HOSTAGE FAMILIES MEETING — Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, left, and Algeria's Ambassador to the U.S. Rehda Malek leave a meeting Sunday night with hostage families at Malek's Washington residence and prepare to talk to reporters. Malek is one of the Algerian intermediaries who are helping with efforts to solve the standoff on the U.S. hostages in Iran.

U.S. proposals for hostages outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration offered in mid-November to take 13 steps in exchange for release of the 52 American hostages in Iran, including a freeze on any of the late shah's assets in the United States, State Department documents show.

The proposals, involving vast sums of money and highly technical legal questions, were contained in a five-page, double-spaced document delivered to Algerian intermediaries Nov. 11 by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher and made public Sunday.

The document also said the United States would release $2.5 billion in Iranian capital, assets and properties held by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York once the hostages were released. In addition, all U.S. legal restrictions on $3 billion in Iranian assets abroad would be removed.

The statement said the United States believed the hostages should be released "in the next several days," concurrent with implementation of the U.S. proposals.

That was seven weeks ago.

Iran now is insisting all financial issues be resolved before the hostages are released while the United States says the Americans should be freed first.

Negotiations through Algerian intermediaries are continuing, with another meeting scheduled at the State Department today after 10 hours of apparently inconclusive discussions over the weekend.

Algeria's ambassador to Iran, Abdelkarim Gheraieb, who visited all 52 hostages in Tehran last week, met separately Sunday with President Carter at his Camp David, Md., retreat and some of the captives' families in Washington to report that the Americans are well and in "excellent spirits and morale."

The November statement suggested the Carter administration was willing to go to some lengths to meet Iran's demand for the return of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

It said the United States would prohibit the transfer out of the United States of any properties owned or derived from the shah's estate. In December, the administration went a step further, declaring that this prohibition also would include the properties and assets of the shah's close relatives.

Nonetheless, the question of the disposition of the Pahlavi family's wealth remains divisive. Iran appears to believe at least $10 billion in property belonging to the Pahlavi family can be identified in the United States. The U.S. estimate is a small fraction of that amount.

Beyond that, Iran's price tag for the resolution of all financial issues — $24 billion — has been dismissed by the administration as unreasonable.

It appeared likely the current round of meetings would end before the Carter administration decides on an official response to Iran's conditions.

Carter still uncomfortable after weekend ski accident

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is "still pretty uncomfortable" because of a broken collarbone suffered in a weekend skiing accident, but he does not plan to curtail his activities greatly, the White House says.

Spokeswoman Kate King, saying the 56-year-old president was "not out of commission," noted that Carter met Sunday with three Algerian diplomats at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., to discuss the hostages in Iran.

Carter's left collarbone was broken Saturday when he fell after one of his skis hit a rock along a slope on a nature trail at the Camp David compound. About three inches of snow was on the ground.

He was flown to the Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington for X-rays and treatment and then returned to Camp David.

Carter spokesman Rex Granum said at the time that the president was given medication for pain and fitted with a "figure-eight" harness to hold his shoulders in place. He is expected to wear the harness for six to eight weeks.

Granum quoted the president's physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash, as saying Saturday that Carter was in "considerable pain."

Lukash was skiing with Carter when the accident happened, Granum said. Also with Carter were his wife, Rosalynn, Marine aide John Kline and two Secret Service agents, Granum said.

Lukash put Carter's arm in a sling and immobilized his shoulder before the trip to Bethesda, where the president was treated by Lukash and Capt. Bart Sleemnos, chairman of the Bethesda orthopedics department, Granum said.

The collarbone connects the breastbone to the shoulder. Carter fractured the medial aspect of the left clavicle, the part of the collarbone nearest the breastbone, Granum said, adding that Carter broke the same clavicle during a jujitsu class when he was a midshipman at the Naval Academy in the 1940s.

Carter, who runs three to four miles five times a week, has cross-country skied frequently during his four years as president. The accident Saturday was during his second skiing outing of the day.

Reagan says Iranians should not hold out for better deal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Condemning the Iranian captives as "barbarians," President-elect Ronald Reagan says the United States should not pay ransom for release of the American hostages. And the Iranians, he adds, should not hold out for a better deal after he replaces President Carter in the White House.

Reagan also told reporters after attending church services Sunday that "we'll just have to do something" to free the 52 Americans. But he gave no indication what that might be.

Asked if he could go along with the latest Iranian proposal for a $9 billion down payment for release of the hostages, with the rest of the terms to be negotiated, the president-elect replied: "No. I don't think you pay ransom for people that have been kidnapped by barbarians."

It was the strongest language Reagan has used to describe the hostage situation since his election last month.

He also said his Christmas Eve remarks, describing the Iranian captors as "criminals and kidnappers," were not intended to send a specific message to Tehran.

"But if they got a message out of it — that they shouldn't be waiting for me (to succeed Carter) — I'd be very happy," Reagan said.

Asked about the government-controlled Iranian television network's release of Christmas film of some hostages, which he watched at home, Reagan said: "What can you say? I think every one of us is praying that they'll be home, and I think we'll just have to do something to bring them home."

But he said that comment did not mean he had a plan for dealing with the hostage standoff.

"I'm not going to say anything like that," Reagan said.

Reagan transition chief Edwin Meese III, meanwhile, said Sunday the president-elect's advisers are "obviously developing every possible bit of information, every possible plan of action that might be entertained by the future president."

Asked on the CBS program "Face the Nation" about the possibility of military action if the hostages are put on trial in Iran, Meese replied: "I think that the Iranians should be prepared that this country will take whatever action is appropriate... and I don't think we should signal what we might do or what we might not do."

Space shuttle Columbia moved to launch pad

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A huge crawler-transporter traveling at 1 mph today began moving America's space shuttle to its launch pad for what officials hope will be a mid-March liftoff to space.

The squat orbiter Columbia, strapped vertically to a disposable fuel tank and its twin-rocket boosters, sat on its mobile launching platform atop the ponderous transporter as it began a 3½-mile trip to the launch pad where American astronauts blasted off to the moon.

The shuttle spent the past five weeks undergoing tests at the Kennedy Space Center's Vehicle Assembly Building after 20 months of critical work on its re-entry heat shield.

The rollout to the launch complex, 39-A, began on time at 8 a.m. EST. It marks the start of an 11-week countdown period to blast off.

The target date for the much-delayed first launch is March 14, three years later than the original target date. George Page, director of shuttle operations here, says, "I would not rule out May."

Cmdr. John Young and Robert Crippen, the astronauts chosen for the first shuttle test flight, watched the Columbia begin its journey to the launch pad near the Atlantic Ocean, officials said.

