Two indicted for theft in crude oil swindle

By JAMES WERRELL
Indictments for attempted theft were handed down, Thursday, against two Odessa men suspected of trying to swindle Cosden Oil and Chemical Company out of $425,000.

A Howard County grand jury indicted D.C. "Butch" Wheeler, president of Jaco Oil Company of Midland, and John Theford Sims, a Jaco pumper, on charges of attempted theft over $10,000, Thursday afternoon. Both are charged with selling Cosden the same tank of oil over and over again without ever delivering it into the company's pipeline.

A Cosden official would be shown the tank full of crude oil adjacent to the pipeline and approve the sale, after which pumps would be turned on to transfer the oil. The pumps would then be shut down as soon as the Cosden man left, investigators said.

The tank is located on the W.B. Currie lease five miles west of Forsan and north of the Continental lease in that area.

The operation is thought to have taken place over a period of seven months, and may have involved more than 12,500 barrels of oil.

During December of 1980, a team consisting of Texas Ranger Eddie Almond, Howard County Sheriff's Deputy Eddie Owens and Herald photographer Bill Forshee staked out the property, and observed the activities there. On Jan. 5, local and area law enforcement agents and agents from the Texas Railroad Commission descended on the lease, shut down the operation, and arrested Sims.

On that day, Sims made a $20,000 bond and was released. Bond in relation to the charges issued Thursday were to have been set this afternoon by District Judge James Gregg.

Following the crackdown by agents, Cosden filed suit on Jan. 8 against Wheeler, Sims, and Jaco and Wheelco Oil Companies, firms which share communal offices in Midland's Oil and Gas Building. Cosden asked for $500,000 in losses and an additional $1 million in exemplary damages.

That suit is pending in 118th District Court.

CONFRONTATION — John Theford Sims (left), pumper for Jaco Oil Company of Midland, first learned on Jan. 5 that his activities at the Currie Oil Lease had been under secret surveillance for nearly a month. On that day, a team of local and area law enforcement officers and agents from the Texas Railroad Commission shut down the operation at the lease, and arrested Sims on suspicion of participating in a plan to swindle Cosden Oil and Chemical Company out of $425,000. Here he is informed of his rights by Howard County Sheriff's Deputy Eddie Owens.

Weekend 'could be critical'

Reagan warns Warsaw, Moscow against using force in Poland

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said today there is "a very dangerous, very bad" split in Poland's Communist party and that the coming weekend "could be critical" in determining whether there can be a peaceful outcome to Poland's internal problems.

"I think it's very, very serious," Haig told a small group of reporters.

"There's a very major split in the party between hard-liners and soft-liners... I think there's a great deal of concern that this coming weekend could be critical," Haig said.

Among warning signs, he said, is the continuation of Soviet-led Warsaw Pact military maneuvers in and around Poland beyond when the exercises had been expected to end.

He also cited the "tensions associated" with today's four-hour "warning" strike by the independent labor federation Solidarity and the possibility of a general strike next week.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, meanwhile, told reporters in a separate session that a variety of options are being considered by the United States and its allies in the event of Soviet military intervention in Poland.

He refused to specify what the proposals are and, asked if he intended to include an allied military option, said: "I don't rule it in and I don't rule it out."

Following Weinberger's breakfast meeting with reporters, top aides said no military option is in the cards and added that the defense secretary had intended to be purposefully vague to keep the Soviets guessing.

Haig said the situation "is more serious than the December period," when there was real worry in the Carter administration that Soviet intervention might be imminent to put a stop to the actions of Solidarity.

Haig also said that because of a deteriorating economy the possibility of food riots in Poland "is a real thing... it's a contributor to real tensions that exist throughout the country, and tempers."

But a senior State Department official who did not want to be identified said Soviet intervention in Poland still "is neither inevitable nor imminent...."

Yoo-hoo, peace justice is told 'this voo-doo for you'

By JAMES WERRELL

For the past three nights, Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin has received calls informing him that he has been put under a voodoo spell because the invokers of the curse believe the bonds he set for a local murder suspect was too high.

At around 11:30 p.m. Tuesday, Eduardo Maidique, a Cuban national who immigrated to the United States during the spring of last year, was arrested on suspicion of murdering Linda Garcia, 26, 1510 Mesa, and severely assaulting her sister, Martha Esquibel, 19, who resided in the same home.

Following the arrest, Heflin set bond for the suspect at $100,000 on the charge of murder, and $75,000 on the charge of aggravated assault.

"At around midnight for the past three nights, I've been getting a call from this woman who says that someone in town is trying to put a voodoo hex on me," said the JP.

"She told me Wednesday that the voodoo priestess, or whatever, had sacrificed a chicken to make the hex work."

Heflin added that the caller expresses concern about his health, and calls at midnight "because that's when the ghosts are up and about."

"She tells me that she has talked to missionaries, and they told her it was against the law to put hexes on people. Then she asks me how I'm feeling," he said. "I think it's just a psychological ploy, so I just tell her I'm damn sure feeling fine and I appreciate her concern."

Miss Esquibel, who suffered a fractured skull and a broken neck in the Tuesday night attack, was first treated at Malone-Hogan Hospital, and then transferred to Odessa Medical Center for treatment by specialists. She was listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit there, this morning, according to Big Spring Police Lt. George Quintero.

DON'T LIKE CONTRACT — A miner at the Rubena Mine owned by United States Steel in Greene County, Pa., walks off the shift at midnight Thursday and raises a fist in protest to the tentative contract that has been offered to the miners. The miners, who will strike until they have a signed contract, are scheduled to vote on the contract this Tuesday.

Solidarity holds warning strike; talks are resuming

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The 10 million-member Solidarity independent labor union held a four-hour warning strike Friday, defying Warsaw Pact troops and tanks, then resumed negotiations aimed at averting a general strike next week.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the Allies were considering measures in the event of Soviet-led intervention in Poland, and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said this weekend could be critical.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Solidarity's actions were of "an openly political nature," implying that the labor crisis had gotten out of control of Polish communist authorities.

But Solidarity leader Lech Walesa told striking workers at a steel mill near Warsaw, "We don't want to overthrow the (Communist) party. We only want to get rid of the people putting the brakes on renewal."

Renewal is the word Poles have given to the economic and political reforms sought by Solidarity, the Communist bloc's first non-governmental trade union.

The strike began at 8 a.m. — 2 a.m. EST — and ended on schedule four hours later. But union officials have threatened a general — and open-ended — strike for next Tuesday if their demands are not met.

A Solidarity strike bulletin published today quoted Polish radio and television chief Stanislaw Balicki as saying the government was prepared for "30 days of strikes." It also quoted him as saying the government was ready to proclaim "a state of emergency," and that government leaders had told him the current Warsaw Pact maneuvers had been prolonged. It did not elaborate.

A Solidarity spokesman said workers walked off their jobs in the Silesia coal mines, at factories in Wroclaw, Jelenia Gora, Katowice and Lublin, and in the shipyards of Gdansk, flashpoint of last summer's labor protests.

Woman tarred and feathered by fiance's ex-wife marries

TUSCUMBIA, Ala. (AP) — A woman who was tarred and feathered on what was to have been her wedding day — allegedly by her fiance's ex-wife and former sister-in-law — went through with the ceremony two days late.

Elizabeth Jamieson, 40, was married to Dr. John McElwey on Thursday, two days after tarring incident. She wore a wig to cover her shorn head.

The two sisters accused of cutting off her hair, stripping her to the waist and tarring and feathering the upper part of her body, are free on $15,000 bond each. Marita McElwey, 53, and Mrs. Robbie Jean McCorkle, 49, were charged with kidnapping, burglary and assault.

The assault came after McElwey announced plans to marry Mrs. Jamieson, a Green Valley, Ariz., registered nurse who had worked with the doctor 15 years ago in Muskegon, Mich. McElwey now practices in Town Creek, Ala.

They were married by Probate Judge Tommy Crosslin in a quiet ceremony in his office. The bride wore a short brown wig.

The newlyweds have not decided whether to remain in Town Creek permanently.

She was in McElwey's trailer early Tuesday preparing for her wedding when the doctor's former wife and her sister allegedly barged in with a shotgun.

After allegedly forcing her into a chair, cutting her hair, and then stripping and tarring and feathering her, they allegedly took her to a garbage dump and left her there.

Bill approved eliminating increase in dairy subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress handed the Reagan administration its first big victory on spending cuts today, completing action on a bill to eliminate a scheduled April 1 increase in dairy subsidies.

By voice vote and with no debate, the Senate approved the measure that sent the House on Thursday. That sent the bill to the White House for President Reagan's signature.

The measure passed by the Senate today was shorn of the largely symbolic riders which had been attached when the Senate initially approved the bill Wednesday. Those riders expressed displeasure with a continued embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union.

Administration officials estimate the bill will save $147 million this year. It represents the new administration's first solid achievement in its drive to hold down federal spending.

There were protests Thursday from House members representing dairy-producing districts, but after less than two hours' debate the measure was approved without a roll call.

Action/reaction: Credit card law

Q. I received a credit card in the mail the other day I didn't order nor do I want. Is a company within its rights to forward me such a thing?

A. No, it's contrary to law. A company should wait upon a request or an application before sending such a credit card to an individual. A firm, however, can send renewal and substitute cards without the consumer's permission. So says the Federal Trade Commission.

Arizona hostage to criminals?

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — With murder up by 26 percent, aggravated assault up 23 percent and robbery up 22 percent, the people of Arizona became "hostages to crime" in 1980, the state's safety director says.

Ralph Milstead said Thursday there was a larceny committed every four minutes, burglary every nine minutes, a motor vehicle theft every 41 minutes, an assault every hour and a robbery every 96 minutes. Milstead said that one rape was committed every seven hours and one murder every 32 hours.

Johnny Rodriguez heads concert tonight at HC

Johnny Rodriguez, who will headline a concert tonight at 7:30 in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, has never been a typical Nashville artist.

Rodriguez came to Nashville in 1971 at the age of 20, and went on to become a superstar within a year of his arrival. He obtained a number two hit single, "Pass Me By," released in 1972, and followed this with 11 consecutive number one singles.

Prior to coming to Nashville, Rodriguez was discovered by two other country music greats thanks to a strange turn of events. At 17, he was caught with friends for stealing and barbecuing a goat. He decided to take the rap alone, and was sentenced to a Texas jail.

Rodriguez sang songs in his cell to pass the time, and was overheard by a patron who passed the word along. As a result of this, he later landed a singing job at the nearby Alamo Village Amusement Park, where he was heard by Nashville artists Tom T. Hall and Bobby Bare. The two extended an invitation to Rodriguez to come to Nashville. Eventually, Rodriguez did come to the Tennessee city, where he was fronting soon for the Tom T. Hall road band, and was writing songs for his publishing company.

Rodriguez was born Dec. 10, 1951, in Sabinal, 90 miles from the Texas border. He grew up in a world composed of two distinct cultures. At home, Spanish was the language spoken, and his religion was Catholic. He also ran with tough gangs, and learned the lessons of street survival first hand.

At school, Rodriguez was an A-B student, and was an athlete and natural leader. He was elected captain of the football team.

Today his music reflects his background. He longs to produce an all-Spanish album, and become a devoted country music fan through the influence of his older brothers.

Rodriguez is now recording his music on Epic label.

Appearing with Rodriguez tonight will be the Little Joe y La Familia band. A dance will follow the concert. Tickets are $6, $7, and $8. More information may be obtained by calling 267-3482.

Former maid testifies

Vickie Daniel said she would 'fight like a wild animal'

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Bailiff Will Autrey, moving spryly for his 76 years, got his man — and woman — while a former maid for Price Daniel Jr. testified Vickie Daniel once told her she would be "like a wild animal" if Daniel ever cornered her.

Autrey served subpoenas on two Houston television reporters and Delorise Elliott testified Thursday, two elements in the bizarre child-custody suit filed by Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, who is trying to gain custody of Mrs. Daniel's two children from her marriage to the former Texas House Speaker.

Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in the Jan. 19 fatal shooting of her husband, has pleaded innocent, claiming Daniel beat and threatened her.

Miss Elliott, 32, who did maid work for Daniel over a 10-year period that included his stormy, four-year marriage to Vickie Daniel, said Mrs. Daniel often discussed her relationship with Daniel.

"She told me if Price ever backed her in a corner she would be like a wild animal," Miss Elliott testified.

Under questioning by Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Miss Elliott said Mrs. Daniel was discourteous to her on several occasions, one when Daniel gave her a car radio.

"She told me I should take it because I was Price's children, didn't you?" "Yes, sir," Miss Elliott replied.

The principals for both sides in the case walked icily into the courtroom Thursday morning, apparently still angered by television coverage Wednesday night when Mrs. Murph went to pick up Mrs. Daniel's children for a court-ordered visit.

Camera crews for KPRC-TV and KTRK-TV taped Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, crying and screaming, "I don't want to go! I don't want to go!" as Mrs. Murph tried to take the child from his mother's arms.

Haynes reminded Miss Elliott she was testifying in a lawsuit to wrest custody of Mrs. Daniel's children, "and you came here to help that woman (Mrs. Murph) to take away Vickie Daniel's children, didn't you?"

Some Reagan workers catching flak

There's trouble in Paradise. John Lofton Jr., editor of Conservative Digest, has written an open letter to President Reagan, warning him "that your mandate for change is in danger of being subverted."

