AFTER THE FALL — President Carter climbs the steps of a helicopter on the grounds of Bethesda Naval Hospital Saturday. The president was flown to the hospital after he fell while cross country skiing near Camp David, Md., Saturday and broke his collar bone. The president and Rosalynn Carter returned to Camp David after he was treated.

President breaks bone while skiing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter broke his left collarbone Saturday when he fell while cross-country skiing down a slope near the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., the White House said.

White House spokesman Rex Granum said Carter was flown by helicopter to the Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington where X-rays showed he had fractured the clavicle near where it connects to the breastbone.

"The president was skiing down a slope when one of the skis caught on a rock and he fell on his elbow, left elbow and shoulder," Granum said.

Granum quoted Carter's doctor, Rear Adm. William Lukash, as saying the president was in "considerable pain." The president was given medication for the pain, Granum said, and probably will require medication for several days.

He said Carter was placed in a "figure-eight harness" to keep his shoulders immobilized and will have to wear it for six to eight weeks.

Carter does not plan to curtail his activities and will go to New Orleans as expected next week for the Sugar Bowl.

"He'll be able to shake hands and write because it's his left arm," Granum said, adding that the president is right-handed.

Granum said that although the president was in pain, he was not in a bad mood. "He was joking about it with people at Bethesda," he said of the injury.

Carter left the hospital about 5 p.m. EST to return to Camp David. His wife, Rosalynn, was with him as the president boarded the helicopter at the hospital.

The president was smiling and waved to reporters with his right arm. He was wearing a tan raincoat, but his left arm was not through the sleeve.

The president was taken by car from the hospital to the waiting helicopter about 400 yards away.

Granum said Carter was treated by Capt. Bart Sleemos, chairman of the Bethesda orthopedics department, as well as by Lukash.

Carter, who is 56, has frequently cross-country skied, Granum said. He said Lukash was with Carter skiing, along with Mrs. Carter and Marine aide John Kline and two Secret Service agents on the grounds at Camp David.

The accident took place about 3 p.m. EST, Granum said, during Carter's second skiing outing of the day.

The presidential spokesman said that, specifically, Carter had fractured the medial aspect of the left clavicle, the part of the collarbone nearest the breast bone. The collarbone connects the breastbone to the shoulder.

"This is incidentally the same clavicle he fractured as a midshipman at the Naval Academy in a judo class," Granum said.

The president underwent a full physical examination last January, and Lukash said he was in excellent health and fully capable of dealing with the strain of the Oval Office.

Doctors make futile try at saving severed arm

DALLAS (AP) — Despite 12 hours in the operating theater, doctors at Baylor University Medical Center could not reattach the severed left arm of an East Texas farm boy because it was "damaged too much," a hospital spokesman said Saturday.

John Hickerson, 15, of Liberty City, had suffered "traumatic amputation" of his left arm below the shoulder in a Friday accident, hospital officials said.

He was admitted to the Baylor hospital shortly before 7 p.m. Friday, and was undergoing surgery by 8:30 p.m., said hospital administrator Wilbur Smith. By 11 a.m. Saturday, doctors reported the operation had failed.

Hickerson was listed in fair condition, but hospital public relations director Joyce Ross said. "The Hickerson boy lost his arm.

"The reason the arm could not be reattached was that it was damaged too much."

Mississippi sniper kills Texas boy, wounds sister

ACKERMAN, Miss. (AP) — Authorities searched Saturday for more clues in the sniper attack which killed a 9-year-old Texas boy and wounded his sister on Friday.

Choctaw County Sheriff Hayes Mills said no motive had been found for the fatal shooting of Terrell Johnson of Houston, Texas, along the Natchez Trace Parkway near Mathiston early Friday.

"I don't see where anyone would have a motive. It's just a weirdo who would try something like that to people he had never seen before," Mills said.

Authorities still have not released the name of a 29-year-old Webster County man who was arrested on the parkway after the shooting earlier that day. Mills said charges are pending against the man and that he is being held in the county jail at Ackerman.

"We haven't had time to run ballistics on (the bullet)," Mills said. He said a .35-caliber rifle was seized and a spent bullet was found in the car.

The boy died in Webster County Hospital in Eupora about three hours after he was shot around 1 a.m. while riding in a car with his mother, sister and others to a holiday reunion in Booneville. The youth's sister, LaChelle, 12, was treated for a minor gunshot wound and released, a hospital administrator said.

The boy bled to death after a bullet entered the passenger's door and came up through the seat and struck him "four or five inches below the hip" before grazing the girl, Mills said.

The shooting occurred about three miles south of Mathiston near the Ballard Creek crossing on the parkway.

Iran offers options for meeting demands

Iran's prime minister on Saturday offered the United States an alternative way of meeting Iran's demands on the hostage issue but the option did not provide a means for immediate release of the 52 Americans.

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai said the United States could deposit with Algeria the sums of money it agreed belonged to Iran, but apparently in cases where the two sides differed — such as court cases involving frozen Iranian assets — Iran would continue to hold the hostages as a sort of collateral until matters are resolved.

Rajai summoned foreign envoys in Tehran to a 90-minute meeting and told them the United States' options.

"In the first alternative in the cases in which we have differences, the U.S. should place guarantees with the Algerian government and undertake to pay to the Islamic Republic of Iran every amount which would be settled," Rajai said.

"In the second alternative, the U.S. should give the money of our nation in the cases where we have no difference and in the cases of differences the hostages will remain in Iran until the time the U.S. manages to settle these differences through the legal centers and authorities which are acceptable to both sides."

There was no elaboration of the second alternative. It appeared to mean, however, Iran would settle for deposit of undisputed sums only and would keep the hostages as a kind of collateral on the money that the two governments disagree on.

The first option appeared to be a restatement of Iran's condition that the $24 billion in cash and gold be sent to Algeria's Central Bank to cover Iranian assets frozen in the United States and $10 billion they claim the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi pillaged from Iran's national treasury.

U.S. laws and the existence of private U.S. claims against frozen Iranian assets make return of the money legally complicated.

The third alternative, Rajai said,

Heavy fighting under way in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas mounted a major attack in northern El Salvador against troops loyal to the ruling civilian-military junta Saturday and heavy fighting was under way, a military source said.

"A large number of guerrillas" and at least three soldiers were killed in the fighting, said the army source who asked anonymity.

Government and official military spokesmen refused to comment on the report, which could not be confirmed independently because of a cut in communications with the area.

An estimated 1,000 guerrillas are taking part in the attack in Chalatenango, a province 430 miles north of the Central American capital, said the army source, who asked anonymity.

The source said government reinforcements being rushed to the area included infantry, planes and helicopters. The source refused to give details of the military deployments.

"The attack can be considered one of the strongest the leftists have launched in that region and it could be an attempt by the Marxist-Leninists to control a zone where they can set up a revolutionary government," the source said.

Chalatenango, a province of jungle and hills, is near the border with Honduras, and the source said the terrain "makes counter-insurgency operations difficult." The area has been a hotbed of guerrilla activity in recent months.

was for the United States to continue to conspire against Iran and to interfere in the country's affairs, thereby ensuring the hostages would not be freed.

If Iran's terms were not met, the hostages would "never" be freed, Tehran radio quoted Rajai as saying shortly before the Tehran meeting and another meeting in Washington between State Department officials and Algerian intermediaries in the hostage negotiations.

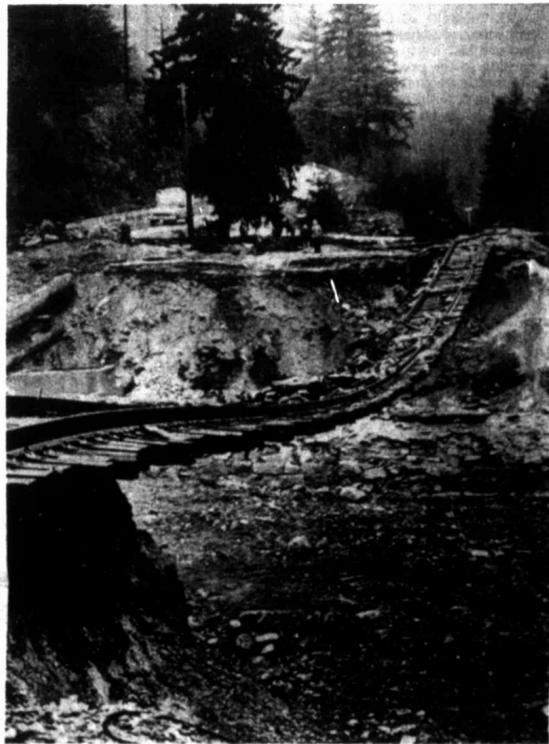

Iran transmitted film of Rajai's meeting along with more footage of the hostages on Christmas Day via satellite for the United States.

In the meeting with foreign envoys, Rajai said the United States had several alternatives to gain release of the hostages, held in captivity for 420 days.

President Carter called the demand an outright "ransom," while Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie termed it "unreasonable" and beyond the constitutional authority of the president.

"If the U.S. does not respond to the Iranian conditions, the spies will never be released," Tehran Radio quoted Rajai as saying.

Dikes giving way, island residents told to leave

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Several hundred residents of Ebby Island east of Everett were advised to evacuate their homes Saturday as breaks appeared in a system of dikes protecting the 24-square-mile island from the Snohomish River.

In other areas of the state, hundreds of residents returned to clean homes damaged by flooding Friday. Several dozen houses were swept away.

High tide at mid-morning prevented Snohomish River flood waters from flowing into Puget Sound and kept the river level high around Ebby Island, even though the river already had crested.

But by mid-afternoon the water had come over the dike in only a few places and residents were beginning to return.

The National Weather Service in Seattle said periods of partial clearing were expected late Saturday and Sunday, offering some relief for flood-weary residents.

There were no reports of injuries or deaths, in contrast to flooding three years ago which claimed the lives of six people.

The high water was caused by heavy rains and unseasonably warm temperatures which melted snow in the Cascade and Olympic mountain ranges. Walla Walla had a record 70 degrees Saturday, breaking the record high of 63 set in 1898.

Officials said an estimated 150 families evacuated Friday from Cape Horn and the town of Hamilton in Skagit County were not expected to be able to return to their homes before late Saturday, at the earliest.

In Darrington, a logging town in east central Washington, some of 35 people evacuated Friday returned to their homes. Jerry Booker, a local emergency services officer, said at least 10 houses in the area were destroyed or washed away, while 40 others sustained major damages.

He said there was danger of log jams breaking loose, which would cause more flood damage.

"The river thoods those logs around like match sticks," he said.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Cheaper

Q. Wouldn't it be cheaper to go out and replace a wrecked car with a new one than to try and repair it?

A. A study made by the insurance industry shows that it would cost $25,458 in parts and labor to repair a totally wrecked 1980 U.S. compact car which originally cost $6,018. That should be incentive enough to drive carefully.

Gold coins stolen

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) — Gold coins from imperial Japan valued at $1 million have been stolen from a museum at the School of the Ozarks, authorities say. Police said a thief pried open a case containing the coins, part of the Japanese Emperor's Collection at the Ralph Foster Museum on the campus of the private college in southwest Missouri. The theft occurred Friday while the museum was open to the public, officials said. A spokesman for the Taney County Sheriff's office said the value of the gold in the coins — about 10 pounds — was about $100,000. Their value to a collector is about $1 million, the spokesman said.

Sheriff's gun bigger

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Scott County Sheriff Forrest Ashcraft captured a fugitive after a face-to-face standoff in a church parking lot during which each man aimed a loaded gun at the other. Tomie L. Misner, 21, surrendered after Friday's encounter because the sheriff's sawed-off shotgun apparently "looked bigger to him than the Magnum (pistol) looked to me," Ashcraft said. Misner had escaped from deputies at a dental clinic on Dec. 18 while being held on $10,000 bond on a charge of burglary. He was back in jail Friday night under $40,000 bond on charges of escape, armed robbery and assault. Misner's only words when he surrendered were, "Don't shoot me," Ashcraft said.

Castro appeals for funds

MIAMI (AP) — Cuba will depend on citizens' contributions to finance a new "territorial militia" ordered last week by President Fidel Castro, according to the president of Cuba's State Finance Committee as quoted on Havana radio. Castro ordered formation of a civilian militia on Dec. 20, when he told a rally that Cuba and its Latin American neighbors face a "real danger" of a U.S. invasion under the administration of President-elect Ronald Reagan. He urged Cubans to donate spare time and vacations to a military training program.

Cotton Marketing Service office sets open house

LAMESA — Open house will be held Friday, Jan. 16, 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. by the Lamesa Cotton Marketing Services office — the first U.S. Department of Agriculture facility in the nation equipped with the new automated high volume instrument classification system. "We're eager to show cotton growers, ginners and other people in this area our new building and how cotton is classified by the new automated instrument classification equipment," said Don Lewallen, who is in charge of the Lamesa Cotton Marketing Services office at 906 North Elgin. The new building was dedicated Oct. 3 by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and Donovan Phipps, President of the Lamesa Cotton Growers Association, the group of farmers which raised $500,000 by self-assessment to help fund this national project. "The high volume instrument classification system we're using is designed to replace the present, traditional system which utilizes human skills in determining grade and fiber length and a precision instrument to measure fiber fineness," Lewallen explained, pointing out that the new system will measure color, length, fineness, strength and length uniformity. USDA has instrument-classified a small volume of cotton each year since 1973 in pilot projects located first in Raleigh, N.C., and recently Lubbock. "This small volume has not been sufficient for a complete evaluation of the benefits of instrument classing, but it has allowed development of the instrument system to a point where the installation of our fully automated system is feasible," Lewallen said. Reactions of cotton growers involved in the pilot projects prompted Lamesa growers to seek the first instrument-classing facility in the nation for this area. Although the 1980 cotton crop was cut short by drought, Lewallen said that about 150,000 bales of cotton have been classed so far this season. "We may hit the close to 350,000 bales by the end of the classing season," he estimated, explaining that the new facility is designed to handle a crop of 500,000 to 800,000 bales. USDA's Lamesa cotton office classed 693,000 bales last year. The office serves 71 gins in nine counties, including Andrews, Borden, Dawson, Gaines, Howard, Lynn, Martin and Yoakum counties of Texas and Lea county of New Mexico. Lewallen expects the new system to draw large groups of farmers, businessmen and others from every cotton producing community in the nine counties served by Lamesa. Again, USDA officials lauded the Lamesa Cotton Growers Association for the support it is giving to this marketing project.

Five people at bus stop injured by automobile

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An out-of-control car plowed through a group of people waiting at a bus stop Saturday morning, seriously injuring four adults and a young boy. An angry street mob surrounded the driver of the car, police said. Cornelio Escamilla, 33, of Los Angeles, escaped injury and was booked for investigation of felony drunken driving, said Officer Jon Herrington. Escamilla tried to walk away from his car after the accident, but several witnesses grabbed him and held him, police said. "Some of those people were so angry over what happened they were about to lynch that guy before we got there," Herrington said. All of the victims had been waiting for a bus at Wilshire Boulevard and Normandie Avenue when an eastbound car jumped the curb at 9:38 a.m. and struck them. A young boy, believed to be about four, was in critical but stable condition in Children's Hospital pediatric intensive care unit, said hospital Administrative Supervisor Chris Phifer. The unidentified boy suffered a skull fracture and one hand was partially severed from his arm, Ms. Phifer said. Listed in critical condition at California Hospital was Mary Gordon, 65, and an elderly man who had not been identified, said nursing supervisor Dolores Klotz. An unidentified man was listed in critical condition while undergoing surgery at Queen of Angels Hospital for stomach injuries, a hospital spokeswoman said. Alberto Torres was listed in good condition at County-USC Medical Center, said a hospital spokeswoman.

Getting government off our backs

Reagan can look to Texas

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — As Ronald Reagan moves to Pennsylvania Avenue in a few weeks and begins — as he promised — to get government off our backs, he would be wise to send one of his study teams to Texas to look at a similar effort here. Reportedly, Gov. Bill Clements is Reagan's favorite governor, so the team undoubtedly would seek and obtain the help of the man who promised two years ago to ease the bureaucratic load of Texans. The lesson Clements could teach Reagan is how to maintain an optimistic smile while trying to dam a river with pebbles. Clements won the 1978 gubernatorial election on a promise to cut 25,000 employees from the state payroll. That put the governor on a collision course with Austin, a company town where the company is state government. Without state government and the 40,000-student state university, Austin would be a suburb of Round Rock. On the Tuesday before Christmas, when the university was closed and most state employees had jumped to an early start on an official five-day break, rush hour traffic in downtown Austin consisted of 12 or 13 cars. The state payroll is important to Austin, and Clements' oft-repeated pledge to cut it made people here nervous. When the governor addressed top state agency officials a year ago they reacted with either silence or hostility. In mid-December, Clements delivered basically the same message about the need to do more with fewer employees. The reaction from the crowd this time, several news reporters noted, was much more polite. The governor was bragging that his plan had "stopped the growth of state government in its tracks this year." He drew mild applause. Top Austin bureaucrats obviously aren't as worried as they used to be that their agencies are severely threatened by the gruff-talking governor. Probably, they also have realized that the public is tired of ever-growing government. Now is the time, they summarize, for retrenchment and talk about higher pay to improve efficiency. Clements had planned to reduce the payroll by 8,000 persons at this mid-way point in his four-year term. His budget people say the program has cut only 500 full-time equivalent employees.