"We feel it's a great day for the United States," Young said. "Wait till March. Just wait till March."

Holiday traffic kills 52 in Texas

By The Associated Press
Traffic killed 52 people on Texas streets and highways during the 102-hour Christmas holiday, six fewer than the Department of Public Safety estimated would die.

The count, which began at 6 p.m. Wednesday, officially ended at midnight Sunday.

DPS troopers reported 40 fatal accidents during the holiday period, 14 of them involving just one vehicle.

Fires will cost Lamesa much more

LAMESA — Beginning in January, rural fire calls in Dawson County will cost 3.5 times more than they have during the almost two decades in which equipment of the City of Lamesa has been responding to calls.

Dawson County commissioners voted unanimously Monday to accept a Lamesa City Council offer for rural fire protection. The fee currently is $100 but it will increase to $350 in January.

The issue had remain unsettled between the two governing bodies since last July.

This year's fire calls have cost the county only $6,400 to date. The minimum will be 64 calls in 1981, which means the county will be paying more than $22,000.

Dawson County commissioners also have contracts with the fire departments in O'Connell and Ackery.

Polish farmers will strike unless demands are upheld

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Despite the threat of Soviet military intervention, Poland's private farmers, who hold the key to this nation's already rationed larder, say they'll strike unless the Polish Supreme Court upholds their demand for an independent union.

Leaders of the farmers' movement planned a strategy meeting today, the eve of the court ruling on their bid for a union charter.

They are appealing a lower court ruling that farmers could not form a union because they are self-employed. They have threatened to stop delivering produce to the state-run marketing agencies if the Supreme Court rejects their appeal.

Unlike most Soviet bloc countries, where farming is primarily run by the state, Poland's estimated 4.5 million private farmers control about 80 percent of the country's farm land and account for three-fourths of its agricultural production.

However, the often underdeveloped private farming sector has continually had trouble meeting the nation's food needs. The Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Luda earlier this month reported shortages of flour, rice, bread, sugar and milk, and Christmas week saw the first rationing of meat since World War II.

Anger over an earlier meat shortage was a major factor behind the widespread labor unrest that paralyzed Poland last summer and forced the communist government to bow to

Quake rattles Californians

MONO LAKE, Calif. (AP) — An earthquake measuring 4.7 on the Richter scale hit a sparsely populated area along California-Nevada border that experienced a swarm of "good-sized" quakes in early September, officials said.

No injuries or damage were reported from the tremor, which struck at around 3 p.m. Sunday. It was centered 35 miles east of here and 120 miles east of Stockton.

Over a three-day period in September, the seismically active area experienced three quakes registering more than 5.0 on the Richter scale and more than half a dozen rated at over 4.0, said Riley Geary of California Institute of Technology's Seismology Laboratory.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 4 can cause moderate damage in a local area, while a quake of 5 is capable of considerable damage.

Mexico to halt fishing treaties

NEW YORK (AP) — In a move likely to stir controversy just before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office, Mexico has decided to terminate its fishing agreements with the United States, The New York Times reported today.

Larry Bozanich, general manager of Fisherman's Cooperative Association in the West Coast fishing port of San Pedro, Calif., said the decision would mean idle fishing boats and unemployed fishermen.

The United States and Mexico have engaged in a "tuna war" since early July, when Washington imposed an embargo on Mexican tuna imports in response to Mexico's arrest of six San Diego-based tuna seiners caught fishing inside Mexican waters.

The Mexican decision was to be conveyed to the State Department today, the newspaper said.

U.S. officials were not available for comment immediately.

The Mexican decision is likely to be among the topics for discussion when Reagan meets with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo on Jan. 5.

The move could put dozens of American small-boat owners out of business and is thought to reflect Mexico's determination to build up a fishing fleet capable of competing in waters traditionally dominated by United States, Japanese and Cuban vessels.

Afghan rioting reported today

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Rioting was reported today in Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, where Soviet forces have been trying for more than a year to put down Moslem rebels.

There was no immediate word of any casualties. The cause of the disturbance was also unknown.

A crowd gathered outside the Ministry of Information and Culture at about 11 a. m. and began hurling stones at the building, according to the report from a diplomatic source.

People also threw stones at passing vehicles for a few minutes, then turned and began stoning the government building, said the source, quoting a witness in Kabul.

Afghan police arrived on the scene in the old Shahri-Nau section of Kabul about 45 minutes after the rioting began, and Soviet and Afghan MI-28 helicopter gunships flew over the area about 15 minutes after that, the source quoted the witness as saying.

The police apparently contained the demonstration and prevented it from spreading to other sections of the city, said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Russian nationalism is unmasked

Perhaps the world's disillusionment started when Russian dropped the Iron Curtain. Perhaps feelings over the rest of the world crystallized when Soviet tanks bore down on Hungary a few years ago. Certainly it did nothing to enhance the cause when the Muscovites decided to make a vassal state out of Afghanistan. Now the Russians are making menacing gestures in the direction of Poland.

When ever it occurred, Russian's kind of communism is moving into the twilight. The problems have grown in such magnitude that solutions are impossible. The bloom is off the ideology.

RUSSIAN'S BRAND of socialism is something that Karl Marx would barely recognize, anyway. Communism, to be frank, is a ploy to mask Russian nationalism. All pretense has been removed. The world recognizes the Soviet political stance for what it is. It is used for nothing more than to promote the Russian image.

With its mask stripped away, the Soviet danger remains and indeed may even be more virulent than before.

When Russia was turning its paternal face to the world, it found ready acceptance by a multitude of frustrated and disorganized persons. It became easy to promote the Communist concept around the world. Communist parties sprang up in all parts of the world. Through them, the Russians for years have subverted the indigenous governmental systems and helped establish something that at least appeared on the surface to be communism.

So zealous were some of the converts that they did a far more thorough job of following Marx than the Soviets. Albania is one example.

With nothing but nationalism to rely on, the Russians are being seen for what they are and always have been — imperialistic empire builders. China recognized a phoniness about the Russian politics and pulled away following a dispute over ideologies. Now China is moving even farther away from the Russian concept, having long since determined that the communist approach of the Russians was unworkable.

Cuba went overboard for the Soviet brand of communism and so depressed the naturally rich island that its people took to the boats in efforts to escape. Fidel Castro is rumored to have told the Nicaraguan Sandinistas to kiss off such ideology and try something else.

SOVIET TROUBLEMAKING in the Middle East has not yet produced anything resembling a communist model. The same can be said of Africa. And where totalitarianism has surfaced in the Far East, the people have fled by the millions.

The ruthless manner in which the Russians treated the Afghans won for them no friends in the Arab world.