Lofton suggests that the chief executive "begin to reverse this calamitous situation" by firing E. Pendleton James, Reagan's assistant for Presidential personnel, and that the president "sever all relations with Dr. James Cavanaugh," who was recently named Reagan's special consultant on appointments.

LOFTON, WHOSE letter to the president started on the cover of the February issue of Conservative Digest Magazine, reminded the president that the success of his administration depends directly on the views of those who hold the top jobs within the administration. "People," says Lofton, "make policy. And if the key individuals in government are not dedicated, demonstrated, energetic advocates of your positions on the issues, your views will not prevail. There will be no Reaganism without Reaganites."

Lofton says that when Cavanaugh was a presidential aide in the domestic affairs area for Presidents Nixon and Ford, he fought the conservatives on everything. "He favored the consumer protection bill, the Legal Services Corporation, and all the Mickey Mouse noise and safety regulations ... Cavanaugh is for the other side," Lofton quotes one former White House aide who once worked for Cavanaugh.

Of James, Lofton says that he is simply in over his head. "His political naivete is astonishing," warns Lofton.

Columnist James J. Kirkpatrick recently accused certain leaders of the New Right — among them Paul Weyrich, Terry Dolan, Howard Phillips and Richard Viguerie — of sulking because in Reagan's government there are too many "retreads," "moderates," "used Fords" and "middle roaders." Kirkpatrick, who writes with a conservative pen, likens their attitude to high school sophomores suffering the "pangs of unrequited love."

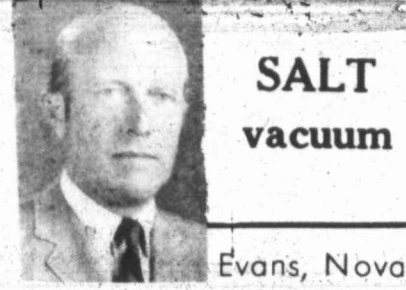

LOFTON STOUTLY defends the group, insisting that that element of the party is not sulking about anything but reaffirms that the dedicated Reaganites do not want anyone aboard who might stray too far from the fold.

One wonders whose heads will roll after Mr. Reagan has completed his shakedown cruise. There is no doubt but that some members of the New Right wanted total victory, are still lamenting the fact that Mr. Reagan lost in the Connecticut primary to George Bush. Apparently they did not take into consideration the fact that Mr. Bush's roots are in Connecticut, that he moved to Texas to make his fortune and widen his political base.

Alexander Haig, Mr. Reagan's Secretary of State, is also causing some concern among the arch conservatives because his department is threatening to become what they call Retread City.

It's going to get very interesting.

SALT vacuum

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — At his March 4 staff meeting, President Reagan exposed the SALT policy vacuum when, noting a State Department statement in the morning newspapers that the U.S. would adhere to SALT I and SALT II, he asked: Who in the world at State is saying that?

"Who in the world" happened to be Secretary of State Alexander Haig himself. Thus, after two months in office Reagan's question reveals not only an information gap on SALT between him and his senior Cabinet officer but administration delay in deciding what to do about arms control.

Reagan has not yet placed the tricky SALT question before his National Security Council. It has not been the subject of a single top-level discussion, despite its critical effect on U.S. Soviet and U.S. European policy. No effort has been made to shape the president's rearmament program, including nuclear weaponry, to conform to a SALT policy not yet determined.

All of Reagan's senior aides in the Oval Office that morning were aware that the "who in the world" at the State Department was Al Haig. But not Ronald Reagan.

THAT MORNING'S NEWS account quoted the State Department that the U.S. was "adhering to now" to both SALT pacts — Richard Nixon's expired SALT I and Jimmy Carter's unratified SALT II — if the Soviets did likewise. Haig ordered that policy statement issued in intentionally dramatic form (reporters were telephoned about it at home) to drive home his repudiation of Secretary of the Navy John Lehman. A day earlier, Lehman declared that as far as he was concerned, the two pacts were null and void in terms of limiting U.S. rearmament.

Indeed, Lehman had quietly halted the conversion of older-type Polaris submarines to boats incapable of firing nuclear weapons, a downgrading required under the limits imposed by the lapsed SALT I agreement. Lehman, deputy arms control director in the Ford administration, has been a sharp critic of the treaties. Besides, judging from everything Reagan said during the presidential campaign about the inequitable SALT Process, Lehman had reason to think he was carrying out administration policy.

The president clearly had not been briefed either on Lehman's decision to treat SALT I as a dead letter or on Haig's decision to stick to both pacts so long as the Soviets do. That breakdown in communications reflects Reagan's own inclinations.

White House staffers claim that, unlike Richard Nixon, who hated the perplexities of domestic policy, Reagan is fascinated by the nuances of building and enacting his economic program and less interested in national security complexities.

Reagan also is committed to "Cabinet government," which encourages his Cabinet members to stretch their powers as far as they can get away with. "The question," one aide told us, "is when does Al Haig or Cap Weinberger leave off and Ronald Reagan take over? There is no answer to that yet."

The failure of the Reagan system to devise an administration-wide strategy on SALT is adding to the chronic anxiety of U.S. allies in Europe where domestic left-wing political pressure against nuclear weapons is growing. Haig's swift, harsh reprimand to Lehman was intended to suppress this European political agitation.

List of causes many

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband hasn't been well for a few years. He's had X-rays several times, but we don't get answers. He has trouble swallowing food. He gags. Now it's where he hardly eats anything. In your opinion, what causes this? His doctor did say once this was his heart. Please tell me if you think that's what the cause of the gagging is. I think he needs a specialist. — R.R.

The list of causes of food sticking in the esophagus (dysphagia) is a long one. Some causes seem entirely unrelated. Let me give you an example — iron deficiency anemia. In a few people with this common type of anemia, dysphagia develops. When the anemia is corrected the swallowing problem goes away. That's a remote cause.

More direct causes have to do with growths, loss of nerve control or loss of the esophagus' ability to push food down — all can bring on dysphagia.

One important test is an X-ray of the esophagus after swallowing barium liquid or a barium-coated marshmallow. The latter would show problems in swallowing solid food. Another important test is manometry. Here the pressure inside the esophagus is measured. If pressures are abnormal, that indicates esophagus muscles are damaged or that nerves to the esophagus are not functioning properly. Has your husband had these tests?

Yes, an enlarged heart or a bulge of the heart or its large blood vessels in the chest (aneurysm) can push on the esophagus. They are very close to each other. That can result in dysphagia.

Another possible cause is a tiny pouch called a Zenker's diverticulum, which can develop at the rear of the throat. It is more common in older men. That, too, should be investigated.

As much as I would like to, I cannot tell you from your letter why your husband is having this longstanding problem. You are correct. He should have a definite diagnosis. Gastroenterologists are well-equipped to ferret out causes of dysphagia. It may be time for him to see one.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband, now 68, has always been kind of gullible. He once wore the copper bracelet for his arthritis, claims it helped him for a while, then gave it up without comment. Now he is hot for some new medicine a friend claims will clear up his cataract. He has been doctoring for the cataract, but his doctor is taking a wait-and-see approach, and says he'll tell him when he needs surgery. I am afraid that my husband is off on another medical wild goose chase with this new "treatment." But I can't tell him. Can you? — Mrs. E.H.

Sure, I can tell him absolutely, positively and with no qualification at all that the only way to take care of a troublesome cataract is to have the clouded lens removed surgically. And, as his doctor is probably telling him, the time to have that done is when the sight problem becomes so bad it is debilitating. There will be no danger in leaving the lens alone until that decision is made. He is on another wild goose chase if he thinks anything but surgery is the ultimate answer. There is no medicine to retard or eliminate the clouding process.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it safe to put drops of hydrogen peroxide in your ears for earwax? — L.M.S.

Hydrogen peroxide is used to clean out the outer ear canal. However, if you are having problems with wax buildup in an ear, it is much safer to have that removed by a doctor. It is not likely that you will be able to completely remove the wax with hydrogen peroxide alone. Trying to get it out yourself with any instrument is hazardous. Have your doctor do this for you. He has the instruments. You will get the job done thoroughly and you won't risk any unpleasantness from botched work.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you clarify this? If a person has had gonorrhea and has not had treatment for a period of time, could it ever cause syphilis? — E.M.O.

Gonorrhea never causes syphilis. But you can be infected with both at the same time from the same source. It takes about three days for the discharge to appear in gonorrhea. It takes about three weeks for the syphilis sore to appear.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I feel in my heart that I have accepted Jesus Christ into my life, but sometimes I get confused and wonder if he has really come into my life. How can I know this for sure? — Mrs. I.W.

DEAR MRS. I.W.: When you gave your life to Christ and accepted him, what was it you were actually doing? You were not only accepting certain facts about Jesus — that he lived, died, and rose again. Nor were you only admitting that he was God's Son, sent from heaven to bring salvation to us. Instead, when you accepted Christ you were trusting him for your salvation. You were acknowledging that you were a sinner, and that you could never save yourself by your own good works. You were confessing that he had died on the cross in your place, taking upon himself the punishment you justly deserved. And you were trusting your life — your eternal destiny — to Him.

Christ has not changed. "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever" (Hebrews 13:8). He was worthy of your trust when you first came to him, and he still can be trusted. And if you can trust his death on the cross as a complete sacrifice for your sins, can you not also trust what he has said? Listen: "Whoever comes to me I will never drive away" (John 6:37). Or again: "For my Father's will is that everyone who looks to the Son and believes in him shall have eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6:40). Or again: "I tell you the truth, he who believes has everlasting life" (John 6:47).

Note that each of these is from just one chapter in the New Testament. I could quote many, many other passages which say the same thing. Jesus said that if you truly trust him for your salvation, you are saved. Accept this by faith. There is no reason to doubt the Son of God — he cannot and will not lie.

But it also is important for you to ask yourself why doubts have crept into your life. Have you sought to grow closer to Christ through study of his Word, the Bible? Let his Word become a part of your daily life; as you learn his truth your fears and doubts will fade.

Impact is sharp

Around the rim

James Werrell

Let me just assure you that I didn't know what I was getting into when I went to last night's concert by the Midland-Odesa Symphony and some guy whose name I couldn't pronounce. Earlier in the afternoon, one of my friends had sauntered up to me and asked, "Hey, y'all gonna go see old Bach tonight?"

I COULDN'T HAVE sworn he said Buck, as in Buck Owens, and I was all set for an evening of guitar picking and fiddle music. Well, I got the fiddles, including a few great big ones that the musicians held between their legs, but it sure wasn't what I'd expected.

All I can say is that the influence of this symphony on the adults in this city can't be a good one. Wouldn't it have been easier to bring someone to town with unquestionable morality?

I've heard about what happens when symphonies have invaded other cities, and it makes me believe it could happen here. Wherever they go, they attract members of the classical music cult from miles around.

Cult members are easy to recognize: coats and ties for the men and evening gowns for the women. Some of the fringe members wear weird sweatshirts with sayings like "Support The Symphony," "I Love Beethoven," "I Can Handle The Music, Can You?" "Haydn Go Seek," and perverse stuff like that.

The aftermath of a symphony concert would shock the weak of heart: broken strings, old reeds, sheet music and programs all over the place. Who knows what kind of germs those reeds have picked up?

These classical music freaks (isn't it strange they call themselves "buffs.") What does that suggest? can be whipped into a frenzy at one of their concerts. You can never tell when they are going to jump up out of their seats and start yelling. "Here, here," or "Bravo!" like they were at a bullfight or something.

Men and women alike get recruited into these symphonies. The whole bunch of them last night was wearing the same color clothes, black. Isn't that the favorite color of a familiar character with horns, hooves and a pointy tale?

I even understand that in this symphony, members of both sexes travels on the same bus!

AT THE CONCERT last night, the symphony played a song by Brahms. Now, what is Brahms famous for? His lullabies, right?

For all I know, we could have all been placed under some sleep-inducing trance by this Brahms music. Pretty soon we'll be listening to that Russian guy Tchaikovsky, and everyone knows he would just as soon play with other guys as his piano.

And what kind of shape is our auditorium going to be in after this symphony concert? The floors will probably be all scuffed up by those wingtips and high-heeled shoes the cult members wear, and the place is probably littered with cumberbunds and jewelry that popped off when everyone jumped up to shout, "Bravo!"

I must admit, the Big Spring crowd managed to come away mostly unscathed by the symphony. Sure, some of them were whistling cult music after the show, but they were off-time so I don't think it was serious.

But this classical music epidemic has to be nipped in the bud. Who knows, if we don't take steps soon, these cult members will start throwing wine and cheese parties after the concert.

Taxpayers cheated

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Air Force is in line for a $14 billion budget increase in 1982. But a far smaller amount would do if the Air Force brass would only clean out the fraud and corruption that eat up billions of the taxpayers' dollars each year.

The danger of throwing a few more megabucks at the generals and admirals is that they'll interpret the budgetary largesse as approval of the sloppy way they've been spending the public's money.

AS ANOTHER OF my continuing reports on waste in the Pentagon, I'll focus today on the privately operated supply stores at Air Force bases, from which the service must buy spare parts and other hardware items.

The contractors for years and getting away with it, possibly because of official connivance. There have been 41 separate investigations of the supply stores since 1977, yet for some reason the Justice Department has taken a ho-hum attitude toward the evidence of criminal misconduct.

