Astros say rocketship performs like 'champ'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The astronauts of Columbia, their rocketship sailing along like a "champ," tested control systems today for Tuesday's searing re-entry after sources said photographs indicated the underbelly heat shield — crucial to survival — is apparently intact.

On Flight Day Two, "everything's working just fine," a mission director said today. "There's nothing remotely resembling a problem."

John Young and Robert Crippen

were awakened from a chilly night's sleep in orbit by a country-western tune that celebrated their "mean machine." They began testing Columbia for the dramatic landing that will conclude the mission that thrust the United States back into the space age.

Cabin temperatures overnight were in the 60s, a few degrees below normal and Crippen said, "we got about ready to break out the long undies." Shuttle Control quickly resolved that by dumping water out of a heat exchanger.

The song, "The flight of the Shuttle Columbia," warmed their spirits. It said, in part, "Many, many hours went into this thing. A job well done by the shuttle space team."

Following breakfast, Crippen and Young plunged into a day of extensive testing of spaceship systems — working well except for minor "anomalies." A remarkably clear telecast showed Young testing the ship's flight controls.

"The vehicle is performing just beautifully, much better than anyone ever expected on the first flight," Young said Sunday.

"It's performing like a champ," Crippen reported.

The astronauts relayed their praise nine hours after Columbia vaulted spectacularly off its launch pad at Cape Canaveral.

Today, flight director Neil Hutchinson said, "It's absolutely amazing, the machine is operating so well, we have nothing that's a real show-stopper. There's nothing remotely resembling a problem."

Of the tiles, National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Charles Redmond said, "We are very interested in understanding what went on, but there is still no concern. If you define a major problem as one where we think there might be danger to the lives of the crew members, no, this doesn't come anywhere near being a major problem."

The maiden flight of the world's first reusable spaceship is a test flight, and Young and Crippen were to do just that today. Nothing glamorous like landing on the moon. Just dogged checking and rechecking of all the systems, as they did Sunday after launch.

Today's work schedule: The pilots evaluated the accuracy of ship flight controls, assessed the small steering jets that guide their orbit and their descent, troubleshoot a minor cabin pressurization problem, adjusted Columbia's star tracker alignment (navigation control) and did more test operations by remote control on the ship's cargo doors.

From the moment of the fiery on-time liftoff, Columbia was almost a flawless machine, bothered by only a few nuisance problems.

A remarkable recovery for a craft that only a few months ago critics were calling such unflattering things as "space turkey" and "aluminum Dumbo." Columbia had fallen two years behind schedule, bedeviled by technical troubles with its main engines and thermal tiles.

The three powerful engines were perfect Sunday. At least two of the ship's 30,922 tiles was missing and more than a dozen were damaged.

Sunday Hutchinson said, "We do have some (13 to 15) tiles missing in what we consider to be a non-critical area. We don't think it is going to bother us at all coming back home."

Hutchinson said the affected tiles probably were hit by a shock wave as the craft barreled up through the atmosphere. They are located on top of the ship and would not be affected by reentry heat, as would the bottom of the Columbia.

'Where is money going?'

Commissioners seek more cleanup campaign info

By CAROL HART

County commissioners questioned the legality of spending money for a community-wide cleanup campaign at their meeting today.

Commissioner David Barr said "we don't need to take taxpayers money to clean up another taxpayers property."

County Judge Bill Tune pointed out that "we've tried the voluntary method for years (concerning city clean-up.) It didn't work."

Commissioner Louie Brown said the proposal for community clean-up, which requires about $35,350, "is too vague. We need more information. I want to know exactly where the money is going."

Scott McLaughlin, who met with the commissioners at their last meeting in March, told them at that time that extensive clean-ups were planned for Third and Fourth Streets, as well as part of Gregg Street.

The City Council, in its last meeting, agreed to match any money pledged by the county, according to Don Davis, city manager. He added that he was reading from the minutes of the meeting, which had not yet been approved.

The Industrial Committee also agreed to match contributions from the city for the campaign. This would amount to each group pledging $11,750.

County commissioners decided to call on county attorney Bob Miller to discuss the legality of the situation.

If the money is granted, it would be used for mowing, picking up trash, structural demolition of dilapidated buildings, equipment maintenance fuel and salaries for a crew of three.

In other business, the commissioners voted to accept bids for two pickups, two dump trucks and two beds.

The group accepted a bid for $14,946 for two pickups with trade from Pollard Chevrolet. The group also accepted a bid of $23,774.78 for two Detroit engine dump trucks, year 1973, from Treanor Trucks, and two dump beds for $7,269.32 from Hobbs trailer.

The commissioners approved a payment of $50,912.75 for the airport sinking fund. The county is now debt free following the payment to the fund.

Larry Bristo of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center discussed a contract between the city and county concerning the Rehabilitation Center and its operating expenses.

Bristo said that under an original contract, the county had agreed to pay for exterior expenses and the city for interior expenses.

During the winter of 1979, Bristo told the commissioners that the boiler system at the center had broken down, and that the system had to be replaced at a cost of several thousand dollars. Bristo requested that the commissioners re-imburse the center for $5,375 for the boiler system. Commissioners decided to consider making the payment.

Northern lights brighten sky, spark controversy

Strange lights which lit up the skies locally sparked lots of controversy about what was causing them Sunday night.

The lights, described for the most part as orange and red, made lightning-like streaks across the northern skies about 10 p.m. Sunday.

Some Big Spring residents speculated that something was on fire. A few others said their first thought was the space shuttle now in orbit.

But the display, seen across the Midwest, had a scientific explanation. Known as Aurora Borealis, the northern lights, the display was caused as charged particles from the sun struck the earth's upper atmosphere.

As the particles collide with atmospheric particles, they change their electrical charge, which causes them to glow, much like the charged particles in a fluorescent tube.

Reports of the aurora were received from South Dakota to Texas and from Colorado to Illinois.

The National Weather Service office in St. Louis said "it is very rare to see the northern lights this far south" and added there was no way to estimate how long it would be visible.

Tim Curtis, 17, of Sullivan, Mo., said he was at a church gathering with several other persons in his hometown when the aurora began.

"When it started out, it was a big red flash in the east going super-fast and from there it started to spread and get bigger and bigger," Curtis said in a telephone interview.

"It got so bright here that you could drive your car without the headlights on. It's unreal."

"It's about the color of a taillight and a fog-type thing, but you can see through it, you can see the stars and that behind it. About every 10 minutes or so it flashes and looks like red lightning."

"We thought it was a gas or the Second Coming of Christ or the space shuttle crashing," he said.

In Texas, broadcasters in Lubbock, Wichita Falls and Center said they had received dozens of calls from viewers or listeners who saw the phenomenon.

Sen. Lloyd Bentson to stay busy on visit here Tuesday

A large turnout is due Tuesday noon when U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentson visits Big Spring and addresses the annual Salvation Army luncheon at the First Baptist Family Life Center. Approximately 250 reservations have been made. Lt. Bill Thrasher, Salvation Army commander estimated, and tickets priced at $7.50 each, will be available at the door.

Sen. Bentson also will appear immediately after the luncheon at an adjoining room on the lower floor of the east wing of the church to meet constituents, answer questions and talk with the media. This is open to the public and there is, of course, no charge for this. Afterwards, the senator will visit the Veterans Administration Medical Center and make a tour with Director James Steward and be available to veterans.

Several other officials are due here for Sen. Bentson's visit, including possibly U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, who is scheduled to introduce the senator; State Sen. Ray Farabee and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, who are due to fly from Austin if the legislative schedule will permit.

Immediately prior to the luncheon, Sen. Bentson will be welcomed by the Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors and Mayor Clyde Angel in the church parlor where Salvation Army Advisory Board members will be gathered.

Rick Hamby, chairman of the advisory board, will be master of ceremonies at the luncheon, and he will recognize J.D. Jones as a life member of the board, also Ron Medley and Charles Hayes for handling last autumn's United Way campaign.

John Bingham, Police Chief Elwood Hobera and Bruce Wright will be introduced as new board members, and a moment of silence will be observed in memory of Ray Don Williams, board member who died suddenly Sunday morning of a heart attack.

Pills, cancer linked

ATLANTA (AP) — A preliminary study has linked birth control pills to breast cancer in women whose families have a history of the disease, a researcher said today.

The study, by scientists at New York Medical College in Valhalla, N.Y., said women whose grandmothers or aunts had suffered breast cancer appeared slightly more likely to get the disease themselves if they used oral contraceptives.

Earlier studies have shown no link between the pill and cancer, although women using oral contraceptives run a small increased risk of circulatory problems, particularly blood clots.

Breast cancer is the most common cancer among women, striking one woman in 15.

The scientists, led by pathologist Dr. Maurice M. Black of the college's Institute of Breast Diseases, said their "preliminary studies" must be duplicated by others to be confirmed.

"But in the meantime I think the data are strong enough to warn women who had either a grandmother or aunt with breast cancer not to take the pill," Black said in an interview Sunday night.

There was no apparent link between the pill and cancer in women for whom only a mother or sister had suffered the disease.

Shuttle visible from Lubbock?

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Early risers in some parts of the nation can get a last glimpse at the space shuttle Columbia on Tuesday as it hurtles into the final phases of its 2½-day mission.

Astronauts John Young and Bob Crippen are to guide Columbia to a wheels-down, midday landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The two-day, 10-minute delay in launch rendered inaccurate a computerized space agency timetable of possible sightings, thus the sites and times are only approximate.

Weather conditions could also preclude a peek at the spacecraft as it passes overhead, a darting speck of light in the predawn sky.

Certain spots are considered good viewing sites because the shuttle is high in the sky, passing overhead on the lower edge of its orbit before the sky gets too bright and hides it from the naked eye.