Poland is a prime example of what communism can do for a country. Its people are hungry and depressed. Its strikes appear capable of paralyzing a nation. If the Russians allow this to go on, think what effect it will have on the other satellite countries.

The final irony could be the loss of all allegiance from the huge communist parties in France and Italy if and when the Russians threaten western Europe.

The danger to the world is that Russia, threatened with the loss of prestige all over the globe, will undertake new militaristic adventures to prove its power. This, of course, could easily lead to war.

Communism may be about on its last legs, but global danger isn't.

Senate offensive

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Gen. Alexander Haig is being urged by prominent senators to take the offensive in his Senate confirmation hearings, using the planned four days of confrontation with Watergate-minded liberal Democrats to exploit Ronald Reagan's clear national security mandate.

That advice to Haig shows how much more is at stake in his confirmation hearings before a generally dovish Senate Foreign Relations Committee than allegations of wrongdoing during the national agony of Watergate.

WHAT IS REALLY at stake is the blind horror many liberal Democrats share for President-elect Reagan's no-nonsense national security policy, following four years of unrestrained Soviet advances. Strapping Haig to the Watergate mast for 100 public lashes is destined to humiliate and weaken him (and also exact revenge for the Republican attack on Paul Warnke's nomination to head the arms control agency four years ago). Wounding Haig would undercut Reagan's ability to use him to carry out the major revival of national security he has promised.

But for Haig, it will be no easy matter to keep the hearings that start Jan. 9 glued to what he hopes to accomplish in building America's depleted strength in the world. That explains Haig's surprise coup in coming up with Joseph Califano, a prominent Democrat with recognized liberal credentials, to defend him. A better choice would be difficult to find.

Escalating political and press attacks on Haig have questioned his character, his honor and his fitness for secretary of state. That assault has deeply angered the career Army officer who won the Distinguished Service Cross in Vietnam and earned unanimous praise from America's closest allies as supreme commander of NATO.

Haig, say his friends, wants to keep himself on a tight leash. He knows he should not respond in kind to his critics, but instead should stick to his and Reagan's plans for a toughened, revitalized foreign policy.

But if his critics, led by Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston and Sen. Paul Tsongas, convert his confirmation hearing into a Watergate II, Haig will be irresistibly pressed to test the theory that whatever its allure in the capital, Watergate is an issue long since dead and buried throughout the nation.

Reagan's transition agents believe that any Democratic effort to revive the horrors of Watergate would sicken voters and that the effort would boomerang. But Haig's enemies from the days of Watergate claim that if the Democrats play the Watergate card deftly, it could polarize the country all over again.

Haig strongly lines up with the Reagan transition advisers. One Haig intimate, exuding optimism over any showdown between Haig and his adversaries, says privately: "Those senators are going to be on television with Haig. If they want to take that political risk, so be it. Haig would slaughter them."

Haig would not have been Reagan's pick for secretary of state if Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd had not publicly warned that a Haig nomination would face deep trouble in the Senate. Against such public pressure, Reagan, with Haig agreeing, felt he had to nominate Haig.

Therapy in Parkinson's Disease

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I need to know a little about Parkinson's disease. My father, who lives with us, was just told he has it. I haven't noticed too great a change in dad. He does walk somewhat differently and has been that way for a while now. Other than that he seems the same. Can we do anything to help him? He says it's just an aging thing, but I think he doesn't want us to worry about him. He's a great guy, and sharper than most men half his age. — Mrs. R.D.

Deficiency of a certain brain chemical causes Parkinson's disease, which affects more than 200,000 people in the U.S. alone. The deficiency occurs in the older population chiefly. We don't yet know why it happens.

The walking gait is slow and shuffling, which is probably what you refer to. Other features include a tremor of the thumb and index finger, apparent when the hands are at rest. It looks as though the person were rolling a substance between those two digits. There may also be a fixed, expressionless facial appearance. Mental astuteness remains intact.

There are varying degrees of Parkinson's. It may be very mild, like your dad's, or more pronounced. And not all the signs I mentioned need be present.

Is your father being treated? Many drugs are available now; the list is long. I will not try to name them, but they are effective in controlling the disease. You should encourage regular exercise — walking, swimming (ideal) or any practical activity he can manage. When he walks, he should make a conscious effort to lift his toes and bring his heels down first. Also, in walking he should try to place his feet wider apart than Parkinson's patients usually do. His arms should swing back and forth with each step. In short, he should consciously attempt to walk normally.

It can be done, but the person with Parkinson's has to make the conscious effort, which is part of therapy. He should avoid quick turns, because his steadiness may not be all that good and he may fall. There are many practical things you can do to help. Clothing with zippers instead of buttons is convenient. A local chapter of a Parkinson's disease organization will be helpful.

HELPFUL. Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 45-year-old man who has until recently enjoyed a normally active sex life. Recently, I have had what I'd guess you would call a problem of impotence. I've been told testosterone injections might help me. Is there a way to find out if I lack the hormone in my body, and would the shots help me if I did? — R.O.

Tests are available to measure testosterone (male hormone) levels in the blood. Whether injections would help you is debatable. A percentage of men with your problem do have lower-than-normal hormone levels. However, psychological factors usually play a more decisive role in impotence than do physical ones. Talk this over with your physician. He can begin an evaluation. This should be reported at hour age.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A few months ago I had no insurance, no job, and no money, and I needed my asthma medicine very bad. I ended up in an emergency ward, and I was lucky enough to get a doctor who really cared. He referred me to a local People's Clinic. Those people really cared. They have a sliding fee schedule and they even paid for my medicine at a nominal cost to me. I hope you print my letter because I think A.S.R., who complained about having no money for her medicine, might find something like this in her area. I am from a small midwestern town. — H.D.

My mail does indicate that there are similar organizations elsewhere. Local medical societies will be helpful in locating them for people who find themselves without the means for acquiring necessary medicine.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When is it proper to give antibiotics for a cold? I understand that antibiotics don't help get rid of the cold virus, so why are they used at all? — H.N.

You are correct. Antibiotics are not effective against any of the various cold viruses. They are given to the person with a cold only if there is a complicating bacterial infection.

Bed wetting can be a frustrating problem but it can be controlled. To learn how, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Bed-Wetting: Ways To Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How do you think God decides which prayers to answer and which not to answer? — C.M.

DEAR C.M.: First of all, I believe that God always answers every prayer that is truly made in faith to him. What you must understand, however, is that sometimes he does not answer a prayer with yes, but with no or not yet. A no is just as much an answer as a yes.