A classified government report reviewed by my associate Indy Badwar details the ripoffs. Here are some of the more outrageous examples:

— A single International Harvester panel truck at one air base supposedly required the following inventory of replacement parts: 48 spark plugs in six months; two starters and two alternators in two months; a new two-barrel carburetor in March 1980; a two-barrel carburetor kit the same month and a four-barrel carburetor kit three weeks later. Where the stuff went is anybody's guess.

— A 1978 Chevrolet pickup truck was billed for eight new shock absorbers during a two-month period when it had driven 3,000 miles.

— A firetruck supposedly required five new oil filters, though it had been driven only 199 miles.

— Twenty-five new spark plugs were purchased for one 1978 Chrysler Volare sedan during a six-month period — enough for three or four complete changes with one plug left over.

— A Chevy step van apparently required four new water pumps in eight months — yet none was replaced under the vendor's one-year warranty. "Procedures broke down," officials lamely told investigators.

— At one base, 53 percent of all parts sold to the Air Force did not match the items listed on the sales slips. For example, an air-conditioner compressor described on the sales slip as new was clearly identifiable as rebuilt.

— Investigators found that "sweetheart" companies were used to provide phony inflated price lists for the supply stores and to submit duplicate invoices to enable the stores to bill the Air Force twice for the same item.

— The Air Force has paid its supply store proprietors $78 for a $47 carburetor, $40 for a $21 muffler, $2,100 for a $1,050 transmission, $21 for a $12 water pump, $12 for $6 concrete reinforcing rods, and $25 for $5 lock mechanisms.

If the Air Force is in such urgent need of funds, it might start by shooting down its supply store prices out of the wild blue yonder.

PAULA'S AFFAIRS: The lovely lobbyist, Paula Parkinson, apparently was attracted to Capitol Hill dignitaries because of their maturity.

Her preference for older men, in the words of her husband, caused her to "cut a swath through the political arena that makes Elizabeth Ray's sexual activities look like a scene from 'The Sound of Music.'"

PAULA HAS SUCCEEDED Elizabeth Ray as the seductress in Washington's latest sex scandal. A number of nervous lawmakers now await the lurid memories that Paula is offering to publishers.

She started out to wire a more respectable sex book with her husband, Hank Parkinson, advising men in their mid-50s how to be better lovers. Hank claimed his wife was an authority on the sex habits of mature men, having dined with "lots of men in their 60s." Her oldest sex partner, Hank confided after consulting his research notes, was age 72.

In their unpublished manuscript, with alternating chapters by the Parkinson pair, Paula wrote: "It gradually occurred to me that my most satisfying affairs had inevitably been with older men. With a few exceptions, the younger dudes had few general disappointments..."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Chiselers who milk Uncle Sam for payments they're not entitled to are not just a figment of Ronald Reagan's campaign rhetoric. Federal inspectors estimate that more than half a million individuals are drawing disability payments from Social Security after they have fully recovered. The cost is at least $2 billion a year ... Energy Secretary James Edwards has adopted a novel technique to avoid congressional criticism over his budget cuts: He has simply refused to appear on Capitol Hill to testify. He refused to send an assistant whose presence had been requested — on grounds that the man hadn't been officially confirmed yet — and another official was dispatched instead ... Jeane Kirkpatrick, our ambassador to the United Nations, failed to charm the members and staff of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs at a private breakfast.

Dear Editor, I should like to commend the facilities, management, and cooperative personnel of our Dorothy Garrett Coliseum to this entire area.

The Western District Federated Club Convention held here on March 20 and 21 drew women from Coahoma to El Paso. They were high in praise of the convenience, food and appointments of the Coliseum.

As chairman of the tickets and finance, may I share this: On Friday evening, following the lovely banquet, I returned home leaving a box containing money and checks in the banquet room.

Saturday morning this same box, with all of its contents, had been turned in by some worthy student helping to clear the banquet hall. Where else could such honesty be found?

In sincere appreciation of our FINE young people.

Big Spring,

Grand jury indicts three in bogus bullion swindle

DALLAS (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted three men who allegedly faked bills of lading and receipts to show they had more than $4 billion in gold, then bought real estate with money from investors who wanted to buy the bogus bullion.

Walter Merle Heffington of Wichita Falls, William Chester Carr and Russell Preston White Jr., both of Tyler, were indicted Thursday by a federal panel investigating the fake gold scheme.

All three also have been named in a $125 million civil suit filed in federal court in Nevada who claim they lost that amount in profits because of the scheme.

The brokers also filed suit against the American National Bank in Terrell, claiming the bank participated in misusing a portion of the $525,000 put up by the investors as an advance payment on the gold.

The bank was not named in the indictment.

The 13-count indictment accuses the three men of using a Florida warehouse as a base for the sale of 162,000 ounces of the non-existent gold.

Anthony Frank Giella, the president of the company that owns the Broward County warehouse, was also charged in the indictment.

The four men reportedly convinced prospective buyers that 10,800 crates of bullion were stored in the warehouse, then collected a down payment for the purchase of the gold.

White is accused in the indictment of using $38,000 of the money to buy real estate. The men allegedly told the buyers the $525,000 would be used for shipping the metal, but then converted the money to their own use.

The civil suit was filed by the T.E.W. Corp. of Seattle, William Wallace of Salt Lake City and Wesley McVey of Nevada.

If convicted, each of the men indicted faces a maximum prison term of 90 years and a fine of $67,000.

Pest management program praised

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A pest management program was held Thursday in the Colorado City Civic Center with Country Entomologist Bill Jany proclaiming the event a definite success.

According to Jany "in spite of good farming weather, we had a turnout of some 150 Mitchell County agriculturists. The program's content was excellent, with the speakers discriminating informative and profitable information for those in attendance. The chemical companies represented had excellent exhibits."

Jany continued: "we certainly do plan to have another workshop next year. Maybe by that time we won't have to worry about the boll weevil."

Among those speaking to the producers was Don Stewart of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation. Stewart projected a target price for cotton at approximately 70 cents this year.

Additionally, Stewart commented on the proposed Reagan Administration agricultural agency cuts by stating "I believe the ASCS still will play a role but on a lesser level. After 1981, I believe we will retain the cotton and commodities loan programs and still play a role in conservation. I can't see that ASCS will be phased out but, at this point, I can't predict our total future picture."

January cases add up to 50

The Official County Court monthly report for January shows there are 43 cases of driving while intoxicated or driving under the influence of drugs filed during that month.

There were two cases of theft or worthless check charges filed, and 12 other criminal cases filed. That made a total of 57 new criminal cases filed during January.

In February, the official report shows that there were 34 cases of D.W.I. or D.U.I.D. filed in county court, one case of theft or worthless checks, one case of drug offense, one of assault, four traffic cases filed, and nine other criminal cases filed. That totaled out to 50 criminal cases filed during February.

In the civil section of court, there were 30 cases filed in January. In February, no new cases were filed.

At the end of February, there were 800 criminal cases pending in the county court. Those included 360 D.W.I., 39 worthless checks or theft, 35 drug offenses, 52 assault cases, 178 traffic cases and 136 other criminal cases.

There were 207 civil cases pending at the end of February. Included were 37 personal injury auto, 15 tax cases, 90 suit on debt, and 65 miscellaneous.

'Jane Doe' finally back with family

PEMBROKE PINES, Fla. (AP) — With a shy, awkward "I'm pleased to meet you," an amnesia victim called Jane Doe has been reunited with her family after seven years' separation.

She still does not recognize them, and she isn't quite ready to wholeheartedly adopt her real name, but a family photo album sparked a recollection of her pet dogs and some other "little things" about her past.

"Only in the annals of movie script-writing do we anticipate there will be...instant recognition," said Dr. Jessie Kaye, a psychiatrist at South Florida State Hospital. "It only happens in storybooks."

It didn't happen here.

Hospital spokeswoman Jackie Dale, who was at the reunion, said Cheryl Ann Tomiczek said to her father, mother and brother, "I'm very happy that you came. I'm pleased to meet you."

Her brother Robert, 32, said that during the meeting, "She was studying us while we were trying to study her. We had to break the ice at the beginning. Finally, everybody seemed to relax."

Her father, Andrew, broke down during the meeting with his 34-year-old daughter and was given medication, hospital officials said. He did not appear at a subsequent news conference.

Her mother, Irene, said her daughter — found last September naked and near starvation by a ranger-patrolling a wooded area in Birch State Park in Fort Lauderdale — did not recognize her family members but did remember "little things" about the family's past after being shown a photo album.

Salisbury says communism dying

HOUSTON (AP) — As long as the United States threatens to play its "China card," the threat of a Soviet retaliation is weakened, says Pulitzer Prize winning journalist Harrison Salisbury.

increased Soviet military mobilization in the past decade has been misdirected, Salisbury told a Rice University audience Thursday.

"We think it is mobilized against us, but it's not," he said.

Mother, son honored at baby shower

Mrs. Robert K. (Judy) Smith and new baby son, Ryan Kelly, born March 21, were honored with a baby shower in the Fellowship Hall of East Fourth Street Baptist Church. Hostesses were Mrs. Jerry Oliphant, Mrs. Mike West, Mrs. Dick Davis, Mrs. Charlie Skeen, Mrs. Russell Kennedy, Mrs. Mike Steward, Mrs. Ivan Collins, Mrs. Roy Hester, Mrs. Jimmy Shanks, Mrs. R. D. Hall, Mrs. James Kinman, Mrs. Gary Blount, Mrs. Bob McCormick and Mrs. M.L. Kirby.

The guest registry table was covered with a yellow polyester cloth edged in lace. The register book was made by Mrs. Kirby. A blue rose and rose bud in a white milk glass vase stood next to the book on the table. Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white lace cloth over yellow polyester. The centerpiece was a novelty teddy bear based in yellow and blue ruffled net and yellow and blue roses, sweetpeas and daisies.

A corsage made from baby socks, net, lace and ribbons was presented to the mother. The hostess gift was a play pen and a diaper bag.

The U.S. is fast becoming a country of gulpers and snackers. Fast food outlets throughout the country offer active Americans everything from a taco to a steak in a matter of minutes.

Fast food provides many essential nutrients but no single food can meet a person's nutritional needs.

Surveys show that most people's choice of beverage to accompany quick and easy meals are either soft drinks, tea or coffee which are essentially nutrient-free. These guilty Americans can improve their diet by adding milk to their favorite fast food meal.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has reconfirmed that milk and milk products are necessary to the American diet. The National Academy of Sciences, who developed the Recommended Dietary Allowances (RDA), show that milk's vitamins (riboflavin, thiamin, niacin, vitamins A and D) and minerals (calcium, phosphorus) are as necessary to life as water and soil are to plants.

The USDA has interpreted the RDA into the new Daily Food Guide for American consumers. The guide shows that different servings of milk or equivalent are needed by different age groups. Children need three glasses of milk daily and fast growing teenagers need a minimum of four glasses. Adults also need milk, at least two glasses daily to prevent strong bones and teeth from becoming fragile and brittle.

Stitcher Belles tour library, discuss float

The Sew and Chatter Club met March 25 at 3 p.m. The group was taken on a tour of the Howard County Library by Judith Gray, Librarian. Ms. Gray also gave a talk on the different services of the library. The group gave a donation to the fund for the future remodeling of the basement of the library.

The club then met in the home of Mrs. Lee Porter, where Mrs. Allie Moore presided at the business meeting.

There was discussion concerning having a page in the Heritage Book. The club, which selected the name of "Stitcher Belles", discussed the possibility of a float to be in the Centennial Parade.

Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ruby Rowe, rather than Mrs. Ervin Daniel, April 8, at 3 p.m.

WEED and FEED FERTILIZER CALL: SOUTHWESTERN A1 PEST CONTROL 267-8190 2008 Birdwell Lane

Dear Abby

Doctor Chokes on His Own Medicine

DEAR ABBY: My husband just celebrated his 50th birthday. He's a physician who tells all his male patients who reach 50 to "slow down." If they smoke, he orders them to quit or cut down, but he's a two-pack-a-day man. He puts all his overweight patients on diets, but he is considerably overweight himself and can't stay on a diet for two days. He insists that daily exercise is a must, but he doesn't exercise at all.

He says that an annual vacation away from one's daily work is essential to good health, but he hasn't had a vacation in six years. And this will floor you: He wants all his patients to have a thorough checkup every year, but the last one he had was 12 years ago. What's wrong with him, and how can I get through to him?

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: He's human. He finds advice much easier to give than to take. You can get through to him (maybe) by insisting that he consult a colleague for a checkup. And if he refuses, ask him to keep paying those life insurance premiums, so you and your next husband can retire in luxury. Cruel? Not really. Sometimes we have to be cruel to be kind.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine is marrying a minister. He plans to perform the marriage ceremony himself. He insists that since he is authorized to perform marriage ceremonies, there is no reason why he should not perform his own. Somehow this doesn't seem right to me. Can you please find out if such a marriage would be legal in South Carolina? Thank you.

Bride's Friend

DEAR FRIEND: According to Robert N. DuRant, executive director of the South Carolina Bar: "Only ministers of the gospel or accepted Jewish rabbis and officers authorized to administer oaths in this state are authorized to administer a marriage ceremony in this state." "Complications could arise when one attempts his own wedding ceremony. To be strictly legal, one could avoid the question by having a third party perform the marriage ceremony."

DEAR ABBY: Why would a person laugh at his own jokes?

JOEY

DEAR JOEY: Maybe he just wants to make sure somebody laughs.