With favorable weather and light conditions, the spaceship may be seen for several minutes Tuesday morning. The cities and approximate times, all local:

Huntsville, Mobile, Montgomery and Birmingham, Ala., starting at 4:22 a.m.; Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz., 4:52; Atlanta and Savannah, Ga., 5:23; Santa Fe, N.M., 4:53; Raleigh, Charlotte and Asheville, N.C., and Columbia, S.C., 5:24; Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn., 5:23; Roanoke, Va., 5:23; Denver, Colo., 4:53; Jacksonville, Tampa and Tallahassee, Fla., 5:22; Boise, Idaho, 4:53; Chicago and Springfield, Ill., 4:22; Des Moines, Iowa, 4:22; Indianapolis, 5:22; Frankfort and Louisville, Ky., 4:54; Boston, Mass., 3:53; Detroit and Lansing, Mich., 5:23; Jefferson City and St. Louis, Mo., 4:21; Concord, N.H., 3:53; Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus and Dayton, Ohio; 5:22; Pittsburgh, 5:23; Providence, R.I., 3:52; Charleston, W. Scriptwriters strike television industry

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A strike by 8,300 film and television writers gets underway in earnest today, the first working day since the Writers Guild of America voted to walk out in a contract dispute.

The writers planned a mass picketing session at 20th Century-Fox studios, with smaller picket lines planned at other production centers later in the week.

But film and television producers face perhaps more formidable opponents Wednesday when talks begin on a new free-lance film-TV contract with the Directors Guild of America.

The sticky issue is home video residuals, which prompted the writers to vote for a strike early Saturday and is expected to dominate talks with the directors, whose contract expires June 30. Virtually no Hollywood production is scheduled for July, in case the home-video problem prompts the directors to strike July 1.

Spokesman for the three television networks aren't expecting major disruptions because most TV production is completed for this season. And an official at a major film studio said the impact on motion pictures probably would not be felt for nine or 10 months.

Other unions aren't bound to honor the picket lines.

The Writers Guild, whose 8,300 members have been without a contract since Feb. 28, voted to strike after talks on a new pact bogged down over a complicated home-video residual plan.

Before talks broke off with the producers Friday, the writers reportedly were being offered a proposal giving them 1.2 percent of the distributors' gross of pay TV programs after the shows had played 10 times on every pay TV system, and the same percentage of the gross on videocassettes and videocassettes after the sale of 100,000 units. But the union said it wants an entirely new approach to the issue.

Biology teacher named BS Teacher of Month

Joe Reed, Big Spring High School Biology teacher, has been recognized by the Texas State Teachers Association as the Teacher of the Month. Seven of his 11 years of teaching experience have been in Big Spring. Reed attended Sul Ross State University and the University of Houston. He earned a Bachelor of Science in Professional Biology and a Master of Science in Biology with qualifications for teaching biology, English, and physical science. Organizations to which hold membership include National Association of Biology Teachers, National Education Association, Texas State Teachers Association, Texas Classroom Teachers Association, National Association of Rocketry, Church of Christ, and Masonic Lodge. He is president-elect of the local TSTA and serves as director of the Permian Basin Regional Science Fair. Reed's philosophy of education is, "I believe that students will rise to the occasion when a teacher is interested and excited about the students and the subject he — she is teaching. By setting realistic standards, being prepared on a daily basis and caring, both the teachers and the students will be benefited. I believe in asking and expecting results from my students — if I don't, I will not receive results. Also, my students expect me to give to them the best possible teaching; therefore, I must be able to be prepared and willing to work with them so that the results 'they' ask for are met by me." Hobbies enjoyed by Reed are fishing, camping, canoeing, reading, model rocketry, cooking and amateur astronomy. His favorite books are "Wild Geese Calling" by White, "Plant and Planet" by Huxley, and "Ascent of Man" by Bronowski. Favorite foods are peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, chicken fried steak, and chili rellenos. He enjoys NOVA, Paper Chase, and Nero Wolfe on television. Reed's wife is Carolyn, and they have a daughter, JoJo, who is 11 years of age.

President builds up strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, out of the hospital but under doctor's orders not to work in the Oval Office yet, is staying upstairs in the White House with no immediate plans for public appearances while he builds up his strength. Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Sunday Reagan's only scheduled visitors this week were Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who will report on his recent trip to Europe and the Middle East, and his top three White House aides. Speakes said Reagan may tape a 10-minute economic speech for radio broadcast this week, but a televised address on the same topic will be delayed. As he recuperates at home from the bullet wound in his left lung inflicted by a would-be assassin two weeks ago, Reagan also may telephone members of Congress for a progress report on how his economic plan is faring, Speakes said. "But Reagan planned to spend most, if not all, of the week in his upstairs living quarters. First lady Nancy Reagan has redecorated the rooftop solarium for Reagan's use during his convalescence. After being released from George Washington University Hospital on Saturday, Reagan spent a quiet weekend with his wife and their daughter, Patti. Aides agreed not to disturb him. On Sunday he arose early to watch the launching of the space shuttle Columbia on television. "It's a spectacular sight," his personal physician, Dr. Daniel Ruge, quoted Reagan as saying. After visiting the president, Ruge reported through Speakes: "He's in great shape. He looks great." Reagan is taking penicillin orally to ward off infection. Speakes said Reagan's senior staff made a "conscious decision" to "leave him alone and give him some time with his family" after he returned from the hospital. To a large extent, Speakes said, the president will follow his hospital routine at home. His top three aides, counselor Edwin Meese III, chief of staff James A. Baker III and Michael K. Deaver, will visit him in the mornings "to discuss whatever matters come up," and daily national security briefings will be in written form. Vice President George Bush will continue to stand in for Reagan at official functions, though aides said he probably would no longer preside over meetings of the Cabinet and the National Security Council. Bush told reporters Sunday that Reagan "was a little tired" when he was discharged from the hospital.

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The custody trial involving the children of slain former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. has produced, in the past four weeks, an unprecedented — and often startling — look into the private life of a powerful political family. And if the past truly is prologue, as Shakespeare said, the days ahead may provide accusations even more startling than those of wife beating, drug use and homosexuality that already have surfaced. Lead defense attorney in the effort by Vickie Daniel, 33, the widow of the former speaker who is charged with his Jan. 19 shooting death, to retain custody of the two sons she bore Daniel is Richard "Racehorse" Haynes. During testimony on behalf of Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, who is trying to gain custody of Marion Price Daniel IV and Franklin Baldwin Daniel 3, Haynes has baffled belittled and often befuddled witnesses. Now the stocky, diminutive defense attorney goes on the offensive and, although he is bound by a gag order preventing attorneys from talking about the trial, he is expected to continue his previous probing into the marriage between a one-time Dairy Queen waitress and the son of prominent South Texas Democrat. In the closing days of the case presented by Mrs. Murph's attorney, J.C. "Zeke" Zbrank called Price Daniel Sr. to the stand to bolster his contention that Mrs. Daniel is an unfit mother and that her late husband was a stable, loving father. The elder Daniel, over- come at times by emotion, flatly denied that his son used drugs or had homosexual tendencies, as has been charged or implied in previous testimony. "I spent a lot of time with him," Daniel replied in an emotion-choked voice when asked if he was around his son while he was growing up. Asked by Zbrank if his son was a homosexual, Daniel, 71, replied with a ringing denial. Explorers Club Male bastion falls to women adventurers NEW YORK (AP) — For 75 years, in the wilds of Manhattan's East Side, the likes of Teddy Roosevelt, Charles Lindbergh and Edmund Hillary gathered in the comfort of the male-only Explorers Club. Those days are over. By a vote of 753-618, the club agreed Sunday to admit women members — even at the cost of hundreds of male members. The vote meant that astronaut Kathryn Sullivan, who has flown higher than any other woman in the world, and Sylvia Earle, who has dived deeper than any man or woman, will be the first female Explorers.

Backers predict win for I&R measure AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislature, where the issue failed. "I believe we have a compromise that will pass the House and Senate," he said. "Some members who have been against it are now for it. Speaker Bill Clayton supports it strongly." He said he had not talked with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby about the measure. Sharp's proposed amendment to the state constitution would require signatures of 10 percent of the voters in 190 counties on any initiative petition. Sharp said safeguards had been written in the measure to prevent an initiative petition being used to raise taxes or to shift taxes from one group to another. Even Explorers president Dr. Charles Brush, who urged their admission, was stunned by the vote, taken by secret mail ballot. Two members of the club's board of directors predicted that as many as 300 members would resign because of the change. "You have no idea how strongly some men feel about this," said John W. Flint, a board member. "These are very conservative guys who are afraid women would change things." The announcement closed out the presidency of Brush, who contends that even in this era, when exploration means rowing across the Atlantic, there are more frontiers than ever. Today, says the lanky archaeologist who led his first expedition in the Himalayas when he was 14, there are unexplored caves, unscaled peaks and uncharted wastelands aplenty. Japanese make their system work

A major U.S. consultant, James S. Balloun, told financial and planning executives of R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc., recently that Japanese businesses are beating the socks off U.S. corporations in the world's competitive arena because they emphasize the human side of management.

"The Japanese achievement lies in the fact that they manage complex operations in simple, human ways that seem to be more effective than the complex procedures of our large companies," Balloun added.

Balloun is a director of McKinsey and Co., Inc., a New York-based international consultant firm that works with businesses to improve performance through strategy, operations and organization.

BALLOUN SOUGHT to cut through the false assumptions that riddle most American perceptions of the Japanese economic triumphs: —Low wages. Although Japan was able to compete on the basis of low wages for some time, especially in textiles and apparel, Balloun said this is no longer the dominant reason for their success. "Japanese wages now approach ours," he said. He noted that salaries for college graduates in Japan this year will start at around $18,000 a year.

