AFTER THE EXECUTION — The body of murderer Steven Judy is taken from the Indiana State Prison early this morning following his execution. (AP LASERPHOTO)

Convicted murderer Steven Judy executed

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Joking with his guards and blaming himself for his fate, 24-year-old Steven T. Judy went willingly to his death in Indiana's black oak electric chair early today for murdering a mother and her three small children nearly two years ago.

"I don't hold no grudges. This is my doing, sorry it happened," were the last words of the blond, blue-eyed murderer before two powerful surges of electricity wracked his body and he was pronounced dead at 12:12 a.m. CST.

"He was very relaxed. I don't think it hurt," said his foster father, Robert R. Carr. "When it hit him, he flinched. Then you could see movement in his fingers."

Judy, who resisted appeals, saying he preferred death to life in prison, became the fourth person executed in this country since the U.S. Supreme Court revived the death penalty in 1976. His was the first execution in 20 years in Indiana's electric chair, made from wood that once served as a gallows.

Department of Corrections spokesman Tom Hanlon said Judy was "very calm" and walked the six paces from his holding cell to the chair "very quietly" and unassisted just after midnight.

Carr said that before Judy was taken to the chair, he had received a final phone call from a girl in Texas named "Jeanne." He then asked for "photos of his new haircut" where he had been shaved to make room for an electrode, which was soaked in salt brine to make it more conductive. "They sent for a photographer and took the pictures he wanted," Carr added.

Attorney Steven L. Harris, who witnessed the execution from behind a glass partition along with Carr and state officials, said that as Judy walked to the chair, he pointed to where his trousers had been cut so another electrode could be attached to his leg, and quipped: "I'm going to send the state of Indiana a bill for $15."

Just before he was strapped into the chair and blindfolded, Hanlon said, Judy took off his wristwatch and asked that it be given to a fellow death row inmate who was his closest friend.

Then Judy was strapped in, the guards backed away, "there was a pause for about 10 seconds, and he was electrocuted," Harris said.

Hanlon said two surges of electricity were sent through Judy's body — first a charge of 2,300 volts for 10 seconds, then a charge of 500 volts for 20 seconds.

State law calls for Warden Jack Duckworth to pull the switch that triggers the lethal current, but Hanlon refused to confirm who had done it. Reporters, in accordance with Indiana law, were kept far from the death scene in another part of the prison.

Hanlon said Judy's body was released to the county coroner. Judy's foster mother, Mary Carr, said Judy would be buried Thursday.

Hijackers in Damascus with over 100 hostages

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The hijackers of a Pakistani airliner, after a seven-day standoff in Afghanistan, took the plane and more than 100 hostages to Damascus during the night and renewed their demands for release of imprisoned foes of Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq.

In four hours of negotiations by radio with Pakistani diplomats and Syrian security officers in the Damascus control tower, the hijackers demanded freedom for other members of their anti-Zia group and an end to government propaganda against their organization, airport sources reported.

Freedom was demanded specifically for Nasser Gamal and the family of Salamullah Khan, but no information about them was immediately available.

Pakistani Ambassador Sarfaraz Khan said he would relay the demands to his government. The three hijackers, who on Friday killed one of their hostages, a Pakistani diplomat, set no deadline.

Earlier while still in Afghanistan the hijackers demanded the release of 92 prisoners, and the Pakistani government offered to free 15. But on Sunday it rounded up more than 120 members of the late Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party including Bhutto's widow and daughter.

In Islamabad, a government spokesman said President Zia asked a number of heads of state to intervene in the crisis, citing "the plight of the hostages who have been suffering from physical exhaustion and mental torture now for the eighth day."

The hostages, who include three American men and two other residents of the United States, have not been allowed off the Boeing 720 jet since March 1, when they boarded a Pakistani domestic flight that the hijackers diverted to Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan.

After a week of negotiations and the release of 33 hostages including two American women, the hijackers on Sunday ordered the plane into the air and on to Damascus.

County spends $34,221 on flood control measures, Mims reports

By CAROL HART

A total of $34,221 has been spent thus far by the county to alleviate flooding across county roads in the Knott area, according to Bill Mims, who met with county commissioners in their meeting today.

Buildups of water from rains across county roads have been a problem to residents of the area since September. Two pumps are being run in the area, although they both broke down on Friday. Mims estimated that both would be operational in two or three days.

It costs $600 a day to run the pumps, which are run 24 hours a day.

The Pirkle Lake buildup has gone down about 12 inches since pumping began, said Mims. He estimated that, barring another heavy rain, that it would take from 60 to 90 days to make roads in the area passable.

Commissioner O.L. (Louis) Brown, precinct 1, said "we need to take a good, hard look" at the flooding situation, and examine "another alternative" to the pumping efforts. Commissioners Bill Crocker, precinct 3, asked Mims to compile figures on the cost of raising the road in the area of the flooded lake, and the cost of building another road in the area to avoid extensive pumping.

Mims said he would have estimates that the commissioners requested later today.

Mims also told commissioners that county road crews would move into precinct 4 today to begin needed repairs in that area.

Commissioners agreed to advertise for bids on two pickups and two dump trucks needed by the county road and bridge department.

Raymond Lopez, an apprentice mechanic in the road and bridge department, was given a ten cent an hour raise by the commissioners. Lopez will make $6.87 an hour beginning April 1. He has been with the department for three years.

Commissioners approved a pipeline crossing for the Getty Oil Company during the meeting. The crossing is in Sec. 13, Block 30 T-1 south. A pipeline crossing request for Texaco could not be located by commissioners with the information they had.

A proposal to annex section 19, block 32 T-1 south into the Forsan Independent School District was approved by the commissioners.

Dr. Robert Rember, Col. (retired) Bowden Hampton, and "Slick" Boatler were among representatives of the section in Silver Heels present to request a change from the Big Spring Independent School District to FISD.

The men told commissioners that a petition with 73 signatures had been obtained, and that the proposal had already been discussed with the FISD and the BSISD, and that the annexation had the approval of the FISD.

The section was formerly in the Forsan district until 1961, when a petition to move it to the Big Spring district was approved. Commissioners agreed to move the section back to the Forsan district.

Tom Cook, a representative of Lanier, demonstrated a tape recording system to the commissioners, and told them that the system would cost $2,492. Commissioners decided not to purchase the system.

Council will hear appeal for maintenance of park

John D. Weeks, president of the Big Spring Slowpitch Softball Association, will speak to the city council, Tuesday night, about maintenance at Johnny Stone Park.

During the regular meeting of the council, 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Weeks will ask the city to assist in improving restrooms, lights, parking areas and playing fields at the park. The softball program includes over 1,000 players, and attracts a great deal of money to the city with its tournaments, says Weeks, in justifying the city's help.

Councilmen will also consider bids on a variety of heavy equipment. Through a lease-purchase plan, the city hopes to purchase a fire rescue truck; a traffic truck and aerial device; two sanitation trucks; a backhoe; 162 dumpster containers; a landfill dozer; and a trailer for the dozer.

In other business, the council will:

— Consider a request for a temporary permit for a mobile home submitted by Mary Viera.

— Pass a second and final reading on an ordinance calling for a city election on April 4.

— Appoint judges for that election.

— Record election ballot numbers.

— Consider a final reading of a resolution to give money to the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for industrial development.

— Consider the first reading of a resolution to execute an agreement with the firm of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper for engineering services connected with the city's capitol improvements program.

— Discuss mineral leases at the Industrial Park.

— Discuss the council's consensus on pending state legislation.

Authorities mystified by lake shooting spree

SOMERVILLE, Texas (AP) — An unemployed welder left no clues to explain a shooting rampage in which he killed one man, wounded two other people and fired rifle or shotgun blasts at several more before taking his own life, Burlison County Sheriff Albert Wilhelm says.

"He undoubtedly just went berserk," Wilhelm said after the Saturday incident near Somerville Lake, a few miles south of here.

Wilson Lester Wagers, 29, shot and killed Thomas Steven Thies of Houston, wounded Thies' 6-year-old daughter Tanya and, after leaving the lake area, wounded Richard Martinez, 16, of Somerville, Wilhelm said.

After that, Wagers drove into a wooded area and shot himself in the head.

"When we found him, he was lying on his back and the rifle was between his legs and on his chest," the sheriff said, adding that Wagers did not know any of his victims.

The two wounded were hospitalized in Houston — Miss Thies "resting comfortably" at Texas Children's Hospital and Martinez listed in stable condition at Hermann Hospital, a hospital spokesman said Sunday.

Wilhelm, whose offices are here, and Washington County Sheriff Elwood Goldberg of Brenham, jointly investigated the shootings. Both law officers said they found no note or other evidence to explain Wagers' actions.

The terror began Saturday afternoon when Wagers shot Thies, 37, in the shoulder with a rifle as Thies was fishing at the lake with his daughter and two sons, Wilhelm said.

Thies sent the children to a nearby campsite to summon his wife but when she drove toward her wounded husband, Wagers fired at the Thies station wagon, wounding the girl, Goldberg said. Mrs. Thies fled to seek help and Wagers ran up to the wounded Thies and killed him with a shot to the head, Goldberg added.

After firing at several boats that passed by, Goldberg said, Wagers drove across a dam and fired shots into at least two vehicles before reaching Somerville.

Driving down a farm road, the sheriff continued, Wagers shot Martinez in the head as the youth was walking beside the roadway, and deputies took up the chase after they were notified by a woman who witnessed the Martinez shooting, said Goldberg.

Dog shoots man

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — A man was shot in the arm after his German shepherd dog picked up a gun in its teeth and then dropped it, police reported Monday.

