Said they are threatening the peace of Europe

Polish Communist leader warns unions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania opened a two-day session of the party's Central Committee with a warning to militant independent labor leaders to "sober up" and cooperate with the party. He said they are threatening the peace of Europe.

Kania in a speech Monday that was broadcast nationally offered to cooperate with leaders of the independent labor movement who showed restraint. But he warned against "prestige or downright political strikes" and rejected demands of the Warsaw chapter of Solidarity, the largest independent union, for a reduction in the budgets of the prosecutor's office and other police agencies.

"It is high time to sober up, to understand that the basic condition and chance for a further favorable development of the nation is an immediate halt to activities weakening and undermining the functioning of the people's state," he said.

Such activities "threaten to eventually destabilize the peaceful order of Europe," he said, apparently referring to the possibility of Soviet military intervention if challenges to the political system continue.

The British Broadcasting Corp. quoted Western military observers in West Berlin as saying the western districts of the Soviet Union bordering Poland have been closed for several weeks and that Soviet troops in those districts have now had their alert raised by four points to level six, the highest in the Soviet army.

Kania thanked the Soviets for their "understanding of the nature of our difficulties and the conviction that we shall find a way out of the crisis." He said the Soviet Union provided $600 million worth of goods to Poland in 1980 and would advance $1.3 billion in Western currency next year to pay for consumer goods and other commodities.

Although the committee was expected to take action on the country's grave economic crisis, Kania did not outline a program to restore economic stability, refinance the foreign debt estimated at more than $20 billion and end shortages of food and consumer goods.

There was speculation that the meeting would produce more changes in the party leadership, with Kania boosting men of his choice to key posts.

Big Spring bond election

Paving can't be put off without dire consequences

There are, within the bounds of the City of Big Spring, approximately 190 miles of streets, of which 2,900 blocks are in some degree paved.

(One of a series outlining local bond program to be decided by voters Dec. 13)

Some of this paving dates back nearly 55 years. Much more of it dates back to the WPA projects of the 1930's, and the bulk of it to the catch-up days after World War II.

Streets, like anything else, age and wear, especially when maintenance has to be put off for more pressing problems. Now, following an assessment by a citizens advisory committee and members of the city staff, the Big Spring City Council advises that repair or rehabilitation of part of this paving can't be put off any longer without dire consequences.

There are over 600 blocks of streets which are beyond repair in the conventional sense. They need to be rebuilt to proper grade with adequate base to support today's automobiles, and in many instances to have curb and gutter, and in a few cases to have storm sewers buried below them so that flood waters can drain off faster. This work will cost an estimated $1,945,000 and needs desperately to be done regardless of any other phase of street work.

But when the replacement of aging and badly corroded water mains takes place, streets will have to be torn up. By conservative estimates, another 600 blocks will need to be overlaid or resurfaced in their entirety where the utilities have cut into existing paving. Cost for this program is set at

What about additional paved streets? Part of the proposed total street program addresses this question by providing a nest egg of $700,000 as a sort of revolving fund for the city's share of matching funds by property owners along these newly surfaced streets.

Here is how this program will work: Property owners along a particular street will petition the City Council for the new paved street and will agree voluntarily to pay an assessment for paving curb and gutter based on a lineal footage along their property. The city then will contract for design and construction of the street. As the assessments are repaid, the money goes back into the revolving fund for improvement of additional streets. Total proposed for all these street improvements is $4,545,000.

Exactly which streets will be improved or completely reconstructed? The council has asked for flexibility in making that decision. Priorities will be determined at the time that the bonds are sold.

Specific criteria will be used, however, to decide what those priorities are. Council members feel that if this bond issue passes, first priority should be given to major thoroughfares and arteries in the city; those streets that carry the most traffic.

Consideration will also be given to projects that can be coordinated with federal funding programs. The east-west route on Tenth and Eleventh, for example, would qualify for federal funds because it connects two branches of FM 700, a state thoroughfare, said City Manager Don Davis.

Davis also noted that portions of Wasson Road and Birdwell Lane have been given high priority at present. These streets and others have been discussed by the citizens advisory committee, council members, officials in the city street department and an advisory committee from Texas A&M University.

In addition, if this issue is passed by voters, an engineer will be hired by the city to help decide which roads most need improvement at the time that the bonds are sold, said Davis.

TELLTALE SIGNS OF A PROBLEM — Many streets in Big Spring are showing grave signs of wear and tear. The cracks in the pavement here are indications that the thoroughfares are crumbling away. It's estimated some 600 blocks of streets within the system are beyond repair. The voters get a chance to do something about the problem in a bond election scheduled here Dec. 13. Total amount proposed for all street improvements is $4,545,000. Voters will determine the fate of each of nine capital projects improvements by casting ballots on each individually.

U.S. to supply Jordan with military parts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is preparing to supply Jordan with new shipments of military spare parts and ammunition to counter a buildup of Syrian troops and tanks along the Jordanian border, officials say.

The move is designed to bolster King Hussein's forces in the event of a conflict that one U.S. official described to The Associated Press as more than likely.

"If the crunch comes, it probably will be the result of accident or miscalculation," said the official, who rated chances of an outbreak as better than 50-50.

With tensions mounting over the weekend, Jordan submitted two or three lists of arms as well as spare parts, with additional requests expected this week.

The parts requested are for jet planes, tanks and other military gear supplied by the United States as it modernized the Jordanian army and air force through the 1970s.

"It's like Christmas shopping lists," the official, who asked not to be identified, said Monday. "It's a matter of getting some priorities down."

Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher told reporters, however, that he hoped for an easing of tensions that would make it unnecessary to act on Jordan's request.

Dallas man kills family, is shot while talking to reporter

DALLAS (AP) — A man who allegedly killed his wife and executed his four children after promising them surprises was slain by officers as he described the grisly slayings over the telephone, police said.

Thomas Ray Walker Jr. died Monday night at Presbyterian Hospital, about an hour after he stepped from a phone booth screaming, "Shoot me! Shoot me! Shoot me!" and was gunned down by police.

Police had converged on the phone booth shortly after the man's call to KDFW-TV was traced, police spokesman Bob Shaw said.

Kenny Boles, executive producer at KDFW-TV, said a male caller told a switchboard operator that he "had a good story."

"I've done something terribly wrong," Boles said the man told him. "Then he described in graphic detail how he murdered his wife and children. Basically he said he had murdered his wife in the shower while his children were outside.

"One by one, he brought the children inside, telling them he had a surprise for them," Boles said. "As to why, he simply said he was depressed, that he did not feel his family could live through his suicide."

After Walker, 36, was shot, officers located his address and kicked in the front door of his southeast Dallas home, police said.

Inside the bloodied home they discovered the body of Linda Jo Walker, 35, sprawled in the bathroom, and Traci, 14, Tammi, 11, Tommy, 9, and Nicholas, 7, dead on the floor, Shaw said.

Mrs. Walker had been shot twice in the face while she was in the shower. All were shot in the face, except for Nicholas, who was shot behind the right ear, he said.

"At least three of the children were shot on the pretext of 'I've got a surprise for you,'" Shaw said.

Lt. Roger Duncan and Sgt. Bill Parker went to the television station Monday evening after receiving a call from reporter Tom Steyer, who talked to the man on several occasions through the afternoon, Shaw said.

The man called again shortly after the officers arrived at the station, Shaw said, and they were able to trace his location to a phone booth outside a northeast Dallas grocery store.

'SEASON TO BE JOLLY' IS DRAWING NIGH — Thanksgiving weekend ushered in the Christmas season in Big Spring. City workers are responding to the challenge by erecting street decorations. Here Johnny Shortes (in bucket) secures a decoration shaped in the form of a candy stick. The city workers were busy on North Gregg Street at the time.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Pro sports, taxes

Q. Settle this argument for me. In professional sports, do the owners of clubs go into business to make money or to take advantage of a tax writeoff? Is the Dallas Cowboy operation a money-making business?

