

Peanut man's career endangered by drought

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Hubert Gregg survived last year's drought, which wiped out 45 percent of the nation's peanut crop and sent the price of peanut butter skyrocketing.

But if there's another drought this year, the "Peanut Man" may have to take early retirement at the age of 82.

"The peanuts I'm handling now will probably last through July," said Gregg, the blind peanut vendor who has been selling goobers for 49 years. "If we have a wet summer, the Spanish peanuts will be coming in."

Gregg has been selling peanuts since April 1932, when he "started from scratch" hawking goobers in front of a downtown hotel. The bags sold for a nickel apiece back then.

Today the price is 60 cents, and Gregg is almost apologetic about charging his customers that much.

"Last year goobers were 80 cents a pound, now they're 90 cents, and I look for 'em to go up to 95 cents with this next shipment," he said.

Gregg purchases an average of 200 pounds of peanuts a month from a farm near Naples. He spends mornings roasting and sacking the peanuts in his garage workshop.

A year ago, he sold one-pound bags for $1.75. Now they're $2.25.

"I just hate to charge that much for them," he says, shaking his head. "Drought or no drought, if they keep going up I may have to quit. I don't want to rob the people."

Despite the ever-increasing price, Gregg says he hasn't lost many customers. He still sells 40 to 80 bags a day on his Wednesday through Friday routes. He sells apples, too.

Years ago, he sold everything from medical goods to silver polish. He attended schools for the blind in Illinois and Minnesota, then tuned organs and played the piano at revival meetings from Kentucky to Indiana.

He operated a newspaper-tobacco stand in El Dorado, Ark., for 10 years before arriving in Longview on Friday, Nov. 13, 1931—in the midst of the town's oil boom.

He opened a similar stand and then sold peanuts at a minor league baseball game.

The next day, he said, he decided to get into the goober business full time.

UNDERWRITES COST — Jerry Worthy (left), chairman of the Big Spring Symphony Association Maintenance Fund Drive, accepts a check in the amount of $3,700 from Clarence Cardwell, vice president of ARCO Oil and Gas Co., in behalf of the Atlantic Richfield Foundation. The grant will underwrite the first of "Series III", a subscription concert season featuring the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Choral. An estimated $13,500 is still needed to underwrite the cost of bringing the orchestra to Big Spring on a regular basis.

David Trim participating in theater exchange plan

WATERFORD, Conn. — David Emerson Trim of Loretta Heights College, Denver, Colo., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trim of Big Spring, is participating in the exchange program of the Eugene O'Neill Theater Center's National Theater Institute.

The National Theater Institute (NTI) is a professional program designed to encourage the creative individuality of each student, present diverse professional views, broadening the vision of each student; and demand of that student the discipline that is necessary to work with success.

NTI is located on the grounds of the O'Neill Theater Center at 305 Great Neck Road in Waterford, Conn., and offers a one-semester resident program, 14 weeks during the fall term and 14 weeks during the spring of intensive studio work in theater with professional staff and guest artists in acting, directing, scene and costume design, movement, voice, puppetry and dance. In addition, students make regular field trips to professional theaters to view productions in such places as Boston, New Haven, Providence and New York.

The NTI receives its accreditation through Connecticut College. For this semester there are 27 students enrolled and are drawn from 17 participating colleges and universities in America and Europe.

Air traffic controllers want radar, walk picket lines in RGV

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Local air traffic controllers say they want radar installed at three area airports in addition to the higher wages and shorter working hours demanded by their national union.

Controllers walked informational picket lines in McAllen, Harlingen and Brownsville Sunday to protest the lack of radar in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

None of the three airports merits an individual radar system under Federal Aviation Administration guidelines but taken together they have more than enough traffic, said Paul Dugdale of Brownsville, a member of the controllers safety committee.

Braniff International serves Brownsville, Southwest Airlines and Mexicana fly into Harlingen and Texas International has flights from McAllen. Texas International has announced plans to resume service to Brownsville later this year.

Texas Shield Law likely won't clear legislature

By JIM DAVIS
Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — After a series of events more resembling "Laverne and Shirley" than "Lou Grant," a proposed shield law for Texas reporters appears unlikely to gain prime time before the 1981 Legislature.