But Clements is a hard man to discourage. He says he's expanding the State Government Effectiveness Program to higher-education institutions and smaller agencies overlooked in the first round. He is reassessing his promises and setting more realistic goals, so he won't have to campaign with bureaucratic egg on his face in 1982. Reagan could learn a lot from his Texas friend. Texas legislative leaders are hoping that Gov. Clements will be making lots of trips to Washington, D.C., the next few months to help the Reagan administration. They say that would keep the governor out of their hair. Clements says he plans to spend most of his time in Austin, helping the lawmakers see the wisdom of his key legislative programs. Will the success of Republicans in 1980 push the Democrats to the right, creating sort of a me-too party? John White, Democratic National Committee chairman, says no way. "Ours remains the party that has offered every piece of progressive change to this nation," White says in the national party's December newsletter. "It would be wrong for us to shrink back from our heritage."

Police Beat

Bible salesman strikes

A Big Spring man told police he paid $27.95 to a man selling Bibles door to door. The Bible was to be delivered in four to six weeks but the man never complied. A broken window was found on a vehicle owned by Reggie Shaw, 600 W. 15 Saturday morning while it was parked in front of his residence. Value, $75. A woman was arrested at Bogart's Friday night for public intoxication and interfering with a police officer as she blocked an exit as the officer was arresting her friend for public intoxication. Nancy Vassar, 3201 Drexel is not sure if her wallet was lost or stolen between her residence or her place of employment. The wallet contained two dollars plus some change. It also contained her checkbook. Sylvester Miller, 2509 Rebecca was assaulted on his face by a man's fist Friday night. Fernando Garzo, 1302 Colby found $200 in cash missing from his residence the day after he threw a party. Roy Havens, Ackerly, told police that as he was driving northbound at the 1600 block of Gregg, a passenger in a second vehicle threw a cup or can at his vehicle. Lanier Dunn found items totaling $930 missing from building 1014 at the Industrial Park between Thursday afternoon and Friday morning. Margaret Christopher, 1502 B Virginia found her Christmas lights damaged at her residence Friday morning. Three electronic game machines and a cigarette machine were vandalized and money stolen from Webb Bowling Lanes between Thursday and Friday mornings. Two wrist supporters and two towels were also stolen. Total value, $176. Three mishaps were reported Saturday. Vehicles driven by Larry Sumpter, 1218 E. 15 and Floyd Gilbreth, Abilene collided at FM 700 and S. Goliad, 11:36 a.m. A passenger, Clara Gilbreth was taken to Malone-Hogan

Afghan nationalists stage anti-Soviet demonstrations

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Afghan nationalists and their supporters Saturday marked the first anniversary of a Soviet-backed coup in Afghanistan with anti-Soviet demonstrations from India to Norway. Afghan President Babrak Karmal, who came to power in that coup, told a Kabul conference that the continuing anti-communist rebellion has seriously damaged his nation's economy. In New Delhi, about 250 Afghans, some carrying burning effigies of Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, marched on the Soviet Embassy shouting "We kill Russians." They joined some 80 of their countrymen who began a hunger strike Friday to protest the presence of an estimated 85,000 Soviet troops stationed in their nation. The hunger strikers ended their fast later Saturday and the demonstration disbanded with no reports of violence. Reports from the Iranian capital of Tehran said Afghan militants scaled the walls of the Soviet Embassy there and tore down the Soviet flag. Those who gained entrance to the compound reportedly were participants in a demonstration involving thousands in the streets outside the building. The reports said the invaders were driven out of the compound by Islamic revolutionary guards. The Soviet news agency Tass denounced the attack as an "outrageous provocation." It called the demonstrators "thugs" and "hooligans" and said they inflicted "considerable material damage" in the embassy's reception hall. Tass reported from the Afghan capital of Kabul the opening of a conference of "the national and patriotic forces" of Afghanistan. Tass said the meeting was attended by some 1,500 delegates representing workers, peasants, clergy and tribal groups as well as party and government leaders. The agency said Karmal acknowledged "serious damage" to industry, agriculture, transport, schools, health institutions and other branches of the economy "inflicted by the anti-communist rebels." But Karmal told the delegates the Afghan people and their Soviet allies have "overturned the plans of international reaction." The Soviet Union and Afghanistan contend the insurgency is fomented by "counter-revolutionary" forces in Pakistan, China and Western nations. A stated aim of the current conference is "the repulsion of intrigues plotted by imperialism and Chinese hegemonism." Moscow has said the Marxist government of Hafizullah Amin, who was killed in last year's coup, had asked for assistance. Soviet officials said Soviet forces would be withdrawn when outside "interference" in Afghanistan's affairs ceased. In Pakistan, where hundreds of thousands of displaced Afghans have taken refuge, a meeting in Lahore presided over by former Pakistani Law Minister Syed Mohammed Zafar called on Moscow to withdraw its forces from Afghanistan. About 100 Norwegians staged a demonstration outside the Soviet Embassy in Oslo on Saturday, protesting the Soviet intervention.

Movies of a dozen hostages sent

By The Associated Press
Movies of a dozen more American hostages were broadcast to their relatives and countrymen Saturday, with nine of the hostages giving Christmas greetings, leaving few of the 52 captives in Iran who have not been seen on TV film or still photographs since Christmas Day. The brief filmed messages televised Saturday were made by Iranian television and relayed by satellite to the United States. They were similar to those shown on U.S. television on Thursday and Friday. They brought to at least 40 the number of identified hostages seen in TV films or still photographs since Christmas Day. "I miss them all, very much. I think of them constantly," said hostage Allan Golacinski, 29, whose home town was not known. "I'd also like to send a message to the American people, and the people of the world. I'd like to thank all from the bottom of our hearts." Algerian officials, who left Tehran for the U.S. State Department in Washington, said they had seen all 52 hostages, who spent their 40th day in captivity on Saturday. Saturday's films showed hostages singing Christmas carols, listening to prayers and wishing happy holidays.

ROWING DOWN THE STREET — Unidentified residents of Sultan, Wash., about 25 miles northeast of Seattle, use a rowboat and inflatable raft to navigate through an evacuated section of their small town Friday after warm rains caused the Skykomish River to overflow its banks.

Slaying links are studied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police have filed affidavits saying they believe there is a link between the shotgun slaying of a supermarket manager and the execution-style shooting of three people at a Bob's Big Boy restaurant, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported Saturday.

The newspaper said the documents were included among affidavits filed by police with Municipal Judge Frances Rothschild on Friday in connection with the restaurant slayings. Officers were seeking search warrants for the cars and residences of three people charged with the restaurant murders.

The three — Ricky Saunders, 25; his girlfriend, Carletha Ann Stewart, 19, and her cousin Franklin Freeman Jr., 22 — are accused of 20 counts of murder, robbery and assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the Dec. 14 killings. Miss Stewart also was charged with trying to incite the other two.

Two men entered the restaurant early in the morning, herded 11 people into a freezer and opened fire. Three were killed and six injured.

No charges have been filed by authorities for the slaying of Safeway manager Catherine Murray, 47, of Tarzana, who was killed in the store's parking lot before dawn on Dec. 15.

"I feel that Ricky (Saunders) committed both crimes, Safeway and Bob's," the newspaper quoted one of the affidavits as saying.

Mitsubishi bid is rejected

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. will not permit its Japanese partner to establish its own U.S. sales network to liquidate cars and trucks shipped to the U.S. for sale under Chrysler nameplates, a Chrysler spokesman said Saturday.

Wendell Larsen, Chrysler's vice president for public affairs, was responding to reports from Tokyo that Mitsubishi Motors Corp. would establish what Mitsubishi called "a marketing subsidiary" in the United States.

Mitsubishi said the subsidiary would protect Mitsubishi rights to cars and trucks it had shipped to Chrysler but for which it had not received payment. A spokesman for the Japanese carmaker recently had trouble meeting payment requirements on Mitsubishi vehicles.

Tools in holiday gifts may have freed inmates

GRETNA, La. (AP) — Holiday gifts may have contained the tools that six inmates — one of them a Texan — used to cut through bars on a fourth-floor cell to freedom, a Jefferson Parish Sheriff's Department official said Saturday.

The double windows and broke the window. They lowered themselves to the second floor with the rope, and escaped over the roof, officials said.

The escapees were identified as convicted murderer Alfred Ludwig, 31, of Avondale, La.; Kenneth Mingo, 22, of Bogalusa, La., who was being held on charges of kidnapping, rape and crime against nature; James Stoenner, 20, of New Orleans; George Wade, 26, of El Paso, Texas; Ronald Edwards, 29, Marrero, La., and William Bowick, 22, of Jefferson Parish.

A hacksaw, vise-clamp plier and 30 feet of nylon boat rope were used in the Christmas Eve breakout, said Kathleen Landry, a spokeswoman for Sheriff Harry Lee.

"We think they might have been in Christmas presents," she said.

Officials said the men sawed through bars in a cell on the fourth floor with a hacksaw blade, then unscrewed the steel mesh over

The other four were charged with armed robbery.

Sweetman on patrol

Coast Guard Chief Marine Science Technician Michael G. Sweetman, son of Leo C. and Carole M. Sweetman of 2609 Wasson Road, Big Spring, Texas, has departed on an Alaskan fisheries patrol.

He is a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard cutter Jarvis, homeported in Honolulu.

During the two-month patrol, the Jarvis will conduct surveillance operations with Coast Guard aircraft to enforce international treaties and U.S. laws, including the 200-mile fisheries conservation zone.

The Jarvis, a 378-foot long, high endurance cutter, carries a crew of 155. It is equipped with guns, torpedoes and a landing platform for a helicopter used for aerial reconnaissance.

Sweetman joined the Coast Guard in June 1973.

On year's low crop yield

Farmers to get money

More than $21 million will be paid to New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas farmers on this year's low crop yields, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation announced today.

"This was one of the worst years in history for U.S. farmers. In this Region, farmers were faced with everything from hot, dry weather to hurricanes. Every crop we insure and almost every area of the Region was hit by some disaster. Claims have been filed on over 33 percent of our insurance units. With the cost-price squeeze farmers are facing today, the FCIC indemnity many receive is going to be the only way they can continue operating," explained Ben A. Jordan, Jr., College Station Regional Director.

Texas farmers will receive more than $18 million of FCIC indemnities while some $2.4 million will go to Oklahoma farmers and over $400 thousand will go to farmers in New Mexico.

The most heavily damaged crops include cotton, wheat, grain sorghum and peanuts, but substantial payments will also be made on citrus, corn, rice and soybeans.

The government-sponsored program is designed to cover the investment a farmer makes in raising a crop. Since the voluntary program was started in 1938, more than 90 cents of every dollar of premium paid has been returned to farmers in indemnities.

And it's always needed

One in 20 donate blood

By CAROL HART

"We love all types of blood," says Robert Ware, executive director of the West Texas division of United Blood Services, which is headquartered in San Angelo.

Although about 90 percent of Americans will need blood or blood derivatives sometime during their lives, only about five percent even donate. Donations are "greatly appreciated," Ware said. A ready supply of blood helps keep emergency situations under control.

United Blood Services supplies 35 area hospitals with blood and blood derivatives, Ware explained. Four of the hospitals, the Veterans Administration, Hall-Bennett, Cowper Clinic and Hospital, and Malone-Hogan, are located in Big Spring. San Angelo is headquarters for the service because it is geographically convenient to all the hospitals serviced, Ware said.

Mrs. Shirley Goetz, director of blood donor recruitment for United Blood Services, was in Big Spring recently to promote January as National Blood Donors Month. Mayor Clyde Angel signed a proclamation setting aside the month as a time to honor blood donors. President Carter has designated that the month be observed nationally.

Locally, blood drives are conducted every Monday at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center from noon to 6 p.m. On the Monday turns-outs, Ware estimated that an average of six to 12 people give blood. He added that there have been times when no one came to give blood.

Low donations are "a tragic situation," Ware said. Each Monday, there are two people ready to take the blood," he said. He added that it takes very little time, but there is "never enough" blood received here.

Once the blood is collected here, it is taken back to San Angelo, where it is tested and processed. Ware said he wanted to dispel the idea that the blood is taken away from a community, never to be seen again.

He said that all the towns serviced by United Blood Services aid each other with donations, and the blood is brought back to towns on a regular basis, and is made available during crises.

United Blood Services "moves blood constantly," Ware said. He said they try to keep the blood where it is most needed, and this results in a constant fluctuation of the supply.

NATIONAL BLOOD DONORS MONTH — January has been proclaimed National Blood Donors Month by President Carter. Mayor Clyde Angel and Mrs. Shirley Goetz hold up a proclamation which states that January is Blood Donors month in Big Spring. Mrs. Goetz is with United Blood Services.

Whole blood must be transfused within 35 days after it is donated, Ware said. Several of the components of blood must be used within hours. It takes six hours to test and process a unit of blood before it can be transfused.

When a person donates blood, he is giving about one pint, or 450cc. A person can donate, by law, every eight weeks.

The process takes about 30 minutes. The temperature, pulse, blood pressure and blood iron level are checked, and the donor must answer questions about their state of health. Then the actual blood donation takes only a few minutes.

Ware likened the United Blood Services headquarters to a grocery store, explaining that the store kept items in stock that would be needed by customers. The United Blood Services personnel keep running an inventory to make sure blood is available when needed.

No charge for the blood is accessed unless the blood is infused, Ware said. The blood "is always moving free of cost," he added. "We get it where it's needed."

"We don't like emergencies," Ware said. "It's like buying a fire truck when there's a fire. It's too late." United Blood Services charges for the processing of blood only, not the blood itself, Ware said. The money made from processing costs go to pay for employee costs and for laboratory costs. United Blood Services is not federally, state or locally funded.

Ware said he was proud of the way the Big Spring hospitals shared the blood supplies among themselves. Each hospital is alert to the needs of the others, he said, and each will give any they can to aid another hospital in time of need.

Ware added that in the last six months, not one unit of blood supplied by United Blood Services, has expired. He said that was one of the best records for using and transferring blood in the U.S. Several special drives have been set aside during January to encourage people to donate blood in Big Spring, said Mrs. Goetz.

A drive will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Jan. 8 at the V.A. Hospital in Room 212. Other drives this month include one which will combine the efforts of the Big Spring Federal Camp employees and the Big Spring Federal Camp Jaycees at 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Jan. 14 in the visiting room.

A third drive will be held Jan. 30, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Big Spring State Hospital, in the lab of the medical and surgical building.

Sponsors for the drives will be Lupe Dominguez, David Huff and Elma Martinez.

Rig activity still strong

Paced by a lot of activity on the Upper Coast and in District 8 of West Texas, the rotary rig count in the state rose to 1,107 for the week ending Dec. 22, compared to 1,096 for the preceding week.

Rigs making hole in the state a month ago totaled 1,090 while a year ago only 908 were turning.

Rig activity is up throughout the United States, with 3,328 turning for the week ending Dec. 22, compared to 3,303 for the preceding week, 3,231 a month ago and 2,540 at the same time last year.

Program Features D. Haney

Don Hal Haney, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Haney, 1101 Lancaster, will be the featured baritone soloist and pianist at the 7 p.m. service of the First Assembly of God Church, 4th and Lancaster.

Haney was soloist with the World Action Singers of Oral Roberts University while attending school there in 1968.

The world is Don's workshop for he has traveled extensively, ministering to capacity crowds wherever he goes. His travels have included Israel, Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Northern Ireland, England, West Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, Haiti and Canada.

While traveling with the World Action Singers as their featured baritone soloist, Don held services in Tallinn, Estonia, U.S.S.R. behind the iron curtain. Don's secret meetings with members of the underground church there and his consultations with those who have been "tortured for their Faith," has left an indelible mark of commitment and service upon all that he does.

Receiving an appointment from David Wilkerson in 1973 and joining the David Wilkerson Youth Crusades as crusade associate and organizer, he sang and played to over 1/2 million people in the two years he was with them.

For many years Haney has been a favorite minister of music and featured soloist in conventions, conferences, sacred concerts and teaching seminars across the country. Don's singing is something the entire family will remember and enjoy, say those who have heard him.

The system always works for Congress

Once Congress gets an idea it deserves and is due a pay raise, there is no stopping it. The legislative body has so many ways to achieve its goal without ripling the waters too much.

The issue became a hot potato near the end of the last congressional session. The people who wanted to defuse the problem rallied enough votes to delay it.

The session ended without a pay boost for the beleaguered solons—but wait. A federal pay advisory board, which obviously is coldly indifferent to the desires of the people, proceeded to unanimously recommend a $24,000 pay boost for members of Congress. So what if the proposed increase alone was more than the average wage earner makes—the advisory commission thought that the congressmen deserved it because the government's top bureaucrats and federal judges were in line for similar raises.

THE RECOMMENDATION surfaced hours after congress had ended its session and someone on the committee or in congress had their thinking caps on. The $10,000 raise the legislators had proposed for themselves seemed modest compared to what the advisory had suggested.