A. Not all clubs in professional sports make money. There are heavy losers, for instance, among some major league baseball and NBA (basketball teams). The owners can write off their operations for tax purposes for a time. The Dallas Cowboys, as do all teams in the NFL, make money, mainly because each team benefits lucratively from television contracts.

Goodwill trip to Taiwan

LONDON (AP) — A goodwill trip by a group of British lawmakers to Taiwan went well until they arrived at a large textile factory where they found finished cloth, packed for export and neatly labeled "Made in Britain."

The awkward moment was disclosed in the House of Commons Monday by Conservative legislator Peter Viggers, one of eight members of Parliament who visited Taiwan.

Viggers said the Britons stopped in their tracks when they saw the labels.

"When we asked the factory people to explain they were a bit quiet," Viggers said, adding that Taiwan officials have promised to investigate and take action.

Mormon Church breakaway

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Seven Mormon dissidents say they have founded the Zions First International Church because they disagree with the Mormon church's position on the Equal Rights Amendment.

Lobbying against the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints caused some members to re-examine their beliefs and reject Mormon teachings, Salt Lake City lawyer Lee Anne Walker said Monday.

The new church was launched Monday on the first anniversary of the excommunication of ERA supporter Sonia Johnson.

Miss USA given up

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Miss USA pageant will be leaving Mississippi because the local city council decided it might be too costly to serve as host.

The pageant had been held on the Mississippi Gulf Coast the last two springs, but businessmen there said it interfered with tourism.

The city would have had to provide hotel accommodations, meals and ground transportation for contestants, in addition to use of the city auditorium and other facilities.

Atlanta 'head shops' reopen

ATLANTA (AP) — "Head shops" will be reopening in the Atlanta area following a federal judge's ruling that a Georgia law limiting the sale of drug paraphernalia is unconstitutional.

U.S. District Judge Richard Freeman said Monday the law is vague and does not specify what types of drug-related equipment or chemicals are covered by its provisions.

About 30 of the "head shops" in the metro Atlanta area were closed because of prosecution by local officials.

A state legislator said a new law that would meet the court's objections would be introduced in the next state assembly.

Ambulance service arrangements made

LAMESA — Arrangements have been made by Dawson County commissioners for another ambulance service to provide such service ended Thursday.

The new ambulance operator will be Joy Barnett, an emergency medical technician who has been working with an ambulance service in Snyder.

Under terms of the agreement, Dawson County is providing two new ambulances for Ms. Barnett.

Kidd operated the service for less than six months.

Ms. Barnett's business partner will be Melissa Holt, who has also been working in Snyder.

The county will pay a $1,500 per month subsidy for the service, one fourth less than that paid to Kidd.

Cost of the new equipment provided for Ms. Barnett is an estimated $50,000.

Barnett and Holt will do their own collection of fee collections. For the time being, the ambulances will be based in a county barn but Barnett indicated they were looking for an abandoned service station as a place for permanent housing.

Police hunt for pilot

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Police today hunted for a pilot who escaped after crash-landing his marijuana-laden airplane on an overpass of a busy freeway Monday.

The pilot hitched a ride after the plane skidded into a guardrail and almost toppled onto the freeway full of morning rush hour traffic, police said.

Officers found 22 bricks of marijuana, each weighing 25 pounds, aboard the plane. They also confiscated an automatic rifle, three clips of ammunition and what appeared to be the pilot's personal belongings.

A witness told police he was approaching the smoking wreckage when the pilot, apparently uninjured, climbed into a car that had stopped near the plane.

The plane appeared to be on an approach to the airport, "but then he went low and veered to the left, like a cropduster," Police Cmdr. Ted Bullard quoted the unidentified witness as saying.

The twin-engine Piper Turbo Aztec "touched down on the (freeway) access road and skidded to the guardrail," Bullard said.

Officers said the plane was registered to a Dallas company, but declined to release the name.

Air traffic controllers at Corpus Christi International airport told police the pilot radioed for landing instructions, then dropped from their radar screens about 10 miles away from the field.

Police said a small fire after the crash was extinguished quickly. Both of the airplane's fuel tanks were empty, leading officials to speculate the craft may have been trying to land to refuel.

U.S. delivers latest response on terms

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher arrived in Algiers today carrying the latest American response to Iran's terms for freeing the 52 American hostages.

Christopher was accompanied by Redha Malek, Algeria's ambassador to Washington, and a delegation of other American officials.

The deputy secretary is scheduled to meet with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia to relay the U.S. reply. Algeria has been acting as intermediary in the negotiations between the United States and Iran.

There was no immediate indication of a breakthrough on gaining the release of the hostages after nearly 13 months of captivity.

Christopher and other U.S. officials will be prepared to answer any questions the Algerians might have regarding the U.S. position, State Department spokesman David Nall said Monday night.

Christopher conferred over the weekend with President Carter at Camp

David, Md., about the U.S. response to Iran's request for clarification, brought here last week by Algerian emissaries.

The contents of the U.S. message were not disclosed, but it is known that the administration has tried to persuade authorities in Tehran that there are major legal and technical complications to the terms.

The Washington Post quoted unidentified sources today as saying the message represents no change in the basic American position carried to Algeria by Christopher three weeks ago. The latest response, the paper said, is merely a more detailed reiteration of a stance that has not changed "in broad outline" since an unsuccessful round of negotiations with Iran last spring.

The newspaper also quoted official U.S. sources as saying Christopher's delegation is ready to caution Iran that American flexibility on the hostage issue may expire next month when President Carter leaves office. The delegation is ready to inform the Iranians through the Algerians that "it will be a whole new ball game after Jan. 20." The Post quoted one U.S. official as saying:

Iran's demands, set by its parliament Nov. 2, call for an American promise not to interfere in the country's internal affairs, cancellation of all American claims against Iran, release of more than $8 billion in impounded Iranian assets and return of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

State Department spokesman John Trantner dismissed on Monday any suggestion that the United States is engaged in humiliating negotiations with violators of international law.

"Obviously, when you have a hostage situation you have to work to resolve it," he said. "That's what we've been doing. We'll worry later about whether there is humiliation involved. I don't think there is."

President-elect Ronald Reagan, meanwhile, said it would be "pretty foolish" if Iran waited until after his Jan. 20 inauguration to try to get better terms. His comment was in response to a report from Tehran that an Iranian official had suggested such a delay.

Earlier Monday, a ranking White House official said the outcome of the hostage situation remains unpredictable and the domestic political situation in Iran is the crucial factor.

Top wines come not from France

If this is not the age of the paradox, it certainly should be remembered for its inconsistencies.

The nations with two of the strongest currencies in the world — Japan and West Germany — were defeated by the United States and its allies in WW II, while runaway inflation is threatening the stability of the American dollar.

IRAN, ONE OF the world's leading oil producers, may eventually have to import petroleum because of its border war with Iraq (which insists on bombing its leading refineries).

No one spends more on defense than the United States, with the possible exception of Russia, yet America is utterly incapable of taking a strong posture because of a shortage of basic weapons and people experienced in operating them.

America cigarettes are recognized the world over as providing the best smoke, yet their companies are denied the privilege of advertising on television because they are bad for one's health (so says the U.S. Surgeon General).

And then there is wine. Most Americans might be of the opinion that the best wines come from France, where children are encouraged to drink wine rather than water. That is not the case. Of the ten largest imported wines in the United States, not one is French. Six are Italian, two are Portuguese, one is Spanish and one is German.

WHY WOULD ITALY dominate the market? The answer is simple. The Italians are more innovative with packaging, promotions and sizing — they're outdistancing other nations who persist in putting out their product in the same old way.

