'It's rewarding, if you can help someone'

Judge relishes chance to work with people

By ANDREA COHEN
The Spanish speaking defendant is up before County Judge Bill Tune during his pretrial hearing. He is charged with driving while intoxicated and confers with his attorney in Spanish. He is pleading guilty.

BILL TUNE
His duties with county are varied

The attorney tells Tune his client can pay the fine next week.
The defendant starts speaking to his attorney again in Spanish when the attorney replies, "I'll be better if you speak English."
The judge wants him to attend a two-night driving course. The defendant tells him he works late on a farm.
"Well, this will be just two nights at $25," Tune tells the attorney. "It's well worth it and I think it'll help him."

After thinking it over, the defendant agrees and leaves the courtroom. His time in front of the county judge amounted to approximately three minutes.

The next case is another DWI. The defendant tells the judge a police officer stopped him because the officers were told to look for a stolen car.

"This DWI charge shows it was quite apparent you were intoxicated," Tune says.

"I haven't had a drink since the day it occurred," he replies.

Tune calls the Lamesa resident to the bench to discuss the charges. They quietly discuss arrangements for payment and reporting for probation. His time before the judge is over.

The third case is also a DWI. Tune wants to send him to the school. The defendant argues.

"I usually don't get home until eight or nine o'clock."

"Everyday?"
"Just about."

"Could you make it on the 23rd and 25th at 6:30?"
"I'll talk to my boss and see."

"We're requiring you to go to the school. It might help on your probation."

The man pleads guilty, is fined $200 plus court costs and 30 days in jail, probated for six months. He will attend the school.

A man in his mid 20s goes before the judge and stands politely while he answers questions about his DWI charge with a number of yes sirs and no sirs.

"Sit down," Tune says, smiling. "We're not going to bite, we're just going to punish you for a crime." His punishment is the same as the man before him.

It is a "very slow" morning for Bill Tune. "Sometimes these things run late into the afternoon," he says. He has a few DWI's and a speeding violation. A woman in her early 20s is charged with speeding 53 in a 40 m.p.h. zone, but she thinks the area she was in was a zone marked 35. Tune tells her he will check it and get back to her.

While waiting for the next case, he turns to one of the two women who run the school and they begin to discuss a man who won't stop drinking.

"His father says his wife causes his problems," Tune says, sarcastically. "I'm sure she pours the liquor down his throat."

Turning to another person in the room, he says, "It's a true experience to sit through pretrials to hear the stories and tales. It's quite an experience."

Since 1975, Tune has served as county judge. "I love to work with people," he says. "I feel that I'm helping people in the community. Most people try to degrade you when you try to work with them. If you can work with them and get them back to being a citizen, it's rewarding. You can't do it in every case. They have counselors in these areas. But it's real rewarding if you can help someone."

The decisions in each case, he says, are tough. "It really is tough to make. Punishment and help can go parallel to each other. I don't know how I judge it. My willingness to listen and try to do something to help is a factor. And every case is different."

"I'm confident at the time of my rulings," he continues. "But the thing about being a judge, whether it be an administrative or judicial decision, one wrong decision is criticized and the right ones are never mentioned."

"Sure, I've made some mistakes. Those who don't make mistakes, don't do anything."

He says in his court, he hears "plain old problems. With some of the people who come in, it may not be major to me, but it's serious to them. And I listen. And if I can help..."

Two years ago, a complaint was filed in Austin with the State Commission of Judicial Conduct. The complaint, signed by a Big Spring resident accused lunacy hearings have been held at the state hospital.

"I feel it's better for the patients and better for the staff. It's much easier for us to go out there. It's easier on the patients."
"I've been in office a little over six years," he continues, "and the rules on mental health have changed so much. You have to keep up on it. There was a time if you were committed, it was for life. Now it's changed which is really good."

"With most mental patients I commit on weekends and nights, I observe mostly everyone before they go, unless I get information from a reliable source. I don't want some guy sending his wife to get rid of her for a weekend. But with treatment now, they've done phenomenal things. It's unbelievable the change in the people. I don't sign papers at random."

The county court system has been severely criticized in the past for the number of dismissals given to traffic violators who appeal their cases from the city.

But Tune explains they are dismissed on a motion from the county attorney.

"If he doesn't feel he has a case, he recommends it to me and I dismiss it. If the prosecutor doesn't want to take it, what can you do with it?"

Tune, who has been in the automobile business, the wrecking business and is an insurance agent, a profession he still works at, but admits he is not very active, now administers justice in Howard County.

Why did the one time county commissioner decide to run for county judge?

"Some people had suggested it and it sounded like a good idea. With politics, you get involved in it and over the years, you feel you can dedicate yourself to it. You get a lot of self-satisfaction."

"I think you get criticism on actions and decisions you make," he adds. "But had the people known the circumstances, they might make the same decision."

There's a little flutter, and a little compassion to try to help one more time.

"I admire anyone who is a public official. It takes a lot of stamina."

Sunday work major issue in coal talks

By the Associated Press
About 160,000 members of the United Mine Workers union planned church and a day with their families Sunday — just five days before an anticipated strike in which a key issue is whether Sunday should continue to be a day of rest.

Coalfields in six states were hit by wildcat strikes last week, apparently by miners angry over a breakdown in talks with soft coal operators. At week's end, about 12,000 miners were off the job.

Saturday was a day off for most. "Saturday's a maintenance day, at best," said Dan Fields of the West Virginia Coal Association.

Art Sanda, a public relations executive for Eastern Associated Coal Corp. in West Virginia, agreed. "The vast majority of people are not working today, but that's the way it's scheduled," he said.

The situation was much the same throughout the Appalachian coalfields. Telephones went unanswered at mines in the region.

In Pennsylvania, where up to 5,000 miners were off the job last week, state police said they had no record of picketing, vandalism or violence that could be connected with wildcat strikes.

"We haven't had any problems whatsoever," said a trooper at the Uniontown, Pa., barracks. He asked not to be identified.

Miners were working in Ohio on Friday, and Anthony Bumbico — an Ohio member of the union's governing board — said he expects that state's miners to report to work as usual Monday.

The union has a strong no-contract, no-work tradition, and a strike upon expiration of the contract seemed a virtual certainty. Even if tentative agreement were reached before the March 27 expiration, UMW ratification procedures by the rank-and-file require 10 days.

A major issue in the stalled negotiations with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, is Sunday work. The current contract calls for miners to work a five-day week, but they can be required to work overtime on Saturdays. No work is done on Sundays.

The union has indicated it would be willing to accept Sunday work if all overtime is made optional, while the BCOA wants to extend the mandatory overtime provisions to Sunday.