—Japan Inc. Government-supported financing and support played a role in the early days of Japan's industrialization and post-war reconstruction, but the successful new companies in Japan — Matsushita, Honda, Sony and Toyota — are financed primarily with equity, he said. "Moreover, in several cases they have pursued strategies that conflict with those urged by the government."

—Docile workers. Japanese employees are encouraged to disagree with their bosses and to challenge the company's operating practices. "Japan's work force is loyal, but it is hardly docile," Balloun said.

THE JAPANESE OWE their success to a simple truth, according to the consultant. "They have developed a way to manage complex organizations with great simplicity." Balloun identified four characteristics which he said were central to the success of Japanese businesses:

—They treat people as members of the corporate family, not as hired hands. "In Japan, the company is the people — not the shareholders and, accordingly, people are more important."

—They manage through shared values, not procedures and systems.

—They think big. "Japanese companies, like the excellent American companies, are each major problems in a way that would be viewed by many as overdone and out of proportion," Balloun said. "They also take the long-term view of earnings growth and they view innovation as a way of life."

—They listen. "The Japanese discussion and decision style that Americans find agonizing fosters deep thinking across organizational boundaries, and they encourage a great deal of informal discussion at mid-management level before recommendations are developed."

Some of the United States' most successful companies use these management concepts, according to Balloun, but most do not.

Balloun says we are choking on bureaucracy, a futile attempt to manage complexity with complexity — "every bit of it is rational and logical, but the aggregation is unworkable."

Perhaps it's time to back off and take a look at the way we're doing things.

Doesn't add up

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

There is something to be said for economics.

I never understood it and dropped out of my basic economics course in college. Even though my textbook still sits in my house, it isn't to impress anyone. I just couldn't sell it back to the student bookstore because they were ordering new editions for the next year. I was out 10 bucks, blew my personal economics and knew I did right by dropping out of the course.

I WASN'T TERRIBLY interested in guns and butter. I realized if I wanted butter in my refrigerator, I could buy it at its inflated price. I also realized if I wanted to shoot my economics instructor, I wouldn't have to buy a gun, because one of my fellow students would get there first.

That was as far as I ever got with guns and butter.

But I understand economics in a basic way.

It's trying to figure out why someone who makes a good salary, and I'm not mentioning any names, has to borrow money for the laundromat?

It's trying to figure why, in this last week of getting our tax returns in, why I have to worry about getting a chintzy refund because I made a good salary.

It is also trying to figure out why, in the race between the salary and the month, the salary always seems to get the finish line first and can't go any further.

Economics. How I hate that word. It's almost as bad as the word money, when it has reached the finish line.

Well, I guess I really can't worry about it. It's something that will always be there that nothing can be done about, like dust storms.

I guess I better go get my tax returns started.

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

In response to our German friend, Helge Raab, I write to uphold the integrity of God's Word. God says the death penalty is a deterrent to crime.

"And thou shalt stone him with stones, that he die...and all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickedness as this among you." Deuteronomy 13:10,11. In that God commands all mankind to administer governmental justice, we should also be able to see pragmatically that God's way will always work best.

Last week on the ABC "Nightline" program, they investigated our prison system. Before they closed the program they asked two inmates who could have received the death penalty what they thought about it. Both of them favored the death penalty over life imprisonment. One said, "A life sentence is not more merciful as some believe. It is merely a stretched out living death. I think the death penalty is a better deal for both sides."

If you like to argue over statistics I have some of those for you. During the 10 years the death penalty was in limbo or outlawed here in the U.S., the number of murders almost doubled!

The figure rose from 10,000 in 1967 to over 19,000 by 1978. As executions declined, murders increased! In 1955, there were 76 executions in our country and some 7,000 murders; in 1960, 56 and thus 8,000 murders, and in 1978 there were no executions, but 19,555 murders! Making our death penalty non-existent has certainly not helped reduce even capital crimes as Mr. Raab suggested it would.

Much of Mr. Raab's confusion comes from his scanty knowledge of the Bible. Saying the death penalty was only intended "for a nomadic nation which lived in the desert," is as wrong as saying that salvation was only intended for them as well. God instituted Human Government and capital punishment and gave them to all of mankind in Genesis 9.

His ridicule of fathers selling their daughters into slavery in Exodus 21:1-11, shows again less than adequate Bible learning. Biblical slavery is what we in the 20th century would call the employer-employee relationship.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Recently I have been facing the fact that the only times I have called upon God in my life have been times when I was afraid. Each time I promised God that I would follow him if he would spare me, but then I never followed through on it. Now I am facing great difficulty, and want to turn to God again, but I wonder if he will believe me when I have failed so many times before.—L.N.

DEAR L.N.: Yes, he will hear you and accept you if you are sincerely committing your life to Christ. It is good that you recognize what you have done before, and how you have not been sincere or honest in your commitment. But my prayer is that you would be sincere in your desire to turn to God now, and that you would believe the Bible when it promises, "Let the wicked forsake his way and the evil man his thoughts. Let him turn to the Lord, and he will have mercy on him, and to our God, for he will freely pardon" (Isaiah 55:7).

How can you know that your commitment is sincere and will last?

It is slavery by choice, by becoming the indentured servant of one whom you owe money to. The Bible warns against debt of all kinds because you are a slave to whomever you owe something. Here, a daughter being sold to another man is merely the Hebrew custom of parental arrangement for matrimony. The father was to receive a dowry from the groom or the groom's father, for his daughter to become engaged to marry either. This dowry was to ensure his daughter's well-being for the future. It was the exact opposite of the more recent European dowry custom paid by the wife-to-be.

I really do not know why he didn't choose the example of the rebellious son who is to be killed at age 18, as it is found in the same chapter (Exodus 21:15 and also Deut. 21:18-22). Most Bible critics love to point to this supposed atrocity. But to the contrary, this example shows God's belief in the deterrent effect of a death penalty. The Puritans under the leadership of Cotton Mather in the Massachusetts Bay Colony was a perfect deterrent, for in over 50 years that the law was in effect, it never had to be used, even once! (They had no problems with teenage crimes or vandalism in Puritan America.)

I urge all Christians not to make the same mistake that Mr. Raab does in separating the Christ who walked on this earth 2,000 years ago from the Christ who is still alive today in heaven and will return again. Just because Christ may have seemed pacifistic the first time, he came into our world as a lamb, does not mean that that is his total being. Read Revelation 19:11-21 and you will see that this same Jesus when He comes again will be the biggest promoter of the death penalty the world has ever seen!

It makes no difference if men believe capital punishment to be a deterrent to murder or not. The bottom line is that our Creator-God says that it is.

Proverbs 21:15: "The execution of justice is joy for the righteous, but is terror to the workers of iniquity."

Auto double talk

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — Rhetorically, President Reagan is a pure free-trader — even on the political hot potato of Japanese auto exports. But behind the scenes the Administration keeps pounding away at the Japanese to impose tight restrictions on car shipments.

The upshot is not merely confusion in the public dialogue and disarray within the Administration. The greater danger is the loss of the truly good deal that could be cut with Tokyo by a more straightforward approach.

Publicly, the President's position finds most recent expression in a statement on the auto industry read for him by Vice President George Bush on Monday, April 6. The statement cited the terrible woes of the industry — corporate losses at over $4 billion last year; production at a 19-year low; nearly half a million workers laid off.

NEVERTHELESS, the President stuck bravely to his free enterprise guns. He gave the industry relief mainly in the form of an abatement of regulations. He conferred no tax benefits. Of Japanese imports, he said: "We will monitor the effect of international trade on our domestic auto industry. We are committed to free trade and believe free trade benefits all nations concerned."

Previous reports have Mr. Reagan going steadily against protectionism. On March 19, at a session of the Cabinet, he was said to be siding with his chief domestic economic advisers — Treasury Secretary Donald Regan; Budget Director David Stockman; and the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, Murray Weidenbaum — against pressure from Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, for a limit on Japanese exports.

On March 24 when the Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ito visited the White House, the President said merely that there were being readied in the Congress measures that would cut Japanese imports from roughly 2 million annually last year to 1.5 million annually for the next three years. The implication was that Mr. Reagan opposed those limits. A day later, at a meeting with his prestigious Economic Policy Advisory Board, Mr. Reagan seemed apologetic for even having mentioned the possible legislative action.

Privately, however, the Administration is playing much harder ball with the Japanese. On March 20, the day after the Cabinet meeting, Secretary of State Alexander Haig spoke personally to the Japanese ambassador in Washington, Yoshio Okawara, on the subject of cars. He also instructed Ambassador Mike Mansfield to take up the subject at the Japanese Foreign Office. The Japanese came away from those conversations convinced that the Administration was asking them to cut back exports voluntarily to 1.5 million cars annually. But after seeing the President, Foreign Minister Ito let it be known he was not getting a clear signal from the Administration.

ON APRIL 2, after a Cabinet meeting, there was a session on cars among Secretary Haig, Secretary Lewis, trade representative Bill Brock and the two top White House aides — Edwin Meese and James Baker. Mr. Meese said there was no accord then on a quota for Japanese autos. Other sources claim that, with the domestic economic advisers excluded, there was an understanding that Washington should press Tokyo for the 1.5 million limit.

Won't disappear overnight

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had a physical, and everything was fine, except the blood test showed I had granulocytosis and was anemic. The doctor ordered me to take medicine three times daily. In one week I had another test and called the girl at the office to find out about it. She said it was OK. Should I continue the medicine? I have been very healthy, no problems. My grandfather had leukemia. Is this anything to worry about? — Mrs. M.D.

Granulocytosis means an increased number of white blood cells. The significance depends on how high the increase is, how long it lasts and whether they are abnormal white blood cells. The number increases when there is even minor infection in the body. When the infection leaves, so does the high white blood cell count. Your count quickly became normal. So that indicates that was not a serious problem.