It isn't generally known that prior to and during WWII that wine made in California was being shipped to France where French labels were put on it. Once so identified, it was being shipped back to America for sale as the genuine thing.

Of course, it is universally understood that American souvenirs like replicas of the Washington Monument, the American flag and Texas oilwells have, for years, been made in places like Taiwan and Korea. Their cost would simply be too prohibitive if they were manufactured in this country.

No move planned

Around the rim

Richard Horn

INTERSTATE 20 — Well...it's snowing. And there is ice on the road. It is the Tuesday before Thanksgiving and I am driving back from Midland Airport, where I did not meet my girlfriend on a flight that never took off from Dallas. A futile trip. Southwest Airlines had assured me earlier that all flights would certainly be flying, at least until nightfall. Southwest will have their little jokes.

I lost the road somewhere around Stanton. Either that or I lost Stanton somewhere around Midland. I could be in the middle of a cornfield near Omaha, Neb. for all I know.

THE SNOW IS COMING down hard and getting deeper on the road. I have been fiddling with the radio, trying to find a band playing "Nearer My God to Thee," but there is no luck. Instead, I sing to myself:

"Nearer my God to Thee ... for those in peril on the Interstate..." or something like that.

For the time being, I stop chewing frantically on my ring, and take quick assessment of my situation. The wind is blowing wildly. The road is obviously iced nicely. If I make any sudden moves, the car begins moving in a sideways direction, magically with no prompting from the driver. What will these Detroit guys come up with next?

Nearer my God to Thee.

I have discovered that if I go no faster than 20 mph, I can keep fair control of the car. Any more than that and I will go off the road into a ditch. I have also discovered that it is not in my best interests to end up in a ditch.

Several people have already ended up on the side of the road. All are facing the opposite direction from the flow of traffic, and all are staring forlornly at the cars slowly passing. I don't know what the people are doing in those cars — wishing they were somewhere else I presume — but I do know what people in the passing cars are doing. We are wondering who will be next.

IT OCCURRED TO me that I might stop and help some of these poor side-tracked travelers. Of course I am desperate to, but prudence persuaded me to keep going, since in all likelihood I would end up in the same position and might even make things worse. Good old prudence.

Things are getting funkier. Not only have I lost the road, Stanton, and possibly North America, but I have now lost the front end of my car. I can not see past my windshield wipers. As near as I can tell, there are no other cars on the road. They have probably all deserted in a panic, and are at this moment sitting in Stuckey's, saying a prayer for that idiot in the brown Pontiac who is trying to drive to Big Spring.

But no. Behind me I see our friend of the road, the trucker. Oh, oh. My friend of the road is pulling into the left lane, and is now going to try to pass me.

NEARER MY GAWWWWD TOOOO THEEEEEE!

It has always been an ambition of mine to move to Alaska one day. This little country drive has convinced me that there may be better places to live. I think I'll stay down here in the desert, where it's always sunny and warm.

Legal loophole

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The secret tapping of the telephones of innocent Americans supposedly came to a crashing halt with reform legislation which was enacted five years ago. But it didn't.

A loophole in the law, designed to give the Good Guys a break in the continuous game of espionage with the Russians, permits Uncle Sam's spooks to listen in on any phone conversations the Kremlin's agents have tapped.

As a result, thousands of phone calls to and from government officials, businessmen and other Americans have been clandestinely recorded by both U.S. and Soviet spooks. And thanks to the loophole, this eavesdropping — by the American tappers, that is — was perfectly legal.

It was also totally unproductive.

THE OPERATION, code-named "Project Aquarium," has been traced to the early days of the Carter administration, intelligence sources told my associate Dale Van Atta. And one of the unwitting targets was President Carter's good friend and attorney general, Griffin Bell.

For reasons that make sense to the convoluted reasoning of the espionage community, the government has done little to stop the Russians' electronic monitoring of phone calls in this country. Since 1977, the bugging has been done from the Soviet Embassy in Washington, the Russian consulate in San Francisco, two of their offices in New York and several other secret locations.

The CIA wanted to crack the New York operation. The reason is that two-thirds of all long-distance calls travel by microwaves, and much of that traffic is beamed through transmitting towers in New York. The Russians simply rent a hotel room and tap into one of the towers with sophisticated equipment.

They use a scanning device to zero in on the few hundred phone numbers they're interested in — government officials privy to state secrets, business executives discussing confidential matters, perhaps the mistress of an important man who would then be susceptible to blackmail.

Unfortunately, the CIA just didn't have the electronic expertise to horn in on the Russian spooks. After trying for months with no success, they finally turned to the National Security Agency for help.

For the NSA — which once, in "Project Canute," reconstructed messages from the acoustical tape of someone typing — the monitoring was like shooting fish in a barrel. Within a week the agency's wizards were tapping the Russians' radio monitors and hearing everything they heard.

ONE EARLY result was a surprise: The NSA tapped the Soviets tapping Attorney General Bell, who was overheard discussing classified information on an unsecured line. Bell was quickly informed, though the leak was "more of a joke than a serious thing," in Bell's words.

Thousands of phone calls by hundreds of individuals were subjected to Project Aquarium's double U.S.-Soviet eavesdropping, long after the furor over Watergate-era domestic surveillance had subsided. But intelligence sources say the project never turned up so much as a nugget of significant information.

The most the NSA monitors learned was the identities of Americans who excite the Russians' interest — which in most cases is obvious. "I've never seen the need for that kind of intelligence," said one CIA official. "It's wasted."

Footnote: To its credit, the NSA resisted Bell's efforts to get hold of its tapes. He particularly wanted any that might have shed some light on the Koreagate scandal. In a showdown at the White House, the president ordered the NSA director to inform Bell if any of the taped conversations had relevance to the investigation. The director said none did.

But some experts are concerned that the loophole allowing federal tapping of innocent citizens — so long as the Russians tap them first — could be used as a means of returning to the bad old days of indiscriminate domestic snooping that was discredited by the Watergate excesses.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Laughter in Foggy Bottom Dept.: Some secretaries in the State Department's East Asian Bureau, evidently bored by the recurrent talk of drastic budget cuts, prepared an official-blocking memo on their supply needs for the coming year.

My answer

Billv Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Last year I was in a terrible automobile accident which left me partially paralyzed. I keep thinking God must be punishing me for some sin I've committed, but I don't know what it is. What do you think it might be? — L.J.

DEAR L.J.: Let me assure you that our God is a loving, merciful Father. He does not carry a big stick waiting to strike us for the least injustice. When we sin, God, as a perfect Father, will discipline us. Discipline means "to train" — and not to punish mercilessly. When we sin, God does not simply want to "flog" us, but to forgive us and cleanse us from our guilt (1 John 1:9).

Sometimes we experience the natural consequences of our wrong actions and disobedience to his commandments. Were you driving carelessly or under the influence of alcohol or drugs? Or sometimes we suffer because of the wrong actions and mistakes of others.

If you have asked God to search your heart and reveal some sin to you, and he brings nothing to your mind, then you can be assured that your accident is not coming to you as a punishment from God.

And you can be certain that God cares about you and understands your situation. Remember Romans 8:28, "And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him, who have been called according to his purpose." God can bring good into your life even though this horrible mishap.

Now for test

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — I hate to be critical of the medical profession, but have you noticed that doctors are ordering up more tests all the time? Gone are the days when the M.D.s used stethoscopes and wore reflecting mirrors over their eyes. Now they sit behind their desks and, no matter what your complaint is, they say, "We better do a test on that." So you give the nurse your blood, and they tell you to call back in a few days and they'll let you know if "you have it" or "you don't."

Now there is absolutely nothing wrong with this because medical science has become so sophisticated that technicians can now look at a cell in a lab and tell more about you than if they made you breathe in and out all day long.

