Unemployment stable in January

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the economy shows signs of staggering under the weight of persistently high interest rates, the nation's unemployment rate remained surprisingly stable in January.

The Labor Department reported today that last month's jobless rate stood at 7.4 percent overall, the same as in December, and "little different" from the level that has prevailed since May.

About 7.8 million Americans were out of work in January, the department said. In contrast, 97.7 million people were employed last month, an increase of more than 400,000.

"The gloom and doom predictions have been with us for a while, but so far they haven't materialized," said

Sar Levitan, a labor economist.

January's stability is all the more impressive because the number of people entering the workforce increased by 475,000 last month, the first sizable increase since July. Most of this gain occurred among women, whose participation in the labor force now stands at an all-time high of nearly 52 percent.

In contrast, however, employment among adult men and teenagers was virtually unchanged in January and still was 150,000 and 500,000, respectively, below the levels of one year ago.

Industry employment, which had suffered heavily during last spring's recession, rose by nearly 400,000 in January and over the last three months has advanced at a monthly average of about 250,000. "Between December and January, large employment reductions usually occur," the Labor Department noted.

In addition, average weekly earnings, after seasonal adjustment, rose 1.4 percent in December, a larger than usual increase that reflects the 25-cent increase in the minimum wage to $3.35 an hour.

The overall unemployment rate has seeped between 7.4 percent and 7.6 percent since May, even though interest rates rose to record levels during the same period.

One explanation may be that many unemployed people have given up the job hunt and are no longer counted on the jobless roll.

Reagan wants action; Congress hints changes in his program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, summoning Congress to approve without delay his drastic anti-government remedy for an economy in crisis, is finding lawmakers willing to cooperate but already promising to change a program they have yet to see.

Growing government has allowed the economy to veer out of control, Reagan told the nation Thursday night. Now, he insisted, government must "chart a different course" of swift and stern cuts in spending, taxes and regulation.

Declaring the economy is in the "worst ... mess since the Great Depression," the president implored a Congress accustomed to slow deliberation to act now.

"We've stalled the judgment day ... We're out of time," Reagan declared in his first nationally broadcast address from the Oval Office.

The speech avoided specific solutions. Details will be delivered to Congress on Feb. 18, the president promised.

Congressmen from both political parties said they were moved by Reagan's dramatic description of the economy's problems and the need for immediate and strong steps.

Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the Democratic whip in the Senate, said the president delivered a "clear and, indeed, eloquent statement of our economic plight" but oversimplified the causes. Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said Reagan gave the "most direct and candid speech I ever heard a president give since I have been in public life."

Many lawmakers reserved final judgment on Reagan's program until they see more of it — "I'm still waiting for that other shoe to drop," said Rep. John F. Sieberling, D-Ohio — but others already were anticipating changes.

"Congress will have some changes they will make," said Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, which will rule on the spending cuts the president proposes.

"There will be modifications made in the Congress," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which will examine Reagan's tax proposals.

Reagan outlined the general economic policies he advocated throughout his campaign: budget cuts in "virtually every department" of government, a 10 percent individual income tax cut each of the next three years, a rollback of federal regulations and accelerated tax depreciation allowances for business to spur investment and lift sagging productivity. He did not specify when the tax cuts should take effect.

While the president insisted all elements of his program must be approved at once, congressional leaders have expressed reservations about approving a long-term tax cut before taking the more difficult political step of pruning the budget.

Their concern is that cutting taxes and not the budget would increase rather than eliminate federal deficits.

Reagan rejected that argument. "There were always those who told us that taxes couldn't be cut until spending was reduced," he said. "Well, you know, we can lecture our children about extravagance until we run out of voice and breath. Or we can cure their extravagance by simply reducing their allowances."

Democrats also oppose the 10-percent, 3-year tax cut proposal as favoring upper-income taxpayers.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, on the ABC-TV show "Good Morning, America," said today the proposal "benefits the wealthy and doesn't benefit the poor."

For a family of four earning $15,000, he said, the proposal would, in the end, mean a tax cut of $151. But for a family of four making $100,000, the reduction would amount to $2,190. "This is redistribution of the wealth upward."

Byrd said Senate Democrats were already on record as unanimously opposed to the proposal and added that, while members of his party do want a tax cut, he feels Democrats "in the main" will continue to oppose the program Reagan advocated.

Reagan portrayed an economy at the brink of disaster and said: "We have come to a turning point. We're threatened with an economic calamity of tremendous proportions and the old business-as-usual treatment can't save us."

Warning that "we must not be timid," Reagan said reducing the government's bite on the economy "can create the incentives which take advantage of the genius of our economic system."

"Our aim is to increase our national wealth so all will have more, not just redistribute what we already have, which is just a sharing a scarcity," he said.

That buoyant view was in sharp contrast to the call for sacrifice that Jimmy Carter delivered four years ago.

But Reagan's policies will not be painless for millions of Americans who will be affected by the administration's proposed budget cuts. Dozens of social programs — including Social Security, unemployment benefits, Medicaid, farm subsidies, business loans, urban aid, food stamps and child nutrition — would be trimmed to cut up to $14 billion from the budget this year and $50 billion in 1982.

"Our spending cuts will not be at the expense of the truly needy," Reagan promised. "We will, however, seek to eliminate benefits to those who are not really qualified."

Reagan said his advisers had prepared a "comprehensive audit" that depicted the rise of inflation, regulation, taxes, spending and economic stagnation since World War II.

"You won't like it, I didn't like it, but we have to face the truth and then go to work to turn things around," he said.

Japanese steelworkers outproduce Americans by about 25 percent, he said. "This isn't because they are better workers. I'll match the American working man or woman against anyone in the world. But we have to give them the modern tools and equipment that workers in other industrial nations have."

"There are 7 million Americans caught up in the personal indignity and human tragedy of unemployment," he said. "If they stood in a line — allowing three feet for each person — the line would reach from the coast of Maine to California."

He produced a dollar bill in one hand and a quarter, dime and penny in the other, explaining that since 1960, inflation has reduced the value of the dollar to 36 cents.

A decade ago, the average family spent 27 percent of its income for a home; today, it takes 42 percent, he said.

Reagan said regulation costs business $100 billion to comply with and the government $20 billion to enforce.

The federal budget is out of control, with the projected $80 billion deficit for 1981 larger than the entire budget for 1957, he said.

County 4-Hers, FFA members show champions at Fort Worth

FORT WORTH — Howard County 4-H Club and FFA members are finding the effort they put into preparing animals for the 1981 Fort Worth Fat Stock Show well worth their time.

Andrea Ray, a member of the Coahoma 4-H Club, showed the Grand Champion Hereford on the first day of judging. Sharon Brummett of the Gayhill 4-H Club saw her American Crossbred win a Grand Championship. Sharon also had an 11th place winner on the Heavyweight Angus division.

Two other Howard County residents shared in the awards the first day. They included Duncan Hamlin, Gayhill 4-H, second place in the Hereford Heavyweight division; and Brandon Iden, Sands FFA, sixth place in the Lightweight Shorthorn class.

European crossbreds will be judged in today's competition, so the Howard County delegation will again be busy. There are 11 Howard County youngsters participating in the Fort Worth show. Andy Vestall accompanied the group.

Violent demonstrations reported in Tehran; 30 hurt by gunfire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Up to 10,000 leftists demonstrating opposition to Iran's clergy-dominated government battled with Islamic fundamentalists in the streets of Tehran today and sources in the Iranian capital reported 30 people injured, some by gunfire.

Iranian police contacted by telephone from Beirut said there were "many" casualties, some suffering bullet wounds. One Tehran newspaper said 30 were injured in the fight that lasted more than three hours.

"Those who have been shot are now hospitalized," one officer said. A policeman said one person was reported killed, but he was unable to confirm the report.

A Tehran hospital reported treating eight people for injuries and a hospital spokesman said one policeman was wounded by gunfire.

Police said between 7,000 and 10,000 members and supporters of the Marxist Fedayeen e Khalq organization gathered at Freedom Square on the western edge of Tehran in defiance of a government ban on demonstrations.

The leftists were confronted by supporters of the "Hezbollahi" or "God's Party," according to a spokesman for the Revolutionary Guards contacted by telephone from Beirut.

Hezbollahi is an organization of followers of hard-line Islamic clergy who support revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Tehran Radio reported that members of the Fedayeen organization staged a march "creating tension" in defiance of a ban on demonstrations issued Thursday.

A journalist on the newspaper Nizan, in a telephone conversation with The Associated Press in Nicosia, said about 30 persons were slightly injured.

Top GOP House leaders call for Rep. Hinson to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top two House Republicans say Rep. John C. Hinson, accused of attempted sodomy with another man in a Capitol Hill men's room, should resign.

A spokesman for Majority Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said today that Michel thinks "it would be in the best interests of all concerned if Hinson resigned his seat and concentrated on his personal problems. It's his personal opinion that he (Hinson) ought to resign."

And Rep. Trent Lott, the House Republican whip and, like Hinson a Mississippian, said in a statement:

"I am extremely disappointed in Jon Hinson and feel he should resign." But neither Michel nor Lott has directly asked Hinson to resign, their spokesman said.

Hinson, meanwhile, is in Sibley Hospital "for professional care, counseling and treatment."

The second-term Mississippi Republican's administrative assistant said the congressman was admitted Thursday, shortly after pleading innocent to the misdemeanor attempted sodomy charge.

The assistant, Marshall Hanbury, said he was told by Hinson's physician the treatment was "necessitated by the onset of an episode which he termed a dissociative reaction attributed to a two-year period of intense emotional and physical exertion."

Capitol Police arrested Hinson and another man Wednesday in a men's room in the Longworth House Office Building. Two other men were arrested in the same restroom earlier that day.

