated Press

Television has us right where it wants us on New Year's Day — too hung over to leave the house. With a captive TV audience, the networks know the importance of the Jan. 1 bowl games. They also know that four games on three networks afford the best opportunity to compare the merits of the sports presentations on ABC, CBS and NBC.

Sugar Bowl
ABC has this one for 1981 and '82, with options the next two years. The Sugar Bowl is the cheapest New Year's game at $2 million, even though it's been kingmaker three of the last four seasons, crowning Pitt No. 1 for 1976 and Alabama national champion in 1978 and '79.

One spot automatically goes to the winner of the Southeastern Conference. Alabama qualified the past two years when Georgia was knocked out of contention by Auburn. That tickled ABC because Alabama, a bigger football name, owned a higher ranking.

This time, the spiked shoe is on the other foot. ABC would love top-ranked Georgia to overcome its Auburn jinx and win Saturday. The scenario then would have Georgia and the winner of Saturday's matchup between No. 5 Alabama and No. 6 Notre Dame traveling to New Orleans for a possible national title game Jan. 1.

Kickoff is 2 p.m. EST, creating an audience split with the Cotton Bowl starting at the same time. The Sugar Bowl was played New Year's Eve from 1972-75, but not many people realized it. Even the Alabama-Notre Dame national championship game in 1973 was a ratings bust, losing to all three games the next day.

Dec. 31 was created for a lot of things, but not football.

Cotton Bowl
CBS is rooting for Georgia to lose. That would mean unsung Mississippi State or Louisiana State goes to the Sugar Bowl. But CBS isn't singing any hallelujahs over its expected home team in the Cotton Bowl, Baylor.

For Baylor to clinch the Southwest Conference's host spot in Dallas, it merely needs to tie Rice Saturday or Texas the following week, setting up a Jan. 1 game against Alabama, No. 3 Florida State or Notre Dame.

Baylor isn't a big TV draw and the bowls don't think Florida State can carry a national broadcast like two-time defending champion Alabama or legendary Notre Dame, the team immortalized by Ronald Reagan cast as George Gipp in "Kneel to the Rock of All American." But the Cotton Bowl is wary of Notre Dame still losing to Southern Cal.

CBS, doing its 24th consecutive Cotton Bowl, almost lost the game to NBC two years ago. NBC, with the Orange and Rose bowls, suggested the Cotton Bowl should be on NBC, "how America over."

Rose Bowl
One good turn deserves another. Now CBS is trying to take the Rose Bowl from NBC, which paid $2.25 million in 1975 and has been paying $3.3 million since 1978. Meanwhile, rights fees for the other three games have tripled over the past five years, making the prestigious Rose Bowl red-hot and red-faced.

So the Rose Bowl, playing catch up, sought bids from the networks for the 1983 game. CBS, calling the $3.3 million figure artificially low, won the first round with a one-shot $7.2 million bid with no future options. NBC had until today to match the CBS bid. Sources said NBC can't afford to lose this property and would strike a deal.

ABC and NBC were appalled at the more than 100 percent bid increase and were concerned about how the offer would affect negotiations for other events. Given the projected sports advertising sales rates for 1983, CBS would lose money. But, then again, it would gain prestige for having the Rose Bowl and for taking it away from the competition. And if CBS is going to lose money in a Jan. 1 bowl, better to lose it with the Rose than the Cotton.

The Rose Bowl, alone in the late afternoon, gets the best ratings. The 1981 game, on NBC for the 30th consecutive year, could suffer since neither No. 2 Southern Cal nor No. 17 UCLA is eligible because of the recent records scandal. That gives unranked Washington the inside track from the Pacific 10. It's still possible that Washington State, with a 5-6 record, could get to Pasadena.

The Big Ten team will be Ohio State, Purdue or Michigan, all 6-0 in the league and each with two conference games left — Michigan-Purdue and Ohio State-Iowa Saturday, Ohio State-Michigan and Purdue-Indiana Nov. 22.

Orange Bowl
ABC lost this game to NBC in 1965. ABC, which brought us the pros in prime time, was wary of doing the Orange Bowl under the Miami moon. ABC had lost a bundle on a Jerry Lewis show and didn't want to gamble on nighttime football. NBC took the chance and now pays the Orange Bowl $2.685 million.

The Big Eight champion, probably the Oklahoma-Nebraska winner, gets an automatic invitation.

The Parades
It's the Rose Bowl Parade hands down. One year all three networks aired it. This time CBS and NBC will do it, dirt cheap again because the streets of Pasadena are public property.

Goes against his will in signing one-year contract

Zimmer takes Ranger manager challenge

ARLINGTON, Texas — Don Zimmer bravely stepped into one of professional sports' high-risk jobs Wednesday, managing the troubled Texas Rangers.

And Zimmer, who turns 50 in January, did something he had told his wife 24 hours earlier he wouldn't do — settle for a one-year contract.

Zimmer wasn't even the Rangers' first choice for their 10th manager since the American League club moved to Texas in 1972 with Ted Williams at the helm. Not until New York Yankee Manager Dick Howser said no did Rangers Executive Vice President Eddie Robinson turn to Zimmer.

But with typical aplomb, none of the detractors seemed to matter to the man who was booted out of Boston.

"If we don't play decent I might be at another press conference next year," said Zimmer, who failed to bring Boston a pennant and was fired after 4½ years of trying.

Zimmer was pressed as to why he would take a one-year contract with a team that had finished a failing fourth in the American League West under Pat Corrales.

"When I got fired in Boston, I told my coaches I would not take a managing job in the major leagues with a one-year contract," Zimmer said. "I told my wife when I left for Texas yesterday that I would not go for a one-year contract."

"But I told Robinson in his car from the airport that I had enough self confidence that I thought I would be here more than one year, so I said, 'Do it.'"

The Rangers have had eight full-time managers and two interim managers in the nine seasons the club has played in Texas.

Eddie Stanky lasted the shortest amount of time — one day. Zimmer was asked to restore some discipline to the dissension-riddled Rangers by Rangers Chairman of the Board Eddie Chiles.

"I had breakfast with Eddie Chiles this morning and he told me he wanted me to put up with no nonsense from the players," said Zimmer. "He sounded sincere."

Ranger outfielder Al Oliver called the hiring of Zimmer "a great move."

"Zimmer is a winner," said Oliver. "What happened at Boston wasn't Zimmer's fault. I like the way the guy talks straight."

The Rangers had stalled for weeks on naming a manager because they wanted to see what Howser was going to do.

Zimmer was not bitter about his tenure in Boston, although he said, "You had to have a thick skin to manage there. I had managers go to home plate with me to turn in the lineup cards and hear the boos and tell me, 'You didn't take this job under any circumstances.'"

"All my problems are behind me"

Brett cops American League MVP in near unanimous vote

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — It was early May and George Brett was off to a terrible start, barely hitting .240.

"I don't think I'm a .240 hitter," said the Kansas City Royals third baseman, whose lifetime average stood at .310. "I still don't think there's any reason I can't hit close to .329 like last year."

As it turned out, Brett finished 61 percentage points away from .329.

He wound up at .390, the highest total in the major leagues in 39 years. He also led the American League in slugging percentage (.664) and on-base percentage (.461).

In the meantime, he reeled off a 30-game hitting streak, averaged an RBI per game, and captured the interest of baseball fans around the world with his quest to hit 400.

In no surprise, Brett was an overwhelming choice of a nationwide panel of sportscasters and broadcasters as The Associated Press American League Player of the Year.

Brett's storybook season was marred only by sporadic injuries that kept him out of more than 40 games and a hemorrhoid condition that threatened to sideline him in the World Series.

The way the 27-year-old All-Star handled the reaction to his hemorrhoids was vintage Brett. His problem became known after the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Royals in Game 1 in Philadelphia. The next night, he reached base three times in three plate appearances, but took himself out of the game in extreme pain.

Winfield top name on draft day

NEW YORK (AP) — Another draft day; another million dollars.

That could be the slogan of baseball's free agents. Since the first re-entry draft in 1976, 45 free agents have signed contracts worth $1 million or more, topped by the $1 million-a-year deal for three seasons that pitcher Nolan Ryan negotiated with Houston in 1979.

Ryan's record seemed in jeopardy today when slugger Dave Winfield was among the 48 players available for major league baseball's fifth free agent re-entry draft.