THE ONLY PROBLEM is that, while we are putting ourselves in the hands of trained experts who have devoted their lives to medicine, they are now basing their diagnoses on the results of laboratory tests which, in many cases, are done by people barely out of high school.

I don't know if Washington is typical of the rest of the country, but I hear more and more stories about labs messing up on medical tests. The following ones are all true and took place during the last six months.

A lady friend of mine had a blood count done while she was in a hospital in the nation's capital. The results were so perplexing that her internist called a hematologist and checked it out with him. The hematologist said, "You have nothing to worry about. If that blood count is correct, your patient is dead."

A neighbor of mine who had returned from the Middle East wound up with an exotic bug that mystified the doctors at another Washington hospital. They were going to call in a tropical disease man when my neighbor's blood report revealed he had hepatitis. Everyone breathed a sigh of relief that they finally had a diagnosis until it was discovered that my neighbor's blood sample had inadvertently been switched with one belonging to another patient.

The other patient's doctor was so confused by my neighbor's blood sample that he ordered it sent to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

I am not making these up. Another friend of mine was being tested for a neurological problem. He was told that the test results would take about three weeks. He waited patiently. (Actually, he sweated it out and was a nervous wreck.) When he didn't hear from the doctor, he expected the worst. He called. The doctor was surprised he hadn't heard from the lab. The doctor called. The lab people checked around. Somehow they had lost the sample and couldn't locate it. The test would have to be done over again.

I DO HAVE a lot more stories that I've collected, but so does everyone else. The system is breaking down. How can an M.D. diagnose an illness and prescribe the treatment when he has no assurance that the tests he's asked for are accurate? No one knows any more who is down in the basement, mixing up test tubes and putting the wrong labels on microscopic slides.

The obvious solution would be to up the standards required of lab technicians and pay them a lot more money. Nobody would agree to this, so the second best answer is to put the doctors to work in the labs and put the lab technicians to work in the doctors' offices.

Since all of the important work in diagnosing an illness is now done in the laboratories, that is where the M.D.s should be. Anyone can man a desk in a doctor's office and listen to someone's complaint. It doesn't take much to ask someone to say, "Cough, when I say cough," or "When I do this, tell me if it hurts."

Illness, depression may be linked

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a very close friend who is having a really bad time. He is off work and has been for quite some time with what the doctor has diagnosed as severe depression. I recently heard of a person who had the same trouble and who had actually spent some time in a mental institution. Then they did some kind of tests that showed he was suffering from a severe sodium deficiency. They began to give him sodium and he recovered with amazing speed. He is well and back to work. Can you shed some light on what kind of testing should be involved? — Mrs. M.H.

Many physical illnesses can produce mental problems. This is why a thorough physical examination of a person with psychological problems is so desirable. Sodium deficiency can be part of a number of illnesses where there are depression and fatigue. Addison's disease is one of these. In this, the adrenal gland is not making the hormones responsible for keeping salt in the body. In addition to psychological symptoms, there is often weight loss, skin pigmentation and low blood pressure.

I certainly cannot say whether your friend has low sodium or Addison's disease, but either would not be out of the question. A thorough physical would determine whether or not there is a bodily illness responsible for his mental state. Admittedly, such illnesses account for only a small fraction of psychological problems, but they should be looked for. It is easy to diagnose sodium deficiency, for example. A simple blood test does that.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I would like your opinion about my husband's head colds, which he gets every time we go swimming. It doesn't matter how warm or cold the water or weather is. Throughout that night and the next day he suffers with a head cold, sneezing, and congestion. Is there anything to do to prevent this? He's had this problem for the ten years we have been married. — Mrs. L.S.

I think you know that you are using the term "head cold" very loosely. As you know, colds are infections, caused mostly by viruses. They should have a longer incubation period than the time it takes your husband to develop his symptoms: by incubation period I mean from time of exposure to the virus and appearance of a cold.

Perhaps his symptoms result from exposure to cold water, something like a cold allergy. Or he may have a problem with the passages from his sinuses to his nose. When you swim under water the pressure in the sinuses must adjust to the underwater pressure. If sinuses are blocked this cannot happen and linings swell. You end up with nasal drainage later on.

I do not know just what your husband's problem is, but he should see an ear-nose-and-throat specialist. Maybe all he will need is a nasal decongestant. See the booklet "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble" for further reading on this subject. For a copy write me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I noticed the complaint by A.S.R. in your column. Here in Florida — as well as elsewhere — retired physicians (such as myself) represented by county medical societies are making an effort to meet the needs of those too rich to qualify for medical assistance and too poor to see a physician and get prescriptions. I am firmly convinced that if A.S.R. will contact the county medical society wherever he/she lives and explain the situation, that it can be resolved satisfactorily. — S.K., M.D.

Thank you for your interest, doctor. Perhaps readers in A.S.R.'s situation might investigate this possibility in their areas.

NOTE FOR READERS: Since discussing spina bifida recently I have been reminded by many readers across the country that there are local, state and national associations established to help parents who have children with this problem. Any local health organization should be able to locate one of them for those interested in further information about treatment and therapy.

Shingles can be a painful disease! For a copy of the booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

For the past 20 years, due to the liberal-socialist leadership that has been governing this country, the U.S.A. has become a military midget in the world. In this same time Russia never ceased building its military power and today it has military superiority over every nation in the world.

At the same time, Russia has trained subversives and guerrillas to send around the world to promote violence and destruction of other governments. Our country has done nothing to deter these actions and, in fact, has encouraged these actions. Examples are 1) Iran, 2) Nicaragua, 3) Rhodesia, 4) Afghanistan, 5) Ethiopia, 6) El Salvador, 7) Argentina, 8) England, and 9) most nations in Africa. Our communist-dominated state department has supported the communists in all of these activities. Some nations, such as Argentina and Chile, have resisted the communist take-over and have been criticized and ridiculed by our government. Not only did we assist the Sandanistas (which are communist trained and led) in their take-over of Nicaragua, but we sent them 75 million dollars of the taxpayers money to help do the job.

If you don't believe me, get a map and check off the nations which have come under control of the U.S.S.R. since World War II. Their plans right now are to take control of the Persian Gulf.

A Lithuanian who swam, walked, and crawled his way to freedom from the U.S.S.R. recently, made his way to Canada. He warned (his name is Vlada Saksly). "The U.S.S.R. is suddenly stepping up war preparations which the West ignores in its peril. (If you will remember, Solzhenitsyn told us the same thing). If the West is strong the Soviets won't go to war; if the West is weak, the Kremlin will put their war plans into actions." He also warns of food depots being set up in strategic spots and maneuvers that included the army and the police force. Mr. Saksly spent 14 years in Soviet prisons and work camps.

U.S. General Kroesen, head of U.S. troops in Europe, says, "We have an obsolete army." "We need modern equipment." For the past ten to 12 years and more especially the past four years, our government has allowed our military might to disintegrate. Instead, the soft-headed liberal-socialist thought they could negotiate with the Kremlin and maybe they would be nice boys. That's how we got into this mess, through compromising and making deals with the devil. That has been following the road to serfdom. Everyone who really knows the Soviets say the same — You have to be tough; they (Soviets) respect only strength, and plenty is required to make them back up.

Senator Barry Goldwater, in his new book ("With No Apologies") says: "If we don't penetrate the fog of propaganda which has led to our present military weakness, if we don't discard the policy of appeasement and accommodation, the days of the Republic are numbered. Unless we wake up, the world is headed for a period of slavery."

Time is short, maybe two-three years before they make a move against us. Please write your Senator and congressmen, urging them to start a crash program in order to re-arm America. We have been betrayed enough — demand a change.

JOHN DEAN JOHN ANDERSON

Anderson will wait

CHICAGO (AP) — Former independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson said he won't run for the White House again if President-elect Ronald Reagan does well in office.

