Fire breaks out in MGM Grand Hotel

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A fire today in the MGM Grand hotel-casino on Las Vegas' glittering strip sent smoke throughout all 26 stories and trapped hundreds of guests in their rooms and on the roof. Clark County Fire Capt. Ralph Dinsman said 12 people were killed and "the injuries are going into the hundreds."

The fire, which broke out in the basement at 7:15 a.m. PST and sent smoke billowing hundreds of feet into the air, was controlled two hours later. Dinsman termed the blaze "the worst hotel fire we've ever had in Las Vegas" and he estimated damage in the millions.

Many guests fled to the roof, where helicopters were evacuating them. At 9:30 a.m. PST, the Red Cross said 20 people were still on the roof. Dinsman said the fire department's ladders reached only to the ninth floor of the $106 million luxury hotel, which with 2,076 rooms is one of the world's largest.

At least seven bodies were found in the 140-yard-long casino, which was destroyed, Dinsman said. He said an eighth victim had jumped from a window and two had been found in their rooms.

Dinsman said most of those injured had cuts from glass or were treated for smoke inhalation.

Police helicopters circled, and officers shouted over bullhorns, "Don't Jump, don't jump," to guests leaning out of windows, dangling bedsheet ladders, or crammed on balconies. An eyewitness said about 30 people were on one balcony screaming for help.

Dinsman said the guests were in no immediate danger as long as they stayed by their windows.

With the flames controlled, firefighters began evacuations floor by floor, both from inside corridors and from the outside, using window-washers' platforms to lower people to safety.

Many survivors were barefoot, wearing nightgowns blackened by smoke.

"Everybody was pushing everybody. We didn't know what to do," said Walter Fellwood of Ellicott, Md., who fled his sixth-floor room with his wife, leaving their belongings behind.

Many guests threw furniture through their windows to get air, and the falling debris injured some people on the ground.

Every ambulance in town was called to the scene. Injured guests, many in nightclothes, were being treated by medics on the street alongside the 43-acre hotel site.

"It was terrible. People were wandering down the hall and didn't know what to do," said Jerry Rosanblum, a New York stockbroker who was a guest on the seventh floor. "You were lulled into a false sense of security. There were no phone calls, no alarm, nothing."

about your life."

Motivational ideas for educators was next in Mrs. McCullough's ideas for positive living. She advised that "If you take a job, be there," and chided absenteeism in schools.

She also urged teachers to "Be prepared, write down what you want to accomplish."

Other tips were "Be a hugger, and be a caring person." Also "Be professional. Look the part, and don't gossip."

Linda Blaydes, Big Lake, District XVIII president of TSTA, presided over the meeting at the coliseum, which highlighted a day filled with meetings attended by educators from throughout the district. A Big Spring Boy Scout troop made the presentation of colors. Lynn Hise, Big Spring Independent School District superintendent, lead the invocation, and Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, gave the welcome.

Awards were given to a group for their contributions in Human Rights. They were Dr. Jack Adkisson, Sul Ross University; Mayor Bob Bryant, Odessa; Joseph A. Lucas, Big Lake Middle School president, and the Reagan County Independent School District Board of Trustees.

Ms. Jewell Harris, a former teacher and past president of TSTA, was given a special award for her long-standing contributions to the Association's Human Relations program.

Murder trial continues

'Death weapon' identified

By DON WOODS

A 12-gauge shotgun with a shortened barrel and a pistol grip stock was carried into 118th District Courtroom and entered into evidence Thursday afternoon in the third day of the murder trial of Abe Gonzalez.

Gonzalez is accused of gunning down Ronald Jeter, Feb. 15 in BJ's Country Lounge, now known as Joe's Hideaway, Snyder Highway.

The man who said he took the gun away from Gonzalez, Tom Belshe, identified the gun as the weapon used to kill Jeter.

Prosecution witness Belshe explained to Hamby the events that led to his wrestling the shotgun from Gonzalez.

"I heard someone say, 'He's got a gun.' I heard a shot fired and I looked and Mr. Jeter fell. Mr. Gonzalez pumped another shell into the gun and, in my opinion, tried to shoot Mr. Jeter again. The shot hit a stove."

"Do you know which shot struck Mr. Jeter?" asked Hamby.

"Yes, sir, it was the first one," Belshe replied.

"How did he fall?" asked Hamby.

"He fell on his knees then fell on his face and fell toward the bar."

"Where did he fall in relation to the stove and Abe Gonzalez?" asked Hamby.

"Near the end of the bar," Belshe replied. "He was on his knees when the first shot was fired and I didn't see where he was when the second shot was fired."

Hamby produced photos of the interior of the bar.

"This red spot on the carpet, what is that?" Hamby asked.

"That is where Mr. Jeter's head was near the end of the bar," said Belshe.

"Is that Mr. Jeter's blood?" asked Hamby.

"Yes sir, it is," responded the former Big Spring policeman.

Hamby asked Belshe if he heard Gonzalez say anything after shots were fired. Belshe responded that he heard nothing said. It was pretty "confused" because of the panic accompanying the firing of the shotgun inside the building, said Belshe.

Belshe was asked to describe his actions after the shots were fired.

"I don't remember exactly what my actions were after the shooting but I did get the gun. . . I did strike Mr. Gonzalez with a weapon," said Belshe, who had been driving a truck in Oklahoma before a layoff. He struck Gonzalez "around the head and shoulders," he said.

Belshe locked the weapon in the trunk of his car, surrendering it to Sheriff's Deputy Sgt. Robert Puente when he arrived five minutes later, Belshe testified.

Hamby walked to the door of the courtroom where he was handed the alleged murder weapon. He carried it to the witness stand and worked the action to insure that it was unloaded.

Belshe identified the gun and Hamby asked him to demonstrate Gonzalez's stance to the jury. Belshe took a step forward, leaned slightly toward the north wall of the courtroom and brandished the weapon in both hands toward the wall.

Deputy Puente testified that when he arrived on the scene he saw an Anglo on his back with a gunshot wound close to his neck lying in a pool of blood close to the bar.

Chief Deputy Bill Whitton testified when he arrived at the lounge he saw Gonzalez with a bandage around his head.

Defense Attorney George Gilkerson asked him if he saw any motorcycles outside the bar.

"I was so busy I didn't pay any attention to what was outside," said Whitton.

Special DA Investigator Buster McCartney testified that he was at the bar Nov. 14 and made a rough drawing of the layout of the bar.

Testimony opened Monday with Belshe taking the stand again. Jerry Allen, oilfield hand, also took the stand as a witness for the state.

He said that Jeter had an altercation with an unidentified man earlier the night of the shooting.

"You remember how cool it was that night?" asked defense lawyer George Gilkerson. "Yes sir," said Allen. "Kind of chilly wasn't it," said Gilkerson. "Yes, sir," said Allen.

"And you say they were on the front porch talking?" asked Gilkerson.

Allen said he didn't know what they were talking about but that they had returned to the bar and shook hands. Jeter went to the bar to purchase a beer, said Allen.

Allen said there had been three Mexicans in the lounge. "Were they sort of out of place?" asked Gilkerson.

"I didn't think so. I've lived here in Texas all my life," said Allen.

Gilkerson asked Allen how long it had been between Gonzalez' first and second shot. "Brief seconds," replied Allen. "Real quick."

Gilkerson asked Allen who had struck Gonzalez with a pool cue after he fired the shots.

"All I saw was the stick splattering all over the place," said Allen.

Allen said he had probably worn a black Harley-Davidson motorcycle T-shirt and a black leather jacket. Jeter had probably worn his black T-shirt also, said Allen, but was not wearing the motorcycle jacket.

Jeter was a fairly large man, Allen said. Gonzalez was four to six feet away from Jeter when he fired.

One-man election called Saturday in six counties

Balloting will be held Saturday in Howard, Borden, Coke, Dawson, Scurry and Sterling Counties in the special election to fill an unexpired term of retiring state Rep. Mike Ezzell.

The only candidate in the race is Larry Don Shaw, state representative elect. Shaw will take office in January regardless of the special election's outcome.

Voting boxes are located in Howard County as follows:

Voters in precincts 1, 8, 12, 13 and 17 will vote in commissioner precinct 1. The box is at the Northside Fire Station. Election judge is Emilo Molina, 1103 N. Scurry.

Voters in precincts 2, 9, 10, 15, 18 and 21 will vote in commissioner precinct 2. The voting box will be at Washington Place School. The election judge is Jeanette Mansfield, 1101 Stanford.

Voters in precincts 3, 16 and 19 will vote in commissioner precinct 3. The voting box will be at 18th and Main Fire Station. The election judge is Nan Buske, 1210 Pennsylvania.

The voters in election precincts 4, 5, 6, 7, 11, 20 and 22 vote in commissioner precinct 4. The voting box is at Fourth and Nolan Fire Station. The election judge is Mrs. Jack Wolf, Vincent Route Box 102, Coahoma.

Attempt to name new BSSH superintendent hits snag

Marie-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An attempt to name a new superintendent for the Big Spring State Hospital was thwarted today when the Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation learned that the only applicants for the job had withdrawn their names from consideration.

Dr. John J. Kavanagh, executive director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, said the two applicants were acting Superintendent Dr. Wallace Hunter and a doctor from San Antonio.

"The doctor from San Antonio withdrew his application three or four weeks ago, because he decided he wanted to remain in San Antonio," Kavanagh said.

Hunter gave no reason for his recent withdrawal, the MH-MR director said during a break in the board meeting.

Dr. Hunter had previously said, however, that he did not care for administrative work.

Hunter had been superintendent of the institution for two years until he resigned in 1977, Kavanagh said. He came back to the hospital in 1978 as a consultant and finally signed on full time again.

Kavanagh appointed Hunter acting superintendent June 30 of this year, when Dr. Grace Ferguson was, in effect, fired. That action came after several members of her staff complained that they could no longer work in what they described as an atmosphere of disharmony and suspicion.

Dr. Ferguson threatened to sue MH-MR after she was fired, claiming discrimination against her as a woman, Kavanagh said today that as far as he knows no suits have been filed as yet, but that Dr. Ferguson and the department's lawyers are in negotiations in an effort to settle the dispute out of court.

Gray Book, chairman of the MH-MR board, said, "We're now in the position of having to readvertise the position." Neither Book nor Kavanagh would venture a guess as to when a new superintendent might be hired.

Positive attitudes emphasized

'There is no such thing as I can't,' teachers told

By CAROL HART

Mamie McCullough, a director of the Zig Zigar Corporations affiliate company, Positive Life Attitudes for America, addressed more than 500 area educators today gathered at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum for the District XVIII Texas State Teachers Association convention.

District XVIII includes 26 counties in Texas, and involves about 2,000 teachers.

Mrs. McCullough, a Dallas resident, spoke about positive attitude reinforcement, and her 'I can' policies.

Saying "I Can't is a habit," Mrs. McCullough said. "There is no such thing as I can't." Mrs. McCullough, who in addition to her duties with the Ziglar Corporation, is also an educator, said she advised her students never to say "I can't."

She explained that "I can't" breaks down into "I won't," or "I don't know how." With her own children, she advised that she solved the problem of "I can't" with "let me teach you," or "let me spank you."

Mrs. McCullough added "you can be anything you want to be if you want to be." She said Ziglar's book, "See You At The Top," helped her to change her life. Through positive mental attitude, she learned to set goals, and came to the conclusion that "nothing was too good for me."

"You're halfway there if you make up your mind to do it," she told the educators.

Born Mamie Clair Darlington in Dixie, Ga., Mrs. McCullough described herself as a child as "poor and ugly. . . I didn't think I'd get out of Dixie, Ga." She said because she felt herself to be ugly and backward, those were the things she was.

The role of an educator, she added, must include positive reinforcement of students. Educators need "to encourage what potential might be there," she said.

"How you see yourself is important," Mrs. McCullough stressed. She said her motto in 1976 was "Get it fixed in '76," and explained that "if you don't like something about yourself, get it fixed. You've got to like yourself."

Mrs. McCullough pointed to a bumblebee pin she wears on her jacket, and explained that the creature was a symbol of positive thinking.

She said it is aerodynamically impossible for the bumblebee to fly, because his wings are too light and his body too heavy. "But he doesn't know it, so he flies," she said.

"If it is to be, it's up to me," she said. "You can change most things

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Drinking, driving toll

Q. How many of the nation's traffic deaths are alcohol-related?

A. It's estimated that 28,000 of such fatalities are alcohol-related, a staggering figure when you realize the total count is about 50,000 each year. Among drivers between the ages 16 and 24, 60 percent of all fatalities involve alcohol and drugs. The Number One killer of American youth is drinking and driving.

Man arrested on bridge

LONDON (AP) — Police arrested a 35-year-old man on Westminster Bridge today, ending a four-hour standoff during which he threatened to blow himself up, Scotland Yard said.