Winfield, who stopped talking with the San Diego Padres when they balked at his asking price of $13 million for 10 years, provided a twist on the Army's campaign theme by writing to more than a dozen major league teams: "I don't want you."

The 29-year-old outfielder hoped to dissuade about half the 26 teams from drafting him, thus ensuring his availability when the New York Yankees' turn rolled around. The Yankees, with the best record in baseball, selected 26th and last on each round. The Chicago Cubs were to open the draft, followed by the Seattle Mariners and New York Mets.

A player can be selected by a maximum of 13 teams, plus his former club.

Area Football Honor Roll

Area football teams suffered through a dismal weekend, with one school being knocked out of contention for post-season action, while most of the rest have already been eliminated.

Nevertheless, there were still enough prize winning performances to dot this week's Area Football Honor Roll.

The Klondike Cougars were not among the teams suffering bad fortunes, as Coach Mickey Finley's crew ended their District 3-A West Zone competition with a perfect record by totally annihilating Sands, 66-6. The win puts the Klondike team into the district title game tomorrow night against Roby. That contest will be played in Sweetwater.

Finley started to name his offensive backfield to this week's Honor Roll, but after some consideration, felt that it would be unfair to his offensive line and his entire defensive unit. "Everybody played well," Finley stated. "We had some real good individual performances, but none that were that much better than the others."

The Big Spring Steers suffered a 38-14 loss to 5-A-A-A-A toughie Odessa, and Steer Coach Ralph Harris decided that nobody performed up to par for his team. "It was just a total nobody," said Harris. "Nobody really played that well. We've got to concentrate and improve to be like we need to."

The Lamesa Golden Tornados won their third game of the season, defeating the Odessa Ector Eagles 28-21, and Coach Jim Warren nominated the performance of senior fullback-linebacker TONY MAXWELL for this week's honor.

Maxwell enjoyed his finest offensive game as a Lamesa grinder, rushing for 185 yards on only 13 carries, and scoring a key TD. "We played very well offensively," said Warren, "and Tony had just an excellent game."

The Coahoma Bulldogs had their District 6-A-A-A title chances nixed in the final minutes when Denver City scored for a 6-3 win, but coach Roy Winters still found many players to be proud of in the loss. The two that he picked for this week's honor included defensive tackle TERRY RUSSELL and fullback CHUBBY ABREGO.

Russell was among the leading defenders in the tough Bulldog defense, while Abrego opened up some big holes for the Coahoma tailbacks to run through.

The Sands Mustangs ended the season on a sour note in their lopsided loss to powerful Klondike, but there were a couple of performers that went down with good games. These two were linebacker STEVE BLAGRAVE and receiver DENNIS MARTIN.

Blagrave "really put some hats on some Klondike players," according to Sands Coach Jim White, and Martin was his usual self. Martin caught four passes for nearly 100 yards in the tilt.

The Garden City Bearkats also closed the 1980 season on a disappointing note, taking a 38-14 loss to Wilson. But it

Murphy keys Rocket rally past Lakers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers say Calvin Murphy has a disruptive influence on a basketball game.

The Lakers had a 19 point lead in the third quarter and seemed to be coasting to an easy National Basketball Association victory over the Houston Rockets ednesday night.

But that was before Murphy ignited a frantic Houston rally that lifted the Rockets to a 107-104 victory.

Murphy scored 19 of his 28 points in the second half and disrupted the rhythm of the Laker attack.

"Murphy coming in there and playing like he did was really the key to the turnaround," said Laker Coach Paul Westhead.

Houston trailed 78-59 with 6:48 left in the third quarter and were down by 13 points early in the fourth quarter.

But Murphy and Mike Dunleavy led a Rocket charge that outscored the Lakers 24-8 during an eight-minute span of the final quarter.

"When I come in I try to change the tempo of the game. Tonight I put a little pressure on their defense," said Murphy.

Houston took a 103-100 lead with 2:12 remaining in the game when Moses Malone tossed in two free throws.

But the Lakers countered with a basket by Jim Chones, and two free throws by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to take a one-point edge with 45 seconds left.

Dunleavy, who finished the night with four points and 10 assists, hit a basket with 30 seconds to go and Malone hit two more free throws with seven seconds remaining to clinch the comeback.

"You have to give the players credit," said Houston Coach Del Harris. "It is quite an achievement for our guys to be down 19 points to a championship team that was playing good basketball and come away with a victory. We finally got into our offense and that was one of the big keys to the game."

Jamaal Wilkes, who led the Lakers with 28 points, said Los Angeles "stagnated" after building up the lead.

"Give Houston credit, they hit some big shots down the stretch. They took us out of our rhythm. Murphy did a good job," said Wilkes.

Davis led Suns stay hot in win over Spurs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — With fello guard Dennis Johnson out of the Phoenix lineup Wednesday night due to back spasms, Walter Davis figured he had to pick up the expected scoring slack.

The transformed All-Star forward responded with a season-high 31 points — negating the similar effort of Spurs' guard George Gervin — an paced the Suns to a 130-127 victory over San Antonio.

The win raised Phoenix's record to 14-2 — the best in the National Basketball Association — and moved the Suns two-and-a-half games ahead of the defending world champion Los Angeles Laker in the Pacific Division.

Midwest Division-leading San Antonio suffered its second straight loss and slipped to 12-5.

"We just couldn't stop Davis," said Spurs' Coach Stan Albeck. "We had heard that he was in a scoring slump. He surprised us. I think he might have surprised himself, too. But he's just an exceptional basketball player."

For past title hopes lost

Alabama seeks revenge against Notre Dame

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The only person connected with Alabama football who isn't outwardly excited about Saturday's long-awaited clash with Notre Dame in Birmingham is Coach Bear Bryant.

"Notre Dame is without doubt the biggest name in football and I'm happy to be playing them in Alabama," Bryant said Wednesday. "From a national standpoint I'd rather beat them, but locally I'd rather beat Auburn."

"I don't think Alabama-Notre Dame will be as important as the Auburn game, but that's what people think, the people who buy tickets and write about it. A conference game is more important to us than an inter-sectional game."

Bryant is probably the only one in these parts who feels that way. Notre Dame sticks in Alabama's craw like a blocked punt. In 1966, despite a 10-10 tie with Michigan State, Notre Dame beat out an unbeaten-untied Alabama team — perhaps Bryant's best ever — for the national championship.

The Irish edged Alabama 24-23 in the 1973 national championship Sugar Bowl showdown and they spoiled the Notomson Tide's title hopes the following year k-11 Orange Bowl triumph.

"I lost that first game two or three different times," Bryant said. "Either team could have won the second game, too, even though neither team played like Alabama and Notre Dame usually play. I blew that one, too."

The only other head-to-head confrontation took place in 1976, with Notre Dame winning 21-18 in South Bend. That makes Alabama 0-3 against the Irish — by a total of six points.

"We had a second-and-goal at the 4-yard line in the fourth quarter and we had a receiver wide open but we threw an interception," Bryant recalled. "My record against Notre Dame certainly isn't outstanding."

The crusher came in 1977 when fifth-ranked Notre Dame whipped No. 1 Texas in the Cotton Bowl — runnerup Okost — and vaulted to the national crown over Alabama, which trounced Ohio State in the Sugar Bowl.

"The fans certainly let you know about it," said running back Major Ogilvie. "We know that Notre Dame cost Alabama about three national championships in a period of five years. That gives us a little bit of motivation."

"The losses to them were not just losses because they beat us out of so many national championships, so that game means a lot," says Gary DeNiro, a defensive end.

Hearing set to discuss Greenville

DALLAS (AP) — A hearing is set Friday on two federal court suits filed in an attempt to help Greenville High School's football team recover five losses they suffered for using an ineligible player.

The hearing before U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders comes just hours before the final schoolboy football games of the season. If Sanders rules in favor of the Greenville players, they would have enough victories to be the District 13-4A champions.

The suits, filed by ineligible tackle John Byrd and quarterback Phil Blue, claim the University Interscholastic League rule making Byrd ineligible is unconstitutional because it violates the rights of both Byrd and his teammates.

Byrd was 19 on July 13, making him 49 days too old to compete under the UIL rules. His suit contends he was not granted a hearing prior to the ruling by the District 13AAA executive committee.