Since the proposal didn't draw high ratings even from many reporters, it probably never had a chance anyway. A shield law, basically, allows reporters to protect the identity of sources. The theory is that journalists are public; thus, helping them obtain tips and information that is of benefit to everyone.

Most reporters believe they need to protect the identity of sources, some of whom risk embarrassment or loss of jobs if their identities are discovered.

Not all reporters are for a shield law, however. Many believe that the best protection for journalists and sources is within the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution; and not within a legislative statute.

The argument goes: What the legislature gives, it also can take away.

Recent editorials in two Texas newspapers illustrate the division among journalists: "A Texas Press Shield Law Would Be in Public Interest," said a headline in The San Antonio Light. "Shield not needed," said a headline in The Austin American-Statesman.

Two House members, Stand Schlueter of Salado and Bob Bush of Sherman, found themselves in the middle this session when they floated a trial balloon on a shield law for Texas.

Schlueter has a publisher in his district who favors a shield law, and Bush, a lawyer, is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee; which has studied issues regarding fair trial and free press.

They and several capitol reporters gathered in Schlueter's office last month to discuss a proposed bill.

Schlueter said he wanted members of the capitol press to discuss the matter and make suggestions. That was like asking a bunch of kids which cartoon they wanted to see on Saturday morning. There was no consensus.

At a monthly meeting of the Austin chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, a show of hands indicated that a majority opposed any shield law. But chapter president Lee Jones of the Associated Press supports the idea.

The only thing that prevented more confusion was that most of the capitol reporters quickly and quietly shoved the issue to the bottom of priorities as they struggled to cover other legislative issues.

Most capitol reporters are nervous about press-related legislative issues anyway. How can someone lobby for something such as a shield law, which would report on the issue? Some of us don't believe you can.

Even shield law supporters are divided on exactly how a bill should be written. Should it be horded narrowly to include only mass media representatives or broadly to include pamphleteers?

Despite the confusion, Schlueter said last Thursday he thought a bill would be a good idea. He said Bush had agreed to introduce one.

But a spokesperson in Bush's office said the representative had no plans to carry such legislation.

Back to Schlueter. He said he and Bush must have had a communications problem. They would get together and work things out, he said.

Even with improved communication, however, the fate of the shield law proposal appears clear.

Dear Abby

No Sweet Nothings Whispered in Her Ear

DEAR ABBY: My wife keeps telling me I have bad breath. I've consulted my doctors in medicine and dentistry, and they both have assured me that there is nothing abnormal about my breath. I have even asked some of my best friends, and all have affirmed that I do not have bad breath. Meanwhile, every time I go to kiss my wife, she pushes me away, saying, "Your breath is terrible!" This totally destroys my romantic impulses. I might have, but she's irritated, rejected and depressed.

It has occurred to me that my wife is using this "bad breath" excuse to get out of having a normal husband-wife relationship.

Obviously, if this continues, it will be the end of our marriage. My wife is a very desirable woman of 58, and I love her very much. Please advise.

NO LOVE IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR NO LOVE: Your wife could be suffering from "olfactory hallucinations" (smelling imaginary, non-existent odors). If this is not the case, and she is keeping you at arm's length for reasons of her own, you have another problem. Your marriage smells!

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen years ago I chose a sterling silver flatware pattern and have accumulated two place settings. Since it has become so expensive, my husband discouraged buying any more.

You can imagine my excitement when an aunt came from another state to visit and in the course of the conversation I discovered that she and I had the same silverware pattern! She has a complete service for 12. How do I go about asking if I may have her silverware after her need for it has passed?

She is a very gracious lady in her 80s, very proper, well-to-do, and has many grandchildren. We are not close, but I correspond with her daughter.

When the time comes for this aunt to dispose of her silver, I would buy it if it were for sale. (It probably wouldn't be as expensive as brand-new silverware since it was purchased many years ago, and is "used.")

I would appreciate any suggestions you have on how to handle this ticklish problem.

THE GREEDY NIECE

DEAR NIECE: I would not "handle" this problem at all. Gracious, proper, well-to-do ladies in their 80s rarely "sell" their silver. They usually give it away or leave it to their closest kin.

Your aunt already knows that you and she have the same pattern. Any further mention of it on your part would be inappropriate and presumptuous.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to you? You used to encourage married couples to do everything within their power to save their marriages. Lately, you give the impression that divorce could be the answer for some couples. Why?