There's more. A proposal that Congressmen and other federal workers get up to $10,000 each plus relocation expenses is in the works. Look for that to be approved. As things stand now, the recommendation will go to President Carter, who must decide if he wants to go along with the suggested hikes. By law, the President must submit some sort of pay raise proposal as part of his budget message in January. Congress would then have to approve any pay recommendations by a roll call vote within 60 days.

The last time the advisory commission recommended pay adjustments was in January 1977.

The proposal to increase congressmen's pay from $44,600 to $57,500 reached the desk of Gerald Ford, then the president, and he approved it.

ONE GETS dizzy from trying to remember the numerous fringe benefits, given all congressmen, ranging from special dining rooms where food is offered at bargain basement prices to office expenses and reimbursement for considerable travel to home districts.

At that time, the recommended hikes were automatic unless either the House or the Senate disapproved them. That, fortunately, has been changed. Now, the Congressmen must stand up and be counted. Members of the senate are far more apt to vote for the raises, since they serve six-year terms, whereas the members of the lower house have to re-up for election each two years.

The raise, as proposed by the federal pay advisory board, figures out to 41 percent. Should the pay increases go into effect, the overall cost would be $241.5 million, counting other workers who would automatically crowd under the umbrella.

The constituency revealed itself in an ugly mood in the recent elections, when it showed a number of the legislators the door. A lot of Americans think some senators and representatives are dead weight now, in no way earning the money they're being paid.

Save for what?

Walking great conditioning for elderly

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Are you purposely shortchanging us oldsters in your new once-a-week fitness column? I want to ask you if it is true that walking is as good as jogging for us elderly? Just how good is it? Do you think I can keep in shape and gain good results from walking, as opposed to jogging? — L.S.

I certainly do think walking is a fine exercise for the elderly, or for anyone else. As with all forms of exercise, it has to be started gradually. As your body gets used to the walking, the pace and duration of the walk can be increased. And as with any exercise, the benefits to the heart and lungs depend on the speed of walking and how long it is done, the weight of the walker and whether the course is flat or inclined.

For example, a 160-pound person who walks three miles in an hour will use 260 calories. If he walked half a mile farther in the same time, he would burn up another 40 calories. A 200-pound person would use up more calories.

Some people have worn backpacks with three to five pounds of weight in them to help increase the energy (calorie) loss. Some do it with briefcases. It works. A good walking program definitely trains the heart and lungs and results in significant loss of body fat.

I certainly hope I have not been shortchanging my elderly physical activist readers. Perhaps now more of them will write me about their conditioning concerns.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have noticed that many tennis players consume a great deal of water during a match, and I wonder if you could comment on water needs for such activity? How much liquid, on average, should a person take to keep hydrated during a vigorous match? — G.J.

Liquids play a vital role in physical performance, according to most authorities in sports medicine. This is especially true in sports where endurance is a factor. Dr. David Costill, writing in a recent issue of World Tennis magazine, notes that endurance is limited in part by the ability to get oxygen to the working muscles. Keeping liquid levels high and body temperature normal, muscles are able to gain adequate blood and oxygen supply. For this a tennis player should consume about 16 ounces of liquid before a match and about six ounces every quarter of an hour during the match.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What vitamin is good for the eyes — A? — N.F.

Vitamin A is good for the eyes, but only if a visual problem is due to a deficiency of it. If there is no lack of vitamin A, extra amounts will not help. The booklet, "Vitamins: Facts You Need to Know," discusses myths and realities of vitamins. For a copy, write me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son had rheumatic fever when he was eight years old. It left him with a heart murmur. He is 14 now and wants to take part in sports. He has been active, but not in organized programs, where, I note, the coaches demand so much more strenuous exercise. Is it safe for him to take part in school sports? Does a murmur of itself mean it is out of the question? — Mrs. R.P.

The answer depends on the degree of damage to his heart, if any. The fact of a heart murmur does not automatically exclude him from physical activity. It does not have to mean there is something seriously wrong with his heart. Even if it is

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I seem to be in the grip of something I can't break. I have been married 14 years, but have fallen in love with another woman in my office. I still love my wife, but I am seriously thinking of divorce. What should I do? — I.W.B.

DEAR I.W.B.: What you are doing is wrong not only in the eyes of your family but in God's eyes. You are deceiving yourself if you think you will find true and lasting happiness in this new relationship—the right thing for you to do is break it off and remove yourself from it.

Marriage in God's eyes is very serious. When you and your wife stood before the minister and the other people at your wedding, you vowed before God that you would love each other until death. This is because God intended marriage to be life-long and not to be broken. There is no way you can justify or defend what you have done, and yet you are in danger of letting your emotions rule you instead of God — as well as your common sense. You have perhaps become found that he has a leaky valve from the rheumatic fever, that doesn't necessarily rule out sports participation. But if he does have such a condition, and if he has an enlarged heart, along with an abnormal EKG reading and abnormal pressure within the heart chambers, then activity would have to be restricted.

In light of the history of rheumatic disease, you would certainly be well-advised to have your son undergo a thorough heart examination before giving the green light to organized sports activities.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there such a thing as actually overtraining? — T.T.

Yes, very strenuous training can cause a decline in performance. On the other hand, vigorous training is essential if you want to maintain top performance. Obviously, you must compromise.

Take the example of the swimming team that found they did better at away matches. For the home meets they practiced right up to the time of competition. On the road, they were forced to interrupt pre-competition training. Another example can be found in the boxer who wisely eases up before his match.

Muscles need time to recover from any exhausting work. You will find that most football coaches ease up on training severity the day before a game, concentrating more on drills to improve agility and on studying the characteristics of the opponent to be faced the next day.

bored with your marriage — but maybe much of that is your responsibility because you have not been willing to work to keep the spark of love alive in your marriage. A successful marriage does not just happen — it takes work. Presently you are thinking only of yourself, but that will ultimately bring only grief to you — you can depend on it. My mail every day contains dozens — sometimes hundreds — of letters which testify to the heartbreak which comes from God's rules about marriage are neglected.

What should you do? First, you need to give your life to Christ. Your letter suggests that at present God has no part in your life — or that of your wife and family as well. But God wants to come into your life and rule. He wants to forgive you for what you have done, and give you a new ability to love your family. Then break off this relationship with the other person — even if it means changing jobs. It is far better to face the problems you have created for yourself now than wreck your life and the lives of others by refusing to face them.

'Purity test'

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — President-elect Ronald Reagan has sent a message through his top advisers that he wants to head a moderate administration. Apparently, his wishes haven't reached incoming Republican members of Congress, who have been offered a 43-page screening test for people seeking employment on Capitol Hill. The curious document is informally known as the "ideological purity test."

It was thoughtfully provided by the Republican Study Committee, which has been the recipient of hundreds of applications since the election from people who feel they are qualified to bring a little Republican common sense to the halls of Congress. With 68 new Republicans in the House and Senate, the job program is wide open.

THE PURITY TEST originally contained 44 questions. But one — Question No. 12 — was deleted at the last minute. Like all the others, it was a statement to which prospective job applicants were expected to answer Yes or No.

The deleted statement read: "Welfare is the basic right of all Americans." A Study Committee official told my associate Vicki Warren that Question No. 12 was removed because it was causing "too much confusion." The decision was made so late in the hiring game that No. 12 was simply blotted out with white ink.

The little quiz for job seekers was composed a few years ago for use in the GOP Study Committee's own hiring. Now that the committee has gained more clout, it has seen fit to offer its political shibboleths to possibly unwary Republicans arriving on Capitol Hill.

Here are some of the Yes-No statements the committee suggests that GOP senators and representatives use to judge the applicants for jobs on their staffs.

—"Peace is best guaranteed through military strength rather than through world government."

—"Society can be improved by giving preferential employment treatment for a few years ago women and ethnic minorities."

—"Parents should have no right to interfere with course content and materials deemed appropriate by professional educators and/or boards of education."

—"Organized labor should be subject to antitrust laws."

—"Workers on strike should be permitted to collect unemployment compensation and draw food stamps."

—"Federal funds should be made available for abortion for poor people."

—"Affirmative action' programs actually limit the avenues of opportunity for all citizens and substitute bureaucratic decisions for those of merit in selecting personnel."

You get the idea. In fact, any reasonably savvy job applicant gets the idea. It's not hard to figure out whether a "Yes" or "No" is more likely to land them a job in the supposedly "New Right" Congress.

DESPITE ITS obvious drawbacks, the GOP quiz has caught the fancy of new GOP members of Congress. According to a staffer for the Republican Study Committee, one out of every four new Republican members has asked the committee for referrals on potential staffers who have taken the test.

Footnote: A Study Committee spokesman insisted that the ideological test wasn't "pass-fail," and added that one woman who had failed had been hired.

WIN SOME, LOSE SOME: A recent confidential intelligence report sums up the Kremlin's latest achievements on the international scene this way: "The Soviets have gained footholds, whether through proxies or in their own right, in Afghanistan, South Yemen, Ethiopia, Angola, Grenada, Vietnam and, of course, Cuba."

The report continues: "The importance of such footholds in terms of giving the Soviets access to port and repair facilities, and of providing staging and landing rights, training areas and other indispensable support to military activities, should not be underestimated."

Another classified summary tots it all up, saying: "At the present time, Soviet advisers or military personnel can be found in 30 countries adhering formally to the Neutral and Non-Aligned (NNA) Movement; Soviet arms are being sold to 33 NNA nations."

The gloomy cloud of Soviet aggression has its silver lining, though, according to the U.S. intelligence analysts' report: "Soviet attempts to insert a presence outside their own territory have met with setbacks as well as successes. Their record is hardly unblemished."

WATCHDOG WATCHERS: Stirred up complaints of fraud and abuse by field employees of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the agency's officials have responded by increasing the number of employees in its Office of Professional Responsibility from 17 to almost 50. The new internal surveillance "has brought mutterings of '1984' and 'Big Brother!' from immigration employees."

Secret cameras and internal spies are among the devices the agency brass has used to catch border patrol personnel suspected of dealing less than fairly with illegal aliens trying to cross into the United States. Morale is suffering as a result, and a top official at immigration acknowledged that "this is a job no one likes to have."

Inmate population spirals in Texas

By JIM DAVIS

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — As you're sitting around the living room on one of these Christmas season evenings, look around at how much space you have.

Then think about the 2,300 Texas prison inmates who are bedding down on mattresses on the floor of their cells. Each one shares about 45 square feet of cell space with two other prisoners who have bunks.

The third man's mattress covers most of the open floor space of the cell. He's in danger of being stepped on if either of the other two needs to use the toilet in the night.

If you have a fairly large Christmas tree in your living room, it probably would fill the area the state gives to each of these three-man units.

We should think of these things at Christmas because this is the time of year that we are most charitable.

Normally, we find it hard to feel too sorry for these convicted felons, some of whom have committed crimes of violence. Few free Texans want to provide them with luxurious surroundings.

But 45 square feet of living space for three men is no way to treat anyone. Most kennels give a dog that much maneuvering room.

Recently, U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice ruled that such crowded conditions must cease.

This was part of his sweeping criticism of the present Texas Department of Corrections operation. Many state officials think the ruling was too sweeping and too critical.

But they agree that the prison system is suffering from serious problems of overcrowding.

In a news conference in Austin last week, prison director James Estelle said he believes most of the other problems cited by Justice are either directly or indirectly affected by overcrowding.

The inmate population has soared in recent years, due both to general population growth in Texas and to stiffer sentences handed down by judges and jurors.

That population now stands at just under 30,000—2,300 more than the system can provide with beds.

Everyone recognizes the problem, but there are differing views on how to solve it.

State officials are moving toward the simple solution—the building of more prisons. A land approval board, led by Gov. Bill Clements, voted last week to purchase a site for a new prison in Grimes County northwest of Houston.

That decision wasn't popular with many Grimes County residents, some of whom vowed to remember Clements' vote at election time. The governor's reply was that something has to be done to obtain new prison facilities, and he'd let the buck stop with him.

Charles Sullivan, director of a prison-reform group called CURE (for Citizens United for the Rehabilitation of Errants), says Clements could solve the problem another way by approving more parole applications. He says Clements has been too stingy in granting paroles recommended by the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

CURE also favors small community-based facilities instead of more big prisons.

There are two big problems with community-based facilities: cost and opposition within the communities.

Few people want to have a prison just down the road. Strong opposition usually develops even when a rural site is proposed. Spreading out prisoners across the state makes it easier for family and friends to visit them, but probably would dramatically increase the cost.

But no matter how the state approaches the problem of overcrowded prisons, Texans should realize that the solution is going to cost them some money.

Critics of Justice's order say if fully implemented it could cost up to $3 billion, particularly if the judge insists that prisoners should have individual cells, as his initial order indicates.

Personally, I find it easy to argue for individual cells.

Twice in recent years I've toured the prison facilities in and near Huntsville. Each time I left wondering how even two men could keep their sanity in those tiny cells.

Investigative procedures questioned

CLARKSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Red River County grand jurors investigating police brutality charges are concerned about the lack of internal investigation standards for local law enforcement agencies, according to a source.

Red River County Sheriff Bob Storey confirmed that the grand jury "questioned our practices" on internal investigations but declined to elaborate.

The source, who requested anonymity, said the grand jury's letter to Storey noted that neither the sheriff's department nor the Clarksville Police Department uses established internal investigation guidelines.

The grand jury is investigating the Sept. 10 arrest of Glen Shadd and Peggy Mitchell. The two have filed suit in Tyler federal court alleging Shadd, 22, was beaten by deputy Doug Jackson following his arrest and that Miss Mitchell was arrested for disorderly conduct for protesting the beating.

Pay incentive offered nurses

MIDLAND — Midland Memorial Hospital has started an intensive nurse recruitment program.

Registered nurses hired for a vacant spot in any of the hospital areas will receive $1,000 incentive pay, with $500 to be paid after successful completion of a three-month probationary period and another $500 upon completion of a year's employment.

The shortage of nurses is so critical that 44 of the hospital's 195 licensed beds are not in service.

Bentsen has a plan

Texas economy booming

By STEVE SNIDER

WASHINGTON — High on Congress and President-elect Ronald Reagan lists of priorities is economic stability — an end to double digit inflation and soaring interest rates.

Last week Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, found more fodder for his often-expressed plan to achieve a national financial upturn.

The fodder was a study, released by his Joint Economic Committee, that showcases Texas' economy over the past 10 years as a pace-setter. Compared to the rest of the country, Texas is booming.

Bentsen highlighted one aspect of the Texas study: the number of manufacturing jobs in Texas increased more than in any other state during the 1970s.

Bentsen has long believed the answer to the U.S. sagging economy was to encourage industry to invest in its own future by buying new tools and building new plants, banking on prosperity.

"One of our state's economic achievements of which I am most proud is our record for capital investment," Bentsen said. "This is an area in which most of the nation has been sadly lagging. In recent years Texas has led the nation in capital investment in plants and factories and our industrial production growth rate exceeds the national average by three times."

The study also showed that during the past decade per capita income in Texas rose to $9,000, surpassing the national average of $9,710. In 1970 the per capita income in Texas was $3,518, less than the national average of $3,909.

"If the rest of the nation had kept pace with Texas during the past decade our country's economy would be much more sound than it is today," Bentsen said. "Policymakers can learn from what we've done in Texas. I have said over and over that more capital formation and high technology firms will create more jobs for Americans."

The future looks even brighter, judging by the most recent statistics.

Bentsen said that in 1980, for example, the industrial production growth rate should be about 3.5 percent, triple the anticipated national growth rate.

In fact Texas' future is so bright, it already has caused negative reaction on the part of legislators from other areas of the country, especially the Northeast where industry is suffering. Northeast lawmakers say decontrol of oil prices represents such an economic boost to the state of Texas in the form of more state tax money, more jobs and general economic prosperity, the state should pay extra for it.

However, the prospects of that happening are slight and more than offset by the equal possibility of a reduction in the Windfall Profits Tax possible with next year's more conservative Congress.

Already, independent oilmen, who drill more wells owned by more people who together earn greater profit than the major oil companies, see an opportunity to dismantle portions of the windfall profits tax passed last summer.

Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, expects the 97th Congress beginning in January to deal with proposals to repeal the tax on small "stripper well" (less than 10 barrels per day) production and royalty income.

Together with other initiatives, this predicted tax reduction is seen by the independents as another step in fulfilling Reagan's campaign promise to keep Washington out of the way in the search for energy.

Mao's widow dares court

PEKING (AP) — The widow of Mao Tse-tung has dared China's highest court to sentence her to a public execution and proclaimed "it is more glorious to have my head chopped off" than to yield to her accusers, Chinese sources reported Saturday.

They said the prosecutor called for "severest punishment" for 67-year-old Jiang Qing and cited a criminal code article that calls for a death sentence in the gravest counter-revolutionary cases.

The sources said Jiang Qing challenged the court Wednesday as she delivered a three-hour defense statement. They said she denounced her accusers and China's current leadership as "revisionists" and betrayers of the doctrines of Chairman Mao, who died in 1976.

"I dare you people to sentence me to death in front of one million people in Tiananmen Square," the sources quoted Jiang Qing as saying to the Supreme People's Court.