Hinson, 38, who lives with his wife, Cynthia, in suburban Alexandria, Va., has not been available for comment since his arrest.

County Clerk Ray discloses record month of collections

January was a record month for collections out of the County Clerk's office, according to Margaret Ray, who holds that office.

In January, $11,328 was collected in misdemeanor fines and court costs, said Mrs. Ray. Civil cases, probate, lunacy and county court cost fees collected amounted to $2,855.76. This totals $14,183.76.

January was "outstanding" in terms of collections, said Mrs. Ray. "As far as I can remember, that is the most money ever collected in one month."

The month saw a lot of pleas come through the Howard County Courthouse, added Mrs. Ray, which accounts for a part of the record collection.

Routine county clerk fees collected amounted to $3,598.90. This included costs for recording legal documents, such as marriage licenses, said Mrs. Ray.

Reagan's birthday plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan, the oldest man ever to become president, today is celebrating his 70th birthday — or as he puts it, "the 31st anniversary of my 39th birthday."

More than 100 people, including such long-time California friends as Jimmy Stewart, are expected at Reagan's birthday party tonight at the White House. The well publicized "surprise party" will be held by four couples who have been hosts for Reagan's birthday parties for the last 20 years.

The birthday also was being marked with a congratulatory visit from congressional leaders today.

Perhaps because his age was a campaign issue last year, Reagan himself has been joking about the subject the past few days.

"I want to thank you for starting out the celebration of my 31st anniversary of my 39th birthday," the president quipped at a prayer breakfast Thursday.

Three Beatles may record

LONDON (AP) — The three surviving members of the Beatles are planning to record together again, the Sun newspaper reported today.

In a dispatch from New York, a late edition of the newspaper said the three — Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr — will make a record in tribute to John Lennon, who was shot down outside his New York City apartment Dec. 8. The Beatles split up in 1971.

The paper said the reunion was being organized by the group's long-time producer, George Martin.

It said Martin hoped to record an album featuring the three musicians at his $2.4 million studio on the Caribbean island of Montserrat.

Fryar wins first go-around in steer wrestling event

Steve Fryar of Big Spring won first place in the first go-around in the steer wrestling event in the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show Rodeo in Fort Worth Thursday.

Fryar was clocked in 4.4 second. Second in the event was Chris Lybbert of Coyote, Cal., timed in 4.7 seconds.

During 1980 in Texas

Nearly $1 billion spent for mixed drinks

State Comptroller Bob Bullock today said the sale of mixed drinks in Texas during 1980 totaled nearly $1 billion.

Bullock released a report showing that the sale of mixed drinks during the final quarter of the year reached $25.4 million.

He said his office is sending Texas counties and cities rebates from the mixed drink tax during the fourth quarter of 1980.

Texas cities and counties receive a 15 percent rebate of the 10 percent gross receipts tax charged on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries.

He said 213 counties and 367 cities would receive rebate checks.

The state will pocket more than $18 million from mixed drink taxes from the October, November and December period.

During 1980, the state's share of mixed drink taxes totaled $67.7 million. City-county rebates totaled $27.7 million.

The tax, which was authorized under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks in Texas, is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and rebates are sent quarterly to cities and counties by the Comptroller.

In Howard County, mixed drink tax remittance for the fourth quarter totaled $25,142,577, in county tax revenue. The county's tax remittance was $3,771.39, and total city tax revenue for Big Spring was $22,023.96. The city's 15 percent remittance was $3,303.59.

In Dawson County, total county tax revenue was $1,594.49. The county's 15 percent remittance was $239.17.

In Mitchell County, total county tax revenue was $2,832.72. The county's 15 percent remittance totaled $424.91. Total city tax revenue for Colorado City was $2,085.75, and the city's 15 percent tax remittance was $312.86.

Garwood faces life imprisonment for collaboration with enemy

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who said last summer that "an American prison is better than a Vietnamese one" today faces the possibility of life imprisonment for collaborating with the enemy during his years in a prisoner of war camp.

His lawyers will be trying to whittle down the sentence. Garwood, 34, blinked back tears but otherwise was composed as the verdict was read Thursday afternoon. He was found innocent on a charge of maltreatment, but guilty on a lesser charge of assaulting a fellow American prisoner. The Indiana native, whose attorneys had tried to establish mental illness, made no comment as he was led away.

The Marine was a 19-year-old jeep driver when he was captured near Da Nang in 1965. He returned to the United States in 1979 — unable to tie his shoes or speak English without a heavy accent — after slipping a note to a Finnish businessman in Hanoi.

His was the first case of collaboration by a Vietnam POW to go to a jury.

A five-man panel of Vietnam veterans spent two days deliberating before finding Garwood guilty of collaboration during two of the 14 years he was in captivity.

Collaboration carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment. The assault charge, which involved the striking of a fellow POW, carries a maximum six months.

The convictions mean he cannot receive his $147,000 in back pay.

In the military judicial system, sentence is determined in further court hearings, and defense lawyers said they would discuss today the possibility of bringing more witnesses to appear for Garwood.

The jury remains on call to decide the sentence.

MR., MRS. BOB SPEARS

Farm's first supporters Former Big Spring residents honored

Mr. and Mrs. M.R. (Bob) Spears, former residents of Big Spring, were honored recently in ceremonies at Happy Hill Farm Children's Home, southwest of the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex. The occasion was the official opening and dedication of the Copeland-Spears Home, named for Bob and Lena Spears, who now reside in Dallas, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Y. Copeland of Grandbury, Texas.

The Spears, who still have many relatives in Big Spring, were among the Farm's first supporters when it opened five years ago. Mr. Spears is a retired executive from General Motors Corp.

The 3,600 square foot living unit, which is one of several new buildings at Happy Hill Farm, is home for 12 boys and three adult houseparents.

Happy Hill Farm's 266 acres are located in Somervell County on Highway 144, five miles north of Glen Rose. The Farm is a residential facility for children who suffer from severe learning disabilities and handicaps or, for one reason or another, are not able to cope with traditional

Income poverty guidelines for free school meals revised

The Big Spring Independent School District has received Revised Income Poverty Guidelines from Charles C. Cole, Director of School Lunch and Child Nutrition Programs in the Texas Education Agency.

Recent enacted Federal legislation has revised the income eligibility standards and procedures that schools participating in the National School Lunch, Breakfast and the Special Milk Programs shall use to determine a child's eligibility for free and reduced-price meals and free milk for the remainder of the school year. These changes will affect the eligibility of some children for free and reduced-price meals and free milk.

The new Income Poverty Guidelines also remove the hardship provisions previously allowed and place a standard deduction into the new scales. Therefore, in determining a child's eligibility, a school shall compare the family's income to the guidelines without allowing any hardship deductions. The Big Spring school district is now reviewing all applications of students currently receiving free and reduced-price meals as well as those that were previously approved. Parents will be notified within the next 10 days by letter if a change must be made in the child's eligibility for free and reduced-price meals.

Implementation of the new income guidelines will be effective March 2. If a child's eligibility has been changed by the new income guidelines and the parent's income has changed during the year a new application may be completed at the child's school for review under the new income guidelines.

The new income guidelines range for free meals for a family of 2-$7,220 to $16,370 for a family of 8. The range for Reduced-Price Meals for a family of 2-$8,350 to $25,000 for a family of eight. The income is based on the gross annual salary of a family.

Implementation of the new income guidelines will be effective March 2. If a child's eligibility has been changed by the new income guidelines and the parent's income has changed during the year a new application may be completed at the child's school for review under the new income guidelines.

Police Beat

Council accepts gift of house

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Thursday night saw action by the Loraine City Council when it voted to accept a house given to the city by Dr. Bruce Johnson.

The house will be rented to police chief Jimmy Eggleston and remodeled at a cost of $5,057 by contractor Jerry Woods.

No action was taken on the need for a truck to haul caliche and dirt and a maintainer-grader.

Two truck tires stolen

Local police spent an uneventful Thursday.

Two truck tires were stolen from a truck-trailer rig belonging to Jerry Folsom, Abilene, while it was parked in the lot of the Mid-Continent Inn, Thursday night. Loss was estimated at $675.

Nelta Thompson, 1609 Avion, reported that while she was visiting a friend in the hospital for the last month, burglars broke into

It's harder to leave anything behind

More than once, you've likely heard the story about the fellow who says he hopes to live to be 94 and dies on the day he spends his last dollar on a boutonniere (to impress the ladies). There are variations to the story, of course, but we won't go into them here.

The point to be made here is that it's becoming increasingly hard to leave anything behind, no matter how well a person has prospered in life. That seems to be especially true of people in the entertainment business.

TAKE THE CASE of George Raft, the noted film actor who came to the end of his days last Nov. 24. Raft, a favorite with the ladies and envied by the men, made millions during his 35 years on this planet.

It was disclosed recently, however, that Raft left only a $10,000 insurance policy and some bits and pieces of furniture. He left no will.

Raft spent the last years of his life living on a fixed income of $800 a month, a combination of payments from Social Security and the pension fund shepherded by the Screen Actors Guild. He also supplemented his income by making occasional cameo appearances in movie and television appearances.

Let it be stated that Raft had no known relatives, which means what is left of the estate will be assumed by the state of California. There may not be much incentive to save if there are no heirs to benefit but Raft once conceded "I spent it on wine, women and other frivolous things."

Boxer Joe Louis, now confined to a wheel chair, was another who suffered from poor business advice. Louis, one of the best at what he did, made millions of dollars in the ring but gave it away as if it were confetti.

He developed a host of friends, many of whom picked his pockets. The Internal Revenue Service finally complained he had neglected to pay his tax bills and he wound up not only very broke but heavily in debt.

A LOT OF people in the entertainment world (and professional sports should be classified as entertainment) are considered paties when it comes to making investments. None of them, as far as is known, has ever bought the Brooklyn Bridge but many have forfeited big bucks in other endeavors. Singer Pat Boone, for one, admittedly has lost millions in business investments that didn't pay off.