The Thames River bridge by the Houses of Parliament was closed during the incident, which ended when two police officers persuaded the man to surrender. During the negotiations, the man sat in his car on the south side of the bridge holding a package with wires protruding from it. Police later discovered the package did not contain explosives, as the man claimed.

The Yard said the man made "rambling" demands about peace and the cost of nuclear arms and apparently wanted to broadcast a message.

Police identified him as John Lineham and said he was charged with threatening to cause criminal damage.

Five-year agreement signed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The U.S. Christian Children's Fund has signed a five-year agreement with the Indonesian government to donate $14 million to improve child welfare in this country, officials announced.

Indonesian officials say 30 percent of the country's 43 million people live under the poverty level. The Fund has been providing assistance to Indonesian children since 1973.

Singing on train a crime

ROME (AP) — Singing in this land that produced Caruso and Pavarotti can land you in jail for up to two months — if you do your vocalizing on the train.

A new rule that goes into effect Dec. 1 provides fines up to $99 for "solo" performances on Italian trains and up to $550 for performances by a "chorus." Those refusing to pay the fine can be jailed for up to two months.

Plane crash investigated

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korean officials have decided to reopen their investigation into the cause of the crash of a Korean Airlines jumbo jet in which 15 people including the pilot died at Kimpo Airport here.

Korean investigators said they may have been too hasty in blaming the pilot, Yang Chan-mo, for the accident, which occurred Wednesday when the Boeing 747 landed just short of the runway in fog and burst into flames. The plane was carrying 206 passengers and 20 crew members on a flight from Los Angeles.

Clements wants Tower to stay in Senate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says Sen. John Tower is more valuable to Texas and the nation as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee than as secretary of defense.

At a hastily called news conference Thursday, Clements tried to erase talk of a Texas double play in which President-elect Ronald Reagan taps Tower as defense secretary, and Clements picks John Connally to fill Tower's senate seat.

"I don't know why everybody keeps talking about this. They must have run out of things to talk about," he said. "I don't have any reason to believe that is going to happen anytime soon, if ever."

The governor said it's unlikely that former Gov. Connally wants to be a senator.

"If he had any ambition to be a senator he would have done that 20 years ago," Clements said. "He has no ambition to be a senator from Texas."

Tower, who is due to become the chairman of the powerful Senate Armed Services Committee, met with Reagan in Washington Wednesday, but declined to comment on his discussion with the president-elect.

One source said Tower still was a contender for the defense post, but that choice "was not as solid as some of the others."

Because Tower's appointment would require a special election within 90 days to fill the unexpired four years of his senate term, his selection could hinge on Reagan's assessment of Republican chances of retaining the seat. A Democratic victory would erode the slender Republican majority in the Senate. Clements' opinion on retaining the seat could weigh heavily on Reagan's decision.

The governor said Tower is "uniquely qualified" to move into the chairman's seat of the armed services committee because of his 16 years on the panel.

Clements said Gen. Alexander Haig, also mentioned as a possible secretary of defense, would have "some difficulties" because of his military background.

"Anytime you have a four-star general, you have crossed the line of civilian control," he said, citing "a very positive line of authority and tradition" of civilian control of the military.

Clements stressed that Reagan has not made up his mind on cabinet selections, and predicted appointments would be announced next Wednesday at the earliest.

He has not seen the lists of candidates for each post.

"The less I know about this the better position I'm in with you," he told reporters.

The governor went to Washington today to meet with defense, State Department and intelligence officials as part of the Reagan interim advisory committee on defense and foreign policy.

Clements will spend one or two days a week in Washington until the Texas Legislature convenes in January, he said. His role after Reagan takes office will be up to the new president, he added.

"That's entirely up to him. He understands full well I have a limited amount of time," Clements said, indicating the Legislature will keep him busy.

WINNERS OF COMMENDATION AWARDS — Pictured are four of the five people who were presented with the coveted Commendation Awards during the annual Big Spring State Hospital Employees Banquet held Thursday night.

From the left, they are George Colvin, Genie Crooks, Catherine Baca and Carl Morrow. Robert Moran, also declared a winner, was unable to be present for the ceremony.

'Touch Someone Else's life,' theme of principal speaker

Five persons, one of them in absentia, received Commendation Awards at the 13th annual Awards Program staged for employees of the Big Spring State Hospital Thursday evening at the hospital.

Honored were George R. Colvin, Catherine Baca, Carl Morrow, Robert Moran and Sandra G. (Genie) Crooks. Moran was unable to be present for the ceremony.

The certificates were handed out by Mrs. Charles Condray, a member of the hospital staff, and Dr. Wallace Hunter, acting superintendent of the hospital.

Kenneth Greathouse was presented with the Psychiatric Aide of the Year by Mary Butler. The Charles McCall Award was presented to Eva Watkins. The 1980 Teacher of the Year honor was bestowed upon Robert Coffee.

Friend of the Hospital certificates were presented to the Paul G. Mahoney VFW Post 4372, Odessa (Leroy Holloman, hospital chairman), Bert Andries of the Big Spring Boys Club and Dr. Jack Woodall.

Jim Baum, a former Big Spring resident who is now owner of a radio station in Colorado City, was the principal speaker of the evening. He used as his theme "Touch Someone Else's Life."

Baum regaled the audience in recalling some of his experiences in professional baseball and as a congressional candidate and said everyone should feel motivated by helping others.

Bob von Rosenberg served as the master of ceremonies. Dr. Hunter welcomed the gathering to the banquet. Chaplain Lee Hunter offered the invocation paid homage to members of the hospital staff who died within the past year. Their numbers include Otillie Van Vleet, Brigitte Kushaney, Clara Beth Statham and Arthur Pierce.

20 killed, 100 hurt in Italian train crash

VIBO VALENTIA, Italy (AP) — Two express passenger trains traveling 100 mph slammed into some stray three-way collision early today in this southern Italian town, killing at least 20 people and injuring 100, officials said. A police source said a signal malfunction appeared to be responsible.

Rescue workers used blowtorches and crowbars to cut through the wreckage and a police official said he had no idea how many more bodies were still inside. Police sources said many of the bodies already pulled from the twisted cars were dismembered and spread over a wide area just outside the Vibo Valentia train station.

No foreigners were on the partial, preliminary casualty lists, officials said.

The crash occurred about 3 a.m. just outside the station in this Calabria town near Catanzaro. Railroad officials said the 16-car express train "587" from Rome to Siracusa, Sicily, slammed into 28 boxcars detached from a freight train and somehow left on the track. The collision threw some of the cars onto an adjoining track where they were hit by the 15-car Rome-bound "588" express from the opposite direction, officials said.

Police said the passenger trains were traveling "at full speed" of 160 kilometers an hour — 100 miles an hour — and that at least three of the cars of the Rome-bound train were destroyed.

Police cordoned off the area and allowed only rescue workers near the site of the crash.

Doctors and nurses were brought in from nearby towns to treat the victims. It was the worst train wreck in Italy since 1978 when two express trains crashed near Bologna, killing 43 people.

The director of the state railroad for the Reggio Calabria region told reporters 28 cars somehow broke off from a 41-car freight train.

Mr. Layfield, born May 19, 1914, in Kerens, Tex., was a former resident of Big Spring. He had resided in the Dallas area for the past 12 years. He had worked as a restaurant manager before retiring in 1975.

He was a member of the Methodist Church. Survivors include two sons, James Nelson Layfield of Caldwell, Idaho, and David Layfield, Lancaster, Tex.; a daughter, Mrs. John Alice Ballew, Dallas; seven sisters, Maudie Jones, Big Spring, Ruby Pemberton, Dallas, Leona Jones, Eastland, Minnie Quebebaum, England, Ark.; Mary Graham, Houston, Eula Clark, San Antonio, and Willie Mae Brunett, Lampasas; four brothers, Dennis Layfield, El Paso, Wilmont Layfield and Earl Layfield, both of Stephenville, and Noel Layfield, Brownfield; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Opal Loveless

Mrs. Frank (Opal) Loveless, 75, died at 3:15 a.m., today in a local hospital following a long illness. Services are pending at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Mrs. Loveless was born March 22, 1905, in Howard County. She was married to Frank Loveless Nov. 4, 1923, in Big Spring. She was a lifetime resident of Big Spring. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shive, who were pioneer residents of the area.

She grew up in the Coahoma area and attended Coahoma schools. She was a lifetime member of the First Presbyterian Church in Coahoma.

Survivors include her husband, of the home; a son, Louis Loveless, Coahoma; a granddaughter, Leslie Taylor, New Orleans, La.; and a grandson, Brant Copeland, Fredericksburg, Va.

She was preceded in death by a daughter, Betty Copeland, March 27, 1976, and a granddaughter, Brenda Thompson, also in 1976.

The family suggests memorials to Parkinson's Foundation or a favorite charity.

Mrs. E.G. Fierro

Mrs. Eugenia G. Fierro, 92, died at 2 a.m., today in a local hospital following a lengthy illness. She resided at 510 N. San Antonio.

Services will be at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church. Officiating will be the Rev. James Delaney. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Mrs. Fierro was born Sept. 6, 1888, in Messella, N.M. She was a housewife.

Survivors include her husband, Pedro Fierro, Big Spring; four daughters, Cecelia Menchaca and Juanita Flores, both of Big Spring, Felix Ely, Franklin Park, N.J., and Emma Paredes, Big Spring; a son, Gilbert Fierro, Odessa; a brother, Albino Guerra, Berino, N.M.; 12 grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by a son. Services are pending at Sheppard Funeral Home.

Cabinet selection begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan, his debut among the nation's power brokers over, is flying home to California to begin choosing a Cabinet.

Reagan is expected to spend the weekend reviewing a list of Cabinet finalists prepared by a group of old friends and trusted advisers.

A source close to the transition said Reagan will focus first on the top Cabinet posts — State, Defense, Treasury and Justice — along with the Cabinet-level jobs of running the CIA and the Office of Management and Budget.

Even as the weekend approached, the Cabinet competition was still developing.

A source said California Supreme Court Justice William P. Clark, a Reagan appointee who served as the former Republican governor's first chief of staff, now is in the running for attorney general. Until Thursday, that slot was thought likely to go to William French Smith, Reagan's personal lawyer, who was said by other sources still to be the leading candidate.

Reagan was to talk with former President Gerald R. Ford and meet with his transition team before departing today.

He capped his five-day stay here with a White House conference Thursday with President Carter, their first meeting since the election.

"We're very glad to have you here," Carter told his successor as he and his wife, Rosalynn, greeted Reagan and his wife, Nancy, at the South Portico of the White House. "I think you'll like the place."

Carter said the 90-minute session dealt with some of the problems Reagan will inherit when he takes office. Until then, the two men agreed that Carter is in charge "in the fullest sense of the word," the outgoing president said.

Carter added that he expected to see Reagan often in the future. Reagan said the man he defeated in a landslide on Nov. 4 "has been most gracious and most cooperative, and has certainly made it a much easier time than it would otherwise have been."

ARROWHEAD-COLLECTION — Earl Lusk, who with his wife operates Lusk Paint and Frame Center, 1601 Scurry St., stands with an arrowhead collection that he framed for C.A. Rees of Colorado City. Rees has been collecting arrowheads for over 25 years, and found most of the ones pictured in Mitchell County northwest of Westbrook.

Howard County Pecan Show giant success

The first pecan show conducted in Howard County was a big success. 25 entries in the pecan division were entered and slightly over 30 entries were judged in the baked goods show which was held in the Texas Electric Building in Big Spring, Wednesday.

Pecans were classified into two major divisions, Shelling Varieties and Inshell Varieties.

The shelling varieties are those used most in the commercial industry, as pre-pecked shelled pecans or in

For the record

The suit filed against A and N Electric Company by City of Big Spring was dismissed and is no longer pending. A and N Electric has paid up its rent on a building at Big Spring Industrial Park, thus removing the basis for the suit.

The civil suit ran Monday in the Herald's Public Records. The dismissal of the legal matter will be reported in the records.

Six Howard County 4-H members named to state skeet teams

Six Howard County 4-H members were named to the 1980 State and District 4-H Trap and Skeet Postal League Teams. The teams were selected based on shooting scores during June, July and August. The State Postal League was organized by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and scores were mailed in monthly by each of the 165 competitors.

Andy Vestal, Howard County Extension Agent and 4-H Coordinator, said that the League was enjoyed by all participants and that it completed the local 4-H shooting sports projects for the 1980 fiscal year.

Howard County-filled 14 honors in District 6 and State competition with the following 4-Hers winning trophies.

Ricky Long — All District and All State Senior Skeet Team

Alan McCrea — All District and All State Senior Skeet Team

John Guitar — All District Senior Trap Team and All State Senior Trap Team

Stan Parker — All District Senior Trap Team and All District Senior Skeet Team

Kelly Rogers — All District and All State Senior Trap Team, All District and All State Senior Skeet Team

Gregg Newton — All District and All State Sub-Junior Skeet Team

Vestal said that the shooting sports project has many avenues of participation besides just shooting. These avenues include participation in club baked goods. Percent kernel, quality of nut, it's shelling abilities, attractiveness, and other qualities are all considered in the judging. Shelling varieties are those generally requiring more than 50 to make a pound.