"If everything is going along all right with Reagan, I'll be the first to praise him," the former Illinois Republican congressman said following a television appearance here Monday.

Anderson said he had "not ruled out" another presidential bid. He said "much depends on the thrust of the new administration."

Anderson said he probably would not accept a Cabinet position if it were offered.

Reagan 'isn't preaching'

ATLANTA (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan has gained the confidence of European leaders because he isn't trying to preach to the world, according to former British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Heath, here to speak at Emory University, said President Carter reduced his effectiveness with European leaders, particularly West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, because of his tendency to preach morality from the White House.

Heath said European leaders don't think Reagan is as obsessed with morality as President Carter. He said Reagan did not fight "a campaign telling the rest of the world what it ought to be doing."

The 74-year-old Heath, Britain's prime minister from 1970 to 1974, made his comments in an interview published Monday by The Atlanta Constitution and The Atlanta Journal.

Grasso returns home

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Gov. Ella Grasso is back in her official residence, resting after undergoing chemotherapy for liver cancer which was discovered while she was being treated successfully for phlebitis.

Mrs. Grasso spent Thanksgiving weekend in Hartford Hospital, but slipped out of the hospital Monday morning, despite an announcement that she would not be released until mid-week.

"She has completed the first phase of her chemotherapy," hospital spokesman James Battaglio said, adding that she is scheduled to begin a second phase in four to six weeks.

Battaglio said the governor "looked well and said she felt well."

Dean 'going country'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Dean, former White House counsel of then-President Richard Nixon and a star witness at the Senate Watergate hearings in 1973, has been dabbling in radio syndication — but he's dropped politics and gone country.

Dean, who worked on a short-lived political program called "The Right to Know," has become executive producer of "The Kenny Rogers Special," a six-hour syndicated radio series for TM Productions.

$350,000 in precious metals stolen at TI.

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities today questioned employees who entered Texas Instruments' plant over the holiday weekend to determine who might have had access to $350,000 worth of gold and platinum that vanished from a safe.

The metals, used in defense projects, were discovered missing late Sunday when employees found the safe lock broken, a company spokesman said Monday.

Norman Neureiter, corporate relations manager for the electronics company, said "several thousand people" could obtain entrance to the building by showing proper credentials.

But "there is some speculation that the person who did it knew where to go," he added. "I work here and I don't even know where it (the safe) exactly is."

Neureiter said the safe was located on the ground floor of TI's main building — a security-oriented structure with "double doors monitored by TV and controlled by a guard."

The FBI and police were called in to investigate the theft, and TI is offering a $10,000 reward for information leading to recovery of the metals, Neureiter said.

"An investigation is being made of people who entered the building during that time," he added.

AVOID EMBARRASSMENT WITH ROACHES...use Johnston's No-Roach today

Johnston's No-Roach quick, easy, effective

Some people never have the neighbors in ... and it is understandable. Who wants to take a chance on the neighbor spotting a cockroach clitting across the counter or down the drain? So it is that thousands of housewives, all over America, never join a Kaffee Klatch, because they know they can never take their turn having the girls in.

Or can they? All they have to do is discover Johnston's No-Roach ... the surefire answer to cockroach problems. Not to mention ants ... and silverfish ... and spiders ... and so forth. No-Roach, the household insecticide that keeps the promise of its name. The magic about No-Roach is the ease with which it is used. You can brush it on anywhere that roaches or other crawling pests may assemble: across doorways, windowsills, and baseboards; in cupboards and along the edges of the kitchen cabinets. No-Roach dries to an invisible shield that is odorless and colorless. All the time that you are serving coffee to the neighbors, No-Roach is killing cockroach eggs back in the nest ... because every roach that crosses No-Roach, picks it up on its feet and takes it home.

Do the neighborly thing. Serve the ladies on the block a cup of coffee in a roach free kitchen ... thanks to Johnston's No-Roach.

Johnston's No-Roach is available at Safeway, Furr's, Sav-U, Gibson's, Foodway, Giant Discount and all grocery stores. Johnston's No-Roach is distributed by Winn Dixie of Fort Worth.

In time for Christmas

Rockhounds, faceters will exhibit wares

Permian Basin Rockhound and Gem craftsmen are gathering at the Dora Roberts Exhibit Building Saturday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. to exhibit their wares in time for Christmas buying. Admission is free to the public.

The Faceters Fantasy and Rockhound Roundup, sponsored by the Permian Basin Faceters Guild and the Big Spring Prospectors Club, will have booths displaying gems, minerals and many gift items. The Big Spring Evening Lion's Club will operate a snack bar both days.

Twenty-nine lapidarists from eight Texas towns had purchased booths for the exhibit by Nov. 30. Craftsmen to date are from Big Spring, Midland, Odessa, Stevensville, Denver City, Hobbs, De Leon, Fredericksburg and Dallas.

Gold castings, semi-precious and precious gems, handmade gold and silver jewelry, stones, lapidary machines, mineral crystals, rough rock, faceted stones, and gold cast jewelry will be displayed at the show.

Individual items in the displays will be rings, belt buckles, boleties, pendants, bracelets and fossils.

Slide programs will be shown pertaining to the hobby both morning and afternoon of the two days.

Tables are available for rent to hobbyists to sell anything pertaining to the mineral and lapidary field. Tables will not be available to professional dealers. Information may be obtained from Calla Mae Perkins at (915) 267-7256 in Big Spring or Hershel Beatty in Midland at (915) 694-2356.

JERALD WILSON

Self-contained trailer and recreational vehicle parking is available on the Howard County Fairgrounds with electric hook-ups only.

The Faceter's Guild of Permian Basin was organized four years ago, the second in the United States.

Harry Bish, Midland, was the founding president and served for three years. V.L. "Perk" Perkins, Big Spring, is the outgoing president. Gloria Warfield, Midland, is the incoming president to be installed Dec. 19 at the Christmas Party in the Pioneer Natural Gas Company Flame Room, Midland.

The Guild members facet precious stones, and their primary purpose is to further their expertise in the lapidary field. Membership requirements to the Guild are to facet one stone and attend two monthly meetings. The FGFB meets each third Wednesday of the month at the First National Bank, Midland, at 8 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

The Big Spring Prospectors Club is a working organization for rockhounds and is open to anyone interested in gems, minerals and artifacts. This non-profit organization provides a togetherness for those sharing mutual hobbies and interests.

The club seeks to promote popular interest and education in the various earth sciences, particularly the art of lapidary and the science of minerals and fossils and their associated fields.

The club offers courses in lapidary, the cutting and polishing of stones, to its members. It has lapidary equipment for members to use for a small shop fee.

The BSPC publishes a monthly newsletter, sponsors and participates in field trips. It meets the second Thursday of each month at the clubhouse, 606 E. 3rd, at 7:30 p.m. and sponsors an annual show the first weekend in March.

As members of the South Central Federation of Gem and Mineral Societies and the American Federation of Mineral Societies both the FGFB and the BSPC seek to cooperate with educational and scientific institutions and other groups engaged in increasing knowledge in the earth sciences.

Jerald Wilson, 707 Tulane, is incoming president of the club.

Perkins is vice president of the SCFMS or Region III which covers Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana.

Dear Abby

Runaway Daughter Has Happy Return

DEAR READERS: With Thanksgiving behind us, I am mindful of my many blessings, not the least of which is the privilege of writing this column. Almost daily I receive some heartwarming letters. I want to share this one from my files to publicize again one of the most gratifying operations in existence:

DEAR ABBY: Our problem daughter, not quite 17, ran away from home 14 months ago. She had been giving us a rough time for about a year — skipping school, staying out late and lying to us constantly. After a noisy scene, she stormed out of the house with only the clothes on her back. We didn't have a clue as to where she went.