Knowledgeable people will tell you that a person can't start too soon in life planning for maintenance and disposal of his or her estate, no matter its size and complexity. Regrettably, not many people heed the call.

As you like it

Around the rim

James Werrell

When in doubt, talk about the weather.

I find myself talking about the weather, or more precisely, complaining about it, when it turns gray, cold and nasty as it did yesterday. What astounds me is that Texans seem to really cherish their overcast days.

THE MERCURY IS in the teens, the sky is the color of trash cans, icicles are forming on your extremities, and most Texans I know are positively delighted. "Ohhhh," they swoon. "I just love days like this."

Perhaps there is something to be said for variety. Texans, after all, do get their fill of sunshine.

But those nasty days are exactly what I moved down here to avoid.

When it turns ugly in Cincinnati, Ohio, it usually stays that way from late fall until early spring with little letup. Few of the winter days there are of the postcard variety. Instead, most just feature a damp, bone-chilling cold and grim, metallic skies.

Making the inside less like the outside is so expensive that one's feet are usually sacrificed for the cause. They don't truly warm up until sometime in mid-June.

It got so cold inside our house there once that we had to chop a hole in the ice so the dog could drink from his water dish.

Winter in Cincinnati, though, is quite balmy compared to those in the northeast part of the country. My mother-in-law has just moved to the town of Phillips (population 1,000) in a get-away-from-it-all portion of the state of Maine.

This is picture-postcard winter country, but the price of admission is a screaming wind and an unearthly string of sub-zero days.

"Our first thing was to get to know the wood stove (an Ashley) and have the furnace cleaned (oil). We have now gotten it down to only needing the furnace on at night so the pipes won't freeze," she writes. Brrrrrrrrrrrr!

THAT'S AWFULLY COLD, but, as I realized after reading a book called "Going To Extremes" by Joe McGinnis, not as cold as it can get. The book is about Alaska, and just thumbing through it can give you frostbite.

Did you know, for example, that in Barrow on the northernmost tip of the state the mean temperature is 10 degrees above zero, and the thermometer dips to zero or below nearly 170 days out of a normal year?

McGinnis relates another chilling tale about a soldier on maneuvers near Alaska's Prudhoe Bay. The soldier brought along a flask to keep him warm. He unscrewed the cap, took a gulp at 50 below, and dropped dead, his throat frozen shut.

The alcohol had kept the liquid from freezing at that temperature, but the liquid, at 50 below, hadn't exactly had the warming effect the soldier intended.

Coming full-circle back to Big Spring, I should probably count my blessings. Fortly, I must admit, isn't forty-below.

But, then again, there's no law that says I have to enjoy this lousy weather. I may change my tune when the mercury hits 110 this summer, but until then I hope the coldest thing in my home is my wife's icy stare when she catches me turning the thermostat up to 80.

Korean triumph

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan's just-concluded visit here climaxed a triumph in secret diplomacy by the Reagan administration conducted out of an obscure downtown Washington office before the newly-elected president had assumed power.

Had it not been for President Reagan's informal intervention through his national security assistant, Richard V. Allen, Chun certainly would not have been Reagan's guest at Blair House. Korean dissident Kim Dae Jung would have been executed, U.S.-Korean relations would be at an all-time low and South Korea would stand as an outlaw nation in the eyes of the world.

Instead, Gen. Chun's regime has won legitimacy, its more moderate elements strengthened enough to plant hope for democratization ahead. Reagan's mixture of determination and flexibility suggests he may not only restore tattered alliances such as the Korean link but possibly achieve more in human rights than Jimmy Carter's self-righteous approach.

WHEN WE VISITED Seoul last September, the situation looked bleak. Chun's most moderate advisers contended he could not bow to Carter administration public demands to spare the life of Kim Dae Jung, accused of subversion and sedition. If he did, Chun's brief presidential tenure might end abruptly. Having just formalized his previous role as strong man of the military regime, Chun was dependent on the hard-line young colonels who engineered the coup that brought him to power. They would not tolerate losing face by surrendering to Carter.

Consequently, there is agreement in Korea that Kim would be dead today had President Carter been re-elected. Actually, the supposition there immediately after Nov. 4 was that Reagan's win also doomed Kim. Jubilant colonels in Seoul toasted the Republican victory, rejoicing that troublesome Carter had been replaced by permissive Reagan who would give them a free hand on Kim Dae Jung.

They misread Ronald Reagan. He authorized Allen to leak a story that the president-elect opposed Kim's execution and believed it would harm U.S.-Korean relations. A news report quoting a "senior aide" to that effect appeared in the Nov. 18 New York Times.

It did not do the trick. Koreans well placed outside the government informed us that the colonels interpreted it as political posturing to protect Reagan from being blamed for Kim's death. The Korean's told us Reagan must do more to prevent the execution before Jan. 20. But if he went public, Reagan's advice would have to be spurned, just as Carter's was, in order to save Chun's face. The recommendation by these Koreans: a confidential letter to Chun from Reagan, delivered by an American or Korean businessman.

We relayed this information to the Reagan camp. A letter to Chun was quickly ruled out. So was any other direct activity by the president-elect. Nor could he work through the State Department while Carter was president; starting Nov. 4, the Chun regime would not seriously discuss Kim with U.S. diplomats. How then could a catastrophe in U.S.-Korean relations be prevented before Reagan had the power to act?

With Reagan's approval, Dick Allen started secret negotiations with Korean emissaries, most held in his private office at 16th and I Streets here. To guard against publicity that could have aborted the delicate process, nothing was said to the State Department.

Escaping chickenpox after exposure rare event

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have long enjoyed both your medical expertise and your lucid, snappy style, but I must take issue with you on the following statement from a recent column: "If an adult who has never had chickenpox is exposed to them, he comes down with chickenpox."

When my three children were 4 years, 2 years and 7 months they all came down with ghastly cases of chickenpox within a few weeks of each other. In addition to all that implies for a young harried mother, I had the additional pleasure of waiting for it to hit me too, since I'd never had it. But you guessed it—I never did get it—then or ever.

And before you tell me that I must have had chickenpox in childhood and merely have forgotten the episode, let me add that I made it a point to check with my parents, both of whom agreed that I never did have it. Am I a rare exception, or did you goof?—L.C.

I could have been clearer. Exposure to chickenpox does not mean you will automatically develop the illness. But it is fairly contagious, and about eight of every 10 people who have not had the illness get it when exposed. I would be willing to bet that you did have a mild case as a child. If you never had it and were exposed three separate times it's pretty unlikely that you could have escaped coming down with it. I have been known to goof, but I'd be willing to stake my diploma in infectious diseases on this matter.

If you did not come down with chickenpox during the episodes you mention, you would, indeed, be a rare individual. But, as I said, I should have mentioned such a rare possibility, however unlikely.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I would like your opinion on high colonic (cleansing enemas), the newest rage among a few of my friends. One friend claims they make her feel everything from healthier to more alert.—J.M.K.

You asked for my opinion, right? Just mine, no one else's. I think non-prescribed high, medium or low colonic enemas are waste of time and money. There are no toxic products accumulating in the colon. Too frequent use of any enema is irritating. I certainly wouldn't base health care (mental or physical) on this. I would expect to find some folks who would disagree with my opinion, but for what it's worth, there it is.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 80 years old, and what I want to know is whether there is such a thing as arthritis in the chest. I have pains in my chest and my left arm. And I am told this is arthritis. Is this right?—H.E.S.

Arthritis can occur anywhere two bones meet each other to form a joint. In the chest, the ribs connect to the breastbone and an arthritis-like condition can develop there. If the "they" who are telling you that this is the cause of your chest pain are qualified medical people, and if other causes of pain, such as angina, can be excluded, then the arthritis idea is reasonable. If, then, you should be examined, because arm pain, as you described yours, can stem from angina (heart circulation deficiency). That is easily diagnosed and treated.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Two questions. When you get a flu shot, is the protection immediate or does it take a few days to become effective? Also, is this period, if there is any, different for very old people as opposed to younger ones?—Mrs. R.R.

Protection begins in two weeks and reaches a peak in four weeks. An older person might be a little slower in reacting, but would be sufficiently protected in one month.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will a stretch bra on an 11-year-old girl who is just starting to bud at the nipples cause any harm?—J.G.

I can't imagine that the bra would serve any useful function, but I don't believe it could cause any harm. Is this important to the girl?

My answer

Billy Graham

Dear Dr. Graham: I read recently about missionary organizations that devote their time to translating the Bible into lots of insignificant languages. Isn't this a waste of time, when there are so many other needs in the world?—Mrs. B.M.

Dear Mrs. B.M.: I am familiar with the work and results of some of the organizations you have in mind, and their work is far from a waste of time. God has clearly blessed their ministry, and many people have come to faith in Christ who otherwise would never have even heard the Gospel. Suppose you happened to be a member of one of those tribes?

We should avoid thinking that God is only interested in needs with which we are acquainted. God is interested in the whole world: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son..." (John 3:16). From man's viewpoint, a primitive tribe in the Amazon jungle or a group of Native Americans on an Indian reservation may be insignificant, but from God's viewpoint the opposite is the case. Sometimes these people only speak their own language, and sometimes they know another language to a limited extent. However, even when they understand another language, they can understand the Gospel best in their native tongue. They have the right to be able to read the Bible in their own language just as much as anyone else.

Remember that Jesus told his disciples, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8). No part of the earth—no part of humanity—is excluded from the great commission.

God's purpose is to call out from all the nations of the world a people who will belong to Him and be his special possession. In the Old Testament, God promised Abraham (through whom the Messiah would come) that "in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Genesis 12:3). The book of Revelation in the New Testament speaks of the redemptive work of Christ, and the way it was meant for all kinds of people: "For thou wast slain, and has redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation (Revelation 5:9).