DEAR ABBY: You recently quoted G.K. Chesterton, who said, "The truly great person is the one who makes every person feel great."

May I share an anecdote that illustrates that point beautifully. In Queen Victoria's time, a young woman had the good fortune of being escorted to dinner by William E. Gladstone, who was considered one of the most brilliant statesmen of the 19th century. On the following evening, the same young lady was escorted by Benjamin Disraeli, novelist, statesman and twice prime minister of Great Britain.

When asked for her impression of these two great rivals, she replied, "After an evening with Gladstone, I thought he was the most brilliant man I'd ever met. After an evening with Disraeli, I thought myself to be the most fascinating woman in the world!"

URBAN COWGIRL — Donna Kay Rule throws her hands into the air triumphantly after besting her opponent — a plastic critter used for calf-tying practice at an Oklahoma City nightspot just outside the main entrance to the stockyards. The club's clientele are, for the most part, real cowboys. And for relaxation, they pit their skills against Tar Baby, a 50-pound, 3-foot-tall plastic Black Angus calf whose legs are attached to springs. Says Rule, the owner's wife: "He cost us $300, but it's cheaper than live cattle."

Second calendar prevents forgotten appointments

A second calendar can make life a heck of a lot less hectic for the working mother, according to a tip in the "Readers' Idea Exchange" column in a recent Family Circle magazine. This "second calendar" contains only notes for your husband and children. Notes included are their appointments and meetings, calls to be made, errands to be run, chores, and food to thaw and prepare. Have your husband and children consult this calendar each day when they walk in the door, so you no longer have to worry about forgotten appointments.

History and culture of roses is club topic

Edna Womack was hostess for Rosebud Garden Club luncheon at Big Spring Country Club March 24.

Mrs. Womack presented Joni Avery a certificate of appreciation and a prize from District I Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. Joni was sponsored by the club in environmental speech contests.

Other guest were Marie Wilson, Sue Carter, Leighrene Kohl, Joy Cowan, Lena Lewis, and Chanah Kaufmann.

Jane Thomas spoke of the history and culture of roses and said that the hybrid tea rose dated back to 1857. Pointers she gave included the following: Roses need six hours of sun, and since they don't compete for nutrients, should be planted where other plants and trees don't crowd them; use bonemeal when planting, and fertilize later, after roses are established; prune shrubs before the spring leaves begin. Pruning in spring will disturb the rose development of climbers, therefore, prune climbers in fall.

Club members made plans for a white elephant sale to be held at Jane Thomas' carport April 4. Proceeds will go to civic beautification projects.

GOD WANTED NO PUPPETS

It is called freedom of will. And it is one of the most exciting ideas in man's religious knowledge: we decide for ourselves what we'll believe and how we'll live.

It is not that God doesn't care about human beliefs and behavior. In the Bible and in the life of His Son Jesus, God had made vividly clear His LOVE and His WILL.

But God wanted no puppets. So each of us has been endowed by the Creator with freedom of will. This way our faith is a vital response to God's love — not a mechanical expression of our Christian convictions — and our morality is the real-life expression of our Christian convictions — not a wooden uprightness imposed by strings.

Remember this whenever God puts spiritual opportunity in your path: Like next week when you worship.

Author of 'How to Murder a Minister' to conduct revival

Merle A. Johnson, senior minister of the Central United Methodist Church, Fayetteville, Ark., will be speaking at the First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry, Sunday through Tuesday evenings at 7:30 p.m. In addition, he will conduct Sunday morning worship service at 10:50 a.m. and speak at breakfasts Monday and Tuesday at 6:45 a.m. in Garrett Hall.

LARRY SANDERS

MERLE ALLISON JOHNSON

Johnson came to prominence through the best selling How to Murder a Minister which was published under the pseudonym of Pastor X. This book and Beyond Disenchantment were published by Fleming H. Revell. Then followed Ancient Fires for Modern Man, The Kingdom Seekers, Religious Roulette, Other Dangerous Games, Christians Play, and Sermons for Christian Seasons.

His new book is How To Be Happy in the Non-Electric Church. It is a humorous look into life in local churches with a special autobiographical section devoted to church in the deep South.

On Nov. 22, 1980, Paul Harvey featured How To Be Happy in the Non-Electric Church on his program. He maintained that this was a "must" reading for ministers and laity alike. The book takes a hard look at the media electric church people in the chapter, "The Day they Ruined Blessed Assurance." The last portion of the book is filled with practical advice for clergy and laity for getting local churches on track and less vulnerable to the "electric church."

A member of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, the American Schools of Oriental Research and the Yokefellows, he is also a frequent contributor to journals, periodicals and curriculum material. Three of his sermons have been chosen by Pulpit Digest. His sermon on Samson was featured in the 1978 edition of the Ministers Manual published by Harper and Row. The 1979 and 1980 Ministers Manuals carry more of his work.

Rev. Johnson has also been guest lecturer at several colleges and universities as well as appearing on television and radio talk show interviews. He, along with Oral Roberts, Robert Schuler, the PTL Club and the 700 Club, was the subject of a 1980 Scripps-Howard Documentary entitled The Gospel According to Television.

He and his wife, the former Mary Catherine Hall of Alma, Ark., have two daughters, Marsha (Mrs. Ron Nix of Fort Smith, Ark.) and Karla, who is a student at the University of Arkansas.

Leading the music at each service will be Larry Sanders, Director of Music and Education at First United Methodist Church in Brownfield, Tex. Sanders directed a contemporary singing group of college students, "Radiation Singers," for five years and toured India one month with this group in 1977.

He has been Director of Music at Wheatland United Methodist Church in Dallas, at First United Methodist Church in Carrollton, Education Director at St.

Luke's United Methodist Church in Lubbock, and has an education in Psychology from North Texas State University.

Farm House passes bill setting high interest rate ceiling

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Interest rates on almost every kind of loan, except home mortgages, could "float" as high as 24 percent under a bill that passed the Texas House.

An 84-51 vote Thursday sent the bill to the Senate, where the sponsor thinks the House may have put the maximum interest rate too low for today's torrid money market.

The bill started out with a 30 percent limit but the House trimmed it to 24 percent Wednesday night.

"It seems ridiculous to me to pass a bill that would leave a ceiling that would preclude some people who need to borrow money from being able to do so," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, the Senate sponsor.

House sponsor Bill Messer, D-Belton, said the bill would go a long way toward providing lenders an incentive to make loans.

"You can go home and tell your constituents, 'We faced up to today's economic realities in the United States of America. We are going to allow money to be available to you,'" Messer told the House.

"There ain't no way I can borrow the kind of money you're talking about," replied Rep. Al Edwards, D-Houston.

The bill governs interest rates on department store installment sales and credit card unpaid balances as well as loans by banks, credit unions, savings and loan associations and consumer finance companies.

Consumer finance companies, the bill replaces a hodge-podge of rates that run as low as 7.5 percent with a single legal maximum on what lenders can charge.

The ceiling would be tied to the six-month U.S. Treasury bill rate. When the rate is as low as 9 percent, the ceiling would be 18 percent. But when the T-bill rate is higher — as it is now — the ceiling would be twice the T-bill rate, up to a limit of 24 percent.

Messer insists the ceiling would be 18 percent "in most economic times."

Consumer finance company rates would remain as they are, but brackets in which they can be charged would be adjusted for inflation.

That would mean a lender could charge $18 per $100 on loans up to $750 instead of on loans up to $300.

Rep. Paul Elizondo, D-San Antonio, came close to taking bank credit cards out of the bill.

"They (bank credit card companies) have got a pretty good deal. I don't need any help," he said, referring to the 18 percent interest allowed on unpaid balances now.

Gov. Bill Clements said he preferred the 24-percent ceiling.

"I like 24 percent better because it is lower," he said, but declined to say whether he would sign the bill if it reaches his desk.

"I will look at it then and make up my mind at that time," he said.

Senate gives comptroller audit powers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A veteran senator has given an inexperienced rookie a lesson in how the Senate operates and, at the same time, gave the state tax collector a promise of broadened investigatory power.

Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, failed Thursday in an attempt to expand the comptroller's auditing authority. Then moments later — to the surprise of a freshman colleague — he tried again and succeeded.

McKnight's first motion to debate the bill fell one short, 19-11.

After the Senate had approved another proposal, McKnight made the same motion a second time.

John Leedom, R-Dallas, said he was new at Senate politics and asked, "Can you lose and bring a bill back up for the second time in a day?"

"Oh-h-h yeah," shouted several senators.

"If you've got the votes, rules don't matter," said Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin.

"I have a feeling we're going to have a switch of one vote," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, the Senate's presiding officer. Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Herford, sat in his chair smiling. The second vote to debate the bill passed, 20-10, with Sarpalus changing sides.

McKnight's bill, according to an analysis, would authorize the comptroller to audit all state funds "at every step, from collection ... to expenditure."

An employee of the comptroller's office had testified in committee that if the comptroller "has reason to believe that someone is stealing state money, he has the duty to check it out."

"The comptroller's duty as an executive officer is to put out fires when they flare up and before they spread too far," said employee L.G. "Skip" Smith.

The bill analysis said the measure was needed because a 1980 opinion by Attorney General Mark White had limited the comptroller's audit authority to determining who owes money to the state and how much they owe.

White held that the comptroller had no authority to audit the 15 or 20 fees and charges collected by local authorities, including sales, hotel occupancy, motor fuel and cigarette taxes.

"What we're saying here is 'Mr. Comptroller you can go audit anybody you want to,'" complained Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene.

"If he feels there has been improper use of state money, he could do that," replied McKnight.

"We want to catch tax cheaters," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

The bill was sent to the House, also on a 20-10 vote, with Sarpalus voting for it.

Mitchell tax appraisal officers are re-elected

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Mitchell County tax appraisal district re-elected officers during a meeting Thursday night, with Curtis Latimer to continue as the group's chairman.

Other officers are Willie Landau, vice president; and Mrs. Vernon Lewis, secretary.

In other action, the board set June 19 as the date for the board of review to meet and take up the mineral roll. Also, it was decided to pay board members $100 per day served with $3,000 budgeted for the hearings.

A committee composed of Landau, R.B. Baker, Mrs. Lewis and Jay Craddock will make a verbal study of available office space.

The Southwestern Appraisal Company will hold a meeting April 16 in Westbrook to explain the property reappraisal program to residents of the western part of the county.

Dog obedience training class to start Tuesday

An orientation and sign-up meeting for its spring dog obedience training class will be conducted by the Big Spring Kennel Club starting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 14, in the Howard County Fair Barn.

The first actual working sessions with dogs will begin the following week.

The local all-breed dog club usually holds training classes twice annually — in the spring and the fall — but last September's class was canceled due to a high incidence of Parvovirus among local dogs.

Canine Parvoviral Enteritis (Parvovirus) is a high contagious disease, of sudden onset, which attacks the gastro-intestinal tract of dogs, causing protracted vomiting, diarrhea, pain, fever and, quite often, sudden death.

Since the disease is still being treated by local veterinarians, the kennel club is requiring all dogs attending the proposed obedience class to have received vaccination against the Parvovirus at least two weeks prior to the opening class.

Other requirements for attending the class can be obtained from Big Spring Kennel Club director Don Bailey, telephone number 263-4360, or Bruce Wright, at 267-8276.

BRIDGE — One of America's best known contemporary gospel music groups will be in concert at Big Spring Church of the Nazarene, 14th & Lancaster, March 31 at 7:30 p.m. The 14 musicians who make up BRIDGE come from many different states across America. Their schedule carries them to over 350 concerts and 100,000 miles per year in the United States and Canada. They are chosen from over 1000 applicants auditioning yearly. Five vocalists are supported by a rhythm section including keyboards, guitar, bass and drums, plus other musicians who play trombone, trumpets, flugel horns, saxophones, flutes, and other wind instruments. This musically self-contained group has been heard in many of the nation's largest churches, before college and high school audiences, civic organizations and in ticketed concerts. The concert will be held in the new family-center building which is temporarily serving as worship-center, and will accommodate hundreds of visitors for this community-oriented special.

Davis pastored the Center City Baptist Church while in Howard Payne College in Brownwood, 1973-76. He formed and incorporated the Calvary Chapel Baptist Church in Cleburne, while enrolled in Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth. He and Joan, his wife, came to Big Spring in September, 1979 to begin work at Midway Baptist with their two children, Jeremy Glen, 4 and Jennifer Lynn, 2. A third child, Johathan Mark, was born Jan. 16, 1981. Sonny is married and has one child, Garbriel Aaron, 5.

Texan is new news editor

NEW YORK (AP) — A laconic, practical-minded Texan who built a national newspaper empire among United Methodists to fill a denominational gap, is stepping into another breach — to provide a national interdenominational news weekly.

It's to "fill a void," says the Rev. Spurgeon M. Dunnam III of Dallas, editor and general manager of the weekly Texas Methodist and also of a national interdenominational edition, the United Methodist Reporter.

The new, interdenominational weekly, the National Christian Reporter, was launched recently, aimed at offering a broad, ecumenical cross-section of religious news in the contemporary ecumenical climate.

No other existing religious newspaper specifies itself as interdenominational, although the magazine, Christian Century, does so, and most denominational periodicals now include some news of other churches.