John Calbert, 41, had been training his dog Jarvis to attack and disarm intruders, police said.

Calbert laid a loaded .22-caliber pistol on a chair Saturday and Jarvis picked up the weapon in his teeth, police officer Dan Richards reported.

Several witnesses, including Calbert's father, wife and children, watched as the dog dropped the gun, causing it to fire a bullet that hit Calbert in the arm, Richards said.

MAKING IT REALLY CLEAR — Maggie Kunn, founder of the Grey Panthers, blasts General Motors and the City of Detroit in a speech to Detroit's "Poletown" residents and supporters Sunday in the embattled neighborhood's

Immaculate Conception Church. GM and the City of Detroit are working together to tear down the neighborhood, and the church, to build a new Cadillac assembly plant.

Focalpoint

Action/Reaction: Soap Operas

Q. The girls in our office are having a friendly discussion as to the age of several of our favorite soap operas. Could you please find the number of years a few have been on television, including radio, if they were originally radio shows? We are interested in "Search for Tomorrow," "As the World Turns," "Edge of Night," and "Days of Our Lives."

A. "Search for Tomorrow" began Sept. 3, 1951. That makes it the longest running serial, the longest running day-time show, and Mary Stuart, who has been its star since the beginning, has had the longest continuing role in television, according to Alex McNeil in his book Total Television.

"As the World Turns" and "Edge of Night" began on the same day, April 2, 1956.

"World" was created by Irna Phillips, creator of many radio dramas including "The Guiding Light," which Manuela Soares, in The Soap Opera Book, says is the only radio show to play on television. In fact, from 1952 to 1956, identical scripts for "Light" were aired on radio and television at the same time.

"Days of our Lives" began Nov. 8, 1965.

Cybox machine will be demonstrated Mar. 27

Don Cochren, head trainer of the Dallas Cowboys, will be at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center Friday, March 27, to demonstrate the Cybox machine recently purchased by the center.

The Cybox is a $16,000 machine which can measure a person's strength, endurance and quickness while providing exercise.

Meeting called for Thursday

NARFE, the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, Chapter 1095, will meet Thursday, March 12 at 9:30 a.m. at the Kentwood Older Adults Activities Center on Lynn Drive.

Following coffee and cake, and a business meeting, a talk will be given by Ms. Clara Hendricks of the Big Spring State Hospital.

All retired federal employees and their guests are being invited to attend the meeting.

Nine vying for places

ACKERLY — Nine Ackery area residents have filled for the two positions which will be open on the Sands school board this year.

Wayne Webb and Richard Parker, whose terms elapse this year, will not offer for reelection.

On the ballot to fill the two spots are Dickie Shortes, Carolyn Rogers, Rickey Jackson, Roland Fryar, C.J. Grigg, Marion Snell, Judy Staggs, Woodie Long and Lynn Maxwell.

Voting will take place April 4 at the Paymaster Gin.

Baeza promoted to sergeant

This attribute makes the Cybox useful not only to persons who, through illness or injury, have lost muscle strength, but to athletes who want to measure their strengths, weaknesses, and their improvement during training.

To use the Cybox, a patient sits on one of its exercise benches or lies on the exercise table. The part of the body to be tested — leg, ankle, knee, hips, elbow, shoulder, or wrist — is strapped to a movable rod which is attached to a "dynamometer."

The patient tries to pull up and push down on the movable rod as quickly and strongly as possible, for as long as possible. The dynamometer, however, regulates how quickly the rod can really be moved. So, no matter how hard a patient exercises, the rod will resist his strength with its own strength, going no faster than it has been set to go.

The dynamometer measures how much strength the patient has used in trying to move the rod, and how long he or she is able to maintain this exercise.

The results of the measuring process are charted on a graph. The recorder itself is attached by wiring to the dynamometer. By using this graph, the patient can see for himself his progress over a period of time. The therapist can measure the extent of muscle damage caused by illness or injury.

For example, if someone has injured one leg in a car accident, the therapist can compare the strength, endurance, and quickness of the hurt leg to that of the uninjured one, and measure how far the patient must go to regain full use of the injured leg.

Although the Cybox isn't a robot or a computer, it is the product of modern technology, and has already proven its value to many patients of the Rehab Center.

Physicians throughout the area, along with coaches and athletic trainers from 32 area schools, will be invited to hear Cochren and watch the demonstration.

Snyder native wins promotion

Jesse R. Cadena, son of Juanita Cadena of 1911 23rd St., Syder, Texas, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of senior airman.

Cadena is a food service specialist at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla.

THREE-TIERED COMPANY — Ribbon cutting ceremonies were held recently for the firm of Avery and Associates, a three-tiered firm located at 210 Permain Building. The firm boasts a personal-corporate-organizational development division, a public relations division and a speakers' agency. Johnnie Lou Avery, president, prepares to wield the scissors here. Standing at her side is her husband, Jerry Avery. Members of the Ambassadors Club, as usual, promoted good cheer at the ritual and pose with the Averages.

Police Beat

Woman stops to help; winds up with lumps

Charlotte Brackett, 4119 Parkway, was rewarded painfully for trying to play the good Samaritan, early Sunday morning.

Ms. Brackett was returning home from work on South Highway 87 near the entrance to the city campground, 2:40 a.m. Sunday, when a car in front of her came suddenly to a halt in the middle of the road. Ms. Brackett also stopped to see if she could lend assistance, but was met instead by a man who punched her several times on the head, and bruised her hands when she tried to block the blows.

She was treated in the emergency room of Malone-Hogan Hospital, and released. Police took a report of the incident while she was being treated, and they will be on the lookout for the assailant.

Sometime between noon and 9:45 p.m. Saturday, burglars broke into the home of Joe Jones Sr., 1001 N.W. 4th, and stole two telephones and a color television set. Loss was estimated at $450.

Officials at the service station at 1811 S. Gregg don't know when the burglary of 10 tires took place there. The intruders kicked in the back door and made off with the $500 worth of rubber.

Vandals made a mess of a room belonging to the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in the Big Spring Industrial Park, early this morning. Shaving cream was sprayed on the walls, cabinets were emptied onto the floor, and clothes were scattered throughout the room. Cost of the damage has not been estimated.

Thieves stole a Bible from a car parked in the driveway at the home of Pedro G. Ruiz, 1316 Wood, Sunday night. The holy book was valued at $25.

Officials at the Thrifty Lodge, 1000 W. 4th, say that a man from Oregon stayed there for four nights. The man says he only stayed for two, and refuses to pay the extra $33.68. Police will decide whether the money is owed.

Two mishaps were reported Sunday. Vehicles driven by Fernando Gutierrez, Odessa, and Benito Hilario Jr., 2203 Main, collided in Comanche Trail Park, 4:34 p.m. Sunday.

Award made to R. Haro

Robert M. Haro, accounting technician, has been selected as Employee of the Month at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

According to officials at the camp, the award is presented to an employee who has demonstrated above average or outstanding performance, or who has provided a special service or contribution to a special program.

Due to the absence of the operating accountant, Robert has been performing a dual role as accounting technician and operating accountant. Officials say all reports to the Central Office, Regional Office, and the U.S. Treasury have been submitted in a timely manner and were of the highest quality. Recently, Robert has also been coordinating the institution's new wall-to-wall property inventory, which is being completed at this time.

Haro's eagerness and willingness to accept these additional duties and perform them in a superior manner has qualified him as Employee of the Month, according to camp officials.

Other staff members of the Federal Prison Camp recently receiving awards included Joseph Haro, packer foreman, cash award, Sustained Superior Performance; Herman Franklin, correctional treatment specialist, five-year service pin; Luis Velez, electrical equipment repairer foreman, five-year service pin; Richard Johnson, safety manager, five-year service pin; and David Huff, hospital administrator, ten-year service pin.

The auxiliary units of the Big Spring High School Steer Band captured the North Texas Auxiliary Championship Saturday in Dallas.

The Big Spring color guard, drum line, drill team and twirling line all claimed first place honors.

The flag line and male rifle line captured second place while the female rifle line settled for a third place finish.

Martin Solis was named the outstanding drum major in competition and Melinda Corwin was judged to be the outstanding percussionist.

The local rifle duet, Robbie Roten and Martin Solis, was selected as the outstanding ensemble. The Big Spring auxiliary units returned with 11 trophies.

Small quakes hit California

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — No injuries or damage have been reported from two small earthquakes that rippled through the Imperial Valley near the Mexican border, authorities say.

The first tremor, measuring 3.0 on the Richter scale, hit at 3:09 a.m. Sunday and was followed six minutes later by an earthquake registering 3.5 on the Richter scale, seismologists at the California Institute of Technology.

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age

Chicago, Ill. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep free. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 82667, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

IN MEMORY OF SLAIN CHILDREN — Cardinal Terence Cooke offers communion to an unidentified altar boy during services in memory of the children slain in Atlanta. The Mass was held at St. Thomas the Apostle Church in Harlem Sunday.

Ambassador White says Salvadoran guerrillas a 'broken, declining lot'

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — More men, arms and money are on their way to El Salvador from a U.S. administration that voices fears the tiny Central American nation could be the first to topple in a new superpower game of dominoes.

But there is little sign that leftist guerrillas will seize control, despite continued fighting between the insurgents and government forces.

They have failed to capture any major chunk of territory, and former U.S. Ambassador Robert White says they are a "broken and declining lot."

A major offensive in mid-January resulted in the brief seizure of a provincial capital, San Francisco Gotera, 65 miles east of the capital. But a week later, President Jose Napoleon Duarte declared the offensive over and said, "There is nothing more they can do with their arms."