Pray for all who seek to spread the Gospel of Christ, including those who share the Gospel in some of the remote areas of the world.

Coca-Cola out

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The "Pepsi generation" is about to replace "the real thing" at the White House.

What the American voters probably didn't realize last November, when they chose Ronald Reagan over Jimmy Carter, was that they were also ending four years of Coca-Cola hegemony in the White House and paving the way for a return to Pepsi-Cola ascendancy at the highest levels of the federal government.

The soft-drink supremacy battle boils down to this: Pepsi is Republican; Coke, at least during the tenure of a president from Georgia, was Democratic.

WHEN CARTER TOOK OVER four years ago, Pepsi was banished from the White House in favor of Atlanta-based Coca-Cola. And Carter did more than simply replace Pepsi with Coke in the Executive Mansion's beverage machines.

Coca-Cola people had been bubbly boosters of Carter ever since he was Georgia governor. Coke executive John Paul Austin provided his brand of cola for Carter's political barbecues — free — and gave other financial support to the native son's lofty ambitions.

Not one to forget his old friends, Carter as president acted to keep down the price of sugar — of which Coca-Cola was the nation's biggest single user. The president also took a well-publicized ride down the Mississippi on the Delta Queen riverboat, which is owned by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of New York.

With its White House clout, Coca-Cola wangled an end to the 40-year ban on its product in Portugal, gained entry to the mainland China market and — until the embargo inspired by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan — concerned the concession on American soft drinks at last year's Moscow Olympics.

Now everything has changed. Coke is out; Pepsi is back in.

PepsiCo Chairman Donald Kendall, who engineered the first big commercial exploitation of the Soviet market with a Pepsi-for-vodka trade deal under Richard Nixon, can be expected to use his Republican connections once more to further his company's interests.

J. C. LOUIS, AUTHOR of "The Cola Wars," an account of the epic rivalry between Coke and Pepsi, explained it this way to my associate Howard Rosenberg: "Kendall will convince Reagan — as he did Nixon — that it will better serve the United States' interests to treat the Russians and the Chinese as potential consumer markets rather than adversaries."

Indeed, Kendall wasted no time moving in. He hosted a lavish pre-inaugural ash at the Pan-American Union in Washington for the foreign diplomatic corps. As Louis said: "The party was intended to renew the soft-drink psychology of the Nixon era; Foreign leaders who wish to please the White House might do so by treating Pepsi well."

Guests at the Pepsi party included Vice President-elect George Bush, Defense Secretary-designate Caspar Weinberger, GOP contributor W. Clement Stone, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and the ambassadors of China, Poland, Chile, Zaire, Bangladesh and several dozen other potential Pepsi markets.

Weinberger was once a director and vice president of PepsiCo. Bush was a banking partner of two members of Pepsi's board of directors.

At the Pepsi freeloader, Bush assured the guests pointedly that "the day of apologizing for U.S. private interests abroad is over." Weinberger went even further and said that "PepsiCo has always been a supporter of good governments, and for that reason we can assume that they'd be supporters of the (Reagan) administration."

A HELPFUL BANKER. In general, American bankers probably did more to hinder the negotiations for release of our hostages in Iran than they did to help. The insistence on hanging onto Iranian assets they had control of was a substantial roadblock to the State Department's efforts to get the 52 Americans out of Iran.

But there was a laudable exception. Citibank of New York and its lawyer, John Hoffman, contributed to a breakthrough in the agonizing negotiations for the hostages' release.

When Jimmy Carter froze all Iranian assets in the United States, Citibank, like other American banks, was stuck with some outstanding loans to Iran — almost $120 million-worth. And like other American banks, Citibank had Iranian assets in its overseas branches that could have been used to cover the frozen loans in the United States.

Unlike some other American banks, however, Citibank wasn't at all sure its overseas Iranian assets could in fact be used to cover the outstanding Iranian loans in this country. Legal action was blocked by administration pressure to delay court moves until the hostages were freed. So Citibank — and Hoffman — decided to work things out by negotiating with the Iranians.

And the channels that Hoffman opened up in France and West Germany seven months ago for the transfer of money were later used successfully for the transfer of the American hostages.

WATCH ON WASTE: The federal government's liberal early-retirement policy was intended to give older employees an incentive to quit and make way for younger workers.

According to the General Accounting Office, the program cost the taxpayers at least $109 million last year. (The Office of Personnel Management claims it was "only $78.5 million). But instead of cutting down on the overall payroll, as was intended, the early retirements allowed the agencies to hire new people to take up the supposed slack. So the taxpayer gets stuck with the bonuses for early retirees — and the cost of their replacements as well.

Papers relate to McCarthy era, Korean War

Committee blasts declassification center blocking documents release

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Some recent United States history is "being held hostage" by a federal center blocking declassification of government documents relating to the McCarthy era and the Korean War, said the chairman of a government advisory committee.

"The series has fallen behind unconscionably during the last few years," Dr. Unterberger said. "Congress has mandated that the series be published within 20 years after the event, but now it is about to surpass 30 years."

not be placed in the National Archives and made available to scholars and the public, she said. "As a result of CDC interpretation of 'foreign government information,' as well as of intelligence and military matters, the volumes for 1951-1954 have, in many cases, been virtually decimated," said the committee's report, sent last week to key U.S. senators.

The committee also questioned the State Department's decision to staff the center entirely with retired foreign service officers, saying their involvement in the Cold War era may cause them to take a "quite conservative approach" to deciding what is declassified.

COMRADE CARTOON — The Soviet military newspaper Red Star continued the Kremlin's barrage against America Friday, carrying an article criticizing the new U.S. administration. The paper also printed this cartoon, depicting U.S. sailors and bearing the caption: "Permit me, admiral, to introduce the team of 'hostage diplomats' that I propose to send to Iran to justify our presence in the Persian Gulf . . ." The Soviets are not known for wild humor.

U.S. allies concerned Administration softens statement on neutron weapons deployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stung by hostile reaction from U.S. allies, the Reagan administration is hastily retreating from a suggestion by its own defense secretary that the United States "very probably" will want to deploy the neutron weapon in Western Europe.

They said the Reagan administration is providing the allies with a full text of the defense chief's comments Tuesday at his first Pentagon news conference. State Department spokesman William Dyess emphasized Thursday there has been no change in U.S. policy and no decision has been made on whether to revive the plan shelved by former President Carter to deploy the neutron warhead.

sent the allies a message on Wednesday, advising them to disregard Weinberger's comments. Weinberger, responding to reporters' questions, said: "I think that the opportunity that this weapon gives to strengthen tactical nuclear forces is one that we very probably would want to make use of."

government officials suggested publicly they were no longer willing as they were two years ago to allow deployment of the weapon there. Swedish Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten on Thursday called Weinberger's comments "extremely disturbing."

Dear Abby

Daughter Scores Elegy For Unsung Parents

DEAR ABBY: Recently you ran a letter from a reader who sent you an "inspirational piece" titled, "Winning Against the Odds." You invited additions to the list of famous people who had succeeded in spite of adversity.

May I add two of whom you have never heard?

Take away his mother when he's 10 years old and put him to work in a coal mine for most of his life. Let him work in ice-cold water to his knees, or put him on his stomach digging out coal from deep inside a mountain, working hard to feed and clothe a wife and six children, and you have my father!

Put her outside before daylight, milking a cow so her little ones could have milk. (She had read in a doctor's manual what children need for good health.) Send her to a clothesline in freezing weather to hang clothes for a family of eight. Watch her apply ointment to cracked and bleeding hands. (She had no gloves.)

Stand near her rocking chair at night and watch her as she holds a baby and a story book, reading to her little brood, and you have my mother.

Then watch this loving couple grow old too soon and die painful deaths from "black lung" and cancer.

The world will never hear about this hero and heroine, but to me, they were the greatest.

MILDRED IN NASHVILLE

DEAR ABBY: AL IN OREGON has become my hero of the week. (He pointed out the error one makes in saying, "I could care less," when the expression should be, "I couldn't care less.")

Now, please take a firm stand against the currently popular abomination, "Hopefully."

It is appalling to hear an otherwise well-educated person say, "Hopefully, I'll finish the report tomorrow."

He should, of course, say, "I hope to finish the report tomorrow."

MARTHA, THE GRAMMARIAN

DEAR MARTHA: Right on, E.B. White, in "The Elements of Style," explains it this way: "This once-useful adverb meaning 'with hope' has been distorted and is now widely used to mean 'I hope' or 'It is to be hoped.' Such use is not merely wrong, it is silly. To say, 'Hopefully I'll leave on the noon plane' is to talk nonsense. Do you mean you'll leave on the noon plane in a hopeful frame of mind? Or do you mean you'll leave on the noon plane? Whichever you mean, you haven't said it clearly."

Now I hope it's understood!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from BEEN THERE AND BACK prompts this response. BEEN THERE, who had spent two years in a mental institution and was frequently asked why, offered a terse response that always put off further questions: "Because I'm crazy."

A colleague of mine once worked in a mental hospital. While making the rounds, he would "test" the patient by asking, "Why are you here?" The response usually revealed the patient's degree of reality orientation.

One morning, the psychologist received a response that rocked him. "I'm here for the same reason you are, Doc. I couldn't make a go of it in the outside world."

Abby, it's obvious that not all who are in mental institutions are "crazy." Conversely, not all who are "crazy" are in mental institutions.

Rebekahs plan pot luck supper at next meeting

Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 met in its regular session Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Nobel Grand Lillian Rhyon presided over the 12 members, 9 of whom were Past Nobel Grands. Members reported 33 visits to the sick.