WASHINGTON STAR READER

DEAR READER: Because I think it's more important to save people than marriages. And often, in an effort to save a marriage that isn't worth saving, people have destroyed themselves and/or each other.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Obstacle course funds are granted by school district

College Heights Elementary's playground will have a new obstacle course, thanks to the school's Parent-Teacher Association. The PTA had raised $1,300 in project funds and voted to allocate it to the purchase of a school obstacle course if the school district could pay $1,450 to cover the balance of the cost. The school district has agreed to do so, and the course has been ordered.

Units in the obstacle course will be a log wall, wood and arch climber, two balance beams, log jam, chain net climber and climbing pole. The wood obstacle course integrates rust resistant metals with top grade woods to provide a challenging play activity for students, according to College Heights' physical education teacher Nancy Reynolds.

"This style is one of the most up-to-date courses available today," said Mrs. Reynolds. "It can be added to a piece at a time as cost permits."

"Our school should be proud of this equipment," she continued, "as it is a fine outdoor learning center for our students' physical development. A fine mind in a fine body is hard to beat anywhere anytime."

Members of the PTA committee which investigated different project possibilities were Doris Vieregge, Sharon Balderach, Vonda Crawford and Faye Welch.

Food club appoints committee to elect officers for next meeting

The Big Spring School Food Club met at Gollad Middle School Thursday. The meeting was called to order by Clara Lewis, president. Invocation was worded by Ruth Williams.

The treasurers report and minutes were read and approved. Reports from each committee were given. A discussion was held on moneymaking projects to raise funds to send new officers to the convention which is being held June 16-20. All officers are urged to attend the convention at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dallas.

A committee composed of each cafeteria manager was appointed to elect new officers for the next meeting at Bauer Elementary School on April 9 at 3:30 p.m. The invitation was issued

St. Patrick's Day recipes have a certain Irish flair

"When Irish hearts are happy, all the world is bright and gay." Such is the case on St. Patrick's Day, a special green letter day when everyone is a happy Irishman — at least at heart. For whether truly Irish or not, all can enjoy the traditional foods of this celebration.

That Emerald Isle Classic, corned beef, takes on delightful new flavor and eye appeal when it's given an untraditional — and — glaze. The corned beef brisket is simmered slowly until fork-tender, then baked briefly to transform the delectable brushed-on glaze of coffee, brown sugar and Irish whiskey into an irresistible delight.

For the perfect ending to either of these fine meals of Irish ancestry, serve Angel Mist Delight. This delicious, yet light, dessert is a luscious combination of creamy gelatine custard, whipped cream and morsels of angel food cake, flavored with mint.

IRISH DELIGHT — For a deliciously different corned beef idea, add the Irish touch of coffee. Colcannon in Pepper Cups make an attractive accompaniment, and this Angel Mist Delight is a perfect ending to a happy St. Patrick's Day.

CORNER BEEF WITH IRISH COFFEE GLAZE

4 to 6-pound corned beef brisket
Water
3 tablespoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons instant or freeze-dried coffee
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon grated orange peel

3/4 cup Irish whiskey (if desired)

Place corned beef in Dutch oven and cover with water. Cover tightly and simmer 3 1/2 to 4 hours or until meat is tender. Remove meat from cooking liquid and place on rack, fat side up, in roasting pan. Combine brown sugar, coffee and cornstarch in small saucepan. Gradually stir in milk and orange peel and cook, stirring constantly 3 to 5 minutes, or until thickened. Stir in whiskey, if desired, and cook 1 minute. Brush sauce over corned beef. Bake in moderate oven (350 Degrees F.) for 20 minutes to glaze. Carve in thin slices diagonally across the grain.

COLCANNON IN PEPPER CUPS

4 large or 8 small green peppers
1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped kale, turnip greens or broccoli, defrosted
Boiling water

1 envelope Lipton Onion-Mushroom Mix

2 tablespoons butter

3 to 4 cups hot seasoned mashed potatoes

Cut large green peppers in half or cut slice from top of small peppers; remove membrane and seeds. Place green peppers in large saucepan; add boiling water to cover and boil 3 to 5 minutes. Invert peppers on absorbent paper to drain.