The guerrillas have conceded they are regrouping. Their calls for mass uprisings and strikes have been largely ineffective. Their attacks now are isolated actions tinged with the same kind of terrorism that has been attributed to El Salvador's far right.

A greater threat to the regime, according to some, may come from rightists in the Salvadoran military, which is well-armed and indisposed to tolerate a middle-of-the-road government.

The Reagan administration is adding $25 million to the $10 million worth of arms already shipped to El Salvador's military, and 20 U.S. military advisers are being assigned to the force of 34 already here.

El Salvador "is a textbook case of indirect armed aggression by Communist powers through Cuba," says an official State Department report, which claims the Soviet Union and its allies are funneling arms to the leftist guerrillas.

President Reagan apparently has decided to take some form of stand in this most densely populated, with 5 million people, nation of Central America, a country the size of Massachusetts, with expansive black and white sand Pacific beaches, lush mountainsides and torrid jungles.

His decision, however, is questioned by those who believe that the United States, as it did in Vietnam, may be choosing the wrong friend, the wrong foe and the wrong battleground.

"El Salvador would be a perfect base for the Soviet Union to launch its drive to make all of Central America its own," says a Western diplomat here.

"Costa Rica, Honduras, Guatemala and Mexico are watching what is happening here. They know they might be next," the diplomat said, asking to remain anonymous.

White, who was ambassador here in the last year of the Carter administration, told a congressional committee, however, "The Salvadoran government is perfectly able to handle the situation itself."

"There is no possibility of leftists taking over in El Salvador in a six-month period if we don't send one piece of equipment," he said.

There are indications the left may be ready to talk peace.

Guillermo Manuel Ungo, leader of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, an umbrella political group for the leftists, said recently he was willing to accept mediation. Duarte, too, said he would talk.

But even with the protagonists edging toward negotiations, their minions continue to do the brutal day-to-day work of revolution and counter-revolution.

In recent weeks, guerrillas have set bombs and sprayed bullets at banks, military posts and cotton and coffee plantations. In revenge, rightist "death squads" have routed leftists from their homes and executed them.

It is estimated that 13,000 died last year, 3,000 so far this year.

Labor leader claims unions don't get fair deal in national media

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that Republicans are in, unions have an image problem. They are angry outsiders now. They are blamed for economic failures. Their views are sometimes seen as ineffective and dated.

But as most people know, images don't always reflect the substance or truth or reality. They can be made of varying amounts of fiction, of chance impressions, stereotypes, prejudices and plain misinformation.

For words on the subject you might listen to William Wimpisinger, president of the International Association of Machinists, who is furious about television, which he sees as the No. 1 image machine.

In February 1980 Wimpisinger had 1,500 union workers in 43 states glued to their sets, beginning with the evening news, continuing with the mid-evening entertainment shows and concluding with local news.

His conclusion: unions don't get a fair shake on national television.

That opinion in itself might add to the crank image of unions, but the IAM is preparing another round of monitoring for this spring, and there are few souls who expect the findings to be much different. Images may be as much in the beholder's perception as in the mind of the sender.

In the IAM's view, the image is distorted by failing to show the union role in improving the quality of life and working conditions for all workers, and in depicting unions as violent, degrading and obstructive.

Robert Kalaski, IAM communications director, states that "occupations depicted on television are grossly disproportionate to reality."

In all, he writes in the AFL-CIO's American Federationist, the monitors found "there were 12 prostitutes for every one machinist; two butlers for every government worker; twice as many witch doctors as welfare workers; 12 times more detectives than production workers."

Television, he says, "continues to portray workers in unionized occupations as clumsy, uneducated fools who possess few, if any, leadership traits." A major finding, he writes, is that "television ignores the importance of the production

Court blocks release of tax information

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today blocked the release of secret information the government says could show tax cheaters how to avoid getting caught.

The justices postponed indefinitely the effect of court orders forcing the Bureau of Economic Analysis to release 58 computer tapes to Susan and Philip Long of Bellevue, Wash.

The court's brief order ended a week of intense legal maneuvering by government lawyers and provided the latest frustration for the Longs, who sued in 1975 to obtain the tapes under the Freedom of Information Act.

The information sought concerns an Internal Revenue Service investigatory tool to measure compliance with federal tax laws.

About 2 million tax returns are subjected to IRS audits each year, and a special program was designed to select the returns of people who are most likely to have understated their tax liability.

The IRS contends that if the selection formulas are made public, "persons knowledgeable in statistical procedures and methods" could use the information "to reduce the likelihood that their returns would be audited by shifting income or deductions to other categories."

Sign project is under way

COLORADO CITY (SC) — One of the first projects proposed by new Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Hollis is well on its way to completion. The painting of Colorado City highway signs along IS 20 involves redoing four signs, three of which have been undertaken by Colorado City Savings and Loan, Homestate Savings and Radio Station KVMC.

According to Hollis, "the cooperation of the people I've called on regarding this project has been tremendous. I can't thank the people of Colorado City enough for helping with this and the other projects we have undertaken."

Americans threatened after Bitterman death

BOGOTA, Columbia (AP) — All 120 members of the Summer Institute of Linguistics here, many of them Americans, find themselves under threat of death following the execution of Lancaster, Pa., linguist Chester A. Bitterman 3rd by urban guerrillas.

The army has assigned soldiers to guard the institute's facilities in the capital of Bogota and its field headquarters at Loma Linda, 300 miles southeast of Bogota, a high ranking army officer told The Associated Press.

The institute said Sunday only of its staff who wish to leave the country are free to go.

At least 50 persons have been arrested in the search for the M-19 guerrillas who held Bitterman captive for 47 days, then shot him through the heart Saturday morning. The guerrillas said the institute was a CIA operation and that Bitterman was a spy. Bitterman's body, covered with a guerrilla flag, was left in a hijacked minibus.

In a statement Sunday, the Summer Institute of Linguistics again denied any involvement with the CIA.

Hours before he was shot, a guerrilla spokesman told an institute negotiator all of the institute's workers would face the same fate if the institute doesn't leave Colombia.

Soltex awards assistant ship to Stanley

COLLEGE STATION — Steve Stanley, a Texas A&M University senior from Big Spring, has been awarded an undergraduate assistantship in plastics engineering from the Soltex Polymer Corporation.

The mechanical engineering senior will study extrusion of plastics under the guidance of a faculty member from the plastics engineering program sponsored by the Texas Engineering Experiment Station and the College of Engineering. He was one of nine students to receive assistantships from the program this semester.

Stanley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Stanley of 1515 Tucson, Big Spring.

Weather Clouds to blanket part of West Texas

By the Associated Press

Skies were clear over much of Texas this morning, however some cloudiness lingered in the western region and in the far south. Patchy, light fog formed in portions of the Panhandle, the Rio Grande Valley and the central region of the state.

A weak high pressure ridge continued to build over the state this morning, sending temperatures dropping into the 20s in the Panhandle. Temperatures elsewhere were mostly in the 30s and 40s, except for readings in the 50s across South Texas.

Clouds were expected to blanket the western, central and southern regions of the state today, although the Panhandle, far west and extreme east should have sunny skies through Tuesday. Occasional light rain was forecast across the south this afternoon. Highs were expected to range from in the 50s in the Panhandle to the low 70s in far south Texas.

We can conquer this monster, says Gramm

"We are at the end of a 30-year spending spree and the bill collector is at the door," Cong. Phil Gramm of Texas said recently in College Station. Gramm was speaking in support of President Reagan's efforts to reduce federal spending.

Gramm, an economist before he was a politician, advocates even deeper budget cuts, as does Cong. Kent Hance of Lubbock, who spoke at the same meeting.

GRAMM SAID the voters of this nation have given Reagan a mandate. In other words, the taxpayers of this country want to put the federal government on a strict budget just like anyone else.

"Stopping the growth of federal government will put more responsibility on ourselves — where it belongs," Gramm told his audience, which was composed of bankers attending the 29th annual Texas Farm and Ranch Credit Conference.

Gramm warned that the proposed budget cuts, which amount to more than $50 billion, are going to affect every family in the country. The congressman predicted that when the people are given a choice about more taxes or living without a government program, they will choose the latter. Of the spending cuts, Gramm said that they would amount to $250 billion by 1986, adding they are really a down payment on the future.

Gramm also wants to get the federal government out of the capital market. "I'm concerned about federal government decisions on where credit goes," he said. "We can't invest in businesses that have been losers in the 1960s and 1970s." He was alluding to the recent bailout of the Chrysler Corp. "It seems that only in the federal government can loan officers continue to make bad loans. We need to get lending back in private hands and to reduce loans available from the Farmers Home Administration and Small Business Administration."

GRAMM LOOKS FOR the Congress to act favorably on Reagan's whole package but warns that special interest groups could cut the legislation if the proposed cuts are treated on an item-by-item basis.

Gramm says the tax cuts will come in time if the Congress first addresses itself to the task of passing the budget cuts. Is it too much to expect the national budget to be balanced in two or three years? No, insists Gramm. By passing Reagan's proposals, we can also reduce the inflation rate by upwards of six percent, he argues.

Hance predicts that Reagan can operate with a bold hand, vetoing those bills he doesn't like. "Congress wouldn't dare override his veto," the West Texan said.

Maybe we're not going off the deep end after all.

Many reasons

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

Prince Charles wanted me to marry him before he asked Lady Diana, but he just wasn't my type. I knew it would never work. I said no.

I said no because I just could not bear to have four butlers hovering over me while I dine. I wouldn't have minded the butlers of course, or even the cooks, maids and gardeners. But enough is enough.