Four members will bake and serve cake at the V.A. Hospital Wednesday morning. They are Helen Jones, Mildred Collins, Sheri Wilson, and Lillian Rhyon.

The next regular meeting will be Feb. 10. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m., and be followed by a pot luck supper. A donation of $1.50 per plate will be requested. Proceeds will go to Pat Jones, vice president of the International Association of the Rebekah Assembly, to defray her expenses. All members and their families are urged to attend.

Any member having a birthday in February will also be honored at the Feb. 10 meeting. Birthday cakes will be served following the pot luck supper, and a Valentine's Day theme will be followed throughout the evening.

Alpha Phi Delta plans Valentine Ball decorations

Alpha Phi Delta held their biweekly meeting Jan. 27 in the home of Beckie Baker. A report was given on the decorating committee's plans for the Valentine Charity Ball. Karen Hays, treasurer, collected money for the tickets that have been sold by the members.

Plans were made for a bake sale to be held Feb. 21 at the Highland Mall. Several ideas were discussed for future service projects to aid people in the community.

Winners of PTA arts contest announced

"If I didn't have a family I would be lone-ly and scared." First grader Stefan Balderach's entry in the National PTA's cultural arts contest summed up the project's 1981 theme, "What a Family Means to Me."

Big Spring PTAs have sent four winning entries to district level of the national competition, according to Leslie Earnest, president of the Big Spring Council of the Parent Teacher Association.

City visual arts winners are: Amy Parrish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Parrish, first grader in Mrs. Simmons' class at Washington; and Alan Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Valcee Cox, fourth grader in Mrs. Allgood's class at Kentwood.

City literature winners are: Travis Sinclair, son of Dr. and Mrs. James Watson, a fourth grader in Mrs. Callarman's class at College Heights.

Other first place winners at the individual schools were: literature—Stefan Balderach, College Heights first grader, and Laura Cunningham, Kentwood fifth grader; visual arts—Sherry Molina, College Heights first grader, and Sherrill West, College Heights fourth grader.

Nationally, entries come in from grades 1-12 at any school with a PTA unit.

However, thus far, Big Spring has PTAs in only five elementary schools.

Schools which participated in the PTA cultural arts competition were College Heights, Kentwood and Washington Elementaries. Big Spring entries were judged in two divisions—grades 1-3 and grades 4-6.

Judges for the city-wide contest were secondary level curriculum coordinator Janice Rosson and Golliad teacher Dorothy Stewart. The four winning entries have been forwarded to district competition where they will be judged in early February.

Warming up to winter: What to do when Jack Frost bites

When during summer's swelter, we dream of winter, it is usually of the brisk, refreshing days, cozy nights and gentle snowfalls amid twinkling stars. However, when the season does dump itself upon us, it often excels in extremes—freezing rains, whipping winds and near-zero temperatures. While there are some brave souls who enjoy the cold and venture out into this arctic climate, most of us retreat, finding refuge under our down quilts.

If you are among the multitude who prefer to stay warm and hibernate, consider these "stay-warm" ideas from the Water Quality Association, an organization dedicated to improving America's water quality through research and education.

San Angelo birth is announced

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Swann, 2815 A&M, San Angelo, announce the birth of a son, Jason Ray at 10:02 a.m. on Jan. 21 at Angelo Community Hospital. Jason made his debut weighing 8 pounds, 13 ounces and measuring 21 and one half inches in length.

The new arrival's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rybolt and Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Swann, Big Spring. Great grandparents are Mrs. Maggie Cross, Big Spring, Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Rybolt, Odessa, and Jeff Cox, Comanche, Tex. Welcoming Jason home is his six-year-old sister Monica.

One's first impulse on a bitter cold day is to build a roaring fire in the family hearth. Sound inviting? It's not. In most cases a fire will draw more heat out of the house than it will produce. This means a chilly, drafty home and heating bills sky rocketing up the chimney.

Take a warm bath instead. Not hot, warm. Turning the tap to tepid helps to keep the body temperature constant which is one of the first rules to staying warm.

Use your draperies wisely. Open them during the day allowing the sun's warmth and brightness in; keep them closed at night shutting out wind and cold.

Give your heating bills the cold shoulder by turning down the thermostat at night and using an electric blanket. The blanket, which will keep you just as warm, only uses a fraction of the energy needed to heat the whole house.

Eat a well-balanced diet. You burn up over 4,000 calories daily trying to keep your body temperature constant. Shivering is a result of an exhausted calorie supply.

Keeping warm is not as hard as it sounds. All it takes is a little common sense, a woolen sweater, and if all else fails, a friendly visit from the neighborhood St. Bernard.

Birthday to be celebrated

The children of Mrs. Ethel Hickson, 107 E. 17, will help celebrate their mother's 75th birthday with a reception Sunday from 2-3 p.m. The event will be held in the Fellowship of the First Church of God, 2009 Main. Friends and relatives of the celebrant are invited.

Children of Mrs. Hickson hosting the event are Mrs. Linda Long, Marietta, Ga.; Mrs. Marie Hull, and Mrs. Joanna Hansrote both of Garland; Ed Hickson, Dallas; John Hickson, Oklahoma City, Okla. and Robert Hickson, San Angelo.

Birth is announced

Mr. and Mrs. Van Barton, P.O. Box 215, Forsan, announce the birth of a son, David Ray, at 3:02 p.m. Jan. 22 in Hall-Bennett Hospital. David made his debut into the world weighing 8 pounds 7 1/2 ounces and measuring 19 1/2 inches in length.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Earnest, 1806 Wallace, are David's maternal grandparents. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Barton, Forsan.

Great-grandparents of the new arrival are Joe A. Earnest, 1806 Wallace and Mrs. Dora Wilson, Forsan.

BITTAKER ON THE STAND — Lawrence S. Bittaker takes the stand Thursday afternoon in his trial on kidnapping, rape and murder charges in the deaths of five Los Angeles area teenage girls. During the morning session in Torrance, Calif., Superior Court, Bittaker broke down sobbing as he denied murdering two of the victims.

Sandiford widow receives reduced charge of voluntary manslaughter

HOUSTON (AP) — Kathleen Sandiford, who said she shot her husband five times in a frenzy of terror and from a will to live, faces a possible 20-year prison term following her conviction on a reduced charge of voluntary manslaughter.

Mrs. Sandiford, 41, had been charged with murder in the Jan. 29, 1980, slaying of her husband Dr. Frank Sandiford, a prominent Houston heart surgeon.

The jury deliberated six hours over two days before returning the verdict Thursday, then began hearing testimony in the punishment phase of the trial.

Defense attorneys called 26 character witnesses to the stand Thursday, many of them from the same wealthy River Oaks neighborhood where Sandiford lived and died.

Health officials fight meningitis outbreak that has killed four

HOUSTON (AP) — Anxious parents crowded into a south Houston elementary school where elementary schoolers swabbed throats, drew blood and administered antibiotics in an effort to find and stem the source of a deadly meningitis outbreak.

Four people in Houston have died of meningitis in the past month and 29 others have confirmed or suspected cases of the contagious disease, health officials say.

Health officials estimated about 17 percent of the population carries meningococcal bacteria but are immune to the illness. Outbreaks of the deadly disease often occur after serious influenza problems, which struck the Houston area in the latter months of 1980, Feigin said.

Children of Haitian refugees begin struggle

MIAMI (AP) — Thousands of refugee children from Cuba, Nicaragua and other Latin American countries are slipping into the mainstream of American school life in Dade County relatively easily, thanks largely to an abundance of Spanish-speaking teachers and friendly bilingual classmates.

But for the children of southern Florida's "other refugees" — Haitians who arrive in crowded, leaky boats after treacherous voyages, entry into school is another journey over rough and unfamiliar waters. Poorly educated Haitian children, more than 90 percent of whom speak Creole as their first language rather than Haiti's official tongue, French, are thrown into a system geared toward English-speaking Americans and Spanish-speaking Latins.

Officials say there is a constant shortage of Creole-speaking teachers and Creole-language learning materials, and that students quickly become alienated. "It's like a sink-or-swim situation," said Ginette

Leger, who uses cartoons and enthusiasm in her quest to teach English to Haitian children.

The chore is complicated because "a lot of them have not had school at all," said Ms. Leger, a teacher at Miami's Edison Park Elementary School and one of only four Haitian nationals certified to teach in Florida. "Even in the Bahamas," the island chain that is temporary home for many Haitians fleeing to the United States, "they're not allowed to go to school, so even those who you think would come here having a little bit of English or having something, they don't. Many don't know how to read and write," Ms. Leger said.

Della Zaher, principal of Edison Elementary, echoed Ms. Leger, saying most young children from Haiti, where the illiteracy rate hovers around 90 percent, have never attended school and "are faced with having to learn entirely from the beginning."

"They can speak Creole, but they cannot write or read it," Mrs. Zaher said. The 1980 flood of Cuban and Haitian refugees brought Dade County schools 14,000 new Cuban pupils, who joined some 77,000 Spanish-speaking students in a system that is already 38 percent Hispanic, and 865 Haitian schoolchildren.

The Haitians joined some 3,000 other Haitians in Dade schools, and have strained the system's limited resources for the Creole-speaking pupils. "There is a fundamental problem: the number of Haitian children is increasing faster than we can find qualified teachers," said Ralph Robinett, director of language programs for Dade County. "We have no trouble identifying Creole speakers in the area, but few are certified in Florida; they don't have the paperwork from Haiti, the haven't met academic standards here," he said.

As for learning materials, there are "practically none," he said. "At the very lower levels, we have developed some materials ourselves. But there is definitely a shortage of materials in Creole."

Those few refugee children who spent some time in Haiti's strict government schools come here timid and withdrawn, officials say.

"From what I understand, they are put into a very structured school environment," Mrs. Zaher said. "They come to us quite disciplined. It's hard to get them to voice their concerns, to speak out in class."