We didn't have a clue as to where she went. We didn't have a clue as to where she went. We didn't have a clue as to where she went. We didn't have a clue as to where she went. We didn't have a clue as to where she went.

We told him we would welcome a collect call from her. Sure enough, she called us the next day! She sounded wonderful and said she was working and going to night school to finish her education. This story has a happy ending. Our daughter is coming for Christmas!

ABBY, will you please publish that toll-free number again so other runaway kids can establish communications with their families? Our daughter said that she had seen your column with the number posted near telephones where runaways hung out.

We will never be able to thank you enough for giving us the happiest holiday we've ever had!

GRATEFUL IN MICHIGAN

DEAR GRATEFUL: With pleasure. Runaways, call this toll-free number: 1-800-231-8946.

An operator will take your call and telephone your parents anywhere in the United States with a message from you. There will be no lecturing or reprimands. Your call will not be traced. And only one question will be asked: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you will be told where you can get it, free. I repeat, no attempt will be made to contact you or bring you back home — regardless of your age.

If you are a runaway, I beg you to forget the past and send a message to your parents now. They will sleep better tonight and so will you. And you will all have the best Christmas you've had in years. God bless you.

ABBY

P.S. Operation Peace of Mind was established eight years ago by a handful of public-spirited volunteers with the support of the governor of Texas. To date it has placed approximately 300,000 calls from runaways, assuring their families that they are OK. Beautiful!

DEAR READERS: I think this is worth repeating: "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed. This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children. . . . This is not a way of life at all in any true sense. Under the cloud of war, it is humanity hanging on a cross of iron."

Do you know who said that? It was Dwight D. Eisenhower, on April 16, 1953, before the American Society of Newspaper Editors. And it's as true now as it was then.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cent), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

the moral support needed to help you stop stealing.

Your parents would be best if you can talk with them. If not, talk to a teacher, counselor, school nurse, church leader or a relative. When the temptation to steal starts to overpower your reasoning, remember that millions of teens read your request for help and they are pulling for you to shake this nasty habit! And you will.

Dr. Wallace: I know this is an odd question but please answer my question. My grandmother who lives in Santa Barbara sent me a $100 check for my birthday. The check has the words "one hundred dollars" but the figure says $10.

I can't write and ask her to write another check because she has been involved in an accident and is in serious condition.

Is my check any good and if so how much is it worth? — Scott, De Kalb, Ill.

Scott: The written words take precedence over the figure. Your check can be cashed for $100. Take it to the bank your parents use.

More importantly, my thoughts and prayers are with your grandmother.

Compulsive stealer asks for help

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 14-year-old girl who has everything going for me — looks, brains, good family, friends. My very serious problem is that I steal. I started lifting things six months ago and I can't seem to stop. Last night I baby-sat for some friends of the family and I stole some of the lady's perfume. I'm afraid if I don't stop now, I'll wind up in jail. Please help me if you can.

Nameless, Beatrice, Neb. Nameless: "Stealers" can be put into three categories — Those who steal because of need and they can't afford it (food, clothing, etc.), those who want, but can't afford it (makeup, cigarettes, alcohol, magazines, etc.) and those who can afford what they steal.

It appears that you fall in the last category and many of these persons steal because of a psychological need that isn't being met. Something or things are missing in their lives — trust, love, the need to be wanted. Does this relate to you?

It's great that you realize you need help. It's the first step in solving the problem. In your case I would suggest that you share your problem with someone you admire and trust who will give you

Shannon Gilley speaks to 1948 Hyperion Club

The 1948 Hyperion Club met Nov. 20 in the home of Mrs. Merle Stewart with Mrs. Jack Alexander serving as co-hostess.

Mrs. Jack Irons introduced Shannon Gilley, Community Awareness Director-Interpreter of the Communications Division of the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, the guest speaker.

Miss Gilley discussed SWCID and its potential for service and growth.

"SWCID," she said, "provides work offered by the other two colleges. Gallaudet in Wash., D.C. with its Liberal Arts program, and a technical school on the junior college level in up-state New York, as well as an extended program in the Allied Health Field. SWCID is winning international focus as the first college for the deaf in the world with all three emphases.

"We are also an international college with five international students and two instructors from foreign countries," she added. The future looks bright under the leadership of Howard College.

A brief business meeting followed, presided over by Mrs. Stewart, president. Plans were made to participate in the annual Christmas Party at Big Spring State Hospital.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 18 in the home of Mrs. Robert Rember with Mrs. Henry Thompson serving as co-hostess.

Rook Club members gather

Seven members of the Rook Club met recently, welcoming one guest, Mrs. Layla Evans. Hostess for the gathering was Twila Lomax.

High scorer for the afternoon was Mrs. Della Nobles. Get-well cards were signed for Mrs. Merritt Jordan, a former member, and Mrs. J.P. Allen.

A salad plate and coffee were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 18 in the home of Mrs. Goldye Moad, 702 Abrams. A Christmas party and gift exchange is planned.

AAM's Marvin Meek labeled mover, shaker

Bergland beefs up press releases

By STEVE SNIDER
States News Service
WASHINGTON — Bob Bergland, the soon-to-be ex-secretary of Agriculture for the soon-to-be ex-President Jimmy Carter, has never been one to cringe from the public eye.

And the USDA, known at times to churn out a full foot-stack of press releases and official publications each week, has never been shy about putting the boss's name up high for the announcement of a new grand or federal program.

But in the month before the election, Bergland's "announcing" appeared to hit a peak. An unofficial count revealed 11 different releases, texts, or government-written articles that featured the Minnesotan's name near the top.

It started Oct. 1 with "More than $173 million of national forest revenues is being distributed to 38 states and Puerto Rico, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland announced today."

It ended Oct. 31 with "The U.S. Department of Agriculture has approved loans to nine telephone systems totaling $20,784,000, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said today. The loans were made through the Department's Rural Electrification Administration (REA)."

Along the way there was: —"Bergland Announces $10 Million in Loans to Help Finance Hydroelectric Plants.

—"Bergland Says Phone and Electric Systems Helped Create Jobs.

—"Bergland Strengthens FmHA County Office Staffs to Help With Drought Loans."

Marvin Meek and his American Agriculture Movement have also not carved a reputation as the quiet kids on the agriculture block, but the talk has almost always been tongue-lashings of the Carter USDA.

With his favorite Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan coming to the White House, Meek is part of the "in crowd" as AAM director David Senter wrote recently in the group's newsletter.

As Marvin quickly realized, everybody in Washington knows who A.A.M. is and who Marvin Meek is. Senator Jepsen (Democrat of Iowa) came into a meeting and said: Am I glad to finally meet the famous Mr. Meek...You are a mover, shaker, the cutting edge for change. He said the A.A.M. is a very well thought of and powerful force here in D.C. and in America. We met with Representative Hagedorn, Senator Dole, and many important people."

Texas had more applications for emergency feed aid payments than any state in the nation during the fiscal year ending Oct. 1 and received more than half of all the money paid out during the period.

Nearly $23.4 million was paid under the program in the year beginning Sept. 30, 1979. Texas got $13.5 million in aid money, which is used to help agriculture producers buy feed during periods like last summer's drought. ***

A group of USDA scientists traveled into the Maryland suburbs recently had bought fast food from three of the most popular chains in the country. They got the Whaler with Cheese from Burger King, McDonaldland Cookies from McDonalds, and a Super Chef from Burger King. In fact, they bought everything there was to buy at all three outlets, except for a few beverages.

And what did the leader of this excursion into quick cuisine have to say at the end of the trip? "We need better data about the fats people eat," said Hal Slover, a USDA research chemist. The Ag department crew found, for instance, the special sauce on a McDonald's Big Mac has 105 calories, compared to 159 calories worth of mayonnaise on Burger King's Whopper. The calories in both sandwiches were more than 40 percent fat.