But how does God answer prayer — whether it is yes, no, or not yet? Remember what the Bible tells us about God. It tells us that he is all-knowing; he knows our circumstances far better than we ever can, and he sees into the future, which we cannot do. And then the Bible tells us that he is also all-loving. That means that he not only knows our situation, but also wants us to have what is best for us (or for others, if our prayers concern other people and situations). And finally, the Bible tells us that God is all-powerful. He not only knows what would be right for us, and not only wants what is right for us, but is able to bring it to pass. Think about that — it is a wonderful truth. As the Bible says, "My God will meet all your needs according to his glorious riches in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:19).

God, therefore, answers our prayers in the way he knows is best for us. We may not understand why he answers them in a certain way — sometimes we think we know better what is best for us! But he is wiser than we are, and he answers our prayers according to his will. Think back in your own spiritual experience a moment. I suspect there have been times in your life — as there have been in mine — when you have asked God very fervently for something. But God did not answer your prayer in the way you wanted him to, and now as you look back you can see that he was right and you were wrong.

Prayer is one of the greatest privileges of the child of God. When we come to Christ by faith, we are reconciled to God and have the privilege of going to him in prayer. "Pray continually" the Bible says (1 Thessalonians 5:17), and we can because we know he answers according to his perfect will.

Best present

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

This year, the best Christmas present I was given was a simple one. There was no office Christmas party. I suppose you're wondering why we didn't have one. It's simple. There isn't one person in this editorial department who is very good at organizing parties of any kind. We're still waiting for Nathan to get the Crystal Ball party going.

BUT NO MATTER. I was able to avoid the office Christmas party. It isn't that I don't like them. It's just that I usually end up seeing things very out of the ordinary.

For instance, at any given Christmas party, I get to find out who is willing to crawl under a table and bite a secretary on the ankle. Or I get to see that the quietest man at work is the most gregarious at the party telling jokes that aren't funny. But he's laughing so hard, he has to be removed from the room.

I get sick of seeing the girl in one department making a play for the guy in another department and him loving every minute of it. It's fun to watch. But then we never get to find out the post-party drama. Did she take her home? Did he take her home? What did his wife say? Will she divorce him? Check the public records. But, are they still seeing each other. They're both so darn professional in the office that who can tell?

But as much as we all complain about going to the office Christmas party, who can resist going just to find out what the boss is really like? That one night a year usually says it all.

Who can resist finding out who is going to land flat on his face? Literally. And there is always one who does from too many Tequilas.

But if you want to find out if you were a success at your party this year watch for the following signs next year.

Have more than two people asked you if you are going to attend the next office party?

Are you being asked to chip in for the Tequila?

Are comments being made to you as to your dancing technique?

ARE PEOPLE asking you if you remember any of the following: the joke you told; the dance where you tripped over your partner's foot and landed in the arms of your boss; your ride home.

Are people always asking you if you don't remember being that funny?

Are people asking you if you always fall flat on your face? Literally.

If you can answer yes to any of these questions, chances are you were a success and you'll be wanted at the next party. But chances are you better stay away. Because we are all wondering if you took her home, or she took you home, or if your spouse is going to divorce you. You're the talk of the office and it's your name we're all looking for in the public records.

'Purity test'

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In all the talk about the nation's military preparedness — or lack of it — one question has never been asked publicly, much less answered: What, exactly, do the generals and admirals think they should be ready for?

The answer, spelled out in a top secret Pentagon report shown to my associate Dale Van Atta, is: "one and a half wars."

"The national strategy of the United States," the report states, "requires the maintenance of sufficient forces to fight a major war in Europe while simultaneously engaged in a lesser conflict elsewhere, sometimes called the 'one-and-a-half-war strategy.'"

THE REPORT, PREPARED for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, concludes bleakly that "the size, readiness and sustainability of U.S. conventional forces cannot insure the success of the strategy they are required to support."

The dismal state of unreadiness is no surprise to the military leaders, to whom it "has been apparent for several years." But the critique says the problem has grown more acute in recent years, as the Soviet Union and its allies have beefed up their conventional military forces.

"The one-and-a-half-war strategy recognizes that a European war is unlikely to occur in isolation," the Pentagon report says. "Conflict in Europe could evolve from a conflict in the Middle East or some other theater. Conversely, a war in Europe would be likely to spread to another front."

Therefore, the report insists the one-and-a-half-war strategy is "more than just a convenient formula" invented by the Pentagon to justify requests for more hardware and personnel.

"Given that the strategy is sound, the problem facing the United States is to determine how best to size, organize, equip, train and deploy its forces in support of the strategy," the report says.

THE TRENDY IDEA of a rapid deployment force, while it "will do much to rectify a major deficiency in U.S. military posture, will not resolve the strategy-force mismatch," the Pentagon planners say. This is because "deploying forces elsewhere than Europe will force the United States to draw upon forces earmarked for NATO." In other words, a rapid deployment force is only worthwhile if it is part of an ability to fight one-and-a-half wars.

Not surprisingly, the Pentagon leaders favor an increase in the military budget to achieve one-and-a-half war capability. The only alternatives, in light of the Soviet bloc's ascendancy in conventional forces, are to cut back on the strategy, or "reduce the range and depth of U.S. commitments." Either decision, they say, would wind up "degrading the strategic position of the United States."

Having assumed that the one-and-a-half-war strategy is the only sound policy for the United States, the Pentagon chiefs' report, does not concern itself with the question of whether the country's strategic position can be maintained by nuclear deterrence alone.

FBI BLINDERS? The House Assassination Committee's conclusion that President John Kennedy's murder was the result of a conspiracy has been emphatically put down by the FBI, which reported 17 years ago that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone.

But the FBI's critique of the House panel's disturbing conclusion apparently overlooked some crucial evidence buried in the committee's public report.

The House committee based its conspiracy theory on a recording of sounds from Dealey Plaza that indicated a fourth shot was fired — in addition to Oswald's three — from a different direction.

The FBI claims the House committee's evidence did not prove that the recorded sounds actually came from the assassination scene. Yet a transcript of the Dallas police dispatcher's radio transmissions makes it clear that the sounds were indeed from the Dealey Plaza area — specifically from a motorcycle officer's radio which had stuck open during the minutes before and after the assassination on Nov. 22, 1963.

The officer in question told the committee his radio often stuck open and photographs prove that he was near the plaza at the crucial time.

The FBI's insistence that no conspiracy was involved seems to have stemmed from a memo sent by Director J. Edgar Hoover to President Johnson two days after the murder: "The thing I am concerned about is having something issued so we can convince the public that Oswald is the real assassin."

EDITOR OF THE YEAR: In recognition of a fellow journalist who has shown exceptional judgment and courage, I salute this year John Seigenthaler, editor-publisher of the Nashville Tennessean. A veteran investigator himself, Seigenthaler demonstrated that he hasn't lost his touch when he assigned a reporter to infiltrate the Ku Klux Klan and kept him undercover for nearly 16 months to get the story.

