Syria opposes military solution

Hijackers extend deadline 30 hours

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The hijackers of a Pakistani jetliner with more than 100 hostages aboard extended their deadline to blow up the plane for 30 hours to 11 a.m. EST Thursday, and a new effort was reported under way to ease the crisis. Sources said two of the three hijackers are brothers and that their father has arrived in Damascus to try to talk his sons into releasing the hostages. Meanwhile, the Syrian government said it opposed "any military solution because it would expose innocent lives to danger."

One of the hijackers said in English in a conversation conducted by radio with Syrian negotiators in the airport control tower today, "OK, the deadline will be 6 p.m. — 11 a.m. EST

— Thursday March 12."

A short time earlier the hijackers had rejected the Syrians' request to extend the original deadline which had been set for noon — 5 a.m. EST — today.

At that time, little more than an hour before the deadline, one of the hijackers told the negotiators "We have given you 24 hours to accept our demands and we refuse to extend the deadline."

But as the conversation continued one Syrian mediator was heard by reporters saying, "Please give us a chance to pass on your demands to your government."

It was at this point that the hijackers agreed to extend the deadline.

A Pakistani government spokesman in Islamabad said the extension was requested by Pakistan and made through Syria's chief hijack negotiator, Brig. Gen. Mohammed Khali.

"They were reluctant at first (to extend the deadline) but when pressed by Gen. Khali they asked for 20 minutes' time to discuss it among themselves," the spokesman said. "They finally agreed but warned they would not extend the deadline again."

Syrian officials doubted the hijackers would blow up the Boeing 720 seized 10 days ago. But they conceded they might pick out one or more of the hostages and kill them, as they did a Pakistani diplomat last Friday.

Reagan promises to work closely with Canada to solve differences

OTTAWA (AP) — President Reagan, brushing aside U.S. differences with Canada, promised today to save America from "potential economic calamity" and win back the confidence of its allies and trading partners. In a televised address before the Canadian Parliament near the end of a brief state visit, Reagan also urged Canada to stand firm with the U.S. against "continued Soviet adventurism across the earth."

With Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau sitting nearby in the chamber of the House of Commons, the president pledged to "work steadily on those issues still before us" — such as fishing rights, air pollution, energy policy and military aid to El Salvador. But, he said, "let's speak no more of differences today."

The ailing U.S. economy clearly was uppermost on the president's mind. He outlined the international implications of his program to restore America's economic health through $48.6 billion in spending cuts and a 27.5 percent reduction in tax rates over three years.

"When these personal (income tax) cuts are combined with tax cuts to provide our business and industry with new capital for innovation and growth, we will be creating millions of new jobs — many of them, ultimately, on your side of the border," Reagan said.

Before he flew back to Washington, Reagan was signing a five-year renewal of the North American Air Defense Agreement between the two countries, as well as an accord expected to provide millions of dollars annually in Social Security and pension benefits to people who live and work in both the United States and Canada.

External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan told reporters at a breakfast that Canada urged the United States during the Reagan-Trudeau talks Tuesday to press the ruling junta in El Salvador to honor its promise to hold free elections next year.

Reagan's first foreign trip as president, which began Tuesday with a demonstration by sign-toting protesters, was clouded from the onset.

Before the trip, Canadians publicly declared their opposition to U.S. military aid to El Salvador; Reagan withdrew from the Senate a fisheries treaty the Canadians had sought for two years; and the administration was forced to "withdraw" from the Canadian government a letter sent by the State Department that criticized Canada's proposed energy policy.

Water rate hike opposed

Jean Rowe will replace Mac McKinnon on council

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A lot of ground was covered in Tuesday night's meeting of the city council, including the naming of Jean Rowe to replace Mac McKinnon on the council.

Council members learned Tuesday two of the major users of water supplied by the city oppose a planned water rate increase.

Mike and Glenn Hemphill of Mitchell County Utilities and Grady Morris, owner of Morris Laundry, stated the proposed water rate increase would cause problems for them with their customers. Morris told the council "the increase won't kill me but it will sure hurt."

Mike Hemphill said if the city goes through with its planned rate he would have to double his rates and his customers can't take that. The council agreed to take another look at the proposed rate increase when another budget workshop is held Monday.

Police Chief Jimmy Roundtree reported his department is going to nip in the bud two major problems of the city: An alarming increase in traffic accidents and criminal mischief and vandalism. Roundtree stated stricter law enforcement will be put into effect regarding these two problem areas and he is sure the police departments has the full support of the council.

Roundtree also told the council that a dance sponsored last Friday by the police department was a big step forward in establishing good communications between the department and Colorado City's young people.

In additional business, three requests were made from the city's motel occupancy tax which included one for $1,715 from Anne Gregory for a child growth and development workshop in May. Money was requested by Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Hollis for the annual AJRA rodeo. City manager Brenda Tarter suggested that $5,000 be earmarked for buying new Christmas lights.

Tuesday's meeting was for the purpose of receiving requests only and no action was taken.

A number of other items also were discussed at the meeting, including a resolution which passed that stated "no one can sell, trade, or give a way Centennial merchandise without first getting written approval of the Mitchell County Centennial Committee." The proposal was approved unanimously despite the fact City Attorney Pete McKinney said the ordinance couldn't be enforced.

Permission was also given to the city to advertise for bids on seal coating which will be used for approximately 23 local blocks, with $25,000 earmarked for the project.

Following request by Slowpitch president

City will try to improve park

By JAMES WERRELL
Big Spring City Councilmen said, Tuesday night, that they would try to help improve playing conditions at Johnny Stone Softball Park. The land under the park is owned by the Big Spring Industrial Foundation.

During its regular meeting, the council listened to an appeal from John Weeks, president of the Big Spring Slowpitch Softball Association, for help in improving restrooms, lights, parking areas, and bleachers at the park. Weeks offered to donate $1,000 from association funds to help the project.

"For the past three years, we have tried to do our own maintenance, but it just got away from us. We had the $1,000 to try to hire someone to work during the season, but it wasn't enough," said Weeks. "We'd like to give the city that money to help toward hiring a maintenance man to work at the park 40 hours a week."

Councilman Jack Y. Smith expressed some doubt about the city's ability to go along with all of Weeks' suggestions because of the timing of the request.

"If we had known about these needs when we prepared the budget, we could have anticipated the costs. But with only five and a half weeks left in the (fiscal) year, I am a little hesitant to commit to anything," he said.

All of the councilmen, however, admitted to the bad conditions at the park, and agreed to search for a solution.

"John's assessment of the conditions of the park was very accurate," said City Manager Don Davis. "If we can get the $1,000 and some other capital improvements money, and maybe some help from the county, we can probably help," he added.

So, when Weeks and a dozen other association members left the room, they had an open-ended commitment from the city to at least try to improve the park.

The council agreed to large expenditures for a variety of equipment through a lease-purchase plan over the next five years. A total of $340,555 in bids on heavy equipment, and $73,856.16 on lighter-weight equipment were approved by members.

The heavy equipment will include a fire rescue van; a traffic truck; two sanitation trucks; a backhoe; several dumpsters; and a dozer. A trailer for the dozer, estimated at $39,115, will be purchased later.

The lighter equipment will include three compact pickups; a three-quarter ton pickup; a one-ton truck chassis; a one-ton truck with tilt bed; a two-ton truck chassis; and two lawnmowers.

The first reading of a resolution to execute an agreement with the engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper of Lubbock was approved by the council. The firm will oversee various street, water line and sewer improvements during the summer.

Bennett Reeves, president of the firm, provided some background on the company for members. The firm was formed in 1945, and is of medium size with 60 employees, 45 of whom are stationed in Lubbock.

"We are primarily a civil engineering firm, and in 1958, we decided to operate only in West Texas," said Reeves. "We will begin the design phase of the program soon, at a maximum cost to the city of $18,000. After that, we will negotiate fees in the way that the city finds most advantageous."

Following the presentation, Councilman Larry Miller praised Reeves for the thoroughness of his firm's proposal and his cooperation with the council.

In a discussion of the city's mineral rights in the Big Spring Industrial Park, the council learned that a survey of the property there is 90-percent complete. The council also agreed to hire John Ferguson, local attorney, to draw up specifications for bids on the rights once the survey is completed.

In other business, councilmen: — Granted a temporary request for a mobile home at 708 N.W. 8th submitted by Mary Viera.

— Passed on final reading an ordinance calling for an April 4 city election.

— Passed on final reading a resolution to give money to the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for industrial development.

— Appointed election judges. There were only two appointments instead of five for this election since the polling places have been consolidated to two locations.

— Recorded election ballot numbers.

Bubonic plague outbreak possible in West Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — With public health officials already worried about an outbreak of rabies among domestic animals, predator control experts are keeping an eye on the possibility of bubonic plague being carried from field rodents to domestic rats in West Texas.

Scientists say a danger to humans exists when plague carriers such as ground squirrels and prairie dogs shift their disease-carrying load of flea to the massive numbers of rats in urban areas.

A few cases of plague-infected wild animals have been reported in more desolate parts of West Texas and New Mexico, and veterinary doctors are fearful the problem could get worse if the carriers reach the metropolitan areas of San Antonio, Dallas and Houston where rats are already problem pests.

Action/reaction: Dollar difference

Q. A local restaurant has been running an ad in the Herald advertising two steaks for one price. In another newspaper published in a nearby town, the same ad has been running, only the steaks are two for $1 less. Why the difference?

A. According to the man who manages both the local restaurant and the one in the nearby town, the price difference is a matter of economics.

He explained that the restaurant in Big Spring is housed in a newer building, and construction costs must be figured into the operational costs. Other items, such as advertising costs, the price of doing business locally, and other miscellaneous bills called for a dollar difference locally, he said.

Alfalfa ad sells like hot cakes

Perhaps the horse or cow which would be eating it saw the ad first and notified its owner that a quantity of alfalfa hay was being offered for sale in The Herald want-ad section.

What ever the reason, the ad ran only one time in the "Too Late to Classify," section of The Herald.

The customer informed the newspaper he was 'very pleased' with the results the ad for 230 bales of the fodder got. The first person who called purchased the hay.

If you would like to achieve similar results with your ad, call one of The Herald's friendly sales people by dialing 263-7331 and initiate the order.

Citizens Federal Credit Union celebrates 26th

Citizens Federal Credit Union celebrated its 26th anniversary Tuesday at the credit union building on FM 700. During the day, credit union employees served coffee, punch, and Girl Scout cookies to their members.

Citizens Federal Credit Union has undergone some major changes since it was organized March 10, 1955, at the former Webb AFB. At the time it was chartered, the credit union had a total of 22 members and $110 in assets. By the 26th anniversary, the credit union's membership exceeded 20,000 and its assets stood above the $34,000,000 mark.

In addition to the growth, the credit union has also undergone two name changes, several charter amendments, and new locations. The credit union was originally called Webb Air Force Base Federal Credit Union. That name was shortened to Webb Federal Credit Union when the Department of the Air Force announced they were considering closing Webb AFB in 1976. Once the base was slated for closure, the name of the credit union was changed to Citizens Federal Credit Union to better reflect its new field of membership.

As a result of the various outside influences, the credit union has had many charter amendments. The most notable of these being the amendment in April 1977 that changed the credit union's charter from a military to a community charter. The other major amendment was the one in November 1980 allowing the credit union to expand its membership to include most persons who either work or reside in Borden, Glasscock and Howard counties.

Because of the recent growth in membership and services at the credit union, Mel Prather, public relations director at the institution, said he felt the birthday celebration would provide the credit union and employees of the credit union the opportunity to meet over a cup of coffee or glass of punch and discuss changes at the credit union and how these changes affected the members.