Blue's suit is a class action on behalf of himself and his teammates. It contends that if the UIL ruling is allowed to stand, the Greenville team will not be eligible for the state playoffs.

Spinal condition forces Otis Armstrong to retire

DENVER (AP) — He once was among the most feared runners in the National Football League, a darter with breakout speed who also possessed tackle-busting power in his enormous thighs. A league-leading 1,407-yard rushing performance in 1974 was testimony to that.

But in subsequent seasons, the Otis Armstrong promise was never quite fulfilled. Injuries robbed him of his most productive years, although he did manage to gain 1,008 yards in 1976, and Coach Red Miller's system of rotating backs limited his playing time in later seasons.

Fate dealt Armstrong the cruellest blow on Wednesday, when Denver Broncos physicians advised he should not play football again because of a congenital spinal condition which exposes him to the risk of paralysis.

Armstrong was placed on injured reserve by the Broncos, but the eight-year veteran said he would seek a second medical opinion from his own physicians before deciding whether to retire from the game.

"If they give the same advice as the Bronco doctors, I don't see how I can play again," said Armstrong. "It would be too risky. I'm prepared to accept their decision."

Armstrong added he was gravely aware of the dangers associated with playing with the spinal condition. One of his closest friends is his former roommate at Purdue, Darryl Stingley, the New England Patriots' wide receiver who was paralyzed in a pre-season game in 1978.

"I spent some time with Darryl at the Super Bowl," said Armstrong. "I had to put his clothes on him, to feed him, to put him to bed. I couldn't believe what that was like. I don't want people to have to take care of me for the rest of my life."

On the other hand, Armstrong says football has been his life for the past 16 years, and he's reluctant to give it up unless he's sure of the diagnosis.

While Armstrong could conceivably have a future with another NFL team, assuming he could pass their physical, his career as a Bronco clearly is over, given the team's medical report.

Broncos General Manager Fred Gehrke informed Armstrong of the team's decision about his playing status on Wednesday. "I told Otis this was a blessing, a warning," said Gehrke. "I told him he had had eight great years, but it was time to hang it up. I said, 'You've been smart, you've saved your money, now it's time to take care of your family.'"

Armstrong, 29, was a first-round draft choice in 1973, out of Purdue. He is Denver's second leading all-time rusher, behind Floyd Little, and holds the Bronco record for most rushing yards in a game (183.)

He had regained a starting role this fall after several injury-plagued seasons, and is the team's leading rusher this season with 470 yards on 106 carries.

NBA Roundup Red hot Knicks end 12-game 76er streak

Since falling from powerhouse status in the National Basketball Association in the mid-1970s, the New York Knicks have lost with big-name, high-salaried players and with youth. Now they are winning regularly and gaining respect in the process.

The Knicks, 11-3, snapped the Philadelphia's 12-game winning streak Wednesday night with a 125-113 victory — on the 76ers' home court.

"New York has the makings of a great ball club," said Julius Erving, who scored 34 points in a losing cause for Philadelphia, which lost for the first time since Oct. 14. "They must be respected. They've come a long way. For us, it is disappointing to lose at home."

Despite missing one of their youthful stars — Michael Ray Richardson was sidelined with a sprained ankle — the Knicks relied on two other young players. Guard Ray Williams and center Bill Cartwright both scored 24 points, and Campy Russell, a forward acquired in a trade just before the season started, pitched in with 22.

"We are maturing," said Knicks Coach Red Holzman. "We're fortunate to have made some good deals, for instance getting Cartwright in the draft and getting Campy Russell. Our guards are improving, but we have to pay attention. I know we have a long way to go."

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics beat the Washington Bullets 93-86, the New Jersey Nets tripped the Denver Nuggets 118-111, the Milwaukee Bucks bombed the Detroit Pistons 122-98, the Houston Rockets edged the Los Angeles Lakers 107-104, the Phoenix Suns nipped the San Antonio Spurs 130-127, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Kansas City Kings 111-101 and the Utah Jazz stopped the Seattle SuperSonics 114-106.

Celtics 93, Bullets 86
Cedric Maxwell scored 25 points and Boston scored 15 straight points to erase Washington's only second-half lead and end its four-game winning streak.

Wes Matthews, who led Washington scorers with 23 points, scored with 1:54 left in the third quarter to give the Bullets their final lead at 85-64. But they didn't score for the next 7:17 as the Celtics bolted into a 79-65 lead.

TITLE THOUGHTS — Sugar Ray Leonard breathes hard as he gets his headgear adjusted between sparring rounds in New Orleans where he is getting ready for his title rematch with Robert Duran. Leonard hopes to reclaim the crown he lost to Duran last June.

It now goes to White House

House passes weaker bill for Alaska lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, which for years demanded tough protections for more than 100 million acres of pristine Alaskan wilderness, took one look at the on-rushing Republican hordes and passed a weaker Senate bill.

It now goes to the White House and President Carter's expected signature.

Wednesday's passage came only six hours after the House convened in an unusual post-election session to wind up the year's business.

The swift action on the historic bill shattered predictions that the lame-duck Democratic Congress, stunned by last week's Republican landslide, would be incapable of acting on anything but housekeeping bills.

The measure turns 104 million acres of land — the United States' last frontier — into special federal protective categories, such as national parks and wildlife refuges, to preserve their splendor for future generations.

At the White House, Carter said he was "pleased and gratified."

"Both houses of Congress have now endorsed the greatest land conservation legislation of the century, thus assuring that the 'crown jewel' of the Alaska national wonders are afforded protection," Carter said. "It is a victory in the long struggle to resolve this issue and is truly an historic event in our nation's history."

The issue has been a battleground in Congress for years.

Conservationists have worried that development could devastate the land; entrepreneurs, energy companies and many Alaskans have feared that the state's rich natural resources would be needlessly locked away from a nation desperately in need of them.

Approval, after a final debate lasting only 28 minutes, came on a voice vote.

"We thought we were better off to get it done," said

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee and leader of the House conservation forces.

"Some conservation groups took a hard look and decided that fighting for another four years, and maybe waiting for another Democratic president, just wasn't worth the candle," Udall said after the vote.

While the bill amounted to less than the conservationists had sought, it is monumental by any standard. The bill doubles the size of both the national park system and the wildlife refuge system and triples the size of the national wilderness system.

The bill creates new national parks and recreation areas totaling 43.6 million acres and wildlife refuges comprising 53.8 million acres. It adds 3.1 million acres to the national forest system; 1.2 million acres to the national wild and scenic river system; and 2.2 million acres in national conservation areas.

Of the totals, 56.7 million acres are designated as wilderness — a strict protective category for bidding virtually all development and banning motorized travel.

Clements to ask for primary

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he can see the day when there may be only six or seven regional presidential primaries in the nation, "instead of the hodge-podge we have now."

Clements said at a news conference Wednesday he will ask the 1981 Legislature for a state law change that would let Texas take part with New Mexico, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana in a five-state regional primary.

The five states have one-fifth of the electoral votes necessary to elect a U.S. president.

"This will give us a position in the presidential election process that we do not have now," said Clements, who successfully guided the Reagan-Bush campaign in Texas.

"The Northeast and the Eastern seaboard have an unusual effect now with their early primaries," Clements said. "This (regional primary) would bring the candidates into the region early... It would result in better campaigns. The candidates would be more responsive to the region's needs."

He said present plans call for a five-state regional primary in March that would not be connected with any other local or state elections.

The 1980 presidential primaries in Texas were held in connection with the May 4 party primaries involving many local and state contests.

Clements said the governors of Texas' neighboring states had been contacted. "With the possible exception of the governor of Arkansas, the others appear favorable to the concept, but we have just started," he said.

Arkansas' Gov. Bill Clinton, a Democrat, was defeated in his bid for reelection on Nov. 4 by Republican Frank D. White.

Clements said the regional primary idea had been approved by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Hobby.

Clements leaves Thursday night for two days of talks in California with President-elect Ronald Reagan's staff. He has a personal talk scheduled for Sunday with Reagan.

"I have no agenda. I have no information what he wants to talk to me about," Clements said. "I am going at his invitation."

House rejects extension try

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today defeated a move to enact a one-year extension of the federal revenue-sharing program for local governments and debated instead whether to accept a multi-year extension of the entitlements.