In In-shell pecan varieties are the large types — generally requiring less than 50 to make a pound. In judging, the bigger the better is the rule of thumb. In addition, uniformity, color, attractiveness and percent kernel are all taken into consideration.

Judges for the show were Austin Stockton, Extension Horticulturist from Fort Stockton and Midland County Extension Agent, Charles Green.

Grand Champion in the Shelling variety entry was the Elliot variety entry entered by Mrs. JoAnn Peugh of Knott. Calculations on the winning Elliot Pecan were: Weight of 10 nuts randomly selected from the 40 that made up an entry was 68.2 grams, kernel weight of the sample 36.1 grams. Number of pecans per pound — 66.48; percent Kernel — 52.93.

Grand Champion in the Inshell Division was Joe Mac Gaskins' Wichita entry. Its statistics included weight of 10 nuts — 103.5 grams; weight of kernel — 58.1 grams; number per pound — 43.81; Percent kernel — 56.14. Gaskins also is a resident of the Knott community.

Other winners included: Western Schley: first, Melvin Smith; second, A.O. Jones and third, John Appleton.

Mahan: first A.O. Jones; second, Melvin Smith and third, Lee Freeze.

Wichita: first, Joe Mac Gaskins and second Jo Ann Peugh.

Stuart: first, Joe Mac Gaskins; second, S.M. Smith and third, John Appleton.

Burkett: first, Melvin Smith; second, Emily Elrod; third, S.M. Smith and fourth, L.Z. Rhodes.

Elliot: first Jo Ann Peugh. Chickasaw: first, Dave Stephens.

Success: first, Billy Plew. Western Seeding: first, Luther Coleman.

Stuart Seedlings: first, Luther Coleman; second, Luther Coleman; third, Lee Freeze and fourth, John Appleton.

All first place winners and the champions will be forwarded on to the Western Regional Pecan Show to be held in Odessa Dec. 10-12, 1980 at the Permian Mall 4101 East 42nd. st.

Do American people want to pay the price?

Four years ago, Jimmy Carter was elevated to the presidency by the electorate as a sort of protest against the so-called Washington establishment.

In baseball parlance, Carter had "come up from the minors" to wrestle with big government. Not only did he lose, but the pundits are prone to point out that he lost "without class." Somewhat bewildered, somewhat sadly, Mr. Carter will return to his native Georgia licking his wounds and perhaps wondering how and why his defeat should have been so thorough.

NOW IT IS THE turn of Ronald Reagan and the Republicans. Everyone, certainly the Democrats, seem willing to give them a turn. For all the grandiose things said about him, Mr. Reagan is no more experienced at playing Horacio at the Bridge than was Mr. Carter. He was elected for somewhat the reasons that Mr. Carter was — he will, for a time, be a fresh face in a very tired scene. The American people, acutely aware that this nation's prestige has dipped around the world, covet hope that our system is not yet flawed to the extent that it cannot be salvaged.

The clamor surrounding the Nov. 4 election is dying down but the problems remain and will be around for some time to come. If the constituency expected overnight changes after promoting the landslide victory of Mr. Reagan and his Republican office-seekers, it was to be sorely disappointed.

By keeping the issues of inflation, joblessness, high interest rates and foreign affairs in front of the voters. The GOPs were able to bring about sweeping changes in both houses of the Congress and on state and local levels. We are now, however, in the throes of ennui and will be until the newly anointed are sworn in on or after New Year's Day.

Wall Street reacted favorably to the news that the residency in the White House would change. The status of the Iranian hostages didn't change. The "lame duck" Congress passed the ball to Mr. Reagan and his friends rather than try and approve a tax reduction bill. The latter is a definite plus, since the Republican team deserves an opportunity to shape up its own tax reform bill.

THE LABOR UNIONS, which had expressed disenchantment with Mr. Carter, may offer Mr. Reagan lip service but there is no reason to believe that he will champion their cause. The auto workers, for instance, want to restrict the foreign car imports by imposing higher tariffs on the non-American vehicles. But would that be a violation of American principle, of the free enterprise system?

Mr. Reagan is also going to have to face up to the woes that beset the housing industry. Soaring mortgage rates have simply served to destroy the dream of many Americans of owning their own homes.

Mr. Reagan will inherit the most glamorous job in the world, certainly the most publicized. But few of us would care to be willed his problems — that of trying to curtail federal spending, reducing our dependence on foreign oil and bolstering U.S. defenses.

The American people have indicated which direction they want to be led. The question is, do they want to pay the price and do they have the patience to wait until Mr. Reagan's programs begin to bear fruit?

Like lateral root

Around the rim

James Werrell

I've been studying up on cameras with the intention of buying one, and the experience is like pulling on one of those small lateral roots of a tree. As you pull the little root out of the ground, it gets longer and longer, and thicker and thicker until you finally realize that it is hooked up to this giant, multi-branched growth that extends hundreds of feet upward in all directions.

WHEN I STARTED this study, I didn't know an SLR from a DAR. One, I was to learn, stands for single lens reflex, which, when boiled down to its essence means that what you see through a camera is what you get. I could find nothing in any of the photography magazines about DARs.

Once I had learned what SLR stood for, I was well on my way to learning that, by itself, this information was almost useless.

Most cameras nowadays are about five inches long, three inches tall and an inch wide. But packed into their tiny little bodies are all kinds of mysterious things such as diodes, two-color shutter speed readouts with green and yellow LEDs, split image microprisms, integrated quartz micro-motors, silver-coated pentaprism finders, TTL and direct OTF light measurers and the kitchen sink.

All this made me wonder how the little Brownie Starlette I owned when I was nine, that was about as sophisticated as a rock, ever managed to take a picture.

The fact is that most of the pictures

I have taken or will take fall into two distinct categories: pictures of friends with lampshades on their heads or pictures of panoramic sunsets. Nonetheless, once you have started reading about all the stuff that can be packed into one of those little super-cameras, it all sounds absolutely necessary.

What if, for example, I were standing near the President of the United States when a crazed assassin rushed at him with a machete. Without a sophisticated motor-drive assembly I might as well be snapping away with my Starbrite; real bush-league.

SAY, FOR EXAMPLE, that an alien starship landed in my front yard, and the three-eyed captain of the crew asked me to take a picture to send to the Smithsonian. Without an aperture-preferred automatic exposure control, everyone would think it was a picture of a Frisbee.

I'm sure that part of my fascination with the new camera technology is a result of America's continuing romance with the almighty gizmo. The back-to-basics folks who prefer cameras where you have to do it all yourself would say that this romance has soured.

But, then again, these people are the same ones who said that automobiles, airplanes and electric can openers would never catch on. Somewhere there is a happy medium, and when I find it I'll be about $350 poorer.

Upscaling Japan

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The present fuss over car imports points up a basic flaw in American dealings with Japan. The U.S. keeps trying to load onto the Japanese responsibility for easing acute but essentially small — and temporary — domestic problems.

But this country has never asked the Asian giant to undertake large and difficult tasks set in a global perspective. As a result, petty hassles, mutual frustration and sordid bargains mark the relations between the two economic powerhouses.

AN UNDOUBTED Japanese debt to the U.S. lies at the root of the relationship. By its defense umbrella and free trade policy, this country has provided the basic climate for Japan's postwar success.

The Japanese have acknowledged their debt in the most profound way. From 1948 forward they have been electing and reelecting and reelecting again the party that specializes in managing the American connection — the Liberal Democrats. Without exception all Japanese prime ministers have been prepared to pay a price for harmony with the U.S.

Washington has not been loath to have the Japanese pay up. But the U.S. has left the definition of the ante to the pulling and hauling of domestic interests in the Congress. Thus every recent American administration has made an urgent request to Tokyo for what are essentially peanuts.

The Kennedy Administration, in order to secure passage of the 1962 Trade Act, persuaded the Japanese to limit their export of cotton textiles. The fight to achieve that goal was titanic. But the U.S. industry did not revive. Instead the exports continued from other countries in Asia.

The Johnson Administration made its special objective Japanese silence on Vietnam. Of course the U.S. lost the war anyway, and for a brief period there arose a sense of uneasiness in American feeling based on opposition to the Vietnam war.

THE NIXON Administration, apart from negotiating a limit on Japanese exports of synthetic fibers, counted as its special trademark the forced sale to Japan of American planes. There was a temporary improvement in this country's balance of payments, and a surge of business for Lockheed. But a strong dose of corruption was introduced into the Japanese-American connection with a consequent weakening of governments in both countries.

The Carter administration, to its credit, tried to enlist the Japanese in an effort to pull the whole industrialized world out of recession. But, because the timing was off, the effort promoted inflation and a rapid fall of the dollar against the yen. Now, as a legacy to President-elect Reagan, the outgoing administration leaves unfinished business with Japan regarding auto exports and a larger share of the defense burden.

No doubt the Japanese can limit auto exports in a way that might provide a breathing spell for the Ford Motor Co. But the long-run future of the American auto companies lies in their capacity to compete against — not be protected from — foreign manufacturers.

Similarly the U.S. and Japan can usefully do more joint planning on defense. But Japan ought not attempt a major military role. The strain on her domestic politics would be severe, and who really wants a Japan armed to the teeth anyway?

much bigger interests, however, are shared by the U.S. and Japan. Energy research is one obvious field.

It is truly spoken:

In politics, those who give you a big hand up...

...probably expect an equally big handout.

Stone can block Parotid gland

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am searching for information on the parotid gland. I have no stones or tumors of it but it swells up and affects the side of my head, and eating acid foods makes it worse. What do you do? I am desperate as to what I should do. What tests need to be done? Please help me. — Mrs. J.H.J.

The parotid (puh-ROT-id) is one of the major salivary glands. There is one under each ear. The Latin words "para" and "otid" mean around the ears. The glands are well-known because of the swelling associated with mumps. They swell for other reasons, though. As you suggest, when the duct that empties saliva from them into the mouth is blocked, as from a small stone, the gland swells.

Not all of these stones show up on X-rays, so another technique is used — the sialogram. Special dye is injected and shows up stones nicely in contrast to surrounding tissue.

Parotid ducts get blocked for reasons other than stones. One may be scarred and narrowed because of infection. That, too, prevents free flow of saliva and swelling. The sialogram shows this also. So a sialogram is very useful in diagnosing the cause of parotid swellings.

Next to the mumps virus, the staph germ is the most common cause of infection and swelling of these glands. This can be treated with antibiotics. Certain drugs, such as those containing iodine, can cause parotid swelling. Finally, a swollen parotid is seen in certain diseases affecting other parts of the body — lupus and sarcoidosis, for examples.

So the first order of business is to seek the cause of the swelling. An obstruction can be relieved. If an illness is involved, that can be treated. If no cause is found and the swelling and pain persists, some doctors resort to tying the gland's duct. That makes it shrink. There are other approaches, too. Keep in mind that saliva flows markedly when the gland is stimulated by acid foods. So it is best to avoid them until the matter is corrected.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a dropped bladder. I am petrified at the thought of surgery. A urologist agreed with my family doctor after an examination not to do any surgery at this time because there is no infection or growths. A friend told me that you have to have your uterus removed at this time because there is no infection or growths. A friend told me that you have to have your uterus removed or the bladder will not stay up. She says that after age 60 the uterus and other organs have lost their elasticity and drop down. — Mrs. K.R.

Listen to your family doctor and your urologist. Your friend is not going to do the operation anyway. Your doctors would consider a hysterectomy (removal of uterus) if the uterus had fallen or bladder repair if they thought you needed it. Obviously they don't think so. Age is not the only factor in the elasticity or non-elasticity for organ supports. Many women of advanced age may have firmer support structure than those much younger.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you know why I cannot locate a pharmacy that sells the drug propranolol, which is the generic name for Inderal? I have been taking this since my heart operation. — Mrs. E.K.

I can't imagine why your pharmacy does not stock this generic drug. It is a very common one. I am sure your pharmacy will get some for you if you ask. It is a prescription drug, of course, so you will need a prescription whether you buy it by trade name or by its generic name (propranolol). You seem a bit confused about all this. Just ask your pharmacist or your doctor about it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What can you tell me about rhomboid glossitis? — Mrs. C.

Rhomboid glossitis is an abnormality in the development of the tongue. It is a harmless situation in which a small area toward the back of the tongue appears smooth or slightly nodular. The area may be raised or depressed. The affected part of the tongue has no taste buds, but enjoyment of food is not seriously impaired. No treatment is needed. It's a finding the doctor notes and dismisses.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How soon after you come in contact with a strep throat germ do you get the symptoms? — Mrs. H.B.