Aversion to food becoming epidemic

If they don't seek help, it's estimated that 8,000 Americans, mostly women aged 12-25, may die of anorexia nervosa, an hysterical aversion to food leading to drastic weight loss and severe malnutrition, says a recent Family Circle magazine article. The magazine conjectures that one of every 100 school girls at puberty may suffer from this self-inflicted disease.

Once considered rare, anorexia has increased 1000 percent in incidence in the past five years notes the report. Approximately 80,000 Americans have some degree of anorexia, and fewer than half of those with the disorder are receiving treatment. However, notes the article, if anorexia is caught early enough and treated effectively, it is curable in over 85 percent of the cases.

Though there is no single treatment that is considered most effective in dealing with anorexia, doctors agree that malnutrition should be dealt with first and controlled before dealing with psychological problems.

For the most part, anorexia starts as a routine diet that quickly becomes a self-destructive obsession. Symptoms listed in Family Circle include: a loss of 20-40 percent of body weight, cessation of the menstrual cycle, hair loss, waste of muscle tissue, low basal metabolic rate, anemia, sleep disturbances, low body temperature, and kidney dysfunction.

What makes someone starve herself? Family Circle says that psychiatrists delving into family structures for causes feel the disease is used as a means of manipulating or punishing a neglectful or domineering mother.

EFTS is threat to privacy which new bill addresses

Electronic Funds Transfer Systems (EFTS) in banking offers consumers convenience, and possible problems with privacy. Convenience include getting money when consumers need it without traveling to the bank each time and more security with the avoidance of theft or unauthorized use of checks.

However, possible problems regarding privacy are becoming an increasing concern among some consumer groups and financial experts, so there is a bill in Congress that attempts to deal with the situation, the Privacy of Electronic Funds Transfer Act. This subject may write to their congressman and express an opinion.

The bill in Congress seeks to protect communications-privacy aspects of the Electronic Funds Transfer. It safeguards the communication of an electronic fund transfer in a way similar to the way telephone calls and letters are now protected. However, it leaves to existing law the question of protecting EFTS records which are in the hands of the parties to the transactions or in customer accounts in financial institutions.

With automated clearing houses and pre-authorized payments, one's computer record can indicate almost all purchases, mortgage payments and anything else concerning finances.

ERROR AND FRAUD: EFTS could cause costly mistakes through computer error, and it could create a new form of fraud through illegal electronic access to the system.

Computerized rules contain information which will be interpreted by individuals who are not personally familiar with the information, thus the need for accurate records.

INCREASED ACCESS TO INFORMATION: Information stored in computer files can be distributed over a wider network of people who will share the contents of the record.

Here's an example: A paycheck sent directly to the bank. The bank may have access to information on the pay stub, such as deduction for credit union payments and savings programs. Use of EFTS between store and bank can result in bank records of where money is spent and purchases made.

This type information could be sent to a credit reporting agency. Then businesses who have access to credit-report agency services would potentially have access to information about salary, deductions and spending habits.

Snakes make great pets

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace: I want to get a snake for a pet but my mother said that snakes are bad pets and take a lot of care. My dad wants me to have a snake and says that mom is saying this just because she is afraid of them. Please tell me about having a snake for a pet. — Mike, Bardstown, Ky.

Mike: My research took me to the "Audubon Nature Encyclopedia" and mother isn't going to enjoy my findings. Snakes make marvelous pets and handling and petting help them become tame. All that is needed is a good snake cage, one that is roomy and airy.

A clean cage, adequate food and fresh water make for a happy snake. One of the best harmless snakes to have is the garter snake. He feeds well on worms and frogs. Once in a while he enjoys a bit of raw hamburger or strips of raw fish.

Needless to say, avoid those snakes that are poisonous or dangerous.

Mom: Have no fear. I'll bet within a month, you will be the one feeding the "pet" his worms and live frogs.

Dr. Wallace: In your column, you categorically tell teens to wait when they ask you about marriage. Well, I'm living proof that teen marriages can work.

I started dating when I was 16 and he was 21. After I graduated, we lived together for five months and have been married six months.

I'm not saying that marriage is fun and games and there are many difficult times. We never have fights and arguments because we are mature enough to discuss any problem intelligently.

This is more than I can say for many who wait and marry later! — Cheryl, Astoria, Ore.

Cheryl: There are some who are very capable of being happily married while still a teen, and others will never have a successful marriage no matter how long they wait.

Still, most teens who plan to marry should have time to be independent and make their own decisions first. The time to do it is from graduation until marriage. The key to a successful happy marriage are love, maturity, and financial stability.

Dr. Wallace: Everyone thinks that I'm stuck-up. They call me a snob and say that I'm conceited.

Actually, I love myself. I was told by my mother that a person must love themselves first before they are capable of loving others. Why is everyone on my case? — Glenda, Wapeton, N.D.

Glenda: Psychologists tell us that indeed we must love ourselves first before we are capable of loving others. Your problem is with the definition of love. After love in Webster's Dictionary are found the synonyms: charity, affection, goodwill, benevolence and devotion. Practice these and everyone will get off your "case."

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Abby

Holiday Mail Brings Too Many Greetings

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Every year, around the holidays, we receive through the mail personalized key chains with our license numbers on them, fancy soap, assorted greeting cards, and a variety of other gift items we did not order. These things are supposedly sold to benefit disabled war veterans, the blind, poor Indian children or handicapped children. They may be from legitimate organizations, but there is a limit to how far we can go in our giving.

Just before Christmas, we received a box of three-dozen Christmas cards with our names already printed on them! They were very nice, but we prefer to select our own cards. I might add that there is a minimum price on all these things, but you are urged to give as much as you can.

Abby, are we legally obligated to return things we didn't order? Why should we go to the trouble and expense of rewrapping and returning stuff we didn't send for? I'd feel guilty using these items, but it seems such a waste to throw them away. What should we do?

THE JONESES

DEAR JONESES: You are not legally obligated to return anything you didn't order. Give everything to the Salvation Army, then send a postcard to the senders telling them how you have disposed of their merchandise and request that your name be removed from their mailing list. Also, notify your local postmaster whenever you receive unsolicited merchandise.

DEAR ABBY: Our 9-year-old printed the following letter to Santa:

"Dear Santa: All I want for Christmas is for my mommy to quit smoking because I love her and I don't want her to die yet. If you brought me some toys, please give them to some other little boy, because all I want for Christmas is a mommy who doesn't cough anymore and doesn't get nervous when she can't find a cigarette. Thank you. — Tommy"

Tommy's mommy cried when she read that letter, but she's still smoking.