On a 306-65 vote, the House refused to accept an amendment by Rep. Frank Horton, R-N.Y., that would have extended $4.6 billion worth of revenue-sharing money for local governments, retroactive to Oct. 1.

The bill before the House would provide $15.8 billion to pay for the program through 1983.

Supporters said they feared that controversy over at least 15 pending amendments could mean that no final action would be taken before Congress adjourns.

Opponents argued that Horton's amendment would still leave uncertainty over the future of the program and give those who wanted to kill the program altogether another chance in the next Congress.

Local government officials contend that failure to extend the program may lead to higher property taxes and curtailed services.

Cancer Institute says

Brain cancer may be linked to refinery work

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute has linked increases in brain cancer to work at oil refineries, citing the deaths of 33 male employees at three large Texas petroleum companies.

The findings confirm a "hypotheses-generating" study released in May 1979 that suggested refinery workers are exposed to increased risks of cancer — with the largest increase being brain cancer — according to the report.

Scientists at the National Cancer Institute and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health have found an apparent association between increased risk of brain cancer and employment in the oil refinery industry, said a NCI fact sheet obtained Tuesday by The Houston Post.

However, NCI researcher Terry Thomas cautioned, more studies must be conducted before any correlations can be drawn. Gulf officials dispute the findings, saying preliminary results of an in-house study show "no increased risk of employees developing or dying from brain tumors" at its Port Arthur refinery.

The company further contends "undue publicity" given the findings has "caused needless anxiety and concern among our employees."

Three years ago, the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union opened its membership records to NCI who examined an unspecified number of workers exposed to petroleum and petroleum products. The OCAW represents more than 20,000 petrochemical workers in Texas.

Scientists reviewed 1,008 deaths at Texaco, 729 at Gulf and 396 at Mobil over a 35-year period.

Researchers examined death certificates and used the data to compute the frequency of fatal diseases among the workers. Those figures were compared the number of deaths from all types of cancer among all males in the United States.

Of the 2,133 deaths examined, the NCI said, researchers found 27 brain cancer cases, or about 12 more than normally expected. The other six deaths were caused by brain tumors, scientists said.

The 33 workers — all members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union — were employed between 1943 and 1978 at Texaco and Gulf refineries at Port Arthur and the Mobil refinery at nearby Beaumont.

The three plants are the largest operated by each of the three companies. The Texaco plant employs more than 5,000 workers, Gulf 3,500 and Mobil 2,200.

At Texaco, scientists found 16 fatalities, compared with an expected 7.5. Ten cases were discovered among Gulf employees, 3.5 more than normal. Seven fatalities were found at Mobil, or four more than anticipated.

The NCI's preliminary findings were presented Oct. 28 at a New York Academy of Sciences meeting in New York.

At that time, Gulf released the results of its in-house study, billed as the "largest study of refinery employees ever reported in North America."

Gulf scientists, however, used a different statistical methodology and reviewed death certificates of 4,766 employees between 1935 and 1979. They found 30 brain tumor deaths, compared with an expected rate of 31.

"In other words, the risk of these workers dying from brain tumors was essentially the same or slightly less than what would be expected for the total population of the United States," said a Gulf statement.

The oil company is continuing its investigation and participating in four other studies, a spokesman said.

Texaco spokesman Mike McDermott said, "Studies of individual cases conducted to date have failed to confirm any correlation between work performed and cause of death."

Texaco also is conducting an in-house investigation, similar to Gulf, he said.

In addition, both companies are involved in a comprehensive American Petroleum Institute study of adverse health effects at 100 petroleum refineries.

Mobil also has hired the Stanford Research Institute to conduct an in-depth study of the entire mortality rate at the Beaumont refinery.

Titanic man digs deeper

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A Texas oilman who has spent a fortune scanning the ocean floor for the wreck of the Titanic now intends to dig a little deeper in search of wealth beneath the North Atlantic.

Jack Grimm said he and a group of other Texas oilmen will try to claim the mineral rights to 10,000 square miles of seabed beyond Canada's 200-mile territorial limit.

The Abilene adventurer, who also has sponsored expeditions seeking Noah's Ark and the legendary monster "Bigfoot," revealed his plans Tuesday during a speech on the progress of a research team looking for the wreck of the Titanic.

He described the ocean floor as a "no man's land" and said anyone "big enough to mine it and hang on to it" should have a right to claim it as long as they produce in the area.

"With our technology we should be able to go out and lay claim to it," said Grimm. He said the project would set an international precedent because on one has made a seabed claim before.

The Texas investors are looking at a portion of the continental shelf at an undisclosed location off the coast of Newfoundland which measures between 600 and 800 feet deep.

Grimm said the seabed is rich in oil, natural gas and minerals that should be claimed by enterprising Americans.

He said he didn't go along with a proposal by Third World nations that lands beyond territorial waters should be controlled by the United Nations' International Seabed Authority.

And Grimm contended there is no legal basis to stop him from claiming portions of the ocean floor.

The 55-year-old oilman already has spent more than a $1 million searching for the "unsinkable" Titanic, a British luxury liner that struck an iceberg and sank on its maiden voyage in April of 1912 with a loss of about 1,500 lives. Seven hundred people were rescued.

The ship sank about 380 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

The research team announced last summer that it believed it had found the ship. Although several scientists on the team disagreed, Grimm said he was confident the wreck of Titanic had been located.

He said Tuesday the team would return to the area next June 15 and would remain until July 1.

Border bankers note decline in peso value

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas border bankers are noticing a gradual decline of the value of the peso, but they discount the possibility of a major devaluation of the Mexican currency similar to the 1976 drop.

The peso's value has dropped 75 centavos, 3.4 percent, in relation to the American dollar in the past five months.

The gradual drop in the peso's worth has occurred in several "mini-devaluations" of 1 or 2 centavos at a time, four in the last two weeks. The peso has been allowed to "float" on international money markets since the dramatic 50 percent devaluation on Sept. 1, 1976.

The latest drop was last week when Banco de Mexico, equivalent of the U.S. Federal Reserve System, began buying $1 (U.S.) for 23 pesos and selling $1 (U.S.) for 23.20 pesos, a 2 centavo decrease in the peso's value. It was preceded the previous week by one 2 centavo and two 1 centavo drops.

Carlos Cruz, head of the international exchange department of Union National Bank in Laredo, predicts there will be several more of the tiny declines in the pesos, 2 to 3 centavos each, for the rest of 1980.

"I expect it from now to the first of the year because they (Mexicans) have a dollar drain because of people coming to the United States to shop during the Christmas season," Cruz said. "Some Mexican banks don't have the dollars. That's when Mexicans bring pesos across the border.

"If they change the pesos to dollars across the border, it's better for them because some stores on this side take the pesos at 24 to 25 for the dollar."

Securities broker Mike Gomez of Laredo, however, said he sees the gradual decline, from 22.45 to 23.20 pesos for the dollar over the last four to five months, as a gradual devaluation begun by administration of President Jose Lopez Portillo because of burgeoning inflation south of the border.

Gomez speculated Mexican officials might gradually decrease the peso's value to avoid a repeat of the sudden devaluation. The 1976 drop was preceded by the flight of millions of pesos from Mexico at the end of President Luis Echeverria's 6-year term in office.

Prior to that devaluation, millions of Mexican pesos were brought across the border, changed for dollars and deposited in U.S. banks or used to buy property in the United States to avoid the loss when the value of the pesos slipped from a long time 12.5 pesos to the dollar down to 26 pesos to the dollar before it leveled off at about 22 pesos to the dollar. And Americans who converted dollars to pesos to take advantage of higher Mexican interest rates also lost.

"They're disguising it (devaluation) somewhat," Gomez said. "Four years ago the 50 percent devaluation lost a lot of people virtually half their money."

"Since that, they have sustained a 30 to 40 percent inflation rate. You cannot have lower income citizens paying double for everything every three years," the broker said. "It's inevitable there will be some type of devaluation, whether it's a flat or creeping devaluation."

"It's been theorized we'd see a 10 to 15 percent devaluation, and I think they're doing it by allowing the dollar to grow a bit stronger."

Mike Portman, another Laredo securities broker, said the Chicago Exchange already was quoting the peso, for delivery in December, at 23.55 for $1 (U.S.), another 35 centavo drop over the next month.

But Clinton Luckett, vice president of international banking and industrial development at State National Bank of El Paso, said the peso's decline was tied to worldwide inflation.

