Iranian funds blocked

Judge says agreement was 'unconstitutional'

DALLAS (AP) — Texas computer millionaire H. Ross Perot, who hired commando raiders to spring two of his employees from an Iranian prison in 1979, has won another round in his continuing dispute with Iran.

This victory came in a U.S. District Court here as a federal judge granted Perot's request for a temporary injunction, blocking the transfer of $20 million to Iran. Perot's computer company, Electronic Data Systems Corp., was granted that $20 million by Porter in an earlier breach-of-contract suit EDS filed against the government of Iran.

In issuing his ruling, Porter said former President Jimmy Carter acted unconstitutionally when he threw out all court-ordered attachments of frozen Iranian funds in the United States. The request for injunctive relief was the first major challenge to Carter's executive order, issued as part of the U.S.-Iran accords that led to freeing of the 52 U.S. hostages in Iran.

Porter said Carter's action to free the Iranian funds by decree, sweeping aside court orders and lawsuits, was an "unwarranted intrusion" into the judicial branch of government.

EDS attorney Thomas W. Luce III declined to speculate whether the decision would affect other companies suing Iran.

"The judge dealt only with EDS issues," said Luce. "He said the president did not have the constitutional right to interfere with EDS' suit against Iran."

The Justice Department, which had argued against the injunction in Porter's courtroom Feb. 3, had no comment on Porter's Thursday decision.

However, Justice Department lawyers have said they believe the EDS case unique among 388 pending lawsuits by American firms or individuals seeking compensation from Iran since a judgment already had been given before the Iranian accords were reached.

At issue in that suit was EDS' claim that Iran had defaulted on a contract to computerize its national health, welfare and social security records.

On May 9, 1980, Porter found that Iran was guilty of breach of contract and owed EDS $20 million. The judgment was upheld by two appeals courts and the government of Iran has now appeal the amount of the judgment to the 5th U.S. Circuit of Appeals.

In Thursday's 32-page opinion, dealing with the EDS challenge to Carter's decree, Porter said Carter acted unconstitutionally in voiding all court-ordered attachments on U.S.-held Iranian assets.

The hostage accords Carter approved shortly before he left office Jan. 20 called for the transfer of all frozen Iranian assets to the Federal Reserve Bank in New York. The funds would then be transferred within nine months to a security account for settlement of U.S. companies' legal claims against Iran.

Carter's executive order "raises serious constitutional issues with regard to the power of the Executive Branch to nullify or negate the constitutional and statutory authority of courts with regard to pending cases," Porter said.

In addition to the question of Carter's authority to issue such an order, Porter said there is doubt about the legality of the document itself since, at the time the order was validated, "Jimmy Carter was no longer president of the United States and accordingly that the order is without legal effect."

The executive order provided that it was not to take effect until the hostages had safely departed from Iran, but that did not occur until after Ronald Reagan had been sworn into office, and the executive order has never been signed by Reagan, Porter said.

Clements to seek emergency money for new prison units

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said today he would ask the Legislature next week for a $35 million emergency appropriation to build three prison units by November.

The units, each with facilities for 960 men, would be on existing prison sites in Anderson and Walker Counties, Clements told a news conference.

"This will in large measure answer the immediate problem of getting the (prison) population down where we don't have the situation of three in a cell," Clements said.

The state is under a federal court order to make prison improvements, including reducing overcrowding.

"We'll let the contracts as quickly as we can. In some instances we will be working night and day in order to accomplish this construction by Nov. 1," he said.

Convict labor, usually used to build prisons, would not be used for the three units, Clements said.

"The urgency of this situation is such that we have to go the contractor route," he said, adding the contractors might have to work two or three shifts a day to get the work done.

"Using our people would be cheaper but it is also slower," he said.

Clements predicted the Legislature would approve the money.

The new units, metal buildings on concrete slabs, would not be maximum security facilities, he said. Clements said first offenders and inmates convicted of "not too serious crimes" would be selected for the new buildings.

He said the new buildings would not solve all the problems mentioned by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler.

Ashby fails to post $500,000 bail

Child killer suspect offered no resistance

By CAROL HART
Three members of the Big Spring police department who arrested Douglas Ashby in connection with the brutal murder of a child in Haltom City said the man offered no resistance when apprehended.

Officer Barry Smith said "we were prepared" when he and Sgt. Jimmy Wallace and Officer Scott Howard went to Rip Griffin's Truck Stop at 7:20 a.m. Thursday, where a man matching the description of the suspect was sighted.

Officer Smith said that Tarrant County police had sent a description of the suspect across the teletype, and officers across Texas were advised to look out for the suspect. Local sergeants went over the description with their officers, and "some of the guys stopped at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop" and recounted the description of the man accused of killing the child to employees there.

Shortly after 7 a.m. Thursday, the suspect, Douglas Ashby, 24, was sighted at the truck stop, and employees called the police.

Before his arrest, the suspect was seen "with a guitar on his back, and seven dollars in his pocket," hitchhiking west, said Haltom City homicide detective J.D. Huffman.

The arresting officers said that Ashby gave them a fictitious name "but the description was so close." In addition, police found a small amount of marijuana in Ashby's possession.

Ashby is accused in the beating, burning and scalding death of 21-month-old Nicholas (Nick) Garrett Lane, the son of his alleged girlfriend. The child was found dead about 9 a.m. Wednesday after his mother called Haltom City police.

One policeman called the incident the worst abuse death he has seen. Ashby was held in the Big Spring Municipal jail on a $500,000 bond. After arraignment on a murder warrant issued by Tarrant County, Ashby was also charged with possession of marijuana before Howard County Justice of the Peace Bobby West.

The suspect was held in the Big Spring jail until about 1:30 p.m. Thursday, said Officer Smith. At that time, officers from Haltom City took the suspect back to their facilities, where he is being held today.

Vicar seeking trustee post

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Monte Jones, vicar of All-Saints Episcopal Church, is Colorado City's first non-incumbent candidate to file for the position of school trustee.

Previously announcing re-election plans are the board's vice-president Mac Morris and Dickie White. White seeks to fill out an unexpired term ending in April, 1982. Only school board president Tom Rees has not announced he will be a candidate for another term.

As for the council election, no other candidates has filed for the four expiring terms on the council and one of the four incumbents—Mayor Elmer Martin and Councilmen Macca Findley, Sam Parham and Ray Dillard—has indicated he will seek another term.

killing of the boy. The death was the climax of a two-year-history of reported child abuse of the boy and his four-year-old sister. Relatives and neighbors of the family reported the abuses several times.

In December, Tarrant County child welfare officials were unsuccessful in attempts to place the boy in a foster home after a Fort Worth physician said he could not conclusively say injuries the child suffered were accused from abuse.

Police say the suspect had lived with the child's mother since 1979.

The unidentified mother of the boy was jailed in Haltom City, then released late Thursday pending a grand jury investigation.

The young child was found dead on a bedroom floor where he slept nightly, a floor referred to as "a roach pit" by a Haltom City officer.

"He apparently had been beaten and scalded with hot water," Haltom City Detective Huffman said. There were "multiple blows from a fist or the back of a hand to the face," causing "massive bruises," he said. There were reportedly numerous bruises on the rest of the boy's body.

"It's the worst I've ever seen," Huffman said.

There was no sign of abuse on the boy's four-year-old sister, but she was temporarily removed from the home pending a court hearing.

The boy's mother told police she left her son in the care of a suspect while she went to work at a Haltom City restaurant. The suspect was a construction worker during the day.

Hilton busboy says marijuana cigarette to blame for fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Police were searching today for a mysterious man they knew only as "Joe" after Philip B. Cline told them he accidentally touched off the deadly Las Vegas Hilton fire with a marijuana cigarette while engaging in a homosexual act with the man, authorities said.

Cline, 23, a room-service busboy charged with arson and murder in the blaze, made the statement to authorities Thursday, a day after his arrest, police said.

Police said they were "satisfied" Cline set Tuesday's eighth-floor blaze, which along with three smaller fires killed eight people and injured 198.

Authorities "certainly will attempt to locate" his homosexual partner, "if he exists," said Lt. John Conner, chief of the Metropolitan Police Department's homicide division.

Police said Cline had been a busboy at four other Las Vegas Strip hotels since coming here in January 1980. They included the Silverbird, El Cortez, Caesars Palace and the MGM Grand, where a fire Nov. 21 killed 84 people and injured 700.

Officials at the MGM Grand said Cline left work there 20 days after being fired last May.

"There is no indication at this time that he was involved in the MGM fire," said Detective Sgt. Bob Hilliard. "We will investigate anything arson-related to this individual."

Meanwhile, assistant Sheriff Larry Katzenberger told lawmakers in Carson City that investigators were studying a number of recent blazes on the Las Vegas Strip to see if they were linked to the Hilton blaze.

Cline began work at the Hilton five days before the fire, Conner said.

Cline "indicated he had been on the eighth floor (of the hotel), and was engaged in a homosexual act when the appliances were set on fire next to the elevator," Conner said.

"He says it was lit by a marijuana cigarette," Conner said.

The blaze rocketed up the elevator shaft, roared out of eighth-floor windows and climbed the outside of the east tower to the roof of the 30-story hotel.

Cline identified his partner only as "Joe" and maintained he knew no more about him, Conner said. Police "don't know who he is, or if there is a 'Joe,'" Conner said.

They were engaged in sex on a bench near the elevators under a bay window — an area people frequently passed, Cline allegedly told police. "We hope someone saw them," Conner said.

Police have not commented on a possible motive for arson.

Police said Cline had not been ruled out as a suspect in three smaller fires that erupted on other floors of the hotel. But they also are looking for additional suspects, according to the Las Vegas Review Journal.

Cline was a ninth-grade dropout with a troubled past — truancy, psychiatric treatment and "losing his jobs and stuff like that," according to his father Robert, a retired Air Force master sergeant in Sunnyvale, Calif.

Cline first was questioned at the scene of the fire and released, but detectives later decided "the story he was telling could not possibly be true," Conner said.

He claimed to be picking up dirty trays and glasses when he spotted flames and tried to douse them.

"But when we checked later — after the fire — the trays and glasses were still in the hallways," Conner said.

After Cline "failed miserably" on a lie detector test Wednesday, he "then admitted that he had set the fire," Conner said.

Justice of the Peace Earle White ordered Cline held without bail at a one-minute hearing Thursday that Cline watched by closed circuit television from jail.

Within the next seven days, he will be arraigned on one count of first-degree arson and eight counts of murder, White said.

Cline was not represented by a lawyer at the time of his confession, nor had he asked for legal counsel, but Conner said, "I think we'll be able to use it in court."

Meanwhile, the Hilton remained closed to business as guests were escorted inside under tight security to pick up their belongings.

Garwood pleads to have his conviction reversed

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, saying he felt as tortured in freedom as he was during 14 years of captivity in Vietnam, pleaded with a military jury today to reverse his conviction on collaboration charges and allow him to seek psychiatric treatment.

"In many ways the two years since freedom have been a punishment," Garwood's lawyer, Capt. Lewis Olshin, said in a statement he read to the jury on behalf of the 34-year-old Marine.

Olshin said Garwood has been tormented by his prosecution, conviction and notoriety.

The statement, read as the sentencing portion of Garwood's court-martial neared completion, was the first he has made to the jury that found him guilty last week of collaboration with the enemy and assaulting a fellow prisoner of war.

The jury has the option of changing its mind and acquitting Garwood of collaboration charges, or it could let the conviction stand and sentence him to anything from no imprisonment to life in prison.

The statement said Garwood does not dispute testimony by former POWs that he acted as an interpreter, interrogator, informer and guard for the Vietnamese communists during two of the 14 years he spent in Vietnam.

Dallas psychiatrist David Hubbard made a dramatic plea against a prison term for Garwood in testimony Thursday, saying the convicted collaborator lives in a mental world of "shattered incoherence."

Col. R.E. Switzer, the presiding judge, said testimony in the sentencing hearing probably would be completed today and the jury could then begin its deliberations.

Defense attorneys said they planned to present a statement from Garwood to the jury. There was no indication what Garwood's statement might say, but the lawyers said it would not be offered as sworn testimony.

Garwood's fate will be determined by the same panel of five Marine officers that last week convicted him on five counts of collaborating with the enemy during two of his 14 years as a prisoner in Vietnam.

He faces a maximum sentence of life in prison.

He was also convicted of assault on a fellow prisoner of war, which carries a maximum term of six months.

Valley citrus growers spared from freeze

Citrus growers along the Rio Grande Valley of Texas heaved a sigh of relief after checking their crops and finding that temperatures did not get cold enough to cause crop damage. Temperatures did get cold Thursday, following the passage of a major cold front, but the valley crops were spared from heavy losses, which would have meant hefty price hikes nationwide. Most of Texas shivered in the teens Wednesday and Thursday nights because of that cold front and government forecasters had predicted below-freezing weather in the valley, also. But "the Lord was with us," state Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said, adding that a survey showed no damage to crops. A hard freeze probably would have killed $35 million worth of fruit and vegetable crops, doubling the price consumers pay for the products, according to a spokesman for a growers' organization. "There was no problem whatsoever," said Mike Wallace of Texas Citrus Mutual. "The silver lining came through again."

Patrol cracks smuggling ring

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Border Patrolmen who cracked a national smuggling conspiracy by arresting 44 illegal aliens and three accused ring leaders say they found links to a group that tried a similar scheme in New York City less than two weeks ago. The aliens arrested in El Paso had each paid $2,000 and were about to be packed into the cargo hold of a tractor-trailer truck for the 2,180-mile trip to the East Coast when they were captured in a series of surprise raids the Border Patrol said. They were held in the federal detention center here today pending deportation proceedings. Like the previous instance in New York, most of the aliens were from the Dominican Republic. But in that case, the 85 aliens had already reached the South Bronx when they were caught. Three accused smugglers listed on a federal complaint remained at large in the El Paso case, but the 44 aliens and three other alleged smugglers were arrested, the Border Patrol said. Their names were withheld. "We believe the smuggling ring we broke up here is connected to the ring in New York," Mike Williams, assistant chief of the U.S. Border Patrol headquarters in El Paso, said Thursday. "We obtained some of our information from our investigation unit in New York."