"Informed Christians tend to be more committed Christians," says Dunnam, whose past operations have defied the general shrinkage in recent years of religious weeklies. What offers strength to the new interdenominational weekly is that it's based in an already flourishing, self-supporting enterprise that in the last decade has become the nation's biggest denominational newspaper. Its national edition, tailored with local news for 44 United Methodist regional units across the country and also for 350 local congregations, each version assembled in Dallas, has a combined circulation of 520,000. That growing output, built up since 1972, will continue. The new paper, Dunnam says, is "an extension, adding to what we're already doing, a separate paper not limited to the Methodist angle." The first issue March 13, with front-page stories about human rights, a misleading fund-raising letter and clergy confusion over new income tax rules, went to about 2,000 initial subscribers.

St. Paul Lutheran is participating in $40 million missions program

An extraordinary mission and ministry program was adopted at the 1979 Convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod by its members known as the "Forward in Remembrance."

Although this program has been described as a $40 million appeal for missions and ministry, it is going to involve a lot more than $40 million according to Dr. Gerhard W. Hyatt, director.

"It will involve the total commitment of the church and all its people to carry out the Lord's Great Commission as given in Matthew 28:19 — "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. It means that congregations are going to have to pull down their parish walls and get out into the world where 3.4 billion people are waiting to receive the gospel," Hyatt stated.

Hyatt and the Rev. James Uhrinak, synodical director of information for the "Forward in Remembrance" program, have temporarily detoured from their ministries in Minnesota. Hyatt is on an 18½ month leave from the presidency of Concordia College, St. Paul. Uhrinak is on loan from The North District of Minnesota where he is executive counselor.

"Forward in Remembrance" is an appeal designed: To foster rededication to the Great Commission through Christian education and motivation; to cultivate growth in the grace of giving; to prepare a corps of trained stewardship leaders for Lutheran congregations; To receive a minimum of $40,000,000 in sacrificial gifts for mission and ministry and the training of church workers for the challenging decade of the 1980's.

program has been completed, and it appears that the response to the appeal will go far beyond the $40 million goal and that Lutherans may be looking at a $65 million goal.

The first $40 million gathered through the program will be distributed as follows: $15 million to World Missions to new church fields, church extension funds, matching grants, preparation of national clergy, stewardship-evangelism training for national workers and Bible translation work.

Another $15 million to North American Missions and Ministries through establishing new mission congregations, strengthening existing churches, ministry to people of other cultures, ministry to people with special needs and new approaches to ministry.

$10 million for training church workers through endowments for financial aid to church work students and continuing education for workers in world areas, and repair of campus buildings.

St. Paul Lutheran Church is participating in this movement. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cowan of the local congregation are serving as leaders of the "Forward In Remembrance" program in the church. Dan is the chairman with his wife, Joy, serving as secretary.

Members of St. Paul are studying the various plans of the program and it is hoped that each will make his or her commitment soon.

That was about the number with which the United Methodist Reporter launched its national edition in 1972, and it has since boomed to more than a half million.

Dunnam engineered the expansion three years after he, fresh out of seminary, became editor of the Texas Methodist and pushed its lagging circulation swiftly upward. About that time, two national, officially subsidized Methodist magazines folded, and he saw the opening.

Of the new paper, Dunnam, now 38, says it was triggered by numerous inquiries from people in other denominations.

Its purpose, he says, to offer all Christians a credible source of religious news and a forum for exchange of Christian viewpoints.

"We're not beholden to any church organization or agency," he says.

Attacking 'fear tactics'

Moral Majority takes out ads to launch counter-offensive

NEW YORK (AP) — The Moral Majority, depicted as a threat to the Bill of Rights in some liberal circles, has mounted an advertising campaign to defend itself against what it says are "fear tactics" by pornographers, secular humanists and abortionists.

The ads, which appeared earlier this week in The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, the Washington Post and a number of Virginia newspapers, take aim at television producer Norman Lear, former Sen. George McGovern, the American Civil Liberties Union, Playboy and Penthouse magazines and "others who continually attack the philosophies and programs" of similar movements.

"There are misunderstandings in the public mind as to what our objectives were," said Ronald S. Godwin, vice president and operations chief of the conservative group, based in Lynchburg, Va. "This ad becomes something of a position statement."

The ad begins with the headline: "They have labeled Moral Majority the Extreme Right because we speak out against Extreme Wrong!"

The Moral Majority is not, the ad says, a censorship organization, anti-Semitic or a religious group trying to control the government.

"While we do not agree that the Equal Rights Amendment would ultimately benefit the cause of women in America, we do agree with their right to boycott those states that have not ratified the amendment," the ad says.

"Likewise, we feel that all Americans have the right to refuse to purchase products from manufacturers whose advertising dollars support publications and television programming which violate their own moral code."

The Moral Majority is a member of the Coalition for Better Television, which announced plans this month to monitor TV programming and seek boycotts of sponsors whose shows contain what the group considers to be too much sex, violence or profanity.

Godwin describes the organization as "a special interest group" that claims the allegiance of about 2 1/2 million people. The ad says the group includes "72,000 ministers, priests and rabbis, who are deeply concerned about the moral decline of our nation and who are sick and tired of the way many amoral and secular humanists and other liberals are destroying the traditional family and moral values on which our nation was built."

To the ACLU, the Moral Majority is "dangerously deceptive." Earlier this year, that civil rights organization mounted its own ad campaign against right-wing groups beneath the headline: "If the Moral Majority has its way, you'd better start praying."

"We went to the heart of their public relations hoax with our ad," said Ira Glasser, executive director of the ACLU. "I think that burned them. They don't command a majority of people. People aren't willing to have the government tell them where and when to pray and how to conduct their private sexual life and what they can read."

"They've felt rather defensive about some of their more bizarre positions, as well they might," he said. "But what exactly do they stand for? What they seem to be doing is disavowing everything they're doing while they're still doing it."

"They are opposing a whole set of American values and the Bill of Rights, and they're embarrassed by it now," he said. "Whether you agree with the Moral Majority or not, they do not represent a return to traditionalism but an overthrow because the American tradition is the Bill of Rights."

Governor says federal budget cuts to affect state spending

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators need to cut $2.5 billion from state spending the next two years to cover the loss of federal funds under President Ronald Reagan's austerity program, Gov. Bill Clements says.

"We have to reorder our priorities and get off this letter to Santa Claus' basis and look at what we can reasonably expect from Washington," he told a news conference Thursday.

Clements said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton were in agreement.

Texas will lose about half its usual federal funds, or about $2.5 billion, the next two years, the governor said.

"Instead of increasing our biennial appropriations by 20 per cent, we may have to make-do with a 10 per cent increase," Clements said. "We may have to hold our 1982-83 budget to $23.5 billion instead of the $26 billion we had anticipated would be available in revenue during the next two years."

"I repeat that we are not talking about cutting the present state budget, but rather reducing the amount of the anticipated increase..."

He said Comptroller Bob Bullock considers federal funds when estimating the state's income for the next two years.

"I plan to talk with Comptroller Bullock the next few days about this new development, and I think there is a likelihood he may decrease the revenue estimates he has made," Clements said.

Bullock said later he saw no need to reduce the state's revenue estimate "just because the governor thinks it's a good idea."

legislators are perfectly capable of making these cuts," Clements said.

Clements added he is "totally in favor of Mr. Reagan's program of budget economy, and it is obvious the U.S. House and Senate are also but just how it will come out we do not know." Clements also said: "I am absolutely opposed to a special session for this purpose. I want the Legislature to address it now."

"There will be no new taxes. We are not going to have a tax increase. We are going to reduce the budget."

"I have thought about a one-year appropriation bill but have discarded the idea. History tells us it does not work very well. However, it is still an open option."

$2.4 million stolen
Armored car, guard no match for bandit with paper sack

MONTREAL (AP) — The front door of the armored truck was unlocked, the keys were in the ignition and $2.4 million in cash and securities was stacked neatly in the back when the lone bandit struck. He hopped in, scared off a guard and drove off.

The guard and two others flagged a taxi and tried to give chase but couldn't keep up, police said. The dark blue armored truck was found in an east Montreal alley Thursday afternoon about an hour after it was taken — but the bandit and the loot were gone.

Constable Mario D'Arcy, a police spokesman, said investigators believe the thief must have had help emptying the truck, "because it was done so quickly." But authorities were unable to say whether the robbery was premeditated — and equally unable to report progress in tracking down the culprits.

D'Arcy said the armored truck, owned by Alliance Securite Blindee, was making one of several stops at downtown financial institutions at about noon. The driver and one messenger had gone to lunch, leaving another guard in the back of the truck, when a man in his mid-30s wearing a construction helmet climbed in brandishing a paper bag.

"The suspect held up the guard, which appeared to hold a gun, at the security guard sitting in the rear with the money," the constable said. "The guard... jumped out... and notified the other two guards."

The keys, however, had been left dangling from the ignition.

When the guards returned, the truck was gone. They tried to follow in a taxicab but couldn't keep up, the constable said. The truck was found three miles away between a bank branch and an abandoned warehouse. All that remained of the cash and securities was a handful of loose change.

Officials at Alliance Blindee's headquarters in Montreal refused to comment on the heist, but the operations director at the company's warehouse, Marcel Chagnon, said theft is just one of the risks a security business runs.

"It's part of the game in the armored truck business," Chagnon said. "In the morning you see 20 trucks going out and you know you have 20 chances of being robbed."

Robbery has become almost a routine affair in the armored truck business in Montreal in recent years. Thursday's theft took place only four blocks from where bandits in a van equipped with a heavy machine gun blocked a Brink's armored truck in March 1976 and made away with almost $3 million. That case is still unsolved.

36 states would lose Amtrak service under Reagan budget

WASHINGTON — Amtrak President Alan S. Boyd has told Congress that all Amtrak trains will be discontinued in 36 states on Oct. 1 if the Reagan Administration's proposed rail passenger budget of $613 million is adopted.

Boyd, testifying recently before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation, said that at the funding level prepared by the Administration, Amtrak "could afford to run passenger trains only in the Northeast Corridor states of Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, and Rhode Island and the District of Columbia."

"The worst outcome," he stated, "would be for Congress or the Administration to act under the false impression that $613 million would support any significant passenger train operations outside of the Northeast Corridor."

He also said that the National Railroad Passenger Corporation had "by taking some rather difficult actions" — revised its own 1982 budget proposal to $853 million, almost $120 million under its current budget.

Boyd said the Reagan funding level would put some 14,500 railroad employees out of work and then require that nearly one-half of the 1982 operating budget be spent in payments to those not working.

He said the $240 million difference between Amtrak's budget requirements and the Administration's proposal "will cost this nation 90 percent of its passenger train stops, 97 percent of Amtrak's route miles, 60 percent of its labor force, 50 percent of our ridership, and more than 60 percent of revenues."

White says Texas' bilingual education rule is adequate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White has told a federal judge the state's current bilingual education law is adequate to meet the state's needs until the legislature sees fit to change it, an assistant said.

U.S. District Judge Tidwell new member of Alpha Chi

Nikki LaRay Tidwell of Big Spring has been inducted into the Texas Alpha Iota chapter of Alpha Chi, a national honor scholarship society. Nikki is a junior at Angelo State University in San Angelo.

Membership in the organization is limited to junior and senior students who maintain a 3.50 grade point average. The society strives to go beyond the mere recognition of academic achievement in order to involve its members in activities of benefit to themselves and others.

Dr. Phillip Holcomb serves as society sponsor. Three one-act plays at BSHS booked Sunday

Three one-act plays will be presented by the Big Spring High School Theatre Department Sunday. Curtain time for the matinee is 2:30 p.m., with performances set in the high school auditorium.

William Wayne Justice of Tyler has ruled the bilingual plan inadequate. On March 18, Justice denied White's request for more time to work on a new bilingual plan.

The judge has not issued a final order in the case but the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund has submitted its proposed plan.

On Thursday, White sent Justice a plan based on the existing bilingual education laws in Texas. That plan would be subject to change if the Legislature approves a new law, according to Mary Hardesty, spokeswoman for White.

"He is defending the existing law," Mrs. Hardesty said. "White also asked Justice for more time to work on the problem. He wrote Justice, 'The legislative process represents the fundamental philosophy of the American constitutional form of government. Defendants are not idly standing by blindly hoping for a solution to materialize magically.'"

While White was mailing the motion to Justice on Thursday, a special Task Force on Bilingual Education was holding its first meeting. The panel, chaired by former Southern Methodist University President Willis Tate, will try to come up with a plan by April 15.

Under present state law, school districts with more than 20 students in one grade who need bilingual education must set up a bilingual program for grades kindergarten through three. The districts also may offer such programs in fourth and fifth grades.

Students' departure from the program would no longer depend solely on test scores.

"To establish an exit criteria without recognition of the other primary factors, such as socio-economic status and parental attitude is, at best, naive," the plan said.

"The (committee) will have the prerogative to place students in bilingual education or in English language development programs even though scores on tests may be above established levels," White said in the plan.

Student placement also would depend on parental consent.

And although the ads contend the group does not endorse political candidates, Moral Majority has been credited for helping unseat a number of liberal and Democratic congressmen and replacing them last November with conservatives.

That prompted Lear and a group of religious leaders to take to the airwaves with a series of commercials aimed at combating ministers like Moral Majority President Jerry Falwell, a popular television evangelist, who mixed religious exhortation with election-year politicking.

MAN IN THE MIDDLE — White House counselor Edwin Meese III, appearing on NBC-TV's Today show from Washington Friday, sits framed by portraits of President Reagan, Vice President Bush and Secretary of State Alexander Haig Jr. Meese commented on the turmoil created in the Administration when President Reagan named Vice President Bush his crisis manager.