Haitian students also face more prejudice and social problems than Cuban students in heavily Latin Miami.

The Haitian child "has a hard time accepting he's Haitian because he's going to be ridiculed," Mrs. Zaher said.

"A lot of the kids, whether it be in the elementary, the junior high or the high school, refuse to identify with the Haitian culture because of all the negative things that are said about them," Ms. Leger said. "And if they do identify, they get beaten up or abused in one way or another."

Claude Charles, a native of Haiti and a research instructor in psychiatry at the University of Miami, said many students undergo culture shock when they enter American schools, realize how far behind they are and then "experience feelings of profound discouragement, and as a consequence, will drop out of school prematurely to enter the job market."

Officials say, however, that Haitian children who overcome the initial problems become highly motivated pupils because of their desire to assimilate quickly.

"They really want to learn English, and they're the ones picking it up much faster than the Hispanics I have," Ms. Leger said.

Ms. Leger and others also credit the Haitian parents for "wanting their kids to learn because they don't want them to have the same kind of life that they had."

Ms. Leger, noting a concern of many area parents, said, "They are not slowing the other students as long as they can get some kind of help with the language problem."

Green wants House to undo action slowing legislation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Gene Green says it's time for him and his legislative friends to give up the stalling action that has made the Texas House the dullest place in the Capitol. Since the Legislature convened on Jan. 13, House committee rooms have been silent. The House has passed only three bills. It took Wednesday off for lack of anything to do.

It's all because Green and 34 other unhappy representatives, seeking leverage for procedural "reforms," blocked the routine suspension of a horse-and-buggy order of business required by the Texas Constitution.

The rule says no committee hearings in the first 30 days of a legislative session and no floor action in the first 60 days, except on bills the governor designates as emergencies.

Suspension of the rule required 120 votes in the House, and there were enough dissidents — 35 — to keep that from happening on the session's opening day.

The dissidents said they wanted to force Clayton's team to talk to them about several proposals to weaken the speaker's power, but the team hasn't been interested.

"Originally it was set up to be a negotiating tool, and it hasn't been. If it is a negotiating tool that is not working, then we need to get along with the business of the House," Green said.

Green, D-Houston, has been trying to persuade the 35 who blocked rule suspension to reconsider and might attempt to put it to a vote Tuesday or Wednesday. "I didn't come up here to sit in my office," Green said Thursday after another day of inactivity.

Green says he has talked six or seven dissidents into changing their minds. He also found that some Republicans who originally voted to suspend the constitutional rule now would vote against suspension.

"This way, their party is in the driver's seat," Green said, referring to the fact that only bills Clements designates as emergencies can come up.

Clayton says he promised Green that if Green drums up enough vote changes, he will talk to "our people" — presumably including the Republicans — about sticking with their votes to suspend the rule.

Meanwhile, Green is making some of his fellow dissidents mad as he tries to undo their big coup of the session.

"I'm going to end up with no friends on either side," he said.

Now is the time to plant bare-root fruit and shade trees, deciduous flowering shrubs, and roses. Why plant bare-root? You save money — a bare-root plant costs only 40 percent to 70 percent of its price of the same plant later in a container. Also the manner in which a bare-root tree or shrub is planted makes it establish itself faster and often better than it would if set out later in a container. An advantage is that you use the soil dug from the hole and you do not mix soil from the container with our West Texas soil. Come by Mr. G's for our detailed instructions on planting bare-root material.

Globetrotters still the best

Although there's no doubt I really have never been able to dance worth a second look, I sometimes have a deep fantasy of dancing on "Soul Train".

The chance finally came Monday during the second quarter when Harlem Globetrotter Sweet Lou Dunbar, the former University of Houston All-American, escorted me onto the court at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. I'll have to admit I wasn't quite mentally prepared for it, but it wouldn't have made any difference anyway.

The real fact remains that I thoroughly enjoyed the Harlem Globetrotters in their performance here Monday night.

Sure, the best part to me was when Sweet Lou took Judy's purse onto the court, and he and his compadres sifted through the secret brown object, pulling out combs and perfume and making use of both. What made it funny is that Judy sat for a while next to me in a worried state, scared that the Globetrotters would pull out something that might prove to be embarrassing.

"Hey, Judy," I tried to say while laughing. "I'm sure they've seen a lot worse."
"What," she cried back in horror!
I couldn't answer that.

Still, even without the aforementioned scenes, the Globetrotters would have been, and were, great.

That a group of actors and outstanding basketball players can perform night after night, in city to city, and still enjoy it as thoroughly as they do is refreshing.

Last week, Judy and I interviewed ex-Globetrotter Joe Cunningham, who now serves as their public relations man, traveling ahead of the group promoting their upcoming appearances.

During the course of the discussion, Cunningham made a couple of statements that really stuck in my mind. One was, "as a Globetrotter, you are an ambassador of goodwill, and that's the one thing that each player must make a commitment to." Another line was "We are able to draw regardless of the person. Whether they're five or 90 years old, like basketball or not, there is something in a Globetrotter show that can be rewarding. Even on a universal level, we are still popular, regardless of the cultural or language barriers. We belong to the people, whether it's Chicago, New York or Big Spring."

To tell you the truth, I was somewhat cynical about some of those statements by Cunningham. But I knew he was a public relations man, and a good one.

But after once again enjoying a Globetrotter show, and in the case of last Monday night, thoroughly enjoying it even more than usual, I realized that Cunningham was on the level. The Globetrotters are unique, and live up to all the claims that he made.

It's a traveling play of talented comedians and superior athletes, and the price of admission to see them is well worth it, whether it be in New York or Big Spring.

Super Bowl brilliance

PHILADELPHIA EAGLES PLACEKICKER TONY FRANKLIN, on the advantage of kicking indoors: "Crosswinds and cold fronts block more kicks than 4.6 guys in face masks." Must have been a full blowing air conditioner in the Superdome, eh, Tony.

LEE TREVINO offered his reasoning on why he predicted an Oakland Raider victory before Super Bowl XV.

"How can you pick against them?" he said. "They have a Mexican coach in Flores, a part-Mexican quarterback in Plunkett, and both of them are Catholic. You can pick against God and you pick against us Mexicans, but you can't pick against both."

Trevino also said he, like many others, are at a disadvantage as the pro golf tour gets underway: "The Mormons have it over all of us now. Most of us haven't had a chance to dry out from the winter yet."

DUANE THOMAS still has the best comment concerning the Super Bowl. After helping the Cowboys win Super Bowl XI, Thomas said: "If this is the ultimate game, why are they playing it next year."

Charlie Waters future in doubt after surgery

DALLAS (AP) — Safety Charlie Waters of the Dallas Cowboys underwent surgery on his right knee Wednesday for the second time in 18 months.

Dr. Marvin Knight performed the surgery at a hospital in Muenster, Texas, and said everything went as hoped. Knight said he removed a cartilage and strengthened a ligament.

Waters underwent knee surgery in August 1979 and returned as a Cowboy starter after sitting out the 1979 season.

The surgery Wednesday was unrelated to the previous surgery, although the same knee is involved, Knight said.

A spokesman for the Cowboys said Waters will be in the hospital a week and in a cast for three to four weeks.

"After that, he'll start rehabilitation and we'll see how it goes from there," the team official said.

Astros Joe Sambito inks five-year pact at 3 mil

HOUSTON (AP) — Relief ace Joe Sambito signed a new contract with the Houston Astros for five years and $3 million, just one day before he was scheduled to take a contract dispute to arbitration.

His signing leaves only nine players unsigned from the National League baseball team's 40-man major league roster, and no other players are headed for arbitration.

Sambito, 28, tied for ninth in the National League last season with 17 saves as the Astros won the Western Division title for the first time. The lefthanded relief ace compiled an 8-4 record and a 2.20 earned run average and had several impressive streaks during his 64 appearances.

Sambito had a seven-game scoreless stretch and an eight-game shutout string in June and July and picked five straight victories from July 13 through Aug. 3.

Sambito and starting pitcher Vern Ruhle were the only Astros to seek arbitration but Ruhle signed a one-year contract Jan. 29.

Time running out on boxing card

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of boxing for Madison Square Garden says the promoters of the all but officially dead Feb. 23 fight card have about one week to save it. Indications are that the four-bout extravaganza is beyond help, but efforts apparently are being made to salvage part of it.

The Garden presented a default notice Thursday to Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc., and Tiffany Promotions, Inc., in the wake of a civil suit filed earlier this week by Wells Fargo National Bank of California charging it was defrauded by MAPS of $21.3 million.

Sam Glass, president of Tiffany, scheduled a news conference for today at 11 a.m. EST, and one report says that he will bring three big fights to the Garden in March.

Hoping for improvement

Steers visit Abilene in second half opener

ABILENE — The Big Spring Steers, frustrated after a disappointing first half, hope for better things beginning tonight when they open second half play against the Abilene Eagles at eight o'clock.

The Steers finished with a 1-6 record in the first half, with their only win coming over last place Odessa High. Abilene, meanwhile, went 4-3 and tied Abilene Cooper for third place in the standings in 5-A-A-A-A. But the Steers easily could have had a better record. They suffered three close losses in the first half, with one of them being against the same Abilene High team.

In that contest, the Eagles were a perfect 10 for 10 in the final minutes to escape with a 66-62 win over the Steers.

Big Spring Coach Ed Haller is hoping the Eagles will cool down from last

Hawks retain WJC co-lead in win

SNYDER — The Howard College Hawks used a balanced attack here Thursday night in rolling to a 72-62 win over the Western Texas College Westerners and remaining tied for the WJC lead as the league race comes down to the final three weeks.

The Hawks led throughout the contest, but it was never at such a margin that Coach Harold Wilder could breathe easily.