Anemia refers to the red blood cells. It means too few red blood cells are present. I suppose readers are getting tired of hearing this, but it bears repeating; anemia is not an illness, but is a sign of an illness.

If you can't get a good picture on our TV set, you try to find out what is wrong with the set. With anemia, you find out why there are too few red blood cells. Is the person lacking iron? Is his bone marrow not making red blood cells? Does he need B-12 vitamin? Is he losing blood? And those are just a few questions that need to be asked.

Your medicine (which you named elsewhere in your letter) has in it iron, copper and B-vitamins. If you no longer have the anemia, I would guess that you no longer need it. However, it is most unusual to see a complete disappearance of an anemia in one week. Perhaps your red blood cell count was not very low. You should ask your doctor what he wants you to do now.

Leukemia is not inherited. Your grandfather's illness has nothing to do with your blood report.

Taxpayer victimized

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — A small businessman in Portland, Maine, was stunned last June when without any warning the Internal Revenue Service seized $9,000 from his bank account.

The besieged businessman, Richard Dyke, had been the innocent victim of an embezzlement which, in turn, had caused a $20,000 tax delinquency. He had received permission from IRS officials to pay off the debt in monthly installments of $2,000.

He had kept up the payments faithfully for several months. Then suddenly, the IRS descended on his bank account and grabbed $9,000 to pay off the balance of the bill.

In some ways, Dyke may have been luckier than Maurice Bishop, a Michigan businessman who had also been victimized by an embezzler and wound up owing the federal government $40,000 in taxes as a result. The IRS slapped a lien on property worth $400,000 to assure payment of the delinquency.

BISHOP PAID OFF $20,000 of the tax debt in cash; the IRS refused to release any of the lien. Even after the balance was paid off early last July, the tax bloodhounds took their sweet time getting the lien erased from court records, tying up Bishop's $400,000 worth of property for several months.

Incredibly, both the seizure of Dyke's money and the crippling lien against Bishop's property were perfectly legal under IRS regulations and the enormous discretionary authority Congress has given to the tax masters.

Like the Mamelukes of ancient Egypt — the class of bureaucratic slaves who eventually came to control their royal masters — IRS officials have become the rulers of the American public they are supposed to serve. Though most of them exercise their awesome power reasonably and responsibly, the potential for capricious enforcement becomes a temptation that some revenue officers can't resist.

It's arguable that Ronald Reagan's most effective campaign pledge was his promise to "get the government off our backs." And it's also arguable that many businessmen and ordinary taxpayers consider the petty despots of the IRS the government

Commercial fishing ban is difficult dilemma

Surprisingly, a bill banning commercial fishing for redfish and speckled trout in Texas bays and offshore has been one of the most difficult issues of the legislative session. We've been given more conflicting facts and figures on this issue than on any other.

I finally decided to vote for the commercial fishing ban. Supporters of the bill, mainly people involved in the sport fishing business, argue that redfish and speckled trout are rapidly becoming endangered species in the Gulf of Mexico. They claim that the catch of redfish has declined 60 percent since 1975 and the catch of trout has dropped 56 percent during the same period. They say this indicates a decline in the population of these fish.

The commercial fishermen, on the other hand, claim that Texas bays contain more of these fish than they have in the last 25 years. They say the number of fish caught has declined because of stricter state regulations.

The State Parks & Wildlife Department does say that the population of these fish is declining. So, assuming they're correct, the most important question must be: How do we reverse this decline and, at the same time, harm the fewest number of people the least amount?

Commercial fishermen catch approximately 75 percent of the redfish and speckled trout. Obviously, this means that banning commercial fishing for these fish would be the single most effective measure we could take to conserve the fish population.

But what of these people? How can we justify taking their livelihoods from them? Wouldn't it be fairer to prohibit sport fishing, since that would only deprive sport fishermen of a recreational activity and not their means of earning a living?

But we have to consider the people who rely on sport fishing for their livings, too. There are relatively few commercial fishermen who earn their living out of Texas ports. Their total earnings are estimated at a maximum of $5 million per year.

Sport fishing, on the other hand, draws an estimated 800,000 people to the Texas Gulf Coast each year, and when you consider the fishing tackle, charter boat, bait and resort business involved, these fishermen contribute literally hundreds of millions of dollars a year to the Texas economy.

As one witness put it, a fish in the water is worth 100 times as much to the Texas economy as a fish iced down for sale. And that means good paying jobs for lots of Texans who may never set foot on a fishing boat.

So I voted with the majority in support of the commercial fishing ban. If the bill passes the Senate and is signed into law, Texans will still be able to eat trout and redfish—the bill allows them to be imported from other states. But that doesn't eliminate the dry taste in my mouth caused by the knowledge that this legislation may indeed drive some Texans out of their business of a lifetime.

Sen Bentsen joins mourners paying tribute to Bradley

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Saying General of the Army Omar N. Bradley was a "real hero," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, joined thousands of mourners who filed through an unadorned chapel at Fort Bliss to pay tribute to the nation's last five-star general.

"He was a real soldier's soldier," Bentsen said Sunday of Bradley, whose body has lain in state since last Thursday and will be flown by presidential jet to Washington, D.C. today for burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Bentsen said Bradley, 88, who died of a heart attack Wednesday in New York, "was a man who never sought war, but a man who inspired the troops. He was a real hero to all of us."

A private ceremony for Bradley's family was scheduled for Monday morning, after the chapel is closed to the general public. A 19-man honor guard will escort the casket from the chapel to the airport for its return trip, tentatively scheduled for late Monday morning. Bradley's body will be accompanied to Washington by his wife, Kitty.

The body was scheduled to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base in Washington and be taken to Bethlehem Chapel at the National Cathedral, where it will lie in state until funeral services Tuesday, scheduled for 2 p.m. EST.

An estimated 5,000 mourners have filed past Bradley's body in the adobe chapel at the West Texas post, many of them after attending church services Monday.

The visitors — several of them veterans who served under Bradley in WWII — sat silently in chapel pews, often watching a changing of the presidential honor guard that surrounded the casket bearing Bradley's body.

Bradley, who moved to El Paso in November 1977 because of the warm climate, had become a local celebrity in the city and had received several honors from city officials and civic groups.

Reaganites may trade tax cut idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration may trade its proposed three-year tax cut for a one-year plan and promises of more, says the chief budget writer in the Democratic-controlled House.

Administration officials "indicate they are willing to compromise on both the spending cut side and the tax cut side," Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said Sunday.

It was the first indication that the administration is ready to compromise on its proposed 30 percent cut in individual income tax over three years.

Admitting that he had no "official statements" from the administration, Jones said, "What I would propose is that we state policy clearly in Congress that we want to have a multiyear tax bill. But before we do it, we ought to come to grips with the spending side, and we ought to force Congress and the administration to spend before we have large tax cuts."

Such a statement of intention, Jones said on the CBS program "Face the Nation," would be binding on Congress and the administration only through "political pressure."

Jones said he believed the administration is willing to compromise because "there is a growing feeling that if you have a three-year, 30 percent cut in taxes that you're leaving yourself wide open to a very large deficit the third year out."

While Jones did not say who harbored that feeling, similar sentiments have been expressed by congressional Democrats.

The Republican-dominated Senate Budget Committee rejected Reagan's overall program last week after calculating that it would fall far short of the president's pledge of a balanced budget in 1984.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan called the one-year tax cut "less than half a loaf."

Dear Abby

Woman's Dreams Won't Hold Up in Court

DEAR ABBY: I am 68 years old and have had terrible luck with husbands. Three of them died on me. Abby, I have a crush on my lawyer. He is 61 and a bachelor. I have had this crush on him for nearly eight years. I've never gone out with him but I see him in his office when I have legal work for him to do. Whenever I see him, he is very nice to me and calls me by my first name.

I brought him some brownies once, and he said they were the best he ever had. I hinted that I was also a very good cook and would like to prove it to him sometime, but he just smiled and didn't say anything. I sent him a valentine but didn't have the nerve to sign it.

Maybe I'm just a foolish old lady to even think this man would have any interest in me, but I get so much pleasure just thinking about him. Abby, is there any harm in dreaming? It took me 25 years to get over George Brent.

ELSIE

DEAR ELSIE: There's no harm in dreaming. Dream castles are fun to build, so long as you don't try to live in them.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to share my own experience with PROBLEM CHILD, whose parents' fighting keeps him awake.

I had the same problem with my own parents 35 years ago. In a few months we will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, and I hope they will hold off fighting until after the guests leave. It took me a long time to realize how wonderful my parents are in every other way. They have been very loving to their children and grandchildren (if not to each other); prouder parents do not exist. They are generous far beyond their modest means.

It may be hard to understand, Abby, but beneath their quarrelsome lie hearts of gold.

LOVING SON

DEAR SON: That you are able to accept this one unpleasant part of your parents' behavior while appreciating to the full their more admirable qualities says a great deal for your maturity and understanding.

DEAR ABBY: I was very upset by the letter in your column from the young man who has Herpes Simplex. From his letter, one would assume that only "loose" women have this disease. Well, I'm a "nice" girl who has it.

I have been with only one man in my life, and he's my husband. I didn't have sexual relations until I was 20. I'm 28 now and have two children. My husband is not the kind to sleep around, so I'm sure he didn't bring it home to me.

Please print this, Abby. There are other "nice" women who have Herpes Simplex who may resent being told they have a venereal disease.