Williams said the El Paso aliens were picked up in "drop houses" — "staging areas where they put them until transportation is arranged. It can be a hotel, a boarding house, or a home." "They were going to be transported to New York in a semi tractor-trailer truck, for approximately $2,000 each," Williams said. "It's quite a large ring, and it's fairly well organized. We're continuing to uncover facts and names."

He said the arrests took place Wednesday, but the raids were kept secret for a day "because bits and pieces of the case were still coming in." One of the aliens awaiting transportation to New York was a Mexican and the other 43 were from the Dominican Republic. The accused smugglers arrested included a Mexican, an Ecuadorian and a Dominican Republican. Williams said the suspect from Ecuador was the truck driver. "He got word of our investigation and tried to flee in the truck. He was arrested at a way station near Riverside, Calif.," he said.

A federal complaint said the smuggling operation began last July. In the New York case, 84 aliens from the Dominican Republic and one from Guatemala were arrested Feb. 2, and most of them were found locked inside trailers in cramped quarters. Two men were charged with smuggling in that case.

Part of anti-crime bill passed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Compromise — not confrontation — enabled the Senate to approve an important part of Gov. Bill Clements' anti-crime package, says the bill sponsor. The Senate on Thursday sent to the House on a 28-0 vote a bill by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, that would continue the Criminal Justice Division in the governor's office. All seven Senate Republicans sought to give Clements sole authority to approve criminal justice grants recommended by a 21-member advisory board, but the attempt failed, 17-11. The division has made state and local grants with federal funds for 10 years, but those funds are being phased out. The Meier bill provides for special court costs to channel an estimated $9 million a year into the program. No funds could be released without the approval of two of a three-member committee that would include Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Comptroller Bob Bullock. The compromise worked out among Clements, Meier and Sens. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, and Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, substituted Hobby for Attorney General Mark White, who has often been at odds with the governor. For the past decade the governor alone has acted on recommendations of an advisory group, and Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, said, "You're taking a system that worked well for 10 years and injected politics into it." Meier said the compromise "reflects the ability of the Senate and the governor's office to work hand-in-hand when improvements are to be made in legislation. ... I hope we can work together more as opposed to the politics of

Legislators combine to look for ways to cut property taxes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two legislators from cities with strong tax protest movements have joined the "father" of the new Property Tax Code behind a package that could knock a fifth of a home's value off the tax rolls.

Reps. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, Lee Jackson, R-Dallas, and John Sharp, D-Victoria, have dropped their separate tax relief crusades to make a combined effort for higher homestead exemptions.

"We have worked out a compromise," Sharp, D-Victoria, said Thursday. Sharp and Jackson said the measures consist of:

- A constitutional amendment enabling the Legislature to give local governments power to exempt up to 20 percent of the market value of homesteads from property taxes. Voters would have to approve the amendment before it could take effect.

- An implementing bill ordering school districts to give a 20 percent homestead exemption and allowing cities, counties and special districts to grant exemptions up to 20 percent. The state would reimburse school districts, dollar for dollar, for the tax money they would lose.

Reimbursement would amount to about $75 million a year, Sharp said.

"What we are trying to avoid is turning good, hard-working, middle-class taxpayers into violent tax revolt people," Sharp said.

Peveto sponsored the 1979 Texas Property Tax Code. It requires local governments to levy taxes on the full market value of real estate.

Homeowners mounted tax protests in Dallas, Corpus Christi, Victoria and elsewhere last year after their cities reappraised property at full market value.

Reappraisals reflected the boom in home values over the past few years and there has been considerable shifting of tax burden from business and industry to residential taxpayers. One estimate is there has been a 27.5 percent shift in taxes from commercial property to homes.

The Sharp-Jackson-Peveto package is an attempt to eliminate much of that shift in tax burden.

Jackson said he expects chances for the package to improve in the spring.

"In April, when school districts send out their new taxes notices, the members will start receiving the same concerns as those of us in districts that already are on full market value," he said.

Continental suit seeks to stop Texas International takeover bid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Continental Airlines, seeking to stop a takeover bid by Texas International Airlines, has filed a federal court suit alleging that Texas International violated securities law by purchasing a 9.5 percent stake in Continental before announcing its acquisition plans.

The suit filed Thursday asks the court to require Texas International to divest itself of all its Continental shares and halt its efforts to acquire any additional stock in the company.

The suit accuses Texas International of violating federal securities laws, state common law and the federal Aviation Act in connection with its attempt to acquire 49 percent of Continental's stock.

It alleges that on Feb. 6, Houston-based Texas International violated federal securities laws requiring equal treatment of all shareholders by "secretly" purchasing 800,500 shares of Continental common stock at prices far below the $13 a share it said it would pay in its subsequently proposed tender offer.

The merger between Western and Continental, both based in Los Angeles, recently was tentatively approved by a Civil Aeronautics Board administrative law judge. The CAB turned down a similar merger bid in 1979.

In Washington, Continental also asked the CAB to enjoin Texas International from proceeding with its tender offer and from purchasing any further Continental stock until the CAB has acted on Texas International's application to seek control of Continental.

CAB approval is required when one airline wishes to buy 10 percent or more of another.

Meanwhile, UNC Resources Inc., a uranium mining firm based in Falls Church, Va., is reportedly preparing for a corporate fight with Western following the rejection by Western's directors of a proposed takeover by UNC. Western directors insisted they were going ahead with their planned merger with Continental.

The DOL cited the company, a division of Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., in February of 1980 for failing to establish goals and timetables for minority hiring at its 650-employee plant in nearby Orange.

However, Firestone filed suit last July asking a federal judge to block DOL sanctions that would have canceled existing government contracts and declared the firm ineligible for new contracts.

Judge says Labor Department can't enforce affirmative action hiring

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The Department of Labor cannot enforce a minority hiring complaint against Firestone Synthetic Rubber and Latex Co. because of a failure to seek public comment about the regulation, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher tossed out a DOL affirmative action ruling Thursday that would have made the company ineligible for at least $16.7 million in government contracts.

Fisher said Thursday he would remand the case to Labor Secretary Pat Donovan because former Labor Secretary Ray Marshall had failed to comply with the requirement that any new regulation must be filed in the Federal Register for public comment.

The basic issue is whether the secretary could impose regulations without soliciting public comment. It seems the court has taken

Five still missing after tug accident

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — Coast Guardsmen resumed the search today for five people lost when a tugboat sank in the storm-tossed Gulf of Mexico Wednesday.

Searchers used a helicopter and a small boat to search the area for two days without finding a trace of the missing people, a spokesman said Thursday. Officials said they are not certain when they will abandon the search.

One crewman and four truck drivers on board were ordered to abandon the tugboat Galveston.

Tugboat Captain Tom DeForest, 27, who weighs more than 300 pounds, survived several hours in the sub-freezing temperatures and 40-degree water only because of body fat insulation, Coast Guard officials said.

residing in a Miami Seaquarium. Mr. Iguana, right, is five feet long and weighs about 20 pounds. The object of his desires, left, is more petite at four feet in length.

LULAC seeking affiliation with Organization of American States

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Hispanic organization in search of a higher international profile is asking for affiliation with the Organization of American States.

If accepted, the League of United Latin American Citizens would become the first such Hispanic-American group to establish a formal tie to the OAS.

"The whole issue of Latin American affairs is of great interest to Hispanics in this country," Ruben Bonilla, national president of LULAC, said about the approach to the inter-American organization. "It will place us in a new forum of policy formulation."

The OAS has 27 member nations from the Western Hemisphere. A number of countries are recognized as observers, including Austria, Canada, Egypt, France, Israel, Italy and the Netherlands. The Vatican and the United Nations also are observers.

The tie that LULAC is seeking, called "cooperative status" by an OAS official, has been granted to about 75-100 groups ranging from U.N. agencies to international professional organizations.

The OAS official, who asked not to be named, said an informal hold has been placed on all applications while the entire affiliation system is examined.

"There are an infinite variety of relationships with organizations," he said. "We're trying to get the standards set."

Apparently the ties mostly are useful for public relations but contribute little of substance. Organizations are able to exchange information and attend some, but not all, meetings of the OAS.

Torres said Latin Americans perhaps evaluate Hispanics as having little interest or knowledge about foreign policy.

"There are some of us that want to change that," he said.

Torres said LULAC takes a position that too often non-Hispanics are the U.S. specialists in Latin American affairs.

One of the strongest reasons for LULAC's interest in Latin America, he added, is the belief that economic conditions abroad play a big part in encouraging emigration to the United States.

Torres said the Hispanic organization, because of its interest in hemispheric security and stability, plans to lobby more strongly on Latin American issues to oppose the Reagan administration's conservative policies.

LULAC, which calls itself the nation's oldest and largest Hispanic grassroots organization, has worked in the past two years to expand from its predominately Mexican-American base in the Southwest.

Torres said work at the OAS might help in membership drives among Cuban-Americans, Puerto Ricans and other Hispanic groups elsewhere in the United States.

Hispanic organizations last year formed a joint commission to meet regularly with the Mexican government, but Torres said it had not progressed as quickly as hoped.

"LULAC at the present time feels it's best to do something on our own," he said.

Bonilla, of Corpus Christi, Texas, said he is hopeful that LULAC will be accepted as an affiliated organization but he has no confirmation.

The OAS has 27 member nations from the Western Hemisphere. A number of countries are recognized as observers, including Austria, Canada, Egypt, France, Israel, Italy and the Netherlands. The Vatican and the United Nations also are observers.

Arnold Torres, Washington lobbyist for LULAC, said Hispanic organizations have worked with the OAS for several years but the discussions generally have been at social functions.

"That's not getting us anywhere. We don't discuss what the actual impact is," he said. "The natural tie-in is that we are Hispanics; we have another culture — we are just naturally concerned about the situation in Latin America."

Torres said the Hispanic organization, because of its interest in hemispheric security and stability, plans to lobby more strongly on Latin American issues to oppose the Reagan administration's conservative policies.

Although Torres said LULAC was interested in becoming a permanent observer at the OAS, both State Department and OAS officials said that would be impossible for anyone other than countries, the Vatican and the U.N.

Those officials said other groups are limited to some form of affiliated status.

Concerns remain

Hispanic leaders meet with Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hispanic leaders, meeting with President Reagan for the first time since his election, applauded the new Republican administration's turnout but many left the Thursday meeting with their worries about the government's conservative turn intact.

"I regret that we do not have a compelling message of hope and inspiration for our community after this meeting," Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said.

The Corpus Christi, Texas, lawyer, said, however, that the lunch was "unprecedented" because of the number of administration heavyweights who turned out for a meeting with Hispanic social activists.

Reagan's White House lunch for the leaders of 20 Hispanic organizations included Vice President George Bush and White House chief of staff James A. Baker III, both Texans, as well as top advisers Edwin Meese, Edwin Gray and Elizabeth Dole.

A pre-lunch briefing included a meeting with Education Secretary Terrel Bell, who recently touched off Hispanic protests by announcing that proposed federal bilingual education regulations would be withdrawn.

Bonilla said communications and briefings by the White House would not be enough to soothe the Hispanic community.

"We must have impact into policy formulation," he said. "Deepen the trenches, is all I can say, because we can expect less support from the government not only in funding but also in the protection of civil liberties."

Other Hispanic leaders were more optimistic about the promise of continued communication with the Republican administration, despite worries about specific programs and proposed budget cuts.

Vilma Martinez of San Francisco, president of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said Reagan spoke about his record as California governor of appointing more Hispanics than any previous officeholder.

Reagan said he would like to match that record as president, Ms. Martinez told reporters.

"I would have to say I was very delighted that this meeting took place," she said.

The San Antonio native said the high caliber of the administration officials attending the luncheon represented "a very good beginning" for Hispanic access.

Ms. Martinez said the conversation with the president included such topics as civil rights and the Voting Rights Act, coming up for renewal next year; bilingual education; and proposed budget cuts and their impact on the poor.

Other Texans at the meeting included Jose Cano, chairman of the American GI Forum and Pedro Ruiz, director of Operation SER. Both are from Dallas.

Nabers proposes change in Texas bank taxation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, says courts probably will strike down property taxes on bank stock, depriving local governments of revenue unless the Legislature acts.

He introduced a bill Thursday that would repeal property taxation of bank stock while placing the banks under the state corporate franchise tax of $4.25 per $1,000 of capital and surplus.

"I think it went well," Raul Yzaguirre, president of the National Council of La Raza, told reporters.

The San Juan, Texas, native said Reagan told the group that five Hispanics would be appointed soon to sub-Cabinet positions and more would follow.

There have not been any top Hispanic appointments in the Reagan administration so far.

Reports have circulated that the first Hispanic appointments would be as directors of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Small Business Administration.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

STRIPPED OF ITS BEAUTY

Apple trees do not do well in warm climates. They must lose their leaves in order to bear fruit. Thus the best apples come from colder climates.

During the fall of 1979, the apple trees in Mississippi were in full blossom. A tornado had stripped them bare of their leaves. Being fooled by this trick of nature, they burst into blossom for the second time that year.

So it is in the Christian life. Only as we are stripped bare of our own prideful beauty and self-sufficiency by the storms and winters of life can we bring forth the beauty and fruit of the Holy Spirit.

'Super Trooper'

Arlington youth wins battle with leukemia

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Doctors call him "Super Trooper," his mother says he is a "miracle boy." But 12-year-old Tony Muller is, more than anything else, a survivor.

Of the 29 leukemia patients who have had bone-marrow transplants at the Fred Hutchinson cancer research center in Seattle, Tony is one of six still alive.

His doctors say that Tony apparently has beaten the odds in his 3-year fight with the deadly blood disorder.

The freckle-faced, brown-eyed Arlington youth has been clear of cancer for 23 months as of this week, and his prognosis looks good, his parents added.

"It's been almost two years since the transplant and the doctors don't think the cancer will return," said Mrs. Muller, who refers to her hardy son as "our miracle boy."

But Tony's battle has not been an easy one, although he has taken everything in stride.

"At the time, I didn't know exactly what leukemia was," he said. "They told me it was a blood disorder. It was no big deal, we'd just do what had to be done to straighten it out."