It takes from two to four days from contact with the strep germ before the throat hurts.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Donohue for his booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: A friend of mine has become involved in a religious cult led by a man who claims to be the second messiah. I have heard some place that Jesus would come again. I wonder if this man might be Jesus. — Mrs. O.W.

DEAR MRS. O.W.: No, this person is not Christ, no matter what he may say or claim. The main reason I can say this so clearly is that the Bible tells us specifically what will happen when Christ comes again. Let me mention several things the Bible teaches about this.

For one thing, the Bible tells us that Christ's second coming will be glorious and immediately recognized by all (unlike the obscurity of his birth). "At that time they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory" (Luke 21:27). When Jesus ascended into heaven, the angels promised his disciples, "This same Jesus, who has been taken from you into heaven, will come back in the same way you have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11). The last book in the Bible declares, "Look, he is coming with clouds, and every eye will see him" (Revelation 1:7).

Another thing the Bible tells us is that Christ will reign over all and will pronounce judgment when he comes again. When Christ comes "He will bring to light what is hidden in darkness and will expose the motives of men's hearts" (I Corinthians 4:5). He "is going to come in his Father's glory with his angels, and then he will reward each person according to what he has done" (Matthew 16:27).

In these ways (and in many others as well) Jesus Christ's second coming will be radically different from the works of those who claim to be messiahs but in fact are false. We should heed carefully the words of Jesus: "Many will come in my name, claiming 'I am the Christ,' and will deceive many... many false prophets will appear and deceive many people" (Matthew 24:5, 11). We should live for Christ every day and be faithful to him, knowing that some day he will come to set up his kingdom.

Evans, Novak

Budget crisis

WASHINGTON — As Ronald Reagan conferred in Los Angeles with his economic advisers, congressional Republicans warned that early catastrophe awaits him unless he adopts a radical budget policy from Day One of his presidency.

Several confidential memos and papers prepared for Reagan are designed to push him toward this policy: appointment of Rep. David Stockman of Michigan as director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), immediate reforms to strengthen OMB's control over the runaway budget; dramatic proposals to cut back this year's federal outlays and stunt their future growth.

This conflicts with the talk by many Reagan economic advisers of "gradualism" — a word redolent of the failed Nixonomics of a decade ago.

They seem unaware that the federal budget is careering off the tracks and that money markets are dangerously disoriented. Hyperinflation could end dreams for the new Reaganite coalition before it fairly starts.

IN TRUTH, Reagan encounters a rare instance where governmental reality is worse than was depicted in his campaign rhetoric. November spending estimates for the present fiscal year defy credulity, showing runaway growth of $157 billion in just 13 months. Since Congress passed its budget resolution in June, spending has leaped $36 billion, most of it not subject to President Carter's discretion.

The cause is in no small part what Stockman described to us as "an automatic coast-to-coast soup line" — spending legally triggered by the economic downturn. Just since June, trade adjustment assistance for laid off workers has automatically leaped from $400 million to $2.5 billion. For the same period, unemployment pay cost an extra $4.7 billion.

If Reagan adopts wait-and-see gradualism on the budget, inflationary expectations are bound to escalate. One astute Wall street financier told his colleagues after the election to expect hyperinflation around 25 percent by 1982. Reagan's deep tax cuts — intended to restore incentive and growth — would be blamed and probably curtailed, as Reagan's men fought with each other.

That is why conservatives on Capitol Hill pass transcontinental advice to Reagan to press the panic button. They want him to sculpt his hundred days, buttressing tax reduction and regulatory relaxation with budget reform.

This would rule out old-school ties from the budget bureau (such as paper company vice president Paul O'Neill, President Ford's deputy OMB director and a candidate to be Reagan's director). To stave off a business-as-usual appointment, prominent Republicans in the House and Senate have launched a campaign for 34-year-old Rep. Stockman, viewed by many colleagues as one of the party's most innovative young figures.

Only OMB would tempt Stockman to give up both a safe congressional seat and a chance at the Senate in 1982. This one-time divinity student and aide to Rep. John Anderson impressed Reagan by playing the roles of Anderson and later Jimmy Carter in debate rehearsals. He is a persuasive advocate of supply-side economics. Anderson and later Jimmy Carter in debate rehearsals. He is a persuasive advocate of supply-side economics, seeking to restore incentive through steady tax reduction.

STOCKMAN IS WHAT the Heritage Foundation, a conservative think tank, has in mind in its job description for Reagan's OMB director: "More important than any issue, the new director must have an unwavering commitment to the substantial reduction of marginal tax rates for both individuals and business."

Simultaneously, the Heritage Report (prepared for Reagan by Republican Hill staffers) wants Reagan to reduce OMB's management functions and make it his chief policy arm. Specifically, that would enlarge presidential authority to reduce the budget.

Another paper, this one assigned and not dealing with the OMB directorship, was submitted last week to Reagan by Capitol Hill Republicans who warned of an "economic Dunkirk" for Reagan unless he frontally attacks the budget. It talks of "full-scale financial panic and unprecedented global monetary turbulence."

That points to a Reagan emergency budget effort far exceeding the efforts of the three previous Republican presidents — Eisenhower, Nixon and Ford — who failed to master their first budgets in far less critical situations. Reagan is being implored to defer and reduce federal grants and subsidies to local government and private business, with least possible impact on federal help for the poor.

The goal: reduction of federal outlays by around $25 billion this year, with a cutback for each of the following two fiscal years of $30 to $50 billion. That is not gradualism. The word from Capitol Hill is that nothing less will suffice if Ronald Reagan is to save his tax cut, his economic program and perhaps even his presidency.

Dear Editor:

A survey of the election of judges in various counties of Texas on Nov. 4 reveals that many Democratic and a few Republican judges were defeated, that the elections were fought on partisan ballots and that few voters could judge the qualifications and work of the judges before casting their votes.

What is the remedy? Abolish the system of judicial election and depoliticize the judiciary completely and have a commission of well-known jurists and laymen sift through the names of prospective judges and then send recommendations to the governor who would make the final choice. Thus there will be a regular and efficient judicial service, provided the representatives of Houston will be courageous enough to amend the State Constitution.

Challenge to Reagan

Emphasis on human rights in Latin America stressed

WASHINGTON — In an apparent challenge to the incoming Reagan administration, President Carter Wednesday called for continued emphasis on human rights in Latin America, explaining that "the future lies with those who cherish them and are willing to defend them."

Speaking before the 10th general assembly of the Organization of American States, Carter said "the costs of repression have increased. But so have the benefits of respecting human rights. I pray this progress will continue, although I know from experience that it is not always easy."

Carter's comments came amid continued speculation that president-elect Reagan will seek to temper the United States' controversial human rights crusade of the past four years. Jeane Kirkpatrick, a Reagan foreign policy advisor, told CBS television last weekend that the new administration might be more amenable to autocratic Latin American regimes if such policy were in the strategic and economic interest of the United States.

This tougher stance will place the lame-duck administration in a somewhat awkward position during the week-long OAS meeting. While Carter's promotion of human rights is well known — and subject to derision in many Latin American countries as another U.S. effort to force its will on others — the delegation is likely to limit its policy pronouncements.

One key test is expected to come in several days when the assembly considers a report on Argentine political repression prepared by the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, an arm of the OAS. It will give OAS members a chance to either accept the report perfunctorily or use it as a springboard for a full-fledged discussion of human rights.

The latter option is unlikely.

At Wednesday's opening meeting, Carter was warmly received by the delegation, with nations favoring stringent human rights policies taking the lead. Jose Alberto Zambrano, Venezuela's foreign minister, told the group: "Only a profound respect for the intrinsic dignity of human beings... will allow us to constitute a better future."

Henry De B. Fardt, the Barbados attorney general and minister of external affairs, told Carter that his efforts "have given hope to many an oppressed nation." Then, turning to Carter, Fardt added: "You will never be a stranger wherever you decide to set foot to the Americas."

However, OAS Secretary General Alejandro Orfila seemed careful to avoid any confrontation when discussing the human rights question. He told the delegates, in a general, carefully worded speech: "Never before, nor with such intensity, have we discussed the question of human rights, be it of a purely ethical-judicial scope or linked to the terrorist phenomenon that grips the world." He offered few specifics.

Orfila also said that Reagan's election "gives the United States the chance to rethink its relationship with Latin America and the Caribbean. Once more, the United States has the opportunity to make up for past mistakes and enter into a closer association with the hemisphere, where everybody gains in strength and nobody loses their identity."

Carter, in his 30-minute address, appeared somber and low-key, telling the foreign ministers: "I speak to you today for the fifth time — and despite considerable efforts to the contrary — I'm afraid also the last time as president of the United States."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has belatedly adopted a deficit budget of $632.4 billion for fiscal 1981 that has even its supporters unhappy.

It passed the House on a voice vote with little debate Thursday and later was adopted by the Senate, 50-38. As a resolution, it does not require the president's signature.

The compromise budget measure leaves room for a $35 billion to $40 billion tax cut to be enacted next year and projects a $27.4 billion deficit. Specifics of the tax cut are left to the incoming Republican administration and the new Congress.

"I'm convinced we're on the wrong track here," said Sen. Henry L. Bellmon of Oklahoma, ranking Republican on the Senate Budget Committee and a supporter of the resolution. He noted that some appropriations already have exceeded limits projected in the budget.

Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., an opponent of the plan, was more blunt: "This might be a lame-duck session, but this budget is a turkey."

As passed, the package would require across-the-board spending cuts of about 2 percent to remain within the ceiling.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said, "We should not attempt to tie the hands of the incoming president-elect" and the new Congress, but leave it to them to "make the bitter and difficult decisions" about what to cut and how to do it.

Meanwhile, many members expect there will be another budget resolution when the new administration and Congress take office.

"I don't think this resolution is the final word," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., who will be chairman of the Senate Budget Committee in the next Congress. But, he added, "it represents the best that can be done with the policies that are in place."

Convicted hit man appears in Wood's slaying lineup

HOUSTON (AP) — Convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, once questioned by a grand jury investigating the assassination of a federal judge, has appeared in a secret lineup staged here with the federal authorities leading the massive investigation, sources said.

Although no arrests had been made and no charges filed, sources close to the investigation told The Associated Press Thursday that authorities "may be close to a solution" in the 1979 slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Wood, who earned the nickname "Maximum John" because of his stiff penalties on drug cases, was gunned down outside his posh San Antonio townhouse early on the morning of May 29, 1979.

The FBI has conducted one of the most massive investigations in its history in the 17 months since Wood's death, but has so far been unable to crack the case.

Thursday's lineup at the Houston police building was at least the fourth conducted in the assassination and attempted slaying of former assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr, who had prosecuted several drug cases in Wood's court.

The two shootings frequently have been linked during the investigation and but refused to connect Harrelson with the Wood inquiry. Authorities also refused to comment on possible links to the assassination investigation.

Kerr was ambushed as he left his San Antonio home on Nov. 21, 1978 but escaped serious injury by ducking beneath the dashboard of his luxury car as it was riddled by gunfire from a van.

A man later identified as Harrelson was whisked down a corridor at the Houston police building Thursday afternoon as heavily armed deputies cleared the halls and clamped a tight lid on proceedings in the building.

Harrelson's attorney, Bob Tarrant, confirmed that his client appeared in the lineup.

Living Christmas Trees garden club program topic

Carl Johansen was speaker at the Nov. 18 Rosebud Garden Club meeting. His subject was "Living Christmas Trees." He said there are 16 different types of soil in the Big Spring area. This is reason for various plants thriving in one area and dying when planted in another area.

Johansen recommended the following pine trees for this area: Aleppo pine, which grows to ultimate height of 30 to 60 feet; Mugho pine, which grows slowly to four feet; Austrian black pine, which grows from 40 to 80 feet and Japanese black pine, which will grow 100 feet tall in other areas, but only 30 locally.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. W.H. Christensen. Mrs. Odell Womack presided and announced that Joni Avery had won first place in environmental speech contest at high school. Judges were James Lee, Bruce Griffith, and Rev. Royce Clay.

Mrs. Womack revealed that the Southern Zone meeting in Kermit was well attended by local garden clubbers. Big Spring was chosen as the site for Arbor Day observance planting. A pecan tree will be planted in Comanche Park.

Mrs. Tommy Hart, reporting for the Big Spring Alliance of Clubs, said that when city managers Don Davis and Paul Feazelle met with alliance representatives recently, they revealed that several improvements are being made at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

Mrs. Womack and Mrs. Jerry Avery will be hostesses to Christmas luncheon meeting Dec. 16 at the Big Spring Country Club.

Keep off the grass

Dr. Wallace: My boyfriend introduced me to marijuana and I really got hooked. I smoked pot three or four times a week for over two years. When I started using marijuana, I was an "A" student but soon after my grades started to drop and drop and drop.

When I first started getting high, I really enjoyed the feeling. Then I started to notice that my personality was changing and not for the better.