She and her "Gang of Four" co-defendants are on trial for their lives with six others charged with treason, frameups and persecutions that ended in death. Virtually all executions in China are carried out with a pistol shot to the head.

The hearing was recessed Saturday for the third consecutive day, and the Chinese sources said authorities were deciding how to rebut Jiang Qing's arguments and invocation of Mao.

The prosecutor is to make a final statement and Jiang Qing will have another chance to speak for herself. The proceedings are not expected to end until early January.

Since her trial began Nov. 9, Jiang Qing has insisted she acted as Mao's behest. Sources said that on Wednesday she accused the court of putting the "Great Helmsman" on trial by prosecuting his widow.

Environmentalists, local planners concerned

Florida's 'last frontier' the target of hungry developers

PANACEA, Fla. (AP) — A real estate company here boasts on billboards that it is "Selling Florida's Last Frontier." That prospect has environmentalists and local planning officials concerned.

"When you lose this, you've lost it all," said Jack Rudloe, Panacea's most famous and perhaps most controversial citizen.

He is a nationally known environmental writer and owner of the Gulf Specimen Co., which collects sea creatures for scientific purposes.

He is worried that Wakulla County's coastal area, which he says is what most of Florida looked like 30 years ago, will go the way of other developed areas in the state.

Panacea is an unincorporated community of less than 1,000 people about 35 miles south of Tallahassee on the shores of Apalachee Bay. It is a weekend retreat for many capital city residents and a commercial fishing center.

Although not opposed to development, county planning officials share Rudloe's concern that it could destroy one of the state's largest remaining breeding areas for fish and other sea creatures and ruin the fishing industry that is one of the area's major employers.

They have called on state officials and environmentalists for help in coping with the potential problem.

"Not too many counties take this action so early in the game," said Robert J. "Skip" Livingston, a Florida State University biologist.

He said development is inevitable, but if done properly, Apalachee Bay does not have to become another Tampa Bay, where a once-thriving oyster industry is now extinct.

"You've got one chance," he added. "You are not going to move the people out (after pollution in the bay area than is in there now.)"

The state Department of Natural Resources banned the taking of oysters in parts or all of Apalachee Bay and Apalachicola Bay just to the west in neighboring Franklin County for a large part of the past year because of polluted water.

The bay closings were fresh in the minds of local residents when Dunedin developer Mack Hart, president of Sycamore Creek Inc., asked the Wakulla County Planning Commission for permission to proceed with Panacea's first major waterfront development in about 10 years.

"We were concerned what effect 82 septic tanks would have on the closing of the bay," said county Planning Director Jo Anne Strickland. "We don't want any more Unabashed proponents of development and septic tanks, the McMillans live across the street from Bob Morgan, who takes office as president of the Wakulla County Chamber of Commerce on Jan. 1, and who is the most outspoken member of the planning commission.

The McMillans are angry with Morgan, accusing him of obstructing progress. "If you had a choice between the fiddler crabs and you, who would you take?" asked Mrs. McMillan.

"I've been accused of being anti-development and as you can see I'm not," Morgan said, pointing to a brochure he developed for the chamber to boost Wakulla County.

"I'm for development to increase the tax base of Wakulla County. We need their land as they please. Others have actively opposed development, particularly when the subject of septic tanks comes up."

"I don't believe you could ever get the commercial fishermen to agree on anything," said Earl Vause, owner of a seafood processing plant.

Ewing returns from far East

Navy Electrician's Mate 3rd Class Richard L. Ewing, son of Richard L. and Alice L. Ewing of Gail Route, Box 39-C, Big Spring, has returned from a deployment in the Indian Ocean.

He is a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier USS Midway, operating from Yokosuka, Japan.

During the six-month deployment, the ship and its permanently embarked air wing steamed more than 41,000 miles, spending a total of 106 days at sea. This was the Midway's second Indian Ocean cruise this year to help maintain a U.S. presence in support of national objectives.

Crewmembers had the opportunity to visit the East African port of Mombasa, Kenya, and Subic Bay, Republic of the Philippines.

The Midway is 979 feet long, carries a crew of 2,615, and can accommodate 1,800 personnel and 75 aircraft assigned to an attack aircraft wing.

Ewing joined the Navy in June 1976.

Beer customers can get surly after midnight

AUSTIN — Not since the days of Cinderella has the hour of midnight been so unpopular.

At least that's the case with some beer drinkers who like to buy their favorite brew at all-night convenience stores.

As most devoted drinkers know, midnight is the hour when all take-out sales of beer and wine must stop in Texas.

Some say that ban gives the drunks of this world a chance to sober up.

Whatever the reason might be, that's the law, and the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission doesn't like to see it broken.

"In College Station, we had a situation where people were going into convenience stores after hours — and some stores don't lock their beer compartments — and these people would come in and take a beer and put their money down on the counter," Bill Dufour, an attorney for the alcoholic beverage commission, said.

If the clerk refused to ring it up, a lot of customers simply walked out with the beer, he added.

The problem isn't limited to College Station.

Commission officials and convenience store operators say that in recent years they have noticed an upswing in the number of beer drinkers trying to violate the midnight ban on sales.

Because of that, as well as pressure from the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, many of the newer convenience stores in the state now come with locks on the beer compartments, according to Bill Strangmeyer, a merchandising director with 7-Eleven, Inc.

Some older stores are having locks installed or at least using boards and metal rods with padlocks to keep customers out of the beer compartments after hours, Strangmeyer said.

"Although if a store doesn't have any problem with beer thefts, they probably don't lock them," he added.

Though Dufour said the greatest number of violations in College Station seem to involve students and those stores near Texas A&M University, Strangmeyer said campus-area stores, in general, aren't that much of a problem.

"Really it's been a problem in the rougher areas," he said. "If those people want a beer bad enough, they'll take it."

And in the convenience store business where armed robberies have become almost commonplace, store clerks don't like the idea of getting into potentially violent arguments with beer-drinking patrons.

Dufour said the state doesn't want to foster violence by insisting that store clerks try to prevent customers from taking the beer.

The commission only wants the store clerks to report the theft immediately to police and to file charges.

In too many cases, Dufour said, clerks "know you can't sell it, but they kind of look the other way."

He said that in the case of a 7-Eleven store near Texas A&M, he has recommended a three-day suspension of the beer and wine license or a $450 fine because "they didn't show enough initiative to correct the situation."

Store officials, he said, "felt we shouldn't do anything — that it was not their fault."

But the store has had a problem with such thefts for some time. Dufour said, and had not done anything about locking the beer compartments and, in some cases, had not pressed charges.

That, Dufour said, is the fastest way for a store to put itself in hot water with the Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

Without some form of discouragement, he said, the problem would get out of hand.

Lobbyist says 1980 signs could be good on energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the trends in energy use and production established in 1980 continue, Americans will enjoy a future of "fewer gasoline lines, more secure jobs and less dependence on foreign resources," the president of the American Petroleum Institute predicted Saturday.

Charles J. DiBona, the head of the oil industry's main lobbying group, said 1980 was a year that saw many favorable signs for the future, including the setting of all-time records for oil and gas drilling in the United States.

Because of the increased exploration, oil production, which has been declining for a decade in the lower 48 states, is "much closer to stabilizing," he said.

Higher prices prompted Americans to use 7 percent less oil than in 1979. Foreign oil use dropped 22 percent below 1979 when the country imported 8.2 million barrels daily.

That level can be cut in half by 1990 with some "relatively minor changes in government policy," DiBona said.

Texas in the midst of a 'cactus crisis'

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Commercial dealers are harvesting Texas cactus in such great numbers that if the current rate continues, much of the state's western rangelands could be stripped bare of the spiny plants before the turn of the century, scientists warn.

"They are hauling them out of the Big Bend area by the truckloads," said Dr. Del Weniger, a professor of botany at Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio and author of a book on cactus.

He said most of the cacti picked in Texas are taken out of the state where they are sold in supermarkets, airport souvenir shops, nurseries, and other retail stores. About half of them are exported to Europe or the Far East.

Joseph Dowhan of the U.S.

Fish and Wildlife Service, who was sent to Southwest Texas recently to survey the "cactus crisis," said he was astonished at what he saw.

"Cactus dealers are changing the very scenery which people have come to think of as the West," Dowhan said. "They are destroying a national resource — not just a Texas resource."

Cactus collectors scoff at the warnings. They say digging them up actually stimulates the growth of new ones.

"There are more cactus in these parts now than there were 50 years ago," said dealer Ralph Spencer, 72, of Marfa.

But scientists like Dr. Richard Worthington, associate professor of biology at the University of Texas at El Paso, say parts of the state have already been picked clean, except for the lowly prickly pear cactus which has no commercial value, and unless the dealers are stopped many species will be threatened with extinction.

"There are canyons in the Franklin Mountains where barrel cactus were once dense and now they are very scarce and the only ones you see are deformed," he said.

Weniger said two rare species of cactus were known on only two Texas ranches. "One of those ranches has been stripped completely bare. Fortunately, the other rancher has protected his," he said.

"Dealers have crews of illegal aliens who go across the countryside and take everything. I've seen them working out there with big bags. They dump the plants in big piles to be picked up. Sometimes they have missed connections and I've seen as many as five to 10 truckloads of cactus lying there dying — thousands of them," he said.

Weniger said at present dealers work only in the area west of the Pecos River, because in other parts of the state cactus are not nearly as thick.

Another source of cactus is northern Mexico, and Border Patrol supervisor Laurence Terry of Presidio said smugglers "clean cactus off an area and bring them across a shallow part of the river on mules and leave them in piles at a stash point. Later on, someone will come along and pick them up. It's been going on for years like that."

Spencer laughed when he was told that cacti are getting scarce in West Texas.

"That's a cheap shot," he said. "There's no truth in that. Those fellows sit back their in their office in Washington or someplace and they have no idea what it looks like out here."

"Digging them up cultivates the soil around them and when you move that soil, their seeds sprout and reproduce," said Spencer.

He said he gets permission of ranchers and then buys cacti from their cowboys in the rugged cattle country of far Southwest Texas. "Cowboys pick them in their spare time and we pick them up when they call."

Spencer said a normal pickup would be between 200 and 300 plants at a time. Prices range from a penny to a nickel per plant.

Worthington said a cactus' hardness makes it easy for dealers to handle large piles. "After you dig one up and set it on the ground, it would take two months for the thing to die," he said.

Dowhan said cactus dealers like Spencer violate no laws, but he said they are naive if they believe the supply is inexhaustible. "People look at cactus in Texas and say, 'We've got that stuff coming out our ears — it'll never go extinct.' But they said that about passenger pigeons which used to darken the skies in the tens of billions and are now extinct," he said.

Scientists say cactus removal is a particular problem in Texas because strict state laws in other southwestern states have chased most of the dealers out of those areas and into Texas, which has no laws to protect its cactus.

A lobby group based in Washington has been trying to add plants to the Lacey Act, which now protects wild animals from interstate commerce. If successful, the act would allow each state to list any species of plants it wishes to protect, and it would then become a federal crime to take that plant across state lines without a permit.

At present, the only U.S. law to protect plants is the Endangered Species Act, which includes eight species of rare cactus native to Texas. But Weniger said it protects only a small fraction of the state's 147 species of cactus.

"Most of them are not endangered yet," he said. "But they will be. I would guess we have until the turn of the century unless something is done."

David Riskind, a botanist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said he could not speak for the department, but as a "concerned environmentalist," he said any state law would be hampered by the fact that "only about 6 percent of the state is owned by the state or federal government." Riskind said a law dictating to private land owners what they can and cannot do with the plants on their property would be unlikely.

The Lacey Act, unlike the Endangered Species Act, would not require any scientific proof that a protected species is rare or endangered.

Scientists say continued depletion of cactus will change landscapes to scrub-dominated areas.

Soviet winter wheat crop may be troubled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest report by the Agriculture Department indicates the Soviet Union's winter wheat crop may be in some mild trouble, at least, because of cold weather.

Looking at the situation in the Soviet Union, "above-normal temperatures melted snow in many areas and the danger of frost-heaving persisted last week," according to the latest report. "Should the cold return before more snow falls, wheat fields will be exposed with little or no protection."

In the United States, the report said cold air from Canada during the week "kept precipitation to a minimum" and forced winter wheat into dormancy in much of the southern Great Plains.

Looking at South America, where much of the competition for world markets exist, the report said most soybeans in Brazil continued to get beneficial rains.

Other comments included: "Europe: No extreme cold was reported last week. Precipitation in the east was about normal, while heavier-than-normal amounts fell in many western countries. Little snow covered agricultural areas."

"Australia: Only minor delays in the harvest occurred when showers fell in southeastern parts of the winter grain belt. Tropical rain systems in the north increased moisture supplies for sugarcane."

"Eastern Asia: Virtually no precipitation fell on agricultural areas in China. Winter grains remained dormant over nearly all of the North China plain. Some very cold conditions were reported to the north of (Peking), but no damage to winter grains is anticipated."

"Mexico: The fall harvest continued in mild, dry weather. Tomatoes, cucumbers and other vegetables are developing well on the west coast, where sunny and warm conditions prevailed."

Number of farms in U.S. in decline since 1975

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary estimates by the Agriculture Department show that while the number of farms continues to decline, the rate of attrition remains relatively low.

The department says the 1980 inventory showed about 2,428,000 farms in the country, down 0.1 percent from 2,430,000 in 1979.

The preliminary estimate for 1981 forecasts 2,419,000 farms, a drop of 0.4 percent from this year.

The report issued by the department's Economics and Statistics Service also included revisions in the estimated number of farms going back to 1975.

Officials said the revisions were made after reviewing 1974 and 1978 census data and other information from the agency's regular surveys and from state offices.

Overall, the report said, the number of farms declined at the rate of more than 1 percent annually in 1975-77. "Farm numbers declined from 2.52 million in 1975 to 2.43 million in 1980," the report said. "Nationally, the number of farms was relatively stable during the 1975-80 period."

"The number of farms in the Midwestern states has continued to decline while Northeastern and West Coast states show increasing numbers of farms in recent years."

As used in the report, a farm "is a place that sells or normally would sell $1,000 of agricultural produce" a year.

The total amount of land in farms in 1980 was about 1.042 billion acres, a decline of 1.6 percent from about 1.059 billion acres in 1975, the report said.

For 1981, the preliminary figures show a further reduction to about 1.041 billion acres.

The reduction in the number of farms has meant an increase in the average size of U.S. farms to 429 acres in 1980 from 420 in 1975. For 1981, the average is expected to increase one acre to 430.

By states, the number of farms in 1980 and the projected number for 1981 included:

Alabama, 58,000 farms in 1980 and 58,000 in 1981; Alaska, 370 and 380; Arizona, 7,000 and 7,100; Arkansas, 59,000 and 59,000; California, 80,000 and 80,000; Colorado, 26,500 and 26,500; Connecticut, 4,200 and 4,100; Delaware, 3,500 and 3,500; Florida, 39,000 and 39,000; Georgia, 59,000 and 59,000; Hawaii, 4,300 and 4,300; Idaho, 24,100 and 24,200; Illinois, 107,000 and 105,000; Indiana, 88,000 and 87,000; Iowa, 119,000 and 118,000; Kansas, 75,000 and 74,000; Kentucky, 102,000 and 101,000; Louisiana, 37,000 and 37,000; Maine, 8,300 and 8,300; Maryland, 17,500 and 17,500; Massachusetts, 5,900 and 5,800; Michigan, 66,000 and 65,000; Minnesota, 104,000 and 105,000; Mississippi, 55,000 and 55,000; and Missouri, 120,000 and 119,000.

Trading day near record

Telcot, the electronic marketing system owned by Plains Cotton Cooperative Association (PCCA) at Lubbock, scored the second largest trading day in its six-season history on Christmas Eve day with a volume of 53,398 bales even though the day's trading schedule was shortened 1 1/2 hours due to the Christmas holidays.

The prior record for a single day of cotton trading over Telcot was achieved last Jan. 17 with 53,917 bales. Evidently, new sales figures for exports covering the prior week, released on the afternoon of December 24, had an influence on the pace of trading activity. New sales figures for the week amounted to 534,100 bales of which 484,800 bales were stated as purchases by the Peoples Republic of China. Bales exported from the U.S. for the same weekly period were reported at 118,600 with 40,900 for the PRC.

The new record trading day brought Telcot sales to that date to over 420,000 bales for the period starting July 1, 1980.

New programs allowing nurses to 'do what they were trained to do'

HOUSTON (AP) — One Houston hospital is utilizing an innovative, back-to-basics approach to curtail drastic nursing shortages that plague medical institutions nationwide.

"We certainly didn't invent the program. It's been around since the nursing profession began. We've just brought it back," said Billie Rogers, assistant administrator in charge of nursing at Park Plaza Hospital. "And all it does is promotes the idea that the patient is king."

Two years ago Park Plaza, like the medical giants at nearby Texas Medical Center and other hospitals across the country, scrambled to replace its dwindling nursing staff.

The annual turnover rate among the hospital's 300 nurses had soared to 79 percent and nurses were defecting almost as fast as they could be recruited.