"We've all gotten too automated in recent years," Prather said. "We feel that we're missing some of the opportunity to get feedback from our members concerning the services currently being offered by the credit union and the changing needs of our members."

"In these discussions," Prather continued, "we found that many were not aware of some of our major services or felt that we had either curtailed or changed some of our services simply because some of the other financial institutions had done so," he said.

He went on to say that many members expressed concern over the recent budget cuts by President Reagan and their affects on the federally insured student loan programs being offered through the credit union. There was also some concern over the uncertain national economic environment and how that affected both the member and the credit union, as well as the rates being charged on large deposits and the interest on many loan categories.

Prather went on to say that the credit union would be holding a similar function on next Tuesday in recognition of St. Patrick's Day.

Police Beat Thief steals pistol from car

Crime was light in the city, Tuesday.

W. Highway 80, 11:30 p.m. Tuesday, paid for his gas, and drove off. Twenty minutes later, he realized he had left his wallet at the station.

But when he returned to pick it up, it was gone. It had contained $400 in cash.

Officials at the Owens-Eleven Store at 300 S. Owens reported that a blond woman in a Ford Thunderbird stole $15 worth of unleaded gasoline from the pump there, 2:50 a.m. today.

Sometime Thursday, thieves stole a set of T-tops from a 1977 Buick Regal belonging to William H. Young Jr., Barcelona Apartments. The tops were valued at $800.

In Tuesday's lone mishap, a parked vehicle belonging to Joyce Clanton, 3229 Cornell, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene in the parking lot of the Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center, 5:16 p.m.

Lower court rulings in oil, gas royalty fight upheld

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court today upheld lower court rulings in an oil and gas royalty fight from Howard County.

Heirs of Mr. and Mrs. D.P. Bohannon filed the suit against the estate of Susie H. McKenney. They sought title to an undivided one-sixty-fourth nonparticipating royalty interest in a land tract that produces oil and gas.

A district judge in Howard County ruled in favor of the McKenney estate, and the Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland affirmed that opinion. The Supreme Court found no reversible error in those decisions.

Court records indicate that the dispute is based on several transfers of title between 1929 and 1932 and how the various warranty deeds referred to did not refer to reserved royalty interests.

Moore posts $5,000 bail

Bobby Lee Moore, 38, of 1504 Sycamore, was transferred to county jail at 11:05 a.m. Tuesday following a grand jury indictment on a charge of criminal mischief.

A $5,000 bond was set by District Judge Jim Gregg, and Moore was later released when that was posted.

Woman draws prison term

Irma Jean Dobson, 34, a resident of the Thrifty Lodge Motel, was transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections today following a revocation of probation.

Ms. Dobson was originally charged with theft by check. She was given a three-year sentence.

Students to record Centennial history

Students from the Big Spring High School will be making contacts this week with various churches and organizations soliciting information for the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial history book.

The book, which will be approximately 100 pages in length, will record the history of Big Spring and Howard County in photos and text. It will be sold during the days of the area-wide celebration.

The various churches, groups, clubs, unions, and organizations in the area are being asked to assist students from the local high school in the preparation of this history and program book for the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial.

The information being gathered by these area youths will be included in the permanent record that committee workers hope will be as complete as possible.

Reagan proposal may reduce restrictions on CIA spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA could try to secretly alter the activities of U.S. groups with foreign ties under a Reagan administration working paper already attacked in Capitol Hill as undermining "the only meaningful, legal restraint" on government spying on law-abiding U.S. citizens.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of a draft presidential order that, if approved, would sharply reduce the restrictions on CIA spying inside this country and the limitations on any intelligence agency's use of break-ins, physical surveillance and secret infiltration against U.S. citizens and corporations.

No longer would such intrusive tactics be reserved for use against only those U.S. citizens or corporations reasonably believed to be agents of a foreign power. No longer would the intelligence agencies be ordered to use the least intrusive means of gathering information. And no longer would the CIA be barred from infiltrating some U.S. organizations for the purpose of influencing their behavior. Nor would the use of these techniques have to be reviewed in advance by the attorney general, as a current presidential executive order requires. The first published reports about the working paper prompted deputy CIA director Bobby R. Inman to call a rare press briefing at the agency's Langley, Va., headquarters Tuesday.

Inman said the proposals had been developed by an inter-agency task force, headed by CIA general counsel Daniel Silver, in response to the administration's request to learn what "laws, executive orders or policies we believe inhibit our effectiveness in terrorism and counterintelligence."

The Justice Department proposed a broad new program of bilingual instruction for Texas school districts enrolling 20 or more students who lack English language proficiency.

The department's proposal was submitted to Justice as part of the suit over bilingual education brought by the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund and the Harvard Center for Law and Education.

Two packers, gas stolen

Jimmy Honea, an employee at Taylor Implement Co. on the Lamesa Highway, told members of the Howard County Sheriff's Department Tuesday that two Big Spring R.J. packers had been stolen from the company lot.

The packers were valued at $974.

The Sheriff's Department is also investigating the theft of 50 gallons of gasoline taken from Special Research and Sales, located on Highway 87. Robert Roten reported that the gasoline was taken from a truck parked at the facility sometime Sunday night. A lock was cut off a gate to gain entry to the facility.

Mike Sholes, Sand Springs Fina Service Station, reported that two black males and a black female came to his station, purchased some gas, and promised to return with the money later. They never returned.

Texas fails to submit bilingual proposals

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The Texas Education Agency has failed to meet a federal judge's deadline for submission of a plan to upgrade the level of bilingual instruction in the state's public school districts.

District Judge William Wayne Justice had ordered the state to submit its plan by Monday after he ruled in January that the bilingual instruction offered to Texas' Spanish-speaking students is inadequate.

Two plaintiffs in the suit and the U.S. Justice Department met the deadline and the plans they submitted to Justice both call for substantial increases in the number of public school teachers with bilingual skills.

Cast explains excitement about 'Play of Our Own ---III'

Opening night for "Play of Our Own ---III" is approaching, and the men and women rehearsing for the play at Howard College are excited.

"I think the play is going to be funny and fun," says Bob Coltrane.

Coltrane plays the role of a hearing man, David Bone, who is married to a deaf woman and who is about to become a father.

"I think the play will be good for the hearing because it will give them more awareness and knowledge of what it's like in the home of a deaf family," said Coltrane.

Coltrane says the play portrays a lot of things that happen in the real world with the deaf and the hearing.

Cecilia McKenzie portrays Mrs. Oster, a hearing woman who shares a hospital room with Ruth Bone, the deaf wife of David.

"At first, I didn't think the part fit me," said McKenzie, "But I just had to try it. I think it's well-cast."

Debbie Jones, who plays Ruth Bone, says the character she plays is a lot like her.

"In the play, Ruth is asked to take part in an experiment. When I had my baby a year ago, I was asked to take part in an experiment for a birth method," said Jones.

"I'm also married to a hearing man," said Jones. "The play has been a big challenge for me."

Marcus Myers plays Ruth's deaf father, Edgar Daniels.

1,202 Texas rigs working

The number of working oil rigs in the state rose slightly this week.

As of Monday, 1,202 rigs were making hole, compared to 1,180 for the previous week. This tops both the 1,125 total of a month ago, and the 924 total for this time last year.

The national total also rose from 3,534 last week to 3,568 this week. Again, this tops both the 3,451 total for last month, and the 2,261 total for this time last year.

Edgar, who was opposed to his daughter marrying a hearing man, wants the baby to be born deaf, which conflicts with David's desire that the baby be born with the ability to hear.

Performances will be March 12, 13, and 14 in the Howard College Auditorium.

Admission for the play is $2 for students, $3 for people over 65 and $4 for everyone else. Curtain time all three nights is 8:00 p.m.

Houston man threatened after kidnapers paid

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston businessman who paid $100,000 ransom to free his son said the kidnapers continue to call him and have threatened to kill him if the full story of the abduction should appear in the news media.

"This thing isn't over yet," said sheet metal firm owner Milton Dwayne Hudson.

Eldon Trent Hudson, 20, a Sam Houston State University sophomore, was taken from the family's summer home Friday near Huntsville. He was found bound and gagged in a ditch 12 hours later, after his father said he paid the ransom.

Harris County Sheriff's Deputy Norman Sanford said Tuesday investigators had few clues and were faced with a kidnapping "that wasn't cooked up in a couple of hours over a few beers.

"The kidnapers put a great of thought into this. It just went down so smooth. When they called Mr. Hudson the first time, they knew he was called by his middle name, Dwayne."

And, Sanford said, "they had Mr. Hudson's unlisted phone number, indicating they had put some thought into it."

The abduction was not reported until Monday.

Sanford said young Hudson went to see what had activated a burglar alarm at the summer house. There he was grabbed, a pillow case placed over his head, and was pushed into the trunk of his own car.

The demand for the $100,000 in small bills was made about four hours later.

Grant provides look at independant oilmen

A research project on the independent oilmen in Texas is being made possible by a grant from the Texas Historical Foundation.

This study is being undertaken by Dr. Roger Olien, faculty member at the University of Texas Permian Basin, and Dr. Diana Olien of Midland, and will concentrate on oilmen of the Permian Basin.

According to Texas Historical Foundation President, Mrs. Charles L. Bybee of Houston, "independent oilmen are a unique group of entrepreneurs whose story has been neglected. The Foundation is pleased to play a part in such a worthwhile and ambitious project."

This will be the first comprehensive study of the part independents played in the development of our country's petroleum resources. Research will be conducted into the functions of independents in the industry and their methods of operation.

The Oliens will be contacting numerous independents in Odessa, Midland and other Permian Basin towns to hold personal interviews.

Although study will be concentrated on Texas businessmen, other areas of importance such as New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisiana will be included.

The Texas Historical Foundation grant is being funded by donations from several Permian Basin oilmen.

Bill not written in public's interest

The best surprises sometimes come in small packages. So can the worst.

A bill was recently introduced in the Texas House of Representatives embracing only one page of copy. What it said, however, should set up an abundance of protest, both written and oral. House Bill 1040, as written by Rep. Charles Evans, a Democrat from Hurst, would prohibit cities from requiring signs and billboards to be removed unless the city is willing to buy the structure and the ground beneath it.

THE WORDING OF the proposed legislation makes one wonder how Mr. Evans got elected in the first place. It's language is simple enough. If a city "condemns" a sign or a billboard, it has to compensate the owner for "confiscating" his or her property.

What HB 1040 doesn't say is that its real purpose is to prevent city councils from improving the quality of the urban environment by requiring the phased-out removal of some of the millions of signs that clutter streets and neighborhoods in municipalities throughout Texas.

Evans' bill was inspired by a decision handed down by the U.S. Supreme Court, which rejected the billboard industry's argument that municipal sign controls are unconstitutional. Several years ago, the City of Lubbock approved a zoning regulation requiring the removal of signs from areas where too many signs are concentrated, and the removal of jumbo billboards. Billboard owners were given six and a half years to remove structures that did not conform to the city's regulations. A poster company took the case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, claiming that Lubbock's sign controls amounted to the taking of property without compensation and therefore violated the Constitution. This argument was rejected, and the case was ultimately decided in favor of the city.

COINCIDENTALLY, HOWEVER, the state and federal courts held that the main reason the city's regulations passed constitutional muster was because they provided "a reasonable time" for sign owners to recoup their investment before having to remove their signs. In reaching this conclusion, the courts were guided by information showing the depreciation period used by the poster company for tax purposes ranged from five to ten years, and that all but a handful of the company's signs would be fully depreciated by the time they had to be removed.