My lucky day came in November of 1979 when I discovered God. Since that beautiful day, I haven't touched the stuff and I know that I will never touch it again.

I now know who I am — a warm and loving human being. My grades are back up where they belong and I am at peace with myself and the world.

Needless to say, I have a different boyfriend. — Jenny, Nashua, N.H.

Jenny Please read the following letter from Lena.

Dr. Wallace, I just want you to know that there are teen-agers "out here" who really appreciate your stand against drugs.

I'm 18 and have never tried drugs even though peer pressure to try them is unbelievable. Many teens defend the use of drugs. Personally it amazes me that anyone will defend something that can mess up their life or even worse, kill them.

Many of my friends were introduced to drugs because they could not take the pressure. Today I read a letter from Lisa of Seattle who was under a lot of pressure from her boyfriend to smoke pot. I want to encourage Lisa and teens in similar situations to stand up for their beliefs and say no thank you. Druggies want companions because "Misery enjoys company." — Lena, Galesburg, Ill.

Lena: Thanks for sharing your thoughts. No one can get a message across to a teen-ager better than a teen-ager.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 and have a boyfriend problem. My boyfriend thinks it's all right to like three girls at the same time but he says that I should only like him. I really like him but I don't think that he is being fair. What should I do? — Toni, Fredericton, New Brunswick, Canada

Toni: Tell him that you like him but he is not being fair. Inform him that if it's all right for him to like three girls at the same time that you will have the same privilege.

The next move will be up to him.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1, and a 28-cent, stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

Bride-elect receives cookware at shower

The home of Mrs. Noel Hill, 2611 E. 25th, was the setting for the Nov. 15 bridal shower honoring Mandy Hitt, bride-elect of Greg Barbee.

Other hostesses, in addition to Mrs. Hill, were Mrs. Sherrill Carroll, Mrs. Harold Hicks, Mrs. Roger Miller, Mrs. Bill Blalack, Mrs. Bill Myers, Mrs. Horace Blackshear and Mrs. Preston Adams.

Also serving were Mrs. Fred Phillips, Mrs. Pete Hill, Mrs. Davie Stephens, Mrs. Byron Smith, Mrs. Charles Cain, Mrs. Jane Upton, and Mrs. Cliff Balzer.

The honoree was presented with a burgundy carnation corsage. Mrs. Ben Hitt, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Charles Barbee, mother of the prospective groom, received pink carnation corsages.

Special guests in attendance were Mrs. C.O. Hitt, grandmother of the honoree; and Mrs. Walter Barbee, grandmother of the groom-elect.

Dear Abby

Husband Wants Only Their Only Child

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for eight years and have a 2½-year-old daughter we are both crazy about.

We have a happy, loving marriage, a nice home, good jobs and a fun life. (I am a school teacher.)

I love children and want another child soon, as I'm not getting any younger. My husband doesn't want any more. He was an only child and prefers peace, quiet and tranquility. He's an excellent father although sometimes he's a bit intolerant.

Before we were married he said he wanted children, but now he insists that one is enough. This is our only area of conflict, and it's a serious one. We both can see the other's point of view but feel too strongly about our own to compromise.

According to our religion (Jewish) we have an obligation to replace ourselves. That's two children. I would give him a surprise, but I might end up single.

What do you think?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: If he promised you children, keep reminding him of his promise. And pray he has a change of heart before you have a change of life.

DEAR ABBY: I met this guy at a nightclub, and we were immediately attracted to each other. He's a Virgo and I'm an Aquarian, so our signs are perfect for a lasting relationship. He asked to see me the following night, and to cut a long story short, we soon became very, very close, if you know what I mean. Abby, I never fell in love so fast in all my life!

It turns out that he is engaged, but he's leaving serious doubts about whether he really wants to go through with it. (His fiancée lives out of state.) He is considering calling it off until he gets his head straight. He says their wedding date has been changed twice because first she wasn't sure, then he wasn't. I wouldn't feel that I was breaking up anything if he calls it off this time.

In the meantime we are seeing each other every chance we get. He treats me like a queen and I am loving it. I keep telling myself, "This is wrong," but the minute I see him, we seem so right for each other.

I'm afraid he's just using me as company until he gets married. He tells me he "cares" for me, but he won't say "I love you."

Where do I go from here, Abby?

STAR GAZER

DEAR STAR GAZER: Quit looking at the stars and look at the record. You're involved with a man who's considering breaking his engagement to another woman. You love him, but he won't say "I love you," even though you are very, very close (and yes, I know what you mean). Tell him goodbye and good luck, and to call you if and when he gets his head straight.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PEGGY B.: Gracious giving requires no special talent. It is the heart and head acting together to achieve the perfect means of expressing one's feelings. The best gifts are spontaneous. Act while the impulse is fresh and enjoy witnessing the fruits of your generosity.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

School therapy discussed

The Oasis Garden Club met Nov. 12 in the home of Elsie Leonard with Lois Smith and Sibel Horne as co-hostesses.

Joyce Crooker of Mr. G's Garden Center presented a program on making fall and Christmas decorations for the home.

Myrtle Walker was welcomed as a new member. The roll call was taken with members telling of their plans for the holiday.

The therapy program was discussed and it was voted to continue the program at Moss Elementary School. Mrs. Smith and Mary Atkins will serve as therapy co-chairman for next year.

In child's learning process Right toys important

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Child's play is serious work, says pediatrician Dr. Lendon Smith, who has served as a consultant in the field of toy design. Parents should view time spent in game playing as a learning experience because children learn the skills of adults through play, he adds.

Since many home situations involve the auditory or visual senses only, Smith suggests giving children toys that aid in the full development of the senses.

"Children need a multidimensional environment to expose them to a wide variety of experiences," he explains. "They learn most effectively by making things, putting things together, using their eyes, ears, touch and even the sense of smell."

Industrial corporations and universities are giving more attention to the quality of toys and teaching aids children use in the primary years, Smith points out. New concepts involve the child actively in building, in planning or in solving problems.

Recently four universities, under the auspices of the Armo Student Design program, built prototype games and teaching aids that incorporate the principle of active learning, reports Smith, who served as consultant on the project.

For the past 15 years, Armo has been bringing together industrial design students with experts in industry and government to consider needed products. In the past, the design program has generated aids for the handicapped, protective clothing for firefighters and designs for health care.

The program is not a competition in the sense that there is a winner. Professional business people offer their comments to students on the practicality and validity of their designs in the marketplace.

This year's program topic, "Products That Teach," produced a variety of outstanding designs for young children, Smith notes. Each design involved complex ideas in an easy-to-learn mode.

"Probe Struc," designed by students from the Rochester Institute of Technology, uses huge, brightly colored building pieces to teach architectural concepts. The flexible and rigid pieces help solve the problem of building things to sit on, live in and walk over.

San Jose State contributed an "Eye Can Draw Box." The project helps children improve their visual perception by tracing an inverted picture projected on a Plexiglas screen.

Learning about three-dimensional volumes was the idea behind the University of Illinois' design. Large blue and red three-dimensional cubes come apart to reveal a sphere, a cylinder, and a cone.

Traditional toys can yield new learning tools, too, Smith says. The University of Arizona used a jigsaw puzzle format to teach colors, sizes and symbols.

Smith feels that children are never too young to experience these adult concepts.

"Children," he says, "are capable of learning many sophisticated principles. The key is active involvement in an uncompetitive environment."

Projects like those designed for the Armo program let children work individually, Smith explains. They receive immediate feedback because they see what they can build or what problem they can solve.

"This is especially important for those children who are not as quick to master a task," he says. "They do not have to feel inferior because others are better."

"What we must ultimately teach all children is that they are worthwhile," he adds. "Playing is part of their learning and we must provide a strong, healthy environment for education. It should be so much fun that everyone wants to do it."

Dobbs will be featured in bullfighters match

Quail Dobbs, who in the role of a rodeo clown offers some of the most breathtaking feats at the annual Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion each year, will be featured as the barrel man at the Wrangler Pro Rodeo Bullfighters Competition to be held in conjunction with the Miss Rodeo America Pageant in Oklahoma City Dec. 5-7.

Dobbs, who hails from Coahoma, said the bullfighters match will take place the first three days of the national Finals Rodeo. Dobbs has worked four of six such events, the last one being in Waco. Others he worked included Omaha, Neb., and Rapid City, S.D.

The matches will be held at the State Fairgrounds Arena, and will feature the final competition in the 1981 Miss Rodeo America pageant, match competition among nationally ranked Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association bull riders, six of the nation's best bullfighters, and the "meanest, rankest" bulls in Pro Rodeo.

Leslie Walker, Miss Rodeo Texas, will be in Oklahoma City competing for the title of Miss Rodeo America. First place winners from every state, British Columbia and Alberta, Canada, will be judged on their skills in horsemanship and other personal characteristics for the winning title.

In the Wrangler competition, six leading Pro

Rodeo bullfighters will be judged on their skills in bull rider protection and freestyle rodeo bullfighting, as they compete for a $12,000 purse. Six top ranking PRCA bull riders will be fighting for $8,000.

Featured bullfighters will be Wick Peth of Bow, Wash.; Miles Hare of Fort Worth; Skipper Voss, Crosby; 'Ragin' Cajun Rick Young, Tickfaw, La.; and Bob Donaldson, Golden, Colo.; and Rick Chatman, Fort Worth.

The matches and the Miss Rodeo America competition, billed as 'Beauty and the Beast,' will alternate with the National Finals Rodeo schedule. Evening performances at 8 p.m. will be held Dec. 3 and Dec. 7, with a matinee at 2 p.m. Dec. 6.

Wacey Cathey, who ranks 20th in national bull rider standings, will be a National Finals Judge and will compete in the rodeo this year, said Dobbs. Cathey, formerly of Coahoma, is now making his home in Del Rio.

Island may be next after mine collapse

JEFFERSON ISLAND, La. (AP) — "The end of the world is coming," yelled a fisherman as a voracious whirlpool drained Lake Peigneur right out from under his boat.

And the big question after the collapse of an abandoned salt mine shaft — which also drew a $5 million oil rig, a tug boat, 10 barges and a botanical garden into its gaping maw — was whether this entire island might be next.

The island is part of a massive outcropping of salt. If the lake waters sucked into the mine during the shaft's collapse Thursday dissolve the subterranean pillars of salt, the salt dome beneath this marshy island could go crashing inward.

officials fear. The island, 10 miles square, was evacuated Thursday after a 1,300-foot-deep abandoned salt mine shaft collapsed when it apparently was punctured by oil drilling and seeping lake water caused a cave-in.

A growing crater sucked in more lake water, creating a whirlpool that emptied the 20-acre lake and swallowed almost everything on and near it.

"There is the potential for the island to cave in," warned Wayne Knack, district manager of the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration office in Dallas.

The danger stemmed from the fresh lake water that had drained underground, said deputy sheriff Ron Sommer.

"The whole dome is sustained by 90-foot pillars of salt. If the water eats up those pillars, the dome itself will go in," he said.

On or near the dome is Jefferson Island with a Diamond Crystal Salt Mine Co. mining operation, a tourist garden and some oil operations.

Seven men on the rig escaped by tugboat, 50 men in the salt mine got to safety, and no injuries were reported, officials said.

Candlelight procession mourns Greenwich deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — While a drummer beat a slow roll, a solemn candlelight procession of more than 1,000 people wound through the streets of Greenwich Village to mourn the deaths of two men shot to death in a machine-gun attack on two gay bars.

Tears were visible on many faces Thursday night as the marchers assembled before the two bars, Ramrod and Sneakers, where the killings occurred.

On Ramrod's front door was a sign: "Blood Donors Needed For Shooting Victims." The sign gave a telephone number for St. Vincent's Hospital, where four of the eight victims of Wednesday night's attack were in satisfactory condition today, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Two of the six people wounded in the shootings have been released.

Ronald Crumpley, 38, a former Transit Authority policeman and the son of a minister, was charged with murder, attempted murder and possession of illegal weapons in connection with the incident.

He was arrested after a chase through Village streets Wednesday night.

Santa Claus (cell)brates

MIDLAND — A man who claimed to be Santa Claus and who gave his address as the North Pole wound up in the city jail here Thursday morning on a charge of drunkenness.

Police put him in an isolated cell containing no furniture of any kind until he began to sober up. Only then did he cooperate with the officers by revealing his true identity and his address.

Police said Crumpley told them the attacks on the two bars and a delicatessen shop were motivated by hatred for homosexuals.

"I want to kill them all," they quoted Crumpley as saying. "They're no good. They ruin everything."

Killed in the shootings were Jorg Wenz, 21, a Dutch immigrant and doorman at Ramrod, and Vernon Koenig, an organist at St. Joseph's Church in Greenwich Village.

Midland contractor draws ten years in prison term

ABILENE — Raymond Eugene Click, 45, a Midland contractor, was sentenced to ten years in prison by District Judge J. Neil Daniel here Wednesday after Click admitted he had conspired with a Taylor County woman to have a Merkel restaurant burned down.