Special Easter service is planned in coliseum

The music department of First Baptist Church, under the direction of Joe Whitte, has announced a special early service with breakfast on Easter Sunday at 8 a.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Breakfast will be prepared and served by the food service at Howard College and the musical, "Then Came Sunday," will be presented by a 70 voice choir from First Baptist Church, with dramatization and special effects.

Tickets for the breakfast will go on sale at the coliseum box office and at various locations on Monday, April 13 and continue through Friday, April 17. A full breakfast will be served for a cost of $3, or a continental breakfast for $1.

A similar production was presented two years ago at the coliseum by the musical group, "His Children" of the church. This year those not wishing to eat breakfast will be admitted to the upper seating level at no cost, said Whitte. No tickets will be sold at the door and must be purchased by April 17.

People of all faiths are invited to participate in this city-wide event, and the entire presentation will be over in time for Sunday School at various city churches, said Whitte.

Q. When does personal property become real estate?

A. An elegant light fixture that you purchase for your entryway is personal property, until it is installed. Once installed, it satisfies the requirements of real estate, i.e.: 1) it is attached, 2) it is adapted to the use of real estate and 3) it is intended to be a part of the real estate. The fixture is now considered to be a part of the real estate and would be included in the selling price. A seller should make it clear, in his listing contract, what fixtures are to be included or excluded with the sale. The buyer, in the offer to purchase, should make it clear what he expects to receive in exchange for the purchase price. Your broker will help you determine which items are to be included in either type of instrument, so that misunderstandings and hard feelings can be avoided when property is transferred.

Daniel custody trial looks like a murder proceeding

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — A stranger wandering into the court of Family District Judge Sam S. Emison Jr. would think he had happened upon a sizzling murder trial involving sensual details of the private lives of one of Texas' most prominent families.

He likely would have to be told that, instead, it was a child custody suit filed by Jean Daniel Murph, sister of slain former Texas House speaker Price Daniel Jr., who says her brother's widow is not a fit mother for the couple's two young children.

"I think we're beginning to see that these characteristics are not strong (in Mrs. Daniel) and to me, these are vital to the emotional well-being of the child."

Mrs. Murph also said attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes' tactics in bringing out alleged details of Daniel's private life showed her that Mrs. Daniel lacked concern for her children. "The fact that their father could be denigrated this week is a lack of parenting skills because these children will have to live with this for the rest of their lives," Mrs. Murph said.

Haynes, Mrs. Daniel's attorney, asked several witnesses if they had knowledge of Daniel's alleged homosexuality or use of marijuana. All denied any knowledge of such activities by the former legislator.

Larry Moore, Mrs. Daniel's former husband, testified that Mrs. Daniel often became violent during their nine-year marriage and once tried to stab him with a butcher knife. Moore also claimed that Mrs. Daniel slept with him on four occasions during the first year of her marriage to Daniel.

Despite all the allegations about Mrs. Daniel's private life, Moore said she was a good mother and Moore's present wife agreed in later testimony.

Mrs. Daniel claimed that Daniel beat her during their marriage but Mrs. Murph saw the situation from a different perspective.

"I think what we're beginning to see here is the possibility of a battered husband syndrome — two of them," she said.

Crowds of between 150 and 200 persons, mostly women, have attended each of the first five days of the child custody trial. Many have taken notes and made comments to themselves during the proceeding.

Bailiff Will Autrey had to repeatedly call for quiet when particularly interesting bits of testimony were delivered. The spectators generally have favored Mrs. Daniel's plight.

According to Gerri Atwell, museum curator, ticket sales for the Eighth Annual Chuck Wagon Party, scheduled for May 7, at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, are moving right along. But she says, since she will have to call the Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang, no later than May 4, and let them know how many tickets have been sold, that will be the number of serving plates they will bring with them — no more. On The Light Side Instability in Iran

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — Princess Ashraf Pahlavi, twin sister of the late Shah of Iran, says communists will take over Iran unless the monarchy is returned to power.

Princess Ashraf spoke Friday during a rare public appearance at the Pines Manor before 225 members of the North Jersey chapter of the Association of the United States Army. A few hours before, her nephew, Prince Reza Kurush Pahlavi, heir to the Peacock Throne of Iran, speaking from his home in Cairo, Egypt, called on the 2 million exiled Iranians to unite.

"In today's Iran, according to all observers, the Marxists are the only well-organized disciplined force," the princess said. "Once in power, they will call for the Soviet Union to come to their rescue, just as they did in Afghanistan."
"Already the red flag flies over some of the northern provinces," she said.

Municipalities' water demands hit new high

On July 1-2 last year the Colorado River Municipal Water District pumped 80,891,000 gallons of water to its customers. This lacked by some 6,000,000 gallons being a record, but what made it remarkable was that this peak day volume went practically all to municipalities.

This is one of many statistics gleaned from the annual operating report of the district just off the press. Peak day for the various cities were: Odessa 41,920,000 gallons, Big Spring 14,553,000, Snyder 6,385,000, Stanton 746,000, Midland (which takes only part of its supply from the district) 15,363,000.

Other highlights include total deliveries of 16,754,000,000 gallons, of which 14,920 billion went to municipal customers. (Lake J.B. Thomas contributed 3,406 billion gallons of that, Lake E.V. Spence 8,120 billion gallons. The other major source was the Ward County well field with 3,039 billion gallons.)

During the year two diversion works (one at Colorado City and one on Beals Creek) diverted about 4,200 acre feet of non-potable low-flow water which otherwise would have gone down to Lake Spence.

Most congressmen favor Reagan proposals

Budget cuts will take toll on Texas communities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lamapasas, may lose a $500,000 federal grant for a water treatment plant.

Dairy farmers from Grimes and Nacogdoches counties in East Texas are starting to write their congressman, worried about a proposed halt to increases in federal subsidies to their industry.

Health officials from South Texas have traveled to Washington in an attempt to persuade their congressman to vote against President Reagan's budget proposals that could affect their facilities.

Eight million dollars in federal money for a new sewer line in a fast-growing section of Arlington, Texas, may be at stake.

And service on Amtrak's InterAmerican train route through Texas may be eliminated or reduced.

The figure is $48.6 billion, the amount President Reagan wants to trim from the fiscal year 1982 federal budget submitted by his predecessor.

A detailed analysis still does not exist on how that figure will break down to affect one state, or even a region, but gradually the details are appearing to make its impact on Texas more apparent.

Many members of the state's generally conservative congressional delegation are committed to reducing federal spending and supporting Reagan's overall ending proposals.

That does not mean, however, that each congressman will go down the line and vote to approve each item.

An aide to a Texas congressman who has come out strongly in favor of Reagan's budget cuts was asked if the strong talk will mean support for each specific cut.

"I guess we won't know until the votes come in," the aide said.