"It's useless to ask a nurse

"What's wrong" as she walks out the back door," Ms. Rogers said. "But at the same time, it doesn't matter how good your recruiting program is if nurses come in the front door and walk straight out the back. The problem has to be met at both ends."

To find a solution, perplexed administrators turned to the nurses.

To their surprise, administrators learned the nurses were not as anxious to boost their $20,000 a year salaries as much as they yearned for the chance to do what they were trained to do, Miss Rogers said.

"As medicine has become much more specialized, the patient load of each nurse has increased dramatically. There's also been a tendency to replace a nurse's duties, to fragment the responsibilities and farm them out to technicians and aides," said Kathleen Conlin, a former nurse at Park Plaza who now directs the hospital's recruiting program.

Established in 1975 by a group of local physicians to provide a one doctor-to-one patient car, Park Plaza reversed the trend. It increased the number of registered nurses, reduced to patient load of each nurse and, in the process, cut its turnover rate to 29 percent.

"We've found a nurse can care for three, four or five patients and accomplish a lot more than if she must care for 30 or 40 patients during an eight-hour shift," Miss Rogers said.

Primary nursing — allowing a nurse to care completely for her patients — is staging a popular comeback, especially among the younger nurses, Miss Conlin said.

"It probably the strongest thing we've got going for us as far as our recruitment," Ms. Conlin said. "It's a program closest to the philosophy they were taught in school, one they are familiar and comfortable with and are able to relate to," she said.

The program enables a nurse to establish a rapport with her patients because she is given total responsibility for the patients," she said.

"She draws their blood, schedules their lab tests, prepares them for surgery and cares for them until they are discharged. In many hospitals, a patient may never see the same nurse twice," she said.

Miss Rogers admits patients pay more for the additional attention — about $300 a day compared with $190 a day at other Houston hospitals. However, she said, superior care for the 15,000-plus people Park Plaza treats each year justifies the extra cost.

Many hospitals have started to utilize similar programs, but not all have been successful, Ms. Rogers said.

"There's been mixed reaction to this type of program. Using it involves a complete change in attitude and philosophy. That can be frustrating a lot of times, and there have been hospitals that have been unsuccessful," she said.

"But for us, it's worked. It's the best thing we've got going for us."

Denise Crenwelge earns degree in Journalism

Denise Crenwelge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Crenwelge, 2805 Apache, earned her Bachelor of Science Degree in Journalism from Texas A&M University, Dec. 13 at G. Rollie White Coliseum in College Station.

Crenwelge was one of 19 other Journalism candidates and over 2,000 other students graduating in two different ceremonies.

Crenwelge graduated on the Dean's List as a distinguished student having earned a 3.42 GPA her last semester. To be eligible for the Dean's List a student must earn a 3.25 or better grade point average. Crenwelge was named as a distinguished student twice in the four semesters she attended Texas A&M.

While at A&M, she was also Mosher Hall Secretary, awarded the faculty scholarship for Broadcasting, Sigma Delta Chi, Radio-Television News Director Association, Phi Theta Kappa, Battalion Staff reporter, Newman Club and lay minister at St. Mary's Catholic Church in College Station.

DENISE CRENWELGE

Crenwelge is a 1977 graduate of Big Spring High. She then earned her Associate of Arts degree at Howard College in three semesters before transferring to A&M in the spring of 1979.

While at HC, she was active as the yearbook editor, cheerleader, was Miss Congeniality 1977, Student Senate, Phi Theta Kappa and Press Club.

Crenwelge did her broadcasting internship here the past summer at KBST radio.

Houston youth shot on Natchez Parkway

ACKERMAN, Miss. (AP) — Choctaw County Sheriff Hayes Mills says he knows of no motive for the sniper attack along the Natchez Trace Parkway that left a Texas youth dead.

Mills said Friday that charges were pending against a 29-year-old Webster County man who was arrested on the Trace after the shooting earlier that day.

Terrill Johnson, 9, of Houston, died in Webster County Hospital in Eupora about three hours after he was shot around 1 a.m. while riding in a car with his mother, sister and others to a holiday reunion in Booneville.

"I don't see where anyone would have a motive," said Mills. "It's just a weirdo who would try something like that to people he had never seen before."

A hospital administrator said that the youth's sister, LaChelle, 12, was treated for a minor gunshot wound and released.

Mills said the shooting occurred about three miles south of Mathiston as the children, their mother, Mrs. Linda Johnson, and another child were being driven by Kenneth Brinkley of Houston north on the Trace, a two-lane, limited access federal highway. The youth's father was Terrill Johnson, a policeman in Oklahoma City.

The suspect was arrested on the Trace shortly after the shooting and was charged with driving under the influence, Mills said.

The sheriff said that beer cans, napkins and cigarette butts found along the Trace matched those found in the man's vehicle.

"We haven't had time to run ballistics on (the bullet)," Mills said. He said a .35-caliber rifle was seized and a spent bullet was found in the car.

Mills said the bullet entered the passenger's door, came up through the seat and struck the boy "four or five inches below the hip" before grazing the girl.

"He bled to death," the sheriff said.

Barnett draws Keesler duty

Airman Craig A. Barnett, son of Joyce E. Chennault of 1009 E. 13th St., Big Spring, Texas, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission,

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the personnel field.

Tracked-vehicle mechanic course completed by Keller

Pvt. John R. Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Keller Jr. of 3700 Hamilton, Big Spring, Texas, recently completed a tracked-vehicle mechanic course at the U.S. Army Armor School, Fort Knox, Ky.

During the course, students were trained to repair engines, transmissions, and the fuel, electrical and hydraulic systems of the Army's tracked-vehicles. They also learned to perform recovery operations for abandoned, damaged, disabled or mired vehicles.

Martinez gains rifle training

Pvt. First Class Alberto Martinez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto Martinez of Stanton, Texas, recently completed One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training. The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualifies the soldier as a light weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.

Keese wearing silver wings

Second Lt. Charles R. Keese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Keese of Star Route 2, Lamesa, Texas, is now wearing U.S. Air Force silver wings following graduation from pilot training at Reese Air Force Base, Texas.

The fully-qualified pilot will now fly the C-130 at Rhein-Main Air Base, West Germany.

Social Security increase: here it comes

Maximum tax for an individual to be $1,975-$387 more than 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — It shouldn't come as a surprise, but it may be a shock nonetheless. The increase in Social Security taxes, which will take effect on Jan. 1, will be substantial.

The increase, voted by Congress two years ago, is intended to raise an additional $15 billion for the Social Security retirement fund. And $15 billion, even when divided among 115 million contributors, isn't peanuts.

Workers will feel it in the following two ways:

—The percentage of pay that is withheld from paychecks for Social Security will increase to 6.65 percent, up from 6.13 percent in 1980. This percentage will be matched by the workers' employer.

—The total wages, or salary, on which the tax is paid also rises, from $25,900 in 1980 to $29,700 in the New Year.

The result of these two changes is an increase in the maximum tax for an individual to a total of $1,975, or $387 more than the 1980 maximum of $1,588.

Persons whose earnings were high enough that they paid the maximum tax before 1980 ended, and for whom withholding had stopped once the maximum was reached, will have the tax automatically withheld again on Jan. 1 at the higher percentage.

Persons who didn't earn enough to pay the maximum, and for whom withholding never stopped in 1980, will continue having the tax withheld as before, but at the higher percentage.

The 6.65 percent of income being withheld will be the same for all workers in the program. An individual can easily calculate the amount of money that will be withheld from his or her paycheck by applying the percentage to his or her earnings.

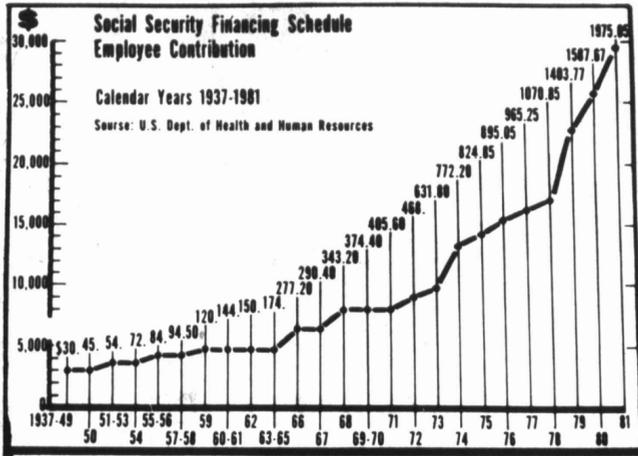

A third change in the Social Security program is an increase in the amount of money Social Security beneficiaries may earn without having their benefits reduced.

Persons aged 65 to 71 will be able to earn $5,500 without losing any benefits, up from $5,000 in 1980. Persons under 65 will have a $4,080 ceiling on earnings, up from $3,720.

Once the ceiling on earnings is reached, benefits are reduced by $1 for every $2 earned in excess of the ceiling.

There is no ceiling for beneficiaries 72 and older.

President Carter, who leaves office on Jan. 20, gave high priority to an effort to put the Social Security program on a sound financial footing, and the increase that takes effect on Jan. 1 was part of that plan, as finally approved by Congress. But soaring inflation has driven up the cost of the program by increasing recipients benefits in line with the increase in the cost of living, leaving the program in almost as precarious a shape as when Carter took office.

SOCIAL SECURITY CONTRIBUTIONS — Chart, based on figures from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Resources, shows employee contributions over the years to Social Security. On January 1, 1981, the contribution goes to $1,975.05. That amount is based on a taxable earnings ceiling of $29,700.

The amount goes up each July. The maximum payment to a 65-year-old worker retiring this year is now $660 a month. The minimum monthly payment is $153.

Total payments to the 35 million recipients are now projected at over $135 billion in fiscal 1981, or $20 billion more than last year.

Fumes from faulty water heater

Man acting on hunch saves family from death

COVENTRY, R.I. (AP) — Charles A. Sutcliffe's daughter and son-in-law said they and their children had the flu, but Sutcliffe was suspicious. His hunch saved them from dying of carbon monoxide poisoning from a faulty water heater.

Sutcliffe, 59, knew his son-in-law, Raymond Thibodeau, and his family had not been feeling well all week, but he was alarmed by Thibodeau's telephone call Friday morning.

His wife, Evon, took the call and relayed her concern to him.

"He said they all had the flu, but it sounded like something more than that to me. They were all over here Christmas for dinner and they were in good spirits, except for the headaches they had," Sutcliffe said.

Sutcliffe and his wife decided to make the five-minute drive to their daughter's home to make sure they were all right.

A delay of five more minutes and his daughter, her husband and two of their three children would have died, fire officials said. A third child, a 13-year-old daughter, had stayed with the Sutcliffes Christmas night.

The front door was unlocked when they arrived. "When we got in there, we knew it wasn't the flu," Sutcliffe said.

Their daughter, Charlene, and her husband were in their first floor bedroom. They responded to Sutcliffe's voice but were incoherent.

Upstairs, Denise, 15, was lying unconscious on the bathroom floor. Mark, 18, was in his bed. Sutcliffe and his wife could not get a reaction from either of them.

"The smell of gas fumes was strong," Sutcliffe said. "It was the kind of thing, if you'd been there all along you probably wouldn't notice. But coming in from the fresh air it really seemed strong."

He and his wife threw doors open and raised windows, smashing the glass from those that were frozen shut. Then they called police, who sent a fire department rescue squad.

The Thibodeaus were treated for carbon monoxide poisoning at the Pawtuxet Valley Emergency Room. The two youngsters were taken to Kent County Memorial Hospital. All were released by late Friday afternoon.

"I would say that in another five minutes or so they all would have been dead," Fire Chief Stanley Mruk said later.

A Providence Gas Co. crew traced the source of the fumes to a jammed vent on the natural-gas water heater in the cellar. Because the vent was jammed, the carbon monoxide gas produced in the heater was circulated through the house by the forced air heating system.

Normally, the odorless carbon monoxide gas would have been vented outside. The Sutcliffes smelled other byproducts of the burned fuel.

Sutcliffe said there was no way of knowing how long the vent had been broken, but the family apparently had been suffering mildly from the effects of the gas all week.

On Thursday night Thibodeau felt too sick to light the two wood stoves that usually warm the house at night. Instead the forced air system was left on to run full force through the night.

Pols return home

RUSSELL, Kan. (AP) — Residents of this central Kansas town of 5,400 people have two good reasons to consider themselves well-represented in the U.S. Senate, and both reasons were visiting Saturday.

The guests of honor for a two-hour ceremony were Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Sen.-elect Arlen Specter, R-Pa., both of whom call Russell home.

Dole, 57, was born and reared in Russell and served as state representative and Russell County attorney before he was elected to Congress in 1960.

Specter, 50, was born in Wichita and moved to Russell in 1942 at the age of 12. After receiving a law degree from Yale, he established a law practice in Philadelphia.

Grasso shows improvement

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Gov. Ella Grasso's condition as measured by lab tests has shown "slight improvement" over the past two days, James Battaglio, a Hartford Hospital spokesman, said Saturday.

Mrs. Grasso, 61, being treated for intestinal and liver cancer, was able to sit up in a chair after having been confined to bed with a fever, Battaglio said. He said that although she still could not eat solid food, her intake of clear liquids was being increased.

Mrs. Grasso, who is resigning her office effective Wednesday because of her health, had a set of X-rays taken Friday to determine why she had not been able to resume eating solid food. She also had lab tests to find the effects of chemotherapy on her cancer.

Koch tours Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — New York City Mayor Edward Koch strolled through Jerusalem's Old City on Saturday, touring Moslem holy sites and controversial archaeology digs dating back 2,000 years.

Koch was escorted by a half-dozen soldiers armed with assault rifles as he walked through the narrow lanes munching falafel, deep-fried balls of ground chick-peas.

The security was the heaviest since he arrived in Israel three days ago and apparently prompted a question to his guides about terrorism in the Old City. Jerusalem has been the scene recently of Palestinian unrest, but Koch was told reports of violence were exaggerated.

The mayor is on a nine-day trip to Israel, the second leg of a Mideast vacation that also took him to Egypt. He has discussed Mideast problems with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin, but insists he is on "a pleasure trip."

DOLPHIN PEAK — Miami Dolphin's head coach Don Shula (L.) looks over prospects with University of Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer. Oklahoma's team is practicing on the Dolphin's terrain in preparation for the 47th Annual Orange Bowl Classic to be played in Miami January 1.

Friendships will cease when Oilers visit Raiders in AFC Wild Card bout

OAKLAND (AP) — When the Oakland Raiders and Houston Oilers meet in their National Football League playoff Sunday at Oakland, it could be a case of an irresistible force vs. an immovable object.

The force is Houston's offense, with Earl Campbell doing the rushing and Ken Stabler the passing. Thanks to them, the Oilers were second to San Diego in offense this season in the NFL.

The object is Oakland's defense, led by linebacker Ted Hendricks and ball-hawking cornerback Lester Hayes, a unit which some feel is as good as the defense that helped the Raiders win the Super Bowl in 1976.

Oakland and Houston, both 11-5, are the wild card teams that will begin the American Conference playoffs. The National Conference wild card game, also Sunday, will have Los Angeles, 11-5, at Dallas, 12-4.

The Rams, behind quarterback Vince Ferragamo, will be trying to knock Dallas out of the playoffs for the second year in a row. Last December, Ferragamo fired three touchdown passes against the Cowboys, a feat he repeated in a 38-14 Monday night victory two weeks ago.

Raider fans will be familiar with the sight of Stabler throwing passes to All-Pro tight end Dave Casper. Both played for many years with Oakland before being dealt to Houston in separate deals.

Stabler, who came to Houston for Dan Pastorini, said, "It'll be nice to see the guys I played with again." But he emphasized, "The main thing is not to get caught up in all the rhetoric about going back to Oakland."

Campbell, by far the leading rusher in the NFL, racked up 1,934 yards this season, including 203 in last week's regular season finale.

"We'll be playing against probably the greatest pure passer and best and most powerful running back the game has ever known," said Raiders defensive end John Matuszak.

"I've never played against anyone who was such a good friend," said Matuszak of Stabler, his former roommate. "But I'll have no trouble putting it out of my mind. We want to win badly, and we're gonna win."

Hendricks, who has had one of the best seasons in his 12-year NFL career, said he isn't sure how he'll react to the reunion.

"I'll let you know how I feel when the game starts," he said.

Hayes, who led the NFL with 13 interceptions, said he does not expect to see the same Stabler he used to play with.

"He's not the same quarterback he was when he was here," said Hayes. "His receivers are running shorter routes now and he's not throwing to his outside receivers as much."

The Raiders will be led on offense by recycled quarterback Jim Plunkett, who came off the bench in the fifth game of the season when Pastorini went down with a broken leg.

Another former Oiler, running back Kenny King, came to Oakland in an off-season trade for safety Jack Tatum. He went on to lead the Raiders in rushing and gain a Pro Bowl berth.

"I feel like this is going to be my playoffs, I really do," said King, who will be coming off an ankle injury that kept him out of action last weekend.

Who is NCAA football champ?

Georgia loss in Sugar would create turmoil

By The Associated Press

"We haven't proved ourselves in the eyes of a lot of people," says Vince Dooley, coach of the nation's only unbeaten and untied major college football team.