County commissioner to resign due to kickback investigation

DALLAS (AP) — A commissioner in a Northeast Texas county has agreed to resign to avoid prosecution in a U.S. Justice Department kickback investigation that may result in indictments for as many as 50 county politicians. The Associated Press has learned.

The investigation has involved close examination of county road and bridge fund records and could result in indictments for 50 current or former members of county commissions in 16 Northeast Texas counties, the AP was told.

Some of the kickbacks reportedly were paid as long as six years ago and involved sales representatives trying to sell their products and equipment to county governments.

One county judge, who demanded that his name not be used, said one of the four commissioners in his county has agreed to repay money received in a kickback scheme and step down rather than face prosecution.

"From what I understand, it (the resignation) is imminent," the judge said.

The Texas investigation grew out of a continuing federal operation that reportedly involves investigation of as many as 100 county officials in 40 Oklahoma counties and has resulted in 18 indictments against county officials in Arkansas, sources told the AP.

The investigation is shrouded in secrecy. Of several county officials who talked to The Associated Press, only one would let his name be used.

However, the Dallas Morning News said today in a copyright story that an Arlington vendor, who had reportedly been paying off officials in Bowie County, began cooperating with federal agents after some of his dealings were tape-recorded.

At that, the man agreed to turn government informant and admitted paying off more than a dozen East Texas commissioners, unidentified sources told the News.

One county official told the AP federal authorities are looking primarily for purchases from three materials companies — two in Texas and one in Oklahoma.

Commissioners all over East Texas have been notified of pending indictments, probably from a federal grand jury scheduled to convene April 7 in Tyler.

Several county officials said FBI agents hit the county auditor's office in Bowie County about a year ago and in Red River and Titus counties within the past few weeks.

"From what they were asking it seemed they were interested in seeing records of the road and bridge funds," a county judge said.

"They (FBI agents) came in to check our records," said Paul Boggs, Titus County auditor. "They indicated to us that they were assigned (to the investigation) by a U.S. attorney in Tyler."

However, U.S. Attorney John Hannah of Tyler said Thursday that he could "neither confirm nor deny" that the investigation was going on.

"We had no idea what they were looking for. I asked questions to see if I could speed up their work, but they just told me who the assignment came from," Boggs added.

Boggs said the agents apparently were looking for "source documents," but said he had no idea what kind of county purchases they were interested in.

Oklahoma lumber dealer Dorothy Griffin has appeared before a federal grand jury in Oklahoma City and is cooperating with federal officials in the Texas investigation, sources told the AP.

She would not comment on the investigation to The Associated Press but told the Morning News, "If you don't put out, you don't get any business in 90 percent of the cases," she said.

She did not respond directly when asked if any of her payoffs took the form of sexual favors, saying only, "I've done some things I'm not proud of having done," the News reported.

In Texas and Oklahoma, county commissioners have unchallenged authority to buy materials and equipment for road and bridge repairs in their precincts. In Arkansas, that function is performed by county judges.

Fourteen county judges in Arkansas have been convicted or have pleaded guilty in connection with kickback allegations in connection with road and bridge funds and four others are under indictment.

The Oklahoma investigation has been under way since 1978 and probably will produce dozens of indictments, the AP was told.

FBI director claims solution to Wood assassination is near

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury gathered for its third consecutive session today as the FBI confirmed it may be nearing the end of a lengthy investigation into the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Theresa Starr Jasper, 23, of Houston, was subpoenaed as the 10th grand jury witness this week. She is the stepdaughter of convicted hired gun Charles V. Harrelson and the grand jury — empaneled Wednesday — apparently is retracing previous evidence in preparation for indictments.

The 23-member grand jury took over the case from a special grand jury that had been investigating Wood's death since June 17, 1980, but which reportedly was "tainted" by erroneous evidence and prosecutors dissolved it to make sure any indictments could stand up to court challenge.

In Washington, meanwhile, FBI director William Webster said Thursday, "we are very close to a solution" of Wood's killing on May 29, 1979.

None of the witnesses nor their attorneys would comment on substance of their appearances.

Harrelson, convicted drug dealer Jimmy Chagra and El Paso attorney Joe Chagra, Jimmy Chagra's younger brother, have been named as "key suspects" in the Wood investigation, the young Chagra brother has said.

In addition, Harrelson's wife and stepdaughter and a lifelong acquaintance, George Edward "Pete" Kay, have been questioned by the grand juries.

Kay appeared for five minutes Wednesday and pleaded the Fifth Amendment, his attorney said.

Mrs. Jasper, who testified last December, appeared at the federal courthouse at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in response to a subpoena and was served with a government "notice of potential conflict of interest."

However, in a brief hearing Friday, Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions said the notice was "premature" and should be taken up again today after she met with the grand jury.

Wood, the first federal judge murdered in more than a century, was gunned down May 29, 1979, outside his San Antonio apartment.

He presided over many of the narcotics cases prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr, who survived a barrage of bullets on Nov. 21, 1978.

Federal investigators have said for months they believed the attacks on both men, considered tough on drug dealers, were ordered by the same high-level narcotics traffickers.

The Dallas Times Herald reported Thursday that the FBI secretly recorded a conversation at a federal prison in which Jimmy Chagra told Joe Chagra that he hired Harrelson to kill Wood.

The newspaper said a federal judge authorized the electronic eavesdroppings in a sealed order and the tape was made last year while the two Chagras met in an interview room at the federal prison in Leavenworth, Kan., where Jimmy Chagra was serving a 30-year term.

He since has been transferred to the high-security prison at Marion, Ill.

At the time Wood was killed, the judge was scheduled to hear Jimmy Chagra's trial on a narcotics-related charge of continuing criminal enterprise.

A little girl had to be left alone in the house for a long time. When her parents returned, they were afraid that they might find her badly frightened because the emergency which called them away kept them absent for longer than they had anticipated! "I wasn't afraid," the little girl said, "When you are here, God expects you to take care of me; but when you are gone, He does it all by Himself."

Settle it once and forever, "God is still on the Throne, and He will remember His own, His promise is true. He will not forget you. God is still on the throne." We used to sing this little chorus often, and now it comes to mind whenever things get a bit tight and seem uncontrollable. What a glorious truth! God does give us minds with which to think and strength with which to act and He certainly expects that using the two together, we will find most of life controllable and enjoyable and give Him praise for the ability to meet our many needs thru His gifts to us. However, when there are burdens too heavy for bearing, and loads too large for lifting, and issues too strong for controlling, when we are the weakest, He is the strongest and remember His strength is made perfect in our weakness! Do not ever live a moment without awareness of His power being present for your benefit.

FORGOT HIS TICKETS — Louisiana State University Coach Dale Brown teases forward Rudy Macklin because the team's charter plane to Philadelphia was delayed to let Macklin rush back to his dorm to get NCAA tickets for his parents. They had just arrived at the Philadelphia airport. LSU will be playing Indiana in the semifinal round of the NCAA championships on Saturday.

Brown says this is best final 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Only the strong survive in the NCAA Basketball Championships, and the teams that made it here for the Final Four festivities will be playing to their strengths in Saturday's semifinals.

"There are no more Cinderellas," said Louisiana State Coach Dale Brown. "This is the best Final Four that I can remember. Indiana, Virginia, North Carolina and us — all four are potential national champions."

But only one will wear the crown following Monday night's title game. The Final Four will be pared to two Saturday when fourth-ranked LSU, 31-3, takes on ninth-ranked Indiana, 24-9, and fifth-ranked Virginia, 28-3, meets Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina, 28-7 and ranked sixth.

The four clubs went through one-hour workouts at the Spectrum today in preparation for Saturday's doubleheader.

Although this has been a tournament of surprises, most notably the second-round massacre that saw top-ranked DePaul, No. 2 Oregon State and No. 3 Arizona State fall by the wayside, don't expect any surprise strategy in the semifinals.

"We're 31-3 and we've done certain things to get us here," said Jordy Hultberg, an aide to LSU Coach Brown. "We'd be foolish to change now. We're going to go out and do what we do best, and the other teams will try to do what they do best."

What LSU does best is score in an up-tempo game. The Tigers' 80.2 scoring average is the best among the Final Four teams. But Brown is confident that LSU can win even if the pace is deliberate, pointing out that the Tigers have won 29 of their last 35 games that were decided by seven points or less.

"We played 34 games this year," he said. "I haven't seen a bunch of Apaches that weren't disciplined in those 34 games."

But when it comes to discipline, the coach that comes to mind is Indiana's Bobby Knight.

"The mental is to the physical as four is to one," said Knight, when asked about the balance of winning basketball. "That holds true in tournament play more than at any other time during the season."

Knight's teams have a history of getting stronger as the season wears on, reaping the benefit of his disciplined approach to the game. Knight holds a 14-4 record in NCAA tournament play and led the Hoosiers to the title in 1976. Knight's record in the last 10 games of the regular season, plus postseason competition, is a remarkable 81-19.

This year's Hoosiers were only 7-5 at one stage after losing to Clemson and Pan American on consecutive nights in the Rainbow Classic. But they have come on strong, posting a 17-4 mark since.

"I don't think Philadelphia ever entered my mind when we were on the plane coming back from Hawaii," said Indiana forward Ted Kitchel. "We've had to struggle and work our butts off, but it's all worth it now."

One player to watch in the Indiana-LSU matchup is Isaiah Thomas, the Hoosiers' All-America point guard.

"We'd like to put him in a box for the game," joked Brown. But then the LSU coach said he had no surprises up his sleeve.

"We don't plan to come up with too many gimmicks at this time of the season," said Brown.

Since Virginia and North Carolina already have met twice during the regular season, it's doubtful they'd be able to surprise each other if they tried.

"There's not much scouting to do," agreed Virginia star Jeff Lamp. "They're very competitive and we've had two tough games with them."

"Because Virginia won the two other games, I'm picking North Carolina this time. It's tough to beat a club three times," said Brigham Young Coach Frank Arnold, whose team was beaten by Virginia in the final of the East Regional.

Basketball unchanged, says Mikani

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Tom Watson went to the practice tee with some high hopes of turning his game around.

"Golf is a funny game," said the man who has played that game, for the past four seasons, better than anyone else in the world.

"Sometimes a little change, a little adjustment like this is all it takes. It can make everything fall into place again."

"Nothing is new in basketball," says the hulking giant from Minneapolis, who dominated the sport first as a protegee of ageless Ray Meyer at DePaul and later as a professional with the Minneapolis Lakers.

"Everything they do now, we were doing then. The only difference is that there are more good guys doing it and doing it better."

"You know, I never played until I got to college. Today they're putting balls in kids' hands when they're 3 years old. The kids are playing organized leagues at age 9. The underprivileged kids live on those concrete playgrounds, shooting, passing and guarding all day long."

"They're fed better. They're bigger and stronger. They get specialized coaching almost from the time they can walk. It's a great game. I watch every time I can."

One can readily see why Mikani was called "Big George" in his heyday, although high school teams now have athletes who tower over him. At 56, he is a ball-shouldered 6-foot-9 (6-10 in the record books), weighing 245 pounds without an ounce of fat.

Spectacled, graying at the temples, he presents a fatherly figure. Naturally. He and his wife, Patricia, bore four sons and two daughters.

"Sometimes a little change, a little adjustment like this is all it takes. It can make everything fall into place again."

Larry Cole bowing out as member of Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran defensive tackle Larry Cole returned to Texas Stadium today, this time to put the wraps on his colorful 12-year career with the Dallas Cowboys.

The 6-4, 250-pound Cole, 33, called a news conference for 12:30 p.m. at the site of some of his fondest memories, including the 1975 championship victory over the Washington Redskins last season.

Cole had had it all at the end of the 1979 season, but he'd never had the full attention of his home-building company, but he had made that point before referring to his career this last season, he joked. Today, his retirement becomes official.

A native of Orange, La., Mikani he came to the Cowboys in 1969 as a first-year draft pick from the University of Texas at Austin. He was the first player to win the Vince Lombardi Award as the best defensive player in the country.

In his 12 years with the Cowboys, Cole played in 102 playoff games, set NFL records and played in the Super Bowl. He played every position on the defensive line and was called upon to play the fullback position in the 1975 NFL Championship game against the Washington Redskins.

Watson made a little adjustment to his hip position in his address during the first round of the $300,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic and it helped him to a 5-under-par 66 and the first round lead.

He made the change, he said, standing on the 15th tee at the 6,650 hard Harbour Town Golf Links.

And what, he was asked, was the result?

"Birdie, birdie, birdie," Watson said with a grin.

He needed that burst of three consecutive sub-par holes to take a 1-shot lead over Gil Morgan, who bogeyed the last hole for a 67.

The group at 68, 3 under par on the tight, testing layout on this resort island, included Hale Irwin, twice a winner of this event, former Masters champ Fuzzy Zoeller and the current Masters titleholder, Seve Ballesteros of Spain.

Ray Floyd, winner of the last two PGA Tour titles and shooting for a rare third in a row, shot a 69 despite a double-bogey on the 17th hole. Floyd, who insists he's playing "the best golf of my life," came right back with a birdie on the 18th.

"Except for that one hole, I played a real nice round of golf. I'm pleased with it. I felt my score could have been a little bit lower, but I'm very, very pleased with the way I played."