There is certainly no monolithic view from Texas' two senators and 24 congressmen.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, for example, has pledged to support the package in the grounds that scurrying from it to protect any single item could open the door to wholesale desertions.

Rep. Martin Frost, a Dallas Democrat, said even though he supports cutbacks in the amount proposed by Reagan he believes substitutions can be made for some specific items.

Rep. Phil Gramm, a College Station Democrat, said he is obligated to support the total package even though it means $1 million would be trimmed from the $12 million in federal funds that former President Jimmy Carter proposed for the Aquilla Lake water project.

The lake is near Hillsboro in Gramms's Central Texas district.

"It means a slowdown, but I don't think the people in our district expect to be unaffected by the cuts, and I'm certainly not going to complain about it," Gramm said.

On the other hand there is Rep. Mickey Leland, a Democrat from inner city Houston. He simply groans, "everything," when asked if there are any parts of the budget proposals that would be felt particularly in his district.

The proposals for the food stamp, Aid to Families with Dependent Children and Medicaid programs are at the top of his list.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth cautioned his Democratic colleagues that the president's budget package "imposes a grossly unfair burden on those least able to carry that burden, those Mr. Reagan describes as the 'truly needy.'"

The mail, that measurement of public opinion tabulated by many congressmen, has taken some by surprise in its strong note of approval for Reagan's tax and spending plans.

El Paso depends heavily on federal spending and the trimmed budgets for the school lunch program and the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, among others, could be expected to make a big impact.

In Reagan's 1982 budget, the city's CETA funds would be cut to the tune of about $800,000.

Yet recent mail to Rep. Richard White, an El Paso Democrat generally in favor of the president's package, breaks down to 300 letters totally supporting the plan, 10 supporting it with exceptions and five in complete opposition.

At the office of Rep. Tom Loeffler, a Republican from Hunt, aides say the mail is running 100-1 in favor of the president's economic package.

"These people voted for Reagan and now we're going to have to live with his presence," was the evaluation by one Texas congressional staffer.

Estimates by both Texas senators show the state getting a fair treatment in the budget trimming.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, announced that his staff analyzed Reagan's preliminary budget proposals and found the state treated equitably in proportion to its percentage of the nation's population.

Remote location still park's selling point

Higher fuel prices cause drastic drop in Big Bend crowds

PANTHER JUNCTION, Texas (AP) — Rangers insist Big Bend National Park is not on the brink of becoming a "ghost park," but they concede the number of people visiting the rugged canyons, mountains and deserts has plunged almost as fast as the price of gasoline has soared in the past five years.

Fewer than half the number of people visited the park last year than in 1976. Park officials say the decline has been steady and it's still going on.

"Big Bend's drop is among the worst in the country," said Al Galipeau, a statistician with the National Park Service's planning office in Denver.

Rangers say the answer is obvious to them — the cost of gasoline has put this remote park in far Southwest Texas out of range of many vacationers. In 1976, when a gallon of gasoline cost about 55 cents, a motorist could drive his family here and back from Houston for about $50.

Today, gasoline for that same trip would cost about $110.

"People are visiting parks closer to home, and there's nobody close to home around Big Bend," said Ben Moffett of Santa Fe, N.M., a spokesman for the National Park Service's Southwest region, which includes six states. "Big Bend has gone down more than any park in the southwest because of its isolation."

But the remote location is one of the advantages of this 1,100-square-mile wildlife refuge that got its name from the 107-mile bend in the Rio Grande in which it is nestled, says acting Park Superintendent Russ Berry.

"We're 130 miles south of I-10, so you've got a 260-mile round-trip drive to get to come off the Interstate — and that's before you drive to the crossroads," he said.

"It's not our job to go out and recruit visitors," Berry said, but he confessed that since federal funds for parks are based in part on visitation statistics, he would like to see more people.

In the meantime, he said, fewer people cause less harm to the delicate flora and fauna that flourish here, including some species unique to the park's diverse forests, springs, basins and deserts. In the past, as the number of visitors grew, rules evolved which Berry said are intended to promote, not restrict, enjoyment of the park by preserving the natural resources.

The rules are very specific in some cases. For instance, if you are camping out on the Rio Grande floodplain while on a raft trip, you may build a small fire "as long as it is contained in a metal firepan, charcoal or dead wood is used, and the ashes are disposed of in the main current of the river," according to park literature.

Also, "molestation of any kind to the fish (in ponds and springs) is prohibited," the weather." He said union claims that Texas teacher salaries ranked No. 33 in the country were nothing but "propaganda," because his office had done a study proving Texas salaries were "in the exact middle," if allowance is made for Texas' relatively low cost of living.

Union president John Cole said Clements was "lying to the media" about salaries, and that his 22 percent package is a "cute PR gimmick."

"First of all, he means 22 percent over two years, so it's really only 11 percent," Cole said. "And in that, he's including some step raises ranger would probably look the other way if the attacked camper violated the law against molesting or frightening the animals.

"I don't like all the rules. When somebody comes in and sees 'don't, don't, don't,'" he may get the wrong impression of the park, Berry said. "But some of them are not so much rules as they are standards of conduct."

A few campers have complained about all the "don't do's," Berry said, but he said the park is Big Bend Park, created in 1944 from the Canyon State Park, leaves most visitors too awed to gripe.

The park was made a national preserve to protect the resources in this area, which includes the northern range of the Chihuahuan desert. The main attractions are the Chisos Mountains and three sheer-walled canyons carved by the Rio Grande which vary in depth from 1,400 to 1,600 feet.

"Their rims cannot be reached by climbing out," warns a Big Bend pamphlet.

Berry said only an experienced canoeist would be advised to take a trip down the entire 107-mile bend, which would take one to two weeks. But he said novices can float the Santa Elena Canyon, which includes the "Rock Slide" rapids, if they have the proper equipment and get briefed by a park ranger before they put in.

Proper equipment includes a good raft — "don't go to your local discount store and buy a $30 raft. You're depending on that raft to get you out of those canyons," Berry said. He said a good one costs between $800 and $4,000.

"We discourage people from floating the river in inner-tubes," he said. "If your tube goes flat in the middle of a canyon, you're in real trouble." He said a flat tube or a leaking raft could mean trying to climb a 1,600-foot canyon and then hiking across miles of desert.

There is one more point anyone intending to float the canyons should bear in mind, Berry said.

"Horse Canyon, just to the east of the park boundary, is the last place to put in or take out. Once you float past that, you're committed to four to seven days on the river, depending on the speed of the water. It's very wild and totally remote country, and past that point, you're committed."

Teacher's union marches in Austin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — About 150 members of the Texas Federation of Teachers, carrying signs saying "We Will Not Starve In Silence," picketed the governor's mansion Saturday in support of higher pay.