The lobbyists for the Outdoor Advertising Association are pushing hard for passage of HB 1040, arguing that municipal unfair, and perhaps even unconstitutional. They proceeded to go the legislature to force the taxing public to pay the billboard industry for removing its signs. What they really want is a cash bonus from city treasuries, because many of the signs have a book value of zero.

It is in the interest of most of us that the Texas Legislature should reject HB 1040.

Trudeau challenge

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — Any study of leadership in this dwindling third of the century must reckon with the curious figure President Reagan encounters this week on his first official venture outside the country. Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada is an enigmatic, changeable man, regarded by many as quixotic.

But amid the most trying circumstances he has held power with only a brief interruption for more than a dozen years. Doing business with Trudeau thus poses a true test of Reagan as president.

MANY HEROIC TRAITS come together in the Canadian leader. He is handsome, well born, rich, intelligent, articulate and adept at practically everything. But none of these qualities determined his political fortune. What counted more was an occasion — the emergence of tension between Quebec, with its French culture, and the rest of the country, with its English culture, as the central issue of Canadian politics. Trudeau combined in his person the dual national heritage. He rose overnight from comparative obscurity to the top of the greasy pole. Since 1968, his destiny and Canada's destiny have been intertwined.

Bilingualism, the use of French on equal terms with English throughout the country, was his first enthusiasm. It earned him enough credit in Quebec to stamp out the violent phase of the separatist movement, and then to defeat a referendum that would have put the province on the road to separatism in stages.

But Canada's identity crisis turned out to run far deeper than language. Quebec seeks a surge of economic modernization as well as more political autonomy. The other provinces have reacted against bilingualism. Those with energy riches — Alberta and British Columbia and (more recently) the eastern provinces — have asserted provincial rights to exploit oil and gas for their own benefit.

Against that threat of national disintegration, Trudeau has mobilized an uncompromising federalism. He is now driving through the Canadian Parliament legislation that would translate the British North American Act of 1867, which has been Canada's basic law, into a new constitution. The new constitution would protect individuals through a bill of rights but it would centralize economic power in Ottawa. It would allow for amendments by popular referendum rather than by provincial approval.

PROVINCIAL LEADERS, except in the Canadian heartland of Ontario, have fought back at many levels. They have opposed Trudeau in the Canadian Parliament and in the courts they have threatened to hold back delivery of oil. As a result, the British government of Margaret Thatcher has become nervous about the otherwise routine matter of handing the constitution off to Canada.

But Trudeau, fighting for his life and his country, has outflanked the provincial chauvinists by two maneuvers that emphasize Canadian nationalism. First, there is a new energy law that works to Canadianize development of oil and gas. Since the international companies own most of the drilling rights, Trudeau, instead of being locked into a petty quarrel with the provinces, is standing for Canada against Big Oil.

Secondly, Trudeau has come up with a foreign policy that asserts Canada's independence from the American connection.

Dropsy is congestive heart

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband went into the hospital for 10 days. On his bill the hospital stated that his problem was "CHF" and "edema." His doctor said he had dropsy. He's been told to take it easy. Some of our friends call it heart leakage. Is all this the same? My husband is depressed. — N.P.

They all refer to the same problem. That's the short answer. Dropsy is the old-fashioned word for congestive heart failure (CHF). I'll try to explain it to you. Your husband need not be depressed.

The ventricle is a heart chamber where blood is stored between the beats that pump it out into the body. The chamber is constantly refilling itself by way of incoming veins that carry fresh blood from the lungs. Now, if you will, consider the ventricle to be a water-filled bucket constantly being refilled by a garden hose (representing the veins). Further, consider yourself as taking the place of the heart's pump by using a ladle to empty the bucket so that it won't overflow.

The heart has to pump 115,000 times a day, so your arms would get pretty tired in a short time and the bucket would begin overflowing and overflowing, in this case backing up into the hose, just as the ventricle blood backs up into the veins. That is dropsy (or congestive heart failure).

As the blood backs up, pressure rises in the veins and eventually its fluid leaks out into places where it does not belong. It can spill over into the lungs, causing shortness of breath. Or it can leak out into body tissue causing swelling (edema). This is all happening because the heart's pumping mechanism has become weakened. That is not unusual, since by age 70 the average heart has beat about 300 million times.

Congestive heart failure can be treated successfully. Digitalis drugs can strengthen weakened heart muscles to eliminate the backup. Sometimes a bit of the extra fluid can be removed by diuretics. They allow the body to get rid of excess fluid (through urination). Your husband may have to limit salt use because, as you know, that tends to retain body fluid.

Your husband should follow his doctor's advice about rest and not overdoing things. If he gets short of breath or notices foot and ankle swelling, he should report that. It may mean further adjustments are needed in whatever medicine his doctor has prescribed. If he puts on weight that he cannot trace to calorie intake, that should be reported too. It can be a subtle sign that he is again retaining too much fluid. With proper medicines, lifestyle and diet, he can enjoy many productive years with his dropsy.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My mother has been diagnosed as having chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. Would you please explain? — Mrs. M.D.C.

There are three major illnesses that fall into the obstructive pulmonary disease category — emphysema, bronchitis and asthma. They all have in common an obstruction of air flow to the lungs. The chronic part denotes a long-standing condition. Even though the term chronic obstructive disease sounds ominous it does not imply hopelessness. There are many degrees of seriousness and many ways to treat each kind. If you'd like me to try to explain what is done for the particular chronic obstructive pulmonary disease your mother has, just write back.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am taking a vitamin-mineral supplement daily. It lists the "amino acid" cystine as a component (1.5 milligrams). Is this too much cystine? I have heard of cystine stones. Is there a risk of stone formation in the urinary tract? My husband is taking it also. — C.V.

The amino acid (cystine) is part of the makeup of many proteins found in the foods we eat. Cystine kidney stones form in people who have a genetic inability to handle this amino acid. That does not happen to others. The amount of cystine you are taking daily will not cause you to form stones, because it is such a small amount and because you apparently do not have the hereditary illness I mentioned. I must admit I do not know why the cystine is in the vitamin pill. There is no recommended daily allowance given for it and it is found in many foods. You do not need extra amounts in your diet as far as I know.

Shingles can be a painful disease! For a copy of the booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My parents are always trying to tell me what to do, but I want to be free and make my own decisions in life. What's so wrong about that? — R.A.Y.

DEAR R.A.Y.: There's absolutely nothing wrong with your desiring to become an independent person capable of making your own decisions in life. This is a natural goal and normal part of the human growth process. In fact, God wants you to learn to shoulder your own responsibilities so that you will be prepared to bear the burdens of others. (see Galatians 6:2).

How can you become the kind of person upon whom others can depend? How can you learn to make the right decisions in life? First, allow Christ to be the master of your life. As Bob Dylan so clearly expresses in one of his recent recordings, "You're going to have to serve somebody." Make a decision now to serve Christ. He loves you and wants to guide you through the challenges of life. "Fear the Lord your God, serve him only" (Deuteronomy 6:13). "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom" (Proverbs 9:10).

Second, study the Bible and learn God's guidelines for daily living. God has advice for you on dating, sex, money management, relating to parents, personal goals and scores of other matters. "For the Lord gives wisdom, and from his mouth come knowledge and understanding" (Proverbs 2:6).

Third, gradually increase your load of responsibilities. Volunteer to take on more chores at home. Look for a part-time job or summer work in order to pay for your clothes, car expenses, or college tuition. And remember, "Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord, not for men" (Colossians 3:23).

Last, do not be afraid to seek the counsel of others, including your own folks. Their age and experience can be valuable to your decision making. "Plans fail for lack of counsel, but with many advisers they succeed" (Proverbs 15:22).

I'm sure that as your parents see your growing ability to handle responsibilities they will recognize your readiness for more independence.

Blame the weather

Around the rim

Tina Miller

Are you depressed, irritable, tired or just plain bored for no apparent reason? Any of the above? All of the above? Well, if so, move over and make room for the rest of the West Texas population.

I remember that just last week I was writing about the beautiful warm weather that was causing a rash of Spring Fever. Shortly thereafter came a sandstorm, followed by rain, brief period of sunshine and finally, another cold front. What have I done? They told me that journalism could save the world, but no one ever said anything about the weather.

EARLY SPRING is the worst time of the year. Just when you think that there have been enough warm days to insure a warm weekend, a stray cold front blows in and ruins everyone's plans for a day at the lake or a picnic in the park.

Take this past weekend, for example. After a gorgeous Saturday, which was totally wasted on me due to a backlog of housework, I looked forward to an equally beautiful Sunday with nothing to do other than enjoy it. Now that I look back on it, the only thing good about Sunday is that it's gone. You would think that people in West Texas would know better, but, no. We just keep on, every spring, predicting that which is totally unpredictable. The only days that will, almost without fail, be beautiful are those days when the majority of the population is chained to a desk from 8 to 5.

EVEN THE WEEKEND trip or spring vacation that does not depend on weather for enjoyment can be a problem because of the weather. Two totally different types of wardrobe, one for warm weather and the other for cold weather, must be packed "just in case." Should some poor soul be naive enough to pack only warm clothing, he would no doubt awaken the next morning to snow on the ground. The opposite also holds true.

Two sets of clothing for each person in today's smaller cars can be a bit crowded, to say the least, and tempers begin to wear thin when the only place for junior is in someone's lap.

So, if you have been depressed or irritable the past few days and couldn't think of a good excuse for it, now you have one. Blame it on the weather.

Fantastic bill

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — There are 4,958,491 people on the federal payroll, with more than 15,000 different specialties. They can produce expert answers on almost anything from the dynamics of the galaxies to the habits of the fruit fly. Yet there always seems to be a need for the high-paid services of outside experts.

This has spawned a whole new industry. It has spawned a whole new way of acquiring their know-how for the government in the first place. Then they leave government service to set up practice as consultants for fat fees befitting professional know-it-alls.

Apparently they fulfill some need in the psyche of bureaucrats, who seem to suffer from a basic insecurity over their own ability to spend the taxpayers' money efficiently.

THE PROFESSION HAS grown so rampantly, in fact, that no one has a clear idea of its size. Recent estimates have put government spending on private consultants at anywhere from $400 million to $2.5 billion a year.

The role of the private consultant perhaps can best be appreciated by examining one modest firm — Practical Concepts, Inc., which is located in Washington handy to the agencies that offer government contracts. Its specialty is "program evaluation" which has to do with manipulating the levers and wheels of the federal fuddle factory.

Such agencies as the Health and Human Services Department, the Small Business Administration and the Agency for International Development have hired Practical Concepts, Inc., to design and evaluate their programs. The bureaucrats profess to be pleased with the results.

An AID spokesman told my reporter Julie Kosterlitz, for example, that the firm is "very good, very capable." Practical Concepts, Inc., to be referred hereinafter by its initials, PCI, in the bureaucratic manner, employs some 30 people to counsel bureaucrats. During the three-year period covered by a government audit, this cost the taxpayers less than $2 million annually — a mere droplet from the federal pump, though a large drop in PCI's small bucket.

A TOP EXPERT ON the federal payroll would cost the taxpayers no more than $61,000 annually. But the Defense Contract Audit Agency found that in 1978 PCI's president, executive vice president and vice president were paid $97,249, $70,957 and $56,947 respectively.

This compensation included salaries — which the audit found to be far higher than the average salaries paid by comparable firms — plus additional bonuses and perquisites the auditor questioned. About 60 percent of PCI's business is generated by federal contracts. Among the questionable expenses that PCI charged off, in part, to the government were:

- School tuition for the top executives' children.
- Rental of a Jaguar from a company owned by PCI's president, Leon Rosenberg. He used it to commute to and from the office. The auditors note that the contractor "claims that the car was used by its employees for local business travel," but they add that the only supporting evidence of local travel consisted of reimbursement for cab fare.
- Rental of a swimming pool and a tennis court, also from the president's company. "The tennis court and pool are located on the residential property of the president," the audit notes, adding: "The need for these recreational facilities at $3,200 per year has not been established."
- Rental of oil paintings from the president's company, at $1,920 a year, a need that also "has not been established."
- Rental of office furniture from a company owned by PCI's vice president — at greater expense than it would have cost to purchase the furniture outright.