The WJC co-leaders jump out to an early advantage behind the scoring of Ron Akins, Kenneth Jones and Jeff Faubion, who were red-hot in the opening half.

At halftime, HC led by 36-31. The defending national champion Western Texas team stayed close in the last half, with the Hawks finally pulling away for good in the final five minutes when WTC was forced to press in order to try and catch up.

"They pressed us down the stretch," noted Wilder, "but Crushon Loving did a good job of handling the ball in bringing it up the court."

Corker, a freshman from Chicago, was joined by another player from the Windy City in the form of Jeff Bess.

Bess, in his first appearance in a Howard College uniform since transferring to the Big Spring campus at mid-term, scored six points and turned in a good performance.

"Jeff did a good job for his first game," Wilder stated. "He had those first game jitters, which was expected, but came through well."

With six games left in the WJC race, it appears that only three teams are left with shots at the conference title in Howard, Midland and Frank Phillips. But Howard is in the best position of the three because they are a perfect 3-0 against their main competition.

The Hawks return to action at home on Monday against a very tough South Plains team. South Plains took the Hawks into two overtimes before falling in their initial encounter.

Randy Corker, the WJC's leading scorer, once again paced the Hawks with 20 points, while Ron Akins added 19 and Faubion 10.

Caesar Scott had 19 points for WTC, with Keith Denis adding 12.

HOWARD (72) — Faubion 21-10; Bess 3-0-4; Akins 9-1-10; Corker 7-4-20; Loving 3-3-9; Jones 4-0-4; TOTALS 30-12-72.

WESTERN TEXAS (62) — Dickey 3-0-4; Lee 3-0-4; Denis 4-0-12; Stephenson 3-0-4; Scott 9-1-19; Smith 2-0-4; North 2-3-9; TOTALS 28-4-62. Halftime Score: Howard 36, Western Texas 31.

Total Fouls: Howard 14, Western Texas 17.

WTC (68) — Goff 1-0-2; Maddox 7-0-14; Bickley 2-2-4; Wells 5-1-4; Watson 2-0-4; Teal 11-6-28; Holubec 0-0-0; TOTALS 29-10-68.

ABILENE GIRLS HOLD OF BSHS

The Abilene High girls basketball team erupted to an early lead in the first half and then held off a rally by the improving Big Spring Steer girls to claim a 61-51 win in a District 5-A-A-A-A-A second half contest. The contest was played in Steer Gym last night.

The Abilene girls dominated play in the opening half, racing to a 34-14 advantage, but things became much more difficult in the second half, as the Big Spring girls narrowed the margin to 13 points entering the final stanza.

But Abilene, now 2-2 in the second half and 18-9 on the year, held on for the win.

The Big Spring girls dropped to 0-4 in the second half and 4-22 on the year.

Abilene was led by the big duo of Sonya Roberts and Tracy Hubbard, who canned 23 and 22 points, respectively.

Shell Rutledge and Elise Wheat led the Steer girls with 14 points each.

The Big Spring girls return to action on Monday, at which time they host Midland. Abilene hosts Odessa Permian the same night.

By quarters: Big Spring 8 6 17 20-51; Abilene 14 18 10 17-41.

BIG SPRING (51) — Doss 2-2-4; Rutledge 6-2-14; Wise 4-1-9; Rendle 4-0-4; Wheat 5-1-14; TOTALS 21-9-51.

ABILENE (61) — Hubbard 11-0-22; Barrera 3-2-8; Roberts 10-3-23; Coppedge 1-0-2; Jones 0-2-7; Morris 0-4-4; TOTALS 25-11-41.

Total Fouls: Big Spring 13, Abilene 18.

WJC WOMEN'S STANDINGS

Amarillo	6-1
Western Texas	4-2
Odessa	4-2
HOWARD	4-2
Clarendon	2-5
South Plains	1-5
Frank Phillips	0-4

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS: Western Texas 68, HOWARD 62 (OT); Amarillo 84, Clarendon 63; Odessa 68, Frank Phillips 55.

56-55 count. But with three seconds left, WTC fouled Howard's Jill Floyd on a field goal attempt, sending the Hawk Queen sophomore to the foul line under heavy pressure.

Floyd missed the first free throw, but hit the second to send the game into overtime.

Ironically, both of the Hawk Queens losses in conference play have been to WTC, and both were extremely close. The first loss was a one-point decision in Big Spring in December.

It appeared for the most part that the Kelly Lyons led Hawk Queens would have no trouble in taking the win. After taking a halftime lead of 28-25, the Hawk Queens stretched it to 11 midway in the second half.

But WTC Coach Joe Cushing instituted a devastating full-court press in the final three minutes, and the Hawk Queens were unable to handle it.

One factor for WTC in the win was their 6-1 sophomore Shari Teal. Teal scored 28 points and did more than her share for the Dusters. "She (Teal) is just a dandy player," said Stevens.

"There were scouts from the University of Missouri, Texas Tech and some other places," Stevens noted, "and they were all very interested in both Kelly and Teal."

Not only could the Hawk Queens not shoot that well, but WTC also had a 48-38 rebounding advantage. The Queens actually had a better overall shooting percentage, but without Lyons, managed to hit on only 11 of 38 attempts.

It was the first time this year that the Howard women had not handled the press of an opposition well. "We just showed no poise under fire," Stevens explained. "Our freshmen didn't play well at all."

Besides Lyons, Stevens also praised Floyd. "Jill only scored seven points, but she played an excellent floor game throughout."

The Hawk Queens are far from out of the WJC race, but need a good week beginning Monday. They host South Plains on Monday and WJC leader Amarillo on Valentine's Night, Saturday, Feb. 14. In between, they visit Howard Payne for a non-conference encounter on Thursday.

WTC visits Odessa on Monday for a big WJC battle. Besides Lyons' 32 points, Cynthia Robinson hit in double figures for the Queens with 11.

Teal's 28 points paced WTC, with Wells and Cindy Maddox adding 14.

Runnels boys rout Coahoma

11 players got into the scoring act Thursday evening in pacing the Runnels White team to a 50-9 rout of the Coahoma White squad in eighth grade boys basketball action.

The win evened the Runnels record at 5-5, and Coach Johnny Schaefer's crew will not play again until the Lamesa Tournament on February 20-21.

Jay Firkle led the well balanced Runnels attack with nine points, with Arthur Jackson and Willie Wrights adding eight each.

RUNNELS SCORING — Jay Firkle 9; Arthur Jackson 8; Willie Wrights 8; Paul Prudhomme 8; Mark Sanders 4; Derek Logback 4; Greg Miller 2; Tim Hastings 2; Mark Reed 2; Thomas Rodriguez 2; Tommy Gurtman 2.

MAN or STATUE ?

Today we see Lincoln in heroic size. He appears almost more of a statue than a man — a great figure cast in bronze, with a furrowed brow and solemn countenance.

Yet Lincoln was a man. He walked the earth, and felt love and joy, but he knew tremendous frustration and almost insurmountable sorrow. He prayed, earnestly and effectively.

Throughout each crisis in his life, and there were many, he was sustained by faith. God seemed close to him, and he turned to Him often. He didn't pause to think about whether he'd go to church or not. He went.

Do you?

Hulsey to be at St. Mary's

The Rev. Sam Byron Hulsey, Bishop of Northwest Texas, will celebrate the Holy Eucharist at both the 8 and 10 a.m. services Sunday at St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Bishop Hulsey's education includes a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Washington and Lee University, graduate work in English Literature and Divinity at St. Andrew's, Scotland, and a Master of Divinity Degree from Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va. Spending one year in Clinical Pastoral Education at Baptist Hospital in Nashville, Tenn., he has taken numerous continuing education courses in group dynamics, spirituality, psychology and preaching.

Previous positions have included Curate, Assistant Rector, and Rector of St. John's Church, Corsicana; Assistant to the Rector and Director of Christian Education of St. Michael and All Angels, Dallas; Rector of St. Matthew's, Pampa; Rector of St. David's, Nashville; and Rector of Holy Trinity, Midland. Bishop Hulsey was elected Bishop on Aug. 23, 1980, and was ordained Dec. 13.

Currently, he serves on the Trinity School Board, Midland, and the City of Midland Parks, and Recreation Commission. He is working to develop a hospice in Midland. Serving as Deputy of the Church's 1979 General Convention, Bishop Hulsey was also vice-president of the Executive Committee of the Diocese of Northwest Texas.

For some time, Bishop Hulsey has been interested in ministry to the dying and those who support them. His dream is for the development in Midland and the Permian Basin of the hospice concept of care. Emphasis would be on the quality of life, with ministry from a team that would include trained volunteers.

REV. AND MRS. PHIL THURMOND

Couple to share their testimony to sweethearts

Women's Aglow Fellowship will meet Feb. 13 in the Dora Roberts Community Center at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Phil Thurmond and Dianne will share with the group, their husbands and sweethearts, the secret of a successful marriage. The Rev. and Mrs. Thurmond are ministers of Christ's Fellowship Church at FM 700 and 11th Place and Dianne is president of the local Aglow Fellowship.

REV. SAM BYRON HULSEY

Founder of Cowboys for Christ keeps on riding and preaching

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "A lot of cowboys think it's silly to be a Christian," said Ted Pressley, looking out a large window as traffic zipped by outside the Cowboys for Christ international headquarters here.

Pressley, who calls Fort Worth the "cowboy capital of the world," isn't easily discouraged.

The red-haired former rodeo bulldogger, sometime bartender, horse trainer and ranch manager started Cowboys for Christ 10 years ago. His friends scoffed.

Cowboys don't like being preached to, they told him. In many cases, they were right, he discovered.

One disgruntled steer rider who had finished out of the money at Fort Worth's Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show Rodeo spit beer and tobacco juice in Pressley's face when the minister asked, "Did you know Jesus loves you?"