The union is seeking a 54 percent pay hike over the next two years, but Gov. Bill Clements has said he favors a 22 percent hike, and called TFT complaints about low pay "propaganda."

At his weekly news conference Friday, the governor said he had no comment on the demonstration, other than a wish that the marchers would have "pleasant weather."

He said union claims that Texas teacher salaries ranked No. 33 in the country were nothing but "propaganda," because his office had done a study proving Texas salaries were "in the exact middle," if allowance is made for Texas' relatively low cost of living.

Union president John Cole said Clements was "lying to the media" about salaries, and that his 22 percent package is a "cute PR gimmick."

"First of all, he means 22 percent over two years, so it's really only 11 percent," Cole said. "And in that, he's including some step raises that were already in the works, so that's not new money at all.

"It really works out to about 6.8 percent," he said.

Jill and Ed Krakovsky, both employed at the Dallas Independent School District's regional day school for the deaf, carried signs that said "Two Teachers' Salaries Equals One Poor Family."

They said both worked every summer doing a variety of jobs like clearing restaurant tables and cleaning floors.

"We've been teaching five years, and we've had to work every single summer," Mrs. Krakovsky said. She said the couple has no children.

'Angels' foot shoeshiner's trip to Israel

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "There's a song I've known all my life," said Tommy Harris, his eyes closing behind gold-rimmed glasses as if in prayer. "It goes, 'I want to walk in Jerusalem just like John.'"

"Now I'll get to. And I'll get to wash my hands in the River Jordan."

A lot of people share

Harris' desire to see the Holy Land. The trip of an 81-year-old shoeshine man wouldn't be remarkable but for the circumstances. It's like a blessing, Harris said, of a guardian angel — actually, about 20 of them.

One day last month Harris was playing his trade, as he has for 38 years, in the barbershop of the Fort Worth Club. In walked investment broker Bill Harvey, a longtime customer. But he didn't want a shine.

"He said, 'Tommy, if we send you to Jerusalem, will you go?'" Harris recalled.

Sure he would. Harvey got the names of other loyal patrons, then sent them letters asking them to contribute to the trip fund.

Enough money was raised that when Harris leaves Monday, he'll take along his wife, C.V.

Harvey was out of town this week, but his secretary said the gift came about through a combination of generosity and good timing.

"Mr. Harvey had just heard Tommy mention, like he had many times, that he'd like to go to the Holy Land," she said. "The very next day at the office we got a brochure advertising a trip led by (evangelist) Leighton Ford."

Harris will be traveling with a large group, but in Jerusalem he'll get special attention. Another customer, Louis H. Barnett, gave Harris two letters of introduction to Israeli officials.

Barnett said he knows the officials because his plastics company does business in Israel. One letter is to Teddy Kollek, mayor of Jerusalem, asking him to greet Harris.

Meeting the mayor probably won't awe Harris. He's had dinner at the White House with the president of the United States.

"Before he was president, Mr. Lyndon B. Johnson would come up here when he was in Fort Worth and I would shine his shoes," Harris said. "When he got to be president, he told me to come in the shop to come see him."

Chagra bragged of role in judge's slaying

DALLAS (AP) — Convicted drug kingpin Jimmy Chagra allegedly bragged to a federal prison inmate that he had a role in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood.

The Dallas Morning News reported Saturday.

The Dallas Times Herald said the federal Justice Department had placed the inmate, Herry Ray James, in the government's Witness Protection Program. James was described as a New Mexico prisoner who met Chagra while both were at the Leavenworth, Kan., federal prison.

But Justice Department officials refused to say why and when James was placed in the special program to protect government witnesses, the Times Herald reported.

"Mr. James is being protected by the United States and I have no further comment," said Gerald Shur, associate director of enforcement, criminal division.

A source told the Times Herald, however, that Jimmy Chagra allegedly bragged to James about the Wood-killing shortly before he was sent to another federal prison.

The alleged incident between James and Chagra came one month before government agents recovered a map, a tape recording and a small cache of drugs during a surprise search of the El Paso home of Chagra's brother, Joe Chagra.

Chagra is a lawyer who had advised convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, also linked to the assassination of Wood on May 29, 1979 in San Antonio.

Meanwhile Joe Chagra's attorney, William Ravkind, said his client is "still at odds" after a five and one-half hour meeting in Dallas with FBI agents investigating the Wood killing.

"They (federal officials) had some questions for Joe

... he was attempting to answer them," Ravkind said. "I think we're still at odds about some things."

The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyrighted story that a map of a hiding place for a rifle used to kill Wood and a tape recording of a conversation between Joe Chagra and Harrelson were seized when FBI agents searched Chagra's home Feb. 27.

Federal agents have declined to say if they have recovered the weapon.

The News, which said it obtained copies of sealed search warrants and inventories from the FBI raid, reported Chagra copied the map while visiting Harrelson at the Harris County Jail at Houston.

But Bob Tarrant of Houston, a co-counsel with Chagra in Harrelson's defense, said by telephone that his client denied existence of any map.

The investigation in recent months has focused on Chagra and Harrelson, who served five years of a 15-year sentence for a hired killing of a Texas grain dealer.

Jimmy Chagra is serving a 15-year sentence on a narcotics conviction in the federal maximum security prison at Marion, Ill.

Wood was scheduled to preside at Jimmy Chagra's trial at the time he was shot in the back with a single .243-caliber bullet outside his Antonio apartment.

Authorities said said three of the dead were found asphyxiated and that one of the men who died after he jumped missed a safety net held below and injured a fireman.

The police bomb squad sent experts to the building but would not say whether arson was expected.

Police sealed off the area, as thousands of Santiago residents converged on the area, drawn by the plumes of black smoke billowing from the tower.

Allen doesn't believe 'better red than dead'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's national security adviser said Saturday that Western Europe must curb social spending and reject "the contemptible philosophy of 'better red than dead'" if it hopes to deal successfully with the Soviet Union. In his first public address since taking his White House post, security adviser Richard V. Allen said, "Europe is confronted with an economic crisis every bit as dangerous as that which followed World War II." The North Atlantic Alliance has been weakened because of the inflationary ravages that occurred because "we have lacked the will to discipline social programs," Allen told a breakfast meeting of the Conservative Political Action Conference. He said that throughout Europe deficit spending on "uncontrolled social programs" have insulated Europeans from the realities of an economic system being eroded by inflation. Allen said that Europe's future will be "bleak" if the nations fail to curb the rise of inflation. And he said President Reagan found no serious disagreement when he made that point in a series of recent meetings with top European leaders.