—Rental of a telephone system from a company owned by PCI's president — also at greater cost than ownership.

—Memberships in the YMCA for the president and vice president, listed for the purpose of "employee morale."

—Payment of $400 a month to the executive vice president to provide sleeping quarters in her personal residence for "intermittent employees" on travel status.

—Payments "for liquor which we believe was used for entertainment," and is thus not allowable under federal regulations.

—Reimbursement to the firm's president for room and meals at a weekend conference for employees held at his home.

Asked about specific points in the audit, PCI's Rosenberg conceded that the liquor shouldn't have been charged to government contracts. He defended the rental expenditures as not only reasonable, but as good value for the money. The tuition payments were simply "advance on bonus" payments, later deducted from the bonuses, he said. As for the auditors' comparison of PCI executive compensation with that of other firms, Rosenberg questioned the auditors' choice of "comparable" firms. He said, "A firm doing quality work deserves more than the average."

Footnote: Despite the auditor-misgivings, PCI has just been awarded a two-year AID contract.

UNDER THE DOME: Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., won election to Congress in 1974 by pledging to cut government waste. In his first seven months, he cost the taxpayers $40,000 to have 140 speeches he never gave printed in the Congressional Record. Now he has a problem: He wants to insert in the record the Penthouse magazine interview with Rev. Jerry Falwell. But McDonald, a John Birchler, is afraid that somehow this might weaken Falwell's suit against Penthouse.

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I read with anger and disgust the article in the Sunday Herald about the mollycoddled prisoners here. If that is true, then a man would be crazy to walk away from a life of ease. They don't have to work out in the wet, cold or heat.

They don't have to pinch pennies to make ends meet and try to keep a family together and in food. They don't have to come home after work and eat leftovers, or try to work out a way to get a child into the hospital.

And after an easy day's work, they can take a dip in the pool and dress for dinner and then retire to the TV room — and to think they are the ones who get all the breaks.

Those four words, "Crime does not pay" is the biggest bunch of baloney ever written. How come that these lawbreakers can have a pool and the Senior Citizens Center cannot afford to fill theirs? Are they any better than we are? What can we do to be treated as good as the prisoners?

What we should do is take up a collection and buy a dozen or so teddy bears and rubber ducks for them. Poor babies. I wonder who tucks them in at night. My heart bleeds for them. Sid Abrams Big Spring

MICHAEL JOHN WHITE Singing his way to fame

White's national anthem record for sale here

Michael White, who sings the national anthem at many professional sporting events in Houston, has recorded the song as a single on the Bellaire label. The song will be sold locally at the Record Shop, according to his aunt, Mrs. Garland Morrison.

On the flip side to "The Star Spangled Banner" is "God Bless America." White has also recorded a single featuring "The Lord's Prayer" and "Ava Maria" on the Bellaire label.

Production of the records came about after fans at various sporting events in Houston, such as Astro and Oiler games, heard White sing and expressed interest in the singer.

White, 22, has been singing since he was three, he said, and began singing professionally at the age of 18. He has performed with the Houston Grand Opera Chorus, and hopes to pursue a professional career in opera.

Singing to football, baseball and basketball fans provided him with an audience of over two million last year, a feat that may aid his professional career goals.

White opened the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo in February, which was held at the Astrodome.

He is also studying music, and attends Houston Baptist University.

Dallas police hold man linked to seven murders

DALLAS (AP) — A man being held by Dallas police has been linked to seven murders in Dallas and San Antonio, police in both cities said today.

Dallas police planned to charge the man with two murders. Police confirmed three of the murders cited and were looking into the fourth.

The 26-year-old man, who gave a San Antonio address to officers here, was arrested Tuesday. He had been a suspect in a 1979 murder in downtown Dallas and a witness spotted him. He was taken into custody without incident about noon, officers said.

San Antonio police said they were unaware of one murder when told of it by Dallas police. But they went to a house and found a man dead.

Dallas officers said the man will be charged in the slayings of Charles Moya and Tony Gutierrez, both of whom were stabbed several times with a knife in an apartment in April 1979. He was questioned in that case at the time, police said.

A third murder being investigated is that of Ernest Garcia, stabbed with an ice pick and beaten in August 1979.

"We're not going to say anything about what he talked about after he was arrested," said Sgt. Tom Sherman. He did acknowledge that San Antonio authorities were en route to Dallas.

Sherman said the man is implicated in seven murders.

Joe Edward Duque, 18, was found dead March 3 at a small neighborhood park.

Sierra Club takes issue with Clayton's water bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Members of the Sierra Club say a bill to earmark half the Texas treasury surplus for deposit into a state water fund would do little more than help West Texas farmers — such as House Speaker Bill Clayton — import water from other states.

But a leading water bond expert said Clayton's proposal would keep the price of water from becoming unbearable.

Clayton wants to permanently dedicate half the surplus to a water bond guarantee fund. The other half, up to $620 million, would be used to repay existing state bonds. After $620 million is reached, the rest would be set aside for future emergencies, and a four-fifths vote of the Legislature would be required to spend it.

The League of Women Voters opposed the bill because it would violate the League's principle that funds should not be dedicated by the Constitution but should be subject to legislative appropriation.

"We can't be certain that some future need won't become more pressing than the one we're dealing with today," said Jan Albers of the League.

Clayton says he "conservatively" estimates each dollar in the guarantee fund would enable cities, water districts and other entities to issue $10 worth of bonds to finance water projects.

The word he used for this multiplier effect is "leveraging."

Clayton's plan was heard by the House Constitutional Amendments Committee and sent automatically to a subcommittee.

Stuart Henry, attorney for the Sierra Club, said such guarantees are not needed because "because municipalities that can sell their water have not had trouble getting a bond rate."

He said the leverage would benefit mainly West Texas farmers, such as Clayton, who want to import water from the Mississippi River basin to replace the ground water they are depleting by irrigation.

"That's what the special fund is for. It is for leveraging in terms of import. It could indeed go to build the West Texas import facility," Henry said.

Texas Department of Water Resources experts maintain importing water is the only hope for continuing agricultural production in Northwest Texas and

Washington, D.C. — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown says modern machines could dig the Panama Canal in three weeks, so there is no reason to delay the projects that could solve the nation's looming water crisis.

"We've studied it to death — it's time for action," he said Tuesday at a House Agriculture Committee hearing.

Brown said canals or pipelines should be built to import water from the nation's wetter areas to Texas and other arid agricultural states where the water table is declining rapidly.

He said conservation and increased research also are needed to solve the problem.

averting a possible food shortage.

W.E. "Buck" Tinsley, vice president of Underwood, Neuhaus & Co., said a state guarantee would make local water bonds more saleable and permit them to be sold at a lower rate of interest, he said.

Duncan Ellison, executive director of Water Inc., joined representatives of the South and West Texas chambers of commerce in endorsing the Clayton proposal. Ellison said it might help in getting water from other states.

Redistricting legislation certain to be challenged

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A redistricting expert has warned Texas senators that any new legislative districts they draw will be challenged in court, and lawyers would question the legislators' thoughts as well as their actions.

"When litigation occurs — and litigation is virtually certain to occur — the court can probe to the most remote enclave you can find," Steve Bickerstaff said Tuesday.

Bickerstaff, hired under a state contract in 1979 to study problems that might arise from redistricting, reported to the Senate and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on Tuesday.

He said senators should realize "from this point forward you may be called as witnesses and your staff may be."

"Your actions will determine if the (redistricting) plans withstand federal and court scrutiny," he said.

Bickerstaff said not just one or two groups but "every political party, every political group" should be viewed as a potential challenger.

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, chairman of a committee of the entire 31-member Senate which is working on redistricting, reviewed a recent Washington trip by him, Hobby and Sens. Jack Ogg, D-Houston; Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler; and W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland.

Santiesteban, D-El Paso, said the U.S. Justice Department emphasized "we will not write your bill for you."

"We responded, 'We're not asking you to,'" said Santiesteban.

He said hearings outside of Austin probably would begin March 30 or April 1, after more complete census figures are available.

"There is no area of the law where the legal requirements are more complex," Bickerstaff said. "Protracted litigation could run into the millions of dollars."

"The bottom line," he said, "is whether the (new district) lines are drawn by you or the federal courts."

LAMESA — Building in Lamesa is well ahead of the pace set last year.

Permits totaling nearly $316,000 were issued during the first two months of the year, compared to $216,000 for the same two months in 1980.

Local Tri-Hi-Y leaders garner awards at Austin

The Big Spring Tri-Hi-Y group returned recently from the 34th model legislature and judicial session of the Youth and Government program in Austin.

For four days, six members served as legislative delegates, four served as judicial delegates, four attended as legislative commissioners, and one served as an elections committee member.

One of Big Spring's contributions to the conference was a demonstration team designed to test the abilities of the Speaker of the House candidates. Debbie Cowan, Beverly Wheeler and Merribeth Bancroft comprised the team.

As judicial delegates and an attorney team, Laura Warren and George Bancroft won their case at the state conference. Jenny Moore and Katy Thompson participated in two trials as witnesses, and were given only two hours to memorize their roles.

All legislative delegates served in the House of Representatives. Shana Hohertz, a member of the Governor's cabinet, also became a special House consultant, advising delegates on bills. Governor's cabinet is an honorary position Miss Hohertz was awarded at District where she ran for Speaker of the House. Speight Grimes, Beverly Wheeler, Debbie Cowan and Merribeth Bancroft all participated in the House.

Legislative commissioners Brownyn Allen, Michelle Bowers, Tymi Brooks, and Andi Burns attended the Department of Human Resources where they roleplayed food stamp applicants and reporters of child abuses. Laura Brown assisted with elections. Hannah Coleman, club sponsor, served as house advisor.

Highlights of the trip included a Western banquet, talent show and dance at the Austin Opry House.

Guests at the conference included Gov. Bill Clements, Attorney General Mark White, and Baylor coach Grant Teaff. House of Representatives Parliamentarian, Walter Fisher, offered his services to the conference, advising in parliamentary procedures.

The Tri-Hi-Y meets on Mondays at 7:30 p.m. in the Y.M.C.A.

'How many have to die before they catch the crazed thing?'

Now green ribbons: hopeful symbol of life for Atlanta children

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — At night, Georgia Dean, a great-grandmother, would lie awake and think about the dead children in Atlanta. The same question kept popping into her head: "My God, how many have to die before they catch this crazed thing?"

It dogged her, until one night she hit on an idea, a humble little plan that overnight would grow into a crusade to be led by a congressman and civil rights soldiers, an idea that has taken this city by storm and seems to be catching on elsewhere.

"No one seemed to care," she recalled in an interview, seated in her tidy duplex in the city's Germantown section, a shy woman overcome by all the fuss.

"I had been praying for the American hostages," she said. "I was afraid they would be killed. And then they came home to the parades and I was so happy."

"But I couldn't get my mind off those poor little children. They're dead. They can't come back. And I thought of the yellow ribbons for the hostages and that's when it hit.

"Green. What does it stand for? It symbolizes life because the bushes are green, the grass is green in the spring. I said, 'That's it. It'll be green.'"

And green it's been. The humble little plan was spread by the media and word of mouth. Green ribbon after green ribbon appeared. When there was no green ribbon left, the little pieces of green wool began to show up.