"I've always been bad to fight and I almost wanted to love that guy with my fists," Pressley said.

However, Pressley, who still considers himself as much a cowboy as a preacher, found that many did listen.

From its tiny beginnings in Fort Worth, Cowboys for Christ now has ministries throughout the United States, Canada, New Zealand and the British Isles. Its publications, including The Christian Ranchman newspaper, go to 70,000 people a month.

Cowboys for Christ is a non-profit organization that subsists on donations. Pressley said the bulk of support comes from small donations mailed in by working cowboys.

"Jesus said go out in the highways and hedges, and we go right out in the rodeo arena with the cow manure and all that," Pressley said, describing his ministry.

Pressley is accepted by cowboys, he said, "because I'm one of them." When he visits a ranch he may spend a day working cattle with ranch hands just because he likes it.

He usually wears cowboy's gear, is at home on a horse and often uses his saddle as a pulpit. He often can be seen mixing with the weekend rodeo crowds at North Side Coliseum here and other rodeo arenas.

"We preach at the Quarter Horse Congress in Columbus, Ohio, every year and fill up the coliseum. The first year we went up there they didn't want us, but they've found it's a service that their people can accept or reject."

Pressley said he doesn't plead for money during these public meetings and his literature is offered free of charge.

Although Pressley has never preached at the fat stock show rodeo here, he and other Cowboys for Christ preachers will be around the chutes, talking to anyone who will listen, once the rodeo opens later this week.

In early December, he spoke at a California prison with Charles "Tex" Watson, who was convicted of taking part in the Charles Manson murders and is a Christian convert.

Pressley said he preaches in "cowboy" language. One of the tracts he distributes is called Five things a Cowgirl Should Know. They are, the pamphlet says, "How to look like a girl, how to act like a lady, how to think like a man, how to work like a dog, how to live like a Christian."

One of his favorite sermons for rodeo riders compares a saddle bronc to the devil.

"I tell them that their five fingers represent the letters 'F-A-I-T-H' and that's all that's keeping them on that horse during their eight-second ride. I tell them life is short, like that eight-second ride, and that the horse is like the devil, and he's trying to kick you, buck you, bite you or anything else to get you off. But if you hold tight to faith you will stay on."

Pressley was already a professed Christian by the time he started performing in rodeos, he said, and often prayed during performances.

Children's Choir festival to be in Midland Feb. 20-21

St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Midland, will host an area-wide Children's Choir Festival, Feb. 20 and 21. More than 200 children in grades three through six will be attending from Big Spring, Midland and Odessa representing churches of many different denominations.

Don G. Campbell, National Coordinator of Workshops for Choristers Guild, will be the festival clinician. Campbell will be presenting a workshop Feb. 20, at 7 p.m., on "Enthusiasm, the Key to Worship, Education and Music." Ministers, worship committee members, choir directors or any adults who work with children's music education programs are invited to attend this workshop. A reading session will also be included and packets may be purchased that evening for approximately $5 to $9. The workshop will be free of charge.

Don Campbell is a graduate of North Texas State University, served as Director of Choral Music and Humanities at St. Mary's International School in Tokyo, Japan, was an editor of the music section of Time Life Children's Encyclopedia, has conducted workshops and concerts in 21 states and recently gave seminars in church music in Israel and Austria.

Campbell will have three rehearsal sessions with the children Feb. 21, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Trinity Presbyterian Church of Midland will co-host lunch and Mr. Daryl Knapp of Music Community Worship Midland's First Christian Church will accompany the Luke's sanctuary at 3011 choristers. The day will culminate in a Celebration of Invited to attend this service.

We, as a nation, have been blessed with a large middle class. Other nations, with only the very rich and the very poor, have suffered turmoil and revolution.

Spiritually, as well as nationally, we are fortunate when we are neither "Ruined by Riches" nor "Plagued by Poverty."

Be with us for both sermons Sunday when we shall explore these subjects under the theme, "Feed Me with Food Convenient for Me."

Seminar is scheduled in Odessa

Dr. Win Arn, Executive Director of the Institute for American Church Growth, will direct a Church Growth Seminar at the Redeemer Lutheran Church, Odessa, Feb. 13-14.

Church leaders and committee members from Big Spring St. Paul Lutheran Church will attend.

The first session of the Seminar will be Friday evening from 7-10 p.m. with the second session convening at 10 a.m. Saturday. The seminar will be ten hours packed with fresh, exciting new concepts, stimulating films, discovery experiences and informal lectures.

AMON CARTER MUSEUM — Linda Tritz admires a Fredric Remington sculptor at the Amon Carter Museum of Western Art in Fort Worth. The museum maintains a collection of pictures, sculptures, books and objects of Texana and Western Americana, and frequently travel exhibits. It also owns and exhibits the largest collection of the works of Remington and C.M. Russell.

Singer Jerry Reed prepares for upcoming redneck role

By PETER BOYER
AP Television writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's the budding television star now, rushing to the saloon table in sweatshirt and shades, launching straight into a pitch for his new TV show; it's an inspired monologue, equal parts Hollywood hype and sweet redneck trash: "My, my, my," says he, of his TV character, J.D. Reed, "Ol' J.D., he likes the Flyin' Tigers and takes shots at the establishment, he's John Wayne. He's the everyday dude's Robin Hood, he's a coward. I wear this Civil War Confederate Cavalry hat that has been in the family since 1865. He's the ugliest, funkiest, raunchiest, crap-shootin'est dude you'll ever see... But he's real. "I'm standin' out with my belly hangin' out and my shoulders stooped and I'm listenin' to that J.D. and, son, I tell you, he's real. He's a charmer. He'll charm you, but not with that ugly face, he won't. He's got to have real bullets. I tell you, we eat it up and get into it. It's throwin' babies-up-in-the-air time. It's me, I promise you."

Yes, it is J.D. Reed, protagonist in CBS' new entry in the redneck derby,

"Concrete Cowboys," is played by Jerry Reed, who was right there when Hollywood discovered redneck chic. You'll remember that Reed, singer of such hard rolling near-classics as "Amos Moses," "When You're Hot, You're Hot" and "Tupelo, Mississippi Flash," played Burt Reynolds' truck driving pal in "Smokey and the Bandit" and again in "Smokey II."

As is the way in this vale of creativity, those prototypes birthed a collection of TV imitations, including "B.J. and the Bear," "Sheriff Lobo" and "Dukes of Hazard." Next fall, director Hal Needham, who made "Smokey," will borrow from himself with yet another good-ole-boy squeal-out fest, "The Stockers," for NBC (this is the show that brings Terry Bradshaw's retirement from football).

Wildflower Day wanted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Carroll Abbott, sporting a cowboy hat and jeans, doesn't look like your average hang-around-the-hallowed-halls lobbyist.

However, Abbott probably doesn't need a high-pressure pitch to push the measure he wants passed this legislative session. His proposal won't face much opposition, and even those who would be honored by the bill don't care much about it, he said.

Abbott, a newspaperman turned seed salesman, wants the Legislature to declare the fourth Saturday of each April as Texas Wildflower Day.

"This is not a pun. Interest in wildflowers is really growing," he said at a Thursday news conference.

"This is not going to cost nobody nothing," he said. "The wildflowers" don't care if you have a day for them or not.

Abbott hopes Texans care about it enough to flood him with letters he plans to bring back to the Legislature. The letters should go to him at 500 Thompson Drive, Kerrville, Texas, 78028.

"I am really serious about a Texas Wildflower Day. I think it is appropriate that Texas do it first," he said, adding Texas leads the nation in wildflowers with 5,479 varieties.

The 54-year-old lobbyist came to the news conference armed with several plants sprouting from cans. He had booklets and colorful calendars for reporters.

"I've never held a press conference in my life. I need all the help I can get," he said.

Other lobbyists were quick to notice Abbott's different style, he said. "They said, 'You are going to set lobbying back 100 years.'"

Native Texas plants are "survivors" able to withstand droughts, freezes and whatever nature has to offer, Abbott said.

"It's going to be plants native to Texas that will keep Texas looking pretty," he said.

A Wildflower Day would help Texans appreciate the species that add color along the state's highways, he said.

Who could be against a day to honor flowers?

"Everybody who is against motherhood," said Abbott.

'East of Eden' is faithful to source

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Steinbeck's "East of Eden," with its panoramic view and its parade of lusty characters, begged to be transmuted into a TV miniseries. Why, wasn't Steinbeck thinking miniseries when he penned this epic, with its Abel-Cath and Jezebelian themes?

Of course not, but ABC knows a steamy sex-and-violence yarn when it sees one, and "East of Eden" fits the bill perfectly. Witness ABC's insinuating advertisements for the miniseries in next week's TV pages: Fetching Jane Seymour is pictured in comely pose, fingering the lace of her corset. "She would break every law of man and God," teases the ad. Come to think of it, that approach might work. And even though this seven-hour, three-night rendition (beginning Sunday, playing on Monday and Wednesday) is unevenly acted, it is remarkably true to the text

(if not always the spirit) of Steinbeck's work. Miss Seymour hungrily attacks the large role of Catherine Ames, the demonic seductress who is the centerpiece of this expansive story. This character alone will lure viewers to "East of Eden" next week, so compellingly is it played.

Indeed, Miss Seymour is to this version of Steinbeck's epic what James Dean was to the 1955 Warner Bros. abridged version, which concerned itself with only the last third of the book. The rest of the miniseries is rather ordinary TV, flawed by an eccentric performance by Timothy Bottoms in the key role of Adam Trask and a sluggishness, at least in the first five hours, when Miss Seymour is absent from the screen.

By beginning at the beginning, this "East of Eden" takes up the story of the Trask family at the Civil War, where we meet the peg-legged martinet and grand liar, Cyrus Trask, (engagingly played by Warren Oates) who started it
