Plane has taken off from Tehran

American hostages free at last

By the Associated Press

A plane carrying the 52 American hostages, freed after 444 days of captivity in Iran, took off today from Tehran's Mehrabad Airport, the official Iranian news agency Pars and a policeman at the airport reported.

The departure was shrouded in confusion, with conflicting reports on the takeoff, and no official announcement from the Iranian or United States governments saying that the harrowing ordeal for the American captives had ended after 14½ months.

The departure came after negotiations that wrapped up final agreement exchanging the hostages for Iranian assets frozen by the United States.

The 3,000-mile flight to Algiers would take 6 to 10 hours, depending on whether refueling stops were made. It was expected that the hostages would go on to a U.S. Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, a 1,000-mile flight from Algiers that normally takes 2½ to 3 hours.

There were reports from Western sources monitoring the hostage situation in Ankara that flight plans filed by the Algerian aircraft included a refueling stop in Ankara or Damascus, Syria, Rome, or Athens.

The report on the hostages' departure came in the final hour of President Carter's term of office. He had tried to complete an agreement with Iran on Monday, but as the hours slipped away, Carter was deprived of a chance to greet the hostages before he left office.

Thus, the reported freedom for the Americans — 50 men and two women — coincided with the end of the Carter presidency as power was transferred to Ronald Reagan at inauguration ceremonies in Washington.

The hostages were seized Nov. 4, 1979 by young Moslem militants who stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. They said the hostages would be released if the United States handed over Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, then undergoing medical treatment in the United States. The shah found refuge in Egypt and died in Cairo on July 27, 1980.

Release of the hostages would end 14½ months of negotiations, American economic and diplomatic pressure and the failed attempt last April to send American commando teams to Tehran to free the hostages by military action.

The 52 Americans were the remaining hostages from among 98 seized by the Moslem revolutionaries nine months after the Islamic revolution in Iran.

The hostages include diplomats, Marine guards, communications specialists, teachers and a businessman. They range in age from 20 to 64. About 20 are servicemen.

The final push toward a settlement came in weeks of intense negotiations with Algerian diplomats acting as intermediaries.

On Dec. 19, the Iranians demanded that the United States deposit $24 billion in cash and gold in Algeria as a "guarantee" that Iran's financial demands would be met, including its demand for the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's wealth.

The United States rejected this, and on Jan. 2 offered a counter-proposal: only the approximately $10 billion in Iranian government assets frozen by the United States would be returned, in installments linked to arrangements for resolving claims and counter-claims by the two sides.

On Jan. 7, Iranian negotiator Behzad Nabavi said Tehran "generally" accepted the latest proposal, and the next day Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher flew to Algiers to establish closer contact through the Algerian go-betweens.

Summons Americans to 'era of renewal'

Reagan takes oath

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan was inaugurated 40th President of the United States today, summoning Americans to "an era of national renewal" amid bells and cannon, music and pageantry that became a celebration, too, for 52 American hostages reported freed at last from Iranian bondage.

A Tehran airport policeman said the hostages were out, but as he walked to the inaugural stand to yield office, outgoing President Carter said, "Can't say yet."

At the stroke of noon, power passed from James Earl Carter Jr., Democrat, to Ronald Wilson Reagan, Republican, conservative, veteran of Hollywood, governor of California, overwhelming choice of his countrymen.

Denied a second term, Carter watched as Reagan raised his right hand, put his left on a family Bible, and swore the simple, 35-word oath of office. A 21-gun salute boomed over the Capitol and the marble monuments of American government.

Moments before, George Bush had taken the almost identical oath of vice presidential office.

"With all the creative energy at our command, let us begin an era of national renewal," Reagan said in his inaugural address. "Let us renew our determination, our courage and our strength. Let us renew our faith and our hope. We have every right to dream heroic dreams."

Reagan said Americans are entitled, for they are themselves heroes, "you, the citizens of this blessed land. Your dreams, your hopes, your goals are going to be the dreams, the hopes and goals of this administration, so help me God."

Reagan's invocation to his new administration began with a pledge to confront and handle "an economic affliction of the worst proportions. We must act today in order to preserve tomorrow. And let there be no misunderstanding — we are going to act beginning today."

The new president said the nation's economic ills "will not go away in days, weeks, or months, but they will go away."

"In this present crisis, government is not the solution; it is the problem," Reagan said, a line sounded day after campaign day in the quest that won him the White House by landslide last Nov. 4.

Reagan said he means to curb the size and influence of the government he now heads. He said he will make government "work with us, not over us... stand by our side, not ride on our back."

He promised to ease the tax burden, restore the balance between various levels of government, promote American enterprise.

"These will be our first priorities, and on these principles, there will be no compromise," he said.

And in an era of renewal at home, Reagan said, the nation will stand abroad as "the exemplar of freedom and a beacon of hope for those who do not now have freedom."

He promised the United States will be a faithful ally to friends, and told potential adversaries that peace is America's highest aspiration. "We will negotiate for it, sacrifice for it; we will not surrender for it — now or ever."

Reagan said forbearance should never be misread as a failure of will. "When action is required to preserve our national security, we will act," he said. "We will maintain sufficient strength to prevail if need be, knowing that if we do so we have the best chance of not having to use that strength."

For Carter, the path led home, to the political obscurity of Plains, Ga., after a single term and a re-election bid hampered by futile efforts to free the hostages.

For Reagan, it led along the ceremonial route of presidents, from the Capitol 16 blocks down Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House.

On the steps of the Capitol, the monuments to George Washington and Abraham Lincoln before him, Reagan spoke the simple oath of all his predecessors.

Overnight stop here delays 10,000-mile bicycle trip

By TOMMY HART

Steve Maasland, 19, who said his love for adventure was encouraged by his Dutch parents, interrupted a 10,000-mile bicycle trip Monday for an overnight stop in Big Spring.

The native American (he was born in Fort Collins, Colo.) now resides in Ottawa, Canada, a 1980 graduate of high school, young Steve decided to take a year off and see as much of Canada and the United States as he could before going to college.

Maasland undertook the trip with the encouragement of one of Ottawa's Kiwanis clubs. After his arrival here,

Democrats very conspicuous at pre-inauguration events

By MARJ CARPENTER

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Democrats were very conspicuous at pre-inauguration festivities held here Monday.

All of the Big Spring Republican delegation which descended upon Washington to watch Ronald Reagan be sworn in as the nation's 40th president today dropped by the House office of Rep. Charles Stenholm, a Democrat from Stamford, to renew acquaintanceships.

Stenholm was planning a chili luncheon for some of his constituency following the inauguration today. He was the recipient of a pair of black socks sent him by a Georgia Democrat, Rep. Ed Jenkins.

Jenkins took Ronald Reagan at his word when the president-elect said he did not want to see anyone in white socks at the inauguration. Jenkins purchased a hundred pair of black socks and proceeded to send them to friends who had announced plans to attend the Tuesday ceremonies in front of the Capitol building.

Among Big Springers in Washington for the inauguration are Mr. and Mrs. Gary Turner and son, Matt; Ben Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Winston Wrinkle and son, David; and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Mack Sheppard.

Mr. and Mrs. Rick Anderson of Borden County were also present, as was a large Midland delegation, headed by former Mayor Ernest Angulo and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Thane Akins. Akins is the present Midland mayor.

Winston Wrinkle did not get to attend Monday night's Gala celebration held in Capital Center at Lanover, Md., because he was undergoing dialysis treatment. He was present for a reception held by Vice-President-elect George Bush, however.

I rode with Jackie Kennedy Onassis' half-brother and Sarah McClendon to the Gala in Lanover and heard many interesting stories about the Kennedy family.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements was also very prominent here. He hosted what he called a Six Flags Over Texas brunch, at which chili, crepes and grits were served. A Mexican band played and Secretary of State-designate Alexander Haig was an invited guest. Haig greeted his many Texas friends. The brunch was held at the Washington Sheraton Hotel ballroom.

George Mahon, the former Texas congressman from Colorado City and Lubbock, is here for the festivities. He was invited to Washington by U.S. Rep. Kent Hance.

Testimony begins

Testimony began today in a 118th District Court trial for Evelyn Sherrod, who is accused of obtaining a controlled substance by fraud.

Ms. Sherrod is accused of misrepresenting herself as a local doctor and calling in a prescription for herself.

Jurors in the case are Dick Denton, Teresa Wash, Franklin Warner, Harvey Ball, Joyce Ellis and George Smith.

Others are Thomas Sterling, John Hughes, Linda Gordon, Kenneth Sherwood, Glendon Armstrong, and Robert Haney.

Jack Thompson is representing Ms. Sherrod. Rick Hamby and Don Richard, assistant district attorney, are representing the prosecution.

Former House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. shot

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Price Daniel Jr., former Texas House speaker and son of a former governor, U.S. senator and Texas Supreme Court justice, was shot to death Monday night in his Liberty home.

The prominent politician also was a great-grandson of Sam Houston, first president of the Republic of Texas.

Sheriff Buck Eckols termed the case a homicide. An autopsy was conducted today in Houston.

Only Daniel, his wife, Vickie, 33, and three children were home at the time of the shooting, and Mrs. Daniel had filed for divorce at the first of the year, The Associated Press learned.

Mrs. Daniel called for an ambulance after the shooting. Ambulance attendants found Daniel dead and notified the sheriff's office.

Mrs. Daniel was hospitalized shortly thereafter and doctors said she was suffering from shock.

"When we found her, she was real hysterical," Eckols said. Eckols said he would question her when doctors approved and when her lawyer was with her.

Eckols said it appeared Daniel had been shot "above and to the right of his navel and possibly in the face." "We're waiting to see just how many times he was shot," Eckols said. "There was a lot of blood around the mouth and nostrils. It was hard to tell."

Daniel, 39, an unsuccessful 1978 candidate for Texas attorney general, also was a nephew of Bill Daniel, former governor of Guam.

The body was found in a hallway in the ranch-style Daniel home a mile north of Liberty and Eckols said a shotgun, rifle and two spent rifle shells were recovered. He said no signs of a break-in were found.

Zeke Zbraneck, a Liberty lawyer, family friend and former legislator, said he was shocked.

"I can't believe it," he said. Daniel was a member of the Texas House from 1969 through 1975 and served only one term as speaker, having been unsuccessful in getting legislative approval of a bill to limit a speaker to one term. He was succeeded as speaker by Billy Clayton, who last week was elected to an unprecedented fourth term.

As speaker, Daniel sponsored a large package of reform measures, having been chosen speaker after the Sharpstown scandal that involved allegations of bribery and corruption and led to the conviction of his predecessor as speaker, Gus Mutscher, on bribery-conspiracy charges.