Pour off all but 1 1/2 cups boiling water; add kale, turnip greens or broccoli and cook rapidly 5 to 10 minutes, until just tender. Drain thoroughly. Stir onion-mushroom mix and butter into hot vegetables; fold into hot seasoned mashed potatoes. Spoon approximately 1/2 cup vegetable mixture into each pepper cup, mounding top. Bake in moderate oven (350 Degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. 8 servings.

ANGEL MIST DELIGHT

2 envelopes Knox Unflavored Gelatine
3 cups milk
4 eggs, separated
1/2 cup mint jelly
3/4 teaspoon mint extract
1/2 teaspoon green food coloring
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup heavy cream, whipped, or 2 cups whipped topping

1 10-inch angel food cake, torn into small pieces

Chocolate sauce, if desired

Sprinkle gelatine over milk in saucepan. Beat egg yolks until light and lemon colored and stir into milk. Stir over low heat until gelatine dissolves, about 5 minutes. Stir in jelly until melted. Remove from heat and stir in mint extract and coloring. Chill, stirring occasionally until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Beat egg whites in large bowl until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar and beat until stiff, but not dry. Fold whipped cream or topping into gelatine mixture, then fold in pieces of cake and meringue. Turn into 12-cup bundt pan. Chill 4 hours, until firm (or overnight). Unmold and serve with chocolate sauce, if desired.

MRS. CLYDE ANGEL

Altrusans elect new officers

The Altrusa Club, March 12 in the celebration of the Holiday Inn. The meeting was called to order by Doris Guy, president. The Altrusa Collect was repeated in unison and the pledge to the flag was led by Mamie Roberts. Pat Highley gave the treasurer's report. Doris Guy introduced guests Mable Kountz, Mrs. Dingwall and Vera Gross. A fourth guest, Mrs. Clyde Angel made her entrance wearing a dress left to her by Mrs. Carnwite, mother of Mrs. R.V. Middleton.

Mrs. Angel read the Centennial Belles' Proclamation, giving it her own personal emphasis. She mentioned each club or organization will be expected to have some kind of function in participation of the centennial celebration. This can be in the form of a centennial tea, meeting, party or anything that will help the promotion of the centennial. She also made known to the membership that costumes are on sale at the Centennial Store, 900 Main Street.

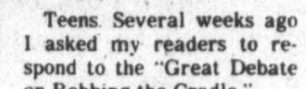

Annie Matt Angel will be featured at the Centennial Luncheon, May 2, sponsored by the Altrusa Club, with one of her book reviews. Tickets will soon be on sale from any member of the Altrusa Club. The price will be $3.50 per ticket and will be held at the Garrett Hall, First United Methodist Church. Members will be wearing the centennial dress.

The election of new officers was held, naming Gertrude McCann, president; Debbie Mitchem, vice president; Pat Highley, recording secretary; Frances Hendrick, corresponding secretary; Deloris Abert, treasurer; two year director Tot Sullivan; and one year director, Jane Watson, by acclamation.

The meeting was adjourned with the benediction.

Tween 12 and 20 — The Great Debate

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens Several weeks ago I asked my readers to respond to the "Great Debate on Robbing the Cradle."

To refresh your memory, Lois of Galesburg, Ill., thinks that 15-year-olds who feel they are both physically and mentally mature should be permitted to date persons who are 10 years older.

I feel that a 25-year-old adult has better things to do than dating a 15-year-old and this type of relationship should be discouraged.

The results of the "shoot out" were promised and now is the time to lay it on you. I had no idea this topic would stimulate the vast number of teens, parents and other readers to respond. It was expected that about a thousand letters would trickle in, but at last count over 12,000 letters have been received from readers throughout the United States and Canada with the Greater Seattle, Wash., area leading the way, followed by Columbus, Ohio. We were so swamped that it was necessary to hire two teen-agers to open the mail and tally the results.

I realize that figures can be manipulated but honestly promise the results are purely objective. Of the 12,273 letters tabulated, 10,222 (83 percent) could be said to favor discouraging a relationship between a 15-year-old and a 25-year-old.

Finally, since this is a teen column, what the teens had to say was most important. Of the 9,594 teen letters 6,620 (69 percent) were from girls and 2,974 (31 percent) were from boys. Interestingly, 80 percent of the teens did not favor (20 percent did) this type of relationship, but there was a significant difference between girls and boys. Twenty-eight percent of the teen girls (over one girl in four) liked the idea of dating older persons while only 4 percent (less than one boy in 20) thought the same way.