Green is worn on coats and hats and pigtails and book bags, attached to car antennae and telephone poles. A city meter maid handing out parking tickets by the Liberty Bell the other day had a snippet of green ribbon tied to her badge.

There is more green in this city now than there ever was hostage yellow, more green than the red, white and blue of a Fourth of July.

The green has spread, too. Members of the Atlanta Braves baseball team are wearing strips of green tape on their batting helmets. A number of college basketball teams have added bits of ribbon to their uniforms. In New York last Sunday, Cardinal Terence Cooke said Mass in a Harlem church where the altar was covered with green ribbons and a sign: "God, Watch Over Our Children."

The wearing of the green started with the Philadelphia black community and spread to whites, slowly. Black politicians and black civic groups picked it up and added green buttons with green ribbons reading: "Save Our Children."

Four elected officials, U.S. Rep. William Gray III, and state Reps. David Richardson, John White Jr. and Dwight Evans kicked off the button campaign last weekend in Mrs. Dean's home.

More than 1,500 buttons, selling for $1 each, were gone in two days, the proceeds being sent to The Committee to Stop Children's Murders, care of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference in Atlanta.

"We've ordered 5,000 more and we're looking for volunteers to attach the ribbons to the buttons," said Marian Tasco, Gray's director of constituent services. "The response has been incredible."

Mrs. Dean, who admits only to being "a senior citizen over 70," said she is getting calls from all over the U.S. about the ribbons — from New Jersey, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Virginia, Louisiana.

"They begin about 6:30 in the morning and they continue all day," she said. "We've tried to play pinocle, but I can't keep my hand straight from answering the phone. I've never done anything like this before, only churchwork. This is something else."

A ROSE FOR A LADY — Wearing a low cut black taffeta evening gown and holding a single pink rose, Lady Diana Spencer arrives at Goldsmith's Hall in London Monday night to attend her first Royal engagement. The rose was presented to Lady Diana, who is to marry Prince Charles in July, by an office worker along with a card saying: "To a lovely lady — an English rose."

Bundle of joy costing today's family a bundle

Children seem to be getting dearer and dearer — more expensive — that is, reports the American Council of Life Insurance.

Everytime you look around, the cost of bringing them up seems to climb. That's not surprising, population economist Thomas J. Espenshade told the council.

The direct out-of-pocket expense for a middle class family — making about $22,500 to $27,500 annually, after taxes — would be about $85,000, he calculates.

This would include direct maintenance costs of childbearing such as childbirth, food, housing, clothing, medical care and

The Texas Star African Violet Club met March 3 in the home of Doris Guy. The treasurer's report and minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved by the 13 members present.

The Centennial was discussed, and the club voted to support the horticultural show to be presented by the Council of Garden Clubs. Members also voted to adopt the name "Violet Belles" for their chapter of the Centennial Belles.

Lavelle Hill reported on her trip to Lubbock and the District Convention of Garden Clubs.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Cut sugar intake by reading labels on all ingredients

Beware of "hidden sugar in the diet," says Dr. Rose Tindall Postel, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

Those who wish to cut down on sugar use should read ingredient labels on packaged foods, she recommends. Listed are not only sugar but sucrose, fructose, lactose, glucose, dextrose, corn syrup, corn sweeteners, natural sweeteners, invert sugar or honey all add up to sugar, the specialist points out.

Since sugar adds calories and little or no nutrients, foods high in sugar tend to have fewer vitamins and minerals per calorie eaten.

Refined sugars and other sweeteners provided as much as 18 percent of the total calories in the average U.S. diet in 1979, Dr. Postel explains.

Dear Abby

Cold Showers Won't Always Work

DEAR ABBY: I notice that your column has a great deal to do with this sex business.

Tell people that sex is nature's bait for reproduction, and if you go for the bait, you get stuck with the freight.

Now, if they say the urge is too great to control, tell them that carnal concupiscence — or plain old-fashioned "lust" — can be cooled by physical and mental exercise.

Okay, Friedman, get back in the shallow water. (Remember me? I was the lifeguard at Riverside pool where you and your twin sister used to swim when you were kids in Sioux City, Iowa.)

JIM FLANAGAN (STILL IN SIOUX CITY)

DEAR JIM: Of course I remember you. I never forget a good-looking Irishman! What happened to you? Did you study for the priesthood?

"Cooling" the ardor won't work, Jim. The population must be controlled in more reliable ways. The flesh is often weaker than the mind is strong. Now, you get back in the shallow water, Flanagan. You're already in over your head!

DEAR ABBY: My wedding is still four months off, but I am faced with a serious dilemma.

Two of my uncles (they are brothers) fought viciously 40 years ago, causing the younger brother to leave home. They have not set eyes on each other since, nor have they exchanged a single letter. For as long as I can remember, no one in the family has dared to mention the name of one brother to the other.

Every year, during the holidays, other family members constantly rehash the whole situation, some siding with the older brother and some with the younger.

I see them both on a semiregular basis and get along equally well with both of them.

Now the question is posed to me, "Which uncle are you going to invite to your wedding?"

As the time approaches for me to make that decision, everyone has a different solution. If you were in my place, Abby, what would you do?

IN THE MIDDLE IN L.F.F. MASS.

DEAR IN: I would invite them both, and let each know the other was invited. If they don't want to see each other — that's their problem. Don't make it yours.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for four years. I love my husband and have much to be thankful for, including two darling children. Would you please help settle a dispute between my mother-in-law and me? I don't want our relationship to go sour, and right now it is curdling a bit.

My in-laws recently moved, and they sold us their used living room rug for $40. It's in very good condition and is worth much more. We were glad to get it because our little house has bare floors and we can't afford carpeting yet.

The problem is that my mother-in-law insists that the rug belongs in our living room, but I put it in our bedroom. I think it looks better there. Besides, I have to get up at night to feed the baby, and it's nice to have a warm rug under my feet.

Every time my mother-in-law comes over, she tells me she thinks I should move that rug into the living room. To avoid an argument, I say, "Maybe I will, when I get around to it."

Abby, do you think I should move it to please her? My husband also prefers the rug in our bedroom, but he stays out of the discussion.

COLD FEET

DEAR COLD FEET: You can be assertive without being offensive. Tell your mother-in-law you appreciate her suggestion, but you and your husband have decided to keep the rug in your bedroom. Period.

Mu Zetas to elect officers at next regular meeting

Rushes Rene Eyskens, Joy Cowan and Debbie Walling attended the "Model Meeting" of the Mu Zeta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Monday evening at Young N' Alive. To help familiarize rushes with Beta Sigma Phi, Sharon Richardson described the organization as it is today, Connie Edgemon gave a short history summary and Peggy Payne shared her thoughts and feelings on what Mu Zeta means to her.

The latest techniques available in skin care were shown to members. Karen Bellinghausen served as model for the demonstration presented by Diane Clinton and LaVelle Smith.

The Social Committee reported on the rush social to be held Saturday in the home of Peggy Payne. Xi Pi Epsilon has been invited to come and share the fun at the "Wild Game" dinner party. Members were presented with a proposed nomination ballot of officers for the coming year. Officers will be elected at the next meeting to be held in the home of Peggy Payne.

TWEEN 12 and 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Oops! I'm sorry

Teens: Nobody admires a person who arrives late without an apology, who loses his temper, then blames it on a friend, or who is always trying to prove his point by denying a fact. Although erring is human, denying your error is an injustice to others and a disservice to yourself.

Dr. Ben Schwartz, a psychologist in Commack, N.Y., suggests these five tips for making mistakes graciously:

1. Listen to criticism: Hear out the complaint without interrupting. One, you'll have a better chance to tell your side of the story if you've been a good listener. Two, most criticism has some truth in it. And three, giving criticism is therapeutic from the critic's point of view. 2. Show that you've heard: Say something like, "I'm sorry," or "I didn't mean to," if only to preface further explanation for your behavior. Few things are more infuriating than a casual shrug, a stony silence or a sullen stare in response to an honest request for an explanation. 3. Learn from your mistakes: You'll be making mistakes all your life. If you're smart, you'll make new ones instead of repeating the same old patterns. 4. Watch how others handle criticism: Carefully study the reactions of other people when they're confronted with their errors. You'll be amazed at how few people are inclined to listen to their critics. You'll hear a lot of snappy retorts, cool silences and interminable rationalizations. All this should indicate how difficult it is to handle mistakes well — and how much better you'll be if you learn to do it.

5. When in doubt, take the blame: There are times when it's important, as a matter of principle, to stand your ground on an issue.

Coahoma wins bi-district with 68-53 romp on Kermit

CRANE — The Coahoma Bulldogs rode the shooting of Philip Ritchey and Michael Meyer with an outstanding defensive effort from the entire team in scoring a 68-53 win over the Kermit Yellow-jackets in a Class AAA bi-district basketball game here last night.

The win, which vaulted the Bulldogs record to 21-9 on the year, moves them into the Region I-AAA basketball tournament this weekend at Lubbock's Coronado High School Gym. Coahoma will meet Slaton in the first round at 8:00 p.m. Friday.

Ritchey and Meyer combined for 50 points in the contest, and it was their hot shooting that allowed the Coahoma team to cruise to a healthy 36-20 halftime advantage. From that point, the Bulldogs, champions of District 6-AAA, simply cruised on to the win.

While Ritchey and Meyer were scorching the nets, the rest of the team played their roles extremely well. Guards Bruce Walker and Brad Fryer created havoc on the Kermit defense from the top of Coahoma's 2-3 zone, and Bobby Joe Tucker played a key role on the backboards. Coahoma Coach Doug Harriman was naturally very pleased with the bi-district win. "I was pleased with the game. Our kids had a challenge, and they really lived up to it," he stated.

"Our kids probably played the best defensive half of the year in that first half," Harriman continued. "Walker and Fryer were simply outstanding on the defensive front. They (Kermit) had a couple of good outside shooters, and those front players played about as good defense as you can."

The Coahomans never trailed in the contest, as a red hot Ritchey came out loaded to shoot. By the end of the first quarter, Coahoma led 19-8, and gradually extended that by intermission.

Ritchey had 18 of his game high 27 points in the opening half, with Meyer adding 23 for the game. He had 11 at halftime.

Walker added 13 points to go with his fine defensive effort.

Barry Kimball and Mike Oldham paced the Kermit team with 14 points each.

Coahoma's Friday night foe in the first round of the Region I-AAA tourney, Slaton, advanced through bi-district by upsetting Childress on Monday night.

Should Coahoma win against Slaton, they would meet the winner of the Perryton-Coleman battle. Both of those teams are rated in the Top 10 in the state in Class AAA, with Perryton rated No. 1.

By quarters: Coahoma 19 17 14 19-46; Kermit 8 12 14 19-33.

JV baseball team unbeaten in pair

The Big Spring Junior Varsity baseball team opened the year with a pair of wins in action earlier in the week.

The Shorthorns won their opener over San Angelo by a score of 4-2. Oscar Limon went the distance, allowing only four hits, to pick up the win.

Limon helped his own cause by knocking in two runs, and Danny Stephens and David Aguiarano also had runs batted in.

On Monday, the Shorthorns won their second straight with a 4-1 triumph over Abilene Cooper. Adam Rodriguez went the distance to record the win, allowing only five hits and fanning eight in the process.

Big Spring scored once in the first inning without a hit, and then tallied three runs in the third inning to cap their scoring.

Alan Trevino had an infield hit that drove in one run in the inning, with Danny Arista's single plating two more runners.

In both of the first two Big Spring JV wins, all of their foes runs were unearned.