Q. I'm an old woman and I've enjoyed watching late night wrestling on Channel 11 for a long time. Many times, friends would come over and we would watch the shows together. Now the shows are no longer on Channel 11. What happened?

A. Perhaps you missed the story that Channel 11 (Dallas-Fort Worth) was replaced by Channel 17 of Atlanta, which specializes more in old movies. In short, wrestling likely is still a part of the Channel 11 format but it no longer is offered to local viewers. Try Channel 3 for an occasional wrestling match.

he telephoned Billy T. Smith, secretary of the local Kiwanis Club, who not only showed him about the city but planned to take him to the Rotary Club's luncheon at Howard College today. Charles Beil of the Rotarians extended Maasland and Smith invitations to the luncheon.

Young Maasland arrived in Texas as early as Dec. 10. He elected to take about 3 1/2 weeks off from his cross-country tour to visit with friends in Austin and Houston.

He expects to arrive in Hobbs, N.M., Thursday and will go from there to Artesia, Truth or Consequences, Silver City, Lordsburg, Wilcox, Ariz., Tucson, Casa Grande, Chandler and Phoenix on his way to San Diego, Cal., one of his favorite cities.

He will make his way up the west coast to Victoria, British Columbia, and then head east through Canada on his way back to Ottawa. He expects to wind up the trip by late June or early July.

He says the only close call he has had since he started his trip was between Sweetwater and Big Spring when some one threw a beer bottle at him from a passing truck.

He is the third of four children born to Dirk and Paula Maasland, both whom were born in Holland. His father works for the Canadian government. He has a brother in Toronto, a sister at home and another sister, newly married, living in Australia.

Steve, who packed a tent but no bedroll, built his own bicycle, a ten-speed, after purchasing a bike frame while working in a bicycle shop back in Ottawa. He averages about 50 miles a day while traveling.

He's paying his own way with money he earned back in Canada, says he gets by without a great deal of expense.

He was given a big sendoff in Ottawa by Mayor Marion Dewar and received what amounted to a second sendoff by the Kiwanis Club of Manotick 12 miles down the road. He crossed the border at Detroit and kept going south until he hit Tallahassee, Fla., then turned west for Texas.

Community wide service of thanksgiving slated

Community wide service of thanksgiving for the returning home of the Hostages will be conducted at First United Methodist Church from 6:30 a.m. until 7 p.m. today.

Ministers participating in the service of thanksgiving will be Dr. Kenneth Patrick of First Baptist Church, the Rev. Bill Henning of First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Victor Sedinger of First Christian Church, Father Gulley of Immaculate Heart of Mary and Dr. Edwin Chappell of First United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Clayton Hicks, senior chaplain at the Veterans Administration Hospital will bring the message of thanksgiving.

The community is invited. The service will last approximately 30 minutes. A Nursery will be provided.

Copyright Tribunal hikes cable TV systems fees

The Copyright Tribunal in Washington, D.C., recently released its decision on higher fees, which cable TV systems are required to pay. The edict became effective Jan. 1.

The order states that fees which cable systems pay for copyrighted programs are increased by 21 percent. The fees are based on a percentage of cable gross revenues. Industry spokesmen say cable revenues have not kept pace with inflation during the past three years.

Copyright fees collected from cable TV systems are paid to the networks and movie producers, who bargained successfully for the right to collect increased fees, regardless of whether or not the cable companies have boosted their rates to customers in efforts to keep up with the Consumer Price Index.

Big Spring, Kermit enjoy exchange day

Student councils representing Big Spring High School and Kermit High School participated in an exchange day the past weekend.

The local council left for Kermit Friday to spend all day in school at Kermit. Following school, council members spent the night in homes of Kermit council members. While in Kermit, the local students attended a basketball game.

Saturday, the Big Spring students visited the Kermit sinkhole, the sand hills around Kermit and the state line.

Before heading back to Big Spring, they were served luncheon at Kermit High School. On the return trip, the council members stopped at Permian Mall in Odessa.

One of the most successful and educational projects undertaken in recent years by the student council has been exchange days with students of other area schools. This affords local students the opportunity of comparing the activities here with those of other learning institutions. Innovative activities have been started here as a result of the visitations.

In recent years, the local council members have visited schools in Colorado City, Andrews and San Angelo. Members of the Kermit Student Council will visit here later this year.

Among local students who made the trip to Kermit were Bobby Brasel, Russell Stukel, Steve Drake, Debbie Cowan, Charlotte Beil, Merrilbeth Bancroft, Chuck Gibbs, Letitia Hernandez, Shana Hohertz, Tom Cudd, Amy Ragan, Alan Trevino, Lori Marin, Lisa Leal, Kim Grant, Dee Earhart, Jody Martinez, Julio Cerda, Christy Garcia, George Bancroft, Teresa Alexander. Sponsors accompanying the group were Dennis Launary and Craig Fischer.

Police Beat Pickup reported stolen

Local police spent a slow Monday.

While Jerry Hughes, 2000 W. 3rd, was at the Lamp-lighter Club in the Ramada Inn, late Monday night, someone stole his 1978 Datsun pickup from the parking lot. Hughes had reportedly left the keys in the vehicle. Cost of the pickup has not been estimated.

Burglars broke into the home of Lucretia O'Bryan, 1602 Robin, and wandered around inside, but didn't steal anything. Damage to a window, a screen and a bedroom door, however, was estimated at $20.

Johnnie Winham, 603-B Douglas, reported that a renter at her home had broken a window, ruined a carpet and poked a large hole in a wall, sometime within the last week. Damage was estimated at

Carter settles account with Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter, ending the hostage ordeal at the dawn of Ronald Reagan's presidency, settled one last account with Iran today — starting 52 American captives toward their long-awaited freedom.

Richard Allen, national security adviser to Reagan, told reporters that his "fragmentary, original" information was that the hostages were airborne to freedom. The Iranian news agency, Pars, said the hostages had departed aboard an Algerian 727 jetliner.

In his inaugural address, which concluded at 12:20 p.m., Reagan did not mention the hostages. Carter, who shared the podium with his successor, was similarly silent.

In his final briefing as press secretary to the president, Jody Powell said he could not confirm the hostages had been freed and that Carter would have no comment until he had returned home to Plains, Ga., at mid-afternoon.

Shortly afterward, following the transition in the White House press room, Reagan spokesman Larry Speakes, a spokesman for Reagan, said it would be left to the new president to announce the freedom of the Americans.

Powell said it would take about an hour after the hostages were airborne for the aircraft to clear Iranian territory and he and Speakes both said no official announcement would come until that had taken place.

The impasse was broken with a proposal drafted by a British lawyer for the Iranian Central Bank to resolve a dispute over interest on Iranian assets, the press secretary said.

Powell said Carter, who spent his last night as president at work in the Oval Office, telephoned Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher in Algeria with orders to begin the process of placing the assets into an escrow account for Iran.

When that is done, Algerian intermediaries

"will have to certify that fact, and once that certification takes place, Iran is supposed to release the hostages," Powell said.

The break came under deadline pressure applied by each side.

Powell said the Iranians had been told if there were no settlement today, "in effect the new administration will be able to dismantle everything that's been done if they want to."

Iran's chief negotiator, Bezhad Nabavi, said his government would set a deadline for U.S. banks to transfer frozen Iranian assets

Big Spring, area towns record sales tax gains

Big Spring received a large increase in its monthly sales tax rebate check, compared to payments for the same month last year.

The city received a check for $59,136.38, compared to a check totaling $32,228.60 for the same period in 1980.

Nearly all area cities received similar hikes in their 2 percent rebates. Coahoma received a check for $2,162.13, compared to $1,115.48 during 1980; Colorado City, $11,632.43, compared to $5,611.98; Lamesa, $22,902.31, compared to $15,608.36; Stanton, $2,334.18, compared to $657.70.

State Comptroller Bob

Bullock Thursday made payments totaling $33.1 million to nearly a thousand cities levying the optional one percent city sales tax.

The payments represent the first rebates to cities this year who collect city sales tax and about $10 million more than the cities received in January of last year.

The biggest check — $6.6 million — went to Houston, a 31-percent increase over last January's check.

Dallas received a check for $3.7 million, a 42 percent increase over the $2.6 million received last year.

Fort Worth will receive a check for $1.2 million compared to $971,920 for the same period last year.

San Antonio will receive a check for $1.7 million this month compared to $1.3 million for January of 1980.

The city sales tax is collected along with the state sales tax by merchants and businesses and rebated monthly to the cities in which it is collected by the Comptroller.

Community luncheon set

Reservations for the first Community Luncheon for 1981, set Friday, should be made by 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Office, said LeRoy Tillery, executive director of the chamber.

SNACK ON JELLY BEANS— President-elect and Mrs. Ronald Reagan eat jelly beans as they watch the Inaugural Gala entertainment at Landover, Md., Monday night.

Reagans are honored at Gala

WASHINGTON (AP) — The show business friends Ronald Reagan left behind in Hollywood came east with song, praise and putdowns at an entertainment extravaganza celebrating the inauguration of the nation's 40th president.

When Monday night's nationally televised inaugural gala ended, the man who stood at the threshold of the White House told more than 17,000 cheering Republican admirers that his personal transition to power had finally become real to him.

"Almost every day (since the election) people have said to Nancy and myself, 'Well, has it really sunk in?'" Reagan told the crowd after he took center stage to conclude the 2 1/2-hour show.

He said the answer was "no" until one point during the concert when "I leaned over to her (Nancy) and said, 'It's sunk in.'"

Reagan did not say when that feeling occurred, but the thought might have been planted by actor Charlton Heston, who introduced a dramatic reading by noting that at noon today Reagan would "assume the most awesome responsibility ever put in a human being.... He will forever be wrapped in legend."

The sparkling crowd, dressed in tuxedos and evening gowns and sporting numerous full-length fur coats, paid up to $150 for the giant bash. Vendors sold oysters on the half shell, crab claws and offered champagne to the guests.

Frank Sinatra, a close Reagan friend who produced the show, got a standing ovation and concluded the concert with his old-standby song, "New York, New York."

The crowd also gave standing ovations to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only living five-star general, and actor Jimmy Stewart, who came on-stage to hail the start of the new administration.

Most of the evening, however, struck a much lighter note as master-of-ceremonies Johnny Carson, comedian Bob Hope and impressionist Rich Little roasted the Reagans and Vice President-elect George Bush and his wife, Barbara.

The Reagans, sitting in pale blue wing chairs on a raised platform surrounded by flowers.

Goliad students discuss ERA, taxes, presidency

By ANDREA COHEN

The concerns of Big Spring schoolchildren include stronger leadership, controlled inflation, lower taxes, more defense spending, the equal rights amendment, and pollution control.

These issues were discussed with two classes of sixth grade students at the Goliad Middle School Monday.