I think you will enjoy a few random comments from Lynn Lamphier, 20, Seattle, Wash. Many teens feel mature when they have a cigarette in one hand and a drink in the other...

From Candy Reynolds, 17, Columbus, Ohio... Get with it Doctor! It's 1981 not 1950. My man is 29. We don't have sex, we make love. My parents, who are professionals, condone our relationship...

From Lois Adams, 16, San Diego, Calif... All age does is tell how long a person has been alive. Many 15-year-olds are more mature than some adults will ever be...

From Jim Watson, 14, Wheeling, W.Va... I think 15 is too young to be dating and to be having a relationship with a 25-year-old is ridiculous...

From Anne W., 23, San Luis Obispo, Calif... When I was 21 I met Jim, 16, and our friendship has matured and while 2,061 (17 percent) readers could be construed to favor such a relationship if the teen was physically and mentally mature. Females, 9,011 (73 percent) outnumbered males 3,262 (27 percent) in responses and teen-agers 9,594 (78 percent) outnumbered other readers 2,679 (22 percent).

we are now in love... From Alice Ramirez, 19, San Antonio, Texas... I dated a guy who was 15 years older than I when I was in high school because of that fact, my school social life was ruined. He treated me like an old married lady.

From Kim Hoopes, 15, Elgin, Ill... Old-fashioned marriage... Please try to understand this.

From Dee Jordan, 14, Klamath Falls, Ore... Boys my age bore me to death. Don't get me wrong. I don't think that you are an old "fogey" but there is nothing wrong with teen-age girls having sex. In fact, it can be to their advantage to have some experience when they get married.

And with that, we will say farewell to the "Cradle Robbing Debate." Hopefully, you have been enlightened and occasionally amused!

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Reagan's example need not worry Austin reporters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some of Washington's White House reporters are disturbed by what they call the "Reagan roulette" press conference.

In an effort to get past some of the confusion at previous presidential news conferences, a question-by-lottery session was tried — once. Eighteen reporters who drew lucky tickets got to ask questions and the others just took notes.

"There'll be no drawing for questions here," Texas Gov. Bill Clements said when he heard of the Washington incident.

"We'll continue to respond to the reporter who yells the loudest."

And the former oil field roughneck has demonstrated several times he can yell the loudest.

Actually, Clements' weekly news conferences are fairly decorous.

There's considerable loud talk and laughter but so far none of this jumping up and down and screaming to be recognized as shown by TV at some Washington conferences.

Clements' holds his meeting with news reporters about once a week in his public reception room. About 20 or 30 chairs are pulled up in a semicircle around his desk under the big crystal chandelier.

A sign reading "Press Conference" is hung on the door to discourage other than working press.

Usually from three to eight TV cameras and tripods are set up in front of the desk. TV stations in Dallas, Houston and San Antonio often send crews to the Capitol for the news conference.

The speaker's stand is crowded with microphones from the TV cameras and the tape recorders of broadcast and print reporters.

Clements' "kitchen cabinet" of close advisers gather at one end of the room ready to answer any of the questions that the governor may relay to them.

There's always Jim Kaster, his legislative liaison aide; David Dean, his legal expert; Tobin Armstrong, his appointments aide; Paul Wrotenberry, financial consultant; Alan Clark, administrative assistant, and usually Secretary of State George Strake.

Earlier Jon Ford, press secretary, has briefed Clements and some of his aides on likely questions to be asked and what he thinks reporters are interested in.

Rita Clements sits just outside the glare of the floodlights but where Clements can see her. She's

Then about 10 or 15 minutes after the scheduled time for the conference, Clements comes limping in the door, a big grin on his face.

Some times he has an opening statement or appointment to announce.

At other times, he says: "Well, what do you want to talk about?"

The questioning usually starts at a slow pace but often grows into spirited discussions, which Clements obviously likes. He talks just as loudly and fast as anyone

And he stays in control.

When he thinks a subject has been aired sufficiently he'll say: "Let's talk about something else for a while."

There have been times when pressed for a definite answer, he'll say: "I don't want to talk about that. Next question."

He doesn't like long speech-making questions. A reporter who is not accustomed to him may be interrupted and told: "I will not assume anything of the kind. That's an iffy question. What are you trying to say?"