5-5A All-District upsets Steer coach

The All-District 5-AAAA girls basketball team was one that had nearly every school represented on the elite unit, with the champion San Angelo Bobcats claiming two of the bigger honors.

San Angelo had both the Coach of the Year and the Most Valuable Player in Sylvia McClure and Jeanie Bryant, respectively. Those two played big roles in helping direct the Bobcat girls to the 5-AAAA title, where they were beaten in the first round of the state playoffs by Lewisville.

Eleven girls were named to the first team unit, with Midland, Midland Lee, Abilene Cooper and Abilene High each being represented by two performers each. Lee also had the Sophomore of the Year in Hshun King.

San Angelo, Odessa High and Odessa Permian each had one player named to the elite unit.

Big Spring's Elise Wheat,

a junior, was named to the six-player honorable mention list.

The fact that Wheat did not make the first team, and that teammate Shell Rutledge was not recognized seemed to incense BSHS Coach Sandy Brown.

"I was real disappointed in the way the selections turned out," she stated. "Elise averaged 11.9 points per game, and the MVP averaged 13 points. She played all of the aspects of the game well, and I really think we're (BSHS) being discriminated against because our girls basketball program is down."

"The same is true in Shell's case," Brown continued. "She deserved something, but I think we're being discriminated against."

The discrimination no doubt stems from the fact that the BSHS girls failed to win a 5-AAAA game in 14 starts, which no doubt impressed the pollsters decisions, which were the league coaches.

Bluebonnet Bowl wants SWC champ

HOUSTON (AP) — The Greater Houston Bowl Association, which doubled its Bluebonnet Bowl payoff last year, apparently is pursuing even bigger game — having the Southwest Conference football champion play in the Bluebonnet Bowl rather than its traditional spot in the Cotton Bowl.

Association vice president Ronald Byrd said Houston has much to offer the SWC and that the conference champion should play here at least every other year.

Byrd distributed a news release which said the association proposes to move the "SWC championship post-season football game to Houston." However, Southwest Conference commissioner Cliff Speegle said he met in Dallas with association president Lan Bentsen and no such proposal was made.

"I think it was more of an exploratory situation, there was nothing formally proposed to the SWC," Speegle said. "The SWC has a great marriage with the Cotton Bowl. It would be difficult to conceive of a divorce at this time."

In Houston, Byrd said, "There is nothing other than tradition that says the SWC champion has to play in the Cotton Bowl. We would try to add $250,000 to the amount the Cotton Bowl paid last year."

Bentsen announced last week a combined payoff of $800,000 to the University of Texas and North Carolina for their participation in the 1980 Bluebonnet Bowl.

The Cotton Bowl paid $1.7 million each to Baylor and Alabama following their Jan. 1 game, or a total payout of $3.4 million. That means the Bluebonnet Bowl would have to pay the monetary output to match the Cotton Bowl.

Cotton Bowl Executive Director Jim Brock said each Cotton Bowl team would get $1.8 million for the 1982 game.

"The only difference is in the television package," Byrd said. "If the SWC champion played here, then we would get the television too. With all the growth in the Houston area, why does the champion always have to play in Dallas. It could at least be alternated."

An association spokesman said the Cotton Bowl had a 10.1 Nielsen rating last year compared with 23.0 for the Sugar Bowl, 24.1 for the Orange Bowl and 23.0 for the Rose Bowl.

Brock declined comment on the proposal but agreed the Cotton Bowl rating was down for the 1981 game.

"We were going up against the national championship game between Notre Dame (Bowl) and Herschel Walker, the greatest running back since Earl Campbell," Brock said.

"We are the only two bowls that go head to head in the ratings but we've done pretty well over the years. I recall in 1970 we had a 30.2 rating with Texas and Notre Dame and the Sugar Bowl had an 8.3 with Arkansas and Mississippi."

Lyons named All-Region V

Kelly Lyons of Howard College was named to the All-Region V All-Star first team recently, as picked by the coaches during that tournament in Brownwood.

Lyons, a 6-3 post performer who rewrote the Howard College women's single season record book, was one of the most dominant female jucu players in the nation the past year. She averaged over 19 points and 11 rebounds per game, as well as leading the Western Junior College Conference in blocked shots.

Lyons helped lead the Hawk Queens of Coach Don Stevens to an outstanding season record of 29-8, including a final national ranking of 19th. The Hawk Queens season ended one game before the national tournament, as they were overcome in the late stages of the Region V championship game by the Amarillo College Lady Badgers.

Joining Lyons on the All-Region V first team were Olivia Jones of Amarillo, Shari Teal of Western Texas, D.D. Polk of Cooke County, and Jackie Cole of Weatherford.

Lyons, Jones and Teal are sophomores, while the other two are freshmen.

Lyons set a Howard

College women's single season scoring record, amassing 704 points in the 37 games. That broke the old record set in 1978 by Tami Edwards, who totalled 620 during that campaign.

Polk was the leading scorer in the nation, averaging 28.8 to earn that distinction.

The second team All-Region V squad consisted of Jackie Skinner of Odessa College, Tracy Rector of McLennan, Cassandra Crumpton of Clarendon, Jana Elliot of Ranger, and Lynette Joiner of South Plains.

Howard College's Jill Floyd was named to the Honorable Mention list.

Floyd, a sophomore from Sand, was one of the outstanding "floor" players in the Region, and an integral part in the Hawk Queens success.

Renfro was appointed a trustee of the Woodlawn Minimum Security unit and may be able to serve his sentence in four months, jail Capt. Charles Matter said.

The former Oregon halfback was a second round draft pick of the Cowboys in 1964 and was a five-time All-Pro selection. He made the Pro Bowl team 10 times before retiring in 1977.

Yankees bomb Rangers in Grapefruit opener

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Oscar Gamble slugged a pair of two-run homers, and Jim Spencer added a solo blast as the New York Yankees hammered Texas 9-2 here Tuesday, spoiling the Rangers' exhibition opener.

It was the second exhibition win in a row for

New York, which opened with a 6-1 victory over the University of Florida on Monday.

Gamble connected in the first inning off Ranger starter and loser Doc Medich and again in the seventh off knuckle-baller Charlie Hough.

Teams needed in Abilene

Teams from Big Spring, and other area towns are being sought to play in the First Annual Men's Spring Slowpitch Soft Ball Tournament March 27 through 29 in Abilene.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Breakfast Optimist's Club in Abilene, and is sanctioned by the ASA. The tournament will be held in Nelson Park.

There is a $75 entry fee, and deadline is March 24. L.B. Lockwood, 2310 S. 7th, Abilene, 79605, is handling entry fees. More information may be obtained by calling (915) 677-8431, or (915) 698-3823.

The tournament is limited to the first 64 teams who register, said Lockwood.

Navratilova uses lessons from Rosie to smash foe

DALLAS (AP) — Martina Navratilova came to Dallas and immediately became a very effective advertisement for the teaching skills of Rosie Casals.

Navratilova, the top seed in this week's Avon Championships of Dallas women's pro tennis tournament, went to fellow pro Casals last month for help with her serve.

Casals gave her a lesson and in Tuesday's first round, Navratilova blistered 11 cases past Julie Harrington to win easily, 6-2, 6-1.

"I'm serving much better than last year," said Navratilova, a former resident of Dallas. "Rosie (Casals) helped me with my serve a month ago and it's much better now. I can hit with a lot more pace and I'm able to win my serve easier."

However, the tournament's No. 2 seed, Wendy Turnbull of Australia, showed the ill effects from a recent week-long bout with the flu and was eliminated in round one by unseeded Sue Barker of England, 6-3, 6-1.

Barker, attempting a comeback from a series of accidents late last year, said she was pleased to have made it past the first round since she had been ousted in opening matches two weeks in a row — and both times by No. 2 seeds.

In December, Barker was bitten by a dog and had to have 15 stitches over her eye, a mishap that was immediately followed by a dislocated toe.

Jabbar, Magic awesome in LA win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Paul Westhead believes his Lakers aren't yet at the top of their game. San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck isn't buying such a notion. The well-rested Lakers, fresh after being idle for six days, overpowered the Spurs 118-104 Tuesday night behind exceptional efforts by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

Like David over Goliath

Mavs stuns Suns

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas coach Dick Motta says many National Basketball Association teams believe a scheduled game with his Mavericks is an automatic win. It's time, he said, for them to refine their thinking. For evidence, Motta points to Tuesday night's 107-103 upset win over the Phoenix Suns, leaders of the Pacific Division in the Western Conference.

"We were just as physical as Phoenix was tonight," Motta said after his expansion team posted its 11th win of the season, against 61 losses. "Most teams come in here and just sort of take us for granted. They think we're an automatic victory. I think we proved tonight that's not the case," Motta added.

Phoenix, counting on a post-season playoff spot, led 64-59 at the half but blew a nine-point lead in the fourth quarter as Dallas rallied behind the 25 points and club-record eight steals of Jim Spanarkel.

"I was anticipating well tonight. I seemed to know where the ball was going," said Spanarkel. "You can never tell before a game when you'll get a lot of steals. It's sort of like watching the ball hit the bat in baseball. You have to keep your eye on things all the time," he said.

It was the second straight loss for Phoenix. The Suns were embarrassed by Kansas City on Sunday, scoring only 68 points to tie with the Mavericks for the lowest score of the season.

"We've lost two in a row before but the bad thing is the mental aspects," said Phoenix guard Dennis Johnson. "There are not too many teams that can say they have a chance to go all the way — we can say it, but we have to recognize it."

Sun center Alvan Adams said he was not looking forward to the trip back to Phoenix after Tuesday's loss.

"I don't want to go home with a 40-point loss to Kansas City and a loss to Dallas," he said.

"We showed everyone we can hustle with the best of them," Spanarkel said.

At "over the hill" 40, Stargell still top Buc

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Overhead a small plane flew across the cloudless sky, trailing a banner which read: "Happy 40th, Willie Stargell."

"Okay Pops," chided little Phil Garner, "now we'll call you 'Grandpops.' Where's your rocking chair?"

"No rocking chair, just roller skates on my crutches," replied the Pittsburgh Pirates' towering first baseman and captain. "Swing, grab my crutches and zoom down to first."

All the guys in black and gold uniforms laughed.

"No laughing matter," said Stargell. "I'll have to pay the bill for that plane."

Not many modern baseball players reach the 40-year milestone and remain not only active but a driving force in the team's destiny.

"He's the guts and heart of this ballclub," said Manager Chuck Tanner.

Getting old poses no concerns for this 6-foot-3, 225-pound hulk of a man whose powerful bat and inspirational leadership have influenced the Pirates' fortunes for 19 years.

He's never played for another major league club, probably never will. He was 40 last Friday. He was on the sidelines at the time with a bothersome left thigh, now almost fully healed.

He is not coming apart — mentally or physically.

"When I get up every day," he explained, "if I'm healthy, I tell myself, 'This is going to be the best day of my life.'"

"After all, how you feel and how you perform is 85 per cent from the neck up."

On the loosest, wildest, most relaxed team in all baseball, Stargell is the loosest of the lot. He shoves all his problems on the top shelf of his locker.

Stargell said it's become an unwritten rule of baseball that you're through at 32 or 33 years of age.

"That's silly — depends on the man," he insisted. "Look at Carl Yastrzemski Gaylord Perry and Phil Niekro, all second place 62 recorded by Johnny Scott, Gilbert Reyna and Domingo Guerra.

Finishing third with a 63 were the trio of Johnny Subia, Tany Dominguez and Jimmy Marin.

A total of 36 players participated in the 18-hole affair.

over 40 and still going strong, and Pete Rose, who will be 40 next month.

"They enjoy it."

"If I had to give somebody a formula, it would be this: Don't set a ceiling on yourself. Don't sit back and be satisfied with being an ordinary person."