The reasons they feel the Iranians have chosen to release the hostages at the end of the Carter administration, are varied.

"The later they wait with Carter, the less time he has in office. That's when he'll make the better deal to get the hostages out," said Shannon Scarlett.

"They might think Reagan is stronger than Carter and when he comes in he might do something right off the bat," according to Scott Stone. "Carter is kind of weak. When the crisis came, he sent the helicopters over, but he didn't send enough of them."

"They know what kind of man Carter is and they don't know what kind of man Reagan is," said Michael Carroll.

Carey Fraser agreed adding, "They don't know what Reagan is going to do." Most of the children agree that Reagan will be a stronger president than Carter was.

Carey Fraser, talking about Carter stated, "I hate to see him go out of office. He was a good president, but he didn't have the right people with him and he became president at a bad time." He added that he would like to see our new president build up the nation's national defense.

"I think if Carter had stayed in office longer he would have got things done," said Michael Carroll. "He did things gradually, but he did them." Carroll's hope with President Reagan is that the hostages are freed.

Heath Stewart said he did not think Carter made decisions most of the time, "like getting the hostages. He should have done it sooner than waiting that long."

Agreeing with that statement was classmate Brian Burcham who added, "He should have had the escape plan better. He should have had the helicopters tuned up and everything."

"Maybe if he had done something different, he might have gotten the hostages out," stated Cody Sheppard.

Other issues the children are concerned about are varied. A sample of statements include the following:

—"Cut taxes."—Shannon Scarlett

—"Not raise taxes as much as Carter did."—Katrina Matthews

—"Lower prices."—Arlene Aguirre and Ricky Regalado

—"There should be more government regulations controlling television." "The standards of TV shows are not very high."—Lee Bruce.

—"Encouragement by government to have small energy saving cars used more often."—Mike Cahill and Tony Sheppard. Cahill added that the United States "could stop buying oil from other countries." Catrina Matthews, agreeing with that statement said she would like to see gas prices go down.

—"Make the crime rate go down. Make them stay in jail longer."—Donna Bryant Issues that concerned the students were nuclear waste, pollution and littering. Many of the students were in favor of nuclear energy if it was done safely. And most agreed they would move from Big Spring if a nuclear power plant were to be built here.

"It would be okay if it's useful," said Carey Fraser. "If they had a place to build it that was nowhere near society, if it could be built without leaks and if they could find a place to dump the waste where it wouldn't hurt anybody, it would be okay."

"If they had nuclear power, I've heard where nuclear waste got in the water and somebody walked in it and it burned the skin off their feet," said Scott Stone.

Added Chris Walker, "I used to live near a plant in Stephenville and they said malignant babies were being born because it was being dumped into the water."

"I've heard that radiation does strange things to your body," said Heath Stewart.

Shannon Rose would like to see the rate of pollution cut. Marjorie Cline and Teresa Pruitt would like to see the government raise fines for those who do pollute. Many agreed with Heath Stewart that more dumping grounds need to be built.

Chris Walker wants to see a recycling system "built up better than it is." Mike Cahill wants more recycling factories built. Manuel Hilario and Michael Carroll want to have more signs erected in public places to discourage littering. And Kimberly Willis would like to have litterers picked up and arrested.

Another issue the students are concerned with, but divided on, is the Equal Rights Amendment.

"The Era stinks," said Brad Smith. "They say they want to be equal and then we get drafted and then they say no, no, no."

Mike Cahill disagreed, saying, "If two people got work and there was no ERA, she couldn't get enough money to support the kids."

Lisa Bruce said she feels women should have the same rights as men, but Carey Fraser disagreed, to a point. "Women should have rights" he said, "but there should be a limit. It goes back to the Bible. We're made different."

Inauguration emphasizes landmark election

The message was loud and clear. The American people have ordered the most far-reaching change of political direction since the election of 1932.

RONALD REAGAN'S stunning defeat of President Carter will not produce an immediate 180-degree turn, of course.

But his inauguration today does mark the end of what might be called the Roosevelt Era of Expanding national government.

Reagan's most enthusiastic conservative supporters may be disappointed in speed and extent of change. Half a century of history cannot suddenly be erased or reversed. But for the federal government, the big growth period is probably over for a good many years. The change is long overdue.

IT WILL BE A HAPPY DAY, for example, when Ralph Nader arrives at the Environmental Protection Agency or some other agency and is welcomed as an ordinary citizen rather than a prophet entitled to special privilege.

We have no doubt Ronald Reagan will support some sensible federal environmental projects, by the way, as he will continue many other useful programs of the closing era. But it is a fair bet that the silly excesses personified by Nader are likely to fade into history soon after today.

REAGAN'S VICTORY was interesting not so much for the size of the Nov. 4 vote, but for its uniformity. He ran well in conservative Utah just as he did in liberal Massachusetts; in executive suburbs as in blue collar neighborhoods.

HE PERFORMED BETTER than expected in every economic, ethnic and regional group. This isn't a victory for labor or business or ethnics or farmers or the South or the North.

The message came from every group and every direction. It was not so much a positive order to Reagan as it was a negative response to the failed presidency of Jimmy Carter and the Big Government philosophy he represents.

THE MESSAGE, reduced to one word was: Enough.

Word inflation

Around the rim

Richard Horn

On a recent airplane flight, I did something that was kind of stupid. We were approaching our destination when the stewardess told us to please "extinguish all smoking materials."

None of the passengers moved. Looking around, I began thinking that someone had better do as she said. I jumped up, grabbed the nearest fire extinguisher and began frantically looking for any coats or shirts or blue jeans that looked as though they were smoldering.

EVERYONE LOOKED AT ME like I had lost my mind. The stewardess took me by the arm and asked me if I was alright. I said yes and she asked me what I thought I was doing. I told her I was trying to extinguish smoking material. She stared at me and told me that she meant for people to stop smoking. Embarrassed, I returned to my seat as someone muttered "Send him to Iran."

It occurred to me after I got home that the stewardess should have said "Please stop smoking" instead of "please extinguish all smoking materials". This got me to thinking about all the ways we clutter our language with useless big words and technical terms. Maybe the stewardess was afraid that she would look stupid if she didn't use a big word like extinguish instead of stop. But many people use those types of phrases so it must not be something personal.

Later that night I turned on the Senate confirmation hearings for Alexander Haig. I saw where the stewardess, and everyone else, got the habit: all people in government talk like "Star Trek" computers. Here is only a brief list of the many multi-syllable words that were used for no apparent reason: numerous (which means many), facilitate (which means ease), remainder (rest), initiate (first), implement (do), attempt (try), sufficient (enough), individual (person).

The list could go on. There were also many phrases that sound very intellectual, but only confuse people. Haig used each one of these several times: "I might add," "Let me point out," "short-term expenditures", and my favorite, "credible second-strike capability". Is anybody really sure what credible second-strike capability is? I think it means that after the Russians blow up the East Coast, the West Coast will be able to fight back, but I can never be sure.

SOMEHOW, CLUTTER CREEPS into our everyday language. People are always saying things like "with the possible exception of" (except), "for the reason that" (because), "he lacked the ability to" (he couldn't).

These junk words and phrases are all over the place ("all over the place" is another one). Even in The Big Spring Herald office there is an example. On the bulleting board is a form telling employees that there is a job opening at another paper in our chain. What are these forms titled? "Help Wanted"? Nop they're called "Manpower Requisition Forms". Can you believe it? I wouldn't take one of those jobs. I'd be afraid they'd put me in a box marked "Manpower" and ship me by Federal Express.

Where are colonels?

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON—It is very perplexing for foreigners to understand how Americans change presidents. I happened to be watching the swearing-in with a military attaché from a South American country who was seeing his first inaugural.

He was quite bewildered by the ceremony.

"What is President Carter doing up there on the platform?" he wanted to know.

"He's watching the new president of the United States being sworn in."

"Isn't he under house arrest?"

"NO, WE DON'T put our ex-presidents under house arrest," I told him. "It's much more cruel to make them see their successor take over the office."

"How come there are no colonels up on the platform?"

"We always give the colonels who overthrow our government the best seats."

"Our colonels didn't overthrow the government. The president was elected by the people."

"But didn't you have the junta oversee the elections?"

"We had no junta. People just went to the polls and voted for the candidate they wanted."

"How can you do that under martial law?"

"We didn't have martial law," I said, patiently.

"But if Carter knew that Reagan was going to overthrow his government, why didn't he declare martial law and round up all the people who were supporting Reagan?"

"Our system is not that sophisticated yet. Every president takes his chances that he can win reelection. Once the voters have spoken, that's it."

"It doesn't make any sense that a man in power would not have any knowledge that the opposition was planning a coup. What happened to the generals who were supporting Carter?"

"Carter didn't have any generals supporting him in office."

"That explains it! But surely the secret police could have tortured the Reagan people and found out what was going on."

"We're way behind when it comes to torturing political opponents. We just let everyone have his say and then we select the person we want to be our president for four years."

"You mean Reagan is not going to declare himself president for life?"

"He can't. The Constitution won't permit it."

"But surely he can change the Constitution. We do it all the time."

"IT'S TOO MUCH trouble," I said.

"Besides, being president of the United States for four years can seem like a lifetime."

"When do the trials of Carter's Cabinet officers begin?"

"There are not going to be any trials. Most of them will go back to their law practices or head up large corporations."

"How can Reagan be sure they won't work clandestinely to overthrow him?"

"They will, but not until 1984."

"We never have tanks at a presidential inauguration. They make potholes in the streets. Pay attention, you could learn something from this."

"What good would it do? When I make a report to my government, no one in the junta will believe me."

Bank reports misappropriation

HOUSTON (AP) — Allied Bankshares, Houston's fourth largest bank holding company, has reported a $16.9 million misappropriation of funds at Allied Bank of Texas.

The misappropriated funds were said to have been traced to an individual who incurred "liabilities on behalf of the bank which had not been recorded."

Pacemaker has limits

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 56 years old and had an acute heart attack three years ago. I had a by-pass done, but still have irregular beats. This is controlled with the drug Norpace, but the side effects are hard to live with (lessened sex drive). Why do they want to use drugs to control the beats instead of a pacemaker? Other drugs tried did not work for me. — E. T.

Pacemakers have their limitations. Ordinarily, they help when something goes wrong with either the heart's own pacemaker or with its conduction system. Rhythm irregularities range from harmless to life-threatening, and drugs are used to control most of them — at least they are tried first. If the abnormal rhythm responds favorably to the drug, then the problem is solved.

With this in mind, I suppose you can count yourself lucky that your dysrhythmia (narrow complex tachycardia) has done the job. A frequent side effect is trouble urinating, also fatigue and weakness. These might contribute to anyone's lessened sex desire. If this is making life intolerable for you, and if all other drugs have been tried, then you should ask your doctor if you would benefit from an artificial pacemaker. Are you sure every other drug has been tried?