When the disease was diagnosed on April 5, 1978, doctors started chemotherapy immediately. Tony was in and out of Children's Medical Center in Dallas until that May when a bone-marrow test was performed and doctors announced that the boy had gone into full remission.

But in January 1979, the dark-haired youngster relapsed and doctors gave his parents three alternatives — take him home and make his last few months as comfortable as possible; start chemotherapy, although his resistance was so low that infection would probably set and kill him; or take him to Seattle for a bone-marrow transplant at the Hutchinson Center, where the process was pioneered.

The Mullers checked into the research center in Seattle February 1979, where Tony's sister Teresa, now 14, was to be the bone-marrow donor. The match was perfect, except for blood type.

After four days of radiation and two days of cytoxin injections to kill all cells in the bone marrow, Tony underwent a complete body blood exchange changing his blood type from O positive to A negative, with the white blood cells coming from his father.

After 2 days in the hospital and another 60 days in an apartment on the hospital grounds, Tony and his mother returned to Arlington. But two days later he was in Children's Medical Center with CMV — transplant pneumonia.

When he was released 14 days later, Tony had become the fourth known survivor of the rare CMV disease.

But the boy's problems didn't end there. He contracted hepatitis in September 1979, lost all his hair as the result of a raging 105-degree fever and couldn't take any pain medication because of his existing liver problems.

Then in November, a liver biopsy confirmed GVH — a sign that his liver was trying to reject the cells from his sister.

The family returned to the Seattle research center in October 1980 and test results showed no cancer and no sign of cell rejection.

Today, his parents say, there are still no signs of cancer, but Tony is still fighting the liver ailment.

Throughout the ordeal, Tony has kept his head up, his mother said.

"He's never been taken up with his illness. He's never been down in the dumps," she added. "His attitude has always been very positive and he wouldn't let those around him get down."

His courage earned him the nickname "Super Trooper," from doctors, nurses and those who treated him at Children's Medical Center.

And in spite of the leukemia, Tony has remained a fairly typical 12-year-old boy, his parents said. He wiggles and fidgets and harasses his sister about the amount of time she spends on the phone.

Before leukemia was diagnosed, he played football and soccer. But doctors have told him that contact sports are now out of the question. Chemotherapy made his bones too brittle.

But the seventh-grader hasn't given up. He's an assistant coach for a fifth-grade soccer team and he still rides his bicycle, which his father claims he has a habit of wrecking.

"He's become a professional bicycle remodeler," Alex Muller quipped.

Tony also collects medical paraphernalia used on him during his many hospital visits.

"Want to see the needle they used for the transplant?" he asked with a wry smile, returning with a needle would make most grown men cringe. "They stuck 50 holes in my hip with this needle. First time I saw it I told them to get away from me with that thing."

Tony still bears the scars and pockmarks from the hundreds of injections, blood samples and tests on his body and arms.

On March 7, Tony celebrates two years of being cancer-free, and four days later he turns 13.

"Fantastic is almost an inadequate word to describe how we feel," Mrs. Muller said.

Two in Wichita Falls convicted of aid fraud

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A local attorney and a former government official were convicted on fraud and bribery charges in connection with applications for low-interest disaster loans following the killer tornadoes that struck here in April 1979.

Attorney Sam Moreau and former Small Business Administration official Bob Perry were found guilty Thursday after 14 hours of jury deliberations in U.S. District Court. The trial lasted nine days.

Prosecutors said Moreau made false statements in applying for loans to replace his household furnishings and office equipment following the April 10 tornadoes. Further, they said he did not use the SBA loan money to buy the property he said was destroyed.

Perry was convicted of improperly aiding Moreau in making the false statements and of influencing the SBA to approve the loans.

Moreau was found in error on a charge that he made false statements to secure loans to replace cattle on a ranch he owned near Vernon. Perry was acquitted on a charge he improperly influenced the loan application in that instance.

Moreau's attorney, Gene Douglass, argued that Moreau was insane because of brain damage due to eight years of alcohol abuse and that he was intoxicated during the time of the alleged offenses, June through September 1979.

Witnesses testified that Moreau was drinking as much as a half-gallon of liquor a day during the period.

Perry's defense attorneys tried to show that their client had a good reputation and his position with the SBA was not important enough that he could influence loan applications.

More than 37 witnesses testified during the trial and more than 500 documents were entered into evidence.

U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon did not set a date for sentencing.

UT regents name 'Super Drum' for Frank Erwin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — University of Texas regents have voted to rename the school's Special Events Center — or "Super Drum" — here after Frank C. Erwin Jr., a regent from 1963 to 1975.

Erwin died of a heart attack in October 1980, and his funeral — attended by dozens of state officials — was held in the 16,000-seat Special Events Center.

UT basketball games are played in the center, which also is the setting for numerous entertainment events, ranging from performing horses and ice shows to classical ballet.

The "Super Drum" was conceived and construction was started while Erwin was a regent, and he largely is credited with the project.

Speaker Bill Clayton has introduced a House bill to name the center after Erwin, but Regent Howard Richards said the regents wanted to take the action themselves.

"I knew Frank for a long time, and I think he would have wanted the regents to do this rather than the Legislature," Richards said.

The regents had to waive a policy against naming a building after a person who had not been dead for five years.

They also established an endowment fund to create a Frank C. Erwin professorship in the Department of Government. The department has raised $50,000 toward the endowment, which is planned to have $500,000 ultimately.

Polish labor leaders pledge Soviets killed in crash to call no strikes immediately

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent labor leaders pledged to call no strikes except as a last resort as Poland's new premier promised a "broad dialogue" with the unions, announced a 10-point plan to strengthen the economy and purged the government.

The leaders of Solidarity, the nationwide labor federation, made their nostrike pledge in a communique issued after a meeting in the Baltic port of Gdansk. But a spokesman said it was not in response to Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski's speech before Parliament Thursday, calling for a 90-day moratorium on strikes.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said he had not heard the premier's speech, but reiterated. "We don't want strikes." He also said the union was forming an 11-member national committee to take "complex, unpopular decisions" in the coming week but did not elaborate.

Jaruzelski, a four-star general who is also defense minister, asked the Poles to "put their confidence in the government" and said his program was aimed at improving food supplies, housing and health services; strengthening price controls; and increasing farm production and aid to the old and infirm.

He said there would be a "broad dialogue" with labor in the coming months and that the Roman Catholic Church would have a greater role in solving Poland's crisis.

He named six new Cabinet ministers and two new vice premiers in the sixth purge of government leaders since the strike wave last summer that resulted in legalization of trade unions independent of Communist Party control for the first time in the Soviet bloc.

The ministries affected were agriculture, education, industry, forestry, health and heavy machinery. The two new vice premiers are Andrzej Jedynek, one of the government negotiators who helped end last summer's strikes, and Mieczyslaw Rakowski, editor of the liberal weekly Polityka and an opponent of hard-line government policies.

They replaced Stanislaw Kowalczyk and Aleksander Kopec. Kowalczyk was one of the last remaining officials appointed by Edward Gierek, the party chief purged in September for not anticipating the labor crisis. The reason for Kopec's ouster was unclear. He negotiated strike-ending agreements with miners last September that gave them a shorter work day and weekends off.

Jaruzelski, who replaced Jozef Prnkowski as premier Wednesday, said in his nationally televised speech to Parliament: "I am calling on all trade unions with an appeal. Let us stop all strikes. I am asking you for three months of honest work, 90 days of calm, to put some order in our economy."

"Forces of evil have been attempting to penetrate Solidarity and lead it toward false positions, anarchy and derailment of socialism," he continued. This, he said, could lead to "conflict and the most terrible thing, a fratricidal war." He warned that the government "has the constitutional right" to defend the socialist system and enough power to do it.

Soviets killed in crash

MOSCOW (AP) — The "admirals, generals, officers, midshipmen, warrant officers and ensigns of the Pacific Fleet" killed in a plane crash last weekend have been buried in Leningrad, the army newspaper Red Star said today.

It gave no number for the dead in the crash, which occurred Saturday, or say where it occurred, but did identify three of the victims.

Red Star said urns containing the ashes of Adm. Emil N. Spridonov, 55, the Pacific fleet commander, Vice Adm. Vladimir D. Sabaneyev, 54, its top political officer, and Lt. Gen. Georgy V. Pavlov, commander of the fleet's air wing, were interred in Serafimovskiy Cemetery.

Sergei Gorskov, the commander of the navy and deputy defense minister, spoke at the funeral, along with "representatives of the Pacific fleet and Leningraders," the article said.

POMP AND POETRY — When Eastman Kodak's new travel show isn't concentrating on the 'pomp' of England's Trooping of the Colors, it's recalling the poetry of Wales' Dylan Thomas or Ireland's William Butler Yeats. All in all, 'Britain and Ireland... An Adventure in Pictures' is a multi-faceted entertainment with something to offer every family member, every travel taste. Under Auspices of The Herald, the film will be shown starting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the High School Auditorium. Admission price is $1, with proceeds going to the United Way.

Gas stations owner predicts $1.75-$1.80 gasoline prices

HOUSTON (AP) — Gasoline prices of $1.75 to $1.80 a gallon by next fall or early winter have been predicted by a Houston service station operator.

Glenn Nilsson, executive director of the Lone Star Service Station Association, expressed doubt prices will level out after recent OPEC crude oil price hikes and President Reagan's decontrol of crude and gasoline prices.

"It is a shame and I don't know what in the world to do about it," Nilsson said Thursday.

On Wednesday, the American Automobile Association's Texas Division at least one Texas service station already has prices as high as $1.50 and a number of others as high as $1.45.

"Since decontrol, we are looking at a 9.1-cent wholesale increase from major suppliers," Nilsson said, adding that retailers have no choice but to pass the increases on to motorists.

He said most pump prices are in line with the wholesale price hikes but that some grocery and convenience store retailers that maintain higher profit margins have increased prices 11 to 12 cents a gallon.

Nilsson said OPEC price increase will affect world markets and this, combined with decontrol, will likely lead to steady price increases for months.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

by William F. Clements Jr.

As the third most-populous state in the nation, Texas faces many problems and challenges. I have stated often during the last two years that providing an adequate water supply for our citizens, our agriculture and our industry, ultimately, may be the most critical issue of all.

If we do not accurately assess our needs in this regard and prepare accordingly, we could be in a crisis situation.

That is why I recommended in my Jan. 22 State of the State address to the Legislature establishment of a State Water Trust Fund to hold in reserve anticipated surplus revenues toward meeting our future water needs.

Water is not an agricultural problem alone. Neither, contrary to a widely-held view, is it a sectional or regional problem.

Municipal water supplies and sewage treatment capabilities must be assured in the small towns and large cities. Our farms and ranches and industry will continue to demand more water as our population increases from 14.1 million to 22 million by the year 2000.

Already, Texas is classified as a water-short state. That is, we are using our water faster than it is being replaced by nature. According to the Texas Department of Water Resources, we are using statewide 7.1 million acre feet of ground water per year more than is being replaced.

The withdrawal is causing water level declines, decreasing well yields, land subsidence, movement of geologic faults and saline water encroachment.

This 7.1 million acre feet deficit amounts to 41 percent of water use in our state annually. And it is twice the amount we can take safely from our 10 largest lakes.

In a recent publication, the Department of Water Resources pointed to this long-term water supply outlook: —Major areas of the State will be limited in growth potential to provide jobs for increasing populations unless additional water supplies are developed.

—Areas where some long-range (20 to 50 years) water shortages are anticipated include Dallas-Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Abilene, San Angelo, Midland-Odessa, High Plains, Trans-Pecos, El Paso, Lower Rio Grande Valley, Middle Rio Grande, Corpus Christi and the San Antonio area. Implementation of projects can prevent projected shortages in many of these areas.

—The Middle Gulf Coast, Houston, Beaumont, East Texas, Northeast Texas and a part of the Dallas-Fort Worth Central Texas regions can be supplied through intrastate, local area development over the next 50 years if surface water supplies are developed on a timely schedule as now planned.

All of this lead me to the conclusion that establishment of a Water Trust Fund to underwrite water development projects including additional reservoirs and distribution facilities should be a high priority goal.

As I stated in my Jan. 22 speech, this is literally an investment in our future. It will ensure that the state surplus—unlike some in the past—will be spent in an accountable manner on a highly identifiable and critical need.

It is a form of tax relief, because by putting this money in trust, we are preventing a future onerous tax burden that the State could be forced to levy as our population and water needs increase and our oil and gas revenues decline.

In the long-term sense, the Water Trust Fund would, indeed, amount to a very substantial tax savings, and I support it wholeheartedly.

At the same time, I remain hopeful that we will find a suitable and practical way to return to our citizens in the form of direct tax relief a portion of the surplus which is expected to accrue. I will continue to look for that opportunity.

Texas couple married 72 years

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — In sickness and in health, for richer or poorer, Benjamin and Mary Watkins have "worked together, lived together and loved together" for 72 years.

The couple, now living in a Corsicana nursing home, have rarely been apart since their marriage on May 29, 1909.

What has kept them together, explains Mrs. Watkins, 91, is "a lot of give and a whole lot of take."

"We made an agreement that we would never fuss and quarrel," added her 95-year-old husband. "So if one gets to fussing, the other just walks off and leaves for a little while."

Benjamin Watkins remembers how the two met on a fall day in 1909 in Ureku, a small town southeast of this Central Texas city.

"I was running a thrashing machine one day and she came out in the field with another girl. Well, the next thing you know we started talking and made a date. From there, things just sort of... well, you know how it goes."

But, he added, Mary Thomas, then 19, wasn't so easily convinced that she should marry the 23-year-old farmer.

"At first, it seemed I wasn't ever going to be able to talk her into marrying me, so I just loved her into marrying me," he reminisced.

"Seventy-two years is a long time, but it's also been a good time," his wife added.

The couple, who have two sons and two daughters, 17 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren, say they have stayed together through good and bad times by supporting one another.

State Department regrets release of Soviet letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it won't make public a letter from Secretary of State Alexander Haig to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and "regrets" the Soviets released the response from Gromyko to Haig.

"We believe that confidentiality is essential to the conduct of diplomacy," State Department spokesman William Dyess said Thursday. "For that reason, we will not release the text of Secretary Haig's letter."