Dooley's top-ranked Georgia Bulldogs get a final opportunity on New Year's Day to convince the sceptics and also to win their first-ever national championship when they go up against seventh-ranked Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl.

A Georgia victory most likely would make the final Associated Press poll a foregone conclusion, but a loss — perhaps even a tie — would throw the national championship up for grabs.

"If Georgia loses, our game ought to be next ... if we win," says Bobby Bowden, coach of runner-up Florida State, which meets fourth-ranked Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Night.

A Georgia loss and a Florida State victory would leave both teams with 11-1 records, but Bowden says his Seminoles, "would have the statistics to back up what we say. We'd have beaten Oklahoma, Nebraska and Pitt.

"I hope when we tee it up, it will be for No. 1. But I think we'll have plenty of incentive even if Georgia wins. For Florida State, fighting to be No. 2 would be an accomplishment."

And what of third-ranked Pittsburgh, which meets No. 18 South Carolina in the Gator Bowl Monday night? The Panthers are 10-1, but their one setback came at the hands of Florida State. Besides, no national champion has ever come out of a bowl other than the so-called Big Four.

"I think we have a good enough team to be ranked in the top five and anybody in the top five is good enough to have a shot at the national championship," says Coach Jackie Sherrill.

"The possibilities exist for us to attain our goal. Our players know what's at stake and they know what has to be done. They'll have a reason and a purpose to be playing on Dec. 29."

Suppose Georgia, Florida State and Pitt all lose? Oklahoma and fifth-ranked Michigan, which faces No. 16 Washington in the Rose Bowl, both are 9-2, but since The AP poll began in 1936, no team has ever captured the national championship with two setbacks.

Besides, Michigan is more concerned with ending Coach Bo Schembechler's embarrassing 7-7 bowl record than with winning national honors.

"I get upset sometimes when people keep talking about our bowl record," says Schembechler, who has an overall 113-21 mark in 12 seasons at Michigan.

Sixth-ranked Baylor has a 10-1 record but it remains to be seen whether the Bears can vault over five teams even with an impressive Cotton Bowl triumph over defending two-time national champion Alabama, which is ranked ninth with a 9-2 mark.

"It was just one of those dream seasons," says Coach Grant Teaff, whose team breezed through the tough Southwest Conference but dropped a nonleague encounter to unheralded San Jose State.

"Everything just fell into place. My players never for one minute thought of themselves as anything but championship material."

"Baylor has one of the top three or four teams in the nation and has a lot of motivation on their side since we beat them last year," said Bear Bryant.

"They have a chance to still win the national championship if things fall right, and you can't tell what will happen in bowl games."

The Bear ought to know. He is taking Alabama on its 22nd consecutive bowl trip and its 34th over-all, both national records.

Cowboys-Rams renew playoff rivalry

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have a score to settle with the Los Angeles Rams Sunday in Texas Stadium.

The score is 38-14, to be exact, the margin by which the Rams routed Dallas just two short weeks ago in a nationally televised embarrassment at Anaheim.

"Getting beat like that is something you never really forget," said Dallas offensive tackle Pat Donovan on the eve of Sunday's 12:30 p.m. kickoff in the National Conference wildcard playoff game. "I have to think what happened to us in Anaheim will work to our advantage."

Donovan said Dallas seems to play better when it's pushed to the brink.

"Last year, for instance, we won several big games right at the end of the season and I think maybe we let down around Christmas," said Donovan. "Los Angeles came in and caught us napping and beat us."

The Rams, who eventually played in their first Super Bowl before losing to Pittsburgh, downed Dallas 21-19 behind quarterback Vince Ferragamo's long touchdown strikes.

Donovan said "Generally our team forgets about what happened the week before — win or lose — pretty quickly. But we haven't forgotten the Ram game."

Dallas linebacker Bob Breunig said "Having a chance for redemption should prove to be a good motivator. But then, all the playoff incentives should be enough to get motivated."

Dallas was rated a field goal advantage by the odds-makers. If the Rams win, they will travel to Philadelphia to continue the National Football League round-robin Jan. 3.

If the Cowboys prevail, they'll travel to Atlanta to play the Falcons Jan. 4.

The Rams flew to Dallas Friday so they could get in two solid workouts in Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys and Rams have met in the playoffs five times in the past seven years. Only once has the home team prevailed in that span.

It's Los Angeles' first appearance in the NFL playoffs as a wild card but the Cowboys took that road to the Super Bowl in 1975.

"We've matured an awful lot since the Rams whipped us two weeks ago," said Dallas strong safety Charlie Waters. "Now, we've got to go out on the field and prove it."

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The No. 8-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers, gambling at every turn with such exotics as reverses, laterals, flea flickers and a fake field goal, overwhelmed mistake-prone 17th-ranked Mississippi State 31-17 Saturday behind senior quarterback Jeff Quinn in the 46th Sun Bowl.

Quinn, who was named the most valuable player of the game, threw two touchdown passes including a game-clinching 52-yarder to Tim McCrady with three minutes, 21 seconds remaining in the game to beat back any Bulldog upset notions.

The 14-point favorite Cornhuskers came out wheeling and dealing to score on their first offensive

Dr. Swatzky cans hole-in-one

The grinch didn't steal Christmas as far as Dr. Howard Swatzky is concerned, although Santa came a day late.

Swatzky stroked a hole-in-one in a golf round at the Big Spring Country Club Friday and the ace spurred him to his best round ever, a 71.

Howard's hole-in-one came on the 170-yard seventh hole and he used a three-iron to achieve the trick.

Playing with Swatzky were Ted Hull, E.L. (Son) Powell, Harold Davis and Bobby Heith.

NFL playoffs have changed

By The Associated Press

While six teams figuratively sit on sidelines, the National Football Conference's Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys and the American Conference's Houston Oilers and Oakland Raiders meet Sunday to determine who shall take the next big step on the road to Super Bowl XIV.

Those other six are the division winners, the teams which earned a first-round bye in what has now become a four-story climb to the National Football League championship.

The Philadelphia Eagles and Atlanta Falcons know they'll be hosting the second round. If the Cowboys win Sunday's game, they'll be in Atlanta and Minnesota, the third NFC division champ, will go to Philly. But if the Rams win, they'll visit the Eagles while the Vikings will head into Falcon territory.

In the AFC, Oakland will play at Cleveland if it beats Houston and San Diego will host Buffalo in the second round. If the Oilers win, they'll head out to San Diego and Buffalo will meet the Browns in Cleveland.

Only one wild-card team, the 1975 Dallas Cowboys, have made it as far as the Super Bowl (interestingly, they knocked off Minnesota and Los Angeles along the way). They were beaten by Pittsburgh, the second of the four Super Bowl games won by the Steelers.

It's taken a long time to get to this multi-tiered level.

A long time ago, it was just one step. In the early 1960s, the two division winners met for the NFL title (while two other division winners met for the championship of that "other" league, the still-young American Football League).

Back then, there was no Super Bowl. It wasn't until Jan. 15, 1967, following the 1966 seasons, that just winning a league title wasn't enough. That became the preliminary to the NFL-AFL championship (they didn't call it the Super Bowl until a couple of years later).

In 1967 and for the succeeding two years, while the AFL remained a two-division (Eastern and Western) league, the NFL split into four divisions within Eastern and Western conferences. NFL trivia buffs will remember the

Purdue claims Liberty

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — All-American quarterback Mark Herrmann, major college football's all-time passing king, wound up his career Saturday by completing 22 of 28 passes for 289 yards and four touchdowns in leading Purdue to a 28-25 victory over Missouri in the 22nd annual Liberty Bowl.

Herrmann threw scoring passes of 8 and 27 yards to Bart Burrell, his high school teammate from Carmel.

Wilder, Stevens doing fine coaching job at HC Rams have the flu, but Too Tall questionable

Although it's a little too early for total congratulations, there's still room for a pat on the back to the local basketball coaches, with special mention to the Howard College program.

Combining the men's and women's record at Howard College, the teams are 4-1 in conference play and a sparkling 22-5 on the year. The Hawks men's team of Coach HAROLD WILDER is a perfect 3-0 in Western Conference play and 11-3 on the year, while DON STEVENS Hawk Queens women's team is 1-1 in league play and 11-2 on the year.

What's even more impressive at this stage is that both teams at HC were not blessed with an abundance of returning talent.

The Hawk Queens women's team has only two sophomores on the team, while the Hawks returned only two starters, and had to find a replacement for All-Region V scoring and rebounding ace Mike Wallace.

Both Wilder and Stevens have done excellent jobs thus far, and if their strong freshmen classes continue to improve as the season progresses after Christmas, they'll both probably be in the Western Conference race going into the final week in late February with chances to win the whole shooting match.

Word out of the Los Angeles Ram camp is that many of that NFL team's players are suffering from the flu as they approach this afternoon's game with the Dallas Cowboys. But the Cowboys aren't buying any of it. As Dallas defensive end LARRY COLE says: "The Rams always seem to have more players sick or hurt than anybody."

The Cowboys aren't totally healthy, however, as ED (TOO TALL) JONES has a severely sprained left big toe. That might not sound like much, but it has kept Too Tall from working out this week.

Too Tall insists that he won't take any pain killer for the injury. "No way," he said. "If pain is the only problem, I can handle it for two or three hours."

"If I can run by game time," Too Tall said Saturday, "I'm going to see if I can go. But if I can't run it is pretty obvious that I can't be effective. I'm not going to go out there and play at 50 or 60 percent. If the thing doesn't improve, I'm not going to play."

That could mean serious problems to the Cowboys. There's no doubt that LA quarterback Vince Ferragamo will test the Cowboy secondary as much as possible, and without Too Tall's pass rush, it makes the job of the passer so much easier.

12 Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders will be missing from the Wild Card Playoff today, as they are in South Korea presenting shows for 12 days for the American troops on some isolated bases. They left December 22 and will return January 2.

The LA Rams are the only NFC team and one of just five teams in the NFL (Cleveland, Houston, Miami and Pittsburgh) which holds a series lead over the Cowboys. The Rams lead 9-7.

While ex-Raiders now Houston Oilers KEN STABLER, DAVE CASPER and JACK TATUM are all downplaying their return to the Oakland Coliseum in today's playoff, ex-Oiler now Raider KENNY KING is not.

Stabler said earlier this week. "I'm looking forward to going back, but I don't want my preparations for the game to get caught up in all the rhetoric."

But King, a schoolboy star at Clarendon, Texas, and later at OU, admits the Houston-Oakland Wild Card Playoff means a little more to him. "There will be more emotion for me playing Houston than if we were playing Buffalo or Cleveland. I have a lot of friends at Houston, and I know they're going to be out to stick me."

According to NFL stats ARCHIE MANNING of the New Orleans Saints was ranked sixth in total yardage passing in the league and eighth in the NFL in efficiency rating. Still, the Saints finished with an embarrassing 1-15 record.

Some blame Manning for much of the Saints problems, but the feeling here is that if Archie were on a contending team, he'd be one of the very best around.

While EARL CAMPBELL's 1934 yards rushing is a Houston Oilers record and the second highest single season mark in NFL history, it's still going to cost him some 21,000 dollars.

With four weeks remaining in the season, Campbell told his offensive linemen and fullback Tim Wilson that if he broke O.J. Simpson's record of 2,004 yards, he would buy each of them watches. Prices for the designated watches begin at $350 dollars.

When it became evident he would not break the "Juice's" record, Campbell said he would still buy the watches if he exceeded his team mark of 1,697. Needless to say, he easily surpassed that, and also put himself in the position of having to shell out the $21,000.

It's a little ironic that Port Arthur Jefferson quarterback TODD DODGE broke some of ex-San Antonio Lee and Rice University star TOMMY KRAMER's high school passing records in his team's semifinal win over San Antonio Holmes.

On the next day, Kramer completed 38 of 49 passes versus Cleveland, including a game winner from 50 yards out on the final play of the game, to defeat Cleveland and help the Vikings claim the NFC Central title.

If Dodge lives up to the person whose record he surpassed, he'll be worth some handsome money in a few years. Kramer makes over $250,000 per year in his fourth season in the NFL at the age of 25.

Sporting quotes

Arkansas Football Coach LOU HOLTZ, on why he didn't go into medicine: "When Tom Jones came off the field with a broken nose in the first half of the Texas Tech game, I couldn't even look at it. You know, there are only two reasons I'm not a doctor. First, I can't stand the sight of blood and second I'm not very smart. Other than that I would have gone to medical school."

BUTCH van BREDA KOLFF, on the differences between coaching in the NBA and the new women's basketball league: "The timeouts smell a lot better."

LYLE ALZADO of the Cleveland Browns was complaining about being held by an offensive tackle. Coach SAM RUTIGLIANO consoled him. Said Rutigliano: "Guys don't bother to hold lousy defensive ends."

Mistakes hurt Bulldogs in Sun Bowl

down in the first 2½ minutes of the game after a Bulldog bobble to set the tone of the game on this perfect football day.

The play came on a perfectly timed reverse that left the Bulldog defense tangled-footed as Brown scored untouched.

Big 8 conference runner-up Nebraska continued to play it loose although a lateral pass and a flea flicker in which the fullback tossed the ball back to Quinn who threw an incompletion failed to produce any points. However, a fake field goal setup Kevin Seibel's chip-shot 22-yarder in the second quarter.

Nebraska, which finished the year 10-2, led 17-0 at halftime on Quinn's 8-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jeff Finn.

Mississippi State of the Southeastern Conference had its moments as freshman quarterback John Bond spanked some second half life into the Bulldogs, who finished the season 9-3.

Bond ran for a score and threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to fullback Michael Haddix with 1 minute to play in the game.

Bond took the Bulldogs to the Cornhusker 30-yard line before Dana Moore kicked a 47-yard field goal to get State on the board 7:12 deep in the third period.

After Andra Franklin charged 2-yards for a touchdown to make it 24-3, Bond engineered Mississippi State on a classy 76 yard drive in which he completed passes of 22 and 24 yards. He scored himself on a fourth down keeper from a yard away. Nebraska defensive end Jimmy Williams was voted the MVP for the linemen.

It was the first meeting in history between the two schools and the largest crowd in Sun Bowl history — 34,723 — turned out in perfect football weather with temperatures in the mid-60s and little wind.

For Mississippi State, it was the Bulldogs' first post-season appearance since 1974 while Nebraska was playing in its 12th consecutive bowl.

Tripucka's charity boosts Notre Dame by Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Forward Kelly Tripucka scored 30 points, including 14 free throws in the second half, as eighth-ranked Notre Dame broke a seven-year losing streak to Kentucky by upsetting the No. 2 Wildcats 67-61 in a college basketball showdown Saturday night.

The Irish used a smothering zone defense and a ball-control offense to throw their seventh straight victory since a season-opening loss to UCLA, handing Kentucky its first loss in seven games.

The Irish had a 25-1 free throw advantage in the second half in recording their first triumph over Kentucky since a 94-79 victory in 1973.

Pittsburgh not in playoffs since 1971

Capitol, Century, Coastal and Central divisions. Thus, it became three steps in the NFL to the ultimate title: the two division winners within a conference meeting, then the two conference winners playing, then the NFL champ playing the NFL champ.

The three steps remained when today's two-division, six-division setup was established for the 1970 season following the finalization of the merger. That's when "wild card" entered the lexicon of sports with two runner-up teams, one from each conference, making the playoffs along with the six division winners. The second wild card in each conference, bringing in the fourth step, was added for the 1978 season. That's where it stands today.

In this year of transition, the most notable changes in the playoff format are that Pittsburgh isn't a part of it for the first time since 1971 (the last time Cleveland was a division winner). Buffalo is a division champion for the first time since the 1966 AFL season. Philadelphia is a division champ for the first time since 1960 (when it won the NFL title) and Atlanta is a division champ for the first time ever. Oakland, a preseason selection by many to finish at or near the bottom of the heap, surprised everyone by returning to the playoffs after a two-year absence. And Houston, which had been a wild card behind Pittsburgh the past two years, helped to knock the Steelers out of the playoffs, only to find themselves behind the Browns this time.

Herrmann led Purdue takes win

Ind., who broke one Liberty Bowl receiving record and tied two others by catching eight of Herrmann's tosses for 113 yards.

Herrmann's first touchdown pass to Burrell opened the scoring at 11:29 of the first period and the 27-yarder gave the Boilermakers a 28-12 lead with five minutes left in the third quarter. It also enabled them to withstand a Missouri rally that produced a 45-yard field goal by Ron Verrilli, a safety, and Terry Hill's 1-yard touchdown plunge in the final 19 minutes.

The 6-foot-4 sharpshooter also threw second-period touchdown passes of 43 yards to Steve Bryant and 5 yards to All-American tight end Dave Young, the nation's leading receiver during the regular season.

But despite his aerial fireworks, which smashed the Liberty Bowl mark of 218 yards set by David Jaynes of Kansas against North Carolina State in 1973, Herrmann fell 54 yards shy in his attempt to become major college football's first 10,000-yard passer. Including three bowl games, he wound up with 9,946 yards.

Herrmann, who completed 13 of 17 passes for 180 yards in the first half, paced the Boilermakers to a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter before Missouri got on the board when George Shortz and Ron Fellows combined on a 92-yard kickoff return.