Click entered his guilty plea in a 'plea bargain' under which prosecutors waived an additional count which accused the defendant of two prior felony convictions.

If convicted as charged, Click could have received a mandatory life sentence as a habitual criminal.

Senate leader picks food stamps as prime target

WASHINGTON — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., cautiously approaching the chairmanship of the Senate Agriculture Committee, has picked food stamps as his prime target for reform.

"I shall be unyielding in my conviction that this program, and all other welfare programs, should be confined to the truly needy — the elderly, the sick, the blind, the crippled," he said.

"Scores of local administrators of the program across the nation have confirmed reports of abuse, duplication and waste in the program, and they had stated that their hands are tied by faulty regulations and eligibility requirements imposed from Washington."

The succession of Helms to chair the committee has caused some liberals to quake in their chairs since Helms has long been critical of their pet projects, from the settling aside of wilderness areas to government regulation in almost any form.

But so far Helms has taken a relatively low key role in the fervor of the Republican changeover, stressing "bipartisan dedication" over politics.

"The Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry will proceed carefully, but consistently in its approach to seeking creative and innovative solutions that emphasize the principles of the free enterprise system," he said.

He has refused to elaborate on the specifics of his plan, but aides say he will seek the most changes in the food stamp program's eligibility criteria. He believes he can substantially hock away at the program's budget, estimated at $11 billion for this fiscal year.

For example, the net income used in determining the amount of food stamps that a person is eligible for is computed minus housing and energy costs, thus making them eligible more more stamps.

Helms thinks that in many cases, food stamp recipients receive federal energy assistance payments and this expense should not be deductible.

Helms would like to see the states have greater power in the program's administration and rule-making.

No major changes are expected in the Omnibus Farm Bill except for food stamps. Some observers have speculated the North Carolina senator would extend the current bill for another year to give the new administration more time to work out its policy. According to a Helms aide, work has already begun on the bill, which is up for renewal in 1981. Hearings are tentatively scheduled for February.

"It makes no sense at this point to try to predict, at this point, the precise details of farm legislation that will emerge from our committee," said Helms. "But it is safe to say, for example, that there will be an increased and continuing emphasis on the development of export markets. There will be an identical interest in an extension of the delicate mix of price supports, reserves, set asides, and crop and disaster insurance."

Helms, who has railed against the strangulations of bureaucratic red tape, may be expected to take a close look at farm regulations, with an eye to further whittling down the budget.

"We simply must restore fiscal responsibility to the management of all government programs," said Helms, sounding a theme which he has stressed since he was a Raleigh, N.C. television executive and commentator.

Prime rate rises to 17 percent at one bank

NEW YORK (AP) — The prime lending rate rose to 17 percent at one major bank today and inched closer to its 20 percent record of last spring as the Federal Reserve kept up its attempt to fight inflation by limiting the amount of money Americans can borrow.

The prime rate is a bank's charge on loans to top-ranked businesses, but the general tightening of credit means banks will be "toughening their terms" for consumer and mortgage lending as well, said David Jones, economist at the brokerage house of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. Inc.

The nation "is on the verge of a (credit) crunch again," raising "the possibility the economy will hit the skids" by early 1981 after passing in and out of a recession this year, Jones said.

"Housing and construction activity, auto sales and consumer durable (goods) spending, inventory accumulation, business, plant and equipment outlays, and state and local government spending all are in for a second jolt," said economist Allen Sinai in a report issued this week by Data Resources Inc., the forecasting service.

The latest jump in borrowing costs came as Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. announced in Chicago its prime lending rate was rising three-quarters of a percentage point to 17 percent today following "Federal Reserve attempts to combat inflation through a restrictive monetary policy."

The increase by the nation's seventh-largest bank was the second three-quarter-point rise in a week and lifted the rate to its highest point since early May. The prime rate jumped to 20 percent last April as the Fed tightened credit, then dropped as low as 10.75 percent at some banks in late July as loan demand fell.

Continental Illinois' lead immediately followed by other major lenders, but analysts had predicted earlier in the week a widespread 17 percent prime rate was likely because the banks' own borrowing costs have been spiraling.

Chili supper booked Dec. 6

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City Noon Lions Club will have its annual chili supper Dec. 6 in the Civic Center. The Rev. Monte Jones will prepare the chili this year from a secret recipe.

Chili will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., and from 4:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. Tickets for the meal will be $2.50 for adults and $1 for children.

Proceeds will go toward the support of needy children in this area. In addition, a $500 scholarship will be awarded to a graduating senior at the local high school.

Cancer increasing in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Cancer cases are increasing nearly twice as fast as the population in Texas and state health department officials say children possibly face the same dangers at school as refinery workers on the job.

David Cochran, chief of environmental health, disclosed Thursday that nearly half of the construction samples taken recently from 184 Texas schools showed the presence of cancer-causing asbestos.

Cochran said health officials have tried for years to control asbestos in the work place, and he added, "Recently the focus on asbestos exposure has moved to the schoolhouse."

Dr. George Anderson Jr., consultant for occupational medicine, said the state's population has increased 18 percent over the past 10 years but cancer deaths have increased 32 percent. Over the next decade, he said, cancer deaths in Texas will increase an additional 21 percent.

"Some 18 industrial chemicals or processes have been identified with increased carcinogenic risk in workers, most of which are found in Texas industrial settings, particularly in counties where petroleum refining is carried out," said Anderson.

The health officials addressed an advisory committee on cancer control.

Cochran said the health department is cooperating with the Texas Education Agency in investigating the use of asbestos in Texas schools.

He said 184 schools submitted 623 samples to the health department, and 595 analyses have been completed, with 291 showing the presence of asbestos. Many new schools were built in the 1950s, he said, and asbestos was widely used in walls and ceilings because it retards fire and has good insulating acoustical qualities.

"If it (asbestos) is being released into the atmosphere, something should be done very quickly. If it is in board, however, perhaps the anxiety is not as high," Cochran said.

In some schools, he said, a fresh coat of paint might provide proper safeguards.

Cochran said the TEA would start a "more vigorous program" after regulations of the federal Environmental Protection Agency become effective Feb. 1.

T.R. Jones, director of school plant services for the TEA, said federal law requires schools to examine their facilities for "friable" material, or material that can be crushed by hand. If they locate such material, three samples must be submitted for laboratory analysis.

Jones said a federal formula is used to determine whether the material is safe.

The government could withhold federal funds if schools should refuse to follow instructions to encase or remove the material, but Jones said, "I'm sure the school districts will want to do what is best for the kids."

In removing asbestos, Cochran said, "consideration must be given to the effect on the workmen." Also, he indicated, there could be problems finding places to dispose of the old asbestos.

forces chief of staff; Wu Faxian, former air force commander; Chen Boda, former political secretary to Mao Tse-tung; and Lip Zuopeng, former political commissar of the navy.

Time in jail hasn't changed 'Gang of Four' leader

TOKYO (AP) — Jiang Qing, leader of the "Gang of Four," has been compared to China's ruthless last empress dowager, Tzu Hsi. Both were stubborn, willful and cruel, but capable of charm when it suited their needs.

Seen on television, Chairman Mao Tse-tung's 67-year-old widow bore herself with her usual air of self-assurance when she entered the courtroom in Peking Thursday before a packed audience of 880.

In contrast to the nine male defendants, hers was a dramatic, even electrifying presence. The men slumped in, subdued and dazed-looking, but she held her head high and her body erect.

The six minutes of TV coverage contradicted recurrent reports that Jiang

Qing had lost her reason and her hair and had been reduced to a scrawny skeleton during four years in detention.

Wearing dark-rimmed glasses as usual, her thick black hair combed neatly back, she looked very much as she did when President Ford and American correspondents met her in 1975 in Peking.

Her accusers reported a week ago she refused to confess to the crimes charged to her. She did not appear Thursday to have altered her stubborn attitude, though Chinese reporters attending the trial session reported she wept at one point.

Born in abject poverty, she was kidnapped as a child and forced into a theatrical troupe. Moving to Shanghai as a young woman, she became an actress in left-wing productions. One of her many lovers introduced her to communism.

Mao met her in the late 1930s in Yanan and was captivated by her good looks and intelligence. The party's elders resisted his marriage and made her promise she would never take part in party affairs. Mao divorced his third wife, then in a Moscow hospital, and had a child by Jiang Qing.

She kept her vow to stay away from politics for 25 years, until the start of the Cultural Revolution in 1966. In the next 10 years, until Mao's death in 1976 and her arrest, the forces she and the late Defense Minister Lin Piao directed were said to have persecuted several hundred million Chinese, bringing the nation to the brink of economic and political ruin.

Those who have put her and her nine associates on trial are survivors of that tumultuous period. Some also were the targets of Jiang Qing's passion for revenge. During the 1930s, she was snubbed by communist cultural arbiters and leaders of the Peking Opera. She paid off old scores, with interest.

'Gang of Four' trial continues

PEKING (AP) — Four of the 10 defendants accused of bringing "untold disaster" to China during the Cultural Revolution have admitted their guilt, but Mao Tse-tung's widow still is posturing like the movie actress she once was and striking "a nauseating pose," the Chinese press said today.

The trial of Mao's widow, Jiang Qing, her three radical associates in the so-called "Gang of Four" and six supporters of the late Defense Minister Lin Piao opened Thursday in Peking with the reading of the 20,000-word, 48-count indictment.

Chinese sources said no session was scheduled today, and there was no indication when the trial would resume.

The two groups and their allies are accused of causing the deaths of more than 34,800 people during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution, of framing other top leaders in an attempt to take over the government, of plotting to murder Mao and stage an armed coup and of plotting to stage an armed rebellion in Shanghai after Mao's death.

They could be sentenced to death.

Television reports of the first trial session showed Jiang Qing looking as self-assured as she did when she was in power, before her husband's death and her arrest four years ago.

She was escorted into the courtroom by two armed women guards, but she showed no ill effects from her long detention. She held her head high, and her appearance was unchanged. Dressed in a dark Mao suit, she wore her usual dark-rimmed glasses, and her hair was still thick and jet black despite her 67 years.

During the seven minutes of TV film broadcast Thursday night, she looked around the courtroom occasionally and yawned a few times. Some of the Chinese reporters who attended the trial said she wept at one point, but in general she "looked pleased with herself," the official Xinhua news agency reported.

Plea bargaining in pot trial nets former deputy probation

SWEETWATER — Gary Boyd, a former Nolan County deputy sheriff, was given a ten-year probation prison term and was fined $10,000 in 32nd District Court here Thursday after pleading guilty to one of three charges against him.

Boyd was accused of the disappearance of a quantity of marijuana being held as evidence in the Nolan County jail.

Boyd admitted taking 15 bags of marijuana from the evidence room and selling them for $30,000 in Amarillo and Lubbock.

Under terms reached with the prosecution, Boyd was granted immunity from further prosecution in exchange for his testimony.

Boyd was being tried a second time on the charge. The first case resulted in a mistrial July 7.

Chrysler offering rebates for 1980, '81 domestic cars

DETROIT (AP) — In a move aimed at boosting sluggish sales, Chrysler Corp. is offering $250 rebates on its 1981 domestic cars and trucks to a limited group of consumers.

Chrysler's offer of "special purchase payment" is being made to stockholders, pensioners, employees and employees of its vendor companies. It is the first time in many years that stockholders have been included in such a deal by any auto company.

The rebates are the first of the 1981 model year, which has been a disappointment for the auto industry as rising interest rates discourage buyers.

Company sources said notices were dispatched to dealers Thursday and meetings of dealers were being held today to explain the new sales efforts, which include a package of other incentives for dealers.

The program was called "Market Force 10" after Chrysler's goal of a 10 percent share of the market for domestic makes — a goal it achieved in October but missed with an 8.8 percent share in early November.

The rebates will be in effect through December for signed orders or for cars delivered in the period but ordered earlier.

Rebates were common by all companies over the 1980 model year and at the close of the 1979 year. Many analysts say they do not increase sales overall, but attract buyers who would have bought anyway.

Chrysler's annual report said it had 118,487 individual stockholders on Dec. 31; 68,010 holders in joint names, usually husband and wife; and 20,357 institutional holders.

Guess down 50,000 bales

AUSTIN — Southern High Plains crop forecasts estimate cotton harvest at 1.5 million bales, down 50,000 bales from October and 33 percent below 1979, while sorghum and corn projections also declined 43 and 13 percent respectively.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

November statistics from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service project sorghum at 3.8 million cwt., down 2.9 million cwt., and corn at 12,900 bushels, down 2,022 bushels from 1979.

Statewide crop production forecasts estimate cotton at 3.4 million bales, down 2 million bales from October and 38 percent below last year, sorghum at 97,888,000 cwt., down 28 percent and corn at 108,000 bushels, down 18 percent from last year.