Haig's Jan. 24 letter was understood to have warned the Soviet Union against intervening in Poland. Gromyko's Jan. 28 letter complained that the United States had interfered in Poland's internal affairs, a charge Dyess said "is simply not true."

U.S. officials described release of Gromyko's response as unprecedented because the letter was a private diplomatic communication.

The Soviet Union said its embassy released Gromyko's letter because Haig's letter had been made public. State Department officials denied it had been. The decision Thursday against releasing the Haig letter came after hours of discussion by State Department officials.

Dyess declined to speculate on Soviet motives for releasing the letter. "Ask them," he said.

Another State Department official said the letter may have been released partly because of published leaks of the contents of the Haig letter and partly in response to the Reagan administration's anti-Soviet statements.

Drag race kills one

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A high-school honor student was killed and three other people were injured when a car, drag-racing down a city street, skidded out of control and smashed into a group of students walking home from school, police said.

"The Impala went up on the grassy slope where the kids were walking, barely missing three of them, and then hit the others," said city police officer Dale Hancock.

Witnesses told officers three young men jumped out of the car and fled the scene on foot, after pulling one of the injured students out from under the wreckage.

The dead student was identified as Elva Limon, 15.

NURSERY PROVIDED FOR ALL MEETINGS

Dear Abby

Husband Nurses, but No Longer Seems to Care

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister, age 78, has been in a nursing home for nearly two years. Mary became senile, and her husband, whom I'll call Hal, could no longer care for her at home. (They were a happy, devoted couple, married 54 years.)

We live 100 miles away, but keep in close touch by phone. Hal is 76, but looks much younger. He's handsome and personable and is still active in his own business. Hal goes to the nursing home twice a day to feed Mary and keep his eye on things.

A few months ago, a 58-year-old widow who lives in Hal's apartment building invited him to dinner. He then reciprocated by inviting her out. We understand that Hal is lonely for companionship and we're trying to keep an open mind, but we hear they see each other quite often. Naturally it bothers us some, but we've never mentioned it to Hal as it's none of our business.

Last week my husband called Hal and invited him to join us for an anniversary celebration. He was shocked when Hal asked if he could bring this woman. My husband said he'd have to give it some thought, but he felt bad for his sister. After all, she's not dead yet. Would my husband be out of line if he asked Hal not to bring this woman?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: No.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I don't have anybody else to ask about this and it's tearing me apart. I have recently been through a very emotional time. I lost my husband a year ago and did some stupid things. I seemed to have lost control.

I was recently picked up for shoplifting a $2.50 article I didn't need or want, so now I have a record. I am so ashamed and embarrassed, I can't stand myself. I have lost all self-respect.

Now I want to go back to work — selling — but I am worried about this shoplifting offense being on my record. Do companies check into a person's background thoroughly enough to find something like this? Can this keep me from getting employment? I need to know. I need to work not only to support myself, but to help me keep my sanity. I am 50.

NO NAME, NO TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: The chance that this single offense will prevent you from getting employment is very, very small. Put it out of your mind, apply for work and forget it. Should you be questioned about the incident, explain that it occurred while you were under stress.

RSVP tea is held at Spring

The Spring City Senior Citizens Center was the site of a RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) Valentine Recognition tea held Tuesday at 3 p.m. The Center was decorated with cupids and hearts.

Entertainment was provided by the Snyder RSVP kitchen band, whose instruments include tea kettle, washboards, dust pan, and many other articles normally associated with the kitchen. Their program was unique and delighted the local volunteers and guests.

The Snyder RSVP project director, Marsha Krenek said that the band was started about 5 years ago and they love to present programs even if it means traveling to area towns.

The RSVP film, "What you do speaks so loud", which shows many ways that seniors can remain active after retirement through the RSVP program was shown.

Refreshments of cookies, punch and coffee were served to volunteers and guests.

Centennial program is given

The Desk & Derrick Club met for a regular monthly meeting Monday, at noon in the Cosden building. Mrs. Pat Highley, president, presided.

Mrs. Venita Blessingame, program committee chairman, introduced Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery, president of the Avery & Associates, the speaker. Mrs. Avery's topic was "Spring City Centennial and Oil Industry Day." She told of the coming Centennial Celebration to be held May 21-30. This is the centennial of the coming of the railroad to this area and the establishing of the town of Big Spring. The goals of the ten day celebration are to honor our heritage; have fun as a community by everyone becoming involved; create new civic awareness; find new civic leaders with everyone sharing responsibilities; focus attention on tomorrow, as we look back; and to help local economy by letting neighboring towns know Big Spring is an aggressive community by well-planned advertising.

Each day has a different theme with a chairman in charge of the various activities of the day. Mrs. Avery's special emphasis was on Oil Industry Day May 26, with Hood Barnwell, Manager of Industrial Relations for Cosden Oil & Chemical Company, in charge along with Bob Goodwin. Mrs. Avery suggested that the Desk & Derrick Club could be of help on this special day, and it was decided that the Club would participate. There will be a pageant for six nights with all local talent performing, and the final night will be the Centennial Ball.

Beverly has been visiting Mrs. Dreher regularly for about two months.

Voc Ed week is a busy time for FHA members

The Homemaking I and II classes of Big Spring High School through Future Homemakers of America have had a full Vocational Education week, Feb. 8-14 with scheduled activities.

Sunday, each Future Homemaker of America attended the church of his or her choice. Monday was the day for large group meetings each class period. Tuesday 15 students went to Big Spring State Hospital to hold a Valentine party for teenage patients. Wednesday was "Enjoy your family day." Thursday, teachers were honored with an apple. Today was color day with each student wearing red and white. Saturday is "Be a friend to a senior citizen by visiting one day." In addition, tomorrow is area FHA meeting in Midland.

The philosophy of the department is as students mature in a changing world, they must find lifestyles which meet their individual personalities. The students should be capable of setting goals, using resources and choosing a career in order to become responsible, self-sufficient and capable of contributing to society.

FHA members have been busy this year being friends of the elderly. Names have been obtained from Best Home Care of elderly people whom they minister to, or the student choose someone they know. Visits are made at the students' convenience.

Love poetry book sales boom around St. Valentine's day

The French call them bills doux, the Americans, valentines. But by any name they sound sweet to the lovers who exchange these written tokens of affection every year on February 14. History ascribes many theories to the origins of St. Valentine's Day. But most commonly accepted is that it comes from the Roman holiday for young lovers, Lupercalia. Celebrated in mid-February, it was the custom during Lupercalia for young men to place the names of young women in a box and draw at random. The matched couples were considered betrothed and expected to remain together at least until the following year.

By the Middle Ages, the young man had learned how not to leave the choice of his lady love to chance. Instead, he wrote his name on a piece of paper and presented it to his heart's desire as early as possible on St. Valentine's Day.

"Modern sweethearts continue to borrow the words of poets to express their love," says Sally Oliver, a Reader Service Director for Waldenbooks, the national book retailer. She reports that more collections of love poetry are sold during February at Waldenbooks stores than during any other time of the year.

For lovers with more taste than money, Ariel Manacher, a Waldenbooks bookbuyer, reports very good value on the bargain books tables. These include hardcover editions of classics such as "The Sonnets of William Shakespeare" at $1.98; "Favorite Poems of Emily Dickinson" at $2.98 and "The Treasury of Loved Poems" at $2.98.

Kahlil Gibran's "The Prophet," Rod McKuen's "We Touch the Sky" and Susan Polis Shutz's "I Promise You My Love" are modern poetry collections that are enjoyed by lovers year after year.

New poetry collections are offered by two leading ladies of the romance book genre. They are "The Light of Love" by Barbara Cartland (2.50) and "Love" by Danielle Steele (1.95).

"Princess Daisy," the best-selling romance novel by Judy Krantz is now available in paperback for $3.95 and makes an excellent Valentine's Day gift choice. Pragmatic lovers who believe that actions speak louder than words can give their sweethearts a book of "I Love You Coupons," $1.50. There are printed vouchers for backrubs, breakfast in bed, kisses or such mundane but appreciated services as doing the dishes.

Still another option is to give one's love a blank book. At Waldenbooks there are a variety including a Valentine Blank Book at $1.98 and a pretty floral-covered book at $2.98. "Blank Books are ideal gifts for creative lovers who will enjoy recording their own love poetry or art," says Sally Oliver.

Drizzle, rain in South Texas

By the Associated Press
 Drizzle and light rain was forecast today for South Texas while the remainder of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies and slightly warmer temperatures.
 Forecasts called for highs mostly in the upper 40s and 50s except in the Big Bend area of South-west Texas where readings were to be in the middle 60s.
 Light rain, drizzle and fog was reported in South Texas early today. Rain-fall amounts were very light with both Corpus Christi and Brownsville reporting only .01 of an inch.

 Skies were mostly cloudy over the eastern half of the state and fair over the western half.
 Early morning temperatures ranged from the low to middle 20s in the Panhandle to near 60 in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Most areas had readings in the 30s and lower 40s. Extremes ranged from 21 at Amarillo to 59 at Brownsville.

FORECAST
 West Texas — Fair north and partly cloudy south today. Fair north and far west tonight and Saturday and continued partly cloudy southeast. Warmer Saturday. Highs mid 50s except mid 40s Big Bend. Lows mid 20s mountains and Panhandle to mid 30s south. Highs Saturday mid 60s except mid 70s Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST
 West Texas — Partly cloudy with warm afternoons and cool nights through early next week. Only minor day to day temperature changes with highs in the 40s north to the upper 70s south and lows will range in the 30s north to the 40s south.

IT'S A BOAT TIME — Three residents of Port Jervis, N.Y., pole their boat down a flooded street Thursday. Heavy rains and ice jams in the Delaware River caused flooding that forced 2,500 people out of the homes on both sides of the New York-Pennsylvania border.

Massive losses reported by McLouth Steel Corp.

DETROIT (AP) — McLouth Steel Corp., citing "the most precipitous steel order drop-off in memory," has reported a 1980 loss of $56.6 million.
 The loss for the nation's 11th-largest steel producer, whose fate and fortune rests primarily with the auto industry, came to $10.51 per share.

 McLouth Chairman Gene Gunn said Thursday that the loss came on net sales of $614 million. McLouth earned $9.4 million, or $1.58 share, on sales of $725 million in 1979, Gunn said.
 "These are rough times for those of us who are closely aligned with the automotive industry," Gunn said. However, he predicted "a steady recovery in the latter part of the year."
 McLouth's stock closed Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange at 6 1/2.
 The corporation also announced Thursday an agreement in principle to sell its stainless steel division assets in Detroit to Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., a subsidiary of LTV Corp., for an undisclosed price.

Two seats will be decided

School board elections scheduled at coliseum

By CAROL HART
 Members of the Big Spring Independent School board of trustees voted Thursday to call the school board elections for April 4 in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.
 Elections of this type were previously held in the vocational wing at Big Spring High School. Board members decided to call the election at the coliseum, pending permission from the U.S. attorney general's office. If no clearance for the change in polling place is received by March 12, the trustees will amend the order, it was decided.
 Two seats on the school board will be decided at the April 4 elections. Incumbent Charles Beil has announced his intention to seek his position on the board again. David R. Huff has also announced he will run for the board. Incumbent Bert Harris, whose term expires in April, has not revealed his intentions.
 Persons interested in running for the school board have until March 4 to file at the Big Spring Independent School District office, 708 11th Place.
 School board members approved the amended Title I budget presented by Donald Crockett, assistant superintendent for business. A total of $4,838 is being added to the materials and supplies section of the budget, and being deleted from salary and travel fees.
 Three persons were approved as additions to faculty staffs throughout the district. Mrs. Gail Darlene Laws was approved as a teacher at Goliad Middle School, Mrs. Kathleen L. McFarland was approved as a teacher at Goliad Middle School and Lindal R. Patterson was approved as a teacher and coach at Big Spring High School.

recommended as the compiler of the school district's history. Board members agreed to have Fischer compile a history, and meet with the board on Feb. 26 to decide on how many pages should be purchased in the book.
 Maxwell Green, CPA, who performed school audits this past year, was approved as auditor for the 1980-81 school district records.
 School board members voted to stand behind an administrative recommendation concerning the suspension of a student. The students in question will be suspended the rest of the school year, due to disregard for authority and posing a threat to the safety of other students, said Lynn Hise, superintendent of school.
 Total weekly enrollment for the BSISD was reported at 4,819 for the week ending Feb. 6. Last year's total at approximately the same time was 4,849.
 Recently enacted federal legislation has revised the income eligibility standards for children participating in free and reduced-price meals programs throughout the district, board members were advised. New income poverty guidelines also remove the hardship provisions previously allowed, and place a standard deduction into the new scales.

Families of children whose eligibility for program benefits will be reduced were to have received written notice at least 10 days prior to the date of reduction.
 In an executive session called by Board President Mrs. Carole Hunter, members approved employment recommendations of administrative and supervisory personnel, made by Hise.

Uncle Sam wants charity returned

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official of the outgoing Carter administration, frustrated in efforts to help the poor pay heating bills, handed over $4 million in federal money to charity. Now the Reagan administration wants it back.
 But one of the four groups that received the money, the National Conference of Catholic Charities, says it already has distributed one-third of its share and sees no reason to return the rest.
 Energy Department officials said the money was handed out by Paul Bloom, former special counsel for the Energy Department, on Jan. 19, his last day on the job.
 The funds were part of the settlement Bloom gained in legal battles with the country's 35 largest oil companies over an alleged $11 billion in pricing violations.
 Aides to Energy Secretary James B. Edwards said they did not find out about Bloom's action until last Monday. Telegrams then were sent to all four charities asking them to hold up using the money until government attorneys determined whether Bloom had acted properly.
 Edwards was advised Thursday that Bloom's action was improper because it had not been cleared with outgoing Energy Secretary Charles Duncan, and therefore the charities should be required to return the $4 million.
 "Secretary Edwards is not objecting to getting the money to low-income people. He just wants it back so that a decision on how to disburse it will be made in the right way," Energy Department spokesman Phil Keif said.
 Bloom had given $1 million each to the National Conference of Catholic Charities, the National Conference of Churches, the Council of Jewish Federations and the Salvation Army. All four groups accepted the money on the condition that it be distributed nationally to help poor people pay their heating bills. All four groups agreed they would not deduct any administrative costs for distributing the money.
 In an interview, Bloom defended his action: "It seemed to me that it was time that the Department of Energy did something effective... (for) those individuals who are most needy because of the very sharp run ups of heating oil charges."