Missouri's James Wilder scored on a 1-yard run at 8:44 of the second period, but the Tigers trailed 14-12 because Verrilli missed the conversion try after their first touchdown and Phil Bradley's two-point pass attempt after Wilder's touchdown was intercepted.

DePaul lives up to No. 1 billing

CHICAGO (AP) — All-American Mark Aguirre scored a game-high 23 points and Terry Cummings added 19 as top-ranked and unbeaten DePaul raced past previously undefeated UCLA 93-77 Saturday in a nationally televised college basketball game.

Both teams roared out of the starting blocks, with DePaul's Teddy Grubbs providing six quick points for an early 16-14 Blue Demon lead. A steal by Clyde Bradshaw which led to Skip Dillard's breakaway layup pushed the DePaul cushion to 24-20 with seven minutes left in the half.

From there, Aguirre scored seven of his 15 first-half points to key a 15-3 scoring stretch that lifted DePaul to a comfortable 39-23 margin with almost three minutes remaining.

Only Darren Daye's 11 first-half points kept the Bruins in the game at the new Rosemont Horizon. He scored their final six points as DePaul, shooting 63 percent from the floor, took a 47-29 lead at the intermission.

DePaul was able to open an 18-point lead by nullifying UCLA's great quickness at the guard spots. Rod Foster, who led the Bruins with 19 points, had only one at halftime and his backcourt partner, Michael Holton, had none.

After Cummings opened the second half with a short jumper, UCLA tore off eight quick points to close within 49-37. But Cummings countered with a pair of baskets and Dillard led Aguirre for a breakaway slam dunk.

Even with Coach Ray Meyer shuffling among his first seven players, DePaul widened the gap to 68-45 with 10 minutes to go and the Demons never were seriously threatened after that.

Reserve Bernard Randolph chipped in 14 points for the Demons, now 9-0. UCLA, which slipped to 6-1, also got 16 points from Greg Pruitt.

GOING UP — DePaul's Skip Dillard goes up for shot over block thrown up by UCLA's Michael Holton during game in Rosemont, Ill., Saturday.

Bryant surprised that Baylor is underdog

Crimson Tide likes Cotton climate

DALLAS (AP) — Major Ogilvie threw a big grin at the blue skies and 65-degree temperatures that greeted the Alabama football team upon its arrival here Saturday to begin final preparations for the Cotton Bowl game Thursday against Baylor.

"It's great. It's usually hot in Alabama, but it was snowing yesterday when we left practice," the 6-0, 194-pound running back said.

"I love it," quarterback Don Jacobs echoed. "We've been working out in temperatures of 28 or 29 degrees, and it kind of gets cold on the hands."

odds makers say, but Bryant told sportswriters at an afternoon news conference on the Cotton Bowl field, "I don't think we have any type of edge. I think they do."

Bryant said he's surprised Baylor is an underdog, since Baylor went unbeaten in Southwest Conference play and 10-1 for the season, while Alabama lost two games in a 9-2 season.

"I would have thought they'd have 'em overdogs," he said. "I don't know a great deal about Baylor, but I saw a couple of their films and I'm very impressed with them. We recognize they have a great kicking game. They probably blocked more kicks than anybody in the history of football," Bryant said.

The Bears blocked 13 kicks last season, with five of them by defensive end Max McGeary, raising his career total to 16. Baylor also scored a school record five safeties, all of them on punt plays where the ball was either snapped over the punter's head or the Bears blocked the attempts.

"You've got to keep from losing before you can win, and they've done a great job of that this year. They have a great outside game and a great quarterback," the Alabama coach said.

Teaff should have no trouble getting Baylor ready for Alabama, Bryant said, because of the Crimson Tide's 45-0 victory over Baylor in 1979.

"I'm afraid they haven't forgotten that. So I'm sure he has an easy job as far as motivating his team to play us. But there are two sides to that. Our team is used to winning, too, and they've got a lot of pride," Bryant said.

"We know they're good, and we're glad they are. We think they're one of the top four or five football teams in the nation, and we think we are too. We're very excited about playing the game."

Baylor, the No. 6 team in the nation, and Alabama, ranked No. 9, were presented cowboy hats and belt buckles by 45 Dallas beauties who greeted them. Mayor Robert Folsom presented head coaches Grant Teaff of Baylor and Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama with keys to the city.

Then both teams went to the Cotton Bowl, on the Texas state fairgrounds just a mile southeast of downtown Dallas, for short workouts on the artificial surface.

Alabama is a 3½-point favorite in its 22nd consecutive bowl appearance.

Retained as coach, fired as GM

Starr stunned by move

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr was retained as head coach of the Green Bay Packers but, in effect, was fired as general manager Saturday by the National Football League club's board of directors.

Starr, an NFL Hall of Fame member who quarterbacked the Packers to five league championships and two Super Bowl triumphs during the 1960s, was retained as coach for 1981, the final year of his current contract.

Starr, visibly shaken when he met with reporters after the announcement by club president Dominic Olejniczak, hedged when asked several times whether he considered the move a demotion or whether he would remain as coach under a new general manager. No general manager has been named.

"I think it would depend on how we are structured totally," Starr said. "I don't know exactly the lines on which we will function. I'll wait and see how they divide it up before I comment extensively."

He said anything else he might say on the matter might be "ill-advised and inappropriate."

"I just want time to digest all this and to reflect on this," he said. "This is coming at me like it's coming at you — right between the eyes. I think a number of factors will weigh heavily. I'll let you know in 24 hours or more."

Olejniczak said a search for a general manager would begin immediately, adding that the 45 member board of directors has not considered any possible candidates. He said the board also has not decided how the general managership will be structured and how much authority the new man will have.

STARR REACTS — Packer Head Coach Bart Starr faces reporters after being told that he will no longer hold the position of General Manager with the team. The decision was made Saturday by the Packer Board of Directors.

Anderson led Hogs explode

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Sophomore running back Gary Anderson, revitalized after a four-week rest, scored two touchdowns from long range and set up another touchdown with a 44-yard run as Arkansas clobbered Tulane 34-15 in the Hall of Fame Bowl Saturday night.

Anderson returned a punt 80 yards for one touchdown and cut back across the grain for 46 yards and another score as Arkansas jumped out to a 28-0 halftime lead. Both the punt return and the scoring run set records in the 4-year-old bowl.

Both teams finished the season with 7-5 records.

Anderson was moved to wide receiver for the Razorbacks' regular season finale but returned to running back for the bowl game. He was switched to receiver because of the pounding he took during the season, because that is where he is expected to play next year and because Arkansas needed help at that position.

He rushed for more than 500 yards in the Razorbacks' first seven games but managed only 46 yards in 14 carries in the next three games.

Fresh, he was too much for Tulane. He carried eight times for 126 yards in the first half and wound up with 156 yards on 11 carries.

Meanwhile, Nickie Hall, Tulane's strong-armed quarterback, had trouble throwing against Arkansas. Rarely was he able to find a receiver open downfield and had to be satisfied dumping the ball off to a short man.

In fact, Hall threw 22 times in the first half and his favorite receiver, Robert Griffin, managed only two catches.

Tulane got on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter, making it 31-7, when Hall hit a wide open Marcus Anderson on a 62-yard pass play with 11:42 left in the game.

OT free throw sinks Arkansas

Another night for Gervin results in easy Spur win

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — George Gervin tossed in 34 points and San Antonio never trailed Saturday night as the hot-shooting Spurs cruised past the Utah Jazz 142-117 in a National Basketball Association contest.

San Antonio scored 10 unanswered points to jump to a 16-point lead, 28-12, with 2:43 left in the first period. But then Utah outscored

San Antonio 13-2 and was behind only 30-25 at the end of the first period.

Allan Bristow hit a free throw to open the second period to narrow the gap to four points, but it was all San Antonio after that. The Spurs led 67-51 at halftime and 102-85 at the end of three quarters.

James Silas added 22 points for the Spurs, who shot 65 percent from the floor.

Rallying Nittany Lions to win over Ohio State

Penn State fish QB makes big difference

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — All quarterback would decide week long, Penn State Coach Joe Paterno was saying a Fiesta Bowl game between his 10th-ranked Nittany Lions and No. 11 Ohio State.

"We feel we can run against anybody," Warner said. "Our offensive line is that good. I just went with the flow."

McAdoo's back, but Pistons lose

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — His timing was off, he was out of shape and his foot hurt. Even so, Bob McAdoo — back in the Detroit Pistons lineup after missing 50 games because of injuries — managed to score 15 points and grab 10 rebounds in 30 minutes of playing time.

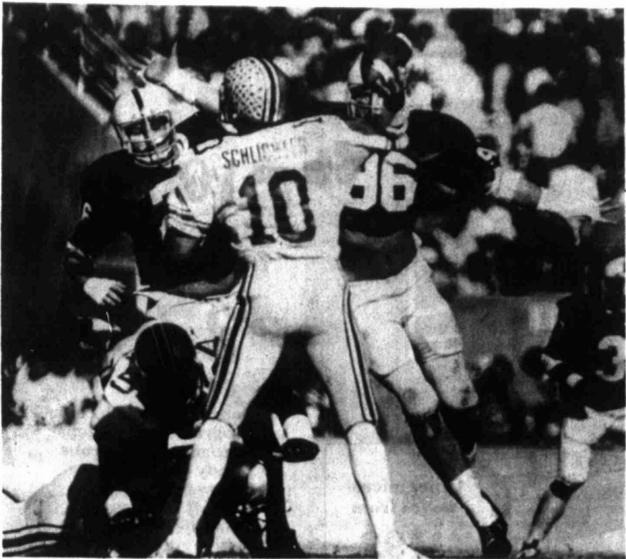

Overcoming a slow start, Todd Blackledge directed Penn State to three touchdowns in the second half as the Nittany Lions notched a 31-19 come-from-behind victory over Ohio State.

Blackledge's three-yard touchdown run on a bootleg capped a 75-yard drive early in the third quarter and made it 19-17.

But it wasn't enough. Anchored by the play of Moses Malone and Rudy Tomjanovich, the Houston Rockets rolled to a 114-94 National Basketball Association victory over the Pistons Friday night.

Blackledge, a native of North Canton, Ohio, who was shunned by Buckeye recruiters, directed a Penn State ground game that amassed 351 yards. He also hit four of eight passes for 68 yards in the final 30 minutes.

Freshman tailback Jonathan Williams' four-yard scoring carry, coupled with a 37-yard touchdown run by fullback Booker Moore with 45 seconds to play, sealed the Nittany Lion victory.

PUTTING PRESSURE — Penn State defenders Micky Urquhart (left) and Frank Case pressure Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter (10) during the second half of the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., Friday. Schlichter, who passed for three touchdowns during the first half couldn't get together a scoring effort in the entire second half as Ohio State lost to Penn State, 31-19.

Teaff appears confident as Baylor preps for Bama

DALLAS (AP) — Baylor football coach Grant Teaff says he doubts he will have to remind his sixth-ranked Bears that they were pulverized the one and only time the school ever played Alabama, their opponent in the Cotton Bowl next week.

quandary this season," said the 46-year-old Teaff.

They employ an odd-man front, but they give you a lot of different looks from it."

"It's going to be mentioned enough by you guys," Teaff told sports writers Friday at a hotel news conference after his arrival in Dallas.

The Bears' offense is in the hands of junior quarterback Jay Jeffrey, younger brother of Neal Jeffrey who took the Bears to the Cotton Bowl six years ago. The QB spot was a question mark before the season, but Jeffrey was named all-Southwest Conference for the way he directed the Baylor option.

Teaff called the Alabama defense "the best we will have faced this year" and dished out special praise to 'Bama linebackers Thomas Boyd and Randy Scott and defensive end E.J. Junior.

"Our players are astute enough. I don't have to tell them. They know they got beat 45-0 last year," Teaff added.

Jeffrey is considered an above-average runner and passer, and Teaff feels Jeffrey's backup, sophomore David Mangrum, has the best arm in the league, if not the nation.

"Each game is important, and this one is awfully important. Beating Alabama would certainly be the high-water mark for anyone. Whether it's the most important one we've ever played, only time will tell," Teaff said.

Alabama, 9-2, the nation's No. 8 team, is a 3 1/2-point favorite over Baylor, 10-1, but Teaff said he has a much better squad to put on the field for the New Year's Day game than he took to Birmingham in 1979.

"Our offense will be basically the same as it's been all season," Teaff added.

The Baylor coach said his staff has 95 percent of its game plan already installed for Alabama and its wishbone offense and will be adding the final wrinkles in practices the next few days.

"We used three quarterbacks against Alabama, and they were very consistent. They threw two interceptions each. Our quarterback situation is so much better this year. We have not been in as big a seemed intimidated other times and finished with 8 points.

"Offensively, we put a lot of pressure on the perimeter, on the outside, and we've been successful on running against most teams. I'm sure their game plan will be to shut down our outside game," Teaff said.

"We've played the wishbone very well in the past few years, and there will be nothing new in our preparation for this game, really. It's just that we haven't done it recently," Teaff said.

"Naturally, we'll try to do some things that will be sound against their defense.

The crowd helped us. I'm glad this night is over for Kiki's sake," said Dallas coach Dick Motta.

"I've only seen that happen once before. A player made an innocent statement and the press caught it in Cleveland. They booed him all year, and it really hurt the team's performance."

It was only because of Robinzine's foul trouble that Motta sent Abdul Jeelani into the game to start the fourth quarter. Jeelani went on a rampage, scoring 15 of Dallas' 20 points as the Mavs broke from a 93-93 tie to a 113-103 advantage.

Dallas, 5-33, had lost six straight and Denver, 11-24, had lost five straight and 10 of its last 11 going into the game.

Dallas, 5-33, had lost six straight and Denver, 11-24, had lost five straight and 10 of its last 11 going into the game.

The second-year forward out of Wisconsin-Parkside, who has averaged 7.8 points this season, poured 20 points through the hoop in the final period and finished as Dallas' leading scorer.

Denver fought back behind Alex English and David Thompson in the third quarter. English, who had only two points at the half, scored 14 and Thompson 10 to knot the score at 89-all going into the final 12 minutes.

"He's been sick. I told him to get sick again. That's the thing we've been missing the last few games, having a guy coming off the bench and having a super game," Motta said.

Vandeweghe, whom the Nuggets obtained in exchange for their first-round draft choice in 1981, said the crowd didn't bother him much.

"It was nice they care one way or the other. I really didn't think about it," Vandeweghe said.

"I was laughing a little bit. Some of the comments were funny, that's all. They obviously spent some time on some of the things."

Several hand-made signs were on display by the Dallas fans, such as "Kiki, call Daddy" and "Daddy, can I shoot?"

Four arrested in shooting of policeman

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — More charges are due to be filed Monday in the Christmas-night shooting death of city police officer Barry McGuire, whose funeral is scheduled for 2 p.m. that same day, police said.

McGuire, a "quiet and unobtrusive guy," who was "prepared to give his life," according to friends and family, was shot in the head with his own gun Christmas night after he stopped a car for an apparent traffic violation, police reports said.

But the uncle who raised McGuire said the family was "struggling" to cope with the death.

"We will never understand this," said Thomas McGuire, who drove to Amarillo from Guymon, Okla., to be with his nephew's widow, Donia.

Funeral services for McGuire are scheduled for 2 p.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church in Amarillo.

McGuire was "probably prepared to give his life. He loved being a policeman," his uncle said.

McGuire, 26, radioed for help Christmas night after he stopped a car for a routine traffic violation. When other officers arrived, they found McGuire shot in the head with a bullet from his own service pistol.

Ernesto Gutierrez, 17, was arraigned Friday on a capital murder charge in connection with the officer's death. He was arrested in Dumas, at his mother's home, while dozens of law enforcement agents mounted a manhunt that blanketed most of the Panhandle. Peace Justice Gilbert Couch denied bond for Gutierrez.

Three other men, aged 19 and 21, were arrested earlier. Two of them were picked up when their car ran out of gas 17 miles north of Amarillo, the third as he walked along a railroad track in Amarillo.

One of the men, believed to be the driver of the car McGuire stopped, was still wearing handcuffs when arrested.

Officer Stanley Kruljac said McGuire was a "quiet and unobtrusive guy" and the death of the young patrolman "was like losing a friend, like in a brotherhood."

"It makes me kind of sick at my stomach, outraged and hurt at the same time. Few people understand what we go through," said Kruljac. "But whenever an officer dies in the line of duty, a little piece of every policeman dies too."

Police Capt. Herb Hill said McGuire, who joined the force in July 1978, had stopped the suspects late Thursday night when their car ran a red light.

He said McGuire arrested the driver on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, handcuffed him and placed him in his patrol car, then radioed for a backup unit and went to arrest the other three suspects.

Witnesses told police that when McGuire returned to the suspects' car, the three men jumped the officer and managed to get his .357 Magnum service revolver away from him.

Moore County Sheriff's deputies said they found a gun believed to be the officer's service revolver beneath the floor in the home of one of the suspects.

Carter to attend Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sugar Bowl officials say they may have trouble getting tickets for the 150 to 180 people expected to accompany President Carter to the Jan. 1 football classic.