If Willie isn't anything, he isn't ordinary.

Before being plagued last year with a succession of injuries that limited him to 67 games, he was modern baseball's most decorated athlete — co-MVP in the National League in 1979, World Series MVP, everybody's Sportsman of the Year.

Philadelphia didn't score after Erving's basket with 1:21 remaining and Indiana staged a furious rally with the final seven points of the game.

"We started running the shot clock down too far, and we just didn't get any good shots," said Erving.

In opening a 1½-game lead over idle Boston in the Atlantic Division, the Sixers broke open a close game early in the fourth quarter as the Pacers went scoreless for four minutes. A pair of baskets by rookie Andrew Toney, who finished with 21 points, two free throws by Bobby Jones and a basket by Clint Richardson pushed Philadelphia's lead to 99-89.

Philadelphia managed just two baskets the rest of the way, both by Erving.

Billy Knight and Louis Orr led Indiana with 22 and 20 points, respectively.

Dr. J is murder on Indiana

It might be a good idea for Julius "Dr. J" Erving to make sure his malpractice insurance is up to date.

"The Doctor is murder," Indiana Coach Jack McKinney said Tuesday night after Erving scored 25 points — his driving, off-balance jump shot proved to be the winning basket — as the Philadelphia 76ers watched a 10-point lead vanish in the closing seconds before pulling out a 103-102 National Basketball Association victory over the Pacers.

"We defended him perfectly but he's just too good. We forced him to his left and he took the off-balance shot but it still went in."

Championships aren't easy to win in our league," said Princeton Coach Pete Carril, whose team split its season series with the Quakers to wind up tied for the title.

Penn's only lead was forged on a layup by George Noon after the opening tip-off. But Princeton quickly took a 4-2 advantage and blew the game open with 12 consecutive points for an 18-4 lead midway through the first half.

In the last 12 seasons, either Princeton or Penn has won the Ivy — the Tigers three times, the Quakers nine including a year ago. It was Princeton's 17th Ivy basketball title overall.

Princeton opens the NCAA East Regional Thursday night against Brigham Young at Providence. Penn will be at Morgantown the following night to open NIT play against West Virginia. The NIT began Tuesday night with a cliffhanger in Ohio. Dayton charged back in the closing minutes of regulation time, then survived scares in both overtime periods to edge Fordham 66-65.

Kevin Conrad sank three free throws in the final minute of the second extra period, including the clinching point with 40 seconds left, to give the Flyers their 14th victory against three defeats at home this season.

Dayton had rallied from a four-point deficit in the final 2½ minutes of regulation time to tie the score 60-60. The first overtime ended 60-60.

"We were flat-out lucky," said Dayton Coach Don Donoher. "We were a horrible offensive team and they did as good a job as anybody at stopping (Mike) Kanieski," the Flyers' offensive leader.

Kanieski still scored 20 points to pace Dayton, now 18-10, which will play in the second round at either Rhode Island or Purdue. Those schools meet in first-round action Thursday night at Purdue.

For Fordham, a loser to Dayton in the NIT for the third straight time and now 19-9, the season is over. "A foul here and a turnover there is what costs," said Rams Coach Tom Pender. "We let Dayton back in several times and we gave them too many opportunities."

While Dayton begins NIT in double overtime win

NCAA rounds out field with Princeton

Princeton is going to Providence, R.I. Penn is going to Morgantown, W. Va. Dayton isn't sure where it's going. But Fordham is going home.

That's the gist of Tuesday night's college basketball action, with one game determining the final teams in the nation's major-college postseason tournaments and another starting one of the tours with a double-overtime thriller.

Princeton stripped the Ivy League title from Penn, beating the Quakers 54-40 in a playoff game at Easton, Pa. The Tigers, 18-9, automatically filled the final berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association field, while the National Invitation Tournament quickly picked Penn, 20-7, for its last spot. "We're very happy.

Championships aren't easy to win in our league," said Princeton Coach Pete Carril, whose team split its season series with the Quakers to wind up tied for the title.

Penn's only lead was forged on a layup by George Noon after the opening tip-off. But Princeton quickly took a 4-2 advantage and blew the game open with 12 consecutive points for an 18-4 lead midway through the first half.

In the last 12 seasons, either Princeton or Penn has won the Ivy — the Tigers three times, the Quakers nine including a year ago. It was Princeton's 17th Ivy basketball title overall.

Princeton opens the NCAA East Regional Thursday night against Brigham Young at Providence. Penn will be at Morgantown the following night to open NIT play against West Virginia.

The NIT began Tuesday night with a cliffhanger in Ohio. Dayton charged back in the closing minutes of regulation time, then survived scares in both overtime periods to edge Fordham 66-65.

Kevin Conrad sank three free throws in the final minute of the second extra period, including the clinching point with 40 seconds left, to give the Flyers their 14th victory against three defeats at home this season.

Dayton had rallied from a four-point deficit in the final 2½ minutes of regulation time to tie the score 60-60. The first overtime ended 60-60.

"We were flat-out lucky," said Dayton Coach Don Donoher. "We were a horrible offensive team and they did as good a job as anybody at stopping (Mike) Kanieski," the Flyers' offensive leader.

Kanieski still scored 20 points to pace Dayton, now 18-10, which will play in the second round at either Rhode Island or Purdue. Those schools meet in first-round action Thursday night at Purdue.

For Fordham, a loser to Dayton in the NIT for the third straight time and now 19-9, the season is over. "A foul here and a turnover there is what costs," said Rams Coach Tom Pender. "We let Dayton back in several times and we gave them too many opportunities."

Battle of defenses tonight when UTEP hosts San Jose in NIT opener

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — San Jose State will pit its polished zone defense against Texas-El Paso's harassing man-to-man strategy tonight in a first-round National Invitational Tournament basketball contest that could be a low-scoring affair.

"I guess our defense is better than average," said a modest Bill Berry, coach of the San Jose State Spartans. His team has given up an average of only 56.4 points per game and ranks fourth in the nation in that category.

"We'll fast-break some," promised Berry, who worked on the match-up zone while a top assistant at Michigan State where the combination of man-to-man and zone defense was created. "We don't take the air out of the ball, even though we have had some low-scoring games."

Texas-El Paso Coach Don Haskins claims his reputation as a defensive coach is over-emphasized.

"There have been a couple of years that we've led the nation in defense, and, yes, I know I've always been accused of" building strong defensive teams in the past, Haskins said.

"But we certainly haven't been that good a defensive team ourselves this year." The Miners gave up an average of 62 points a game.

"If we have a strong point it's our rebounding," Haskins said. "If we don't rebound, we don't win."

San Jose State, which finished second in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association with a 21-8 record, goes in as the favorite over the 17-11 Miners, and Haskins said "they should be in the NCAA tournament with 21 wins."

Fatigue could be a factor for both teams. Haskins said his team was suffering "jet lag" after returning late Sunday from his team's regular season finale against Hawaii, and Berry's Spartans had to live up to their nickname as they answered a 5 a.m. wake-up call to catch a 6 a.m. flight into El Paso Tuesday.

Astro shortstop to change style

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros shortstop Craig Reynolds suffered through one of his worst hitting slumps last season and, he says, he didn't even get any peace when he came home from the ball park.

During one of the lowest points of his .226 season, Reynolds went 0-for-4 with a sacrifice fly and when he arrived home was met by his wife's sarcastic comment, "You're hot."

Reynolds feels he has diagnosed his problem, however, and has gone back to his old hitting stance.

"Last winter, I decided I wanted to drive the ball more so I changed my style and began hitting off my back foot," Reynolds said.

Facing takes local look on March 28-29

The Big Spring Jaycees and the local chapter of the Sports Car Clubs of America staged a series of races on remote landing strips at the Big Spring Industrial Park Sunday and are planning more events of formula and super sports car race in the future.

A racing program scheduled here March 28-29 will not be open to the public. In a sense, some of the drivers will be going to school, learning how to perform, and preparing for some of the big events to follow. Upwards to 100 cars from the Alamo, Lone Star and West Texas regions will be here for the program March 28-29.

Among firms and agencies which helped the Jaycees and the SCCA stage last weekend's events were Earthco, B. J. Oil Service Co., Birdwell Trucking, Travis Floyd Mesa Valley Toyota, Permian Distributors, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Nutro Oil Chemical Co., Quality Tire, Dunnam Tire, 87 Wrecking, Brown's Service Center, Phil Corbin and the Boy Scouts and the City of Big Spring, specifically Don Davis, Paul Feazelle and Bob Clark.

Baseball czar Kuhn admits game could be in trouble

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bowie Kuhn had a forlorn look on his face when he drove to the "Finken" Field Sunday — top one of the exhibition baseball games he will see all spring.

When Kenesaw Mountain Landis was commissioner, and the same was true with Happy Chandler and Ford Frick, they came to Florida and stayed a month in the sunshine," the commissioner said. "I can't stay. I have a lot of problems back on the desk in New York."

Baseball is in turmoil. The players have scheduled a strike May 29. Free agent salaries have become astronomical. Fans booed a break in training at Sarasota, Fla.

Club owners are asking mercy. In recent months four franchises — the New York Mets, Chicago White Sox, Seattle and Oakland — have changed hands.

Now one of the most respected owners, Ruly Carpenter, has announced he will try to sell the World Champion Philadelphia Phillies.

"Enough is enough," he said, referring to the unbridled escalation of salaries.

Kuhn's host at the second game here between the Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers, Calvin Griffith, greeted the commissioner with a dour visage of his own.

"We lost $1.3 million last year," he said. "If this trend continues we will have to toss in the towel. But we are hoping to survive and go into our new stadium, the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome next year — a big boost."

"I've heard that Ray Kroc at San Diego also is becoming disenchanted and may pull out."

Kroc is the guy who built the Padres on a mountain of hamburgers.

These recent franchise turnovers and threats of additional ones disturbed Kuhn.

"We can't be assured," he said, "that the replacements will have the same determination to protect baseball's integrity."

Asked point-blank if he anticipated a strike, Kuhn responded, "I can't see a reason for one."

The answer was evasive because the prospects of aborting such a shutdown of America's favorite pastime are grim and there is little the commissioner can do about it. He has no control over the players. They march to the drum of Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association. Legally, there is no way except by leaning on the owners that he can inject his office into what is a labor dispute.

"Compensation at the moment is a very important issue," Kuhn said. "It isn't the only one. We are working on a lot of things that deal with the economic problems of the game."

Kuhn insists that the players are bound by good faith to help resolve the compensation stalemate.

"If they didn't think that the owners' plan had merit they should have rejected it out of hand last April," he said.

A slugging first baseman, Johnny Mize, appears to head the volume of names submitted for consideration. The candidates include legendary players remembered by a generation of middle-aged fans, plus managers, executives, umpires and members of the old Negro leagues who may have been slighted.

Most of the players high on the eligibility list are pitchers and outfielders with a smattering of catchers and first basemen.

Marty Marion, a shortstop for the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1940s, and Travis Jackson, who was 15 years with the Giants, were the leading infielders on today's list.

The rash of pitchers included Hal Newhouser, who gained fame with the Detroit Tigers and Fred Fitzsimmons of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Walter Alton, who managed the Dodgers to seven World Series, was a candidate along with umpire Al Barlick, the late owner Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers and old Negro League stars Rub Foster, Ted Page and Smokey Joe Williams.

Only five third basemen have made the Hall of Fame, eight second basemen and 11 shortstops. There have been 13 first basemen, 42 pitchers and 45 outfielders.

It's the big bat and the wing that people most remember, at least those people who vote.