"We've noticed that the peso has deteriorated in the last couple of months," Luckett said. He called the peso's slide "an international inflationary trend that causes your money to be worthless. It's an international thing that's bigger than we are. It stems from an imbalance in their balance of payments where they're importing more than they're exporting."

Dave Williams, international vice president of the El Paso National Bank, said the peso declined was "more expensive to Mexican customers, but I think it's such a gradual thing...people get accustomed to it. It's just another part of inflation."

"There's nothing at the present time to indicate to me that there are going to be any major changes," said Martin Nesbitt, international vice president at El Paso's Continental National Bank.

This week in El Paso, banks were purchasing 22.45 pesos for $1, compared to 22.90 for $1 a year ago.

At Brownsville, spokeswoman Josefina Cano of the Pan American Bank's international department, said "almost every week it (peso) has been declining 2 cents. That's all we know."

She and Steve Bosio, a Mexico expert at the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce, said wealthy Mexicans were continuing to purchase condominiums and property on South Padre Island, but not in the same volume that occurred before the 1976 devaluation.

Retail sales in Texas border cities suffered devastating declines after the 1976 devaluation, but Bosio said so far "plenty of pesos" still were being spent by Mexican shoppers in Brownsville.

"It's a routine matter rather than a mass exodus (of pesos), anything like that," said Bosio. "It (devaluation) has been like a penny every week or so. This may be one way of doing it...gradually."

Ribicoff's niece shot

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — Sarai Ribicoff, the 23-year-old niece of Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., was shot to death outside a restaurant here when two men accosted her and her companion, police said.

Ms. Ribicoff and her male companion, who was not immediately identified, had just left a small French restaurant, Chez Helene, when the shooting occurred about 10 p.m. PST Wednesday, according to Lt. John Zorn of the Los Angeles Police Department's Venice division.

The two men reportedly took a wallet from the man and then shot Ms. Ribicoff in the chest, Zorn said.

The restaurant's chef, Edgar De Leon, found Ms. Ribicoff's body 30 feet from the front door of the restaurant in this seaside community about 15 miles west of Los Angeles. Someone inside the restaurant summoned police, he said.

There were no immediate arrests in the case, Zorn said, adding that an autopsy was planned.

A graduate of Yale University, Ms. Ribicoff worked at the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner as an editorial writer, according to the newspaper's associate editor Tom Plate.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Ribicoff of Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Ribicoff's niece, Gail Rubin — a distant relative of the senator — was killed in March 1978 in a Palestinian terrorist raid that took 36 lives along an Israeli highway.

"If he was in a story like Rabbits Rafferty he'd be able to talk to us."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, NOV. 14, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to study the progress you have made and to make needed changes. State your views to influential persons who can be helpful to you. Be more optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is fine for studying new outlets through which to expand. A direct course is the best to follow at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use an improved method where finances are concerned and gain benefits. Take treatment to improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Come to the right decision concerning relations with associates. Be sure to spend your money wisely today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get your work done early in the day so you'll have more time for social activities later. Use care in motion.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A time to be calm while going after a personal aim. Take constructive steps to improve the quality of your life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able now to get the support of associates in a new project you have in mind. Show others you have wisdom.

LIERA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) State your views to associates early in the day and come to a fine agreement. Strive for increased happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't neglect to handle monetary affairs that are important to your welfare. Don't take any risks at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your financial status and find a better way to increase your income. Be wary of false friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Obtain important information you need at the right sources. Maintain a cheerful manner at all times today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Morning is best time to be gregarious and talk with key persons. Seek the company of congenials in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go after your personal aims in a positive manner and get excellent results. Take no risks with your reputation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful persons who will adopt the right philosophy that could lead to a most successful life. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

J. R. puts CBS on top in network ratings
NEW YORK (AP) — To thousands of "Dallas" fans, "Who Shot J.R.?" may be the most burning question of all prime-time — and CBS is dragging out the answer with ratings points as the big reward.
The network whetted viewers' appetites for the denouement in the week ending Nov. 9 and came out in first place in the prime-time ratings race, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.
Each of four episodes of the prime-time soap opera finished among the week's 10 highest-rated programs. In fact, CBS listed nine of the Top 10 shows and 12 of the first 13 to win the networks' ratings competition for the second straight week.
CBS' rating for the week was 22.2, to 17.9 for ABC and 14.8 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 22.2 percent of the homes with TV were tuned to CBS.
The "Dallas" series focuses on the wheelings and dealings of the Ewing clan. J.R. Ewing, perhaps the meanest man on TV, was shot and seriously wounded last season, but the culprit has not been fingered.
Sunday night's episode, the last of the four broadcast in the week, was the most-watched show in the period, with a rating of 40. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 40 percent saw at least part of the Sunday night show.
Fans of "Dallas" will have to wait until Nov. 21 for the solution to the mystery that has become an international fascination.
NBC maintains its programming for 1980-81 began Sept. 15, with the miniseries "Shogun," and by that standard, NBC leads in the race by more than two points over No. 2 CBS. Both CBS and ABC say the season, delayed by the 10-week actors' strike, began Oct. 27.
ABC's "Love Boat" was the only non-CBS show to crack the Top 10.

Council opts for no parking

LAMESA — The Lamesa City Council has unanimously voted to prohibit parking between Main and Austin Avenues on South Second Avenue between the hours of 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. daily.

"Wall Street," as the area is more popularly known, has been a popular hangout for Lamesa's youth for a long time.

Once an attraction for school youngsters, the area has been attracting a different type crowd recently, according to Police Chief Lee Bartlett.

A mid-June disturbance there sent eight people to jail, all but one of whom were in their 20s.

Tough battle

Fairview-Knott area water woes weighed

By DON WOODS
Howard County Commissioners mulled solutions to the temporary water problem in the Fairview-Knott area during a meeting Monday afternoon.

"It's going to be a tough battle. I don't know if we can come up with it," said Chesley Wilson of United States Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service.

Commissioner W.B. "Bill" Crooker was not any more optimistic. "It looks at this point of time an impossibility but I do feel we owe it to these gentlemen to at least attempt," he said.

Two needs have been defined; the immediate one to drain Perkle Lake which swallowed Skeeter Murphy's house in the September rain, the other to find a permanent solution to the problem.

Four Howard County farmers met with Wilson and the commissioners Monday afternoon.

Commissioners seem to be leaning toward pumping the water out mechanically.

The other alternative would be to cut a channel from the lake to rangeland where water is needed.

Wilson was dubious. "Conservationists have just about got channeling stopped," he said.

"There's no way CRMWD (Colorado River Municipal Water District) will take this water, is there?" he asked.

Crooker said he had asked a CRMWD representative during lunch about it Monday and he answered in the negative.

It was decided that a county representative would travel to Austin this week to ask Civil Defense officials for use of the equipment used in Roscoe to pump water from a temporary lake along IS 20.

Civil Defense loaned Howard County the equipment a few years ago to pump water from a temporary lake near Knott. County Judge Bill Tune said the procedure was expensive and time consuming. Including transportation of the equipment from Mineral Wells, the cost was $16,000. Pumps ran all day and night for two weeks to pump two feet of water from the lake.

Perkle Lake does not hold as much water and transportation costs would be less if the equipment is obtained at Roscoe.

County Engineer Bill Mims' suggestion that the water would flow by a siphon process was met with agreement. If the pumps were put on the far end of the pipe to start the water flowing downhill, the lake might empty without use of the gasoline-powered pumps, said Mims.

Wilson suggested that area farmers and ranchers might have pumps used for irrigation that they could loan to the effort.

The Guitar Ranch, three-fourths of a mile away, has been suggested as a possible destination for the unwanted moisture.

Perkle Lake is 11 feet at its deepest.

Mims suggested, as a permanent solution to the problem, a system of retaining ponds established up the watershed with spillways.

"That's kind of the way our small waterway program works," said Wilson. The dam below each pond is built with a pipe at the bottom to let the water out slowly, eventually flowing into the retaining pond below it and spreading the accumulation into several different ponds.

But the plan has a drawback. "A lot of these will have to be in cropland. So you'll have another problem there," said Wilson.

Wilson said the farmers' problem was too small to be undertaken by the Army's Corp of Engineers. "We have our own flood control section," he said, to handle projects too small for the corp to handle.