County's biggest employer proud of record

The safety record achieved by workers at Cosden Oil and Chemical Company's local refinery (two million man hours without an injury that took anyone out of service) was achieved by people who obviously take pride in their work. Careless people invariably are the ones who have accidents.

There is a high risk factor in some of the jobs at the refinery but the personnel exercise great caution in performing their assigned tasks. This kind of record is simply unheard of in oil-related industries.

THE COMPANY NOT only has pointed with pride to the unique record but has provided the kind of incentives that make employees try a little harder. Cosden threw a whale of a party for all employees and their families, treating them to barbecue and songs by Tom T. Hall, after they achieved their first million accident-free hours. In addition, each employee was given a $50 gift certificate.

When the plant hit two million hours without a lost time accident, the company announced it would give each of its people a $100 gift certificate, and plan for a party later on in the year.

The entire community benefits from the largesse passed on by the company to its personnel. The gift certificates passed out by Cosden must be redeemed in Big Spring. Some firms might have passed along catalogs of firms far removed from Big Spring for gift suggestions that could be redeemed but Cosden officials felt that the money should remain in the Big Spring area.

CLOSE TO $70,000 in gift certificates will shortly be distributed to the refinery employees. If such money turns over six or seven times in a community, and economists will tell you such is the case, it's easy to see what impact the Cosden gift will have on local business.

Cosden is, of course, Howard County's biggest employer. It has always supplied leadership that has helped the community. The taxes it pays help finance the institutions we need to keep the community going. And the investments its employees have made in home and personal property here have served to keep many businesses thriving.

Cosden is composed of quality people—great folks to have on your side.

Severe crisis

Around the rim

James Werrell

Never before in the history of the medium have television viewers been bombarded with such a preponderance of junk. I have hemmed and hawed, rationalized, apologized, turned the other cheek and looked the other way long enough. I feel like a parent who, after willfully ignoring an errand child for too many years, suddenly learns that he has grown up and now is too large to handle.

SOCIOLOGISTS WOULD say that metaphor is mixed up. I am, they tell me, a child of television. Actually, in the final analysis, television and I are siblings that, give or take a few years, grew up together.

And now, sad to say, it appears as though television is going through a severe mid-life crisis.

For years I was an apologist for TV. I didn't like everything on the small screen, but there was enough to keep a selective viewer appeased.

I was also a believer in populist TV. If most Americans wanted "Laverne and Shirley," give them "Laverne and Shirley." Who was I to buck Democracy?

But who wants the tripe the networks are passing off as entertainment nowadays? Certainly no one I know.

Letting your fingers do the walking through a TV Guide is like a waltz through a minefield where your chances of survival are almost nil. You may light upon an old movie or a show that used to be good and is now tolerable, but more than likely you will find yourself smack on top of "Too Close For Comfort" or "The Brady Girls Get Married."

I recently asked a friend, a fellow observer of the decline of television, what he thinks is the worst affront to the national's mentality now airing on the tube.

"No," he said, "let's do it another way. It'll be easier. I sort of like 'Barney Miller' and 'MASH,' but they are both getting worse."

I don't think it's news that the networks take us, the viewing public, for a bunch of rubes and idiots or, worse, a teeming mass of viewer points to be assembled on a ratings scale. But how much more of this drivel do they think they can shove down our throats before we choke and they go broke?

THE GOING THEORY in TV-land is that if it works once, it will work over and over again. What the moguls haven't learned is that if it works once, it works once, and that's all you can count on.

The only constants in successful programming are one or a mixture of the following: creativity, originality, good writing, good acting, or striking a timely chord to which almost anyone can respond.

Because TV producers haven't learned this lesson, we get "Flamingo Road," "Dynasty," and "Knots Landing" in the wake of "Dallas."

Because, after struggling for years, CBS's "60 Minutes" is finally successful, we get ABC's "20-20" and NBC's "Magazine."

Because "Real People" became a surprise hit, we suffer with "That's Incredible," "Those Amazing Animals" and the late, unlamented "Speak Out, America."

Because "All In The Family" and "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" were fresh, funny and irreverent, we get a legion of imitators. What passes for television comedy is probably the fallow ground of all in the great wasteland: "House Calls," "Enos," "Bosom Buddies," "Harper Valley PTA," "Ladies' Man," the list is grimly endless.

Can you believe that CBS has actually given Tim Conway another show to host? Is the funnyman blight in this country so bad that the networks can't find someone, anyone, besides Tim Conway to fill a half hour?

The excuse given by some for the sorry state of TV is "television babies." The writers of earlier shows had their roots in legitimate theater, books and movies. The writers of today know only television.

Whatever the source of the problem is, the only way to send the networks a message is to exercise our God-given right to operate the on-off switch on the set. After years of developing an insatiable TV habit, that has been difficult for me.

But I am growing increasingly efficient at it as time, prime time, goes by.

Unbuttoned president

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The spate of public appearances by Ronald Reagan last week bear witness of benign intent. The new President plainly wants an open Administration. Rightly so, for he is—as one of the more recent corruptions of the language has it—a fine communicator.

But there is a difference between content and style. And analyzing the content of one appearance—the interview with five reporters early in the week—raises misgivings about both the approach to foreign policy and the foundations of the President's economic thinking.

One important piece of news emerged from the interview with the five. Speaking of the relationship between the tax cut and reductions in government spending, Mr. Reagan said: "Well, we're trying to link this into a single package and get the package passed."

THE TILT TOWARD a single package represents a notable gain. During the campaign, Reagan was an easygoing supply-sider addicted to massive Kemp-Roth tax cuts who paid attention to spending reductions only as an afterthought and under the rubric of waste and fraud.

The shift in position reflects a message delivered in the past few weeks by Chairman Paul Volcker of the Federal Reserve Board, the congressional leadership and the financial market. Together, they have convinced the President, as he indicated in his Thursday night speech, that a tax cut without connected reductions in spending would be dangerously inflationary.

A second item in the interview was given undue attention by journalists laboring under the delusion that arms control represents the central fiber of Soviet-American relations. Reagan said of the Russians that: "Anytime they want to sit down and discuss a legitimate reduction of nuclear weapons, we will get into such negotiations." In fact, as he said in the interview, he had been saying precisely that "all through the campaign."

Not only was there no news in the comment, but giving it big bred false hopes. The unpleasant fact is that the U.S. is now stretched thin in its nuclear armament. No significant reductions in missiles, bombers or submarines are possible without increasing vulnerability and thus giving an added incentive to an attacker. While this country has an undoubted interest in resuming arms control negotiations with Russia, it hurts the cause—now, as it did in the first days of the Carter Administration—to talk of deep cuts.

THE MIDDLE EAST also provided considerable copy. The President said that Israeli settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River, while not "illegal," were "ill-advised" and "unnecessarily provocative." He said of the Palestine Liberation Organization that it "practiced terrorism," and might not represent the Palestine Arabs. He also asserted the need for some kind of American "ground presence" around the Persian Gulf.

I happen to agree on each one of those points. But it is wise for a President to come so clean? Won't the Saudis and other Arabs be offended by his overt denial of their views on the settlements and the PLO? How likely are they, or any other Arab country, to afford this country the right to station ground troops on their territory?

Doesn't expression of the desire for bases, in any case, up the price? Why talk much about the Middle East anyway, when events have called at least a temporary timeout?

Lastly, the press interview featured a long, rambling venture into the President's concept of economics.

Certain blood cells and allergy linked

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My question concerns a blood disease called "eosinophilia." Not much seems known about it except that it seems to be caused by allergies. Can you give me some practical information about it? What can one expect from it? Should my blood be checked periodically? Or is it better just to forget about it and let it take its own course? And can you tell me if a person can take allergy pills all his life?—N.E.

Eosinophilia (EE-oh-SIN-oh-PHIL-ee-uh) is not a disease. It means that your blood contains an inordinate number of a particular kind of white blood cells. Having them does not pose any threat to you. Under normal circumstances they are the kinds of cells that pathologists (doctors who sift out symptoms) like Eosinophils got their name because they lend themselves to easy "staining." When doctors inject staining dye, this "stainability" makes the body tissue more visible under the microscope. The dye is "eosin." The "phil" part of the term refers to the fact that those blood cells "love" it.

It is what eosinophils indicate that is important. Years ago, doctors noted that people with allergies do tend to have this increased eosinophil count (eosinophilia). Thus, since some allergies wax and wane, so, too, will the eosinophil count. The blood does not necessarily have to be checked periodically for that. Your own symptoms will be a good indicator of your allergy status, and, as I said, the relative number of the eosinophils will not harm you anyway.

There are other things to look for if one has eosinophilia, so tracking down the cause initially is important. In your case, I presume this has been done, and allergy has been blamed. You can take allergy pills for as long as your doctor feels you need them.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am enclosing an article on high blood pressure. In it, the author says that people who suffer from high blood pressure will very likely die or be disabled from something it causes. My doctor tells me to take my pills and that when high blood pressure is treated nothing will happen in years to come. Is it this article that concerns me. Can you set us straight on this?—G.O.

The reason for treating high blood pressure is exactly as your doctor says—to control it and avoid the complications the article mentions. Treated properly, high blood pressure will not lead to early death, stroke, heart disease or kidney damage.

I think what the author of the article you sent me is talking about is undiagnosed high blood pressure. Since that condition most often produces no symptoms in its early stages, the only way to recognize it is to have the blood pressure elevated. If it is high, treatment can be started before any damage is done.

I suppose this is an illness where it would be best if it made people feel sick from the start. Then it could be treated promptly at a time when it would respond more readily. The fact that it doesn't provide sufficient warnings is a good argument for regular checkups.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I understand that special care should be taken in keeping the soft contact lenses clean. Can you comment?—H.A.

You are correct. The reason is that soft contacts are made of a kind of plastic that absorbs water more readily. This can cause accumulation of debris that can serve as an incubator for germs. Thus, manufacturers advise routine daily cleaning to minimize the threat of eye infection.

You can check with your eye doctor, who can advise the best method of disinfection. Of course, all contacts, whether soft or hard, have to be kept clean. It is just that the potential for infection is somewhat higher in the soft types.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have found a way to beat the polluted water problem when dining out in places where water supply is suspect. I used it when abroad in a country where the water is notoriously bad. I used a small medicine bottle filled with water purifier, which I take with me. It has a medical dropper in it. I just put a drop or two in my glass of water. I had no problems. Gret!

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)." Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: As long as I can remember, my father always told me I would never amount to anything. Now that I am an adult I find this hanging over me, and I have no confidence in myself. Do you think God understands this?—T.G.

DEAR T. G.: Yes, God understands your feelings of insecurity. The Bible tells us, "As a father has compassion on his children, so the Lord has compassion on those who fear him; for he knows how we are formed, he remembers that we are dust" (Psalm 103:13, 14). These verses show us that God is very much aware of how fragile we can be, both emotionally and psychologically, as well as physically. God understands your situation and has the power to change it.

Ask God to help you forgive your father. He was wrong in saying what he did, but he needs your forgiveness. And you need to be freed from harboring poisonous feelings of resentment, which will only hinder you from becoming the person God wants you to be. Realize that God has plans for your future, regardless of your past. "For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future" (Jeremiah 29:1). You were born with God-given talents and abilities which he can develop and use for his glory.

Regardless of your own personal insecurities, you must realize that you have a great God who can do great things through you. Sometimes those who feel the most insecure are those who have the greatest capacity to trust God and to experience his power working through their lives. Such was the case with Joshua, Moses' successor, to whom God gave the following promise: "Have I not commanded you? Be strong and courageous. Do not be terrified, do not be discouraged, for the Lord your God will be with you wherever you go" (Joshua 1:9). You too may be assured of God's presence and his power as you seek to live your life for him.

Diplomats worried

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's lame-duck decision to resume military aid to the junta in El Salvador was apparently based on a mass of intelligence reports that pointed to the Kremlin as the power behind leftist forces in the ravaged little country.

That's why the Reagan administration, which needs no encouragement from Democrats to take a hard anti-Soviet line, will undoubtedly continue aid to the junta.

WHAT WORRIES professional diplomats and intelligence analysts is that the administration's fear of a communist victory in El Salvador may blind it to what they see as an even likelier possibility: That the leftist junta may be overthrown by rightist elements who want a return to the old military-landowner oligarchy.

Allies like Mexico and West Germany, meanwhile, tend to be less fearful of the Salvadoran leftists than of what they regard as a return to the days of U.S. imperialism in Central America.

In the hope of persuading European leaders that U.S. fears of a leftist victory in El Salvador are not just anti-communist hysteria, the State Department is considering the idea of sending a team of intelligence experts to brief Western leaders. As the team's mission is described in a secret document, it would be to "show them evidence in our possession... (to) clarify and support our statements and actions vis-a-vis El Salvador."

In West Germany, the intelligence team "would, of course, hope to make presentation to leadership of the Socialist Party, given their apparent support of the Salvadoran revolutionaries," the document states.

Following the team's visit to Bonn, the intelligence would be made "available" to NATO members and "other select European countries."

Participating in the intelligence roadshow would be representatives of the State Department, the CIA and the Defense Intelligence Agency. What would they have to tell the skeptical foreign leaders? Here is some top-secret information that our intelligence experts have been gathering since last summer. Much of it, sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado, comes from a cache of documents captured from Salvadoran communists.

—With the Kremlin's approval, the Cubans are in charge of smuggling arms to the guerrillas from Eastern Europe and Vietnam.

—The leftist rebels have received several tons of arms from the Soviet bloc, including 57-millimeter rifles and other anti-tank weapons.

—Many of the communist weapons smuggled to the Salvadoran guerrillas came from the stocks that the Americans left behind in Vietnam.

—Despite Soviet attempts to avoid direct complicity, some Russian-made arms are also getting into El Salvador. For example, a shipment of Soviet hand grenades, still in their original crates, was recently captured from the rebels.