Also at 69 were Jerry Pate, veteran Don January, Buddy Allin, Morris Hatalsky, Gibby Gilbert, Jack Renner, Brad Bryant and Mark O'Meara.

Defending champion Doug Tewell had a 72 in the warm, sunny weather.

Watson, for the past four seasons golf's Player of the Year, was rebounding from his poorest performance since he became the game's outstanding performer. He shot a fat 80, his highest score in five years, and missed the cut in last week's Tournament Players Championship. He has not yet won this season and is far behind his normal pace.

SA Relays attract 62 teams

Big Spring High School is one of 62 teams entered in the San Angelo Relays, which get under way at 2:30 p.m., and continues through Saturday.

The Longhorns are entered in Division I, which has Abilene High, Abilene Cooper, San Angelo Central, El Paso Eastwood, Hereford, Odessa High, Plainview, El Paso River-view, Wichita Falls High, Ysleta and Wichita Falls Rider as other teams.

Coahoma and Colorado City are among the 19 teams entered in Division III while Stanton is a Division IV entry.

El Paso Eastwood is the favorite in Division I but San Angelo Central is likely to make a strong run for the championship. Andrews is the Division II favorite but faces competition from Odessa Ector, Kerrville Tivy and Brownwood. Ector is the defending champion in that division.

Brady is back to try and defend its championship in Division III, with strong competition expected from Llano and Floydada.

Stanton is among the favorites in Division IV but Rankin and Miles will make a run at the Buffaloes.

Big Spring wound up sixth in the ABC Relays here last week, scoring a total of 36 points. Greg Jones of Big Spring won the discus event with a toss of 145 feet.

Same old refrain sung by Hawks; they lose

By the Associated Press
A coaching change usually seems to spur a team on to immediate improvement, even if it's only temporary. The Atlanta Hawks, however, may be too far gone for anything like that. Playing several hours after the National Basketball Association team's board of directors fired Hubie Brown after five seasons as Atlanta's coach, the Hawks dropped a 115-107 decision to the Indiana Pacers Thursday night.

A crowd estimated at 3,500—the announced attendance of 8,776 included season ticket-holders who failed to show—chanted "Hubie! Hubie! Hubie!" several times during the game.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Bucks crushed the Cleveland Cavaliers 137-109 and the San Antonio Spurs edged the Utah Jazz 98-97.

James Edwards scored 13 of his 31 points in the final quarter when Indiana pulled away from Atlanta. The Pacers led 84-82 going into the final quarter and outscored the Hawks 17-8 over the first eight minutes, with Edwards getting 7 of the 17.

Indiana Coach Jack McKinney said he wasn't sure what to expect in the wake of Brown's firing.

"There has to be some kind of reaction among players and fans," he said. "That sort of thing has to psych you up one way or the other, but I thought they played like professionals."

Mike Fratello, NBA's assistant who will guide the team in its few remaining games, said, "There were critical times in the game when we were making a move when we came down and turned it over."

Mike Bantom, playing with a "flak jacket" to protect cracked ribs, added

22 points for the Pacers while Eddie Johnson had 38 for the Hawks and Dan Roundfield added 22 in his first appearance since spraining his wrist seven games ago.

The triumph moved the Pacers into a tie with Chicago for second place in the Central Division and a tie for fifth overall in the Eastern Conference.

Steers win over Crane

CRANE — The Big Spring Steers exploded for four runs in the opening inning and went on to defeat Crane, 15-6, in a practice baseball game here Thursday afternoon.

The win was the seventh in 13 starts for Frank Ibarra's team.

Oregon State's Miller named Coach of Year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ralph Miller, who turned his passing game into a winning game at Oregon State University, today was named The Associated Press' 1980-81 college basketball Coach of the Year.

Miller received 26 votes from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters. Dale Brown of Louisiana State was second with 12 votes, and Ray Meyer of DePaul received six votes for third. Bobby Knight of Indiana had four votes, one more than both Gene Bartow of Alabama-Birmingham and Tom Davis of Boston College.

Eight other coaches received one vote. They were Terry Holland of Virginia, Dean Smith of North Carolina, Ned Wulk of Arizona State, Boyd Grant of Fresno State, Don Monson of Idaho, Jack Hartman of

The Longhorns return to play at home Saturday against Midland High, at which time they will be seeking their second straight District 5-A AAAA victory. The Bovines opened with a 4-3 victory over Abilene High. Game time is 2 p.m., and Coach Ibarra plans to go with Moe Rubio on the mound. Big Spring took advantage of seven Crane errors in Thursday's game. The Steers also drove out 14 hits, including three doubles and two singles by Tom Olague.

Olague had four runs batted in. Mark Warren smashed three hits in four efforts, including a double. Waine Shipman scattered five hits to claim his second win of the season. He walked seven.

Brown out as coach at Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — It was like the end of a 30-year marriage, Atlanta Hawks President Mike Gearon said of the decision to fire Hubie Brown as coach of the National Basketball Association team.

"Hubie has been with us five years," Gearon said in making the announcement Thursday. "In terms of NBA coaching longevity, that's like a 30-year marriage."

"It's fair to say this was one of the most unpleasant experiences of my life," Gearon said. "It's like any relationship, partnership or marriage — the breaking up and making that decision. I think the persons who make that decision, who are involved in that decision, have to have a deep sense of failure."

Gearon's official statement on the firing went like this: "The board met today and reached a unanimous decision to replace Brown as head coach of the Hawks. I think it would be more accurate to say Hubie was relieved of his coaching duties."

The meeting followed Brown's flirtation with the New Jersey Nets, a team that was ready to offer the New Jersey native a lavish five-year contract, published reports said then.

"Am I going to miss him?" asked Eddie Johnson. "Well, I have to be professional about the whole thing. I'm going to have to do my job for whoever takes over."

One source inside the Hawks organization said if the firing hadn't taken place, at least five players would have requested to be traded during the off season. Brown was sometimes a volatile coach, arguing at times with officials, players and even fans.

Brown's record was 199-208 with the Hawks. Included were three straight playoff appearances, and last season the Hawks won the Central Division title.

KANSAS CITY ROYALS — Released Mahny Castillo, infielder. Assigned Dan Fischer, Bill Leske.

Earl Weaver erupts again

By the Associated Press
Earl Weaver, the volcanic manager of the Baltimore Orioles, has erupted again. Weaver, making his return from a three-game suspension, was tossed out of the game against the Kansas City Royals Thursday for arguing with umpire Mark Johnson over access to his contract, plus an option year.

Gearon's statement attesting to Brown's tenure was made after a 3 1/2-hour Jan. 16 meeting "in the spirit of... mutually wanting... to continue the kind of success we've had here in the past."

The blowup came at the same site — Fort Meyers, Fla. — where Weaver pulled his team off the field on March 19 after arguing about the same subject. That action led to his suspension by American League President Lee MacPhail.

This time Weaver departed alone, but the Royals won 4-0 as Clint Hurdle and Cesar Geronimo drove in two runs apiece. Howie Rose, in starter Jim Palmer, led off just one run in six innings.

At Sarasota, Fla., Carlton Fisk doubled in his first at-bat for the Chicago White Sox, leading them to a 6-5

Bonds gets title shot

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Last January, Larry Bonds, who had been fighting professionally since 1973, and his wife Gloria, decided that if something positive didn't happen in six months, he would quit boxing. Then on March 2, the call came.

"I was downstairs shooting a game of eight-ball," Bonds recalled Thursday, when the call came from Bobby Lewis, co-manager and trainer, to tell him that he had a shot at the World Boxing Council welterweight title held by Sugar Ray Leonard.

"It didn't excite me that much," said Bonds. "Though I lost the eight-ball game." Who did he lose to? "My wife."

So, Saturday night before a hoped-for crowd of about 25,000 in the Carrier Dome, 29-year old Larry Bonds, whose main income has come from a job as a garbage man in Denver, will climb into the ring for the first time since last April 19.

Wind kites golf scores on coast

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — The richest part about her round in the $175,000 Kemper Open women's golf tournament, Pat Bradley said, was finishing it.

"I'm just glad to be off of that course," Bradley said Thursday after shooting a 71 that gave her the lead in the wind-ravaged first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association event.

Her par round over the 6,134-yard, par 36-35-71 Mesa Verde Club course gave her a one-stroke lead over Joyce Kazmierksi as chilly winds gusting to 45 mph sent scores soaring.

"These are the worst conditions we've played in all year," said Bradley, seeking her first LPGA victory of 1981. "The wind made a three-club difference in distance on the holes that were going into the wind."

Kazmierksi, who has yet to win in 13 years on the tour, said: "There were even difficulties on the green because the wind would move the ball. I was afraid to ground the club for fear of picking up a penalty stroke."

"The gusts were just incredible."

The gusts took their toll, as 78 of the 127 players shot 80 or above.

Judy Rankin, Carolyn Kertzman, Donna Davis, Lori Garbarz and Beverly Klass all withdrew, with Klass walking off the course after she hit two balls into the water on her ninth hole of play.

Hollis Stacy was alone in third with a 74, while defending champion Nancy Lopez-Melton and JoAnne Carner were in a group of eight at 75. Also in the group were Jan Stephenson, Jane Blalock, Sandra Palmer, Sandra Haynie, Alice Ritzman and Mary Dwyer.

Upsets spice NCAA diving, swimming meet

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jittery and jumpy Texas, feeling the pressure of being the favorite and performing poorly in a near-disastrous afternoon time trial, owned a narrow two-point lead going into the second day of the NCAA Swimming and Diving Trials thanks to a salty senior.

The Longhorns' Kris Kirchner shocked UCLA's Robin Leamy in the 50 yards freestyle to take the gold medal Thursday night after Leamy had set an American record in the afternoon prelims.

Kirchner followed his victory by anchoring the Longhorns to an American record-smashing effort in the 400 yards medley relay. The 32 points for first place in a relay gave Texas 65 points to UCLA's 63. The Bruins were third behind Southern Methodist.

"I don't know what our problem was earlier in the day," said Texas Coach Eddie Reese, who was afraid the Longhorns had blown their home pool advantage. "We were just terrible. But we really came back well. Florida and California-Berkeley could have wrapped it up."

Reese said the Longhorns are in excellent position now — in fact, just about where he thought they would be. Texas is heavily favored to unseat Cal-Berkeley as the defending champion.

"I think a lot of our problem earlier was from the neck up," said Reese. "I thought we picked up a lot of points tonight just on altitude. ... You can't let pressure affect your performance. I think we were just trying to go too fast. We just relaxed."

"It's certainly a lot more fun to swim the way we did tonight than the way we did in the afternoon session."

UCLA also suffered a big disappointment when Brian Goodell, trying to tie John Naber's individual NCAA championships' record with 10 gold medals, finished fifth in the 500 yard freestyle behind the winning effort of Arizona's Doug Towne.

"I can't blame the flu I had several weeks ago," said Goodell. "I just couldn't hang onto the pace. I just didn't have it."

Kirchner, the solid senior who held the Longhorns together, even admitted he had a few butterflies before the 50 freestyle.

"I was really nervous about 15 minutes before the race," said Kirchner, who came from behind to catch Leamy. "I couldn't believe I won. It was like a dream come true."

Kirchner beat Leamy with a time of 19.66 seconds to 19.68. Leamy had established the record of 19.36 in the time trials.

Texas' relay time of 3:12.93 beat the Longhorns' American mark of 3:14.59. Clay Britt of the Longhorns swam the opening leg 100 yard backstroke in 49.11 seconds to break John Naber's old mark of 49.31.

Irish have 39 veterans returning

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame opens spring football practice Saturday under new Coach Gerry Faust, who will have 16 starters among 39 lettermen returning from last year's 9-2-1 squad.

"We think there ought to be some pretty good football players in that group," said Faust, who took over one of college football's most prestigious and pressure-packed jobs from Dan Devine.

"We're all fired up about getting outside and starting to put things together," Faust said. "But you've got to remember that I've never been through spring practice before, so I think this will be a learning experience for all of us."

Faust, who came to Notre Dame after compiling a 174-17-2 record in 18 years at Cincinnati Moeller High School, inherits eight starters on both offense and defense.

"We purposely stayed away from looking at any film the last few months. We want to be able to judge everyone this spring on an equal basis and give everyone an equal shot."

"We'll be putting in some new adjustments most of the spring, but to start with we just want to see who we have to work with."

Linebacker and co-captain Bob Crable heads the returning defensive unit. Junior linebackers Mark Zavagnin and Joe Rudzinski also are back, as is sophomore Rick Naylor, who pushed hard for a starting spot last season.

Tackles Pat Kramer, Joe Gramke and Tim Marshall will give Faust depth at that position, but he will have to replace John Hankerd and Scott Zetek at the end positions.

In Avon tennis play Youngsters worry Martina

NEW YORK (AP) — This week's $300,000 Avon Women's Tennis Championships may be the story of Martina Navratilova and the Seven Unknowns, but the two-time Wimbledon champion says it might be a fairy tale that her veteran status is an advantage.

Navratilova said Thursday night after defeating Leslie Allen 6-3, 6-0 that the fact she's the only one of the eight players who has played in the winter tour finale before "is quite a phenomenon, especially for women's tennis."

"The old names like Chris Evert, Tracy Austin and Billie Jean King are either not playing or half-retired, and there's fresh blood coming in," said Navratilova, who clinched a berth in the semifinals with the victory. "I don't know if it's an advantage to me or not. My first time (in the Virginia Slims finals in 1974)

I was as happy to be there that I played once."