NCAA touney nears

In the final regular-season game, Marquette, which is headed for the NIT, beat Wisconsin 64-53. Glenn Rivers scored 23 points for the Warriors, 20-10, who hit just 33 percent of their first-half shots from the floor and trailed 23-21 at intermission. Claude Gregory led the Badgers with 29 points, boosting his school-record career total to 1,745.

The NCAA tournament doesn't begin for another night. But the NIT's first round continues tonight with five games, including a pair of contests between 20-victory teams and a battle of giant-killers.

Texas-Arlington, 20-7, meets South Alabama, 23-5, at Mobile, Ala., and American, 24-5, is at Toledo, 20-9, as the pace of nation's oldest college basketball tournament intensifies.

Also on tap are San Jose State, 21-8, at Texas-El Paso, 17-11; Drake, 18-10, at Minnesota, 17-10, and Old Dominion, 18-9, at Georgia, 18-11.

Canyon ends Snyder season

LEVELLAND — Canyon held off a late Snyder rally here Tuesday night to take a 58-56 Class AAAA bi-district win.

Walling paced Canyon with 25 points, while Arnold and Blackmon had 14 each for Snyder.

Greenwood rolls by Sterling City

The Greenwood Rangers scored a 63-46 win over the Sterling City Eagles in bi-district action to advance to the regional tournament this weekend.

Coleman rolls

BROWNWOOD — Coleman used a 31-point effort from Reggie Childress in taking a 50-37 win over Abilene Wylie here Monday night in a Class AAA bi-district boys basketball game.

San Angelo plays bully in Optimist Relays JHS Meet

San Angelo dominated the action in the 1981 Optimist Relays here at Blankenship Field, winning five of the six divisions.

Only the Big Spring Goliad JHS boys could snip the San Angelo's dominance, winning their division over second place San Angelo Lee by 8 1/2 points.

San Angelo Edison won the girls seventh grade and boys eighth grade division, with San Angelo Glenn winning both the eighth and ninth grade girls divisions. San Angelo Lee rounded out the outstanding day for the tracksters from the Concho Valley, claiming the ninth grade boys division.

Sherman (110-hurdles), Rodgers (300-hurdles), Barraza (1200-run) and Carroll (high jump) paced the Goliad boys winning effort, claiming first place ribbons in their events.

A total of 10 new records were established in the girls divisions, with two Big Springers getting their names etched.

The two record sets from Big Spring were Solis of Goliad and Gilstrap of Runnels.

Solis threw the discus 73'10" for her mark in the seventh grade division, while Gilstrap shattered the eighth grade discus mark, heaving it 94'7".

No new records were put in the record books in the boys divisions. That was because the old marks were in yards, while the new style is metric, which was used on this occasion.

Pitchers, outfielders odds for Hall of Fame

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Kids who have dreams of becoming big leaguers who get into the Hall of Fame should avoid positions in the infield, except maybe at first base.

They're the toughest spots from which to spring to one of those immortal niches at Cooperstown, N.Y.

It would be much better off pitching or playing outfield.

This counsel is supported by statistics provided by the Hall of Fame as the Old-Timers Committee met here today to pick any player who might have been passed over years ago in the regular balloting of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

A slugging first baseman, Johnny Mize, appears to head the volume of names submitted for consideration. The candidates include legendary players remembered by a generation of middle-aged fans, plus managers, executives, umpires and members of the old Negro leagues who may have been slighted.

Most of the players high on the eligibility list are pitchers and outfielders with a smattering of catchers and first basemen.

Marty Marion, a shortstop for the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1940s, and Travis Jackson, who was 15 years with the Giants, were the leading infielders on today's list.

The rash of pitchers included Hal Newhouser, who gained fame with the Detroit Tigers and Fred Fitzsimmons of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Walter Alton, who managed the Dodgers to seven World Series, was a candidate along with umpire Al Barlick, the late owner Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers and old Negro League stars Rub Foster, Ted Page and Smokey Joe Williams.

Only five third basemen have made the Hall of Fame, eight second basemen and 11 shortstops. There have been 13 first basemen, 42 pitchers and 45 outfielders.

It's the big bat and the wing that people most remember, at least those people who vote.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAR. 14, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when you may want to change present plans for an illusionary new appeal, but it would be wise not to discard carefully laid plans of the past. Maintain a good outlook.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Establish a new system for your regular work so that it is easier to perform. Be more optimistic about the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) State your aims to good friends and gain their support in a new project you have in mind. Express happiness with congenials.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go to influential persons for the help you need to carry through with your plans. See that your personal life is well organized.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now put in motion a project that was impossible to do in the past. Take treatments to improve appearance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrate on how to improve your environment. Discuss practical matters with friends and get their advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure to improve conditions at home. Not a good day to ask an influential person for a favor. Engage in favorite hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Make new contacts that will be helpful in your enterprise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Ideal day to enjoy yourself at recreations in the company of congenials. A talent you have can be expressed at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It may be difficult to gain your aims in the morning but things will improve later in the day. Spend your money wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to consult influential persons who can help you in your career. Be more willing to cooperate with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your monetary affairs well and know how best to improve them. Contact a financial expert and get excellent advice.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to further personal relationships and make big headway. Discuss personal plans with trusted friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can comprehend both sides of a situation and can whittle any project down to a practical level, so be sure to give as fine an education as possible, and then there can be much success during lifetime.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

PERHAPS YOU sang a lovely song or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent beautiful flowers, if so we saw them there. Perhaps you sent or spoke kind words as any friend would do. Perhaps you prepared some tasty food or maybe furnished a car. Perhaps you rendered a service unseen near home or from afar. Whatever you did to console the heart we thank you so much whatever the part. The family of Steve Darden

PERHAPS YOU sang a lovely song or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent beautiful flowers, if so we saw them there. Perhaps you sent or spoke kind words as any friend would do. Perhaps you prepared some tasty food or maybe furnished a car. Perhaps you rendered a service unseen near home or from afar. Whatever you did to console the heart we thank you so much whatever the part. The family of Steve Darden

Reagan's budget reverses trend of last two decades

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's budget aims to reverse the dominant trend of two decades by spending more and more of the federal dollar on defense and the military, not on federal social programs.

In the classic "guns-versus-butter" debate, Reagan's spending plan for fiscal 1982 takes a clear position: slash billions of dollars from social programs and boost defense spending to the highest levels since the Vietnam War.

And this budget is just the start. Over the next five years, Reagan wants to increase the portion of the budget spent on defense from the current 24 percent to about 38 percent, while keeping the percentage spent on social programs roughly stable.

This would reverse the nation's course since 1960, in which social programs took

Flu epidemic has killed 63

HOUSTON (AP) — The Baylor Influenza Research Center reported Tuesday 63 people died in this winter's influenza epidemic in Harris County.

Dr. W. Paul Glezen said the total triples the deaths usually recorded for influenza and pneumonia during a comparable time period without an epidemic.

paper plates and martinis in plastic cups.

On the bar car of the 5:33 commuter train out of Grand Central, stock brokers and advertising executives swap ideas about how to save water. One catches water in a bucket in his shower to flush the toilet. Another says his wife won't allow him more than an inch of water in the bathtub.

In late January, city officials had begun gearing for "Condition 2," making plans to dig out trenches, install portable toilets and dole out drinking water by the bucket at street corners. Greenwich Hospital dug a well, but it produced only 10 gallons a minute. Tank trucks were parked outside, waiting in case the tap ran dry. The fire department mapped plans to draw salt water from Long Island Sound to keep the city from going up in smoke.

But just as there is no guarantee that President Reagan's economic program will work, there is no assurance the water supply will hold out during the months ahead.

Mandatory water conservation remained in effect even as the rains came down. Residents were told in late January they must cut back water consumption by 60 percent.

In this affluent city of 60,000 people, you can buy a Rolls-Royce, a Mercedes or a Ferrari from a local dealer, but you can't wash it. At the Greenwich Country Club they serve lunch in Overall, Reagan proposes spending $188.8 billion on defense, roughly 27 percent of the $695 billion fiscal 1982 budget. That's $4.4 billion above former President Carter's proposed defense budget for fiscal 1982. In fiscal 1980, spending on the military stood at $135.9 billion or about 24 percent of the budget.

But 1982 is just a hint of things to come.

Under Reagan's multiyear spending projections, defense would take up 30.9 percent of the budget in fiscal 1983, 33.2 percent in fiscal 1984, 36 percent in fiscal 1985 and 37.6 percent in fiscal 1986.

These surges in outlays in later years come as the full bills for big-ticket arms programs — nuclear carriers, new missiles and planes — arrive long after they are first ordered.

By comparison, 49 percent of the fiscal 1960 budget was devoted to defense, 43 percent in 1967 during the Vietnam War and 36 percent in 1971, the high water mark of the 70s. After that, defense spending sank as a percentage of the budget with the end of the Vietnam War and public disenchantment with the military.

Water shortage in Northeast poses long-range challenges

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — It was a fine day in Greenwich, raining like hell.

The lunchtime regulars at the Greenwich Restaurant were talking happily of their recent good fortune — the end of the drought and a Republican back in the White House — as they watched the fat raindrops splashing on Greenwich Avenue, the street of smart shops that slopes down to the harbor where the yachts from Newport and Palm Beach tie up in the summer.

"You know what really caused the water shortage in Greenwich?" asked a portly lawyer finishing off an omelette with mushrooms.

"Two Perrier trucks collided."

Thus, with the coming of the rains that had filled the reservoirs to more than half full by early March, the residents of this New England seacoast city were able to joke about the long dry spell that had left them with just an 18-day supply of water at one point.

But just as there is no guarantee that President Reagan's economic program will work, there is no assurance the water supply will hold out during the months ahead.

Mandatory water conservation remained in effect even as the rains came down. Residents were told in late January they must cut back water consumption by 60 percent.

Overall, Reagan proposes spending $188.8 billion on defense, roughly 27 percent of the $695 billion fiscal 1982 budget. That's $4.4 billion above former President Carter's proposed defense budget for fiscal 1982. In fiscal 1980, spending on the military stood at $135.9 billion or about 24 percent of the budget.

But 1982 is just a hint of things to come.

Under Reagan's multiyear spending projections, defense would take up 30.9 percent of the budget in fiscal 1983, 33.2 percent in fiscal 1984, 36 percent in fiscal 1985 and 37.6 percent in fiscal 1986.

These surges in outlays in later years come as the full bills for big-ticket arms programs — nuclear carriers, new missiles and planes — arrive long after they are first ordered.

By comparison, 49 percent of the fiscal 1960 budget was devoted to defense, 43 percent in 1967 during the Vietnam War and 36 percent in 1971, the high water mark of the 70s. After that, defense spending sank as a percentage of the budget with the end of the Vietnam War and public disenchantment with the military.

Water shortage in Northeast poses long-range challenges

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — It was a fine day in Greenwich, raining like hell.

The lunchtime regulars at the Greenwich Restaurant were talking happily of their recent good fortune — the end of the drought and a Republican back in the White House — as they watched the fat raindrops splashing on Greenwich Avenue, the street of smart shops that slopes down to the harbor where the yachts from Newport and Palm Beach tie up in the summer.

"You know what really caused the water shortage in Greenwich?" asked a portly lawyer finishing off an omelette with mushrooms.

"Two Perrier trucks collided."

Thus, with the coming of the rains that had filled the reservoirs to more than half full by early March, the residents of this New England seacoast city were able to joke about the long dry spell that had left them with just an 18-day supply of water at one point.

But just as there is no guarantee that President Reagan's economic program will work, there is no assurance the water supply will hold out during the months ahead.

Mandatory water conservation remained in effect even as the rains came down. Residents were told in late January they must cut back water consumption by 60 percent.