A NICE GIRL

DEAR NICE GIRL: You undoubtedly have Herpes Simplex 1. Herpes Simplex 2 (which is a venereal disease) is vastly different from Herpes Simplex 1 — a virus that causes cold sores or fever blisters. They are two different diseases caused by two different viruses. It is unfortunate that they bear the same name with only a number to differentiate them.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

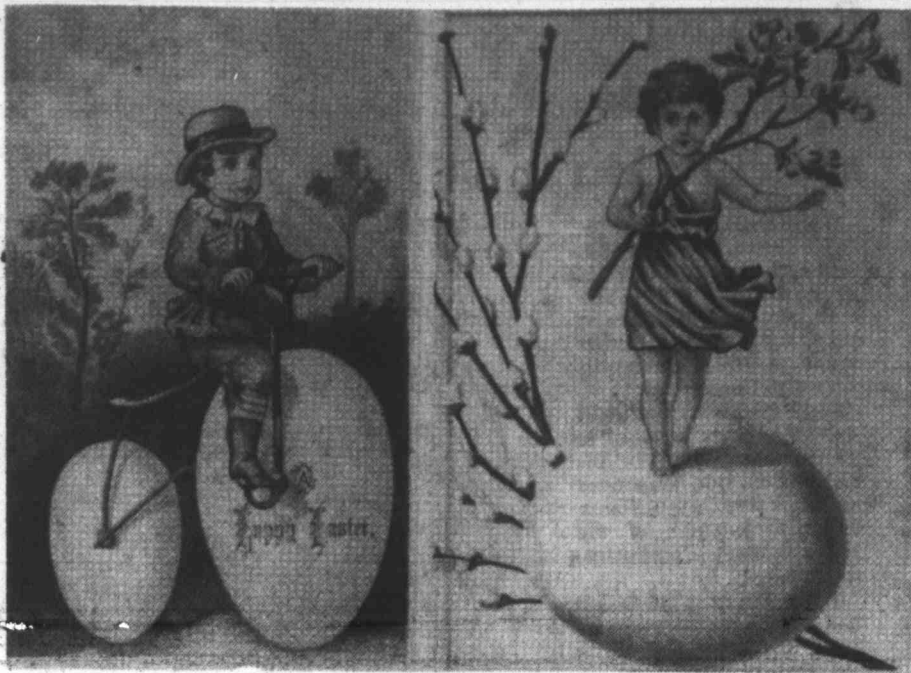

N400 may help unravel secrets of how we learn, says article

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "I'd like vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce and dishwasher." How did you react to that sentence? Two California neuroscientists have recently discovered what happens in the brain when a thought you read makes no sense to you. Such words elicit a certain brain wave, recently labeled N400, which may someday help researchers understand reading disorders.

"It's a kind of electric double take," says Dr. Marta Kutas, in issue of Seventeen. She and Dr. Steven Hillyard, both of the University of California-San Diego School of Medicine, discovered the N400-brain wave.

People with learning disabilities will eventually be hooked up to instruments and asked to read aloud. That way researchers may be able to determine the source of their difficulties.

"Ultimately we may be able to unravel the secrets of how we learn," says Dr. Kutas.

SPRING SYMBOL — Eggs have been exchanged as Easter gifts since ancient times and used in Easter card design since the first cards were published over 100 years ago. These, from the Hallmark Historical Collection, are typical of early Easter cards, which often used eggs as a symbol of spring and rebirth.

Easter cards hatched from Easter eggs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Easter eggs and Easter cards evolved from the same ancient gift-giving custom, according to an expert on the history of greeting cards.

Some of the earliest Easter cards published, in the mid-19th century, featured eggs as the primary Easter symbol.

Today, the egg is still one of the most popular symbols on Easter cards. And Easter is now the third largest card-sending occasion in the United States (after Christmas and Valentine's Day) with more than 150 million cards exchanged each year.

"The egg as a symbol of spring and new life dates to antiquity," says John Dinardo of Hallmark Cards. "The ancients decorated eggs and presented them as gifts to celebrate the coming of spring."

Early Christians adapted the custom by staining the eggs a deep red to symbolize the blood of Christ, says Dinardo, adding, "But the custom declined as populations grew and spread out. The eggs were too fragile to be transported over great distances."

"The Germans solved the problem around the middle of the 19th century by designing and sending the first Easter cards. The Easter card-sending custom so popular today is really just a modern variation of a very old tradition."

Many other 19th-century Easter-card symbols have weathered the test of time. Then, as now, religious scenes were extremely popular. Christ in various settings, winged angels in the sky, crosses and Bibles entwined with flowers, were all used to convey the reverent nature of Easter.

Like the egg, children were favored symbols of new life. And baby chicks and rabbits, so popular on modern-day cards, were widely used on the first Easter cards.

While Easter cards are among the most traditional, family-oriented designs sent, with Mother-Father cards the single biggest sellers, there is room for design innovation.

"This year the line will include many unusual floral illustrations," reports Dinardo. "Delicate oriental patterns, colorful floral arrangements over shiny black backgrounds, even X-ray photographs of flowers."

"A new 'heirloom' grouping features several designs that resemble 19th-century 'mechanical' cards. These cards unfold to form a standing base and four tiers of decorative floral artwork." Still, the more things change, the more they stay the same.

"The most popular series of cards in recent years feature floral designs in soft pastel colors laced with gold," said Dinardo. "They're die-cut cards in the shape of eggs."

Bold and romantic trends emerge on fashion scene

Spring is here and a woman's fancy lightly turns to—fashion!

"The new season's crop of fashionable separates and accessories gives women incredibly varied options," says Carolyn Yates, vice president of design for Trifari jewelry. "We see two major trends emerging, the bold and the romantic."

"The bold look focuses on exotic jungle prints like leopard and giraffe and big, bright florals, says Yates. Khaki is the newest neutral to pair with these stronger patterns, and new large-scale accessories are needed to make a statement.

Bold gold jewelry, large shiny earrings, chunkier bracelets and more assertive necklaces, will be important, but not in matched sets. "If you wear an unusual necklace of shiny gold leaves, for example, you might want to team it with simple gold hoop earrings, she says.

If your preference runs to soft flowing fabrics in delicate pastels of lilac, blue, violet, pink or peach, says the jewelry designer, your accessories can be less bold but no less stylish. A ladylike touch for a lace-trimmed blouse is a puffed frosted glass heart on a golden chain and delicate drop earrings. Strands of pearls twisted with blue violet or lavender-frosted glass beads can give a softer, more romantic look to a simple skirt and blouse. Frosted glass bangles wrapped with golden threads is another pretty touch, but mixing, not matching is the newer way to wear these accents.

For those who opt for a classic look, an unstructured linen suit in bone or khaki (perhaps with pants or culottes) can be this season's fashion staple, says Yates. It can be worn with white or toast cotton knit sweater or brightened up with a flower-printed blouse. And you can update last year's navy suit by adding a red leather belt and a strand of big, shiny red beads. A single chain of shiny, textured leaves is another fashion-right touch for tailored separates. For a flattering color accent, a string of angel skin coral beads (a pinkish coral streaked with white), can brighten all the neutral, gray, tan and taupe shades.

Whether you choose a bold, romantic or classic look for spring, says Yates, be a little bit more daring with your accessories and you'll reap big fashion dividends.

Oklahoma snake hunt lures many WAURIKA, Okla. (AP) — Snakeskin traders, motorcycle club "bikers," tourists, and local families with children swarmed to the 20th Annual Waurika Rattlesnake Hunt here over the weekend. Waurika's event was Oklahoma's first of the season this year. Those who didn't come to hunt or demonstrate their fearlessness in contests, such as "snake sacking," came to buy the skins, the rattles and the meat. Others just wanted to gawk at the reptiles, dozens of which were kept caged in chickenwire and wooden cages in the middle of Waurika's Main Street.

At one concession stand, children, adults and occasionally whole families had their pictures snapped while they held a live, writhing rattler. While it looked courageous, the snake's mouth had been defanged and securely sewn shut.

The main event of the weekend was the hunt itself. Those who registered with the hunt sponsors drove in car caravans to rocky areas outside Waurika, where they searched under rocks and other likely places for the reptiles.

Trophies and cash prizes were awarded for the longest, the heaviest and the most snakes captured. Competition was also stiff in the snake sacking contest, a timed event in which three live rattlers were dumped on a flatbed truck and contestants competed to see who could snatch up the three with long-handled hooks and their bare hands, then stuff the reptiles into gunny sacks.

Man arrested after seventh arson-caused Fort Worth fire

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A former convict was arrested by Fort Worth police Sunday after the seventh arson-caused fire in recent weeks broke out near the campus of Texas Christian University.

Arson investigators said the 25-year-old man was being held in the city jail and is a suspect in at least two of the TCU-area fires.

The seven fires have caused more than $1 million in damage to buildings and businesses on or near the campus, city fire officials said.

The first fire was reported on March 8 in the TCU

Baptist Student Union about five blocks from the site of Sunday's blaze. Fire investigators believe the series of fires is the work of at least two people.

Sunday's arrest came only minutes after the one-alarm blaze was reported at a South Fort Worth office building owned by Shannon & Associates, an insurance company, and located about three blocks from the campus.

Fire Capt. W.E. Dunkin estimated damage to the building at $25,000 and damage to its contents, including a computer system, at another $25,000.

Braniff management pay hikes prompt union unrest

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International Corp.'s decision to grant 864 management employees raises averaging 11.4 percent prompted open criticism of company president John J. Casey Sunday by union employees who only last month agreed to a 10 percent pay cut to help the ailing airline survive.

"I'm surprised somebody hasn't already taken a rope with a noose in it and his name on it and thrown it over one of the rafters here," said Braniff mechanic Richard Ransopher, 43, one of 4,000 to 5,000 employees who attended a company party Sunday night in Fort Worth.

Casey attended Sunday night's party at Billy Bob's Texas, an arena-like country-western nightclub whose management staged the event "out of gratitude to the company for promoting tourism in the area," an airline spokesman said.