I SAID NO because I could never bear to wear all those jewels that would never really belong to me. They'd always be the property of the state. I like my own jewels. And when I acquire some, I'll like them even more. Besides, I'm allergic to most jewelry and I didn't want to insult my subjects.

I said no because I could never get a crown to stay on my head. And there is a rumor that royalty is above using bobby pins.

I said no because I'm not your public ceremony type. If I went to a ribbon cutting, I'd probably cut my finger and then someone would have to pass a royal bandage to me. If I christened a ship with a bottle of champagne, I'd have to keep some of my relatives away so the champagne wouldn't get consumed before the ceremony.

I said no because I couldn't decide which palace I wanted to live in. They all had their advantages, of course, but they were all too big for me to do an adequate cleaning job. When I was told royalty doesn't clean, I knew I was in trouble. I also knew I was in trouble when I started figuring the monthly costs of the utility bills.

I said no because I was told I couldn't get into a pair of blue jeans and my favorite torn T-shirt and run up to Seven-Eleven for a magazine. The servants, I was told, would do it. I didn't think it was a good idea having them see what I read.

I SAID NO because I found out what the dry cleaning bill was for that long red robe. Remember, the thing drags along the floor, just like a train on a bridal gown. But unlike the bridal gown which is worn once in a lifetime, the red robe is worn a few times a year. And when it drags on the floor, it has to be cleaned each time. I thought it was too much of a waste.

I said no because I was told I wouldn't be allowed to smoke in public and I just cannot go hours at a time without a cigarette.

I said no because I would look ridiculous in those hats the royal women seem to wear all the time.

I said no because the royal women have weights put in the hems of all their skirts so they do not go flying up on a windy day. I think seamstresses bills are high enough without that.

That's why I told Charlie I couldn't marry him. But the real reason I said no was simpler than all that. I thought I might have in-law problems. I've heard they're all stuffy.

What ails Demos

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The hope that computer technology will save the Democratic Party, as claimed by newly-elected National Chairman Charles T. Manatt, looked forlorn Feb. 26 when Manatt, suddenly confronted by what has ravaged his party the past decade, blinked.

Major Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., leader of the black caucus, threatened a black walkout from the Democratic National Committee meeting unless his demands were met. That continued a decade of "Maumauing" by black Democrats claiming "racism." But something new was added: what appeared to be antisemitic overtones weakening the flimsy bonds holding the Democratic coalition together.

WHEN MANATT DID NOT tell Hatcher to go ahead and walk, he perpetuated his party as a loose confederation of mutually-hostile caucuses of blacks, women, Jews, Hispanics and others. Computers were cited by Manatt in his successful campaign for chairman as the answer to Republican superiority in fundraising and campaign organization. But what ails the Democrats cannot be cured by computers.

Democratic politicians now regard themselves as caucus members first, party members second. So divided, they have trouble focusing on a unified Democratic response to Reaganism.

Dick Hatcher, soft-spoken and urbane, has been part of the problem since his election as mayor of Gary in 1967 at age 33. In 1974, at the Democratic Party's first mid-term convention in Kansas City, he branded an anti-quota provision in the party charter as "racist." If not removed, said Hatcher, blacks will walk out. Although then National Chairman Robert Strauss wanted to call his bluff and risk the consequences, other party leaders did not. They forced a surrender.

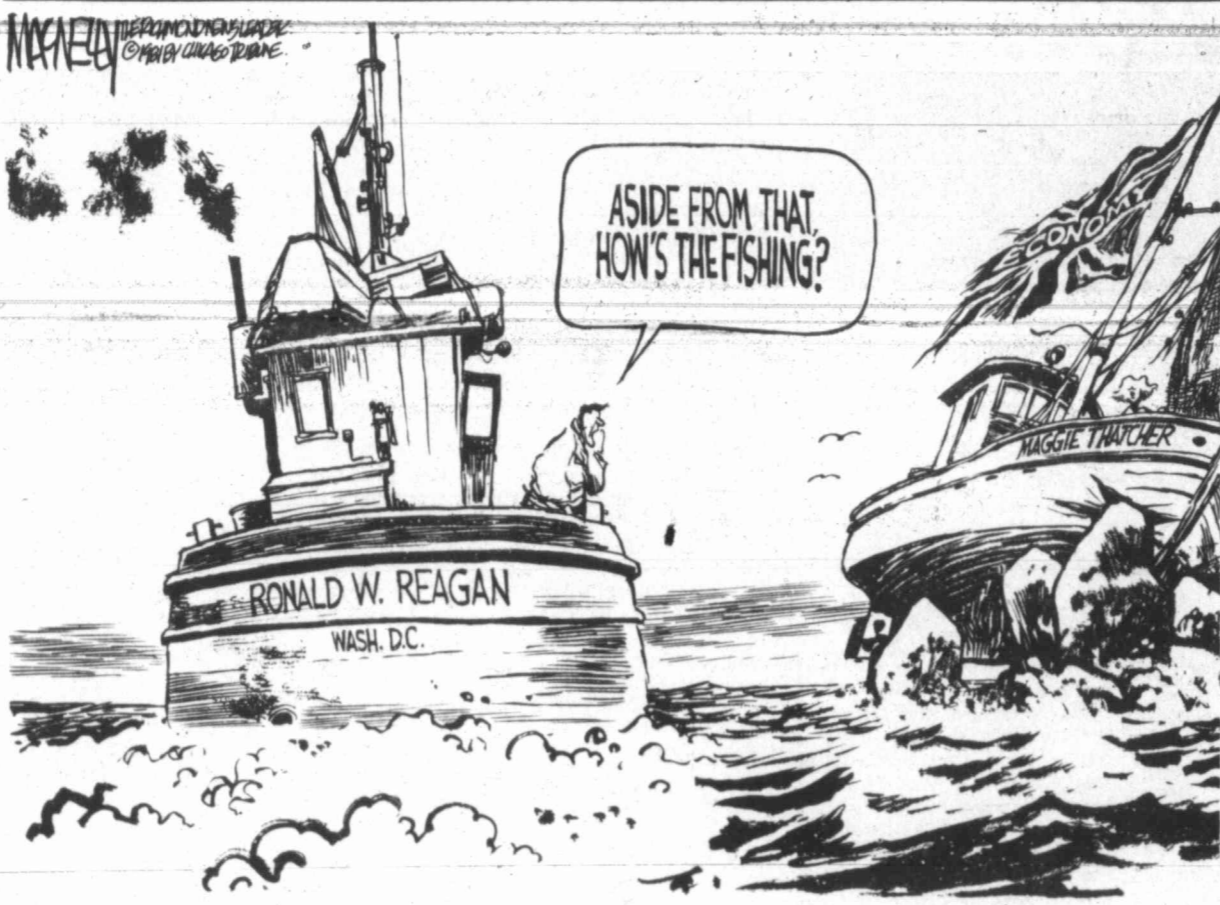

More than six years later in Manatt's suite at the Sheraton-Washington Hotel, Hatcher was back at the old stand. He had just ousted Detroit's Mayor Coleman Young as chairman of the Black Caucus and was demanding that 10 blacks be kept as at-large members of the national committee; Young had accepted eight so that Manatt could add two labor members.

What's more, Hatcher had fingered two specific at-large candidates to be replaced by blacks: former State Chairman Ann Campbell of New Jersey and Mark Siegel of Maryland, formerly executive director of the national committee. Both are indisputably liberals. Siegel supported Sen. Edward M. Kennedy last year; Campbell's credentials go back to George McGovern in 1972.

Their sin appears to have been opposition to quotas. In the meeting with Manatt, Hatcher called Siegel a "racist." Besides, the mayor made clear, he could not support anybody who quit Jimmy Carter's White House staff out of support for Israel, as Siegel had. Hatcher and his blacks would walk out if they did not get their way.

Manatt might have been justified in telling the mayor to be gone, after informing him that Jewish-black fratricide had no place in the party of the New Deal. But that is not the way of today's Democratic leaders and certainly not Chuck Manatt.

BORN AND REARED in Iowa and now a self-made millionaire lawyer-banker in Los Angeles at age 45, Manatt abhors confrontational politics.

When to use cough medicine

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had colds this winter. Just when I have one whipped I come down with another. I cough for a long time after the other cold symptoms are gone. At night when I cough, a very bright light flashes in my eyes. Why? What is the problem? Is it from the cold? I never miss reading your column. This may not be of interest to other readers, but please reply, as there are some who think I am crazy or making this up. Do you advise using cough medicine? — Mrs. B.G.

For non-smokers, colds are the major cause of coughs, which are reflex actions that start with irritation of some part of the airways. A cough is an attempt to bring up undesired material, like thick mucus, from the airway. After a cold, other mucus may drain down into the throat and may set off the coughing reflex. This can become self-perpetuating.

When a cough does become self-perpetuating and loses its chief value, that of bringing up undesired airway material, it is safe to suppress it with cough medicine. It is also OK to use medicine to dry up the nasal mucus that is dripping down into the throat.

Sipping a cup of warm tea may relieve an irritation that is triggering a cough. A persistent night cough may be alleviated by elevating the head with an extra pillow.

Now your light show. When you cough, you cause a tremendous rise in air pressure in the chest cavity. That causes blood in the veins to back up, even as high as the brain. That can cause the vivid flash you describe. It is something like a blow to the head.

Take my advice and see a doctor about your persistent cough and the light flash. Either can be due to a more serious, if rare, problem (the cough to lung disturbance, the lights to retinal problems). You can get medicine to relieve the nighttime coughing.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there really such a thing as menopausal arthritis? Seems to me I have read about such a problem and menopause. — Mrs. L.C.