County Attorney Harvey Hooser Jr., informed the commissioners that they should continue maintaining roads in the South Haven Addition because they had established a legal obligation when they started upkeep on the roads several years ago.

The roads in South Haven are just beyond the southern city limits on the east side of Wasson Road. A developer, H.C. Blackshear, allegedly told potential buyers that the county would maintain the roads, said Crooker.

"I don't think it's fair for a land developer to be putting out information he's not sure of," said Commissioner O.L. "Louis" Brown.

South Haven is filed in county records as a county plat. "It's an error to begin with," said Crooker.

He said, in a motion to maintain the roads, that because the plat was approved by the county on Sept. 21, 1950, the county will continue to maintain the roads on the plat but not roads built in the future outside the platte.

EARLY COPY — Gerri Atwell, curator at the Heritage Museum, holds a copy of Joe Pickle's book, 'Gettin' Started,' which will be available to the public at an autograph party scheduled to be held at the Heritage Museum Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Atwell said the publication, authorized by the Howard County Heritage Museum, is the most complete book ever put together on Big Spring and Howard County history.

Joe Pickle's book 'Gettin' Started' engrossing story

Joe Pickle's 436-page book, 'Gettin' Started,' in, in effect, an engrossing story about Howard County's first 25 years.
Pickle will be present for an autograph party scheduled Saturday and Sunday at the Heritage Museum. The hours each day will be 1 to 5 p.m. The book, which will sell for $15 plus tax, is being published by the Howard County Heritage Museum by Nortex Press of Burnet, Tex.
Perhaps no one is as well qualified to write about the subject as Pickle, a native of the area. The Pickle family resided in Nolan, Scurry, Gaines and Dawson counties before moving to Big Spring in 1920. The Pickles' arrival here coincided with the S.E.J. Cox "oil boom," which — as the cover of the book suggests — "marked the divide between the pioneer period of ranching, farming and railroading and that of the modern era of oil and commerce."
Pickle was a long time member of the Herald editorial staff and for a time during and immediately after WW II served as its publisher. His newspaper career encompassed 43 years. When he retired, he was the Editor of the Herald.
One of his first assignments as a reporter was to interview several pioneers, for whom the early days were still vivid memories.

This created in him an appetite for area history he retains to this day. Over the years, he wrote numerous newspaper and magazine articles about pioneer personalities and episodes. He also contributed to the Permian Basin Historical Society yearbook.
Although he retired from the newspaper in 1975, Pickle's appetite for living didn't wane. He continued his association with the Colorado River Municipal Water District but also found the time to work for the community and his church. Somehow, he also was able to do additional research in an attempt to sift fact from fiction, truth from legend, concerning the beginnings of Howard and surrounding counties.
The fruits of that labor are included in his book.
Joe's eldest son, Tom, did the drawings in the book "as a labor of love," Barry Canning, in Joe's words, "saved the day" by redrawing the maps included in the book.
The book is dedicated to Joe's wife, the late Lucille Rix Pickle, with the notation "who in her life, as did her pioneer parents and grandparents, contributed so much to the town and area in which she, as well as they, took intense pride."

At commission meeting Flood woes discussed

By DON WOODS
A meeting this morning between Howard County Commissioners and about a dozen farmers produced a possible beginning to a solution for a problem not often experienced in this area — too much water.
Four of the men — Richard Yarbar, E.W. Richardson, Howard Newton and Skeeter Murphy — were appointed as representatives of the group and will hopefully meet with Commissioners and Soil Conservation representatives this afternoon.
Skeeter Murphy, whose house was pictured under water in the Herald two weeks ago, gave his version of the problem.
"Seems like everyone cares about the water on his place and nobody cares where it ends up. I know where a lot of it ends up," he said.
The immediate problem is the temporary body of water, that has come to be known as Perkle Lake, that accumulated after the September deluge here.
One farmer said water was deep where it flowed into a lake on his land for 30 or 40 hours. "If my lake had been empty when it started it would have filled it 10 times," he said. This is part of the water that ended up in Perkle Lake.
"Commissioners are considering whether to channel the water out or pump it out."
At the same time, a more permanent solution is being considered. A three or four inch rain now could cause problems, said one farmer.
"That's the most serious thing we're up against right now. It's possible next spring we could be in this situation again or worse," he said.
The group discussed asking farmers north of the Fairview-Knott area to lend a hand. But others commented that these farmers have "got it like they want it" because the water doesn't accumulate on their land. Farmers are putting more land into cultivation than ever and need the acres sometimes covered with the temporary lakes.

One farmer said commissioners were partly to blame. "The county has been pretty negligent with letting their ditches get filled with sand and not keeping it cleared," he said. Water would not have washed across farmland as much, he said.
Commissioner W.B. "Bill" Crooker responded that it was impossible to prepare for a 15-inch rain. He said it had never happened here before.
Another problem surfaced. That is the water standing on roads too deep for farmers to travel. "We're drying several miles out of the way to get out of town," said one farmer. He told engineers two years ago that they should have allowed for a big rain when they built the road, but their attitude was, "What does a farmer know," he said.
Bids for the Lomax Fire Station building, new sheriff's office cars and janitorial service were opened this morning.
A-K Construction was awarded the $16,453 contract for their low bid. Spring Country Builders were second lowest with a $18,111 bid. Their building was 96 square foot larger, making the building 50 cents per square foot cheaper than A-K's.
However, the com-

Fina group is honored at picnic

The West Texas Production District conducted a picnic recently at the Col-Tex Club on Lake Colorado City for all district employees, their families and retirees.

Cheese Cake took first place as the tastiest, and a Dolly Parton Cake made by Billie Pierson received the prettiest award.

Jim Curry was first in carrying the 31 pound sledge hammer the furthest. Donnie Miller and Lee Freeman were the top horse shoe pitchers and Ralph Jordan and Junior Whitley came out as top washer chumpers.

A total of 131 people were in attendance. Steaks were cooked over a mesquite fire by company personnel. After lunch, Hoyle Nix's country-western band played with dancing in the dining room after the tables were cleared.

Washer chunking, horse shoe pitching, bingo, three-legged races and egg tossing were among games played.

Pets can be source of family infection

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Pets bring an added pleasure and depth of enjoyment to family life, but pets also are a source of potential infection for the family, according to Charlene S. Hardy, R.N., a nurse epidemiologist.

Addressing "The Second World Congress on Antisepsis," Ms. Hardy stated that "ownership of a pet implies inherent responsibility for its welfare." This involves immunization against diseases such as rabies, which is transmissible to man through a bite of an infected dog or cat. The family canary or parakeet can be a source of psittacosis and the pet turtle presents a potential source of salmonellosis. A cat and her kittens are potential sources of toxoplasmosis and of tinea capitis (ringworm of the scalp) and tinea corporis (ringworm of the body). Other infections have been associated with hamsters which are rodents, and fish tanks harbor still other bacteria (atypical mycobacterium).

Ms. Hardy discussed methods of preventing and controlling a number of potential infections including staphylococcal and streptococcal infections in the home environment. At the Congress she stressed the importance of personal and home environment hygiene.

She said that frequent and efficient handwashing after handling the pet, particularly with an effective antibacterial soap such as Betadine Skin Cleanser, is the most important means of preventing the possible transmission of infections.

Tips for the sleepless

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I have a very difficult time getting to sleep some nights. I'm active in school and don't seem to have any big problems. Can you help me? — Beth, London, Ontario, Canada

Beth: I receive many letters from teens who share the same problem. I'd like to devote this entire column to you and all your sleepless peers.

Even the most well-adjusted person can expect a night of tossing and turning once in a while. Occasional difficulties in falling asleep are nothing to stay up nights and worry about. Here are some tips that should work.

1. Try to turn in at the same time every night. Set a regular bedtime routine of precise but mundane tasks — such as pulling the shades,

- laying out the next day's clothes — and perform them in exactly the same order every night. Once it becomes a habit it will automatically trigger a sleep response.
2. Never read, write or eat in bed. Any activity other than sleep that you associate with being in bed will aggravate insomnia.
3. If you like a fast game of racquetball, play it in the morning or afternoon. Overstimulation may sabotage your slumber. On the other hand, a good workout early in the day will help you feel tired enough to fall asleep at night.
4. Say no to coffee, tea, chocolate and cola drinks after dinner. A good soporific "midnight snack" is a cup of warm milk or some cheese.
5. Unless it's absolutely impossible, sleep in a dark, quiet room. Earplugs, masks, even the hum of an air conditioner, are all safe ways to block out unwanted light and noise.