Also, remember that after a heart attack the area where the healing scar forms may be irritable and trigger peculiar beats and rhythms. Not all problems originate in the pacemaker.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Why are bunion so common in women? I have them bad, and surgery has been suggested as the treatment. I have tried everything else for them, so am considering have it done. What is your opinion of the surgery? — Mrs. G. G.

Women have more bunions than men because they usually wear the kinds of shoes that contribute to bunions. A study showed that bunions were more prevalent among Hong Kong's shoe-wearing population than among those there who go barefoot.

But that is just the beginning of the problem. After the big toe starts bending inward from the shoe pressure, the situation becomes aggravated by the nature of the foot itself. The tendons to the toe are constructed to exert pressure in a straight line back from the toe. As the toes bend it increases pressure on the tendon at the point of the bend and it is here that inflammation occurs. A bursa (sac) then forms to protect the bone at this point. Thus a bunion ends up being a protective device.

The newest surgery is to realign the toe itself. It is done if a bunion becomes very troublesome or painful and if other methods, like padding, bars to shift weight distribution or proper footwear do not work. The surgery is successful, but it is not required in most cases of bunions. For further discussion of foot problems, see the booklet "Relief and Care of Your Feet." For a copy, write me in care of the Big Spring Herald enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain angle closure glaucoma. Is there any medicine for this disease? What about a transplant? W. N.

The front part of the eyeball has two compartments separated by the iris, the colored part of the eye. These compartments are filled with fluid that is constantly being produced and drained off. A drainage channel empties into nearby veins and carries it away. About the same amount is produced as is being drained off, so fluid pressure is maintained constantly with the eye.

That drainage channel, though, is located where the edge of the iris is attached to the sides of the eye. If the iris blocks the channel, the production-drainage balance is lost and fluid pressure in the eye builds. That is angle-closure glaucoma. The usual treatment for chronic angle-closure glaucoma is to make a small opening in the iris so that the fluid can drain freely. There are no transplants for this condition. This is just one form of glaucoma.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you tell me what the purpose of the drug "doxepin" is? — L.M.P.

Doxepin (generic) is used for the treatment of depression and anxiety.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband had some heart problems some months ago, and now he spends all his time babying himself and worrying about his health. I get very impatient and short-tempered with him, and I know that is wrong, but what can I do? — Mrs. C. S. J.

DEAR MRS. C. S. J.: It is not good that your husband is so absorbed in his own health problems, and neither is it good that you become so upset about your situation. But I believe God can use this circumstance in your life to help both you and your husband grow closer to him.

First of all, remember that God knows your situation and wants you to commit to him and trust him to help. Have you honestly turned this concern of yours over to the Lord, asking him to help you and strengthen you? The Bible promises, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee" (Isaiah 26:3). He can give you peace and patience, if you will let him. How will he do this? By helping you see

Members of Congress celebrate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress were greeting today's inauguration of Ronald Reagan with a good deal of celebrating on their own. Even congressional Democrats were taking advantage of the opportunity.

In addition to more formal festivities, dozens of small gatherings, parties and "open house" receptions were planned on Capitol Hill.

A generous Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., invited all his central Pennsylvania constituents to the inauguration. "Our TV receiver will be turned on, and in full operation for all who wish to enjoy it," Shuster said in a press release.

Not all congressional guests were invited to watch the swearing-in on the tube; some even got tickets.

WASHINGTON — Just before leftist guerrillas began their long-heralded "final offensive" in El Salvador, American intelligence analysts had concluded that the rebels enjoyed a slight military edge over the moderate junta's armed forces.

Here's how they reached that conclusion:

— Approximately 5,000 to 6,000 guerrillas, oppose some 16,000 government and right-wing paramilitary troops. But being outnumbered three to one is not a desperate situation for dedicated guerrilla fighters. During the Nicaraguan civil war, the Sandinista rebels had at most about 6,000 well-trained fighting men and women. President Anastasio Somoza had 12,500 crack U.S.-trained troops at the outset, and increased his army to at least 16,000 as the war dragged on. Yet Somoza lost.

— THE SALVADOREAN LEFTISTS are better equipped for the kind of war that's being fought — hit-and-run raids designed to destabilize the government and paralyze the nation's economy. The CIA has determined that among the leftists' arms are U.S. infantry weapons captured in Vietnam. In addition, the Cubans and Palestinians — and possibly the North Koreans — have been supplying arms to the rebels by way of Costa Rica. Iraq has given financial aid.

The Sandinistas have reportedly repaid a $1 million loan from Salvadoran leftists by providing 4,500 top-line semi-automatic rifles — still packed in factory grease — which Somoza left behind when he fled.

The Salvadoran rebels have received excellent training from the Sandinistas and other tough, successful guerrilla fighters.

All this has led to a changed situation in recent months. "A year ago, the guerrillas and the government were about even militarily," an intelligence source told my associates Dale Van Alta and Bob Sherman. "But now the guerrillas have the edge."

Other sources, while not disputing the intelligence estimates of the guerrillas' strength, caution that this should not lead the Reagan administration to rush millions of dollars in U.S. arms and aid to the embattled centrist regime and the right-wing paramilitary groups. A return to gunboat diplomacy will damage the U.S. position in Latin America, they warn.

The pressure will be on President Reagan to take action, however. Since the coup that toppled President Carlos Humberto Romero on Oct. 15, 1979, factional violence has claimed more than 10,000 lives in El Salvador — and six of these were Americans.

The circumstances of the Americans' murders were particularly inflammatory: Three nuns and a Catholic woman lay worker were raped and either shot or strangled last December, their bodies dumped into a shallow grave.

Earlier this month, two American agricultural advisers were executed by gunmen in the coffee shop of the Sheraton Hotel in downtown San Salvador. The two men worked for the foreign service arm of the AFL-CIO, and their bosses had asked the Agency for International Development to provide armored cars for their protection — a request AID officials turned down for lack of funds.

INTELLIGENCE SOURCES laid responsibility for the Catholic women's murders on right-wing, paramilitary forces; it has not been determined who killed the two labor representatives. In any case, no one has been charged with a single one of the 10,000 political killings in the past 15 months.

The leftist guerrillas announced weeks ago — following the Republicans' victory in the American elections — that they planned to take over El Salvador before Ronald Reagan's inauguration. They clearly believe Reagan will respond to their growing threat by arming the right wing, and they hoped to present him with a fait accompli by Inauguration Day.

DIPLOMATIC DOUBLE STANDARD: One of the most imposing structures on Washington's Embassy Row is the British Embassy. But as a diplomatic courtesy, the Brits don't have to pay property taxes on their elegant spread.

No such diplomatic immunity is granted to the American Embassy in London, and some other U.S. government property in the United Kingdom. They are annually "rated" at a percentage of the real estate's rental value. Last year, Uncle Sucker paid $347,000 in these taxes for our diplomatic property in Britain.

NE PLUS ULTRA: Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is often teased by colleagues for his sternly conservative views. One fellow solon was overheard on the Senate floor describing "The Ultimate Helms Amendment," to wit: "No foot stamps for abortionists on buses in Zimbabwe unless preceded by a prayer for a balanced budget."

Midland court clerk jailed

MIDLAND—Sharon Gaye Teneyck, 22, a Midland municipal court clerk here, was jailed Monday after she was charged with official misconduct in connection with the disappearance of city money.

Peace Justice Robert Pine set bond at $50,000. A police official said Ms. Teneyck was arrested at the police department where she was employed by the municipal court.

Police Chief Wayne Gideon said cash collected from parking tickets and fines was missing but declined to say how much money remained unaccounted for.

but the families of hostages with Texas roots were withholding comment until they received official confirmation.

In Balch Springs, Johnny and Wynona McKeel, the parents of hostage Johnny McKeel Jr. allowed reporters inside their home so the reporters could be present when the State Department called with confirmation of the hostage release.

The parents of hostage Robert Engelmann continued to refuse comment.

"I have no comment," said A.R. Engelmann of Hurst. "We've heard about (the takeoff), but I'd rather not say anything."

An Iranian official said just before dawn, Texas time, that the hostages "are ready to fly." Reporters in Tehran were told by a policeman that a plane carrying the hostages left Iran shortly before 11 a.m. CST.

The official Iranian news agency, Pars, confirmed the report at about 11:30 a.m.

The hostages were expected to be released Monday, but last minute difficulties delayed the release. Mrs. McKeel, spent Monday tying yellow ribbons around practically everything that didn't move and some things that did move around the Dallas suburb of Balch Springs.

Mrs. McKeel and dozens of other Balch Springs residents trudged up and down the streets of Balch Springs, tying yellow ribbons on fence posts, mail boxes, street signs and on front porches.

Officials at Balch Springs are planning a "Johnny Comes Marching Home" parade when young McKeel returns home.

The elder McKeel shouted for joy early Monday when told by a U.S. State Department official that the agreement had been signed in Algiers an hour earlier.

The McKeels tied a new yellow ribbon around an oak tree in their front yard early Monday to replace a fading, tattered yellow ribbon Mrs. McKeel put there shortly after learning that her son, an embassy guard, had been taken hostage Nov. 4, 1979.

But later in the day the McKeels, like other hostage families around the country, had their hopes dimmed when they learned of "problems" that delayed the release.

David Engelmann, brother of Navy Lt. Commander Robert Engelmann, says he will do his celebrating after he learns that his brother actually is out of Iran.

Mrs. Dorothy Royer, mother of hostage William B. Royer Jr., held a news conference at her Houston home Monday.

"I feel just great about the government," she said. "I felt Jimmy Carter had worked awfully hard and I would have hated to see him leave office and someone else get all the credit."

Mrs. Royer said the 14-month wait has seemed "more like five years." "I've always been a patient person, and I guess this has taught me to be even more patient," she said. "Bill taught me to understand the Iranians. He told me these people could look you right in the eye and lie to you."

Like other hostage families, Mrs. Royer was concerned Monday with making plans for a celebration when her son comes home.

"I'm going to do when half the United States walks into my house when Bill comes home. This place isn't very big, you know. I may have to rent the Hyatt Regency," she said.

Trying to be good neighbor costs Big Spring man $10

Trying to be a good neighbor recently cost Chuck Cawthon of Big Spring $10.

A Canadian man tried to cash a $50 money order on a Canadian bank in a local restaurant. When the waitress couldn't make change, Chuck volunteered to take the certificate in exchange for $50 in American money.

Chuck, however, had failed to figure the rate of foreign exchange. The money order, as it turned out, was worth only $40 in American money. For that reason, Cawthon had to absorb the loss, since the visitor from Canada had already departed the area and couldn't be contacted.