—As many as 300 guerrillas at a time are being given military training in Cuba.

—The Palestine Liberation Organization is also providing training to the Salvadoran rebels at PLO bases in Syria and Iraq.

Our experts believe the Soviets' aim in El Salvador is more devious than a straight-out victory for the leftist rebels. What they hope to do is create enough turmoil in Central America to divert U.S. attention from the Russians' activities in Afghanistan and elsewhere—and maybe sucker us into another Vietnam.

THE KREMLIN "WOULD like nothing better" than to see the United States get deeply involved in the Salvadoran conflict, said a diplomatic source.

The growing communist activity in Central America could also threaten Mexico's vast new oil operations in the Gulf of Mexico.

SBA SHENANIGANS: In the final days of the Carter administration, officials at the Small Business Administration made a covert—and improper—attempt to expand a pilot project. Fortunately, the skulduggery was stopped.

But investigators for Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., new chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, have discovered several questionable contracts within the pilot program itself. One in particular was a $7.2 million contract with the Univox-California Co., a Los Angeles electronics manufacturer.

The General Accounting Office reported that the award had been made in March 1979 "despite the fact that this firm had continuously experienced financial difficulties due to questionable financial practices."

In fact, in February 1979, the SBA's district office in Los Angeles had recommended that Univox be barred from certain agency programs. Univox insists the GAO ignored evidence presented in the firm's favor.

WATCH ON WASTE: Government inspectors have found an interesting conflict of interest at the prestigious National Science Foundation: A scientist was awarded a $180,000 research grant and was then hired by NSF on a temporary basis. He was named director of the program that funded his research project. Not surprisingly, the research program was given a $60,000 "extension" once he left the foundation.

Scientists call for rockets, bombs - to guard against asteroid crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spacewatch. Warning that errant asteroids could one day destroy civilization on Earth — just as they may have wiped out dinosaurs — a group of scientists says man should be planning to use rockets and hydrogen bombs to deflect them back into space.

The project would dedicate one large telescope to detect all asteroids and meteors larger than 30 to 60 feet in diameter whose paths cross the Earth's orbit and track them for years in case they wander onto a collision course. The observation could later be expanded to detect smaller objects with a network of telescopes, radars and satellites.

To change a collision course, the council said, a spacecraft carrying a hydrogen bomb would attach itself to the object in space and be exploded by a radio signal from the ground.

There are about 800 asteroids in deep space that could destroy most of life on our planet, and perhaps hundreds of thousands of smaller ones that could demolish a single city or region, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Advisory Council said in a recent report.

The only way to avoid an impending collision would be to detect the possibility far in advance and intercept the approaching body with a hydrogen bomb, the council said.

Such a project could eventually cost billions of dollars, but the council proposed a modest beginning: a few million NASA dollars to start Project

Underground movement

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — An underground movement is afoot to designate the mole as Washington's state animal.

It's not a formal campaign, but backers say there's a groundswell of support for the squint-eyed furball.

The low-key push was launched by staffers in the state House Republican communications office, where some hand-drawn posters have appeared on behalf of the critter. The chief strategists are writer Catherine Rudolph and Laurie Schock, an aide to state Sen. Jack Metcalf.

Some analysts suggest the campaign is an attempt to undermine, or at least spoof, a bill introduced by Rep. Paul Sanders, R-Bellevue. That bill would designate the Roosevelt elk as the state's official animal.

Moles would be easier to handle, its backers argue.

"Moles can be given to visitors and sent to relatives in other states," says Ms. Rudolph. "Can you imagine what it costs to ship an elk to Kansas?"

My chocolate valentine

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The way to a person's heart is through his sweet tooth, at least on Valentine's Day, and candy makers say they've learned something about human nature through their sales.

Candy maker Peter Bolanis says customers up to age 30 buy "the biggest, best, frilliest box they can fit into their budgets."

"The older people are looking for something more subdued," he said Thursday.

A half-pound chocolate "kiss," wrapped in silver foil, is a big seller for the Hershey Chocolate Co., said Terry Freisan, national accounts manager.

"It's tough to beat a 'kiss' for Valentine's Day," he said. Valentine's Day is Saturday.

Heart-shaped boxes filled with M&Ms are a hit among students at Pennsylvania State University, said an employee at the Candy Shop in State College. Another favorite is a greeting card that opens to a five-ounce slab of chocolate.

She said many students buy the traditional boxes, but some prefer chocolate kisses — suggesting only a smooch — because "it's not too committal."

Beats old Brownies

CHICAGO (AP) — Beginning later this month, a million airline passengers will be served a bit of Americana along with their airborne meals.

United Airlines said Thursday it will serve a total of 2 million Girl Scout cookies to passengers from Feb. 22 to March 14. National Girl Scout Week is March 8-14.

Two of the shortbread cookies, bearing the Girl Scout symbol, will be in special packages placed on meal trays on most United flights.

The country's largest commercial air carrier has more than 8,000 flight attendants, many of them former Girl Scouts.

Employees of Levi-Strauss cutback to 25 hours a week

SAN ANGELO — San Angelo employees of Levi-Strauss have gone on a two and one half day work week, effective immediately.

About 310 employees are affected by the cutback to 25 hours a week.

High inventory levels and low bookings for garments brought about the cutback, according to Joe Ramos, manager. Supervisory and office personnel will continue to work a 40-hour week.

TESCO chief credits media for help during power woes

The power supply situation that caused Texas Electric Service Company, along with other electric utilities in north Texas, to request early Wednesday that customers curtail non-essential use of electricity has ended, TESCO President Bill Marquardt said Thursday.

"The problems with fuel supplies and generation have been alleviated, and we now feel we can provide an adequate supply of electricity to meet customers' normal needs," Marquardt said.

"We are extremely grateful for the cooperation of our customers during the emergency situation," he said. "Their response was of considerable help in enabling us to meet load requirements."

Marquardt also expressed appreciation to the news media, which were very effective in getting the message to the public.

"Without the media's help we could not have reached our customers as quickly as we did," he said.

Jailhouse lawyer fights transfer to TDC

DALLAS (AP) — Dan Steven Johnson is familiar with prison whites, prison farms and the ins and outs of the legal system that twice put him behind the walls at Huntsville.

Johnson is articulate and energetic, but most of all he is determined not to return to the Texas Department of Corrections.

The 25-year-old Dallas County jail inmate, awaiting trial on forgery charges, filed suit this week asking U.S. District Judge Robert Hill to enjoin the county from sending county inmates to the TDC.

"I feel if I go down there, I won't come back. I feel like I'll be totally destroyed," said Johnson, who cited a

Dec. 12 ruling by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice that found the overcrowded and understaffed TDC subjected inmates to cruel and unusual punishment.

Johnson has been in the county lockup for 14 months, but after his forgery trial he will be returned to the state to serve out a 38-year sentence for a 1979 armed robbery conviction.

Johnson, who also was convicted of armed robbery in 1971 and heroin possession in 1977, faces the possibility of a life sentence as a habitual criminal if convicted on the forgery charge.

He will not hire a lawyer, he said, because they have already gotten him into enough trouble. And he believes no one knows the situation better than he does.

"TDC is cruel to me," he said. "They sent me to a prison to work in the field and I didn't come back with anything. It would be wrong for Don Byrd and (District Attorney) Henry Wade to send people to a condemned institution."

House won't send Justice a message

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Buck Florence asked the House on Thursday to reject a non-controversial money transfer bill as a "message" to U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

All he got for his trouble was a "red board" — lit up by votes against his motion — and a few hoots of "Way to go, Buck."

The bill, passed 128-8 and sent to Gov. Bill Clements, allows the Texas Department of Mental Retardation to spend money on programs for retarded juvenile delinquents at institutions other than Rusk State Hospital.

Justice recently ordered the department to move 14 juveniles from Rusk to the Fort Worth State School, but the current state budget allows expenditures on the juvenile program only at Rusk.

Florence tried to talk the House into tabling the bill.

"I for one as a member of the Legislature am sick and tired of the judiciary of the federal government usurping rights of this Legislature and legislatures of all the states," said Florence, D-Hughes Springs.

Justice recently ordered bilingual education for all public school students who need it and also found the Texas prison system violates the U.S. Constitution in several respects.

"I just resent the dickens out of having to follow the edicts of a federal court," said Florence, a lawyer.

"Let's send a small message to the federal judiciary that we want to be legislators," he said.

Florence said he also objected to the cost of treatment for the retarded delinquents, which he pegged at $100 a day for each of them.

His motion to table the bill failed, 11-122.

"Would it be out of order to recommend Mr. Florence for the Emmett Whitehead award for humanitarian efforts?" asked Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio.

Whitehead, defeated for re-election last year, spent much of his legislative career attacking Justice for his decisions. His attempt to locate a halfway house for juvenile delinquents next door to Justice's home in Tyler was a legislative perennial.

Dallas County officials also are determined — determined to fight the suit that could prevent the transfer of more than 100 county inmates a month to the TDC.

If the county were prevented from disposing of the prisoners, said Sheriff Don Byrd, "it wouldn't take any time at all until we wouldn't have any place to put them."

Johnson said Justice already decided that TDC is a condemned institution, and that he is willing to fight it armed with his knowledge of the law, a knowledge acquired during his stints at the state prison.

If the court decides not to send county inmates to the state prison, it would force the people of Texas to recognize the jail problems not only at the state level, but in their own communities, Johnson said.

No reply by the county has been filed yet to Johnson's suit, but the challenge will be met head-on, County Judge Garry Weber said.

"We couldn't handle that (not sending county prisoners to the state)," Weber said. "It would completely overload the system. Of course we'll fight it."

Local recycling center pays $11,645 for cans

An aluminum can recycling center operated by Permian Distributing, Inc. (Coors Distributor) collected 1,124,010 million used aluminum containers during America's "America, Let Turn it Around" recycling campaign ending Oct. 31.

Larry Stewart, president of Permian Distributing, Inc., said the recycling center at IS 20 West - Coors Service Center collected 48,870 pounds of aluminum cans during the six-week campaign and paid more than $11,645.00 to can collectors, money that goes back into the Big Spring economy.

"Aluminum can recycling is an investment in the future," Stewart said. "It's one way everyone can help fight litter, save energy, conserve raw materials, and earn extra money for themselves or their organization at the same time. Recycling aluminum cans makes everyone a winner. We think the 'America' recycling campaign was an effective way of telling the recycling story and increasing the number of can collectors in the Big Spring area."

Permian Distributing, Inc. pays 26 cents per pound for aluminum cans Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Knocking HC out of share of WJC lead

NMMI stuns Hawks

ROSWELL — Anything can happen in the world of sports, and the Howard College Hawks and the NMMI Cadets proved that once again Thursday night in a Western Conference game.

The Hawks entered the game tied with Midland College for the lead in the WJC, while NMMI had a firm hold on the cellar. But in the end, it was the lowly NMMI team that scored an 86-80 decision over the Howard College crew.

"From the beginning, we were a step slow," said a disgruntled HC Coach Harold Wilder. "But they were too, in the first half."

The Hawks, despite some lackadaisical play, held the lead for most of the first half, only to see NMMI come back in the closing seconds for a 37-36 halftime margin.

But the Hawks took the second half tip and again took the lead. It would be their last.

"After we took the lead in the second half, we continued to look just as terrible as we did in the first half. The only difference," Wilder noted, "was that NMMI got hot."

This hot streak propelled the NMMI team to a sizeable advantage, as much as 76-60 with seven minutes remaining.

Howard made a couple of runs at NMMI, but it was simply too little too late. On two occasions, the Hawks narrowed the NMMI lead to seven points, only to see the hosts take the lead back into the double figures in their noisy gym.

Howard finally scored eight points in the final minute to get close, but time expired.

The game left Wilder both unhappy and confused. "I've tried to figure it out," he said this morning after sleeping on it. "We didn't look like we were into it mentally. We

Steers host Mojo

Two teams hoping to retain a slim shot at the District 5-AAAAA title will battle here tonight when the Big Spring Steers play host to the Odessa Permian Panthers at eight o'clock.

Both teams come into the second half encounter with records of 1-1, and another loss will no doubt eliminate them from any title hopes that they now have.

And even with a win, at this stage of the season it doesn't seem likely that either has a chance at winning the 5-AAAAA title. Midland High won the first half outright, and both Permian and Big Spring suffered their second half losses to Midland.

The two teams are no strangers having met in the first half, with Permian rolling to a 20-point win on their home court.

But Big Spring Coach Ed Haller hopes that his team is playing better in this half, as they'll have to be to defeat the taller Permian team.

Both have had similar results in this half, however. Big Spring defeated Abilene by six points, while Permian took a two-point decision. The Steers lost by 24 points to Midland, while Permian played the Bulldogs a little tougher before falling by 16 points.

didn't look sharp on anything we did," he continued. "It was just too late."

Maybe the Hawks, who now are tied with Frank Phillips for second place, were looking ahead to Monday night's showdown in Big Spring with Midland College.

"I don't know," Wilder said when asked if that had any influence. "Maybe it's a combination of things. One thing I do know is that we played lousy."

Fortunately, the loss doesn't knock the HC crew out of the conference race. A win over Midland would tie things back up and put them into the driver's seat, as Midland and Frank Phillips play next Thursday.

The loss overshadowed another fine scoring performance from HC freshman Randy Corker, who copped 36 points. Twenty-three of his points came in the first half, when he was nearly the entire HC offense.

NMMI had a more balanced attack, and it paid off. Five performers hit in double figures, with Kevin Gale getting 19 and Porter Catrell 18.

Hawk Queens host talented Amarillo Saturday in battle of nationally ranked juco powers

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

"I don't think we've ever played a game this important against a team as good as Amarillo," Howard College Hawk Queens Coach Don Stevens said this morning. "They will be the best team that we have faced all year."

The Hawk Queens and Amarillo are both rated in the NJCAA Top 20, with Howard rated 17th and Amarillo 16th. That in itself should provide local fans with more interest than usual.

And if that's not enough, consider the outstanding matchup featuring Howard's Kelly Lyons and Amarillo's Olivia Jones. Both are returning All-Western Conference performers, with Jones making All-American last year.