Sign me, TOMMY'S FATHER, or more appropriately, DISGUSTED WITH MOMMY

DEAR DISGUSTED: Mommy is hooked. But she won't quit smoking until she's ready. In the meantime, she needs understanding and encouragement, not contempt. Don't nag her.

DEAR ABBY: Loved your column about waitresses all over, and what they earned. I'm a waitress, and here are some of my pet peeves:

- Customers who whistle, snap their fingers, or yell, "Hey, girly," to get my attention.
- Customers who come in with children, then turn them loose to run all over the place.
- After giving the customers their menus, when I return to take their orders, nobody is ready to order because they haven't even looked at the menu.
- Customers who ask for substitutions when it says on the menu: "No substitutions, please."
- Customers who complain about the high prices. We only serve the food, we don't set the prices.

Pokes settle a score

IRVING, Texas (AP) — A good case of public degradation two weeks ago turned the Dallas Cowboys Sunday into a wrathful team which rolled over the Los Angeles Rams like it had run on no team in the club's 21-year history.

The Cowboys pounded the Rams for a club-record 338 yards overland in the National Conference wild card playoff 34-13 victory which will set up a meeting this Sunday with the NFC Western Division champion Atlanta Falcons on the road.

Tony Dorsett rushed for 160 yards on 22 carries to establish a Dallas record for yards gained in a playoff for the Cowboys as they avenged a 38-14 flogging at the hands of the Rams on Monday night national television.

"They embarrassed us and we had something to prove," said Dallas quarterback Danny White, who threw three second half touchdown passes to break a 13-13 deadlock.

Dorsett, who scored on a 12-yard run and made an impressive run with a 10-yard touchdown pass from White, was the catalyst for the determined Cowboys.

"In that first game with them (the Rams) out on the coast, we were believing all that stuff about so many of them being hurt and all that rot," said Dorsett. "We didn't take them as seriously as we did today."

The Cowboys scored on their first three possessions in the second half and ran out the clock with their fourth in the amazing turnaround that Coach Tom Landry called "One of our finest hours ... one of our best games of the year."

The Dallas defense, which had yielded three touchdowns passes to Ram quarterback Vince Ferragamo two weeks ago and also in a 21-19 Los Angeles divisional playoff victory over the Cowboys last year, was only effective in the first half.

Ferragamo threw a 21-yard touchdown pass to Preston Dennard but was intercepted three times in the second half as the maligned Cowboys' secondary came alive.

"This was about as well as we can play," said Landry. "We had 45 guys ready to play ... our kicking game, offense and defense. Everybody was moving and hitting."

Besides the touchdown toss to Dorsett, White shook off three first half interceptions to throw a 35-yard scoring pass to Butch Johnson and an 11-yarder to Drew Pearson.

"I thought Coach Landry's play-calling was unbelievable," White said. "He just seemed to have things under his control. I remember when I came to the sidelines in the second quarter after an interception, he told me not to worry, we were going to win this one."

"This was sweet revenge," he added. "This game really evolved from that long airplane ride home from LA that Monday night they embarrassed us. Some time before we landed here, we became a different football team."

Pearson was even more bitter toward the Rams than White.

"I think LA will probably think we are a pretty good football team now. We just got no respect from them. Like after that Monday game, (Coach Ray) Malavasi said they just beat our tails. Well, now we have beaten the Rams' tails."

Malavasi said he tried to warn the Rams.

"I kept telling people all week that Dallas was going to be a lot tougher this time around than they were two weeks ago when we beat them," Malavasi said. "Well, you saw what I was talking about. Dallas just went after us and got us. They are an exceptional team, well coached and disciplined."

Ferragamo said Dallas used a five-man rush which bothered the Rams.

"They're five-man rush was a big difference and we didn't have everything together and they beat us," said Ferragamo. "Knowing we beat Dallas like we did the first time and losing today like we did ... well, it's kind of scary."

Ferragamo had passed for three touchdowns the last time the two teams met just as he did when the Rams knocked Dallas out of the divisional playoffs in Texas Stadium last year 21-19.

"We didn't have the intensity we had when we played the Cowboys on Monday night," said Ram defensive end Fred Dryer. "We were asleep."

Dallas finished the year 9-0 at Texas Stadium and take a 13-5 record to Atlanta.

Los Angeles closed the season at 11-6.

The game marked the 19th time out of 20 that Dallas has won when Dorsett has gained 100 yards or more.

Dallas drove 63, 70 and 95 yards against the Rams in the second half for its three killing touchdowns.

Cowboys' guard Tom Rafferty said "We were really getting off the ball. Anytime you are embarrassed like we were a couple of weeks ago you want to come back. I feel pretty good about the rest of the playoffs. We haven't played Atlanta in a couple of years, but if we play as we did today we're going to be in New Orleans (site of the Super Bowl)."

Oilers' last hurrah, 27-7 loss

That's some welcome!

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders welcomed Ken Stabler back to his former home field by pounding him to the turf seven times.

"They talked to me a lot, mostly friendly stuff. They asked me if I was all right after they knocked me down," said Stabler, who went down and out of the National Football League playoffs Sunday with the Houston Oilers.

The Raiders, playing what could have been their last game ever in Oakland, gave a sellout crowd of supporters a great show as they trounced the Oilers 27-7 in the meeting of American Football Conference wild card teams.

They sacked former teammate Stabler seven times, and cornerback Lester Hayes intercepted two passes including one returned for 20 yards and a game-clinching touchdown in the fourth period. On offense, the Raiders got two touchdowns passes from Stabler's 1979 backup, Jim Plunkett.

The team which Al Davis, the managing general partner, wants to move to Los Angeles next year advanced to the semifinals of the AFC playoffs and will be on the road next Sunday, facing the AFC Central champion Cleveland Browns.

Stabler was making his first appearance in Oakland since being traded to Houston early this year. He demanding to be traded after being the target of what he considered unjust criticism from Davis.

"But I came here to win today. Al Davis had nothing to do with the game," Stabler insisted when asked about Sunday's homecoming. "Playoff games are all the same. I played. Pressure comes with my job."

"The only thing we won by beating Houston was the right to play one more game — not two more, not three more," said offensive guard Gene Upshaw, one of the Raiders' team captains.

"But we want to bring back what belongs to us, what we deserve," added Upshaw, meaning the Super Bowl title. The 1976 Oakland team coached by John Madden beat the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl XI, but Sunday's game was the Raiders' first playoff appearance since 1977.

"I don't know that I've ever seen a better game by a Raiders' defense," said Tom Flores, the second-year head coach who was an assistant to Madden.