But as union employees drank beer and cocktails and grumbled about their paychecks, Casey and other top Braniff officials retired to the quiet confines of the nightclub's VIP lounge after the company president delivered a brief greeting on the bar stage. Paychecks received last week by Braniff's union employees were the first to include the 10 percent temporary payout they approved last month.

"The pay cut was approved as part of a company program under which employees would share in the airline's future profits. Braniff reported a net loss last year of $128.5 million and Casey has predicted that the company will still be in the red when figures for the first quarter of 1981 are in.

Casey claims the extent of the company's losses was a surprise to him when he took control in January. The proposed management raises, he said, are needed to prevent competing airlines from staging a raid on Braniff's non-contract managerial staff.

Well aware of the implications of the union discontent, the Braniff chairman has scheduled five meetings with company employees this week to discuss the pay issue.

"Some but not all" of the company's unions were notified of the management pay hike in advance, Casey said. He declined to specify which ones were told, however.

Officials of the Teamsters Local 19 and the International Association of Machinists have been most critical of the pay increase, but Casey blames their reaction in part on press reports that have been "completely out of context."

"This thing has torn us up at a very critical time," he said.

Some union leaders have already predicted protests from rank-and-file over the pay issue. "People are going to be raising total hell," said Jerry Emmel, assistant general manager of the Machinists Local 146.

"I don't see how they can justify this if the company is in trouble," he said, "except maybe for raises in a few key positions."

The raises include all non-union supervisory and staff employees but exclude officers of the company, Braniff spokesman Ray Chanaud said. However, he said, the possibility of raises for officers will be discussed at a board meeting next month.

Agents discover passes Hinckley visited Tower's office

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley apparently made a visit to the office of Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, before he went to the Washington Hilton two weeks ago to wait for President Reagan to finish speaking before a labor group.

FBI agents found on him a pass — with Tower's stamp on it — allowing him to gain entrance to the U.S. Senate gallery. He also had a pass overlooking the floor of the House of Representatives, but it was obtained from a non-Texas congressman.

Anyone going to either gallery must first walk through a metal detector passage, so officials said Hinckley would have been unable to make it either place with a weapon.

Since Hinckley was known to have arrived in Washington by bus on Sunday night, March 29, he could have obtained the gallery passes only the following morning, a short while before the assassination attempt.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, was stunned by a description he read last week in the Washington Post about the South Plains city and about Texas Tech, where he graduated and where he was on the faculty for a while.

In an article tracing the life of Hinckley over the past several years, the Post suggested Hinckley obviously fell short of the standards achieved by his brother and sister.

His brother went to Vanderbilt, "often referred to as the Harvard of the South," the Post said, and his sister was elected cheerleader at Highland Park High School, a prestigious honor.

But Hinckley, the story said, went in 1973 to Lubbock — "a dusty, windswept college town in West Texas" — (to Texas Tech, an engineering oriented university that accepts 99 percent of its applicants.)

Hinckley bought a hand gun from a Lubbock pawn shop while attending Texas Tech, the story continued, adding:

"A penchant for guns hardly strikes anyone as ominous in free-wheeling Lubbock, where some university students carry guns to class and the pistol-galaxy passes only the following morning, a short while before the assassination attempt."

Bill McAllister, mayor of Lubbock, shared Hance's ire.

"I resent the comment and slur made by the article. I would tend to believe the person who wrote the article has never been to Lubbock, and I would certainly invite that person or persons to come to Lubbock and see what the city is really like," said McAllister, who owns a Lubbock television station.

Calendar jammed 'Prevailing wage' law faces attack

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate calendar is filling up with heavyweight bills, including a proposal to repeal the "prevailing wage" law that is so important to organized labor.

House members were scheduled to vote today on Gov. Bill Clements' bills on public school curriculum reform, penalties for possessing drug paraphernalia and creation of a State Personnel Standards Board.

An aide to Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, said Meier's wage bill would repeal the "little Davis-Bacon" law that has been in effect since the Depression.

The law says workers on state construction jobs must get the "prevailing wage" paid construction workers in the area.

Meier aide Doug Richnow said, "Usually this means union scale."

He said the General Accounting Office had recommended repeal of the federal prevailing wage law, estimating that it raises the cost of construction projects by 10 percent.

Meier needs a two-thirds vote of the Senate to get the bill up for debate, and Richnow said, "Frankly, we're one vote short."

Also ready for Senate debate are bills that would legalize oral confessions and would require the embalming of corpses that remain unburied for 24 hours or more.

The embalming requirement was eliminated last year, and undertakers have lobbied hard to have it restored. Consumer groups say bereaved families should have a choice and insist that undertakers view embalming as a way to guarantee the traditional open-casket funeral.

Later in the week, the House will take up Speaker Bill Clayton's constitutional amendment dedicating the state treasury surplus to water projects, bond retirement and an emergency fund.

House and Senate budget writers worked late last week and Sunday to finish the $26 billion general appropriation bill for 1982-83.

The House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee is expected to decide Wednesday on a wiretapping bill to send to the floor for full debate. Clayton predicted "rough sledding" but used his influence to get it out of the subcommittee where it had been bottled up for a month.

Clements made the wiretapping bill the cornerstone of his anti-crime package, saying electronic surveillance would help catch kingpins of the drug traffic who have managed to elude prosecution.

A bill repealing the state's "blue law," which lists 46 categories of merchandise that cannot legally be sold both on Saturday and Sunday is expected to win House Business and Industry Committee approval today.

Can Jenkins win 300?

NEW YORK (AP) — There was a time, not so very long ago, when Ferguson Jenkins thought 300 victories was out of his reach. There are, after all, only so many pitches in a man's arm and Jenkins' arm is 37 years old. "I was going to quit," the Texas Ranger right-hander said. But a new contract, signed before spring training, changed his mind and Jenkins is back on the road to 300 after beating the New York Yankees 6-4 Sunday for his 260th career win. "The club is still confident in me," he said. "They extended my contract through 1982 with an option year after that. If I stay healthy and do the job, I can be with this team through 1983 and if I do that and get the runs to work with, I think I can win 300." Jenkins already is one of only four pitchers to win 100 in each league — Cy Young, Jim Bunning and Gaylord Perry are the others. He has climbed off the pitching scrap heap once or twice before. "The Cubs said I was all through in '73 when they traded me," he said. "Then I was washed up in '76 at Boston when I had the Achilles tendon but self-will is something you have to consider. That and personal confidence, this team has confidence in me and I have confidence in myself." Jenkins held the Yankees at bay for 6 2-3 innings and relievers John Henry Johnson and Jim Kern finished the job as Texas beat New York ace Ron Guidry for the first time after seven losses. Al Oliver and Mickey Rivers delivered two-run singles, helping the Rangers bounce back from an early 3-0 deficit. The turning point came in the seventh inning with the score tied at 3-3. Jim Sundberg opened with a single and then Mario Mendoza faked a bunt, swung away and doubled off third baseman Craig Nettles' glove. Bump Wills followed with an RBI-double and Rivers singled in two more runs. "With Mendoza, we took the bunt off and went to the hit and run," said Ranger Manager Don Zimmer. "I took a shot and played hit and run because Nettles was 15 feet from him and so was (first baseman) Jim Spencer." Nettles, who had one of three solo homers hit by the Yankees, thought he should have caught Mendoza's ball. "It wasn't hit that sharply and went off the edge of my glove," he said. "But you don't get much practice fielding balls 40 feet from the

'Brown Bomber' dead at 66

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, the "Brown Bomber" who dealt a blow to Hitler's racial doctrines by defeating a German prizefighter and helped open the sport to other blacks, has died at the age of 66. Louis, who died Sunday at Desert Springs Hospital here, held the heavyweight crown for 12 years and fought off 25 challengers after taking the title — a record for successful defenses. "Joe was a boxing genius," said Max Schmeling, the German whom Louis defeated in a 1938 rematch. Louis, who had been in ill health for some time and was confined to a wheelchair, collapsed in his home. "He was in a cardiac arrest state when he arrived. They did everything they could to revive him," said Shirley Brown, nursing supervisor at the hospital. Louis' wife, Martha, and other relatives were at his side. His body will lie Thursday at Caesar's Palace, where he had worked as a greeter. "We've lost another great American," said entertainer Bob Hope, once an amateur fighter, who attended Friday night fights in Hollywood during World War II with Army Cpl. Joe Louis. "He opened up boxing to every black fighter," said Teddy Brenner, former president of Madison Square Garden Boxing. "He even led the way for guys like Jackie Robinson in other sports." In 71 professional fights over 17 years, Louis won 68 and lost just three. Of his wins, 54 were knockouts, 12 coming in the first round. He may be best remembered for his rematch victory over Schmeling, who defeated Louis in a stunning upset in 1936. On June 22, 1938, in Yankee Stadium, Schmeling crashed to the floor three times before the rematch was stopped in the first round. The United States rejoiced at the victory, internationally significant because of Hitler's racial doctrine of "Aryan supremacy." A 6-foot-1 1/2, 200-pounder, Louis relentlessly and gracefully stalked his opponents. When he struck, it was with a quick jab and rapid, powerful combinations. When his opponent went down, Louis would move indifferently to a neutral corner and wait for the referee to end it. Louis was born Joseph Louis Barrow in Lafayette, Ala., on May 13, 1914, and was raised in a Detroit ghetto. At 23, he won the title by knocking out 31-year-old James J. Braddock in 1937. In 17 years as a boxer, he earned nearly $5 million. But he lived in high style and was in constant income-tax difficulty. He retired from the ring on March 1, 1949, but 27 months later, pressed for money, he came out of retirement to fight reigning champion Ezzard Charles and was defeated. "I'll never fight again," he said. But two months later he was back in action with a string of victories. His career ended at 37, when Rocky Marciano, 28, knocked him out in a Oct. 26, 1951, bout. Benefit game rescheduled A special basketball game to benefit the March of Dimes has been rescheduled for April 29. The game between Big Spring High School senior boys and a team made up of coaches and teachers was to have been played Thursday. Since students will leave school early Thursday for Easter vacation, however, the game will now take place on the 29th. The public is urged to attend the match. Admission is 25 cents, and all proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

Even Kings' coach is shocked

By the Associated Press
Even their coach, Cotton Fitzsimmons, is surprised at the success of the Kansas City Kings.
"I'm not going to kid you, I sure am surprised that we're leading 3-1," said Fitzsimmons, whose Kings held off the Phoenix Suns 102-95 Sunday to move within one victory of wrapping up their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series.
In the other West semifinal, the San Antonio Spurs edged the Houston Rockets 114-112 to even the series at two victories apiece. In the East, the Boston Celtics beat the Chicago Bulls 109-103 to complete a three-game sweep while the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 109-98 to tie their series at 2-2.
The Kings have taken the play away from the Pacific Division champion Suns despite having lost one of the best starting backcourt tandems in the National Basketball Association, Phil Ford and Otis Birdsong, because of injuries.
Their replacements, former reserve Ernie Grunfeld and converted forward Scott Wedman, combined for 48 points in Sunday's victory, the Kings' sixth in nine games against the Suns this season. And it was the fifth time in seven playoff games that Kansas City has held its opponent under 100 points.