Both of the tall young ladies are expected to be All-Americans this year. Lyons is 6'3", while Jones is 6'1". Jones, known around the juco circles as "OJ," is the leading scorer and rebounder in the WJC, while Lyons is just behind in both statistical categories.

But Jones is not the entire Amarillo team, as Stevens explained. "Amarillo has five players over six feet tall, with four more standing at 5'10". Their coach, Kelly Chadwick, told me that they've been getting out-rebounded lately, but that's hard to believe."

Stevens admitted that he is concerned how his Hawk Queens team, who have maintained their national ranking despite the fact that they have only two veterans in Lyons and Jill Floyd, will contain the Amarillo height. He will start both Lyons and Floyd, along with Melissa Luna, Cynthia Robinson and Carrie Lee Lutrick in the important WJC battle that will have a big impact on the standings.

"I'm starting Luna for obvious reasons," he said in reference to her 6'2" height. "I've also experimented with a three-post offense to combat Amarillo's size, with Cindy Bell (6'2") coming in at that point."

But the Amarillo team, which is the only team to defeat the top ranked NJCAA team, (Northern Oklahoma), is more than tall. They are also very quick.

"I expect them to press," Stevens said, "especially after the way we played at the end of the Western Texas game against their press."

"But I don't think we'll start the game by pressing," Stevens continued. "I haven't seen them play, and I would hate to put us into something and get burned for two or three easy buckets early that could make a big difference at the end."

Excellent first half boosts Hawk Queens

BROWNWOOD — The Howard College Hawk Queens flexed their nationally ranked juco muscles for senior college Howard Payne University here Thursday night, scoring an easy 66-48 triumph.

The contest was actually not as close as the final 18-point margin would indicate. The Hawk Queens played excellent basketball in the early going, running to a 25-6 advantage.

From that point, the Queens stretched their margin to 40-15 at the intermission, and simply cruised after that.

"We played just an excellent game, probably the best that we've played all year," said a pleased Coach Don Stevens.

The Hawk Queens shot a torrid 56 percent from the field in the first half to take their sizeable lead, and Stevens let everyone play for extended periods throughout the non-conference battle.

Stevens no doubt is hoping for another excellent performance from his team tomorrow night, when they play host to the Amarillo College Lady Badgers in an important Western Conference lead.

With all 11 players scoring for the Hawk Queens, it was Kelly Lyons 16 point performance that was the spark. Carol Wasserman added nine points.

Camie Scott and Renee Scott paced the Howard Payne women with 17 and 16 points, respectively.

Tomorrow night's Hawk Queen contest against Amarillo College has a 7:30 p.m. tipoff, and a large crowd of area high schools and college recruiters are expected to witness the struggle, which should be a classic.

HOWARD COLLEGE (66)—Westbrook 20, 4; White 3, 6; Floyd 4, 0, 8; Wasserman 4, 9; Lutrick 1, 0, 2; Lyons 8, 0, 16; Luna 2, 2, 6; Hill 2, 1, 5; Robinson 2, 0, 4; Mull 1, 0, 2; Bell 2, 0, 4. TOTALS 31, 4, 66.

HOWARD PAYNE (48)—Mackey 3, 2, 8; R. Scott 8, 16; Capos 1, 0, 2; C. Scott 5. TOTALS 22, 4, 48.

"I'll just have to coach from the bench at the start and see how they're playing," he concluded of his strategy.

The contest, which is rich in juco women's talent, is supposedly attracting major college scouts from far and wide.

"Coaches from UT, Arkansas, Tech, Baylor, Oregon State, Stephen F. Austin, the University of Houston, Kansas State and many other places have called to say that they'll be here," Stevens explained. "Whether they will all show up may be a different story, but I'm sure the game will be good for both of our programs."

Stevens also explained that most of the major college scouts will be looking at Lyons and Jones, although other performers from both schools will likely get looks. Of those, the most probable is Amarillo's Jessica Wiley, a six-footer who can do everything. She is ranked in the WJC Top 10 in scoring, rebounding, steals, blocked shots and assists. In other words, she does it all.

Stevens and HC Information Director have invited 41 area girls' high school coaches and their respective teams to witness the best of women's juco basketball, and Stevens is hoping for more than that.

"We really need a big crowd for this game," he said. "Amarillo is as tough a women's junior college team that is supposed to be around, and we need to win this one badly. It's called bring a friend night. Everyone that normally comes should bring a friend for a little extra support for the Hawk Queens."

Runnels girls end successful year with win

The Runnels White team ended their girls basketball season Thursday evening with a 22-14 win over Lamesa.

Teresa Smith was the leader of the Runnels attack, pouring in 14 points. Runnels White ended with a 9-5 record.

The Runnels Red team ended their season last week with a 5-5 mark.

"We were pleased with the progress the kids made on both teams this year," said Coach Barbara Fletcher.

"They are working hard to pick up the program here, and made great strides this year."

Says he tripled drug usage after Cowboys fired him

Hollywood Henderson admits troubles, admits self to hospital

DALLAS (AP) — Thomas Henderson's failure to make it in professional football was due, in large part, to a $1,000-a-day cocaine habit which he is now trying to cure in an out-of-state hospital, the Dallas Times Herald reported in a copyright story today.

"Drugs have been a major contribution to my downfall," the former Dallas Cowboys linebacker told the newspaper after checking into the hospital's drug rehabilitation program under an assumed name.

Henderson, who gave himself the nickname "Hollywood" during his rookie year with the Cowboys, told Times Herald staff writer Frank Luksa he had been using narcotics in one form or another for the past 14 years, and since 1975 had begun to use a half-ounce of cocaine a day.

"I found myself past the point of doing drugs. Drugs were doing me," he told the newspaper. A Dallas narcotics officer contacted by the newspaper said buying that much cocaine on the streets here would cost about $1,250 a day and Henderson acknowledged his habit was costing a staggering amount of money.

"Drugs almost forced me into bankruptcy," he said.

In the past 15 months, Henderson was kicked off the Cowboys, waived by the San Francisco 49ers and rejected by the Houston Oilers who failed to offer him a new contract.

His marriage has broken up, he was a defendant in two lawsuits and his north Dallas home, now vacant, is for sale, Henderson said.

"Drugs just got me. When a person realizes he has a problem — well, it's like if your arm stinks. You offend yourself first. I was doing it but I hated myself. I was beginning to be two people — the straight Thomas and the high Hollywood."

He told the newspaper he decided to seek professional help last month, the Monday after Super Bowl XV, and called Charles Jackson, assistant director of security for the National Football League.

That led to arrangements for his hospital commitment 10 days ago, and he could spend his 28th birthday — March 1 — still in the facility, he said.

"I decided whatever the cost or risk I would put myself in a drug rehabilitation program," he said. "I'm trying to be bigger than this."

"I'd like to ask people to pray for me. I need their prayers. I'm in a bad way but I'm hanging in there."

Henderson said his drug use tripled after Cowboy coach Tom Landry kicked him off the team because he was not contributing and was a disruptive influence.

"The fact is I didn't like myself after I got fired by Dallas," Henderson told the newspaper. "The strongest effect (dismissal from) the Cowboys had on me was to triple my drug usage."

"Drugs became my downfall. I lost friends, family and career. After I was fired from Dallas I intensified to free-basing coke (mixing cocaine with ether). I graduated from snorting (sniffing cocaine up the nose).

Henderson's dismissal from the Cowboys was not drug-related, team officials said, but Henderson said he is convinced drugs brought about his departure from the 49ers and the Oilers.

He said San Francisco coach Bill Walsh waived him because he suspected the drug problem.

"I think Walsh did know. Somebody started playing Kojak and he began to look at me all the time."

Then, in Houston, Henderson got into a fight with teammate Mike Stensrud.

"I was coming down from drugs and he called me a 'dog.' I told him not to again, he did and I hit him."

Luksa asked if the fight would have occurred had Henderson not been using drugs.

"Absolutely not," Henderson replied. "The guy is 6-7, 310 pounds. I'd been scared. I must have been loaded."

Under NFL rules, Henderson is a free agent eligible to sign with any team except Dallas, Houston or San Francisco, but said he had not decided whether he would try to play football in the fall.

"It'll be a struggle for me. I won't give up. I think I can play. I would like to play straight one year," he said.

"Either my career is over, or it's just beginning."

For recent losses

Despite illness, Borg won't make excuses

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — In a contest of backcourt specialists, the world's No. 1 tennis player, Bjorn Borg, takes on Guillermo Vilas today in the first match of the $300,000 Pepsi Grand Slam.

The last meeting between the two was the Nation's Cup matches in Germany last May when Vilas won in three sets. Vilas said he was playing above his game and that Borg was "not playing very well."

Today, the two meet on clay at Boca West. Vilas has had two weeks of competition on clay, winning a tournament last week in his native Argentina. But he doesn't consider that an edge over Borg, who matured on clay in Europe.

"It takes a little while to get adjusted to clay when you don't play on it for a while," Borg said Thursday. "I will have to be very patient against Vilas. He knows my game very well."

Borg, who owns a lifetime 17-5 margin over Vilas, says his three losses since the start of the year are nothing to be concerned about.

"It's no slump if you lose once or twice," the 24-year-old Swede said as he lounged through preparations for the Grand Slam. "You have to lose once in a while. You're playing against good guys every week."

Borg, who has won the Grand Slam the past four years, was beaten by Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe last week in Toronto after losing to Gene Mayer in the Master's at New York a month ago. Last Sunday he defaulted to Connors because of the flu.

"I feel all right now," Borg insisted. But his coach, Lennert Bergelin, said: "Bjorn was in bed six days after the Master's last month because of the flu. He has been weak and he still has a little bit of it. But no excuses, if he plays, he plays without excuses."

The Borg-Vilas match opens the four-man format. The second semi-final is scheduled Saturday, in which McEnroe will face unheralded Brian Tichenor. The final and third-place consolation matches are on Sunday. The winner gets $150,000, the runner-up wins $75,000, third place receives $45,000 and the loser of both matches takes home $30,000.

Selection of the four players is based on performances in 1980. Winners of Wimbledon, the U.S. Open, the French Open, the Australian Open, the Master's, last year's Pepsi Grand Slam, the Italian Open and the "World Championship Tennis title qualify in that order, according to tournament director Ray Benton.

Teacher won the Australian Open, Vilas won the U.S. Open and Connors, who is not included, won the WCT. Borg won all the others.

With CBS-TV hoping for a Borg-McEnroe final for a national telecast on Sunday, Vilas and Teacher stand in as possible spoilers.

Hawaiian leaders reactions differ

HONOLULU (AP) — Bruce Lietzke shot 66, was tied for the first round lead in the Hawaiian Open and was just as pleased as could be.

Tom Watson shot 66, was tied for the first round lead in the Hawaiian Open and wasn't pleased at all.

"It's pretty incredible, but it's fun," Lietzke said Thursday after running his string of consecutive rounds at par or better to 15.

"I'm just going to continue to keep on playing and see how long I can run this streak."

And, while Watson had the same score, his reaction was the other side of the coin.

"I played like a clown," said the man who has led the PGA Tour in money winnings and been named Golf's Player of the Year for the past four seasons.

Two of baseball's best catchers are on the receiving end of some good news.

Carlton Fisk won his fight for free agency with the Boston Red Sox and Rick Cerone won his salary arbitration with the New York Yankees Thursday.

The results mean more money for both.

After the ruling by arbitrator Ray Goetz, the Red Sox promised "an all-out effort" in trying to re-sign their veteran backstop, a longtime favorite in Boston.

"We will make an effort, that's the bottom line," said Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan. "I think we've still got a pretty good chance to sign him...he wants to stay here and we want him here. Hopefully, we'll get together very soon."

The 33-year-old Fisk would have become a 10-year veteran with the Red Sox during the 1981 season. However, he sought free agency after the Red Sox

Pressure or not, Silas delivers

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Everyone in HemisFair Arena, including the Atlanta Hawks, was expecting the San Antonio Spurs to go to James Silas for the winning shot.

Two Hawks jumped in Silas' face at the critical moment, but with seven seconds left he connected on a 15-footer anyway and the Spurs won a 110-109 squeaker that kept alive a 16-game homecourt victory streak.

"The key shot of the game was Silas," said Hawks guard John Drew, one of two defenders unable to stop the Spurs' captain. "We were all over him and he still put it in. We played a great game tonight. What made the difference was Silas' last shot."

Referees Ed Middleton and Bruce Alexander were not bashful with their whistles throughout most of the physical encounter, sending players to the line for 84 foul shots. Atlanta hit 12 straight during one stretch of the third quarter to keep within striking distance.

Sonics 112, Trail Blazers 109

Reserve center James Donaldson's four free throws late in the final period put Seattle ahead for good as the SuperSonics rallied to defeat Portland.

The Trail Blazers out-scored Seattle 15-6 in the last three minutes of the third period to take a seven-point lead at 86-79. But the Sonics, led by Jack Sikma and James Bailey, rallied midway through the fourth period and regained the lead on the four Donaldson free throws.

The clinching points for the Sonics also came at the free-throw line, as Vinnie Johnson hit two with 1:12 left to give Seattle a 112-107 lead.

Knicks 122, Cavaliers 111

Ray Williams scored 24 points and Campy Russell added 20 to pace New York to its sixth straight victory. The Knicks led the Cavaliers throughout, building a 39-29 lead after one quarter and expanding it to 70-57 at halftime.

Unbeaten Oregon State heading for NCAA record

By The Associated Press

Coach Ralph Miller believes his undefeated Oregon State Beavers have reached a peak, and they appear well on their way to becoming the most efficient scoring machine ever in college basketball.

The Beavers hit 72 percent from the floor, including nine of their first 10 shots, Thursday night to beat Oregon 78-61.

It was Oregon State's seventh 60 percent-plus game this season, and the Beavers now are shooting nearly 58 percent as a team. The season field goal percentage record is 57.2 by Missouri, set last year.

In addition, 6-foot-10 1/2

senior Steve Johnson is taking aim at a pair of individual marks. Johnson, who paced the Beavers with 20 points against cross-state rival Oregon, is hitting field goals at a rate of more than 76 percent, five points better than his NCAA record of 71 percent set last season. And he currently has a 67.2 career percentage pace that threatens to beat Bill Walton's record of 65.1.