Oil companies challenge injection wells regulations

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Lawyers for 40 oil companies fighting millions of dollars in government fines and penalties have begun a federal court battle with a lawsuit challenging U.S. Department of Energy regulations governing injection wells in 15 states.

About 24 lawyers jammed into the front of U.S. District Judge Frank This' courtroom on Monday to participate in the opening day of the trial. The judge consolidated numerous separate cases on the same issues on May 26, 1977.

Joseph W. Kennedy, who represents the oil companies, delivered an opening statement claiming DOE officials exceeded their statutory authority when they issued a rule excluding water injection wells from the calculations of stripper well production.

This ruled in January 1978 that the then-Federal Energy Administration failed to follow the Administrative Procedures Act when it implemented the injection well exemption and he struck it down.

But the U. S. Court of Emergency Appeals, a panel formed in Washington, D.C., to hear energy cases, reversed This' opinion in November 1978 and sent the case back to Wichita for trial.

Marginal oil wells are sometimes removed from production and used to inject water into underground oil-bearing rock formations in hopes of creating pressure that will produce better flows at other nearby wells.

The oil companies in the case want to be able to count the injection wells as producing oil wells when calculating average daily production. "Old oil" wells that produce 10 barrels or less a day are considered stripper wells and qualify for higher decontrolled crude prices. When water injection wells are removed from the calculations, many wells wouldn't be eligible for stripper prices and would instead be covered by the ceiling price for "old oil."

Kennedy said besides exceeding its statutory authority, the DOE acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner by eliminating a practice that had been accepted industry-wide for 40 years.

He said injection wells still are counted as producers by state regulators in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico.

Llano Memorial Hospital lowering its room rates

LLANO—At a time when medical costs are soaring, Llano Memorial Hospital has announced it is lowering its room rates by $5 a day.

As of Jan. 1, the hospital's rates for a private room was reduced from $70 to $65 a day. Private rooms with shared baths now cost $64 a day while the cost of a semi-private room was lowered to $60.

Dennis Fargis, general administrator of the hospital, said that hospital profits are excessive now, crediting efficient operation and more prompt payment of hospital bills.

A year ago, room rates were raised $10 a day. The hospital has 30 beds. Three doctors are on the staff. In addition, there are 12 consultant doctors.

Four facing drug counts post bonds

Three adults who were arrested Friday and charged with possession of a controlled substance, were transferred to the county jail this weekend, where they were later released on bond.

A female juvenile, who was arrested with the group on the same charge, was transferred to the county jail Monday, and was later released on bond.

Arrested at the juvenile's residence Friday were Michael Jon Fox, 21, same address; Scotty Mural Casselman, 21, 101 E. 21st; and Sherri Larue Herl, 20, 1503 11th Place.

Justice of the Peace Bobby West set bond at $10,000 each for Casselman and Fox. A $10,000 bond was set for Herl by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin.

A $10,000 bond was also set for the juvenile female, who was released after bond was posted for her.

Bond was made for Casselman by Jack Thompson, for Herl by Jimmy and Evelyn Sherrod, and Fox by Basden and Conway.

444th flag is raised

HERMITAGE, Pa. (AP) — The organizer of daily flag-raising to honor the 52 American hostages in Iran hoped the 444th flag today would be the last, but he said the ceremonies will continue until the hostages are freed.

"We'll do it until it's over," said Tom Flynn. "I'm holding back a flood of emotion until I know the hostages are free. Then all hell will break loose."

About 100 people bundled against a brisk wind watched Monday as Flynn and others guided a shiny flagpole bearing flag No. 443 into a metal stand, symbolizing the 443rd day of captivity for the American hostages.

Spectators, some weeping, applauded as a high school choir sang patriotic songs and the stars and stripes were raised in the clear sky above Hillcrest Memorial Park in this community about 70 miles north of Pittsburgh.

The 443rd flag once draped the coffin of Marine Pvt. Joseph Bridges of Latrobe, who was killed in Vietnam. His mother donated the banner as "a tribute of strength and knowledge that other people do care for the release of the hostages."

Flynn began raising a flag for each day of the hostages' captivity on the 100th day. He said he wanted a visible sign of support for the captives.

Eddie Chiles says he's glad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential inauguration of Ronald Reagan has prompted Texas conservative Eddie Chiles to change his tune from "mad" to "glad."

"Just say I'm in my glad period, that's all," the Fort Worth businessman said Monday at a Texas inaugural celebration.

Chiles campaigned for the Reagan-Bush ticket and his "I'm Mad Too, Eddie" bumper stickers became a common sight in Texas.

He claimed there was a strong turnout of Texas and Oklahoma Republicans for the inauguration because of the conservative bent in those states.

"They are looking forward to a good conservative regime," Chiles said.

Chester Upham, the Republican party chairman from Mineral Wells, told the crowd of about 1,900 people that "tomorrow at high noon — there's going to be a warmth in the hearts of all Texas Republicans, all Republicans and all conservatives."

The Texas brunch hosted by the state party was held at the Sheraton-Washington, also the site of a Saturday night Lone Star inaugural gala and the assigned location for Texans to attend an inaugural ball Tuesday night.

"It looks to me like we Texans ought to just stay in this room," Texas Gov. Bill Clements told the brunch crowd after he was given a tumultuous welcome. "It's where all the good things are happening."

Clements later introduced Secretary of State-designate Alexander Haig to the Texas crowd before moving on to a reception in honor of Vice President-elect George Bush.

How do you turn off gossip?

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed. D. Copley News Service

Barbara, 15, from Florence, Ala., had a very unpleasant experience on a date and does not know how to handle the resulting gossip. Jeff Long, 16, from Merced, Calif., and Alice Romero, 16, who lives in Odessa, Texas, will offer some suggestions.

Dr. Wallace: Before I tell you my story, I want you to know that I am a pure young lady who is 15 years old. Two days ago I went to a party with a guy that I liked a lot. During the party we went to his car and we started kissing. He started to get frisky with his hands and I told him to knock it off.

He then forced my hands behind my back and ripped open my blouse. Just then, a girl at the party opened the car door and started laughing. I was totally embarrassed to think she thought we were making out.

Today at school I heard that I was naked with a boy in his car. When I walk down the hall, I think everyone is whispering about me. I tell everyone it isn't true what they are saying, but they don't believe me.

I'd like for your guest teen writers to also offer suggestions on how I handle this. Please hurry. My reputation is at stake. — Barbara, Florence, Ala.

Barbara: I realize that your reputation is on the line but teens do judge you on what you do, not on what others say you do.

This was a one-shot deal and the only person who really saw anything was one girl. When people question you about the "adventure," say, "I'm sorry but nothing happened." Say no more.

It will take a little time for the talk to ease up, but it will. Needless to say, do not date this boy again under any circumstances. — Dr. Wallace.

Hi Barbara: The one person who can stop all the rumors is the girl who started them. Go to her and tell her honestly what happened. Tell her that you're miserable and would be very grateful if she would set the record straight.

Tell her that you would like to be her friend and invite her to a Pepsi after school. Two good things could happen. First, the gossip should stop and you could have a new friend. — Alice, Odessa, Texas.

Hello Barbara: Being a boy, I would come to your aid if I were the guy who was with you in his car. Why don't you go to him and ask him to talk to the blabbermouth girl who spread the gossip.

Ask him if he will tell her to mind her own business or that he will start dating her — naturally, in his car. — Jeff, Merced, Calif.

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me at Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper, stating your sex and age.

Facelifts are no longer for the daring and vain

Cosmetic surgery, once the privilege of the daring and the vain, now has become almost commonplace. A new generation of women in their middle years is rejecting growing gracefully wrinkled and is taking a "more competitive stance toward sexuality, fitness and careers."

That is the finding in an article entitled "A Thinking Woman's Guide to Cosmetic Surgery" in the January issue of Town & Country. Statistics graphically make clear how widespread this expensive procedure, costing from $1,000 to $6,000, has become.

Every year in the United States there are more than 45,000 face-lifts, 65,000 nose alterations and 48,000 eye-lifts. Modern plastic surgery became a specialty in the two world wars, when operations were performed on thousands of mutilated fighting men. Today's surgeons, just as skilled, work toward their own special objective.

"Plastic surgeons are different from other doctors," says Town & Country. "They do not maintain or save life; they alter the quality of a patient's life to make it more worth living."

In the article, 12 plastic surgeons and one psychiatrist, cited as "among the finest in the world," discuss their profession. Those interviewed are Drs. Ronald B. Berggren of Columbus, Ohio; Eugene H. Courtiss of Boston; John Goin of Los Angeles, Calif.; Dicran Gouliam of New York City; V. Michael Hogan of New York City; Norman E. Hugo of Chicago; Bernard L. Kaye of Jacksonville, Fla.; Thomas J. Krizek of New York City; Thomas D. Rees of New York City; Kenneth E. Salyer of Dallas, Tex.; Linton A. Whitaker of Philadelphia, Penn.; Harvey Zarem of Los Angeles; Marcia Goin of Los Angeles, the psychiatrist. Dr. Marcia Goin provides valuable information on how to use a plastic surgeon in any geographical area.

Pot luck supper held by NARVRE members

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees met at the Kentwood Older Adult Center on Jan. 15 at 6:30 p.m. for a pot luck supper, followed by the regular meeting. W. C. Cole, first vice president, presided.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. W. J. Goodson and J.W. Weidel.

Seven members were reported to be hospitalized. Those present with January birthdays were Mrs. C. G. Varnel, Mrs.

Birdie Walker. It was suggested that in answer to the questionnaire from Larry Don Shaw, state representative, to request him to lend his support to legislation pending in Washington D.C. relative to railroad retirement.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. C. A. Smauley, Mrs. Tip Anderson and Mrs. C.A. Ross.

The next meeting will be Feb. 19 with a pot luck supper at 6:30 p.m. and business meeting at 7:30 p.m.

CAN YOU BELIEVE WHAT'S GOING TO HAPPEN AT McDonald's? (THE SECRET'S OUT, DO YOU KNOW?)

Dear Abby

If Housewives Were Paid, They'd All Hire Maids

DEAR ABBY: ANONYMOUS MOM needs to learn a few things. She scolded her son for leaving his bike in the middle of the street, saying, "If it gets stolen, I'm not buying you another one." Then her smart-mouthed kid shot back, "You didn't buy me the first one — Daddy did!" She said that made her realize that because she wasn't a wage earner, she had not contributed much to the household.

Well, according to Family Circle magazine, the value of the average full-time homemaker's work is $793.79 a week — or $41,000 a year!

The magazine stated that the average homemaker performs at least 22 separate functions with child care being the function that takes the most time — 186 hours a week on the average. (At a token $1 an hour, this would amount to over $9,000 a year.)