About the same percentage of fat swam in the french fries at the three outlets, but the researchers found as much as a 30 percent difference in the amount of fries in a regular serving. The studies of fat levels are considered especially significant because about one percent of all the food consumed in the U.S. is purchased at one of these three chains. Said Slover, "Reliable data aren't as easy to get as you think."

For the 99 percent who are apparently buying their food elsewhere, the USDA reports dried prunes and raisins are plentiful for December, as are milk and dairy products, pork, oranges, grapefruits, tangerines, apples and broiler-fryers.

U.S. prepares to send $50 million to Italy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, heeding a Carter administration plea to help a friend in need, is moving swiftly to send $50 million to earthquake victims in southern Italy. One U.S. official said even that much money may not be enough.

The disaster relief bill was rushed through the House with no opposition Monday as Democrats and Republicans put aside partisan differences in their lame-duck session to beat Friday's scheduled adjournment.

Sens. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., were adding their support today as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee prepared to whisk the bill to the floor.

The legislation was sponsored in the Senate by Massachusetts Democrat Edward M. Kennedy and strongly supported by President Carter, who called the quake "the worst natural disaster to strike Western Europe in half a century."

The bill authorizes $50 million for relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction assistance for victims of the earthquake that struck a remote part of southern Italy Nov. 23.

Joseph A. Mitchell, director of the Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance, said $3.5 million in immediate U.S. relief already has gone to Italy.

Testifying before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which approved the bill only hours before the House acted Monday, Mitchell said the total U.S. aid would be about $3.5 million. But that may not be enough once the loss of life and property is calculated, Mitchell added.

The earthquake left more than 3,000 dead, 2,000 missing, 8,000 injured and 200,000 homeless, said Richard N. Gardner, U.S. ambassador to Italy who came to Capitol Hill to recount the tragedy. He pledged to return to Italy immediately and be "personally responsible" that the aid reaches its destination.

"The human suffering — from the anguish of families buried under rubble to the misery of homeless survival in the face of cruel winter storms — is incalculable," Gardner said.

"Italy has stood with us on issues of common defense, from the strengthening of NATO to a united response on events in Afghanistan and the taking of U.S. hostages in Iran," he added. "The Italians have a saying that translates: 'You know a real friend in time of need....' I respectfully contend that we must stand by her in this time of need."

Gardner said other nations, private relief groups and others also have responded with money and goods.

Mitchell said most of the $50 million provided by the Lamesa trustees terminate contract of migrant teacher

LAMESA — Acting on a recommendation made by School Supt. Neal Chastain, the Lamesa school board has voted to terminate the contract of a North Elementary School migrant teacher.

Chastain cited insubordination and a lack of discipline as reasons for the action taken by the trustees.

Chastain said the system has never before had to take such extreme action in such a case.

Former Herald publisher

'Dub' Pearson replaced as publisher at Bryan

John T. Williams, formerly general manager of the San Angelo Standard Times, has been named publisher and president of the Bryan-College Station Eagle.

Williams succeeds W. S. (Dub) Pearson, former publisher and president of the Big Spring Herald, effective Dec. 31.

The Eagle is a member of the Metro group of Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. Tucker Sutherland, San Angelo publisher, is president of the Metro group.

Pearson joined Harte-Hanks in 1972, when he moved to Big Spring from Midland to become publisher. He took over as publisher of the Bryan-College Station paper in 1976.

The announcement about Williams' promotion was made by Richard T. Schlosberg III, senior vice president of Harte-Hanks and president, newspaper operations.

"Dub (Pearson) has served Harte-Hanks well for many years and we wish him the best in his new pursuits," Schlosberg said.

Williams, 36, joined Harte-Hanks in 1975 as manager, financial services, and was promoted the following year to corporate director, financial services. He became treasurer of the company in 1978 and was named general manager of the Standard-Times in March 1979.

He joined the Eagle as general manager in October this year.

A graduate of Baylor, Williams is a Certified Public Accountant. His father was once president of a San Angelo bank. John Williams was born in San Angelo.

Pearson has not announced his plans for the future.

Commenting on Williams' new assignment, Sutherland said, "Bryan-College Station is one of the fastest growing markets in the nation, and John will be a major asset in The Eagle's efforts to grow with the market. We are confident he'll do an outstanding job."

Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc. owns and operates 29 daily newspapers and 68 non-daily publications in 43 markets. Also owned and operated by the New York Stock Exchange company (symbol: HHN) are four VHF-F network affiliated television stations and five AM and six FM radio stations in 11 markets, two trade publications, three alternate distribution companies, four CATV systems and three market research firms.

CORKER STYLE — Howard College scoring ace Randy Corker goes from one side of the basket to the other in order to find an opening in the Amarillo defense during second half action in last night's WJC opener. Corker

HC looks super tough in win Hawks blast Amarillo

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Amarillo College Badgers came into Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Monday night tagged as the favorites, but the Howard College Hawks refused to listen, putting on their best performance of the year in blasting their way to an 84-62 win. It was the conference opener for both teams.

And while the 22-point margin of victory seems large, it could have been much worse.

The Hawks came out red hot, and stayed that way longer than anyone expected, including Coach Harold Wilder. "I kept thinking the bubble would burst," he said after the contest. "But we just kept on playing extremely well throughout."

After jumping out to an early 7-4 lead, the Howard College men applied the smoke to the visitors. Behind the shooting of Randy Corker, who had 11 points in the first ten minutes, the Hawks reeled off 16 of the next 17 points to increase their lead to 23-5 midway through the opening half.

Amarillo usually just had one shot at the bucket in the early going, as the inside rebouncing of Corker, Ron Akins and Kenneth Jones simply disallowed any second chances for the Badgers.

Amarillo's Maurice Bradford finally sank a field goal with nine minutes left in the first half, the first Badger bucket in over eight minutes. But it didn't seem to help, as the Hawks continued to outscore their opponents in playing near perfect basketball. And it made no difference who was playing, as Wilder cleared much of the bench with five minutes to play in the first half.

The Hawks led, 44-20, at the intermission.

They didn't let up in the second half, either, as Akins took up the punch quickly with the first of his many buckets in the final 20 minutes, just after the tipoff. Howard College quickly increased their lead to 52-22, and minutes later increased it to 55-24, their biggest margin of the night.

From that point, it was simply a matter of playing out the remaining time on the clock, as the HC lead was safely in hand with 10 minutes to play.

Amarillo scored 29 points in the final 10 minutes when the Hawks relaxed, or nearly as much as they managed in the first 30 minutes against the rugged defense the Howard College team put up.

The inside trio of Akins, Corker and Jones combined for 69 points in the contest, and also did an outstanding job on the boards. Akins led the Hawks in rebounding with an astronomical 20 caroms.

Needless to say, Wilder was extremely satisfied with the win. "I can't emphasize what a big win that was for us," he said happily in his office after the contest. "We played so very well as a team. Their was some excellent defense played, and our passing game was very good. It was a totally unselfish performance by everybody on our team. I don't remember a bad shot taken by our guys in that first half."

The Hawks mentor also praised his squad's defensive efforts. "Our defense, both inside and outside, did a great job of forcing them to shoot from the perimeters. And from that point, our inside rebounding was just great. That was a big factor," Wilder concluded.

The Hawks, now 1-0 in WJC play and 6-3 on the year, will travel to play in the Midland College Tournament on Thursday. Amarillo, meanwhile, is 0-1 in league play and 8-3 on the year.

George Rogers wins Heisman

NEW YORK (AP) — As a high school sophomore, George Rogers remembers he was "scared of contact."

"One time, I was chickening through the hole, not going full speed, and my coach reaved down and picked me up from the bottom of the pile. I wasn't but 180 pounds and he was 6-foot-5 and 220. He started shaking me and said, 'You're gonna run the ball or I'm gonna kick your rear end.' I was, like, crying, but that helped motivate me."