A multiplicity of symptoms have been associated with menopause, but I have not seen arthritis on any list of such symptoms. That is not to say that arthritis cannot appear at the same time as menopause does. But I have not seen anywhere that menopause actually causes arthritis.

I wonder if you are referring to a condition called osteoporosis? That is bone thinning. Many women experience it after menopause. It has been associated in some studies with the loss of female hormones at the time of menopause. It is not an arthritis, which is joint inflammation. You need to find out what is causing whatever symptoms you are having. Don't dismiss them as a part of menopause.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had systemic lupus for one year. Recently, I have had spasms of my arms and legs down from my waist to my feet. When the pressure reaches my feet they become tight and numb and I have to grasp a chair or something to keep from falling when a spell comes on. Would you kindly inform me about this problem? I had never heard of it before the doctor told me. — Mrs. T.L.

Systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE) is a disease whose cause is not known, but we have a great deal of knowledge about its symptoms and treatment. SLE is remotely related to rheumatoid arthritis, with joint pain and swelling the most common signs. Often, skin changes occur — chiefly a red rash over the cheeks and bridge of the nose.

Muscle pain may occur, but attacks of muscle spasm are not expected. In fact, that is such an unusual symptom that you should report it to your doctor. It may not be related to lupus at all, but perhaps to insufficient blood flow. Granted, blood vessels are involved with lupus, but muscle cramps are infrequent in that disease. Sometimes a mineral imbalance — of potassium or calcium — causes cramping.

So for your new symptom seek a new explanation. Check back with

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I always thought that once you were baptized your sins would automatically be forgiven, but something you said in one of your answers made me wonder if this was really true. I want to know if I am headed for heaven. What is the truth? — A.A.C.

DEAR A.A.C.: Thank you for sharing your concerns with me. Let's look at each point individually.

First, baptism does not provide an automatic cancellation of our sins. It does, however, say something very important about a believer's attitude toward sin. By baptism, a believer shows publicly his desire to turn from sin and live for the Savior. "We were therefore buried with him through baptism into death in order that, just as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, we too may live a new life" (Romans 6:4). Baptism provides a picture for us of our dying to sin and living for God. It is an outward sign of an inward change. By baptism we say "good-bye" to the old life of sin and embark your doctor. Lupus symptoms are troublesome enough without suffering from what may be unrelated, treatable ones like muscle spasms. There is a National Lupus Foundation, which can provide you with a great deal of literature on the subject. Find a local chapter.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am interested in finding out if leukemia is an infectious disease. — W.H.

Rejected belief noted in Russia

George Feifer was the author of "Russian Disorders," for the February issue of Harper's.

Feifer said: "It is as if the American Bible Belt had lost its faith in God. A traveler in Russia has a sensation of moving in the wake of an epidemic of rejected belief."

"While Western-oriented professionals continue to be appalled by Soviet methods, the new reason — at least new to me — was the resentment of huge numbers of white- and blue-collar workers. Their chief grievance is nothing more elevated, or less significant, than the system's failure to provide them with what they regard, with Russians' traditionally low expectations, as a tolerable standard of living."

on a new life lived for Christ. How then does God forgive sins? Each time a believer sins, he should seek God's forgiveness through prayer. "If we claim to be without sin, we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:8, 9).

Now, how can you know that you are headed for heaven? It has been said that "heaven is a prepared place for a prepared people." You can get prepared by accepting the Lord Jesus Christ as your personal Savior. Jesus said, "I am the way the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me" (John 14:6). You can ask Christ to come into your life right now if you're willing to commit yourself to turning from sin and living for him. At the moment you receive him as your Savior and Lord, you will be on the "royal route to heaven." I pray that you will make the decision today and then tell others about Christ. God bless you.

Another Iran?

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The Iranian crisis could be repeated all over again in neighboring Pakistan where the State Department's policy makers have hitched their wagon to a potential falling star — the hated military dictator, Muhammad Zia ul-Haq.

U.S. military aid to Zia has put the United States in the same box it was in two years ago in Iran. Like the late shah of Iran, Zia has alienated many of his people by harsh retribution against opponents.

Already, the volatile, frustrated Pakistani masses have been taking out their hostility on American families. In two recent episodes, American women were physically attacked by militants on the streets of Pakistani cities.

SECRET FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE cables reviewed by my associated Jack Mitchell and Indy Badhwar report that "American nationals, particularly ladies," have been told "not to be alone in the Rawalpindi bazaar or walk alone in Islamabad." Americans have been cautioned about wearing clothes that pinpoint their nationality. They have also been warned to take precautions to protect their children on the way to and from school.

A recent "Important Notice to All Americans from the American Consulate General," dated Feb. 12, 1981, describes "two recent attacks on American women, one in Karachi on Feb. 2 and the other in Islamabad on Feb. 10."

The incident in Karachi involved the wife of an officer at the consulate general. "Two Pakistani males grabbed her from the rear, threw her against a wall, and began scratching and hitting her," the advisory reported. "The wife of an American associated with the Embassy was attacked by 18-20 Pakistani men," the advisory said. "They grabbed her, threw her to the ground, hit her in the mouth and eye, tore her clothes and... one of the Pakistanis cut her leg with a knife. During the entire incident, cars were passing but none stopped."

Needless to say, the State Department would like to downplay these incidents. Anything that might suggest the United States is backing the wrong horse in Pakistan is not made public. But when Americans are being roughed up on the streets because of their perceived link to the dictatorship, it's clear that something is wrong with our policy in Pakistan.

This coverup is unfortunately nothing new. The same hush-hush treatment was given to the events of Oct. 21, 1979, when a howling mob sacked and burned the American Embassy in Islamabad, killed two Marine guards and assaulted several American women.

IN THE INTERESTS OF OUR policy of hear-no-evil, see-no-evil, speak-no-evil of the Zia dictatorship, the details of that bloody day have been dropped down the Orwellian Memory Hole at Foggy Bottom. Overshadowed by the Iranian hostage crisis, the Islamabad attack has been all but forgotten — except by those who suffered through it.

"Many of us are still affected emotionally and mentally by the happenings of that day," wrote Sharon Jones, wife of an Air-Force attache, adding, "I still feel too few people know the true story."

Meanwhile, the strutting Zia is losing popular support by the hour. "Zia is sitting on a powder keg," said one top diplomat, "and it's only a question of time before it will explode."

"Now, really... do I look like the sort who'd meddle in the affairs of El Salvador?"

Dear Abby

Officer Feels Out of Step in Dating Parade

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been a divorced man for two years and have just started to date again. (I'm an officer in the U.S. Army.) My problem is that the women I date seem offended because I refuse to go to bed with them on the first date. This comes as a shock to me because when I ask a lady out, all I expect is the pleasure of her company, and that is all I want. However, in these permissive times, all the women I have dated seem to regard sex as a repayment for an evening out.

When I turn down their invitations to go to bed, they act hurt and ask me what's "wrong" with them. Abby, nothing is wrong with them, but I don't want sex as a "thank you" for a lovely evening.

RICHARD

DEAR RICHARD: The "ladies" you have been dating are of a vastly different stripe than those who write to me. Most of them want to know where to find a man who doesn't want to frolic in the feathers on the first date.

SAMANTHA IN SANTA ANA

DEAR SAMANTHA: You are right. Shame on me for failing to mention that times have changed, and the responsibility for writing thank-you notes for wedding gifts should be shared by husband and wife.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but I need advice desperately. I'm 26 and the mother of three little girls, all under 6. Last summer I caught my husband (I will call him "Rex") sexually molesting our 4-year-old. I was shocked and sick to my stomach. I had no idea this was going on under my own roof. I took her to the hospital, and that's how the law became involved.

NOWHERE TO TURN

DEAR NOWHERE: See a lawyer and tell him what you've told me. Since Rex has been forbidden by law to see the girls alone, if he violates the law, call the police at once. You don't say whether Rex is being treated for his illness (and it is an illness), but in any case, it might relieve your mind to talk with the doctor (or doctors) who examined him. In the meantime, don't let the girls out of your sight.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

TWEEN 12 and 20 — Help family rediscover "trust"

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D. Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 15-year-old girl and my mother and dad just don't trust me. They won't let me date because they think that I will take drugs and sleep with boys. I wouldn't do either but ever since I got caught being drunk my parents do not trust me.

My mother said I could date when I was 16 but before, I would have to go on the pill. I told her that she was crazy. What do you think about all of this? — Ann, Alameda, Calif.

Ann: Somewhere your family (you included) misplaced the word, trust. Be the person to help them find it. While you are at it, when you run across the word, love, dust it off and display it prominently. Oh, yes, it's there! Believe me, you will rediscover it and it won't be too difficult a task.

Dr. Wallace: I am a 16-year-old girl who met a very sweet 17-year-old guy last summer. We dated a couple of times and I began to develop deep feelings for him, but he was not aware of them.

My problem is that he is going with another girl now. I called him and told him how I felt, and he said we would always be good friends and he would keep in touch. Well, that was a month ago and I haven't heard a word from him since and I love him more than ever. Help! — Selena, Hagerstown, Md.

Selena: This boy was politely informing you that he has no romantic interests in you at this time. It's time to look elsewhere.

Dr. Wallace: My problem is when I laugh my chin juts out. I never noticed it until one day my older brother called me "banana chin." Now all my friends call me that and it really hurts.

When I'm around them, I never laugh. What I want to know is, is there such a thing as a "chin operation" and how much does it cost? — Lisa, McAllen, Texas

Lisa: The only operation needed in your family is on your brother. He needs his foot removed from his big mouth. It's tough enough to be a teen without receiving undue pressure from family.