The Raiders, as a wild card team, entered the playoff with the same record, 11-5, as all AFC contenders but at a definite disadvantage. They knew they would have just one home game.

If they win at Cleveland, they'll be on the road against the winner of next Saturday's game between the Buffalo Bills and San Diego Chargers.

"I think they'll go a long way," said Oilers Coach Bum Phillips, whose team had reached the AFC title game the past two seasons as a wild card only to lose to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Stabler suffered through one of his roughest days ever in the Oakland Coliseum. Tight end Dave Casper and safety Jack Tatum, two other players traded from Oakland to Houston this year, didn't fare much better.

But two former Oilers, running back Kenny King and defensive lineman John Matuszak, along with Houston native Hayes contributed greatly in the Raiders' victory.

King, held out of the final regular season game to rest a sprained ankle, caught a 37-yard pass from Plunkett to set up the Raiders' first touchdown, one which sent them ahead to stay, 10-7 in the second period. His 31-yard run in the final quarter led to a Chris Bahr field goal which made the score 20-7.

Matuszak, who began his NFL career with Houston, blocked Tomi Fritsch's 37-yard field goal try which would have tied the score at 10-10 just before halftime. Fritsch made a 32-yarder seconds before, but it was nullified by a penalty.

Plunkett completed only 8 of 23 passes but several of completions were for big yardage.

NOT A GOOD DAY FOR CAMPBELL — Oilers running back Earl Campbell (34) and Raiders strong safety Mike Davis (36) lie heels over head in a tangle after Campbell picked up seven yards in first half action of AFC wildcard playoff at Oakland Sunday. Raiders won, 27-7.

REACHING FOR BULLDOGS — Notre Dame 6-foot-5, 245-pound defensive end Scott Zetek demonstrates his reach during a workout in New Orleans for the Jan. 1, Sugar Bowl. Zetek says he doesn't know how Notre Dame is an early one-point favorite over undefeated Georgia. Georgia should be favored by 10 points, according to Zetek.

Pitt shoots for No. 1 tonight

By The Associated Press
The countdown to the national college football championship starts to get serious tonight when No. 3 Pittsburgh faces No. 18 South Carolina in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.
Pitt figures it is squarely in the scramble for No. 1 and if it can stop SC and Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers, it can just sit back and wait for the big New Year's Day bowls to settle the final standings.
"We are good enough to win the national championship," said Pittsburgh Coach Jackie Sherrill, whose team carries a 10-1 record into the Gator Bowl. "The possibilities are there for us to grab."
The Panthers will have to grab Rogers first and that's no easy task. The 220-pound senior has rushed for more than 100 yards in 21 consecutive games. He led the nation with 1,781 yards rushing this season and needs 42 yards to crack 5,000 for his collegiate career. But the proud Pitt defense, led by Heisman runnerup Hugh Green, allowed only 65 yards per game on the ground this season.
Rogers and Green both are seniors and will be prime choices in next spring's National Football League draft along with Purdue quarterback Mark Herrmann, major college football's all-time passing king.
Herrmann finished his college career with a big game Saturday, throwing four touchdown passes and leading the Boilermakers to a 28-25 victory over Missouri in the Liberty Bowl.
Elsewhere Saturday, No. 8 Nebraska walloped Mississippi State 31-17 in the Sun Bowl and Arkansas defeated Tulane 34-15 in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Penn State's three second half touchdowns moved the Nittany Lions to a 31-19 victory over Ohio State in Friday's Fiesta Bowl.
Tonight's Pitt-South Carolina match is followed on New Year's Eve by the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston with No. 13 North Carolina going against Texas. That'll be a warmup for Thursday's four major bowls — the Sugar matching No. 1 Georgia and No. 7 Notre Dame; the Orange with No. 2 Florida State against No. 4 Oklahoma; the Cotton where No. 6 Baylor takes on No. 9 Alabama; and the Rose where No. 5 Michigan meets No. 16 Washington.
Then comes the Peach Bowl Friday at Atlanta where Virginia Tech faces No. 20 Miami. After that, four all star games — The Shrine Bowl at Palo Alto, Calif., and the Hula Bowl at Honolulu, both on Saturday, Jan. 10, the Senior Bowl at Mobile, Ala., Saturday, Jan. 17, and the Japan Bowl at Yokohama, Japan, Sunday, Jan. 18 — complete the postseason schedule.

For Pitt to win the national title, it would seem to require a special set of circumstances. First, of course, the Panthers would have to beat South Carolina. Then Georgia would have to lose to Notre Dame and Oklahoma would have to defeat Florida State.
Even then, nothing would be guaranteed until The Associated Press panel of sports writers and broadcasters casts its final vote. The national champion will be announced next Saturday night.

rather the lack of it, hurt him.
"It's really not that I have anything against Carolina or the people there," he said. "But I think it's (UCLA) a little more big time. Publicity in the ACC is just something that you just don't get. At UCLA or some of the other major colleges in the country I feel like I would have had a better chance publicity-wise."
"I really feel like I could have had a strong chance at the Heisman (Trophy). But as far as publicity in the ACC for the Heisman, you just don't get it."
Lawrence, the Tar Heels' all-time leading rusher, compiled the statistics. His 1,118 yards this season is a major reason for the Tar Heels 10-1 record and ACC title. Plus, he is only the second player in NCAA history to gain more than 1,000 yards in four successive seasons. Tony Dorsett, now of the Dallas Cowboys, was the first to do it while at Pitt.
But the national accolades

Will Irish coach call it quits?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dan Devine has been so busy fighting his way out of the shadows of coaching legends that he hasn't had much time to establish a legend of his own.
As Bear Bryant remarked after his Alabama national champions had lost to Notre Dame this year: "Don't worry about Dan — he'll surface somewhere."
Indeed he will. It is hard to believe that the man for whom football has been his virtual life blood for three decades is prepared to hang it up after he sends his Fighting Irish against undefeated and top-ranked Georgia in Thursday's Sugar Bowl.
At the moment, he won't say "yes" and he won't say "no," but, if you know Dan Devine, you can bet he'll be back on the sidelines with a clipboard, if not in 1981 certainly in 1982.

"I have been so obsessed with getting ready for this final game against Georgia that I have allowed nothing else — not even future plans — to enter my mind," he said.
"I have lost coaching opportunities. I declined to consider them lest they detract from the job at hand. Now most positions are filled. Anything I do may have to be postponed until after the 1981 season."
Devine, who celebrated his 56th birthday here last week, has the unique distinction of having coached in locations that once knew two of the most celebrated figures in the game — Vince Lombardi avoided him.