Accidental shooting is ruled

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Peace Justice Mary Lee Moore has ruled the shooting death of a four-year-old Colorado City girl, Joyce D' Rae Butler, was accidental. The child was visiting an oil drill site with her mother, Raenell Butler, her grandfather, Raymond Treylear, her uncle, Jerry Don Treylear and several other persons when the shooting occurred. The Treylears worked on the oil rig. Two rifles had been left on the seat of the Jerry Don Treylear's car. According to Ginkinger, one rifle was leaning against the front seat pointed toward the floor, and the other was between two bucket seats, pointed toward the back seat. The rifle had been cocked and there was a shell in the chamber, Ginkinger said. Mrs. Butler told officers that when the group prepared to return to Colorado City she lay her daughter, who was asleep, in the back seat, then got in on the passenger side. Ronnie Davis, another rig worker, was going to ride to Colorado City with Jerry Don Treylear and Mrs. Butler. Ginkinger said Mrs. Butler told officers that she moved over into the back seat to make room for Davis and sat on the rifle, causing it to discharge. The bullet hit Joyce.

The Talk of the Town

Cogdell Center Snyder, Texas 915-573-5721

AN OPEN LETTER TO FARMERS AND LANDOWNERS IN THE WEST TEXAS AREA:

Farming is rapidly changing from the days when our main concerns were hail, insects, not enough rain, too much rain, too hot, too cold, blowing sand, or early frost just to name a few. On top of these old bugaboos we now have to be concerned with higher interest rates, higher fuel, seed, fertilizer, chemical and labor costs not to mention the effects inflation has on our profit picture.

We at Howard County and Glasscock County Federal Crop Insurance understand these things because we are farmers ourselves. We know that crop year 1980 is one that would be best forgotten but we also know that it will not be easily forgotten because it will take the profits from many of the coming years to make up for the losses or loss of profits from 1980. From what many of our customers from this past year have told us, Federal Crop Insurance has been a life-saver. Some have even said it has been the difference of whether they stayed in farming or were forced out.

We don't need to tell you how devastating another crop failure can be. You knew the risks when you started putting up your land for the 1981 crop year. We do need to tell you about all-risk crop insurance. Our past experience as agents for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, coupled with our knowledge of farming, makes us feel that we are well qualified to tailor a coverage that best fits your farming operation and give you the best service available to your policy. Under the auspices of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, we are now authorized to sell and service Federal Crop Insurance in Howard, Glasscock, Martin, Borden, Midland, Reagan-Upton, Mitchell, Dawson, Andrews, Gaines, and Scurry Counties.

The decision is yours to make. If you didn't have Federal Crop Insurance last year, don't make the same mistake twice. Call Lonnie Nichols at 915-263-1263 or Bennie Blissard at 915-354-2411 and let us show you how Federal Crop Insurance can pay off in good years and in bad years. Final date to insure your crop is March 31, 1981.

Stanton, Klondike win

FORSAN — Stanton's boys and the Klondike girls won championship honors in the annual Buffalo Relays staged here Saturday. High winds and stinging sand handicapped the performance of the athletes. The host school wound up fifth. Stanton won first places in eight events in the boys' competition. Klondike's girls ran up 101 1/2 points to 97 for runnerup Forsan. Davis says decision favored him

MAUI, Hawaii (AP) — Owners of the National Football League teams shored up their legions for the court battle with the recalcitrant member, Al Davis, as the annual owners' meetings came to an end. "It is depressing and frustrating because it comes from within," said Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the antitrust suit against the league brought by the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission and the Oakland Raiders. Raiders seek to quit Oakland and move into the Los Angeles arena which has been vacated by the Los Angeles Rams, who moved to nearby Anaheim, Calif., starting with the 1980 season. Rozelle claimed the Raiders have benefited from the overall league and the owners feel Davis, the team's managing general partner, should abide by the rule which calls for the rule which calls for a positive vote of 21 of the 28 members before a switch can be made. Davis holds the rule invalid and applauded the decision of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal in San Francisco, which Friday upheld the ruling of Judge Harry Pregerson that there be no change of venue. Thus, the trial will be held in Los Angeles.

Mavericks win 109-95 verdict

DALLAS (AP) — Bill Robinson exploded for 20 straight points in the fourth quarter and also controlled the boards as the expansion Dallas Mavericks rallied to defeat the Utah Jazz 105-95 Saturday night in a National Basketball Association game. The decision was the 16th straight road loss for Utah, which fell to 27-50. Dallas, 14-64, won in a row for the third time this season. Utah led most of the way by four to seven points and led 78-76 going into the final 12 minutes. Brad Davis hit three buckets in a streak early in the fourth quarter that turned an 82-78 Utah lead into an 89-84 Dallas advantage, and the Mavericks stayed on top the rest of the way.

Hogs lose to Bengals

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Led by the early scoring of center Greg Cook and late points by guard Ethan Martin, Louisiana State took a commanding first half lead and continued to roll, dominating Arkansas 72-56 in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament Friday night. No. 4 LSU, meets Wichita State Sunday for the regional championship and a trip to the Final Four in Philadelphia. Wichita State eked out a 66-65 victory over cross-state rival Kansas in Friday's opener. LSU is the highest-ranked team left in the NCAA playoffs after a rash of early upsets. Arkansas was ranked 20th and was only one of three teams which had beaten LSU this season. Cook got 10 first-half points to lead LSU to a 34-18 advantage at intermission. He played under six minutes in the second half due to foul trouble and finished with 12 points. Martin got two points in the first half and finished with 16. The 5-foot-10 guard also had five assists and two steals as LSU was building up its early lead.

Hobbs' winning streak endures Lee wins 5th game in row

Tasker after more records

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The Hobbs press, a tormenting defense that paralyzes opposing basketball teams with the totality of a western rattler's venom, was born in a Texas Panhandle on a December night 26 years ago.

The full-court press employed by Hobbs High School has become the Eagles' trademark over the years and is synonymous with the school's athletic patriarch, Ralph Tasker.

Tasker has been the head basketball coach at the southeast New Mexico school for 32 years and in that time has established one of the nation's most successful high school programs.

With the culmination of this basketball season in Albuquerque, which saw Hobbs win its second straight New Mexico Class AAAA championship and 10th in the school's history — all under Tasker — the Eagles have won 1,001 games. Of that total, Tasker's teams have won 788, while losing 169, a winning percentage of .823.

Hobbs currently has a 37-game winning streak going into next season and holds the record for the longest winning streak by a boys high school team in New Mexico at 52 straight, set in the early 1970s.

Tasker, who says he always wanted to coach basketball, grew up in Moundsville, W. Va., the son of a factory worker. He earned all-district honors as a basketball player at Moundsville High and later attended a nearby Baptist college, Alderson Broaddus. It was there, says Tasker, that he made his permanent union with basketball and coaching.

"I spent four years under a great coach by the name of Rex Pyles," said Tasker. "We won the conference twice and he was eventually named national coach of the year."