"I thought the Kings played as tough a defense as we've seen all season," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "Kansas City did a great job on the offensive boards."
The Kings City defense, led by Grunfeld's three steals, capitalized on 15 Phoenix turnovers, while the Kings lost the ball just nine times.
Grunfeld led the Kings with 27 points, including a 12-foot jumper that gave Kansas City a 91-90 lead with 5:52 to play. Phoenix came as close as three in the final minutes, but two free throws apiece by Wedman and Sam Lacey locked up the victory.
Grunfeld contributed three steals for the Kings, who slowed the tempo of the game and committed only nine turnovers. Wedman and forward Reggie King scored 21 points apiece while Len Robinson led Phoenix with

Spurs 114, Rockets 112
George Gervin scored 33 points to lead San Antonio over Houston in their Texas shootout.
The Spurs led 100-87 but Houston rallied and nearly tied the game, but a driving layup attempt by the Rockets' Robert Reid fell off the rim at the buzzer. Reid, who led Houston with 33 points, claimed he was fouled on the play.
"I tried to stuff it and just got kicked out of my rhythm," said Reid. "When I put my foot down to go up I was tripped. It made me go up too early. I tried to lean forward and put it through but I couldn't do it."
James Silas and Mark Olberding added 21 points apiece for San Antonio while Houston center Moses Malone, a dominant factor earlier in the series, was limited to 17 points and nine rebounds.
Celtics 109, Bulls 103
Larry Bird scored 35 points, including eight in the final 2:19, as Boston wrapped up its series.
Chicago grabbed a 103-102 lead with just under one minute remaining when Reggie Theus hit a pair of free throws. But Bird countered with a layup to put Boston ahead to stay. Cedric Maxwell followed with a free throw and Bird added four more from the foul line in the final seven seconds to finish Chicago off.

"That's what Bird is all about," said Bulls Coach Jerry Sloan. "He can do it when the game is on the line. In all my time in basketball, he is the most complete ballplayer I have ever seen."
The sweep left Bulls center Artis Gilmore in awe of the way the Celtics go about their business.
"You can't beat the system," said Gilmore, "and they've got the best. They know when to pass and when to go to the boards. They know when to run and when to get back on defense. And the most important thing is, they know what almost everybody is doing at all times."

David Greenwood led Chicago with 24 points and Gilmore added 19 and a game-high 15 rebounds.
Bucks 109, 76ers 98
Marques Johnson shot 16-for-25 and scored 35 points for the Bucks, who built an 18-point first-half lead and held off a rally that saw Philadelphia pull within one in the final period.

Big Spring Herald SPORTS MONDAY

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, APRIL 13, 1981

SECTION B SECTION B

Day belongs to new Masters winner

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Sunday spring outing in the splendor of Augusta belonged to Tom Watson, champion of the Masters golf tournament.
The green jacket fit perfectly, unlike 1977 when it was baggy.
The color matched nicely, with his green pinstriped shirt and solid green pants.
And the victory was quite fitting, too. It matched his position in golf. At the top, alone.
The Masters was won by Watson. It was lost by Jack Nicklaus. It was won by the best player in golf today, lost by the best player the game has ever known.
And the strains of Watson's winning song at the expense of Nicklaus seemed oh, so similar to the requiem for Arnold Palmer, played by Nicklaus almost two decades ago.

"It feels great to beat the top player in the game for the last 20 years," said Watson. "I'd be lying to you if I said it didn't. Of course, it does."
Watson assaulted Nicklaus' kingly position twice in 1977 — in the Masters, and again in the British Open.
In the Masters that year, Nicklaus and Watson were tied for the lead after 17 holes in the final round. Nicklaus was playing in front of Watson, and stood poised on the 18th for his second shot.
Suddenly, a thunderous roar erupted from the 17th green. It meant only one thing. Watson had birdied the hole.

Nicklaus promptly hit his shot in the bunker, took a bogey on the final hole and lost the tournament by two strokes.
The British Open finale was even more dramatic. Watson and Nicklaus were paired the final two rounds. Each fired 65s in the third round, setting the stage for one of the finest golfing moments in history.
Nicklaus shot a 66, a tournament record, and still lost. Watson shot a 65.
The dawning of the Tom Watson era had arrived. The passing of the Jack Nicklaus era had begun, slowly perhaps, but nevertheless passing. The changing of the guard had occurred.
Nicklaus was not to win another major tournament for two years, until 1980 when he silenced whisperers of erosion of his stature with victory at the U.S. Open and the PGA.

Nicklaus is 41 now. He stands between Palmer at 51 and Watson at 31. Their ages span three decades.
Palmer failed to make the cut in the 45th Masters at Augusta National Golf Club, where tradition and dogwoods and azaleas and stately pines abound.
Nicklaus soared to a 4-stroke lead with a 65 in the second round, then proceeded to blow it with a 75 on Saturday.
He shot even par 72 on Sunday, a round he was not particularly proud of.
"I hurt myself the same way today that I did yesterday," he said. He bogeyed No. 7 and No. 9 both days.

Watson, nervous yet cool, under pressure that never intensified, fired a one-under 71.
The confrontation everyone expected never really developed.
Nicklaus dropped three back at one point, then rallied but never threatened the slight, sandy-haired Watson.
The Big Spring Umpires Association will meet, 7 p.m. Tuesday, in the Teachers Credit Union building, 1110 Benton. All interested parties are invited to attend.

JUST WON'T GO — Golfer Sandra Post, a native of Ontario, residing in Boynton Beach, Fla., lines up a putt, left, and reacts to it, during Sunday's final round of the American Defender-WRAL Golf Tournament played at the North Ridge Country Club. Post's putt fell short. She finished the tournament at 214 six shots behind winner Donna Caponi.

How do you spell relief?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With her lead dwindling and another golfer threatening to overtake her, the last thing Donna Caponi needed was a case of jangled nerves and a headache.

So, she took a couple of aspirin and went on to capture a victory in the American Defender-WRAL Classic at the North Ridge Country Club, outlasting Cathy Sherk by one stroke.

"I took two aspirin on the 14th green to relax," Caponi said. "That was just enough to calm me down."

In addition to her nerves, Caponi had to battle hay fever.

"I feel like one big piece of pollen," she said after collecting the first-prize money of $18,750.

Caponi seemed ready to wrap up the tournament when she went to 9-under par and 3 strokes ahead of her nearest competitor. But bogeys at 14 and 15, plus an eagle by Sherk, whittled the margin to a stroke with three holes left to play.

After both golfers came up with par on the 16th, the break Caponi needed came on the par-5 17th hole. On their second shots, Caponi landed about 30 feet short of the green while Sherk sent her approach into the gallery on the left side. Although Sherk needed a good chip over a bunker and two putts to salvage par, Caponi rolled home a 10-footer.

Foursome wins event

A team composed of Ray Bluhm, Tano Chavarria, Gary Wells and Gene Fletcher put together a score of 137 to win the place in the Louisiana Draw Tournament held at Comanche Trail Golf Course Sunday. The event, sponsored by the Big Spring Golf Association, attracted 60 players.

In second place, all alone at 61, was the quartet consisting of Tony Starr, Charles Bailey, Paul Grivin and Jerry Scoggins.

Two teams tied for third place, each with a score of 62. One consisted of Royce Cox, Ron Booth, Charles Burdette and Bill Davey. The other was composed of Keith Hamilton, Lloyd Duncan, J.A. Edwards and Buddy Duncan.

Weekend American League action

Where the heck is Oakland's bullpen?

By the Associated Press.

If the Oakland A's have a bullpen, it is the best-kept secret in baseball. And while other relief-happy managers have earned the sobriquet of "Captain Hook," Oakland's Billy Martin apparently wants nothing to do with his relief pitchers ... whoever they are.

Steve McCatty fired 62-3 hitless innings Sunday and stopped Minnesota on three soft singles as the A's blanked the Twins 1-0 to complete a sweep of their four-game season-opening series — all complete games by a staff which had 94 route-going efforts a year ago, a modern major league record. "You don't suppose Billy's going for 162, do you?" Minnesota Manager Johnny Goryl asked wryly after seeing his club shut out for the second day in a row, extending its scoreless skein to 26 innings.

McCatty was just one of several American League pitchers who flirted with no-hitters Sunday. Kansas City's Dennis Leonard also didn't allow a hit until the seventh inning as the Royals downed the Baltimore Orioles 4-2; Chicago's Richard Dotson went six before yielding a hit but the Boston Red Sox rallied to down the White Sox 5-4, and Toronto's Luis Leal lost his bid after 52-3 innings as the Blue Jays trimmed the Detroit Tigers 6-2.