The victory gave Oregon State a 20-0 record, 12-0 in the Pacific-10 Conference.

The Beavers hit nine of their first 13 shots of the second half to lead 53-36 with 14 minutes to play. Felton Sealey topped Oregon with 12 points.

Beavers guard Murk Radford, who added 13 points, was wondering when the skeptics would be silent.

In other games involving Top 10 teams, fifth-ranked Arizona State downed Southern Cal 77-61, sixth-ranked Utah beat San Diego State 62-53 and eight-rated UCLA defeated Arizona 90-79.

Elsewhere, it was Ohio State 105, No. 13 Michigan 87, No. 14 Iowa 60, Minnesota 58 in overtime; No. 16 Wichita State 87, Bradley 65; No. 17 Illinois 84, Wisconsin 65; South Florida 70, No. 18 South Alabama 52; No. 19 Maryland 72, Clemson 70, and No. 20 Indiana 86, Northwestern 52.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGGER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 14, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to consider how you can place yourself more in tune with up-to-date methods that could help you advance in career matters. Take positive steps to gain your aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look over your environment and make plans for improvement. Make contacts that will improve your social life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure not to disturb anyone who has power over your affairs or you could regret it later. Safeguard your reputation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be sure you first investigate thoroughly any new project you want to engage in. Spend your money wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Some family members may not agree with your views now, so try to understand theirs better.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to look over your business records and make sure everything is in proper order. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take added steps to improve your environment. Show more interest in civic affairs and gain added respect.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make long-range plans that could give you added income in the days ahead. Plan how to gain your most cherished aims.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show appreciation to those who have done you favors in the past. Be sure to keep promises made to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are filled with new ideas but you have to study them better before you put them in operation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not a good day for serious talks with allies, since they are busy with other things. Be more willing to cooperate with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't try to force your ideas on others and avoid getting unexpected rebuffs. Express happiness with congenials.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make plans to have more favorable conditions around you in the days ahead. The evening is fine for social activities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can understand both sides of a problem and intuitively will know how best to solve it. The field of law is particularly good in this chart. Give spiritual and ethical training early in life.

Looking DOWN at the MOUTH, lately?

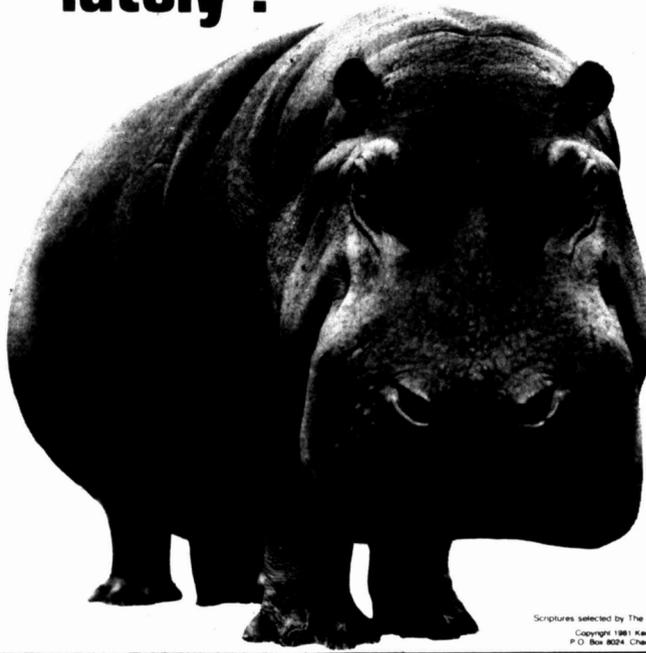

There is a very sound reason for this fellow to look down at the mouth. He's a hippopotamus — and that's exactly how a hippo is supposed to look.

But what accounts for people looking down-at-the-mouth sometimes?

It's usually because they aren't satisfied with being what they are. They wish life could have given them a different break. If only circumstances hadn't conspired...

That's no reason at all for looking hippo-like. Man has resources that can overcome his discontent. He has spiritual potential that can alter his life, make him a different person, conquer every conspiracy of circumstance.

Now is an ideal time to start looking up-from-the-heart. At church you'll experience a different approach to life. The cheerfulness that can brighten life flourishes on faith.

Festival features J.R. Watson

First United Methodist Church will begin their Second Faith Promise Mission Festival, today at 6:30 p.m. with a Church dinner in Garrett Hall. The Conference will continue through Saturday and end with a giant Church dinner following the Sunday Worship Service, Sunday.

Bishop and Mrs. McFerrin Stowe, former Episcopal leader of the Dallas area and former minister of St. Luke's Methodist Church in Oklahoma City, Okla., will be the keynote speaker.

The Rev. and Mrs. Raymond Burke, parsonage family of the Four Corner Indian Church in Hatch, Utah, built by First United Methodist Church in July 1980, will share their testimony.

Dale Robinson from McCurdy Indian School in Espanola, N.M. will share their work with the Adult Sunday School classes.

Elizabeth Johannaber, former Missionary to the Orient, will speak to the Church women on Saturday, young people on Sunday and share with the entire church group on Saturday evening.

Today, special guests will include Tom Russell and three students from the Navajo Indian School in Farmington, N.M., and the Rev. Raul S. Quintanilla from San Antonio.

This year's theme is "MISSION: YOUR HEART IN THE WORLD".

Throughout all sessions, Johnny Ray Watson will lead the groups in singing and present special music.

Watson, singer-writer-composer, is an exciting individual with an important message for our world today, motivated by the touch of Jesus Christ in his life.

Besides his musical talents, Watson enjoyed much success in high school and college on the basketball court. John 6:8, was named to All District, All Area and All State teams in high school and was leading rebounder, leading scorer and most valuable player at McMurry College in 1970-71.

Jesus Christ filled the void in Johnny Ray Watson's life in December of 1972, and since that time Johnny has traveled across the country and soon across the world singing and sharing in churches, auditoriums, military bases, high schools, and colleges. He has appeared in numerous concerts, with Andrae Crouch and the Disciples.

PUPPETEER — Stan Feaster shows off two of his puppets, Tyrone and Corky, who make up part of puppet show that he plans to present in the Howard County area to interested people. Feaster can be contacted through the Hillcrest Baptist Church.

Young puppeteer offers his services to county

Stan Feaster, who returned from a training tour with Puppet Productions, Inc., of San Diego in June, said he plans to give puppet performances "for any circumstances," in the Howard County area.

Feaster was one of three men assigned to a training team which toured 40 states during March through June of 1980. The team, sponsored by Puppet Productions, Inc., toured the U.S. doing seminars for churches.

Feaster said he would like to continue working with the puppets, which he views as a ministry through which he can convey the word of God.

Feaster also plans to take his puppets into schools, or private parties for children. He said "there is a message in every performance."

Feaster toured during 1980 with Ron Stone of Kentucky, and Tim Sloane, of San Diego. "It was really an experience."

The three were employed by Puppet Productions. Feaster explained that his interest in puppets began in 1979. He said he attended a seminar on puppetry in San Angelo at that time, and

REV. AND MRS. DAVID DILLON

Dillons minister here at Evangel Temple Assembly

A miracle crusade will be conducted at the Evangel Temple Assembly of God Church with David and Linda Dillon as evangelists. Services will begin at 7 p.m. on Feb. 18, and will continue through Feb. 22.

There will be singing each night by the Dillons, as well as prayer for the sick and a message from the Word of God. Many lives have been helped and scores have testified to healing whose testimonies were later confirmed clinically.

The Rev. Dillon is a graduate of Central Bible College in Springfield, Mo. He has been preaching evangelistic meetings for

Carpenter to speak on Brazil

The annual mission speaker at First Presbyterian Church will be Marj Carpenter, director of the Presbyterian News Service Sunday at 7 p.m. Each year, usually in February, the Presbyterians hear a speaker who represent the world-wide mission endeavor of the Presbyterian church. Traditionally, that person is a missionary. This year, however, a unique opportunity came following Marj Carpenter's tour of Presbyterian missions in Brazil.

She will speak on the state of the church in Brazil, with particular emphasis on the persons there who continue to work under the sponsorship of the Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. These missionaries, in Brazil and throughout the world, are increasingly seen as paternal workers within a growing and strengthening national church.

The guest speaker is no stranger to Big Spring, having moved from here to her present assignment only two years ago. She was on the editorial staff of the Big Spring Herald and was honored in 1979 as Big Spring's "Woman of the Year."

She served as a teacher in the church school and an elder in the First Presbyterian Church.

The Sunday evening program will begin at 6 p.m. with a covered-dish supper in the Fellowship Hall. The speaker will be heard at 7 p.m. in the chapel on the floor above Fellowship Hall.

La Grange will host conference

Rev. Carrol C. Kohl, St. Paul Lutheran Church, will attend a Counselor's Conference in La Grange Feb. 17, 18 and 19. Rev. Kohl is Circuit Counselor for the Permian Basin Area. One pastor from each geographical area will be attending the conference.

Camp Lone Star in La Grange will be the setting for the conference, complete with meeting places and dormitories. Pastors in Texas of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, decided to meet at Camp Lone Star because it is owned by the church and is centrally located for all pastors in the Texas district.

Marriage does not have to be the process that changes a sweetheart into a sweet tart. Even the tradition of sending love notes on Valentine's Day had its origin, not with courting singles, but when a French husband, Charles, Duc d'Orleans, sent his wife a love note while a prisoner in the Tower of London in 1415.
Join us for worship Sunday morning when we shall reflect upon the subject, "How to Remain Sweethearts, though Married!"

NASHVILLE (AP) — The Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission is launching a stepped up, four-year campaign to combat immorality on television.

I've got the credit union with me. I use it everyday.

This is from my credit union. It's called a Share Draft Account... It's a great leap beyond ordinary checking!

First, I don't pay for it... it actually pays me! No more monthly service charges, no on-going transaction fees. They don't even require a minimum monthly balance.

But — I do earn dividends, just like I get on my regular credit union shares.

There's also a direct deposit feature which lets me send my paycheck straight to the credit union... and automatic carbonless copies of every draft I write... regular monthly statements that detail all my share draft activity... and a special overdraft privilege — just the kind of backup the credit union is famous for.

Share Draft Accounts are easy to open. You sign some papers, tell them how you want your drafts printed... that's it. From then on, you're handling all your financial business the credit union way — every single day!

Lance suits Broadcasters honored by Southern Baptists dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Finding no evidence of wrongdoing, a federal judge has dismissed a lawsuit that accused 13 people including former Budget Director Bert Lance of committing fraud while trying to get control of a Washington banking firm.

The suit, filed by stockholders of Financial General Bankshares Inc., had helped prevent the purchase of controlling interest in the corporation by Middle Eastern investors.

The group, with the aid of Lance, was buying stock from major shareholders at a price of $15 per share, or several dollars per share above the market price.

The suit was dismissed Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Two West Coast broadcasters took top awards in the 12th National Abe Lincoln award competition here Thursday, sponsored by Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission.

A statue of Lincoln was awarded to Seattle television executive Emory Bundy for television. George Nicholas of Los Angeles took the award for radio. Both men were cited for outstanding public service in their cities.

Bundy is director of public affairs for KING-TV. Nicholas is vice president and general manager of KNX-FM.

The highest award of the radio and television agency, the Distinguished Communications Medal, was given to Robert E. Lee, acting chairman and senior member of the Federal Communications Commission.

Bundy and Nicholas were selected from eight finalists, all of whom received Merit Awards.

Television Merit Awards went to Jack Bowen, news anchorman for KOCO-TV in Oklahoma City; Walt Elder Jr., public affairs manager for WSB-TV in Atlanta; and R. Kent Replogle, vice president and general manager of KMBC-TV in Kansas City, Mo. Radio Merit Award winners from Frank J. Oxarat, vice president and general manager of KFVB-AM in Los Angeles; Ray Watson, general manager of KXL-AM; Portland, Ore.; and Fred Williams, director of public affairs for WAHT-FM in Lebanon, Penn.

A Cleburne radio station executive, John Fletcher, received one of four Certificates of Excellence honoring broadcasters.

Murdoch to buy London Times today

LONDON (AP) — Press tycoon Rupert Murdoch signs the papers today to buy two of the world's most prestigious newspapers, The Times of London and The Sunday Times, after winning union agreement to the abolition of more than 600 jobs and the introduction of computerized printing.

The Times saluted its new owner, a 49-year-old Australian, as "the most powerful figure" in Fleet Street, the hub of Britain's newspaper industry. He already owns the country's biggest daily paper, the tabloid Sun, and its biggest Sunday paper, the News of the World.

Murdoch, who also owns the New York Post and a string of Australian papers, announced Thursday night that he was going ahead with the purchase of the papers and three weekly supplements from Lord Thomson of Fleet, the Canadian press magnate whose father bought them in 1966. Thomson put them up for sale last October after years of union wrangles and heavy financial losses.

The price, believed to be about $35 million, was to be announced today after the sale was completed. The papers' losses are expected to total more than $46 million in the current fiscal year, with most of that lost by the Daily Times.

Reagan still hopes to see balanced budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he still hopes to fulfill a campaign pledge to balance the budget in 1983 even though White House economists are conceding privately it is unlikely the federal deficit can be erased before 1984.

"We're taking a shot at 1983, we hope," Reagan told reporters as he left a private dinner Thursday night. "If we try for '83, we're sure to get it by '84."

Earlier Thursday, in a possible preview of how the administration would explain backing down on Reagan's bullish budget forecast, White House press secretary James S. Brady said the "economy inheritance" from former President Carter was "much worse than anyone thought it would be."

Several sources, who asked not to be identified, said officials now are indicating that 1984 is probably the earliest the budget can be balanced.

One congressional aide briefed by the administration said of a balanced budget in 1983: "I don't think that's realistic at this time."

The administration's latest thinking on wiping out the federal deficit emerged as Reagan continued a series of meetings with Cabinet officials to discuss budget cuts he will propose next week.

The president is expected to propose spending cuts of about $10 billion to $15 billion for the current year and deeper cuts of up to $50 billion for the 1982 fiscal year.