Since you didn't have a problem before your brother made his immature statement, you don't now. Keep smiling, Lisa. You will win over multitudes more than the handful who will poke fun.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Amy Reichel of New York City captures $12,000 Westinghouse science scholarship

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Amy Sue Reichel, a 17-year-old senior at Hunter College High School in New York City, was awarded the first-prize $12,000 scholarship in the 40th annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search. It was announced tonight, for a complex project in biochemistry. This is the third time since the Search began in 1942 that a young woman has captured the top prize.

The second prize, a $10,000 scholarship, was awarded to Douglas Anthony Simons, an 18-year-old senior at Vero Beach High School, Vero Beach, Fla., for a comprehensive project in astronomy.

Michael Morgan Dowling, 18, and a senior at Newington High School, Newington, Conn., was the recipient of the third-place $10,000 scholarship for a clinical biochemical research project.

Scholarships and cash awards totaling $89,500 were presented to the 40 national winners representing 14 states in the 40th national high school competition before an audience including four Nobel Prize winners and more than 700 scientists, educators, business and civic leaders.

Baron Stig Ramel of Stockholm, Sweden, president of the Nobel Foundation, was the evening's featured speaker, with Dr. George Mechlup, vice president, research and development, representing Westinghouse.

The oldest and largest high school science scholarship competition, Science Talent Search has awarded more than $1.5 million to 1,600 winners since 1942. Four have won the Nobel Prize in the last nine years.

Amy Reichel's project, relating to the regulation of genetic expression in yeast cells, may prove effective for greater understanding of metabolic pathways, cancer research and immunology in human beings. Her winning submission was independently conceived and the laboratory experiments carried out at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine during a five-month period.

The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Reichel, Amy is the third member of her family cited in the Science Talent Search. Two older brothers previously participated; one was an "Honors" winner, another a national winner two years ago.

The winner plans to use the $12,000 scholarship to prepare for a career in biochemistry research at Harvard College. Her hobbies include classical piano, guitar, drawing, painting and classic French cooking, as well as math puzzles and art history.

member of the French Honor Society, his hobbies include jogging, tennis and juggling, and he plans to study astronomy at the California Institute of Technology, and eventually specialize in cosmology, or the study of the structure of the universe. Astrophotography, electronics and tennis are among his hobbies. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Simons, Vero Beach, Florida.

The final $7,500 scholarship was awarded to sixth-place winner Terence David Sanger, 17, of Manhattan, N.Y. Sanger, a student at The Dalton School, designed a new computer language and tested his language on a microcomputer. He is a member of his school math club, a delegate to the model United Nations, and builds ham radios as a hobby. He plans a career in medicine or computer science.

The first of four $5,000 scholarships was won by Lori Ellen Kaplowitz, a 17-year-old Woodmere, N.Y., student. Miss Kaplowitz developed an inexpensive and effective method for isolating the nutritional mutants of a bacterial strain. A student at George W. Hewlett High School in Hewlett, N.Y., she is an award-winning puppeteer and lists photography, sculpting and creative writing as hobbies. She also plays the piano and flute, and plans to study for a career in scientific research at Harvard College.

Eighth-place winner Seth Steven Finkelstein, 16, of Bronx, N.Y., a student at Bronx High School of Science, conducted an advanced study in number theory. A gold medal winner at the 1980 New York Math Fair, Finkelstein participated in the Ohio State University Program for Mathematically Gifted Students last summer. He plans to study physics and mathematics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in preparation for a career as a research physicist. Science fiction, electronics and collecting old and rare comics are his hobbies.

Three students were each awarded $7,500 scholarships. They are Song Tan of Miami, Fla. Joel Martin Wein and Terence David Sanger, both of Manhattan, N.Y.

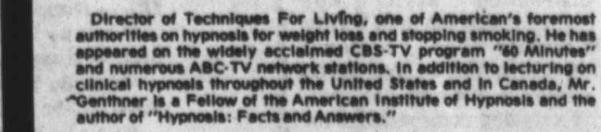

The fourth-place winner, Song Tan, 17, was born in London, England, and moved to Miami in 1973. His project analyzed the makeup of polystyrene, a man-made chemically based material commonly used in homes as an inexpensive packing or insulation material. Tan sought to establish a correlation between mass and the rate at which polystyrene disintegrates when ignited in the absence of oxygen. He is first in his class of 577 at Southwest Miami High School, plays the piano and flute, and solves mathematical puzzles as a hobby. He plans a career in physics research.

Fifth place was won by 17-year-old Joel Martin Wein of the Greenwich Village section of New York. He analyzed a problem in number theory which has remained unsolved for 40 years. A member of the championship math team at Stuyvesant High School, he has spent two summers at the National Science Foundation-supported Hampshire College Summer Studies in mathematics. A

MSG, an 'old' food flavor enhancer

COLLEGE STATION — "MSG" in foods isn't such a "strange" new additive as some people may think, but it is salty. MSG stands for monosodium glutamate, a flavor enhancer.

Cass Ryan-Crow, a foods and nutrition specialist, says people have used glutamate to enhance food flavors for more than two centuries. Oriental cooks were the first to use glutamate, and even today, MSG is associated with Oriental food preparation, she says.

Dr. Ryan-Crow is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

MSG imparts no characteristic flavor of its own to food, the specialist explains. Rather, it enhances the flavor of the food it is added to. It works best on foods that are naturally high in the "protein portion" or "glutamate" of food substances — found in such foods as meat, poultry, seafood and some vegetables, including tomatoes. Also, it is very effective in restoring the flavor to fresh (uncooked) foods.

Makers of MSG start with naturally occurring food substances, such as molasses, derived from beets or sugar cane. After a fermentation process, the end result is a fine white crystal.

Some people do experience a hypersensitivity to MSG, Dr. Ryan-Crow cautions. "This reaction is termed 'Chinese Restaurant Syndrome.' For the few people who do experience this, the symptoms include tightness, warmth or tingling in the upper body and headaches.

The cotton producers toured the Raleigh, N.C. research center of Cotton Incorporated as part of their annual producers meeting.

Clements' Reagan campaign expected to pay off soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texans are expecting the hours that Gov. Bill Clements put in on the campaign trail last year to pay off now that a Republican is in the White House, says the governor's top aide here.

Stone, 27, is young but he is Clements' most long-term aide. The Dallas native joined the governor at the start of his Republican primary campaign in 1977, and he was a deputy general counsel in the governor's office in Austin before moving to Washington.

Legislators consider unemployment proposals

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators had to vote one more time today on a bill that would mean less money for employees who quit their jobs voluntarily.

Clements as part of the state's answer to a federal court suit that found Texas' prison housing conditions inadequate.

The Senate-approved bill was amended in the House last week to exempt military personnel who do not re-enlist, wives who quit because their husbands have a new job in another city and those who quit because of illness, injury or pregnancy.

Plenty of other controversial issues are likely subjects for debate in both houses later in the week.

In the afternoon House session, the first order of business was a bill to appropriate $35 million to the Department of Corrections for immediate construction of three new buildings to ease crowded prison cell blocks.

On Tuesday the Senate is scheduled to resume debate on the voter-approved plan to let Texas' 14 Courts of Civil Appeals handle criminal appeals, also.

Rainfall is far above the norm

Howard County's rainfall for 1981 is now more than an inch above the norm. Showers visited upon the area Friday night added 23 of an inch to the year's total, which currently stands at 2.53 inches.

Several controversial measures are pending on the Senate calendar if sponsors can get enough supporters to suspend legislative rules for floor debate.

Another, by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, would amend right-to-work laws to prevent collection of union dues as a requirement for employment.

Dr. Earl Reun presents SC workshop at Andrews

District VIII of the West Texas Forum of Student Councils held its annual spring forum in Andrews the past Saturday.

Outstanding district schools named included Big Spring High, Andrews, Greenwood and Kermit.

Reun is known as "Mr. Student Council" throughout the United States because of his work with students. A barbecue lunch was served with all the trimmings. Following the meal, elections were held for the new district officers.

The fall forum this year will be hosted by Colorado City. The spring forum in 1982 will be in Kermit.

New officers are Kermit High School, president; Greenwood, vice-president; Colorado City, secretary-treasurer; Big Spring, parliamentarian; San Angelo Lee Junior High, junior high middle school director.

Lack of rain only minor problem

Many factors contribute to water shortage

EDITOR'S NOTE — This first of five stories on problems with the nation's water supply presents an overview of those problems.

The drought is over. The water shortage is just beginning.

The seemingly contradictory statements point up a vital fact of the nation's water supply. "It's not just drought," says Wanda Phelan of the U.S. Water Resources Council. "We've got water problems."

Those problems include surface water supplies that are not big enough to meet the demands of population and industrial growth, underground water supplies that are being pumped dry, and pollution that threatens the quality of the water we do have.

Those problems include a maze of bureaucracy and a web of overlapping local, state and federal agencies that often seem to make water planning and management impossible.

And those problems include waste — by individuals, by businesses and by aging municipal systems that may leak as much as they deliver. People take cheap, clean water for granted until there is a drought.

Last month's storms eased the immediate problem and the fears receded. Conservation lost some of its urgency. "Water's just not a really sexy subject until you're out of it," says Ms. Phelan.

The Water Resources Council, an independent agency which coordinates water planning, said in a 1978 report that there were "critical problems" with the nation's water supply.

Among them: — There are inadequate supplies of surface water in streams, rivers and reservoirs in all 21 water resources regions of the United States.

— Ground water, in underground formations known as aquifers, is being used faster than it can be replenished, particularly in the High Plains area.