Aged vets to receive reminders in mail

Approximately 620,000 elderly veterans or their survivors will receive reminders in the mail this week that it's time once again to take a look at their income for this year to make certain it still meets Veterans Administration pension requirements.

The reminder will come with their pension checks in the form of a card of explaining that pensioners over 72 who have been receiving VA pensions for the last two years must report to VA any changes in the number or status of their dependents and any annual income increase that takes it above the VA income limits.

The pensioners who will receive the reminder cards are veterans or their survivors who chose at the end of 1978 to remain under what is now called the "old" VA pension plan because it was to their advantage to do so. Their pension rates were frozen at the end of the year.

Who cares about J.R.?

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Was it Sue Ellen, threatened with confinement in a sanitarium? Was it Cliff Barnes, cut out of a big oil deal? Was it Kristin Shepard, faced with a prostitution bust? Hang on to your cowboy hat, America — tonight's the night we finally find out who shot J.R.

And just about everybody on the hit "Dallas" series looks like a likely suspect. J.R. Ewing, of course, is that scoundrel of an oil tycoon who double-dealt his way into an international frenzy of speculation after someone pumped two slugs into him at the end of the last season. Fans have been waiting to find out whodunnit ever since.

The denouncement will be broadcast to East Coast and Midwest viewers at 10 p.m. EST. In the Mountain time zone, the show will begin at 11 p.m. EST and on the West Coast the show be on at 1 a.m. EST.

Viewers in the West can find out the secret early by listening to broadcast outlets, some of which plan urgent news reports. Passengers on Air France jets bound for Europe will be told who shot J.R. when the secret breaks.

Actors on the show, including Larry Hagman, who plays J.R., will be told the secret at a party tonight. They've also been kept in the dark for security reasons and only about 20 people in Lorimar Productions are said to be privy to the secret.

Bookies in Las Vegas, Nev., were setting odds on the shooting until the Nevada Game Control Board told them to stop because the show wasn't a sporting event and "somebody knows the outcome."

Odds-makers at the Castaways Hotel in Las Vegas were offering the best odds, 3-to-1, that Sue Ellen acted in concert with her boyfriend, Dusty Farlow, in the shooting. Farlow, played by Jared Martin, supposedly was killed in a plane crash, but no one knows that for sure.

J.R. himself was something of a long-shot at 20-to-1.

Bookies were offering 500-to-1 odds that the assailant — for reasons not quite clear — was Tom Landry, the real-life coach of the Dallas Cowboys football team. Roger Staubach, a former Cowboys quarterback, was rated at 1,000-to-1.

Just about every character in the show looks guilty. Nearly all had the opportunity, and there are no lack of motives for shooting J.R.

J.R. has mortgaged Southfork Ranch right out from under his parents, Jock and Miss Ellie, planned to sink oil wells on Miss Ellie's land, driven his brother Bobby away, planned to commit his wife to an institution, hatched a plot to convict his sister-in-law of prostitution and driven one business associate to suicide and left another bankrupt.

Here is a rogue's gallery of the leading suspects:

—Sue Ellen Ewing, played by Linda Gray. Sue Ellen has a passion for alcohol and other men, no doubt driven to both by J.R. The night J.R. was shot, he told her he was committing her to an institution for alcoholism. She tucked a gun into her purse and left Southfork Ranch.

—Kristin Shepard, Sue Ellen's sister and J.R.'s former secretary and mistress, played by Mary Crosby. Kristin was very cozy with J.R. until he told her to get out of town. To make his point J.R. had a policeman suggest he could arrest her for prostitution.

—Cliff Barnes, J.R.'s archrival, played by Ken Kercheval. Cliff is the son of Digger Barnes, the partner Jock Ewing double-crossed and left penniless when J.R.

was only knee-high to a sidewinder. He had claim to some Ewing wells, but J.R. decided to shut down the field.

—Alan Beam, a devious lawyer and political fixer, played by Randolph Powell. Beam was the saboteur J.R. planted in Barnes' unsuccessful campaign for Congress. J.R. felt Beam knew too much and tried to get rid of him.

—Vaughn Leland, a banker, played by Dennis Patrick. Leland lost $20 million in an Asian oil swindle pulled off by J.R.

—Marilee Stone, the widow of a business associate, played by Fern Fitzgerald. Her husband committed suicide after he lost everything in J.R.'s oil deal.

—Bobby Ewing, played by Patrick Duffy. Bobby got fed up with J.R.'s dirty dealings. In addition, J.R. said some nasty things to his wife.

To 'Dallas' with Malice

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

J.R. EWING

"To 'Dallas' (with malice) I offer these thoughts, No longer concerned with who fired the shots, I'm worried instead that this excess of hype will render sweet 'Dallas' a bundle of tripe.

"O, how I once watched those doings so vile And marveled that trash could be done in such style. Clan Ewing, that lusty and various crew Kept me in Friday nights, and away from the brew. With pizza before me and wife at my side, I missed not one 'Dallas,' indeed, never tried.

"Miss Ellie, so sweet, loves Jock, a bit rude, Whose hate of D. Barnes he passed on to his brood. The youngest of these, a plump dumpling niece Named Lucy could tensions most nimbly release.

In fact she first did so with Southfork hand Ray. Who himself had once rolled with Miss Pam in the hay.

Miss Pam, by her blood, was a staunch Ewing foe The daughter of old Digger Barnes — but wait, no.

It turned out that Bobby's sweet wife little Pammie Was daddy'd by some man who'd got to her mammy. And Bobby, her husband, a wimpering geek Brought morals and ethics to 'Dallas' each week. Wonderfully blind to all this was Sue Ellen Whose booze habit led to much screamin' and yellin'. Hers was the misfortune of being the spouse Of Texas' most loathsome, despicable louse.

She was well-oiled but her marriage was rusty Thus did she meet with a cowboy named Dusty.

"But mostly I watched for the commonest reason To witness the depths reached by J.R. each season. Last year was his best one in guile and deceit, I watched and I watched, first-run and repeat.

I saw his raw deals, his affairs and his schemes 'Till 'Dallas' did wantonly enter my dreams. I twice saw his shooting and wondered along With all of the others, who done our boy wrong?

And now after months of enduring this stress So shamelessly dealt to us by CBS, Perhaps we from 'Dallas' should unglue our stares, After six months of wond'ring whodunnit, who cares?

Sanctions follow hazing

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Conduct in becoming a gentleman and hazing at a country beer bust have led to the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity to impose sanctions on its Texas Christian University chapter.

The national office in Evanston, Ill., suspended the chapter's charter and appointed a seven-man alumni commission to supervise the TCU local, said David Arendt, SAE's director of chapter development.

In the hazing incident, pledges allegedly partially undressed and were smeared with an axle grease-like substance at an beer party on Oct. 2. Arendt declined to discuss details.

The TCU chapter admitted the incident to the university's Interfraternity Council, which was waiting for the fraternity to finish its investigation before taking any action.

GUNNING... Howard College's Julie Hill releases a jump shot during the Queens lopsided 96-48 win over Schreiner last night in the first round of the Hawk Queen College Classic. That margin won't be as easy tonight, however, as the Howard College women face Weatherford in the final semifinal game at 8:00. (See related story).

Meet Weatherford in tough semifinal match tonight

Hawk Queens open Classic in laughter

By NATHAN POSS
 Sports Editor
 All went pretty much as expected here Thursday night in the first round of the Hawk Queens College Classic, and if it continues, the Howard College women will have a chance to repeat their 1979 championship tomorrow night in the final round.

The Hawk Queens exploded in the early minutes and completely dominated their contest with Schreiner Institute, taking a 96-48 win.

In the other first round games, Odessa blasted Cisco

81-57, Weatherford outlasted Temple 69-64, and Tyler rallied for an exciting 72-67 win over Western Texas.

This sets up matches in tonight's semifinal round at six between Tyler and Odessa, with Howard College facing Weatherford at eight.

In this afternoon's consolation bracket, Cisco will face Western Texas at two, and Temple battles Schreiner at four.

Holding an early 4-2 lead, the Hawk Queens used an impressive display of passing and speed to score 19 unanswered points and take 23-2 lead. Things didn't get any better for the Schreiner women, as the Hawk Queens, using every available player, increased their margin to 47-22 by halftime.

Play at times appeared sloppy in the second half, but much of that was due to the fact that the Queens were running and gunning with their big lead. The Howard College women shot a total of 97 times in the contest, making 37. That's not a high percentage, but many points were scored off the offensive rebounds by a variety of people.

As is usually the case for Coach Don Stevens women, the Hawk Queens had a well balanced attack. A total of six players connected in double figures, with Kelly Lyons leading the way with 16 points. Carrie Lee Lutrick scored often early for 14 points, with Jill Floyd adding 13, Melissa Luna 12, Carol Wasserman 11 and Cynthia Robinson 10.

Valerie Boyd paced the Schreiner women in the contest with 18 points, with most of them coming on some long range bombs.

The Odessa College women opened the day with their big win. The defending Region V champs raced to a 42-29 lead in the first half, and were never seriously threatened thereafter.

Cheryl Horton led the OC women with 15 points, with Jackie Skinner adding 14, and Karen Enderle and Angela Dykes 10. Dykes is a former athlete at Coahoma High.

Cisco, playing without last year's All-Region V ace Valencia Douglass, was paced by Kristen Sipes' 13 point effort. Douglass was booted off the team earlier in the season.

Weatherford then pulled off a mild upset in dumping off a mild upset in dumping off Temple. The Weatherford women held a comfortable 42-28 halftime lead, but the scrappy Temple women, led by Tammy Williams, rallied quickly in the second half to make it close.

Kan Cole paced the Weatherford women with 20 points, followed by Darla Finch, who had 13. Williams was a one-woman scoring machine for Temple, collecting 29 points.

Tyler and Western Texas staged the most exciting match of the first round in the Hawk Queens Classic. WTC held a 33-32 halftime lead, and game remained about that close throughout.

With the WTC women holding a three-point lead in the final minutes, the Tyler team reeled off eight unanswered points to take the advantage for good.

Tyler, which advanced to the championship game before losing to Howard College last year, was led in the scoring column by Barbara Archie with 15 points. Cynthia Warren added 13 and Kara Audrey 12.

Shari Teal and Valerie Webb each had 19 to pace the Western Texas women, with Linda Holube scoring 10.

Klondike faces rugged Knox City in playoffs

SWEETWATER — The Klondike Cougars and Knox City begin their quest for the state Class A championship here tonight at the Mustang Bowl in a bi-district football battle.

Both teams come into the game beaten only once in the regular season, and both absorbed their setbacks in non-district competition to Class AA schools.

Klondike, 9-1 on the year, lost a 20-14 decision to Plains, a team that will represent its district in the Class AA playoffs. Knox City, meanwhile, comes in with a mark of 8-1-1, losing only to Munday.

Klondike is a very large team, much bigger than any squad that they have faced thus far. But for his Cougars, who defeated Roby last week 14-7 for the District 3-A title, Coach Mickey Finley sees Knox City as just as huge.

"They're awful tough," said Finley. "They are extra fast, and just as big as we are."

When asked if Knox City would be the Cougars toughest opponent thus far, the Cougar coach replied quickly. "No doubt about that. They are by far the toughest team we have played. If we win over them, I think it will be as tough a team as there would be on down the line."

Game time for tonight's bi-district battle is 7:30 p.m.

They'll find likely answer tomorrow against UT

Are Baylor Bears for real?

By The Associated Press

When the Texas Longhorns come to Waco, it means something special to the Baylor Bears and Coach Grant Teaff even if the 1980 Southwest Conference championship is safely Baptist green-and-gold.

It was two years ago in Waco that Teaff, under fire from some corners of the Baylor alumni, ate an earthenware in front of the team and the inspired Bears crunched Texas to start a string of 20 victories in 24 games.

The Bluebonnet Bowl-bound Longhorns, who have not won in Waco since 1972, held Baylor to just two first downs last year in a 13-0 victory. Baylor has just beaten Texas 14 times but 8 of them have come in Waco.

"Their team has come a long way," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "They started with a good nucleus but they weren't sure how good they could be. They had a good schedule early that enabled them to get their confidence up. And they have had few injuries and that has been a factor in their favor."

Baylor, which will play Alabama in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day, was a two-point favorite over the Longhorns in a game that was expected to draw a near capacity 48,500 fans into Baylor Stadium.

Texas is in a struggle with the University of Houston for second place. Both are 4-2 behind Baylor's 7-0.

In other games, Houston was a five-point choice over the fast-improving Texas Tech Red Raiders in Lubbock, the host Texas Aggies were nine-point picks over Texas Christian in Kyle Field, and Holiday Bowl-bound Southern Methodist was a seven-point nod over Hall of Fame Bowl-bound Arkansas in Dallas.

SMU is 4-3, Texas Tech 3-3, Rice 3-4, Arkansas 2-4, Texas A&M 1-5 and TCU 1-6 heading into the last two weeks of the SWC season.