World War II interrupted Tasker's plans to begin his own coaching career, but it also brought him to New Mexico.

Stationed at Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque during part of his service time, Tasker decided after the war to return to the city to work on his master's degree at the University of New Mexico. But his timing was bad.

"I got out of the service in November of 1945 and that was in the middle of the college year. Although I wanted to go back to school, I was a poor boy in need of a job," says Tasker.

The head coaching job at Lovington High School, 20 miles north of Hobbs, was open at the time and Tasker took it. Three years later, he led the school to the state championship.

Tasker took over the head job at Hobbs the following year, and although he promptly started turning out winning teams there too, the Eagles' success did not take off until that December night in 1955.

The Eagles of that year had lost the first three games of the season and Tasker had employed the press only when the team was behind in a game.

"We were coming back from a road trip to Amarillo and Borger, Texas and the boys and I started talking," says the 62-year-old Tasker now, recalling like it was yesterday how the Eagles acquired their most devastating weapon.

"The boys said they thought they could press the whole game and promised to work hard over the Christmas holidays to get in shape," he said. "I always listen to my players, so when they came back to school, we had them put on oil field boots and ran them two miles each day for two weeks." Hobbs was not to lose another game the rest of that season, winning 30 straight and the school's first state title.

Then as now, the purpose of the press was to force opponents into turnovers with a trapping defense that extends from baseline to baseline.

Two members of that team were center Bill Bridges and guard Kim Nash, whom Tasker now considers two of his greatest proteges.

Bridges went on to a long pro career that included stints with the St. Louis Hawks and Los Angeles Lakers. Nash set the state tournament scoring record of 45 points in the title game against Carlsbad.

And despite the nearly 800 wins, that first championship left an indelible mark on Tasker's memory.

ALL-DISTRICT REPRESENTATION — Two of the three Coahoma boys pictured here were named to the All-District 6-AAA basketball team while the third received Honorable Mention. From the left, they are Bruce Walker, a sophomore who was included on the Honorable Mention list; Phillip Ritchey, 6-6, first team all-district forward; and Michael Meyer, 6-4, all district post man.

Ritchey, Meyer named to All-District team

Two members of Coahoma High School's basketball team were named to the All-

District 6-AAA team, each for the second time in a row. A third was included on the Honorable Mention list. First team players from the Big Red were Phillip Ritchey, 6-6, a senior; and Michael Meyer, 6-4, also a senior. Bruce Walker, 5-10, was included on the Honorable Mention list although only a sophomore.

Black bass fishing is excellent at area lake

Fishing is getting better by the day at Lakes J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence, with black bass, white bass and walleyes biting most freely. Catfishing was improving, and crappie were beginning to bite with the approach of the spawn.

4 1/2-lb. walleye; Tony Stewart, Big Spring, 5 lb. black bass. Reports from Lake Spence included: Wanoreck's Paint Creek Marina — John W. Faver and Ramey McManigle of Odessa, seven strippers totalling 70 lbs., caught in the river channel using Hellbinder; several other parties reported from 10 to 100 white bass.

Ritchey averaged 21 points and pulled down 11.8 rebounds a game. He scored in the 30s several times during the season. He played forward for a Coahoma team that wound up with a 21-10 won-lost record. Over the year, he counted 647 points, had 81 steals and 114 assists.

Black bass fishing was excellent at Lake Thomas, and a number of good-size walleyes were being caught along the dam. White bass were coming on as were the crappie. Black bass were hitting artificial lure in 3 to 6 feet of water. Walleyes were being caught in deep water near the dam. Some catches from the lake included Greg Carter, Snyder, two black bass to 4 lbs.; Mike Hart, Colorado City, three black bass to 5 lbs.; Skeeter Fleming, Snyder, 3 1/2-lb. black bass and a 4 3/4-lb. walleye; W.C. Earnest, Big Spring, three white bass 1/2 to 3 1/2 lbs. and a 5 lb. walleye; Ruth McNew, Big Spring, Triangle Grocery and Bait — Bill Hyden, Big Spring, 10 blue catfish from 5 to 16-lbs. on trotline with grubworm bait. Skinny's Hillside Grocery — Danny Dyke, Lubbock, five black bass to 2 lbs. and several white bass to 1 1/2 lbs. near Salt Creek; Randy Flanagan, Odessa, 23 white bass to 1 1/2-lbs. on slabs; Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Ross, Lubbock, five crappie and a black bass on minnows; Randy Smith, Robert Lee, two black bass to three lbs.

Great moment, elated Kush says, of verdict

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Calling it "one of the greatest moments of my life," former Arizona State University football coach Frank Kush has been acquitted of battery charges against ex-Sun Devil punter Kevin Rutledge and misrepresentation of a scholarship situation.

Kush and former Sun Devil assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship. Rutledge alleged that Kush told him there were no football scholarships left when he enrolled at Arizona State in August 1977, but he would receive one his second semester.

The eight-member jury was deadlocked for more than eight hours on the battery issue. It returned its decision Friday after Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Thomas Kleinschmidt said he would accept five as a majority — rather than the six votes he had required earlier in the day.

Kush had testified that there was one scholarship available at the time "but it was my policy not to give all of them out in any one year." Hing told the jury in his closing argument that "the representation was false and Kush knew it. The very beginning of the relationship between Kevin Rutledge and the university was based on deceit and deception."

Kush, now the coach for the Canadian Football League's Hamilton Tiger-Cat, didn't change expression as the decisions were read.

After being vindicated, Kush said he had "no ill-feelings" toward Rutledge but "there was no need to have happen what happened with this lawsuit."

Moments later, he thanked the jury, saying he was "definitely elated" and accepted congratulatory handshakes and pats on the back from his attorneys and friends. He then ducked into an adjoining room where he placed telephone calls to "my mother in Windber, Pa., and my boss in Canada" — telling them "We did it!"

"There is no way you can describe the mental strain on me and my family from this. But I guess it's one of those unfortunate things that happen in society."

Rutledge and his attorney, Robert Hing, declined comment as they took opposite stairwells to avoid television cameramen. Kush's attorney, Warren Platt, said he expected Hing to appeal the decisions.

Hing had asked the jury to award his client $50,000 in compensatory damages and $150,000 in punitive damages.

The 21-year-old Rutledge, who now attends the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, had sought $2.2 million in the civil suit against Kush, the university and others. He claimed Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" after a 27-yard punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington in Seattle Oct. 28, 1978.

Rutledge also claimed

Other players on the All-District team included Leonard Sheets, Seminole, named Most Valuable Player in the conference; Jay Starkey, Seminole; Roosevelt Fort, Crane; Gary Nelson, Denver City; Rodney Curtis, Denver City; and Steve Johnson, Denver City.