After about 35 or 40 minutes, one of the senior correspondents will say "Thank you, governor," and the formal conference is over.

There are impromptu news conferences any time Clements appears in public and meets a reporter.

Alabama-Birmingham (who) continues wacky NCAA ways in Kentucky upset

By the Associated Press

Knock, knock. Who's there? Alabama-Birmingham. Alabama-who?

Well, it may sound funny, but there are Gene Bartow's Blazers knocking on the door of the Midwest regional championships in the NCAA basketball tournament.

"How they got there is no laughing matter to Kentucky, however. The nation's eighth-ranked team was beaten by the UAB upstarts 69-62 Sunday in Tuscaloosa, Ala., as upsets continued to underscore this year's crazy-quilt tournament.

"Without question," said Bartow, "it was the biggest win in UAB history. It may be the biggest win in Gene Bartow history."

Bartow could become the first coach to lead three different schools to the Final Four. Previously, he had brought Memphis State and UCLA to that level.

Third-ranked Arizona State, No. 11 Wake Forest and No. 13 Iowa also were upset in Sunday's second round. That continued a dark trend for Top Twenty teams from Saturday when No. 1 DePaul, No. 2 Oregon State, No. 10 UCLA and No. 12 Louisville all went down.

Glenn Marcus converted 12 free throws in the final 5½ minutes to pace UAB's conquest of Kentucky. The Blazers, playing in only the school's third year of varsity basketball competition, blew a seven-point lead midway through the second half before rallying to beat one of the country's most honored teams.

"We couldn't get the ball inside and couldn't hit from outside," said Kentucky Coach B. Hall. "That's a tough spot to be in. They played a tough, inspired game. They're a good ballclub."

The victory sent the Blazers against Indiana in Bloomington, Ind., in Friday night's Midwest semifinals. Boston College will meet St. Joseph's (Pa.) in the other Midwest game. The Eagles took there with a 67-64 conquest of Wake Forest

Sunday, a result that did no harm to the eastern basketball image.

"We've been kicked around in the East a little bit," said Boston College Coach Tom Davis. "Folks say we don't play good basketball, but I'd have to disagree."

Leading the way for the Big East was John Barley, who scored 35 points, including four big ones in the final minute.

"We got impatient," said Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy, whose team was forced into 22 turnovers by the BC press. "We made some mental errors that hurt us in crucial parts of the game."

Arizona State was upset 88-71 by Kansas and Iowa lost to Wichita State 66-56 in the Midwest regionals at Wichita, Kan. Tony Guy scored 36 points to lead the Jay Hawks to a surprisingly easy victory over the Sun Devils.

"The problem was we did nothing on the offensive boards," said Arizona State Coach Ned Wulk. "Guy just murdered us early and played an outstanding game. They were definitely more up for it than we were. We seemed to get down on ourselves."

Arizona State thus became the third and last Pac-10 team to be knocked out of the tourney, with the earlier exits of Oregon State and UCLA.

In the other Midwest game Sunday, Wichita State beat Iowa with the help of a technical foul call on Tawkey Coach Lute Olson near the end. The Shockers were awarded two foul shots after Olson inadvertently called a timeout when his team had none left, and Randy Smithson converted them for Wichita State with five seconds remaining.

"We had a communications breakdown on the staff," said Olson, in explaining the mistake. "I was told we had one timeout remaining."

Smithson said he was aware that the Hawkeyes were out of timeouts at that point of the game and when he heard guard Bob Hansen call one, "I was elated."

Wichita State and Kansas will play each other in the Midwest semifinals Friday night at New Orleans. In the other game, Louisiana State will meet Arkansas.

Sunday's other second-round results went according to form, although fifth-ranked Virginia and No. 15 Tennessee both had tough times with their opponents in the East Regionals at Charlotte, N.C. The Cavaliers struggled past Villanova 54-50 behind Ralph Sampson's 17 points while Tennessee edged Virginia Commonwealth 58-56 on Dale Ellis' medium-range jumper with two seconds left in overtime.

The Cavaliers came back from a five-point deficit in the second half and Virginia Coach Terry Holland said the deficit was "the best thing for the team" because it fired up his players.