The seven or more hours a woman spends cleaning house, at a minimum $3.21 an hour, adds up to at least $22 a week; 13 hours as a cook at $4.75 an hour is another $62 a week. The three hours a week (average) that a wife spends acting as a maid or hostess for her husband, at $20 an hour, adds another $60 to her "wage bill," notes the magazine.

How about that?

ELIZABETH S.

DEAR ELIZABETH: Thanks. And if the magazine didn't figure in the other duties performed by mother, such as nurse, chauffeur, seamstress, tutor, referee, hand-holder, confidante and counselor — it should have. Now for a kid's-eye view:

DEAR ABBY: That kid who sassed his mother when she told him to take his bike out of the street, or she wouldn't buy him another one, needs a whipping. That's what I would get, and I wouldn't be allowed to ride my bike for a week. I know, because it happened to me.

PAUL J. (AGE 11)

DEAR ABBY: You were right in advising GETS LOST A LOT not to be ashamed, that some of our brainiest people get lost a lot. I wonder, however, if you are aware that those of us who have difficulty in remembering directions could be victims of "dyslexia" — a condition which has nothing to do with intelligence.

In addition to losing our way, we have difficulties learning to read, to spell and to do the simplest problems in math. Einstein, Edison and Nelson Rockefeller were dyslexic. There is no known cure, although early diagnosis is helpful in giving a child special training so he can learn to cope with his condition.

I understand this runs in families.

ALSO GETS LOST A LOT

DEAR ALSO: My twin and I were not dyslexic, but we got lost more than any two people we knew. Why? Because when directions were being given, we were always talking instead of listening.

DEAR ABBY: The quandary of LOVERS FOR SURE calls for a word of encouragement. Having married my own cousin, I concluded after 27 years of domestic bliss and six perfectly normal children that cousins in fact bring a commonality of background and outlook to a marriage that contributes to an early strengthening of the conjugal bond, and remains a permanent uniting influence.

As for the genetic lottery, it's not only for relatives; everybody is in it!

UNREPENTING COUSIN

DEAR UNREPENTING: Granted, everybody is indeed in it, but the risk of hereditary diseases and tendencies toward them are greatly increased when cousins marry.

I repeat, genetic counseling is good insurance. Everyone may not be as lucky as you.

Newton children are home for the holidays

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin D. Newton, 12 Lloyd Ave., recently held a family reunion in their home over the holidays.

Attending were the couple's children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. David H. Newton and sons William David and Jack Harrison from Whitehouse; and Sgt. and Mrs. Jeffery P. Newton, and son Paul J. Newton, from Fort Worth. Also present for the occasion were the couple's parents, including Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Newton, Marshall; and Mrs. Gladys Harrison, Big Spring.

Both of the Newton's sons attended Big Spring schools. David currently teaches at Robert E. Lee High School in Tyler. Jeffery is a telecommunications specialist at Carswell Air Force base in Fort Worth.

Area 4-H'ers advance to state competition

"Expanding Horizons" was the theme of the 1981 District VI 4-H Food Show, held Jan. 17 at Midland High School, Midland, Tex.

Participating youth throughout District VI in the Junior and Senior divisions numbered approximately 127, from some 18 surrounding counties in the far west district.

Each contestant was presented with a ribbon by Harry Campbell, area 4-H and youth specialist and Midland County Judge William B. Ahders and county commissioners Dewayne Davis, Winfree Brown, and Charles Welch.

Those Senior contestants going to state competition were presented a rosette and gift by Mrs. Mary D. Bryant, District VI Director of Texas Extension Homemakers Association.

Serving as Master of ceremonies for the Awards presentation program was Scott Robinson, Knott 4-H, District VI 4-H Council chairman, and introduction of guests for the program was by Robin Ethridge, Coahoma 4-H District VI Council, secretary.

Contestants were judged on various phases of the foods and nutrition program, as well as themselves. Some of these phases included the food exhibited, its quality in as far as texture, taste, temperature, color, aroma, and appearance.

The recipe itself was judged on the function of the ingredients, possible food substitutions and preparation principles. A one-day's menu was planned by each contestant and judged on their knowledge about number of servings, serving sizes, and key nutrients needed by their age group.

The contestants were also judged on personal food habits, personal appearance, effectiveness of communication, and leadership abilities.

The categories for competition in each of the two divisions were Main Dish, Side Dish, Breads and Desserts, and Snacks and Beverages. The top scoring winners in the senior division will compete in state competition held in June at Texas A&M University, College Station.

Senior winners going to state are Robin Ethridge, Coahoma 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Ethridge for Main Dish; and Paula Allen, Coahoma 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Allen, for Breads and Desserts.

Stephanie Dobbs, Coahoma 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Quail Dobbs, received a red ribbon in the Side Dish division and Sharon Tindol, Coahoma 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Tindol, received a red ribbon in the Snacks and Beverages division.

Junior winners are Lori Wyrick, Coahoma 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Wyrick, district winner in the Main Dish division; Debbie Nelson, Forsan 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Nelson received a blue ribbon and was alternate to the district winner in the Breads and Desserts division; Denette Dick, Coahoma 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Dick received a blue ribbon in the Side Dish division; and Tonya Rock, Forsan 4-H, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rock, received a red ribbon in the Snacks and Beverages division.

Agents accompanying the 4-Hers and parents from Howard County were: Nina Mahon, and Janet Rogers, County Extension Agents-Home Economics.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS: Howard 71, Odessa 65; Amarillo 79, Western Texas 74

By NATHAN POSS

It wasn't a work of great art, but still a most important win here Monday night, as the Howard College Hawk Queens held on for a 71-65 win over the Odessa College Lady Wranglers in a WJC contest.

The reason for the importance of the triumph was the fact that the OC women came into the contest with a perfect WJC mark of 4-0, which was good for the league lead.

But Howard's win puts the Hawk Queens at just one game behind the OC women and once again scrambles the unpredictable women's race. The Hawk Queens of Coach Don Stevens are now 2-1 in the WJC action and a sparkling 17-2 on the year.

Monday night's win was one in which the Hawk Queens fell behind early by 3-0, but never would trail again. It was not without a fight from the OC women in the foul plagued contest, however.

Officials whistled a total of 63 fouls in the contest, with 33 called on OC and 30 against Howard. Forty-one of those fouls were called in the first half, which took one hour to complete.

With the abundance of fouls called against both sides, the bench strengths of the respective WJC powers played a key factor in the contest, with Howard's depth helping tremendously in holding off the OC women.

After OC had taken the early 3-0 lead, the Hawk Queens ran off nine straight points and gradually increased that for a comfortable 38-29 halftime lead.

But Odessa came right back in the second half, keeping within striking distance throughout.

OC scored the first six points in the second half to narrow the count to 38-35 with Howard's first points of the final 20 minutes coming with 17:20 left on a short turnaround shot by 6'3" Kelly Lyons.

OC continued to stay close, but Lyons and freshman Kellie Mull scored all of the Hawk Queens points in the next seven minutes, and the Queens went up by nine at 54-45 with just under 10 minutes left.

But Odessa, led by the outstanding sophomore duo of Jackie Skinner and Tanya Wells, got red hot over the next four minutes. They scored all of the OC points in this late rally, with Wells scoring off an Angela Dykes assist to tie the game at 58-58 with 6:20 remaining.

The Hawk Queens Melissa Luna hit a field goal and a free throw to put HC again on top at 61-58, but Lyons drew her fourth personal foul with 4:18 remaining, thus forcing Stevens to make one of those difficult decisions that he is paid for.

HELP... Odessa's Craig Ehlo (34) looks for a teammate to pass to during second half action during last night's game in Garrett Coliseum versus the Howard College Hawks. Ehlo found somebody this time, but it was not enough for the visiting OC crew, as the high flying Hawks scored a 67-62 win. Others in the picture are Howard's Walter Hall (33), and Randy Corker (41), as well as the irrepressible referee, Frank Sheppard. Howard takes its perfect WJC mark of 6-0 against another unbeaten, Frank Phillips, in a showdown here tonight.

Steers visit Permian

ODESSA — The Big Spring Steers will be going for their initial win in District 5-A-A-A-A first half action tonight when they visit the Odessa Permian Panthers for an 8:00 p.m. encounter, with the host team simply trying to stay in the race for championship honors.

The Steers of Coach Ed Haller have lost their opening two decisions to Abilene and Midland, while Permian has split against the same schools. The Steers lost to Midland by a count of 70-55, while Permian dropped a 78-69 decision to MHS. Big Spring also suffered a 68-62 setback to Abilene, while Permian managed a 64-63 overtime win over the Eagles.

The two foes met once before in the Canyon Reef Tournament in Snyder, with Permian winning handily. But in that game, the Steers were playing without the services of starters Dickie and Jerald Wrightsill, as well as Bobby Earl Williams.

"They've beaten us before and have the height advantage," said Steer Assistant Coach Mike Randle last night, "but we can beat them if we play the way we can. Our guards should be better than theirs."

Mike Woolley and Joe Smith have been the leading scorers for the Panthers this year, who have a season record of 10-8.

Williams is the leading rebounder for the Big Spring team, which has a record of 9-11, and has been their leading scorer in district play.

In other District 5-A-A-A-A games, Midland (2-0) hosts Abilene, Midland Lee (1-1) is at Abilene Cooper (2-0) and Odessa (0-2) visits San Angelo (1-1).

With win over Odessa

Corker led Hawks stay unbeaten WJC

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawks continued their red hot ways here Monday night and stayed unbeaten in Western Conference action with a wild and woolly 67-62 triumph over the Odessa College Wranglers in a contest played in Garrett Coliseum.

The contest was anything but predictable, with the only normal occurrence being in the form of Randy Corker. The freshman from Trenton, New Jersey, who leads the WJC in scoring, canned 28 points and dished out numerous assists in once again sparking the HC win.

It would appear that the Hawks might have a letdown for the OC team. Coming off an exciting win over previously unbeaten Midland College last Thursday, and hosting unbeaten Frank Phillips tonight, it would seem tough for the Hawks to get up for the Odessa crew, which entered the game with a WJC mark of 1-4. But they would quickly realize that OC was better than their league mark would indicate.

With Odessa holding an early lead of 8-6, the excitement started. After a collision with Odessa's Craig Ehlo, Akins came up swinging, with OC's Danny Schmiech stepping in between. The officials threw out Akins and Schmiech immediately, and also gave OC Coach Jim Yeakel his second technical of the night.

"When I first saw it happen, I thought they (the officials) were going to throw out Akins and Ehlo," Howard Coach Harold Wilder said later. "That would have been okay, because Ehlo's their franchise. But they ended up throwing out Akins and Schmiech, and I think we got the worst end of that deal."