Named Honorable Mention, in addition to Walker, were Mark Milligan, Denver City; David Spradlin, Seminole; and Gabriel Rodriguez, Crane.

Singer toured West Texas Current film 'Hard Country' began as Michael Murphy tune

The film "Hard Country", currently showing in Big Spring, began with a song. Country music singer and composer Michael Murphy, then managed by the film's co-producer John Hartmann, was on the road with his band in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"That was two years ago," Murphy explains. "I had written a song about the Texas lifestyle — both praising it and showing the other side of the coin — the rough life of growing up there and the desire among young people to get out and find something better."

"It was just an idea when I called my friend, former actor and now my manager John Hartmann. I believed the concept of the song, which I called 'Hard Country', could be an interesting theme for a film. John agreed with me in theory. But at that time and during our phone conversation, it remained just that — theory. Neither of us knew then if and when it would ever materialize."

But it did materialize and, much to the delight of Murphy and Hartmann, others became enthusiastic about a film version.

"Many ideas are talked about over the phone, especially late at night," says Hartmann. "But they usually end there and never become a reality. I told my former agent about Murphy's idea. He liked it. Still, I wasn't really sure of what direction the project would take. I knew Murphy had something going, but I wasn't quite sure just what it was."

Weeks later, Hartmann and Murphy were at the ICM agency where film and music meet. "The prospect of the film was proposed and Wiatt became eager to pursue it," Hartmann relates. "I was both surprised and excited over his interest. Jim was convinced it would make good movie entertainment. But I was still hesitant over our next move."

"But suddenly, like a movie itself, things began to happen for real. Wiatt's enthusiasm was forceful. Soon, he had screenwriter Michael Kane in his office. After some initial discussion, we were at Warner Bros. only hours later."

Michael Kane then relates: "I couldn't believe the Warner Bros. immediate interest. They asked about a script and we simply said we still have one — just the theme from the song. By the close of our meeting, a development deal was filmed."

The Michaels, Murphy

and Kane, then began an extensive trip in Murphy's pick-up truck throughout Texas. "We kinda locked horns at first," Murphy reveals. "Here I was, country-raised in Texas and there was Kane, a street-smart New York guy. We were worlds apart. But something wonderful happened — we clicked when we realized where we were coming from as individuals. I was convinced, if anyone could write a script objectively about Texas from my 'Hard Country' song, Michael was the person. He absorbed the lifestyle of the young people and the honky-tonk bars like a true Texan. His observations and acute understanding surprised and pleased me."

Months later, Murphy and Kane returned to Los Angeles to face their first disappointment. Paramount Pictures had announced the start of "Urban Cowboy" with the top attraction of John Travolta as star. Warner Bros. now had become hesitant over the "Hard Country" project and soon withdrew. But Jim Wiatt remained steadfast.

It's a long road from idea to finished book

By JUDY FRANKLIN
HOWARD COUNTY LIBRARY

From idea to best seller is a long, long road. After spending months, years, or even a lifetime on a manuscript, an author may not get it published. It takes hard work, perseverance and a lot of postage to get a book accepted by a publisher. An author may do all the work of selling by himself or he may hire an agent to sell the story for him. Either way, there can be a mailbag full of rejection slips before that hoped for letter of acceptance comes.

A contract is signed and the book is processed for publication.

A copy editor will check the spelling and punctuation of the manuscript before sending it to the typographer. In route to the typographer, a designer will lay out the book's format determining its size, number of pages and what type to use. If required, an illustrator will be called in to do the necessary art work, although photographs are occasionally used (particularly with non-fiction books).

If a publishing company does accept the book, an editor may ask for changes in certain parts, ranging from a phrase here or there to an entire chapter. Each requested change can emotionally affect the author just as criticism of an art work hurts the pride of its creator. Once all the details and changes are worked out,

The typographer prints up galley proofs to check for final corrections and typos. Then the printed matter and art work are put together in final form on the pages and sent on to the printer. The printer then prints the pages which are cut, folded, trimmed, and stitched together before being sent on to the binder. After bidding, the publisher send copies to bookreviewers, libraries, and book stores or warehouses.

From this point on, the fate of the book is in the hands of critics, readers and buyers, especially the latter. The good and the bad get printed, but it is the reader who has the final word on how a book is judged. The Howard County Library encourages you to come down and judge a few for yourself.

FW Kimbell Museum plans art exhibit

After the unprecedented success of the recent "Great Bronze Age of China" exhibition, the Kimbell Art Museum is already planning another extremely important show for the spring. It is "Old Master Paints from the Collection of Baron Thyssen-Bornemisza," which will be on view April 25-June 28.

Baron Thyssen, who will come to Fort Worth for opening activities, owns one of the greatest private collections in the world. It is housed at Villa Favorita in Lugano, Switzerland, and 57 examples of the masterpieces by well-known old masters are included in the exhibition.

The Kimbell is planning a series of free lectures and films to interpret the show in depth for the public. Also, the audio-tape tours which proved quite popular during the Bronze Show will again be offered.

The first lecture, on opening day, will be by Dr. John Walsh, Baker Curator of Paintings at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. At 3 p.m. Saturday, April 25, he will speak on "Dutch Paintings in the Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection."

The next day, Allen Rosenbaum, Director of the Art Museum, Princeton University, will speak on "Old Master Paintings from the Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection." His address at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 26, is cosponsored by The Old Jail Foundation, Albany, Texas.

MRS. ROBERT PARKS SHAFFER

Bride's grandparents home is scene of rite

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parks Shaffer are on a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, following their marriage Friday evening.

The bride, the former Melissa Brown, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Brown, Route 1. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Shaffer, 611 Highland.

The wedding took place in the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Brown, at 7:30 with the Rev. R. Gage Lloyd performing the ceremony. Jade greenery, baby's breath and pink carnations adorned a 15 branch candelabrum and two 7 branch candelabrams.

Wedding selections were performed on the guitar by Jay Lane Phinney.

The bride was attired in a formal-length white Alessandro gown featuring an applique Queen Anne neckline of multi-floral, silky Venice lace. The fitted bodice was also accented by Venice Lace, as were the fitted long sleeves, applied around open work lace and set in re-embroidered English Tulle. The finger-length illusion veil was trimmed with lace and pearls. A Watteau train completed the bridal attire.

Pounding is held at First National for bride-elect

The First National Bank snack bar was the setting for an "old fashioned pounding" March 19 at 4 p.m., honoring Penni Anderson, bride-elect of Jim Phernetton. Approximately 50 of the bank's employees attended the "pounding", hosted by Cheri Shoup, Sandra

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, Aster Mary Lillies, Miniature Val Halla, carnations, and Maiden Hair Fern.

Kerre Brown of Lubbock and Jenna Brown, Big Spring, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. Pete Shaffer, Midland, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception in the home.