Tar Heel gypped on limelight

"In my freshman year, I gained over 1,200 yards and felt like I had a good chance to be a freshman All-American on the first team," Lawrence said. "But I guess the publicity didn't get it for me."
But that's all history and the Norfolk, Va., native knows why he's in Houston and plans to do his part to see that the Tar Heels finish the season 11-1 by beating the 7-4 Longhorns.
"I'm not disappointed at all," he said of the season. "I'm happy with the way it turned out. I'm glad I got a thousand yards. I'm glad Kelvin (Bryant) got a thousand yards. Kelvin and I complemented each other well."
Lawrence and Bryant are another problem but it's not really a problem for them or the team. They split time this season at tailback, which led to speculation that the platooning had created some tension between the senior and the sophomore.
"That's just a lot of talk,"

Lawrence said, denying the rumor. "He helped me stay injury-free and I helped him stay injury-free. I think some people wanted to see Kelvin and I having conflicts but I didn't let that happen. I'm not a selfish person. As long as I know Kelvin can help me out, I'm grateful."
Bryant, who may be the best backup tailback in the country, agreed the talk of tension was just talk.
"When I went home, people kept telling me that Amos and I didn't get along, but that was news to me. We got along fine," the Tarboro, N.C., native said.
The tension may have been talk, but what they did for the offense was not. And the Texas defense, which allowed only 141 yards rushing a game, may have its hands full, because the Tar Heel tailback tandem led North Carolina to a 271-yard rushing average and a 25.5-point scoring average.
Both men passed the 1,000-yard mark this year in the final regular season game against Duke.

Bears surprised everybody

DALLAS (AP) — Grant Teaff thought all along his Baylor Bears would do better than the sixth-place finish that sports writers predicted for his team in the 1980 Southwest Conference football race.
But not even he would have anticipated his group would be in Dallas this week, preparing for a New Year's Day clash in the Cotton Bowl against a national powerhouse like Alabama.
His Bears, under the guidance of newfound quarterback Jay Jeffrey, steamrolled to a 10-1 record, including a perfect 8-0 SWC slate, and found themselves ranked No. 6 in the country at the end of regular-season play.
"If you take all the teams in the nation and the talent and experience and stack it up, we're probably not even No. 10," Teaff said.

"I've said all along this was not all that talented a team. The biggest thing we've got going now is that they believe they're good," said Teaff, a deeply religious man who himself is author of an inspirational book entitled, "I Believe."
Vann McElroy, the Bears' all-Southwest Conference safety, was a sophomore at Uvalde (Texas) High School when the Bears last came to the Cotton Bowl, in 1975, and that had been Baylor's first league title in 50 years.
"I didn't expect to ever go to the Cotton Bowl when I came to Baylor. I just didn't see us in the Cotton Bowl picture," said McElroy, a 6-2, 219-pound junior who intercepted eight passes last season, sparking a Baylor effort that led the nation with 29 steals.

McElroy, who also had 57 tackles and knocked down 10 passes during the Bears' surprising season, looks at Alabama, 9-2, with an awe of sorts. He considers the ninth-ranked Crimson Tide the best team Baylor has faced this season.
"If we're going to win, we have to shut down their option. In the secondary, we're going to have to have to stay alert all the time. Alabama will lull you to sleep with their running game and then hit the big one (pass) on you. It's really going to be a challenge to try to stop them," McElroy said.

"Does Jack Frost belong to Santa Claus, Mother Goose or Disney?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGNER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DEC. 30, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day and evening for you to engage in activities that you enjoy and can perform in a most efficient manner. You are able to come to a fine accord with associates you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more enthused at whatever work you are committed to, whether indoors or outdoors and get excellent results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Delve into all that work you have to do instead of wasting time on less important matters. Don't neglect vital bills.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give more attention to your home and make it more comfortable. You are able to communicate very well with others today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to have increased income in the days ahead. Schedule your activities more intelligently.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are noted for generosity but now you must balance your accounts and need to be more frugal than in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show your knack for precision and get right results when dealing with others. Take no risks with your savings now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care of those accumulated chores you have put off. Once they are finished, you can enjoy company of loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to have better relations with your friends by controlling your temper. You have creative ideas that need expression.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Work more and talk less today, especially in civic duties you may be involved in. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in outside activities that can help you advance in your career. Follow your intuition when dealing with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Adopting a new method can help you run business affairs more effectively. Be more accurate with figures.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to confer with associates and to get mutual matters worked out more satisfactorily. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of working out fine plans for projects and then carrying through with them to a successful completion. Send to the finest schools you can afford and teach to work with hands for best results.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Two survive mountain ordeal
 OKANOGAN, Wash. (AP) — The two survival experts weren't too worried when they realized they were stranded in the rugged Pasayten Wilderness. But after a week-long diet of dog food and horse oats, they're reassessing plans for a ski trip from Washington to Maine.
 The two Fort Collins, Colo., men were rescued Saturday by a U.S. Forest Service helicopter team after spending three weeks in an abandoned ranger's cabin.
 Greg Wiggins, 27, and Pat Legel, 33, who teach winter survival at Colorado State University, holed up after realizing they would run out of food if they tried to complete a 100-mile stretch from Ross Lake to Oroville.
 "We kind of overestimated the amount of terrain we could cover in a day and the result was that we ran short of food," said Wiggins.
 "We tried our best and planned it the best we could," Legel said Sunday. "But the weather slowed us down too much."
 Before they began their trip on Nov. 28, the two men left their itinerary with Wiggins' father in Dallas, with instructions to call searchers if the two had not called from Oroville within three weeks. When Jim Wiggins didn't hear from his son and heavy snow was reported in the Cascade Mountains, he called the Okanogan County sheriff's office.
 "When we got to the cabin, it had been eight days since we left Ross Lake, and we knew we wouldn't have enough food because we were only doing half the distance," said Wiggins.
 "We decided that if we stayed at the cabin, they would be looking for us in two weeks."
 "The first two weeks were not bad because we were kind of confident we would be rescued," Legel said. "The last week was the only difficult week because we ran out of food."
 They had to resort to dry dog food and oats stored in the cabin.
 "We'd take the dog food and heat it up with a little lard and corn syrup to make a kind of gravy," said Wiggins. "It would kind of fill us up, but we managed to lose about 15 or 20 pounds each."
 Their spirits dropped when they realized they would be spending the holidays alone. Wiggins, who turned 27 on Christmas Eve, did get one present for his birthday.
 "I gave him a little film canister full of honey, the last of my food supply," Legel said.
 The men avoided cabin fever by "talking about all the good food we would eat" after their rescue, Wiggins said. They also husked horse oats around the cabin's woodstove and played gin rummy with a makeshift deck crafted from 9-by-5 index cards found in the shelter.