Rogers has been running the ball ever since and Monday the University of South Carolina tailback ran himself right into the Heisman Trophy, awarded annually to the nation's outstanding college football player.

"The bad times," said Rogers, the fourth leading rusher in major college football history, "happened a long time ago."

Rogers is now a 6-foot-2, 220-pound senior who may be the first player chosen in next spring's National Football League draft. That would culminate a real life poverty-to-riches drama that has seen Rogers escape an Atlanta slum to win college football's most prestigious individual award.

"I lived in a real bad neighborhood," he recalled. "But being in the situation I was in, I didn't have any choice but to stay around."

Rogers' parents were separated and his father recently was released from jail after serving almost eight years for fatally shooting a girl friend. Meanwhile, Rogers, his mother, two brothers and two teen-age sisters — each with a baby — moved from town to town, eight in all. Eventually, an aunt, Mrs. Oletta Rogers of Duluth, Ga., offered him "a chance to come up there and go to school. It was the best thing I ever did."

The rest is history. Rogers single-handedly lifted South Carolina from the ranks of football ne'er-do-wells into the big time. He rushed for 4,958 yards — excluding 133 against Missouri in last year's Hall of Fame Bowl — good for fourth place on the all-time list. He has gone over 100 yards in his last 21 games and he is South Carolina's career total of 4,958 yards without ever having thrown a pass.

Along the way, Rogers built himself up from a 190-pound freshman. "The training table played a big part in that," he explained. "I was eating three times a day. I was just lucky. I've got some friends who are still back there in that Atlanta neighborhood."

In nationwide balloting by more than 600 sports writers and sportscasters, Rogers won the 46th Heisman Trophy fairly comfortably over defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh and Herschel Walker, Georgia's sensational running back, whose third-place finish was the highest ever for a freshman. The only linemen besides Green to finish as high as second who weren't also pass-catchers on offense were defensive tackles Alex Karras of Iowa in 1957 and John Hicks of Ohio State in 1973.

GEORGE ROGERS WINS HEISMAN

Rogers received 216 first-place votes, 179 seconds and 122 thirds. On a 3-2-1 point system, he totaled 1,128 points. Green had 179 firsts, 125 seconds and 74 thirds for 861 points while Walker's score was 107-120-111-683.

Rogers won four of the six Heisman voting regions — the Mid-Atlantic, South, Southwest and Far West. Green carried the Northeast while the Mid-West went for Purdue quarterback Mark Herrmann, who finished fourth over-all with 58 firsts, 71 seconds and 89 thirds for 405 points.

Did he ever dream of winning the Heisman Trophy?

"My first two years at South Carolina I couldn't have even predicted winning a game," he said.

Rogers' aunt back in Duluth was overjoyed. "My little old boy has won it," she said. "Praise the Lord, I'm so happy for him."

Oakland Raiders continue Monday night win streak

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland defense put on a "Save Our Raiders" demonstration of its own Monday night.

The offense was again scratching for points, and four scoring opportunities ended with missed field goal attempts by Chris Bahr. But the Raiders made it 12 Monday night victories in a row by beating the Denver Broncos 9-3.

Oakland's all-time Monday night record is 16-1-1, by far the best in the National Football League.

Several thousand fans stayed outside the Oakland Coliseum for the opening minutes as part of a "Save Our Raiders" demonstration. They missed the first of many big defensive plays, an interception by free safety Burgess Owens.

"Whether they came late or not, they were cheering us," said Coach Tom Flores.

But Al Davis, the team owner who is attempting to move the Raiders to Los Angeles for next season, said, "They hurt the team by not being there. They should stay with football, and the commissioner (Pete Rozelle) should mind his own business."

John Matuszak of the Raiders' defensive line said that whatever happens to the franchise, "We won't let the fans down this year."

The final regular-season home game is next Sunday against Dallas, he noted, "But we're going to do our best to see that there are some more games here after that, playoff games. That's my goal."

Oilers must prep swiftly for Steelers

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Bum Phillips says Monday of this week was Tuesday and today will have to serve as Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Phillips might be forgiven if he didn't know what day it was after what happened to the Oilers Sunday. But the Oilers coach was talking about playing the Pittsburgh Steelers Thursday, only four days after Sunday's heart-breaking 17-14 loss to Cleveland.

LA's Howe NL Rookie of Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Left-hander Steve Howe, the latest of sports' baby-faced assassins, came up to the Los Angeles Dodgers not even listed on their roster and proceeded to become the National League's Rookie-of-the-Year.

He was cool and collected during the baseball season, yet even his wife, Cindy, said she didn't expect her 22-year-old husband to be in the big leagues this season.

DePaul still No. 1 in land

NEW YORK (AP) — DePaul, an impressive winner over defending national champion Louisville two weeks ago, took over the No. 1 position in the Associated Press college basketball poll Tuesday as preseason favorite Kentucky slipped to second after the first week of regular-season play.

The Blue Demons, who were ranked No. 1 the majority of last season and No. 2 in this year's preseason poll, collected 38 first-place votes and 1,171 points in the balloting by a nationwide panel of 60 sports writers and sports broadcasters. The Wildcats, who failed to live up to their preseason billing in squeaking past unheralded East Tennessee State 62-57 last Saturday, garnered 15 first-place votes and 1,085 points.

LA's Howe NL Rookie of Year

That's just a little joke but I guess my jokes are as bad as our game Phillips said. "Everyday is hurry-up, we have to do today what we normally do on Tuesday," Phillips said.

It could be the most crucial days of the season for the Oilers, who have squandered away their hard-earned prosperity in the past two weeks.

LA's Howe NL Rookie of Year

He was cool and collected during the baseball season, yet even his wife, Cindy, said she didn't expect her 22-year-old husband to be in the big leagues this season.

Injuries to Terry Forster and Don Stanhouse left an opening in the Dodgers' bullpen and Howe filled the bill to an extent that second baseman Davey Lopes said, "I think he was the most valuable player on our Dodger team. He's our bullpen."

DePaul still No. 1 in land

UCLA, runnerup to Louisville last season, jumped from No. 6 to third following its 94-81 triumph over arch-rival and then 10th-ranked Notre Dame. The Bruins were tabbed No. 1 on four ballots and received 1,002 points.

Maryland, with one-first place vote and 941 points, and Indiana, which collected 890 points, retained the No. 4 and 5 positions, respectively. Oregon State and Virginia each moved up one notch in the standings, taking over the sixth and seventh spots. The Beavers got one first-place vote and 861 points, while the Cavaliers, winners of the Virginia Tipoff tournament last weekend, collected the final No. 1 vote and 805 points.

Georgia ends unbeaten, No. 1

By The Associated Press

The Georgia Bulldogs, completing their first perfect season since 1946, held onto the top spot in The Associated Press college football poll with a chance to win their first national championship.

Georgia ended its regular season with a 38-20 victory over Georgia Tech and an 11-0 record. The Bulldogs received 52 of 60 first-place votes and 1,187 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame and Florida State were the only other teams to receive first-place votes — four each — and remained Nos. 2 and 3. Both were idle over the weekend and wind up their regular seasons on Saturday, Notre Dame facing Southern Cal and Florida State hosting Florida.

LA's Howe NL Rookie of Year

Notre Dame received 1,116 points, Florida State 1,092.

Georgia and Notre Dame meet New Year's Day in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans in what very well could turn out to be the game that determines this year's national champion.

Pittsburgh was fourth with 1,007 points after a 14-9 triumph over Penn State, which dropped from fifth to 10th. Oklahoma, a 63-14 winner of Oklahoma State, moved up from sixth to fifth with 926 points.

DePaul still No. 1 in land

The final regular-season poll will be compiled after games on Saturday, Dec. 6.