A white lace tablecloth over burgundy satin adorned the table that held a two-tiered cake decorated with cherubs and pink wild roses. Silver and rose crystal accented the table, which was attended by Mrs. Pete Shaffer and Chandra Roden, cousin of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School and the Malone and Hogan School of X-Ray. She is currently employed by the Howard County Tax Appraisal Office.

The groom is a graduate of Big Spring High School, and attended Texas A&M University. He is employed by Chaparral Contractors.

Americans waste food and money

COLLEGE STATION — Are we wasting food? If so, we're wasting our own money, too, while some of the nation's families don't have enough food, says Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist. National statistics say many of the nation's families are wasting food — almost half of all the food we buy, the specialist reports.

Mrs. Sweeten is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The A&M University System. A national survey show that about 2,900 kilocalories enter a household every day, but only 1,800-1,900 kilocalories actually are consumed.

In spite of efforts to assure America's families enough food, some are still without, Mrs. Sweeten notes.

Progress has been made over past years to give people on limited incomes a better chance at partaking of the nation's abundant food supply, through government-assisted programs, such as the Food-Stamp Program, the program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) and the School Breakfast and Lunch programs, the specialist says.

Genealogical society gives library a book

Mrs. Mamie J. Roberts, vice president of the Genealogical Society of Big Spring, presided at the meeting on March 12. This meeting was held in the Conference Room of the Howard County Library.

Three new members were welcomed into the Society: Shirley Lindsey Pferffer, Geraldine Lindsey Spencer, and Carol Girvan.

Instructions were voted on for Sue Ann Damron, the Librarian, to place an order for a book to be given to the Howard County Library in memory of Mrs. Robert L. Adkins.

A letter from Permian Basin Genealogical Society, Inc. was read advising that Mrs. June Naylor will be teaching a spring course in Genealogy at Odessa College. This course will be under the Adult Continuing Education Program at 7 p.m., Thursdays.

The next meeting will be April 9 at 7:15 p.m. in the Conference Room at the Howard County Library.

Apply basic physics to choosing cookware

"Beauty" may hide a "Beast" when it comes to choosing today's pots and pans, so be careful.

Functional consideration can easily lose out to "looks" in the competitive mood of the marketplace where more than 125 companies compete for the consumer's dollars. Fortunately, some cookware is both functional and good looking. To find cookware with function and beauty, remember your "physics" — just the basic laws.

To do a good job of conducting heat quickly and evenly without hot spots. Certain metals conduct heat more efficiently than others: copper is best, and aluminum is next best.

Steel and iron generally are poor conductors of heat, but stainless steel used in combination with other metals such as copper or aluminum is very satisfactory.

Porcelain-clad steel does not distribute heat very evenly. However, thick cast-iron pans can spread heat as evenly as thin copper ones, mainly because iron retains the heat so well.

Metal isn't the only consideration, either. Durability and cleanability are major concerns, too. Copper tarnishes easily but is easily restored. On the other hand, if the tin lining wears away, copper can react with acidic substances to cause potentially harmful health effects.

Aluminum is vulnerable to pitting and discoloration, but aluminum poses no known health hazards.

Stainless steel is both durable and easy to clean. Cast iron requires special seasoning and cleaning procedures to keep it in optimum shape.

Here's a word about cookware coatings: Porcelain enamel coatings have pros and cons. These coatings are used on iron, steel and aluminum pans. They're fairly easy to keep clean, but they can be marred by metal spoons or scouring pads. Also, thin layers may chip easily and may be subject to crazing (streaking) due to thermal stress.

Non-stick coatings come in several types. The better ones resist damage, but many of these finishes probably will have a shorter life than the pots and pans they're bonded to.

Make sure any pot or pan you buy has a flat bottom — for even, more efficient heating. Also, be sure it has a tight-fitting lid and good balance so it doesn't tip over.

Some types of cookware make better sense when bought "by the piece" than by the set.

Working with ground cover can be fun. Oasis Garden Club members Mae Wash, Nita Wash, and Mary Atkins, presented a study for the Exceptional children at Moss Elementary on March 19.

Dear Abby

Lonely Widow Needs To Advance, Not Retreat

DEAR ABBY: I have been widowed less than two years. Many friends and relatives said at the funeral, "Call me if you need anything." And, "Come and stay with me sometime." I thought they were so kind. However, as time passed, no one has reached out to me. A few have kept in touch by phone or mail.

Doctors advise, "Get out more, get involved in activities—keep on the go, make a few new friends, but those friendships didn't last. It's not easy to keep on the go. I was formerly a homemaker, and basically still am. But I love people, and socializing helps me more than counseling or medicine.

The grief and loneliness of being left alone make us hunger for something we can hardly define. And what's left of our tattered garment of pride, we wrap closer around ourselves, remain silent and withdraw even more.

Abby, please remind your readers again to reach out to those of us who live alone—especially the elderly. Too soon we, too, will be gone, but their neglect only hastens the day.

ALONE AND LONELY

DEAR ALONE: Your letter will surely remind many to be more considerate of those neglected folks who live alone. But please reconsider the advice of doctors who urge lonely people to "Get out more, get involved, and keep on the go!"

It's time to retire that "tattered garment of pride." You can combat your own loneliness and depression by reaching out to others (men or women) who are also hungry for company. Try it. It really works.

DEAR ABBY: A gay friend of ours has announced his intention to marry. In speaking with his intended bride, it is obvious that she is unaware of her fiancé's homosexuality.

Should my husband or I discuss this with the gay groom? Or do you advise us to inform the unsuspecting bride?

FRIEND OF BOTH

DEAR FRIEND: A homosexual is not likely to marry. In all probability, your friend is not "gay," he is bisexual, in which case he is able to function equally well with both sexes.

Many bisexuals choose to go the heterosexual route, so since your friend has obviously made this choice, to discuss it with him would be presumptuous, and to discuss it with the bride would be meddling. Back off.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. We have three lively, mischievous children, ages 10, 7 and 5, whom my husband refuses to discipline. That's my job! The only time he will do any correcting is if I'm not home. I work 40 hours a week and I'm tired when I get home. When the kids fight among themselves, I yell at them, then my husband gets mad at me for yelling at them.

Now he tells me he can't stand my yelling at the kids all the time, and if I don't quit it, he is going to move out of the house.

I love him and want him to be happy, but I'm torn between disciplining the kids and trying to keep my husband home. Please help me.

NERVOUS WRECK

DEAR WRECK: Your method of disciplining the kids isn't working, or you wouldn't be yelling all the time. Try another technique. When they fight, separate them until they get good and lonesome for each other. (Don't worry, they will.) And keep them apart until they learn to get along better. Time is in your favor. The older they get, the smarter they get.