7. If you wake up during the night and can't go back to sleep, don't reward yourself by raiding the refrigerator or watching the late-late show. Such rewards will serve as an incentive to make a habit of waking — pleasant dreams.
6. Try "progressive muscle relaxation" at bedtime. This is a technique developed by Dr. Edmund Jacobson, a Chicago psychologist, in which you first tense and then relax the muscles in various parts of your body until you're totally relaxed and ready to drift off.

Dear Abby

Law's Long Arm Can Slap Lady's Butterfingers

DEAR ABBY: My whole family is so frustrated and upset we don't know what to do, so we're writing to you. My sister, who is a cheerleader, was told to come to school prepared to have her picture taken with the other cheerleaders.

Mom gave Sis her 14-karat gold necklace to wear because she thought it would look nice for the picture. She gave Sis orders not to take it off. The necklace was a Christmas gift from Dad and cost $50.

Well, just before the picture was taken, the woman in charge of the cheerleaders' pictures told Sis she wasn't allowed to wear the necklace for the picture. Sis said she wasn't allowed to take it off, so this woman took it off her and held it while the pictures were being taken.

After the pictures were taken the woman couldn't find the necklace. She said she must have dropped it. All the cheerleaders helped Sis look. The lady also looked, and so did the photographer. Nobody could find it.

When Mom found out about it she was heartbroken. She went to the field, got on her hands and knees, searched for 2½ hours and couldn't find it. Then she called the lady in charge. She just said she was sorry, all she could give Mom was $15 toward replacing the necklace.

Who is responsible for the necklace? We are totally lost. Can we sue this lady in small claims court?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: The woman who took the necklace for safekeeping is morally responsible for its return or replacement. You could threaten to sue her. (A threat sometimes produces results.) But I suggest that you talk to a lawyer first.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked if a hostess should ask her guests if they want refreshments, or should she go ahead and serve something.

While your response was adequate, I think a more appropriate response would have been one my momma used to use:

"Ah gezunte geebt min. Ah kranke fregt min."

I may not have spelled it right, but I think you will understand what it means.

MILTON SCHMERZLER, SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.

DEAR MILTON: I understand it perfectly. Your momma and my momma must have gone to the same school. And for those who require a translation, it means: "A healthy person you give. A sick one, you ask."

DEAR ABBY: NEEDS A BREAK, the wife and mother who wanted a week's vacation alone at the beach, is doing things backward.

Instead of going to the beach by herself, and then having to spend three weeks cleaning up the mess at home made by her husband and children in her absence, she should send them to the beach and have a glorious, restful week at home.

For my birthday present one year, my husband took my children camping for three days. I had a great time, doing exactly what I wanted to, when I felt like it, and I was glad to see them come home as they were to see me again.

We were all revitalized and appreciated each other more after that.

Cisco hangs on for exciting 87-85 win

By NATHAN POSS Sports Editor

The Cisco College Wranglers held off a furious rally by the Howard College Hawks here Tuesday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, escaping with an exciting 87-85 win in the non-conference tilt.

And although there were many different variables in the hard played battle, it was the paradox of the benches that proved to be the biggest difference in the outcome. Howard played a total of 10 players, while Cisco only played seven people.

But the Cisco reserves that did play outscored the Howard College subs by a count of 26-8, and it was vital in allowing Tommy Collins to come out on top.

Collins, the former popular Big Spring High School basketball and baseball coach, had lost six top players since school started for various reasons, and seemed both happy and relieved with the win.

"This is the first time in three tries back here that I've won," said the excitable Collins. "We played like a bunch of rag-tag football players at times, which a couple of our guys are, but still had some guys that came out and played better than they had this year."

One of those football players Collins spoke of was Will McKamney, a 6'0" guard who scored all 16 of his points in the second half when the Wranglers needed it the most to help keep the visitors ahead.

"You can tell he's a football player by the way he dribbles," said Collins, about half facetiously. "And he knew he had to hit those shots in the second half! If he misses, he knows we're taking his scholarship away."

Meanwhile, Howard College Coach Harold Wilder was both pleased and disappointed with the way his team played.

"We hustled as much as possible," said Wilder. "I can't be unhappy with our hustle. But we didn't have any depth at all. Bobby Word came in and played well, but other than that, they really hurt us in that department."

Cisco, behind the early shooting of Danny Priest and Lamont Robinson, exploded in the initial stages of the contest, taking a 20-10 lead with just over six minutes gone.

But Wilder called time out and regrouped his Howard College team, with the Hawks putting on a rally of their own, finally taking a 28-27 lead with 7:48 to go in the first half on a pair of free throws by Ron Akins.

But it didn't last too long, as Cisco came back to get the lead, with a final unanswered six-point outburst in the last minute of the half and it spearheaded a drive in the second half that put them back into the contest.

The fouls also hurt Cisco in other ways, as their already limited amount of players began fouling out.

The first to do so was reserve Steve Martin, who exited with eight minutes left and Cisco leading 71-63. Martin, at 6'8", was missed under the boards by the Wranglers.

The Hawks then narrowed the margin to 77-75 on a three-point play by freshman Randy Corker, and in the process fouled out Danny Priest, Cisco's agile 6'5" center who led his team with 19 points in the game. 5:19 remained in the game.

The momentum in Garrett Coliseum was definitely in favor of the Hawks at this point, as it appeared that the rapidly depleting Cisco team was ready to fold.

But it did not, with Robinson and McKamney hitting two key field goals in the next minute to increase the Cisco lead to 81-75.

Howard's Jeff Faubion came back with a pair of free throws, but Robinson answered with a short jumper.

The two teams then began trading baskets, and after three each the score stood at 87-81 with just under two minutes to play.

At this point, Howard's hustling sophomore, Kenneth Jones, scored once on a tip-in to narrow the margin to 87-83, then lifted the roof of the coliseum on a slam dunk off a Howard College steal to put the Hawks within two at 87-85.

With a frantic full court press on, the Hawks fouled Robinson with only 15 seconds remaining, hoping for a miss and a subsequent rebound.

Their wish was fulfilled as Robinson missed the attempt, and the Hawks quickly grabbed the rebound and brought the ball up the court.

But Akins delivered a flat shot from 18 feet out with five seconds to play. The ball bounced off the rim, and Cisco's Troy Woods grabbed the rebound to ice the Wrangler win.

"We wanted Kenneth (Jones) to take that last shot," preferable driving to the basket and drawing a foul," Wilder explained. "But he was covered and passed the ball to Ron."

The HC loss overshadowed another excellent offensive night from Corker, the massive 6'5" freshman from Trenton, New Jersey. He scored 27 points, with 17 coming in the big second half rally. Jones added 23, both from inside and with his patented shot from the corner.

Cisco's Priest had 19 points, but even more impressive was the overall balance of the Wrangler attack. Six of the seven players in the contest for Collins' squad hit in double figures.

The Hawks, now 1-1 on the year, hit the road today for Altus, Oklahoma, and the Great Plains Classic. Their first round opponent will be Wallace State of Alabama. That game is slated for Thursday at 5:00 p.m.

Cisco is now 2-1 on the year.

AIRBORNE PRESS... Howard College Hawk Ron Akins (32) flies high to block as many passing lanes as possible while his teammates apply full court pressure during second half of the Cisco-Howard game last night. Howard put on a frantic rally, but the Cisco team held on for a pulsating 87-85 win here Tuesday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The Cisco player trying to pass downcourt is Danny Priest (42).

Steer boss sees San Angelo game as most vital

STEER COACH RALPH HARRIS

Although this Friday night's District 5-AAAAA football contest in Memorial Stadium between cellar dwellers Big Spring and San Angelo will have no great impact on the final league race like a contest some 60 miles west, BSHS Steer Coach Ralph Harris is feels that it is just as important.

The contest 60 miles west of Big Spring is the battle between Odessa High and Odessa Permian, with the winner receiving a berth in the state playoffs.

"This game is just as important to us as it is to those people over in Odessa," Harris said yesterday. "I know some may not believe me, but it's very important for our program. But then again, it is also very important for theirs (San Angelo), too."