Frank Phillips, Hawks meet here tonight in battle of WJC unbeatens

MIDLAND — When the Frank Phillips basketball team rides into Big Spring tonight for their WJC showdown with Howard College, they'll be riding high after taking an exciting 69-67 win over Midland College.

The FPC crew handed Midland College, now 17-2 for the year, their second loss in as many games here Monday night in dramatic fashion.

With the score tied at 67-67 with 30 seconds remaining, Frank Phillips' Curtis Adams stole an inbound pass and scored what proved to be the winning bucket.

Midland had a chance to tie the game and send it into overtime, but missed four shots underneath the basket with three seconds remaining.

The loss was the second consecutive two-point loss for the Midland College team. They were the number one team in the nation and undefeated before falling to Howard last Thursday.

Adams had 12 points to pace FPC, with Ralph Hubbard adding 11. Hubbard is a highly touted 6'9" transfer from the University of New Mexico, whose basketball program has been riddled with violations from the NCAA and FBI. He thereby landed at Frank Phillips this year.

Charles Johnson had 22 for Midland.

The winner of tonight's Frank Phillips-Howard game will be in sole possession of first place in the rugged Western Conference race.

Baylor continues amazing SWC ways

By The Associated Press
Baylor basketball coach Jim Haller said he's beginning to get excited about his team's perch atop the Southwest Conference basketball standings following a victory Monday night over Texas Tech.

Baylor beat Texas Tech, 69-61, and Houston edged Arkansas, 57-54, in the only conference games Monday night. In non-conference action, North Texas edged Texas, 75-74.

Two SWC roundball games are on tap tonight. Southern Methodist travels to Fort Worth for a game with Texas Christian and Rice is at Texas A&M.

"I'm now beginning to get excited myself. I can't say enough about our team now," Haller said after the Bears beat the Red Raiders, 69-61, to move to 5-0 in conference play.

Terry Teagle had 24 points to lead Baylor scoring. Bubba Jennings was the leading scorer for the Red Raiders with 14.

Baylor had problems in the first half, falling behind early in the game, 10-0. They trailed, 26-21, at halftime but came back strong to outscore Texas Tech, 48-35 in the second half.

"That might have been the best second half of basketball Baylor has ever played," Haller said. "I know it is since I've been here. We were very patient with our offense in the second half."

Rob Williams had 22 points as the Houston Cougars handed the Arkansas Razorbacks their third SWC loss in a row, 57-54.

The Cougars trailed, 34-33, at halftime and Houston coach Guy Lewis said, "It took us a helluva long time to take the lead."

Michael Young had 16 points for the Cougars, including four straight baskets midway through the second half to give Houston the lead. Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said, "We've got to go home, get some things corrected and get momentum going back the other way."

Sutton wasn't overly upset at the loss, however, noting, "The last time we lost three games in a row we didn't lose again until the Midwest Regional (NCAA) finals. We hope we can put together another streak like that one."

North Texas State grabbed a 10-point lead late in the game and had to withstand a strong Texas rally to edge the Texas Longhorns, 75-74.

Mull sparks Queens win

He decided to replace Lyons at this point, and the strategy didn't hurt at all.

One reason it didn't is that with 3:44 left, Wells fouled out, thus putting the OC women at a disadvantage personnel wise.

Mull converted both foul shots off the Wells foul, and less than a minute later converted another pair of free throws. Carrie Lee Lutrick added a bucket moments later, and with less than two minutes to play, HC held a comfortable 67-60 lead.

But both Floyd and Cynthia Robinson fouled out for the Hawk Queens with just under a minute to play, with OC's Dykes, a sophomore from Coahoma, canning both ends of a pressurized one-and-one situation to narrow the HC lead to 67-64.

But once again it was Mull to the rescue for the Hawk Queens, as the freshman from Denver City hit yet two more free throws with 16 seconds left to ice the win.

A total of six players fouled out in the error filled and tightly called contest, with OC being hurt the most. Four of their players were disqualified from competition due to fouls.

As is usually the case, Lyons led the Hawk Queens attack with 18 points, with Mull adding 17. But it was the free throw shooting of Mull that keyed the win.

While the Hawk Queens as a unit could hit on only 25 of 41 from the free throw line, Mull connected on nine of 10. Most were in the final minutes, too.

Wells had 16 for OC, with Karen Enderle and Skinner adding 14 and 12, respectively.

The HC women return to action on Thursday night for a WJC round game at Clarendon.

Arizona State believes in rating

By The Associated Press
Many college basketball coaches dread being ranked in the Top 10, but Arizona State's Ned Wulk isn't one of them.

The Sun Devils jumped from No. 12 to seventh in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday as Oregon State and Virginia maintained to top two positions, respectively, and Wake Forest and DePaul shared the No. 3 slot.

"It's ridiculous to say you're not interested in the poll," Wulk said Monday night. "It's a motivator for your team. The kids and fans really take it seriously."

So do the Sun Devils opponents.

"Once you get up there, everybody is shooting for you. So I just keep telling my players they're just as good as the night before," Wulk said.

The Sun Devils were very good last week, beating their No. 8 UCLA 78-74 in triple overtime on Friday and whipping Southern Cal 69-55 the next night.

"One of our goals this year is to go to Philadelphia," said Wulk, referring to the site of the NCAA finals in late March.

Madden likes sudden popularity

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The telephone rings incessantly in big John Madden's suite at the Super Bowl hotel headquarters. He sticks his head out the elevator door and he is immediately swarmed on by a bevy of admirers.

He walks down the street and truck drivers yell out of their cabs. "Hey, John, you wrecked any joints lately?"

Women queue up to get his autograph.

"I coached football for 20 years and even won the Super Bowl," said the pillow one-time coach of the Oakland Raiders, "and nobody knew me from Adam."

"I do a 30-minute beer commercial or say a few words as a television analyst, and I suddenly become a celebrity."

"Like it? I love it. But it's become really tough. I can't respond to everybody as I should."

Madden, who coached Oakland from 1969 through 1978, is in New Orleans to do CBS radio commentary on Sunday's Super Bowl, involving the Raiders and the Philadelphia Eagles.

He's hardly had time to catch his breath since he underwent the job transition.

Actually Madden is a big, good-natured bear of a man who sees humor in almost everything — even a bone-rattling football game in which his team gets most of the rattles.

"I've always been able to see funny things in football," he said. "I used to run films by the hours just to pick out stuff that amused me."

It's this detached, earthy approach that suddenly has projected him to the front of the mushrooming class of so-called jock analysts, ex-players and coaches.

Madden's heart is with the Raiders and the maverick Oakland boss, Al Davis.

He's a Davis man.

"Why shouldn't I be?" he said. "He made me a head coach when I was 32 years old. Images are manufactured. Like the Raiders. They are called rejects and rebrands. Philadelphia has just as many guys like that."

Hawk win over 1-5 Odessa was not easy

It would be the second straight game the Hawks would win without Akins, their top rebounder. He didn't suit up for the upset win over Midland due to a back injury, either.

But the Hawks, behind Corker, Kenneth Jones and Walter Hall, hung tough. They managed to battle for a 31-36 halftime lead.

The Hawks came out ready in the second half, jumping to a 47-40 advantage with 13 minutes remaining. At this point, Wilder ordered the Hawks into their four-corner offense that proved to defeat Midland last week.

This time, however, the move wasn't as effective in the early going. After stalling for two minutes, a shot was missed and OC quickly came down and sank a field goal.

HC managed a field goal off their next attempt at running the four-corners, but OC scored twice in the next minute to narrow the margin to 49-46 with 6:30 left to play.

But the Hawks quickly ran off seven points of their own, with Hall getting four of the points and Jones two on a stuff. Both Hall and Jones' buckets came on beautiful feeds from the versatile Corker, with a free throw by Corker, and providing the Hawks with a 56-46 advantage with but four minutes remaining.

In the next minute, a pair of free throws by both Hall and Jones gave the HC team a 60-48 lead, and it appeared the game was all but salted away.

It was not, as Ehlo and Sterling Williams combined to put OC back in the contest. They hit for seven consecutive points, with Doc Maddox's bucket with 1:07 left cutting the once comfortable HC lead to 60-57.

Missed free throws by the Hawks during this stretch kept them from icing the game, and gave OC a shot at getting within one on the next possession. But a back-court violation stalled that hope.

Crushon Loving hit one of two free throws for a 61-57 lead with 42 ticks left, but Ehlo bombed a 20-footer with 33 seconds left to cut the HC lead to two.

Loving was immediately fouled on the ensuing throw-in, sinking one of two free throws for a 62-59 lead. OC then missed their next scoring opportunity, and quickly fouled Corker when the Hawks gained possession.

It was not the right person to send to the charity line, as Corker calmly sank both ends of the one-and-one opportunity and all but iced the game away, providing HC with a 64-59 lead with 14 seconds remaining.

Corker added three more free throws before it was over, and OC added three more points of their own, but it was all academic at this point.

Corker led all scorers in the contest with 28 points, with 17 of them coming in the second half. The 6'5" freshman was deadly from the foul line, canning 12 of 14 attempts. Jones and Hall added 14 for the Hawks.

Ehlo and Williams paced OC with 19 and 14 points, respectively.

Hall's performance was a big key for the Hawks, and no doubt came at a time when the HC team needed it the most, as Akins was gone from the game.

"Walter's play tonight was a gift from God," a relieved Wilder said in Coach Don Stevens' office after the game. "He plays great over in Midland until he gets hurt. He can't even bend his knee after the game, and the next few days."

"Then, last night, he rolls over in his sleep and hears something snap in his leg," Wilder continued. "He gets up this morning and everything's fine. Then he goes out and plays real well tonight, and then limps off after the game tonight and can't bend his knee again."

Hopefully for Wilder and the Hawks, Hall's knee will snap once more in his sleep, as they face mighty Frank Phillips tonight. FPC, like Howard, is a perfect 6-0 in conference play. Frank Phillips is also undefeated on the season, having disposed of 17 consecutive opponents.

Runnels Red wins

SWEETWATER — The Runnels Red basketball team evened their record at 2-2 here Monday evening, taking a 23-19 win over the Sweetwater JHS B team in boys basketball action.

Doug Walker sparked the Runnels win, scoring nine points and grabbing 15 rebounds. Jose Arenivaz added six for the Yearlings, with Sammy Watson having four.