Fifteen-year-old Andrea Jaeger also raised her record to 2-0 and advanced to Saturday's semifinals with an easy 6-2, 6-4 victory over West Germany's Sylvia Hanika.

In the loser's bracket of the double-elimination tournament, Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia defeated Pam Shriver 6-3, 7-6 and Sylvia Hanika of West Germany ousted Barbara Potter 6-3, 6-4.

Mandlikova plays Hanika and Allen from Sunday in tonight's quarterfinals, with the winners advancing to the semifinals.

Despite her veteran status here, Navratilova said she still had to fight off newcomers in her first two matches.

"I was much looser tonight," she said. "I was still nervous, but not about my play. Just being in the Garden and the people is enough to make you a little nervous."

Allen, the first black woman to win a tennis title against world-class players since Althea Gibson 23 years ago, upset the third-seeded Mandlikova on Wednesday. But she never threatened the top-seeded Navratilova, who never lost her serve and won the last seven games of the match.

"How can I not be confident?" Navratilova asked. "I'm playing well. I didn't miss any easy shots. And Leslie wasn't on her game and didn't help herself."

Jaeger, practically error-free from the baseline, also held her serve throughout her match with Hanika.

SA Spurs go to bench, defeat Jazz, 98-97

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A strong Spurs bench is what made the difference in San Antonio's one-point win over Utah, according to Coaches Stan Albeck and Tom Nissalke.

And in Utah's Nissalke's view, the Spurs "have got guys coming off their bench who would be starters for us."

"Their bench is a big reason why they're (Midwest) Division champs," said Nissalke following his team's 98-97 loss Thursday night.

"We've been playing the bench and they've had a struggle, but they're getting it together now," said Albeck, who played his bench virtually the entire second half.

It was Michael Wiley who calmly converted a pair of free throws with three seconds remaining to give the Spurs their come-from-behind victory, boosting their record to 51-30.

"I was really pleased for Wiley there at the end," Albeck said of the performance of the 6-9 rookie from Long Beach State. Wiley, who's seen little action in recent Spurs games, finished with 15 points, 12 of them in the frantic final period as San Antonio came back from an eight-point deficit.

Wiley's heroics overshadowed a fine performance by Utah's Darrell Griffith, who led all-scoring with 28 points, 21 of them in the second half. George Gervin led San Antonio with 21 points, 19 in the first half. San Antonio led 52-42 at the half, but Griffith whipped in 12 points in the third period as Utah built its lead to as high as 72-63.

With just 1:45 left the Jazz were still up 97-92, but Dave Corzine and Wiley scored two apiece from the foul line to bring the Spurs to within one with 15 seconds remaining.

Linebacker and co-captain Bob Crable heads the returning defensive unit. Junior linebackers Mark Zavagnin and Joe Rudzinski also are back, as is sophomore Rick Naylor, who pushed hard for a starting spot last season.

Tackles Pat Kramer, Joe Gramke and Tim Marshall will give Faust depth at that position, but he will have to replace John Hankerd and Scott Zetek at the end positions.

ONCE IN AWHILE GOD GETS TIRED OF THINKIN' UP NEW FACES, JOEY... SO HE MAKES TWINS!

It's the same as the electric one, only you have to wiggle it yourself.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAR. 28, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until midafternoon there will be obstacles and delays in your path of progress. Think about expansion you wish in the future and less about the present. Be more optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attending to routine chores early in the day will give you more time to be with congenials later. Cooperate more with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your hunches are not good early in the day but later they are most helpful. Join good friends for recreational purposes.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make plans to have more income in the days ahead. Take time to improve your appearance and easily impress others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now plan how to have added abundance in the future. A wiser attitude toward loved one brings excellent results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study the amount of effort needed to gain an important goal. Show that you will go to any length to please the one you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle any civic duties ahead of you early in the day and later you can enjoy the social side of life. Be active and happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look over your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Be sure to control your temper at all times today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to complete your regular chores with fewer interruptions and more efficiency. Study statements for possible errors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You could easily make a costly mistake where finances are concerned so be on the alert. Engage in favorite hobby.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may find it hard to get things done early in the day, but later you can make up for lost time. Strive for increased happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get an early start on that work you have to do instead of complaining and you get fine benefits from it. Be logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Others around you may seem pessimistic about the future, but don't let this influence you. Maintain a cheerful manner.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be good at understanding anything of a psychological nature and should have the education directed along such lines for best results in lifetime. There is musical talent in this chart. Religious training is a must.

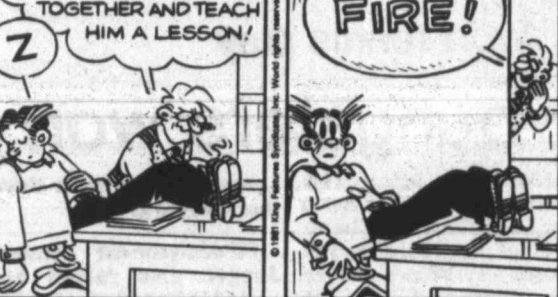

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

 The 31-3 vote Thursday came moments after the three black senators announced they were ending their filibuster.

Guard injured in prison riot
JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Twenty inmates assaulted two guards, took all the keys and had "total control" for 20 minutes of a cell house at Stateville Correction Center, authorities said.
 One of the guards was seriously injured with stab wounds, a spokesman at Silver Cross Hospital said.
 The Thursday episode began with an assault on guard Robert Desmond, who was stabbed several times in the chest. Another guard tried to help and was also assaulted.

WHO WOULDN'T SMILE — Tenor Luciano Pavarotti beams as countrywoman Gina Lollobrigida, one of his many adoring female friends, plants a kiss on him a party after the "concert of the century" in New York Monday night. Pavarotti, Dame Joan Sutherland and Marilyn Horne made operatic history as they performed together for the first time in a concert at Avery Fisher Hall.

Former corrections official files suit against Playboy
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Former New Mexico Corrections Secretary Adolph Saenz has filed a $65 million lawsuit against Playboy magazine in connection with an article it published on last year's bloody state prison riot.
 Saenz was hired as corrections secretary two days before the Feb. 23, 1980, rebellion that claimed the lives of 33 inmates and left New Mexico's only maximum security prison in shambles. Saenz resigned under pressure in June 1980.
 The libel, slander and defamation lawsuit names the magazine and Roger Morris, author of the article, "Thirty Six Hours in Santa Fe," which appeared in the March 1981 issue.
 In the suit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Houston, Saenz charges that Playboy and Morris maliciously accused him of being a party to and committing the criminal acts of murder, false imprisonment, torture, assault and battery during his 17 years with the U.S. Office of Public Safety while serving in Uruguay, Colombia and Panama.
 He also charges that by inendo it suggested he was party to the existence of an alleged "torture school" for foreign police located in Texas.

Saenz' attorney, L.A. "Skeet" McCulloch Jr. of Albuquerque, said the allegations were "totally without supporting evidence."
 "Magazines such as Penthouse, National Enquirer and Playboy are going to have to get over the idea that they can manufacture material out of thin air, use it to destroy someone's career and life solely for the purposes of selling magazines and expanding their circulation," McCulloch said.
 Saenz said the allegations in the article "are totally false and they knew it."
 Playboy spokesman Dan Sheridan said late Thursday from the magazine's headquarters in Chicago that Playboy officials could not comment until they have had an opportunity to study the charges.
 McCulloch and Saenz said they filed the suit in Houston to isolate the matter from litigation and troubles surrounding the New Mexico correctional system.
 McCulloch, in a news release from his office, called the Playboy article's comments about Saenz "almost gratuitous." He said they had very little bearing on the actual story and that he saw "no relationship nor necessity to retry the facts of the prison case along with Mr. Saenz' claims against Playboy."
 Reached in Houston Thursday, McCulloch said he had been working for about three months to prepare the suit, and was encouraged by Thursday's verdict against the National Enquirer in a suit filed by entertainer Carol Burnett.
 "I had been aware of what I think is a moderate shift in attitude in this area, at least in the general public," the attorney said. "The New York Times-Sullivan case was probably the high water mark in defenses, and since that time there has been a gradual pushing back of the elements you need to win your case."
 The case was assigned to U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals. McCulloch said the defendants have 20 days after they are served to file an answer, and no court date will be set until then.

Senate tentatively approves osteopath licensing board
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate tentatively has voted to place osteopaths under a separate licensing board after 74 years of regulation by the Board of Medical Examiners, which oversees all physicians.
 Sen. Lloyd Doggett said the voice vote Thursday was a small victory in his 1 1/2-year-old feud with the Texas Medical Association, which opposed the bill.
 Another vote is needed to send the bill to the House.
 Doggett's bill would set up a Board of Osteopathic Medicine consisting of six osteopaths and three public members. The Board of Medical Examiners has 11 medical doctors, one osteopath and no public members.
 Asked what impact the bill might have on the medical examiners, Doggett said, "The key principles (of the bill) set standards that ought to apply to everybody."
 The bill would require a medical peer review committee to report knowledge which might suggest a colleague was incompetent — "when a physician can't hack it anymore," said Doggett.
 Doggett, sponsor of the law creating the Sunset Advisory Commission — which reviews agencies — repeatedly has been rebuffed in his attempts to obtain what he calls "accountability" from the medical examiners, such as adding lay members to the board.
 On Thursday the Medical Association called Doggett's osteopath bill "poor public policy" and said it might be unconstitutional.
 TMA lobbyist Greg Hooser

He said Texas' 1,100 osteopaths comprise the largest health care profession in the state without its own licensing board.

Ceremony Monday

Oscar ballots being counted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The ballots are in, the limousines are being polished and movie lovers are expecting the best as the night draws near for the biggest celebrity ritual of the year.

It's Oscar time again for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The show — the 53rd annual awards ceremony — begins at 10 p.m. EST Monday, an hour later than last year. Academy spokesman Art Sarno said the 1980 ceremony started early as an experiment to capture more of the East Coast audience, which tends to tune out by the time a 10 p.m. telecast ends about 1 a.m.

"What happened (last year) was that the ratings improved in the East but went down in the West, so there was no real gain," Sarno said.

It could be a vintage year for Oscar watching, whether viewers plan to get up at dawn to grab a seat on the bleachers outside the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion at the Music Center here or just sit in front of the family television for the ABC telecast.

An estimated 300 million viewers in the United States and 65 other nations are expected to watch the show. More than 30 Hollywood personalities — from Alan Arkin to Franco Zeffirelli — are slated to present gold statuettes in 20 categories, one fewer than last year. (The best adapted film score category was canceled this year because of a lack of qualified candidates.)

Even President Reagan will make an appearance, in a taped segment. In keeping with its theme, "Film Is Forever," the three-hour-plus show will open with a special production number featuring Lucie Arnaz and a montage of great moments in film including Marlon Brando's anguished "I coulda been a contender" speech in "On the Waterfront" and Humphrey Bogart's farewell to Ingrid Bergman in "Casablanca."

Clips from a record 155 films are to be shown. Johnny Carson will be the master of ceremonies for the third straight year.

Reagan under fire for oil company gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is coming under fire for accepting $270,000 from oilmen to redecorate the White House. A consumer critic called the money "gratuities for services rendered," and a congressman said the tax-deductible donations may end up costing the government almost three times the $50,000 federal stipend turned down by first lady Nancy Reagan.

"The taxpayers are being taken to the cleaners," Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., complained Thursday. "If the oil donors are in the 60 percent (tax) bracket, and they're probably in higher ones than that, it could cost the government $130,000 in lost revenues."

The White House announced last month that President and Mrs. Reagan were declining $50,000 appropriated by Congress to refurbish the family living quarters and would finance the project instead with private contributions.

"It's more appropriate to do this with private funds, and to do it properly is going to cost more than $50,000," Sheila Patton, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, said at the time.

The fund-raising drive brought in more than $735,000 — almost quadruple Mrs. Reagan's original $200,000 goal — including $270,000 in donations ranging from $5,000 to $50,000 from 23 individuals with oil interests.

Consumer representatives and some members of Congress assailed the Reagan White House on Thursday for accepting donations from the oilmen just a month after the president removed price controls on domestic oil.

Former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox said the fund-raising "shows a surprising insensitivity" to the danger of mixing money and politics. Sen. William recall in the more than 20 years I've been in Congress."

Peter McCoy, Mrs. Reagan's chief of staff, has said the donors "have absolutely no political interest, no political motives." Moreover, he said, the Reagans were unaware of the fund-raising drive among oil interests. Some contributors said they were showing appreciation for the president's policies, particularly those favorable to the oil industry. But they insisted the money was not intended to gain Reagan's favor.

Housing familiarization seminar scheduled April 28

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will host a one-day Basic Housing Familiarization seminar April 28 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The seminar is sponsored by the Texas Department of Community Affairs' Housing Division in cooperation with the Department of Housing and Urban Development and Rural Resources of Texas and will be held in the Computer Center, Region 18 Education Service Center, Midland-Odessa Regional Airport.

Intent of the seminar is to give persons from the small, more rural communities an opportunity to know of the housing resources available. This is especially significant in this time of regional growth and economic activity throughout the Permian Basin Region.

Many of you should have received notices concerning this meeting from TDCA; please consider this a reminder as well as a request to inform your local housing authority personnel, builders and anyone else in your community who is interested in housing.

Questions concerning this seminar will be answered by Rick Tucker or Jerry Tschauer at 915-563-1061.