"It was a hard-fought win for us and we were a little tentative in the first half," said Holland. "In the second half we got the good shots early but the best thing for the team was that we missed them, got five points behind, then threw caution to the wind and played like the devil to stay in the game."

VCU Coach J.D. Barnett thought his unheralded team stood up well under playoff pressure.

"I thought we took it pretty well for most of the ballgame — 58-56 is not much of a difference, just a little crack between who wins and who loses," noted Barnett.

The results sent the winners to a meeting in Thursday night's East semifinals at Atlanta. In the other game, Brigham Young will play Notre Dame.

Williams 1st team, Wrightsil Soph of Year Williams, Wrightsil earn 5-A-A-A-A-A All-District

By NATHAN POSS

Sports Editor

Bobby Earl Williams and Jerald Wrightsil emerged as the Big Spring Steers most notable performers on the All-District 5-A-A-A-A-A boys basketball unit announced yesterday.

Williams, a junior who was the Steers leading scorer and rebounder, was named to the 10-man First Team unit on the elite 5-A-A-A-A-A squad. He averaged 13.6 points and 12 rebounds per game to cop the award.

The 6'2" junior's selection to the All-District squad makes him a two-sport honoree. Williams was named to the First Team All-District 5-A-A-A-A-A football squad as a running back after rushing for 909 yards during last fall's campaign.

Wrightsil was named the Sophomore of the Year in 5-A-A-A-A-A. He averaged only seven points per game, but that is misleading, as his progress throughout the year was obvious.

Joining Williams on the 5-A-A-A-A-A First Team were Midland's Mike Velasco and Horace Brown, San Angelo's Hercules Miller and Paul Hayes, Odessa Permian's Gayle Smith, Odessa's Rayford Wright, Abilene's Robert Hayes, and Abilene Cooper's Lanny Dycus and Barry McLeod.

Midland's 6-9 blue chipper, Herbert Johnson, was named the Most Valuable Player. In leading the Bulldogs to a perfect 5-A-A-A-A-A record and a season mark of 32-5, Johnson averaged over 25 points per game, as well as controlling the boards and dishing out numerous assists.

Midland lost to Fort Worth Dunbar 80-76 in the Region I-A-A-A-A-A Tournament Friday.

James Doss was the lone Big Spring player named to the Honorable Mention unit. It was the second straight year that Doss was named to the Honorable Mention list.

Michigan reduces NIT field

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Coach Bill Frieder is looking ahead in the National Invitation Tournament, but not too far.

"We've got a good enough club to win, but in no way am I saying we are favored," Frieder said following his Wolverines 80-68 triumph Sunday night over Toledo in the NIT's second round.

"There are a lot of great lives in California.

"Overall, I was very steady and served well most of the time," she added.

Navratilova later teamed with Shriver to beat Anne Smith and Kathy Jordan, 6-2, 6-2, for the doubles title, collecting a total of $39,500 for her six days in Dallas and running her prize money for the year to $175,650.

She jumped out to an early 4-0 lead and cruised to an easy first-set victory.

"I know it sounds silly to say the first game of the match was the turning point, but that game changed everything around," said Shriver, 18, clubs including the other Big Ten teams (Minnesota and Purdue) and Syracuse and Kansas," he added.

"Once you get to the final eight, any team can win it."

Toledo jumped to a 27-20 lead behind Harvey Knuckles, who scored 17 of his 27 game-high points in the first half. But the Wolverines were able to regroup in time to knot the contest 40-40 at the intermission.

Michigan and Toledo scored just one basket during the first two minutes of the second half before the Wolverines broke it open, outscoring the Rockets 17-4 during a six-minute span, to go ahead 59-46. The Rockets never came closer than 10 points during the final five minutes.

Mike McGee, who was held to just seven points in the first half, led the Wolverines with 25 points while Johnny Johnson added 22. Adamek had 19 for Toledo, which finished its season at 21-10.

The Wolverines, who lost seven of their last eight games in the Big Ten Conference, are now 19-10. They will find out who their third-round opponent is late Tuesday morning following a full slate of second-round games tonight.

Tonight, seven second-round games are scheduled — South Alabama at Georgia, Alabama at Duke, Holy Cross at Syracuse, Dayton at Purdue, Temple at West Virginia, Texas-E! Paso at Tulsa and Minnesota vs. Connecticut at Hartford, Conn.