The Runnels crew returns to action on Thursday in the Colorado City Tournament.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 21, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is excellent for making future plans that have to do with home, family, property and possessions. Figure out what obstacles you have to overcome.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can benefit a great deal with a concerted effort in career activities now. Ideal evening for entertaining congenials.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be alert to new methods that could make your regular routines more efficient. Express happiness with friends tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your financial status well and make plans to have more security. Show others that you can be relied upon.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to pursue personal aims that are important to you and get good results. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Confer with a financial expert for advice you need. The evening is fine for having a pleasant time with the one you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study the position you hold in your community and try to improve it in some way. Show that you have ability.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure business affairs are well handled early in the day. The evening is fine for deepening bonds between you and friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take time to study new outlets that could help you become more successful in the future. Use more of your latent talents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure not to invest more money than you can afford in a new project. Show more affection to loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Listening to the suggestions of associates can bring greater benefits in the future. Don't neglect important bills.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can easily handle all that work ahead of you if you persevere and don't scatter your forces. Be logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put your finest talents to work early in the day and get excellent results. Engage in hobbies during spare time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one with the knack of bringing harmony into the home and can stop arguments cleverly. Give as fine an education as you can and direct it towards merchandising and allied fields for best results.

Economic woes threaten Texas cattle feeders

AUSTIN—A combination of economic woes are threatening the Texas cattle feeding industry, and for some cattle feeders, "breaking even is about the best they can expect," Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said today.

Brown noted that most Texas cattle feeders, who supply up to 15 percent of the nation's beef, face an average $50-per-head loss on each animal leaving their feedlots.

"High costs on feeder cattle, grain and borrowed money are the major factors hurting cattle feeders at the present time," said Brown. "Placements of calves into feedlots have declined by an average of 13 percent over the past three months, with further drops likely in the spring," he said.

"While the situation currently facing cattle feeders is bleak, we are hopeful that things may turn around in the coming months," he said. "If interest rates drop substantially, and consumer demand for beef picks up after the holiday season, we could see some improvement."

Some of the problems facing cattle feeders can be attributed to this past summer's drought, the effects of which will be around long after the rains have come and temperatures have dropped, Brown added.

It now costs cattle feeders from 60 to 65 cents for each pound of weight put on an animal. This figure includes feed, medical care and other costs, but not interest, which is very substantial at today's rates.

The Texas Department of Agriculture's Market News Service, which provides complete price information on a variety of crops and livestock statewide, reports that as of Jan. 13, finished slaughter steers in the Panhandle area were bringing 67.5 cents a pound. "Therefore, it is apparent that profit margins are very slender, or non-existent," Brown commented.

Howard County Junior Livestock Show nears

Howard County 4-H and FFA members are taking last minute steps toward conditioning and training their animals for the Saturday Howard County Junior Livestock Show says Andy Vestal, county extension agent and 4-H project supervisor.

Some 180 lambs and 30 steers are receiving their final touch ups this week for one of the largest and highest quality livestock shows ever in Howard County. Youth have searched for high quality stock, feed and cared for them since June, and trained and recorded expenses and hope for the best under the judges eyes on Saturday.

Lamb judging will begin at 8 a.m. in the Dora Roberts (Heated) Fair Barn while Steer judging commences at 1 p.m. upon the newly erected astro-turf show arena inside the Dora Roberts Fair Barn. The Howard County Junior Livestock Show Association and the Commissioners Court are very proud of the new facility and the youth exhibitors will enjoy the warmth.

A premium auction of prize winning animals will follow the show beginning at 6 p.m. All individuals, businessmen and companies are invited to the premium auction and the show to support the youth of Howard County.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

As our nation begins to grapple with its economic problems, and as the new congress and administration start work, the federal budget will be the subject of a great deal of concern and discussion.

That is as it should be, for controlling the size of the budget is an essential step toward solving all of the problems facing our economy. But adopting the budget is a long and complex process. It involves all quarters of the legislative and executive branches of government. Each step is important, and a roadblock in one phase affects every subsequent step. So I would like to take a moment to outline the basic actions involved in determining what the federal government will spend.

We are currently in "fiscal year" 1981, which began Oct. 1. There probably will be modifications to that year's budget in the coming months, but the wheels already are in motion for the budget for fiscal year 1981, which will begin next October.

The first official action is the presentation to the Congress of the President's budget recommendation, based on consultation with the various agencies and arms of the executive branch. President Carter already has sent Congress his budget, and President Reagan will send his recommendations as soon as he and his cabinet make decisions on priorities.

The Congress can approve, modify or reject any of the president's recommendations.

In Congress, the budget is determined through three different processes. The first step is called authorization. The various committees of the House and Senate look at the needs in areas under their jurisdiction and "authorize" programs and spending levels to meet those needs. The Armed Services Committee, for instance, is responsible for defense budget authorization.

Each of the committees reports its budget estimates to the budget committee, which then compiles a recommended overall budget. This first "Concurrent Budget Resolution," passed by the House and Senate, becomes the blueprint for all future action. That step allows Congress to look at the budget as a whole.

With the budget resolution in hand, the Congress is ready to move to the appropriations process. The appropriations bills set out what actually is to be spent during the year for each program in the budget. The authorization bill sets the ceiling for the appropriation, simultaneously, any tax legislation is considered, also in light of the Budget Resolution.

When action is completed on all money bills, the Congress adopts a Second Concurrent Budget resolution, which firmly sets spending limits. It also relates these figures to projected revenues, and calculates the resulting deficit or surplus.

Each of these steps involves both the Senate and the House. In most cases, the two bodies will adopt bills that differ in their provisions. Then a conference committee irons out the differences and presents the compromise bill to the two houses. Before a bill is sent to the President, both houses must approve identical versions.

In recent years, Congress had had problems meeting its budget deadlines. It is my hope that this year, we can act in timely fashion so that the budget can be in place when the new fiscal year begins.

GOOD FOOD, FUN ATMOSPHERE
... at the Gold Mine in College Park

The Gold Mine offers unique atmosphere

When you want to go out for a quick bite to eat, what do you look for? Most likely you look for a place that offers good food and pleasant surroundings. Most places offer one or the other, but a new restaurant, The Gold Mine, in College Park Shopping Center, offers both; good food at reasonable prices and surroundings that have a character all their own.

Owners Steve and Amy Lewis, who also own and operate the Rainbarrel Gift Shop in College Park wanted to provide Big Spring with an eating place that offered more than just good food. The Lewises have found a host of unusual furnishings and have given the Gold Mine an old fashioned-type atmosphere.

As far as food goes, The Gold Mine offers plenty of it, and at a price that will suit you. Sandwiches on the menu include hamburgers, cheeseburgers, roast beef (thin sliced for added tenderness), plus pastrami, corned beef, grilled cheese, hot dogs, barbecue sandwiches and steak sandwiches.

If an afternoon snack is what you're interested in, check out The Gold Mine for hand-dipped ice cream (16 flavors), banana splits, and a variety of soft drinks.

Whatever your tastes, The Gold Mine has something for you. They're open Monday thru Saturday from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., and located in the College Park Shopping Center.

GREAT TIRES AT GREAT PRICES
...at Creighton Tire Company

Creighton Tire Co. has great tires for sale

If the colder weather keeps you at home more, and you do less traveling than you do in the warmer months, this may be just the time for you to look into getting some new tires for your car. Now may be the time to check those tires to see if they will be able to put up with the wear and tear.

Your life and the life of your loved ones could depend upon the conditions of your tires. If your tires are badly worn they will not have the traction that they may need in emergency situations.

One place to check is Creighton Tire Company in Big Spring. Creighton Tire is one of the most experienced tire businesses and Dalton Carr is one of the most experienced tire businessmen in the Big Spring area.

They feature Michelin and Sonic tires, two of the best and safest tires on the market today. Michelin makes tires for both big and small cars.

Call Carr and let him tell you about the special advantages both in safety that Michelin and Sonic tires can offer.

At Creighton, they can service foreign cars. Their mechanics are on duty to help with that fuel saving car that was foreign born.

The nuber at Creightons is 267-7021. Their address is 601 Gregg St. They are there to help you with tire and mechanical needs.

Ali talks 'jumper' down from 9th-floor fire escape

LOS ANGELES (AP) - People on the ground urged the distraught 21-year-old man to jump. But former heavyweight boxer Muhammad Ali promised to help him find a job, and talked the man down from a ninth-floor fire escape.
"No doubt about it," said a police spokesman. "Ali saved that man's life."
The man, whose name was not disclosed, climbed onto a fire escape at the high-rise office building at about 2 p.m. PST Monday.
Police officers, a psychologist and a police chaplain tried unsuccessfully to talk to him, said Sgt. Bruce Hagerty, who described the man as a very distraught, mixed-up young man.
The man, who was too young to have served in Vietnam, was talking Army jargon. He said the Viet Cong were out there, Hagerty said.
Meanwhile, an aide to the three-time world boxing champ spotted the commotion and offered Ali's services to the police. Ali apparently was conducting business across the street at the time, but officers at first weren't thrilled at the thought of "people getting in crisis situations and then asking for movie stars," Hagerty said.
Then, however, the man "said he was definitely going to jump and he came close to jumping. We decided to give Muhammad a chance at talking to the man," said Hagerty.
"It's really you!" the man exclaimed when Ali arrived.
The boxer, who lost his bid for a record fourth title at the hands of Larry Holmes on Oct. 2, talked to the man first from a ninth-floor window and then from the partially enclosed stairwell.
"The police thought he had a gun," Ali said later. "Nobody would get near him. I told him I'm coming out and don't shoot me. He said, 'I won't shoot you. I don't even have a gun.' I took his word and walked on out."
Ali told the man: "You're my brother. I love you and I wouldn't lie to you. You got to listen. I want you to come home with me, meet some friends of mine."
After half an hour, the 39-year-old Ali put his arm

More people placing greater pressure on Texas water supply

COLLEGE STATION - Migration of people into the Sunbelt and drought are putting more pressure on Texas water, and the forecast was that the spigot will run dry - unless replenished to meet the growing demand.
"Texas is not a water surplus state," assured Robert Van Dyke, director of San Antonio's city water board. "Texas is fast coming to the point of using all its water, and we aren't going to have enough."
Van Dyke was one of several authorities on water speaking to some 500 scientists participating in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's annual staff conference this week.
Texas population climbed from about 9.5 million in 1960 to slightly more than 11 million in 1970, to currently 13,721,000, and projected to 18 million or more by the turn of the century.
Van Dyke noted that water use averages 200 gallons per capita per day, and that he "can't foresee any reduction" in this rate.
Speakers, including Col. M.L. Gardner of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, Louis A. Beecher, Jr., chairman of the Texas Water Development for the Texas Department of Water Resources and Jan van Schilfhaarde, director of the USDA's Salinity Lab at Riverside, Cal., agreed that a long range water plan is a must" if Texas and the nation's water problems are solved.

HANGAR 13

On October 25th, a large metallic object crashed in the Arizona desert. The government is concealing a UFO and the bodies of alien astronauts. Why won't they tell us?