Both Big Spring and San Angelo will enter the contest Friday night with 0-6 records in 5-AAAAA play. The Bobcats also lost all three of their non-district games, while the Steers won two of three. Their wins came over Snyder and Sweetwater.

"This game, if we win, could serve as a great springboard for our team and our program," said Harris, who in his first year is attempting to pull a major overhaul on the BSHS grid fortunes.

"San Angelo is bigger than us inside, but not that much," he explained. "We do have an advantage in speed, however, and I hope we can utilize that."

"They (San Angelo) are not a bad football team," Harris continued. "In a lot of AAAAA districts around the state, they would be a very competitive football team. They are extremely sound in that they are well coached. They're just like us, they don't really know how to win consistently yet."

Meanwhile, Harris rates Permian as a favorite to defeat Odessa for the district championship. "Permian has a far superior defense to Odessa High," he philosophized. "And they always say, in a championship game, go with the defense."

Hawk Queens continue success in rout

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawk Queens turned what was intended to be a tough battle into a laugher here Tuesday evening in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, doing nearly whatever they wanted in taking a 71-48 decision over the Cisco Lady Wranglers in a non-conference tussle.

Kelly Lyons spearheaded the Hawk Queens, who came out and established control early in taking a 34-19 half-time lead.

Lyons scored 14 of their 15 points in the opening half, and was the leading rebounder in the contest with 12. The 6'3" All-Conference star also had two blocked shots, and created frustrations for any hopes that Cisco had inside with their ace, Mitzi Henderson.

"Kelly did just a great job inside on Henderson and the rest of the Cisco team," said Howard College Coach Don Stevens. "Henderson (6'2") is an excellent player, and she was having to shoot her shots a little different because of Kelly's defense."

The Queens dominated all aspects of the game, and as usual, had a balanced attack. A total of nine players scored in the contest, with Lyons and freshman Cynthia Robinson of Slaton sharing high point honors with 15 each. Melissa Luna, a 6'2" freshman from El Paso, added 10 points.

The leading Hawk Queen rebounders, other than Lyons, were Luna and Jill Floyd, with seven each.

Peggy Taylor had 16 for Cisco, with Henderson adding 10.

The Cisco team outscored the Hawk Queens by 18-7 at the charity stripe, but it was the field goal shooting of the host team that proved to be devastating. Howard College hit 32 of 73 for a 43 percent mark, while the Cisco team connected on less than 30 percent of their shots from the field.

The win boosted the Hawk Queens record to 5-1, but it was difficult for Stevens to evaluate the performance. "It's hard to tell how we played, because of the way Cisco played. They did not play well, obviously," said the Hawk Queen mentor.

"But it's still a good win," he continued, "because Cisco is a highly respectable team."

The Queens return to action next Monday at seven, at which time they host Howard Payne. But their biggest test will be one weekend from now, when they are the host team in the newly prestigious Hawk Queen Classic. That tournament, also slated for Garrett Coliseum, brings in some of the top fem juco teams from around the state.

Cisco is now 1-2 on the year. Their other loss was a one-point overtime setback to Western Texas College.

Athletic Director Ron Logback, as well as Booster Club Chairman Sherrie Bordofsky, urges the public to attend the yearly event, in which there will be numerous awards given for achievement during the past season.

Angelo tops local swimmers

San Angelo swimmers topped both Big Spring teams in a meet held here, Saturday.

Local girls varsity members put up a hard fight, but were edged by the San Angelo team, 44-37. Local boys scored 31 to San Angelo's 49.

"Individually we had some excellent performances from all our swimmers. We're just not strong enough as an overall team at this point," said Coach Harlan Smith. "Hopefully in the weeks to come we will gain that strength," he added.

Midland girls win quad-tourney

MIDLAND - The Midland High girls scored a win here Friday afternoon in a battle between four teams in golf action at Hogan Park.

The Bulldog females used 358 strokes to claim the win, with cross-town rival Lee finishing second with 379 strokes. Big Spring was third with 431 strokes, with Andrews next with 497.

Kelly Mobley and Janice Littlefield of Midland shared medalist honors with rounds of 83.

Big Spring was paced by Lisa Bumgardner's 99. Other Big Spring scores had Laura Mexia with a 108, Patricia Jones with 109, Karen Woodall at 115 and Rhonda Woodall with a 118.

Plains stops Seagraves

SEAGRAVES - The Plains Cowboys took a very big step toward representing District 5-AA in the state football playoffs here Friday night by taking a 10-0 win over the Seagraves Eagles.

The win allowed Plains to remain tied with Stanton in the 5-AA race. Both have district records of 4-0-1. But when the two teams tied earlier in the year, Plains had one more first down than Stanton.

Plains scored on a 25-yard field goal by Martin Huerta and an 82-yard fumble return by James McElroy.

The loss dropped Seagraves' record to 3-2 and 7-2.

Plains must now defeat Forsan next Friday in order to clinch a share of the district title and a spot in the playoffs.

ON HAND FOR ONE-DAY WORKSHOP — Thirty radiologic technologists from throughout the area, including the four men pictured here, attended a one-day workshop at Malone-Hogan Hospital the past weekend. From the left here are Walter Florio, El Paso; Ron Stvartak, an Eastman Kodak regional representative; Tom Brennan, Houston; and the local host, Dr. Buerk Williams.

X-ray examinations workshop gains praise

A one-day workshop of "hands-on" experiences, followed by laboratory results of the presentation will be visible immediately in the area, according to Dr. Buerk Williams, radiologist and Chairman of the Radiology Department at Malone-Hogan Hospital. "I have never seen such a complex subject so scientifically dissected and so lucidly presented as was this," he said. Up until now, this course was taught only in New York at the Eastman Kodak Educational Center, and was a five-day course, said Dr. Bernard Zilberg, Chairman of the CMED. "Our need for the refresher course in this area, and our request for it, resulted in the film company's development of this concentrated presentation on problems controlling consistent quality X-rays that will not have to be retaken," the Chairman said. The pilot program, conceived by the local group last spring, and spearheaded by Dr. Williams, was developed by Eastman Kodak's regional representative, Ron Stvartak. It posed a serious technical problem, since the only course available in the country was the five-day course taught at Eastman Kodak's Education Center in New York City. Faculty expertise and the expense of cross-country travel for area technologists, were major problems identified by the local educational solver, supplied the answer to both. Representative Stvartak, District Manager Tom Brennan of Houston, and Technical Representative Walter Florio of El Paso, top men in the company's western division, served as classroom faculty. "It was tremendous," Dr. P.W. Malone, Foundation Chairman, described the quality control presentation. Limited to 30 participants to accommodate an afternoon laboratory session to allow technologist to experiment with instructors lecture suggestions, the class was full. Participants rated the seminar highly, commenting that the opportunity to personally experience instrumentation and measurements pertinent to controlling image visibility of an X-ray film, under supervision of the highly qualified Eastman Kodak faculty, was outstanding. The CMED group plans another radiological seminar for the fall of 1981.

Bogart's shut down

Bogart's Nightclub has been suspended for 25 days for seven counts of violation of the Alcoholic Beverage Code, said Sam Smelser, Alcoholic Beverage Commission (ABC) inspector. The violations include assault of a police officer on the premises, non-members being admitted, and fights that occurred unchecked. The suspension began Monday and will continue through Dec. 3. Smelser said he got the paperwork from Austin recently on the case. The suspension was an alternative to a $150 a day fine. The suspension stemmed from a protest to the renewal of the club's license by several members of the Big Spring community in February. These included the county attorney's office and police department.

These protests were combined with the ABC protest. The suspension was a compromise alternative to shutting the club down permanently.

Ector County recount looms

ODESSA — Ector County will undertake a recount of votes in the 60th District state representative race, which saw Jerry Cockerham edge incumbent Rep. Richard Slack by only 452 votes. Slack forces had petitioned for the recount.

Voters in seven counties cast ballots. In Ector County, election officials experienced difficulty with balloting machines. Cockerham's margin of victory in Ector was 2,289 votes.

Stenholm gets commendation

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford, who represents Howard County in the Congress, has been commended by the American Institute of Industrial Engineers for his support in its October campaign to increase public awareness for the need for improved productivity.

The month-long public information effort by the institute included several community activities by its 200 chapters of industrial engineers.

Stenholm was reelected, without opposition, for his second term in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Trustees call Thursday meet