Texas bounces into the Baylor game after back-to-back victories over Houston and TCU. Quarterback Donnie Little had his finest game as a Longhorn last week, earning The Associated Press National Back of the Week award for his 334 yards total offense.

Leonard continues acting for Duran

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The bearded fighter sat there wearing a blue knit longshoreman's cap that is a Roberto Duran trademark. But it was Sugar Ray Leonard.

Leonard showed up at his workout wearing a beard and the cap, and after the training session, he donned the disguise again, grabbed a microphone and shouted: "Me no like Duran. I keel him. Be there."

At a news conference, Leonard, still wearing the beard and cap, was told that Duran had said he considers the flashy-boxing Leonard a clown.

"Do I look like I'm clowning," said Leonard, laughing. "We're just having fun," said trainer Angelo Dundee.

It was also pointed out that Duran called Leonard an imitator and said that "an imitator is a loser."

"First, he said I was imitating Muhammad Ali, and he didn't like me for that," Leonard said. "I figure if I imitate him, he'll like me."

The beard gimmick grew from Dundee's complaint about Duran fighting with a beard again as he did in Montreal when he won the World Boxing Council welterweight title. The trainer said WBC rules state a fighter must be clean-shaven, and he wants Duran to be that way for the rematch Tuesday night in the Superdome.

Duran has said he won't shave, and it is felt he won't have to. Duke Durden, a member of the Nevada State Athletic Commission, is the WBC supervisor for the fight and will decide about the beard.

It is becoming increasingly obvious that Duran's and Leonard's dislike for one another goes far beyond fight hype.

"I never understood why he dislikes me," Leonard said. "But after thinking about it, I believe it is because of the way I came up."

Leonard, who won a gold medal in the 1976 Olympics, became an immediate glamour boy when he turned pro, getting lots of television exposure and big purses. In four years as a pro, Leonard has earned about $20 million.

Duran, the lightweight champion for most of the 1970s, didn't get a gold-mine purse until he fought Leonard and earned $1.5 million. He could get $5 million-$7 million for the rematch.

"Everything I've got I've fought for," Duran said. "I've earned it, and I deserve it."

Howser resigns!

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Howser ended weeks of mystery and speculation today by resigning as manager of the New York Yankees. He was replaced as field manager by Gene Michael, the team's general manager for the past year.

Howser, 43, who piloted the Yankees to 103 victories — only one manager in baseball history ever won more games in his rookie season — and the American League East Division title, was criticized by owner George Steinbrenner when the team was swept in three games in the AL playoffs by the Kansas City Royals.

To Be Thankful

It used to be that a picture like this could only mean harvest time — big orange pumpkins, shiny red apples, colorful stalks of Indian corn. And, of course, a turkey in the pantry.

But what about today? You can buy apples almost any time. Pumpkins are available in a can twelve months of the year. And you can buy a frozen turkey as easily in July as in November.

We Americans take for granted what was a real treat in our parent's time. But in the midst of this material plenty, there is a danger of spiritual famine. To keep the proper perspective, to appreciate the gifts of life to the fullest we need the Church and the story it has to tell us.

Maybe you can't be a pioneer — a Pilgrim. But you can follow your forefathers' example at Plymouth that first November. You can utter genuine thanks in the church or synagogue of your choice.

MASS FOR 100,000 — Sunshine and a crowd estimated at 100,000 greet Pope John Paul II Tuesday as he walks to the altar to celebrate a solemn mass in front of Fulda, West Germany, Cathedral.

Inaugural Event Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official inaugural events often "degenerate into drunken brawls," says an evangelical minister who served in Ronald Reagan's gubernatorial cabinet in California. So James E. Johnson is arranging his own festivities — a "non-sectarian, non-partisan, non-political, joyful, prayerful tribute to the glory of God and the honor of the United States."

The idea does not please the Reagan people, and Johnson's lawyer says the clergyman is under investigation by a federal grand jury to determine whether he violated mail fraud laws.

Johnson sent 40,000 gold-embossed, official-looking invitations that seem to promise appearances by Reagan and Vice President-elect George Bush at the two-day "Presidential Inaugural Celebration with Love."

Those who accept are asked to donate $135 a person, $260 a couple.

But Reagan and Bush plan to attend only official inaugural events, said Lee Troxler, spokesman for the official inauguration committee, and the committee has urged Johnson to tell his guests that.

Johnson's invitation says it is "planned" that Reagan and Bush will visit the Jan. 19-20 event at the D.C. Armory. Reagan takes the oath of office Jan. 20.

The invitation says, "It is a tradition for the elected president to visit all States and it is our plan for him to visit with us during our Celebration."

Johnson, 54, was California secretary of veterans' affairs when Reagan was governor. He later served as vice chairman of the Civil Service commission and an assistant Navy secretary under President Richard M. Nixon.

According to Johnson's lawyer, John F. Snyder, Johnson was questioned by a U.S. District Court grand jury Thursday. He said Johnson is in Florida and unavailable to comment.

Snyder said Johnson and Reagan are close friends who visited each other's homes in California and who prayed together as recently as this summer.

He said he knows of no law against arranging a private celebration of a president's election and inviting people to attend.

"I am convinced there is no basis for any action against Dr. Johnson," he said.

REV. ELMER NELSON

Missionary to speak

The Rev. Elmer Nelson, missionary from Argentina, will speak at 10:40 a.m. Sunday at the First Church of the Nazarene, 14th & Law easter.

Slides will be shown during the 9:45 a.m. Sunday School hour depicting events in their 25 year period of service in Panama and Argentina by Rev. and Mrs. Nelson. Mrs. Nelson, who is also an ordained elder, will assist in the presentation.

Rev. Fred Fike, host pastor, who has visited and conducted evangelistic services for the Nelsons on the mission fields, said the Nelsons are among the most successful of the more than 700 missionaries of the denomination, and welcomed anyone to the services.

Life Ministry Opens Office

Theresa Van Bibber of Victorious Life Ministry Inc., a non-profit tax-exempt Christian ministry, has announced the opening of new offices at 2806 34th St., Suite 7, Lubbock 79410.

Also included in this ministry is the Victorious Life Prayer Line, a 24-hour prayer and counseling service beginning Dec. 1.

The prayer line number is AC 806-792-5415.

The Victorious Life Ministry emphasized the well being of each individual, mentally, physically and spiritually. The ministry is supported by contributions and is available for teaching and counseling in churches, prisons, civic and religious groups and on an individual basis anytime anywhere.

Ground Breaking Slated

A groundbreaking ceremony for a new dining hall at the Big Country Baptist Assembly at Lueders will be held at 3 p.m., Saturday.

Lueders is in the eastern part of Jones County on the Stamford-Albany Highway.

Construction of a new dining hall has been a joint effort shared by the Baptist Associations of Abilene, Callahan, Cisco, Sweetwater, Haskell-Knox, and West Central Associations. Together, a total of $310,800 has been pledged and given toward construction.

The present dining facility was built in 1932. With continued growth of the encampment facility, it has become necessary to accommodate growing needs. Last year 5,500 people participated in camp outings at Big Country Baptist Assembly. With completion of the new hall, 408 people can be seated and can handle groups up to 1,000.

The new building will be named the Lawrence and Ruth Trott Dining Hall. Lawrence Trott pastored Pleasant Hill and Colorado Bend churches in Coke County; Looney in Mitchell County; Champion and Lamar Street in Sweetwater; First Baptist Church in Levelland; First Baptist in Winters; and First Baptist at Denver City.

He served as District 17 missionary from 1954 to 1964 and was Double Mountain area missionary from 1965 to 1970.

His wife, Ruth, died October 31, 1978.

General campaign chairman for the project is Marion (Cotton) Bridges. An officer at Citizens National Bank in Abilene, he was recently elected vice president of Texas Baptist Men. Bridges is a member of the disaster relief unit for Texas Baptist Men.

Area Diocese Joins Campaign

Catholics in the Diocese of San Angelo will join Catholics throughout the United States in the opportunity to contribute to the Campaign for Human Development Sunday.

For the past decade Catholics of the nation have set aside the Sunday before Thanksgiving to contribute to the massive "self help" program established by the Catholic bishops in 1970. Since that date nearly $80 million has been given by American Catholics in their fight against poverty. Last year the collection in the Diocese of San Angelo totaled nearly $10 thousand.

For ten years the Campaign for Human Development (CHD) has been making a difference in the lives of individuals, groups, and communities across the country. CHD is the U.S. Catholic Church's education-action program to combat domestic poverty. CHD programs that enable people of all races, creeds, geographic regions and backgrounds to work together for long-range solutions to poverty in the critical areas of social and economic development, housing, health, legal aid, education, and communications. CHD helps people by helping them to take control of their own lives.

In the last decade, CHD has assisted over 1,500 self-help projects. To obtain CHD's support, these projects must:

- Benefit the poor; the majority of those benefiting from the projects must be members of the low-income community.
- Be self-help projects of poor and oppressed people; that is, projects must be directed by the low-income groups themselves.

—Aim to bring about social change by attacking the root causes of poverty; unjust institutions, laws or policies that keep people poor.

The Campaign is committed to year-round justice education efforts. CHD provides poverty-related and justice education materials for use by schools, parishes and other institutions; coordinates justice education programs with 161 diocesan CHD directors, consults with poor people's groups, and provides training and workshops on national and diocesan levels.

Thanksgiving Service Set

The First Assembly of God Church will have Thanksgiving services Sunday, with pastor Rick Jones preaching on Rapture of the Church at 10:30 a.m.

The evening services are set for 7 p.m., and the message will be "God's Washpot" or "It cost too much to be out of God's will."

The public is invited to attend the services at 4th and Lancaster.

Community Service Slated

A Community Thanksgiving Service is at 10 a.m. Thursday in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church.

Other activities at the church include a song-fest at 7 p.m. Sunday night. Psalms of Praise, Nuts and Bolts, various Sunday school classes and others will provide music. The congregation will join together for hymns.

Anniversary To Be Noted

The Wesley United Methodist Church celebrates its Golden Anniversary in a two-day celebration Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday there will be a coffee at 2:30 p.m., a stroll through the Memory Room, and a sandwich supper at 6:30 p.m. At 7:30 p.m. there will be a service in honor of the charter members.

Sunday there will be coffee and donuts at 9:30 a.m. in lieu of Sunday School for more fellowship and reminiscing. At 10:30 a.m. regular services will begin followed by an old-fashioned covered dish luncheon.

Expensive 'Heaven's Gate' a Thanksgiving turkey?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — United Artists was hoping that its $36 million Thanksgiving release, "Heaven's Gate," would provide a feast of profits. Now Hollywood is wondering why the film ended up being such a turkey.

The 3½-hour Western was pulled from circulation Wednesday, the same day it opened in New York to terrible reviews. One critic suggested that director Michael Cimino could improve his work by releasing it in Russian — without subtitles.

"Watching the film is like taking a forced four-hour walking tour of one's own living room," said Vincent Canby of The New York Times.

Movies have been savaged by reviewers before. But never has a major film been withdrawn and sent back to the cutting room in the face of complete rejection. The studio said the film — which also played briefly in Toronto and was to have opened in Los Angeles — was pulled at Cimino's request.

How could United Artists produce such an Edsel?

"There's no control at the top of the industry anymore," explains a veteran observer. "The companies are run by men who never made movies. They're lawyers and businessmen and former agents who are awed by hot new directors and are willing to hand them blank checks."

That was what Cimino seems to have had in mind when he made "Heaven's Gate." The budget tripled to $36 million, and his final cut came to three hours and 39 minutes, which would permit only one nightly performance in theaters. Apparently no one at United Artists said no to him.

After all, Cimino's previous film, "The Deer

Hunter," was an Oscar winner in 1978. But while it earned a respectable $16 million in U.S. rentals, the film was no blockbuster. And it failed to sell to the networks because of excessive violence.

Cimino's experience follows the trend of other new film makers. After hits with "Jaws" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," Stephen Spielberg spent $30 million on the disastrous "1941." John Landis followed the surprise hit "National Lampoon's Animal House" with "The Blues Brothers."

"The days of complete control by directors is over at Universal," says Gordon Armstrong, vice president of publicity, advertising and promotion. "If our money is involved, we intend to have a say in how it is spent."

Prison site is approved

NAVASOTA, Texas (AP) — City commissioners have approved the Texas Department of Corrections selection of 5,968 acres in Grimes County as the site of a new prison farm.

The selection was approved Thursday, with Commissioner Betty Jane Burlin abstaining. Mrs. Burlin, who also serves as the local Chamber of Commerce president, represented five Grimes County landowners in the $6.7 million transaction.

Several residents opposing the selection pleaded with commissioners to remain neutral until the TDC completed public hearings on Dec. 1-2.

But Commissioner Marcus Mallard argued delaying the vote would only prolong "the misery" and called criticism of TDC's plan "a bunch of bull."