All 76,543 seats in the Superdome were sold or reserved months ago in anticipation of a winner-take-all national championship game.

"The pressure on us for tickets is extreme," Mickey Holmes, the bowl's executive director, said Friday. "It's just so much greater than last year."

The 1981 Sugar Bowl pits No. 1-ranked Georgia, from President Carter's native state, against No. 7 Notre Dame. A victory by Georgia probably would give it the national collegiate football championship.

Carter, the first U.S. president to attend the Sugar Bowl, will arrive about 10:30 a.m., get a police escort from New Orleans International Airport to the Louisiana Superdome for the 1 p.m. kickoff and leave promptly after the game.

Doors closing at Austin's Armadillo

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Armadillo has been crushed under the wheels of progress. Anybody who wants to go home to it — as in the words of the Jerry Jeff Walker song — had better hurry.

The last bash at the old National Guard Armory that helped make the "Austin Sound" audible nationwide is set for New Year's Eve. Commander Cody and the Lost Planet Airmen and Asleep at the Wheel will be playing the Armadillo World Headquarters.

Developers plan to build a 16-story hotel with a seven-story office building and multi-level parking garage on the 7.8 acres on which the Armadillo and other businesses stand.

Ed Ward, music writer for the Austin-American Statesman, said goodbye to the 'Dillo in an article Friday.

Since the beginning, he said, the 'Dillo has rented the building and grounds west of downtown for a nickel a square foot. This year, however, landlord M.K. Hage agreed to sell the land to developers.

The Armadillo had its protectors, but they weren't able to save it from extinction.

In May, a coalition formed to declare the Armadillo an historic landmark, which would halt its demolition.

"They argued," Ward recalled, "that although the building wasn't historically significant, the music scene that it nurtured was, and that the site had cultural and historical worth to the community."

On June 4, the Planning Commission voted unanimously to deny the 'Dillo historic status.

"Armadillo's doom was sealed on June 27, when the City Council voted 5-2 to grant zoning to the hotel-office complex, which had grown from one story to 17 stories in the interim.

Despite pleas from fans, neighborhood residents and a rousing rendition of "London Homesick Blues" — with its "I want to go to the Armadillo" chorus — the Council took almost no time to vote the 'Dillo out of existence," said Ward.

"So now what? So now have a good time while you can."

He said the 'Dillo has scheduled a "monster show" for Saturday night — the Last Great Texas Ball Dance, starring Joe Ely, Butch Hancock, Jimmy Gilmore and the Super-natural Family Band, "and as many other Lubbock musicians" as they can find.

On Sunday, Ward said, there will be a "Gonzo Round-Up" starring Jerry Jeff Walker, Gary P. Nunn and the Sons of the Bunkhouse Band and Stephen Fromholz.

Delbert McClinton and Bugs Henderson will be featured Monday, and there is no word yet on Tuesday's performers.

Tickets for the New Year's Eve party on Wednesday are $25 each.

Quite a few of the last week's shows will be videotaped, said Ward.

He said the building will stand long enough to auction art and mementos "from the historic beer-joint" in mid-January.

"By then, it'll be over," said Ward. "Armadillo World Headquarters will be no more, and very likely the Austin music scene will never be nearly the same again."

SIAMANG SERENADE — A male Siamang, largest of the Gibbon family, puffs up his unique pouch and sings for visitors to Dade's Metrozoo Friday in Miami. The Siamang can weigh as much as 25 pounds, stand four feet high and have an arm span of over five feet. They differ from other Gibbons, having no thumb. They use their lands like hooks as they swing through the trees. Both males and females have naked inflatable throat sacs which they use for vocal stylings.

Coyote population expanding

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Coyotes, those critters that howl at full moons in grade B western movies, are alive, well and expanding their numbers and territory in New York State.

Some experts believe the coyote population may have almost doubled over the past 20 years and expanded beyond the Adirondacks into much of northeastern New York.

Charles will appear as a guest on the program to air early in 1981.

Television year highlighted by what wasn't on the screen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — television year, highlighted as it was, by the absence of the Summer Olympics, the little tube?

It wasn't an epochal season and the proliferation of "reality shows." On the other hand, there were the debates.

Schools using drug-sniffing dogs face legal questions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — School districts using drug-sniffing dogs on their campuses are walking a narrow legal line, according to the Texas Association of School Boards.

"We advise school districts that have a drug sniffer dog program, or are considering one, to work closely with local school attorneys in developing safeguards against any possible legal liability," said a TASB newsletter.

Many school districts are using the trained dogs' keen sense of smell to detect drugs on campus.

The association said conflicting federal court rulings on the dogs might have to be settled by the U.S. Supreme Court.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler has said use of the dogs is an unreasonable search.

"According to Judge Justice, using such dogs to 'sniff search' all the students invades their right of privacy as much as if x-ray machines or electronic bugging devices were used," TASB said in its "Legal Report" newsletter.

Justice's preliminary opinion was issued in September in a suit against the Latexo Independent School District. Full trial of the case is expected in the spring, according to TASB.

"School districts using a drug-sniffing dog program are in an uncomfortable position," TASB said.

Another federal district court judge ruled the use of the dogs is not an unconstitutional search.

That opinion "found the school's interest in controlling drug abuse is greater than the student's expectation of privacy in the air around him that the dog sniffs," said TASB.

Some of the worst TV of 1980 (in no reasoned order):

—The performance by all three networks on Wednesday night of the Republican National Convention. Talk about reality entertainment. You saw the near-creation of a "co-presidency" before your very eyes, telocracy in action.

—The Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, Part II. This is the ABC movie that was made before the Rams knocked Dallas out of the running for the Super Bowl last year. That's why every time one of the actors said the words "Super Bowl," the word "playoffs" came out.

Unimaginative, poorly written and acted, and the jiggle wasn't even up to par. It has the distinction of being the only made-for-TV-movie in creation that was worse than "Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, Part I."

—The Great Revelation episode on CBS' "Dallas." Never in viewer history have so many waited so eagerly, so long, for so little. Kristen shot JR?!? I'm still waiting for the real culprit to step forth.

—"Speak Up America" From beginning to (mercifully speedy) end, this NBC news-entertainment monster was the most grating TV series of 1980. It was a hyped-up "Network" nightmare come to life, exploitive, frenzied and just plain irritating.

"The David Letterman Show." It was a grand flop, but a fine try.

CBS wins race one more time

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS continued to strengthen its grip on the No. 1 position in prime-time television, winning the networks' ratings race for the sixth time in two months, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week ending Dec. 21 showed.

CBS' triumph, its second in a row, came with a big boost from "Dallas," which now has won the ratings competition seven weeks running.

CBS has seven shows among the 10 highest-rated, and ABC two. NBC, which finished last in the competition for the eighth straight week, listed only the "Bob Hope Christmas Show" in the Top 10 — 10th.

"Dallas," which began its remarkable string in November with the most recent survey of 33.8, nearly five points higher than the score for the runner-up, "60 Minutes," also from CBS.

Nielsen says that means of all the country's homes with television, just over a third saw the top-rated episode of "Dallas."

CBS' rating for the period was 19.3, to 17.3 for ABC and 16.5 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.3 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

Five of the week's six lowest-rated shows were, on the other hand, new this season — ABC's "Breaking Away," in the No. 66 position, "Freebie and the Bean" from CBS 67th and NBC's "No. 96" in 68th place. A repeat episode of "Charles Angel's" on ABC was 69th, followed by "Secrets of Midland Heights" on CBS and "NBC Magazine with David Brinkley."

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Dallas," with an average rating for 33.8 representing 26.3 million homes, "60 Minutes," 29.4 or 22.9 million, "Dukes of Hazard," 27.8 or 21.6 million, "M-A-S-H," 25.8 or 20.1 million, "Alice," 25.5 or 19.8 million, "One Day at a Time," 24.6 or 19.1 million, and "The Jeffersons," 23.9 or 18.6 million, all CBS; "Love Boat" and "Hope Christmas Show" 23.2 or 18 million, NBC.

Blossoming December brides

You're never too old

By MICKIE DICKSON

Several December brides are enjoying the 1980 holidays with new families this year.

The Spring City Senior Citizens Center with its three agencies for the aging and Kentwood Older Adult Center provide social outlets for all senior citizens of Howard County and the Big Spring area. The SCSCC is located in the spacious former officer's club of Webb Air Force Base, now Big Spring Industrial Park. The three agencies are the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, the Nutrition Program and the Howard County Council on Aging.

One of the December brides, Martine Sides, received the honor of naming the center when she won the name contest last week.

Martine McDonald married Hewitt Sides in the Senior Citizens Center the morning of Mar. 12, "among their friends."

The couple met while serving in the Retired Senior Volunteer Program at the Veterans Administration Medical Center. The Nutrition Program, another agency through which they had contact, was located at that time in the Dora Roberts Community Center.

Hewitt served in the escort service of VAMC and Martine served in the library among other posts.

Rev. Harland Birdwell of St. Mary's Episcopal Church performed the double ring ceremony in the Whipkey Room of the center. Marguerite Hyden, pianist and R.C. Utley, soloist, provided traditional wedding music. Lucille Krumnow provided the decorations and made the silk flowers for the wedding.

The marriage is the first one for Hewitt, 61, who says he never found anyone before that he wanted to marry. Martine was married to C.A. McDonald in 1935 for 33 years when he passed away in 1969. McDonald was a Cosden employee, and she worked at Merchants Motor Lines, sold real estate and finally took LVN training at Howard College and worked at Hall-Bennett Hospital and did private duty nursing until she retired in 1973.

Sides is an active member of the Primitive Baptist Church and Martine an active member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. She said, "We've never had a fight over our religion."

Martine is a member of Eastern Star, the Friendship Breakfast Club and Rebekah Lodge in addition to her participation in RSVP and the Nutrition Program. The couple play "42", bridge, canasta and other card games with friends and watch football games on TV.

Sides came to Big Spring in 1951 from Tyler to work for the city of Big Spring and the Ponca Wholesale Company from which he retired in 1975 after 20 years.

Martine happily entertained a family that she'd never had before on Christmas when Hewitt's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. John McCauley came over from Colorado City with their son, Bill Mase of 2408 Alabama. The Sides live at 2006 Eleventh Place.

Ressie Dempsey, former program supervisor of the nutrition program, married Virgil Priddy April 9, 1980, having met at the center a year before. The couple live at 705 E. 14.

After talking the Sides into getting married at the center, Ressie and Virgil Priddy slipped off to Stanton and were married by M.L. Gibson, Justice of the Peace.

Mrs. Dempsey said, "We probably have the same problems as young married people do, we have to learn to give a little and take a little."

This December bride was married for 37 years to an oil field worker, J.D. Dempsey, who was ill for over 20 years before his death in September 1978. They had three children, two daughters and a son whom they lost when he was just over two years of age. The Dempseys lived in San Angelo for about 16 years, moving to Big Spring in 1978.

Priddy was also an oil field driller, so both parties to this marriage know what it is to move around a lot. Virgil was married for 20 years to Betty Tolbert of Healdton, Okla. and helped her raise three children by a former marriage, two boys and a girl. He retired about six years ago. The Priddys are spending the holidays quietly at home together. Mrs. Priddy is expecting a new grandchild soon so they will visit her daughter at that time.

A third December bride, Faye Tibbs, married W.B. Gill May 15 at the East Fourth Street Baptist Church with Rev. Guy White, pastor, officiating. The couple met at the center about three months before they married so it must have been "love at first sight."

Faye was married to Jack Tibbs for 50 years, celebrating their Golden wedding anniversary before he died in 1975. The couple had one son, James Kenneth, who lives in Puerto Rico, and two grandchildren.

Gill was born at Gill's Chapel near Fort Worth, which was named for his grandfather, W.B. Gill. Graduating from Mansfield High School, he railroaded for four years with the Ft. Worth-Denver line at Childress.

Going back to the farm at Gill's Chapel during the depression for five years, he married Lowys Watson and moved to Waco. During their 27 year marriage, they had two children, Don Gill of Dallas and Jan Pate, Aransas Pass. He now has five grandchildren.

Gill was also married to the late Flora Belle Wright for 13 years until her death in 1978. Bill's stepchildren from his union are Earline Ballinger, Quail Run Apartments; Rita (Mrs. John) Fort, Silver Heels, and Haskell Wright of California.

Gill worked for the Cooper Wholesale Grocer for ten years, the James Connally Air Force Base commissary for about 15 years then at WAFB for eight years before retiring two years before the base here closed.

Bill Gill was an Elk until he outran them in age, he says, and was voted the Outstanding Man in 1978. Mrs. Gill belongs to the Rebecca Lodge and is active in the East Fourth Street Baptist Church.

The couple celebrated Christmas with Faye's granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ricky (Lisa) Huckleby. Their home is at 1810 Goliah.

Marjorie McGuffey Booher met Winfred Booher at Kentwood Older Adult Center on a day set aside for taking blood pressure, July 11, 1976 and started playing bridge together.

Mrs. Booher came from Thornton, Ark. to Big Spring in 1950. She was married to the late T.A. McGuffey for 35 years before he died in 1974. The couple had one daughter, Marilyn Clark, who lives at 2810 Ann and one granddaughter, Traci, 7. Marjorie retired from Big Spring State Hospital in 1975 where she was an interviewer for vocational rehabilitation for 15 years.

Booher was a bookkeeper, self-employed since 1968 and has lived in West Texas all his life, coming to Big Spring in 1946. He has two children, a boy and a girl, John Booher, San Antonio and Nancy Lackey, Kingsland and two grandchildren.

The Booher's enjoy attending the Senior Citizens dances at the SCSCC here and in Andrews, Midland and Odessa and participating in other senior citizens activities. Winfred is treasurer for KOOC and chairman of the dance committee at SCSCC.

Other senior couples who have married after meeting at one of the older adult facilities are Margaret Gentsch and William Bradberry who live in Fort Davis, Maedell Bennett and Marvin Wood, 309 Washington Blvd.; Imogene Ledbetter and Bill Evans, Stanton; and Katie Floyd and Luther G. Dear Abby

Pearl Harbor Evokes Poignant Memories

DEAR READERS: I asked my readers where they were on Dec. 7, 1941, when they learned the news of Pearl Harbor. Some interesting excerpts from nearly 20,000 responses:

"I was a first-class petty officer aboard the U.S.S. Oklahoma at Pearl Harbor. Abby, 445 of my mates were killed on that ship, so I have no trouble remembering where I was."
LOUIS C. TEMPLETON, EL CAJON, CALIF.

"I was an Army wife in the hospital at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, near Pearl Harbor. I had given birth to our first baby on December 3. When the bombs started to fall, we thought it was bombing practice at Hickam Field. A hysterical nurse rushed into the maternity ward to tell us that we were being attacked by the Japanese! All the new mothers wondered if our babies were safe and if we'd ever see our husbands again. Soon they started bringing in the wounded and dying, and we were all put to work making gauze pads. What a nightmare!"
PHYLLIS M. WALLEN, TAMPA, FLA.

"I was a very young girl, hiding in our basement in Leige, Belgium, listening to the radio. Had we been caught listening to the BBC we might have been shot, as we were under German occupation. Although the attack on Pearl Harbor was infamous, because of it the U.S.A. entered the war, which was the beginning of our freedom."
MICHELINE STONE, MUKILTEO, WASH.

"I was a 15-year-old girl, sitting in a theatre in Buffalo, N.Y., watching a movie called 'King's Row,' starring Ronald Reagan."
GRACE BROWN, HENRIETTA, N.Y.

"We were playing bingo in the basement of a church when a woman ran in and told us that somebody had attacked Pearl Harbor. The dummy next to me said, 'She was probably asking for it. I wonder what she was wearing.'"
SYLVIA IN SYRACUSE

"How could I forget Dec. 7, 1941? That's the day I lost my only brother and my fiance. They were both on the U.S.S. Arizona. They didn't have a fighting chance."
MINNEAPOLIS MEMORY

"I was a quartermaster on a merchant tanker off the coast of New Jersey. I was steering the ship when the chief mate came running to ask, 'Where the hell is Pearl Harbor?' Believe it or not, nobody knew."
THOMAS W. ROE, AUSTIN, TEXAS

How to help leather last

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Nothing looks as fabulous as real leather. And to keep your leather shoes at their very best, try these tips from a recent Seventeen.

Don't wear the same shoes day after day. Constant wear causes moisture buildup inside, encouraging bacteria to breed.

Keep leather clean: Remove surface soil with a brush, then wipe with mild soap and water. Dry with a cloth. Follow up with shoe polish.

If you've walked through an icy area where salt's been spread to melt the ice, remove salt stains from shoes as soon as possible, using a solution of 1 teaspoon of vinegar to 1/4 cup of water.

If leather shoes get wet, put shoe trees inside, or stuff with paper; leave until completely dry.

It is the bride's responsibility to make her friends and relatives as happy with her thank-you note as they made her with their gift. Do make each note sincere and grateful. Your notes may be brief, but they must be interesting as well. Here at ACCENT SHOPPE, we suggest you always include some personal reference, mention the gift by name, and say how and when you expect to use it. And even though the present probably came addressed to you, be sure to include your bridegroom's name in the thank-you note. Now - Write on!