Elsewhere, the Texas Rangers defeated the New York Yankees 6-4, the Milwaukee Brewers trounced the Cleveland Indians 6-1 and the California Angels scored four times in the ninth to turn back the Seattle Mariners 8-6.

Minnesota's only hits off McCatty were a checked-swing grounder by Glenn Adams with two out in the seventh inning which bounced off McCatty's foot and bloop singles by Mickey Hatcher and Rob Wilfong. Oakland got its run in the first when Rickey Henderson led off with a double off Pete Redfern, was sacrificed to third and scored on a single by Dave Revering.

"No-hitters are a freak thing," said McCatty. "I look at it this way — I just go out and try to win the ballgame. Anything else is extra. Shoot, this was only the second shutout of my life."

The four straight victories represent the best start since the A's moved from Kansas City to Oakland in 1968. The four losses ties Minnesota's worst start. The Twins were 0-4 in 1980 under ... Billy Martin.

"They're impressive," Goryl said of the Oakland starters. "I can't remember four games like that. I'm glad to see them leave town."

Royals 4, Orioles 2
Dennis Leonard retired the first 15 Baltimore batters before issuing a walk. He lost his no-hit bid when Rich Dauer opened the seventh with a ground-ball double inside third base. By that time, Kansas City had a 4-0 lead on Clint Hurdle's two-run homer and RBI singles by U.L. Washington and Hal McRae.

Red Sox 5, White Sox 3
Jim Rice capped a five-run eighth inning with a grand slam homer. After Dotson gave up an infield hit by Dwight Evans and a bloop single by Tony Perez in the seventh, the Red Sox exploded an inning later with two out. Rick Miller then doubled and scored on a single by Jerry Remy.

Dotson was replaced by relief ace Ed Framer but Dave Stapleton singled, Evans walked and Rice hit the next pitch for the second grand slam of his career.

Weekend National League action

He sure doesn't bat like a fat guy

By the Associated Press.

Ever since he reported to training camp this spring at more than 250 pounds this year, Dave Parker's weight has been a hefty issue.

But if he continues to hit the way he did Sunday, his batting average will be a lot fatter than his waistline.

"Dave Parker is swinging the bat and running like the Dave Parker in the MVP year he had," Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner said after his full-bodied outfielder smashed three hits, including a home run, that helped the Pirates beat the Montreal Expos 3-2.

"I've never thought a thing about his weight," added Tanner. "All I want him to do is be healthy. People make big issues out of things, but Dave is a big man. He's 6-foot-5, and Dave plays hard and he plays every day."

Parker weighed about 225 pounds when he won the National League's Most Valuable Player award in 1978. But after knee surgery during the past off-season, he reported to the Pirates' camp at an acknowledged weight of 255 pounds.

Near the close of spring training, Chicago White Sox broadcaster Jimmy Piersall likened Parker to a "baby hippo or a baby whale" and suggested he might weigh 260-270 pounds.

Parker initially responded with, "Let them look at my stats in October." But he was silent Sunday, declining to talk to reporters.

In other NL games, the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 7-3; the Atlanta Braves nipped the Cincinnati Reds 3-2; the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Houston Astros 3-2 and the San Francisco Giants outlasted the San Diego Padres 7-6 in 14 innings.

Montreal rookie Tim Raines helped the Expos take a 1-0 lead in the first inning when he led off with a triple off Rick Rhoden and scored on Andre Dawson's bloop single.

But Parker smacked Ray Burris' first pitch of the fourth inning over the right field fence at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium for his first homer of the season and Jason Thompson followed with his first homer in a Pittsburgh uniform and the Pirates were on their way.

Atlanta Braves nipped the Cincinnati Reds 3-2; the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Houston Astros 3-2 and the San Francisco Giants outlasted the San Diego Padres 7-6 in 14 innings.

Rhoden got the victory with late relief help from Enrique Romo.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 3
Garry Templeton tripled home one run during a three-run rally in the fifth inning and scored the winning run on first baseman Pete Rose's error, keying St. Louis' triumph over Philadelphia.

Winner Larry Sorensen, acquired by the Cardinals in a winter trade from the Milwaukee Brewers, restricted the Phillies to five hits before giving way to Bruce Sutter in the final three innings. Philadelphia right-hander Larry Christenson was the chief victim of a 13-hit Cardinal attack, which included two Templeton triples.

Braves 3, Reds 2
Dale Murphy's RBI single in the eighth inning capped a two-run rally and led Atlanta over Cincinnati. Murphy's game-winning hit came after consecutive doubles by Claudell Washington and Glenn Hubbard had tied the game 2-2 against losing reliever Tom Hume.

The Reds had taken a 2-1 lead in the top of the eighth on an RBI single by Joe Nolan and Larry Blittner's sacrifice fly off reliever Rick Camp.

Braves Manager Bobby Cox said, however, that Murphy "had a lot of chances to drive in runs in the series — and he did drive in the big ones."

Astros lose third in a row

Dodger pitchers hang tough

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers' pitching was supposed to be full of holes after they lost veteran Don Sutton to free agency and injuries beset Jerry Reuss, Dave Goltz and Bob Welch.

But after the first three games of the 1981 season, the Dodgers' beleaguered staff is 3-0 and the bullpen has recorded a save.

Rick Sutcliffe followed victories by Fernando Valenzuela and Burt Hooten in the first two games of the season-opening series against Houston with a win of his own on Sunday, 3-2.

Sutcliffe, hoping to return to his 17-win form of 1979 after only three victories and a 5.56 earned run average last year, scattered six hits into the eighth inning but needed relief help from Steve Howe as the Dodgers completed a sweep of the National League West defending champion Astros.

"I don't know how much this first win means," the 24-year-old Sutcliffe said. "It's been a long winter. It's very rewarding, especially after last season when I had the feeling of not belonging."

Sutcliffe spent the winter in the Arizona Instructional League and later in the Dominican Republic, under the tutelage of Los Angeles pitching coach Ron Ferranoski.

"Perry (Ferranoski) gave up a lot of his time, even at Christmas, to work with me," said Sutcliffe. "I feel I'm a starting pitcher again and that's where I feel I can help the club."

Sutcliffe shut out Houston on two hits for five innings, gave up a pinch homer to Dave Bergman to lead off the sixth and was still leading 3-1 with one out in the eighth. But pinch hitters Terry Puhl and Dennis Walling cuffed him for a single and a double, representing the tying runs, when Howe was summoned.

The left-handed reliever, last year's Rookie of the Year, got Jeff Leonard to fly to right, producing one run, but struck out Gary Woods to get out of the inning. Howe recorded two more strikeouts in the ninth inning to give him a career high of three for the game.

Ken Landreaux homered and doubled and Bill Russell had a double and two singles as the Dodgers collected eight hits off loser Vern Ruhle and two others.

Russell singled home Ron Cey with the Dodgers first run in the second inning and Landreaux followed a single by Dave Lopes in the third with his first National League home run.

The third successive sellout crowd at Dodger Stadium, 50,734, gave the Dodgers a total of 152,936 for the opening three games.

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APR. 14, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is fine for deciding just what your overall ambitions are and to implement them by constructive action. Strive to bring more efficiency into your life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't neglect to pay important bills. A co-worker could pose a problem at this time. Maintain your poise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to compromise more with an associate who does not agree with you. Plan how to gain your finest aims.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You find it hard to put your money away but later all changes for the better.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day to confer with associates and express your views. Figure out what obstacles you have to overcome.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Morning is fine for handling financial matters. Try to meet expectations of family members and increase harmony at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Schedule your activities wisely so that everything will go smoothly later. Sidestep one who has an eye on your assets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) State your plans to loyal friends and they will quickly cooperate with you in gaining them. Show more generosity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Express some hidden talents you have and make a fine impression on others. Take no risks in motion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You will have to exert more effort in business matters to gain your cherished goals. Think constructively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not the right time to engage in a new course of action. Show that you are wise. Relax at home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more cooperative with associates for mutual gain. Handle a responsibility that has been worrying you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk with a partner so that you can accomplish more in your line of endeavor. Stop wasting precious time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who will like to make changes of a creative nature and upon growing up will have a pretty good idea of what it takes to be successful. Give good ethical training and teach good health habits.

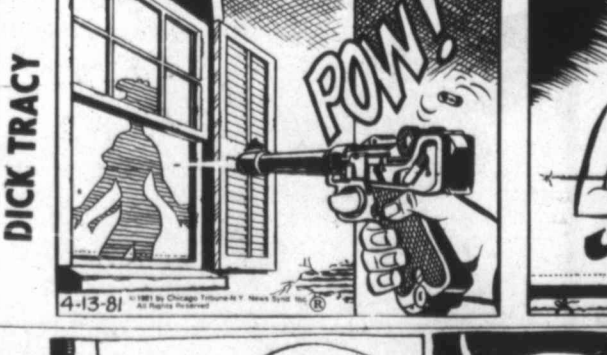

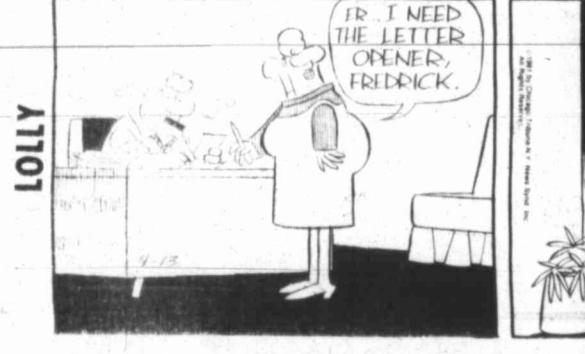

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