Some 2 million people get their water from the Ogallala Aquifer, a 225,000-square-mile system from Texas to South Dakota. But so much water has been pumped from the system that the water table is falling by 3 feet a year in some places, and researchers at an eight-state water conference last week said the underground supply will be dried up in 40 years.

Surface water is being polluted, with the most serious problems in the Great Lakes area. There are two types of pollution: point-source pollution which is caused largely by the discharge of municipal and industrial waste into the water, and non-point-source pollution which stems from runoff from urban, agricultural, forested and mining areas.

The quality of our drinking water is often poor. More than half of the nation's 3,700 largest cities have failed to meet the standards of the 1977 Clean Water Act, and more stringent standards are coming to deal with new pollutants like synthetic chemicals.

The council concluded that "a nationwide effort to coordinate (water) management and planning... is needed to avert a possible water crisis in (some) parts of the country by the turn of the century."

There are political and economic barriers to that kind of effort, however. A power struggle between Congress and the Carter administration, for example, resulted in no new water projects by either the Army Corps of Engineers or the Water and Power Resources Service of the Interior Department for three years.

The new secretary of the interior, James G. Watt, says the Reagan administration is committed to developing the nation's resources, but cannot afford to propose any new projects because of the poor state of the economy.

The weather pattern that caused the winter dryness was unusually rare. Its impact was severe because it followed a summer heat wave that dried up water reserves. In early February, reservoirs in the Northeast held as little as 30 percent of capacity. At one point, Greenwich, Conn., was down to an 18-day supply of water. Streamflow along the lower Mississippi River was at record low levels, only 25 percent to 40 percent of normal during January.

The drought was spotty, but widespread. Almost no part of the country was unaffected, according to Dr. Robert A. Clark, associate director of hydrology for the weather service.

"There's no question the recent rain has made a difference," said weather service chief Don Whitten. "It's looking better."

The reservoirs in the Northeast generally are at 60 percent to 80 percent of capacity. Clark said it will take 10 inches to 15 inches of rain over the next three to six months to bring the water levels up to normal.

He said the spring rains, in March, April and May, almost always bring at least six inches to the region. There is a 50-50 chance of 10 inches and one chance in 20 of 15 inches.

Whitten said the Mississippi is "still low, but it's not as low as it was."

Eight inches of rain in the next two to three months will replenish the river, he said. The storms already have replenished much of the soil moisture in the Midwest, removing, at least temporarily, the threat to the winter wheat crop. Clark said the recent rains "probably broke the drought agriculturally," but he said that there are still some shortages.

J.R.'s private stock heads overseas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Contrary to the short life of the late Billy Beer, J.R. Beer is still around after five months of production and is spreading overseas.

Brewers of the beer, labeled "from the private stock of J.R. Ewing," anticipate shipping as many as 1 million cases of it to other countries beginning later this month.

Ewing is the arch-villain of the "Dallas" television series, and pre-orders for the beer have already been received from England, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Japan and other countries where the highly-rated soap box drama is extremely popular.

Inquiries have been received from 11 countries in all, said Jerry Jackson, a Fort Worth attorney who represents a group of unidentified investors who conceived the idea of J.R. Beer.

One reason J.R. Beer has outlasted Billy Beer, named for the brother of former president Jimmy Carter, is that it tastes better, said Frank Spinosa, vice president of marketing for Pearl Brewing Co. The company brewed Billy Beer for three months and now is producing J.R.

Spinosa said his brewery quit producing Billy Beer when it received complaints about its taste and its label owners refused to change the formula.

Some thought Billy Beer was so bad that, right after it was introduced, a local chili parlor had a dance contest and gave the winners a six-pack of Billy Beer. The losers got two six-packs.

"Billy Beer hurt us to a certain extent," Spinosa said.

"First of all, Billy Beer was not the quality of the product we have now. We had to produce Billy Beer for a certain area of the United States and we finally got out of it because they would not let us change the formulation. We absolutely despised the formulation that they had, but that was part of the contract."

Jackson said he never tried Billy Beer.

"But I heard it had a vile odor, and most people I know say they couldn't get past the odor to taste it," he said.

Clements' plan to hire aliens gets backing

Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements' grand plan for legalizing Mexicans for working in the United States — once laughed at by many state and federal officials — must be considered more seriously these days.

Clements obviously has the ear of President Reagan on the subject, and that's an important ear to have.

Last week, CBS-TV aired an interview of the president by Walter Cronkite that included a question about the problem of illegal aliens.

Reagan's reply, as viewers heard, was that he is intrigued by an idea for issuing documents for Mexicans to come to the United States to work temporarily.

That would end the exploitations that now often occur and still would provide needed workers, he said.

The televised part included only a reference to the idea being supported by border state governors both in the United States and Mexico.

Edited out was a specific reference to Clements and further comments on the plan.

At his weekly news conference two days later, Clements expressed pleasure that Reagan had endorsed the plan on national television.

He said the edited version showed Reagan has discussed the plan by phone with several of the governors on this side of the border.

Reagan had made some kind remarks about documenting Mexican workers when he campaigned in South Texas last fall. But anything said in a campaign may be considered suspect.

And, in our wacky TV-dominated world, any commitment made to Walter Cronkite on national television may be considered almost a binding contract.

(Excluding comments about the vice presidency by former President Gerald Ford, of course.)

Reagan's comments add importance to a planned June conference in El Paso involving the 10 U.S. and Mexican border-state governors. The meeting is a follow-up to one last June, in the sister city of Juarez.

Immigration problems will be a top priority for discussion in El Paso, and Clements will be carrying additional weight in his efforts to document Mexicans to work in this country.

Not only does the governor now have a friend in the White House but also he has the chairmanship of the Southwest Border Regional Commission.

When Clements first approached his fellow border governors with his idea two years ago, they were skeptical, almost amused. They and other officials pointed out that the plan seemed to leave many unanswered questions.

What, for example, do you do with illegal aliens who simply ignore the documentation requirement?

Many questions remain, but Clements says they will be worked out. At the El Paso meeting last year the governors agreed to study and make reports on certain border issues, and Clements hopes this effort will produce a sound base for his plan.

He says he will maintain close communications with a federal task force on the problem of illegal aliens. The task force is headed by Attorney General William French Smith and consist of the secretaries of state, labor and health and human

Steers even mark in win

ROSWELL — The Big Spring Steers baseball team evened their record at 2-2 and in the process won the consolation trophy in the Roswell Tournament here Saturday, scoring a 9-4 win over Amarillo Caprock.

Coahoma girls impressive in track season opener

CRANE — The Coahoma girls track team opened the season in impressive fashion here Saturday afternoon, racing for 187 points and the title in the Crane Relays.

That was 36 points better than host Crane, and far more than the remainder of the field.

The relay events spurred the Coahoma win. All three Coahoma relay quartets captured the maximum 20 points by winning their respective events.

Other first place winners for the Coahoma girls included Gayla Paige (100-hurdles and high jump) and Toby Henry (long jump).

The Coahoma girls return to action on Saturday in the fifth and sixth innings. Rusty Hayworth and Lupe Ontiveros both had three hits and three ribbies in the win, with Tom Olague hits resulting in a pair of ribbies, too.

Tommy Rodriguez was the winning pitcher, going the first four innings and allowing four hits and two runs. Tony Ontiveros came in the final two innings to record the save.

Olague and Rosson tripled in the consolation championship win, with Lupe Ontiveros having a double.

The Steers took their first win of the year on Friday, as Moe Rubio limited Arteria to four hits and benefited from an eight run outburst in the bottom of the fourth to seal a 12-2 triumph.

Mark Warren, Rodriguez and Olague were the hitting stars in the first win of the year. Warren had a pair of triples, while Rodriguez had one three-bagger. Olague contributed a pair of singles that drove in two runs.

Rodriguez also was credited with the save, hurling the final inning in scoreless fashion.

The Steers return to action this afternoon when they travel to play Lubbock Coronado, and then travel to Snyder tomorrow.

Coahoma fish take JV second

CRANE — Stanton emerged as the champion in a boys JV track meet here Saturday, with the Coahoma 9th graders placing second.

Stanton scored 133 points to claim the JV action, with the Coahoma team's 95 points good enough for second in the nine-team field.

Mike McKinley and Richard Seals provided the Coahoma 9th graders with their only first place ribbons, but there were plenty of second place finishes that provided for the 95 point day.

Jeff Dever and Monty Waters both had a pair of second place finishes, while McKinley had one second place. The Coahoma 400-meter relay team of Waters, McKinley, Seals and Scott Mayhall also finished second.

The Coahoma 9th graders return to run next weekend in the Post Meet.

Lopez-Melton wins 1st tourney in 81

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Nancy Lopez-Melton attributed her victory Sunday in the first annual $125,000 Arizona Copper Classic Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament to some aggressiveness on the greens.

"I felt I played well today and was aggressive with my puts," she said. "I didn't play conservatively. I wanted to win with birdies."

Lopez-Melton had 19 birdies in the 72-hole tournament. She shot a 68 Sunday to take the title by four strokes over runner-up Pat Bradley. Bradley and JoAnne Carner both shot rounds of 67 Sunday to set a new course record at the par-73, 6,303-yard Randolph National Municipal links. Lopez-Melton had originally broken the record with a 68 on Saturday.

Kite sneaks in to win

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — The surprises, generally, have been considerably less than pleasant for Tom Kite in his 10-year PGA Tour career.

One of the game's more accomplished performers, a very steady player, he kept finding ways not to win. He'd come close so often, so tantalizingly often, and, somehow, the victory would elude him.

Once, three years ago, he cost himself a victory. In a superlative display of integrity, he called a penalty on himself for an infraction no one else in the world knew about and, as a result, lost a tournament by one shot.

This time, however, it was different. With three holes to go, "I was thinking third place."

"What a surprise. 'It was starting to get to me,'" he said after Jack Nicklaus had opened the gates for Kite's victory Sunday in the American Motors Inverrary Classic.

"Letting the wins slip through your hands. 'You know you're good enough to win, and they just slip through your hands.' 'But this one was a surprise.'"

With the on-rushing Nicklaus aiming at Curtis Strange, Kite was all but overlooked in the run down the stretch at the 7,129-yard Inverrary Golf Club course.

But, over the last three holes, Strange and Nicklaus both knocked themselves out of it and the steady little Kite — who played those critical holes 2 under par while no one seemed to be looking — came on to win it, only his third title in a decade.

"My first win was a long time coming, and it's been a long time 'til this one," he said.

He won it with a closing 3-under-par 69 and a 274 total, 14 shots under par.

Nicklaus, who started the last round 6 shots off the pace, 3-putted for bogey on the final hole and lost by a single stroke at 275 after a last-round 68. Strange, fighting Nicklaus for the lead over most of the back nine, fell apart with bogeys on the last three holes. He was third at 277 with a closing 76.

Andy Bean and Larry Ziegler were next at 277. Ziegler went with a closing 68 and Bean with a par 72. Charles Coody and defending champion Johnny Miller were at 278. Coody chipped in on the last hole for a 69 and Miller shot 72 in the warm, hazy weather.

The victory, his first in three years, enabled Kite to pick up $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000.

With the victory enabled Philadelphia to stay one game ahead of Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Celtics 115, Knicks 94. The Celtics also got off to a sluggish start and led the Knicks by just three points, 54-51, at halftime.

The Knicks suffered a second half drought of 4½ minutes, during which they went from a 65-65 tie to a 78-65 deficit. Kevin McHale and Larry Bird led Boston with 23 points each, while Campy Russell and Sly Williams had 16 apiece for the Knicks.

Bullets 103, Bulls 99. Washington recorded a crucial victory in its fight for a 13th consecutive playoff berth. The victory, keyed by Kevin Porter's 28 points, lifted the Bullets to within one game of Chicago for the sixth and last playoff spot from the Eastern Conference.

Seven of Washington's 10 remaining regular-season games are at home. Artis Gilmore scored 23 points for the Bulls, who had won four in a row and five straight from the Bullets.

Pacers 129, Nuggets 119. Indiana survived a three-minute scoreless span in the fourth quarter to defeat Denver for its 39th victory of the season, the most the club has ever recorded in the NBA. James Edwards and Johnny Davis had 28 points each for the Pacers, with Davis also handing off 13 assists. Dan Issel's 36 points were high for Denver.

Trail Blazers 120, Warriors 112. Mychal Thompson scored four of his 33 points in overtime to lead Portland past Golden State.

There will be a meeting tonight for the Big Spring Slow-Pitch Softball Association at 7:00 p.m. league prexy John Weeks announced.

The meeting will take place at the Johnny Stone Park, and anyone interested is urged to attend.

NCAA admits 49-teams not the best around

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — If you feel the 48-team NCAA Basketball Tournament is leaving out a lot of good teams this year, you'll get no argument from the NCAA.

"We don't have the best 48 teams in the country," Wayne Duke, chairman of the nine-man Division I Basketball Committee, admitted Sunday when the bracket was announced.

The problem, Duke said, was the rash of upsets in conference post-season tournaments that saw regular-season league champions fall away while teams of lesser achievement captured their conference's automatic invitation.

"All of the upsets did cause consternation," Duke said. "This can mean certain teams will qualify sometimes at the expense of the conference champions."

Twenty-two "at large" invitations were extended to go with 26 automatic qualifiers, mostly winners of postseason tournaments. Highly ranked teams that stumbled in postseason tournaments and forced the committee to use at-large invitations on them included Virginia, ranked No. 4 in the Associated Press Top Twenty, seventh-ranked Kentucky, and third-ranked Louisiana State.

Some notables on the outside looking in are Minnesota and Michigan, both 17-10, Tulsa, 21-7, San Jose State, 21-8, and Syracuse, 18-11. There are others.

"Whenever you have (postseason tournament) updates it eliminates the possibilities open to the committee," Duke said. "We spent more time deliberating seeding." As the bracket was worked out, the top four teams in the final six or eight teams, than anything else other than

AP poll were made the top seeds in each of the four regionals. No. 1 Oregon State is seeded No. 1 in the West Regional, No. 2 DePaul is the top seed in the Midwest, No. 3

LSU is top seed in the Midwest and fourth-ranked Virginia is the No. 1 seed in the East.

The top four seeds in each regional receive byes into the second round.

Duke, commissioner of the Big 10, said the committee spent "an arduous 2 1/2 days choosing and seeding the field."

"This is a wide-open field," he said. "That's the tag you should place on this tournament. I think it's a tremendous field in terms of matchups down the line."

US makes figure skating progress

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — In the words of figure skating coach Don Laws, "It was somewhat of a banner year" for the United States at the 1981 World Figure Skating Championship.

The one gold and two silver medals won by skaters Scott Hamilton, David Santee and Elaine Zayak, respectively, represented the best showing by an American squad in world competition in recent years.

The Soviets won four medals. No other country picked up more than one. The Americans just barely lost another medal in the final ice dancing event Saturday night when Judy Blumberg and Michael Seibert took a fluky and uncharacteristic tumble to the ice.

The move cost them their third-place standing to Natalia Bestemanova and Andrei Minenkov, who won the world championship in 1975 and 1977, marked only the second time since 1970 that a team other than the Soviets won the dance event. It was also the first time since 1969 that a British team won the gold dance medal after a sometimes-sassy, often evocative routine that the sellout Civic Center crowd loved.

Their victory over the Soviet runnerup couple, Irina Moisseeva and Andrei Minenkov, who won the world championship in 1975 and 1977, marked only the second time since 1970 that a team other than the Soviets won the dance event. It was also the first time since 1969 that a British team won the

Nolan Richardson, Tulsa get NIT bid

 ODU's home court last December. Should both teams win their respective tournaments, the NIT would have the distinction of having as its champion the only team to beat the national champ this season.

Tulsa is coached by Nolan Richardson, who led Western Texas to a national juno title last year.

Syracuse was denied an automatic NCAA berth because the Big East is a relatively new conference. But the Orange, 18-11, will be joined in the NIT by two other Big East teams — St. John's, 17-10, appearing in its 24th NIT and 17th consecutive postseason tournament, and Connecticut, 19-8 after being unbeaten midway through the season.

Clemson was one of two ACC teams picked, joined by Duke, 15-12. And the Big Ten, often mentioned with the ACC as the nation's strongest basketball conferences, was honored with three NIT selections — Michigan, Purdue and Minnesota, all 17-10.

"The NIT field may be almost as strong as the NCAA," said Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher. "It will certainly add some prestige to the NIT."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"I'm trying to practice my reading but Dolly won't listen."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAR. 10, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds you inclined to think in a negative manner about problems that come up. Look upon the constructive side of things and gain your goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to help associates solve a problem and gain their goodwill. Don't take risks with money at this time. Avoid a troublemaker.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to use utmost care in motion and avoid possible accident. Steer clear of one who likes to criticize you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may be confused about finances in the morning, but later you can advance with clarity. Cut down on expenses.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be more kind instead of forceful with your friends and gain their respect. Not a good day for taking risks.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be precise in handling important business matters and avoid trouble later. A new plan needs more study to be successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't criticize a loyal friend in the morning or there could be a severance of connections. Think along optimistic lines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Wait until the afternoon before going after your aims and get excellent results. Show others that you are alert and clever.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't postpone important duties in the morning or you will regret it. Don't trust your intuition during the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some business or other matters could worry you during the day, but by evening all is okay. Maintain your poise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning may find an associate to be annoying, so keep your distance. Postpone handling a business matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are gregarious by nature and this is a fine time to visit old friends and exchange views. Safeguard your health.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A fine day to contact influential persons who can help you advance in your career. Make long-range plans for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who must learn to be more objective and less emotional when clear thinking is needed. Give the best education you can afford and success will follow. Teach to keep an open mind. There's musical ability here.

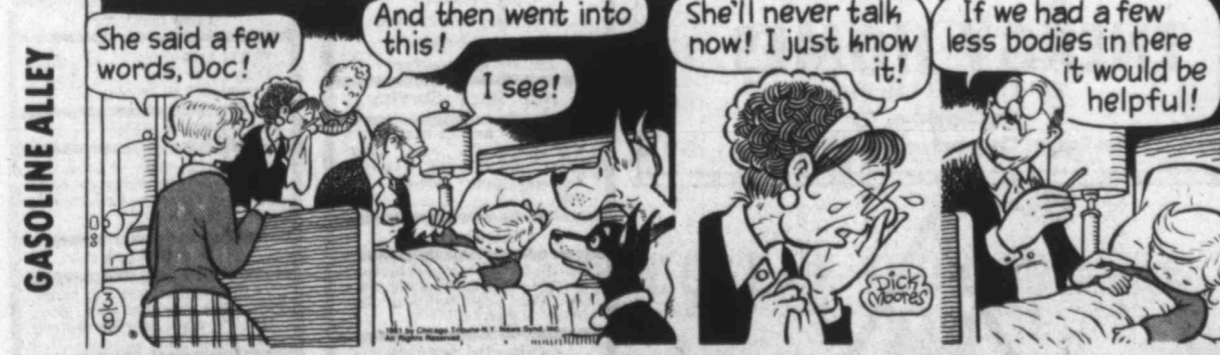

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
